and it's his job to oversee the process of destroying the house, which has been deemed a dangerous structure, largely due to the damage caused by growing marijuana inside.

This type of crossover of efforts was exactly what Public Safety Director John Santomauro envisioned for the restructuring of the township's ordinance inspection officers, which were last month brought under the umbrella of the Public Safety Department, from the Building Department.

Building set for renovation

BY CAROL MARSHALL STAFF WRITER

When the parks maintenance building was constructed in 1995, the 10,000-square-foot structure was built to service Pheasant Run Golf Course.

"At that time there were three full-time parks employees and five or six seasonal," said Abe Vinitski, parks and golf supervisor. "Since then, we've added Independence Park, Freedom Park, nine new holes at the golf course, Cherry Hill Village, which is like a city block."

And the building which services all those recreational facilities has become overcrowded, jammed to the rafters with equipment. The staff has ballooned to nine full-time and 25 seasonal parks workers, and two full-time and 25 seasonal golf course employees. From that building, all operations for Pheasant Run and the township's parks are coordinated and executed — including irrigation maintenance, mowing and landscaping, tree and snow removal, special events support, playground upkeep, trash removal and upkeep of athletic fields.

And it's becoming outdated to the point of inefficient.

Next month, the township will begin renovating. and expanding the building, which is situated at the north end of Heritage Park. The expansion will increase the building's size to nearly 15,000 square feet, and will include enough wash rooms and break areas for employees to get out of the summer heat for lunch breaks. "Right now we take our lunch breaks outside," said Tom Leh, golf operations supervisor, nodding toward picnic tables underneath an awning on the building's north side. Near the picnic tables, stacks of concrete blocks and bags of fertilizer are piled higher than a man can reach. Working through the $1 million construction project (which includes funding for improvements) to the maintenance building at Victory Park) won't be easy, Vinitski said. The computer and electrical system which works the irrigation for Pheasant Run must be re-routed to a series of temporary construction trailers. And during construction, there is a disruption of work, as items get moved and shifted around. But the short-term inconvenience will pay off when the project is completed in six months, he said. We'll work around the construction. Most of our full-time staff has lived through the growth, so they're already used to changes," Vinitski said. "It's already been inconvenient for some time." The expansion will allow for better storage of equipment and supplies, more complete training for employees, and more room for the department's two full-time mechanics to work efficiently year-round. "The township has supplied us with lots of great equipment, and with dollars the way they are now, we have to take very good care of it and make it last," Vinitski said. "At the same time, we sometimes are a little too creative with where we put things." He said that he would like for some of the mechanical equipment which now can't fit inside the building to be brought indoors, safe from exposure to the weather. The project will be paid for by the 2006 Community Improvement Fund budget, which includes $1 million for the renovation and expansion of the building at Heritage Park, and the parks maintenance building at Victory Park. The estimated total costs for the improvements is $1,052,955.

Earlier this summer, a raid shut down a "grow house" in a tuckedaway home on a dirt road in Canton. Western Wayne Narcotics officers pulled from every room in growing equipment, along with the growers' crop. And that's when Sean Heck's work began. "It was basically a factory," Heck said of the house.

The transition has so far been positive, Heck said.

Drama costs candidate her museum job

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Historical Society board of directors voted Wednesday night to terminate Beth Stewart as executive director of the Plymouth Historical Museum, an appointment she's held the past 17 years.

Stewart, who took a leave of absence June 1 from the $25,000-a-year job to run for the 20th District House seat, recently came under fire for allegedly using the museum and its resources to promote her campaign.

A group calling itself Citizens to Save the Museum, headed by former Plymouth Township police chief Carl Berry, filed complaints with the Internal Revenue Service and Michigan Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land seeking investigations into alleged campaign violations by Stewart, as well as possible violations of the museum's nonprofit status by the Plymouth Historical Society. The Historical Society board passed several resolutions, including the one which called for terminating Stewart immediately.

"She is no longer the executive director," confirmed attorney David Thoms of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, who represents the Historical Society board. "The vote was unanimous."

Thoms declined to go into further detail, noting a letter will be sent to museum supporters which will detail more information.

The Historical Society board also voted to form a search committee to find a new executive director. Historical Society President Sanford Burr is currently the interim executive director.

Stewart, who received word via a telephone call after the meeting, said of the museum board, "I don't blame them. They've been

New Belleville principal is ready to get started

When Belleville High School students return to the classroom this year, there will be a new face to greet them. Sheila Brown was hired late last month to be the school's new principal. She reports for her first day on the job Aug. 7. Brown comes to the district with more than two decades of experience.

"I spent 18 years at Huron High School, teaching psychology, history and law," Brown said. While teaching, she earned a master's degree in administration, and landed a job at Northville High School, where for five years she served as assistant principal.

"Then Belleville came up, and I was ready

35TH DISTRICT COURT

Incumbent: 'Institutional knowledge' key in district court race

Ron Lowe has an advantage he thinks is a key component in the race for his 35th District Court seat in Tuesday's primary election: His experience.

Lowe said his 12 years of institutional knowledge is important, and will become even moreso when Chief Judge John MacDonald retires in two years.

Lowe, one of three candidates in Tuesday's election, took time to answer questions posed by the Observer:

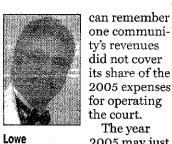

Q. How has the 35th District Court been impacted by the addition a few years ago of a third judge? Is the third judge still necessary?

A. When I first took the bench the 35th had two judges and a caseload that often merited a third judge. The caseload was greater than what the Supreme Court Administrators Office (SCAO) recommended for two judges (roughly 30.000) but less than what would be necessary for a third judge (roughly 45,000). The court had continuously updated its computers, processes and programs to facilitate and provide the most streamlined handling of the business of the court. All too often the courtroom had the appearance of what I called "production line justice." Approximately four years ago a third judge was added, creating an environment where judges could take more time to hear a party or lawyer out, to ask another question, to explain their ruling or simply to answer a question. Q. How should the court balance rising costs with falling revenue? A. Almost from its creation the 35th has returned revenues in excess of its operating budget to the five communities we serve. For the first time that I be an unusual one, or it may signal a trend that no one wants to see: a court that is funded by the communities. The court's administration needs to continue to diligently investigate all of the causes of this change in how the court funds its operation.

Q. How effective are programs run by the court, particularly those affecting young people, and what would you do to improve them?

A. Generally I believe the programs are effective. With that said I am never opposed to taking another look at any program the court has implemented to see how it can be improved upon or even whether it should be continued.

It was at the suggestion of the communities the 35th sought and obtained authority to handle juvenile matters, which I believe is very effective in addressing juvenile offenses that would otherwise be overwhelmed by if not lost in the Wayne County Juvenile Court. It was a suggestion by the public defenders office, working with the assistant Wayne County Prosecutor, that resulted in a sentencing "guideline" for domestic violence defendants. And it was my attendance at a conference, as well as conversations with other judges, that led to the creation of the 35th's "sobriety court" and the "teen court" as a tool for use by the courts juvenile probation officer when addressing juvenile offenders. The 35th District Court was the first in the state to have its judges cross-assigned to act as Probate Court Judges on juvenile offenses committed in the courts jurisdiction. It is a win-win-win situation.

Q. What are upcoming issues or areas of concern that could affect the 35th District Court?

A. When it was determined that one of the communities would have to supplement the an answer and discovered an immediate concern: As many as 35 types of tickets per the court's civil fines schedule currently collect an insufficient amount of money to cover the cost to the community to write that ticket.

www.hometownlife.com

As much as I believe that the punishment should reflect the crime I am not of the opinion that the fines and costs on civil infractions should be held below an amount sufficient to cover their costs. I have suggested to the court's administration that this be addressed.

In two years Chief Judge John MacDonald will retire and take with him his extensive years of institutional memory and experience. At that time the leadership of the court will fall to the other two judges and the new judge elected to fill Judge MacDonald's position. Whether the other two judges will have 14 and 6 years of experience to draw upon or only 6 and 2 will be determined by this election.

Q. What can be done in the light of declining revenue and rising costs to make the court run more efficiently?

A. Several months ago I found myself recommending, almost simultaneously to the court administrator making the same recommendation, that the court acquire a program that will merge with our current computer case handling system to facilitate follow up and collections on delinquent debt. The court has acquired that program. What remains is for the staff to be trained and the system implemented. Until it is implemented and fully operational it remains a step the court can take to become more efficient.

Q. What makes you the best candidate for election to the 35th District Court?

A. I am the only candidate in this race to have been rated "OUTSTANDING" (the highest possible rating) by the Detroit Metropolitan Bar Association. I have 12 years of. experience as District Court Judge. I strive to be fair, firm and consistent in all of my rulings. My experience on the bench as well as my community and professional involvement make me uniquely qualified.

35TH DISTRICT COURT

Lawyer: Experience on both sides his edge

Plymouth attorney Brian Stacey hopes his varied experience in criminal and civil cases can overcome name recognition and an incumbent candidate in Tuesday's primary election for the 35th District Court.

Stacey is among three candidates running for one seat; the top two will face a run-off in the November general election.

Stacey took the time to answer questions posed by the Plymouth Observer: Q. How has the 35Th District Court been impacted by the addition a few years ago of a third judge? Is the third judge still necessary?

A. I believe the addition of a third judge has been a good thing. The court covers five densely populated municipalities which provide for a heavy caseload. With the new judgeship they are able to disperse the caseload giving the judges more time to deal with the parties on a more individual basis.

Furthermore, the addition of Judge Gerou specifically has been a very good addition to the bench. Since I am in the courthouse almost every day I see firsthand how busy the individual judges and the first-floor clerks are, and I believe the third judgeship is still necessary.

Q. How should the court balance rising costs with falling revenue?

A. One of the first things I would do is meet with the police chiefs from the five municipalities regarding the feasibility of writing more tickets under local ordinance instead of state law. When tickets are written under state law the local communities have to share revenue with Wayne County.

Another thing I would look at would be assessing the cost of prosecution on individuals at the time of sentencing.

Q. How effective are programs run by the court, particularly those affecting young people, and what would you do to improve them?

A. I do not believe teen court is a good use of judicial time. It is my understanding the program only handles a few cases at the high school each half-day a judge is there. Whereas, during the same half-day a judge sitting at the courthouse would handle 30-40 cases. I also believe a young person would appreciate the seriousness of their offense more by appearing in the courtroom instead of at the school.

Q. What are upcoming issues or areas of concern that could affect the 35Th District Court?

A. One issue is that the court allows prosecutors and social workers to bring cell phones into the court, but not attorneys who are there for civil or criminal matters. Almost all other courts in the state allow attorneys to bring cell phones into the court because that is where attorneys work. It may seem petty but I believe it is disrespectful to a member of the bar and makes their ability to practice law more difficult.

Q. What can be done in the light of declining revenue and rising costs to make the court run more efficiently?

A. I would look into charging more cases under local ordinances and assessing the cost of prosecution on criminal defendants. Another aspect of the court I would change is the way defendants are provided court-appointed attorneys.

The firm providing the court-appointed attorneys is doing a great job; however, almost anyone who asks for one gets one.

I would only enforce the Court, and therefore the municipalities, to carry the financial burden if there is a real possibility the defendant would go to jail, or the defendant signs an "affidavit of indi-

Candidate plays up city attorney role

Northville attorney James Plakas has been a prosecutor and a city attorney for 11 years, and he has represented clients as plaintiffs and defendants in civil and criminal matters.

Plakas figures that would give him insight into how decisions made at the 35th District Court level affect local municipalities, an edge he's hoping carries him to a win in Tuesday's primary, where he's one of three candidates running for one seat.

Plakas took the time to answer questions posed by the Plymouth Observer:

Q. How has the 35th District Court been impacted by the addition a few years ago of a third judge? Is the third Judge still necessary?

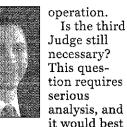

A. The Court, with the addition of the third Judge, has been able to effectively and efficiently process all cases filed within the five communities it serves. Caseload, timely disposition, and the effective administration of justice are hallmarks of the Court gence" swearing they cannot afford an attorney and they do not own any personal property they could sell to get the money to hire an attorney.

This may seem harsh but these are the only two times the Court is required to provide a Court appointed attorney.

Q. What makes you the best candidate?

A. I have been a Plymouth resident for over 35 years, a local business owner, job provider, and taxpayer. I have background in over 500 criminal jury trials and over 100 civil trials. I am well versed in the rules of evidence and courtroom procedures. I am the only candidate who would enforce the law as the legislature enacted it. I would not try to reach a conclusion based on my own moral compass.

it would best be answered by the 35th

District Court Management Council/Board and the Chief Judge. Every two years the Supreme Court State Court Administrative Office (SCAO) publishes "Judicial Resources Recommendations". It is my recollection that the last such SCAO report was issued in October 2005, and that a review of the report found that no change is contemplated/recommended at this time.

Q. How should the court balance rising costs with falling revenue?

A. A candidate for judicial office has to think about the purpose of a court's existence. Is it to generate revenue or is it to dispense justice fairly, equitably and timely, and to meet all mandates required by the State Constitution and all laws pertinent to the District Court operation?

The total costs necessary to provide a safe, respectful, efficient Court operation that meets or exceeds the mandates of the law and the Court Rules as well as all Supreme Court directives, along with meeting the needs of the communities it serves, is paramount.

Recent trends toward improvements in data processing, communications and collections lead me to believe that under the leadership of Chief Judge John MacDonald, the 35th District Court is responding by providing a well run operation for the communities and the public it serves.

Q. How effective are programs run by the Court, particularly those affecting young people and what would you do to improve them?

A. Programs in place appear to be meeting the requests of the communities. The work program/community service contingent, the juvenile case processing division, the drug and sobriety court programs all appear to be meeting the needs of the communities and the individual's judicial orders.

Q. What are upcoming issues or areas of concern that could affect the 35th District Court?

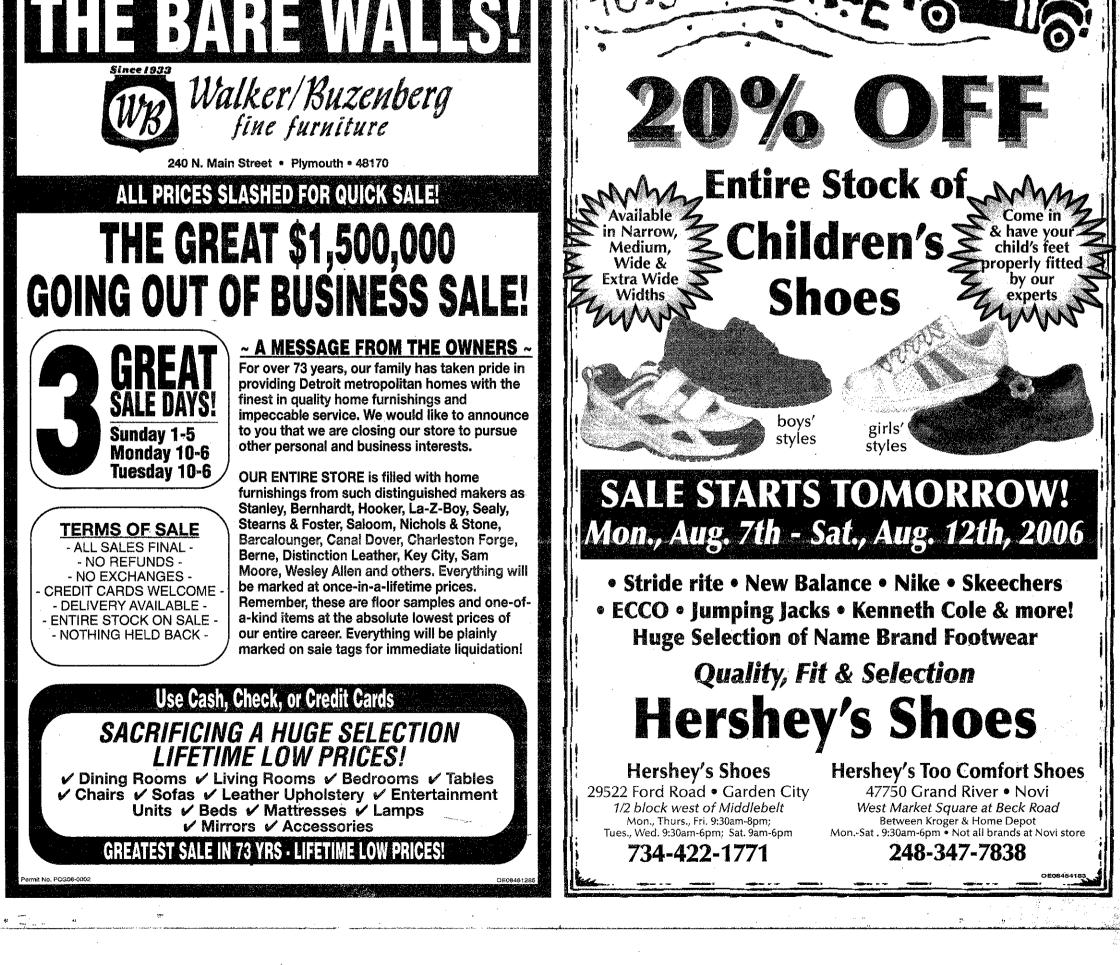

A. I look at the court as a leader among courts in delivering justice to the people it serves. One area that appears to call for reflection and study is how to effectively deal with the rise in domestic violence case filings in a way that breaks the cycle of abuse and preserves the family unit if at all possible. Additionally, given the widespread building, development and growth throughout the communities, building and property maintenance codes must be reviewed and properly enforced.

Yack at it again

Tom Yack, supposed Republican, is at it again, throwing his support behind a longtime liberal Democrat supporter.

Apparently, Yack is not content with controlling the township board, the Downtown Development Authority, the Planning Commission and a number of other committees in Canton. He now wants to exercise his control over the judiciary by supporting 35th District Judge hopeful and Westland City Attorney Jim Plakas.

Why did Yack choose not to support the seasoned and respected incumbent Judge Ron Lowe? Could it be because Judge Lowe has consistently shown impartialness (i.e. not one of Yack's puppets) as evidenced by his ruling that helped to save the Big Boy statue and left Yack and company with egg on their faces?

Or is it Judge Lowe's ability to help neighbors settle disputes without making the populace bow down to "city hall?" Or is it because Yack wants Canton to become another Westland? One thing that Yack and Plakas have in common is their mutual love for big government, big political donations and big developers.

A vote for Plakas would be a vote for Yack and his developer buddies at the citizen's expense. I'll pass on that. I'll stick with Judge Lowe.

Applaud Stewart

Although I have found the dialogue regarding Beth Stewart's campaign mailings both interesting and humorous, it is time to get back to the real issues and identify who will best represent our district in Lansing.

I applaud the Observer for their endorsement of Mrs.

Stewart and echo their belief she will be the best representative for our district. Beth has been an extremely positive force in promoting our community, in her role as director of the museum, in her membership in other historical societies, and in her promotion and participation in many civic organizations and events.

If everything I read is correct, then Beth Stewart correctly handled the use of the bulk mailing permit by first obtaining permission from the permit owner and in paying the commercial rate for the copies and mailings. Also, I believe the meeting room is available for rental by any of the candidates at the same rate paid by the Stewart campaign.

If there is any issue here it is with the museum administrative process, not with Mrs. Stewart's candidacy or qualifications. Having said that, I would applaud Beth for making frugal use of the extremely limited campaign contributions.

This "frugal" attitude is exactly the type of fiscal responsibility I want in my state representative. Pursuing those types of cost-saving opportunities in Lansing could go a long way toward reducing the cost of government, reducing our tax burden, encouraging new businesses to locate in Michigan and improving the support of public schools.

As for Carl Berry and his mythical "Citizens to Save the Museum," I am a member of many organizations and I can actually name names of the members. I am a longtime member of the Plymouth Historical Society and I have never been informed the museum needed "saving."

In fact, no one has contacted me regarding the need for any action by the Society. As a matter of fact, I don't recall ever seeing Carl Berry at any of the meetings. As for who is really behind it, I know Carl is "old school," but I thought we got rid of these Republican campaign tactics when we got rid of Richard Nixon.

Q. What makes you the best candidate?

A. I have been an Assistant City Attorney and Prosecutor for the past 11 years. As an attorney I have also represented countless clients as plaintiffs and defendants in a wide variety of civil and criminal matters. As a City Attorney, I understand the direct impact a District Court Judge's decisions can have upon a community. As a Prosecutor, I have seen, recognize and respect the difficulties and challenges our police officers face each and every day. As a general practitioner, I am aware of and understand the problems and obstacles that people face throughout a lifetime. My knowledge of the law and well-rounded background have subtly molded me to be tough but fair, level-headed, courteous, patient and understanding when it comes to the administration of justice.

"I tried to keep the museum out if it as much as I could by taking my leave of absence," Stewart said. "I did use the museum's permit number, but I paid the same rate as everybody else. Anybody is allowed to rent the museum."

Thoms said the Historical Society board also voted Wednesday night to:

Establish a committee to review and revise the museum policies relative to the use of the public room, archive collection, photocopiers and other equipment, as well as other assets of the museum.

Establish, on an interim basis, a management committee of three board members to oversee day-to-day operations until a new executive director can be found.

Establish a committee to review a checks and balance system regarding actions of the interim executive management committee or future executive director.

"The committee will determine checks and balances so one person isn't able to give total permission and receive total permission to do things." Thoms said.

Berry said it wasn't his intention to get Stewart fired. "I just want to make sure the museum does the proper thing," Berry said. "I think they are taking the necessary steps, not only in relation to politics, but also in their policy, to stay out of the political fray in the future." Historical Society board members have declined to comment until the letter is sent to museum members. However, on the condition of anonymity, one board member said it was a sad day.

"Beth is a good friend to everybody on the board, and the board regrets the place it was put and the action it had to take, upon the advice of the attorney to save the museum," said the board member. "Really, we had no other option."

Donna Keough, the exhibits coordinator at the museum, has been part of the museum the past 17 years, as long as Stewart.

"Things have gotten way out of proportion and there are people out to get her at all costs," Keough said. "They unfortunately picked on a person who has such integrity and intelligence. I don't feel anything she did was, in her mind, wrong.'

Keough said the Plymouth Historical Museum will continue to do great things, despite the absence of Stewart.

"Beth has built a very strong base, and gathered people around her that have talent," Keough said. "We're all committed to what the museum represents, and will continue to keep it going."

Event helps plan pay dividends

It wasn't necessarily the first time there had been a kidnapping in Wayne County, nor was it the first time a disagreement arose out of a disagreement over drugs. But it was the first time a Canton Township restructuring plan which folded the ordinance inspection officers into the police department had proven how sharing resources works in the community's favor.

It was a couple of weeks ago, right after the four ordinance officers were brought under the public safety umbrella, that a woman was taken from a house in Canton.

"According to the report, she owed money to a drug dealer from Detroit," said Sgt. Rick Pomorski. "She had been hiding for some time, and he found out where she was. He came there, entered the house, brandished a gun, took her against her will and went back to Detroit."

As he was leaving, the man told the other people in the weren't available to us before," he said, noting the LEIN (Law Enforcement Information Network) system, which can help him retrieve more information about people he's trying to bring into ordinance compliance. Wearing a more official-looking uniform and driving a marked car doesn't hurt either.

"We're just easy to identify that way," Heck said. "And it just makes sense. We're sort of a mix between police and inspectors. Not that we carry weapons, or would want to, but we do sometimes have to write tickets, and we are enforcing our community's laws."

It takes a certain level of interpersonal skill to do a job like Heck's.

"We do a lot of explaining and educating people, and you have to be patient with people," he said. "If you get pulled over because you're speeding and you get a ticket, you can shrug that off and live with it. But when someone is telling you that your home is not in compliance with ordinance, that's more personal."

house she owed him $2,000, Pomorski said.

Through the night police obtained the suspect's phone number, and convinced him to let officers speak with her to be sure she was safe. They met at gas station near Southfield and Plymouth roads, and she approached the patrol car.

"She said she needed help," Pomorski said. She got into the Heck said his colleague, Ken Kunka, excels at dealing with people consistently and compassionately. "What we want to do is to get people into compliance," Kunka said. "Sometimes we have to write tickets, but that's the last thing we want to do."

One such case was a large home day care in a residential neighborhood. The township's ordinance doesn't allow home day care operations that large. Kunka worked with the woman who owns the business, and she agreed, after being cited and going to court, to lease a building to operate the child care center. "That had a positive outcome,"

Kunka said.

Because the public safety department is a 24-hour operation, very often officers are called to deal with issues that may otherwise be handled by ordinance officers, he said. Complaints about noise, blight and graffiti are often handled by police, when the appropriate person to handle the task may actually be an ordinance officer.

In order to become full civilian members of the police department, the ordinance officers underwent a two-week training period, which included an introduction to the culture of the public safety department, briefing on policies and procedures, an introduction to the communipatrol car, and was taken back to Canton. Once that part of the investigation was underway, the ordinance officers were brought in to deal with the home from which the woman was taken. Pomorski said there are unlicensed vehicles on the property, and there may be other ordinance violations.

ride-along with a police officer and a fire inspector, and a threeday orientation program.

The township spent $2,200 to re-mark the ordinance officer automobiles, $2,400 on uniforms, and $300 to move their phone lines to the police station. The four salaries totaling $206,000, and fringes amounting to $82,400 were absorbed by the public safety budget.

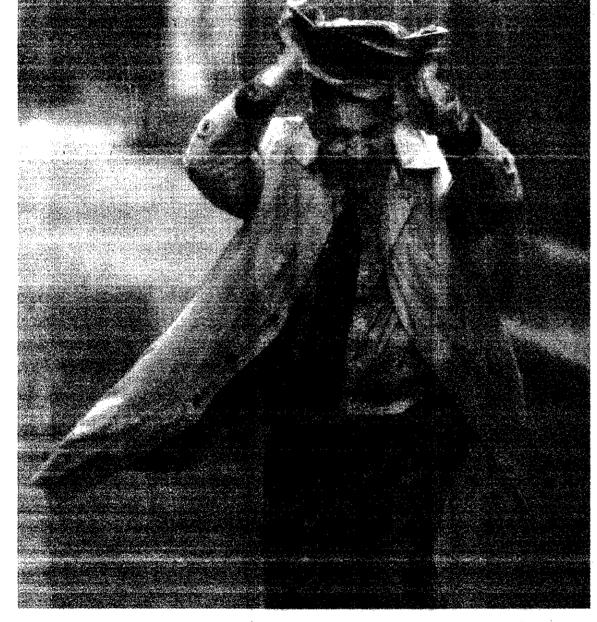

It's Santomauro's hope that the ordinance officers will be able to move from a reactive method of operation to one that is proactive, focusing on public education, compliance to ordinances, and strict enforcement.

"I don't know why we would wait for someone to call," said Santomauro about complaints such as trash in the parking lots or commercial vehicles on residential property. "Probably the whole essence of

"Probably the whole essence of what ordinance (and inspection) does is property standards," Santomauro said.

And property standards have a direct impact on the perception of safety of any community, he said, a theory known as the "broken window theory," in which something as simple as fixing all the broken windows in a community immediately began to decrease crime rates.

We recommend these picks in Tuesday's primary elections

Here's a final look at the candidates we endorse in Tuesday's primary elections, and the reasons why:

35th District Court

We believe incumbent Judge Ron Lowe should be voters' choice to retain his seat on the 35th District Court. Lowe has handled more than 40,000 civil and criminal cases in his 12 years on the 35th District Court. Before that, he spent 12 years in private practice, including time as the attorney for the City of Plymouth. A resident of the district

Lowe A resident of the district since 1968, Lowe has been instrumental in creating some of the 35th District Court's most effective programs, such as the sobriety court and teen court. The sobriety court focuses on substance abuse of certain qualifying offenders charged with drunken driving. The teen court, a tool used by the court's juvenile probation officer, is a partnership with Plymouth High School (and being renewed this year with the Northville High School) wherein students taking the practical law class are taught about the juvenile justice system, sentencing alternatives and when they would be appropriate, and how to fill the role of teen juror.

He's active in the community and either currently serves or has served on the boards of most of the major legal associations. His re-election would continue an institutional memory that will be severely hampered in two years when long-serving chief Judge John MacDonald retires.

20th House District

We recommend Beth Stewart in the Republican race and Marc Corriveau in the Democratic primary.

Stewart, is a strong community activist, serving for some 17 years as executive director of the Plymouth Historical Museum and in the Plymouth A.M. Rotary, where she is the president-elect. She is a strong supporter of public education, having worked with local educators to write grants to bring federal dollars into the district. She called education her top priority, and hopes to continue the fight waged by her husband. She also favors elimination of the single-business tax.

We think Stewart's moderate Republican views fit well in a district that seems to respond to them, judging by their turnout for a William Milliken book signing and their choice of Stewart's equally moderate husband, John, in three different elections. Stewart is our choice in the Republican primary.

Among the Democrats, we think Corriveau is the most ready to hit the ground running in Lansing. He cut his teeth in the 2004 election and ran an honorable campaign.

Corriveau said education is his top priority, and he'd tweak Proposal A to level out the funding problems, if that's what constituents wanted. He supports making prescription drugs more affordable, particularly to seniors. He also favors elimination of the single-business tax, though not before finding a replacement for its revenues, suggesting perhaps extending the sales tax to more than just goods.

County Commission, District 11

Canton's Loren Bennett, 55, is the best choice to represent a diverse district that includes developed communities like Canton, Belleville and the city of Wayne, as well as the more rural townships of Sumpter and Van Buren.

Bennett's long political career includes eight years on the Canton Township Board of Trustees, six years as the township's clerk and eight years as a state senator. That experience will serve him well as a member of the county commission.

We recommend Loren Bennett in the Republican primary. He has the governmental experience, knowledge and skills to work with other commissioners to get things done. He best represents the interests of the people living in the 11th District.

U.S. Senate

Bouchard

In the Republican primary for the United States Senate, we endorse the nomination of Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard to challenge incumbent Democratic Sen. Debbie Stabenow in November.

Bouchard offers a broad range of experience as a police officer, city council member, state legislator and, since 1999, sheriff of Michigan's second largest county. He has been emphasizing his expertise on homeland security issues. He has a strong conservative background balanced with a reputation as a state legislator who was able to work with Democrats across on the aisle.

We believe he will offer voters a strong, thoughtful contest between two seasoned legislators with definite but not acrimonious differences on the important issues facing the U.S. Senate.

Responding to allegations

Elsewhere in this newspaper, I presume it will have been reported that the Plymouth Historical Museum terminated my employment as its executive director. I know it was a wrenching decision for many board members. I have enjoyed the support of the board throughout my 17 years as director and have been fortunate to enjoy the support of a large network of dedicated volunteers, as well.

I understand and accept the decision to terminate my employment, which decision was made on the advice of its legal counsel. It was, I believe, a pre-emptive move to derail a possible investigation of the museum relative to the allegations made against me by the so-called "Citizens to Save the Museum."

This group, whose only known member is Carl Berry, has filed a complaint with the IRS, who oversees the activities of nonprofits. The museum must protect its tax-exempt status and to do so must establish it does not provide support to political candidates.

I would not do anything to jeopardize the ability of the museum to continue to be a major cultural and educational resource in our community. I have given my professional life to the museum. I want my professional legacy to include that I helped to grow a museum to serve the community in perpetuity. By terminating my employment, the PHM board will likely avoid an investigation of the allegations.

I would note that Mr. Berry supports another candidate. I would further note that not only is Mr. Berry not a member of the Plymouth Historical Society, his support for other community institutions and initiatives has apparently gone undetected.

Last week, in this newspaper, I refuted the allegations that I improperly used my relationship with PHM for political gain, both before and during my leave of absence. I accept responsibility for failing to more thoroughly examine and consider the ramifications of my use of the museum's bulk mail permit (for which I received the museum's permission and paid the appropriate and required amount of postage) and for scheduling a campaign event at the museum (for which I paid the appropriate and required amount of rent) that followed the museum's Milliken event.

The decision to schedule the campaign event was mine and mine alone. The decision to use the bulk mail permit number was also mine and was based upon advice I received from a local postal official. With hindsight, I should have steered clear of anything that could have been construed to imply the museum's support for my candidacy.

I ask for your continued support for the Plymouth Historical Museum, its board of directors and its dedicated volunteers. And please view Mr. Berry's form of community initiative for what it is.

Beth Stewart Plymouth Township

Admires Stewart

Normally, as a religious leader in the community, I do not comment on local politics. The very essence of a democracy is that we are free to express our varied opinions and I know within the 1,300 members of First Presbyterian Church-Plymouth we value all opinions.

However, the attack on the integrity of Beth Stewart in your newspaper needs to be addressed. We here at the church respect and admire her enthusiasm and her commitment to Plymouth. I have known her for 12 years and she approaches life with grace and dignity. She has done a remarkable job for the museum and given up the prospect of a healthy corporate career to serve the community and the 'church.

I would encourage you in your reporting to be balanced and to invite her political opponents to share their vision for revitalizing Michigan. From their approach it would appear that they are bereft of ideas.

Let the debate continue but let it happen around issues and not the gutter politics which others seek.

Rev. Dr. James Skimins senior pastor

First Presbyterian Church

Supports Lamar

I am writing to recommend consideration of a vote for Joanne Lamar for state representative.

With the many issues facing our area and the State of Michigan, Joanne brings a unique background to positively address them. Her deep background in health care and education would bring a much needed perspective to key issues in these areas. However, these are not her greatest strengths for addressing economic and other issues.

Those strengths are her fearlessness and energy to address tough issues. I've known Joanne for almost 10 years and have seen her demonstrate this over and over again. She persistently asks the tough questions and makes the tough decisions needed.

Please take the time to vote in the Aug. 8 primary election and consider a vote for Joanne Lamar for State Representative.

John Jackson Plymouth Township

Enthusiastic support

I write in enthusiastic support of the candidacy of Beth Stewart for the Republican nomination for State Representative in the 20th District. She has long been active in issues of education, the environment, small business, as well as a leader in local community projects, including the Plymouth Historical Museum. As an outstanding contributor to her community she would bring the same kind of energy and commitment to the whole 20th District and to the State of Michigan.

I wholeheartedly endorse Beth Stewart for the Republican nomination as State Representative in the 20th District. I believe she will make an outstanding contribution to the District and to the State of Michigan.

Tigers Trivia: Area woman put the growl in 1968 radio commercial

BY NORMAN PRADY CORRESPONDENT

Like hundreds or a thousand or more times before, she walked into the recording studio and took her place at the microphone.

It was a morning in 1968 on a day and date she can't recall. To her, just another workday. A producer had called her to perform on a radio commercial for a local advertiser. He told her that he liked her voice, calling it warm and intimate, sultry and legally seductive.

She looked at the script, saying the words quietly to herself, and then asked the producer what kind of reading he was looking for.

Gates Brown.

"I had started out in acting in junior high," Paula Tucker said. "I tried out for the juvenile lead on the television show General Electric Theater but I lost out to a girl named Helene. I ended up as her understudy.

"I was a better actress but she was thin. I was a little on the chunky side."

Born Paula Jackson in Detroit, in a year she refuses to reveal, Tucker said she began acting in local professional theaters while still a teenager. But she was torn between the doggedly demanding life of an actress and the gratifying service work of a dog doctor.

Mickey Lolich, Norm Cash. "I tried out for plays and television shows and did some acting and also worked for a veterinarian after school. I cleaned kennels and assisted with operations, but when I got to college I didn't like the biology.

"I went to Wayne State, did shows at the Bonstelle Theatre. Wayne didn't have a theater department then, it had a speech department.

"At the Bonstelle, I was acting and building scenery and painting and doing lighting." Bill Freehan, Joe Sparma, Pat Dobson.

Her backstage work developed into expertise that in turn led her to frequently step behind the scenes of the camera.

After being pressed to fill in for an absent script supervisor on an industrial film project, Tucker let her production work begin to take precedence over acting. Eventually, she received credentials and membership as an assistant director, then as a director, from the Directors Guild of America, the professional group that represents most of those who make the movies, TV shows, and commercials that we see. ried to Bill Tucker, a professional bowler and pro shop owner. They live in Huntington Woods.

Two years before, on that forgotten date in 1968, she went into that studio "just to do a job." It was just a job, she said.

"If I'd been eager for recognition, I'd have stayed in front of the camera. Voice-over work is mostly anonymous. But my family and friends knew what I did that day.

"It doesn't bother me that all these years I've remained the unknown voice on a radio announcement that now seems to be going on forever. It matters to me that I was pleased with the performance I gave that morning."

Eddie Mathews, Jim Price, Mickey Stanley.

"I did what I was asked to do. I never like to leave a session until I'm sure it's my best work."

The work that Tucker was asked to do that morning in 1968 was to speak four words and make a sound.

The four words became the rousing cheer of the 1968 Detroit Tigers, all the way through their four-games-tothree defeat of the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series. The four words Tucker spoke that morning remain the call that links Tigers fans together season after season, forever restoring spirits on the team's worst days and intensifying the sunshine on its best.

The four words Tucker spoke that morning:

"Go get 'em, Tiger!"

And then what did she do? Yep. She growled. She said the four words and then she growled a growl that continues four decades later to evoke the crack of Detroit bats against balls, the perfume of fresh-cut grass, and an unyielding belief in the vision of victory.

It's a tiger growl that might echo endlessly at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull. Just ask the Tigers who played there.

Dynamic Boxing Club makes noise in K.C. with new bus

To go the distance, Chuck Phillips believes his Dynamic Boxing Club in Westland should have all the amenities.

So the gym owner decided his team of boxers needed some reliable transportation traveling to tournaments. He went out and purchased a used 1983 Chevrolet school bus, which was recently reconditioned.

"We were fortunate to get it, we got it two months ago at the Wheat & Rye (restaurant)," said Phillips, who opened the club 16 months ago located on 28212 Warren Road. Fitness meet produces 7 gold medals

Fifteen athletes representing the City of Livonia Department of Parks and Recreation came away with awards in the 48th annual 2005 Detroit Metropolitan Area Youth Fitness Meet held July 20 at Kensington Metropark.

Nineteen different communities, including two districts from the City of Detroit, were represented in the finals, which consisted of dashes (50, 60 and 75 yards), softball throw, standing long jump, running long jump, agility run, shuttle relay and chinning.

Boys and girls competed in the following age classifications: Class A, 13-14; Class B, 11-12; Class C, 9-10; and Class D, 7-8.

Among Livonia's contingent of 31 which captured first places included: Alex Ryktarsyk, chinning (Class B); Matthew Freed, chinning (Class C); Lauren Larson, running long jump (Class D); Robert Freed, standing long jump (Class A); Tasha McKinley, standing long jump (Class C); Chelsea Williams, softball throw (Class A); and Mairi VanDyke, 50 dash (Class C).

Second places went to Livonia's Sheila McKinley, agility run (Class C); Melani Kieling, chinning (Class B); Michael Brzezinski, running long jump (Class B); Maxwell Montini, running long jump (Class C).

Among the third place finishers for Livonia: Matthew Mangulabnan, standing long jump (Class B); Paige Ackman, softball throw (Class D); Justin VanDyke, 50 dash (Class C); and Michel Mestdagh, 50 dash (Class D).

Rams win final Johnstown tuneup

The 20-and-under Michigan Rams, scheduled to begin play Monday in the All-American Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa., improved to 26-11-1 overall with a 7-6 exhibition victory Wednesday night over host Troy Jet Box at Fraser High School.

The Rams, runner-up in the Livonia Michigan Collegiate Baseball League to the 22-and-under Michigan Bulls, finished exhibition play at 2-0-1.

Scott Cain (Grand Valley State) went 3-for-4 with a pair of doubles for the Rams, who rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh inning to earn the victory over the unlimited-age Stan Musial Division team. Cain delivered the game-winning RBI, scoring Ryan Shay, who went 4for-4 with three runs scored. Mike Sacha added two hits for the winners, while Matt Nickels, Eric Vojtkofsky, Andrew Stafford and Billy Anderson each knocking in runs.

Winning pitcher Bobby Henderson pitched two scoreless innings in relief. The Eastern Michigan University lefty did not allow a hit, while striking out one and walking

Paul Gergies was the losing pitcher in relief of starter Keith Perez for Jet Box (32-8). He gave up five runs on seven hits in two innings.

Ron Kochan went 3-for-4 with two runs scored for Jet Box. Mike Miller and Mark Abro collected two RBI each, while Don Wachowski went 2for-3 with an RBI.

The 18-member Rams, who reached the final four in last year's double-elimination AAABA Tournament, returned eight players off last year's squad and a veteran coaching staff led by Rick Berryman, Harv Weingarden and Mike Taylor.

Michigan Independent Athletic Conference seeks 12th school

BY DAN STICKRADT STAFF WRITER

The long-standing Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, comprised of several area parochial and private schools, is seeking to expand its borders.

Founded in 1978, the league could add at least one new member school this year and could see further expansion in upcoming years.

We're definitely looking for a 12th school right now," said Ed Mehlberg, league president and longtime athletic director at Auburn Hills Oakland Christian. "We have been in contact with some schools already."

The MIAC, which sponsors 12 league sports (six for each gender), is currently split into two divisions, red and blue, based on enrollment and strength in a particular sport. Sports sponsored by the league include soccer, basketball, cross country, track, baseball and golf for boys, while for girls there is basketball, soccer, cross country, track, volleyball and softball. A couple of the current members also field football teams.

The current members include Oakland Christian (enrollment 199), Birmingham Roeper (185), Southfield Christian (278), Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (74), Allen Park Inter-City Baptist (116), Plymouth Christian (177), Novi Franklin Road Christian (82), Canton Agape Christian (85), Taylor Baptist Park (71), Warren Macomb Christian (89) and Parkway Christian (186).

Since its inception 28 years ago, the league has had 19 different members.

Roseville Calvary Baptist, Warren Baptist Christian, Clawson Christian and Troy Zion Christian were all members during the 1980s, but each closed its doors during that decade. Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian was also a member until it closed in 2001.

Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest, Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett and Lutheran High Westland all left in the early 1990s to join the Metro Conference.

The vacancy in the two-division league, which is made up of eight Christian schools, one Baptist school, one Lutheran school and one private school, occurred when two members, Sterling Heights Bethesda Christian and Warren Zoe Christian, merged this summer and will operate on Bethesda's campus as Sterling Heights

Parkway Christian.

"With those two schools merging, it allows us to bring in at least one new school," Mehlberg said. "Personally, I would love to see us bring in a few more, which would give us even more credibility and be larger, kind of like the OAA. But not everyone in the league is supporting that. We'll see what happens.

We're a bunch of small schools," continued Mehlberg, noting that all members are Class D schools with the exception of one Class C school. "But as a whole, we have some very competitive teams in a lot of sports and some schools have won state championships over the years."

The MIAC has sent letters to a handful of small parochial and private schools around the Detroit area, the league doesn't allow for charter or public schools to become members, and has received an official application from one school - Ypsilanti Calvary Christian.

Calvary, which has 77 high school students, competed as an independent this past school year after departing from the Fundamental Baptist Athletic Conference in 2005.

The MIAC has also been in contact with Detroit Urban Lutheran (103 students), Saline Washtenaw Christian (50), Taylor Light & Life Christian (85), Waterford Mt. Zion Christian (60) and Auburn Hills Greater Life Academy (86), among others, and will consider other applicants.

Light and Life and Urban Lutheran are both members of the Catholic High School League, even though they are not Catholic high schools. Mt. Zion and Greater Life are independents, while Washtenaw Christian is currently in the Mid-South Conference.

The league will consider all options before its next athletic directors/principals meeting this November.

"We'll go with 11 schools for now," Mehlberg said. "If one of these schools fits, as to what we are looking for, they might become members by the spring sports season or next school year."

Liggett officials have also stressed some interest in coming back to the MIAC down the road if the league had enough schools with football teams, according to Mehlberg.

Currently, only Parkway Christian and Southfield Christian sponsor football and Southfield Christian will be starting its inaugural football season this month.

4th annual Angela Run is Aug. 13

The Mary Angela Run committee is preparing for its fourth annual event to benefit Angela Hospice of Livonia. The run takes place at 9 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 13, at the Oakland Community College Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills

The event offers a 5-kilometer run, 10K run, and 1-mile fitness walk. A children's race is also scheduled.

"We had a great turn out last nally patients and their families. Now in its fourth year, the event was first conceived as a way to honor the memory of 24-year-old Mary Angela DiGiovanni who was involved in a fatal car accident in January of 2003. DiGiovanni was a University of Michigan Public Health student with a desire to improve health care and help people in need.

What began as an event planned with love by DiGiovanni's friends and family has expanded to an annual event with community-wide appeal. The 2005 event saw nearly 1,000 attendees. "We're grateful to the DiGiovanni and Jess families who have put so much time and effort into making this a wonderful event to benefit Angela Hospice," said Sister Giovanni, Angela Hospice president and CEO. "It is a wonderful tribute to Mary Angela and a blessing to all of the patients who benefit from hospice care."

The registration fee is $20, or $50 for a Mary's Angelsponsorship, which includes a special Mary's Angel T-shirt and recognition on event signage. Participants may register in advance or the day of the event beginning at 7:30 a.m. For more information on the Mary Angela Run or to register for the event, visit www.angelahospice.org or call (734) 953-6015.

ESSON ON By Jeff Lesson

BARGAINS ABOUND

If you ever dreamed about joining one of those toney private clubs in Metro Detroit but were scared away by the price, now is your chance.

With the competitive nature of the business, combined with the sluggish economy and the overbuilding of golf courses in the 1990s, there are bargains all over the place.

There are places that will let you in the door for an initiation fee of $5,000.00 and less! Still a nice chunk of change, but a far cry from what it used to be. Some of these places have charged $20,000.00 and more in the past for initiation fees. Some of these are classic Donald Ross designs that have hosted major tournaments.

There are other places (very exclusive ones) that also have great financing deals with very little money down. Of course, it is all about getting members to pay the monthly dues and fees for the clubs. That is the only way they are going to survive in this economic environment.

The reality of the situation is outside of Oakland Hills in Bloomfield Township and Barton Hills in Ann Arbor, there are very few if any other places with a waiting list. Most of the others are in dire need of members. These deals probably won't ever get much better.

Jeff Lesson hosts "Lesson on Golf" weekend mornings on WWJ Newsradio 950 and Saturday mornings 7-8am on 1270 XYT. He also co-hosts "Michigan Golf Weekly Saturdays at 6pm on CBS Detroit TV.

70th Gavie Tourney launches new season mach August marks the John P. Gavie Memorial Tournament, the traditional kickoff of the new bowling season

The 70th annual Gavie will be Monday, Aug. 21 at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park. In the old days, there was a lot more hullabaloo with the big parade up

Those may have been the good old days, but the sport of bowling just goes on and on each year with new innovations, new people and newer technology

In the early days, pinboys worked the pits and the choice of balls was limited to a very few.

A 300 game was indeed a rarity, but over the years, it's still basically the same game. The foundation of bowling is league competition. Currently there are fewer leagues, but the Detroit area still maintains the position of Bowling Capitol of the World.

We have more bowlers, more leagues, more bowling centers and more casual participants than any other city in the world.

And for the second straight year, the youth bowlers will be able to participate in their own Gavie event, a few days earlier, beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 19 at Thunderbird Lanes.

As for the main event, the senior squad will start at 3 p.m. with the main event following 7 p.m. (includes opening ceremonies and introductions). Last year, the Gavie was a great success with a huge turnout. This year's event is expected to be bigger and better than ever.

For more information, or to enter your team by phone, call Frank Gavie at (586) 773-1544.

All her best friends call her "Mud," which is a nickname worn proudly by Darlene Gunter of Garden City. Bowling in the Wednesday summer house league July 26 at Town'n Country Lanes in Westland, "Mud" recently set a new house record for high series by a woman when she rolled games of 248-247-279.

That adds up to a whopping 774, which put her at the top of the all time list in the house. The previous high series was 769 by Sandy Byers.

A few years ago, "Mud" rolled a 300 game and for some strange reason gave the ball away to her husband, Greg. He had it re-drilled by Aleta Sill to fit his hand, and rolled a 300 game himself with the same ball the very first try. He also had a second perfect game later on with the same ball. Both husband and wife carry around a 200 plus average.

Asked why the odd moniker, she replied: "My dad used to always tell me, if you mess up, your name is Mud. I heard it so often that it stuck."

She also answers to Darlene, but whatever you call her she is a terrific bowler.

Congratulations are in order for Phil Horowitz of West Bloomfield for his victory in the Senior Olympics last week in Kalamazoo.

Phil captured a gold medal in the 65-69 age group singles with a 677 series, then he teamed up with Joel Eitner of Taylor to win gold in doubles.

"I don't remember the score," Horowitz said, "but we were behind the whole match until the tenth frame of the last game. s.html. I marked and Joel doubled for the win."

This qualifies Horowitz and Eitner for the National Senior Olympics in doubles and singles next July in Kentucky.

hen I was a young girl my mom was always on the war path about my so-called character development.

"What is that?" I wondered out loud. Words like ethics and self-respect flowed easily from her mouth but, at the age of 5, all of this talk just went right over my head. It wouldn't be long before she got her chance to show me exactly what she was talking about.

The early 1970s offered up some confusing and challenging times for America. Recovery from the racially charged riots of the late 1960s was on the mind of many. Forced school busing would soon hold the nation captive. But, the summer of 1974 would take Americans to a place many would never want to see again.

Bobbie Jones

In 1968, Richard Milhous Nixon became America's 37th President after he defeated Hubert Humphrey in an extremely close race, and from all accounts it seemed that by this time politics had already made Nixon a bitter and suspicious man.

America would not learn the full extent of Nixon's bitter, mistrustful and vengeful nature until it was too late, but for now the 1968 victory was his to revel in.

I was barely a toddler in 1968, but my mom told me later on I was already poised to take on the world. All toddlers are in that state, I figured.

Nixon got a second victory in 1972 when he won re-election as President of the United States, this time in a landslide against Democrat George McGovern. This time, however, the glow of victory would soon dim.

Tom Koppin agrees it is unusual to feature alligators at the Wayne County Fair in Belleville. For the last 60 years families have come to the fairgrounds expecting to see cows, sheep and rabbits as well as the biggest and best produce around.

The Wayne County Fair board has no intention of altering the agricultural format of the fair which the Democratic National Committee offices inside the Watergate complex in June of 1972, I was 6 years old and if television news reports did not keep me abreast of the action, Mom sure did.

Wayne County Fair celebrates 60 years with new attractions

Mom was particularly interested as time went on with three individuals who roamed the halls of the Nixon White House. Nixon's Attorney General, Elliot Richardson, and his Deputy Attorney General, William Ruckelshaus, who would soon find themselves faced with a life-changing dilemma.

As it became more and more evident that Nixon's lies were beginning to catch up with him, Nixon set out to eliminate a key figure he knew would not stop his dogged pursuit and that was Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the third hero in my mother's eyes.

When my mom discovered that Richardson and Ruckelshaus refused Nixon's orders to fire Cox and resigned instead, self-respect really became her battle cry. She began to explain to me that I should never let anyone on God's green Earth intimidate me into doing something I know in my heart is wrong. She wanted me to follow their lead, she said.

Every day as individuals we are faced with choices, some difficult, some easy, but every day after the previous day we have to wake up and look in the mirror. I began to see what my mother was talking about as I got older and have been able to pretty much stay on course. Have I been hated because I stand my ground? Yes. Have some labeled me a troublemaker for standing up for the common man and trying to do what's right? Of, course.

But, one thing keeps me going something I heard Nixon say himself in an interview. Nixon wanted to relay to the American people what he had learned over the years and that was - If you allow the hatred of your enemies to get the better of you then your enemies win. Nixon knew this, but he still let suspicion, bitterness, hatred and vengeance cloud his judgment.

So, as the 32nd anniversary of Nixon's pitiful and disgraceful departure from the political landscape passes, I am allowing myself to learn the lesson that he is still teaching, and that is with God's help, never to do what he did.

I hope my fellow Americans are learning that lesson as well.

Although Koppin is now fair board president, he began volunteering 20-years ago because his three children were raising and exhibiting livestock at the fair through 4-H. In fact, Koppin says his children's interest in animals led to their career choices as adults. Daughter Kelly Schalte is a technician at Canton Center Animal Hospital and son Paul is studying to be a veterinarian. Livestock will always be the heart of the fair, but the board wants to offer a variety of new family fun like rock climbing in addition to the popular pony rides, minimodified tractor pull and demolition derby.

Tea drinkers imbibe for pleasure and health

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

Colleen Cannon is surprised that people are drinking tea in the hot weather, but then there's so many blends of black, green, red, and herbal to try at TranquiliTea, her new shop in Plymouth.

Tea is hot whether it's loose whole leaf sold by the ounce at Cannon's new shop, or bagged for medicinal purposes at Better Health in Plymouth.

On a nearly 100-degree day last week, it was cool inside both locations. At TranquiliTea, Cannon was serving up hot cups of Sweet Sin Rooibos, a red tea from South Africa. The garnet color sparkled in the white cup. Drinking tea is a sensual experience that stimulates the eye and palate as well as the sense of smell.

"Several of the blends are good for iced teas. Anything with fruit is wonderful," said Cannon, a Livonia resident who left a corporate office in Farmington Hills to open her tea shop after visiting a similar business in Tennessee.

TranquiliTea literally offers a brew for every taste bud. From the moment a customer walks in the door, aromas tease the nose with black currants, cinnamon, lavender, and lemon myrtle. Cannon constantly taste tests new blends to add to the 70 she already carries from China, Sri Lanka, and around the world.

Sniff jars in front of each canister allow budding tea drinkers to select according to their noses. Connoisseurs have no problem choosing from a traditional like Lapsang Souchong, an ancient tea from China made from leaves dried over smoking pine fires, or a nontraditional like Paris, a blend of currant, caramel and bergamot.

TEA

Cannon recommends some of her best sellers for drinking cold. Iced Cherry Tea blends black, green and dried fruits. For those who can't drink caffeine, she offers Grandma's Fruit Garden with dried apples, black currant, strawberry and raspberry pieces, and strawberry leaves.

One side of the shop features primarily black teas, the other wall green teas. Depending on a person's tolerance for caffeine, they can select the amount of stimulant right for them. Someone watching their diet might want to treat their sweet tooth to the calorie-free Decaffeinated Chocolate Truffle while a college student who wants to cram for exams all night would drink Budda Boost with guarana for energy. Each ounce of tea makes 6-10 cups.

Cannon is a wealth of information not only about preparation and steeping times, but the history of tea. It was 2737 B.C. when Shen Nung, an emperor in China, accidentally dropped leaves into a pot of boiling water. By 1650, the Dutch were involved with trading throughout the Western world and brought the drink to America.

THE EXPERIENCE

Cannon began drinking tea in her teens when the female members of her family celebrated special occasions with a pot of the beverage. She stocks traditional as well as contemporary pots for brewing along with cups and mugs, strainers, and tea bags. Infusers allow any pot to brew tea quickly and easily. My grandmother had us over for tea after church," Cannon said. "There is this sharing that goes on. Tea makes you want to sit down and relax. It does give you a good sense that people describe as relaxed energy."

HEALTH BENEFITS

Bobbie Henrie's been drinking tea since she was a kid. Over the last 11 years in retail, she's watched the popularity of tea increase for a number of reasons.

"There tends to be trends. It's grown with all the talk about the health benefits of drinking black for cholesterol, green tea for antioxidants and cancer fighting, and the more people read and get educated, the more we sell," said Henrie, a Canton resident who manages Better Health in Plymouth. "Tea is the most benign way of introducing someone to alternatives (for health).

"Originally tea came in as an alternative to coffee that tastes good. People weren't concerned about health benefits. Today we sell a lot of green tea."

Better Health offers a full array of herbal teas including horsetail (Equisetum Arvense) which contains silica and is not only good for hair, skin and nails but helps remove lead from the body.

Menopausal women buy black cohosh and red clover while pregnant moms drink ginger tea to curb their nausea. Other customers drink tea for pleasure.

Chai tea sells better in wintertime as an alternative to hot cocoa or coffee. In summer for iced tea, Henrie likes to experiment by mixing Alvita spearmint with Celestial Seasonings Caffeine Free Herbal or Lemon Zinger.

"People view tea as a comfort food," Henrie said. "It's not difficult to make, and you're not investing a lot of money."

In addition to selling loose whole leaf tea, TranquiliTea offers several brewed selections to go at 580-3 Forest. For

"We'll have horse shows all week long with kids competing who raised their own horses. We have 90 horses entered already," said Slebodnik, a Wayne resident who serves on the fair board.

"Tuesday night is the pony pull with weighted sleds. Wednesday is a motorcycle show put on by Metro Motorsport in Canton, There's all kinds of little things going on all over."

While some of the activities like foam dancing on a floor of bubbles is free, the money raised from rock climbing, voting for the cutest baby and pet photos; or attending the pancake dinner (7 p.m. Saturday) goes to the fair which costs between $50,000 to $60,000 to produce. Visitors also have an opportunity to support the event by purchasing a raffle ticket for a chance to win one of three, three-foot bears carved by a chainsaw artist. Car and motorcycle enthus of celebrating agriculture in the county continue. Slebodnik began volunteering with the fair about 25 years after exhibiting baked goods and sewing. She won a trophy and gold ribbon and earned a spot in the state fair where she took second place for her chocolate chip cookies.

"I like organizing the fair to make it open for the public so they can have a nice time and something families can enjoy together," said Slebodnik. "And we want to make it affordable for the family to come."

Wayne County Fair admission is $2 a car from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. From 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday the cost is $5 per person for ages 8 and up, $7 per person Friday-Saturday. Children under age 8 are $2. The fair runs 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, Aug. 8-12.

Owings 40th anniversary

Dale and Charlene Owings of Livonia celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary with a cruise around the Hawaiian Islands.

The Owings were married June 11, 1966, in Cincinnati.

Joining them on their cruise were their children and their spouses: Kevin Owings of Canton, Kimberly and Keith Sandum of Virginia and Keith Joanne Owings.

Coughlins celebrate 25

Michael and Rebecca Coughlin celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary Aug. 7.

The Coughlins were married Aug. 7, 1981 at the Martha-Mary Chapel in Greenfield Village. The Canton residents are planning a second honeymoon trip to Maui, Hawaii, later this year. Maui was the site of their original honeymoon 25 years ago.

Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin has headed adult services at the Canton Public Library for 26 years, and Michael Coughlin sells cars at Michigan Car Mart in Detroit. Michael Coughlin is an avid sports fan and the couple shares a love of golf and enjoys getting out on the links together.

JANET C. GASS 87, passed away peacefully on July 2006, in Virginia Beach, VA, surrounded by her loving family. She was born August 13, 1918, to Dr. and Mrs. Albert S. Crawford in Kuling, China, Plymouth. where her father was an instructor at Yali University Medical School. Janet was an accomplished woman who attended the University of Michigan and contributed to the WWII effort as a Ford Motor Company employee in Dearborn. She was the widow of Rev. Dr. Kenneth H. Gass, former Rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Birmingham, and they had shared their lives in various Episcopal parishes in Ohio, Minnesota, and Michigan Janet's giving nature extended beyond her parish families to her community, where she served as a volunteer in elementary schools, public libraries, museums, hospitals, and Meals on Wheels. Her zest for learning continu-ally was spurred on by her love of travel and meeting fascinating people. some of her trips included summer vacations in Wyoming, journeys to England, living in Belgium and Germany with her family, returning to China 75 years after she had left there, and her final overseas travel - to Spain with her immediate family for few Years 2002. She is survived by her daughter Patricia Braidwood and son-in-law Douglas of Virginia Beach; grandchildren Robb Braidwood and his wife Ashley of Alexandria, VA, and Kirsteen Lankford and her hus-band Tom of Virginia Beach; and the loves of Janet's life - her two greatgrandsons, Curren Lankford and samuel Braidwood. She also is survived by her brother, David Crawford of Sun City Center, Florida; sisters Katie Foss and Margaret Crawford of Houston, Texas, and Betty Chamberlin of Sterling Heights, Michigan; and 11 nieces and nephews and their families. A memorial service and interment will take place at St. James Episcopal Church in Birmingham on August 12th at 11:00 AM. In lieu of flowers, a donation may be made to Episcopal Relief & Development (http://www.er-d.org) or The Nature Conservancy (http://www.nature.org/). The family wishes to thank the staff of Seaside Health Center at Atlantic Shores, Virginia Beach, for their kindness and loving care of Janet over the past two and a half years.

during the first two weeks. Finally, try to wait at least three months before trying a marathon-style run.

Carl from Westland has heard that men can suffer the symptoms of menopause and e-mails for more information.

Carl, research shows that men suffer from hormone fluctuations that trigger the signs of menopause too! With men, the changes in testosterone levels are more gradual so they tend to be less noticeable. Also, testosterone levels in men tend to drop the most during times of stress, so try taking it easy.

Men should get in at least 30 minutes of moderate exercise per day. In addition, a proper diet is a key factor to staying healthy. Men usually gain weight around the waist and fat cells in the abdomen have been shown to lower testosterone levels. So try to cut down on your intakes of sugar and fatty meats because they can also help prevent the signs of male menopause.

Bariatric surgery changes lives dramatically

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

For the first six years of his daughter's life, Larry Keenmon could only lie in bed after coming home from work. His job as produce buyer for Mike's Marketplace in Livonia wasn't draining his energy. It was the 414 pounds on his 5foot, 11-inch frame. Today, Keenmon is able to play soccer and bicycle with 7-year-old Cam, thanks to gastric bypass surgery at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia on Jan. 16. Since then he's lost 185 pounds, no longer uses a C-pap machine for sleep apnea, and takes one pill a day for high blood pressure instead of two. Prior to surgery he took seven medications including an antiinflammatory for knee and leg pain that prevented him from walking less than a block in his Canton neighborhood.

"I walk all the time now and never get tired anymore," said Keenmon, 44. "It's about quality of life. I had been overweight since high school, and every year it kept getting worse. I tried other (medical weight loss) programs including drinking nothing but liquid shakes for 130 days. I lost 120 pounds and gained back about 150."

Bariatric surgery is changing lives, but it is a serious step that should be taken only if all other methods of weight loss have failed. The surgery isn't for everyone since the procedures, for the most part, are permanent and require drastic lifestyle changes. Candidates need to be at least 100 pounds overweight with a BMI (body mass index) of greater than 35 to 40 depending on medical conditions.

Permanent weight loss

Larry Keenmon is now able to play soccer with his 7-year-old daughter. Cam. He has lost 185 pounds since his gastric bypass surgery at St. Mary Mercy Hospital on Jan. 16.

Many morbidly obese people have serious health problems so benefits from the surgery usually outweigh the risk. Gastric bypass and lap band, the two most available forms of minimally invasive bariatric surgery, do carry risks such as infection, hernias, bleeding, leakage and blockage at connections, blood clots, and death. Both surgeries reduce the size of the stomach and intake of nutrients necessary for health. Keenmon vomits whenever he eats too much. On the other hand, morbid obesity leads to cardiovascular disease, Type 2 diabetes, high blood pressure and cholesterol, degenerative joint disease, and a shorter life span.

Dr. Tallal Zeni, who directs the minimally invasive and bariatric surgery program at St. Mary Mercy Hospital, primarily performs Roux-en-Y gastric bypass where a small pouch is created for the stomach before a large portion of the stomach and duodenum are bypassed. Although several hospital programs in the area offer lap band surgery, Zeni does not, saying the lap band is "a foreign body that can erode into the stomach and patients can have problems if it slips." Other surgeons regularly use the procedure, especially on women who are planning to become pregnant and need to expand their intake of food.

"For people who are morbidly obese it's not just (done for) weight loss but the gastric bypass surgery cures other diseases, diabetes in 84 percent of patients," said Zeni who completed a fellowship in minimally invasive and bariatric surgery at ioral modification and nutrition.

"The 30-day mortality and early significant complications decrease with the band, but they don't get as much weight loss and there's less elimination of medical problems like diabetes," said Carlin, who learned laproscopic surgery as part of residency training.

Open gastric bypass, which was first performed in 1967, is rarely done anymore as the surgery increases recovery times and the possibility of complications because of the large incision. With laproscopic, there is less risk in terms of infections, hernias and patients have far less pain. The hospital stay is usually two days with 2-4 weeks of recovery, but some bypass patients have gone back to work in one week.

"The laproscopic approach has made it safer and easier on patients," Carlin said. "The most common complications are nutritional. We have them take multivitamins, calcium with vitamin D, and consume adequate protein. This operation is not the end-all, be-all just a tool to help you lose weight."

Dr. Kevin Krause cautions those thinking about the surgery to do their research before selecting a physician. Since 2001, he's done more than 1,000 surgeries at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. Beaumont offers laproscopic gastric procedures at the Troy hospital also.

With both gastric bypass or lap band the vast majority of patients do well," said Krause, who did a fellowship in laproscopy. "Yes, I have had mortalities. There's risk, although relatively low. They want to make sure that they're getting surgery at a high-volume center, make sure they have training in laproscopy.

"In regard to risk, sometimes that scares people. People have to realize maintaining their current health also carries risk. People have a much greater risk of dying in five years than those who have had surgery. Those who have the surgery increase their chances of living to be old and healthier."

Jose Mangune gives new meaning to the idea of an extended family.

As an area representative for ASSE International Student Exchange Programs, the Livonia man's family now extends across the globe. Like the host families he finds across Michigan, Mangune opens his own home to exchange students from all over the world.

"That is really part of the program," he said. "Not only do the students become part of your family, their family (does too)?

Mangune said ASSE was created as an exchange program between the U.S. and Sweden, but has grown into a nonprofit organization that includes 40 countries. Mangune is always seeking host families to participate in the yearlong exchange, as well as shorter-term programs through ASSE.

For families like the Iadipaolos of Livonia, it's already a rewarding experience

Patrick Iadipaolo signed his family up to host for the first time this year. They have welcomed a Japanese student named Mayumi Uesawa into their home.

"We thought this was a great way to introduce a global soci-ety to our children," he said.

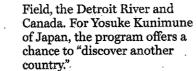

Iadipaolo, a father of two teenagers, said the exchange program would be a good way to teach his own children about the similarities and differences of other cultures. The language barrier was among the first obstacles they experienced, but like the other ASSE students, Mayumi is enrolled in an intensive four-week program to improve her English skills.

"I'm hooked," said Iadipaolo last week. "One day I hope my kids will get involved."

Mangune said Michigan provides a great location for the program. "It's one of the best places for students to come." he said. "There is diversity, the setting, all four seasons, the beauty of the north, the hustle and bustle of (Detroit)."

George Yang, a student from Taiwan, said he enjoyed a recent trip to a car factory in "Motown." He said he saw Ford Carolyne Bernard, who traveled from France, added to that sentiment. She said she's learning "a new way of life." Having visited the U.S. before, she called it "awesome" and she was eager to return. "We are happy to be here," she said.

Like Carolyne, Santos DeLuna of Mexico is staying in Pontiac with a host family.

"I'm very happy," he said. "It's very good weather." Santos said he hopes to learn all about American traditions. When it comes to their American hosts, the students quickly become a new member of the family. David and Virginia Wasson

Focus:HOPE engineering students get hands-on experience

BY JULIE BROWN STAFF WRITER

Focus: HOPE has been training people for jobs for a number of years. In 1993, it opened the Center for Advanced Technologies, an extension of machinist training that had been offered for about 10 years. "It was really a vision that Father (William) Cunningham had," said Focus:HOPE spokeswoman Kathy Moran. Focus: HOPE was founded by Josaitis in the wake of the 1967 Detroit riots. The Center for Advanced Technologies (CAT) educates engineers through a collaboration with industry and university partners. Students start in the machinist program, Moran said, and move on to the advanced program. Students work full time on real man-priest Cunningham and Eleanor ufacturing contracts while pursuing their engineering degrees. They earn approximately $20,000 per year and don't pay tuition for college course work. The program receives funding from the National Science Foundation. The degrees are:

associate degree in Manufacturing Engineering through Lawrence Technological University bachelor of science in

Manufacturing Engineering degree through University of Detroit Mercy bachelor of science in Engineering Technology degree through Wayne State University Focus: HOPE had contracts with industry, Moran said, allowing students to earn a decent living while taking classes. This year, the move has been away from most manufacturing at the Oakman Boulevard site with students working in industry.

"They're doing things like working on quality control," Moran said.

Wayne State is the lead partner. Other academic partners are Michigan State University and Lehigh University in Pennsylvania. Industry partners include Cincinnati Machine, DaimlerChrysler, Detroit Diesel, Electronic Data Systems, Ford Motor, General Motors, and the Society of Manufacturing Engineers. Together, the partners are called the Greenfield Coalition for New Manufacturing Education.

Joanna Woods, manager for CAT education, is pleased with employment opportunities, noting nearly all are employed and keep their jobs. Also, students begin to realize they're college material.

"Now they recognize that they are more than capable of earning a degree also," Woods said. Students must complete the Machinist Training Institute 01

Pass a series of diagnostic tests to measure math, communication, technical and computer literacy skills

Have a personal interview Pass a drug screening test

Moran points with pride to starting salaries of $55,000.

"Some of them are moving out of state," she said. "Honda has hired a couple of our graduates."

There are about 130 students in the CAT program and 290 in machinist training at a given time. Oct. 18, all programs will be highlighted at an open house to feature a tour.

"They'll get a feel for all of our different programs," Woods said. Information is available online at www.focushope.edu or by calling the admissions office at (313) 494-4300.

Woods finds her work personally rewarding, citing the instant gratification of seeing students grow. "Here, you can see it every single day, the growth in the people" she said.

Engineering graduate shares her success story, faces a bright future

Itayemi Kinni-Olusanyin will move to Indiana this summer to take her first full-time job as a manufacturing engineer for Cummings Diesel. It will be a much shorter journey than the one she made seven years ago when she moved from Nigeria to Detroit and switched from pursuing a career in the arts to one in the sciences.

In 1999, alone after the death of her mother and pregnant, Kinni-Olusanyin moved from Nigeria to Detroit to live with her grandmother and raise her unborn son. She expected to continue her pursuit of a career in the performing arts - until she learned about opportunities at Focus:HOPE.

Once enrolled in the Machinist Training Institute, she found she loved math and working with her hands. "That's the part I enjoyed the most," she said of learning how to operate lathes, mills, grinders and CNC machines. "It is the foundation for my technical expertise. Once I found I could do that, I thought why not go on to become an engineer?"

She brushed up her math skills in the First Step and Fast Track programs, then completed the MTI curriculum, graduating first in her class. Then she headed to the Center for Advanced Technologies to study engineering. While studying engineering she was tapped to participate in Six Sigma training offered through Ford Motor Co. Throughout her six years at Focus:HOPE, her son was enrolled at the Center for Children.

She has had the chance to solve real engineering problems using her black belt training. "I like that fact that you use Six Sigma tools to problem solve," she said. "It's something you can always use to evaluate performance, to see how a company is performing, and improve on its performance. It has been a beneficial tool to both parties; you and to them. It has acclimated me to the way engineers think.

"I'm pretty excited," she said. "Now I have more choices in life. This experience gave me confidence ... now I can see a brighter future for myself and my son. I also give thanks to my grandmother, Ethelyn E. Femster, for helping me through it all."

Remodeling boom puts spotlight on realistic laminates

(NAPSI)-According to the National Association of Home Builders, a record $238 billion will be spent on home remodeling in the U.S. this year - and more than $8 billion on new flooring alone.

"Installing new floors is one of the best investments people can make to their homes," said Fred Miller, managing director of the Home Improvement Research Institute, which recently conducted a study that revealed 25 percent of homeowners plan to replace floors as a way of increasing their home's value. To maximize the return on their investments, more consumers look to laminates.

Laminate flooring is the fastest-growing segment of the flooring market. No surprise, considering its appealing combination of cost, performance and maintenance benefits.

MINIMUM INVESTMENT, MAXIMUM RETURN

"Laminate flooring is a quick, easy and relatively inexpensive way to dramatically transform the look of a. home-thereby increasing its perceived value," said Don Cybalski, design director for Pergo, the inventor and leading manufacturer of laminate flooring. Compared with spending $4-$6 and up for a square foot of solid wood, top-grade laminates typically run between $2-$4 per square foot.

FAUX OR NO?

Today's laminates look and feel more like the real thing. Consumers routinely mistake

'Laminates make it possible to enjoy the beauty of these rare and even endangered woods-such as jatoba, merbau and teak-without actually removing them from their natural environments, something that has become increasingly important to today's environmentally conscious consumers.

Don Cybalski Pero design director laminates for higher-priced wood, ceramic or stone alternatives. Beyond the popular oak and maple varieties, laminates are available in rich wood looks like mahogany, walnut and cherry, as well as in classic tile designs including granite, marble and ivory.

"Among the hottest looks right now are exotic woods that draw their influences from Asia, Africa and the Pacific Islands," said Cybalski. "Laminates make it possible to enjoy the beauty of these rare and even endangered woods-such as jatoba, merbau and teakwithout actually removing them from their natural environments, something that has become increasingly important to today's environmentally conscious consumers.'

For a truly traditional wood look, laminate flooring is now available in narrow widths with varying lengths that create a sense of realistic randomness. Offerings like Pergo's Vintage Home Traditional Strip or Select Traditional Strip collections feature special texturing technology that replicates the feel of hardwood and simulates natural wood grains.

PEAK PERFORMANCE

Laminates offer durability and ease of maintenance far superior to any other flooring option. They won't wear through, stain or fade over time and never need waxing, polishing or refinishing. "Solid wood can fade, dent and show scratches. It also requires sanding and refinishing to retain its appearance," said Cybalski. "Vinyl tends to yellow and tear and comes apart at the seams. Ceramic is hard on back and ankles, difficult to clean and is prone to cracks and chips."

QUICK AND EASY INSTALLATION

Unlike many home renovations, installing laminate flooring is a relatively quick and painless process. Most floors can be installed over a weekend and put directly on top of existing flooring (except carpet), eliminating the need for lengthy surface preparation.

Shore Mortgage

Shore Mortgage will offer a free Homebuyers/FICO score seminar 7-9 p.m. every third Monday through August. Seminars will take place at Shore Mortgage, 1741 N. Canton Center Road, Canton. For reservations or more information, call (248) 433-3300.

Buying a home

A Free Homebuyer's Class will be 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 15, at Fidelity National Title at Six Mile and I-275. It is put on by Rosemary Firestone of RE/MAX 100 and Michael Firestone of Golden Mortgage. A home inspector will attend. They cover all aspects of buying a home in every price range. Attendees are both firsttime buyers and experienced buyers. It will cover why it is important to be pre-approved and what that entails; what kinds of mortgages are available and to whom; how to avoid a "lemon" and have the house inspected professionally: have a buyer's agent working only for you - not the seller; how to get seller's concessions to help cover your costs; how to decide on a good offering price; what are all the papers involved in writing an offer, etc.

Call for reservations (24 hours) at (734) 420-9600 or email at: info@rfirestoneteam.com.

Career Seminars

Wrenches, with a twist, and pliers with grip

BY MORRIS AND JAMES CAREY FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

We were pleased when we opened the mail recently and discovered that someone had sent us a sample of a new ratchet-style box wrench.

We were a little disappointed, though, when we thought that the package only contained two wrenches, not a full set.

But it wasn't a partial set at all. The two wrenches constituted a full eight-piece set of box wrenches.

Each of the two-box wrench ends is shaped into two sizes (two ends on each wrench, two sizes on each end, four sizes per wrench). Two wrenches eight sizes.

Each end of each wrench boasts a reversible ratchet and a 5-degree ratchet lock. This means that the tool can be operated in a very tight space.

The tool is called the QuadBox. For more information on this product, go to www.gearwrench.com/.

When a major plumbing job arises, there is always the chance that a pipe wrench will be needed. But, for the smaller jobs, we like to use adjustable pliers.

We recently discovered that there is an adjustable pliers that is made specifically for use with round stock like plumbing pipe.

What makes this puppy different is its "V-shaped jaws." The curvature gives the jaw more contact surface on round or curved stock, resulting in a better grip with less force you need to exert.

We strongly recommend using adjustable pliers instead of a pipe wrench for most plumbing finish work. You can "feel" the pressure being exerted more readily with pliers. Over-tightening a connection is still possible, but less likely when using pliers.

For more information on V-jaw pliers, go to www.channellock.com/.

Locking pliers have a screw at the end of the handle that adjusts the size of the bite so that various things can

The little valves under the sink that are used to turn the water off to the faucet are called angle stops.

The problem with these is that it takes forever to shut them off, and once turned off, tainer beneath the angle stops that we have to work on to catch the drips that almost always occur.

Now, someone has designed a brand-new style of angle stop with a quick shut-off feature. This particular valve can be completely replaced with a flick of your wrist.

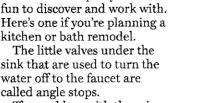

It comes with its own special piece of copper pipe (which has to be soldered into the line). In combination, the valve and the pipe marry via the push of a latch - and reversing the process for removal is just as quick and easy.

By the way, we don't think there would be value in using this valve unless you were doing new construction or a remodel. It isn't something made for retrofit installation. The product is called

Bring a touch of Southwest to any city with this home

Many associations have started using the Southwestern styles in their groupings of homes. This style of home lends itself to the earth tones and shades that blend and match. The tile roofs now come in a greater number of colors, all adding character and quality to the look of the homes.

Such a design is the San Carlos (D6806). It has two gabled areas, one over a window and one as the front entrance.

The San Carlos has 2,647 square feet, with the center of the home being an open great room. The three-car garage has a side entrance. The many angles to this home provide a unique look that invites one to explore inside.

Send $15 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 or call (800) 562-1151. Be sure to specify plan name and number. Compact disks, with search functions are free of charge, to help you search our portfolio for you dream home ($5 shipping and handling will apply).

Through the entry finds the great room in front, a formal dining room to the right, and a den to the left. The den has 10-foot ceilings, book shelves hidden back in the corner, and lovely French doors. The dining room has coffered 10-foot ceilings and large windows. This room is separated from the kitchen and can be used a formal dining area when friends are being entertained. The great room has tall 11foot ceilings, a fireplace on the left side, and a huge kitchen/nook on the right. Through the back is a screened porch with cathedral ceilings. This is such a wonderful place to sit on those warm evenings, sharing a meal with the family or entertaining friends.

The elongated nook and kitchen is open and provides an abundance of counter space and cabinets. There is a corner pantry, along with a center island that is divided with an eating bar on one side and a sink and dishwasher on the other. The nook, lined with windows, is bathed with light for early risers.

Two bedrooms are found on the left side of the home with a shared bath containing dual sinks and a tub.The linen closet is located in the hall, accessible to both rooms. The stairs to the basement is also located in this area.

The master suite is on the opposite side of the home, nestled down the entire side. The master bath is large with an enormous walk-in closet at the end. It has an oversized shower, corner spa tub, dual sinks, and a linen closet. A half-bath and the utility room are located just outside the suite.

Put on thinking cap when it's time to sell home

I am going to sell my house. What are some things I should avoid so I can get the house sold for the most money?

Some sellers do make some costly mistakes when trying to get their house sold. Here are some common areas to avoid: Expecting your house is going to sell based on what you need, rather than what the market dictates. Once you put your house on the market, treat it as if it's a commodity. It doesn't matter that you owe $145,000 and have a $3,000 equity loan. Yes, it does make a difference to you. However, it will not sell based on that information.

It's not your needs that determines the ultimate price, the purchase price will be based on what buyers are willing to pay for it. This is a big problem in today's Michigan real estate market. Housing prices have gone down. Sellers are often unwilling to adjust their price to what the market dictates. As a result, houses are taking a very long time to sell. At the end they do sell if the price is based on the current market. How is price determined? It's based on what recent similar houses in the same area sold for, as well as what current homes are listed for. Remember, that the buyers' real estate agent will give them this information, and they will have it before placing an offer. Getting emotionally involved in negotiating a sale. There is a tendency that if some sellers get a very low offer, that they may see red and not counter the offer. Many buyers see the negotiating process as a game and purposely give very low offers to see what they can get away with. I don't agree with this tactic. It only makes the whole process harder. Just like buyers have agents to supply them with the current market

Buying a home is an emotional experience. If buyers see a dirty cluttered house, even though the buyers could clean the clutter, they will get negative emotional vibes, and not even consider buying the house. Many repairs cost very little money to make, but could end up saving you thousands of dollars in the sale.

information, most sellers have Realtors that give them this information, as well.

■ Not thinking through the process. How much money do you need to pay off your mortgage and pay the expenses of selling your house? Do you need to sell before you buy? How much money will it cost to prepare your house for sale? These are all important questions to ask yourself before you start the process. Think through the process and plan for each step. If you need to still own the current house you may want to consider selling first. That way you will be able to avoid paying two mortgages. In this slower market, it's harder to sell, so selling first becomes even more important. Neglecting making minor repairs and cleaning up the house. Buying a home is an emotional experience. If buyers see a dirty cluttered house, even though the buyers could clean the clutter, they will get negative emotional vibes, and not even consider buying the house. Many repairs cost very little money to make, but could end up saving you thousands of dollars in the sale.

You're not stuck with stippled ceilings

BY MORRIS AND JAMES CAREY FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

From Doug of Winchester, Va.: "I live in a house that has stippled ceilings throughout. This was put on several years ago to hide imperfections. Is there a way to get rid of this texture so I can have smooth ceilings?"

Yes, you can have smooth ceilings again. The stippling effect is simply paint applied with a special stipple roller. If the paint used was latex, you can wet the paint and then scrape away.

If the paint used was oil-based, it will be slightly more difficult.

First, do a wash of the ceiling with synthetic TSP. Once dry, do a light sanding with 80-grit paper on a sanding pole. Finally, you can "float out" the surface with drywall joint compound.

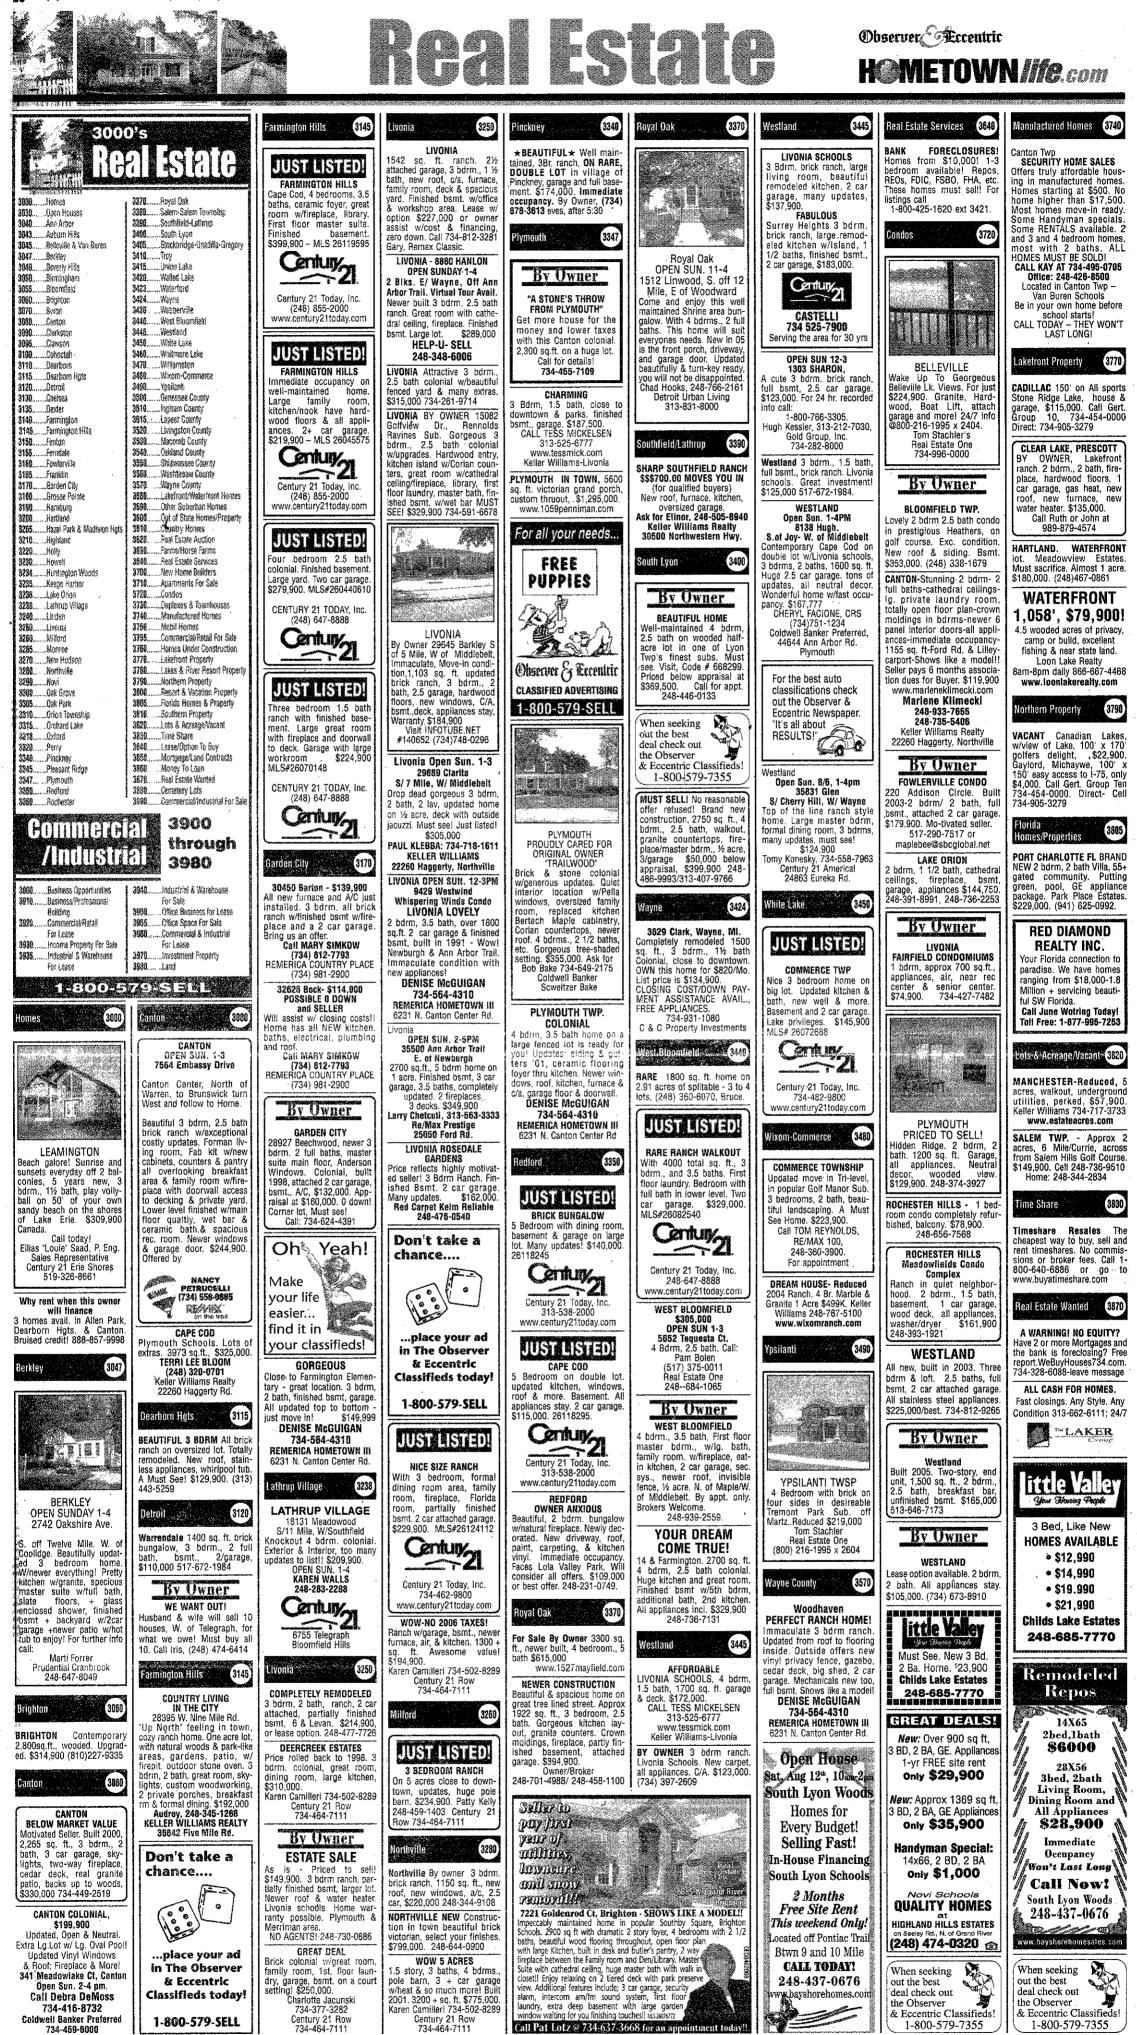

Use a wide joint compound knife to spread thin layers of the compound into the voids on the ceiling to make a smooth surface. You may need to apply more than one layer.

Keep in mind that you will need to wait for the first coat to completely dry before adding other coats. Sanding each coat is also recommended.

Once your ceiling is smooth, you can paint normally, or apply a textured finish of your choice and then paint.

By Dave Menard Avanti NewsFeatures

Well, what do we make of the 2006 Mercury Milan? Mercury is pitching the mid-size Milan as a car for so-called Generation X customers, a car that it hopes takes some of the stodginess out of the Mercury name.

After all, when think of Mercury, don t you picture Grandmas head just barely visible above the steering wheel of her Grand Marquis? To its credit, Mercury knows it has this image problem, and by introducing new models like the Milan, hopes to bring in younger car buyers. With four doors, aboveaverage styling, decent power and a reasonable price point, those hopes may not be unreasonable.

Now that we know what the Milan is supposed to accomplish, let s take a lot at how close it comes. We ll start with what I think is actually the strongest Milan feature -- its styling. In an era of look-alike sedans dotting driveways across America, the Milan Premier looks a little different.

The trademark Mercury waterfall grille is here and the car s lines are excellent. The headlights wrap around the front fenders, and the grille and front fascia trim sport a satin finish. In the back, the Milan features LED taillamps, and the Milan Premier comes with twin exhaust tips. 17inch, 14-spoke machined aluminum wheels are standard and they re sharp. Power heated outside mirrors are standard on the Premier, and you can add a package that will give you fog lamps.

Inside, the Milan features a choice of two styles mahogany wood or satin metallic. The stain metallic finish of the test cars interior is attractive without being overbearing, and is definitely not your grandma's Mercury. The instrument panel is uncluttered, with simple, easy-to-read, round analog gauges. There s a message center in the center of the instrument panel which displays the trip computer data, including miles-to-empty and trip odometers.

The center console features two cupholders and a storage area. Cruise control, manually-controlled air conditioning (automatic climate control is an option), power windows, and a tilt steering column are standard, and you can get a package that will give you a leather-vrapped steering wheel with redundant audio controls. The leather seats (standard on the Premier) are comfortable and provide good support. They can be heated, as an option. The driver's seat is a poweradjustable seat; the passenger s seat adjusts manually. The rear seats are 60/40 split seats and fold down to give you more cargo room. The trunk itself, by the way, is already fairly roomy.

2006 Mercury Milan Premier. Vehicle class: Mid-size car. Power: V6 engine. Mileage: 21 city / 29 highway. Where built: Hermosillo, Mexico. Base price: $22,845. Price as tested: $25,495.

Speaking of room, another of the Milan s strong points is the amount of passenger room it has. Folks in the back seat have plenty of room, and getting in and out of the rear seating areas is no problem. Up front, it s the same story. No problem with leg or head room.

The standard audio system on the Milan Premier is an AM/FM/six disc CD system and it sounds great. I d like to be able to manually tune my stations, instead of relying on the scan and seek buttons, but you can t do that with this system. You can upgrade to what Mercury calls an audiophile system which will give you eight speakers instead of six.

Looking at the specs, the Milan Premier s powertrain should be very good, but I d describe it better as competent. The specs say the standard 3.0-liter 24-valve DOHC V6 in the Premier is rated at 221 horsepower and 205 lb.-ft. of torque (the entry-level Milan comes with a 2.3-liter four-cylinder).

Its mated with a six-speed automatic that does shift smoothly and at nice shift points. So what s the problem? I just didn t get that kick when I hit the accelerator to pass on city streets. It does a bit better on the highway; passing in the 50+ mph range was noticeably quicker than in the 30-50 mph range. Of course, I could be expecting too much from what is supposed to be a family-type sedan. In normal driving, the Milan performs competently enough, and at 21/29 mpg on regular fuel, you get decent mileage for a V6.

The Milan handles and rides pretty well. The front suspension system is a short- and long-arm front suspension that features double ball-joint lower control arms and coil-over shocks. The multi-link rear suspension performs like a double-wishbone setup. The cabin is quiet and the ride is fairly smooth.

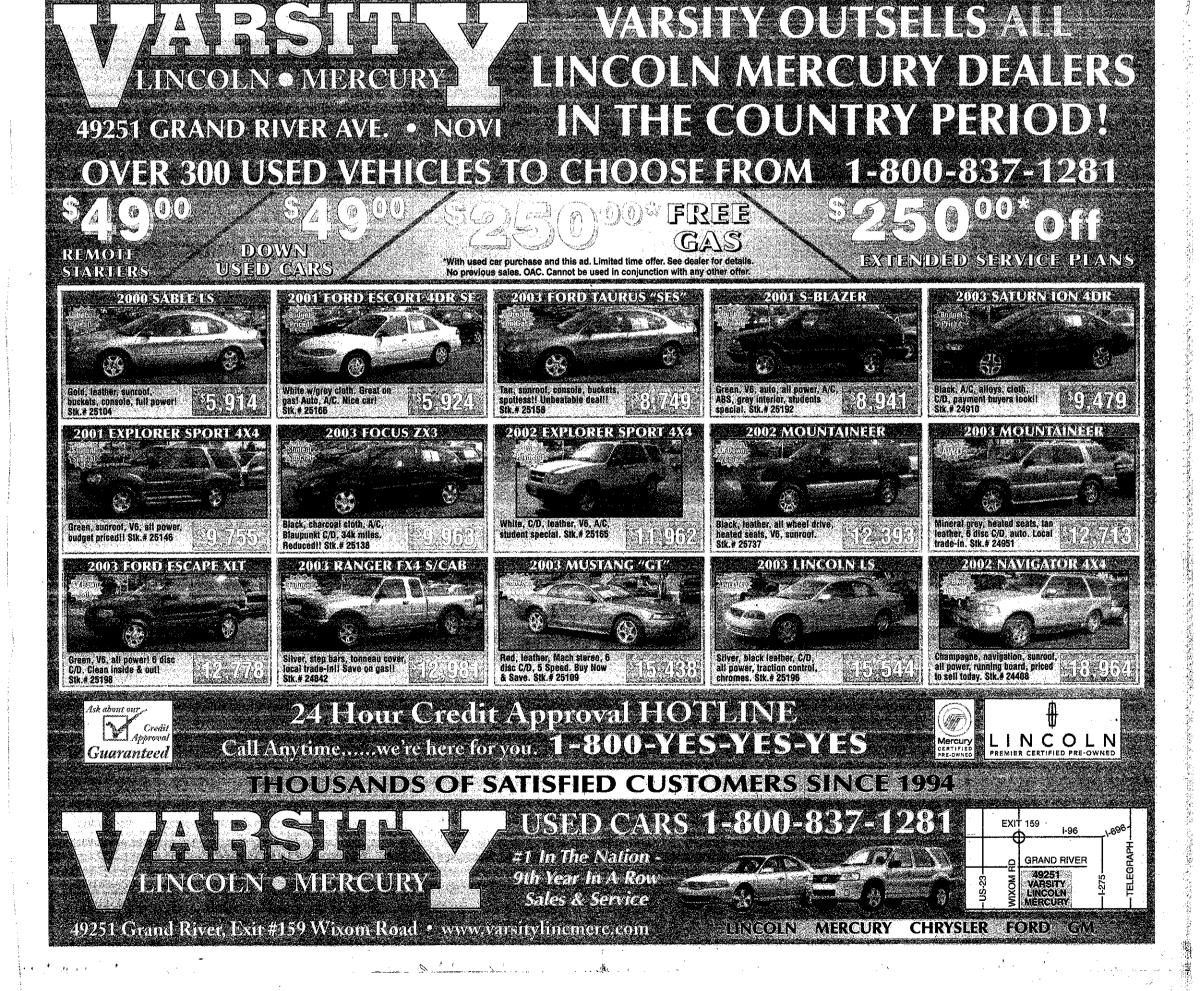

Traction control is available as an option. The Milan comes with power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering. The car is easy to maneuver and park and the four-wheel antilock brakes are excellent.

The Milan Premier comes with dual-stage front air bags, a side-impact protection system, and an anti theft system. Side air curtains are optional.

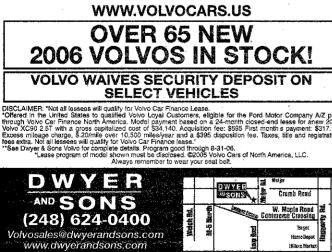

The 2006 Mercury Milan Premier starts at a little under $23,000, and that will get you a pretty wellequipped car; leather seats, manual A/C, cruise, the V6 engine, power driver s seat, CD audio with six speakers. and anti-lock brakes are all included at that price. Add the automatic climate control, upgraded audio system, fog lamps, leather-wrapped steering wheel with audio and speed controls, heated seats, traction control, and side curtain airbags and you re still under $26.000.

Will it be enough to get younger buyers in the showrooms? Time will tell, but Mercury is making a good stab at it with the Milan Premier. Write Avanti NewsFeatures auto columnist Dave Menard at
