A new vision

BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Much has changed along Michigan Avenue since 1920, when this photo was taken (looking east from Canton Center). The highway's rural roots have given way to new retail stores, from big box operations like The Home Depot and a number of smaller strip malls like the one at left.

A rural highway no more, Michigan Avenue is turning into a destination corridor

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER

It's no lonely stretch of highway anymore. Both to the east and west of Canton, Michigan Avenue is host to busy downtown areas with industry, shops and restaurants. And very quickly, Canton's chunk of Michigan Avenue is becoming a busy shopping district of its own right.

In contrast to Canton's other busy shopping corridor, Ford Road, Michigan Avenue is still underdeveloped. But that's going to change in the very near future, according to Canton attorney, Bryan Amann, who represents businesses of all sizes in Canton. "I think you're going to be very surprised at some of the businesses that will be locating in Canton," he said, cautioning to not tip his hand and reveal the names of clients and potential clients who have approached him to discuss their interest in Michigan Avenue. He did, however, say that a mix of big-name and big-box retailers are considering building along the highway, and the buildings will range in size from 25,000 to 150,000 square feet.

Those numbers are promising to Cindy Floyd who, with her husband, owns and operates a tiny sub sandwich shop, Vinnie's Italian Sub Shop, on Michigan Avenue, just west of the freeway.

The Floyds bought the business from a relative, who opened it four years ago, when the nationwide economic recession was challenging enough to strike fear into the heart of any new business owner.

"But the previous owners did really well, and so have we," Floyd said.

So well, in fact, that there are times when customers line up out the door and into the parking lot to order lunch.

It's the traffic flow that makes the capture of impulse buyers possible, according to Floyd.

"We get people that stop in on the way to U-M (University of Michigan) games or to the beer festival in Ypsilanti, and a lot of people say they drive by all the time before they finally stop in," she said.

A NUMBERS GAME

Amann agrees that the interest in Canton's southern corridor is a numbers game. The price of land is between one-third and one-half of comparable land on Ford Road. And the traffic counts along Michigan Avenue are much higher than those on Ford, even though that num-

Bonnie Berg, 77, who owns Bart's Rustic Lawn Furniture, has lived on Michigan Avenue for a half century. The highway has changed much since she moved here from Dearborn with her late husband, Bart. She is trying to sell her farm.

Bonnie Berg relaxes on a wooden swing in her front yard, and watches the countless cars go whizzing by along Michigan Avenue, just west of Beck. For many, the near-deafening noise would be a nuisance. But not for Berg.

"I'm so used to it, it doesn't bother me," says Berg, 77.

Motorists who have driven

Michigan Avenue for any number of years have probably noticed Berg's home and business, Bart's Rustic Lawn Furniture. It's the place with all the picnic tables and other assorted wooden furniture situated on the lawn. For many, it has been a landmark of sorts along the highway that has for generations connected Detroit and Dearborn with towns like Ypsilanti

2006 budget includes $45 million for sewers

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER

When the Canton Township Board of Trustees meets next week to review the 2006 budget, one of the capital improvements will be $45 million in sewer improvements.

The improvements, recommended earlier this year by Tim Faas, Municipal Services director, include $18 million in local sewer improvements, and $27 million in regional improvements.

The regional improvements include doubling the capacity at the Western Townships Utilities Authority's Lower Rouge equalization basin at Michigan Avenue and I-275. The basin currently holds 5.5 million gallons of wastewater, and will hold 11 million gallons after the project's completion.

WTUA will perform the design and construction work, and Canton Township will foot the bill, Faas said. The design portion will cost $4 million and is scheduled to be done in 2006, and the $23 million construction phase will begin in 2007, and will be completed in 2008 or 2009, if the township approves it.

The local improvements include the addition and expansion of local sewer relief pipes along Morton Taylor and Denton, as well as other locations in the township.

Although the township board has not approved the regional expenditures, WTUA is starting the process of requesting proposals for the design phase of the project, Faas said. The township has done the same in the local improvement projects.

Earlier this month, the township board of trustees discussed during a study session possible increases in the water and sewer rates, in order to maintain an adequate water and sewer fund balance.

"The rate increases were very much tied to the improvement projects," Faas said, though the projects are not the sole cause of the proposed increase.

"We were looking at the rate increases before we were thinking of making these improvements," he said. "It was

School board begins figuring out what's in a name

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Salem High School Principal Jerry Ostoin has grandchildren who live near the new Plymouth-Canton elementary school being constructed in Canton Township's Cherry Hill Village. And, while assignments have yet to be made, there's a good chance they will attend classes at the as-of-yet unnamed school.

The Board of Education is currently in the process of accepting nominations for what to call the new school, and, coincidentally, Ostoin's name is on the list.

"It is very flattering to be recognized in this fashion for this honor," said Ostoin, 61. "When you think of the other people I respect who have names on some of our present buildings, like the Hobens and Isbisters, it's a great honor."

Ostoin — who was hired as an assistant principal in 1974 and became principal in 1986 — is one of more than a dozen people who have been submitted to the school board for consideration.

"Elementary schools are named for past or present significant educational contributors to the district," said Frank Ruggirello, director of community relations.

"That includes employees, board members and community members who have made significant contributions to the education of children in this district."

Another on the list is Superintendent Jim Ryan, who was

Veterans benefits

Wayne County's Stand Down II is planned for Sept. 30 at Historic Ft. Wayne. Today's military veterans attend a Stand Down to learn about benefit programs, for health screenings and other services. Wayne County has nearly 200,000 military veterans.

The county's first Stand Down last year in Westland attracted nearly 400 veterans and their families. This year's Stand Down is scheduled for 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Visitors must check in at the gate and will be directed to the event. Ft. Wayne is located on W. Jefferson, just west of Clark Street and south of Fort Street in southwest Detroit.

Families with soldiers, sailors and airmen serving in Iraq or Afghanistan may be particularly interested in attending the Stand Down because county, state and federal military agencies offer a number of relief benefits to help while their men and women serve overseas.

To make the Stand Down more enjoyable, tours of Ft. Wayne and other entertainment are planned. Veterans need to bring a valid state ID, proof of income slips and a DD-214 discharge form. Family members should plan to attend to learn or seek assistance.

The event is free. For details, contact (313) 224-8162.

Victory Park planted seeds of development along Michigan Avenue

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER

On the south side of Michigan Avenue, just west of Belleville Road, sports teams from around the state, and even the region, suit up every weekend (and most weeknights during the summer) and play ball. And football. And cricket. The activities in Canton's Victory Park on Michigan Avenue aren't just fun and games, though. They also bring a significant number of visitors - and their cash - to Canton Township.

Victory Park is home to the township-owned Canton Sports Center's 12 baseball and softball diamonds, and three privately owned or operated businesses: Diamond's restaurant, which is operated by a private enterprise; Arctic Edge indoor ice arena, which leases land in the park for $1 per year from the township, and is privately owned and operated; and High Velocity, a privately owned and operated indoor soccer facility.

"There is a tremendous economic impact on other businesses, especially businesses along Michigan Avenue. Much of the growth that's gone on along Michigan Avenue has been brought on by what happens at Victory Park," said Ann Conklin, Canton's leisure services director.

A formula from the International Convention and Visitors Bureau projects what the average sporting event means in terms of economic impact on a community, and using that formula Conklin estimates that major events which bring visitors for four days mean that $1 million will be spent in the area by the sports teams.

"We have something like 40 tournaments a year, and even if they don't bring in overnight visitors, they do bring in traffic for the gas stations, restaurants, convenience stores and stores that carry essential items for emergencies," Conklin said.

In 2004, the softball center alone hosted some 5,280 games, drawing approximately 40,000 players to the center.

Also in the works, just west of Victory Park, will be a new, privately owned indoor basketball facility, which will add another recreation option to the Michigan Avenue corridor. In April, the Canton Township Planning Commission recommended the special land use approval for P3 Enterprises to build the $5.2 million facility.

Canton resident Jason Kaye is leading the partnership to construct the facility, and said at the time of the approval that he feels the facility is an example of a win-win for him, as well as the community.

Because Canton residents put a premium on their leisure activities, his business will be a welcome addition to the existing sports facilities. In return, he said, he'll draw people from nearby communities, and possibly regional communities, to Canton's Michigan Avenue.

DEVELOP

ber can be deceiving because much of Michigan Avenue's traffic is generated by people who are breezing through the area between Ann Arbor and Dearborn or Detroit.

Though much of it is yet undeveloped, there are tentative plans and strong interest in most of what's available along Michigan Avenue.

"It's really the last area of large tract parcels still available in Canton. It's hard - sometimes impossible - to find those anywhere else in the township," Amann said. "Literally all of the property from Beck to I-275 is under contract right now."

That's good news to Floyd.

"We just can't help but do even better than we are now," she said.

Warehouse retailer Costco, with its target market of upper middle-income households, is moving ahead with tentative plans to build at Michigan Avenue and Belleville Road. And several stores with locations currently on Ford Road are seeking property along Michigan Avenue, in order to "bookend" the community, Amann said.

In addition to restaurants and retail, Amann believes that there will be more car dealerships cropping up along Michigan Avenue. Tuesday night, the township board of trustees approved a site plan for a new Victory Toyota car dealership on Michigan Avenue, and Amann expects more will follow.

"BMW has been sniffing around for a long time," he said, adding that car dealerships today are not necessarily what they once were - a vast sea of asphalt parking with a large, nondescript building on the site. Instead, they tend to be smaller, particularly when they are businesses which sell high-end automobiles. "They are smaller and much more succinct."

The residential growth in Canton sparked the interest of retailers, and continued growth - three developers are submitting plans to build some 2,000 additional homes in the southern portion of the township - is adding to the confidence of businesses who've been eyeing the area.

DRAWING IN SHOPPERS

Businesses are also getting a better and more accurate picture of who shops in Canton, thanks to updated information from Canton's Downtown Development Authority.

Before the information was updated, it was believed that Canton was attracting most shoppers from a 10-mile radius, a circle which drew shoppers from Plymouth, Van Buren Township, Garden City, Wayne, Westland and Inkster.

"We never really have drawn shoppers from places like Dearborn and Dearborn Heights, Garden City and Inkster," Amann said. "We draw from Plymouth, Northville, places north and south of Canton. Households in those communities have an average of $20,000 more discretionary spending than those east of I-275."

It's the consumers' increasing numbers, and their relative affluence, which have put Canton on the map, at least in the eyes of developers.

It's not just the growth in Canton residential development that has launched the massive interest from retailers. It's also the growth occurring in Van Buren Township, just to the south of Canton.

"You're starting to see more rooftops in Van Buren Township, and the nature of that community is changing. You're starting to see households with more discretionary income," Amann said.

TRAFFIC CHANGES

As more business interest develops in Canton's southern business district, so will the nature of the township and its traffic patterns, according to Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

"If you go back about six years, we looked at Michigan Avenue, and what was occurring and what could potentially happen as building demographics changed," he said.

As some of the smaller businesses and little hotels have begun to disappear, there's room for big business to enter the picture.

"Michigan Avenue was mostly an east-west highway, with plenty of cars traveling on it, but Ford Road was where most of the commercial activity was," Santomauro said. "As commercial has started to develop there (along Michigan Avenue), we've had an increased police presence, in order to respond to the changing building demographics."

The demographics are expected to increase the frequency of traffic issues and possibly traffic accidents, but are not likely to increase crime, he said.

"When you start bringing in an anchor like Costco, that spurs further development. The misconception is that you end up with a lot more crime, but that's not true. What is true is that you have an increase in calls for services. Costco and Sam's Club typically do not have a lot of shoplifting, like you would with your normal-level big store," Santomauro said.

Determination - and God - help her save her husband's life

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Elizabeth Walling doesn't see herself as a hero, just a wife who decide she wanted to have more than 20 years with her husband, Roland.

In the wee hours of Monday morning, Walling, ignoring the screams of witnesses to run, stayed put and succeeded in getting her husband out of his burning 1968 Chevy Camaro.

"I tried to get him out, but I couldn't get to his seat belt," said Elizabeth, who suffered first- and second-degree burns to her right arm, face and hands. "I knew it was going to explode, I could hear it. People were screaming run, run, run."

Sitting in the yard at Westland Car Care, the rear end of the custom car is charred and twisted metal. The front end, however, still sports a checkered flag that flows across the hood and onto both front quarter panels.

It's a stark reminder of the severity of the accident Roland was in at Cherry Hill and Sheldon in Canton around 1:30 a.m. Monday. The Westland residents were on their way home after attending an open house in Milford about 1:30 a.m. Monday when Roland's car was hit by a Toyota Sienna northbound on Sheldon.

The impact of the crash spun the car around in the intersection where it was struck a second time in the rear by a Ford F-150 heading west on Cherry Hill.

Walling doesn't recall the accident. He was knocked unconscious almost immediately after striking on his forehead on the roll bar.

Elizabeth, who was following her husband in her red 1968 Camaro, watched in horror as her husband's car burst into flames as soon as it was hit. She stopped, grabbed a small fire extinguisher and rushed to help her husband.

She sprayed the interior of the car and tried to reach his seat belt to free him, all the while onlookers yelled at her to leave the car.

"I thought, 'I can't leave my girls without parents,' so I ran," said Elizabeth who made it three feet from the car before falling. She looked at the burning car. Married for 20 years, she decided she wanted her husband around for 70 years. She went back, spraying him and the interior of the car with the fire extinguisher.

She was screaming his name when he lifted his head and was able to release the lap belt, just what Elizabeth needed to pull him from the car. They made it to the curb, where Roland collapsed, bleeding profusely from a four-inch gash on his forehead. Seconds later the car exploded.

"When he picked his head up, it was the greatest feeling," she said. "I knew we were going to make it. I was determined not to leave him in the car, but it wasn't me, it was God who got him out."

Fans of the '60s muscle car, the Wallings had spent more than two years restoring the Camaro which they planned to take to the 2006 Autorama. That custom car show played a part in the rescue. The fire extinguisher Elizabeth used was in her car because they had earned points for having one when they showed it at Autorama for the first time in 2003.

Another lifesaver was the sound proofing and fireproof carpeting she had spent 16 hours installing two months ago. It kept the flames from reaching Roland although they shot out from underneath car, burning Elizabeth. His only burn is a small patch on the back of his head.

And while the roll bar caused Roland to black out, it did prevent further injury when the truck hit the car.

"I feel it kept the car intact," Elizabeth said. "If he didn't have it, he would have been consumed by the fire like the car was."

The car from the dashboard back is gutted and the Wallings aren't sure what the insurance company will do, but none of that is important right now, according to Elizabeth.

"That can be replaced, only my husband couldn't be replaced," she said. "Nothing is that important anymore when you come that close to losing your husband."

For now, her red Camaro sits in the garage. It won't leave there until she makes one modification.

"I'm not getting in my car until I have a five-point harness like the race car drivers wear," she said, tapping the spot on her chest where the release is for that type of harness.

WHAT MATTERS MOST

The crash has reminded the Wallings and their friends and family about the things that are truly important to them, according to Elizabeth's close friend, Lynn Sackett-Hodge of Canton.

"It sent a chill up and down my spine when I heard about her heroism," Sackett-Hodge said. "It just reminds us that nothing else is a big deal, just that you have your health and your family. That's all that matters."

Salvation Army houses evacuees

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Salvation Army is helping at least two families who traveled from Shreveport, La., to Canton Township with barely more than the clothes on their backs after escaping Hurricane Katrina.

Bill Moritz, director of social services for the Salvation Army in Plymouth, said the evacuees are being housed at the Extended StayAmerica motel at Haggerty Road and I-275 in Canton, until they can find more permanent living quarters.

Moritz said most of the displaced victims ended up in Michigan because they have family in Canton Township.

"Two of the families - a total of eight people - drove up in a mini-van, which was also crowded with a wheelchair for one of the kids," said Moritz. "They left with a week's worth of clothing because they thought they'd be able to go back."

"However, Shreveport was leveled and the National Guard won't let them back in," he said. "They literally lost everything."

Moritz said the Salvation Army is paying for a 30-day stay at the motel, and is assisting in purchasing food and gasoline.

"Hopefully, we'll find them a home or apartment," said Moritz. "If not, we'll continue to put them up at the motel."

Moritz added the Salvation Army is also supplying transportation to a command post at Detroit City Airport, where evacuees can fill out applications for federal relief from FEMA, food stamps and health screenings.

"The Salvation Army is also offering a $50 voucher for clothing, as well as feeding them," said Moritz.

Moritz said there are a total of 22 people in the area who are from the Gulf Coast region devastated by Katrina. The Plymouth-Canton Schools reported it has enrolled 14 students from Katrina-ravaged areas.

Moritz noted $2,300 was collected at last weekend's Plymouth Fall Festival by the Fall Festival committee, Plymouth Community Fire Department and Salvation Army for hurricane victims. Another $1,200 was also given by a single donor.

Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority held a final Music in the Air concert in Kellogg Park Friday, with collections directed to the Salvation Army.

"Thus far, we've collected about $9,000 for local Katrina efforts," said Moritz. "And, nearly $38,000 has been given to our office for national relief efforts. People from around here are dropping off checks left and right."

Meanwhile, the Plymouth Community United Way has dipped into its coffers to help fund Katrina relief efforts.

"Our Board of Directors has approved a $10,000 grant to be used in Hurricane Katrina relief efforts," said Marie Morrow, president. "We're in the process of working with the United Way and Salvation Army in the affected areas to find the best place for the money to be used."

Morrow said, thus far, the PCUW has collected $500 locally for the national effort.

MHS takes in hurricane's furry victims

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wagging their tails and showing their rescuers with kisses, 18 dogs arrived in Westland on Wednesday after narrowly surviving a hurricane that separated them from their owners.

One by one, these dogs - a German shepherd, a poodle, a golden retriever, a collie mix, a worried-looking Chihuahua and other survivors - exited a Michigan Humane Society vehicle that rolled in from storm-ravaged Louisiana.

MHS employees Debby MacDonald and David Williams rescued a near-death Rottweiler just outside of New Orleans' historic French Quarter.

"She probably would have been dead the next day," Williams said. "She was really dehydrated. She was wandering aimlessly alongside the road, teetering on her feet."

Rescuers gave fluids to the Rottweiler and took her to a Louisiana State University veterinarian who gave her the medical attention she desperately needed.

"We are calling her Katrina," MHS rescuer Marta Duffen said.

A six-member team of MHS employees drove three rescue vehicles to Louisiana for a 10-day trip to save animals ranging from dogs to cats to chickens to goats.

They brought 18 dogs to the MHS Berman Center for Animal Care in Westland from a temporary animal shelter in Gonzales, La., where more than 2,000 pets were being housed.

However, MHS officials and the Michigan Partnership for Animal Welfare hope to raise $35,000 to charter a cargo plane that would help them get many more animals out. To help, call (866) MHUMANE.

MHS employees will soon place the canine evacuees in foster homes as they try to reunite the pets with their owners, using whatever information they can obtain from dog tags or from such Web sites as www.petfinder.com.

TOM HAWLEY | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Betsy Weakland, operations coordinator at the Michigan Humane Society's Berman Center in Westland, carries one of the rescued dogs into the shelter.

"We really feel like we made a significant difference by helping these animals," said Cal Morgan, MHS executive director.

MHS animal evaluator Jan Ramos accompanied a team that searched for animals by boat. She provided immediate care to pets that were pulled from floodwaters.

Meanwhile, MHS officials offered several ways in which potential donors can help animal-rescue efforts:

■ Donate at www.michigan-humane.org.

■ Call (866) MHUMANE 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday to donate using a credit card.

■ Make checks payable to the Michigan Humane Society and send them to the Michigan Humane Society, Attn: Hurricane Katrina Animal Relief Fund, 26711 Northwestern Highway, Suite 175, Southfield, MI 48034. On the check, please note that it is for the Hurricane Katrina Relief Fund.

■ Drop off checks at MHS shelters or veterinary centers in Westland, Detroit or Rochester Hills.

■ Drop off monetary donations at any metro Detroit Pet Supplies Plus store.

"My first reaction was to take my name off the list, because I could never compete with some of those other names," said Ryan. "But, I came to understand what an honor it is, that people are saying I'm a man of integrity, and that made me feel very good.

"But, I still wouldn't be comfortable with my name on that building," he said. "There are other people who really have made significant contributions to the educational climate of our schools and community."

Others who have been nominated include:

Painters Sharon Dillenbeck and Karen O'Daniel work on paintings during the Cherry Hill Fine Art Fair. Shelley Hoagland of Westland and Dave Czarnecki of Garden City watch their progress.

Artists show off their work at fair

Dozens of professional artists displayed their work at the second annual Cherry Hill Invitational Fine Art Fair last weekend, which took place at the historic Cherry Hill Schoolhouse in Cherry Hill Village.

The juried show, which ran both Saturday and Sunday, was sponsored by Beechwood Inc. and Canton's Leisure Services Department. Featured artists competed for prizes, awarded by Christopher Bocklage, a professional artist and art instructor at Eastern Michigan University. Awards were based on creativity, originality, design, diversity, quality and presentation.

Some of the artists featured this year included Greg Floyd, a stained glass artist from Garden City, Kathleen Porter, a fused glass artist from Dearborn Heights, Lucia Lucas, an oil and acrylic painter from Bloomfield, and Kathleen McFall, a jewelry designer from Northville.

Judged categories included clay, oils/acrylics, glass, photography, drawings, jewelry, etching, mixed media, graphics, ceramics, watercolor, wood, sculpture, and metal.

Photographer Larry Diggs won Best of Show, earning him $500. Melissa Darby, also a photographer, earned Best 2-D and $400, while McFall took home Best 3-D and $400. Six other artists earned $100 each.

Event organizer and Beechwood Inc. owner Kris Darby, a former art teacher at Salem High School, said the event was successful. She said there was a good turnout of browsers and buyers.

"We think it went well. We were really happy with the quality of art we had. We were also happy that people were buying things, which is kind of the point. We really try to help out the artists," she said.

BONNIE

and ultimately Chicago.

But like other landmarks along "old" Michigan Avenue, such as the recently demolished De Swan Motel windmill sign, Bart's may soon be a thing of the past. About three years ago, Berg put her house and nearly 10 acre farm up for sale, hoping to cash in on all the recent interest in property along the once dusty highway.

"I would love to retire and travel. I've been doing this for 48 years," she says of her lawn furniture business.

When Berg and her husband, Bart Berg, moved to Canton from Dearborn some 55 years ago, Michigan Avenue was vastly different than it is today. There was no fast-food restaurants or big-box retailers like The Home Depot. Of course, Canton itself was a much different place. It was known for its sweet corn, not hip Swedish furniture, as it will once IKEA opens next year.

The Bergs, who raised five children, actually played a role in Canton's transformation from agricultural town to booming suburb. According to Bonnie, her husband, who passed away in 1985, was instrumental in starting up on the Canton Chamber of Commerce and the Canton Rotary Club.

"Bart always had high hopes for Canton. He had come from Dearborn, where he was quite active in the business community. We had to wait for the population to build up out here," she said. "I like the improvements in the community. I think Bart would be happy with what Canton has become."

Still, Berg says she does miss the way Canton used to be.

"I remember when the farmers used to line up along Michigan Avenue and sell eggs right out in front of the house. They would set up a picnic table in the median and congregate. Those are the kinds of things you miss," she said, pausing. "To be able to see the fields of corn, to see the fields of wheat and soybeans. You just don't see that anymore."

To make her property more attractive to potential buyers, Berg has combined it with her next-door neighbor's farm. Together, the two properties total just under 20 acres, enough land to accommodate a larger development. They are asking $100,000 per acre.

"Everyone says Michigan Avenue is just booming. Nobody has really been interested yet. Hopefully the right buyer will come along, and I'll be able to move on with my life," she said.

Berg plans to stay in Canton when and if she sells the property.

"My doctor said I needed a hip replacement. After planning the surgery, I learned I needed to plan my recovery, too."

My doctor suggested Heartland Health Care Center's newest location in Canton. "A nursing home?" I asked. My doctor told me, "They're different than you think." So, I met their physical therapists, visited their rehab area and talked to the admissions director and case manager. After my surgery, Heartland will help me rehabilitate my hips so I'll be ready to go home. I was surprised at how young the patients are and that many of them were receiving medical rehab and returning home.

At Heartland, our team has the expertise to guide you through your personalized care program so you can plan your recovery as part of your planned surgery.

a lucky coincidence that the two coincided. If we had increased the rates, then come back and said, 'Whoops, we need to do all this capital work,' we would have had to come back again and ask for more money."

The improvements are necessary because the township needs more capacity for wastewater storage, he said. If capacity is overwhelmed, the system can overflow into basements or into the Rouge River. In 2001, about 1.6 million gallons of wastewater were discharged into the river to prevent backups into basements.

Peaks in the flows in the wastewater storage basin are driven largely by footing drains; drains that collect storm water run-off for approximately 10,000 homes in Canton which were built prior to 1980. In the last 25 years, homes have not been connected to footing drains, which dump storm water directly into the township's sanitary sewer, along with wastewater from all the homes connected to the sewer system. Now, homes are built with a sump pump and most communities are required to have adequate detention basins to store water until non-peak hours when the regional basins have enough capacity.

The alternative to adding capacity at the Lower Rouge basin would be to disconnect the footing drains from sanitary sewer lines, a process which would be very expensive and very disruptive, Faas said. The estimate is that it would cost about $6,000 per home to disconnect. With 10,000 homes, that adds up to $60 million," he said.

The disconnection process would not only be expensive, but inconvenient, and would involve going into the homes that are connected to the footing drains, and saw cutting through the basement floors before digging up the yards to install new pipe.

"It comes down to the numbers. We could continue to treat that storm water forever and a day, and still pay less than $60 million," Faas said.

The township board of trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Sept. 20 and 21 at the township administration offices to discuss the budget. The meetings are open to the public. On Tuesday night, the board will discuss budgets for township administration and public safety. On Wednesday night, leisure services and municipal services are on the agenda.

Madonna honors 4 of its faculty members

Selected by their peers for outstanding contributions to the teaching-learning environment, four faculty members received the 2005 Madonna University Faculty Excellence Awards at a conference on August 29.

"The Faculty Excellence Awards recognize professors who demonstrate a standard of professionalism that their colleagues admire and aspire to," said Ernest Nolan, vice president for academic administration. "The awards have a special meaning because they represent commendations from their peers."

Monika Kimball, associate professor of English as a Second Language, was selected for the Faculty Excellence Award for Teaching Effectiveness and Innovation. Kimball has been teaching at the university since 1991. "I accept this award with genuine humility," said Kimball, a South Lyon resident. "I thank God for this experience. Teaching at Madonna has gone beyond all my expectations."

The recipient of the Faculty Excellence Award for Service to the Community was Sharon Meldrum, a deaf assistant professor of Sign Language Studies (SLS). Meldrum has been teaching at Madonna University since 1976 and is a Livonia resident.

"It's an honor to receive this award," Meldrum said using American Sign Language. "I want to thank the SLS department and staff for their support and thank the deaf community. In the deaf community, MU is very well known - locally, nationally and internationally."

Boguslaw Gatarek, adjunct associate professor of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages, was recognized with the Adjunct Faculty Member Award. She has been teaching at the University since 2000 and resides in Etobicoke, Ontario, Canada.

The Faculty Award from Graduating Seniors went to Therese Jamison, associate professor of Nursing and a Farmington Hills resident. All graduating seniors were sent nomination forms and asked to identify faculty members who best personified the mission of Madonna University.

"It is an honor and privilege to receive this award from graduating seniors," said Jamison. "We have many blessings in our life - family, friends and professions. To be a nurse has greatly enriched my life. MU is another blessing."

Schoolcraft students raise money with beads

A coalition of student organizations, working through the Student Activities Office will use a famous New Orleans tradition to raise money to help victims of Hurricane Katrina. This is one of number of programs the college is initiating to help Katrina victims.

All donations will be passed on to relief agencies providing direct support to displaced individuals and families.

The 'One for One' campaign encourages each student and employee to give one dollar. Donors receive a string of Mardi Gras beads to wear as a means of promoting the campaign to others. Students are selling beads at locations throughout campus and at events, ranging from a soccer game to the School Daze welcome back activities Sept. 20-22.

Other activities are in the planning stages for October, November and beyond. Coats, hats and mittens will be collected to provide displaced families with the proper clothing for a northern winter. Efforts to collect non-perishable food items and personal care kits are also under discussion.

The residency status of students displaced from colleges in the Gulf Coast region is now in a state of flux. To address this issue, Schoolcraft is offering the resident tuition rate of $65 per credit hour to displaced students. Normally, out-of-state tuition is $143 per credit hour.

Although the fall semester opened Sept. 1, there are more than 100 courses that start in September or October.

Schoolcraft is also part of a statewide effort to open online courses for displaced students, and there are nearly 350 continuing education and professional development courses in the fall schedule, including many with start dates from September into December.

All student service departments are prepared to expedite the registration process to get displaced students into the classroom as soon as possible. And as always, there are no application or late registration fees at Schoolcraft College.

Global village images reveal problems deeper than water

Marshall McLuhan once wrote that electronic media was creating a "global village." In Understanding Media, he wrote, "Today, after more than a century of electric technology, we have extended our central nervous system in a global embrace, abolishing both space and time as far as our planet is concerned."

As the world watched over the last couple of weeks, the tragic story of the Gulf Coast confirmed how right McLuhan was. Day after day, we've watched poor people pleading from roof tops, slogging through chest-deep fetid waters, crowding into steamy convention halls and sprawling on steps waiting in fear and danger for food and buses that took forever to arrive. We watched small-town residents walking shell-shocked through the ruins of what had once been "home." Over the shoulders of posturing cable reporters, we could see the unbearable agony of people who had lost what little they had to lose.

We watched and we responded. Private charities have raised millions for relief. Thousands have volunteered their services, their schools, their homes to those whose lives have been changed forever by Hurricane Katrina and the flood left in its wake. Congress passed what will be the first of several emergency spending bills.

Yet, those images showed us how little we know and how little we care.

Long before Katrina sent waves crashing into its levees, New Orleans was a poor city. It was poor, black, crime-ridden, surrounded by white middle-class suburbs. When visitors went to the famous New Orleans, the Bourbon Street New Orleans, they were always warned not to wander too far from the French Quarter. New Orleans had the nation's highest murder rate last year.

It came as a shock when suddenly homeless residents took the opportunity to loot stores and young gangs fired on rescuers and committed heinous acts against fellow flood victims. It came as a shock that people didn't just get in their cars and get out of there. It came as a shock that New Orleans wasn't exactly the fun city that the tourist board had portrayed.

And when some evacuees were moved to Houston, former first lady Barbara Bush looked about and said, "What I'm hearing, which is sort of scary, is they all want to stay in Texas. Everyone is so overwhelmed by the hospitality. And so many of the people in the arena here, you know, were underprivileged anyway, so this is working very well for them."

How nice, and scary.

And some arch conservative Web sites, another connection in the global village, are saying Katrina is God's way of "purifying" America.

While we sat engrossed by the images from the

Perhaps in answer to this, the Republican leadership in the state legislature proposed easing Michigan's financial burden by shifting it on to the poor (maybe because there are so many more of them now).

Gulf Coast, on Aug. 30 the Census Bureau released a report showing that in 2004 Detroit was the poorest city in America with one-third of its residents living below the poverty line. The report also showed that child poverty in Michigan increased from 15 percent in 2003 to about 18 percent in 2004. But in Oakland County those living in poverty actually declined from 8 percent in 2003 to 5 percent in 2004, while in Wayne County it increased from 17 percent to 20 percent.

Perhaps in answer to this, the Republican leadership in the state legislature proposed easing Michigan's financial burden by shifting it on to the poor (maybe because there are so many more of them now). They proposed dropping families from welfare after four years, reducing the payment from the lavish $499 a month to $409 and cutting Medicaid benefits. They settled for a review of the Medicaid and welfare rolls to track down those who could be cut.

On Thursday President Bush gave a remarkable speech in which he conceded that, yes, all levels of government had failed in Katrina but that, "The system at every level of government was not well coordinated and was overwhelmed in the first few days. It is now clear that a challenge of this scale requires greater federal authority and a broader role for the armed forces. Americans have every right to expect a more effective response."

But it isn't just the destruction of New Orleans that we witnessed, but its ongoing suffering made visible. To that Bush acknowledged, "As all of us saw on television, there is also some deep, persistent poverty in this region as well. And that poverty has roots in a history of racial discrimination, which cut off generations from the opportunity of America."

"We have a duty to confront this poverty with bold action. So let us restore all that we have cherished from yesterday, and let us rise above the legacy of inequality."

It shouldn't take a storm to suggest that we need to address these same problems here in Michigan at the local, state, federal and personal level.

Affirmative action necessary, effective in advancing opportunity

Although the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of affirmative action and scholarly studies such as that by former Princeton President William Bowen and former Harvard President Derek Bok have shown the benefits of enrolling a diverse range of qualified students, opponents of the programs continue to make misleading arguments.

Even as universities in California and Florida report troubling declines in the number of African American, Latino and Native American students, UCLA law professor Richard Sander is attracting publicity with the argument that it is African Americans themselves – not whites – who are harmed by racially conscious admissions policies. His claims are neither new nor persuasive.

Sander asserts that affirmative action leads to African Americans attending law schools where they cannot compete. According to him, they either flunk out or drop out. Those who graduate aren't likely to pass the bar. He concludes that "a race-blind system" will produce more black lawyers – a goal he says he shares.

If law schools – and by extension other professional and graduate programs – were to adopt the system Sander advances, there is little doubt that these institutions would quickly become re-segregated. There would be schools that were virtually all white, with a handful of Asian Americans; there would be other schools that could boast a modest racial mix; and there also would be many African American students who would lose access to higher education. The top law schools, those that are the beginning of the pipeline to lucrative jobs with prestigious firms, powerful positions in the judiciary, as well as business opportunities and influential roles in academe, would be largely drained of African American students.

After a year that saw countless celebrations of the 50th anniversary of school desegregation, ordered in the profound case of Brown vs. Board of Education, such an outcome would be as ironic as tragic.

Leaders in higher education recognize that considering race as a factor in high-stakes decision making alters the composition of the classroom. Law schools, which enjoy an abundance of terrific applicants for every open seat, look at many criteria in determining how to best serve the myriad aspects of an academic mission. Without exception, law schools give substantial weight to the Law School Admissions Test and undergraduate grade point average.

Law schools, which enjoy an abundance of terrific applicants for every open seat, look at many criteria in determining how to best serve the myriad aspects of an academic mission.

That is only the beginning of the process, not the end. There are many other measures, such as background and life experiences, that have proven useful in predicting a student's drive, commitment, civic engagement and other traits vital to the success of lawyers and law schools.

Ignoring other factors, Sanders states there is a "powerful" correlation between LSAT/GPA and bar exam performance. Just as a statistical matter, aside from the policy implications, his analysis is flawed. According to the data he relies on, LSAT scores and GPA account for less than 10 percent of the disparity in bar exam results. In other words, he ignores the 90 percent of the difference that cannot be explained.

He also uses old data. His 2001 data suggest that without affirmative action, there would be a 14 percent decline in African American admittees. The 2002-03 data show that there would be a 35 to 45 percent decline and, incidentally, a 25 percent increase in white admittees.

Racial disparities have long existed and unfortunately continue to persist – for a complex range of reasons, including the vestiges of past discrimination. It isn't clear why anyone who, like Sander, insists he wishes to help African American students would want to abolish a proven means of doing so.

Writing for the majority of her colleagues, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor articulated a principle which since the civil rights movement Americans of all races have consistently said they believe in: "In order to cultivate a set of leaders with legitimacy in the eyes of the citizenry, it is necessary that the path of leadership be visibly open to talented and qualified individuals of every race and ethnicity."

Affirmative action is not only necessary but also effective.

Frank H. Wu of Canton is dean of Wayne State University Law School. He testified in the trial of the Grutter vs. Bollinger affirmative action case.

Sheriff, deputies return from mission to New Orleans

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

On Wednesday Wayne County Sheriff Warren Evans and a contingent of deputies arrived back in Westland after nearly two weeks of helping the Hurricane Katrina relief effort in New Orleans.

Evans' quick, and officially unauthorized, response to an SOS for help, won him favorable mention in last Sunday's New York Times but, more importantly, gave him a renewed respect for the officers under his command.

On Aug. 31, Sheriff Edmund M. Sexton of Tuscaloosa County, Ala., and president of the National Sheriffs' Association, sent out an alert asking for members to help.

"Like everyone, we'd been watching national media coverage and getting a good idea that it wasn't good," Evans said Friday.

Evans said he realized that the effort needed more than just added police presence. He began to organize a convoy to take needed supplies down to the Gulf Coast.

"We started the planning process and wanted to leave in 24 hours from the time we started and to call all the contacts we had to get the things we needed to go down there, the donations of water and toilet paper and all those essential items," he said.

The Teamsters Union supplied drivers and six tractor-trailers. Big Boy restaurants set up collection sites and the word went out for people to drop off items. Greater Grace Temple in Detroit was gathering items for its own mission to an Alabama church and joined the convoy. Steve Radden of Steve's Soul Food also joined with his restaurant on wheels as did an ambulance from Hart Medical and a big rig from Boulevard and Trumbull Towing. Walt Michaels RV supplied living quarters for the 33 deputies who volunteered to make the trip.

The deputies agreed to be paid for eight hours of straight time for the time they were there.

"Most would have gone with no pay," Evans said. "They were committed to do something."

Evans said he hopes to be reimbursed through the Federal Emergency Management Agency but is concerned that there might be a problem because he left without authorization from Gov. Jennifer Granholm.

"From my perspective we had a request from another police agency or group of police agencies," he said.

"When we were gearing up, we were in constant contact with them. We knew there would be some kind of coordination that would make sense. We started down based on that."

Evans said one of the problems in the slow response to the mounting flood was that government officials were afraid to act based on budget concerns.

"I think the sad things people need to review in this is that many conscious decisions to wait said, 'Human life, repayment?' I think when you peel back the layers I don't think anyone consciously said repayment was more important than human life. I think they got confused about what the hold up was all about," he said.

SURREAL CITY

After stops in Mobile, Ala., for Grace Temple and Baton Rouge, the deputies arrived at Gonzales, La., the staging area for New Orleans relief. Evans said everything seemed to be under control and well organized. His deputies were sworn in and immediately deployed to the ravaged city.

Their first job was to relieve tired and shell-shocked New Orleans police officers. There was still sniper fire which prohibited night patrols.

"National media did a good job of showing it, but what they couldn't show was the smell. It couldn't show the lack of infrastructure - no hospitals, no jails. When you ran into something you had to be ingenious," Evans said.

The flood waters actually helped mask the smell of bodies floating in the water. Emergency medical care had to be given on the spot.

"It was kind of surreal," Evans said.

The sheriff said bureaucracy was a major problem in responding to the disaster. Too many levels of government were waiting for somebody's authority.

"Regardless of what it is, if it needs first responders for immediacy, then people just have to go," he said. "That doesn't mean willy-nilly. There is an idea that we would go in like the Lone Ranger and say, 'We'll fix this, no I've been in this business too long, you coordinate, use the telephone, talk with officials and ask how we can help."

He said a system needs to be developed to identify first responders and then a second tier to handle the more complex follow up.

"Any police officer who wants to save lives can wade through water to get people out and on to higher ground. It's not rocket science," he said.

Evans did come away with a renewed respect for his own officers.

"The thing that stands out for me is that they were all excited to help," he said. "There was no sniping. They would give the shirts off their backs for New Orleans police officers. ... It's good for the department. They can say, 'I worked hard, I did the best I could. I was a credit to my community. I am extremely proud of the whole group.'"

The runners from Plymouth, Canton and Salem were still tightly grouped during the opening seconds of Thursday's 4th Annual City Meet held at Cass Benton Park in Northville. The field eventually spread out over the 5K course and the Rocks sprinted to their fourth consecutive title. The Chiefs finished second, just ahead of the Wildcats.

Salem retains city cross country title

BY ED WRIGHT

The Canton and Plymouth girls cross-country teams walked away from the first three City Meets feeling blue — Salem blue.

The fourth annual meet held on Thursday at Northville's Cass Benton Park was no exception as the Rocks won decisively on the rugged, hilly course.

Led by the 1-2-3 finish of Hannah Cavicchio, Allie Vraniak and Marisa Carpinelli, Salem compiled a scant 26 points. Canton notched second with 45 followed by Plymouth with 49.

"We were expected to win and we did what was needed to accomplish that," said Salem coach Dave Gerlach. "It helps when your top three runners finished one, two, three. We have a very big meet coming up Saturday in Holly, so our strategy today was to come out and do what was needed to get a victory. The girls kind of held back the first mile and then did whatever they needed to do after that."

"It was important for the seniors to win today because now they can say they finished first in the City Meet all four years of their high school careers."

Cavicchio's winning time was 19:39. Vraniak and Carpinelli actually tied for second with 20:35 clockings. Also figuring in the scoring for the Rocks were senior Allison Janda (eighth place in 21:07) and Kristen Dondzila (12th place in 21:35).

Highlighting Canton's second-place showing were a trio of freshmen: Sarah Thomas (fourth place in 20:45), Katy Galm (sixth place in 20:53) and Katelin David (ninth place in 21:19). Thomas's time was her personal best.

"Our freshmen really came up to bat for us today," said Canton coach Tracy Himmelsbach. "Sarah was our first finisher at our meet on Saturday, and apparently she liked it so much she decided to stay there."

Also scoring for the Chiefs were Becky McCormack (11th place in 21:31) and Jennifer Thomas (15th place in 21:43).

This was the first City Meet in which the Wildcats ran with four classes.

"I'm disappointed we didn't do better," said Plymouth coach Mary Kerwin. "In order to finish second, we needed every-

Canton's soccer team had one of those everybody-gets-to-play victories over Livonia Franklin Monday night.

It came close to becoming an everybody-gets-to-score win, too, as the Chiefs rolled to a 9-0 victory.

Canton is now 6-1-1 overall and 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division. The Patriots slipped to 1-7 and 1-1.

Canton striker Matt Kulczycki accounted for one-third of the Chiefs' offense by recording his first career hat trick. The junior lit up the scoreboard twice in the first half before netting Canton's fifth goal of the game three minutes into the second half.

"Matt was injured earlier in the year, so we're bringing him back slowly," said Canton coach George Tomasso. "He needed a game like this to get him rolling."

Joining the scoring parade for the Chiefs were Logan McGraw (two goals), Keith Campbell, Eric Wilt, Justin Biega and Matt Epelman, who found the net on a penalty kick. Jon Somereik hit the post with a kick mid-way through the second half.

Logan McGraw, Ben Krause, Kyle Gring and Wilt all notched assists for the winners.

"I thought we worked hard and we had some opportunities to score," said Franklin coach Victor Rodopoulos. "We lost 9-0, but we didn't play horrible. Canton's first three goals were well-deserved. After that, we just didn't mark very well."

Tomasso said he wasn't totally comfortable at halftime, even though his team had built a 4-0 advantage at the break.

"Franklin's team always plays with intensity; they never give up," Tomasso said.

How's this for a role reversal: One week after dominating possession of the ball and losing to Livonia Franklin, Plymouth's football team ran just a handful of offensive plays in the first half Friday night against Northville, but won going away, 41-3.

The victory improved the Wildcats' record to 3-1 (1-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division) heading into Friday night's key divisional showdown at unbeaten Walled Lake Western. Northville slipped to 1-3 and 1-1.

File this stat in the strange-but-true department: The Wildcats led 14-3 with 1:50 remaining in the first quarter even though their offense had been on the field for just three plays.

Plymouth's defense accounted for the game's first score when Taylor Fox drilled Mustang quarterback Michael DeLuca, who fumbled. Wildcat linebacker Jared Panyan scooped up the loose ball at the Northville 31 and raced untouched into the end zone one minute into the game. Jeff Lucco booted the extra point to make it 7-0.

After the Mustangs strung together an eight-play, 48-yard drive that was capped by a 22-yard Evan Carbell field goal, the Wildcats' special teams struck when Plymouth's Labrodic Caldwell returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards for a TD.

"It was nice to see the special teams and defense contribute like that," said Plymouth coach Jay Blaylock. "It shows that we have a complete team."

"Our offense was itching to get back onto the field in the first half. We didn't run many plays, but the way our defense played, we didn't have to."

With 5:59 left in the second quarter, Northville had run 30 offensive plays to Plymouth's three, yet trailed 14-3. Carbell nearly put a dent in the Wildcats' lead with six minutes to play in the half, but his 38-yard field goal sailed wide left.

Plymouth padded its lead on the final drive of the half when running back Anthony Green motored 24 yards to pay-dirt. Lucco's extra point made it 21-3 with 34 ticks left on the clock. Five plays before Green's scoring run, Plymouth quarter Brent Jones' 48-yard TD run was called back due to an illegal procedure penalty.

The Wildcats dominated the second half, scoring on their first three possessions. Nate Gholston bulled over from the two-yard line with 7:57 left in the third to make it 28-3. Six minutes later, Green plunged in from the one to put the hosts up 34-3.

The game's final tally came on back-up quarterback Jeff Harrison's three-yard keeper with 6:49 left in the game.

For the first time in his high school varsity career, Jones did not attempt a pass. However, he had a stellar game on the Salem student-athlete Ryan Rowe is a key contributor for the Rocks' football and soccer teams this fall. Rowe is a starting split end on the gridiron and a starting defender on the soccer field.

"Rush hour" starts at approximately 5 p.m. most fall weekdays for Salem football/soccer player Ryan Rowe.

That is the time Rowe rushes home after an energy-draining football practice, grabs a bite to eat, hits the couch for a 20-minute power nap, then rushes back to Salem for either a soccer practice or game.

Rowe is a rare breed in high school: a student-athlete who competes in two demanding fall sports at the same time.

"There have been a few soccer players who have kicked for us since I've coached here, but none of them have played regularly with the offense or

Salem sprints to City title

The Salem boys cross-country team successfully defended its City Meet title Thursday by out-running Plymouth and Canton at Cass Benton Park in Northville.

The Rocks finished with 26 points, 11 fewer than the Wildcats. The Chiefs earned 73 points.

All five Salem scorers finished in the top eight. Dan Kapadia led the way with a second-place finish in 17:14, six seconds behind overall winner Anthony Scaparo of Plymouth.

Salem's Jimmy Walsh finished third in 17:23 while Kevin DeBear (18:04) and Craig Cowing (18:09) finished seventh and eighth, respectively.

Canton's top runner was Trey Wolfe, who finished fifth in 17:42.

Plymouth's second runner to cross the finish line was Pat Slavens (fourth in 17:35).

"We had three guys run well and the rest didn't," said Plymouth coach Lee Shaw. "I was disappointed we didn't do better than we did. I was happy with Derek Lax, a first-year sophomore who I thought would be our seventh runner this year. He's stepped up and been in the top three. He ran great today in his first varsity meet."

Franklin defense sends Canton to 2nd setback

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin's resilient defense came off age Friday night in a hard-fought 13-7 football victory over visiting Canton.

The Patriots, despite three second-half turnovers, kept Canton's vaunted Wing-T offense out of the end zone and handed the Western Lakes preseason favorites their second straight division loss while improving to 4-0 overall.

"Our defense just played awesome," said Franklin coach Chris Kelbert, whose Patriots beat Canton for the first time since 1997. "They've taken the rap in the past for giving up too many points, but tonight they stepped up and did not let them score."

"This win is huge because Canton is the team everybody in the Western Lakes has to beat. And that's why Canton is always my preseason pick until somebody goes out beats them."

Canton's only TD came with 6:23 left when linebacker Jeff Piper came up with a loose ball and rambled 51 yards for a TD to cut the deficit to 13-7.

But Canton had trouble converting on its final five offensive possessions - all on fourth down situations - including a interception in the final minute by Dan Chynoweth near the goal line to seal the Patriots' win.

Franklin led 13-0 at halftime as quarterback Matt McCullough, who was 7-of-10 for 111 yards during the first half, scored on a 9-yard keeper with 4:53 left in the first quarter. (Franklin's first extra point was blocked by Andy Rossow.) The senior then hit tight end Jeremy Peer on a 2-yard scoring pass with just 17 seconds left in the half.

Canton's defense reasserted itself in the second half, limiting the Patriots to a pair of first downs.

The Chiefs seemed poised to score on their first possession of the second half, marching 57 yards in 11 plays, only to fumble the ball away at the Patriots' 2 as linebacker Phil Reske made the recovery.

Phil Muszynski made a key tackle on a fourth-and-one late in the third quarter to stymie a Canton drive at the Franklin 36.

Early in the fourth quarter, Canton quarterback Corey Nicoloff was sacked on fourth-and-3. And in the final minute, Franklin linebacker D.J. Tracy came up with another key sack on third-and-5.

"I feel like I'm a bad coach," said Canton coach Tim Baechler, whose team fell to 2-2 overall and 0-2 in the Western Division. "Our defense wasn't playing the first half and I don't know what to do about the fumbling."

"It was the same as last week (vs. Walled Lake Western, a 21-14 overtime loss) where we make stupid mistakes. It's been a few years since we've self-destructed like this."

Franklin kept Canton's speedy Deshon McClendon under wraps for the most part. The 5-foot-6, 170-pound senior had 106 yards on 17 carries, while sophomore Dalton Walser added 65 yards on 16 attempts.

"Our number one goal was to take away McClendon because we felt he could hurt us," Kelbert said. "He didn't get away from us. He's had a big TD run in every game so far and he didn't get that against us tonight."

The statistical battle was virtually even with Canton holding the edge in total offense, 226-218, and in first downs, 13-11.

"Our defense stepped it up," Kelbert said. "This is the group of kids John DiPonio (Franklin's JV coach) had and we kept those guys together last year for a reason. They're a very cohesive group and I'm pleased with the way they're working out."

Canton's starting quarterback, Shawn Little, a three-year starter, is expected to be back in the lineup next week against Wayne Memorial.

That should give the Chiefs a boost.

But it was the Chiefs' inability to cash in on three Franklin turnovers which left Baechler befuddled afterwards.

"They (Franklin's defense) guessed right a few times and they outplayed our defense the first half," the Canton coach said. "We have no excuses because right now we're not very good. We're inexperienced in a lot of spots coming into this year. But I still think this group can be good. It just has to learn how to play with some heart, and maybe we did that the second half."

ROWE

starts at split end on the gridiron and is a key member of the soccer team's defense.

"I have my practice and game schedules memorized," Rowe said, when asked if he has a chart that lists his crazier-than-hectic daily activities. "My mom has everything written down, though, just so she knows where I'm at every day."

Surprisingly, caffeine does not play a big role in Rowe's two-sport balancing act.

"I'll have a Mountain Dew every once in a while, but that's about it," he said.

SOCCER FIRST

When it comes to Rowe's list of athletic favorites, soccer tops the list. He started playing when he was 5 years old. Football didn't enter his life until just before his junior year at Salem when he decided to climb his family tree.

"My dad (Darrell) played for Salem's state championship football team in 1974, so I thought it would be cool if I could follow his football path in high school," Rowe said. "I would have tried it sooner than my junior year, but I didn't think they'd let me play both sports at the same time."

Salem soccer coach Ed McCarthy said Rowe's desire to-play football hasn't lessened his soccer production.

"I've had no complaints at all with it," McCarthy said. "I'm sure he's extremely tired at the end of the day, but it doesn't show when he's at practice or in games. He's a very aggressive player who tackles well. He also takes the majority of our free kicks in the defensive end."

CALORIE BURNER

The two-practice afternoons and four-games-a-week agenda have amped up Rowe's metabolism to such a level that it has created a slight problem.

NO REST FOR ROWE

Following is a typical, mid-week day for Salem two-sport standout Ryan Rowe, who competes for the Rocks' football and soccer teams:

- 7:15 a.m.-2:10 p.m. - attends classes;
- 2:10-2:45 - makes quick trip to Wendy's for post-school snack;
- 2:45-5:00 - football practice;
- 5:00-5:45 - heads home for dinner, 20-minute power nap;
- 5:45-6:00 - drives back to Salem;
- 6:00-8:00 - soccer practice;
- 8:00-10:00 - heads home to eat, do homework, spend time with family.
- 10:00-6:00 - sleeps.

"I want to gain weight, but I haven't been able to," Rowe said. "Ever since my freshman year, I've been between 145 and 155 pounds, which is a little light for football."

"The best thing about playing two sports at the same time is that I'm in great shape. I never get tired when I run sprints in practice."

Rowe takes the winter season off before diving into baseball in the spring. Gifted with dazzling speed, he served as the Salem baseball team's top pinch-runner in 2004. This year, he's a good bet to start in center-field.

Would he ever consider picking up track this spring and trying the two-sport thing again?

"If the track coach wanted me to try it I'd be all for it," he said. "It wouldn't be that hard because I'm already used to it."

Salem boys roll over Glenn, 7-2

Salem's boys soccer team humbled Westland John Glenn, 7-2, Wednesday night in a Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division showdown. The victory vaulted Salem's record to 7-2-1 overall, 3-0 in the WLAA and 3-0 in the division.

Salem coach Ed McCarthy thought his team under-achieved in the first half, which ended with the score knotted at 1-1.

"At halftime, I told the team I thought they could play much better," McCarthy said. "It was critical that we won this game because we have to win all of our division games if we want to make it to the conference finals. The boys came out much more motivated in the second half."

Steve Gallagher tallied the Rocks' lone first-half goal off an assist from Jake Bennett.

Salem's second-half scoring onslaught was led by Alex Lunley, who netted two goals. Bennett, Adam Brown, Kevin Cope and Dan McLaughlin all

The victory improved the Wildcats to 6-3-1 overall and 3-1 in the WLAA.

Jack Anleitner led Agape with two goals. Mark Mullett added the other.

Northern QB dazzles Rocks, 22-13

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

A few minutes after leading his team to a 22-13 victory over Salem Friday afternoon, Walled Lake Northern quarterback Ryan Sheridan still had a firm grip on the football he had used to frustrate the Rocks' defense.

Had the senior been awarded the game ball in honor of his 8-for-15 passing performance?

"No," Sheridan said, smiling. "I just haven't had a chance to put it in the bag yet."

Sheridan hadn't put the ball in the bag yet, but he was instrumental in helping the Knights bag their first-ever Western Lakes Activities Association victory. The 6-foot-3, 170-pound signal-caller kept Salem off balance all afternoon, piling up 103 yards through the air and 52 on the ground, including a clutch 40-yard run on third down and two short TD's.

The victory improved Northern to 1-3 overall and 1-1 in the WLAA. Salem dropped to 1-3 and 0-2.

"We've been confident before every game this year, including today," Sheridan said. "We finally put it all together today."

Despite the loss, the Rocks made strides since last week's 48-8 setback to Walled Lake Central, Salem coach Bob Cummings asserted.

"I was glad to see the kids came back today and played hard after not playing well the past couple of weeks," Cummings said. "I'm disappointed with the loss, but everybody was into the game. I thought (quarterback) Kevin Salem's Dominique Young sacks Walled Lake Northern quarterback Ryan Sheridan during the first quarter of Friday afternoon's Western Lakes Activities Association game. The Knights downed the Rocks, 22-13, for their first-ever WLAA victory.

Bradley had a nice game and (running back/receiver) Chris Sorensen played well."

Salem jumped out to a 7-0 lead when Sorensen sprinted 15 yards to the end zone on the final play of the first quarter. The TD was set up two plays earlier when Jon Wilson intercepted a Sheridan pass and returned it to the Northern 17-yard line. Jon Pomorski boot-ed the extra point.

The Knights responded to the adversity with a 12-play, 57-yard drive that was capped by Chris Faustyn's bruising seven-yard touchdown run through the heart of the Salem defense. The extra point was missed following a high snap, leaving Salem with a 7-6 advantage.

Northern grabbed its first lead of the afternoon six minutes into the third quarter when Robert Anderson's 39-yard field goal made it 9-7.

Thanks to a 54-yard keeper by Bradley, Salem marched to the Northern three-yard line on the ensuing drive, but came up empty when the Knights recovered a fumble on the 11.

On third-and-11 from the 10, Sheridan scrambled right, then dashed 40 yards to mid-field, setting the stage for his own one-yard TD dive three minutes later to put the Knights ahead, 16-7.

The Knights turned the lights out for good on Salem with 4:53 to play when Sheridan snuck the ball over again from one yard out to make it 22-7.

The Rocks' final score came on back-up quarterback Pomorski's six-yard TD pass to Sorensen with 1:53 left. Wilson recovered the ensuing on-side kick, but the Rocks were unable to score in the game's waning moments.

"This win is very important for this program because the kids are still learning how to win," said Northern coach Mike Fras. "This was big because it's our first league win and first win in the middle of the season."

"I was extremely proud of Jacob Caldwell today," Fras said, referring to the Knights' senior linebacker. "He had blood drained from his knee last week and he was in tremendous pain, but he did a great job today."

John Parvin was Northern's top ground-gainer, picking up 53 yards on 16 carries. Wide receiver Evan Jacobson had a big night, hauling in four Sheridan aerials for 49 yards.

Bradley carried the ball 15 times for 92 yards.

Pomorski sparked after replacing an injured Bradley in the fourth quarter, running for 31 yards on six carries and completing 3-of-9 passes for 36 yards.

Salem's Matt Kenison caught a pair of passes for 32 yards.

Jaguars derail Belleville gridders

Allen Park rolled to an 18-0 halftime lead and never looked back Friday night in its 38-7 victory at Belleville.

The Jaguars' defense proved to be almost as productive as its offense, recording a pair of first-half safeties to go along with two offensive TD's.

Belleville's lone score came on a 10-yard TD pass from Josh Lemons to Brandon Harris mid-way through the third quarter. Jacob D'onofrio booted the extra point.

Carlos Clark led the Tigers' ground attack with 19 yards on 10 carries. Waseem El Waadi picked up 16 yards on eight attempts. Lemons completed 3-of-8 passes for 34 yards.

Belleville's offense was limited to just 121 total yards and nine first downs.

ground, rushing 10 times for 100 yards.

Green pounded the Mustangs' defense for 96 yards on eight carries, Harrison finished with 59 yards on 10 rushes and Gholston racked up 47 on eight.

"We were running the ball so well that we decided to stay with it," Blaylock said, referring to the Wildcats' one-sided attack. "The O-line did a great job of coming off the ball and Jeff Harrison and Anthony Green both ran hard."

Dittrick Williams was the Mustangs' top producer, rushing for 52 yards on 22 carries. DeLuca completed 11-of-24 passes for 84 yards.

Plymouth outgained Northville, 309-125. The Wildcats' defense was led by Fox, Mike McIntosh, Caldwell and Nick Rosochacki, who intercepted a DeLuca pass at the three-yard line with 3:56 left in the third quarter.

"Walled Lake Western is a very good team with good over-all speed," Blaylock said, looking ahead to next week's game.

Sophomore sparks Salem victory

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Salem sophomore guard Alaya Mitchell had a coming-out party Thursday night.

Howell probably wishes it hadn't been invited.

Mitchell scored 13 points — including all nine of her team's fourth-quarter points — to lead the Rocks to a 39-36 road win. The triumph lifted Salem's pre-Western Lakes Activities Association record to 3-1. The Highlanders fell to 2-3.

While Mitchell paced the Rocks' backcourt, Teresa Coppellie ruled in the paint, finishing with 14 points and eight rebounds. Junior forward Lauren Kurtz also turned in a strong game, netting eight points and five boards. Mitchell did more than score, piling up four assists and three steals.

"Howell beat us in overtime the past two years, so this was a nice win for us," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "I knew they would play better than they played against Canton last week (the Chiefs won, 53-31, over the Highlanders), especially since it was in their gym. We did a nice job of controlling the game's tempo. They switched to a zone defense in the second half, but I thought we broke it down well."

The Highlanders led 16-12 after one quarter before Salem surged back to grab a 26-22 halftime lead. The Rocks led 30-27 with eight minutes to play. With the game knotted at 34-34 with one minute left, Mitchell hit one of two free throws. Following a Howell miss and a Salem rebound, Mitchell put Salem up, 37-34, when she connected on a short runner.

The Highlanders sank a pair of free throws, but Mitchell iced the win with a pair of her own.

Plymouth 31, Southgate Anderson 26: The Wildcats used a strong defensive effort to win their fourth game in five starts this season. Southgate Anderson dropped to 3-2.

"At halftime, we were ahead 14-6 and the girls were working extremely hard to score and defend," said Plymouth coach Richelle Reilly. "It was a very physical game, but the referees were letting them play. There weren't a lot of fouls called."

A pair of seniors — Kim Olech and Jeanine Moise — led the Wildcats with double-doubles. Olech netted 12 points and 10 rebounds while Moise chipped in with 10 points and 10 boards. The Titans were paced by sophomore forward Lindsey Potier, who poured in 11 points.

Plymouth extended its eight-point halftime advantage to 28-13 after three quarters. Anderson mounted a semi-comeback over the final eight minutes, outscoring its hosts 13-5.

"This was a real nice team win for us," Reilly said. "All nine girls who played gave us great minutes."

Reilly noted Val Klemmer, Amber Davis and Chelsea Quinlan as players who performed well in a reserve role.

Both teams struggled at the free-throw line. Plymouth hit 4-of-12 shots while the Titans were 0-for-4.

Flint Northern 52, Canton 39: The Chiefs (3-2) dropped their second game of the week to a state-ranked opponent. On Tuesday, the Chiefs fell to powerful Birmingham Marian, 39-37.

"We tried to run with Flint Northern after the first quarter, which is something you can't do against them," said Canton coach Brian Samulski. "They're too quick and too athletic. If you don't have numbers on the break, you have to slow it down and move the ball around until you get an open shot. We didn't do that very well after the first quarter."

Senior forward Lisa Ealy paced the Chiefs with 17 points and 11 rebounds.

Junior forward Ja'nee Morton twined 10.

Takeya Fortner netted a team-high 16 points for the Vikings, who improved to 4-1.

Canton led 13-10 after the first quarter, but trailed at the half, 25-20.

"We were only down 36-31 after three quarters, but we stopped moving the ball and we tried to run too much," Samulski reiterated. "In Marian and Flint Northern, we played two of the top teams in the state this week, which will only help our kids down the road when playoff time rolls around."

The Chiefs travel to Ann Arbor Pioneer Tuesday before hosting cross-campus rival Salem on Thursday. Tip-off is set for 7 p.m.

Defining mental health

Several years ago I was asked to consult with a company called Psychodynamic Research, Inc.

They were developing a special battery of interviews and tests to assess upper level management positions being considered for executive promotions in a large newspaper company. They were looking for indications of mental health, not mental illness. When I asked, "Well, just what is mental health?" the other researchers answered, "Well, it's the absence of mental illness."

More recently one of my readers pointed out that the articles in the "Our Mental Health" column are very helpful in learning about the many variations which mental illness can take. He had read the papers on depression and anxiety disorders, posttraumatic stress disorder, learning disabilities, traumatic brain injury, and so forth.

He said, "If your column was to have an article on 'mental health', what would you write about?" I answered, "I'd only be able to say it's the absence of mental illness."

But after reflecting I came to the conclusion that there is much more to it. After all, physical health is more than the absence of disease and injury. It requires maintenance and safe keeping through good living and prevention. So too with mental health. It requires mental hygiene, psychological mindfulness, and prevention strategies.

Dr. Sigmund Freud was the first to be asked to define mental health. His answer was, "To do well in the world of work and love." Dr. Carl Menninger, founder of the Menninger Institute, has written the following in defining mental health: the ability to deal with reality, the capacity to adapt to change, the capacity to find more satisfaction in giving than receiving, the capacity to relate to other people consistently, and the capacity to love.

Furthermore, experts at John Hopkins Medical School of Psychiatry point out the following mental health "ingredients": reduced stress with techniques such as meditation and exercise, challenge your mind by learning new skills, and cultivate satisfying relationships.

The concept of "resilience" is being talked about more in the mental health field. According to the Psychological Association, resilience is described as the process of adapting well in the face of tragedy, health crises, and problems in the work place and at home. Resilience means, "Bouncing back from difficult experiences."

A healthy ability to endure and overcome and learn from tragedy builds resilience – and scar tissue is said to be the strongest type: physically and emotionally.

Steps one can take to build resilience include: accepting change as a part of living, nurturing a positive view of yourself, and taking care of yourself physically – a healthy body can only enhance health of the mind.

I think that Dr. Freud originally hit the nail on the head. But we can add to his conclusion by considering what others since him have said. For now, the position will be taken that mental health means to be relatively successful in the worlds of love, work, recreation, spirituality, resiliency, and, to enjoy the journey.

Leonard J. McCulloch is a Diplomate of The American Psychotherapy Association. He can be reached at (248) 474-2763, Ext. 22.

Bryan Stapp is lead guitarist with The Loaners. Here he performs a solo in the regional competition of Fortune Magazine's Battle of the Corporate Bands in Columbus, Ohio.

Banking on Rock

Corporate band finalist in competition

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Lead guitarist Bryan Stapp knew from the first band practice eight months ago that he'd hooked up with some of the finest musicians around. Stapp together with Brian Macias on lead vocals and rhythm guitar, Brian Jeffery on drums, and Eric Rowland, bass, definitely rock – and they're not the only ones that think so.

In mid-July, The Loaners took the top spot in the FORTUNE Battle of the Corporate Bands regionals in Columbus, Ohio, and plan to sweep the finals Oct. 8, at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum in Cleveland.

They're not quite ready to quit their day jobs at Quicken Loans and Rock Financial in Livonia, but who knows what the future holds for the band. All have played instruments from an early age but were more intent on climbing the corporate ladder in recent years. Stapp picked up the guitar to play Rolling Stones and Chuck Berry songs in seventh grade while living in Costa Rica. Today the 43-year-old Northville resident is chief marketing officer for the finance company. Over the past 25 years, he's collected 11 guitars including his favorite Fender Telecaster.

Book captures Detroit's rocking past

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Kick out the jams, brothers and sisters!

With that raucous battle cry (sanitized here as it was on AM radio), the MC5 ignited a psychedelic rock revolution — in Detroit.

Talk about Detroit popular music in the 1960s and most people immediately think Motown, Berry Gordy's highly successful rhythm and blues factory.

"But if you were into rock music, you think about Bob Seger, the MC5, the Amboy Dukes," author David Carson said.

Carson celebrates that other Detroit sound in his new book Grit, Noise and Revolution: The Birth of Detroit Rock 'n' Roll (University of Michigan Press, $28.95).

"Most stories about Detroit music are focused on Motown," he said. "You can't ignore the importance of Motown, but there was music before and during Motown, but it's never been chronicled except in isolated stories."

Carson's book sets things right with a story that will jump-start the memories of baby boomers and give younger readers an appreciation for a Detroit rock scene in the 1960s that was as vital as any in the world.

Carson will be signing copies of his book 2-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24, at the Barnes & Noble Bookstore, Haggerty and Six Mile, Northville.

Carson, who now lives in Tennessee, was born in Detroit and raised in Royal Oak. He graduated from Dondero in 1967.

"I guess, like a lot of teenagers, I played in a small band, basement band," he said. "We played at weddings and parties for five bucks."

Carson was also a teenage radio enthusiast who spun an eclectic program of records on a low wattage public station. Carson's first book, Rockin' Down the Dial: The Detroit Sound of Radio, grew out of his love for Detroit's rock disc jockeys beginning in the late 1940s with Ed McKenzie, Jack the Bellboy on WJBK.

ROCK AND RHYTHM

Grit also begins in the late 1940s with John Lee Hooker, whose inimitable booming bass sound on Boogie Chillen ushered Detroit into the rock and roll era. It wasn't long before ringing guitars and banging drums were beginning to create Detroit's early rock 'n' roll stars — rockabilly singer Jack Scott, falsetto maestro Del Shannon, the original twister Hank Ballard and several doo-wop groups, including the Author offers some tips for teen boys

One Hundred Things Guys Need to Know by Bill Zimmerman (Free Spirit, $13.95, 2005) for boys ages 9-13 - this book is truly a gift. It is comic strip format with lots of boxes and easy reading, yet packed with well-researched advice. Many references I use in my work are included. I am not sure anyone who has not developed a serious book about or for teens appreciates the work that goes into evaluating and locating supplementary references. Buy this book for your teen and buy one for his school library.

Here, with Zimmerman's permission, are tips to help your son.

1. Every boy needs to have some basic things he believes in, or his key operating principles. These can be things like believing in yourself, not giving up easily when problems occur, or treating others the way you want to be respected. These will keep you steady when life throws you some curves.

2. You're not alone. Look around you. No matter whether other boys are short or tall, athletic or brainy, funny or quiet, they all have thoughts, feelings, and worries just like you.

3. You have more power than you think, and often that power comes in the form of helping others.

4. Stop worrying about whether you're "macho" or manly enough. The strongest guys are always the ones who think for themselves and treat everyone with respect. The only big muscle you really need is a good heart.

5. The reason pencils have erasers is that no one does everything right the first time. When you're learning something new, be patient with yourself.

6. Ask for help when you have a problem. There's nothing wrong with admitting you don't have all the answers. There is someone who can help you; a parent, a relative, a teacher or some other trusted adult.

Teens in 2005

7. Don't bottle up your feelings all the time, it will only create too much pressure inside you. Crying is something all people do; it means you're human.

8. Believe in yourself: Everyone will have bad days. And that's the time to try to remember the good things in your life and what you have accomplished. Keep a list of them. This will give you courage and perspective.

9. You're special. There never has been, and never will be, anyone on earth exactly like you. You bring something to the world that nobody else has.

10. Part of getting older is learning to make good decisions. This includes choosing with whom you want to spend time. Don't give in to group pressure. Hang out with friends who like the true you.

11. Be yourself. Maybe you're someone who likes to spend a lot of time hanging out with big groups, or maybe you're more quiet or shy and prefer spending a lot of time on your own.

12. Be your own hero. Think of all the problems you've fixed and overcome. Think of the friends and family you have helped. When tough times call you have the skills and courage to take on the challenge.

Ask your son to put this column in his backpack or wallet.

together live a little, so we decided to put a band together and enter," said Bryan Stapp, who's originally from New Jersey.

WINNING SOUNDS

So far, The Loaners beat out 34 of the 42 corporate bands who entered Fortune magazine's fifth annual competition by sending a CD of songs. Of the 42, 18 originally were selected to perform live at three regional battles in New York, Ohio and Los Angeles. The first- and second-place winners along with an Australian band and another of the judges choosing compete on Oct. 8.

In addition to opening for the Black Eyed Peas at Rock Financial's 20th anniversary celebration at Quicken Loans Arena in Cleveland and playing a benefit at the Royal Oak Music Theatre for the Darren McCarty Cancer Foundation, fans had a chance to hear The Loaners on Sept. 8 at Champns in Livonia.

The band decided to make the show a fund-raiser and ended up with $1,400 to send to the American Red Cross for Hurricane Katrina survivors. The competition is also a benefit with the $7,500 in entry and finalist fees from each band going to support music education programs at the Hall of Fame where more than 20,000 schoolchildren a year learn about the role rock played in 20th century culture. Rock Financial paid for the fees and to bus 200 employees to cheer on the band Oct. 8.

"We're planning to have a lot of fun," said Stapp. "We're going to bring a couple hundred people on buses. These are our hard core friends and fans. The company supports the band doing this and the employees going down and that's why it's a great place to work."

Macias never dreamed the band would come this far even though he's been rocking for years. The 27-year-old Berkley resident performed regularly at the Coffee Express in Livonia while going to Farmington High School. Macias had played cornet and then French horn Drummer Brian Jeffery of Canton performs with The Loaners. The corporate band competes against seven other finalists on Oct. 8 at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland, Ohio.

People don't see us coming. They think these are some corporate rockers who show up in lockers and we come out and rock. We're a tight, solid band and we rock for working stiffs.

Brian Macias
director of banker training, Quicken Loans and Tock Financial through eighth grade at Gill Elementary but switched to guitar after receiving one as a gift. Over the years, he played James Taylor, Cat Stevens, Bon Jovi and White Snake music on solo acoustic guitar at Dick O'Dow's in Birmingham, Sean O'Callaghan's in Plymouth and Bamboozle's in Farmington Hills.

His favorite band is Bon Jovi, and, of course, the Rolling Stones. On Monday, he and Stapp had a chance to meet their idols. It was one of the perks of their day jobs. A marketing vendor knew of the national radio interview the English rockers were doing and invited them along.

'WE ROCK'

"I've always loved music and was a huge fan of Poison," said Macias, director of banker training for the finance company. "The cool thing about our band is we're a real band. People don't see us coming. They think these are some corporate rockers who show up in Dockers and we come out and rock. We're a tight, solid band and we rock for working stiffs."

Their tight sound doesn't come easy though. At least once a week they spend hours practicing music by the Black Crowes, Rolling Stones, Lynyrd Skynyrd, Tom Petty, Grand Funk Railroad, and AC/DC in Brian Jeffery's Canton basement. Jeffery gave up playing drums after graduating from Wayne Memorial High School but didn't hesitate to pick up his sticks when Stapp told him about the competition.

"Everything is a rush right now," said Brian Jeffery, a 43-year-old executive mortgage banker at the company. "What's cool is we all have real jobs. On stage everybody jumps around and goes crazy, but it's very draining. We put some blood, sweat and tears into this."

Eric Rowland firmly believes all of the work will pay off on Oct. 8 when the winner receives the honor of having their name posted for one year in the Hall of Fame along with being featured in a special section of Fortune Magazine's Dec. 12 issue. Rowland, who's been playing bass since 1989, is an underwriter for the company. He began learning piano at age 5 and played with groups, including rock groups, throughout high school and economics studies at Wayne State University.

Later, he played electric acoustic bass with the Dearborn Big Band.

"There's no way that we're walking out of Cleveland without winning," said Rowland, 30 of Dearborn. "There's no saying where we can go or how high."

BOOK

Larados and Livonia's own Reflections (Just Like Romeo and Juliet).

But it was Motown that gave Detroit its first national identity. Carson devotes a chapter to Motown, more to acknowledge the setting for that other Detroit sound, a blend of rock and rhythm and blues beginning with entertainers like Jamie Coe and the Gigolos.

"He was loaded with talent," Carson said of Coe. "At the time he came along, he could swing like Bobby Darin or Sinatra, but he could also rock."

He was the first Detroit band that was successful with the over 21 bar scene."

Coe had several local hits, but he could never break out of the Midwest. Bad record distribution and poor management decisions left Coe behind to operate several local restaurants.

The first breakout act was Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels.

"This was the band that changed things," Carson said. "Originally as Billy Lee and the Rivas, they were the first band to click. They signed with Bob Crewe. They were the first band to have big hits with Jenny Take a Ride, Devil With A Blue Dress. There was that heavy rhythm and blues influence in their rock and roll."

Ryder was a charismatic, handsome rock star backed by a dynamite band with innovative lead guitarist Jim McCarty. Carson quotes someone as saying they might have become an American Rolling Stones. But manager Bob Crewe, who had made stars of the New Jersey band the Four Seasons, began separating Ryder from his band.

"He wanted to make Mitch a nightclub star," Carson said. "That was the mindset that Crewe had. He broke the band up."

Ryder never achieved the same kind of success again. It is a story that repeats itself for bands like Grand Funk Railroad, the Rationals, the Frost, Frigid Pink and SRC, each with varying degrees of success.

BARNUM OF THE REVOLUTION

But Carson's book is most interesting in describing the rock scene that revolved around Detroit's "Hippie King," John Sinclair. It was Sinclair, a revolutionary with a taste for marijuana, beat poetry and modern jazz, who took over management of the hard-rocking MC5.

"The MC5 was the quintessential Detroit band, rhythm and blues-influenced rock and roll," Carson said. "They were part of the late '60s, but also a tribute to the past. When you put a wild band like that up there, Sinclair was the P.T. Barnum of the revolution."

And an entrepreneurial Dearborn teacher provided the perfect venue.

When Russ Gibb returned from a visit to San Francisco and the Fillmore Auditorium, he wanted to start a similar club in Detroit. When he needed talent, he was told he had to talk with Sinclair.

The MC5 became the house band at the Grande Ballroom, which became the place to be for young Detroiters and the best local and national bands.

"He (Russ Gibb) moved everything up a notch," Carson said.

In addition to operating the Grande, Gibb also became a radio celebrity on WKMR-FM, a rival to Detroit's first underground station WABX. As Uncle Russ, he dissected the clues in the "Paul McCartney is dead" riddle. Carson tells some lively stories about Detroit's rock magazine Creem, hard rocker Ted Nugent, flamboyant Alice Cooper, sock hops and head shops, Plum Street and the Fifth Estate. The book includes an excellent gallery of photos that capture the shifting look of popular music from the early '50s to 1972, Detroit style.

Italian American club to celebrate heritage on Oct. 9

Dinner dance marks roots

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Although Angela Centi was only 6 when her family immigrated to America, she never forgot her roots. Her involvement with the Italian American Club of Livonia keeps alive the music, language, food, and traditions throughout the year but especially at the Columbus Day Dinner Dance to be held Sunday, Oct. 9.

Festivities for the 28th annual gala celebration begin at 4 p.m. with hors d'oeuvres followed at 5 p.m. by a family-style dinner that includes wines, beer, cappuccino, and espresso. At 7 p.m. The Gaylords entertain with jokes, stories and songs about ethnic America. Fantasia, a six piece band, provides dance music at the club and banquet center, 39200 Five Mile.

The cost is $65 per person. Seating is limited. For information and reservations, call Centi at (248) 477-9693 or send e-mail to columbus-day@msn.com.

Livonia Mayor Jack Engebretson kicks off the celebration by proclaiming Italian Week and raising the Italian flag at 9 a.m. Monday, Oct. 3, at Livonia City Hall.

"Our heritage and roots help define who we are," said Angela Centi, the Livonia resident who co-chairs the event with Vicki Paglione and the help of the Cultural Committee. "Oct. 10 is the 512th anniversary of discovery by Christopher Columbus of America. Columbus Day is a holiday that reminds us of the spirit and courage of the immigrants who dared to venture from the old world to the new world. They were confronted with a foreign language and different customs. My parents had few possessions. My father worked for the railroad during the day and as a janitor at night, my mother at a pizza restaurant.

"But it's not just Italian

Livonia Mayor Jack Engebretson kicks off the celebration by proclaiming Italian Week and raising the Italian flag at 9 a.m. Monday, Oct. 3, at Livonia City Hall.

American immigrants we're remembering. It is the Irish, Asian, African American, all who came for the sake of finding a better life for themselves and their families. All are invited. This is a celebration that invites all Americans, all ethnicities."

One of the special guests will be Mario Galasso who is being honored by the club as the 2005 Outstanding Italian of the Year. A founding member, Galasso continues to put his artisan skills to work at the building which was completed 11 years ago. Galasso was an employee at Crudo Brothers Cabinet Shop for more than 31-years until starting his own business. Although retired, he's at the club nearly every day refurbishing the bar so a pizza oven can be installed.

"I feel that I'm very involved with the club and very proud of the Italian American Club," said Mario Galasso, a 32 year resident of Livonia before building and finishing his dream home in Northville 12 years ago. "It helps maintain culture and traditions. I go there to speak the Italian language, play bocce ball and other Italian games and socialize with people we know. I like talking Italian."

Galasso learned Italian in the town where he was born in 1931 - Colle Sannita in the Province of Benevento. After arriving in America by boat in 1949, he felt alone because he didn't speak English but eventually met a group of young Italian men at a sweet shop on the northeast side of Detroit. When the Italian American Club of Livonia started in 1977, he quickly made Wednesday his club night. Over the years he's done a lot of work for the Italian American Club. His artisan touches can be seen everywhere from the vanities in the bathrooms to the oak wainscot and large map of Italy enjoyed by club members.

"It's our home away from home," said Galasso's wife Mary.

"Many of our friends are envious because we always have someplace to go. The culture is important and Mario wants to preserve it. My mom was from England, dad from Germany, but I'm mainly Italian now because of our kids. It's such a rich heritage, the music, the warmth of the people."

Try raisins for dental health

Cheryl from Saline e-mails asking for a natural way to promote better dental health. Cheryl, it turns out those dancing raisins should have been wearing dental jackets. Raisins sometimes stick to your teeth but in this case, that could very well be a good thing!

A new study shows that raisins are rich in phyto-chemicals. They're essentially natural antioxidants found in plants that can help promote dental health. The study finds five essential phyto-chemicals in raisins that could help fight cavities.

One word of caution, the study was conducted by the California Raisin Marketing Board. However, dental groups have yet to come out against the research. It's a good bet that there are positive benefits associated with raisins, so enjoy!

Michelle from Farmington Hills e-mails that she and her husband are thinking of installing a new home gym. She wants to know the potential pluses and minuses.

Michelle, you might be surprised how many times I'm asked that question. Today's young families and baby boomers are putting in more home gyms than ever before! They often include state of the art equipment like elliptical trainers and treadmills. Most also have free weights or machines. The upside of home gyms is that they cut down on travel time and wait time for equipment at traditional gyms. Also, if the price of gas keeps soaring, they could save you additional money over the long haul. Some of the downsides however include distractions such as children and telephones. You also lose the socialization factor and sometimes the motivation to work out intensely. And remember, there are no personal trainers in home gyms unless you hire them.

The bottom line is you have to factor in whether or not the benefits of a home gym justify the expense. Just be sure to buy good, user-friendly equipment. ### Parents take time out for yoga

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Randi Schreiber found yoga so relaxing to do with her infant twins that two years later the Farmington Hills mother signed up for a class with Beverly Price at Congregation Beth Shalom in Oak Park.

Even though the session is called Yoga for Mom and Baby, a father could benefit as well from learning poses to de-stress and bond with children. In addition to quieting parents, yoga calms babies and in older children encourages development of healthy habits, confidence and creativity.

"I've done yoga even when pregnant," said Randi Schreiber. "It's good to start young because kids are such sponges and it's a good learning experience. When they were babies they just laid there, but did great. They really enjoyed it as I did different stretches with them."

Price's classes follow the teachings of Helen Garabedian's book Itsy Bitsy Yoga which includes more than 75 poses and techniques for babies from three weeks to 24 months. Two one-time sessions are scheduled 10:30-11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 21, (for 6-12 months) and 10:30-11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28 (13-30 months). The cost is $25.

'FUSSY TIMES'

"There are always fussy times babies and toddlers go through. You can help them to go through those times with less stress," said Beverly Price, a yoga teacher and registered dietitian with offices in Bingham Farms and Royal Oak. "Studies have shown for babies it improved sleep, digestive health. Because a lot of babies are born with reflux this is more of a natural solution than medication." For the class, parents are learning to hold and play with them, cuddle and relax them at the same time. For toddlers learning to crawl and walk, yoga is refining their motor skills. There are some natural things they do that actually mimics yoga moves, a down dog or they lie on their stomach and grab their legs. Sometimes we use animal names for poses to make it fun and interesting."

Parents like Schreiber have found the one-time classes so enjoyable that Price is adding a six-session series beginning Wednesday, Nov. 2. Times are 11:15 a.m. to noon for infant to pre-crawling, 10:30-11:15 a.m. for crawling to 24 months. The cost is $120 per parent (mom or dad) and child.

"It's an opportunity for moms to meet. Often friendships start at babyhood," said Price. "I'm going to incorporate the nutrition component. Moms always have questions about what to feed my child as a snack. Our bodies crave nutrients. There are so many nutrients involved in the growth process."

PLACE TO LEARN

Healthy nutrition and the value of organic foods are two of the topics Schreiber covers in Brunch, Bunch and Babies, an eight-week infant massage class beginning 10-11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 19. Afterward, moms gather for bagels and conversation. The cost is $60 members, $75 non-members.

Mom Sally Gaft and Rachael Chava-Gaft do the up dog pose.

learn, said Susan Gartenberg, director of Gan Shalom and a Bloomfield Hills resident. Gartenberg taught preschool for many years after receiving an undergraduate degree in special education and master's in educational psychology.

"I'm excited about the program including parent-tot classes to learn socialization and exploration with a parent."

In Schreiber's classes parents learn about the stages of child development in addition to baby signing. Schreiber taught her twins, Joshua and Hannah, to sign at 7 months and 9 months, respectively, to stimulate language processing in the brain so they could speak sooner.

Formerly a physician assistant in pediatrics at St. Jude Research Hospital in Tennessee, Schreiber was trained in baby massage.

"The age you start is during the first hours of their life, but you need to know how to do it. You don't want to do it too rough or soft," said Schreiber.

"Infant massage not only strengthens the bond but also gives a form of relaxation to babies including those who have colic. There's less pain from colic when relaxed."

"Massage does make a happier baby. It releases endorphins and relieves the distress of teething, emotional stress such as when they're first born, the major stress from coming through the birth canal."

There are other benefits of infant massage as well.

"Skin stimulation speeds brain-body communication," said Schreiber. "It strengthens the immune system, improves sensory awareness, helps parents become more relaxed with baby, and provides a quality time for parent and baby. It's a great way for a father to become intimate with baby."

DOCTOR'S AN ADVOCATE

Dr. Bruce Eisenberg recommends yoga to patients at least six times a week at his office in Bingham Farms. The West

Mom Randi Schreiber with Hannah and Joshua pose with the help of Beverly Price.

Bloomfield resident's been practicing yoga nearly every day for the last year. Eisenberg worked out for 20 years to control weight and improve cardiovascular fitness before switching to yoga.

"I'm very much into preventive medicine. I just turned 50 this year so I'm starting to see that second generation. My patients are turning old enough to have their children have children," said Eisenberg, an internist on staff at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak and Huron Valley Hospital in Commerce. "When I was a kid, I used to play baseball and hockey. In college I was a jogger. Later, we built an exercise and play room in our home. The step aerobic classes were getting rough on my joints. I'm an avid golfer so winter time was void."

Then Price suggested Eisenberg try yoga. He's been going to The Yoga Shelter in West Bloomfield nearly every day since.

"With yoga you get into an environment with people and the classroom becomes community," said Eisenberg. "Many times your eyes are closed. You are transformed from your daily life, traffic jams, all the headaches of life stop."

"I now have my kids and wife doing it. There's a bonding. If you can involve other family members especially at a young age, it's just soothing and calming."

Yoga helped to lower Eisenberg's cholesterol. After 20 years of seeing patients with self-destructive behaviors like overeating, drinking and smoking, Eisenberg doesn't hesitate to pass out prescriptions for yoga to help control hypertension, diabetes, depression and anxiety.

"Yoga teaches self-respect so you're less likely to binge eat," said Eisenberg. "There's no question it will lower blood pressure and provide good weight control."

Price offers a seven-week series, Reconnect with Food, for people with food, body image and weight issues, and in January begins Yoga, Diet and Transformation Process on food and behavior addictions and creating healthy eating habits for life instead of dieting.

USING STEROIDS IN ARTHRITIS

In treating joint and muscle conditions, steroids play an integral role. Because of the abuse of steroids by athletes, and the exposure of racing patient medicines with cortisone, this type of medication often carries a connotation of being dangerous for long term use and carrying a heavy hazard even if taken for a short time.

This reputation for cortisone contains a grain of truth, but for the most part is wrong. The attitude toward steroids is more harmful than the risks that accompany the medication.

Steroids are excellent anti-inflammatory drugs. When correctly used, they cannot be equaled by any substitute therapy. A part of nearly every physician's training focuses on the indications for steroids, their proper dosage, and when to stop their use.

You should also know that steroids come in oral and injectable forms. Concern about cortisone needs to be greater when you are taking steroids by mouth. In this form the medicine reaches the whole body and can cause side effects that affect the eyes, lungs, stomach and skin. However, steroids by injection do not have this effect as injectable steroids are formulated to act locally in joints, tendons or muscles.

Furthermore, injectable forms, if used again, usually follow a pattern of months between injections. Such a length between injections means that even traces of previous steroids are long out of the body, making a cumulative effect impossible.

Steroid use in arthritis is safe and physician experience in its use is long. Fear of long term harm is unwarranted.

Eye institute offers latest technology

Dr. Daniel Haddad of the Laser Eye Institute of Troy is now offering FDA-approved Iris Registration Technology as a part of the VISX CustomVue™ wavefront-guided laser vision correction procedure. VISX Iris Registration Technology is a non-contact method of aligning the treatment to the cornea that provides greater laser alignment accuracy. Accurate alignment is essential to optimizing customized wavefront-guided ablations. The technology replaces methods of attaining alignment which required the physician to manually place ink marks on the white part of the eye called the sclera.

"Unlike manual, ink-based alignment methods, Iris Registration Technology is not time sensitive," said Haddad. "This allows me to re-register alignment even if the treatment has been paused or the eye has moved."

It's normal for the pupil to shift position from the point of wavefront measurement to the point of treatment. When the CustomVue™ procedure is performed, Iris Registration Technology centers the treatment correctly, independent of changes in the pupil center from measurement to the treatment. One set of measurements are taken with the patient seated at the WaveScan® System, and another set taken with the patient lying down on the laser bed. Then, the technology employs the iris registration process to ensure accurate treatment placement.

Recently, the FDA approved the CustomVue procedure as the first wavefront-guided treatment for myopia, hyperopia, and mixed astigmatism.

The Laser Eye Institute began offering CustomVue LASIK in May 2003. Haddad has been performing vision correction since 1990. He has performed approximately 17,000 vision correction procedures. The Laser Eye Institute is at 355 E. Big Beaver in Troy.

Overcoming the homework hurdles with your kids

Homework time can be far from fun for parents. Frustration seems to creep in when things don't go smoothly. What is a parent to do?

Laurie has a common complaint. When her son asks for help with math, he ends up saying, "Your not doing it right. That's not the way my teacher does it." Laurie gets mad. She says, "I have a Ph.D. in engineering. I know how to do fifth grade math. Don't tell me that I'm doing it wrong!"

Robert helps his 10-year-old step son, Alex, with homework. Many nights, it comes to a screeching halt because of the same old pattern. Robert explains. Alex doesn't understand. Robert gets that tone in his voice. Alex gets nervous and makes mistakes. Robert's temper flares. Alex cries. Mom rushes in to save her son from his "mean" step dad.

Rita's first born gave her no trouble with homework. He followed her around the house begging for another round of flash cards because he loved learning the times tables. Her daughter on the other hand, doesn't want to do her homework. Every night, Rita gets knots in her stomach, coaxing her daughter to finish it up.

On Parenting

As frustrating as it is for parents, imagine what it feels like to be the kid on the receiving end of that frustration. Cliff shares this memory, "Before we knew I had a reading disability, my dad would get furious with me when I couldn't learn my spelling words. One night, every time he got to the word, 'if,' on my spelling list, I went blank. I couldn't remember how to spell it. My dad blew up. He said, 'How stupid can you be, that you can't even spell the word, 'if?'" I walked away feeling like the biggest loser in the world."

A high school counselor told me, "When kids struggle with schoolwork, it's common to see parents get upset and pull away their support and affection. That just makes their problems get worse. Every now and then I spot those special parents who understand that when kids struggle academically, they need a soft place to land. They need someone who will believe in their ability to pull it together in the long run. They need a parent who allows them to feel like they still belong even when they aren't doing well at school. They need a parent who focuses on any attempts at improvement. These are the kids who have a better chance of finding their way back to academic success as they mature."

Before dealing with your child's homework issues, do your own emotional homework. Look at how your behaviors and attitudes affect your child's progress. Does yelling lead to a positive or a negative learning experience? Does nagging increase cooperation or increase resistance? What results do your current behaviors produce? Notice how you react to your child's different behaviors. Are their other options you can choose in responding to your child's more challenging behaviors?

Parents sometimes think in extremes. It's either black or white, good or bad, all or nothing. It's easy to dismiss the middle ground. Karen thinks she has no choice but to feel frustrated when her son struggles with homework. As an Option Method practitioner, I learned to ask parents a series of non-judgmental questions to help them uncover self-defeating beliefs. I asked Karen, "What are you concerned would happen if you didn't feel frustrated? Her answer shot to the opposite extreme, "If I wasn't frustrated, I'd be uncaring."

Would she really stop caring if she wasn't frustrated? After doing her emotional homework, Karen realized she had other options between the extremes. Karen shares her discovery, "When Bob isn't doing a good job with homework, I get scared that he will become a failure. I want to do something but I don't know what to do, so I get frustrated with him. As long as I'm feeling frustrated, it's like I'm doing something. The problem is, I'm only adding stress to the situation. As I think about it I realize that doing poorly with a homework assignment just means that he is inexperienced in that area of learning and needs more practice. I really believe that."

With her new belief, Karen feels calmer during homework time, and is now more aware of how her thoughts influence how she feels and acts when her son struggles.

Eleven-year-old Trisha has a learning disability and needs extra help with homework. She sometimes takes Mom for granted, expecting instant answers. When Mom has trouble explaining the assignment, she snaps, "Come on Mom. You're driving me crazy. Did you forget everything you learned in school?"

Trisha's mom was tired of the disrespect, so she did her emotional homework. She decided what actions she could take to produce better results. Now she only helps with homework when Trisha remains respectful. She said, "Trisha, I hear how frustrated you are feeling with this assignment. I cannot be helpful to you when I'm treated with disrespect. Right now I need to take a break. We can try again later when we both have calmed down."

The results have been positive. At the end of the last school year, Trisha said, "Mom, I'm feeling frustrated with this homework not with you. Thanks for helping me!"

It is a great feeling to see children complete their homework all on their own. Yet, sometimes, they need a little help. Keep working toward expanding their independence. When you get involved with homework, help without hovering. A watched pot takes forever to boil. Instead of sitting right next to your child, give yourself a project close by. Roll coins, balance your checkbook, or clean something.

By having an alternate focus, you give your kids breathing room to think, struggle and come up with solutions of their own. By keeping your awareness on helping your children help themselves, you'll sidestep hostility and establish a more productive learning environment at home.

MADD walk welcomes four-legged supporters

When the Metro Detroit MADD chapters said everyone is encouraged to participate in the upcoming Strides for Change 5K, they weren't kidding.

People won't be the only participants; the invitation has been extended to all four-legged canine friends. The Strides for Change 5K walk presents dogs with an opportunity to walk among the many supporters in this event.

The walk will take place on Saturday, Sept. 24 at Olde World Canterbury Village, in Lake Orion. Opening ceremonies will begin at 8:30 a.m., with the walk starting at 9 a.m.

"MADD invites all walkers to participate, regardless of age, gender, or species," said

MADD volunteer Vicki Clark. "It gives people from all walks of life, an opportunity to join together to support MADD in their mission to create safer roads. Anyone can make a difference, even the pups."

MADD's Metro Detroit chapter is also offering a prize package to the "top dog." The dog that raises the most money will be crowned the canine cash challenge winner for Strides for Change.

Additionally, they will receive an all expense paid getaway to a dog hotel for a week, as well as a photo session with their owner and other prizes. However, no dog will go home empty handed. All four-legged friends will receive a doggy goodie bag and their own special VIP area; the MADD Dog Diner. In the MADD Dog Diner, vendors will provide grooming and training demonstrations, literature and other items to pamper our canine fundraisers.

"MADD Dog Diner allows our four-legged friends to lend a paw in helping MADD keep our communities safe, as well as an opportunity to participate in various other activities," said MADD Dog vander Marc Guerrieri, owner of Canine Resolution in Waterford. "In addition to raising funds and promoting safe driving, they can show-off their unique talents in the best dog trick competition, participate in one of our training demonstrations, and engage in many other enjoyable activities in the VIP section."

Maddux, a feisty yorkie from Oakland County, is excited to be a part of this important fundraising event. According to his owner, Matt Burchart, he's already raised more than $100.

"This is a fun and unique way to bring attention to MADD and raise money for their programs," said Burchart.

If your dog is interested in participating in Strides for Change, please visit www.stridesforchange.org and under select a city, click on "Detroit Metro." When registering, under "First Name," type in your dog's name. Under "Last Name," type in the word, "Dog." If you are registering your dog, you will not need to register yourself.

Fit for Fashion

Athletic wear that flatters

By Anna Foard PINK Correspondent

Forget those threadbare biker shorts and that faded old T-shirt that used to serve as your gym clothes. Today's fitness wear is designed to flatter your body while you work it into shape. "If you're trying so hard to look good, you might as well look good while you're doing it," said Michelle Meek, founder of Fit Diva in Livonia.

Julie Gutowski of Livonia sells the Planet B line from Brazil through home parties, along with her partner Pam Cosmi of Linden.

"The stuff is going so fast, they're so hot," she said. Planet B's offerings include flared, low-rise workout pants, with a patterned pocket and belt that matches a top. Floral, artsy, as well as Dick Tracy-style cartoon patterns make these tops unique and fun.

The cuts of the pieces are "phenomenal," Gutowski said.

"It doesn't matter if you're small, medium or large, no matter what the body type, it fits like a glove," she said.

Meek said the styles she offers are a little bit more on the sexy side than traditional workout clothes. "My philosophy is be a diva while you sweat," she said.

Of course, that doesn't mean you have to walk around in sweat-stained attire. Dominator Clothing in Birmingham carries classic yoga styles in two unique fabrics that help keep your clothes looking new.

Planet B's offerings include flared, low-rise workout pants, with a patterned pocket and belt that matches a top.

Meryl, a fabric imported from France, includes UVA and UVB protection and doesn't show sweat marks.

"It's incredibly comfortable and functional," said Sarah Kearfott, floor supervisor at the store.

Bright colors are what people look for, including lilac and ocean green palettes, Kearfott said.

Dominator Clothing also is the only company in North America that carries fitness wear made of Novarel, a breathable fabric imported from Italy that doesn't shrink or fade.

From gym to golf

If taking a few swings out at the golf course is more your style of exercise, check out the latest fashions from girls golf, a Michigan-based retailer that sells its line of trendy golfing attire in elite country clubs and boutiques across the country, including Lori Karbal in Birmingham.

Clothes on the links are "becoming more of a silhouette flattering to women," said Annie Margulis, founder and creative mind behind girls golf's designs. The ballet slipper inspired Reebok Zenswa

"Shorts with flat fronts and no pleats, longer shorts that are tapered and more fitted shirts."

Also in demand from girls golf are puff-sleeved polo shirts, skirts and bucket hats — a new trend for women.

The girls golf line consists primarily of a machine-washable, cotton-Lycra blend that "fits you better and makes you look better," Margulis said.

And forget the standard khaki and black color scheme. Try pink, grass green, orange, coral and aqua — all hot new colors for teeing off this year.

The trend is for retro-70s style patterns and colors in new, modern and flattering cuts that women can wear on

Ask An Anti-Aging Specialist

Q An Anti-Aging Specialist??? What do they do & what kinds of conditions do they treat?

A Believe it or not, 50% of people taking supplements remain deficient. And there is overwhelming evidence that these deficiencies can contribute to disease processes & the overall condition of your health.

Many people work at improving their health, yet some individuals still have deficiencies. Why?

- Biochemical Individuality
- Absorption
- Chronic Illness
- Aging
- Lifestyle

At The Center for Healthy Living & Longevity, we perform a "Functional Intracellular Analysis" that measures levels of selected vitamins, minerals, antioxidants & other essential micronutrients within your white blood cells. These results can uncover deficiencies that standard serum tests may miss.

Once deficiencies have been identified, a customized nutrient program is implemented.

Tips on conducting a successful presentation

(NUI) — Whether you're a student, a full-time employee or the head of a book club, there is one task that is hard to avoid: public speaking.

Having to give a speech or presentation in front of a group is something that's unavoidable in most people's lives. But it doesn't have to be a scary situation. With the right preparation, you can channel your public speaking stress into an effective, memorable presentation.

The following tips will help you further your performance when giving a presentation and keep stress under control.

■ Prepare beforehand. Practicing your presentation in front of a mirror, video camera, small audience or with a tape recorder will help you feel more comfortable delivering it.

■ Help yourself relax with a supplement. A sublingual spray, such as Stress and Tension, a product from the "Spray" line of all-natural remedies, may help.

Stress and Tension contains ingredients that temporarily relieve symptoms of nervous tension and anxiety, helping you to focus more on your presentation rather than the stress caused by public speaking. This spray meets all Food and Drug Administration guidelines for good manufacturing practices and was developed by doctors. For more information, visit www.thespray.com or call (866) 412-7827.

■ Know your surroundings. Arrive at the place of the presentation early so you can familiarize yourself with the room. Getting there early also will give you time to test out any equipment, like a computer or projector, that you will be using.

■ Keep it structured. When writing your presentation, focus on no more than three key elements.

Having to give a speech or presentation in front of a group is something that's unavoidable in most people's lives. With the right preparation, you can channel your public speaking stress into an effective, memorable presentation.

Discussing too many topics can give listeners an overload of information.

Also, to keep your presentation interesting, make sure it has a beginning, middle and end. Start your speech with an opening comment, question or with humor to grab the audience's attention. Next, give the audience the vital information. Then finish with a strong quote, question or piece of information that will be memorable to your listeners.

Avoiding loss of home purpose of business

BY DEBRA PASCOE
CORRESPONDENT

The belief "bad things happen to good people" is what got Dick Chelten thinking how to give people in danger of losing their homes another chance.

His company, Marketplace Homes LLC, purchases "nice homes in nice neighborhoods" in foreclosure and leases them back to the owner. Once the now-lessee's credit is repaired with the help of Marketplace's credit repair specialists, they can buy it back within 24 months.

There is, however, a price to pay. The owner is responsible for closing costs, a 6 percent real estate fee, a 3 percent "acquisition fee" and a 15 percent investor fee — on top of the monthly lease payment. And, the lessee is responsible for all repairs and maintenance to the home during the lease period.

"This is not Christmas. This is not a gift. This is a working relationship where we both get what we want," Chelten, a licensed Realtor, said of the sale/leaseback program.

However, there are others in the mortgage business that question sale/leaseback programs that are now being offered by several companies statewide.

"Those kinds of transactions are fraught with a lot of risks for the homeowner; there are unscrupulous operators that are taking advantage of homeowners," said Murray Brown, director of development for the Michigan Mortgage Lenders Association.

Brown said the association has been discussing sale/leaseback programs and confirmed there is nothing "illegal" about them. However, they question if companies offering these programs are offering full disclosure.

"The concern of the association is that people who are entering such agreements do not know in some cases they have sold their house to the company that is offering this service," he said. "We want to make sure that people in foreclosure — who are very stressed to begin with — are reading the documents carefully enough."

Chelten said Marketplace thoroughly explains the process to potential clients and does not offer the service to everyone seeking help. Some people, he said, do not have the required 20 percent equity in their homes, the income to make lease payment or the desire to stay in their homes.

"We need to see some equity in the deal to make it reasonable for them to say it's worth being in the house," he said, adding the process is all confidential.

"We don't put a scarlet letter outside your house and the family does not get disrupted."

Chelten offered the following scenario on how the program works: The owner of a house appraised at $200,000 is in foreclosure and owes $160,000 to a lending institution. Marketplace will tack on an estimated $5,000 for closing costs and purchase the home for $165,000. Once the now-lessee clears his/her credit and is approved for a mortgage, Marketplace will sell the home back for $189,000 and net a $24,000 investment fee or profit.

In the meantime, the lessee pays $1,850 a month for the first 12 months and $1,924 a month for the remaining 12 months to lease the home.

Accounting for an estimated 5 percent annual appreciation,

Chelten said the homeowner will have $31,000 in equity in the home at time of buyback.

Out of 55 clients, only one has been evicted or failed to complete the buyback transaction, Chelten said.

For more information on Marketplace Homes, LLC visit its Web site at www.marketplace.com.

As a cautionary measure, Brown advises homeowners to check with the Better Business Bureau Office of Financial and Insurance Services to ensure the mortgage lender they have chosen is legitimate.

The office can be reached at (877) 999-6442.

Lots of extra space in this 'Tundra'

If you have been searching for a home design that has extra space for future development, take a good look at the Tundra (403-47). As your children get older, or your family increases, the Tundra provides an unfinished basement that gives you 2,128 square feet to finish, as you like.

When the time is convenient, you can decide if your family needs more sleeping quarters, a game room or home office. Perhaps the future will bring aging relatives into the home. In that case, a small apartment can easily be created, offering a safe environment while still providing privacy. The basement comes with a partially completed bathroom, extra storage and a separate entrance.

The exterior of the Tundra has tremendous curb appeal, showcased by the beautiful vaulted entry, multi-paned glass floods the entry with sunlight, fashioning a welcome atmosphere for your guests. Horizontal siding accents the trim lines of the outer design.

The main floor of the Tundra has an open configuration that doesn't waste any of the available 2,110 square feet of living space. Facing directly into the entry is a huge great room. This is the primary gathering area in the house and has windows on two sides. There is access to a side deck, where warmer weather will find the sun seekers.

The walk-through kitchen adjoins the dining room, allowing the cook in the house to save steps while serving meals. For a quick snack or less formal dining, there is a handy eating bar. In addition to built-in appliances, the kitchen features a roomy walk-in pantry. The elegant master suite is situated to the left of the entry. Isolated for privacy, the master suite amenities include a large walk-in closet, vanity and private bathroom with an oversized spa tub. The two secondary bedrooms are at the opposite end of the home. Each has abundant closet space and they share a full bathroom and linen storage.

A spacious utility room, with deep sink and freezer chest, completes the design.

Placement of the utility by the garage is a big plus when it comes to unloading groceries.

Getting a good deal buying a home that's bank-owned

The number of bank-owned homes for sale have increased significantly in Michigan. Here are factors to consider if you wish to buy one.

Keep in mind that banks don't want to give away their properties. If a house/condo is below market value there usually is a reason why. If you buy a foreclosed home you can often get a good deal, but there are usually more hurdles that you need to go through than if you buy a non-bank-owned home.

Here are some possible pitfalls to watch for:

■ When buying a bank-owned home often the earnest money deposit is held by the listing office, rather than the selling office. Normally, the deposit is held by the selling office, which is the office that represents the buyer. If the office that represents the bank holds the buyers' deposit it means that buyers have less control getting their money back if something bad happens.

■ Usually when you find a property that you make an offer on, the purchase agreement that you will use will favor you. However, when you make an offer on a bank owned property you will, most likely, use the bank's purchase agreement, which will favor them. Keep in mind that no matter what the purchase agreement says almost everything is negotiable.

■ The purchase agreement will normally say that the property is sold "as is." However, you still have a right to do an inspection. If you take this option, you can still normally get out of the purchase agreement if a problem during the inspection pops up. What this means to you, is that even if there is something wrong in the house, which you find during an inspection, that although the purchase agreement says that the property is sold "as is" it is still negotiable. You can ask for the property to be fixed by the bank or you can request a repair allowance.

Is it worth all the trouble? You need to determine what the market value is of the property you are interested in. Have your Realtor do a market analysis. Factor in the costs involved if you have to pay for significant repair. The views expressed in this column are solely those of the author.

2006 Lexus RX 400h is a wise investment

Advertising Feature

CAReport

Anne Fracassa

By Dave Menard
Avanti News Features

Auto columnist Anne Fracassa is at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. This week's column is written by Dave Menard, her colleague at Avanti NewsFeatures.

Here's a news flash: gasoline prices are sky high and show no signs of dropping any time soon. That means you might have to ditch your SUV in favor of something smaller, right? Not necessarily, friend. You can get good mileage in an SUV, plus get a tax credit, with the 2006 Lexus RX 400h.

The RX 400h is a gasoline-electric engine hybrid (hence the "h" after the 400 model number) and as such, qualifies for a tax credit under the Working Families Relief Act of 2004. I'm not going to play tax advisor here, but if you're interested in the RX 400h, you might want to speak to your tax man about whether you can get that $2,000 credit.

Tax issues taken care of, let's get to the RX 400h itself. The RX 400h is a midsize SUV and has a sharp, clean look. It comes with HID headlamps with auto leveling, fog lamps integrated into the front bumper, power liftgate, an integrated rear spoiler, privacy glass, roof rack and graphite polished aluminum alloy wheels.

The hybrid engine is a combination of a 3.3-liter V6 gasoline engine and a pair of electronically-driven motors, and delivers a combined horsepower of 268 and 212 lb.-ft. of torque at 4400 rpm, while still EPA rated at 31/27 mpg. The batteries that charge the electric part of the engine are recharged during normal driving, and you can monitor the engine status on a screen in the dash. The RX400h comes with a electronically-controlled continuously variable transmission, with planetary gear unit for gear reduction and power splitting, and electronic all-wheel drive control. There's just the slightest hesitation if you mash the accelerator, and downshifting back into the lower gears is slightly more noticeable, but for normal driving and passing, the setup performs very well.

The ride is smooth and quiet, as you would expect from a Lexus. The suspension system consists of a McPherson strut system with coil springs up front, and dual link struts with coil springs in the rear. Lexus has given the RX 400h what it calls a Vehicle Dynamics Integrated Management System (VDIM) to handle and coordinate stability, traction management and braking functions. The Electronically Controlled Brake system (EBS) controls the others and will correct vehicle behavior before it becomes unstable (now how do we get the function for people?). The system functions very well; braking is excellent and the vehicle handles quite well.

Power rack-and-pinion steering is standard. The turning circle is a bit large, but this is, after all, still an SUV.

Being an SUV, there's plenty of room for cargo, both human and otherwise. With the rear seats folded down, you can get almost 85 cu.ft. of cargo room. Leg, head and shoulder room are plentiful. The power leather seats adjust 10 ways, for the driver, and eight ways for the passenger, and are quite comfortable; it's easy to get good driving position. Heated front seats are an option. There are plenty of cupholders and a center console storage box.

The RX 400h is full of luxury features, so you're comfortable while you save the environment. Dual climate control system, power windows and locks, power tilt-steering wheel, moonroof, cruise control, automatic headlights, programmable garage door opener, are all standard. Also standard is an integrated navigation system with rear back up camera (which should be standard on every car), Bluetooth, voice activation, and the above mentioned energy use meters for the hybrid engine.

The standard audio system is six-disc CD system, combined with an AM/FM tuner and six speakers. An upgraded Mark Levinson system (Mark Levinson is a company that produces high-end audio-video equipment for the home theater market) is available and it sounds wonderful. A rear-seat DVD entertainment system is available for when the kids are driving you bonkers.

Even though the kids may be driving you bonkers, you still might want to protect them, and there are some solid safety features on the RX 400h. It comes with driver's knee airbag, front seat mounted side impact airbags, and front and rear side curtain shield airbags. You'll also get a theft deterrent system, and a full-sized spare tire.

Saving the environment in this kind of style doesn't come cheap - the RX 400h starts at about $48,500. Add the rear DVD system, upgraded audio and the heated seats and you're a little over $50,000. But this is a Lexus, and you're getting great mileage with an SUV. And maybe that tax credit will help.
