Subdivision changes cause concern

Planners OK upscale apartments as part of Riverwood Trail development

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

A planned district development at the northwest corner of Geddes and Beck roads will include 150 upscale apartments, a change from a previously approved project.

The apartments would rent from $1,200 to $2,400 a month, depending on square footage.

The Canton Township Planning Commission voted 6-0 Monday night to allow Singh Development to change their original plans for Riverwood Trail subdivision – plans that had preliminary plat approval by the board of trustees in January 2001.

Since then Singh had obtained more land and added more single home lots and the apartments. The development will feature a two-acre pond at the Beck-Geddes corner, and 62 acres of open space.

Planning commission members said the multi-family buildings looked nice, based on the art renderings. However, they asked sharp questions about the need for more apartments in Canton.

"We are hemorrhaging apartments," commission chairman Vic Gustafson told Singh representative, Khanh Pham.

"I hope these (units) are ultimately condominiums. We have a lot of apartments," commissioner Melissa McLaughlin said.

"We are the other apartments," Pham responded. "There are apartments and

Brown out: Residents cope with water rules

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM

Think before giving plants and lawns a drink.

A drought-like lack of rain and a series of hot days has prompted a mandatory water use restriction for residents in most metro Detroit communities, including Canton. This means people with even-numbered addresses may do outdoor watering on even-numbered dates. People with odd-numbered addresses may do their outdoor watering on odd-numbered days. Violators could fines of up to $500 and up to 90 days in jail for the misdemeanor charge.

While municipal officials have given enforcement of water restrictions a low priority in previous years due to lack of manpower, some communities have said they will crack down if people don't curb water usage. On Monday, usage by customers of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department was expect-

Commercial strips to get new attention

Owners of commercial property in Canton can expect to be visited by the township's newest employee: Site Inspector Mark Hook.

Hook, who has 18 years of experience in the landscaping business, will visit all commercial properties in the township to determine whether they are still in compliance with their original site plan and general property maintenance standards.

"This position was created to fulfill a need," said Township Planner Jeff Goulet. "He'll be proactive in visiting sites on a regular basis and follow up with property owners about maintenance of the site. Our goal was to have someone who had a good background in the field."

Goulet said Hook will work under the planning supervisor in conjunction with the ordinance staff.

"The township always tries to get voluntary compliance (with property maintenance standards)," Goulet

Area Logan's Roadhouse reopens

Fund-raisers benefit Canton victim's family

BY LARRY O'CONNOR

A few patrons ate while staff went about their work. Logan's Roadhouse was "as normal as we can have it at this point," said a greeter at the door.

On Tuesday, the Livonia restaurant reopened, eight days after the brutal double homicide of managers Margaret "Deb" McCarty, 32, and Bill Harrison, 36, of Canton. A pair TV news trucks parked outside reminded customers and employees that it wasn't business as usual.

A former manager Ellis Robinson, 31, has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder.

Some employees couldn't bear to return to their workplace, a regional manager said. They chose to work at Logan's other outlets in Canton, Southgate and Troy instead.

A larger question still remained: Will customers come back?

Industry experts told Logan's officials to expect an immediate 40-50 percent drop-off in business, said Jim Kuehnhold, Logan's Roadhouse director

Holiday Market staffers fill bill as hometown PX

"He said they were living in tents with cement floors in the middle of the desert," Twietmeyer said. "Basically they were away from civilization."

He said the troops were hot, bored and had a lot of "down time." And he said there were some things the troops could use that were not available to them – specifically: Chapstick, baby wipes and American bubble gum,

Report: Woman, 25, faces domestic assault charge

A 25-year-old Garden City woman was arrested for domestic assault and battery after reportedly assaulting the father of her children, a 26-year-old Canton man. The incident occurred 7:51 p.m. Sunday, June 14 in the 41000 block of Old Michigan. A police report stated that when the Canton man arrived home, she began swearing and yelling and slapped him in the face. She told police that she slapped him in self-defense.

COP CALLS

DRUNKEN DRIVING

A female of undisclosed age and residence was cited for operating under the influence of liquor just before midnight on Saturday, July 13. A Canton police officer, responding to a personal injury accident involving the woman, performed a Breathalyzer test, which showed a .21 level, exceeding Michigan's legal limit of .10. Witnesses told police that she caused the accident by running a red light while she headed west on Cherry Hill, colliding with a car heading south on Lilley. She reportedly told police that she was returning from a wine tasting in Dearborn and had drunk two large glasses of wine.

A police report stated that she was too unsteady to adequately perform field sobriety tests.

THREATENING LETTERS

A Canton physician who reportedly received threatening mail from someone he believes is a former patient is seeking a personal protection order and may press charges.

He told police that in April, he informed a patient, who had filed a lawsuit against Providence Hospital where he works as a physician, that he could no longer be her physician. In June, he received a letter from an anonymous sender using a post office box. Certain details in the letter pointed to her being the sender, including references to patients with HIV and AIDS.

The physician told police that he believes the woman may be stalking him because she knows where he lives and knows the location of his Lenawee County summer home.

DRUG ARREST

A man of undisclosed age and residence was cited 8:30 a.m. Saturday, July 13 for violation of the public health code after a police officer, performing a traffic stop on Michigan, west of Beck because of tinted windows, discovered a plastic bag containing marijuana during a search of his person.

Squabble puts public restroom on hold

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Efforts to build a public restroom in downtown Plymouth have stalled as a feud has developed between downtown businessmen who are raising money for the estimated $80,000 project and city officials.

Commissioners were set to approve the construction of the restroom building on the northwest corner of the Gathering Monday night. However, two members of the downtown retail committee, John Thomas and Jim McKeon, expressed concerns about the process in selecting the location and determining cost estimates.

The two claim the last time they saw plans for the project, the restroom was located inside the Gathering on the west side. However, at Monday's meeting, City Manager Paul Sincock noted the location staked out by the city is about 10 feet further north and just outside the Gathering.

Thomas, who said he had commitments to pay for the bathroom building, including some of his own money, stormed away from the meeting after speaking to the commission.

"We've been the promoting party to put the thing forward in the first place, voluntarily pay for the architectural (drawings), and then get sandbagged in the end," said Thomas.

City officials want to keep the public restroom facility outside the Gathering because groups such as the Kiwanis, Rotary and Farmer's Market use the area for special events.

"This location works best ... there is some minor effect to one or two of the events, but nothing that will cause them any great concern," said Sincock.

Cost is another factor. Detroit Edison estimates moving electrical lines in the city's plan would cost about $5,000, while the cost to move a transformer if the bathroom is constructed inside the Gathering is almost equal to the expense of building the restroom.

"My whole goal is to have a bathroom, and have minimal cost to move the utilities so that most of the dollars available could be used to build the facility," said Mayor Bill Graham.

Commissioners delayed action on the location until a meeting is held to smooth over relations and develop a plan of action.

Restored house shines at ice cream social

It was a house party – literally.

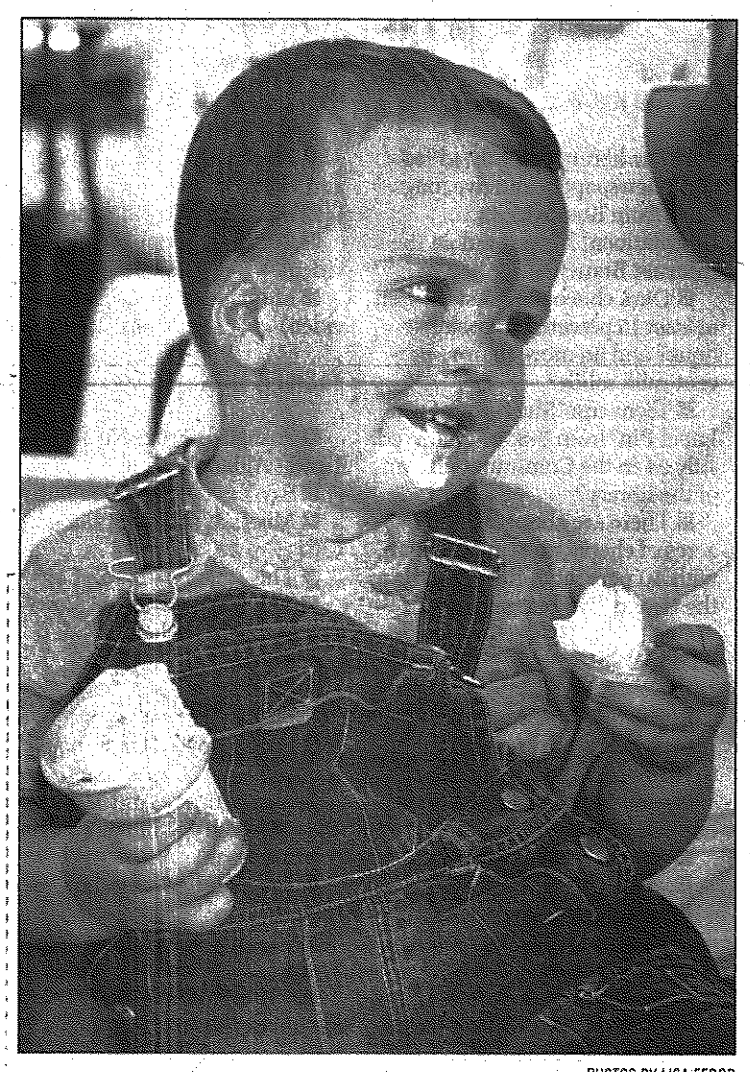

Sunday's Ice Cream Social hosted by the Canton Historical Society was the first chance to show off the Bartlett-Travis House after 12 years of renovations that included a move from Canton Center Road to its current location, Ridge Road near Cherry Hill.

Dozens of residents turned out to tour the 160-year-old home built in the Greek Revival style. Room have been furnished with period pieces and a mural depicting 19th century farm life decorates the hallway by the staircase.

The project was completed through a combination of township funds, state grants and private donations.

A pole barn – built by society volunteers – has been added to the property to showcase a collection of farming equipment.

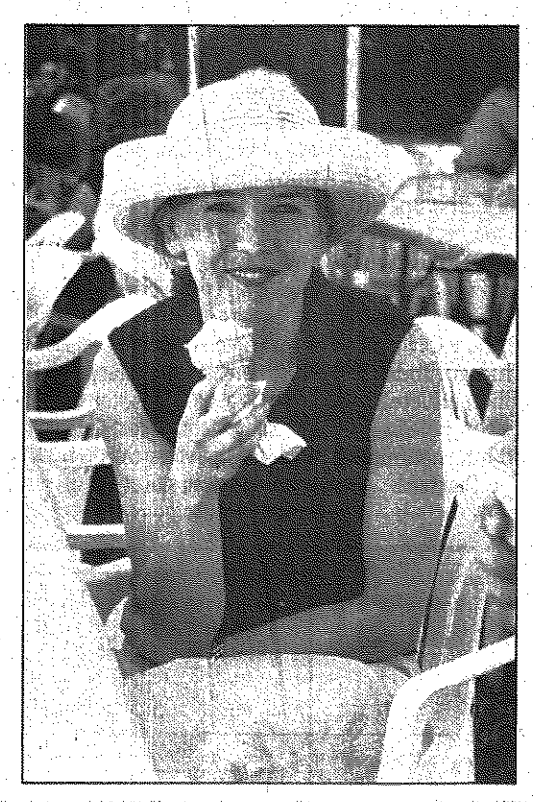

Events like the ice cream social will be a regular occurrence at the house. "Our intent is not to make it just a stagnant museum but available to the community for use in a variety of ways," said Terry Bennett, Canton Township clerk and chairwoman of the township's Historic District Commission.

WATER

ed to be about 1.2 billion gallons, the 12th time during the past two weeks it has topped 1 billion gallons, a water department spokesman said.

Low water pressure has been reported in some parts of metro Detroit, according to a department spokesman.

The mandatory water advisory was passed down by the department last Thursday. It provides water to most parts of Canton Township. Outdoor watering includes lawn watering, filling swimming pools and washing vehicles.

People not only have to think about what day they can water, but what time of day they can water. Canton's water restriction requests that users avoid all outdoor watering between the hours of 6 and 9 a.m., which are peak water usage times.

Township engineer Tom Casari has said previously that morning lawn watering puts a strain on the water system, since so many people are also taking showers simultaneously to get ready for work or school.

Canton residents said they are adapting to the mandatory restrictions and are deciding what areas need water the most.

"I can't put enough water down right now," said Canton resident James Monticciolo. They've been calling for a lot of rain but it hasn't shown up yet."

Monticciolo said that having a lush, green lawn is not his highest priority.

"I've been trying to give my trees more water than my grass," he said, while spraying down a sickly tree with a hose fitted with a trigger attachment. The tree, whose species he did not know, appears to be suffering from a disease, as evidenced by the brown leaves.

Another tree of Monticciolo's wasn't quite so lucky. It died last winter after a lightning storm, he said.

Canton resident Rick Hornby also said that the restrictions weren't posing any problems for him.

"As for watering every other day, the lawn just dries up a little," he said.

Carol Quinn, project coordinator in engineering services, said the water advisory hasn't generated any complaints so far, though some residents have called with questions.

"The restrictions are applicable to everyone."

Two of the township's largest grassy areas – Pheasant Run and Fellows Creek golf courses – use well water and are not affected by the water advisory, said Ann Conklin, leisure services director.

Even though the restrictions don't apply, not all areas of the courses are irrigated. The fairways, greens and tees all get watered daily, but the rough areas do not.

At Fellows Creek, irrigation water comes from the well and is also pumped from the course's ponds.

So far, the well system appears to be holding up.

"Right now we have ample water pressure," Conklin said.

Well water is used in township parks as well.

"We don't have any (township property) on city water except for one area around the administration building," she said. There, the odd-even restriction applies.

Tips for a greener lawn

Here are some tips for efficient outdoor watering from the Michigan State University Extension's home maintenance and repair division:

- One deep watering per day is better than several light soakings. Saturating soil up to 4 to 6 inches deep encourages healthier root development and allows for longer periods between watering. Use an empty tuna or cat food can on the lawn while watering and stop watering when the can is full.
- Early morning or night is the best time for watering to reduce evaporation. For better water control, avoid watering when it is windy.
- Use a pistol-type sprayer at the end of the garden hose. The device helps adjust water flow and keeps water from continuing to run when the hose is not being used.
- It takes 660 gallons of water to supply 1,000 square feet of lawn with one inch of water – equivalent to the amount typically used during a week inside the house. Water the lawn when necessary – when the grass does not spring back after being stepped upon and is showing signs of wilting.
- Use mulch around trees and shrubs to reduce the amount of water lost through evaporation.
- Consider using a drip irrigation system in gardens, which supply water only to the root zones of plants. These systems save water and reduce weeding because areas in between rows are not watered. Choose plants that are well adapted to the locality and soil conditions.
- Avoid watering the lawn. Brown grass is not necessarily dead, but is merely in a dormant state and will re-grow when rain and cooler weather returns.
- Use water from the downspouts for watering the garden and flower beds.

Twietmeyer approached some of her colleagues at the market, including Diane Mackey, scan coordinator, and owners John and Lisa Pardington.

"Diane started collecting supplies," Pardington said. And supplies. And still more supplies.

In addition to the Chapstick and the baby wipes, Mackey and Pardington collected decks of playing cards, magazines and books, boxes of trail mix and granola bars, shampoo and conditioner, a couple of games. And, as requested, American bubble gum.

"Forty pounds of bubble gum," Pardington said with a smile.

All together they collected six cases of supplies, which were put in the mail last week.

Office manager Colleen Howard said she couldn't put a dollar value of the supplies, but she did know what the postage cost: $69.99.

"It's just one small way of saying thanks to the guys who put their lives on the line for us," Pardington said. "I assume the U.S. Army can provide shampoo and toilet paper. But this is a small thing we can do."

And Mackey didn't want thanks for her role.

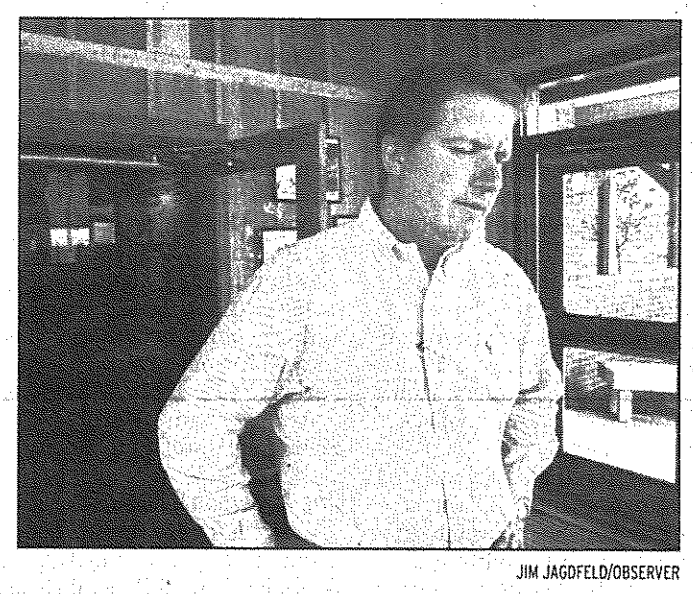

"I did it out of patriotism," she said. "It's our way of saying 'Thank You' to the guys serving over there."

It's not the first time the Pardingtons have responded to overseas events. Last fall, after the events of Sept. 11, they donated the proceeds from the market's annual Octoberfest to the Afghan Orphans Fund. Pardington said he wasn't sure exactly how much they sent, but it was several hundred dollars.

And when an appeal went out that some local charities were getting shortchanged because of the overwhelming response to the Sept. 11 tragedy, they sent donations to First Step.

"They've always been really sensitive to things going on in the community," Howard said.

of regional operations. The manager didn't feel those projections would apply in this case.

"The local business people have been extremely supportive," Kuehnhold said. "Without the local community, we wouldn't have gotten through this. We wouldn't be where we are today."

From 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. today, Logan's will be open for business – with all proceeds will go to a trust fund set up for McCarty and Harrison's surviving family members. Harrison is survived by a wife and five children, ages 15 years old to 4 months.

On Monday, Emmett's restaurant in Livonia hosted a similar benefit that netted an estimated $3,600 for the trust fund. Owner Phil Sciberras plans to present a check to Logan's officials today.

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey and Logan's employees were among those who attended.

"It went fantastic," said Vicky Meadows, Emmett's manager. "We had a great turnout. It was packed all night."

Meanwhile, the AAA Michigan branch on Six Mile and Newburgh continues to collect donations.

Bill Harrison's brother Tom said he's seen some news reports regarding fund-raising efforts.

"We really appreciate the community's support," he said.

said. "It may take a property owner a certain amount of time to do certain things. We just don't want things to become an eyesore or a nuisance."

He said the township will send out notices to the business owners to let them know what to expect so that they are not caught by surprise.

"Right now he (Hook) is basically responding to complaints," Goulet said. "He's getting to know our procedures."

According to a release from the township, a few things businesses must maintain in order to be compliant with their site plan are landscape maintenance, such as weeding and mulching planting beds and lawn areas; replacing of dead and missing plant materials; and proper pruning.

Goulet said Hook's landscaping background should help him assist business owners with how to maintain their landscapes and make them easier to weed and maintain.

Other areas that will be looked at are maintenance of pavement, sidewalks, light fixtures and provision and maintenance of proper trash enclosures.

He'll also be looking at general building maintenance, including painting, roof repairs and facade repairs; cleanliness of all public areas and parking lots; excess lighting, glare, noise, vibrations, smoke or dust. Signs will also be inspected to make sure they are in compliance with the sign ordinance.

If commercial sites are found not to be in compliance with township standards, notices and citations will be issued if the issues are not addressed in a timely manner.

Canton ordinances and property standards are listed on the township's Web site, www.canton-mi.org. For additional information or questions, contact the Planning Services Division at (734) 394-5170.

Small medical center proposed at Canton Center and Cherry Hill

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

A small building occupied a large block of the Canton Township Planning Commission's time Monday.

Nader Bazzi proposes to build a small medical center at the northwest corner of Canton Center and Cherry Hill roads on a tiny (.62-acre) site next to Rose's Restaurant. Bazzi is a Canton dentist with an office on Ford Road.

Chairman Vic Gustafson and commissioner Karl Zarbo voted no on the proposal to rezone the lot from commercial uses to offices. The rezoning passed 4-2.

"I'm concerned about safety. I can't find another example in the township of a building that close to the road," Zarbo said.

Community Planner Jeff Goulet said his office was recommending this because "this is a limiting use. This is a difficult parcel because it is a left-over piece."

Goulet was referring the fact that the county took part of the land to fix the Canton Center-Cherry Hill intersection.

And current zoning would allow a fast food outlet or other auto-oriented uses.

"I am worried with a building that close to the road," Gustafson said. Commissioner Melissa McLaughlin said the planners needed to be "thoughtful and careful with the site plan."

Ernest Constantino of Rose's said there had been a lot of accidents at the intersection, and that any problem with the site was "self-inflicted."

Zarbo said that any request for variances from the rules should get a resounding 'no' when the site plan is presented. A 5,000-square-foot building is contemplated.

In other action the planning commission:

- Spent time discussing a parking report from Looney-Ricks-Kiss, town designers based in New Jersey, for the new theater area in Uptown Cherry Hill. The township's analysis shows a need for 691 parking spaces. The "theater core area" has 662 spaces, much of it on streets near the village, according to the LRK study. Additional parking could be made available at least temporarily on gravel lots on parcels owned by Biltmore Properties, one of three home builders working in Cherry Hill Village. The theater is proposed for a site near the northeast corner of Ridge and Cherry Hill.
- Set an Aug. 12 public hearing on a road paving variance for Deer Creek condominiums, west of Lotz and north of Palmer.
- Set an Aug. 26 public hearing for Crescent Academy's site plan for a child care and religious institution at the northwest corner of Palmer and Lotz.
- Approved a final site plan for Westchester Village at Warren and Ridge for 114 condominiums. The buildings will be arranged, in part, around two circle roadways.
- Approved a special land use for a second mausoleum at Knollwood Cemetery (Saltz and Ridge roads). About 320 new crypts will be built; the cemetery, which includes a chapel, is averaging about 750 burials a year.

then there are our apartments." He noted these will be upscale one-, two- and three-bedroom units.

"There are people who rent by choice," Pham said, in response to commissioners' statements that house and condo ownership gave people a bigger stake in the Canton community.

The apartments will be in two- and three-story buildings; the highest building would be about 31 feet tall. Garages would be hidden from development entryways.

The old project covered about 57 acres; the new project will cover 137 acres and includes 124 homes. The apartments will be clustered near Beck and Geddes, the homes along streets to the west and north.

Pham said Tuesday the homes would be priced in the low- to mid-$300,000s. The apartments would not be available until 2003; the homes will be built first.

"Depending on the market these multi-family units could be for rent or for ownership," Pham said. If they become apartments estimated price ranges would be $1,200 to $1,400 a month for one-bedroom (about 1,200 square feet); $1,600 to $1,900 for a two-bedroom (about 1,300 to 1,600 square feet); and, up to $2,400 for the three-bedroom (about 1,800 square feet). Each would have its own entry and own garage or garages.

Commissioner Karl Zarbo said that Singh "has been bringing fine products (developments) to Canton." Pham told the commissioners that a trail through the wooded area along Fowler Creek would be aided by trailhead parking off of Beck, something Singh would be willing to consider.

Repeat offender program gets court consideration

Later this year, the 35th District plans to unveil a new Drug Court program aimed at reducing the repeat rate of alcohol and drug offenders.

Labeled the "35th District Court Drug Program," it will be funded through grants received from the State of Michigan and the U.S. Department of Justice Drug Court Planning Initiative.

Spearheading the new program are 35th District Court Judge Ron Lowe and court administrator Kerry Erdman. They've put together a team — including Lowe, Erdman, Chief Probation Officer Alan Ingrody, local prosecuting and defense attorneys and a representative of a local treatment agency — to undergo specific training later this year.

According to Erdman, the program is designed as a series of steps for defendant participants.

"Each step goes to the heart of a substance abuse problem by the use of proper counseling and more personal interaction between law enforcement and the participants," Erdman said.

Lowe said the program targets "hardcore" drunk drivers and drug abusers who are considered the bulk of the problem.

"Hardcore would mean individuals that have been arrested for driving with a high blood alcohol concentration of 0.15 or above," Lowe said, "who does so repeatedly as evidenced by the arrest record, or who is highly resistant to changing their behavior in spite of previous punishment."

The program will be set up in a series of steps, beginning with assessment and reporting probation and ending in, hopefully, successful completion. According to Erdman, the intensive probation track will probably last about six months.

At 12 months, the defendant will graduate from Drug Court and can be transferred to regular supervision or, possibly, release. Failure to graduate results in revocation of Drug Court status and puts the defendant back in standard case processing.

Opinion

OUR VIEWS

Schwarz is best pick in GOP race

Republican voters on Aug. 6 should select John J.H. "Joe" Schwarz as their nominee for governor. Schwarz is the candidate willing to tell voters what they need to hear, not just what they want to hear. He is the candidate who is shooting the straightest this primary season.

Most important, he's the one telling GOP voters the depth of the state's budget problems, and how the party has drifted too far to the right.

Joe Schwarz

Schwarz believes Michigan's GOP has moved too far to the right. His opponent, he believes, represents a continued slide in that direction, and therefore would be "unelectable" in the general election runoff in the fall.

We agree. After 10 years of domination by the Republican party in the halls of the Capitol, the next governor cannot count on such complete control of the legislative process.

Schwarz certainly has the experience working with the Legislature and the legislative process; he has served in the state senate since 1986, elected to the post of President Pro Tem of the Senate every year since 1993.

His resume lists terms as a city commissioner and mayor of the City of Battle Creek, so he understands local government as well. Schwarz' resume also includes a great deal of time serving as a physician.

One of the uncomfortable truths Schwarz is talking about is his belief that the state budget remains badly out of balance. Despite recent action in the Legislature to increase tobacco taxes and trim programs, he contends the budget will still fall short some $970 million.

Schwarz advocates the relatively painless solution of delaying scheduled rollbacks in income tax and Single Business Tax rates for just a couple of years.

Schwarz classifies himself as pro-choice, saying that abortions should be available, safe and rare.

Schwarz represents a badly needed move toward the center, and would bring the party back to a position of representing the remainder of the state.

Dems find moderate in Granholm's race

Democratic voters in the August gubernatorial primary should select Attorney General Jennifer Granholm, who is the most thoughtful and articulate candidate, and the one most willing to talk about the issues and their specifics in depth.

After a decade of one-party domination in state government, Michigan also needs a moderate in the governor's office, a need Granholm both fills and understands.

"I have been just floored in Lansing with the partisan acrimony that exists," she said in an interview with our editorial board.

Jennifer Granholm

In fact, "inclusion/diversity" is one of the "five core values" around which her campaign revolves. The other values include "creativity/outside-the-box thinking," integrity, engagement and excellence.

Her stance as a moderate is also reflected in her positions on the issues. She opposes the recent tax hikes intended to solve the state's budget crunch, and further argues that the Single Business Tax should be eliminated. While understanding of the concerns of school districts which are asking for changes to Proposal A, Granholm "would not return to a millage-based system for funding our schools." Rather, she would like schools to have more options for making capital improvements and allow for the creation of foundations to which residents could contribute to support school district programs.

She has laid out intricate plans for addressing issues such as economic development, urban sprawl and controlling the cost of health care.

Unlike many politicians, Granholm allows her views to evolve as more information becomes available. Very visible as an opponent of concealed weapons legislation, Granholm now says the problems she feared and predicted have not come true. She says she is now taking a "wait and see" approach to the reformed CCW laws.

Granholm will serve the Democratic party best in the coming general election, and is best suited to serve the state as a whole, should she win the day in November.

Fair and honest

I am supporting Michael Gerou for 35th District judge because Mike is fair, honest and sincere.

I have known Mike professionally and personally for more than six years. Mike's integrity and professionalism were obvious the first time I met him as opposing counsel. Mike Gerou's personal and professional contributions have enriched this community and have contributed to making it a greater place to live. I hope you will join me in supporting Mike on Aug. 6.

Impressed by Gerou

I would like to take a few minutes of your time to express why I, a resident, student, and employee of this district, feel that Mike Gerou is the best candidate for 35th District judge.

My name is Christopher Lynn and I have been a resident of Plymouth for 15 years. I graduated from Plymouth Salem, as have my younger sister and brother. I have since completed an undergraduate degree at Eastern Michigan University and am currently completing master's degrees in science (environmental geology) and industrial operations through the University of Toledo and Lawrence Technological University-Plymouth respectively.

I have worked at E&E Manufacturing Co., Inc. in Plymouth over the past five years as an environmental engineer. It was through a company sponsored program, Leadership Plymouth through the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, that I had the pleasure to meet and come to know Mr. Gerou.

Over the past two years I have worked with Mr. Gerou as a Leadership Plymouth alumni and as members of the Leadership Plymouth Steering Team. Through my work with Mr. Gerou I have grown to know him as a man of great integrity and moral fiber. He has shown this not only with his words of wisdom but in his actions as well.

In Mr. Gerou I see a good and honest man who has a great love for his friends, family, and community. I see great things for Mr. Gerou and for the men and women that he will touch through his continued work in community services and as a representative of our community as a district judge.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter. My hope is that you will also take the time to get to know Mr. Gerou as I have.

Positive medicine

On Dec. 14, 2001, my daughter, Laura Kordick, underwent knee surgery.

Laura is an athlete playing both basketball and softball. She had worked very hard to become part of a softball travel team before she had surgery. As it turned out, due to the condition of her knee she was forced to quit in January. This was a traumatic time for her physically and emotionally.

The first month of therapy in (St. Joseph Mercy Rehab in Ann Arbor) clinic was a very depressing one for Laura. She saw very little improvement in her leg and saw no hope in playing softball for her school, Plymouth Christian Academy, in April. She did not comprehend the amount of time it would take for her to recover.

During the second month of therapy Laura was assigned to therapist Scott Gilbert. Her attitude and emotional state turned around quickly and completely. Scott did not tolerate her use of the words "I can't."

He challenged her both physically and emotionally with both patience and compassion. He "zeroed in" on what made her want to succeed and soon turned the therapy sessions into softball drills. I think every therapist in the clinic will remember both Laura and Scott doing the "shortstop shuffle" down the aisle of the exercise room every Tuesday and Thursday for one month!

After a session with Scott, Laura would leave the clinic smiling. Each day when we would get in the car to come home she should say, "Mom, I am so much closer to playing again and I owe it all to Scott."

When Laura had her fourth visit with Dr. Huebner, he began examining her leg strength as well as her flexibility. She did so well that his remark was, "wow, this is great." He told Laura she was his best case to recover in such a short period of time.

As of May, Laura began playing for Plymouth Christian Academy's softball team as a pitcher and first baseman. At an April 30 game she hit a home run. She asked for the game ball so that she could sign and date it and present it to Scott as a remembrance to him on how he made a difference in one teenager's life.

Supports Stewart

I write to strongly endorse John Stewart in the Republican primary and in the general election. As an independent voter who looks to a candidate's character rather than to party affiliation, I firmly believe John Stewart is the kind of person who brings honor back to the tarnished calling of politics. We sorely need more people like him in Lansing. He should be elected as the Republican candidate for Plymouth and then should be elected to represent the district.

I have known John on a professional basis for awhile, and certain things are evident. Many lawyers and politicians will technically tell you the truth, but it's what they don't tell you that really matters. John has always disclosed to me all the facts he could gather on a particular issue.

Second, part of the reason why he doesn't hide facts is that he really strives to make the best decision for his constituents. He actually weighs all the evidence, reflects on it and makes the choice that will best serve his community.

Third, John is there for his district. He works long hours to serve constituent relations, and he's always willing to help. I admire him for his work ethic and his clear focus on serving the public.

The highest calling of any representative is to provide vigorous, thorough, high-quality representation to everyone whom one represents. Here, John delivers. Most politicians are beholden to special interests that embrace the fringes and fads of the moment. But John is different. He takes the responsibilities of the office seriously and remembers that his duties are not to some organization, but rather to the people of Plymouth. In his time in office, John has proven himself trustworthy.

Longtime supporter

I would like to take this opportunity to let you know why I am supporting Mike Gerou for district judge.

I have had over 40 years to establish my deep support for any endeavor Mike takes on. We grew up together and I have seen him grow from one of my best friends when we were kids to a fine family man, community leader and even better friend now.

His loyalty, compassion, kind and caring attitude are but a few of the reasons he has been successful not only professionally, but most importantly, to his family and friends. You only have to meet him to see his passion for anything he is doing.

I have had the privilege to know him all these years and he has richly blessed me as a close friend. I know as a district judge he will be able to continue his work to make things better for us all.

Bill Wilson

Gerou is qualified

Myself and most of my friends who have known Mike Gerou, his family and parents, know he is more than amply qualified to fill the available judgeship position for the 35th District Court.

Mike has devoted many hours of his personal time toward making our community a better place to live. Myself and my friends would appreciate any possible support you might provide toward helping Michael achieve this important goal.

John McAllister
Plymouth Township

Gerou is involved

Our district is very fortunate in having many qualified candidates for the 35th District Court. The best one, in my opinion, is Mike Gerou.

I have had an opportunity to talk to him extensively.

His accomplishment in community and church groups is impressive. He is very involved in the life of the communities served by the district court.

I have been a lawyer for over 24 years. What impresses me is that Mike has a broad range of experience in both criminal and civil cases.

In addition, he has bipartisan support from political organizations.

I intend to vote for Mike Gerou for district court judge on Aug. 6.

Now it is Republican party in need of centrist reform

Phil Power

We're rapidly approaching the Aug. 6 primary election. Here's a timely quiz for politically attuned readers, followed by a short essay based on the answers.

Who said which of the following?

a) "What do the American people want in their candidates? Straight talk; the unvarnished truth; certainly not some kind of harsh ideology. ... People may not agree with everything good candidates say, but people should place a high premium on candidates with high moral and ethical standards, the kind of people you can take at their word."

b) "This is a contest for the soul of the Republican Party. The party has moved further and further to the right, while the electorate has moved closer and closer to the center. ... If we continue to be moral absolutists, we'll be toast in November."

c) "I've never seen a candidate who stands for the things that are important to Michigan and couples that with undoubted honesty, integrity and commitment to principle."

If you picked U.S. Senator John McCain for (a), gubernatorial candidate State Sen. John J.H. ("Joe") Schwarz for (b) and former governor William G. Milliken (endorsing Schwarz for governor) for (c) you'd go to the top of the class.

What brought them all together? They're all moderate Republicans, an increasingly rare breed, gathered together in Michigan last Monday to promote Schwarz's candidacy for the GOP nomination for governor. For three remarkably distinguished, able and respected politicians, they got remarkably little ink or airtime from the media.

That's too bad, because what they're really working on is an attempt to moderate the steady drift to the right of the Republican Party, nationally and in Michigan. Schwarz makes no bones about it.

"My party is increasingly in the control of single issue groups like Right to Life and the pro-gun folks who may provide active and motivated foot soldiers in primary elections, but who do not represent the increasingly independent mainstream voters in America," he said.

I spent some time with Schwarz and McCain as their campaign bus careened from Detroit Metro Airport to Pleasant Ridge and then to Ann Arbor.

We talked about political reform in general and the Republican Party in particular.

Both seemed hopeful in their reform mission, if only because they both believe that Republican candidates who come across as moral absolutists may win primaries but are likely to lose in general elections come November. "What's the best way to get across your message of reform?" responded McCain at one point, "Pointing out that hard-line ideologues lose general elections. That wakes folks up right quick."

They cited polling data indicating that voters registering as Independent now make up a larger group then either Democrats or Republicans, especially in Michigan, a famous ticket-splitting state. They argued the best way to attract Independent voters is for candidates to be "centrist," to downplay ideology and to demonstrate character and integrity — "to be comfortable in their own skin." And they both referred to former President Theodore Roosevelt, who tried (and ultimately failed) to reform the Republican Party after the turn of the century, as their hero.

Our conversation reminded me of what some Democrats were talking about 20 years ago: That their party had moved much too far to the left to appeal to mainstream Americans, that absolutist liberal ideologues had taken over the party, that there had to be a way to generate new ideas to pull the party to the center.

Our conversation reminded me of what some Democrats were talking about 20 years ago: That their party had moved much too far to the left to appeal to mainstream Americans ... that there had to be a way to generate new ideas to pull the party to the center.

Eventually, the Democratic Leadership Council, a think-and-act group, took up the task. It did the spadework on welfare reform, on job training as an investment in human capital, on free trade, on protecting the environment and providing ways for sustainable economic growth. Eventually, these ideas found a voice in Bill Clinton, who pulled his party to the center and, in so doing, got himself elected and re-elected President. Thankfully, political reform goes in cycles. One generation deals with one party, the next generation with the other.

These days, it's the Republican Party that's in need of reform. And the combination of John McCain, Bill Milliken and Joe Schwarz struck me as an awfully compelling lineup to make the case.

Will suburbs continue to pay for a service they don't use?

We were having a bite to eat at Casey's, a comfortable pub in Ann Arbor across the street from the Amtrak station. A train pulled in heading toward Chicago and I got to thinking about mass transit, national and local.

Amtrak is in serious financial trouble. With the exception of a few high density lines – particularly the Boston-New York-Washington run – the system has been steadily losing riders. Schedules are complicated and fares are expensive. Most travelers would rather save the time and fly or, if the destination is close enough, drive their cars.

Still, the train to Chicago seems to be popular, judging by the people standing on the platform. It makes convenient stops in Jackson, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo. In Chicago it takes you right to the heart of the downtown. It takes a little longer than driving but not so much for those people who hate the hassle of driving into an unfamiliar city. Adding your time from the airport, taking a train isn't that much slower than flying.

Perhaps, baby boomers are the last generation with a residual love for train travel. And even baby boomers would usually opt to fly.

How long can the federal government continue to fund a transportation system that most people don't use? The time will eventually come when Amtrak will be replaced by a few regional lines, probably operated by some consortium of states with federal subsidies.

We face a similar situation in trying to maintain a viable mass transit system in metro Detroit.

Unlike Chicago, New York, Boston, San Francisco and Washington, D.C., Detroit's central city is not a primary destination for the majority of people in metro Detroit, including city residents.

The city that gave the world the automobile, depends on the automobile to get from one side of town to the other. Our "mass transit system" is a series of freeways. Even in a bus savvy community like Ann Arbor, the buses often travel less than a quarter full.

When now prosecutor Mike Duggan took the reins of SMART a few years back, he put the emphasis on delivering workers to their jobs. Without DDOT and SMART, thousands of city workers would be unable to get to work. Jobs programs to help people out of poverty are meaningless if people can't get to those jobs. Duggan rightly recognized this and said, enough with trying to please and serve everyone, let's target those we can serve – the elderly, city workers going to suburban jobs, students.

But that, unfortunately, leaves a system that is paid for by people who don't use it and resent having to pay for it.

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey, a smart political leader who isn't afraid to ask for taxes for good government service, balked at the current SMART request for a millage renewal-increase.

In May, Kirksey stated what many in the suburbs are saying: "The fact is, our citizens don't use those buses, so why should we be subsidizing the system for other communities? I would like us to opt out of SMART and set up a plan to expand our own bus system."

Following conversations with SMART, Kirksey won assurances of better service and has thrown his support to the millage. But his point was well made and his solution was supported in the state legislature by Sen. Thaddeus McCotter. McCotter has taken the opt-out idea a step further in his amendments for the proposed Detroit Area Regional Transit Authority, which would oversee the operations of SMART, DDOT and the Ann Arbor Transit Authority.

In the short run, it would be a terrible mistake for Detroit and its near suburbs to abandon all mass transit.

McCotter's "compromise" would kill the authority before it got started. It's like saying that rich people can opt out of paying taxes for services they don't need. Fortunately, government doesn't, couldn't, work that way.

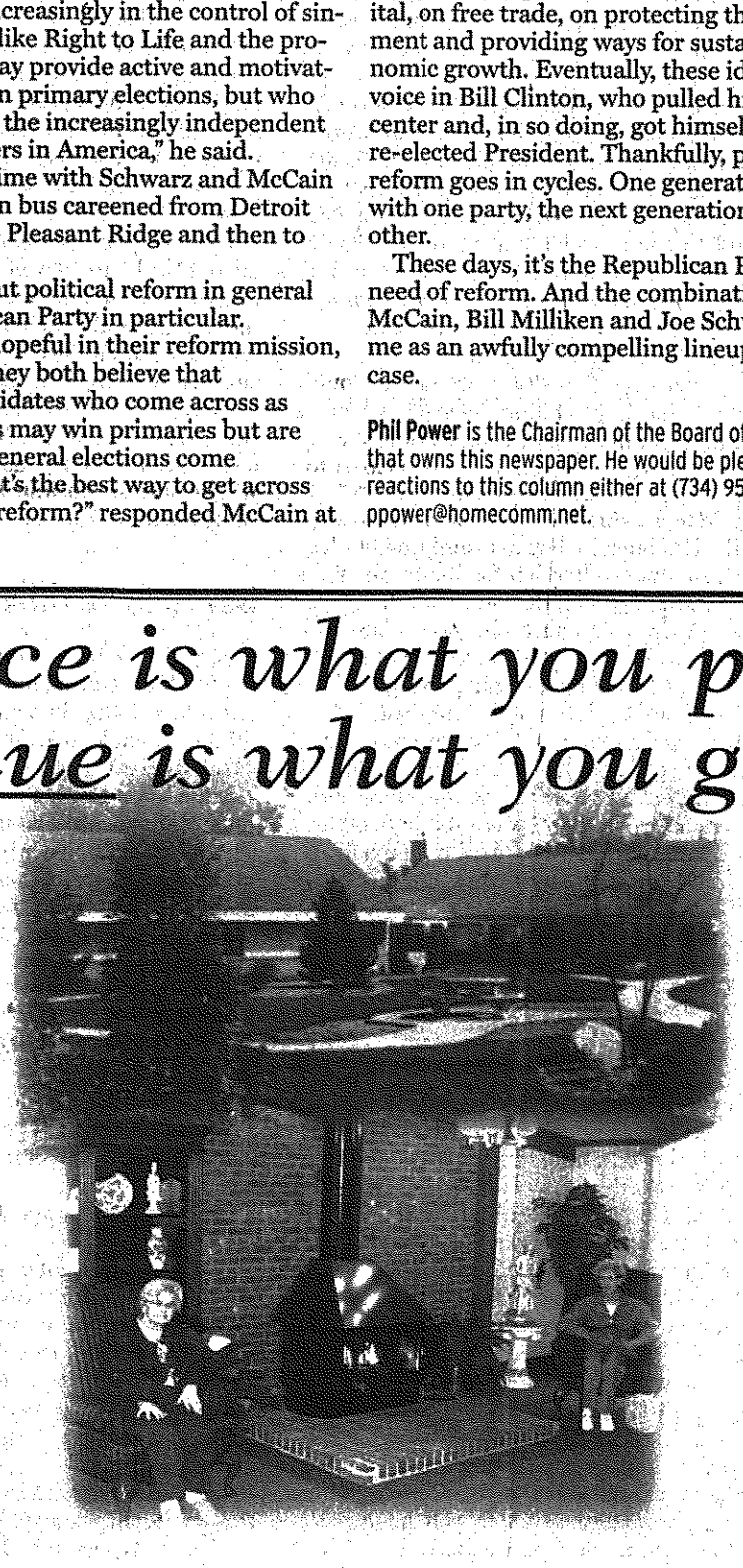

Sadly, there are some wonderful ideas being promoted by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments for imaginative approaches to mass transit that would limit sprawl, cut down on pollution and promote tourism. They include dedicated bus routes with special train-like buses, limited light rail from the airport or along Woodward, a regular train connecting Detroit-Ann Arbor-Lansing. In the short run, it would be a terrible mistake for Detroit and its near suburbs to abandon all mass transit. DDOT and SMART need to continue, at least on the limited basis needed to serve those with economic need.

But, in the long run, if suburban residents are ever going to "buy" into a mass transit system, it has to be a system that serves them. It has to be a system that gets them where they want to go – shopping centers, doctors' offices, jobs, school, entertainment venues – in a clean, quick, efficient, timely manner.

That's a lot to expect and maybe Detroit can never be that kind of city. Unfortunately, we'll soon come to a time when suburban voters won't pay for a mass transit system that isn't for them.

Area park becomes weekend art 'gallery' for thousands

PHOTOS BY BRYAN MITCHELL/OBSERVER

Griffin Bergers, 5, reaches to touch a Wind Wriggle while at Plymouth's Art in the Park last weekend.

People by the dozens walked around carrying this year's hot item at Plymouth Art in the Park – a water faucet on a stick, with a crystal droplet hanging from it.

No one is quite sure why it was the hot item, and no one really cares. It's all part of what makes the Art in the Park special.

"That was definitely the hot ticket," said Art in the Park organizer Dianne Quinn said. "I'm very amused by it, because it's such a novelty item."

That's what Art in the Park is about, though. And that's what made it a "dream show," for the creators of the faucet, Dawn and Jerry Hanks of Big Rapids, whose company, Hankerings, sold about 900 of the faucets in Plymouth.

"It was one of those shows you dream about but never expect to have," Dawn Hanks said. "Who would have guessed? We sold out on Friday, so we didn't have any on Saturday. My husband brought me some from a show he was doing, and the minute we started putting them out Sunday, the people were there."

This year's 22nd-annual festival drew about 420 artisans to the sun-splashed streets of Plymouth. Thousands of people (accurate attendance estimates were impossible, according to police) strolled through the hundreds of booths. Mother Nature helped, giving the festival a nearly perfect weekend.

"The weather cooperated, which was a huge plus considering what could have happened," Quinn said. "We didn't have flooding, we didn't have excessive heat, no thunderstorms. We just had a beautiful weather weekend."

In fact, Quinn said, pretty much everything went smoothly. The shuttle service, moved this year from Compuware to Visteon, cut waiting time in half and, with a bigger bus, allowed more people to take advantage of the shuttle.

Some 1,500 children painted the American Flag mural that will be on display at city hall. The Plymouth Jaycees used the big crowds to their advantage in their bone marrow registration drive, adding some 115 people to the national bone marrow registry and raising $6,800 in the process.

"It worked wonderfully," Quinn said of the partnership with the Jaycees. "It was a great opportunity to tap into that many people."

Quinn also said the switch to two information booths instead of one 20x20 tent was a key.

"With the big tent, it was always disorganized because there was so much going on," Quinn said. "We saw a show in Alabama that gave us the idea, and we had two new booths built, and it worked beautifully."

Musicians focus on tradition

Barbara Ware introduces the Michigan Jazz Festival audience to selections from her new CD Let Me Off Uptown recorded in the Wayne State University studio with the Matt Michaels Trio.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

"That's not jazz," said Midge Ellis referring to the latest trend to call easy listening music smooth jazz.

Textbooks on music history seem to agree listing Charlie Parker, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Billie Holiday, Dizzie Gillespie, Thelonius Monk, and John Coltrane as the masters of America's only true art form. That's why Ellis is so adamant about showcasing straight-ahead, Big Band, Dixieland, and Bebop at the eighth annual Michigan Jazz Festival. This year's all-day jam session is no exception with 26 groups playing all of these styles. On Sunday, July 21, more than 180 musicians will have the audience on the campus of Schoolcraft College swinging.

"John Trudell and Tom Saunders select the performers," said Ellis, a long-time Livonia resident to whom the festival is dedicated this year. Ellis was responsible for bringing in such greats as Stan Kenton to play the Clarenceville Jazz Series from 1969 to the early 1980s in Livonia.

"I'm excited about the new bands," said Ellis. "It's good that more musicians are hearing about it and want to be playing in it. We have Brad Sharp from Toledo and everything from Big Band to the Dixieland sounds of the Tartar Sauce Jazz Band, Bebop. Hopefully we cover the bases and there's lots of free parking. The program lists all the musicians so when people hear someone they like they'll know who he or she is."

Outdoor festival brings Shakespeare to life

Artistic Expressions

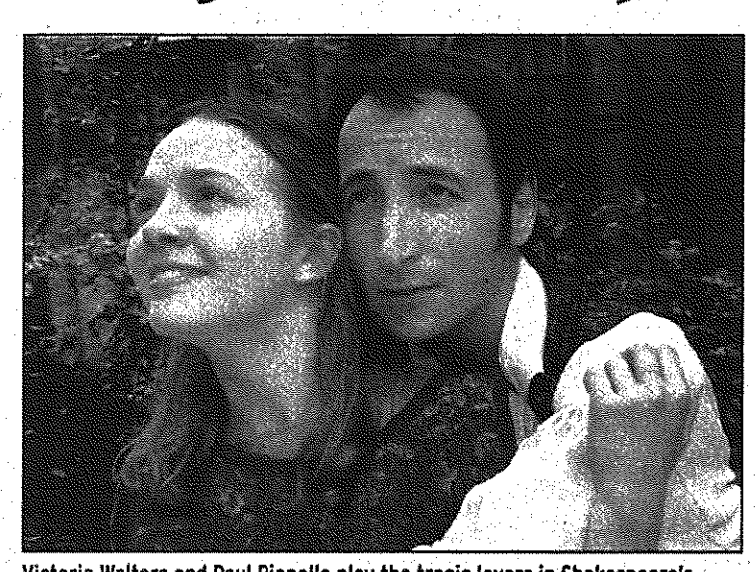

Linda Ann Chomin

I understand how Lindsey Mergener feels about Shakespeare. In college, I had the opportunity to perform the role of Juliet in one of the scenes from Romeo & Juliet on stage. I still know many of the lines by heart. It's funny how great words tend to stick with you through the years.

Shakespeare is timeless and appeals to audiences of all ages. Even though only 19, Mergener would travel anywhere to experience the mystery and magic of the Bard. For the past two years the Farmington Hills resident's faithfully gone to the Michigan Shakespeare Festival in Jackson's Ella Sharp Park. This season she's particularly interested in seeing Romeo & Juliet, one of two tragedies rotating from July 18 to Aug. 4 in the eighth annual festival. Othello, directed by John Neville-Andrews the festival artistic director, opens Thursday, July 18.

"I'm interested in seeing if it will be played as a love story or as a lust story," said Mergener, who's been studying theater and English at Yale University since graduating from Farmington High School. "I've read Romeo & Juliet more than once but never seen it performed live and always wanted to.

"The Michigan Shakespeare Festival is unlike anything else around here. It's an incredible authentic experience. The stage is just like in Shakespeare's times with a balcony. The nice thing about it is it's outside. As the performance goes on you'll see the night sky. I saw Macbeth last year. It kind of paralleled the nature elements. It makes for really cool shadows and effects as the sun's going down."

Like Mergener, Paul Riopelle appreciates the words of Shakespeare so much that he doesn't mind rehearsing seven hours a day, six days a week. The New York actor plays Romeo in the production directed by John Seibert and Terry Heck. This is his second season with Michigan Shakespeare Festival. Last year he played Richard III.

"It's really a play about coming of age," said Riopelle. "They both really grow up within a matter of days. By the end they've grown up to the point where they've developed love and devotion to each other that they're willing to kill themselves."

Although Riopelle's performed in productions ranging from Cat on a Hot Tin Roof at Meadow Brook Theatre in Rochester Hills to Picasso at the Lapin Agile at the Performance Network in Ann Arbor and Ghosts by Moonlight at Battery Park City Parks in New York, his most memorable roles were with the National Shakespeare Company in New York, Cincinnati and Shenandoah Shakespeare festivals, and the Michigan festival.

"Shakespeare is my first love because of the language," said Riopelle who grew up in Riverview. "He's able to express things exactly the way we're feeling.

"Romeo is a role I've really wanted to play. A Romeo is only as good as his Juliet (played by Victoria Walters). If there's not a genuine chemistry between actors that's hard to fake. She makes it an easy job to go out every night and fall in love with her."

Richard Redman finds playing Juliet's father equally as attractive but he's also having fun with the characters Brabantio and Gratiano in Othello. Redman formed a love for Shakespeare at John Glenn High School in Westland and has spent the last three years enjoying a variety of roles at the festival in Jackson. In Othello, Redman dies and returns to talk about it.

"Playing Lord Capulet in Romeo & Juliet is wonderfully challenging to make him a human being," said Redman. "He's not a very nice person. He's very autocratic. You probably wouldn't want him for a dad. In Othello I'm only in the first three scenes as Desdemona's father Brabantio then I die and come back as Gratiano. The director made them twin brothers to save money.

"But the outdoor setting in the park is what's special to me. It's glorious but allows an element of intimacy."

The setting is one of the reasons Trudy Mason loves playing The Nurse in Romeo & Juliet. Mason has more than 40 years experience as an actress starting in high school in Toronto where she was born and raised. She's done productions all over including Meadow Brook Theatre, Jewish Ensemble Theatre in West Bloomfield, The Purple Rose in Chelsea, San Francisco Shakespeare Festival, and San Francisco Repertory Company. This is her first performance at the Michigan Shakespeare Festival and she's excited about all of the plays.

"Outdoor Shakespeare is the only way to go," said Mason. "It's the way it started. It throws me back to Elizabethan times because it's very casual. We're not as impromptu as Shakespeare's players but there's still a sense of anything can happen.

"Anybody who has not seen Shakespeare for the fear of it being to far above their heads should try it. Most amazing are the fight scenes that young men would totally enjoy. Set in the 18th-19th century, Romeo & Juliet is romantic. Anyone coming to see long flowing dresses won't be disappointed even though the directors move it ahead a few centuries.

"Othello is with the same company. It's a contemporary version of military today and there's also a family show Alice Through the Looking Glass that's a great way to introduce young children to theater."

JAZZ

and co-director of jazz studies at Wayne State University. He and his trio (Dan Jordan of Troy, bass and Jerry McKenzie, Farmington Hills, drums) perform every Wednesday at Ron's Fireside Inn in Garden City.

At the festival, Ware will introduce her third CD Let Me Off Uptown recorded in the Wayne State University studio with Michaels and his trio.

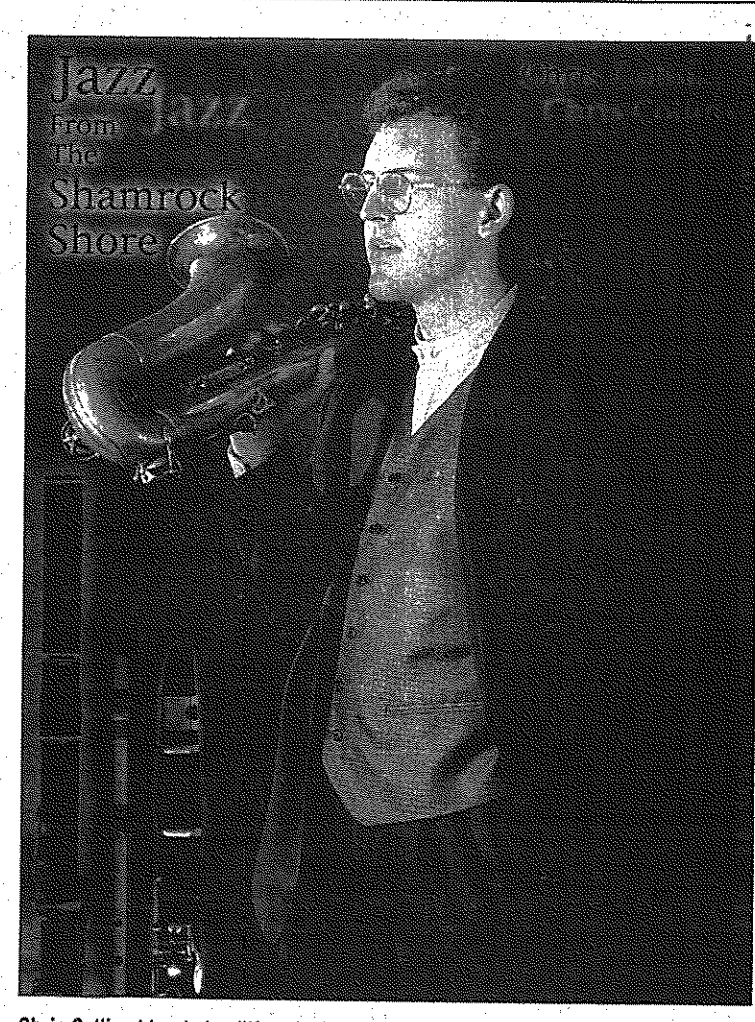

"It's straight up jazz," said Ware who plays Jazz Wednesdays, July 24, and every other Wednesday at MotorCity Casino. Audiences all over town will recognize the sounds from her regular appearances at a variety of venues. On Sept. 27, she'll play a benefit for the Birmingham YMCA at the San Marino Club in Troy.

"I grew up listening to Nat King Cole, Ella Fitzgerald and Lionel Hampton, and always wanted to be a singer but I never thought it was a dream I would realize," said Ware who began singing professionally after taking an early retirement. "The Michigan Jazz Festival has got such great history. It's an honor to perform there."

Mark Berger feels the same way. The Ferndale horn player frequently can be heard in concerts and Broadway shows throughout the area. On Aug. 11, he performs as a sideman with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at Meadow Brook Music Festival on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester Hills but first he and the Detroit Reed Collective take to the Inmart/Boll stage in the Lower Waterman building at Schoolcraft College 12:15 p.m. Sunday, July 21 to play everything from Ragtime to Swing and avante-garde. Later this year he and band member Paul Onachuk play the Fisher Theatre production of Some Like it Hot opening Dec. 3 for three weeks, and 42nd Street at the Masonic Temple opening Oct. 22 for three weeks.

"The Michigan Jazz Festival is a great outlet for local talent to be heard and featured," said Berger, a Ferndale resident. "It's nice to play for a jazz listening crowd. There's an assortment of different types of music and it's free."

Chris Collins music would probably fit into the unusual category. His latest CD Jazz From the Shamrock Shore blend traditional Irish and Jazz music. The recording was introduced on the B'Jazz Vespers series in Birmingham on St. Patrick's Day. Collins is co-director of jazz studies at Wayne State University and director of the WSU Jazz Band, and plays with the DSO on their jazz series. He and his group finished a 10-day tour of South Africa just in time to perform their tunes about mythological creatures in Irish folklore 4:45 p.m. on the Inmart/Boll stage.

Chris Collins blends traditional Irish and jazz in his latest CD Jazz from the Shamrock Shore.

"I was at the Glasgow Scotland Jazz Festival four years ago when he decided to spend some time in Ireland," said Collins of Romeo. "I arrived in Dublin and went into a pub where I heard a flute and fiddle player. It was inspiring, complex, intense music yet the general public were enjoying it. I returned to take up the penny whistle and flute and started studying the standard tunes and they in turn started working their way into my compositions. Two years ago I decided to blend Irish and jazz traditions into a seven-member band composed of penny whistle, harp, fiddle, bass, drums and piano. The music is a long term pursuit of mine. I'm going back to Ireland in fall to continue my studies in music on a WSU grant to study Sligho style."

Eileene Standley can't wait to hear what Collins creates but for now she's content to listen to the new sound he'll play at the Michigan Jazz Festival. Standley, a Plymouth pianist, has played the event before and serves on the committee which produces the event.

"I'm looking forward to Chris Collins," said Standley. "He has two women – one who played harp with the DSO on their European tour and she's going to bring an Irish harp. The other plays violin. And I can't wait to hear the Detroit Reed Collective. I'm excited because it's four woodwinds. It's different. There's no rhythm section. I love the newness of the festival and I love the old guys who've been around."

Art of the automobile

Concours d'Elegance draws a second look

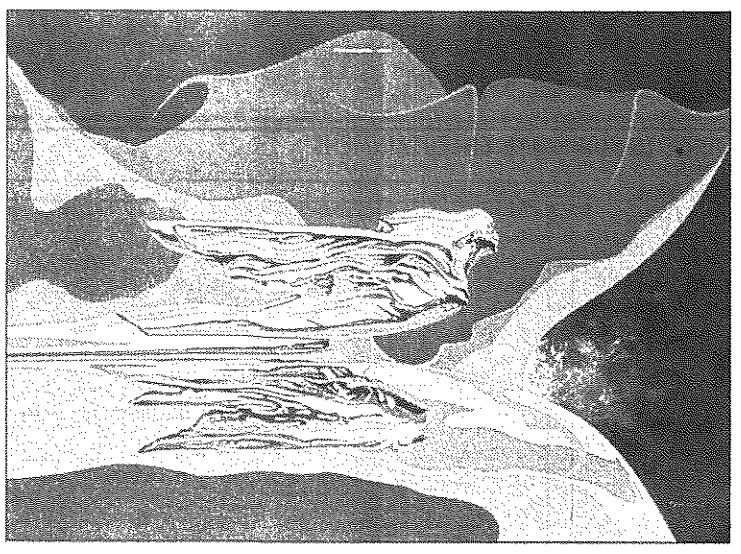

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Bill Mihalik is all revved up about the classic cars, paintings and sculptures on exhibit Sunday, Aug. 4 at the 24th annual Meadow Brook Hall Concours d'Elegance in Rochester Hills.

The three go hand in hand according to Mihalik who's chairman of the art committee. If spectators want to truly appreciate the beauty of automotive design, they need to view the more than 100-art works inspired by the 235 vintage automobiles on display — then take a long look at the cars which this year celebrate the 100th anniversary of Cadillac and Pierce-Arrow, and the 50th of the sleek, racy Corvette.

'Art is an integral part of Concours where you look at the car in person and then at the paintings.'

Bill Mihalik
Chairman, Art committee

Tom Hale titled this painting of a 1941 Cadillac hood ornament "Goddess."

"Art is an integral part of Concours where you look at the car in person and then at the paintings," said Mihalik, a Rochester resident who owns a Porsche 911S from the early 1970s and a 1959 Alpha Romeo. "In Barry Rowe's painting of a 1916 Cadillac Dual-windshield Sport Phaeton you can see it was styled to be in an elegant setting and it dominates that setting.

"Until we see Tom Hale's painting of a 1959 Cadillac tail fin we don't realize the beauty of the tail fin. Alex Buchan's sculptures of vintage cars in a race setting gives viewers the idea this was really a wild ride and what it was to drive these cars back in 1915."

Classic car lovers will have the opportunity to bid on 14 of the artworks at an auction Saturday, Aug. 3, and ensure the preservation of Meadow Brook Hall at the same. A portion of the proceeds will be used to maintain the 110-room mansion built by Matilda Dodge Wilson, wife of automobile pioneer John Dodge, and her second husband Alfred G. Wilson. A series of events leads up to the classic car and art show. The 14 auction art works will be on display at the Somerset Collection in Troy until a preview reception Friday, Aug. 2, at Somerset North.

"The reception is a fantastic event," said Mihalik. "It's always elegant when you have artists and art of this caliber and two or three classic cars on display, but it's also casual. You can walk up to talk to the artists and talk with them. It's one of the nicest events of the entire weekend. Meadow Brook is a mixture of world class cars with a friendly and personal environment for classic car artists, collectors and spectators.

"This year we're emphasizing availability of prints. In the past we only offered original art. It's important because it opens up automotive art collecting to people who aren't ready to invest in original art."

For Tom Hale, painting the original is what it's all about. The Farmington Hills artist designed automobiles for General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors for 20 years until deciding to paint full time in 1985. Since then he's steadily built a following for the acrylics that reflect the surrounding scenery in a classic car's chrome and paint. Hale's work can currently be found on the cover and a 12-page spread in Automobile Quarterly.

"A person like myself can't purchase one of these classic cars," said Hale. "Painting gives me the chance to show my passion for the automobiles just like the collector who has a passion for buying and restoring. If it causes spectators to walk back on the field to take a closer look at the styling then I've done my job.

Hale created the first art show at the Meadow Brook Hall Concours d'Elegance back in 1982 with Richard Teague. He's exhibited in it every year since then along with classic car shows all over the country including the prestigious Pebble Beach Concours. Four years ago he organized the first Bay Harbor Concours near Petoskey so he's especially knowledgeable about the shows.

"From an artist's point of view I don't know of any show that integrates the art into the event any better than Meadow Brook," said Hale. "At other concours the art is a small sideshow. Meadow Brook is such a wonderful showcase for artists."

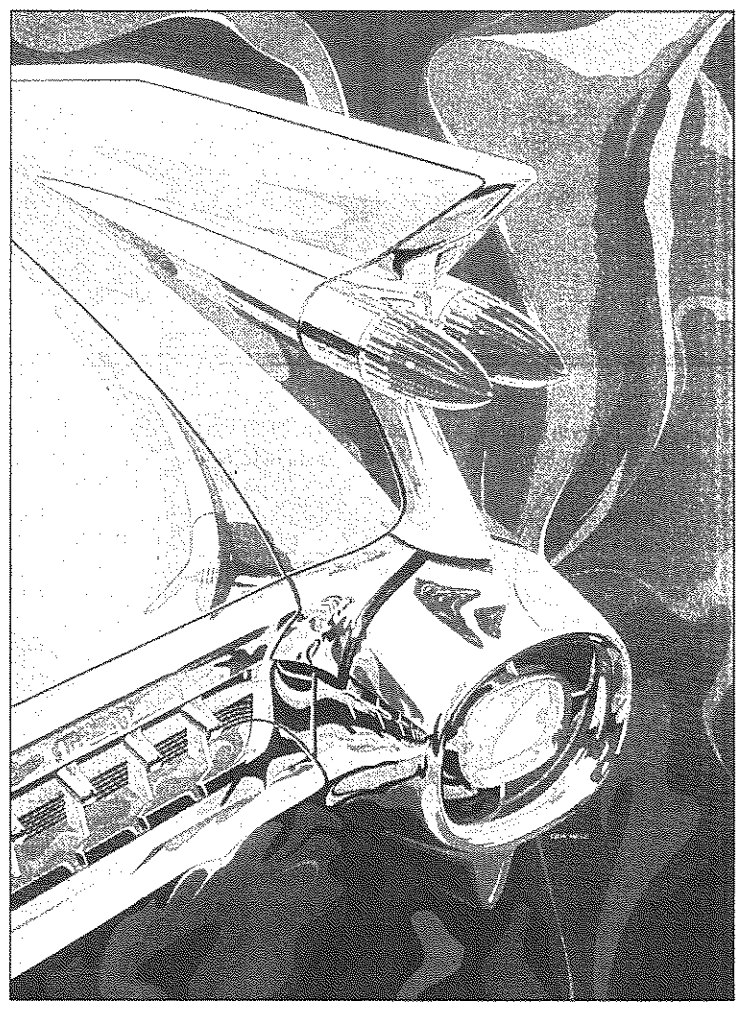

British artist Barry Rowe created the original painting which is this year's art for the Meadow Brook Hall Concours d'Elegance poster.

British born painter Gerald Freeman hasn't exhibited at Meadow Brook for as many years as Hale but is looking forward to this year's show just as much.

"It's probably one of the nicest shows for the artist," said Freeman, a Southfield automotive artist who will do 10 shows this year including concours on the East Coast. This is his fourth year at Meadow Brook.

Like Hale, Freeman's enthusiasm for cars began years before he ever picked up a brush. As a teenager he built an Austin Ulster special in his parent's backyard.

"Many of my oil and acrylic paintings are historical in nature," said Freeman who studied at the London School of Printing and Graphic Arts then became a freelance illustrator and designer. "I like to introduce the history of racing in the 1930s. Classic cars of the 1930s I like to partner with beautiful scenery. I'm known more for my historical painting and telling a story. There's one of a car by a river with father and son fishing. My latest painting has two Golden Retrievers."

Tom Hale captures the beauty of the ultimate tail fin in this painting of a 1959 Cadillac.

Andy Agosta doesn't paint but he's just as enthusiastic about the Meadow Brook Hall Concours d'Elegance. He predicts as chairperson of the all-volunteer event "the sun is going to be shining and it's going to be beautiful."

"There will be a great array of cars and car judges from all over the country to judge the competition," said Agosta of Rochester Hills. Agosta owns a 1970 Dodge Challenger. "It's fun and Meadow Brook is such a beautiful place for a show. It's such a historic place. And Metropolitan Detroit is the home of the automobile. I grew up in the late 1950s and 60s when muscle cars were popular. My dad worked for Chrysler for 40 years and I retired from Chrysler in 2001 after 37 years. It's all connected in one way or another. It's all in the family. I even came home from the hospital in a Chrysler."

Artist garage sale

Event to benefit Rochester's Paint Creek Center

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

It's not often art lovers can pick up an original watercolor for $15. John Cynar thinks that fact will make the first annual Artist Garage Sale Friday-Saturday, July 19-20, at Paint Creek Center for the Arts in Rochester a success. A benefit for the arts center's exhibition program, the garage sale features paintings, sculptures, prints, and photographs.

"We asked artists to clean out their studios," said exhibition director John Cynar. "We'll have lots of stuff with prices ranging from $15 for small watercolors to framed pieces up to $400. The money goes to support our exhibition program which costs anywhere from $30,000 to $70,000 a year."

Last year, Cynar organized a post card show where artists created small works that sold for $5, but decided to change the format. After all, everybody loves a sale.

"We do 14 exhibits a year," said Cynar. "A huge portion of the budget is spent on postage and mailing as well as lights and paint to retouch the walls almost every five weeks in the galleries."

ARTIST GARAGE SALE

What: First annual benefit features paintings, sculptures, prints, and photographs. Proceeds go to support the exhibitions program at Paint Creek Center for the Arts
When: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday-Saturday, July 19-20
Where: Paint Creek Center for the Arts, 407 Pine Street, Rochester. Call (248) 651-4110

The July show is unusual in that it features a traveling exhibit from New York. Mirrored Echoes – Self Portraiture features collage by the National Association of Women Artists in the Main Gallery, one of two in the arts center. A first floor gallery features environmental landscape photography by College for Creative Studies faculty member John Ganis.

"We try to promote Michigan artists," said Cynar. "Ninety to 95 percent of the artists we show are from Michigan. It's been very difficult for artists to find places to exhibit. We do solo and group shows, solo so an artist like John Ganis can show a body of work.

"Nonprofits tend to be in the trenches of what's going on, what's being done and what's being shown. It's important for people to support us because we try to educate people about what artists are creating and if we can sell the work so much the better. There's so much talent out there."

And Cynar is booking as much of it as he can. A Main Gallery show opening Aug. 23 celebrates the arts center's 20th anniversary with artists from the last 20 years including Carol Zak and Stanley Rosenthal. The Michigan Water Color Society traveling exhibition takes over the Main Gallery Oct. 4. On Nov. 15, a 60-year retrospective by Zubel Kachadoorian, Small Works show of art objects, and the Holiday Gift Gallery offers something for every taste. For January, Cynar is putting out a national call for Outsider or untrained artists.

Bigger isn't always better

Two years ago Nancy Coumoundouros had a great idea to produce a small, walkable fine art fair as part of the Farmington Area Founders Festival. Having done the granddaddy of all street fairs every July in Ann Arbor, I could appreciate the fact my sister Gwen and I wouldn't be swept along with the crowds anxious to make their way to the booths of 1,000 artists showing their wares.

Works by 55 artists are definitely easier to browse and the festival atmosphere adds to the experience. This year Art on the Grand not only features paintings, weavings, jewelry, pottery, engravings, glass, photography, drawings, metal, and wood but entertainment sure to make you smile.

Presented by Farmington Hills Special Services Department, the excitement continues Thursday-Saturday, July 18-20. Wandering performers Groucho Marx (1-4 p.m. Friday) and Maurice the Art Critic (5-8 p.m. Friday and 3-6 p.m. Saturday) will have the crowds in stitches.

"It's going to be a fabulous little fair," said Coumoundouros, cultural arts coordinator for the cities of Farmington Hills and Farmington. "I'm really excited about so many free activities. On Saturday at 2 p.m. we'll have the Red Garter Band and The World's Oldest Living Sax Section 2 p.m. July 18, as part of Senior Day.

"The Living Statue returns. She was pretty amazing last year. She covers herself completely with white makeup and drapes. There will be face boards where fair goers can stick their heads through a hole and become part of a masterpiece like The Scream (by Edvard Munch) or have their picture taken with a dragon. It's just a fun place to be."

Coumoundouros almost runs out of breath as she lists the many activities at Art on the Grand. Kids can have their faces painted, make art projects or be entertained by a balloon artist and clown.

"I'm especially excited about glass artist Deb Eliassen of Farmington Hills and huge glass sculptures by Steve Brewster of Fla. Last year he brought bar stools with glass seats. Dave Bruner of Fla. will have black and white engravings, realistic but very stylistic. He'll feature one person in an empty theater, spooky but appealing. There will be Hmong fabrics by May Yang, wood bowls by John and Joan Watkins of North Carolina, and demonstrations by the Farmington Artists Club who are also exhibiting.

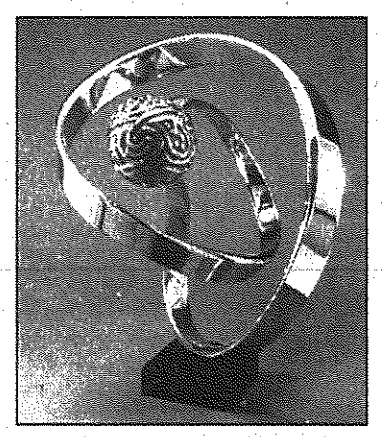

"It's going to be a blast. It's small yet has a big variety. It's part of the Farmington Area Founders Festival so there are all different kinds of things to do. It's a user-friendly art fair."

Pam O'Neil exhibited in her first Art on the Grand last year as a member of the Farmington Artists Club and "thought it was fabulous" so she's back this summer with her own booth. The Farmington Hills painter brings watercolors and acrylics. An interior designer by trade, O'Neal loves color. One of her works Mind Roulette contains reds, yellows, blues, purples, and every color imaginable. Another painting of Red Rock Canyon in Las Vegas reminds viewers of the beauty with its rusts, browns, oranges, and blues.

Art on the Grand is one of several shows O'Neil will do this year. She displays her paintings at Arts, Beats & Eats in Pontiac Labor Day weekend and in a one woman show at Gallery XVIII in Pontiac in November.

"They're contemporary somewhat spiritual abstracts," said O'Neil who's been painting 15 years, eight or nine of them seriously. "I think color is very important in life. Color affects my life. I dream in color, think in color.

"Art comes from inside of us. I'm very philosophical about that and spiritual. I get a vision in my sleep and get up and paint."

Bill Keating created this sculpture. It is one of hundreds of works that will be on display in Art on the Grand.

Groove with the oldies at American Bandstand Grill

BY BRENDA DOMINICK
STAFF WRITER

Remember the twist? New York hustle? Breakdance? Electric boogie? Loco-motion?

These popular 50s and 60s steps took over dance clubs, the hearts of young and old, and the most recognized show on TV.

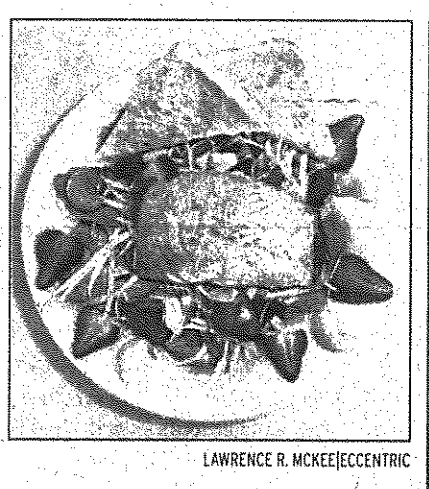

The American Bandstand show not only introduced millions to a variety of dance moves, but also the greatest bands of all time. The lively and funky show helped "one-hit wonders" become top 40 "hitsters" and young groovers "get down" with it's variety of live performances and DJ sounds.

Both Dick Clark's American Bandstand show and his now theme restaurants, American Bandstand Grill, embody the American musical classics and dance moves of yesteryear. The dining establishments also offer delicious food at a moderate cost along with the famous music of the 50s to the present.

"We attract the family clientele," says Ben Ledesma, kitchen manager of the American Bandstand Grill inside Great Lakes Crossing Mall in Auburn Hills. "We have a real good variety for kids."

"Our main goal is to make the customers feel like Dick Clark's personal guest."

From the moment you step in, you get a sense of a unique dining experience. Vintage photos, artists contracts, gold albums and rare posters that line the walls are from Dick Clark's personal collection. Classic American Bandstand television footage, as well as up-to-date music videos are shown at every twist and turn of the restaurant. Each of these unique features give customers an opportunity to enjoy a hoppin' and tasty place to eat, reminisce and take in the ambiance.

LAWRENCE R. MCKEE|ECCENTRIC

Salmon & Baby Spinach Salad is one of the coolest hits at the American Bandstand Grill. Includes fillet of salmon, baby spinach, strawberries, mandarin oranges, cucumbers, and Roma tomatoes, tossed in balsamic vinaigrette dressing: $8.95.

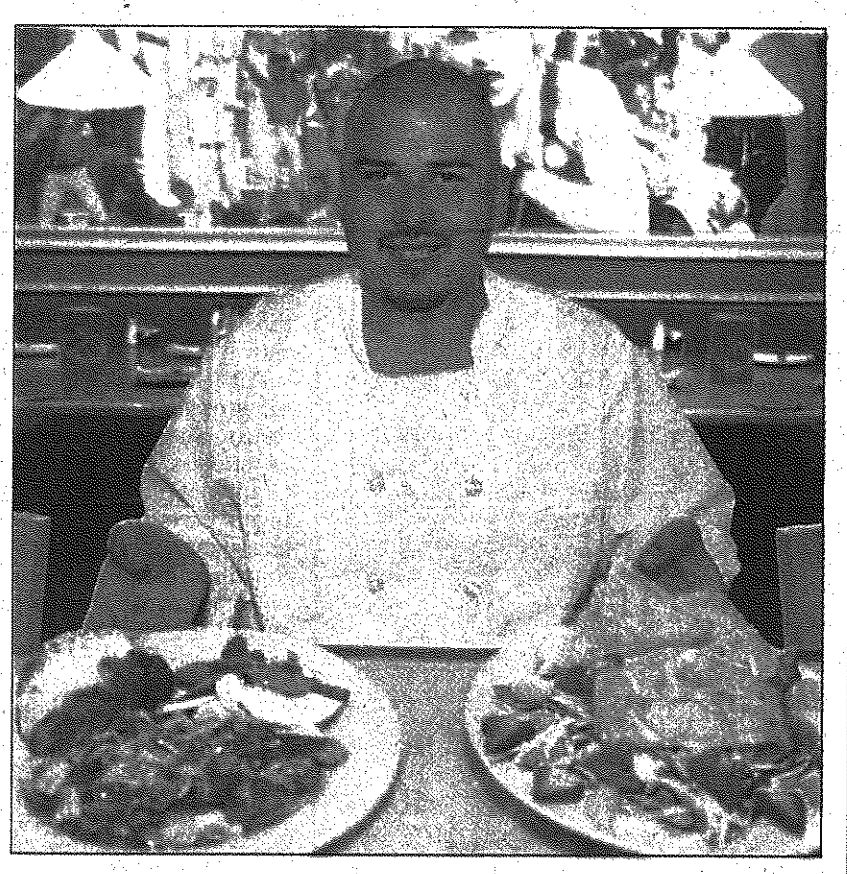

"They have music all day and the clientele is fun," Ledesma said. "You're constantly hearing music, and it gets (customers) going."

But it's not just the customers who get a thrill out of being at this lively place.

"I love working here," he said. "I've been here for five years, and it's fun to come to work."

On May 3, Dick Clark hosted an anniversary special, ABC's American Bandstand's 50th...A Celebration! which included appearances by many top stars from the world of entertainment who talked about how American Bandstand impacted their careers and lives. Several old favorites like KC & The Sunshine Band and new ones like Alanis Morissette honored the legacy of the show.

And with Clark's six captivating restaurants and nightclubs throughout the U.S., the Bandstand legend grooves on.

LAWRENCE R. MCKEE|ECCENTRIC

Palate Pleasers: Ben Ledesma, Kitchen Manager of AB Grill in Auburn Hills, holds up two popular dishes; salmon & baby spinach salad ($8.95) and rib eye steak entree ($16.95).

Authentic Rock 'n' Roll memorabilia, including George Harrison's hat and jacket and an Elvis picture and shirt from his personal wardrobe, are displayed inside glass enclosures in the restaurant, giving it a museum-like feel.

Among the several American Bandstand restaurants, the Auburn Hills location is the smallest one. The shiny orange and yellow cushioned booths, and varicolored tables and chairs provides seating for 187 people. But despite being the "baby" of the Bandstand bunch, Ledesma says the Auburn Hills spot has 38 total employees and makes about $2.2 million a year.

Ledesma says Clark makes a point of trying to visit the restaurant at least once a year.

"The last time he was here was November and he should be out here within the next couple of months," Ledesma said.

"When he comes, we'll have a line out to the mall."

And it's quite a treat for the customers who are lucky enough to catch the famous "host with the most."

"He'll sit down, come around, ask people how their doing, shake people's hands, sign autographs, and take pictures with them," Ledesma said.

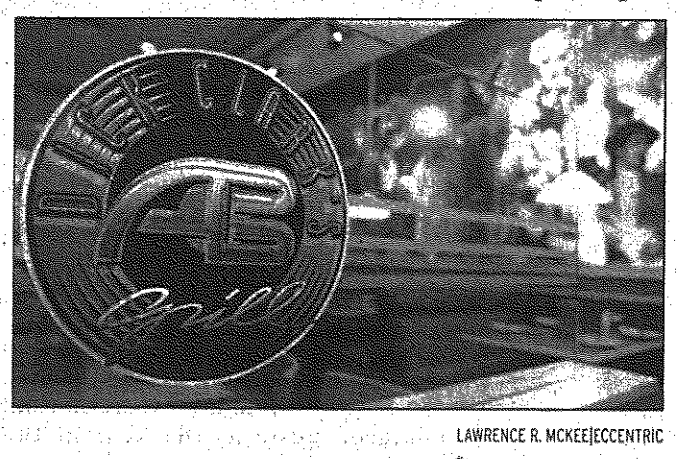

"It gets pretty hectic and wild in here." Some of the restaurant's specialty liquor drinks are named after some of the hits featured on the good ole' American Bandstand days. Customers can swig "Hey, hey it's the Monkees," "Blue Suede Shoes," and "Berry Berry Cocoa Pop," with their dishes of delight.

"We always try to change the menu and spice it up a little," Ledesma said.

But the menu isn't the only thing that gets "spiced up." The customers can't help but to stomp while they chomp.

"While they eat their meal, they just get up and start dancing to it," he said with a laugh. "They get into it."

Quilt show

Celebrating the Quilt: An American Legacy, a quilt show sponsored by the Greater Ann Arbor Quilt Guild, will take place 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, July 27-28, at Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive, between Huron River Drive and Clark in Ann Arbor. Admission is $5. Parking is free.

The show will feature new and antique quilts, clothing and fiber art. Raffle tickets for three outstanding bed quilts to benefit Safe House will be sold.

Special exhibits will include the Hoffman Fabric Challenge quilt display; a special exhibit called Quilts Expressively Korean, featured in the March issue of Quilter's Newsletter Magazine; Artimals, a group of challenge quilts with animal themes; and Sheer Delights, a challenge wall quilt collection featuring sheer fabrics.

The show will also include more than 40 vendors of fabric, patterns and quilt-related items.

Dog daze

When it comes to dog toys, big breeds have always had the pick of the litter. Most bones, balls, Frisbees and other canine playthings are designed for larger dogs like German shepherds and Labrador retrievers.

But little dogs like to play with toys, too. The Kong Company has come out with the Small Dog Kit, a package containing scaled-down versions of three of the company's most popular "big dog" toys.

Each kit includes a small rubber Kong, which bounces in unpredictable directions; a small Biscuit Ball, designed for holding bone-shaped treats; and a small Air Dog Bone, made of real tennis ball material.

Just the right size for a Yorkie or Chihuahua, the tinier toys will fit comfortably into the jaws and paws of small breed and puppies. All of the toys were designed not only to be fun, but also to provide healthy exercise and mental stimulation.

The kit retails for $13.99 to $15.99 and is available at leading pet supply stores.

Roses have special appeal

BY JOAN BORAM
CORRESPONDENT

A surprising number of people react to the suggestion of including roses in their gardens by saying, "Oh, no, I could never grow roses!", as if it required arcane knowledge and skills that they could never master.

True, hybrid tea roses are tender and may require winter protection in our area, as well as spraying against insects and diseases.

Lovers of hybrid teas feel that their beauty makes the effort worthwhile, but others might want something less demanding to enhance a border of mixed plantings, to use as a hedge or groundcover, or perhaps to climb a graceful arch.

COURTESY GREAT LAKES ROSES

Winter Sunset is an example of a rose Griffith Buck of Iowa State University produced by crossing hybrid teas with heartier stock.

Plymouth resident Anne Warne is typical of the rose grower who loves roses, but favors those that don't require a lot of care and are sociable with other plants.

"I gave up on teas," she said. "I have a couple of David Austins, modern roses that are disease-resistant and resemble 'old-fashioned' roses, a pink climber 'The Fairy,' a really big shrub rose in front of the house, and other shrubs mixed in with daylilies, columbine, foxgloves and other cottage-type flowers.

"Altogether, about 15 bushes, including climbers. I often pair clematis with roses. When they're both in bloom they complement one another, and a later blooming clematis will enhance the rose plant after its blooming time."

CARE

Warne is casual about her roses. She just trims the shrubs back in the spring, and sees that they get enough water all season.

She avoids chemicals whenever possible, preferring to spray a mixture of water, a capful of disinfectant, and a tiny bit of cooking oil against insects. She does use a commercial spray for black spot, however.

"I'm a great mover (of plants)," Warne said. "Sometimes I even move bushes when they're in bloom.

"If you dig a big hole in advance, pick up the plant with enough soil around the roots, (drop it in the hole and pack dirt around it) and then water it well, it won't even know it's been moved."

2002 is a rosy year

Everything's Coming Up Roses could be the theme song for 2002.

The U.S. Congress passed a joint resolution proclaiming that this year be designated as the Year of the Rose. In March, Governor John Engler declared 2002 as the Year of the Rose in Michigan.

"The rose is one of the oldest plants in existence, having been cultivated in gardens for over 5,000 years, and is grown in all 50 states," Engler's declaration said.

"The rose has long been a source of inspiration, representing love, friendship, beauty and peace.

"The American Rose Society, and all Michigan rose societies, desire to join with all who love, honor and grow the rose, the world's favorite flower, on the occasion of the society's 110th anniversary. During the Year of the Rose, let the citizens of our Great Lakes State be involved in activities and events in celebration of the rose."

The rose has been honored before. For example, President Reagan signed legislation in 1986 to designate the rose as America's National Floral Emblem. Rose organizations include:

The organizers of this event know it's for a serious cause – and it's for the birds.

It's the 17th annual Exotic Bird Exhibition of the Ann Arbor Cage Bird Club, taking place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 4, at Weber's Inn in Ann Arbor. Admission is $3; free for under age 12.

Proceeds go toward a Michigan State University scholarship for avian veterinary medicine, and to help bird rescue, conservation, research, vaccines and education.

"We invite people to come," exhibition co-chair Carol Aldrich said.

"Our biggest thing really is the show. We have a good time."

Baby birds, new cages, food, creative bird toys, parrot appliqués, T-shirts and play stands will be displayed. Katy McElroy, a cockatoo breeder from Cleveland, will give a lecture, showing slides and a video simultaneously.

"She's the only (breeder) that I know that has an outside aviary for cockatoos," Aldrich said.

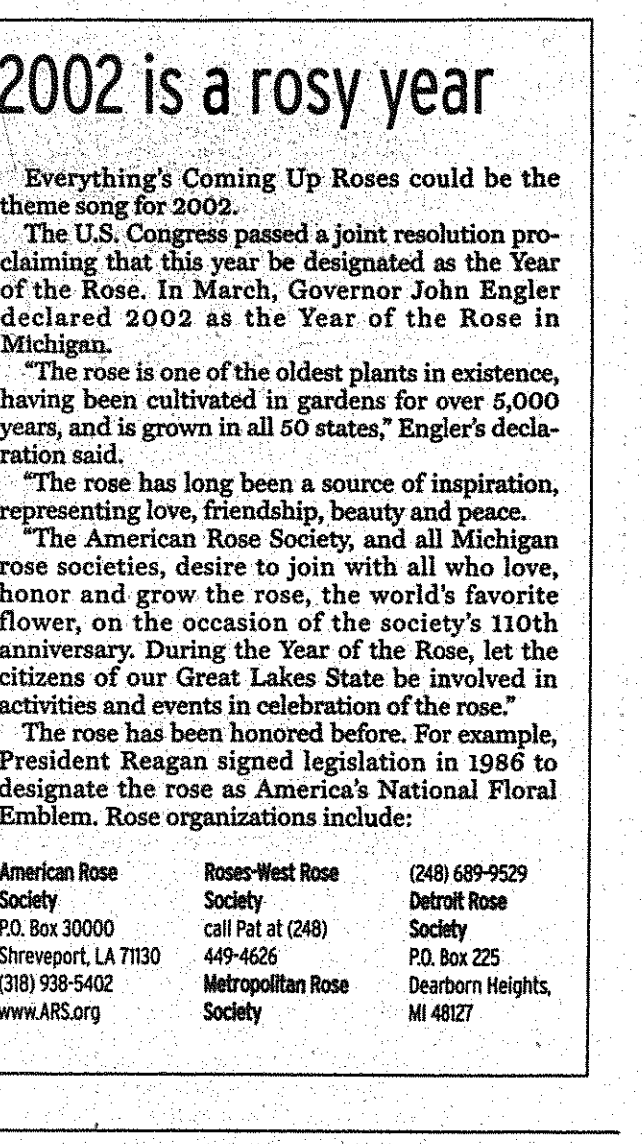

"She uses the natural light. I've never seen parrots out playing in the snow."

Vendors from across the country donated raffle items for the event. A

ROSES

If you're a person to whom the only "real" rose is the florists' rose, the "Carefree Beauty" roses developed by the late Griffith Buck at Iowa State University, available at Great Lakes Roses in Belleville, are for you.

"Dr. Buck crossed hybrid teas with heartier stock to produce roses that look like teas, but are hardy, disease-resistant, and repeat bloomers," said Nancy Lindley, owner of Great Lakes Roses. "They fit into a cutting garden with other plants with no fuss.

" 'Carefree Beauty' roses are all grown on their own roots, while hybrid teas are often grafted.

"Roses grown on their own roots are easier to plant because you can plant them at the same depth they were grown in their containers.

"You don't have to worry about suckers: If there are any, they can only have the same flowers as the mother plant."

The best way to keep roses free from pests and diseases is by growing them as well as possible.

Feeding, mulching and conscientious watering during dry spells will go a long way to keeping your plants healthy. Some varieties are more disease-resistant than others, so if you wish to avoid spraying, read labels carefully.

For more information on general rose care and "Carefree Beauty" roses, consult the Great Lakes Web site, www.greatlakesroses.com. Lindley requests that you check the Web site or call (734) 461-1230 for business hours.

BEAUTIFUL VARIETY

Marge Berndt has surrounded a grouping of pink "Carefree Beauty" shrub roses in her Plymouth garden with pink coral bells, white daisies and other complementary flowering plants.

A deep pink rose, "William Baffin," covers a rose arch, while not far away on another arch a deep purple clematis intertwines a climbing white hydrangea.

The total effect is beautiful and dramatic. Altogether, Berndt has 12 rose plants.

"I planted the pink 'Carefree Beauties' about 10 years ago, and they are really simple to care for," said Berndt, who volunteers at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens. "I've never given them any winter protection."

Berndt estimates she has "10 or 12" roses; her favorite she calls "Bird" because some years ago a bird apparently dropped a rose hip that sprouted and has grown into a 10-foot wide, urn-shaped shrub along the fence.

"It has little clusters of white roses, and the most wonderful fragrance. Wherever you are in the garden you can smell it."

Recently, Berndt would have been sure she couldn't find room for one more rose. Then, on the Plymouth Garden Walk last month, a thunderbolt!

"I saw a rose called 'Ballerina,' " Berndt said. "It was a cloud of delicate pink flowers. I have to have one. I'll find room someplace!"

When Diane and Tom Schrift bought their Birmingham house a few years ago, there were exactly two rose bushes, and they were in the backyard herb garden. Today, the Schrifts are the proud caretakers of 220 hybrid roses!

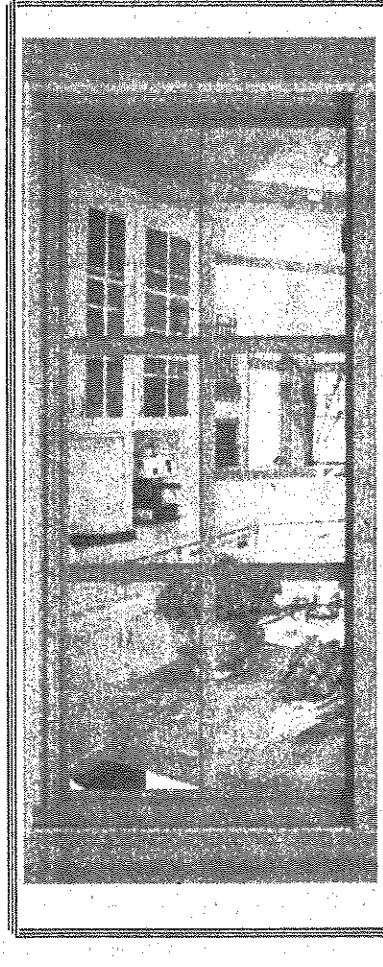

"It's a myth that roses are so much trouble," said Diane Schrift, American Rose Society coordinator for the Great Lakes District Year of the Rose. "They're simply perennials, and you treat them like perennials: Put them in the ground in full sun, give them enough water, and they'll grow."

It's more than time for midsummer care of your air conditioner

Appliance Doctor

Joe Gagnon

It was a late start to hot weather this year in our area, and as you know we have already had several days you could call "real hot." We have more on the way and even a possible long summer when the air conditioning for your home will take on a fair amount of hard work.

I know most of you prepared the unit during the spring season, but have you checked it out lately? It seems it was only a few weeks ago when the air was filled with pollen floating all over the place. Where did all that stuff go to?

Go outside and take a look at the condenser unit and you'll find the coil area all around the unit is coated with the stuff that affects so many allergy sufferers. Look at the plants, bushes and flowers that have grown and make sure there is at least 12 inches of space between them and the coil area.

If the condition around the unit is anywhere close to what I have described, it's time for you to do a little midsummer maintenance.

Shut the air conditioning system off by virtue of the thermostat inside the house.

Make sure you leave it off for an hour or so after you have performed the cleaning of the condenser coil outside.

Use your garden hose and wash down the coil area and trim any growth of plants, bushes, etc. In doing this you have just increased the performance of your unit and decreased the energy consumption by quite an amount.

The next step is to go to the furnace and remove, clean or replace the furnace filter. A clean filter will allow more air to flow through the registers and even allow cooler temperatures to enter the rooms in the house, especially those farthest away from the furnace room.

Many homeowners aren't comfortable with temperatures in upstairs bedrooms and I recommend they block off a few of the cold air registers downstairs.

If the dryer vent line exits the home and blows hot air on the air conditioning condenser, I suggest you use the dryer only when the air conditioning unit isn't operating. The 140-degree heat coming out of the vent line can put a big strain on the outside compressor.

The condensing unit outside is the heart of your air conditioning system and a very expensive component to replace. Taking care of it such as cleaning it and making sure it has plenty of space to breathe can add years of life to the product. It's your dollar and you would like it to make cents. Stay tuned.

Dress up with basic clothing, organization

Q: We have lots of clothes stuffed in closets and drawers, yet my children complain they have nothing to wear.

A: Many wardrobes are incomplete because basic clothing items and proper organization of clothing are missing.

As manager of the household you are usually responsible for buying, washing, drying, ironing and organizing everyone's clothing.

Domestic Planner

Diana Koenig

It is important to keep things simple. Limit the amount of money you spend on trendy clothing items. Buy basic solid colors such as jeans, black, navy blue and tan for pants and shorts. You can use the same pants and add different shirts to change the outfit.

Use accessories such as jewelry, scarves and belts to change or accent an outfit. A plain navy dress will dazzle when you add the right accessories.

You don't need to stock up on clothing for children because they outgrow items quickly. You can limit the amount of clothing you have if you do laundry daily or more than once a week.

When I was growing up my mom did laundry once a week. Monday was the day she washed towels, bed linens and clothes. I would drown in laundry if I washed clothes only one day a week. I have a bigger family and we are involved in sports and various other activities. One family member may go through several outfits a day.

If I do a couple of loads a day I don't need my sock drawer stuffed with 30 pairs of socks.

It is important to organize your clothes so pieces are easy to find. The items you use the most should be kept in the most accessible place. You may rotate clothing around as seasons change.

You should also keep your closets and drawers at 80 percent capacity. If you stuff drawers and closets, things will get wrinkled and lost.

Each month remove something from your wardrobe that you haven't worn in a couple of years. Keep a donation box in your storage area so you will have a place for these items.

Organize clothing by putting like things together. You and your family will be more likely to put clothes away properly if it is obvious where something belongs.

Create more drawer space by using laundry baskets and hanging sweater organizers.

Jeans and sweat clothes take up a lot of drawer space. Place a couple of laundry baskets on the floor of the closet to store bulky clothing items.

I placed a hanging sweater organizer in my teenage daughter's closet because she was limited on dresser space. We filled each compartment with shirts, shorts and pants. It took up less space than hanging all of these pieces. She can clearly see everything and quickly get to each one.

You can also use the sweater organizer for younger children. Put an outfit for each day of the week in each compartment.

Organize your children's clothing so it is easy for them to find what they need. Use a plastic basket in the center of a drawer to create three compartments for sock organization.

You can put white socks in the middle basket, black to the right of the basket and blue to the left, and fill in with other colors behind the black and blue. This will make it easier to match socks with outfits because you won't spend time rummaging through a pile of multi-colored socks in one open compartment.

Shoe storage is another challenge. Keep dress shoes in their original boxes or in a shoe organizer in each person's closet.

Everyday shoes, tennis shoes and sports shoes contain a lot of dirt. Instead of storing them in the bedroom closet, create a system in the garage, mudroom or laundry room. You can use a shoe rack or basket to contain these shoes.

Today's refrigerator bulletin: "Buy it, match it and organize it!"

hand-made, queen size comforter will also be raffled. This batik piece, from the Indonesian island of Bali, features two birds that measure about 4 feet, on a blue and green background surrounded by greenery. It was given to the club by The Avian Ark, a bird conservation group that also provides quilts for raffles.

For the health and safety of those in attendance (whether feathered or not), all of the vendors' birds will be checked by a veterinarian when the show is being set up. Guests aren't allowed to bring their pet birds into the exhibit.

The Ann Arbor Cage Bird Club is a non-profit organization that was started about 1980. It has an estimated 30 to 35 members from an area extending from Ypsilanti to Flint to Farmington.

"You don't even have to have a bird (to join)," said Chris Karpo, who handles hospitality for the group.

"Mainly pet bird owners (belong)," said treasurer and past-president Jim Aldrich. "It's pretty much for information for each other."

People who don't have a pet bird but are considering getting one join to see what kind of bird they would like, Carol Aldrich said.

Club members vote on where to donate the money. Past recipients include The Avian Ark, which counts birds in the Solomon Islands for conservation purposes; bird rescue operations; and avian research, such as that done by Branson Richie at the University of Georgia. Every year, the organization gives $1,500 to MSU for someone studying to be an avian veterinarian.

"We invite the scholarship recipient to come and talk to our club every year," Carol Aldrich said. "They say they never would have been able (to complete) without it."

The club meets the third Thursday of the month at the Ann Arbor Community Center, 625 N. Main in Ann Arbor. Membership is $20 for a family for one year.

Meetings often feature guest speakers, including veterinarians and breeders, and activities such as making parrot sun catchers and sprouting seeds for bird food. The group has a Birdie Olympics in the fall.

"The idea is education, not just our members but the community," Carol Aldrich said.

Club members and their birds have visited families at the Ronald McDonald House in Ann Arbor, given shows at schools, and added a living element to an exhibit of stuffed songbirds at the University of Michigan. In December, members have a holiday dinner and donate food to the community center.

Here are answers to some gardening questions

All gardeners have questions about their favorite hobby at one time or another, so we'll get right to the point.

Q: How can I increase my pachysandra?

A: Right after a heavy rain or when you have deeply watered the bare areas where you want additional plants, cut off the top leaf cluster, with its entire stem, right to the top of the second leaf cluster.

Garden Spot

Marty Figley

Take a pencil and plunge it down into the "mush" to a depth of at least 3 inches, at a 45-degree angle. Take one plant and plunge it into the tunnel, leaving just a little stem and the head sticking out. Hold the plant vertically and close the hole tightly to avoid air pockets. Keep the bed very wet for three or four weeks. In two weeks or so, little white rootlets will grow and the new plants will continue to grow.

This will also improve the area from which you took the cuttings and each plant that was cut will grow a new top, or several, making the old bed lush again.

Q: The hot, hot weather we had recently really did a number on my vegetable garden.

A: I hope you have been watering during these past few weeks, and continue to water as long as necessary.

Most vegetables need 1 inch of water a week. Place a shallow pan or can in the vegetable garden to measure to be sure it gets that 1 inch of water.

Q: I never know if my potted plants are receiving enough water even though the water drains out of the bottom. How can I know if their thirst is satisfied?

A: Plunge the plants in a bucket of water and leave them there until no more air bubbles appear. This way, all the roots receive sufficient moisture.

Q: When is the best time to fertilize rhubarb?

A: This month is perfect, but don't do this as long as the weather is hot and dry.

Sidedress about 18 inches from the crown with a fertilizer high in nitrogen or use an organic fertilizer. Water well, if necessary, then mulch with grass clippings or manure, or cultivate to control weeds.

Remove the tall stems of cream flowers to retain vigor in the plant.

Rhubarb can be planted in the spring or fall in a sunny spot with excellent drainage. Dig in plenty of "black gold" before planting and place bare-root stock so the buds are covered by no more than 1 inch of soil. Potted rhubarb can be planted now or in early fall.

Stop harvesting your rhubarb now.

Q: There is something white on my roses, lilacs, phlox and beans. What is it and how can I get rid of it?

A: There are two types of mildew that afflict these plants. Downy mildew produces white patches on the leaves in wet weather. Powdery mildew turns the leaves a powdery white and occurs when it is hot and humid.

A commercial fungicide recommended for use on these plants often helps to get rid of it. Or, grow the plants in a sunnier area and look for mildew-resistant plants next year.

Q: How much water should I give my hanging plants?

A: Hanging plants and potted annuals need feeding every two to three weeks with a water-soluble fertilizer at a concentration of 1 tablespoon fertilizer per 2-gallon pail of water. Be sure the water runs through the hole in the bottom each time.

Q: My lawn may have grubs, which I would like to eradicate. Any advice?

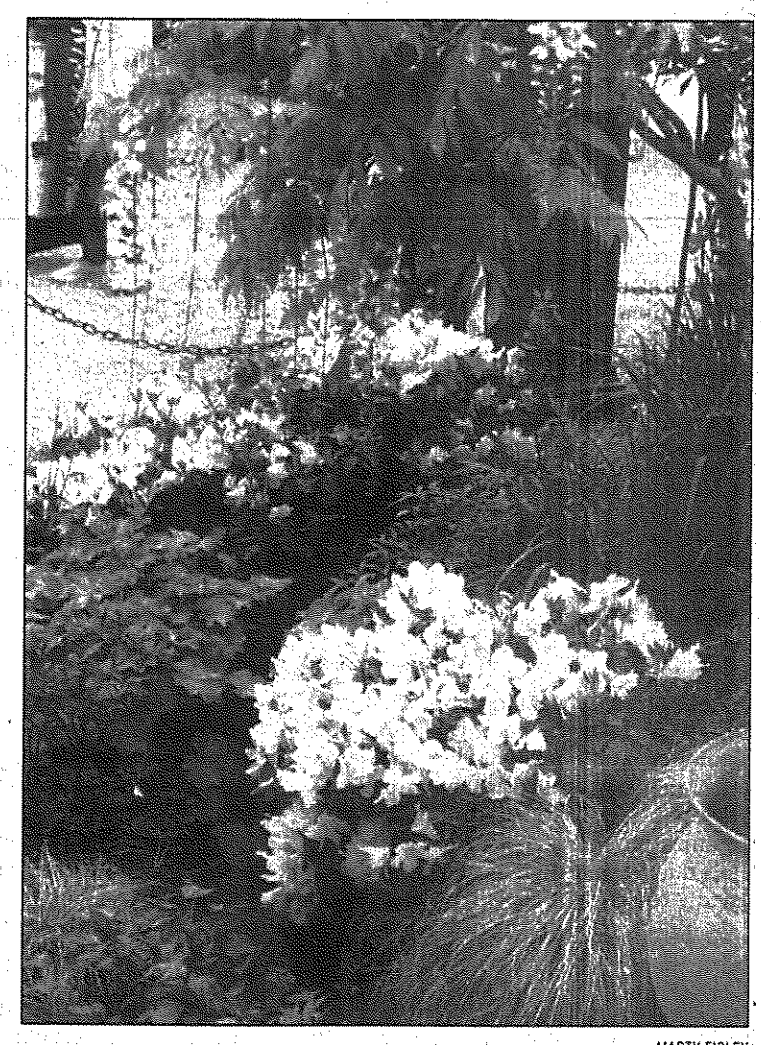

A: Packaged in powder, beneficial nematodes, mixed with water and sprayed on the soil, will destroy the grubs very quickly. For long-term treatment, inoculate the lawn soil with milky spore disease, Bacillus popilliae. These products should be readily available at your nursery.

Q: Is it all right to apply mulch around woody ornamentals, perennials and established annuals now?

A: Yes, as long as the soil isn't dry. Mulches reduce weeding chores and conserve moisture. Use seed-free straw, grass clippings, pine needles, chipped or shredded bark, or cocoa hulls (although expensive). Apply organic mulches at least 2 to 4 inches deep around the plants over cleanly cultivated soil.

Don't cover the crowns of very low growing plants.

Clevite Calhoun and the kids next door

It was in the year 1996 that I first heard from the Reverend Clevite Calhoun. My husband was traveling and I was accustomed to screening his junk mail. It seemed the good Reverend Calhoun was calling my husband into service, imploring him to join his holy tour on temperance. I threw the letter away in a huff. My husband didn't need any of that nonsense; beer was a simple pleasure in life for him.

I never mentioned the letter when my husband returned from his travels.

I did, however, mention the letter to our neighbor, Jack Kenyon. He was standing in his yard, watering his flowers, playfully spraying my son's feet with his favorite weapon, the hose.

"Fred got the strangest letter," I told Jack. "Some religious zealot invited him to join a tour on temperance!"

Jack, a man of few words, just kind of chuckled. It was then that my giggling daughter scampered by, begging for her own spray of the hose. Jack became so immersed in the play with the children I gave up the conversation and wandered back into the house.

For a time, I thought no more of the Reverend Clevite Calhoun.

Life went on in the neighborhood in spite of strange occurrences. It seemed a phantom was on the loose, a fairy, tiptoeing unseen and unheard onto our back porch, leaving behind tomatoes, cucumbers, and varieties of squash. We were stunned; it seemed the stealth tomato fairy eluded even our faithful, ever vigilant watchdog.

One day I mentioned the anonymous gifts of garden delights to Jack. He just laughed and shrugged, as he gathered loose sticks for his arsenal of rabbit ammo used for scaring critters out of his beloved garden. In all of his years as resident and former mayor of his beloved Plymouth, he had never encountered such happenings.

Life went on in the neighborhood.

And Jack was always there.

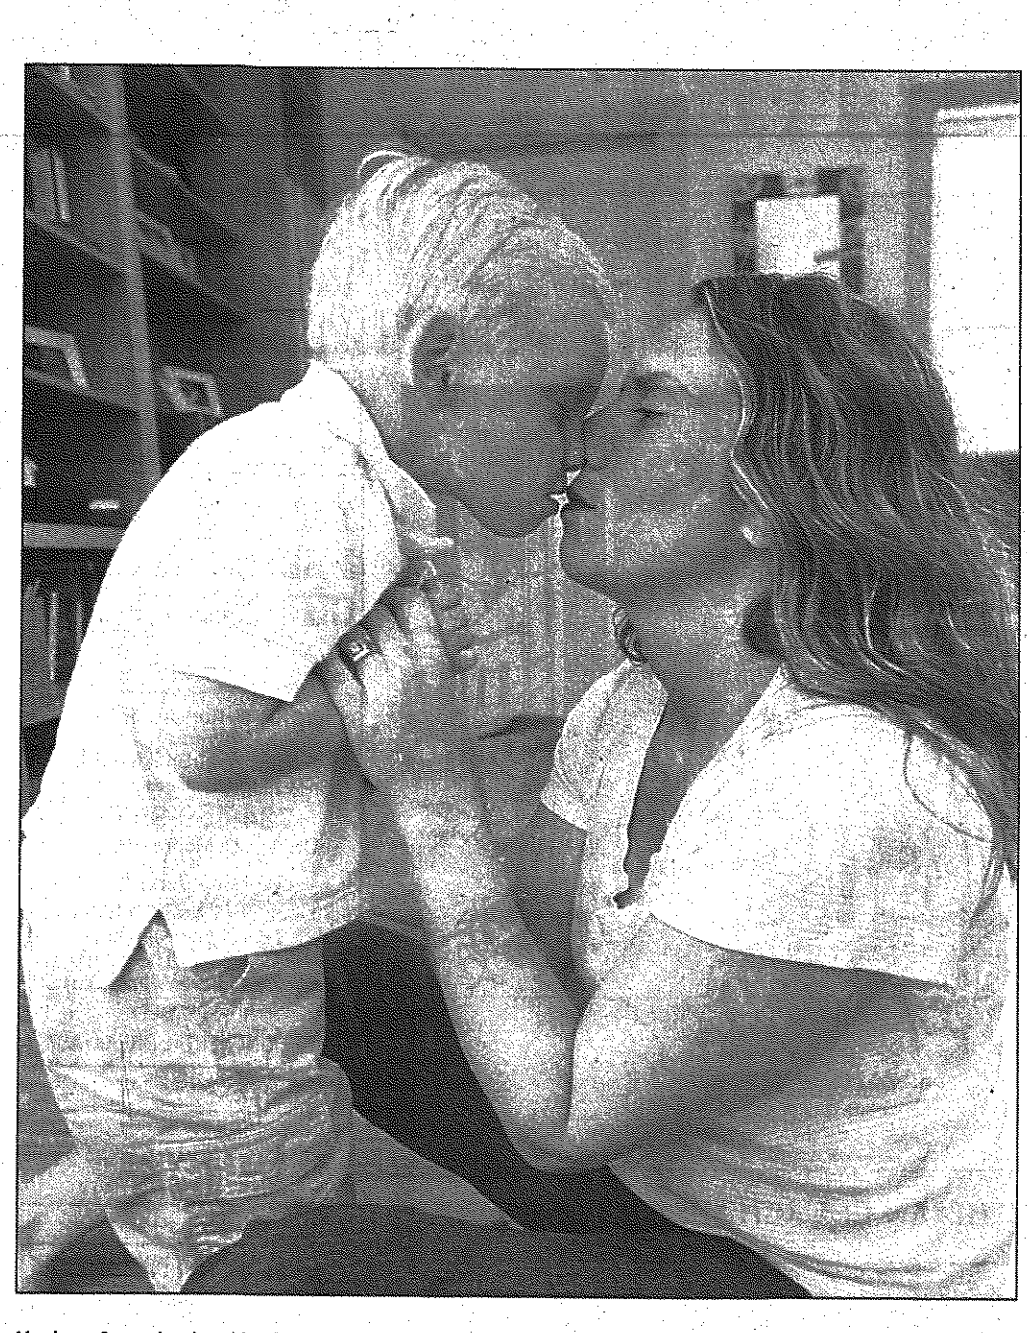

My husband eventually became an accomplice for the Reverend Clevite Calhoun. A frequent traveler, he often left on his many travels with a handful of letters. Letters from the Reverend Clevite Calhoun, imploring some unsuspecting reader to join his temperance tour. So traveled the Reverend Calhoun letters, postmarked Los Angeles, Tokyo or New York, and they were dropped in mail box after mail box.

Little did the recipients of the Reverend Calhoun letters realize the culprit of the temperance tour sat at home in Plymouth in front of his computer. Dressed in his Vans sneakers, wearing his Michigan sweatshirt, snacking on his favorite homemade cookies, Poppa Jack was busy at work, printing his next batch of letters. The temperance tours needed to go on.

And, as the years passed, I did catch a glimpse of the elusive tomato fairy.

Lying on my sofa, taking my afternoon relax, the tomato fairy was spotted bribing our watchdog with a dog biscuit. Though he was Monique Conrad gets a kiss from son Christian. Christian was diagnosed at age 2 as autistic, and his family is encouraged by his progress during therapy.

Early intervention

Youngster's battle with autism made easier by early detection

By Brad Kadrich ■ Staff Writer | Photos by Bill Bresler

Christian Conrad wasn't really talking much, and he didn't play with his toys the way his mom thought kids did. Rather than push a toy car or truck along the floor, for instance, he'd tip it upside down and spin the wheels endlessly.

He didn't talk, and didn't respond when mom and dad talked to him. At first, Monique worried her son was deaf. Her friends and family all told her the same things. Don't worry, he's just a late talker. Boys develop slower than girls. Maybe you're doing too much for him.

Christian had seizures after receiving his first immunizations, which include the drug thiomersal. At 13 months, Christian cut his finger and had a tetanus shot. That's when his mother first noticed regression in her son's talking.

Finally, Monique and her husband, David, decided to seek outside help. They took Christian to a friend of the family, speech pathologist Lorraine Zaksek at Speech, Language & Sensory-Motor, Inc., in Plymouth.

For the first time, the Conrads got a clinical look at their son outside the home environment, and it frightened them.

"When we took him there, that was the first time I really saw him in a place other than home," Monique Conrad recalled. "He just wandered around the room and cried, and he couldn't really focus on anything. (Zaksek) felt like there were some other issues going on."

FINDING OUT

At first, doctors and therapists told the Conrads Christian had some sensory integration problems. He took classes at Speech and Language for almost a year. Then the family went to see Dr. Rick Ng at the Center for Holistic Medicine in Bloomfield Hills.

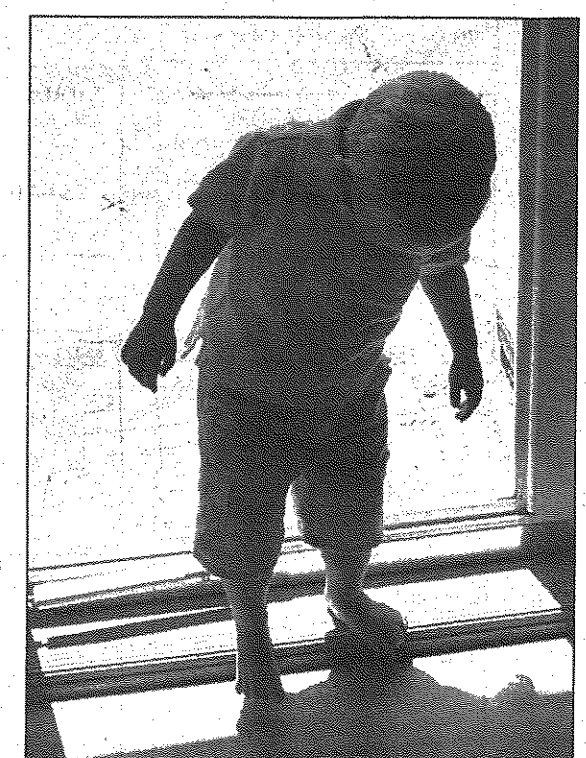

Ng's diagnosis only confirmed what the family had come to fear: Christian was autistic.

"I had been doing some reading and was just needing it to be confirmed," Monique said. "We had a feeling, but we were sticking with pervasive development disorder. But Christian was doing some of the specific behavioral traits of autism, so we couldn't stick with PDD anymore."

Though the diagnosis didn't surprise them, it still obviously had an effect. But the Conrads decided not to just mope. They took a positive attitude.

"We were very sad, but we turned it right around, made lemonade out of lemons," Monique said. "He's young (28 months old at the time), and even Dr. Ng told us, 'we're not just going to have a little boy who can read and write, but we're going to have a scholar when this is all done.'"

So, while everyone is optimistic about Christian's chances for recovery — mom says he's already making huge progress — the medical bills have begun piling up. Applied Behavior Analysis, an intensive, structured teaching program where lessons to be taught are broken into their simplest elements, is expensive, and not covered by health insurance in Michigan.

Christian Conrad contemplates his shadow.

When Michelle Brown heard about, she decided to help, and since then friends have been hurrying to the Conrads' side. Brown, who is Monique Conrad's best friend and Christian's godmother, is helping organize a fund-raiser to help defray the costs of Christian's treatment.

"As a pediatric nurse I know there aren't always cures, but I have faith that with the necessary support and therapies Christian will be able to live a normal life," said Brown, a registered nurse who works at Mott's Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

RAISING MONEY

The benefit takes place in Hines Park at Northville Road and Hines Drive in Plymouth from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10. The benefit picnic takes place at the Wilcox picnic pavilion, west of Northville Road east of Wilcox Road.

And, while raising money to help the Conrads afford the therapy is certainly one aspect of the fund-raiser, Brown, a Westland resident, and Monique Conrad are also turning the benefit into an informational seminar on autism.

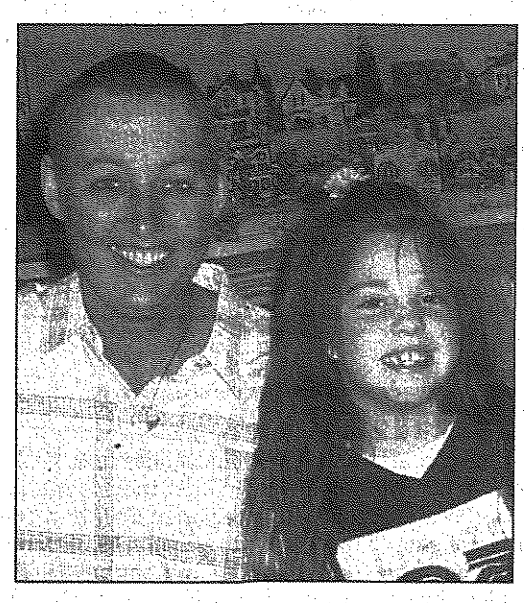

"Obviously we're gearing it toward raising money, but also toward raising awareness," said Brown, Monique Conrad's best friend since ninth grade. "It seems like everyone we talk to knows someone who is autistic. It's amazing."

Ng, the doctor who diagnosed Christian's autism, will speak, as will the dietitian who has Christian on a gluten- and caisson-free diet that appears to be working wonders for the youngster. Monique Conrad will also man an informational table where she'll have "tons of books to read ... and all kinds of literature."

Young girl donates hair in honor of her aunt

Ally Hermann (left) and her aunt, Robin Reid, are all smiles about Hermann's decision to donate her hair to Locks of Love. Reid passed away from breast cancer in June.

STAFF WRITER

When Ally Hermann found out her aunt, diagnosed with breast cancer in June last year, would be losing her hair due to chemotherapy treatments, the 8-year-old from Livonia pondered a question that probably would not have crossed the minds of many children her age.

"Can I give her my hair for a wig?" Ally asked her mother.

According to mom Sue Hermann, the second-grader at Buchanan Elementary School came up with the idea on her own to donate her hair to her aunt, Robin Reid.

"Ally has a very thick head of hair, even for an adult," said Hermann. "People always comment on it. She's very aware of her hair and so it was natural for her to say this."

Upon realizing that it was not conceivable for Ally's hair to be used in a wig for her aunt, the Hermann family came up with an alternate plan.

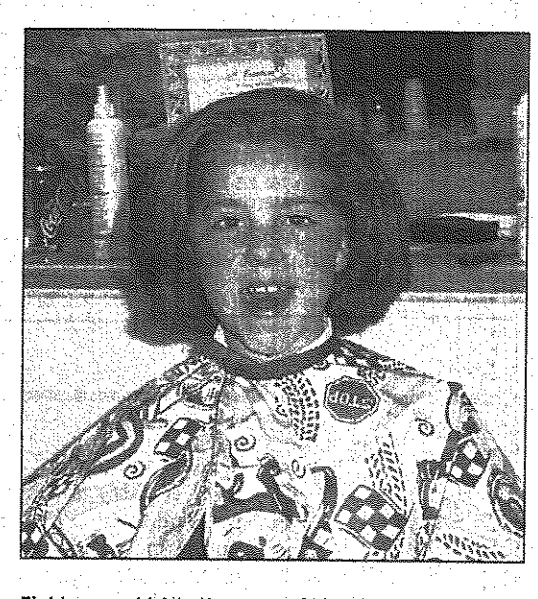

"Because we knew this wasn't possible we told her (Ally) about Locks of Love and the hairpieces they make for children," said Hermann. "Ally immediately wanted to do this instead."

Ally's willingness to donate her hair recently took on added meaning: Her aunt, Robin Reid, passed away June 19.

Eight-year-old Ally Hermann of Livonia had 10 inches of her hair cut off to donate to Locks of Love, an organization that makes wigs for children. Hermann sheared her tresses in honor of her aunt, Robin Reid, who recently passed away from breast cancer.

Pride and Humility

The dictionary defines pride as proper and justified self respect and a proper sense of personal dignity and worth. Everyone should take pride in their work, their family, their country and heritage. it is also good to take pride in things such as our personal appearance. When we take pride in all of the good things that our Lord has given us, we tend to take better care of them. However, we must be careful to have pride and self respect without arrogance or superiority. Children who are proud of their parents and respect them will try to be better children and do what is pleasing to their parents. As adults, we should always try to do what is pleasing in God's eyes. The Bible tells us that God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble (James 4:6). We should try to temper our pride with humility and not have an exaggerated opinion of our selves. The best way to be the best we can be. People who exalt themselves are usually esteemed less by others, and those who humble themselves are often more admired.

...do not think of yourself more highly than you ought, but rather think of yourself with sober judgment.
N.I.V. - Romans 12:13

fit hasn't just become a cause for Monique Conrad — it's become a crusade.

"I want to help parents get a deeper understanding of how they can help their children," Monique said. "That's one of my missions I believe have been called to me from God.

"My main goal is to reach out to the community," Monique Conrad said. "It used to be 1-in-10,000 children; now it's 1-in-166 boys. I want to be on the forefront of educating other parents. These children can be worked with with a lot of love and a lot of patience."

That's what the Conrads have been doing, and it's paying off. You can hear the payoff in Monique Conrad's voice when she delivers the evidence:

"I get kisses from my son now."

The Christian Conrad Faith Benefit is still in need of donations of things such as hot dogs, buns, condiments, chips, pop, face paints, toys for prizes, etc. Anyone wishing to make a donation can contact Michelle Brown, (734) 266-8131, or Joyce Sosnowski, (734) 397-9246, or e-mail CCFaithFund@yahoo.com.

tions in the form of ponytails at least 10-inches long that are then used to make custom, vacuum-fitted, natural-looking hair prosthetics for children under the age of 18.

After she and her mom researched Locks of Love on the Internet to find out exactly how to make a contribution, Ally began the process of growing out her long, thick hair last summer.

"I call it bizarre hair," said Hermann. "It's long, thick, it knots...it's frizzy."

Due to the "bizarre" nature of her daughter's hair, Hermann said Ally's attempts to grow it out were not easy.

"It hasn't been easy because of her thick hair. It makes combing her hair every day really hard on Ally, but she has been a trooper through it all," said Hermann.

Ally added that, during the time spent growing her hair long to meet the requirement, "it was really hot."

But recently Ally got relief from her abundance of brown locks along with the satisfaction of having helped someone in need. On May 22 she had 11 inches of her hair cut off at Libby's Hair Fashions in Northville.

The ponytail was packaged in a plastic bag and sent to the Locks of Love headquarters in Florida, where it will be used along with 10-15 other ponytails to make an individual hairpiece. To craft a single prosthetic, more than 140,000 strands of human hair are implanted by hand, one hair at a time, in exactly the same angle and direction as natural hair would grow.

Ally, who now sports a short bob, is happy with her new, more comfortable look.

"It's really nice and cool when the days are hot," she said. "All the kids liked it (haircut) when they saw it."

And when Ally told her friends what she had done with her hair she said, "they thought it was very neat."

Hermann said May 22 was "a day we'll forever remember."

"I'm pretty proud of her," she said. "But I'm even more proud of the fact that she originally wanted to do it for her aunt. It was all her idea. Locks of Love came second because doing it for her aunt wasn't feasible."

While the family grieves for the loss of a beloved aunt, Hermann said Ally is happy to have been able to help someone else. Her daughter's hair truly became locks of love.

For more information on Locks of Love or to find out how you can make a donation, call (561) 963-1677 or write to Locks of Love, 2925 10th Ave. North, Ste. 102, Lake Worth FL 33461. You can also visit the Web site at www.locksoflove.org.

heavily disguised under the guise of his hat, the tomato fairy seemed to bear a strange resemblance to Jack.

I guess I thought Jack would always be there.

It was just in May that the tomato fairy came no more. The Reverend Clevite Calhoun letter now sits in the silent computer waiting for Poppa Jack to come.

The strange occurrences are no more in our neighborhood. Today the street seems a little quieter; my children are a little drier.

Jack Kenyon had touched each of our lives in his quiet, sometimes mischievous way. Somewhere, in the stars, the temperance tour goes on. For Jack's spirit is a spirit that stays with you for a lifetime.

Today the spirit of Jack stays with the city of Plymouth and with the Plymouth Historical Museum.

It stays with Jackie and Jim, Trish and Janet, and all of his beloved grandchildren.

It even stays with poor, tiny rural communities in the West Virginian Appalachians, which were touched every year by his humble generosity.

Yes, Jack, we do think of you every now and again, and with each thought, with each memory, you bring a smile to our hearts.

My family thanks you, Jack. We were proud and honored to be members of your tour.

- Allow legislature to reduce compensation increases proposed by the SOCC.
- Provide that the SOCC's salary and expense determinations would take effect after the next general election. YES NO

Proposal J Jails Millage Renewal

To renew the millage authorized in 1998, shall Wayne County be authorized to continue to levy this millage at the 2001 rollback rate of .9432 mills (about 94 cents per thousand dollars of taxable valuation) for ten more years (2002 through 2011) for any of the following previously authorized uses:

To acquire, construct, and/or operate jail, misdemeanant, or juvenile incarceration or detention facilities, and for adult penalty options such as work release, home detention and community restitution; with at least one-tenth of the millage used to acquire, build and operate a juvenile offender work/training institution? This renewal is estimated to generate at least $37,431,874 in property tax revenue in 2002. YES NO

Proposal K Special Education Millage Proposal

The following proposal asks voters to consider an additional 1.5 mills for mandated special education programs beginning in 2002. The current authorization of 2.00 mills, which the voters approved at 1.00 mills in 1974 with an additional mill in 1988, has been rolled back to 1.8679 mills through application of the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan Constitution. The funds would be restricted to supporting these mandated programs in Wayne County school districts and reduce the reliance on the districts' general funds for this purpose.

Shall the limitation on the annual property tax rate previously approved by the electors of Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, Michigan, for the education of persons with disabilities be increased by 1.50 mills ($1.50 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation)? The estimate of the revenue the intermediate school district will collect if the millage is approved and levied in calendar year 2002 is approximately $59,360,000. YES NO

NOTICE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH

Consistent with the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department's mandatory water use restriction notice to limit water usage, Plymouth Township is instituting our emergency water use reduction ordinance. This is an effort to avoid water distribution problems due to continued hot, dry weather and high water usage.

Effective immediately all Plymouth Township customers shall institute an odd/even mandatory water use restriction to limit water use. (Individuals with odd-numbered addresses are asked to do outdoor watering only on odd numbered days. Likewise those having even numbered addresses should water lawns, fill swimming pools, wash cars, etc. on even numbered days.)

Because water consumption is at its peak between the hours of 6-9 a.m. and 3-6 p.m. daily, we are also requesting a voluntary observance to avoid outdoor use of water between these hours.

Your cooperation in maintaining the odd/even water use requirement will enable water customers to cintinue receiving an even distribution of water with minimal low-pressure problems and the possibility of a boil-water situation.

The water use restrictions will be in effect until further notice. If you have any questions or concerns, please call the Plymouth Township Water Department at (734) 453-8131.

Superb pitching helps Rams sweep the Warriors

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

LCBL BASEBALL

The old baseball saying states that good pitching will usually beat good hitting. The Michigan Lake Area Rams put that theory into practice in an excellent day on the field Sunday.

The Rams picked up a pair of victories, 2-1 and 2-0 over the Warriors in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League double-header at Livonia's Ford Field. The team improved its record this summer to 20-8-1 overall, while the Warriors fell to 6-21-1.

Madonna University's Mike Hayes (Redford Union) tossed a no-hitter in the nightcap, going seven innings with four strikeouts and six walks. He only needed to throw 98 pitches to secure the complete-game shutout. Hayes lowered his season earned run average to 0.68 with the win, his third of the summer.

The Rams scored in the first inning to give Hayes all the support he would need. Rob Hudson (Garden City) led the offense with two singles, a stolen base and a run scored. Ryan Freiburger drove home a run in the fifth inning and also collected a pair of hits. Charlie Anderson drove in the team's first run of the game.

In the opener, the Rams were the recipients of another fine pitching performance, this one by Central Michigan's Mark Lundquist, who struck out seven and allowed five singles in six innings of work. He improved his summer record to 7-2 with a 2.07 earned run average with the win.

The Rams got both of their runs in the seventh, starting with a triple by Ty Herriott. Pinch runner Hayes scored the game-tying run on a double steal. Brad Leach delivered the final blow when he singled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Hudson to help the team win the game.

Leach went 2-for-3 in the game with a pair of stolen bases for the Rams.

The Michigan Bulls used some strong pitching of their own to defeat the Rams 5-0 in a Saturday afternoon contest, also at Ford Field. Jason Brooks was the winning pitcher, allowing only three hits and one walk while fanning six.

Former Plymough Salem coach Joe Nora will coach soccer for Catholic Central next season.

Nora named new CC soccer coach

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Joe Nora's career in soccer has always been sprinkled with success, whether he was playing or coaching. Which is a good reason for Redford Catholic Central to want him to coach their team.

And that's the decision they made. Nora, a Plymouth native and former CC player who has coached Plymouth Salem's girls team the last three years, was hired to replace Dana Orsucci, who resigned after last season because he is moving to New Jersey.

For Nora, the chance to coach the team he played for a dozen years ago was too much to pass up. "I heard a rumor in January the job might be open," Nora recalled. "So I made some inquiries and they called me back and told me it was open, so I asked for an interview."

But with all his other commitments — besides the Salem girls team, Nora coaches the under-14 girls Northville Sting and the under-17 boys Novi Jaguars while taking classes at Madonna University to become a certified teacher in Michigan — would Nora have jumped on this job had it been another school?

"It was just because it was CC," Nora admitted. "I had been coaching Salem's boys JV team and I liked working with (Salem varsity coach) Ed McCarthy."

He'll give that up now, but not the Salem girls team. "The first thing I did when I wanted to apply was, I met with (Salem athletic director) Tom Willette to make sure there was no conflict of interest," he said.

And Nora figured, with the present court case facing the Michigan High School Athletic Association and the threat of putting both the boys and girls seasons at the same time, now was the time to jump on the opportunity.

"When I heard the seasons might be changed, I figured this might be the last chance to get to coach my high school team," he said.

What both the CC administrators and Nora would like to happen is a return to prominence, something

Recruits should keep Madonna spikers at the top

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

RECRUITING

It's already been a season like no other — and the start is six weeks away.

That's because Madonna University's volleyball team was facing a situation unlike any other in its history: the loss of seven players, including four starters. Jerry Abraham, the only coach the Fighting Crusaders have ever had, likened it to the period following the 1996 season, when he had to replace Julie Martin, Kelly McCausland, Meg Paris and Heather Steinhelper.

It meant Abraham had to hustle to fill the holes in his lineup. And he did, securing a wide-ranging, talent-laden group of players that should enable Madonna to remain a powerhouse, both in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference and the NAIA.

"We've got a lot of talent," said Abraham. "They all come from good schools and good (volleyball) programs. Now it's just a matter of seeing where they all fit in and how they blend together."

There are a lot of firsts to this recruiting class. The most notable would be a player who has definitely earned the label "coach on the floor" — simply because she is a coach.

Shelley Stanton is a 6-foot outside hitter who graduated from Brighton HS and spent three years playing at Central Michigan University in the mid '90s. A desire to earn her degree in teaching, with a year of eligibility remaining, led her to Madonna.

Stanton, who will have senior status, has not been out of the game. Since leaving CMU, she has played sand volleyball and last winter coached the Linden HS team.

"She gives us a dynamic, experienced player, something we needed after all we lost," noted Abraham. "She has the potential to be one of the best to ever play at Madonna. She's left-handed and she hits the ball extremely hard."

If Stanton was a combination of good luck/good recruiting, Natalja Tinina combined fortune with perseverance and patience. Tinina is a graduate of Riga Purvciems Secondary School in Latvia, a small country situated west of Russia.

Her recruitment is not quite official — all of the paperwork regarding her visa has not yet been approved — but Abraham is certain it will be, and he is looking forward to having his first-ever international player on the team.

Tinina's road to Madonna wound through several sources, with more than a few e-mailings and phone calls required to set it up. It should all be worth it, Abraham said, even though he's never actually seen her play.

"I've seen tapes of her, and I've talked to people about her," he said of the 6-foot hitter. "She plays on a national team, and she's the captain of her high school and club teams. She plays against strong competition, she's got nice size, she hits the ball well and she's good in the back row."

Tinina is also an excellent student who speaks English well. Having an international player on the team "will be a whole different experience for our team," Abraham felt.

Two others Abraham hopes will be able to contribute immediately are Linsey Buche and Ashley Frost, both from Lake Odessa Lakewood HS, which reached the Class B semifinals last season. Buche is a 5-10 outside hitter; Frost is a 5-10 setter.

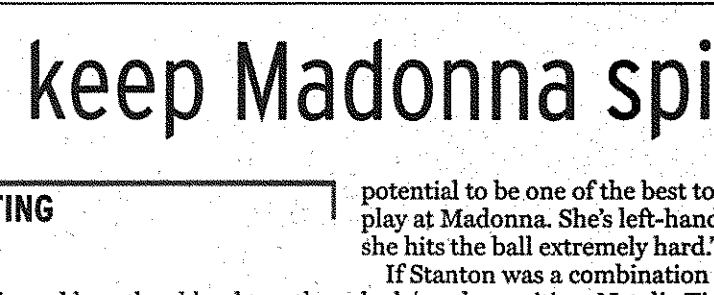

Frost signed early and could challenge for the starting setter's position. "I thought she was one of the better servers I'd seen at distributing the ball," said Abraham.

Buche was one of Lakewood's better players. "She hits the ball hard and has good all-around skills," Abraham said. "And she hates to lose."

Alison Nycamp is a 5-11 outside hitter from Zeeland, which — like Lakewood

Twisters open with a rout

SEMI-PRO FOOTBALL

It was the Lakeshore Football League's Kickoff Classic, but in truth it was the Michigan Twisters who did all the kicking.

On Saturday at Devlin Stadium in Willow Run, Westland's Charles Fountain caught two touchdown passes, Jaquan Wright ran for two and John Robinson threw for two as the Twisters blasted Toledo's Glass City Grizzlies 47-0.

The Twisters gained 409 yards on offense with a variety of players contributing, including three quarterbacks. On defense they were equally effective, limiting the Grizzlies to just 76 yards on 41 plays.

Fountain caught a 62-yard touchdown pass from Orlando Wright, who was 4-of-8 passing and also ran 11 yards for a TD. The Westland native also scored on a 39-yard strike from Robinson, who was 3-of-5 with a second scoring pass of 19 yards to Dontl Hamilton.

Wright led the ground game for the Twisters, which produced 240 yards. Wright carried just four times but gained 113 yards, scoring twice. Jason Gibson got 86 yards on 10 tries, with one touchdown.

The Twisters' defense picked off two Grizzlies' passes, Bob Pensari (Canton) intercepting one and Rich Peeples the other, while allowing just four completions in 23 attempts for 45 yards.

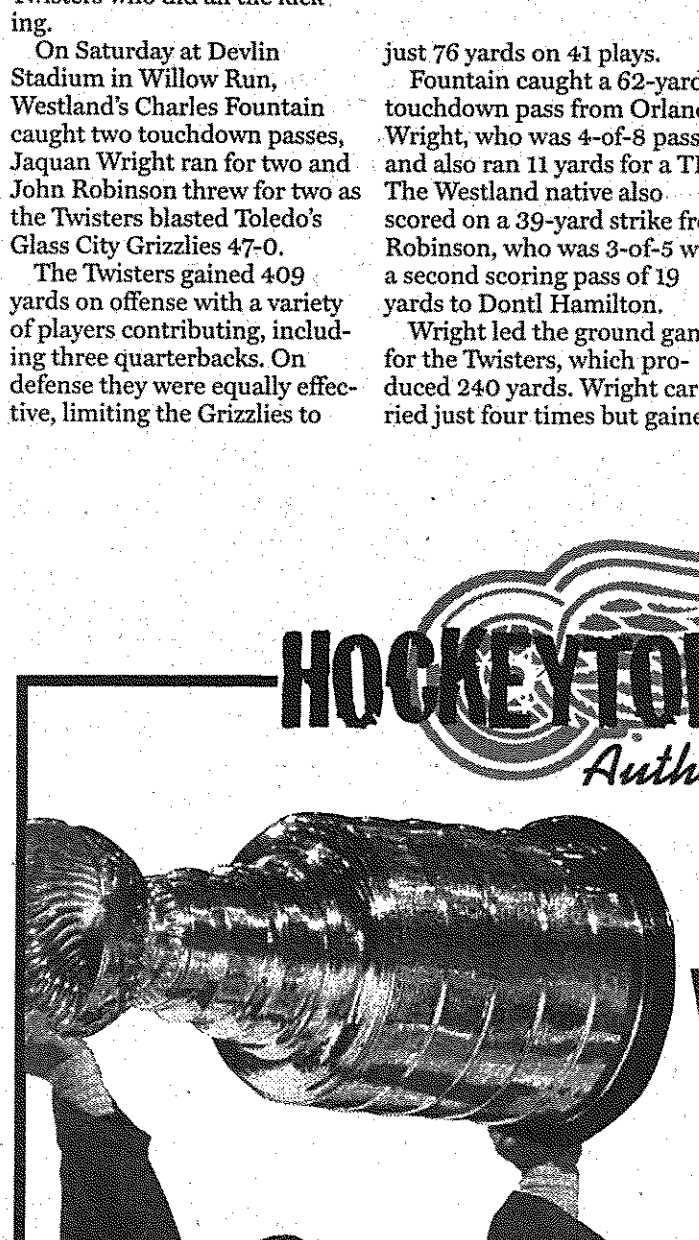

They also recorded three sacks, with Aaron Brothers and Kevin Love getting one apiece.

The Twisters take on the Southern Michigan Timberwolves at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium.

A big win: Eric Pogue was in goal in the Bucks' 6-2 victory over the Chill.

Offense carries Bucks to sweep

SOCCER

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Call it a make-or-break trip. And the Mid-Michigan Bucks took the first option.

Realizing their hopes for a playoff berth in the Premier Development League were slipping away, the Bucks traveled to Sault Ste. Marie last weekend for two matches against the Thunder Bay Chill of the PDL's Heartland Division.

The Bucks needed points, and they got them with a pair of high-scoring wins that not only secured them four points for each victory but also two bonus points, one for each win with more than three goals scored.

The Bucks improved to 10-5-2 overall, collecting 10 points for a season total of 50 — six more than West Michigan (9-6-1, 44 points) in a battle for the final playoff berth in the Great Lakes Division. Their final regular-season match is at 7:30 p.m. Saturday against Dayton; a win could assure them of a playoff berth.

Thunder Bay is 4-11-1.

On Saturday in Sault Ste. Marie, Ryan Mack (from Birmingham Seaholm) scored one goal and assisted on another and Pat Noonan got two assists to lead the Bucks to a 4-2 victory.

The game started in all-too-familiar fashion for Mid-Michigan when it surrendered an early goal to the Chill, in the 16th minute.

But the Bucks managed to tie it at 1-all late in the first half, Mack scoring in the 43rd minute on an assist from Boyzzz Khumalo.

In the second half, the Bucks gained control with a goal by Jason Perry (from Mack) in the 56th minute and another by Adam Heinemann (from Noonan) in the 64th minute.

A Chill goal narrowed the gap to one just two minutes after Heinemann's score, but the Bucks wrapped it up with an added-time goal by Will Kletzien (from Noonan).

Joe Zawacki (Livonia Stevenson) was in goal for the Bucks.

Sunday's match featured a different look for the Bucks. Back in the lineup were midfielders Dario Brose (also the team's coach) and Tino Scicluna (Redford/Detroit Country Day), neither of whom played Saturday.

Their affect was easy to detect — Brose scored two first-half goals and Scicluna had a goal and an assist in the Bucks' 6-2 triumph.

Paul Snape (Oakland University) also scored two goals for Mid-Michigan and Mack got his second goal of the weekend.

Eric Pogue (Troy Athens) was in goal for the win.

Something else the Bucks did differently: They took the lead from the start and kept it, instead of allowing their opponent to score first, which was developing into an annoying habit. Brose and Scicluna made certain that wouldn't happen this time, each getting a goal in the first 21 minutes of the match.

Brose's second goal of the half gave the Bucks a 3-1 lead at the break; Mack's goal made it 4-1 in the 56th minute.

Snape accounted for their final two goals.

The 10-goal outburst made the Bucks the division's highest-scoring team with 45 goals. Unfortunately, their defense is still lacking; they've allowed 35 goals, the second-highest total in the division, and they have yet to shut out an opponent.

Spartans repel Wildcats' comeback try

SUMMER HOCKEY

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

A comeback attempt by the Wildcats fell short in Monday's Metro Summer Hockey League game against the Spartans.

Despite scoring three of the final four goals of the game, the Wildcats were on the short end of a 13-9 decision at the Suburban Training Center in Farmington Hills.

The Spartans scored five times in the first period, getting them off to the big start they needed. Canton's Michael Crowley scored a goal and two assists in the first period, along with teammate Brian Sommariva.

The Spartans outscored the Wildcats 4-2 in the second period, adding to their lead entering the third. High-scoring forward Alex Foster (Canton) picked up four goals and two assists to lead the Spartans.

Falcons 12 Bulldogs 9: Most of the scoring in this one took place in the first period, and the Falcons put up just enough goals to hold the lead and pick up the victory. The Falcons were led by Jason Bloomingburg, who picked up an incredible five goals and four assists, figuring in on nine of the team's 12 goals.

Westland's Tony Guzzo added three goals and three assists for the Falcons, who hung on to an 8-7 lead by outscoring the Bulldogs 4-2 in the third period. Andy Paul, a defenseman from Lake Orion, had two goals and three assists for the losing team.

Lakers 13 Wolverines 7: A five-goal run between the first and second periods gave the Lakers enough of an edge in their 13-7 win over the Wolverines Monday night.

Sean Smith (Livonia) had two goals and an assist in the five-goal streak for the Lakers, and Garden City's Andy Thackaberry added a goal and an assist.

Livonia's Bryan Marshall scored a natural hat trick in the third period, scoring three consecutive goals for the Lakers. He also assisted on two others in the game, while Redford's Chris Powroznik added three goals and one assist for the Wolverines.

Lakers 12 Broncos 2: The night before their win over the Wolverines, the Lakers had little trouble in disposing of the Broncos Sunday night with a 12-2 triumph.

Ryan Wischmeyer and James Krygowski (both of Livonia Churchill) scored the Broncos' goals in the game, coming in the first and second periods respectively.

The Lakers had balanced scoring, with seven different players picking up the team's 12 goals. Marshall had a goal and an assist for the Lakers.

Huskies 11 Warriors 5: A 7-1 advantage in the third period proved to be the difference in the Huskies coming from behind to pick up an 11-5 win over the Warriors.

The two teams entered the third period tied up at 4, but five goals from four different players on the Huskies put the game out of doubt. Howell's Trent Daavettia had three goals and four assists to lead all offensive players in the game.

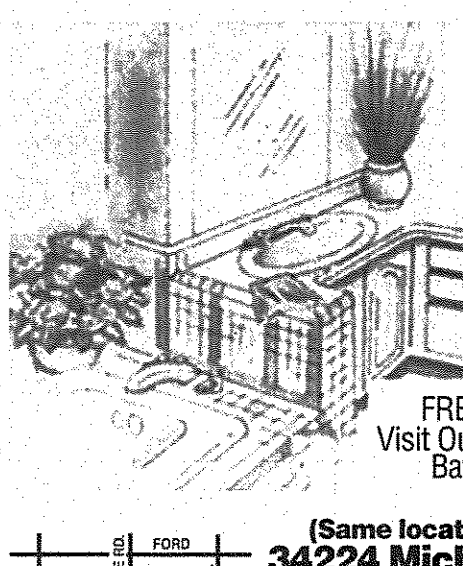

Whalers 14 Bulldogs 6: Once again, a third-period outburst was the key to a victory, as the Whalers outscored the Bulldogs 8-2 in the third period of Sunday's 14-6 victory.

John May (Livonia) scored three times and assisted on three others for the Whalers. Canton's Jeremy Majszak also scored once and picked up an assist for the winning team.

Canton's David Gill assisted on two early goals to help the Bulldogs out to an early 3-1 lead before the Whalers rallied.

MADONNA

(and Riga Purvciems, for that matter) — is a school Abraham has never had a recruit from. She was second team all-state in Class A, and she has "excellent all-around skills, great ball control, and she hits the ball hard. She can help us in a lot of ways. She'll definitely challenge for an outside hitter's spot."

Ashley Zayti is a 5-10 setter/outside hitter from Holly who, like Nycamp, could play several positions.

Zayti possesses "good athleticism. She can play both positions, and it's rare to find someone like that, a setter and a hitter."

Like all the recruits, Zayti may need time to raise her level of play to the collegiate level.

Still, even though so much was lost, the outlook is bright for Madonna volleyball.

BASEBALL

The Rams hurt themselves with three errors and allowing seven walks to the Bulls. Charlie Anderson led the Rams with two hits, while Brian Campbell (CMU, Livonia Stevenson) also picked up a hit.

Friday night, the Rams scored twice in the eighth inning to edge the Hurricanes 6-5 at Clintondale High School.

Balanced offense was the key for the Rams in this game, as six different players drove in runs, and seven different players reached base.

Oliver Wolcott (Plymouth Canton/Michigan State) went 2-for-3 with a run batted in and two runs scored to lead the Rams' offense. Herriott, Campbell and Chris Trott (Plymouth Salem) each scored runs in the game.

The Rams fell behind 3-0 before getting the bats going. They scored twice in the fifth and sixth innings, setting up their eight-inning heroics.

T.J. Smith (Henry Ford CC) was the winning pitcher, going 2 1/3 innings pitched with three strikeouts while not allowing a hit.

The Rams battle the Hurricanes Friday at 5:45 p.m. at Ford Field.

WSU athletic department signs a new radio deal

Wayne State University Director of Athletics Rob Fournier announced today the signing of a radio contract with WQBH Radio (1400 AM) to broadcast all 2002 football games and 2002-03 men's basketball games.

"The relationship with WQBH is a major step in our goal of upgrading our athletic programs," said Fournier. "With over 31,000 students, and over 200,000 alums in the metropolitan Detroit area, this access presents a great opportunity to display our athletic success.

"I look forward to working with the professional staff at WQBH to develop our shared initiatives."

Concurring was Trienere Steinberg, WQBH general manager.

"The WQBH-1400 family is excited about our new affiliation with Detroit's premier higher educational institution, Wayne State University," said Steinberg. "This partnership will give us both an opportunity to serve the entire metro Detroit community with first-class athletic events."

'(This) is a major step in our goal of upgrading our athletic programs. With over 31,000 students, and over 200,000 alumns in the metropolitan Detroit area, this access presents a great opportunity to display our athletic success'

Rob Fournier
Wayne State AD

WQBH is Detroit's only community radio station that utilizes a full-service urban format.

The station began broadcasting in 1925 as WMBC and has been WQBH since June 30, 1982. The station can heard as far east as Essex, Ontario, as well as covering the metro Detroit region.

The 2002 broadcast schedule begins on August 29th when the Warrior football squad visits Northern Iowa for a 8:05 p.m. kick-off. Broadcasters will be announced at a later time.

similar to what the Shamrocks enjoyed when Nora played there.

With players like Dominic Scicluna, a Redford resident who now coaches Schoolcraft College's men's team, and Kerry Zavagnin, like Nora a Plymouth native now playing Major League Soccer for the Kansas City Wizards, CC reached a No. 1 state ranking in 1989. Ironically, they were eliminated from the state tournament in the regional by Salem.

It wasn't that way last season. The Shamrocks struggled, failing to win a game until beating Livonia Franklin in the districts. They finished at 1-10-5.

"They had six or seven one-goal games," noted Nora. "I talked to a lot of people and they said they were just having trouble putting the ball in the net. Definitely, the No. 1 goal is the importance of working hard. Every time you step on the field, you should do the best you can. That's all I can ask."

To that end, Nora has instituted a pre-season conditioning camp, which players are currently going through. Tryouts will begin in mid-August, with the season starting in late August.

That's when Nora's affect will truly be understood.

Certification of service animals OK

Our community association passed a rule phasing out all pets except seeing eye dogs, hearing aid dogs or any other dogs trained to deal with particular disabilities.
Our new rule also requires that service animals be allowed if they are properly trained and certified for a particular disability. Do you think we have a right to require certification for the service animals?

In a similar case, a West Virginia court ruled that the association's rule doesn't violate fair housing laws. An community association may require that a service animal be properly trained.

The court also said that the community association was allowed to require the members to provide written assurance from the dog's trainer that the animals were trained and to provide a statement from a physician specializing in the relevant disability that the dog was necessary to lessen the effects of the member's disabilities.

To justify a request for a service animal, the court reasoned that a member must show that the animal provides more than just comfort and companionship.

Be willing to sell for less, buy for less now

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Kevin Finnerty is more than a bit concerned.

He and his wife, Sandy, listed their home for sale March 23. After 3-1/2 months, nearly two dozen prospects had stopped by, but no one submitted a purchase offer.

Finnerty had hoped to relocate by the time sons Shamus and Brenden start school in August. Now, he's not sure that's going to happen.

"Last year, it would have been gone in a month," he said. "This year, I don't know. My Realtor says there's a lot of houses on the market and they're not selling a lot now."

Sales seem especially sluggish in upper-end markets like Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham, Realtors say.

But the Finnertys live in Redford, a community regarded for starter homes. They initially listed their three-bedroom, one-bath, 1,100-square-foot brick bungalow at $129,900, now $122,900.

"It's reasonably priced. It never was the most expensive on the block," he said.

Finnerty hired professionals to repaint the interior and clean the carpets before listing. He upgraded the flooring in the dining room, added carpeting in the partially-finished basement. The lawn is well-kept.

"The Realtor has done everything I know he can possibly do," Finnerty said, adding that he suspects buyers might be turned off by just one bathroom and older windows.

But still ...

"Houses have been staying on the market longer," said Lee Bittinger, broker/owner of RE/Max Classic offices in Canton, Livonia, Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield.

"There are more houses available. It's impacting salability," added Kay Pearson, manager of the Real Estate One office in Clarkston.

"There's always kind of a lull from around mid-June through early August," Bittinger said. "People going on vacation, things like that.

"It could be just world events," he said. "Things happening in the Middle East and the stock market has been falling a little bit recently. Maybe people are feeling a little bit shaky and are waiting to see what happens."

When things slow down, sellers have to be even more vigilant in marketing their homes.

"Have the house put its best foot forward," Bittinger said. "Make sure it's priced right. Don't try to over-price looking for a little bonus."

Sellers may eventually reap less money as their homes linger on the market, said Doug Keating, associate broker and an owner of Snyder Kinney Bennett & Keating in Birmingham.

But the up side is that sellers, in turn, probably will pay less when they go to buy. And probably get a better mortgage rate now, too, he said.

"This is a terrific time to buy up," Keating said. "The public gets too hung up on what am I going to get for my house. The key is what are you going to pay for what you want to buy."

So his take – be willing to sell for less and buy for less now.

"When you get into competition with new construction, say $250,000, it definitely gets into a buyer's market," Pearson said.

With more houses available, buyers may be more willing to slow down and look for a bargain rather than move quickly, she suggested.

"It's going to have to be priced right and looking good," Pearson said. Hiring the right agent – one who knows an area or price point – becomes especially crucial.

"Just like doctors, we all have an area of our expertise," she said. "When the going gets tough, you need to point to those who have marketing ability, every tool in place."

Joyce Dobbs, a Realtor with Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl in Rochester Hills, used the word "uncertain" to describe current market conditions.

"There are layoffs and rumors of layoffs. That's probably at the root of it," she said. "People really lost in the stock market the last couple of years. People are afraid to commit themselves to large purchases."

John W. Cole, broker/owner of Century 21 Cole in Redford, brings up job layoffs and uncertain economic times in his analysis.

"There's definitely a lull in the market," he said. "I'm not really sure what it is. Maybe, like the auto industry, it's due to saturation, or maybe the lull is due to economics."

Both agree that sellers may have to reduce asking price.

"In all cases, it's back to exposure and price," Dobbs said. "If it's not exposure, it's price. They may have to reduce expectations. Sometimes it can be very difficult."

Cole also reflects Keating's thinking.

"If you take an adjusted price here (when selling), you'll have the same effect in the location you'll be buying," Cole said.

He also touts the voice of specialized experience.

"Local Realtors know the marketplace better in most cases than someone in a far out area," Cole said.

DON'T GIVE IN TO PESSIMISM

Here are a few tips to help sell your home when the market cools:

- Hire a Realtor who is familiar with your area.
- Price right when you first hit the multilist.
- Make the house as dressy as possible with a thorough cleaning inside and out.
- Remember the ultimate goal; don't allow a couple thousand dollars to scuttle a deal.

Mortgage Bits

Tim 'Timbo' Phillips

Sour economy yields tasty opportunities

Our spoiled economy and the souring Dow have many investors on edge, but home owners and buyers are reveling over the resulting smorgasbord of mortgage entrees. The recessed market (which has yet to show definitive signs of recovery) has produced the very pleasing side effect of continued low home mortgage interest rates. If you have been contemplating a move – either a refinance or a relocation – you probably have a few more months to reap a wonderful harvest.

Most property owners are very aware of the dramatic increase in their home values over recent years. Many also maintain traditional investment portfolios. In light of the losses many investors have realized in the stock market lately, your home is probably your most reliable investment. Certainly, it is among your most secure.

Real estate is a unique investment because it is a limited commodity. In the free market, a growing demand for a limited resource will force an increase in that resource's price. That's exactly what we are seeing in the housing market. In fact, some local communities have increased in value almost 10 percent over the last couple years. Many have sustained an average 6 percent growth annually for years.

Your home's equity – which is the difference between its market value and the liens against the home – is like cash in the bank. You can choose to keep your equity securely in its place, or to expand your real estate investment by putting your equity to work. Why not increase your investment in your current home, or consider expanding your real estate holdings by purchasing another property? With record low interest rates, you have a prime opportunity to do either.

If you are happy with your home location, consider improving it. Generally, improved kitchen and bathrooms will give you the biggest return on investment upon the sale of your home. Many Home Equity Lines-of-Credit have rates floating around prime which is currently at 4.75 percent.

If you decide to purchase other properties, your Realtor and your mortgage loan officer can review your menu of options. Your existing home equity may open doors you never thought possible.

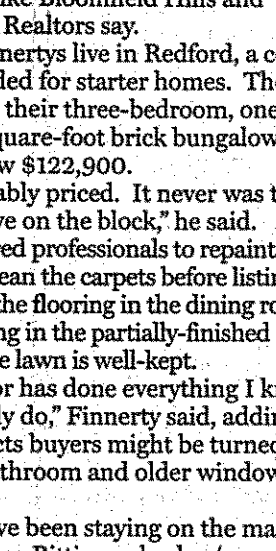

Tim Phillips is a mortgage loan officer serving all of Michigan. You may reach him at (734) 797-5522, or via e-mail at PhillipsHO@comcast.net You should always consult a professional for guidance specific to their situation.

Boomers wage battle on lifetime of clutter, stuff

(AP) – It happens to many baby boomers and their little pieces of real estate.

The attic or the garage, or maybe the closets or the kitchen cabinets, turn from a repository of great bargains and acquisitions into a nightmare.

A little like The Blob or the exploding marshmallow man in Ghostbusters, clutter has taken over and turned a house or office into a mess.

And little wonder. Boomers, the wealthiest generation in history, have been the biggest consumers of clothes, gadgets and all kinds of stuff over the past 30 years.

Many have fought back.

You can see it from the proliferation of garage and yard sales in suburban neighborhoods. Others are seeking help, which is feeding the popularity of professional organizers, people who teach homeowners and business people how to deal with the disarray.

Julie Morgenstern, a professional organizer and founder of Task Masters, says most of her clients are boomers.

"What they are saying is, 'I have too much stuff. It's weighing me down. I can't manage it all,'" said Morgenstern, who has written books on organizing.

"Baby boomers cannot tolerate working these long hours, competing out there in the workplace and coming home to a house that is not peaceful or orderly," she said.

"They want to reduce stuff and organize stuff. They want to enjoy their homes and kids, spouses and social lives," Morgenstern said.

Shahla Salamat loves bargains and buying in bulk. She had cans of tuna by the case, tons of decorations for her home and lots of games for her kids to play. It was all starting to drive her and her husband a little crazy.

"In the last four years, I've moved five times. You know how much stuff I brought with me to each place?" Salamat said. "I've asked myself, 'Where was your brain that you moved all this stuff?'"

She ended up going to an organizer for help.

Janice Kemmer, president of American Business Organizers, gets calls for help from people "when they look around and find there's no open space in the cupboards, no more space to put clothes in the closet."

How do people get to the point where they're swamped? Why don't they just throw things out?

"They're inundated with volume and don't know what to do with it, so it tends to stack up," said Kevin Hall, president of Clutter No More.

"I see a lot of stuff within a home that needs repair or is broken, but they don't know what step to take, like recycling a (computer) monitor."

Morgenstern said, "It's very overwhelming and it's a lot of brainwork and physical labor, also. There are a lot of things to go through and a lot of decisions to be made."

But sentimental value – and not only with baby shoes and record collections – can also get in the way.

"You won't believe how much stuff I said goodbye to," Salamat said. "Sometimes, I think, I had a beautiful set of stemware from Mexico. Sometimes you think about all your old stuff and you think, 'Get a grip; it's just old stuff.'"

Organizers say the key to eliminating clutter is to be realistic about your needs and the psychological reasons why you cling to items that you have little or no use for. They tell their clients to focus on the essentials.

Hall, noting that people tend to use only 20 percent of their possessions 80 percent of the time, asks his clients a lot of questions about the various things they own.

"Do you need it a lot or do you love it? Do you need 20 pens in your top desk drawer? How many handkerchiefs do you need?" he said.

Hall also urges clients to think before they bring in new clutter. Do you need to take home another pen from the next meeting you go to, he wonders.

Sometimes people just aren't sure what they need.

Salamat answered that question by boxing up some of her possessions and then, after not using them for six months, tossing them out.

Organizers also find clients often don't know what to do with things they decide not to keep.

Kemmer suggests giving to family members first, then to friends and then to charities.

If you're not sure what would be an appropriate charity for some of your possessions, ask around. Friends who have already gone through this process might have discovered some organizations you've never heard of. And remember to get a receipt so you can deduct the contributions on your income tax return.

You might consider a yard sale, but it will mean a lot of work, and probably less financial return than you'd get with a charitable donation.

And hard as it might be to accept, some things are better off being recycled or tossed out.

People who have de-cluttered say life is a lot easier without all the stuff.

Vickie Bashor, a personal coach, reorganized her office when she worked as a chiropractor and found she saved $3,500 in overhead.

"We found we could work more with a smaller space and smaller staff," she said. Bashor also reorganized parts of her home and found she has more time to do the things she wants to do.

Urban-living upgrades bring their own challenges

(AP) – A five-room apartment in an urban high-rise: kitchen, living room, dining room and two bedrooms. It's new. It has a view. But like a suburban tract house, it has no character.

No matter. You're paying for location, so you start interviewing contractors and decorators to create your own special refuge.

Rip out interior walls, and the place begins to look like a trendy loft.

Prefer a more traditional look? Add crown moldings; replace hollow-core doors with pocket or French doors; replace painted faux wood casings and baseboard with hand-finished hardwood; add a non-working fireplace.

Or it could be an older urban space. Its charm is intact, if tattered. But the electrical system is outdated and the plumbing leaks.

Still up to the challenge of these hurdles and more?

While your suburban house is on the market, you might want to read The New City Home: Smart Design for Metro Living (The Taunton Press, $34.95 hardcover).

Author Leslie Plummer Clagett will take you from New Orleans to Minneapolis, from New York City to Los Angeles, inviting you to look in on the finished interiors of more than 20 lofts, high-rises, row houses and town houses, and a couple of places that had far more humble beginnings.

Each undertaking addresses a special issue:

■ Restoring a brownstone facade along historic district guidelines.

■ Gutting unused industrial space.

■ Opening dark interiors to the light.

■ Creating home offices and other special-purpose areas.

■ Making small apartments look bigger, or finding furnishings that don't look lost in wide-open interiors.

One hardly thinks of Los Angeles as a crowded metropolis of narrow lots, but there are plenty of houses from the 1930s and 1940s built cheek to jowl.

The only way to expand is up, and though the original construction wasn't up to code, the new addition must meet several regulations, from seismic standards to energy efficiency.

In this Spanish-influenced house, the new upper floor was built to an open plan, but a private "building within a building" was placed on either side at the top of the stairs.

One is a bedroom, the other a bathroom, and they break up the space between the master suite and the library-study.

In addition to more space, the owners wanted more light. With the neighboring house on the west barely 6 feet from the kitchen wall, there was no view and no privacy. The solution: a series of oversize translucent glass sliding doors.

"The deliberate placement and height of the 8-foot-tall openings on the west side of the building trumped the potentially sun-blocking structure next door, filling the space with brightness," Clagett writes.

A skylight over the stairway added even more daylight. "Second only to square footage, natural light is the city dweller's most valued commodity," the author says.

"Because of their full, flat exposure to sun, skylights are far superior to windows when delivering the most light to the greatest possible area."

Unlike the L.A. house, light isn't a problem for the owners of a 1,400-square-foot loft in a trendy New York City neighborhood. In the living area, original double-hung windows with hardwood casings rise more than 11 feet from near the floor to the ceiling.

That light is diffused in the adjacent master bedroom through a wall of translucent glass panels and clear acrylic rods stacked like Lincoln logs.

To define space without walls, the architect raised the floor of the entry hall and kitchen, so you step down into the living and dining areas. A mix of surface materials also helps break up the expanse.

With so much open space, where to store things? Double-decker closets line a hallway leading to the master bedroom.

The author warns that for large-scale projects it's best to work with an architect who knows the standards for barrier-free construction.

Here are some caveats for suburbanites taking up city living:

■ Central air conditioning is expensive to retrofit, and window units can be inefficient for large, open spaces.

■ If you're a homeowner and find graffiti on the front stoop, let the experts clean it off. If you haven't already, apply an effective barrier coat to the clean surface.

■ Measure, measure and measure again before building storage units and other built-ins. In older buildings, especially, walls are irregular and widths can vary from ceiling to floor.

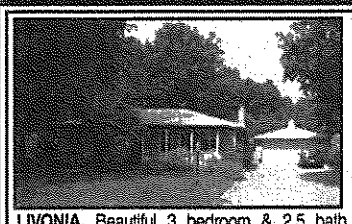

■ Consider fiberglass planters on trolleys to achieve greenery and color in a small garden or on a terrace or rooftop. They are easy to move around, camouflage eye-sores and stand up to heat and sun, freezing and thawing.

■ In high-rises, be aware that stiff winds can topple plantings and send lightweight furniture over the edge.

■ Be apprised of building rules involved in combining apartments, either above or below or next door.

■ Street noise is inevitable. Temper it with double-glazed windows. Rugs, the hum of a fan, air conditioner, or soft music will help muffle it, too.

And be prepared to compromise, and to cope with an occasional construction surprise.
