From the first moment they drove through the developing Cherry Hill Village, Cold Stone Creamery owners Charley and Barb Mulder knew they wanted to be part of the cutting-edge community on Canton's west side.

new Canton school

The district has scheduled a Town Hall meeting for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 17, at the Belleville High School Cafeteria to discuss a new proposal

"We're hoping to have a big turnout at the meeting," said Paul Henning, a spokesman for the district. "We obviously missed the mark on some things with our last proposal. And we want to get as many Canton people out so they can voice their opinions. We want to hear what they have to say."

A portion of southwest Canton is in the Van Buren district. Last year about 300 Canton students attended Van Buren schools in Belleville and Van Buren Township.

The proposals to be discussed at the Town Hall meeting would include, among other items, a new elementary school that would be built on Denton Road in Canton. It would be able to house 400 students.

Goodfellows kick off annual drive

BY JACK GLADDEN STAFF WRITER

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, the Canton Goodfellows are in full gear for their annual Christmas drive - "No Canton Child Without a Christmas."

And Goodfellows' president Nancy Spencer said they are looking at record numbers of children and families in the community who need help.

'We already have over 400 kids on the list to serve," she said. "Now we need the money. I realize the economy is bad, but if people are working and their family is healthy and they have a little bit of excess, they need to serve."

Last year the Goodfellows provided help to more than 500 families, and have been active in Canton since the 1950s, serving low-income families, children and seniors.

"Last year was the biggest project we've ever done. It's the biggest in my 29 years with the Goodfellows. And we've still just scratched the surface. We've never had 500 kids before," Spencer said. "We squeezed every nickel, and we came out just about even. Each family got a big box of food and however many bags it took for gifts.

Most got at least three or four bags." She said WalMart and Sam's Club have been very generous in the past and this year developer Dick Lewiston has already donated $1,000.

"He's been so good to the Goodfellows, I can't begin to say," Spencer said. One fund-raising activity will occur on Nov. 28, the Sunday after Thanksgiving.

"We'll be at Keller and Stein (on Michigan Avenue at Lilley Road) from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. doing Santa pictures," she said. "All donations will go into our fund-raising account."

They'll be back there on Dec. 11 and 12, although she wasn't sure of the hours just yet. The group's annual newspaper sale will be on Saturday, Dec. 4. Goodfellows representatives will be in commercial driveways around the community. All donations support the fund-raising effort.

The Goodfellows are also raffling a quilt this year, but tickets are only available at the Canton Public Library (they should be there by Monday, Nov. 15) and at the senior Christmas party at the Summit on the Park Dec. 10.

"Anyone who wants to adopt a child or a family can call me," Spencer said. Her number is (734) 397-8975.

Donations can also be sent to the Canton Goodfellows, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, 48188.

New chamber building a hit with members BY KURT KUBAN

STAFF WRITER Many members of the Canton Chamber of Commerce got their first chance to check out the group's new home on Thursday during a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Most said they were thrilled with the new facility on Hanford, just west of Canton Center.

Janet Volante, vice president of National City Bank's Ford Road branch, raved about the new 2,500 square-foot, free-standing building. She was on the committee in charge of raising the funds to pay for the project. In two years, the group raised $300,000.

"It's so wonderful to see the end result of all the hard work over the last two years," Volante said.

"This is a premier facility. The members wanted it. The community wanted it. The township wanted it."

Member Rob Bovitz, who is president of the Canton-based accounting firm Bovitz & Co.,

said the new facility will not only benefit chamber members, but is also an example of the kind of investment the chamber makes in the commu-

"For a small business owner, the chamber is about networking. But it's not all about what it can do for me. It's about making an investment in the community, and that's what we've done with this new building," he said.

Dan Wright, a chamber member for five years and owner of the Outdoor Fun Store in Wayne, said the new building not only looks great, but will also be much more functional for the group than the old 1,200 square-foot building.

"This place is very accessible and user-friendly. We'll probably be able to do a lot more. Our meetings will be much more productive. In the old building, our meeting room was so small, a lot of the people had to stand out in the ĥallway," Wright said.

Students flock to public libraries

New library cards issued at record pace

Foundation loses longtime member

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

When Hugh Harsha retired from his product strategy job at Ford Motor Company nearly 15 years ago, he turned his attention from having a paid position to becoming a volunteer.

Two years later, in 1992, Harsha became a board member of the Plymouth-Canton Schools Educational Excellence Foundation. One of the first programs he helped develop, along with Carl Pursell, was a reading program for elementary students.

"We were interested in kids that were falling behind in their reading and math skills, so we started a summer reading program for elementary kids," said Harsha, 77, who resides in Plymouth. "It started at Field Elementary, and now it's for kids district-wide. I really felt good when a young student, who went through the program, blossomed and could read, and was so pleased he told his second grade friends they should take that course." said Harsha.

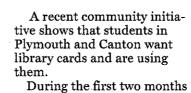

Harsha, who received a Volunteer in Public Schools award from the Board of Education Monday night, is stepping down from the EEF board after 13 years.

"I wouldn't have left if I thought there weren't people who could improve the EEF," said Harsha. "Things are really happening at the EEF.

"Hugh has always been the one that came up with that key idea, that good thought that got us back on track," said George Shey, chairman of the EEF board. "He's always been there with his advice."

"Hugh isn't afraid to ask the tough questions of the board and ask what's best for our kids," said Tom Wysocki, school board trustee. Harsha, a 1945 graduate of Plymouth High School, helped raise nearly a half-million dollars for teachers and their classrooms, and nearly $100,000 in scholarships for Plymouth-Canton graduates. tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net (734) 459-2700

During the first two months of this school year, the Plymouth District Library and Canton Public Library issued more than 2,500 new library cards to students throughout the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools from kindergarten to high school seniors.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, Plymouth District Library, and Canton Public Library collaborated on the goal of providing every student in the school district with a library card. These institutions knew that many of the district's students already had a library card, but were not sure how many still needed one of their own.

The overwhelming response to this new campaign surprised the libraries and the schools.

During the first six weeks of school nearly 15 percent of PCCS students received a new library card to either the Plymouth District Library or the Canton Public Library. With applications still trickling in, the libraries report that 30 percent of the students who received new cards have used them to check out materials. At the Canton Public Library this group of new library cardholders has checked out almost 4000 items.

"We were thrilled with the initial response and are now very pleased with the rate of library visits by our newest cardholders." said Pat Thomas, director, Plymouth District Library.

Studies show that children who are read to at home and who use the library perform better in school and are more likely to continue to use the library as a source of lifelong learning.

"The remarkable community response to this library card campaign shows that parents in Plymouth and Canton see great value in their libraries and recognize the link between library usage and educational success." said Canton Public Library director Jean Tabor.

"Helping children achieve their personal best is our goal at Plymouth-Canton Community Schools," said Superintendent Jim Ryan," and our libraries in Canton and Plymouth have always played a major role in supporting our students.

"The success of this recent library card program is gratifying for me as an educator. We will do all we can in our schools to encourage students and their parents to use their library cards as much as possible."

A recent report by the National Endowment for the · Arts, "Reading At Risk: A Survey of Literary Reading in America" found that fewer than half of American adults are now reading literature, with a 28 percent decline among 18-24 year olds in the last 20 years. The communities of Plymouth and Canton are experiencing library usage that challenges the national trends. Circulation rates at the two libraries show significant increases every year, summer reading programs continuously set new records for participation, and registrations for library programs regularly exceed capacity.

This collaborative effort between the Canton Public Library, the Plymouth District Library and the Plymouth Canton Community Schools grew out of the "What Are You Reading?" literacy initiative, a community wide effort to create a society of readers. It also ties into the Public Library Association "Smartest Card" campaign, a multi-year public awareness and advocacy effort to make the library card the most valued and used card in every

St. John's brings certified chef to transform its menu

Now they think they've landed the man to do the job in new executive chef Michael Tromblev.

The 36-year-old Trombley moved into the kitchen Oct. 25, coming over from Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor. A part-time teacher in the prestigious culinary program at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Trombley also was the chef at the four-star Golden Mushroom in Southfield before it closed.

"What an opportunity," said Trombley, who helped St.

John's officials design some of its kitchen space. "You have an 80-seat dining room going in, lots of new growth. I think we have a four-star restaurant going in, and they wanted to put a name with it."

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, November 14, 2004

They picked a pretty good one. Trombley, certified an executive chef by the American Culinary Federation, is Michigan Chefs d'Cuisine's Chef of the Year for 2004. He trained under one of the best, Chef Milos Cihelka, the first certified master chef by MCCA in the country.

He's been to the weeklong executive chef course at the Culinary Institute of America in Napa Valley, Calif., and he's taken several courses and seminars through Lansing Community College.

Mostly, though, he's been doing the job. Trombley got his first kitchen gig at a small diner, Terry's Terrace in Mt. Clemens, a restaurant frequented by his mother and stepfather, who wound up recommending him for the job.

"I took home economics classes in high school, and I used to bake cookies and brownies with my mom," Trombley said. "I've been interested in cooking ever since."

His career has taken him to a variety of spots, ranging from Dusty's Wine Bar in Okemos, where he was the sous chef, to 1-2-3 in Grosse Pointe Farms, to Cousins Heritage Inn in Dexter. Along the way, Trombley has gotten involved in just about every aspect of running a kitchen.

That's what made him attractive when St. John's came calling.

"He's got experience, knowledge and creativity," said Tawnya Johnson, St. John's director of sales and catering. "We want to set ourselves apart from the other facilities in the area, and we think the way to do that is with our cuisine."

He's going to have plenty of opportunity to show off that experience. St. John's hosts some 200 weddings a year, and more corporate events than that, not to mention the 100 or so golf outings the center hosts.

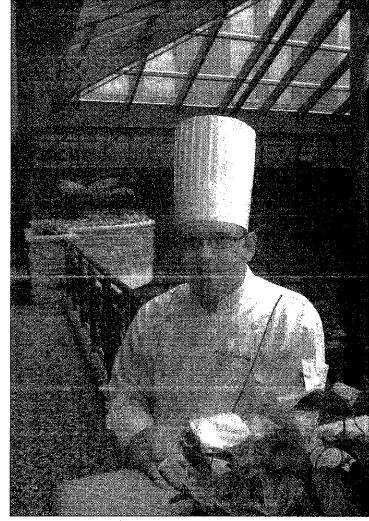

"That's a ton of food and a lot of people," Johnson said. "Chef's got a big job in front of him.

As executive chef, Trombley wears "about 20 hats," he said, including accountant, buyer and psychologist.

To bring St. John's to the level its owners want it to be, one of the first challenges will be tackling the menu. For now, Trombley has been observing. However, menu changes are coming, perhaps in January.

With a 118-room hotel and an 80-seat dining room being added to a package that already includes a conference center and golf course, Trombley, an eastsider who grew up in St. Clair Shores, wants to make sure the people who eat there know they're getting quality.

"We're going to develop special event/wedding packages, tightening up the packages already available," Trombley said. "If I do an Asian menu, it'll be all Asian. If we call it something here, we want you to be able to go out to California and call it the same thing."

It's Trombley's thought process Johnson thinks will help put an already-successful conference center on the map regionally.

"With the addition of the and his experience and knowledge aboard, we're hoping to raise the quality of our cuisine throughout the center," she said.

"There won't be anyplace nicer, certainly, that can offer the variety we'll have here with (Trombley)."

Oprah reaches into Plymouth to help people

STAFF WRITER

When Justin Cooke of Lincoln Park was told by his sister they were going to Chicago to be part of the Oprah Winfrey television show audience, it was the last thing Cooke really wanted to do with his day off.

"No offense to Oprah, but I didn't want to go," said Cooke, 26. "But, I love Oprah now."

That's because Cooke and his sister, Alea Shinn of South Lyon — formerly of Canton Township - picked up brand new Pontiac G6 sports sedans at Bob Jeannotte Pontiac-Buick-GMC Truck in Plymouth Township

Wednesday afternoon. They were two of 276 studio audience members who walked away with free cars, given by Oprah to every member of her Sept. 13 studio audience.

"It's a godsend, it's really starting to sink in," said Cooke. "The whole experience has been pretty cool."

The two winners picked the Jeannotte dealership from which to pick up their stealth gray G6's - valued at $27,000 with a giant red bow on the sunroof.

"I was in shock, I couldn't believe it," remembered Shinn. "We only have one car, a Saturn, and most days I'm stuck home with our son. This will certainly come in handy."

It all started when Shinn and her mother attended the Sept. 1 taping of the Oprah show, and filled out a questionnaire about their greatest wish.

"I put down for my brother to get a new car," said Shinn. "He's gone above and beyond in helping family and friends, and his car is in such bad shape."

Shinn was told be back in Chicago, with her brother, for the taping of a show on family members who do great things for each other. Cooke almost didn't make it because of a conference call at the Livonia Media Play store, where he's a manager. "My mother called work and got them to switch the day," said Cooke.

Oprah gave out 11 cars to audience members, then handed everyone in the audience a box, announcing the person who had one with a key inside would win the 12th car. As it turned out, everyone had a special Oprah keychain with a winning key. "I opened it slowly, but I heard someone else scream, so I thought I wasn't going to get it," said Cooke. "But, then I saw I had a key, too, and I was jumping up and down. They took everyone outside and we saw about 300 cars in the parking

Cooke had been driving a 1995 Plymouth Sundance. "This will be my 10th car in 10 years. I have really bad luck with cars, something always happens to them."

"I've never seen an introduction of a car like this," said Bob Jeannotte, who has been in business for 29 years, of the G6, which replaces the Grand Am.

As he gets ready to leave office after losing his bid for a third term as Redford Township's supervisor, Kevin Kelley has landed another job in government.

Kelley on Tuesday was named Wayne County's director of senior services and veterans' affairs by county Executive Robert Ficano. The appointment is expected to be approved by the county's Board of Commissioners later this month.

"I think there's a strong potential to do some creative and innovative things with these two departments," said Kelley, 46, who added that he looked at a number of job prospects after losing the Democratic primary in the race for supervisor.

"I think this is the opportunity that fit best, and I'm looking forward to making the transition," he said. He hopes to start the job this month.

Voted out of office, Kelley gets county post Reinke retires from city to become deputy director for county parks

Ron Reinke, the city's parks and rec superintendent for 25 years, is retiring at the month's end to start a new job as deputy director of Wayne County Parks, where he will earn $88,200. He will oversee improvements and maintenance to the county's parks and other open spaces from an office at Nankin Mills.

"I've been seriously thinking about retirement for the past 12 months," said Reinke, a Central Michigan University graduate who started his career with the city in December 1974. "I was approached about this opportunity with the county and it presents some unique challenges for

"He did a great job and I enjoyed working with him in various capacities for 18 vears," Engebretson said. "He really understands his role and achieved so much for the city over these last 30 years."

Engebretson said he is looking to promote an internal candidate to replace Reinke when he leaves Nov. 29. If the internal process is not complete by that time, assistant superintendent Karen Kapchonick will run the department in the interim.

While Reinke winds down on his city duties, he admits he will miss the people of whom he interacted for years.

Wayne High not alone in failing to make AYP

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Wayne Memorial High School is among 46.7 percent of Michigan high schools failing to make Adequate Yearly Progress as defined by state-set criteria released last week.

And while schools Superintendent Gregory Baracy said tutoring and other action will be taken to raise scores, he said the state also has to answer for continuing aid cuts that make it tough for schools to teach students adequately.

Further, he charged the state demands an overly high level of achievement compared to other "Michigan chose 33 to be the starting level for proficiency in math," Baracy said. "Fourteen other states have levels that start at 5 percent.

In addition to Wayne Memorial, suburban high schools failing to make the AYP grade were Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth-Salem, Northville, Livonia Churchill and Livonia Franklin.

Baracy said Wayne Memorial qualified as not making AYP because four of 66 students in one subgroup, African-American students, did not earn high enough scores in mathematics. "We're going to do our best to identify the deficiencies of those individuals in the subgroups and try to identify tutoring and other resolutions to bring them up," he said. "The state has to step up and recognize the fact that school districts cannot go forward. This is the foorth year is a row we've had no new revenues. We can't solve these problems bringing these kids up to grade level without the resources to do so." The Wavne-Westland Community Schools have a $113 million budget this fiscal year, compared to $116 million in 2002-03. The cuts caused a dozen positions to remain unfilled, a hiring freeze, and a decision not to begin new programs. "Over 95 percent of our student population took the MEAP test, we scored 98.4 in math and 97.6 in English language arts; we missed (AYP) by four students." Baracy said. AYP scores are determined by a combination of MEAP scores and other scores, under mandates required by the federal No Child Left Behind Act. Baracy said that because failure of one subgroup to meet test standards means the whole district fails, diverse metropolitan districts are more at risk to be seen as failing, compared to less diverse rural districts.

"That is the frustrating thing Left Behind," he said.

Tree ordinance preserves natural beauty through replacement, landmarks

While Canton continues to be one of the fastest growing communities in southeastern Michigan, the township is working to maintain its natural beauty with tools like the Forest Preservation Ordinance.

Adopted in the mid 1990s, the ordinance mandates tree replacement for parcels larger than two acres and for specific "landmark" trees. According to Canton Senior Planner Judy Bocklage, the ordinance has encouraged more responsible development in the community.

"We've had some success with it,"

she said. "It makes developers think about what they're doing."

The ordinance defines criteria for tree replacement and procedures for the issuance of tree removal permits, collection of tree removal bonds and contributions to Canton's tree fund.

On two acre and larger parcels, up to 20 percent of the total trees may be removed without replacement except for landmark trees. Landmark trees, which are identified by their species and size in the ordinance, or other trees with a diameter greater than 24 inches, must be replaced with three trees of at least four-inches in diameter. Replacement trees must be of the same species if possible or at least of the same type, including shade, evergreen or ornamental.

Surveys and site plans are required for developers replacing trees on parcels of two acres or lager. Once those plans are approved, developers must pay the township a refundable tree removal bond.

"They get those funds back after they actually replace the trees," said Bocklage.

Developers have the option of contributing to Canton's tree fund if they don't wish to replace, she added. The price is $375 for trees of less than four inches in diameter and $750 for all others.

"This is an incentive to preserve the trees," said Bocklage.

Some developers do elect to pay the fees, she said. Bocklage noted that contributions of $100,000 and greater have been made to the tree fund by developers over the years. Those funds go to pay for Canton's tree voucher program and planting of trees on township property.

There are several exemptions to Canton's Forest Preservation Ordinance including:

All agricultural/farming operations (including production of fruit and timber) and commercial nursery/tree farm operations (land cleared must » be farmed for at least one season after the clearing is completed.)

In 1982, three

ichard Headlee was a devout Mormon who was born in Iowa and grew up and went to school in Utah, where he died Tuesday at 74, surrounded by a large and loving family. What makes all that unusual is that he was one of the most important political figures of the modern era ... in Michigan.

"He was the forerunner. The godfather of the modern Republican Party in the state, and the man who really reshaped the party and made John Engler's election as governor possible," said Bill Ballenger, publisher and editor of the well-regarded newsletter Inside Michigan Politics.

Incredibly, Dick Headlee was a businessman who was never elected to anything. He ran for office only once, was beaten, and never tried again. But his influence was monumental. He led a crusade for tax reform, and his name lives on in the "Headlee Amendment," which limits property tax increases and says state spending can never exceed 9.49 percent of Michigan personal income, the percentage it was at in 1979.

The Headlee Amendment was passed overwhelmingly by Michigan voters in 1978. Later, after surviving a heart transplant in 1987, its author also helped lead the successful 1992 drive to enact term limits for all elected state officials.

Ten years later, on the brink of moving home to Utah, he told one newspaper he was leaving with head held high: "I think I have done enough damage to liberals in Michigan."

What he also did was spearhead a revolution within the Michigan Republican Party. Twenty-five years ago, the state GOP was one of the most liberal in the nation. Its leader, Gov. William G. Milliken, was a selfdescribed Rockefeller Republican who worked hard to help cash-strapped Detroit.

Conservatives in the Milliken era were pushed to the sidelines. Headlee changed all that. He had moved to the state in 1964 and had become an advis-

Amendment became law, Milliken decided to retire. His anointed successor, Lt. Gov. James Brickley, was expected to be the GOP's candidate that fall. But Headlee pulled a stunning upset, beating Brickley 34 percent to 30 percent in the

The margin probably would have been larger if it hadn't been for the presence of two other conservatives in the race, including L. Brooks Patterson. then the Oakland County prosecutor, who finished a close third.

That stunningly and effectively ended the era of moderate Republicanism as a major force in Michigan politics. Headlee, then the president of the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills, was a cheerful and enthusiastic campaigner; a pleasant man who reminded me in two ways of another pioneering conservative, Barry Goldwater.

Both men had a sense of humor about themselves. Headlee displayed political cartoons lampooning him in his office, where he might give you an interview leaned back in his swivel chair with his legs stretched up the wall.

And like the Arizonan, Dick Headlee had a tendency to ram his entire foot down his throat. When one woman legislator criticized him, he quipped that she ought to look more carefully in the mirror while shaving.

That was not a good idea, especially in an era when political correctness was just coming into vogue. Nor was his comment that supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment were really proponents of lesbian marriage.

That prompted the usually low-key Milliken, a strong ERA supporter, to say that his party's standard-bearer "puts me in mind of an ass.' In the end, Headlee lost the general election to James Blanchard, then a young congressman credited with shepherding the Chrysler bailout bill through Congress in 1979. The vote was a relatively close 51 percent to 45 percent, and many afterward blamed his verbal missteps for the loss.

But that probably wasn't fair. Republicans had then held Michigan's governorship for 20 years, and many voters felt it was time for a change.

The economy was in recession, and Republicans did poorly nationally in that fall's mid-term elections. Blanchard was an energetic and effective campaigner, and some of Headlee's potential support was siphoned off by a thirdparty candidate, a more zealous tax-cutter named Bob Tisch, a rural drain commissioner who, in political terms, skated near the edge of the fringe.

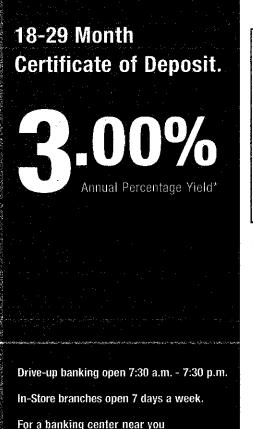

That was his only and last campaign, but the man running it learned a lot from the experience. Few paid much attention to Headlee's campaign manager during that race, a young state senator named John Engler.

Eight years later, he would beat Blanchard in the biggest upset in Michigan political history, and go on to drastically reshape state government and the Republican Party along the lines Headlee talked about in his campaign.
"You could never have had

John Engler as governor without Richard Headlee," said Ballenger, once a moderate Republican state senator himself. And like it or not, that is indisputably true.

Illustrator draws students' attention

86 Canton graduate encourages kids to be creative

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Michigan Chillers children's book illustrator Darrin Brege drew monsters on an easel, spoke in funny voices, and offered career advice Wednesday at Brooklands Elementary in Rochester Hills.

But while some kids and adults liked the drawing lessons and art career advice, they loved the funny voices.

"Do Bart Simpson!" the students begged. "Yeah!"

"I can't do Bart," his voice is too high," pleaded the 1986 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, who now lives in Brighton with his wife, Karen.

But the sound of Bart's dad Homer rolled off his tongue, along with Bugs Bunny and characters from Toy Story and other films.

Brege, who also does celebrity voice impersonations for sports talk radio station WDFN, fielded a flurry of furious requests for funny voices — after his main presentation on how kids can develop their artistic talent.

To start, Brege asked a student to draw a stick figure on a pad of paper displayed on an easel as 50 students looked on, sitting on the floor in the school's media center. To make a figure come alive, he adds simple shapes to the stick figure arms and legs - squares, circles, tubes and more, to give bodies mass and personality.

"If you want to be an artist it's a great time. You can send your artwork all around the planet," he said, via the Internet.

Brege stressed an artist can find a range of work by being open to a range of assignments. He has designed everything from characters for Hasbro toy makers to Web site advertisements for the film Shrek.

"You never know what kind of work you're going to get," he said.

He encouraged students to practice what they love, art or whatever else, to become skillful enough to pursue a career.

asked. After a brief pause, Brege said, "If it pumps blood in your heart, sure, why not?"

While Brege gets some direction for Michigan Chiller illustrations from series author Jonathan Rand — who is appearing at the Rochester Hills Public Library at 7 p.m. Nov. 17 - the artist said he draws creative ideas from the world around him.

To demonstrate, he showed the cover of one Chiller book about an oversized spider.

He chose to depict the spider on the top level of the I-275-Six Mile Road overpass - with his own red minivan caught in the spiderweb below.

"One of my most favorite things to use is the eraser," he told the group. Brege went on to say that after adding ovals, tubes and circles to a stick figure to give it shape and mass, "You just get rid of stuff you don't want - you can do it; you're the artist." In one exercise, Brege began turning straight stick figure lines into an oversized monster squid. "What's going to make him

"We'll put more spit on him," Brege said.

He said projects can take two hours to two weeks. "It takes a lot of practice," he told the students. He encouraged young artists to trace if they want to.

"If it keeps you drawing, you bet," he said.

Brege also encouraged young artists to seek out how-to-draw books and to take art classes in school or even summer camps.

"I liked when he drew the shapes," fourth-grader Jessica Smith said after-

"I liked the shapes and stuff," her classmate,

Hannah Duchardt, agreed. Brooklands Principal Denise Holub, who occasionally had to shush excited kids Wednesday, said, "It's useful for them to

to discuss assessments architects had made of all the buildings in the district.

They agreed unanimously to take a potential $180-200 million bond proposal to a Town Hall meeting to discuss the possibility of one ballot question for a May election or multiple ballot questions of smaller dollar amounts.

The new proposal includes a new high school, technology upgrades for all schools, a new Elwell Elementary school, a new school in Canton, converting Haggerty Elementary into an early childhood development center, and upgrades to Tyler and Savage Elementary schools.

The bond issues come in the middle of a fight by one Canton resident, who wants his and a neighboring subdivision to secede from Van Buren and become part of the Plymouth-Canton district.

Mark Dixon, whose case is up for review by the state schools superintendent, said he knows he has little chance of success. He and others in his neighborhood have said that Plymouth-Canton district is more desirable for a number of reasons, but mainly because Plymouth-Canton schools are closer to home.

Even if we said they could go, and Plymouth-Canton wanted to welcome them, it wouldn't make any difference," Henning said. "It's a decision that has to be made in Lansing by the state board of education, and we're not expecting to hear anything until at least January. They will make a decision based on what they feel is in the best interest of the state."

Henning said Van Buren schools wants to continue serving Canton. He noted that both Tyler (B) and Rawsonville (A) elementary schools received great marks in the recently released Annual Yearly Progress reports from the state. Belleville High School received a C grade, up from the F it received last year.

"The people who have voiced their opinions about this have a legitimate gripe about how far the kids have to travel. As far as academics go, they don't have a legitimate argument," he said.

Evans names retired Detroit officer undersheriff

Wayne County Sheriff Warren C. Evans today announced the appointment of Harold Cureton, as his new second-in-command. Cureton, who spent more than 30 years with the Detroit Police Department (DPD) and recently retired as assistant chief, will serve as Evans' undersheriff in charge of day-to-day operations.

Cureton replaces Evans; former undersheriff, Lawrence Meyer, who recently retired after 28 years with the department.

Evans said that Cureton's appointment is a natural fit.

"I've known Harold my entire life. I trust him as a friend and I respect him as a police officer and an administrator," Evans said. "I am thrilled to have someone of his caliber and experience joining our team."

In his new position, Cureton will be responsible for overseeing all police operations of the department, including the county's three jails, as well as all investigative, patrol and apprehension units within the sheriff's office. Among those are:

- Adult and juvenile fugitive apprehension
- Narcotics and prostitution
- enforcement ■ Highland Park patrol
- Secondary road patrol, marine patrol and park patrol
- Internal affairs and other investigative units

Cureton, who began his new job on Thursday, is no stranger to the sheriff's office. While serving as assistant chief with Detroit, he played an important role in the creation and operation of the

Students learn about business

High school students can meet local entrepreneurs and learn what it takes to start their own business in a new program being offered to area schools at no cost.

Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center created the Youth Entrepreneur Spirit or YES program to bring together successful entrepreneurs with junior and senior high school students in business and marketing classes.

The program is funded through a grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan.

Highlights of the one-day program include interviews with entrepreneurs and a "biz box" activity where groups of students receive a box filled with various unrelated items. Each group must invent a product, manufacture it and devise packaging and marketing plans for the product.

The first YES program, held in October, hosted students from Northville and Livonia Churchill high schools. Forty students interacted with owners from six small businesses.

The best part of the program was when we got to sit with the business pros and ask them questions," said Churchill marketing student Krystal Araj.

Students or teachers interested in attending an upcoming YES session can get more information by contacting Amy Reid at 734-462-4438.

Cureton, who is married and has one adult son, said he is ready for a new challenge.

BASKETBALL – Canton to host girls district

Churchill's McGreevy honored

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

If the saying is true that their is no 'I' in the word team, then Livonia Churchill boys cross country coach John McGreevy found the right formula for success this fall.

"If one guy had a bad meet, somebody else would always come through," said McGreevy, who was named Observerland Coach of the Year. "It was a true team." The Chargers opened the season by sweeping the first five individual places en route to an impressive Livonia City title. They also won the Monroe-Jefferson Invitational and the Lakes Division crown in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Churchill then captured its first-ever WLAA meet in school history, the school's first league or conference boys title since 1976. The Chargers then added a runner-up finish to Novi in the Division I regional at Schoolcraft College.

Ranked in the top ten all season, Churchill fell a little short of its final goal, settling for 15th in the state meet.

McGreevy, a guidance counselor at Churchill, is no stranger to area coaching circles. He served as both girls and boys track and cross country coach at Redford Bishop Borgess (1979 through 1994). He is a graduate of the University of Detroit (1971) and Livonia Franklin High School (1966).

"I'd have to say at the beginning of the year we had no superstar, but Connor Schultz became that guy," said the 10th-year coach, who guided the Chargers to state meet berths in 2001 and

And even though the Chargers lose five seniors to graduation, McGreevy does return two firstteam All-Observer picks next season, underclassmen Brandon Grysko and Tim Howse.

Cezat plays her way into Canton record books

Pretend for a moment that you're guarding Canton's Katie Cezat during Wednesday night's Western Lakes Activities Association championship game.

You have long arms, you're quick for your size and your defensive prowess stacks up with anybody else in the

Cezat has just received a pass on the baseline about 15 feet from the basket. She's hit three straight jumpers so, naturally, you play her tight, putting a hand in the 5-11 sharp-shooter's face.

As Cezat cocks her arms to shoot, you instinctively jump to block the shot, only — surprise! — she doesn't shoot. The next thing you know, as you float back down to earth, Cezat is dribbling down the baseline and banking in a soft lay-up.

You can now relate to the countless number of high school basketball players who have been victimized the past four years by Cezat, arguably the best female basketball player to ever wear a Chief uniform.

The scenario above unfolded during Wednesday night's WLAA title game, which ended with a vintage Cezat stat line: 29 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots, not to mention a decisive Canton victory.

MU cagers win

Chuck Henry recorded his first collegiate coaching victory Wednesday night when his Madonna men's basketball team upended Marygrove College, 90-79.

The Crusaders improved to 1-1 with the win while Marygrove dropped to 0-2.

"It was a close game throughout most of the game, and we trailed by:: four with 10 minutes left," Henry said. "But we played well down the stretch. We shot well - a lot better than we did our first game."

MU started three freshmen: Charlie Henry (Agape Christian), D.J. Bridges (Canton) and 🗟 Jordan Napier (Agape Christian).

Jr. Golf Tour

Scholarship opportunities are available for local students between the ages of 12 and 18 who participate in the third season of the Top 50 Jr. Tour, which is presented by the Professional Golfers' Association Michigan Section. The program is a regional golf tour offering players tournament experience plus the opportunity to earn college scholarships.

Boys and girls are eligible for tour membership. Players do not have to be members of their school teams to participate.

The tour consists of 10 qualifying rounds and 10 tournament rounds, and is held on local private and public courses.

"The top 40 qualifiers at each qualifying round play in the tournament round for free," said tour director Dan Thomas. Scholarship awards are offered based on rules of golf exams, topical essays, sportsmanship and community service. Scholarship awards can be increased as a student's grade-point average increases.

Play begins on June 11 and runs through the season-ending championship tournament on Aug. 8. The full schedule is posted on the tour's Web site at www.Top50jrTour.com. Interested parents and players should contact the tour at (248) 321-000 or visit the tour Web site for a membership application. The tour is presented by the PGA Michigan Section and the National Golf Scholarship Association (NGSA).

Academy opens

Former Detroit Lion Frank Gallagher and major league pitching coach Jeff Jones recently opened the Bullpen Baseball/Softball Academy in Farmington. The 12,000-square-foot facility is equipped with six batting cages and three pitching tunnels.

Included on the Bullpen's staff are Tigers hitting coach Bruce Fields, current Detroit pitcher Nate Robertson and several local collegiate players.

School against the unbeaten Westland Meteors, the freshmen Lions have strung together 24 consecutive victories.

And the New England Patriots thought their 21-game winning streak was impres-

The young Lions' last setback was a 19-8 loss to the Lincoln Railsplitters on Oct. 6, 2002, which means they lose about as often as the Detroit Lions change head coaches.

The team's formula for success isn't too complicated, according to its coach, Jim Dexter, a Canton resident who is a sergeant with the Westland Police Department.

"We have hard-working kids and we prepare for games as well as any other team out there," Dexter said, when asked to explain the Lions' incredible

Preparation is key

Each week, Dexter and his assistant coaches - Calvin Brown, Warren Riche, Chris Tidwell, Roger Peterson and Paul Dexter — thoroughly scout their next opponent.

"We have a coaches meeting Marsha night The said.

We watch film from our game one opposited gather then we talk about what we're going to do the following week. We usually have a pretty good idea of what the other team is going to do in every situation."

Speaking of hard work, every Lion player must endure two weeks of grueling conditioning workouts in August. The opening practices consist of a series of sprints, bear-crawls, more sprints, push-ups, more sprints, stomach crunches and, yes, more sprints.

While it can seem like Marine bootcamp for elementary school kids, the demanding exercise regimen is necessary to prepare the players for what lies ahead, Dexter emphasized.

"For a lot of the kids, it's the hardest two weeks of their lives," Dexter said. "But football is a tough sport and you need to be tough to play it. We've only had a couple of kids quit since I've coached here."

Another key element of the Lions' recent winning ways has been the experience the team's back-up players receive due to the string of lop-sided scores. When a team builds an 18point lead in the WSJFL, it must remove its top eight players from the game. This opens up opportunities for the second-stringers.

"Until last week's playoff game, we had to take our 18point kids out in the first half of every game this year," Dexter said. "This gives the younger, back-up players a lot of valuable experience. So when it's their turn to start the following year, they've already played a lot more than the kids on the other teams."

Price is money

Preparation and hand work are great, but they won't win games without talent.

That's where Braden Price comes in. The 10-year-old speedster has probably spent as much time in the end zone the past two years as he has in his own backyard.

Price, the Lions' fastest player and one of their hardest hitters on defense, scored a team-record 16 touchdowns in his rookie season last year. So far this year, Price has scored 24 TD's.

In last week's semi-final playoff victory over Ypsilanti, Price scored three times including TD runs of 88 and 57 yards - and he racked up 298 rushing yards.

"We were good before Braden got here last year," said Canton Lions Unit Director Dan Trublowski, who oversees all three Canton Lions football teams. "But he put us over the top. He's the best player in the league. He has a lot of athletic talent and when he turns the corner, nobody can catch him."

Everyone contributes While Price has been spectacular, he's far from a oneman show. Josh Peterson, Jordan Smith, Nathan Emminger, Robert Riche and Malcolm Hollingsworth have also made major contributions to the team's success.

Every player on the roster is required to play a minimum of five plays every game, including the smallest Lion, Alex Bonifacio, who stands 4-foottall and weighs in at 65 pounds.

'We have a lot of players like Alex who don't play more than their five plays, but when they do get it, they contribute," Dexter said. "Alex plays offensive end for us, and even though he's not real big, when has in there, we run to his side, and ac does a great job." If you're not busy this afternoon from noon to 2 p.m., drive over to Garden City High School and check out this extraordinary team.

It's not often you can see a team named the Lions play in the Super Bowl.

"Joe is one tough runner," McGreevy Said." "He was the key to our success at the conference meet. Joe was suffering from a bad. chest cold, yet finished 21st. He was in lousy shape at the end of the race, but he did not give up. He ran tough all year."

Anthony Scaparo, Soph., Plymouth. Scaparo turned in a fifth-place effort at the City Championship meet and he broke the school record at the WLAA league meet With a time of 16:57. He finished second at the Dearborn Divine Child Invitational and fifth at the WLAA Western Division meet.

"Anthony has been a great addition to the cross-country team here at Plymouth," Shaw said. "For a first-year runner, he has really burst onto the high school scene. He is the current school record holder with a time of 16:57, which he ran at the WLAA conference outside, drive to the basket, post up, and pass the ball very well. She's extremely tough to cover."

Cezat's totals of 1,350 points, 984 rebounds and 178 blocked shots are all school records, according to Canton coach Bob Blohm, who has relied on Cezat's consistent brilliance since she made the varsity team as a freshman during the 2001 season.

"Katie is a unique player because she's a strong post player, plus she moves well away from the rim," Blohm asserted. "Katie's versatility and size make her very difficult to guard."

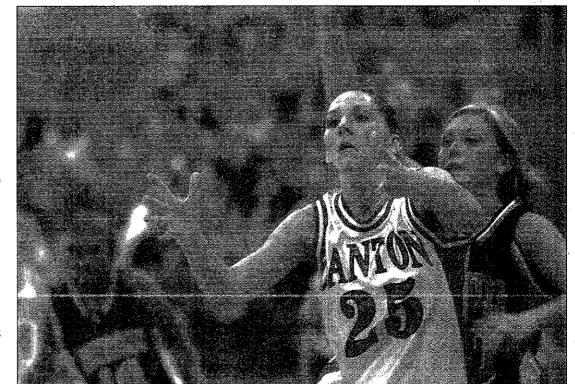

Cezat's lofty statistics are doubly impressive considering most of the teams Canton has played the past two years designed their defenses to stop

"The thing about Katie is she doesn't get frustrated when she's double-teamed and not getting the ball enough," Blohm said. "If she's not getting the ball, she'll go get offensive rebounds and score that way. She's not afraid to step up either when the game is close and we need a big shot. She wants the ball."

Cezat's path to the Canton record books was initially paved in the first grade when her parents. Keith and Elizabeth, signed up the energetic 6-year-old for a hoop clinic at the YMCA. Following two years of "Y" clinics, Cezat played a couple years in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball League before moving on to Our Lady of Good Counsel, where she starred in the Catholic Youth Organization leagues.

Two of her teammates at OLGC were current teammate Molly Conlon and Salem standout Alyssa Guerin.

"I usually played up a league against older players, so that made me a better player," Cezat said. "I've always liked basketball, even at a young age. It came easy to me."

Canton's Katie Cezat receives a pass during the Chiefs' victory over Northville on Oct. 14. Cezat will lead Canton into the state tournament next week.

Early promotion

Cezat realized how much potential — and talent — she actually had when Blohm reserved a varsity roster spot for her when she was in the ninth grade.

"At first it was kind of strange my freshman year because I was playing with and against some of the girls who had coached me at summer camp," Cezat reflected. "I knew making varsity was special because there weren't too many players who did that. It was a great experience for me."

Cezat started all but three games her freshman season, averaging 5.5 points and 4.8 rebounds per game.

As a sophomore, Cezat's talent started rising to the surface as she scored a team-high 16.2 points per game and grabbed 10.8 rebounds.

"The thing I remember the most about that year was how close we came to winning the regional," Cezat said. "West Bloomfield beat us in overtime in the regional final. That was a great team with six really good seniors. I learned a lot that year."

One lesson she'll never forget was one on assertiveness, which was "taught" to her by teammate Krissy Lake.

"Krissy taught me how important it is to be vocal out on the court," Cezat said. "When she wanted the ball, she would shout 'Ball!' really loud, so that's what I try to do when I know I can score on someone. My teammates do a good job of getting it to me, too."

Helping hand

Cezat's primary out-of-thespotlight contribution this year has been serving as a mentor and tutor to freshman post player Marie Martin, who is one of the Chiefs' key reserves this season.

"I want to help Marie as much as I can because I know how difficult it is to play on the varsity as a freshman," Cezat said. "I try to help her with her post moves and with all the plays we run. It's easier for the girls who work their way up to varsity from the freshman and junior varsity teams because they've had more time to learn everything. Marie has done really well."

Cezat's academic achievements are comparable to her stellar athletic feats. The twoyear National Honor Society member has crafted a 3.65 grade-point average. She admitted she's still uncertain about which college she will be attending next year.

"I want to go to a big school with strong academics," said Cezat, who admitted there is a chance she may not play collegiate basketball despite the fact she's being recruited by several schools. "I definitely want to play in college, but academics are important to me as well."

Cezat said her high school basketball days have flown by way too fast.

"It's definitely going to be sad when I walk off the court for the last time," she said. "But I gave it everything I had all four years, so I have no regrets."

Canton to host deep girls hoop district

STAFF WRITER

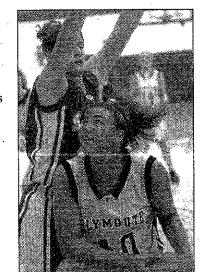

Canton High School will host one of the deepest, most competitive Division 1 girls basketball district tournaments in the state beginning Monday night.

Four of the six teams in the District 25A brackets sport winning records and a fifth, Plymouth, finished 9-11 and a respectable sixth in the 12team Western Lakes Activities Association.

"It's definitely a strong field," said Canton coach Bob Blohm, whose team is considered by many to be a slight favorite heading into the tourney. "Whenever you have a singleelimination format, anything can happen. The team that stays focused and gets hot at the right time will advance to the regional." Monday's two first-round match-ups will pit Novi (14-6) against Northville (13-7) at 5:30 p.m. and South Lyon (2-18) against Canton (15-5) at 7

The Wildcats are led by Rachel Folino, who packs a strong scoring punch. The junior poured in 22 points in Novi's season-opening victory over Canton in late-August. The lightning-quick Mustangs are paced by All-WLAA Division standouts Simone Toney and Evonna Karchon.

Plymouth's Jeanine Moise attempts to score against Salem's Teresa Coppiellie during Wednesday night's Western Lakes Activities Association consolation game won by the Rocks. Both Salem and Plymouth drew firstround byes for next week's Division 1 district basketball tournament at Canton High School.

The Lions struggled this season after losing their two top players to injury.

We're young and we're short, which is not a good combination, especially when you have to play Canton," said South Lyon coach Jim Brennan. "We don't have any seniors that play regularly and our tallest players are 5-7 and 5-8. We just don't match well with Canton."

Canton knocked the Lions out of last year's district tournament, 36-33. The Chiefs eventually went on to claim the title, downing Salem in the final.

'Salem will take on the winner of the Novi-Northville game on Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. The always-dangerous Rocks, who finished 14-6, feature a deep, balanced attack. Senior Ellen Canale was the team's top scorer, netting 12.5 points per game. However, three other Rocks — Alyssa Guerin, Teresa Coppiellie and Kathryn Wheatley — averaged around eight points a contest.

"If a team tries to shut down one of our players, we have three others who can pick up the slack," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We split with Northville this year and Novi has a good team, so it's not going to be easy no matter who we have to play."

Plymouth will square off against the winner of the Canton-South Lyon game Wednesday night at 7 p.m. The Wildcats and Chiefs have already met twice this season with Canton winning both games.

The district championship game is set for Friday night at

Belleville cagers bounce Roosevelt

BY ED WRIGHT STAFF WRITER

Wyandotte Roosevelt found out the hard way Thursday night that doubleteaming Belleville's lightning-quick guards is not an effective strategy.

Tiger backcourt mates Tia Lewis and Taylor Manly combined for 21 points to lead Belleville to a 46-36 win at Roosevelt. The victory left the winners with a 9-10 mark heading into next week's Division 1 district tournament at Garden City.

Roosevelt finished 2-18. Lewis finished with 11 while Manley canned 10.

'Roosevelt double-teamed Taylor in the first half and Tia had nine points," said Belleville coach Kevin Edwards. "Then in the second half, they doubled Tia and Taylor had nine points. All the girls played hard tonight. It was a total team effort."

Three other Belleville players chipped in with solid offensive efforts: Renee Seng and Jasmine Peterson both netted seven points while Qeytia Martin had six. Cynthia McGoldrick scored just a single point, but she pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds.

We're trying to get Cynthia to shoot more, but 'Personally, I think we would match-up better against Romulus because we can't match up real well against Garden City's size."

Kevin Edwards coach. Belleville basketball team all she wants to do is play defense and rebound," said Edwards.

Chelsea Stover and Monica Fortuna led Roosevelt with eight points each.

Belleville drew a bye for the first round of the district tournament. On Thursday evening, the Tigers will take on the winner of Tuesday night's Garden City-Romulus match-up.

Romulus features a fastpaced, push-the-ball-up-thecourt style of play while the Cougars are known for their size up front.

'You'd would think Romulus would win this game, but you never know after last year," Edwards said. "I expected Romulus to win, but Garden City beat them.

"Personally, I think we would match-up better against Romulus because we can't match up real well against Garden City's size. Romulus plays more upbeat like us."

FLAT ROCK 56, AGAPE CHRISTIAN 28: The Wolverines led 15-14 late in the second quarter before the Warriors reeled off a 6-0 run to end the half. "It was never a game after that," Agape coach Chuck Henry said. "We handled their defensive pressure pretty well in the first half, but we turned the ball over a lot in the second half."

The game was knotted at 8-8 after one quarter. The hosts nabbed a 20-15 halftime lead before surging to a 39-19 advantage after three stanzas.

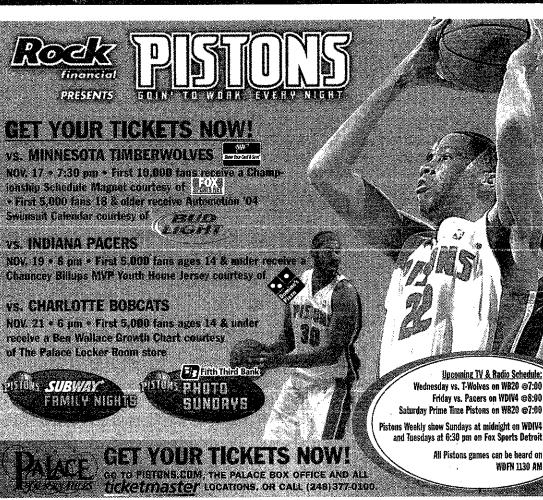

Brianna Chrenko paced the Wolverines with nine points. Lindsay Gant contributed six.

The Warriors' Carissa Scott led all scorers with 16 points. Agape drained 8-of-13 free throws while Flat Rock sank

The Wolverines, who finished the regular season with a 9-11 mark, open district tournament play Thursday night against the winner of Tuesday's Huron Valley Lutheran-Detroit Urban Lutheran contest. The district is being hosted by Detroit Urban Lutheran.

Dinner will honor Hall of Fame-bound bowlers oday's Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame dinner at the Ukrainian Cultural Center in Warren will honor this year's inductees including Jeanne Gebbia of Dearborn, Tony DaDeppo of Troy; Ray Williams and Myrtha Cooper, both of Detroit; Paul Stuart of Ferndale, George Zainea of Grosse Pointe, Dorothy Thompson from Shelby Township and the late Dan Ottman from Troy.

In addition to the fine repast and induction ceremonies, it's always an occasion to socialize with the main movers and shakers among the local bowling scene. Other bowling writers attend this function and we usually are at the same table where we tell stories, jokes and exchange lies, etc . . .

■ Bob Chamberlain, one of this area's top performers for many years has recently been selected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame. Induction ceremonies will be March 17 at the River Center in Baton Rouge, La., also the site of the 2005 ABC tournament and convention.

Chamberlain, 55, was a member of the great Stroh's Beer team that captured the ABC tournament in 1980 and finished third in 1981.

He has five other ABC tournament top 20 finishes and holds a 205 average for 37 ABC events.

As a Professional Bowlers Association tour member, Chamberlain earned two titles including the 1984 PBA National Championship in Toledo, Ohio.

His success continued into the PBA senior ranks where he has won four titles.

Chamberlain was the PBA senior player of the year in 2003 and has earned three Bowling Magazine Senior All-America honors.

"When I grew up my favorite TV show was Championship Bowling," Chamberlain said. "Many of the greats who bowled on that show made the ABC Hall of Fame. As I look back at it, being in the hall with those guys is something you could only dream about.

Along with Chamberlain, Todd Savoy of Superior. Wis., and former ARC communics

Fox Point, Wis, are also goinductees for 2005.

Country Lanes is not an easy scoring house, but you might think otherwise judging by some recent scores with John Wilamowski of Farmington hitting the 300 mark with a 747 series in the Monday Nite Men's league. Meanwhile, Pamela Jones of Livonia is at it again after rolling her third career 300 game in the Friday Women's Forum league.

■ Hockey is still alive in the Detroit area. I recently spoke with Doug (ages 16-20) who are aspiring to make it to the National Hockey League in the future.

There are several players in the league who have already been drafted by NHL teams such as Whaler player Vaclav Meidl, 18, from the Czech Republic, by the Nashville Predators. The home games are played at Compuware Arena (seating 3,500) located on Beck Road just a quartermile north of the M-14.

The Whalers are one of the

Build a ramp: No experience is necessary

ast month, Steve Alexandrowski recruited sother Rotarians to build a ramp for Marilyn, a senior citizen who lives in Plymouth Township.

Marilyn, who is in her 70s and uses a wheelchair, has to leave her home three times a week for medical treatments. Her caregiver, Elaine, also in her 70s, makes sure she gets to her appointments, but it's been difficult for Elaine to help Marilyn walk down stairs.

A ramp would make getting to these doctor visits a little less dangerous.

Fellow Rotarian Jerry Trumpka brought the idea to Steve's attention. Steve said, "To my knowledge none of us had ever built a ramp before.' Steve invited his friend, Eric Banner, to "lead our team of builders. Eric is an engineer at Ford and a very talented builder."

The team designed the ramp and Plymouth Rotary A.M. purchased the materials. On Oct. 23, Eric and Steve — along with Eric Zylinski, Bob Scoggins, Tom Sweeney, Mark Hammer, Prayush Sarawat and Peter Bunting — built a ramp for Marilyn's home.

Seven short hours later the ramp was finished and they were ready, willing and eager to tackle a few more chores.

"We repaired a leaking shower, replaced a staircase with safer stairs, cleaned light fixtures, repaired the back light, repaired the door to shed, and cleaned gutters." Steve said, "The club decided to do the project because the need was very real."

"This was just one of the 53 projects Plymouth United Way facilitated on Make a Difference Day," said Jerry Trumpka, Communications and Special Events Coordinator, Plymouth United Way. More than 120 volunteers, young and old, worked around town, helped seniors with yard work and replaced smoke detector batteries and light bulbs.

United Way also partnered with the Plymouth Symphony. The Celebration Youth Orchestra played music for children at the Arts Council and afterwards everyone had the chance to carve pumpkins.

Jerry said, "It was a very successful day. So many people in the community have caught the volunteer spirit. It's quite a blessing to see that many people give up a day out of their schedule to help others."

Earlier this fall, United Way collected school supplies for children. Coming up in November and December, they will partner with the Plymouth Whalers for a Food Drive for Salvation Army and collect Teddy Bears, which will be "donated to local United Way's children's charities."

In December the Plymouth Rotary A.M. Club will kick off the holiday season by giving a party for children and their families at the Tanger Center and hosting a dinner for Senior Citizens at the Cultural Center.

If you've been looking for a way to make a difference, little or big, but don't know what to do, Steve Alexandrowski or Jerry Trumpka can probably find a project for you. Experience not necessary.

And if you ever wake up early and can't get back to sleep, you are welcome to join other Rotarians every Tuesday morning at 7:00 a.m. at the Cultural Center. There's always coffee, juice and breakfast to help get your day off to a healthy start.

Salvation Army offers help with dignity for those in need

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Five years ago, Donna was going through a divorce from an abusive husband. She had four children, and rising debts when she sought help from First Step.

As Christmas approached the counselors at First Step suggested that Donna go to the Salvation Army's Plymouth Community Center and meet with Bill Moritz, the social services director. The suggestion proved to be, as she KNOWLEDGE says, "a godsend."

Bill is the most wonderful man, he's done so much for my family, especially my kids," said Donna, who asked that her last name not be used.

"When you go to FIA (the state's Family Independence Agency) or any other agency, they do not treat you with respect. You can't carry on a conversation with them or get them to Lisa Webster grew up in a Salvation answer a phone call. When I call Bill, he welcomes me with open arms and I always feel respect and dignity. I never feel I have to swallow my pride to come to she works on her teaching degree.

speak with him."

Being treated with respect and dignity is a common theme for those who turn to the Salvation Army for help. The Christian-based organization is probably best known for its shelters and its annual Red Kettle Christmas fund-raiser, but the Army offers a wide range of services for youth, struggling families and the elderly.

This past week, centers throughout Metro Detroit were taking requests for the Christmas holidays.

At the Plymouth center on South Main. Moritz said the Army assists 600 families year with a variety of services. During the Christmas season, Moritz said his case load doubles.

"A lot of people can make it through the year, but during the holidays, you need extra money to buy things for the kids," he said.

Through a program called THAW, the Army provides utility payments for those who have received shutoff notices with a grant from the Michigan Public Utilities Commission. Consumers Energy helps with a no-strings contribution program called People Care.

The center has a food pantry that provides a nutritional selection of foods for people waiting for their food stamps.

In the summer, the center operates a summer camp for kids. When people with drug or alcohol problems come to the center, Moritz gets them into a rehabilitation center. When a person has trouble making a rent payment, the Army offers assistance.

LOCAL NEEDS

The Salvation Army image set in most minds is an inner city mission serving the homeless with food and prayers and the brass bands at Christmas time. But more prosperous suburbs also have people in need all year long.

"It's not so much the homeless, but I've met quite a few people with drug and alcohol problems that have needed treat-'ment," Moritz said Monday. "Around here there's a big problem with fathers leaving the home, so now there's a single mother who has never worked in her life and she has children to raise and she doesn't know what to do. There is a lot of need."

Moritz understands about being in need and finding help at the Salvation Army.

"I'm an ex-addict and I was at the end of my rope and was going to off myself and ended up in the hospital because of that," he said. "I went to the Salvation Army for rehabilitation and was sent to the Harbor Light rehab center. I was cleaned up, I got saved and that was it. They took time and invested in me, I became a social worker through them. My learning comes from

If you like to take a trip down memory lane, forget the scrapbooks and the photo albums.

Canton resident Christine Popoff will take those treasured photos — or just about any other memorabilia - and turn them into memory quilts. Or wall hangings. Or quilted runners or table toppers.

She'll even make a memory tree skirt for your Christmas tree or a mantle scarf to go over the fireplace celebrating different holidays.

Volunteers sought for Wendy's art exhibits

The 17th Annual Wendy's Celebrates Youth Arts Month program sponsored by Wendy's Restaurants in partnership with ArtServe Michigan is seeking volunteers coordinators for the exhibits set to run Feb. 28 through March 31, 2005. The program is designed to allow children and youth to display their artwork in Wendy's restaurants around the state during March, which is national Youth Arts Month.

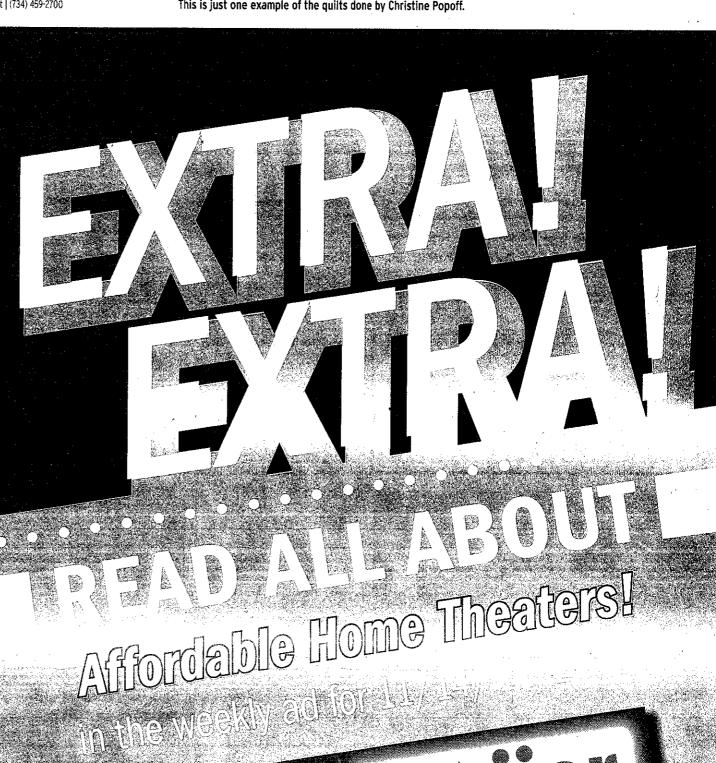

The Wendy's Celebrates Youth Arts Month program is an excellent advocacy and community relations' tool because it allows people to view the exceptional artwork created by students in their community.

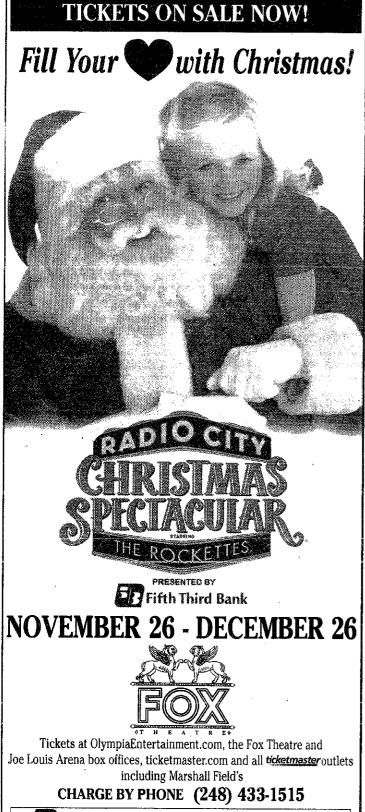

The program is also a great way for students to receive some well-deserved recognition. In the past, coordinators have used the program to increase parental involvement through opening day receptions, artist-in-residency programs and award presentations. Any way you look at it, Wendy's Celebrates Youth Arts Month is great for students, teachers, parents, school district and the community.

Last year 115 Wendy's restaurants in Michigan displayed the artwork of over 5,000 students. This year we have requests from approximately 155 Wendy's restaurant owners to have student artwork displayed in their restaurants.

If you are interested in being involved in this year's program as a volunteer coordinator or just want more information about the program, please contact Donna Edwards at (248) 557-8288, ext.13 or by e-mail at education@artservemichigan.org.

ARIES (March 21-April 20)

With so many irons in the fire, Ram, it's a pity to have to caution you that the financial outlook is ything but rosy right now. On the other hand, you'll have everything you could possibly need once you tell certain individuals to grow up and fend for themselves- sooner, not later!

Observer & Eccentric | Sunday, November 14, 2004

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)

The Sun now passing through your opposite sign may be bringing problems of an intensely personal nature to a head. However, after countless unproductive discussions over finances, you are inally holding an unusual number of trump ards and are in a position to speed things

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)

You're unlikely to see to eye with colleagues while the dynamic planet Uranus is crossing an important angle of your solar chart. However, stick to the course you've chosen and stay true to your principles, because it won't be long before you get a chance to turn the tables.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)

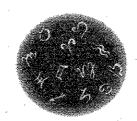

Each stage of life confronts one with new challenges. And, if you're typical of your birth sign, then you now realize that the kind of personal tisfaction or professional recognition you seek on only be found in a different environment or Deople, Switch gears, MoonKid!

LEO (July 24-Aug 23)

Having streamlined your affairs and put relationships on a firmer footing, long-standing arrangements can now be tackled with confidence. A decisive aspect between the Moon and Sun this week will be all it takes to get you thinking and moving in a new direction.

VIRGO (Aug 24-Sept 23)

Adapting to change is seldom easy for a Virgo – there simply has to be order. However, planetary activity now through Thanksgiving signifies you will come to realize that changes are gifts announcing your willingness to give others the chance to provide what you seek.

LIBRA (Sept 24-Oct 23)

Good gosh- is it holiday-time already? Something at home will demand all your attention this week, and if you're wise, you'll not try to wiggle out of what is expected of you. Your freedom may be precious to you, but you also have obligations to others.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22)

Although recent developments have left many scorps bewildered, don't lament what might have been. After the Sun changes signs on the 2ist, you'll no longer feel quite so neglected. New opportunities are about to arrive, and you must be ready to take advantage of them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21)

To be born under the sign of Archer is to be as straight as an arrow and brutally honest. Increfore, in spite of current emotional difficules, you must make a number of decisive moves this week and set the record straight. For a while now, you've been moving in the wrong direction. 'Fess up, kiddo!

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 21)

A series of spectacular planetary aspects now urges you to back your own instincts to the limit and not allow others' mood swings to make you go against your better judgment. If you've decided to move on, then it can only be because the time is right for you to broaden your horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan 22-Feb 19)

Since late summer you've been urged to find the speck of gold in the sand (as tedious as its been). Now, it should be staring you in the face. In fact, the Moon in your sign next weekend says that the time has come to concentrate only on what affects your long-term happiness.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20)

You seem to be smarting from last week's putdowns, and unfortunately, this coming days with the Moon and ruling planet aspects signify that a make-or-break situation in one very special tie is about to take place. However, the ball is no longer in your court, and you must learn to accept the things you simply cannot change.

Farmington Players introduces 112-year-old play 'Charley's Aunt'

Who is 112 years old and still one, funny chick?

It's Charley's Aunt, a farcical play written and produced by Brandon Thomas in 1892 that opens Nov. 19 at the Farmington Players Barn in Farmington Hills. This hilarious, entertaining and romantic comedy is full of mistaken identities, sight gags and physical humor and, of course, a man dressed as a woman. "With its fast pace, 10-person cast and complicated stage action, the show requires a high level of concentration and split-second timing," said Emily McSweeney, director of Charley's Aunt. The plot centers around two undergraduates at Oxford University, madly in love with two beauties.

The love-struck students invite the girls to lunch, ostensibly to meet Charley's rich, widowed aunt. All the plans go awry when the aunt telegraphs that she won't arrive in time. Without the aunt as a chaperone, the young men quickly realize the girls won't come to lunch.

The answer presents itself, however, when a fellow student appears wearing women's clothing that he is trying on for a theatrical review. He is immediately seized and forced to masquerade as the doting aunt.

Things get more complicated with the arrival of additional characters that add to the comedic confusion.

This joyous, farcical romp is another in a long line of memorable productions staged by the Farmington Players, now in their 53rd year.

This is their third season in their all-new barn theater, located on 12 Mile Road between Farmington and Orchard Lake roads. The Farmington Players Present "Charley's Aunt" by Brandon Thomas will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 19, 20, 26, 27, Dec. 2,3,4,9, 10, 11 and at 2 p.m. on Nov. 21, 28, Dec. 5. Tickets are $13 regular price: $10 on Thursdays and for seniors on Sunday, Nov. 21 only. Group sales rates available.

Box Office (248) 553-2955. The theatre is at 32332 W. 12 Mile Rd. Farmington Hills.

www.farmingtonplayers.org for more information.

The following Farmington Players present the production: Director, Emily McSweeney; assistant director, Janet Ginis; co-producers, Linda Springall, Tim Timmer; stage managers, Maggie Einhause, Tim Timmer.

Cast members are: John Nowaczyk as Jack Chesney; Tom Griffin as Brassett; Ross Grossman as Charley Wykeham; John Boufford, first 2 weekends as Lord Fancourt Babberley; Chris Oakley, last 2 weekends as Lord Fancourt Babberley: Erik Carlson as Colonel Sir Francis Chesney; Hank Bennett as Stephen Spettigue; Shannon Mobey as Kitty Verdun: Danielle Fletcher as Amy Spettigue; Julia Spina-Kilar as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez and Kelly Gallagher as Ela Delahav.

Benefit lights up Angela Hospice program

Nearly 600 people turned out to show their support for the work of Angela Hospice.

Founded in 1985 in Livonia, Angela Hospice has helped thousands of families across Southeast Michigan.

The 17th annual Light Up a Life Benefit, held Oct. 24 at Laurel Manor, raised $170,000 for programs that support terminally ill individuals and their families.

"I am so pleased with the success of this event," said Angela Hospice president and CEO, Sister Mary Giovanni. "The generosity of our hosts, George and Dolores Riley, the dedication of our staff and volunteers, and the support of our loyal benefactors all helped to . make this possible."

Guests at the event enjoyed a full evening, with live and silent auctions, a cocktail reception, dinner, and three musical acts.

Fanchon Stinger of Fox-2 Detroit was the evening's auctioneer.

Stinger helped to bring in over $10,000 on the live auction, where heavy bidding ensued on items such as a Hawaii condo stay and a behind-the-scenes trip to the set of Law & Order Special Victims Unit. A 4-piece family room set from Livonia's Chris Furniture was another hot

"The feedback from our guests has been wonderful," said Alice Barringer, Angela Hospice's Development Manager. "We're so happy that so many people came out to support our hospice, and they seemed to have a really enjoyable evening." Raffle drawings added to the evening's excitement, with the top prize for the "Either/OR" raffle going to Beulah White, a nurse aide in Angela Hospice's home care program.

"Many times people don't realize how important it is to support organizations like Angela Hospice," said Barringer. "But we couldn't run our programs on insurance reimbursement alone, because many of the services we provide are not covered by insurance. It's the support of our community donors and our fabulous volunteers that enable Angela Hospice to provide such personalized, compassionate care."

the streets; I was on the streets a long time." That street learning and empathy pay off when dealing with clients who come to the Army for assistance during the holidays and throughout

"One year I cried for a week, to tell you the truth," said Colleen Davison of Canton, mother of five children whose life took a downturn when her husband died three years ago. "There was no food in the house. I cried for a week and if it wasn't for the Salvation Army and Bill ... They care about you, you're not a number. You call here and Bill knows your name and how many kids you have, he doesn't have to look it up."

Michelle St. Pierre, director of media relations for the metro Detroit Salvation Army, said FIA and other agencies will often send clients to the Army first.

"We let them cry. They need someone to listen to them and guide them," she said.

Because of grant requirements, some assistance is based on federal poverty guidelines but St. Pierre said the Army always tries to find away to help anyone in a crisis situation.

The Plymouth Community Center is a model of what the Salvation Army offers at centers throughout the area, St. Pierre said. In addition to the well-stocked pantry, there is also a gymnasium and meeting rooms. The Salvation Army is also a religion and the chapel is an important part of every Army center, but the Army's services are available to everyone.

"We don't discriminate against anyone who comes," said St. Pierre, a Catholic. "We invite you to come to the services. We're not preaching to people but let them know we're a church organi-

Donna has found a lot of support through the organization. While she works in the summer, her twins, now 13, have enjoyed the summer camp. Moritz has found ways to get bicycles and winter coats for the children. When an older son became involved with drugs, Moritz went to sit and pray with him at the hospital. And when Donna decided to try to put down roots, the Army helped with a down payment on a house that shore leasing with an option to buy.

For Joanne Shettler, 22, of Canton, a recent visit was her first to the center. She has two children, ages 4 and 2, and she needs help to give them a Christmas. A neighbor told her about the Salvation Army's programs.

"She said they were very helpful and didn't look down on you because you were asking for the help and they were really nice and willing to help you," Shettler said.

Moritz said many clients first come to the Army because they've been told by friends and neighbors about the Army's programs.

YOUTH PROGRAMS

In addition to summer camp programs at the centers, the Army also sponsors year round clubs for boys and girls and the Strive basketball program, which requires that players do their homework and get tutoring before they practice.

On Monday, at the Army's Wayne-Westland Center on Venoy in Westland, Captain Mindie O'Neil was getting ready to prepare a meal for students enrolled in the Skillman Afterschool Program, partially funded by the Skillman Foundation. Children come to the center after school to play in the gym, eat a hot meal, do their homework and get some tutoring.

Lisa Webster, a sophomore at Oakland Community College, was setting out learning games. She has been working this semester as a Lashandra Reynolds of Westland is another soldier in the Salvation Army. She was introduced to the religion as a teenager when her mother sought treatment for addiction. Reynolds helped her mother and joined the Army choir.

In October, she returned to the Army to receive help and to offer help.

She was recently laid off and her electricity was cut off, so she came to the Army for assistance.

"The Salvation Army cares for people, they listen to vou," she said. "I will always be here to help them as a volunteer."

Salvation Army launches on-line volunteer drive

The Salvation Army is going high tech in its effort to recruit 50,000 bellringers for the annual holiday Red Kettle drive, Nov. 22 to Dec. 24, Sundays excluded.

The Eastern Michigan Division has launched its first on-line volunteer drive.

"It's a new program for us," said Russ Russell, executive director of development for the division. "We're trying to get technologically savvy. We've got to recruit people. We have over 300 locations where kettles will be located."

Bell ringing opportunities are posted at www.ringbell.org.

"You can go in, log on and go right to sites that are closes to your ZIP code," Russell said.

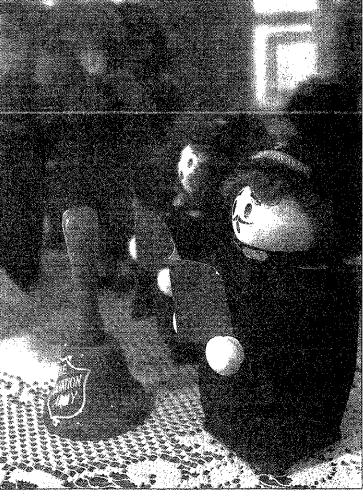

Volunteers can sign up for two or three hour shifts. Last year, 20 percent of the kettles were manned by volunteers, this year Russell said the Army is hoping to recruit up to 50 percent of their bellringers.

"Some of our clients are bellringers and it's a way for them to make money ... we do help people to build their work ethic," Russell said. "But our goal is to get as many volunteers as we can to cut our costs and to use the dollars to help the poor in the metro Detroit area.

Russell said the need has increased significantly and that the fund-raising effort has been hampered by the decision of some merchants, notably Target, not to allow bellringers in front of their stores.

Russell said the campaign will need to make up $250,000 lost by not having the Target sites.

A cure for winter blues

e're getting into the time of year when the weather is less than perfect. The warm, dry days of summer will give way to rain, snow and ice. And in Michigan we can get all three in one day.

Now we can't just hibernate until springtime. And that means we have to be prepared to go out in whatever Mother Nature throws at us. And even though I'm fortunate enough to spend a few months in Florida, I'm still here for part of the fall and winter. So here's a few tips that I follow and I hope you will, too:

■ Dress for the weather. A coat, gloves, scarf, hat and boots will protect you from the wet and Drive even more carefully; if it's raining or snowing the best thing to do is slow down, give yourself more room between you and the car in front of you. And always wear a seat belt, no matter what time of year.

■ Stay active. Walk around the mall or jog in place at home.

Eat healthy foods and drink enough water. In winter, we tend to drink less water than in summer, but it's just as important to stay hydrated in the winter.

Before you know it, spring will be back, and you'll still be in Children learn about DNA and how it makes them who they are in the current exhibit at the Detroit Science Center. A timeline tells about American biologist James Watson and British physicist Francis Crick developing the concept of what DNA looked like with the double helix in the 1950s. In 1962 they won the Nobel Prize for their work on DNA.

Genome

The secret of how life works

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

Did you know your entire set of genes is called a genome? Can you use the word genome in a sentence? A national survey by Pfizer revealed only one percent of respondents felt comfortable answering those questions, yet it's important now more than ever to understand implications stemming from the Human Genome Project, the research effort to identify the more than 30,000 genes in human DNA. With that in mind, scientists at Pfizer have produced an exhibit to lead children and adults through the medical breakthroughs that will change health care forever.

Even scientists like Vern Wheat are discovering facts as they walk through "Genome: The Secret of How Life Works" at the Detroit Science Center. A retired microbiologist who lives in Birmingham, Wheat has plenty of time to study the 5,000-square-foot exhibit aimed at teaching everyone from fifth grade up about the latest revolution in human genetics. As a docent for the Center's Pi Society, Wheat volunteers twice a month to guide visitors through the maze of information on topics ranging from DNA, the molecule that encodes genetic information, to designing future therapies including new can-

"What's fascinating is people don't realize they have this as a part of who you are," Wheat said. "The exhibit explains DNA, chromosomes and genes and how they relate. It goes through the history and the practical implications. A lot of people know about DNA, but not why that occurs. Ninety-nine point nine percent of human DNA is all alike. It's the one-tenth of one percent that makes us different. Another exhibit shows how life is created — half of chromosomes come from mom, half from your dad so you end up with 32 pairs. When cells replicate, they duplicate each other. They show how a cookie factory is like a cell. If we need more hair, the DNA tells the body to do that. DNA is the recipe for the cells to do their work."

Hands-on activities allow children of ages to learn about how genes make us who we are. Organized into four sections, the exhibit was made possible by Pfizer Inc. and produced by Clear Channel Exhibitions in collaboration with the National Human Genome Research Institute, a division of the National Institutes of Health, and Whitehead Institute/MIT Center for Genome Research. It begins with a graphic of a human egg cell and proceeds to compare an individual's genome to a big recipe book that spells out the ingredients for thousands of proteins that make and maintain the body. Along the way, it reveals amazing facts, such as humans sharing 98.4 percent of their genes with chimpanzees.

"It's a difficult subject to teach," Wheat said. "The exhibit brings it to life and makes it understandable for everyone. I'm amazed children are asking to better understand the technology. The information is complex. They talk about stem cells and broach the issue of manipulating the genes." Wheat learned that genes as well as the environment play a role in causing skin cancer. He knew years spent in the sun as a lifeguard could lead to cancer, but never realized heredity adds to the

"One area put together by University of Michigan opened my eyes," Wheat said. "Everytime I come down, I learn something different."

Educating the public about scientific discoveries is one of the missions at Pfizer, according to Thomas Turi, director of genomic sciences at the Connecticut facility. Inspired by the successful completion of the Human Genome Project in 2003, Pfizer set out to create an exhibit to illustrate how the discovery impacts daily life.

"It's going to revolutionize health care and they need to understand what the science is and how it can change the future so they will be able to make decisions about health care and science policy," said Turi, one of the exhibit's technical advisers. "There will be a tremendous amount of benefits. Scientists all over the world are trying to unlock secrets. Every day we're seeing more studies coming out to identify genetic bases of certain diseases."

Science is advancing so rapidly that Stephen Hunt thinks it's not impossible that by the year 2050 today's health care will be viewed "as very barbaric." He remembers the early days of the genomic revolution in the late 1970s.

"I've been in science the last 20 to 25 years and can remember that's where the whole idea of cloning DNA started," said Hunt, executive director of pharmacology at Pfizer Global Research and Development in Ann Arbor, where 3,500 scientists are working to better understand disease. "Two years ago, the completion of the sequencing of the human genome was our moon shot. For the first time now, we have all of the letters in the genome we can study. We don't know what those words are or how they translate into the blueprint of life just yet."

Hunt spent more than a year making sure children as well as adults understand the implications of genomic research. As a consultant, he especially tried to think of ways to involve children. Hunt originally was inspired to become a scientist by his parents and a ninth-grade teacher in Maryland.

"I would hope people would come away with an excitement about the potential," Hunt said. "Ten years ago, I wouldn't have believed we'd come as far as we have. It's an incredible time to be in science. I would hope people seeing the exhibit would walk out with the excitement we all see for the future of health care."

U-M Medical School leader in the field of human genetics

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

When Dr. Thomas Gelehrter became a medical doctor 35 years ago he said "no one could clone a gene. Today, that's pretty commonplace."

with the successful completion of the Human Genome Project, it's possible that one day scientists may be able to use genetic research to conquer disease prenatally. And to think many of the advances began at the University of Michigan Medical School in 1956 when James Van Gundia Neel, an M.D., established the first academic human genetics department in the U.S.

"Then we could deduce something about sickle cell anemia, but being able to get at the gene itself and carry out studies, to detect the disease prenatally is excitement at a different level, a gee wiz kind of thing," said Thomas Gelehrter, professor of human genetics and department chairman at U-M Medical School since 1987. "Today we can ask so many questions that couldn't be attacked in the past. We talk about how exciting it is today, it was then too because of tremendous advancements in techniques and therefore the questions we ask."

Gelehrter has no problem listing the many accomplishments of his colleagues at U-M Medical School over the years. Before Francis Collins was overseeing the Human Genome Project for the National Institutes of Health and U.S. Department of Energy, he as a faculty member, was cloning genes for cystic fibrosis, neurofibromatosis, and Huntington's disease.

Gelehrter says the discovery of a gene may not lead immediately to a cure, but diagnostic testing.

"If you think about the medical implication for cystic fibrosis, knowing the gene allowed one to determine what the altered protein is. It enabled us to have genetic testing, carrier testing for couples and prenatal testing. That was not possible before the gene was cloned. Now it's standard recommended practice that couples are offered cystic fibrosis testing."

A physician in the genetics clinic, Gelehrter today is able to test patients and family members for diseases that he was never able to during the majority of his career.

"We hope we will learn more about the factors that make us susceptible or resistant to certain conditions, whether it's the disease agent or how we respond to treatment," said Gelehrter. "People come to the clinic to find out about their disease such as Marfan syndrome that Abraham Lincoln was thought to have, or they're at risk of a disease such as Huntington's. We can offer counseling and testing for hemochromatosis, an iron overload disease, diagnose other family members so you monitor them closely for iron overload. The treatment is literally donating blood until you can reduce iron stores. It's an example of a genetic disease treatment that isn't genetic but brought about by genetic research. A family member can come in for testing. People have much more knowledge now."

Maple Park – lots of choices in intimate setting

www.hometownlife.com

Jacobson Brothers of Birmingham and The JAR Group of Bloomfield Hills announce the grand opening of Maple Park Condominiums in Canton Township, an intimate community of 42 firstfloor master suite and ranch condominiums with luxury features.

The Heritage unit at Maple Park was just awarded the Blue Ribbon (first place) award for condominiums in its price range ($200,000 to $325,000) in the Building Industry Association's Fall Parade of Homes. The award is given for "outstanding merit" in four categories — best value for the price; best use of space; innovative design; and aesthetic appeal.

Maple Park offers several floor plans with one- and twolevel options and two- and three-bedroom units, ranging in price from $204,000 to $249,000. Surrounded by residential neighborhoods and close to the center of Canton, Maple Park offers home buyers charm, character and loca-

Boardwalk like traditional farmhouse, only better

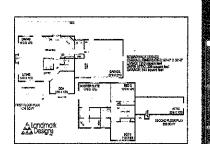

The Boardwalk has the appearance of a large classic styled farmhouse. It, however, has many more amenities than the traditional farmhouse had. There is a covered porch, many square-paned windows with a Palladian window on the second floor above the bay windows below, and a chimney accented in wood.

Walking into the Boardwalk, one has a large open room on the left that is the living room and the dining room. The fireplace is centered in the left walk between two large windows. French doors open in the rear onto a nice deck, ideal for family gatherings when the barbecue is the center of atten-

The elongated kitchen runs across the right rear of the home with a gracious amount of counter space. An eating bar island is in the center. Passing through a pocket door, one finds the utility and pantry cabinet. Beyond is the two-car garage with an attic overhead. Between the kitchen and the front door is a half bath. Stairs to the second floor are also in this area.

The bedrooms occupy the second floor, as does the attic, only accessible from the pulldown stairs in the garage. Bedroom two and three, separated by the stairs, each have plenty of windows to let the sunlight in and a wall closet bath, including a tub and single sink, is across from bedroom three, while a linen closet is outside the door to bedroom

The master suite is very large. Two windows provide sunlight to brighten the room. "His and Her" sinks are on the left while a walk-in closet is on the right. Both the closet and the master bath have pocket doors instead of regular doors. Once inside, a hard decision has to be made. Do you use the oversized tub or the oversized shower? What a difficult decision to make.

The Boardwalk has 1,026 square feet on the main floor and 892 square feet on the second floor. The unfinished attic adds 236 square feet more of space if needed.

Improve the value of your kitchen

(NAPSI) - If you're cooking up ways to add value to your home, you may want to head to the kitchen. Real estate experts say kitchen renovations generally add more value to a home than do projects in any other

In fact, kitchens are so valued that one survey found investing just $2,000 in renovations recoups up to 102 percent of the initial investment when a home is sold.

Designers say one of the best (and least expensive) ways to spruce up a kitchen is to replace the accessories on old stoves and ovens. Given that most of the 112 million ranges in the U.S. will last about 20 vears-and their accessories won't-it may be a smart idea to follow their advice.

A company called Range Kleen provides range accessories at discount prices. The accessories include: Knobs, drip pans, gas range grates, reflector plates, trim rings and burner covers.

The company also makes replacement parts (replacement elements, for example), kitchen gadgets, cleaning kits and bakeware. The products generally sell for three to five times less than what oven manufacturers charge.

Homeowners can visit the company's Web site (rangekleen.com) and order new accessories, or visit retailers such as Wal-Mart, Bed & Bath or Linens & Things to find the company's products.

"OPTION FOR THE

As people live longer, the demand for real estate will reflect the buying power of an aging population. As in many other aspects of society, buying power is shifting from the thirty to forty year old group to those who are fifty and up. Advertising agencies are focusing their messages on the age group most able and inclined to buy certain products.

MATURE BUYER"

People over fifty usually have completed the most financially demanding time of their lives and often are ready to purchase higher priced products and services. This is particularly worth noting in residential real estate. Many homeowners have built up a large equity in their homes by the time they reach fifty and are often looking for a change in

If you are the type of person described above, here are some home buying alternatives for you:

CONDOMINIUM LIVING

The condominium option provides the dual benefits of the freedom of apartment living and the financial advantages of ownership. It is one of the most popular forms of home ownership for the over fifty age group.

CLUSTER HOMES

Perhaps you enjoy owning your own home but are getting a little tired of the maintenance and upkeep required. A cluster home may be your best option. This concept gives you the benefits of condominium living and the enjoyment of a single family dwelling. These free-standing homes are located in close proximity. All exterior maintenance costs including roofs, outside walls, and landscaping are paid for collectively by all property owners.

RESIDENTIAL COMMUNITIES

If you are shopping for a certain lifestyle, many residential communities appeal to varying interests. Some target golfers, boaters, skiers, or other recreational pursuits. Others are located in geographical areas that feature various types of weather. ADVICE: Ask your Realtor® about the choices that best suit

Active adult communities: A new trend in housing

BY RICHARD L. KOMER CORRESPONDENT

Active adult communities have long been an accepted part of the housing scene in southern states such as Florida, South Carolina, Georgia, Nevada and Arizona. In southeastern Michigan, development of new active adult communities has only recently begun. In August, Pulte Homes, Inc., announced that the company plans to invest $1.5 billion to build four new active adult housing communities in Metro Detroit sub-

Active adult communities are geared toward one of the fastest growing segments of the U.S. population - buyers who are 55 years old and older. This age group is financially established, healthy and ready to enjoy all that life has to offer. These buyers don't want to mow the lawn, paint the house or do other household chores. They'd much rather play than work in their spare

They are looking for something distinctive and don't want to lose their identity in some huge condominium or mega-sized community. A gatehouse, community building, pool, tennis courts, and walking trails are all amenities they seek. They also desire planned activities and opportunities to socialize.

Today's active adult communities are smaller developments that feel like the neighborhoods of years ago. Architects frequently cluster homes rather than putting them up in a single row, resulting in more open space, increased security and a more appealing community.

Today's active adults prefer homes that position the garage off the street, making the front of the home the focal point. Homes in active adult communities also frequently incorporate dramatic fovers offering long, open views and design features that allow residents to comfortably age-in-place.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

Since most active adults are more health conscious, builders have responded by offering top-notch fitness rooms and programs that allow seniors to lead active lifestyles. Instead of a workout bench and basic exercise equipment, you'll find clubhouses designed with spas, massage rooms and yoga studios.

To allow homeowners to get in touch with nature, active adult homes will also have amenities such as sunrooms, screen porches, and large windows, which bring in light and invoke a sense of tranquility and serenity. Often, builders will include flex space in these homes, which allow the homeowner to convert an area into an extra bedroom, den, office or exercise studio.

Active adult homes have clean lines that appeal to the homebuyers' need to reduce clutter and simplify their lives. Most new active adult homes will have kitchens with upgraded appliances, granite countertops, and islands and cabinets that resemble furniture. Baths will feature showers with multiple spray heads, whirlpool tubs, heated floor tiles and other deluxe amenities. Kitchens will be the "heart of the home" and deluxe master baths will be "the sanctuary." Universal design features (such as seats in shower stalls, extra-wide door entrances, lever handles, etc.) are usually incorporated into the design of active adult homes because they save money when installed during the building process and give residents the features they need to remain in their homes as they age.

Richard L. Komer received the Builder of the Year award from the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan in 1998.

Three Takes On The Looming Labor Deficit

WORKWISE

It's no secret that as the Baby Boom eases into retirement, much work they leave behind simply won't be done. How will this emerging trend affect the interim staffing industry? Some firms think that assignments at the executive level will be filled because of a huge cohort of highlyskilled baby boomers willing to meet the challenge, largely for personal satisfaction.

Vince Papi, managing director for the Americas Practice (North and South America) of Boyden Interim Management, is based in Pittsburgh. The company places executives who are at least 50 years of age. Papi's expanding division currently includes 400 interim executives. The practice, with nine offices worldwide, opened in Holland in 1990 and is headquartered in the United Kingdom. Papi maintains that the impending labor shortage is international, as evidenced by the company's 3,000 interim executives abroad.

"People at all levels will be retiring," Papi predicts. "There will be a pool because of people living a lot longer. Younger baby boomers in their 40s have been downsized, outsized and rightsized and are more entrepreneurial." Boyden's European division is seeing increasing popularity with the interim lifestyle. Papi thinks that competitors will be marketing this service more aggressively.

"Organizations will be doing more to keep people on an interim basis," he says. Boyden communicates with its talent pool by telephone or e-mail at least four times per year. The company is also developing a newsletter.

Pam McKemie, senior vice president of LocumTenens, headquartered in Atlanta, says that her 10 year-old firm, which places physicians specializing in anesthesia, radiology and psychiatry, is preparing to meet the shortage she views as national. McKemie mentions that the trend of women to outnumber men in medical school will create an added stressor on the workforce: "When women come out in 10 to 12 years, they will increase shortages," she observes,

"because they typically work less than men do during childbearing years. This is the reality." Are staffing firms in other industries preparing for this development?

LocumTenens is already drawing upon the 15 percent of clinical physicians who work on a contract or temporary basis. The firm's contracts extend from a week to a year in a $2.5 billion industry.

"We're a boutique agency," she explains, "concentrating on highdemand, low-supply specialties. We're moving into surgery next year." She notes that the rapidity with which imaging technology diagnoses clinical problems quickly -- and the increased patient load caused by aging baby boomers -- account for "a critical shortage in certain areas."

McKemie mentions that her industry has been placing interim physicians for about 20 years. "Everyone is going into med schools and recruiting more physicians into a locumtenens lifestyle," offering an opportunity to practice pure medicine, flexibility and a relief from medical malpractice insurance and other administrative headaches.

NON-EXECUTIVES

Will there be a shortage of nonexecutive temporary workers? Many people will need to work -- and will. But talk to a roomful of baby boomers and you'll find that many just can't wait to leave the workforce.

Papi says that his company turns to other staffing firms to fill these critical slots. Conrad Taylor, president of the National Association of Personnel Services, an organization with almost 1,000 members worldwide, maintains that the shortage won't be of numbers, but of skills, both temporary and permanent. This shortage may well impact workers who've been unemployed for as long as two and one-half years.

Taylor sees some important challenges facing the staffing industry:

 identifying how to provide the needed skills and the money required to support the need;

 developing stronger ties with educational institutions to strengthen skills of students of all ages;

 training clients to provide environments conducive to worker retention; and

• obtaining a better grasp of client cultures.

Unfortunately, many staffing firms are silent on the subject of how they're going to meet the demands of the emerging workplace. Either they haven't begun to think about it or they know something we all can foresee -- that staffing firms and companies will have to find workers who aren't top tier, manage (notmicromanage) them well and fill in the gaps through ongoing training.

Now, if we can just get those managers and trainers up to speed . . .

Caravan Scores with Hockey Fans

Advertising Feature

Anne Fracassa

Avanti NewsFeatures

Hey, Detroiters! I don't know about you, but I'm going through major, major hockey withdrawal right now. I'll give you a little taste of it later in this column, but suffice it to say, I got a bit of a fix with the great new Wings DVD that went on sale last week. More on that later. Just when you thought a minivan couldn't get better, enter the 2005 Dodge Caravan SXT.

You all know that I just hate minivans for the most part. They're basically mom-mobiles. Although I am a mom, I just could never be part of the minivan crowd. Give me my sport ute any day. I'm happier

And it fits my family's needs just fine, thank you very much. Without the minivan look.

But now comes a contender in the market. Something that I have to encourage everyone who still wants to drive a mom-mobile and needs a lot of versatility -- much like what you get with a sport utility vehi-

This Caravan SXT still looks a lot like a minivan, but you've got a little bit of leeway here. There are sportier curves and lines, a lot less of a boxy look and versatility that just isn't there with the others in the A first in the marketplace, this Dodge has something called a Stow-

N-Go feature. What that means is that you can fold down the second-and third-row seats right into the floor. No tugging to get it down, The wonderful thing about it -- and a few sport utes are equipped with it, is the fact that you don't have to yank those seats out of the vehicle and take up precious room in your already cramped garage to store them. Just a simple pull here and there and they disappear, gone, vamoose, bye-bye. And you don't even have to use both hands -so if you broke one, you can still do it by your lonesome. The cool thing about it is how fast it can be done. I didn't time myself (didn't want to feel inept if I failed), but Dodge says you can go from seven seats to two in just 30 seconds. Yeah -- it's about that fast. With the seats gone, you'll realize another 12 cubic feet of cargo area to haul all your worldly belongings in the second- and third-row stor-

Now here's something to think about when you have absolutely nothing better to do. Dodge says there can be up to 256 seating configurations with this minivan. Talk about versatile, huh?

And, by the way, I'm all alone in my assumption that minivans have been a fad. Uh-uh. Chrysler and Dodge have sold more than 10 million in 20 years and right now one in 15 new vehicles purchased is a minivan.

The interior of the Caravan SXT is wisely laid out and specifically tuned toward the driver. When you want to touch a button, watch a gauge or adjust the heating and cooling, it's more than easy to accomplish without taking your eyes off the road. Seating surfaces are just superb and comfy.

2005 Dodge Caravan SXT. Vehicle class: Minivan. Power: 3.8 liter V-6 engine. Mileage: 18 mpg city/25 mpg highway. Where built: Windsor, Ontario, Canada. Price as tested: $30.925

The interior has a bit more edge to it, rather than soft feminine lines we're used to. Looks a little aggressive in the front and the styling is very fresh and inviting. This may be the best minivan Chrysler and Dodge has had to offer since the very first ones came off the line two decades ago. (Wow, has it really been that long???)

And with the DVD option in the rear seating positions, you'll really make your kids happy. I know I did. You see, our family is really big on hockey. So bad were the withdrawal symptoms earlier last week that we picked ourselves up and drove to the Fraser ice arena to watch the Motor City Mechanics play the Port Huron Beacons. I learned that UHL hockey is great hockey, They're just not the Red Wings. Nobody is!

But the following day, I got my Red Wings fix. And got more than I even bargained for. Not only did I get the chance to see the highlights of the highlight film of the 4-disc DVD on the history of the Wings (only one disc is from the olden days; most of it is of present day hockey, the cups we won and present day players), but I also got to do an interview with the one and only Mickey Redmond, a telecaster today and 50-goal scorer from yesterday.

He was at Hockeytown Café Monday night to promote the DVD set and I got to spend almost two hours with him on the phone Monday afternoon. Some of the stuff on the DVDs includes older history from the 1950s, five of the greatest Red Wing games of all time and the three runs for the Stanley Cup.

There's almost 20 hours of entertainment on these new "Celebration of Champions" DVDs. I have seen three hours of it so far and every inch of film are not only first-rate but also absolutely perfectly executed. From the 1996 fight between "Clod" Claude Lemieux and our Darren McCarty to the tasteful explanation of Vladdy's terrible accident on Woodward after the cup was ours in 1997, the DVDs are the best work I've seen on any Wings chronology yet.

I asked Mickey if he was going through hockey withdrawal like I was and he said he was.

"Absolutely," he said. "But there isn't anything I can do to alleviate or replace hockey right now, and I'm handling it better this time around. In 1994-95, I lived and died hockey every day they were out and it didn't do any good then. I'm looking at it as the glass half-full. I think they'll settle and get back to hockey by January."

Mickey told me that although he played for the Montreal Canadiens and won two cups with the Habs, he's always thought of himself as a Red Wing and will continue to do so.

"I'm a Red Wing, absolutely, because I spend the better part of my career here — I played for the team 6 – years," he said. "But as great as it was to play in two places, with two storied franchises as Montreal and Detroit, I call here my home. I've lived here 31 years now.

"I truly love the emotion and passion the game brings out in people, especially the fans in Detroit, and in my business, this is as good as it gets. I've got the best job in the world." Mickey said he spent most of last weekend reviewing the DVD set watching more than 15 hours of footage.

"The interesting thing about looking at the video is how it refreshes the memories and it's amazing to watch (and live it over again)," he said. "To see the emotion of the people, of the fans, burying their face in their hands at some moments, it's just unbelievable to go back to it."

The DVD set, distributed by Warner Home Video, is available right now at Borders, Barnes and Noble and Hockeytown Authentics. The cost for "Detroit Red Wings: A Celebration of Champions," is $49.98. It is part of the new "Original Six Series" of DVDs coming out, authorized by NHL Productions. For a real Red Wing fan, it's a small price to pay for 20 hours of hockey at a time when we need it most.

And as for the Dodge Caravan, I think you should really take a hard look at this one if you're in the market for a minivan. It's a great offering in a tight market. Value for the dollar is there, too, including being somewhat of a gas miser. Head on out and take a look And if you need your hockey fix, make sure and get a Caravan with one of those built-in TVs so you can watch this new Wings DVD. Write Anne Fracassa at avanti1054@aol.com.

"Detroit Red Wings: A Celebration of Champions" Highlights from the new DVD available right now at Borders, Barnes and Noble and Hockeytown Authentics include 1996, Detroit vs. St. Louis: Captain Steve Yzerman scores winning goal in game seven. 1997, Detroit vs. Colorado: Wings comeback against Colorado (March 26). This was the Red Wings' defining regular season game in their championship season. 1997, Detroit vs. Philadelphia: Stanley Cup-winning game, game four vs. Philadelphia. 2002, Detroit vs. Colorado: Destruction of Patrick Roy and the Avalanche in Game seven of the Western Conference Finals.

2002, Detroit vs. Carolina: Game three overtime epic.
