Teen center looks to expand after-school programs

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS STAFF WRITER

They've designed it to be "a parent's dream" and now they're just waiting for parents to jump on board.

Canton's teen center, BLOCK (Building Leaders Out of Canton's Kids) is having an open house to promote its services from 5 to 8 p.m. Sept. 4 at the 44237 Michigan Avenue facility.

BLOCK was created in 2001 as an after-school program to serve underprivileged children, but has morphed into a full-fledged center* that's targets all Canton kids ages. 11 to 17.

Laura Schulz, BLOCK staff counselor, said the center is a haven for kids and is especially popular with middle schoolers.

"At that age, kids don't have a lot of safe environments that they can pick from so that's what makes the job rewarding," she said. "I feel like we're making a difference."

BLOCK

When: Sept. 4, from 5-8 p.m. Where: BLOCK Teen Center, 44237 Michigan Avenue in Canton What: Learn about the BLOCK's afterschool programs

One of BLOCK's main thrusts are its after-school programs for middle school students.

Parents can choose from several options including a package for $160 per student, per semester that involves the child being picked up from school and taken to the BLOCK building everyday until 6:30 p.m. Other packages are available that call for the student to be picked up from home, taken to the BLOCK facility and then taken back home at the end of the day.

While at the facility, Schulz said students have free reign in the computer lab, video game room, lounge area and quiet homework room.

Bridget Maul, 12, shoots pool at The Block. She spends a lot of time there after school playing video games, working on a computer, and playing pool.

There's a kitchen for snacks and small meals along with a game room featuring air hockey, pool and other activities.

"Kids love it here and parents love the program," Schulz said.

Bandit hitting unlocked cars at day care centers

BY KURT KUBAN STAFF WRITER

Canton police are on the lookout for a thief that is stealing purses and other items from unlocked cars at a number of Canton day care centers.

According to Sgt. Rick Pomorski, it is believed the same man has hit at least three day care facilities in the last couple weeks, beginning Aug. 13 at Rosey's Romper Room on Canton Center Road. Child Time, located on Lilley Road, was hit twice — Aug. 17 and again on Thursday. Wee Care, located on Palmer Road, was hit on Wednesday.

In each case, the bandit has waited in the parking lot for a parent to pull up and take their child inside. Once they are inside, the thief pulls up next to the car, and steals purses or other items, including a diaper bag. Pomorski said all the cars were left unlocked.

Police were able to get surveillance video from Rosey's Romper Room, which shows a male driving a white or light colored SUV, most likely a Jeep. Pomorski said the video footage isn't the best, but they believe the suspect is a male (either white or a light skinned black) with black hair.

'This guy will spend 15-20 minutes in the parking lot early in the morning, just waiting for a parent to pull up. In some cases, the cars have even been left running, and this guy takes advantage of it," Pomorski said.

After stealing the purses, the suspect has traveled to local Meijer stores and the BP gas station at Ford and Haggerty to use the victim's credit cards.

In addition to locking their cars, Pomorski said parents should be on the lookout for the bandit, so they can contact police.

"Anyone that sees a suspicious vehicle, likely a Jeep with a lone male in it, they should report it. We would like to get a license plate number," he said.

Vigil aims to convince U.S. to end Iraq war

Local members of the liberal political action committee MoveOn.org will hold a candlelight vigil to call on Congress to vote to end the war in September. The local group hopes the vigil, set for 7 p.m. Tuesday in downtown Plymouth's Kellogg Park, will convince U.S. Rep. Thaddeus

To make an

McCotter, (R-Livonia), to vote to end the war.

"It's time for the Bush Administration to stop looking through rose-colored glasses and realize that the surge has been a total failure," said Bob Mosher, local MoveOn member. "Rep. McCotter must "Stand Up in September" and vote to end this religious civil war that can't be won." Participants in the vigil will read from a "War Toll Calendar" to honor and remember the soldiers that have died in the past year in the war in Iraq.

Vigils like this one are part of national Take A Stand Day, a coordinated day of action to end the war initiated by the Americans Against Escalation in Iraq coalition, including MoveOn.org Political Action, VoteVets.org, the Service Employees International Union True Majority and others, Mosher said.

A similar vigil a few weeks ag in Kellogg Park drew a sparse crowd.

Canton couple opens new salon with focus on customers

www.hometownlife.com

BY BRAD KADRICH STAFF WRITER

Dawn Connors had already worked with Jacinda Burdziak at four other hair salons, so when her long-time friend told her she was opening her own salon in downtown Plymouth, joining her wasn't a difficult decision.

And now she's glad she did, because Burdziak's new venture, Vanity Salon, appears to be gaining momentum.

"It's absolutely outstanding, because it's all about the customer," said Connors.

"(Burdziak) is very successful in the salon industry, she runs a very professional salon, and what I like about her as a businesswoman is what goes for one goes for all. she doesn't have special rules for special people."

It's a rule Burdziak is applying at Vanity, her second salon venture (she also is a former owner of Plymouth's Salon Trio). She and husband John opened Vanity last month, after John - a builder by trade - got it built out from a design they did together.

It's a return to entrepreneurialship for Jacinda, who sold her interest in Salon Trio after she and John married in 2001. The couple wanted to focus on starting a family and sold Trio "to free up our time and focus on that," according to John.

Now, with daughter Ava now 4 and daughter Lola is 1, the Burdziaks decided it was time to get back in.

"It took some convincing on my part," said John, who is the son of former Canton Township Trustee John Burdziak.

The one caveat the couple, who live in Canton, decided early on was they'd own their own building, not seek a place to rent. They wanted somewhere with great parking that would draw heavy foot traffic, and found just such a building in the 3,000-square-foot space on Penniman.

In addition to the great location, building ownership also helps the couple secure some financial stability for the burgeoning family.

"We were only interested in owning the building," John said. "It was in keeping with our life change and our family ... we did it for them. The intent was for the future of our daughters. That's really important to us."

Once that was settled, Jacinda began gathering her staff, which now numbers more than 30. In addition to more than two dozen stylists, she brought in two nail technicians, a barber to handle men's hair an an aesthetician specializing in skin care, facials and body waxing.

Jacinda, who celebrates 20 years in the industry in October, has worked with nearly all of

The two-floor, 3,000-square-foot Vanity Salon opened last month on Penniman, across from the post office.

"I think I'm a good businesswoman, especially in terms of customer service," Jacinda said. "I make an effort to make sure everyone's fairly treated. Nothing's about me, it's all about (the stylists)."

The salon is designed with all of that in mind. It's an airy two floors, with 17 styling/color chairs. In addition to shopping locally when possible, the Burdziaks brought in a lot of fixtures from Italy. The salon is painted with warm, natural textures.

None of the stylists are on staff; all of them are independent contractors. Jacinda takes a rental fee, and the stylists earn their own money.

"My whole goal, my vision, was an upscale, independent contractor salon focused on customer service," Jacinda said. "Everyone loves the spaciousness the salon offers. The energy is very positive. It's definitely a good vibe."

She'll keep the staff well-educated with insalon seminars and workshops, keeping up with what she said are ever-changing trends in the industry.

"Education is important; it keeps you current and motivated," Jacinda said. "Fashion changes by the season, and you have to keep up with the trends. This industry changes so much, if you don't, you can get stagnant."

Residents raise concerns about Lilley Road project

Everything was going fine until Katherine Gothard saw her swimming pool in a picture.

"It was almost like a fluke," she said. "I said, 'Whoa, hello, wait a minute.

Gothard, 47, has lived in her Hanford Road home since 1989 and felt compelled to attend a recent meeting to learn about the township's plans to reconstruct a section of Lilley Road.

The project, which is scheduled to begin Monday, will cover a milelong stretch of Lilley from Ford to Warren. In addition to widening the road, enclosing a storm sewer system and replacing the existing bridge over Willow Creek, creating right-turn lanes on the northeast and southwest corners of Lilley and Hanford could be tacked onto the construction.

The intersection was previously named one of 34 that the township needed to improve within 10 years by Canton's intersection action committee.

"Since we are doing work in the area, it moved up the list," said Township Engineer Todd J. Zilincik, who added that talks of altering the intersection are premature. "Nothing is set in stone," he said. The $1.9 million Lilley Road project is slated to wrap up in mid-November and is designed to lessen traffic congestion, improve the safety of making left turns, fill in sidewalk gaps and improve drainage. More than 15,000 vehicles travel the road every day, but it will only be open to local traffic during construction.

The state will pay 80 percent of the project's cost while Wayne County will kick in the remaining 20 percent. Zilincik said the township will cover $40,000 for the sidewalk additions.

Candice Clifton, 29, moved across the street from Gothard four years ago and said her suspicions were raised when she noticed a surveyor outside her home last month.

"I asked what was going on and he told me that he didn't know," she said, adding that her husband later called township offices to inquire about the situation. "They said the work had absolutely nothing to do with Hanford and we breathed a sigh of relief."

Gothard, who raised her concerns at the meeting, said she felt ambushed when she saw an aerial photograph of the area that featured the right-turn lanes on Hanford.

"When were they planning on telling us," she asked angrily.

Hanford Road resident Billie Wright-Ericson received a notice about the informational meeting, but decided to forego it since she had no major concerns about the project. She was unaware of potential plans to improve the Lilley/Hanford intersection.

"I wish we would have been told," she said.

Wright-Ericson lives in the first home off of the southwest corner of the intersection and stands to lose the tree that her twin daughters play under. The 3-year-old girls are disabled and mainly play in the front vard because one of them can't maneuver her wheeled walker in the family's backvard.

"I will not feel comfortable having them out there if cars can get that close to them," she said.

The reconstruction of Lilley Road from Ford Road north to Warren Road will start Monday.

If the intersection project does move forward, Zilincik said officials will meet with the affected homeowners to get their feedback and opinions.

"It seems like (Gothard) is trying to stop this before it gets out of the gate," he said. If the talks go smoothly, there's no guarantee the work could happen within the Lilley Road construction time frame, he said.

A big challenge for Jacobs has been Mother With all the recent rain, getting asphalt in the parking lots has been delayed. "We're fortunate to have all our sites ready for asphalt," Jacobs said. "We hope to have it down on Monday and Tuesday."

This is the third year of the district's five-year renovation plan, which is funded by the 2004 bond revenues.

Board of Education trustees have heard the complaint by some district residents the renovations are using funds that could be used pay for educational programs in the classroom.

"The money that our community so graciously approved in the past to improve our schools can't be used, by state law, to operate our schools," said Trustee Steven Sneideman. "We can pass bonds to improve the buildings, but not for such things as busing, teacher's salaries or buying educational materials."

Is Your Child At Risk?

If your child has complained of neck, back or shoulder pain, an overweight backpack may be a contributing factor.

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that backpack-related injuries resulted in over 6,500 injuries in 2000 alone.

Most backpack injuries are caused by excessive weight distributed unevenly on the back and shoulder. A recent study in Italy found that the average child carries a backpack that would be the equivalent of a 39-pound a backpack that would be the equivalent of a 39-pound burden for a 176-pound man or a 29-pound burden for a 132-pound woman. Of those children carrying heavy backpacks to school, 60 percent had experienced back pain as a result. A good indicator of an overweight backpack is to look at your child's posture. If he or she leans or bends forward, the backpack is most likely too heavy. Backpack weight should be no more than 5 to You can calculate the recommended weight simply by 10 percent of the child's weight. You can calculate the recommended weight simply by taking your child's weight and dividing it by 10.

The American Chiropractic Association (ACA) offers the following suggestions to help in the prevention of backpack related pain:

- Buy a smaller backpack. This way, your child will only carry the necessities
- Distribute the contents evenly. The heaviest items should be close to the body. These items should also be flat to prevent poking or rubbing the back.
- Talk to teachers about sending handouts and workbooks home instead of textbooks.
- Talk to your child about the risks of back and neck strain. Teach them to lift heavy objects properly. Bend at the knees and not with the back.

A second common backpack related pain s associated with the misuse of the shoulder straps. As many as one third of backpack users in the 8 to 12 year old range don't carry their backpacks properly. The majority of children wear their backpacks slung over one shoulder putting all the weight on one side of the body.

When it comes to straps, parents should remember these tips from the ACA:

- Make sure the straps and back are padded. Unpadded straps can be irritating to the shoulder
- Make sure your child uses both shoulder straps. This distributes the weight evenly and can help in preventing misalignment of the spine and muscle fatigue.
- Use backpacks that have a strap around the hips. This helps with weight distribution.
- Adjust the straps to fit your child. The backpack should be no more than two to four inches below the waist.
- If your child suffers from neck, back or shoulder pain, don't wait, call our office today. Chiropractors are trained to treat all ages and use a gentler type of treatment for children than we do for adults.

Paying off a mortgage depends on how much cash is needed

A couple years ago I bought a new house and I made the mistake of getting an adjustable rate mortgage. The rate has increased substantially and I am now paying over 71/2 percent. I owe a little over a $100,000 on my mortgage. I am retired and I have an annuity coming due that I can cash out without penalty and pay the mortgage off. My broker, who originally arranged for the adjustable rate mortgage and sold me the annuity, wants me to refinance the mortgage and then to transfer the old annuity into a new variable annuity. My Social Security and pension covers my living expenses, however, I will need some additional money on a monthly basis if I choose to refinance. I have no other deduction other than my mortgage. Which way do you think I should go?

Cash out your annuity, pay the taxes and use the proceeds to pay off your mortgage. This will solve your cash flow problem and allow you to begin saving money on a regular basis. Since you are not in the position of needing income, the monthly savings can be invested in would get by investing. a growth product to provide you with income.

Many people make the decision to keep a mortgage because of the tax write-offs. Even though taxes are important, they are not the most important item. The most important item is how it affects your individual balance sheet.

In your situation, paying off the mortgage allows you to increase your net worth which is exactly what you want to achieve. In fact, by paying off the mortgage it may have no impact on your tax situation. After all, many people who are retired find that if they did not have mortgage they would be entitled to take the standard deduction which offsets any loss of the interest deduction.

The key question of whether you pay off your mortgage or not deals with your cash flow. If you have enough money coming from Social Security and pensions to cover your living expenses, then having a mortgage may make sense. If you are in a situation where you need income from your investments to cover living expenses, then paying off a mortgage is probably the way to go.

My reasoning is that when you look at what income investments are paying versus the cost of money, generally, you would be borrowing money at a higher rate than the income you

About 10 or 15 years ago, my husband and I did a Living Will along with a Living Trust. Nothing has changed in our family situation. Do we need to do anything?

You need to make sure your estate plan is up to date.

It is important to remember you do estate planning not to avoid probate or to save on taxes, which good estate planning accomplishes. The real reason is simply because you love your family. The goal is to make things as easy as possible on your loved ones.

Throughout our lives we try to protect our loved ones, we should do the same upon our death.

I recommend a Medical Durable Power of Attorney. A Living Will basically is a statement that says if you do not have a quality of life, you do not want to be around. The problem with this document is it does not define quality of life and it does not appoint someone to make that determination.

A Medical Durable Power of Attorney includes the information in a Living Will but goes further to name an individual who will make the determination about quality of life. It is important for everyone to have a current Medical Durable Power of Attorney as even rules regarding those documents have changed over the last few years.

(*) A5

The Living Trust that was drafted 10 to 15 years ago may or may not need any changes made. Each Living Trust stands on its own and without reading the document it is impossible to tell whether an amendment is required. Every two to three years you should sit down with an estate planning attorney to make sure the document is up to date and meets your needs.

As for the Medical Durable Power of Attorney, you do not have to see an attorney to draft this document. Michigan offers a free fill-in-the-blank form known as the Michigan Patient Advocate Form. It is available in many locations including public libraries.

Like everything else in our lives, change is constant and it applies to estate planning. If you haven't done any estate planning it's about time.

Butterfly Benefit boosts lung health

The American Lung Association of Michigan (ALAM) will hold its black tie fund-raiser, The Butterfly Ball, 6 p.m. to midnight Saturday, Nov. 3. at the Detroit Marriott at the Renaissance Center. Proceeds from the event will go for lung health research, education and advocacy.

The event will pay tribute to the General Motors Corp. for its development of FlexFuel vehicles, to community leader and philanthropist Sue Nine of Bloomfield Hills and to TV and radio personality Charles Pugh of Detroit. GM, Nine and Pugh will be honored for helping to advance the mission of ALAM: promoting lung health and preventing lung disease.

The evening will be highlighted by music from Rhythm Society and include a cocktail reception, dinner, dancing and a live auction, featuring trips, dinners and a variety of experiences. Barbara L. Whittaker chairs The Butterfly Ball committee.

The ball is part of the association's yearlong, statewide Catch Your Breath: Women's Lung Health Campaign to raise the same time, lung cancer in awareness about women's lung health and funds for research into lung disease.

More than 70,000 women will die this year from lung cancer, more than from breast, ovarian and cervical cancers combined.

Nearly 10,000 Michigan women are living with lifethreatening lung diseases such as lung cancer, asthma, emphysema and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). Thousands more have died. At never smokers is on the rise. Non-smoking-associated lung cancer is higher among women than men, and second-hand smoke has been established as a major cause.

The public is invited. Tickets are $250 per person, and sponsorships are available. For tickets and information, contact Jessica Jimenez, development specialist, (248) 784-2018 or jjimenez@alam.org.

Woman ticketed after son disturbs peace

Police ticketed a Canton woman after her neighbor complained that she allowed her teenage son to disturb the peace.

On Tuesday, the complex manager at Carriage Cove Apartments flagged down an officer that was there on another complaint and said that one of her residents had complained about a neighbor.

The woman, 49, said she lives above another woman, 41, who wouldn't open her front door after her son, 13, began banging on it and yelling. The woman reported that she was woken out of her sleep by the noise and that this wasn't the first time the teen had been locked outside his mother's anartment.

When police questioned the boy's mother, she said the teen had been at a friend's house

When the boy was called home, he confirmed his mother's story and said he had been stay away with a friend.

The woman is scheduled to appear in court on Sept. 4.

Woman victim of identity theft

A 54-year-old Canton woman reported Wednesday that someone had opened a Citibank account in her name and had bought $3,000 worth of items at Sears with the card.

The woman, who told police that she didn't give anyone permission to do this, said

Ex-husband ordered to

The ex-husband of a Canton woman was warned to stay away from his ex-wife's house after she reported Monday that he stole a canoe from her garage.

The woman, 37, said she recently noticed the item was missing but believes he took it in early July. She told police that her ex knows that she keeps the back door to her garage unlocked and had their 15-year-old daughter call and ask whether he had taken the canoe.

She said she doesn't want press charges, she just wants him to stay away from her home.

When police called the man. 38, he said that he had been trying to contact his ex-wife about the canoe, which is his, but that he hadn't heard back from her.

He also said the canoe was outside, not inside, the garage. The man went on to tell police that the only reason his exwife was upset was because of a dispute surrounding their oldest son.

Man finds stolen bike

A Canton man waited a few hours to hear from someone before he reported a found bicycle that had been left at his home.

During her testimony Friday, Poole's voice quivered and cracked at moments and she told the court that she was nervous.

Allison's paternal grandfather, Kenneth Newman, sighed sarcastically when Poole said she was suicidal after the toddler's death.

"I didn't want to live my life without her," Poole said.

Newman's wife, Debbie, wiped away tears when Poole began to talk about Allison's injuries.

"She's trying to cover her guilt," she said. "This is all a big act."

When Satawa asked why she signed and initialed a form waiving her Miranda rights, Poole answered, "because they told me to."

Under cross examination, Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Jerry Dorsey IV attempted 140 block of Robyn and said his mother-in-law spotted a red, BMX-style bike near the side of their home Tuesday afternoon.

He then brought the bike to the front of their property and waited for someone to come get it.

After a couple hours passed, the man took the bike, which has been valued at $200, to the police station. Officers ran the item through the system but it had not been reported stolen.

Teen busted for violating curfew

A while back, a Canton officer warned a 16-year-old girl about breaking the township's curfew rule. When he caught up with the same teen on Wednesday, she didn't get off so easily.

At around 1 a.m., the officer was called to the area of Beechwood and Beechwood Court for possible drug activity when he found the teen driving around with a passenger.

When he stopped the girl and asked to see her identification, she replied that she only had a pay stub on her, but gave her name.

The officer reported that he remembered stopping the teen before for violating Canton's curfew, but had only given her a warning and released her to her mother. This time, the girl's mother was called in to come get her and the teen was ticketed and is expected to appear in court.

to refute Poole's claim that she felt threatened by the police by saving she had been allowed to use her cell phone while in the back of a police cruiser and that she had been free to go home that night.

Poole said she offered multiple stories to police because she wanted to end the questioning as soon as possible.

"I wasn't thinking," she said. "I wanted to get out of that room."

Poole offered four stories for Allison's injuries including that she had bumped her head in bed, fell from a vanity and fell in a bathtub. The last story she told, which she says is the truth, is that she and Allison were playing "whirlybird" when the child accidentally flew over a secondstory balcony.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Ulysses W. Boykin will hear arguments from Satawa and Dorsey regarding the police statements on Sept. 21.

Excursion includes historic canal, train rides Writers group holds

The Royal Oak-based Bluewater Michigan Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society is sponsoring "Canal Boats and Railroad Tour," a one-day excursion Saturday, Sept. 8, to Waterville, Ohio, to see the Ohio canal boat system.

"Most Detroiters are unaware of the extensive Ohio canal boat system, which operated within 60 miles of here from the 1830s until the early 20th Century," said Bluewater Chapter Trip Chairman Jim Bradford.

The Canal Boats and Railroads Tour departs from The Henry Ford Centennial Library at 16301 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn by deluxe motor coach at 9 a.m. for Waterville, Ohio, southwest of Toledo. The Toledo Area MetroParks have restored locks and a section of the 1830s Miami & Erie Canal, which ran from Toledo, Ohio on Lake Erie to Cincinnati on the Ohio River.

Trip highlights include a leisurely one-hour trip up the canal on The Volunteer, an 1830s mule-drawn canal boat replica. Featured are stops at the Isaac Ludwig Mill operating saw and grist mill, an opportunity to shop in the General Store offering collectibles and gifts, a view of the large 19th Century Lock Mules lead a canal boat on the Miami and Erie Canal in Ohio.

#44 restored to operation, and to be entertained by Toledo MetroParks staff in authentic period garb.

The tour then heads to Smitty's for a late 2 p.m. lunch. After lunch, there's a short jaunt to the Nickel Plate Road railroad depot in Waterville for a 90-minute train ride on the Toledo, Lake Erie & Western Railway's Bluebird passenger train pulled by an 1950s Alco diesel locomotive. Tickets are $85.00 per person and must be ordered in advance. Included are the motorcoach, canal boat ride, lunch at Smitty's, and the train ride. For more information or to order tickets using VISA, MasterCard or Discover Card, contact the Bluewater Michigan Chapter NRHS at . (248) 541-1000 or (800) 594-5162 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Or order by check or money order payable to the Bluewater Michigan Chapter, NRHS at Office Box 296, Royal Oak, Michigan 48068-0296.

Ask about fire safety on your child's college campus hen you start packing your children up for college, consider their fire safety while they are away from home. The 2006-07 academic year was the most fatal one on record, as compiled by Campus been 20 cam-Tom Kiurski pus-related fire deaths in the past academic year, and the total of campusrelated fire fatalities since January 2000 until present is an astounding 113. These are young men and women who died while away to prepare for their future. Ask college representatives how many fires have occurred in the past year, and find out if the residence halls are equipped with automatic fire sprinkler systems. There has been nothing more effective in saving lives from fire by having a working automatic fire sprinkler system. Unlike the movies, only the sprinkler head(s) closest to the fire will activate. This will usually control or contain the fire until the fire department arrives.

Another lifesaving device that is necessary is a smoke alarm. Hopefully your child's college has a fire alarm system. If they do not, purchase a battery-operated smoke alarm for their room. They are simple to mount (or keep on top of a dresser), and easy to maintain. You may need to give your child a call to remind them to change the batteries at least once a year. By having working smoke alarms, the chances that you will die in a fire decrease by half. Make sure you have working smoke alarms in your home, and test them regularly.

Find out if candles and Halogen lamps are prohibited in the dorm rooms. If they are not, they should be. If they are not prohibited, let you child know how dangerous these items can be. Unattended candles can easily find combustibles in small dorm rooms and Halogen lamps have bulbs that operate at temperatures over 1,000 Degrees Fahrenheit. Go over the fire alarm procedure with your child before leaving them on their own.

Find the stairs out of the building, and practice using them. Find out where the fire extinguishers are located and make sure your child knows how to use them. Locate the fire alarm system and review how to use the alarm system, as well.

Your child may be leaving home for an extended period while away at college. If you have not discussed the items outlined above, take a few minutes to do so

Suspect nabbed in Internet sex sting

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

A10 (C)

A Plymouth Township man was arraigned in 31st District Court in Hamtramek Friday morning after being charged with sending sexually explicit images of himself over the Internet to an undercover Wayne County Sheriff's deputy posing as a 13-year-old girl.

Gregory Debrincat, 28, was arrested at his home Wednesday afternoon and rial to a minor. Judge Paul Paruk set bond at $10,000. Debrincat's preliminary examination is scheduled for Aug. 30.

Wayne County Sheriff

Warren Evans said when Debrincat, who is single, began communicating with the undercover deputy in June, the online chat room conversation almost immediately became sexually suggestive, before turning more graphic. Evans said Debrincat used a Web camera to expose his genitals to the undercover officer, despite the fact the "girl" said her grandmother was nearby.

"When he allegedly sent the images, Mr. Debrincat did so believing that the young girl was at home with her grandmother nearby," Evans said. 'That just shows how shameless these individuals are and how eager they are to traumatize our young children for their own pleasure."

According to Evans, when Debrincat again contacted the officer's online profile he sent her images of himself masturbating. When deputies arrested Debrincat they also seized his home computer, which they will examine for evidence. "If our officer chatted with him long enough, the suspect likely would have attempted a sexual rendezvous," Evans said. "However, we already had enough evidence to arrest him and we wanted to get him off the street before he had a chance to victimize a real child."

Debrincat is the 132nd suspected child predator to be arrested by the Sheriff's Internet Crimes Unit in the past three-and-a-half years, with the unit maintaining a 100-percent conviction rate.

"The issue, particularly for me, is that the number of predators is staggering," Evans said.

"The number of solicitations our officers get are in the hundreds per person, and it's only the tip of the iceberg."

Evans said the Internet Crimes Unit consists of only a handful of officers, which makes it difficult to keep up with the number of online predators.

www.hometownlife.com

"In our economy, we can't hire new officers to handle the epidemic, and we need the help of parents and grandparents to police Internet usage in the household, and if they suspect anything suspicious to give us a call," Evans said.

"These aren't just predators who reside locally, it's a nationwide network of people with perversions that drive or fly here to harm our kids."

A family of duffers faced with a loved one's diagnosis of a debilitating disease of the central nervous system is putting the call out, again, to all golfers to pick up their clubs and play a round for charity. Barring that, they'd at least like people to come out and eat for charity, which is just as good.

The Fifth Annual Hacker Golf Scramble, a benefit golf outing raising money for Multiple Sclerosis outreach and research, is being held again this year starting at 10 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 9, at Beacon Hill Golf Club, 6011 Majestic Oaks Drive, in Commerce Township. Scott and Ruth Crichton lived in Redford for 46 years. Years ago, their niece was diagnosed with MS and the family struggled to find some way to help.

"We couldn't really do anything for her personally," Scott Crichton said. "We decided we'd do what we could to raise money to help wipe out the disease. I and a lot of my friends are golfers and an outing was a practical way to raise money and have a good time."

In the four previous years of the fund raiser, the Hacker Scramble has raised more than $46,000 for MS research. This year, they're hoping to crack the $60,000 mark.

'We usually get between 110 and 140 golfers," he said. "The vast majority are golfers but there are some people who just come for the dinner."

Tickets to participate in the scramble are $100 and dinneronly tickets are $50. In both cases, $25 of every ticket goes directly for the cause.

The effort is still looking for corporate sponsors as well as participants. A donation of $200 will get a company logo or business card on an 11- by 17-inch placard at an individual tee and information about the company in a package of information given to every golfer.

The big sponsorship, the business that will give away large prizes to hole-in-one golfers, so far is Shuman Chrysler Jeep in Walled Lake.

"They're giving away car, a trip and a set of golf clubs," said sponsorship Manager Debbie Huet.

"Last year they were giving away a Chrysler Crossfire." National MS Society

Michigan Chapter vice president for marketing and development Leslie Kota describes events like the Hacker Scramble as third-party events and vital to the work the chapter does.

puts on a variety of events like the MS Walks and Bike Tours to raise funds," she said. "Hacker and events like it are third-party: We don't organize them, other people take on the responsibility of organizing them for us. They're absolutely important, every dollar is helpful towards our mission."

Of course, the National MS Society is working to eradicate the disease, but that's not all they do. Kota said there are an estimated 16,000 people living with the disease in Michigan and each person with the disease represents another seven who are impacted.

The Michigan chapter expects to raise more than $3 million over 2007 and about $275,000 of that is expected to come from thirdparty events like the Hacker Scramble.

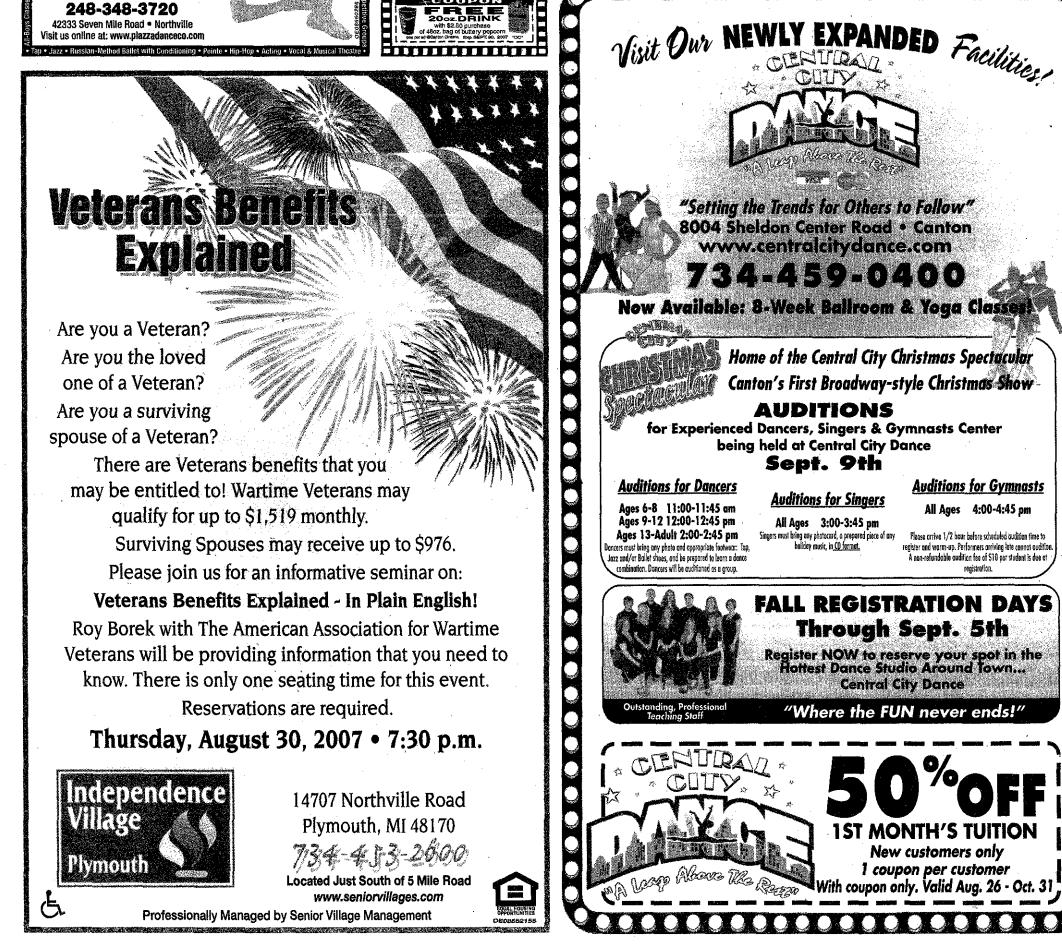

The National MS Society has a number of programs and services dedicated to helping families and caregivers of MS patients and events like the Hacker Scramble go a long way toward keeping those programs up and running.

Attendance at the event is limited to the first 144 golfers and 56 dinner guests. To participate in the scramble or to merely have dinner, contact the Chrichtons at (248) 684-0020 or e-mail at schricton@comcast.net.

Shutting down government College-bound? Here's a list to won't cure the state's ills 🗣 ummer doesn't mean the state budget 🐳 fights are on vacation. Gov. Jennifer Granholm wants tax hikes, the Republicans don't and the House Democrats are caught in the middle. What's going on is a classic case of gridlock, and the buzz around town is that the governor will try to cure legislative logjam with dynamite: a government shutdown.

Shut down the government and blame it on the Republicans? Make those patented Granholm five-hankie speeches? Tow the tame media around for some visuals of closed-down parks — maybe with a sobbing little kid outside a chained-shut gate and then make the speech for higher taxes? Heck, it worked for Clinton against Newt Gingrich, so why not? Actually, there are lots of reasons. A shutdown is a stunt and a very risky gamble. It's unnecessary, irresponsible and dangerous.

It's dangerous because a shutdown throws the state's string-and-duct-taped financial condition into a maelstrom of uncertainty. And folks, Michigan's fiscal state is even more dicey than you think. Michigan can't afford any more explosions, and those billion-plus operating deficits are just the tip of the iceberg.

Let's start with the biggest bomb, the same one that's all but blown up the U.S. automakers: legacy costs. Pensions aren't the real problem, it's "OPEB" or "Other Post-Employment Benefits," basically everything but the pension - mainly health care. The state has been paying OPEB costs on a pay-asyou-go basis, which is like covering the minimum on your credit card.

But a new accounting rule is coming into effect called GASB 45, which will require governments to get actuarially determined figures for their OPEB costs and carry them on the books as liabilities. Michigan's unfunded liability for public employees, including teachers, is estimated by Credit Suisse to be $22.745 billion.

That $22.745 billion liability compares to total state government assets of $30.427 billion. That includes the Mackinac Bridge, state parks, Mackinac Island, the Capitol Building, etc. Even more daunting, the new financial guidelines strongly prefer pre-funding of these liabilities, so Michigan has to start putting money aside for this huge obligation, as well as rethinking whether it can continue to promise these benefits to future employees.

But this won't be so easy. At the same time we have to start putting money aside, we find ourselves with less money in the bank. A recent publication from the non-partisan Citizens' Research Council, "Michigan's Deteriorating Cash Position," explains it all.

Briefly, "From fiscal year-end 2000 through fiscal year-end 20003, Michigan exhausted over $2.99 billion in its major funds cash reserves (General, School Aid and Budget Stabilization Funds) to support spending in excess of ongoing revenues. As of fiscal yearend 2006 major cash fund balances were negative $1.3 billion, a net change of more than $4.2 billion over six years." In other words, instead of balancing spending to income, we blew through over $4 billion of cash reserves.

This is dire - and damning. It started under Engler, but accelerated under Granholm. We spent more than we took in and ate up our savings, all to stave off making the hard choices, as well as the day of reckoning. Well, that day isn't here, but it's coming fast. This fiscal fecklessness has left our coffers so bare that even if Michigan wanted to save money by converting teachers to a defined contribution plan, we lack the cash to do it.

Not only that, but the drained reserve means we lack a cushion for routine cash-flow situations. The state collects money in the latter part of the fiscal year with property taxes, but has major payouts in the School Aid Fund in August. Michigan could find itself in a cash crunch which it can only cover by borrowing - yet we're currently at our constitutional limit for short-term borrowing. Hence School Aid and General Fund have borrowed from other state funds to meet daily needs and the manageable pool of common cash is lowest since 1992.

Folks, this is not a situation to be solved by pulling higher taxes out of a magician's hat. Michigan needs plain old-fashioned fiscal prudence, and willingness to look at both reality and the bottom line squarely. A final thought from MIRS News: "Since Gov. Jennifer Granholm issued her latest moratorium on new hires, transfers and promotions on March 29, the state Budget Office has granted at least 2,373 exceptions, the state budget office confirmed." That's $40 million worth! Brave words and bold initiatives only work if you really do them.

A House committee on OPEB obligations is now meeting and seems to be facing the problem unflinchingly. Granholm needs to do the same, and above all avoid the dangerous, reckless political gamble of a government shutdown. Michigan's fiscal house is too shaky to be playing with dynamite.

Chuck Moss (R-Birmingham) represents the state House 40th District.

make and check twice – and more ven though Christmas is four holidays away, parents of high school seniors are already making their list and checking it twice. But this list is about getting back to school. Pencils? Check. Assignment book, organizer, or electronic planner with optional music download capability? Check. Pre-faded jeans with factory-installed rips and a waistline that's miles away from your child's waist? A tough call.

List of colleges to consider for life after high school?

If this last item isn't on your list, you're not alone, and you're not too late, but it's time to get busy. The good news here is this item is easy to achieve. Unlike back-to-school shopping, which involves many stops and lots of snacks, developing a list of colleges to consider only involves two steps and lots of snacks. For some parents, the biggest challenge in making plans for college is making them with their child, not for their child. Senior year comes at a time when students want to make their own decisions about everything, which is natural. But parents have an interest in their child's college plans, since college plans have a direct impact on their child's future, the relationship parents will have with their adult child, and of course, their household budget, as parents determine the best way to pay for college.

So step one is to buy a pizza.

Sitting down over a family snack is a great way to begin the college discussion. Parents start the conversation by saying they want to make sure they're doing everything they can to help their senior without hassling them — so you'll all sit down once a week to discuss college. Parents can find out how college plans are going, and the student doesn't have to worry about getting ambushed with a college question on the way out the door with their friends Friday night. And if the student wants to talk about college some other time, that's a bonus as long as they avoid ambushes, too.

After about two or three of these weekly family meetings, the second stop is the school counselor's office. The counselor is the person who will be processing the paperwork for your child's college applications, so you want to make sure everyone is working off of the same information about the application process, and focusing on your child's interests and needs.

Having an adult in the high school who supports your child's college plans is a tremendous bonus. For many schools, however, counselors are challenged with an enormous number of students to serve; the national average is over

Sitting down over a family snack is a great way to begin the college discussion. Parents start the conversation by saying they want to make sure they're doing everything they can to help their senior without hassling them - so you'll all sit down once a week to discuss college.

500 students per counselor, and some counselors have caseloads over 1,000. The key here is to build a good relationship with the counselor, support your child, and respect the counselor's time, all at once. Begin this relationship by calling the counseling office for a 20-minute appointment in early September with the counselor, the parents, and the senior. At the meeting, the parents should ask the following five questions:

What should my child focus on as a student this year? "Senior year isn't just about prom and graduation - it's another year for the student to learn more about themselves and the world around them. The counselor may have some ideas on how you child can reach that goal. This is the perfect time to hear them.

Can we tell you a little about our child that we think would help you with their college plans? Very few counselors will say "no" when you ask this question, so this is your chance to share your insights into your child's life after high school. Just be sure to keep it to about 3-5 minutes - practice at home before going to the meeting.

Does my child have a realistic list of colleges? To be fair to the counselor, have your child drop this list off to the counselor a few days before the meeting.

What are the deadlines for submitting applications to you? With so many students to work with, the deadline to get the applications to the counselor is probably earlier than the date the applications are due to the college. Make sure you know these earlier dates, since missing them can cause delays and close options.

What's the best way to get in touch with you? Most counselors are either e-mail or phone people, so you want to find out the method that's going to get your questions answered the fastest.

These two simple steps will go along way in building a solid college plan in a way that meets everyone's needs and probably leave time to buy more school supplies to boot!

200-piece collection offers Civil War perspective

The Plymouth Historical Museum has received a donation of Civil War memorabilia that Director Elizabeth Kerstens called "priceless."

The nearly 200-piece collection, which included photographs, enlistment and commission papers, service pins and the muster book for the 2nd Michigan Infantry Regiment — information about every soldier in the 2nd Regiment - was donated this summer by former Our Lady of Good Counsel Pastor John Sullivan on behalf of the family of Capt. John C. Hardy.

John J. Hardy -- a son of the Civil War veteran - before he passed away.

"When I go to Civil War shows, you always see bits and pieces," said Dan Packer of Plymouth Township, a Civil War historian who is cataloguing the collection at the Plymouth Historical Museum. "You hardly ever see it all together.

"The provenance (background) is good," he added. "A lot of times when you get historical things, you don't know where it came from, or where it's been. In this case, we know.'

The items are in exceptional condition, having been passed only from Hardy to his son, and eventually to Sullivan before being donated to the museum.

volunteers for the insurrection of Fort Sumter in South Carolina," Packer said. "Hardy lived in Detroit, but went with the 2nd Regiment in Adrian. "Hardy said he was 17 years old on his papers, but he was really only 15 when he joined," Packer added. "He started as a private, enlisted several times, and ended up as a full captain by 1865, when the war ended. He fought over 20 major battles, and was severely wounded in one." Hardy was known as the "Hero of Petersburg" for capturing three dozen Confederate soldiers by himself. It was at Fort Steadman, during General Ulysses Grant's Petersburg campaign in Virginia, that Hardy was cited for conspicuous gallantry.

"The story goes that (General Robert E.) Lee's army tried to break out of Petersburg, and when Hardy saw a rebel poking his face out of the door of the Confederate headquarters he went charging through there with his musket, by himself," Packer said. "When he opened the door, there were 35 Confederate officers and soldiers. He told them 'give it up, you're surrounded,' and they surrendered. He became the hero of Fort Steadman."

Also included in the documents are Hardy's ordnance records for ordering ammunition during the Civil War.

"One document showed he ordered 3,500 bullets during the siege of Petersburg on April 1," Packer said. "On April 2 they were expended, so he had to get more bullets, and wrote out a form every time he needed them."

Kerstens said the fact the documents have been in very few hands the past 140 years makes this collection unique. "The Hardys took good care of this, it's in fabulous condition," Kerstens said. "From an archival standpoint, this is fantastic. If it hadn't been for priests taking care of it, the items would probably have been sold piece-meal, or thrown away.'

Dan Packer looks over Civil War records at the Plymouth Historical Muluip

Packer is in the process of cataloguing each item with a description, number and photo to be put in the museum's computer database. He wears white gloves to pry documents that have been glued to albums.

"Finger oil destroys documents, and putting it in light destroys it after a while," Kerstens said. "Even putting it in plastic could, over time, accelerate deterioration. However, we probably won't see that in our lifetime."

The Civil War collection enhances the Plymouth Historical Museum's Lincoln collection, which is the state's largest.

"It multiplies the value of the Lincoln collection because we have a whole collection from contemporary people," Kerstens said.

The Civil War memorabilia was given by Sullivan to one of his parishioners, Jack Grant ust call Lisa Sasaki the "anti-couch potato."

Who has time to settle into an easy chair and channel surf when you're serving as the chairman of golf outings, volunteering several hours a month to charities, participating in a golf league, playing regularly on a competitive over-30 soccer team and participating on a recreation softball squad?

Versatile volunteer

Sasaki's role is a multi-faceted one at Vista Maria. She has served as a chairperson for the organization's Women-Fore-Women Charity Golf Outing, which recently raised $13,000 for Vista Maria. Sasaki also donates time as a Vista Marie fund-development advisor and as the treasurer of the Clara B. Ford Charter Academy, which will open soon on a 42-acre spread located near the intersection of Warren and Outer Drive in Dearborn Heights. "It's cool being able to help make a difference in some of these young girls' lives," said Sasaki, a native of Chicago and graduate of the University of Michigan. "When you talk to some of these girls and you realize the abuse and neglect they've lived through in their short lives, it makes you realize how fortunate most of us are. "The time I put into Vista Maria is well worth it."

PREP SOCCER Pilots can barely fly over Salem kickers

BY ED WRIGHT STAFF WRITER

Salem's relatively young and inexperienced boys soccer team grew up in a hurry Thursday night against state power Warren DeLaSalle.

Almost too quickly, as far as the Pilots were concerned.

The Rocks battled to the end before falling, 2-1, to the host Pilots. It was the season-opener for both squads.

"Obviously, I wasn't happy with the outcome, but I couldn't have been more pleased with how we played," said Salem coach Ed McCarthy. "It's beneficial to play outstanding teams like DeLaSalle early in the season because you can learn a lot about your team and what things we need to work on."

McCarthy was complimentary when it came to the play of first-year varsity goalkeeper Sasa Mirkovic.

The sophomore stopped 12 Pilot shots.

"A couple of Sasa's saves were tremendous," said McCarthy.

Trailing 1-0 at the half, Salem drew even 15 minutes into the second half when Garrett Rogers headed in a pin-point pass from Alex Tramel. "Alex did a great job of getting the ball on the flank quickly before crossing a pass in Garrett's direction," said McCarthy. "Then Garrett just outjumped the defense and headed the ball past their diving keeper."

DeLaSalle scored the gamewinner with approximately 20 minutes left. "We had a few opportunities at the end, but we couldn't finish," said McCarthy. Salem will square off with cross-campus rival Plymouth Monday at 7 p.m. at the P-CEP varsity soccer field. W.L. CENTRAL 2, PLYMOUTH 0: On Wednesday in a WLAA cross-over game played on the P-CEP turf stadium, the Vikings posted a shutout in both teams' season debuts. "It was a disappointing effort," said Plymouth coach Jeff Neschich. "We played OK late in the first half and midway in the second, but we have to be more consistent."

Awards and a special prize will go'to the overall and masters (40-and-up) male and female winners. Medals will also be awarded to the top three finishers in each age group.

Oh, and she's also a vice president at Comerica, a position that requires frequent travel.

How does the 42-year-old Canton resident fit all these activities into her Franklin Planner? With a potent combination of enthusiasm, boundless energy and an enviable passion to help those in need.

"As a volunteer, Lisa is very, very committed to our cause," said Cameron Hosner, the president of Vista Maria, a Dearborn Heights-based charity that assists abused, neglected and povertystricken women and children. "She's one of those people who has come in and really made a difference. We're privileged to have her knowledge and support.

"Vista Maria needs to raise around $600,000 a year just to break even. It's people like Lisa who make it possible."

Sports of all sorts

Sasaki admitted her two favorite athletic endeavors are soccer and golf. She's a defender for the Michigan Magic, which competes in the "A" Division of the 42-team Great Lakes Women's Soccer League.

'Hahn'orable mention Sophomore to lead Plymouth runners

BY ED WRIGHT STAFF WRITER

Add All-State track-andfield two-miler Kelly Hahn to an already talented and experienced Plymouth girls cross country roster and what do you get?

A team that could make some serious waves in the Western Lakes Activities Association in 2007.

"We're looking good so far," said Plymouth coach Mary Kerwin. "Any time you can add a runner who finished fourth in the state in the two-mile like Kelly did to the group of girls we have coming back, you have to be excited.'

Hahn, who is only a sophomore, moved to Plymouth from Pennsylvania in January and sparkled for the Wildcats' track-and-field team in the spring. She's no stranger to cross country, having run for her high school team last fall.

"Kelly is not only a great runner, but she has a fantastic attitude," Kerwin noted. "She's very coachable and does everything Kelly Hahn she's asked.

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY PREVIEW

Kerwin got her first glimpse of Hahn's talent at last year's Division 1 Regional track meet at the P-CEP stadium.

"I saw her run the two-mile and she ran a great race," said Kerwin. "The thing that impressed me the most was that she was sprinting at the end even though there was no one around her."

The Michigan Nationals U12 girls soccer team, which included several Observerland-area players, was runnerup at the U.S. Club Soccer National Cup tournament in Burlington, N.C. earlier this month. The team, which is made up of girls from five southern Michigan soccer clubs, lost in a shootout to Soccerop of Charlotte, N.C., in the championship contest. The team went undefeated at a Regional tournament in Indianapolis, outscoring their foes, 13-0. will give the Wildcats a potent 1-2-3 punch. Heldmeyer was the lone Plymouth runner to qualify for the D1 state meet in 2006 while Slavens has already earned two varsity letters.

"Both Beth and Molly have been among our top runners the previous two years," said Kerwin. "Beth is a very steady, consistent runner. She puts everything she has into everything she does. She has the heart of a lion.

"Molly's been one of our top seven runners the past three years. She's a great leader; she gets all of the girls involved in everything."

Plymouth's top five will be rounded out by seniors Pam Bhullar and Lauren Ahearn, both of whom will serve as captains.

"Pam is a brilliant girl, she's very smart and it shows in her running," said Kerwin. "She's a very hard worker. You ask her to jump and she asks, 'How high?"

Returning contributors Paula Green and Julie Forrester, both sophomores, are the early-season No. 6 and 7 runners. Seniors Katie Balaze, Annie Bergmans and Laura Hahn - Kelly's older sister - will provide valuable depth to the Wildcats' cause.

SALEM

The perennially strong Rocks endured a rebuilding year in 2006 as four-year star Hannah Cavicchio (who now runs for Grand Valley State University) was the lone Salem runner to advance to the D1 state meet. Veteran coach Dave Gerlach is banking on a group of young but unproven harriers to lead the Rocks back toward the road to success.

"I'm positively optimistic," said Gerlach, whose teams were regular participants at the D1 state meet prior to last season. "We were a little down last year and we're definitely going to miss Hannah, but we have a group of first-year runners and some returners who have really impressed me so far. The entire group is stepping up and working hard."

Junior Kelley Determan, last year's No. 2 runner for the Rocks, takes over the No. 1 role.

"Kelley trained extremely hard over the summer because she knew she was scheduled to be our No. 1 this year," said Gerlach. "I think she learned a lot from Hannah last year about what it takes to be successful."

Three first-year runners will fill out the Rocks' top four slots, at least early in the season: junior Linda Ling, sophomore Jordyn Moore and freshman Mackenzie Rogers.

Senior captain Sabrina Burcroff, returning senior Freyal Shah, junior Emma Van Hoof and freshman Kara Booms will also play vital roles for the Rocks this fall. Others battling for varsity points include senior Lauren Olson, Kristen Dondzila and Kortney Marsh.

Gerlach gave a nod to Livonia Churchill and Northville as the teams to beat in the WLAA.

"Plymouth has some very talented runners, too," he added.

The Rocks open their season Aug. 30 at the Lutheran Westland Time Trials at Nankin-Mills. Their first invitational is set for Sept. 9 at Birmingham Brother Rice.

CANTON

First-year coach Eric Pahl inherits a team that is paced by one of the top runners in the WLAA, junior Sarah Thomas, who placed 43rd at the D1 state meet in 2006.

"Sarah is a great leader and a hard worker," said Pahl, who served as an assistant coach at Canton last year. "She ran a 19:02 at the state meet last year and she's looking to break the school record of 18:54 this year. Obviously, based on what she's done in the past, she has a very good shot at it."

Pahl has set high goals for the Thomas-led Chiefs.

"I'd like to win the City Meet, win the division and finish in the top three in the conference and at the Regional," he said.

While Thomas is the Chiefs' top weapon this season, she's far from the only one. Freshman Rachel Rohrbach has shown amazing potential in early-season workouts while seniors Katherine Rymond and Brittany Dempsey will provide talent and leadership.

"Katherine is a good, hard worker and is a very consistent performer," said Pahl.

Other key contributors include junior Katherine Galm and Paula Schubatis; and sophomores Margaret Murphy and Melanie Kulczyki.

Whalers to rely on youth to repeat as OHL champs

A week before the start of training camps, there's plenty of good cheer around the Ontario Hockey League.

Even though the Plymouth Whalers graduated a core that led them to their second OHL Championship since 1990, there's a talented group of younger players returning along with Whaler pups that should make the 2007-08 season interesting and entertaining.

Training camp kicks off with the Whalers' annual golf outing, which is set for Tuesday at Fox Hills Golf Course in Plymouth.

The Whalers will officially get down to business on Wednesday with off-ice testing. Plymouth hits the ice in scrimmages on Thursday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 3-5 p.m.; and Friday from 9-11 a.m. and 3-5 p.m. The scrimmages are free and open to the public.

Plymouth gets the pre-season started with its' traditional Labor Day weekend homeand-home series with Windsor. It will host the Spits on Saturday, Sept. 1 at 4 p.m., at the Compuware Sports Arena before traveling to Windsor on Monday, Sept. 3, for a contest at Windsor Arena.

Following are some Plymouth story lines worth watching as training camp and the season unfolds:

GOALTENDING: With Washington-draft Michal Neuvirth and Nashville-draft Jeremy Smith returning, Plymouth starts the season with arguably the best goaltending depth in the OHL, if not the Canadian Hockey League.

Neuvirth and Smith split the regular season last year, but Neuvirth became Plymouth's lead goaltender in the 2007 playoffs.

Smith and Neuvirth are good friends and Smith took a professional attitude when he sat last spring during the Whalers' championship run.

"Coach (Mike Vellucci) said it's not me, I didn't do anything to get pulled out, it's Michal playing really well," Smith told the Vancouver Province during the 2007 MasterCard Memorial Cup. "You've just got to live with that. It just makes you work harder. I'm ready to go whenever coach gives me the nod. I've got nothing against Michal or anything like that."

Neuvirth has been signed by Washington and was hoping to start his professional career within the Capitals' minor league system. But with veteran goaltenders already in Washington's system at Hershey in the AHL and South Carolina of the ECHL, Neuvirth will start the season with Plymouth, OVERAGES: In Evan Brophey, Steve Ward and Jared Boll, the Whalers had perhaps their strongest overage class-ever last season.

Vellucci will eventually choose three out of a 1987birthday group that includes Wes Cunningham, Steve Whitely, Sean O'Connor, Andrew Fournier, Joe McCann and Zack Shepley.

OHL Teams can start the season with more than four overages, have to cut to four by the middle of March and decide on three by January 10. If you're new to the OHL, you'll see quite a bit of movement among 1987 birthdays around the league, probably right on up to the OHL's Final Trade Deadline on Jan. 10.

YOUNG VETERANS: Thirdyear veteran Chris Terry (66 points) is the leading scorer returning and AJ Jenks. Vern Cooper and Kaine Geldart will see their share of ice time. Add Joe Gaynor, Steve Lock (just over from Peterborough) and Brett Valliquette to the same list. On defense, Carolina-draft Brett Bellemore will anchor the Whalers defense and fan-favorite Jozef Sladok will get more ice time along with Leo Jenner. A pleasant surprise could be Jordon O'Neill, who moves the puck well.

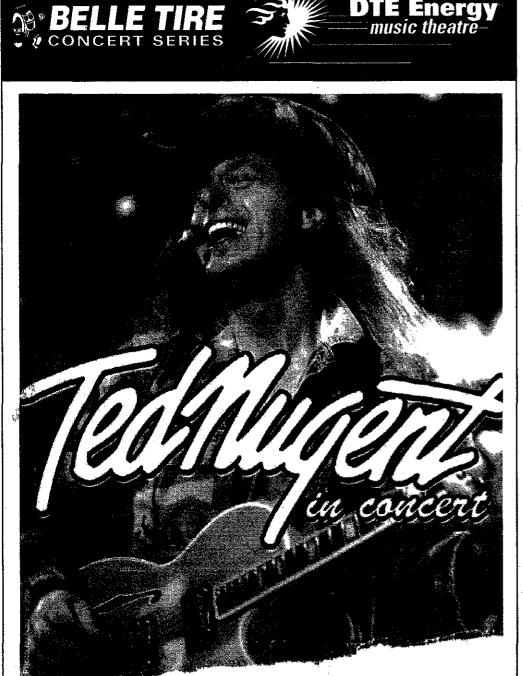

WHALER PUPS: Plymouth fans will probably enjoy watching Whaler rookies Taylor Carnevale, Chad Rutkowski and RJ Mahalak up front and Josh Bemis and Tom Kane on the blue line. Given the fact that Plymouth is a younger overall group this season, all five (plus more) will see their share of ice time.

THE WEST DIVISION: It's fair to say the West Division is evenly matched, at least to start. Sarnia and Windsor have the most veteran players returning, so there is plenty of optimism in both cities.

Saginaw graduated Patrick McNeill and Tom Pyatt and goaltender Ryan Daniels looks to pick things up. Sault Ste. Marie always works hard and overage goaltender Kyle Gajewski is playing for a pro contract.

"We have a great group of ladies, some of whom played on the first varsity women's soccer team at Michigan State. It's a competitive league, but we have fun too."

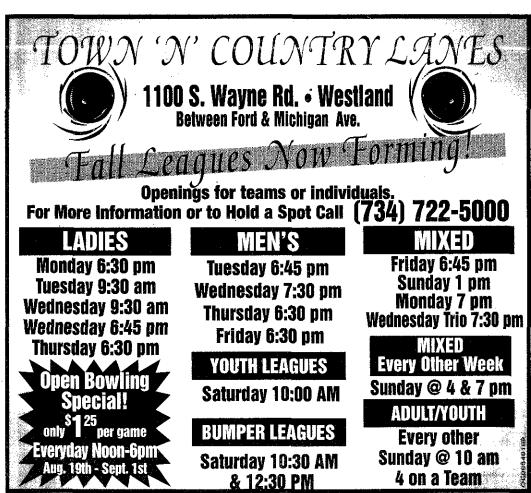

Sasaki said sports and volunteering share a common, vital thread.

"The No. 1 thing with both is that you need teamwork to succeed," she said. "It's tough to be successful when you're in it alone."

Chiefs on the right course after rough spring season

BY ED WRIGHT STAFF WRITER

Canton — the girls high school golf team that calls Hilltop home – will be shooting to get closer to the Western Lakes Activities Association mountaintop in 2007.

Veteran head coach Dan Riggs isn't sure where his vastly improved team will finish, but he's pretty sure it will be higher than the Chiefs' near-the-bottom standing this past spring.

"We're head and shoulders above were we were last year," said Riggs, who is starting his 26th year of coaching golf at Canton. "It remains to be seen where we'll end up because our league is so strong, but we should be improved."

Riggs said his sport's switch to the fall has far more pluses than minuses.

"The biggest positive about playing in the fall is that the weather is so much nicer," he said. "I can remember playing matches in April when it was snowing out.

The only negative is that the courses are more crowded, but if our girls are playing a little too slow and there are people behind us, we let them play through. I love the move to the fall.'

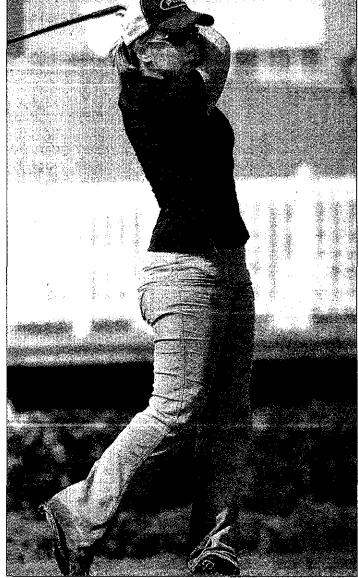

The Chiefs will be led by a quartet of returners: juniors Kara Gregory and Chelsea Osburn, who will be the No. 1 and No. 2 players, respectively; along with senior Amy Provost (No. 3) and junior Alexandra Wee (No. 4).

Other key contributors will include Mary Elizabeth Wintler, sophomore Breanna Hicks, senior Joanna Alexander and junior Michelle Nagy.

This blind-siding, heart-wrenching event usually takes the life of a beloved figure. Whether actor, activist, singer or heart throb, no one will ever forget where they were or what they were doing when the tragic news broke.

Crowds gather, tears flow and mobs of people are unable to wrap their minds around what has happened. It's called grief unspeakable and when it happens it seems like the entire world has stood still.

Argentina secured its moment in time when it lost its precious Evita - Eva Peron - during the early 1950s. The 1960s delivered its own overwhelming tragedy with the horrible assassinations of John F. Kennedy, Bobby Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. During this time we were a nation lost in grief.

The world lost Elvis Presley in 1977 and even though I was in my own little world at the time I remember exactly where I was when I heard of John Lennon's passing in 1980.

But, during my adult life I can't remember a time that has so held a nation of people captive like the event that took place Aug. 31, 1997, in the wee hours of the morning. My Chicago hotel room and unplanned vacation did little to shield me from the unbelievable shock. In the early morning hours I awoke to my husband telling me that Lady Di, as Princess Diana was so affectionately called, had been in a car accident on the streets of Paris.

Naturally, I thought it was bad dream, so I dismissed what my husband was saying and turned over to go back to sleep. The 7 a.m. news slapped me back into reality. My mouth must have hung open in disbelief for at least two hours that morning.

During the following days and weeks after Princess Diana's tragic death, in my state of confusion and sorrow I grieved, as did we all. I can't remember a day that tears did not fall from my eyes during some point during the day. I remember my eborah Dillard looks with trepidation at the dozens of yellow rubber ducks perched on a table at Merri-Bowl Lanes in Livonia. She can only imagine the work it will require to detag 15,000 of the quackers before they can float down a canal next to Belle Isle Casino in the first ever Duck Derby to benefit the children's programs of Gleaners Community Food Bank of Southeastern Michigan.

Gleaners is renting the ducks from Cincinnati after that city's race to raise funds for hungry residents.

Every dollar spent to adopt a duck from Gleaners buys three healthy meals for one hungry child.

The Detroit race takes place as part of 14 other Community Bowling Centers including Troy Lanes, Classic Lanes in Rochester Hills and Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield through today or by calling Dillard, Gleaners development director, at (313) 923-3535, ext. 260, or sending an e-mail to ddillard@gcfb. org. The centers just finished their Strike Out Hunger campaign to collect canned goods for Gleaners.

"We thought it was important to bring in food and raise money," said Phil Goodman, community relations director for Community Bowling Centers.

It's Dillard's goal "to have everybody in the state of Michigan adopt a duck to cure hunger." Proceeds go to the children's food programs, which provide lunches for children during the summer and all year long. Gleaners is celebrating its 30th anniversary of feeding hungry people this year by working with more than 400 social service partners including churches, food pantries, the Salvation Army and Capuchin Soup Kitchen.

girlfriend telling me she was the same way. There was a deep hole of despair that we could not pull ourselves out of.

I cried for the tragic way Diana's life was taken. And, oh how I cried for those boys, her sons who'd just lost their mother, and how would they ever learn all the things she would never teach them because now she was gone?

Diana had her problems and was called by some lost and confused at times. But I have not met a human being yet who hasn't fallen into that category at one time or another during their life.

After her divorce from Prince Charles, Diana seemed to have spent the remainder of her life looking for love, something she felt was lacking in her marriage. She also seemed to be a ball of contradictions and her love-hate relationship with the press would prove to be her downfall.

However, with all that aside, Diana taught the Royal family as well as the world some needed life lessons. She taught us about the power of human touch and how important it is. Caring and consideration, love and compassion – all things we seemed to be losing a grip on – she put on the world stage for everyone to see.

It has been 10 years since Diana's untimely demise and the one thing I can be sure she taught us all is that no royal crown or any sparkling palace hall, or any bulging bag of cash could ever take the place of love, simply loving one another.

Diana knew it all too well; this lesson should be imbedded in our hearts forever.

Bobbie Jones is a Belleville resident and a regular contributor to the Observer. Gleaners 14th annual Fall Harvest Family Event, 1-3:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, at Belle Isle in Detroit. The adoption fee for ducks is $5 each, or $25 for five ducks to swim in the race plus one extra feathered friend with the Gleaners logo that will be mailed to the supporter.

Duck Adoption forms are available at Merri-Bowl, Super Bowl in Canton and the The Duck Derby is actually a licensed raffle. According to Gleaners, each duck will be marked with a number which relates to the number on each raffle ticket/adoption paper.

y day, Lisa Norton works on a variety of projects to promote Angela Hospice's end-of-life services, but when the sun goes down, just about anything goes as the 26year-old Livonia violinist takes to the stage with el boxeo.

Creativity is key to Norton's life, whether she's writing a press release about the Livonia nonprofit's Oct. 13 fund-raiser to help patients and their families, or sewing jellyfish costumes for friends who dance in the band's show.

"We play mostly instrumental," said Norton, who interned at Angela Hospice while earning a degree in English and fine arts at Madonna University. "We originally had keyboards, but have gone through different configurations. At the end of 2003, we played our first show - just the three of us - and realized we'd found our niche."

Norton began playing viola in fifth grade in Livonia Public Schools, but didn't switch to violin until starting the band in 2001. Although she enjoyed painting during her college days, music and sewing have become a big part of her life. Norton, her brother and a couple of friends have been talking about starting a T-shirt business since she silk-screened images onto clothing for the band known for its unique music and show. One of the most creative moments on stage is when Norton wears tap shoes to solo on a ceramic tile left over from her bathroom floor.

John and Lina Del Signore never dreamed that closing their Livonia restaurant would leave such a void in the community. One year later they continue to hear about how much customers miss Fonte D'Amore which the Livonia couple owned for nearly 40 years.

On Friday, Sept. 7, the Del Signores rekindle the warmth and atmosphere of the traditional Italian restaurant while serving up delicious food at their Laurel Manor Banquet Center, 39000 Schoolcraft in Livonia. The Fond Memory Evening - Memories of Fonte D'Amore begins at 6 p.m. with cocktails and a Deluxe Open Bar. At 7 p.m. guests can once again enjoy the specialties of Fonte's menu at strolling food stations. Tickets are $40 and must be reserved by Wednesday, Sept. 5, by calling (734) 462-0770.

"When we sold Fonte last year Betty Jean Awrey, one of the legendary customers, said we have to have an annual celebration," said John Del Signore. "There are so many memories. We have to do something. We're going do the same thing we did at Fonte, the same menu. We had been there since 1968. We had plenty regular customers."

Even though Bob and Betty Jean Awrey sold their Livonia bakery two years, they continued to eat at Fonte until it closed Aug. 12, 2006. Over the years Awrey had volunteered with organizations such as the Livonia Symphony Orchestra and knew she could always count on the Del Signores' support. Angela Hospice, the Karmanos Cancer Institute and St. Mary Mercy Hospital were recipients of the couple's generosity.

"They participated in everything for the community. They've been a big supporter of this community and the community has supported them. It was just a place to meet and greet. It was a happening place," said Betty Jean Awrey.

Fonte D'Amore served authentic traditional Italian food which came from the old country until son Luciano Del Signore updated the menu in the late 1980s. The restaurant after being married in Fonte D'Amore some 49 years ago. Luciano grew up in the restauvated it to make it more updated, modern Italian. We had upscale waiters and probably had the most important wine list in the area.

"I think the party is a nice idea. People will have an opportunity to see each other. If you were a client that dined every Friday night, there were probably 40 other people who did the same."

Livonia businessman Bill Phillips is looking forward to the Sept. 7 event. He became a regular customer back in 1974 after opening one of his businesses in the area.

"I was looking for a place to have lunch and went quite often. Lunch turned into dinner and family events," said Bill Phillips, owner of Phillips Service Industries. "The food was excellent Italian food. Service was always very, very good. We got acquainted with staff over the years and John and Lina and the family. It's not unusual for us to go to their home or them to come to ours. We've seen the kids grow. It's been a good relationship. They're very good close friends. John and I used to go hunting and fishing together and bring it back and cook it."

The Del Signores have been good friends of Mary Lou Andrew and her late husband Dan from the beginning of the restaurant. Dan served on the city of Livonia's Planning Commission.

"Our family was there for First Communions, Confirmations, graduations, after weddings and funerals. Everything that was important in our life was there," said Mary Lou Andrew who's lived in Livonia 39 years. Andrew is planning to attend the Sept. 7 event with her daughter Ann King and her husband Steve. "The food was excellent. They prepared Dover sole at your table and it was just perfect. I want to say I'm fond of the family but the food was delicious.'

Lina misses the customers as much as they miss her and John. "I cried for three weeks," said Lina Del Signore. "I never dreamed in my life that customers would come up and say can you sign this menu, can you take a picture with us. We have a case of memories from customers, notes and photos."

driven rock band. The group doesn't even have a lead guitar, only Norton on electrified violin, her brother Zach on bass and former Churchill High schoolmate Danny Sperry on drums.

Originally, the band was started with friends Jenny Gumina and Lars Hedelin, a Swedish exchange student. Gumina left in 2003, as did Hedelin, who designed the cover for el boxeo's Awake & Dreaming CD released in 2006.

Today, Gumina works with Norton at Angela Hospice processing donations. Norton says she enjoys her day job because she feels she's helping people.

Founded in 1985, Angela Hospice served 1,359 patients last year, from young children to seniors.

"The band is a natural with all of us being friends and all of us being interested in music," Norton said. "We realize we're not really a commercial sound, but it would be great to do commercial soundtracks. Most of it for us is just having fun. We'd like to be able to tour."

Last summer, el boxeo traveled west for $3\frac{}{2}$ weeks to play in clubs, bars, art galleries and house shows in Texas, California and Washington state.

"In rural areas where there's not a lot of venues, people book shows in their house. It might be in a house, but they have shows every week," Norton said. "We're like a party band. There's so much energy that my favorite place to play is house shows. There's so much energy in smaller venues. (Financially) we usually break even on tour. You stay with people you meet. You're getting to see the whole country through a van window. It's the complete absence of stress to just go and play music. It's an amazing lifestyle."

Zach Norton and Sperry enjoy touring so much they took off this summer to play with Child Bite after performing at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor and Elbow Room in Ypsilanti in late June with el boxeo.

Both Wayne State University students return Monday from engagements in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Georgia and Tennessee. While Zach, the group's 24-year-old bass player, enjoys the rowdier punk music of Child Bite, el boxeo's post-rock can sound like country or heavy metal.

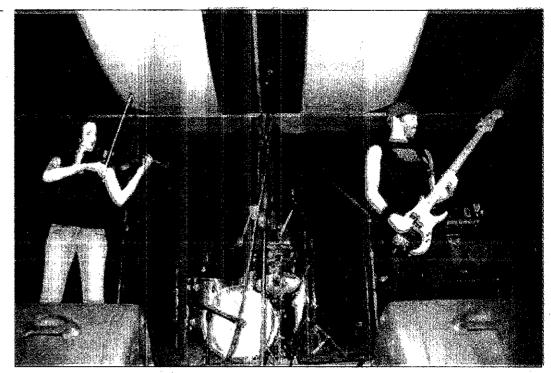

Zach originally came up with the band's name after seeing a poster about the sport of boxing in his Spanish classroom. He says the two bands "satisfy different creative needs."

"I thought it was nice, but it's sort of an annoying band name because you have to tell people how to spell and pronounce it," said Zach Norton, who's majoring in public relations and would eventually like to work in "the nonprofit sector like his big sis" or in journalism. Norton has been involved with the Wayne State newspaper The South End and believes "newspapers are a vital institution in the world today and serve an important purpose."

In the meantime, Zach and the rest of el boxeo plan to spend the month of September writing songs for their new CD with Suburban Sprawl Music, an independent record label and musical collective started in 1999 in Livonia.

"We don't have any lofty goals," Zach said. "It would be nice to have the band together and keep making cool music, keep making interesting but still accessible music."

Lisa Norton says many of their creative ideas come from Sperry, who's studying graphic design and print making at Wayne State. The 23-yearold Detroit drummer plans to eventually earn a master's degree in fine arts.

"I've always really been into music. I started playing bass guitar, then saved up and bought a drum set and that clicked. I've been playing drums since seventh grade," Sperry said. "I usually describe el boxeo's music as high-energy instrumental music. It's the instrumentation that sets us apart. I'm not sure of many other bands that consist of drums, bass and violin."

Lisa Norton says onstage she has to laugh to herself.

"It's kind of this chaos to me and somehow it all works," she said. el boxeo's Awake හි

Dreaming CD is available in independent records stores, at their shows and the Web site www.suburbansprawlmusic. com.

"One side the music is awake, the other dreaming," Norton said. "The awake side is barebone and alive like on our shows. Dreaming is where we got to experiment more. On the Web site, we have people in Japan order our CD. That goes with the dream part of it."

Art & Apples brings family activities, fine art and tasty apple desserts to Rochester

BY SHARON DARGAY STAFF WRITER

If you're intent on showing your work at this year's Art & Apples festival in downtown Rochester, forego the paint and clay, metal and glass.

Try creating in MacIntosh. Or Winesap, with overtones of Granny Smith. You might win a handmade pie plate for your culinary artistry.

"It's our first annual pie bakeoff. This is open to everyone," said Karen Cuthbertson, festival director and events coordinator at Paint Creek Center for the Arts, the organization that benefits from the annual post-Labor Day fair.

"The idea came about because we wanted to incorporate apples into this year's festival, more than had been done in the past. We didn't want to conflict with people selling pies, but we wanted to give people an opportunity to show their own pies."

With approximately 265 artists juried into the annual event, held in Rochester Municipal Park, Art & Apples has always been heavy on painting, sculpture, metal, jewelry, ceramics, baskets, drawing, fibers, glass and other fine art creations.

This year, with the festival's inaugural bake-off, visitors will be reminded that Michigan's second largest art fair is about apples, too.

We haven't received too many applications yet. We're hoping we will get more before the deadline of Aug. 29," Cuthbertson said. "We do have a few rules. Apples can be the only major fruit involved in the making of the pie."

Judges will consider presentation, taste and quality when selecting the top three winners. Entrants will bake their pies at home and drop them off in time for 10 a.m., judging on Saturday, Sept. 8, the second day of the three-day event. Applications are available from www.artandapples.com. The entry fee is $10.

"We hope to have at least 15 pies. We hope our pie bakers will stick around for the judging," Cuthbertson noted.

The bake-off is just one of several new attractions at the festival this year, which runs from 4-7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 7, 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 8 and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 9.

PICKLES AND RIBS

Ski's, a new vendor this year, will serve up deep-fried pickles, Oreo cookies and traditional Polish foods. Brett's BBQ, another new addition to the food court, will keep the Jamaican jerk chicken and baby-back ribs flowing.

"We have fabulous favorites coming back," Cuthbertson added. "Millers Big Red is a favorite and the Rochester Junior Women do an apple blossom that is incredible. It's nice because you can find something to snack on or a meal to take home for dinner."

The festival "kids zone" with its take-home art projects is expanded this year and organizers have added an "activity zone" geared to older children.

We wanted to do something interactive for families that come here but need a break from the artwork," Cuthbertson said. "We'll have a rock climbing wall available all weekend. South Street Skate Park will be there offering anyone an opportunity to decorate their deck - that's what they call the board in a skate board."

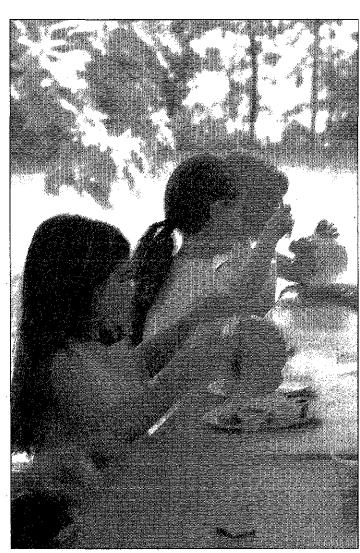

The Henry Ford's interactive Rouge Factory Tour will be on hand and M-Chip child ID program will be available on Saturday.

JC Drum and Music Center of Rochester will give everyone a chance to try their hand at drumming from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., on Saturday, Sept. 8. The JC Drum Circle is among the entertainment that's new to the festival. "We have a few new groups. I was trying to do something different this year," said Chris Dunstan, festival entertainment Youngsters work on take-home projects at Art & Apples. coordinator.

She included The Novel Citizen, an "indie rock band" on the main stage schedule, which generally features folk music, local high school bands and dance studios. The group will perform at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 9. Dunstan also moved some musical acts into the children's art area this year.

Zippity2Dads, new to Art & Apples, will perform from 1-1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 8, and again from 1-3 p.m., on Sunday, Sept. 9, in the children's area.

Cuthbertson suggests that visitors set aside several hours to see everything at Art & Apples this year.

"We try to have a variety of things for everyone. A family could easily spend the whole day." she said. "With over 250 artist booths this year, they'll definitely have their work cut out seeing all of it."

Keeping healthy heart may help prevent dementia

Tim from Sterling Heights e-mails asking for help decreasing his chances of developing dementia.

Tim, the key may be in taking care of your heart. A new study followed more than 450 elderly people. They found those with cardiovascular disease showed sharper declines in cognitive function than those with healthy hearts. Researchers believe reduction of blood flow to the brain due to heart disease may be gradually eroding cognitive function. Doctors say reducing cardiovascular risk factors such as high blood pressure and high cholesterol will not only be good for your heart, but will improve blood flow to the brain and help cognitive function.

Florence from Hamtramck says her arthritis is so painful she doesn't want to get out of bed in the morning. What can she do?

Florence, you are not alone; arthritis is the leading cause of disability in Americans older than 15. In fact, 66 million adults, nearly one in three, either have arthritis or are living with joint pain. It does not have to be that way.

Studies found arthritis patients saw a greater reduction in pain when they combine exercise, diet, heat and cold therapy, acupuncture or glucosamine and chondroitin with current pain therapy. But before you start any complementary treatment, discuss it with your doctor to make sure it will help rather than hinder your arthritis management plan.

If you have a health or fitness question you would like answered in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, email Peter through his Web site www.peternielsen.com. Contact him at Peter Nielsen's Personal Training Club in West Bloomfield or Nielsen's Town Center Health Club in Southfield.

eff Rysenga is still trying to deal with the fact there is no curative treatment for the leukemia doctors diagnosed three years ago after he felt a lump on his neck.

"It was hard for me to understand, telling me I have cancer and not to do anything about it," said Jeff Rysenga who shares a Berkley home with wife Ann and three children. "The doctors said because there is no cure we want to save the treatment for when you need it. I didn't have night sweats or elevated white cell counts. I was feeling fine. They put me on watch and wait. The problem I had couldn't just move on. I needed some way of releasing energy around that issue. I called the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society and got some information that was helpful in getting used to this diagnosis."

Not long after being told he has chronic lymphocytic leukemia Rysenga reached out to the nonprofit and became involved in Light the Night Walks. This year he's chairing the Metro Detroit Walk Friday, Sept. 28, at Memorial Park in Royal Oak, one of seven statewide walks to raise money for blood cancer research and improve the quality of life for patients and their families. For more information or to register, call (800) 456-5413 or visit www.lightthenight. org/mi.

After a brief program beginning at 6:45 p.m., walkers leave the park carrying lighted balloons - white for survivors, red for supporters, or gold in memory of a loved one who lost their battle with blood cancer.

"What's really neat about it is we try to make the actual walk itself almost a party atmosphere with great food. We have entertainment. It's just fun. The reason we do that is the hard work of raising money is over - the Tupperware parties or selling candy bars at work or their kids going around the neighborhood with coffee cans," said Rysenga, 46, who works in product development for OnStar by General Motors. OnStar chose the Society as the focus of its charitable work this year.

"We do kind of a three mile stroll carrying those balloons starting just after dusk. To see all those people walking

Ryan Gliesman thought his fatigue was due to the stress of working as a mortgage banker until he "felt a hard object in his stomach". The 29-year old Farmington Hills man would soon discover his enlarged spleen was a symptom of the leukemia diagnosed by doctors in January.

Today, he's back at his desk at Quicken Loans in Livonia thanks to Gleevec, a medication he takes once a day to combat the chronic myelogenous leukemia. Gleevec is among a new generation of drugs that target specific proteins which cause cancer cells to grow and multiply. A bone biopsy revealed Gliesman carried the Philadelphia chromosome that produces an abnormal protein which tells the bone marrow to keep making abnormal white blood cells. Gleevec blocks the signal.

"It's the first cancer drug that's a target therapy. Chemo kills both good and bad. This targets the one condition. I with the balloons, it's kind of an emotional thing."

In 1949 when the Society was founded the survival rate for acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL), the most prevalent childhood form, was 4 percent compared to 85 to 86 percent today.

"The Society's mission is to cure blood cancer and improve the quality of life for patients and families," said Peggy Pattison, deputy executive director of the Michigan Chapter. "We spend about $60 million a year on research across the world. We have researchers everywhere trying to find a cure. We take the best research and do what we can to support who can make leaps and bounds to finding a cure."

Pattison is proud of the progress made in treating blood cancers. Since the 1960s, the five-year survival ave more than doubled That's important when every 10 minutes someone dies of blood cancer. "I think it's important to understand our further progress is dependent on everyone. Support from each of the communities allows us to continue to move forward. Public awareness is important as well to understand what blood cancers are. There's a little bit of a misperception. Some people believe leukemia is just a blood disorder and it's a cancer, to understand Hodgkin's and Non-Hodgkin's are blood cancers, and we're here to help with all forms of blood cancer.' The Society offers a variety of services to assist in dealing with blood cancer. Education programs for patients and medical professionals make the latest information available. Society staff is waiting to talk to patients from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday about treatnent, clinical trials and how kind of put my faith in modern medicine. I don't ask as many questions as people might. I'm keeping a positive attitude. The only cure is having a bone marrow transplant and there's a high fatality rate with that and they usually only do if a necessity," said Ryan Gliesman who isn't sitting around waiting for his condition to worsen.

On Oct. 5, more than 30 friends, family members and co-workers will join him for the Light the Night Walk in Gallup Park in Ann Arbor.

"I was very fortunate to have support from all my family and friends," said Gliesman. "As soon as I got diagnosed my girlfriend found out about the walk and had a fund-raiser. A corn toss game raised $1,500 at her parents' home. It's kind of like horseshoes. We got some of the local businesses to contribute.

Teleconferences and Web casts with medical professionals take place more than 25 times a year on topics of interest to patients and caregivers free of charge. Support groups establish communication between blood cancer patients. The Society's financial aid programs provide up to $500 for any expense to do with treatment, including transportation to and from centers, and certain medications. While this particular program is not on a needs basis, the new co-pay assistance for premiums and prescriptions is based on an individual's financial situation.

UPDATE ON FIBROMYALGIA

The pain in fibromyalgia has proved vexing not only to patients, but to their physicians. At present, the greatest advance in the treatment of fibromyalgia is not how to treat its pain but earning where the pain originates. Research indicates that fibromyalgic pain starts in a pain center in the mid brain, an area of the spinal cord just above the cerebeilum.

This pain center has its own characteristic receptors and chemical stimulators. For that reason medications such as Prozac and Paxil, and a number of tranquilizers used to treat fibromyalgia have not worked well. These medication act on brain centers higher in the brain that are constituted differently and exhibit different responses to drugs than the mid brain pair

At this time no medication specifically acts to reduce the pain sensitivity of the mid brain pain center in patients with fibromyalgia. Finding a drug that will raise the mid brain pain threshold is the focus of energetic pharmaceutical research. Likely within 2-3 years an effective drug will come forward.

Until that time, the best therapy for fibromyalgia Is daily exercise, ideally done early in the morning. Early exercise creates endorphins, chemicals that act as the body's own pain

These endorphins are excellent but last only 24 hours. Thus a patient with fibromyalgia needs to exercise daily and consider exercise a medication. Until good drug therapy appears, exercise is the treatment of choice for fibromyalgia.

Good money management can send you back to school

BY JULIE BROWN STAFF WRITER

It's a tough gig.

You're trying to save money so you can get back to school. Back to school so you can train for a career, not just another job.

But you're on a tight budget already. In fact, it seems like you're squeezing your nickels so tight the buffalo are screaming. After all, you're only spending your money on essentials like food, clothing, housing and transportation.

Where's the extra money going to come from? Well, there may be leaks in your budget — and those leaks can be in some surprising places. The soda you pick up each day, the fast food you have for lunch a couple of times a week, for example, can set you back $60 or more a month. Ouch!

Sure, you need food, but fast food, that's an expensive want. It's easy to confuse wants with needs, but learning the difference can be key to gaining a brighter future.

Capt. Malinda O'Neil, corps commander with her husband for the Wayne-Westland Salvation Army, sees that needs/wants issue often, "especially the people who at the end of the week say, 'Man, I don't know where my money went." O'Neil herself found she was spending a lot on coffee at Starbucks, and was able to cut down on that.

She finds people at all income levels may not pay attention to little things. "So they buy a Pepsi for $1.25" at a convenience store. A larger number of pop cans would be cheaper at grocery store, however, she noted, "or do you really need Pepsi?"

O'Neil was talking about budgeting with a woman who will carry bottles of water and an apple in a cooler when she's out and about, so she doesn't have to stop and buy expensive items. "That I thought was a good money-saver. So I think planning really helps save a lot," O'Neil said.

A lot of Salvation Army clients go to Rent-A-Center for furniture. They end up paying over a long time, and by the time an item's paid for it may need replacement. She recommends finding a thrift store or garage sale and buying there, and adds some new retailers have good deals even on new purchases.

"I think the biggest thing for all incomes is planning," she said, and avoiding impulse purchases. "Most times you can plan ahead." Salvation Army centers are often available to help with financial planning. The Salvation Army has teamed up with the National Endowment for Financial Education to help their clients handle money wisely. In a publication put together on "Adult Financial Mentoring," the two organizations summarize information to help people become financially selfsufficient and move away from public assistance.

One key suggestion is to keep a spending diary for a few weeks. By jotting down every purchase and the amount — no matter how small — you may be surprised at how much money you spend on unnecessary things. Purchases like pop and chips may not seem like much individually, but can quickly add up.

The publication identifies parts of a spending plan: identify income, list expenses, compare income and expenses, and make changes.

To identify income, determine how much money comes in each month. Pay stubs, bank deposit records and other records of income will help.

To list expenses, determine how much money is spent each month. List all expenses, and don't forget to include the items from the spending diary.

You can then add up the income and expense lists, and compare the two. If there's not enough money to pay all expenses, it's time to make some financial decisions.

Options for making changes include eliminating expenditures. That's where the spending diary comes in handy. Are there items that aren't necessary and could be eliminated? Working additional hours is another change, although it may not necessarily solve the underlying problem that caused the debt in the first place.

A couple of suggestions include cutting optional phone services such as call waiting, call forwarding, and three-way conference capabilities. Rent-to-own purchases are the most expensive way to buy anything, the "Adult Financial Mentoring" publication notes, and fast food is expensive food.

Natural sunlight bathes Cody from windows, skylights

The Cody (404-51), with 1,993 square feet, meets the needs of a growing family with ease. There are numerous windows and skylights. The natural sunlight was designed into this large home to dispel winter's gloom.

The Cody also features the guest room/family room with its own kitchen, bathroom and bedroom areas. While not entirely separate from the balance of the home, it is uniquely designed to be independent, if needed. This area can be used for the guests that visit, the mother (or motherin-law) that comes to live, or a returning college student.

The utility room is off the entry way to the left. It has a plant shelf on the wall. Next to the utility room is the kitchen. It has an "L"-shaped counter with an eating area. There is a large pantry for the storage of those extras needed in the kitchen. The dining room and living room form one large room that surrounds the kitchen area. They are both vaulted and very light and open. These two rooms contain numerous skylights. There is a deck off the dining room area, and a covered deck off the living room that also is off the master bedroom.

The vaulted master bedroom has a large walk-in closet, individual sinks, a bathroom with a shower and the linen closet. The sinks and the closet are separated from the main bathroom by a door. Access to the covered deck enlarges this bedroom and gives the feel of the outdoor.

For a study plan of the Cody (404-51), send $15 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 or call (800) 562-1151. Be sure to specify plan name and number. Compact disks, with search functions are free of charge, to help you search our portfolio for your dream home ($5 shipping and handling will apply). Save 15 percent on construction plans using the code (LOE48) online, mailing, or calling (800) 562-1151.

When was the last time you heard someone get excited about the prospect of buying a station wagon? For years, the station wagon was the ultimate fuddy-duddy symbol of America; who could forget the wood-paneled wagons with the third-row seat that faced out the back?

My family had one and it was decidedly un-hip (sorry, Dad). Families needing passenger and/or cargo room now opt for SUVs. That's OK, but most SUVs can't give you the ride and handling that a car can give you.

Now, though, the station wagon is back. Dodge has put some style and muscle into the station wagon and the result is the Magnum.

The Magnum comes in four versions: the SE rear wheel drive, the SXT all-wheel drive, the R/T RWD and the R/T AWD. Our test car is the Magnum R/T RWD with the optional Road/Track Performance Group, and it's what I would call a "muscle wagon."

You can see its muscle when you look at it. Similar to the Charger sedan, the Magnum features a long hood, a toughlooking grille and a wide stance. The R/T comes with fog lamps, performance exhaust, liftgate floodlamps and 18-inch wheels.

Adding the optional Road/Track Performance Group ($2950) will add 20-inch aluminum chrome-clad wheels and performance tires (plus some other stuff we'll get to in a bit). A roof rack is optional, as is a sunroof. It's a good-looking package.

The Magnum gets its performance muscle from the standard 5.7-liter HEMI $\rm \ddot{V}8$ engine, rated at 340 horsepower and 390 lb-ft. of torque. That's plenty of power to get moving quickly and passing smoothly, and gas mileage is a respectable (for a V8) 17/25 mpg. The Magnum takes regular unleaded gas, although Dodge recommends you use mid-grade (89 octane) instead. It's mated with a five-speed automatic Auto-Stick transmission. It moves through the gears nicely when left on its own, but you can shift it yourself, if you like.

On the road, the Magnum R/T handles well and is fun to drive. The optional Road/Track Performance Group has a lot to do with that; it features a performance exhaust system and an upgraded steering and suspension system.

The suspension system is an independent SLA with high upper "A" arm, gas-charged shocks and stabilizer bar up front and in the rear it's a five-link independent system with coil springs, gas-charged shocks and isolated suspension cradle. The upgraded system adds self-leveling shocks and a without a punishing ride, which is nice for long trips.

The Magnum corners nicely and is easy to maneuver and park with the power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering. The Electronic Stability Program is standard.

Four-wheel anti-lock brakes with brake assist are standard on the R/T and they work very well.

Inside, the Magnum gives you a performance-car feel. It's nicely laid out with everything within easy reach of the driver, and power-adjustable pedals are standard.

The Road/Track Performance Group Package gets you leather-trimmed seats with suede inserts and they're comfortable and provide good support. The center console provides a space for your cell phone. The Electronic Group option ($630) gets you an instrument panel display screen, vehicle information center, security alarm, steering wheel mounted audio controls and a garage door opener.

There's plenty of leg- and headroom in the Magnum, and the power seats are easy to adjust. The advantage to buying a wagon, as opposed to a sedan, becomes clear when you open the liftgate. There's plenty of room for cargo and the 60/40 split rear seats fold down to add even more cargo space. A rear cargo organizer is optional ($160).

The Magnum R/T comes with a nice set of standard features: Air-conditioning, power locks and windows, rear window defroster and rear window washer/wiper, cruise control and keyless entry. The Road/Track Performance Group adds dual-zone automatic air, heated seats and automatic headlamps.

The standard audio system is an AM/FM/CD system with six Boston Acoustics speakers and a 276-watt digital amplifier. An integrated GPS navigation system ($1895) is optional, as are a rear seat DVD entertainment system ($1150) and a Bluetooth hands-free communications system ($360). Sirius satellite radio with a one-year subscription is included with the Magnum R/T.

The Magnum R/T comes with an advanced multi-stage airbag system and a tire-pressure monitor; if you opt for the Road/Track Performance Group you get the Protection Group included. That will give you supplemental front and rear side curtain airbags and self-sealing tires. The Protection Group costs $440 as a stand-alone option. With the optional towing package, the Magnum can tow up to 3,800 pounds.

The 2007 Dodge Magnum R/T RWD starts at a little over $31,000: Add the Road/Track Performance Group, GPS navigation system, rear cargo organizer, Bluetooth handsfree communication system and the Electronics Convenience Group and you're at a little over $38,000. For that dough you get a station wagon that looks, drives and handles like a muscle car, but is practical enough for you to use as the family car.

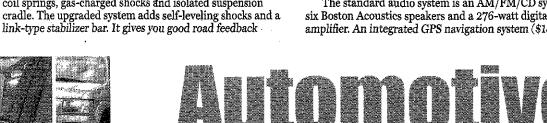

Dad would be proud.
