Tim Kennedy has always dreamed of owning a home on a golf course. And last Friday, his dream came true when he closed on a condominium on Canton's Fellows Creek Golf Course. He was thrilled, having been a lifetime player of the course, and having spent months convincing his wife to agree to buying a second home for them to live in when he retires in three years.

But his dreams were quickly dashed when he picked up a newspaper just five days later and discovered that the condo could wind up sitting not alongside a golf course, but a shopping center. "Can you imagine what I was thinking when I saw that?" he asked the Canton Township Board of Trustees who met Wednesday to discuss the possible sale of Fellows Creek, a 27hole municipal golf course, to developer Lormax Stern/Grand Sakwa Properties.

Kennedy was among more than 100 Canton residents who showed up at the Township Administration Building to voice concerns over the developer's proposal to purchase for $17 million 96 of the 193 acres at the municipal Fellows Creek Golf Course.

And $17 million is no small chunk of change, according to McNamara, 79, died early Sunday morning, Feb. 19, from heart failure at Harper Hospital in Detroit with his family by his bedside.

The former Wayne County executive and Livonia mayor spent more than 40 years in politics, mentoring people like Gov. Jennifer Granholm and Detroit Medical Center CEO Mike Duggan. Both spoke at the funeral Mass, with the central theme about McNamara's family, both immediate and extended.

Duggan delivered the eulogy, chronicling McNamara's early childhood; growing up in Detroit's Brightmoor area; accelerating his high school education at Redford High School in Detroit to enlist in the Navy, where he earned three BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

But despite his political connections and public accolades, Duggan said his wife, Lucille, and their five children and five grandchildren were always the most important in his life. "He talked about his kids incesmet anybody more proud of his kids.

"And in retirement years, he got to spend more time with his grandkids," Duggan added. "Those were the things he talked about all the time."

The most touching part of the ceremony came when four of McNamara's grandchildren spoke, remembering their grandfather. "I low grandra because he took

Community planning a hero's welcome for Olympic skaters

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER

Olympic skaters Tanith Belbin and Ben Agosto will return to a hero's welcome when they get home to Canton this week.

The township will host a community reception for the silver medal winners in ice dance, some time after they return from Torino, Italy. They're scheduled to fly home Monday, and will for a short time be at the facility where they train, Arctic Edge in Canton, according to Craig O'Neill, Arctic Edge general manager.

But the township wants to do something to recognize not only Belbin and Agosto, but all the champion skaters who have been training in Canton.

"What a terrific job all of the skaters have done," said Leisure 'We only opened four years ago. Who knew then that we'd have this kind of success coming from little old Canton, Michigan? It's been a great year for us, and for skating in general.'

Services Director Ann Conklin. "They're golden in our hearts. They've made us proud to be from Canton."

Conklin wasn't just referring to Belbin and Agosto. Olympic ice dancers Jamie Silverstein and Ryan O'Meara also train at Arctic Edge in Canton. As do Meryl Davis of W. Bloomfield and Charlie White of Bloomfield Hills, the U.S. junior ice dancing champions. And not to be forgotten, so too do junior national pairs champions Kendra Moyle of Chelsea and Andy Seitz of Ypsilanti. They will all be recognized at the township's reception this week.

"We only opened four years ago. Who knew then that we'd have this kind of success coming from little old Canton, Michigan?" O'Neill said of Arctic Edge. "It's been a great year for us, and for skating in general."

As of Friday afternoon, the date and time for the community reception had not yet been determined, but watch for updates on www.canton-mi.org, or call The Summit on the Park at (734) 394-5460 for more information.

Canton officials are planning a welcome home ceremony for Olympic silver medalists Tanith Belbin and Ben Agosto, as well as other skaters from the Arctic Edge. The tool, called the Silent Partner Alert system, uses e-mail and Internet technologies to keep in contact with the residents who sign up for the service. Any type of notice can be sent ranging from crime alerts in your neighborhood, to traffic delays, severe weather warnings, and wanted or missing persons notices.

When an incident occurs, police can log onto the system's secure Web site to enter a message and even photographs, and send alerts out to the entire community, or a specific area of the community depending on the incident. According to Sgt. Scott Hilden, people can get the alerts on their home computer, text pager, Web enabled cell phone, or "any device they can get emails."

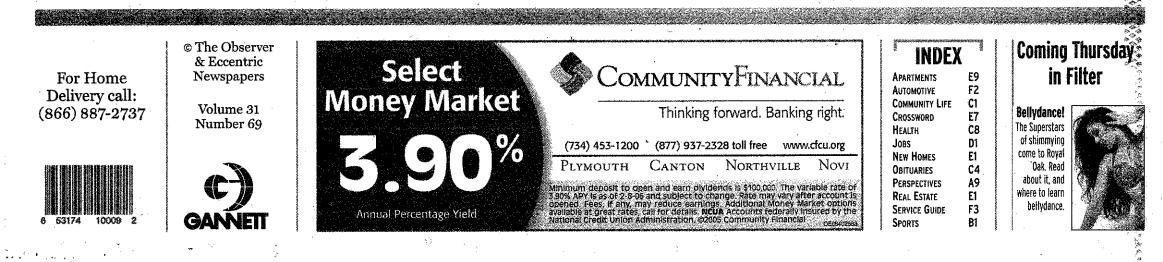

Hilden said the department's goal is to have 5 percent or more of the homes in Canton become part of the program, which would give police the ability to reach 30,000 to 50,000 residents. Schools could also join the program, And having people alert will also help police, because residents will be more aware of criminal activity, and be able to tip off police.

"We're thinking this is going to be a nice tool for us," Hilden said. "What we're trying to do with this is get a whole bunch of people in the community to be the eyes and ears of the police department. The higher percentage of people who sign up, the more effective it will be."

To subscribe to Silent Partner Alert log on to www.canton-mi.org/public safety click on the Silent Partner Alert logo and follow the online instructions.

"You can log on in less than a minute. It's real easy to do," Hilden said.

VBPS high school Tuesday

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER

Some 3,000 Canton voters who live in the Van Buren Public Schools district will have their say next week, when the district asks them to approve an $111 million bond to build a new high school in Van Buren Township.

District officials have been trying to get a new high school built for several years to replace the aging Belleville High School, which was built in 1926. Though the building has had a total of nine additions, school officials have said it's become inadequate to meet the needs of the district's high schoolers, particularly in the areas of electronic technologies and science laboratories.

The new school, if approved, would be able to accommodate 2,168 students. Enrollment district-wide is 6,200, but is expected to steadily grow. Last month plans for the construction of some 1,400 new homes in VBPS's corner of southwest Canton were recommended for approval by the Canton Township Planning Commission.

Already, response from Canton voters has been higher than in the past, according to Canton Township Clerk Terry Bennett.

The 2004 board of education election drew only 40 voters to Canton's 33rd Precinct polls at Dodson Elementary School, and just 16 at the 20th Precinct location at Canton Fire Station No. 1. There were 181 absentee voter ballots returned.

However, for the Feb. 28 election next week, the clerk's office has sent out 378 absentee ballots and already 240 have been returned.

"There's always a bigger turnout when there are money issues," Bennett said.

According to VBPS estimates, a homeowner whose house has a market value of $100,000 would pay about $145 more in taxes per year to pay down the 30-year bond. That amounts to $12.08 per month. A homeowner with a $275,000 house would pay $398.75 per year, or $33.23 per month more than he or she does now.

District voters shot down a similar bond proposal in 2004 by a vote of 4,593 to 2,226. Although VBPS

Superintendent Peter Lazaroff was unavailable for comment, spokesman Paul Henning said the district has made efforts to gather more information from the community and to communicate better with voters. The district has held a dozen town hall meetings, set up an e-mail account to gather comments and input, and invited people to call on a special phone hotline.

"We got a lot of input," Henning said. "We had about 30 pages of comments which were given to us back in the fall. There was a good cross section of all opinions."

He said the district has during this bond proposal process received no criticism from the public regarding the level of public input.

However, some Canton homeowners who live in the part of the township that is in the VBPS district have expressed frustration that the district has not entertained the idea of building an elementary school in Canton, even though VBPS owns 20 acres off Beck Road north of Michigan Avenue.

"Essentially that hinges on the enrollment. If we have the enrollment that will support a seventh elementary school, we can build there," Henning said. "We would have to have a student increase of about 400 kids."

The election is Feb. 28, but voters who wish to apply for absentee ballots may do so until 4 p.m. on Feb. 27, according to Bennett. The clerk's office is open Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., and people can apply, get a ballot, fill it out and turn it back in immediately, she said.

Voters to decide fate of New network makes getting married easier

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER

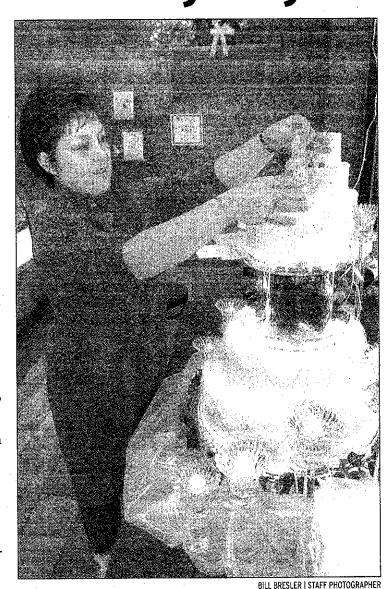

It's reported that some 10 percent of the 2.3 million couples will get engaged this year did so earlier this month on Valentine's Day, or so says the Diamond Information Center. Here in Canton, Tracey Pawlowski is waiting for those happy couples to come see her about a cake.

As the owner of Back Home Bakery, Pawlowski is building up the store's wedding business. Just as she was starting to get more orders for wedding cakes, she was invited to join the Wedding Referral Network - the first network of its kind in Michigan.

Here's the idea: A group of local businesses that provide wedding-related services form a group. Each member is screened and must prove their service or product measures up to the group's standards. Members must apply, and must provide references, which the network members call on. They must meet for a face-toface interview and the members vote on whether or not to let the applicant join.

The group produced a network to benefit each other by way of word of mouth advertising, and put together a coupon book where brides can find specials on products such as wine from Vintner's Cellars in Canton, jewelry from Showroom of Elegance in Canton, and even honeymoon packages from CruiseOne in Westland.

Because the members get to know each other and each store's products - from table decorating and entertainment to jewelry and just about everything else wedding related - they can confidently recommend services by other members, said WRN creator photographer Basel-Abunab.

"I noticed that I booked weddings from two sources an ad or a referral. And about 70 percent of my business was coming from referrals, so I wanted to do something more structured around that idea," said Abunab, a Plymouth resident who owns Precious Memories Photography in Canton.

But he wants to provide special services for brides without making them feel pressured. "Once you get inducted into the WRN, you have to give something back to the brides," he said. Most give a discount but all treat the brides the way Abunab wants them to be treated.

"The attitude is like a culture. You treat the bride like a queen. It's her day, and she should be treated special," he said.

It's a philosophy which has worked for Pawlowski and the rest of the network, which formed in July.

Pawlowski has been to just two bridal trade shows, and at the first one, she went by the book. She had a rehearsed sales pitch, but it just didn't feel right to her, she said. So it was no surprise that no one she met at the show called her, to inquire about wedding cakes.

But the second show was different. She and others from the network took a more laid-back approach, and just started talking to brides. They wanted to know things like, "How did you meet your future husband? How long have you been date ing? Are you planning a honeymoon?"

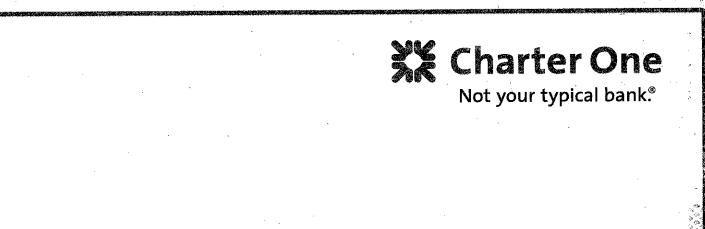

Pawlowski stopped trying to sell cake and just started giving away samples of baked goods

"The brides had all sort of 📜 gravitated to us because we were much more about them. and much less about selling services," she said. And the brides picked up on the network members' genuine interest, and Pawlowski's phone started ringing.

"My philosophy is that if I can get something into your mouth, you're probably going to love it," Pawlowski said.

The property would be the site of a lifestyle center, a small, high-end outdoor mall, said Canton attorney Bryan Amann, representing Lormax

"It's not a strip center and it's not an outlet center," Amann said, adding that lifestyle centers are something like a "downtown" in flavor. The nearest example of a lifestyle center is The Village of Rochester Hills.

The plan would require a straightening of Lotz Road, and development would be to the west of the road. The plan would also require the rerouting of Fellows Creek and engineering of a flood plain on the property. Part of the plan includes a 40-50 acre easement for a storm water retention pond. These aspects of the proposal would require significant engineering work, as well as permits from the Army Corps of Engineers and FEMA, which would make development unlikely prior to 2008, Amann said.

NO CONSOLATION

But the time lapse was little consolation to the residents who live in nearby neighborhoods -The Links at Fellows Creek, Pebble Creek and The Preserve on Fellows Creek condominium communities.

If the property remains in the township's hands as a golf course, Canton will need to spend a little more than $3 million on upgrades for the aging course, according to Leisure Services Director Ann Conklin. The township would also not be able to collect approximately $600,000 per year in property taxes that it would be able to collect on the developed property, according to Yack.

The need for improvements was identified at a meeting earlier this month, as part of the township's recreation master plan, and Township Trustee Todd Caccamo voted against the plan's approval, stating that recreational opportunities, including golf, are best provided

Critics gang up against the possible sale of Fellows Creek

The possible sale of the Fellows Creek Golf Course to a developer was the main topic of discussion at the Wednesday evening Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting.

About 100 people showed up to voice opposition to the plan, including many owners of the condominiums (The Links at Fellows Creek, Pebble Creek and The Preserve on Fellows Creek) that were built along the township-owned course. Here is a list of some of the most colorful quotes of the evening.

"One of the nice things about Fellows Creek was that I didn't have to pay $500,000 to live on a golf course."

Stephanie Copher, who bought a condo at The Links two years ago. Her mother bought the residence next door to hers.

"I tell my girlfriends they, should come to my place because it's like grocery shopping. I sit outside and every so often a cart full of guys rolls by."

Brenda Howard, Pebble Creek resident.

There was some expectation that this would be a golf course for at least the time we're under construction."

However, Wednesday Caccamo opposed the proposal to sell the property, despite his calculations that there would over the next five years be a negative return on investment if the township maintains the golf course, as opposed to a substantial windfall if the township sells But even if the proposal moves forward, there is a possibility that there could still be a nine-hole golf course there, according to Paul Robertson, chairman of the board of Robertson Brothers, which has entered the third phase of development at The Links.

And despite his concerns, he's not so certain the shopping center is a bad thing.

"A well-done lifestyle center does not depreciate property values," said Jim Clark, president of Robertson Brothers.

Yack agreed after the meeting that the township is obligated to try to do right by the developers and the residents, who had reasonable expectations that they would remain in a golf course community, and they wouldn't be facing the possibility of change had not Lormax Stern brought the proposal to the township approximately two weeks ago. He said a smaller course at Fellows Creek is a "totally legitimate" possibility, ued to grow, particularly after it added nine new holes in 2002, Fellows Creek has been on a decline, according to Conklin. In 2003, golfers played nearly 50,000 rounds of golf at Fellows Creek and 35,799 at Pheasant Run. However, in 2004, Fellows Creek rounds of golf had dropped to 47,000 while Pheasant Run grew to 37,000, and last year, the two courses were nearly even, with 44,000 rounds played at Fellows Creek and 43,000 at Pheasant Run, Conklin said. Before Amann returns to the board, he must meet with representatives from the various homeowners associations, as well as with Robertson Brothers. The earliest the board could make a decision is at its March 14 meeting, but Yack said the likelihood of the decision being made that soon is low. Homeowners near the golf course will be notified by mail prior to the meeting.

Granholm said it was fitting McNamara's funeral was held at Most Holy Trinity, built by Irish-Catholic immigrants and now serving a disadvantaged area of Detroit.

"He was a poor kid from Brightmoor, who raised a middle-class family in Livonia, made it in America and never forgot where he came from," Granholm said. "He made you all important, because we're important to him, no matter where you came from. Your race, your gender, your title, meant nothing. "He filled our extended family with people who were political in the very best sense of the world ... who knew that all politics was local, and they represented their communities like they did their own families," she said. "I surely would not be governor of the state of Michigan if it weren't for Ed McNamara."

Many of those who attended the two-hour service were political figures, like U.S. Rep. John Dingell, former Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer and former Goy, Jim Blanchard.

Not everyone who attended was a high-profile politician. Kellianne Nagy of Northville got to know McNamara well after getting her first job in 1978 — in the Livonia assessor's office — during the time McNamara was mayor. United Way tops target in '05 drive

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

With the lagging Michigan economy and the huge number of dollars sent to hurricane victims in the south, many nonprofit organizations failed to meet their campaign goals to pay for much-needed social service programs.

However, the Plymouth Community United Way dodged that economic bullet, announcing Friday it beat the 2005 campaign goal of $1.3 million by $29,000.

"The economic environment in the area is pretty demanding, considering how tied we are to the auto industry ... and what's going on in the world around us," said Harry Krespy, the 2005 chairman of the board at the PCUW's annual meeting. "To be able to turn out the campaign we did this year shows how deep people dug into their pockets to support human services in our community."

One of those automotive companies, Johnson Controls, led the way by contributing $816,000 of the total campaign. Vicky Armstrong, human resources director at JCI who has directed the company's PCUW campaign the past two years, said despite the problems of the auto industry, there has been an upward trend at JCI in charitable giving.

ing. "Our employees are so willing to give, we get great support from our leadership, and our company does a dollar-fordollar match from our JCI foundation," said Armstrong. "We expect to raise the bar next year."

Along with JCI, other top companies in last year's campaign included Visteon and Automotive Components Holding, $200,000; General Motors, $71,000; and DTE Energy, $42,000.

Campaign Chairman Rick DeBruyne said the PCUW must work hard to keep the trust of those who contribute.

"We are not only asking people for their hard earned money, but we are asking them for their trust that the money is going to a good cause," said DeBruyne. "We must continue to assure that it does go to worthy causes."

Marie Morrow, PCUW president, said meeting and exceeding the annual drive is necessary to support the trend of increasing human service needs in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

"There is definitely a growing need developing in western Wayne County," Morrow said. "And, it's more evident with the economic downturn at the industrial companies."

During the meeting, Field Elementary fifth-grade teacher Rich Plecha was given a PCUW Community Service Award for his volunteer efforts in creating and constructing schoolyard habitats at Allen, Bentley, Hoben and Farrand elementary schools. The habitats were built with a $4,000 grant from Visteon, which was matched by the PCUW.

Krespy handed the reigns to Greg Foster, who becomes the 2006 Chairman of the Board.

Man pleads guilty to gun charge

A Canton man pleaded guilty last week to one count of felony firearms. The charge stemmed from an incident with police last September, in which Brian Matthew Anthony had barricaded himself in his home on Bryn Mawr. Police said during the hours that led up to his arrest. Anthony had loaded rifle at an officer when police pulled him over for a simple traffic stop. Police said Anthony then led them on a brief car chase, before his car smashed into a tree near his home on Bryn Mawr. He ran into the house and wouldn't come out, according to police.

The Western Wayne Special Operations Team got into Anthony's house, where he lived with his mother, and found him there with selfinflicted injuries. He was arrested without further incident, police said.

Other charges against Anthony were dismissed as part of his plea agreement. He had also been charged with felonious assault and with fleeing and eluding police.

His sentencing is scheduled for May 17 at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice.

POLICE BEAT

STRANGER DANGER

Canton police are making extra rounds to patrol the area of Pittsford and Wonsocket after a 9-year-old boy reported last week a suspicious man in the area.

According to police reports, the boy was outside and a man in a red minivan pulled over to ask him if he wanted to drive to the 7-Eleven to get a Slurpee.

The boy said no, and walked quickly home to tell his parents what happened.

The man is described as about 18 years old, having red hair and freckles.

DTE BILL SHOCKING

A Canton woman called police when she discovered that someone she doesn't know ran up a shocking electrical bill in her name.

The woman told police on Feb. 17 that she didn't even know the fraud had occurred until a collections bureau contacted her in an attempt to collect the $4,386 they said she owes to DTE Energy.

According to police reports, the fraud was ongoing between 2002 and 2004.

CARS VANDALIZED

A Farmington Hills woman and her Canton boyfriend called police after their cars were vandalized.

The cars were parked near the boyfriend's home on Meadowview. On the morning of Feb. 18, the pair discovered that the tires on both cars had been slashed, and the woman's car had scratches on the hood and passenger side. Damage to her car was estimated at $2,000, and damage to his car was estimated at $900,

The woman told police that this is the fourth incident of vandalism to her car since last November. Prior to this incident, she has had a hole cut in her gas tank, water dumped into her gas tank and her tires were slashed once before.

WINDOW SMASHED

A Canton man called police Feb. 17 after someone smashed a window out of his new van.

He said he left the van parked in front of his home on Woodmere, and the morning of Feb. 17, he discovered the damage, which is estimated at $500, according to police. The culprit did not gain entry to the van, and nothing was taken.

Schoolcraft studies culinary exchange with China

COUNTY NEWS

A team from Schoolcraft College will journey to China in early March to explore the possibility of providing training in Western food preparation to Chinese culinary schools and chefs.

The trio of Schoolcraft entrepreneurs includes: John Walsh, executive director of development and governmental relations; Bruce Konowalow, director of Culinary Arts; and Shawn Loving, culinary instructor and owner of Loving Spoonful restaurant in Farmington Hills. They will be on the road March 4-14.

The idea for the trip came about through the intercession of Laura Wang, a Northville business consultant who is Chinese. Wang, who is familiar with the Schoolcraft Culinary Arts program, recognized a growing demand for European and American cuisine in China.

This stems from the large number of Western business representatives and tourists traveling to the country since it began relaxing its economic polices in the early 1980s. Furthermore, with the Chinese economy growing by more than 9 percent a year for the past 25 years, more affluent Chinese citizens want, and can afford, all things Western, including food.

This prompted Wang to set up a link between Chinese culinary schools and Schoolcraft officials, which led to the forthcoming trip. Walsh described the trip as a cultural exchange, perhaps leading to a workable contract between Chinese entities and Schoolcraft.

"This trip is investigatory and demonstrative," said Walsh. "It also is an opportunity to test the feasibility of Schoolcraft entering into training contracts for which we would provide instruction in American and European culinary techniques to Chinese chefs and instructors.

Instructors from Chinese culinary schools would be taught both in China and Livonia, preferably during the summer.

The Schoolcraft group will make three stops while in China. First, they will visit Beijing, stopping at the Beijing Western Cuisine Association, which houses a training center and university-based culinary school. They also will meet with a representative of the Escoffier International Society to assess the overall culinary scene.

The second destination is Shenzhen, where they will spend time at the Shenzhen Polytechnic Institute. Walsh said this was described to him as a state-of-the-art culinary training facility. Chef Loving will test this out with limited demonstrations of Western cooking.

Shanghai is the third stop on the itinerary, and includes visits to another vocational and technical school, as well as talks with the executive staff of China's only Ritz Carleton Hotel. Here the group will explore opportunities for Schoolcraft instructors to train the Ritz Carleton's Chinese staff, especially as the chain expands its hotel locations.

Loving may do a number of demonstrations – depending on the equipment, the schedule and what the Chinese hosts expect as the group moves around the country.

"I will be representing all the chefs at Schoolcraft," said Loving. "Every one of our chefs' names will be on my coat. I am meeting with our chefs for their advice on how to best represent our cooking and how I will display it.

"I also plan to push for the opportunity to sit in on a demonstration or class in the Chinese culinary schools to see what the students are capturing. The learning experience will be endless."

Loving said an agreement to train Chinese chefs would create a more powerful Schoolcraft program and make the department globally strong.

To facilitate that possibility, Walsh said he also plans to meet with U.S. Department of Commerce officials in each city so that, "I have a name and a face to contact who, if we are successful, will help us put the deal together."

While Walsh concedes doing all this in 10 days makes the trip very intense, he sees it as very exciting. "We are dipping our toes into the international market," he said. "It gives us a glimpse of three very different potential markets and makes us part of the global economy."

McNamara inspired his staff with love of life, drive to serve with a mixture of profound sadness and fond memories we mark the passing of Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. To the world he was the astute politician who was able to transfer a dilapidated county into a prosperous and solvent one. To those of us who had the opportunity to know Ed McNamara well, he was an old-fashioned Irish politician who believed that public service is the most honorable profession.

We had the opportunity of working with Ed McNamara and were witness to his compassion and humanity in the light of his many accomplishments. Unlike kinship working for him. He managed to hire a collection of diverse people from all walks of life and make them into a loving family. Even after his retirement, this "work family" remained connected and devoted to him. We became a family dedicated to service. People want to know his formula for his power.

His formula was very simple. His power came from his humbleness and his ability to empower those around him. He enjoyed seeing his people succeed. He saw the potential in people and made sure he cultivated them. He never held anyone back, preferring to encourage and nurture his or her abilities.

Employees who worked directly with Ed McNamara often said that they loved working for him because he would let the people around him (his younger staff) develop ideas. In many instances the ideas were great and innovative. Occasionally, an idea would flop and Ed's reaction would often be to smile at the staffer and say, "Oh well, we tried and did the best we could." However, we never wanted failure as an option.

Another strength in his blueprint of power was his fearlessness and his belief that anything was possible. We worked for him in Lansing and Washington, D.C., where he worked with both Republicans and Democrats alike.

He often said: "You need to work with both sides to bring home the bacon." When the City and the suburbs were sparring on issues such as the worked with both sides to eliminate the problem. He believed that Wayne County should be a world class county and worked diligently to achieve this status.

Friends and foes always respected Ed McNamara because they believed in his ability to deliver. He was a visionary man with a keen eye on economic development. He knew that the county could not resuscitate itself on its own so he developed partnerships with business communities and the union, building a team to work on this issue.

McNamara was a builder at heart. He built teams of successful people. He built a world class airport, parks, jail and most of all he built efficient and sustainable programs at the county that will benefit the community for generations to come.

He accomplished so much with utter humility, humbleness and humor. Just about everyone who was part of the negotiations that ultimately crystallized into Comerica Park and Ford Field knows that this deal would never have happened without Ed McNamara. Yet, when the deal was announced in August 1996, he was standing in the background, hardly noticeable with a big grin on his face.

In his private office, Mr. McNamara had this quote framed on the wall "Anything can be accomplished if you don't care who gets the credit." It was not just a framed saying, but a practiced belief.

As for his sense of humor, he was quick on his feet, always having something funny to say. We never knew what would come out of his mouth, but we always knew we would have to hold our breath and laugh.

Throughout his life, Ed McNamara befriended many that remained friends with him until his death. His collection of his friends are people he went to school with at Redford High School, former employees at Michigan Bell, Livonia and Wayne County. He cherished his friends and family as they did the same for him. The sense of loyalty to him is unmatched anywhere. He gave of himself to his friends without sacrificing his love for his family. He often told us: "Nothing is better than going home to someone you love who loves you back." He reminded us that he fell in love with his wife during high school and loved her more every day.

Another important aspect of his wisdom is his love of life and his attitude toward his life in general. Even in the midst of his illness he was actively traveling, working, advising friends, baby-sitting and of course playing golf. He had such a positive attitude about everything that it was infectious. When asked how is he enjoying retirement, he quipped that he was still doing the same thing as before but not getting paid for it and he loved it.

Ed's death and Lucille McNamara's loss sadden us. Still, we smile at his accomplishments, his energy and his love of people. During this week we, along with so many of our colleagues, just wanted to let people know that "We loved Ed McNamara."

Mass transit advocates find encouragement in Super Bowl

There's life in the old town after all. Suburban residents who had long abandoned downtown Detroit discovered that a big city downtown can be a fun place. They were even lining up for buses to take them down to the many Super Bowl activities. Could this be a watershed moment for citysuburban relations and the future of what is laughingly called "mass transit" in metro Detroit?

Megan Owens, executive director of Transportation Riders United. admits that a Super Bowl is not an everyday event, but if the region wants more big events such as the scheduled 2009 Final Four or a whispered GOP convention, transportation needs to be part of the equation.

Gallagher

"If we want to be a venue for these events, the biggest flaw is transportation," Owens said. "It shows that people are willing to use transit if it's convenient and serves their needs. People were using the (SMART) shuttles despite the problems."

Suburbanites were actually complaining that there weren't enough buses and they had to wait.

Transportation Riders United, a nonprofit advocacy group for mass transit, and the Michigan Environmental Council used the success of Detroit's Super Bowl as an opportunity to push for mass transit and, particularly, for rail lines connecting Ann Arbor-Metro Airport and downtown and Birmingham and downtown along Woodward.

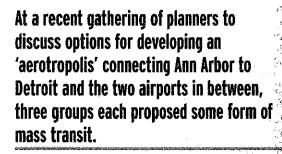

"If you look at other major cities that have put in light rail systems, property values around the stops jump," Owens said in a telephone interview. "People want homes along these transit systems. It encourages more people to live along these lines."

As Owens points out, metro Detroit's population hasn't grown significantly in the last 20 years but the population has spread out across a wider and wider area. The Hazel Park resident, who buses to downtown twice a week, argues that the lack of good mass transit has created sprawl.

"Every taxpayer is paying more for infrastructure because we are sprawled out so much," she said.

At a recent gathering of planners to discuss options for developing an "aerotropolis" connecting Ann Arbor to Detroit and the two airports in between, three groups each proposed some form of mass transit. Owens favors a commuter train connecting with light rail to downtown and up Woodward. She said developers would welcome a fixed train route rather than a bus system that can be moved.

"It's exciting to see planners take transit into account," she said.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has a $100 million grant to begin? developing plans for a mass transit system connecting Ann Arbor and Detroit.

"As SEMCOG moves forward, there is a hope they can get agreement on method," Owens said

For years SMART and D-DOT have both sold bus service for "need riders"- workers from the city to suburban jobs, the disabled and the elderly. Owens said more needs to be done to serve "option" riders, those who have cars but would commute on mass transit if it were available.

"One of the things we've been focusing on is improved quality of the existing bus system," Owens said.

Owens and other mass transit advocates know that without "option" riders it will be difficult to get legislative support for mass transit. The leg islature killed the planned Detroit Area Regional Transportation Authority, which would have coordinated several area systems and become the conduit for state and federal funding. There is a strong resistance to mass transit as a waste of taxpayers' money for "empty buses" traveling to "empty cities" in an area where there is no center.

They also follow a long history of legislators who think funding mass transit is disloyal to the area's primary auto industry.

But to Owens a mass transit system will create a center, create development and save the city. Legislators just don't understand.

"It's a challenge. I don't think they're looking at transit as an option," she said. "If they analyzed it they'd see we're not trying to kill the car. Dozens of studies show that every dollar spent on mass transit returns $4 to $9 in economic development for the area."

It will be an uphill trolley ride to get support from the current legislature. But maybe some of Detroit's newly minted fans can help make the case for a stronger central city, better Detroitsuburban cooperation and a 21st century mass transit system like every other major metropolitan area in the country.

Bouchard emphasizes homeland security expertise

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Shortly after the 2001 terrorists attack on the United States, Oakland County Sheriff Mike Bouchard said he sent a detailed white paper on how to improve homeland security to members of Congress and never received a response.

Now he wants to go to Congress and make his case as Michigan's senator.

Faith

International Christian Center, and the Rev. Jerry Zandstra from western Michigan. The winner of the Aug. 8 primary would face Democratic incumbent Sen. Debbie Stabenow in November.

On Thursday, Bouchard brought his campaign to the Suburban Republican Women's Club in Livonia, where he emphasized his experience as a law enforcement officer and as a state senator. Butler addressed the group last month.

In an interview following his short speech, Bouchard talked about his frustrations over homeland security issues.

"I think we're more secure than we were, but there is a lot more that we need to do and I'd love to talk about specifics, but too many specifics would give a lot of bad people ideas," he said. "I see on a daily basis vulnerabilities that I have tried to raise to people. We need a practitioner in the role to push it into law. That's the simplest way to say it. We have very spe-cific things that I know can be fixed."

Bouchard was appointed Oakland County sheriff in 1999 to fill a vacancy and elected to the office in 2000 and 2004. He served in the Michigan Senate from 1991-99.

Bouchard said he has concerns about a plan approved by the Bush administration to have the United Arab Emirates-owned Dubai Ports World operate six U.S. ports.

"The core issue that needs to be examined isn't whether an Arab country is bidding on any particular project, but whether any foreign company should be involved in controlling or managing a national security facility," he said.

He said he favors having American citizens operating the ports.

"We're in a different world and we need a closer watch," he said. "It's not about being Arab, but whether it's Chinese or any foreign country. We need very close American oversight and security."

In Iraq, Bouchard said it is important to work with the leaders in the local town councils and build the country "from the ground up, rather than pushing it down." He said it is important to remain in the country and not create an unstable situation that will create a training ground for terrorists.

"We need to do everything we can to stabilize Iraq and turn power over to the Iraqis," he said.

On domestic issues, Bouchard said the federal deficit is getting worse because of too much spending, not because of too having too little tax money. He said a good place to start cutting the budget is to deal with Congressional earmarks.

"I don't have a problem doing away with earmarks or at the very least having an individual vote on them," Bouchard said. "A lot people say it was in this big package and the package was good and I had to vote for it. That's a subterfuge."

He also said the "federal pie" was too big and too tempting for members of Congress looking to earmark special projects. Bouchard is also leery of federal mandates such as the No Child Left Behind Act.

"I'm not a big fan of having educational policy being driven from Washington, I think there is too much being driven from Washington and I'm a believer the more you can make a decision local, the more it will reflect the needs and wishes of the people directly affected," he said.

He favors a program that would bring business and educational leaders together to discuss what is needed from the educational system and what kind of tests are needed to evaluate the system.

Bouchard was critical of Stabenow's record on the economy. He said she has low ratings with both the National Association of Manufacturers and the small business associations.

"You can't create jobs if you're not helping the providers of jobs," he said.

Bouchard said he has a political base to build on that his rivals for the nomination don't have.

"The reverends are good guys and either of them would be better than our current senator, but I have more experience on the major issues," he said.

McCotter opposes port deal

U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, said Thursday, turning over significant control of six of our largest ports to Dubai Ports World without proper investigation could be disastrous.

McCotter, a member of the House International Relations Committee, is an original cosponsor on three bills, which will be introduced next week.

"America's homeland security must remain in Americans' hands," McCotter said. McCotter also said he would "absolutely" support overriding a presidential veto of any of the above bills.

The legislation, if passed, will temporarily halt the Dubai Ports World deal, initiate a thorough 45-day investigation of the firm, and allow Congress to review the findings.

Chiefs' hopes for conference tourney title dashed by Farr

Canton's basketball team has come a long way since dropping a 64-54 decision to Walled Lake Central six weeks ago. But as it turns out, not quite "Farr" enough.

In a Western Lakes Activities Association semifinal game played Friday night in Canton's Phase III gymnasium, Central's Chris Farr proved to be the difference in the Vikings' 56-51 triumph. The senior center netted 20 points and seven rebounds both team highs – despite attracting extra attention from the Chiefs' defense.

Canton had won 9 of 10 games since the earlier setback to the Vikings.

"Farr is a very good player," said Canton coach Charlie Paye. 'The first time we played them, we fronted him, but he's so quick, he got a lot of easy baskets. Tonight, we played behind him and he beat us with his jump hook. (Neal Mitchell) had a good game for them, too."

The victory propelled the Vikings into Wednesday's WLAA title game against 19-0 Northville at Plymouth High School. The opening tip is set for 7 p.m. Canton will play for third place against Livonia Stevenson in a contest set to start at 5:30 p.m. The WLAA All-Conference awards will be presented between games.

Friday night's game was a rematch of the 2005 WLAA championship tilt, which Central won in overtime.

Evan Brophey's 15th goal of the season at 5:10 of the third period snapped a 2-2 tie and the Plymouth Whalers went on to defeat the Erie Otters, 4-2, Friday night in an Ontario Hockey League game played at the Compuware Sports Arena.

The victory moved Plymouth (29-24-1-3) into a tie at the top of the OHL West Division with the Windsor Spitfires (28-25-3-3), who lost 5-3 to Sault Ste. Marie on Friday. The Whalers and Spits both have 62 points.

Erie (21-31-3-3) is now five points behind Sault Ste. Marie for the final playoff spot in the OHL's Western Conference.

Joe Gaynor (third), James Neal (15th) and Gino Pisellini (15th) all scored single goals for the winners. Justin Hodgman (sixth) and Adam Berti (25th) found the net for the Otters.

The first two periods featured no more than a one-goal differential. Gaynor scored at 2:03 of the first to give Plymouth a 1-0 lead when linemate John Armstrong dug the puck out from behind the net and found Gaylor on the right-wing doorstep. Hodgman tied the game at 1-1 at 15:58 of the first when he stripped a Whaler defender and beat Plymouth goalie Justin Peters.

Berti gave Erie its only lead -2-1 -at 5:54 of the second period when he batted home a rebound off a hard shot by Ryan O'Meara from the right dot. Neal tied the game at 2-2 at 13:50 of the second period when he finished excellent cycling by linemates Brophey and Joe McCann and scored from the right wing goal line.

After securing a pass from teammate Trevor Zinn, Saagman dribbled once, glanced down at the line to make sure his feet were behind it, cocked the ball in his left hand, then stroked a smooth, back-spinning jumper that floated through the net 20 feet away.

Saagman repeated his longdistance set-aim-shoot-andscore routine three more times in the second half of the Eagles' dramatic 47-46 victory over Roeper.

The effort was pure clutch, but nothing out of the ordinary for Saagman, a threesport standout who has made a name for himself both athletically and academically at PCA over the past three years.

"Matt is one of those kids whose intelligence in the classroom carries over to athletics," said PCA basketball coach/athletic director Doug Taylor, referring to Saagman's 3.8 grade-point average and 11.0 scoring average. "Along with being a good athlete, he's a heady player who calls out our defenses and helps call out the offensive plays we run, too."

Saagman is a rarity these days in the look-to-seniorsfor-leadership world of high school varsity sports. He's a junior captain who has earned the respect of every player on the Eagles' roster.

The Chiefs were led by senior sixth-man Andy Larsen, who contributed 15 points and seven rebounds.

Senior guard Andre Bridges added 15 points while junior center Ryan Waidmann added 10.

Mitchell, a 6-foot-2 swingman, complemented Farr's effort with 13 points and senior point guard Aaron Hakula chipped in with nine points while doing a nearly flawless job of directing the Vikings' offense.

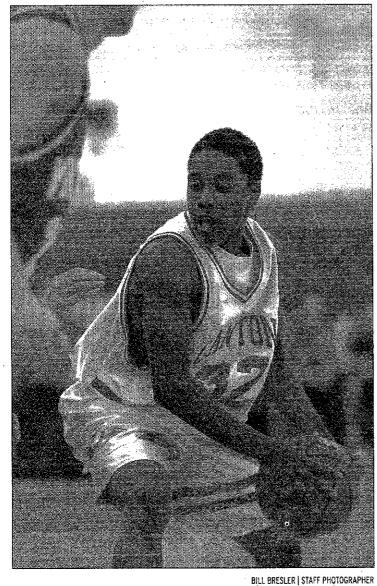

Using a patient offensive attack that often included five or six passes before a shot, Central connected on 22-of-38 field goals (57.8 percent).

More often than not, Farr was the last one to tough the ball before it was fired at the cylinder and he delivered mostly from inside six feet hitting 8-of-10 attempts.

The Vikings nailed just 2-of-6 three-point shots, but it didn't matter considering the strength of their inside game. opening tip is set for 7 p.m.

A.P. INTER-CITY BAPTIST 65, PCA 58 (OT): On Friday night, the Eagles nearly pulled off a monumental upset over the host Chargers, who clinched first place in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference's Blue Division earlier in the week.

PCA, which slipped to 9-10 overall and 3-7 in the conference, led 22-18 at the half before Inter-City (14-4 and 9-1) rebounded to win in the extra session.

PCA guard Dave Koscielny sent the game into overtime by draining a 22-foot triple to knot the score at 54-all with five seconds remaining in regulation.

Sophomore guard Trevor Zinn led PCA's upset bid with 20 points and eight assists. Also shining for the Eagles were junior guard Matt Saagman (13 points) and Koscielny (11). Saagman and Koscielny combined to make five three-point shots.

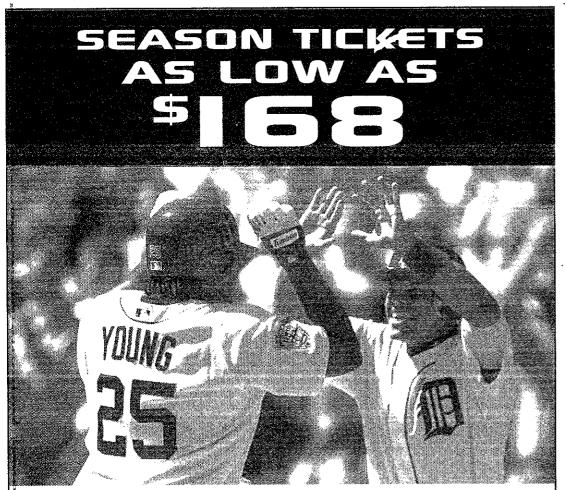

Brennan Rees led the Chargers with 14 points, 12 of which came after the break.

The Eagles struggled from the free-throw line, canning just 4-of-11 attempts. Inter-City drained just 10-of-23 from the stripe.

PCA closes out its regular season Tuesday night when it hosts Sterling Heights Bethesda.

Mudri's triple wins it for MU shot.

BY BRAD KADRICH STAFF WRITER

This was the point where Madonna's men's basketball team usually faded, if they got there at all.

Not this time.

Derrick Mudri hit a 3-pointer with 7.6 seconds left in overtime, and the Crusaders pressured Indiana Tech's Alan Frison into a missed 15-foot jumper as time expired as Madonna won its first-ever Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference playoff game by stopping Indiana Tech 85-84.

The win set the Crusaders (11-19) up with a date with Cornerstone, the tournament's second seed, in Saturday's WHAC semi-finals. Results of that game weren't available at press time.

"It was a big win because at that point in the year, if you lose your season is over," Madonna coach Chuck Henry said. "To me, the most exciting time of the year is the playoffs. If you're a competitor, you want to keep the season going."

Madonna led 44-41 at halftime, but IT came back in the second half, setting up the overtime dramatics.

After Mudri's 3-pointer with 7.6 seconds left, IT called timeout to set up a potential gamewinning shot. Frison got the ball around the free throw line, but the Crusaders managed to pressure him into missing the

BASKETBALL

Madonna's Joe Calhoun got a hand on the rebound and slapped it to midcourt to seal the deal.

"I knew we were down by two," Mudri said of his gamewinner. "I just came off a pick, had a step on the (defender) and shot it. I had no idea it was going in, and when it did, I was like, 'Wow, we're up one."

Mudri, who scored 20 points in the first half, finished with 33 points, including 6-of-12 from 3-point range, and grabbed seven rebounds. Doug Creighton chipped in 18 points, including 6-of-8 from the floor and 5-of-7 from longrange.

Madonna had lost to Indiana Tech twice this year already, and the Crusaders have made a habit of losing close games all year, according to Henry.

"We've not been able to get or maintain a lead at the end of games," Henry said. "It was nice to see the kids hang in there and beat one of the top opponents in our league." Athletic director Bryan

Rizzo went even farther than that. "We've beaten top-10 teams before," Rizzo said. "But I'd call this the biggest win in the team's history."

NO TIME TO REST

Once the Eagles' basketball season ends sometime next month, Saagman will have collected seven varsity letters three in soccer and two in both basketball and baseball. In all three sports, Saagman plays positions that are near the heart of the action --- the lefty pitches and plays first base for the Eagles' baseball squad, and he's a goalie/forward for the PCA soccer team.

"Of all the sports, I'd have to say I like basketball the best because it's the one I think I'm the best at and it's the sport I've been playing the longest," Saagman said. "I probably started playing basketball when I was 5 or 6 at the YMCA, so I've been doing it for awhile."

BRUSH WITH GREATNESS

Saagman knows what it takes to achieve greatness after serving as a waterboy for the Eagles' dominant teams of the late-90s that advanced as far as the Class D quarterfinals.

"That was an awesome experience," he remembered. "I'd like to see our team do something like that before I graduate. We lost a lot of seniors last... year, so we're really young this year, but next year we have a lot of players returning."

Saagman said he enjoys the ... everybody-knows-everybody. atmosphere at PCA.

"I love our school," he said. â/ "I've been playing basketball with some of my teammates since the fourth grade, so we have know what each other likes to log do."

Athleticism runs rampant in the Saagman family. His dad, 🖽 Keith, excelled in soccer at Calvin College and his sister, in the college and his sister, Amanda, was a standout ath- 🚓 lete at PCA and currently plays junior-varsity softball at the University of Michigan. 11

Brown fills Briggs' shoes as new Schoolcraft coach

Michael Brown is the new head basketball coach at Schoolcraft College, having served as an assistant coach during the 2005-06 season. Brown was an assistant varsity basketball coach at Belleville High School and a four-year starter in college, playing for Sienna Heights University his freshman and sophomore years and for Wayne State University his junior and senior years.

"I am genuinely inspired by the appointment of Michael Brown," said Sid Fox, Schoolcraft director of athletics.

"I'm extremely confident that as head coach, he will demonstrate an astute skill level, an eagerness and excitement that will be welcomed by the college community.

"Michael has the charismatic qualities and capacity to bridge the college community into a new era of support for basketball at Schoolcraft."

Brown said he is extremely excited to step into his first head coaching job.

"Schoolcraft has a great reputation, and the basketball program has had a lot of success in terms of the number of wins and players going on to fouryear schools," he said.

"That's what we want to do, take players on to the next level and help them get a degree."

In a written statement of his basketball philosophy, he said, "We want to be recognized as a national powerhouse basketball program, but we will not become that at the expense of our integrity, or the reputation of the program and school."

Brown said there will be no scholarship players returning for the 2006-07 season, and his first task is to recruit between 12 and 16 players.

"We want to put the best talent we can on the floor," he said. "There is a process for finding out what kind of person potential players are, what kind of players they are, and will they buy into my goals and the direction the school wants us to go. "I want to be in line with the

"I set some goals back in the summer — 300 game, 800 series, make match play in the Masters and winning the GDBA Senior Masters," said Biggs. "I've had four 300 games and two 800 series, I missed match play in the Masters but winning this has made my goals complete.

He is the current 1st vice presi dent of the GDBA, which will be changed over on May 1 to the USBC of Greater Detroit. More updates on that later as we get closer to the transition date.

The main topic of the most recent Ten Pin Alley column was all about the upcoming Pro-Am for the Ace hardware Professional Bowlers Tour coming to Taylor Lanes next month. Some callers were not quite sure of the various packages available, so we need a little clarification. The cost for the Exempt Package is $149 for youth and $169 for adults. The price includes the Brunswick Inferno Ball as well as the cash prizes and the rest of it.

This year the televised finals will take place right at Taylor Lanes instead of a remote location. Also, the Celebrity Bowl on Tuesday, March 14, will take place at Garden Bowl in Detroit, located on Woodward Avenue near Wayne State.

It is a fund-raiser for the Boys and Girls Club of Detroit. Now there is more added, as pro bowler Bob Learn, Jr. will conduct a special clinic at Taylor Lanes on Tuesday, March 14 at 7 p.m. It is sponsored by Columbia 300 and Track International bowling balls.Learn is also known as "Mr. 300" having bowled over fifty 300 games in his great career. The Clinic will include one hour classroom and one hour on the lanes, consisting of: Equipment evaluation, Grip analysis, CD of lesson and worksheet, coaching - ball selection and increased knowledge of your game and how to fix it when no coach is available. Cost is $100 and $75 will be applied to the purchase of a new ball if bought on the day of the clinic. This is a limited offer, there are only 20 spots available, call now - (734) 947-9077 or visit www.taylorlanes.com for this and any information on the Pro-Am. \blacksquare The US Bowling Congress Championships are now well underway at Corpus Christi, Texas and will run through July 1. It was formerly known as the ABC Tournament and will continue on in the same traditions from years past only the name has been changed The big difference is the venue for the USBC annual meeting is different from the tournament, it will be held April 19-23 at Orlando, Fla. The USBC Women's Championships - which were known as the WIBC - will take place this year March 16-July 2 in Reno, Nev. On March 14-15 the USBC Senior Championships will take place in Reno as well. Good news to report, the GDBA has been able sell it's east-side property and will soon be moving to a much more centrally located facility on Southfield Road in Lathrup Village. This will save some of the folks a good deal of gas money, in addition to sharing space with the Bowling Proprietors of Southeast Michigan. Plan ahead to manage change

My son is in fourth grade in Livonia. This means that next year he will be moving to a new school as part of the new Legacy Initiative. I mentioned this to him once and he got upset and said he didn't want to go. Should I continue to talk to him about this as the year goes on or wait until the summer? I don't want him to be stressed out about it all year long, but I don't know if he will feel blindsided by it if I wait too long. What do you think? Unsure in Livonia

Change can be very stressful. It is not unusual to experience significant levels of anxiety and insecurity. If the change is beyond our direct control, feelings of helplessness, frustration and victimization may result.

The key to successful transitions is preparation and planning. This means addressing it before it happens and making a plan of action. Even though this change is months away, it is not too soon to discuss. I believe that the most beneficial time to address concerns is as soon as they are identified. This allows sufficient time to study the alternatives and develop an effective plan of action. Having an idea of what is to come and a sense of preparation can dramatically reduce the amount of worry and apprehension that is experienced.

Encourage your son to talk with peers and find out how they are feeling. This will help to normalize his own emotions and thoughts. Sometimes, just knowing that others have similar feelings is enough to reduce our own negative emotions. I would also encourage you to speak with other parents, teachers, and school personnel to learn as much about this proposed transition as possible. Then, you may find yourself in a better position to help your son, as well as yourself, deal with this change. In the end, the amount of preparation and planning that is done may determine how stressful a transition will be. This is true for your son as well as for yourself.

The big deal about online teen sites TEENS IN 2006 C2

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

If Dr. Dennis Francisco, 57, was ever to stroll through downtown Plymouth again, he knew panicking would not help free him from the hairpin turn in the one-foot wide by two-and-one-half-foot high passageway inside Carter Caves in eastern Kentucky.

Francisco thrives on physical activity, whether bicycling 420 miles along the Oregon coast, walking the streets where he lives, or taking part in the annual Crawlathon. Crawling on his belly through the passageways is the only way to reach the 30-foot underground waterfall and mysterious areas that bats and blind fish call home.

"It's an underground adventure, getting lost in passageways, discovering neat formations or a slot in the floor that you drop through," said Francisco, an optometrist at Metropolitan Vision Associates in Dearborn Heights. "Each tour has a guide for 10 to 20 persons. It's something neat to do in winter and fairly warm. It's 55 degrees in the caves all year round."

Annually for the last 25 years, Carter Caves State Resort

Park has opened the more than 20 caverns to adventure seekers, depending on whether or not they meet the requirements for four levels of trips or tours. One of the cavers in this January's Crawlathon wisely decided not to enter the slimmest of passageways in Skyscraper Cave after becoming stuck once. Others were unable to gain access because they failed a 12-inch squeeze box test. Francisco had no doubt his 9- by 11inch helmet would fit through the passageway, but never counted on his size 14 feet. Unfortunately, his protective helmet didn't do much to shine any light on the predicament, but he was still happy it was on his head. In 2002, Francisco became lost in a cave. He was glad the lights didn't burn out then and leave him in the pitch-black underground.

"It's not enough to work in a dark room, I had to go play in some dark caves," said Francisco, who began his optometry career in Garden City in 1977. "The scariest moment was when I couldn't pull my foot through. I got this feeling, is this where I'm going to end up? I found a way to wiggle my foot and started breathing again. When you're on a belly crawi, it's kind of like doing the roller coaster at Cedar Point. You get through and say, 'That's fun.'

Francisco enjoys exploring the geological formations so much he's returned to Carter Caves three times since 1999, when he organized a group of 10 after learning about the adventure as a member of the SOLAR, an outdoor recreation club in Southfield (www.solaroutdoors.org). This year he returned alone. Although he and wife Kathleen bicycle and sail together, she "isn't into tight spaces." Their daughters Lauren, 25, and Susan, 19, have gone caving with him before, but were busy this year.

Unisanouni Optometrist works and plays in the dark

Diablo Cave along the Tygart Creek has some 'devilish' tight crawls. Raccoons and cave crickets call it home.

My wife and I have been reading books about behavior management and are confused on one specific point. What is the difference between a bribe and a reward? They seem the same to us which is confusing our efforts. We know that a reward is good and that a bribe is not, but if we can't tell the difference how can we use these tools correctly. Can you help us? Bob, Dearborn

I can understand your confusion. The ideas are very similar in that they are things that you present as incentive to get a desired response. The difference, although slight, is an important one and I will do my best to clear up any confusion.

As I see it, a bribe and a reward are things that are offered to increase a desired behavior. In this way, they are exactly the same. The difference is in how they are presented and awarded. A bribe is presented at the time and there is little or no planning in place. For example, a child is told, "If you stop throwing a fit, I will buy you a toy." The objective is to get a toy and this is clearly the lone motivation. The negative behavior becomes linked with the payoff, and in this way is reinforced. The child learns to employ misbehavior for his or her advantage and material gain. Familial blackmail ensues.

PLEASE SEE CHANGE, C6

Francisco warns caving is not for everyone. Bicycling thousands of miles a year keeps him in shape, as does walking four to six miles three times a week through Plymouth.

"It will be very dark," Francisco said. "You're going to be crawling. You're going to get very dirty.

"But Carter Caves is the perfect place to learn about caving. There's a two-hour orientation that teaches you never to touch rock with bare skin because the oils stick to the rock and ruin the formation. It costs only $30 for the entire weekend and if planned far enough in advance, lodging is available inside the park."

This year, the Crawlathon drew 562 cavers and 120 volunteer guides in search of a treasure of beauty underground. In the evenings, Squeezebox Competitions provided fun for ages 6 years and up.

"It's only one weekend a year," Francisco said.

"Throughout the year they do commercial cave tours, but several caves are only open for the Crawlathon because of

Expert has advice on clearing clutter, stress

BY JULIE BROWN STAFF WRITER

Chris Mack has six active e-mail messages, considerably fewer than most of us. Mack, a West Bloomfield resident, spoke Feb. 16 to the Plymouth-Canton Branch of the American Association of University Women, offering her knowledge of feng shui and how to reduce clutter and resulting stress.

"It's basically just an art form," Mack said of feng shui, which is 3,000-5,000 years old and includes placement of furniture for maximum harmony. She recommends the book Clear Your Clutter with Feng Shui by Karen Kingston (Broadway Books, 1999) as a good guide. "Our lives are so complicated. We have so much information thrown at us," she said.

Mack told the women that feng shui involves wind and water: "It's all about flow, it's all about harmony in your environment. What is it to you? It's your life. Don't let anybody else tell you what to work on here."

She uses the Bagua design, which has eight sides. "It looks like a stop sign, but it means start here," she said. "It gives you a way to focus your energy."

prosperity. The career area is associated with the color black.

Mack told of shifting a client's women's magazines with recipes into labeled blue boxes: "What a shift. It's just a matter again of shifting energy."

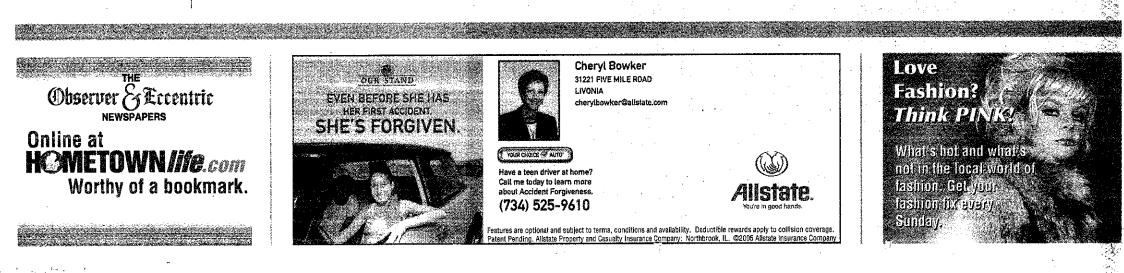

Mack said multitasking is overrated and just a way to get women to do more work. Self-love is essential, she added. As a veteran of the airline industry, Mack knows the importance of putting on your own oxygen mask before your child's in an emergency.

"The floor is not an extension of your desk," she said. Mack recommends that only a phone, computer and day planner be on the desktop, and that all papers be put away at the end of the day.

"Your desk greets your with clarity." The subconscious mind never turns off, she said. "It's panicking and you don't know it."

Mack describes homes as a sanctuary,the only one. "We need private sanctuary. It's a mean world out there," she told the audience at Heartland Healthcare Center in Canton.

Mack now works as a sales manager in the travel industry after 30 years as an airline employee. She can be reached at Keep-It-Simple Solutions, her business, (248) 977-KISS.

'Sky is the Limit' in Scouts' program to help troops

BY RICHELLE HERRIMAN CORRESPONDENT

C2 (CP)

No job too big, no girl too small. This is so true for one local Canton Girl Scout Brownie troop whose goal is "The Sky Is The Limit" when it comes to a service from their heart.

The 19 brownies, who are all 6- and 7-yearold first-graders at Eriksson Elementary in Canton, are goal-driven and fully supported by a cluster of people including their service unit manager, troop leader, trio of assistant leaders, a cookie mom and dad and the best parent support link they could ask for.

Tom Yack and the Canton Township board have also jumped onboard and given the thumbs up to support this more than worthy cause and are urging all of Canton's citizens to do the same.

"The Sky Is The Limit" if we all combine efforts to ship cases of cookies to our servicemen and women overseas. The goal is to stack cases of cookies that surpass the height of Canton's own symbol of patriotism, the American flag, located outside the Canton Township hall.

Canton is such a great community to live in due to its diversification. This goes hand-inhand with the Girl Scout fundamentals, which teach diversification and the concept of serving others.

How can you help? Donations will be collected in many different fashions.

For information and placing an order, call Ronda Stothers, service unit manager for Canton E, at (734) 844-2407 or mail donations to her at 375 Robyn Dr., Canton, MI 48187. Also, the township treasurer's office in the township hall and The Summit's information desk will be collecting donations until March 20. Only cash or checks made payable to Troop 640 will be accepted.

If you want to personally meet this troop and contribute to its cause, members will be at the Canton Expo held at The Canton Summit on The Park March 4-5. They will also be at the Cherry Hill Village 7-8 p.m. Feb. 24-26 by invitation and March 15 from 11 a.m. to noon and 6-8 p.m. by invitation also.

Canton's own Brand New Day espresso café, owned by Chris and Andrea Moceri, have also decided to play a major role in this worthy cause.

"Their business is such a great service to our community, so it didn't surprise me when Chris and Andrea decided to support the service men and women along with their local Girl Scouts and the Canton board," Stothers said.

Brand New Day will also be accepting donations at its location in the CherryOaks Plaza.

The 19 scouts in Brownie Troop 640, all 6- and 7-year-old first-graders at Eriksson Elementary in Canton, hope to ship cases of cookies to servicemen and women overseas.

This is located at 42480 Cherry Hill, on the corner of Cherry Hill and Lilley.

They can also be contacted by phone at (734)983-0334.

Another local business, with a heart for giving, has stepped forward to send these cases of cookies to our servicemen and women.

How many cases will this take, you might ask? Well, that fully depends on your contributions. We promise to do our part and look forward to Canton's support to this more than worthy cause.

Here's the 'big deal' about online teen sites riends bring gifts to friends. Mine are often inspirational writings and I am grateful. This column is from the Rev. Joseph Hindelang, principal at Notre Dame Preparatory in Pontiac. A student at the school is the daughter of the designer of my Healthy Newsletters (Bonnie Zielinski) to be printed in early March.

Hindelang has given me permission to share with readers his recent powerful message.

Dear Parents,

Please take a few minutes to read and investigate before you think that I am not speaking about your son or daughter. You may have recently read or heard about MySpace and other Internet sites where teenagers post personal information about themselves. Dateline, The Today Show, local television news programs and newspaper articles have talked about the popularity and danger of such sites. While many students post innocent information and pictures, far too many are posting provocative pictures, using foul language, writing about drinking, drug use, and sexual activity, and numbers. Quite a few students have also posted names and pictures of friends or team pictures from Notre Dame Prep. In their privacy policy, MySpace says that users may search for other members using first and last names, e-mail address, school, or workplace. We had no trouble finding and identifying many of our students.

The staff at Notre Dame Prep is concerned about the safety and moral wellbeing of your/our daughters, sons, and students. With as much as they know about computers and the Internet, many of them have not learned that there is potential danger in giving too much personal information in a public forum. As a priest and teacher, I have worked with teenagers for 28 years. I am not shocked by things that students say in confession or in personal counseling situations, but I am disappointed by inappropriate pictures, immoral behavior, and sexual invitations that are posted on some Web pages.

I am aware that this is not a problem that we face only at our school; other Catholic, private, and public schools also have a large percentage of students who post information on these sites. (One article says that MySpace is the fourth most popular site on the Internet.) The least that I expect is that every reference to Notre Dame Prep/NDP, any staff member, and every team or school picture be removed from personal Web pages. What I really hope for is that with "Caving's a different world. It's fascinating the way water forms these tunnels and passageways. It's a geologist's dream. There are underground rivers and streams that have blind fish, often transparent. It's a lesson in evolution with spiders and crickets with antennae three times longer than their bodies. In Diablo Cave, there are ground hogs and raccoons."

Although Francisco's "real passion is bicycling touring," he is planning to return to the caves most likely after a summer

In contrast, a reward is offered as a result of positive behavior and is coupled with verbal praise and reinforcement. "I am so proud of the way that you behaved in the store. Because you were so helpful to me, I'll let of sailing his boat on Lake St. Clair. Francisco learned to sail as a student at Henry Ford Community College and later became an instructor for American Youth Hostels while finishing his degree at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, Still, there's something about caving which attracts him to the twisting passageways below ground.

This time I went into Level 2 and 3 caves, and learned the basics of vertical caving where, you drop down into caves," Francisco said. "Caving offers plenty of excitement. If you do two to three caves in a day, you're worn out. Beginners can go down there and have a great time. To me it's like a miniadventure and because you're guided you won't be stranded somewhere."

The Crawlathon is one way to lure visitors to Carter Caves State Resort Park in winter.

"It's a great event for us in the dead of winter," said Coy Ainsley, park naturalist. "What's good about the Crawlathon is it's geared to any level caver." Next year's Crawlathon is scheduled for Jan. 26-28. For more information, call (606)

The child's positive behavior is the focus and the reward is just the icing on the cake. The child learns that positive behavior promotes positive outcomes. And, most importantly, that these positive outcomes are not material in nature but can be emotional and interpersonal.

Sarah Vaughan tribute to raise funds for Michigan Jazz Festival

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

If the audience notices a glimmering in the eyes of Naima Shamborguer on March 12, it might be a tear. Some songs just make the jazz singer cry - especially those from her new CD, My Heart to Yours. Shamborguer plans to include several of the love songs in her concert 3 p.m. Sunday, March 12, at Clarenceville High School in Livonia. The program is a tribute to Sarah Vaughan.

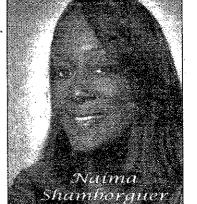

In 2001, Shamborguer received a Creative Artists Grant from the state of Michigan to develop a jazz education program on the late singer for Detroit Public School students. On March 12, Shamborguer brings Vaughan's life to the stage with professional actor Council Cargel reading the narration she wrote. A rhythm section composed of Buddy Budson, piano; Marion Hayden, bass, and Bert Myrick on drums back Shamborguer's vocals as they did on the CD released in January.

"It's narration about her life with interaction with the music so it's moving. It never stops," said Shamborguer.

'Sarah Vaughan's a favorite of mine. Her voice was so wonderful. Many people say I remind them of her. Our vocal tones are similar. It's really a compliment for people to feel that way about me.'

Shamborguer came from a similar background as Vaughan. She was raised in church and performed with her musical family.

"It seemed like I started singing from the crib," said

Naima Shamborguer sings the songs of Sarah Vaughan during a tribute to raise funds for the Michigan Jazz Festival.

Shamborguer who's sung professionally since 1964. "I was exposed to so much. My new CD has many different tempos with strings augmenting many of the tunes. I chose the songs because they're old standards that are beautiful, but you don't hear them, songs Sarah sang, and Nat King Cole and they mean a lot to my heart."

Shamborguer says she is not the only one who appreciates Vaughan's music. Since she began presenting the jazz education program in schools, students have overwhelmingly expressed their love for the music. In March, she'll perform the program in Oklahoma schools.

"The young have come to me and said I wish I had more of this in my classroom," said Shamborguer who feels like she's keeping Vaughan's legacy alive.

The March 12 show not only features music which Vaughan sang like If You Could See Me Now, but songs she might have sung like Here's to Life. Send in the Clowns is sure to be a crowd favorite.

www.hometownlife.com

"I want to make people feel good when I sing and to leave a part of me with them, to sing as if I'm singing to each individual person and that they'll feel the music like I do," said Shamborguer.

"I chose those songs because they have a lots of life meaning.'

Midge Ellis is excited about the program because Sarah Vaughan was her favorite singer. She's hoping to sell all of the tickets since proceeds help fund the Michigan Jazz Festival Sunday, July 16, at Schoolcraft College.

Shamborguer has sung four times at the festival which costs over $30,000 to produce. Every year thousands of jazz fans enjoy the free performances by local musicians thanks in part to fundraisers such as the concert and a Father's Day Brunch.

"Sassy had a way with songs that in my opinion no other singer has," said Ellis of Livonia, "and Naima is very close to that. She's an excellent singer, a musician and knows the music."

Tickets for the March 12 concert are $15, and available by calling (248) 474-2720 or (734) 459-2454.

Shamborguer's new CD will be available for sale in the lobby. Some of the proceeds from the CD go to Variety Children's Foundation which she's been affiliated with for 20-years. The CDs are also available at Street Corner Music in Beverly Hills, or online at www.cdbaby.com.

Mushroom health risk negligible

John from Eastpointe e-mails asking if it's true that nonpoisonous mushrooms still contain harmful components.

John, the answer to your question is yes, but in such tiny quantities the risk is almost zero. There are two substances we watch and they are purine and agaratine. Purine aggravates gout. It is present in so many other foods, avoiding it for a gout sufferer is practically impossible.

However, agaratine causes cancer in laboratory animals. But, it is only present in the smallest trace found in mushrooms. To put it into perspective, you would have to eat a full serving of raw mushrooms every day of your life, by age 70, and it might give you a 1 in 10,000 risk of cancer. Cooking mushrooms further reduces the agaratine content by one-third. All of this adds up to a very low risk.

Mushrooms are a good source of protein, vitamin B, and other minerals. They also contain chemicals that fight breast cancer. So if you like mushrooms, just make sure they are cooked and cleaned properly because they are a good part of a balanced diet!

Sandy Baumann talks about the connection between good nutrition and learning in her new book.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

Sandy Baumann could set her watch by one male college student who regularly fell asleep at 11 a.m. during a biochemistry lecture she was giving. Convinced that skipping breakfast affects the brain's ability to learn, the Farmington Hills mother of two tested her theory by assigning an extra-credit project. For three days, students were to eat certain nutritious foods. Amazingly, the sleepy student stayed awake for the two-hour classes until resuming his old habits.

Baumann's observations intrigued her so much she decided to research nutrition and its connection to educational pursuits. The result was Feed Your Brain for Learning, a paperback book written for parents and students of all ages. Baumann is also the author of Feed Your Brain for Memory and Feed Your Bones Naturally.

"If you eat more protein for breakfast and lunch, you're more alert," said Baumann, a Farmington resident who earned a master's degree in biochemistry from Michigan State University. "I went into one school last week where the students were real fidgety and edgy and had difficulty paying attention. Many hadn't eaten breakfast."

Eating to learn Author concludes students need to feed their brains

BRAIN POWER

Along with food, the brain needs water, iron, oxygen, glucose, and a properly working thyroid. That means drinking one ounce of water for every two pounds of body weight, exercising and eating healthfully. In the book, Baumann tells what foods nourish the brain, why lack of water causes mental confusion and fatigue, and how physical activity helps improve memory.

"I have an acronym for the brain," said Baumann. "Be physically active. Remove soft drinks and caffeine. Add fruits and vegetables. Increase water. Never stop learning. When you learn new activities you grow more connections in your brain that makes it more efficient."

Baumann continues to learn as part of her job as program manager for Henry Ford Community College's Center for Lifelong Learning where she develops classes and conferences related to wellness. Prior to that, she promoted healthy living to senior citizens through Botsford General Hospital. It was there Baumann realized the importance of teaching good nutrition habits in childhood.

One Mountain Dew has 55 mg of caffeine which washes soluble C and B vitamins out of the body. The loss increases anxiety and restlessness.

SCHOOL AND LEARNING

One of Pamela Green's second-grade students at a Farmington elementary school couldn't sit still after drinking root beer every day. Another student skipped breakfast or ate Twizzlers. Green might never have known about their eating patterns if not for taking a workshop with Baumann at Farmington Public Schools training center.

"I had been frustrated because many students weren't completing assignments, were tardy or had inattentive behaviors. I wondered what these kids were eating and started asking them questions," said Green, who began her own research project with 20 of her students. Her findings appear in Chapter 9 of Baumann's book.a

"I wanted to see if I could truly make a difference in my kids," said Green, who taught a nutritional unit, served a high-protein breakfast menu to students for three weeks and kept track of assignments. The food cost her $1,000, but she feels the expense was well worth the results. Students completed 86 percent of the morning assignments compared to 27 percent before the study.

"I had a little boy complaining of migraine headaches," said Green. "He was always falling asleep, couldn't sit still when he was awake. After eating a healthy breakfast every morning, he started doing his work, was wellbehaved."

Still wondering three years later if the results could have been a fluke, Green started a breakfast program for the same students now in fifth grade at William Grace Elementary. Green wouldn't provide the food this time. Instead she asked parents to make a one-month commitment. Her statistics mirrored the first project.

"Attention increased. There were no tardy students or absences during that period of time," said Green. "During both studies I spent no time dealing with complaints – I'm hungry. I have a headache."

BREAKFAST MATTERS

Since tabulating her findings, Green has been looking for funding to continue the breakfast program.

"My biggest frustration is how do we do that all the time," said Green. "I still provide healthy snacks in my classroom, fresh fruit. It gets expensive, but it's worth it. If you go to bed at 8 p.m. and don't have breakfast, lunch at our school is at 1 p.m. You're asking your body to go on no fuel. When I put it that way their ears perk up.

"Lots of kids don't like standard breakfast foods. They said they didn't like wheat things, but I made an egg sausage casserole with wheat bread and they never knew. My husband (Matt) and I did a lot of cooking the night before."

Baumann keeps her breakfasts simple. A typical morning meal includes long-cooking oatmeal with 1/2 cup of organic milk and a handful of nuts sprinkled on top. Other days, she blends a protein shake from yogurt, honey, kiwi and flax seed.

"The trend is to have carbohydrates for breakfast, cereal and milk," said Baumann. "The brain thinks you're on Thanksgiving dinner. When blood sugar gets high you release insulin and then crash.

Broad protections of 'employment at will' under fire

Employers have traditionally relied on the "employment at will" doctrine, which allows both employers or employees the right to end the work relationship with or without notice and with or without cause. But the broad protection afforded by the doctrine is coming under legal challenge, reports the latest edition of the sharedHR Bulletin. (www.sharedHR.com/news/).

"Most employers are extremely frustrated to receive advice from employment attorneys or HR professionals suggesting restraint before exercising their right to terminate at will," said Paul Finkle, President and CEO of sharedHR.. "But an employer facing employment litigation quickly learns the 'at will' doctrine has been significantly eroded in many states."

He points to a recent case study in which a California employer terminated an hourly employee after just three months on the job. "The employer believed he was within his right to terminate at will," said Finkle. "However, the employee retained an attorney and threatened to sue. The employer settled when he discovered the lawsuit could cost as much as $20,000 to get to a summary judgment hearing, the first step in the process where the case might be dismissed."

The Bulletin offers several ways to help avoid expensive lawsuits when exercising the "at will" doctrine.

They include:

Documenting all actions, and using progressive disciplinary techniques, prior to discharge.

Establishing dispute resolution procedures at work. Many employees are driven to litigation because they were never given their "day in court." Set up a policy to give employees an audience with uninvolved managers to review all the facts before taking action.

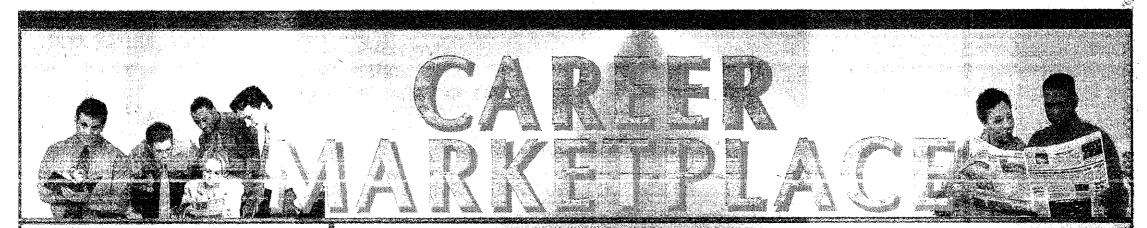

Using arbitration agreements as an exclusive means of employment dispute resolution. Arbitration lowers the stakes in most discharge disputes.

For a complete list of protective steps to take, point your browser to sharedHR.com/news.

While the ability to terminate without cause technically remains the law of the land, it is unlawful for any employer to terminate an employee based on factors such as race, color, creed, sexual orientation or violation of public policy, said Finkle.

"Employment litigation is expensive, time consuming, gut-grinding and negative for morale; it benefits no one," said Finkle. "Except in rare circumstances — employment at will is a myth."

Woodwind offers a 'unique' option in western Oakland County

BY ALEX LUNDBERG Staff Writer

The new development going up in Lyon Township, western Oakland County, is a bit pricier than others in the area. But the builders are convinced that they're offering something unique that others aren't.

Woodwind Village is being developed by two companies; Curtis Building Company and A&M Homes — under the new name of A&M Woodwind L.L.C.

The Curtis Building Company has been around since the end of World War II and is now on its third generation of homebuilders.

The Woodwind development is close to lakes, golf courses and recreational facilities and easy access to I-96 and I-275 making it just 45 minutes from Hart Plaza in Downtown Detroit and Ann Arbor, respectively.

Curtis Building Co. Vice-president Melvin Menuck said the units are more expensive than others, but they offer more to the customer.

"We've got unique floor plans not offered by the eight other builders in this area," he said. "They're pricier, but unique."

Prices for the Woodwind units range between $399,900 and $479,900. The development offers three different models.

■ The Augusta is a first floor master bedroom with a loft, two and a half baths and three bedrooms. There is also a fourth bedroom option available.

The Belmont is a four-bedroom colonial with three and a half baths and a unique raised den off of the stairway.

The Pinehurst is a four-bedroom colonial with a large living room, dining room, den and a two-story family room. There are two staircases and vaulted ceilings.

Any of these designs can be customized or, if requested, customer's own plans can be put in on the site. Three of the homes are available for immediate occupancy.

All three selections range between 2,997 square feet and 3,549 square feet. All of the homes feature full floor covering (hardwood in the kitchens), nook and foyer, three car side entry garages, Kohl plumbing fixtures, Nelson energy seal, granite kitchen countertops, custom dimensional base moldings, dimensional shingles, Kraftmaid cabinets, basement waterproofing, nine foot first floor ceilings, reverse-osmosis water softeners and concrete streets and sidewalks. "There's a lot more stuff, a lot more details," Menuck said. "The Woodwind units are better quality."

The development is set up in two phases. Phase one has 89 lots and phase two will have 81. There are currently 30 units sold and construction on phase two will begin in 2008. The entire project is slated to be finished in 2010.

NEW HOMES

Realtors provide extra benefits for homebuyers

I am going to buy a house. should I use a Realtor or am I better off looking myself?

I would suggest hiring a Realtor. By using a buyer's agent you get many services that you wouldn't normally have virtually for free. It is usually the seller who pays both the Realtor representing the seller and the one who is working for the buyer.

Here are some of the services that are provided to the buyer.

Information on all the houses and condos on the market. Realtors have access to all the homes that are listed, whether from their company or from another real estate company. All you have to do is give your Realtor the criteria that you wish him/her to search by and everything that meets your criteria will appear.

Touring the buyer on all the potential properties. Your Realtor will make appointments for you to see houses and go with you to see the properties that you are interested in.

Realtors can also help you determine the market value of the property. This is critical because in order to know how much to offer, you need knowledge of the home's market value. Realtors have access to the relevant information in order to find out how much the home is worth on the market.

Doing the cumbersome paperwork. The paperwork involved in buying a home can be very complicated. Your Realtor will write the purchase agreement on your behalf, take it through the inspection and the other contingencies, in order to bring the sale to a successful close.

A buyer's agent works for the buyer. Some of the duties that a buyer's agent must give to a buyer are "promoting the best interest of the buyer; fully disclosing to the seller all facts that might affect or influence the seller's decision to accept an offer to purchase; keeping confidential the buyer's motivation for buying; and presenting all offers on behalf of the buver."

Some buyers think that Realtors can only work for a buyer if it's a property listed with another Realtor. This isn't quite the case. Realtors can usually continue to work for you in a new construction and a for sale by owner.

I highly suggest that if you are working with a Realtor and you see a for sale by owner (unrepresented seller) tell your Realtor. Otherwise you can't take advantage of all the great services you would normally get from a Realtor.

Michael Aldouby is a columnist and a Realtor with Real Estate One. He has an M.B.A. with a concentration in marketing. Please feel free to call him at (734) 748-9621 or email him at michaelsellshomes@realestateone.com.

The Julius 2 a portrait of simple elegance

The Julius 2 (403-43) may be entered through the recessed gabled entry, protecting you from inclement weather. The garage entrance is located within the entry for easy access.

Kitchen amenities include a dishwasher, large walkin pantry, range and oven. Tucked in behind the kitchen is a utility room with space for a washer and dryer. The eating bar connects the kitchen to the nook and dining room, for easy access by the cook of the house.

Elegant in its simplicity, the living room is adorned with two large windows for enjoying nature. It is sure to be a gathering place for the family.

The master suite is large, with plenty of windows to enjoy the morning sun or an evening sunset. Its amenities include a large walk-in closet, a private bath with linen storage, and a shower.

The second floor recreation/den is spacious and made for relaxing after a long day at work or school. This enormous room has enough space for a pool table or Ping-Pong table, a big screen television, and a couple of couches.

For outdoor entertainment, the deck is accessible from the recreation/den through sliding glass doors. Completing the floor plan on this level is a bedroom with vaulted ceiling, a large walk-in closet, and a built-in desk. The bedroom shares a bathroom with the recreation/den.

The garage has a large storage or shop area in one corner. There is room for plenty of storage. The odd jobber of the house will have plenty of space for working on hobbies or fix-it projects.

For a study plan of the JULIUS 2 (403-43), send $15 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 or call (800) 562-1151. Lowe's has tips on organizing

E3 (*)

Use these tips to organize your home. Streamline your storage possibilities in your child's room, closets, laundry, or any room in your home.

Greanizing your entire home can seem overwhelming. Focus on one room at a time and work only in short intervals. Decide on a time limit -15 to 30 minutes a day is manageable — and set a kitchen timer. When the bell rings, stop working and be proud of what you've accomplished.

Every organization project starts with three basic steps: purge the items you no longer want or need, analyze what's left to determine how you use it and measure the space you have to figure out what will fit where.

When you're organizing, use a three-box system: keep, discard, and don't know. When you're finished, seal the don't know box and put it away. If you haven't opened it in a year, you don't really need whatever is in there. Throw it away without looking inside.

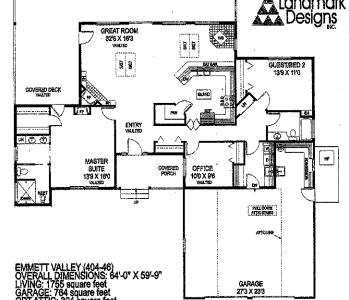

Create an inventory of the items in your home. Go room by room and write down each item in that room. For example: living room end table, price paid $400, replacement price $600. Keep the list in a fireproof safe or at your office.

CHILDREN'S STUFF

Use a double-rod system (top and bottom) in the closet. With the space you save, you'll have room to move a chest of drawers in there, too. You've just freed up floor space in the bedroom!

One way to organize your baby's clothes for at least a week is to use an over-the-door shoe holder. It goes over the door and hangs on the back.

Give each child a labeled hook, shelf and plastic bin in the mudroom. Boots, coats, bookbags and everything else will be easy to find if they have a regular home.

When was the last time you remember being excited about any car carrying the Lincoln name? It's been so long that I'll say "probably never." Years removed from the excitement the nameplate used to generate – we all remember the song "Hot Rod Lincoln," right? -- Lincolns were always cars that your older, more well-off relatives drove. Perhaps realizing that demographics might eventually make the name irrelevant, the Lincoln division of Ford has resurrected the Zephyr name first used in 1936 and slapped it on an all-new car for 2006.

Competing with the likes of entry-level Lexus and Infiniti models, the Zephyr is a five-passenger mid-size sedan with a lot going for it. The exterior package combines the classic Lincoln waterfall grille with quad projector-beam headlights (high-intensity lights are optional), fog lamps, 17-inch split spoke aluminum wheels and chrome-tipped dual exhaust. Heated, power outside mirrors are standard. The lines are nice, with a good combination of luxury looks and enough sportiness to hint at powerful performance.

While I'm not sure I'd use the word "powerful" to describe the Zephyr's performance, it's no slacker, either. While not in a sports car class, the standard Duratec 30 V-6 generates 221 hp and 205 lb.-ft. of torque – more than enough for everyday driving. It's mated with a six-speed transaxle automatic transmission. The combination will give you smooth acceleration through the gears and still provide you with a respectable 20/28 mpg on regular fuel.

The Zephyr, as you would expect in a car carrying the Lincoln name, gives you a nice ride, without feeling like a couch on wheels, like some older luxury cars. The front suspension uses a short-and long-arm design, with a double ball-joint control arm and coil-over damper suspension. The Zephyr's rear suspension uses a multi-link independent arrangement with lower control arms and a 17mm stabilizer bar. The bumps are smoothed out, and the ride is fairly quiet.

The power-assist rack-and-pinion power steering handles the car nicely and the braking is excellent.

You'd expect a Lincoln, even an entry-level mid-size like the Zephyr, to shine in the cabin, and it does. The cabin is full of leather and wood and looks like a luxury car should look – chrome bezels, welllit, easy-to-read analog gauges. The heated, 10-way power leather seats are comfortable and adjust easily to a good driving position. There's plenty of room up front; there's enough room – barely – for a rear passenger with the front seats put all the way back. There's lots of trunk space, too, and the 60/40 rear seats fold down.

The Zephyr comes with the usual standard features. Dual-zone automatic climate control, cruise control, universal garage door opener, tilt steering wheel and rear window defroster.

The standard audio system on the Zephyr is an AM/FM/six-disc CD changer with six speakers. You can upgrade to a THX-II audio system, which features 14 speakers (including two subwoofers) and it's a beauty. The sound is rich and deep and the highs are crisp and clean. It'll cost you $995 extra, but you won't pay that extra charge if you buy the navigation system that Lincoln offers ($2495). This is an easy-to-use system that allows you to do things like "breadcrumbing," which leaves marks on the streets you've traveled to help you find your way back, or confirm that, yes, you've already been this way. The 2006 Lincoln Zephyr starts at about $29,000, not bad for an entry-level luxury sedan. Add the navigation system, HID headlamps, and chrome wheels and you're at about $33,000.

Lincoln is betting that it can get a younger generation in the door to see the Zephyr. If you're looking for an entry-level mid-size luxury vehicle, and you've been sticking with the imports, you really should put the Zephyr on your list. It's been awhile since Lincoln's had anything exciting going on. This qualifies.
