The Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps will be one of many participants in the Liberty Fest parade on Saturday.

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The pancakes, the music, the fireworks — Liberty Fest is almost here. "This is what we do," said Canton Leisure Services recreation coordinator Jon LaFever. "This is the pinnacle of our whole year. We have something for everyone and it's just a feel-good event." While Liberty Fest will take place Friday and Saturday in Heritage Park, there will be a bit of a sneak preview on Thursday. The event's family zone will be open to public from 5-10 p.m., and there will be a concert by 50 Amp Fuse at 7 p.m.

For a complete list of Liberty Fest activities, please see our Liberty Fest special section in Thursday's Observer.

The events will begin rolling out Friday afternoon with Rock 'n' Roll K-9 Shows at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. in the family zone. Nickelodeon Live, which will take place at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. at the amphitheater are sure to be kid favorites, LaFever said.

"It will be very interactive," he said. "There will be slime."

Bon Journey, a tribute band to Bon Jovi and Journey, will take to the Canton Live stage at 8 p.m. "We're finding that a lot of Canton's young families grew up with the music of Journey and Bon Jovi so they're excited about Bon Journey," LaFever said.

On Saturday, the festivities will open with the annual pancake breakfast by the Canton Lions Club in Kohl's parking lot on Ford Road at Sheldon. The complimentary event (the Lions will be accepting donations) is a popular mainstay of the festival, LaFever said. "Some people come out just for the breakfast," he said. "It's a big hit."

In addition to the breakfast, the Liberty Fest parade will make its way along Ford Road from Sheldon to Lilley. Saturday's headlining act, The John Corbett Band, which is fronted

Library's reading program a big hit with adults

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Who says summer reading programs are kids' stuff? Not the hundreds of adults who participate in the annual book extravaganza at Canton Public Library.

The program, which begins June 16, is in its third year and has become a favorite among library patrons. Laurie Golden, library spokeswoman, said 500 people participated last summer which was up from 345 in 2006.

"We were surprised that first year because we didn't know how many adults would do it and we were even more surprised the next year," she said, adding that some participants began inquiring about this summer's offering early.

"The summer months have a slower pace and more people do pleasure reading."

About 700 people are expected to participate this year.

The theme of this summer's program is Challenge of the Decades. Participants will be encouraged to choose books, movies and music from the 1930s to the 2000s. Those who complete a decades worth of material, will be eligible for prize drawings.

In addition to items such as gas cards being up for grabs in weekly contests, the grand prize for the program is a $500 gift certificate from Northwest Airlines.

Laura Fawcett, adult services librarian, said there are suggested materials for every category and highlighted the program's other activities, such as an adult video gaming session.

"Adult summer reading should be fun," she said.

"It's time to put away the business journals and parenting books and read for your enjoyment."

Those interested in the program must be at least 18 years old. Township residency is not required.

Feeling red from head to toe

Canton's Barbara Kowalski was still dressed in red Thursday morning after staying up all night celebrating the Red Wings latest Stanley Cup championship. "I was up to four o'clock in the morning celebrating. I usually have my Red Wings earrings on and a jersey," said Kowalski, who was pumping gas at a Sunoco Station in Westland. Couple remarries — after being divorced for 37 years

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Mary and Thomas Hartunian ended their 22-year marriage in 1971 and neither of them has looked back.

Well, except to remarry each other June 1.

The couple has spent the past 37 years as "good friends." But family members say everyone began wondering "what if?" last month when the two took to the dance floor together at the wedding of their granddaughter, Lindsay Freda.

"It was magical when they started dancing," said Freda, a Virginia resident.

"They have been the best of friends since their divorce. They never really faltered in their relationship and we all couldn't be happier that they are going to spend the rest of their days together."

Soon after Freda's nuptials, Thomas, 85, invited Mary, 78, over to his Canton home and proposed to her on his deck.

"I thought he just wanted to talk," Mary said with a chuckle, adding that after he proposed, she quickly shot back "okekey dokey" as her answer.

The couple, who first tied the knot in August 1949 and have two sons, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren, never remarried during their time apart.

Thomas has a portrait of Mary, as a flawless 19-year-old bride, hanging above his fireplace.

Last weekend, in front of dozens of family members and friends, the Hartunians

Rock City Fest is coming to the Majestic Theatre

St. Edith teacher Debbie Malek, third from left, was joined at a retirement surprise party by her husband, Bob, principal Sister Margaret Kijek, and mother, Lucille Galanty.

Funny teacher with picky friend retires after 30 years

BY REBECCA JONES
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Not only is Debbie Malek retiring, but she's taking Mrs. Picky with her.

Mrs. Picky is the alter ego who helped the Canton resident teach grammar to students at St. Edith over the past 30 years — things like commas belonging inside quote marks.

"I have never met anyone so picky during English class," said seventh-grader Nicholas O'Donnell.

"She is pretty picky," Malek said of her alter ego. "I told them I'm going to be picky about quotes." Grammar is the foundation, she said.

Students said they would miss the review games like English Baseball, Malek's sense of humor and even the colorful cat poster hanging on her wall.

Malek taught more than 900 students in her 30 years at St. Edith, which is located in Livonia. On Wednesday, the school put on a celebration with cheers, tributes, presentations, prayers and a banner that read, "We love you Mrs. Malek," signed by everyone.

"I thought I was coming for the talent show," Malek said. "I will miss all of you. I love you. Thank you."

It wasn't hard to keep the secret, said Ava Dwyer, who's in Malek's fourth-grade class. What she likes about her teacher is, "She's funny and she's usually smiling."

"She taught all my kids, and I call her my friend," said Dale Mary Orsucci, the school secretary, who has worked with Malek for 28 years.

"She was an amazing teacher," said eighth-grader Kelly Campbell. "She taught me that even though sometimes life's hard, we can get through it."

Just as athletes perform better when calm, "Her more delicate approach got the best out of her students," said former student Rob Orsucci.

Malek and her husband, Bob, live in Canton and have two adult children, Elizabeth and Bob, who also attended St. Edith. In her retirement, she will spend time at their Florida home, work on golf and spend time on her hobbies, crafting and gardening.

Canton team has top public service video

Beer cans aren't your friends. That's the winning message of the student team from Canton High School — the top winner in the Buddy's Pizza/Observer & Eccentric/Mirror Newspapers public service video contest.

Buddy's representative Marcy Brontman presented the Canton team with its $1,000 prize June 3. Janet Sutherland, video production teacher at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, said the money will be used to buy new equipment for the class.

The Canton students and Sutherland were also treated to a pizza dinner courtesy of Buddy's.

The 30-second PSA was written, filmed and edited by Adam Somers, Alex Magee, Eric Piwowar, Mark Edwards and Lucas Seibel. All five will graduate today from Canton High School. Somers will attend Schoolcraft College and study communications. Magee intends to study television production and computer science at Bowling Green State University in Ohio, while Piwowar heads to Michigan State University to study communications. Edwards, the Sutherland praised the students for their creativity.

"It was a collaborative effort," she said, adding "the challenging part was trying to tie in the 'Buddy's message with a serious public service announcement."

The students said it took about 10 hours to write the script, film and edit the PSA.

Other schools competing for the $1,000 prize included Plymouth, Livonia Franklin, Berkley, Livonia Ladywood, Northville, Troy Athens and Farmington Harrison.

again vowed to love and honor each other in Thomas's backyard.

Freda served as the matron of honor and Dan Hartunian, the couple's grandson, was the best man.

"I never thought I would stand up for my grandparents' wedding," Dan smiled.

"I'm just happy for them."

Mary, who carried a bouquet of red roses, carnations and stephanotis, was walked down the aisle by Gerald Sahagian of Toledo.

Sahagian, who is Thomas' nephew, was the ring bearer at the couple's first wedding.

"I think this is absolutely great," Sahagian said while holding Mary's hand and joking that he has all the inside stories from the 1949 celebration.

"I am thrilled and happy for them."

Thomas Hartunian, the couple's oldest son, got married the same year his parents divorced and said he didn't knock their decision to separate.

"I love them both and throughout the years we still had that family unity," he said, but added that he never expected his parents to reunite romantically.

As family members offered light-hearted quips about the couple's honeymoon period, their youngest son, Bob Hartunian, joked: "No more kids."

Local fans fly high after Detroit wins Stanley Cup

BY JULIE BROWN
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Laurie Golden acknowledges people think it's a little crazy her family has a replica Stanley Cup, complete with red spot-light, stationed in the front yard of her Plymouth home. The way people were celebrating after the Red Wings won the decisive sixth game of the Stanley Cup finals, 3-2, over the Pittsburgh Penguins Wednesday, maybe people won't think it's that crazy after all.

"We watch all the games all the time," said Golden, who said they're "fairly famous" for the hockey display. "People think we're nuts."

While fans crowded around televisions in homes, restaurants and bars around the area, it was a quiet night at the Canton Public Library, where Golden is marketing and communications manager, with most patrons off watching the Red Wings clinch the Stanley Cup.

"Not nearly as many people in the library and phones were quiet," Golden said.

The corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main in Plymouth was a popular celebration site after the Detroit Red Wings won the Stanley Cup Wednesday.

Denise Semion of Plymouth Township and husband Bill also cheered on the Wings, who won their first Stanley Cup since 2002.

"Boy, that was close," Denise Semion said. A colleague of hers at the Huron-Clinton Metroparks didn't wear his "lucky" Red Wings tie to work Wednesday, worried he had jinxed the team in the Monday night heartbreaker of a loss at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

Kate Rosevear, owner of Carlson Wagonlit Travel in Plymouth, said she "just watched the very tag end" of Wednesday's game.

"It was fantastic," Rosevear said. "I watched as much of it as my heart could stand. I'm proud of them, although it sure was a cliff-hanger. Great game."

Plymouth Township resident Rosevear had a meeting Wednesday but saw the end when she got home.

"Anything that's positive about Detroit is wonderful," she said, noting the Wings are the hardest-working, lowest-paid athletes, "and they get the job done."

Memorial golf outing

Dave and Lynn Garr of Canton will hold the Seventh Annual Vanessa Grace Garr Memorial Golf Outing on July 12 at the Links of Novi. The outing, a memorial to their daughter Vanessa, will benefit the Oakwood Program for Exceptional Families which is located in Allen Park and serves children with all types of disabilities. Vanessa passed away in 2001 due to complications from cerebral palsy, a brain defect which occurred at birth. In the past six years, the outing has raised more than $150,000 for disabled children's charities in and around Metro Detroit.

"This is a wonderful organization with a truly caring staff that puts a lot of blood, sweat and tears into helping the children that come into their office," said Dave Garr of the Oakwood program. "In fact, Dr. Susan Youngs, who runs the program, was the only one of Vanessa's doctors to show up at her funeral. That shows you what kind of people they have there." The outing, which costs $125 per golfer or $50 for dinner only guests, features lunch, golf, dinner, three hours of open bar, silent and live auctions and lots of door prizes. To support the outing either by playing or by contributing, please contact Dave Garr at (734) 542-6800.

Two injured in apartment fire

Two men were injured during an early morning fire at Village Squire Apartments on Friday. When Canton firefighters arrived at the unit, located on the 5900 block of Edinburgh just north of Ford Road (near Lotz Road), they found smoke coming from a second-story apartment. All of the building's occupants were evacuated, with assistance from police officers, except for the apartment that was on fire.

After using forced entry to get into the apartment, firefighters found one of the men in a bedroom. The middle-aged man was conscious but was suffering from smoke inhalation. Canton paramedics transported him to Oakwood Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

The other man, also middle aged, had exited the apartment from a window and suffered a possible leg fracture. He was treated on scene by paramedics and later transported to St. Joseph-Mercy Hospital by the Westland Fire Department. None of the occupant's injuries are believed to be life threatening. There were no other reported injuries.

Firefighters extinguished the fire, which had originated in the microwave oven in the kitchen. Damage estimates are not yet available, but the apartment where the fire started sustained significant smoke and heat damage. The apartment beneath the fire had some water damage. The remainder of the eight-unit apartment building sustained minor smoke damage and residents were able to return to their apartments.

Lower-income investors can benefit by 0 capital gains tax

Dear Rick: I read that capital gains rates are reduced this year. In fact, someone told me you can actually pay no taxes on your capital gains. Is this true?

You are correct. The capital gains rate for many taxpayers is reduced to zero this year. Unfortunately, not all taxpayers get this break. If your ordinary income tax bracket is 10 or 15 percent, then your capital gain tax and the tax on qualified dividends is 5 percent. However, for 2008 through 2010, the capital gain rate is reduced to zero.

For taxpayers who are in higher tax brackets, their capital gain rate and tax on qualified dividends is 15 percent. Unfortunately, there is no reduction in taxes for those taxpayers.

Because of the reduction in capital gain rates for low-income taxpayers, this could

Money Matters

provide an opportunity for children who have appreciated securities to sell those investments this year. Potentially, they can sell the investment this year and recognize no taxes. In fact, you can turn around and re-buy the same investment if you choose. The wash-sale rules deal when you have losses, not gains. In selling appreciated securities for children, one issue to consider is the kiddie tax which is the tax on a child's investment income. If a child's investment income is above the annual threshold amount, that income is taxed at their parents' highest bracket. For 2008, the threshold amount for children is $1,800. In addition, in 2008 the rules with regard to the kiddie tax changed. Under the new rules, the kiddie tax applies to children who are under 19 or full-time students under age 24 if they are claimed as dependents. Therefore, the key to having the capital gains tax free and avoiding the kiddie tax is to keep a child's investment income below $1,800.

Under current tax law, the zero capital gains rate will remain in effect through 2010, however, tax laws change all the time and there is no certainty that the zero bracket will remain in effect until 2010. For taxpayers who are in the 10 or 15 percent regular income tax bracket, this year creates an excellent planning opportunity. Therefore, don't delay in taking advantage of this great opportunity.

Dear Rick: I heard you say at the Observer & Eccentric Senior Expo that certificates of deposit were a good short-term but not a good long-term investment. I am a conservative investor and I cannot afford to lose my money. I have a $75,000 CD coming due next month and I won't need the money for another couple of years. Is a CD OK?

Not only do I think that the CD is OK, I think it is the most appropriate investment for you. You have a short time horizon and you do not want to risk principal.

Shop your CD around. It makes sense to shop around for competitive rates. After all, with a $75,000 CD, a 1 percent difference in rates means $750 a year or $1,500 for the life of a two-year certificate of deposit.

Use the Internet to shop rates. One site I use is www.bankrate.com. If you don't mind using an online bank you can get even better rates of return.

I recognize that many people are nervous about buying CDs from out-of-state and online banks. The bottom line is that as long as the bank is federally insured, your money is safe. Therefore, the only issue is comfort level. In that regard, just take a step back and look at how different the world is today than when it was just 10 years ago. All of us are now using more technology than ever before, whether it is direct deposit of checks or bill payment services online.

June 10 workshop focuses on annuities

Retirement is a major life-changing event that is becoming ever more difficult to finance, given the complexity of financial products such as annuities. For this reason, Money Caretakers™ Forums has assembled five prominent professionals to present a panel education community event 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 10, at the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium.

The event objective is to provide annuity information to help attendees make best case retirement and estate decisions. Most people don't know where to start, what to do, or who to call when it comes to making well-researched, retirement planning choices. Unfortunately, without proper understanding of today's complex financial tools, the consumer may simply avoid these tools altogether or may even be persuaded into making a wrong decision which can also have painful consequences.

The panel presenters include: Eudora Adolph, Financial Growth Engineer, AverTrust Advisors; Marc Melamed, Estate Planning Attorney, Maroko and Landau; Al Plecha, CPA; Tony Pappas, senior vice president, John Hancock; Dawn Impellizzeri, vice president, Transamerica Capital.

Panel discussion topics will partially include:

■ What are the differences between variable annuities and fixed or index annuities?

■ When and for whom are these financial tools appropriate and when are they not?

■ How does an annuity help fund retirement and provide for heirs?

■ How does an annuity impact taxes?

■ Annuity contracts have fees, penalties, step ups, payouts, and benefit riders that either cost or benefit the owner. What do these terms mean?

■ What questions should one ask if invited to an annuity sales presentation to evaluate what is being presented?

There will be time after the panel discussion for attendees to speak with the presenters, request additional information, and register for detailed sessions. Annuity sales materials will not be available at this event, but further educational resources from government agencies will be provided to attendees.

There is a fee of $10, payable at the door by check, payable to Sigma Financial Corp., to cover the costs of printing and room fees.

Congressional candidates meet in forum

The Democratic candidates for the 11th Congressional District will participate in a candidate's forum at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 11, at the Livonia Senior Center, 15218 Farmington Road, Livonia.

Livonia attorney Joseph Larkin and former Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall will participate in the forum sponsored by the Livonia Democratic Club.

The two candidates will face each other in the Aug. 5 primary. The winner will face the incumbent U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia.

STATE GOOD VACATION VALUE

According to the 2008 edition of the AAA's Annual Vacation Costs Survey, the recommended travel budget for two adults traveling together in Michigan is $211.19 per day for lodging and meals. The national average is $244 per day.

"Michigan is a travel bargain compared to other states," said Claire Lockley, vice president of Travel for The Auto Club Group. "And there are abundant opportunities for rest, relaxation and recreation at our many parks, beaches, campgrounds and resorts."

According to the survey, the average cost for lodging in North America is $164 per night, double occupancy, based on the most recent published rates for AAA Approved accommodations listed in the AAA TourBook guides. For two adults traveling and dining together in AAA travel experts recommend $80 a day for meals, not including tips and beverages.

The most expensive city of vacationers is Honolulu, where the average published prices for meals and lodging for two adults total $673 per day, followed by New York City, Miami-Miami Beach, San Diego and Las Vegas.

OUR VIEWS

Report offers a dynamic view of Michigan's promise

The Center for Michigan, a public policy organization founded by Philip Power, former owner of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, has released a challenging report on Michigan's economic and political future: "Michigan's Defining Moment: A Common Ground Agenda for Michigan's Transformation."

The centrist group's report focuses on what Michigan needs to do to build on its resources to become a major economic center again. The decline in the domestic auto industry, trade policies that drained manufacturing jobs from the state and political squabbling over tax policies have made Michigan the first casualty in a weakening national economy.

The report sets out three guiding principles for turning Michigan around: 1) A talented and globally competitive workforce; 2) A vibrant economy and great quality of life; and 3) Effective, efficient and accountable government.

The last point emphasizes a running theme in this report, that Michigan has been damaged by partisan bickering at the expense of dealing with the state's problems. Michigan has been deeply hurt by the dependence of the two major political parties on constituent groups that tend to place their particular agendas above the interests of the state as a whole. While we support and understand the need for political parties, around which people with common beliefs can rally, we agree with the report that for far too long, Michigan has been sacrificed to the political process.

The report, based on meetings with residents across the state, offers some dynamic ideas for improving K-16 education in the state and retaining graduates; supporting economic development and entrepreneurialism; creating vibrant urban centers and preserving Michigan's natural resources, particularly its water; rebranding Michigan as the North Coast; developing government accountability and promoting bipartisan leadership; and revising the state's tax structure to address the continuing structural deficiencies in the state budget.

To read the report in full and to participate in the process of revitalizing this great state, go to www.thecenterformichigan.net.

PCEP not handicapped friendly

I recently attended my first softball game played at Canton High School on Saturday, May 31, and I can't express how disappointed I was.

Being handicapped, walking does not come easy, and when I found my way to the nearest parking lot to the ball field, I could not believe the distance I would have to walk just to get to the field. Surely, with all the land located around the three high schools, a parking lot closer to the fields ought to be considered so people like myself and others with walking disabilities may come and see a game and not have to worry about the distance to the field.

Please consider the handicapped people and the elderly who would also love to see their son or daughter or grandson or granddaughter play softball or baseball at the high schools.

Writing centers are great

I would like to share with you and your readers a glimpse of my experience in one of the three writing centers at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. Most students and parents know it as a place to go to get quick help on essays, but the experience is entirely different as a tutor.

For tutors, writing center is a class where the majority of class time is spent tutoring either students or other tutors. However, this is only one facet of the class. The other facets are our own writings: journals, tutor reflections, tutor articles, polished writings and the I-Search. All our compositions are done outside of school.

The most extensive and important writing piece is the I-Search. As the due date approaches is when I-Searching gets really interesting. At the end of first semester, over winter break, everyone in Salem writing center second lunch got together for an "I-Search party." The I-Searches were due the day we got back from break, and we needed a total of six peer edits for it to be considered complete. We met in a tutor's basement at noon and spent the next six hours together, laughing and reading our favorite excerpts aloud.

We all adored Jessica's I-Search about cartooning. The cartoons she'd drawn about crushes were clever and reminded me of my own experiences from kindergarten. Gunjan's I-Search about asparagus was very scientific and exact, and impressed me with the meticulous details she'd learned about the nutritional values of asparagus. Stephanie's was about Eastern medicine, and I was able to experience what she'd experienced as she researched her topic — her thoughts, frustrations, feelings and quest to learn more.

Gunjan and her mother were kind enough to surprise us with some delicious pasta half way through.

When we got back to editing, we spent most of our time telling stories of what we'd done for research, and could barely work for all the joking we did. The joking was about all the fun we'd had researching, though, and the funny experiences we'd had. What I remember most is jumping from chair to chair as we rearranged ourselves to work most comfortably with our current partner. There were papers scattered across the floor, table, chairs and various cushions. It was chaos as, when I picked up a sheaf of papers to edit, I found three different I-Searches. All the working and learning we did together for these six hours was one of the highlights of my senior year.

This was only one of the many fun things that happened in writing center, though. We have fun working with students on their papers, with each other on publicity campaigns, and learning with other tutors about different literary forms. Writing Center was an unforgettable experience that will influence my writings for the rest of my life.

Thanks for article on donors

On Mother's Day in the Hometown Life section, you published an article by Linda Chomin titled, "A Mother's Love." My family was the focus of that article, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank Ms. Chomin and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for the wonderful presentation of the facts regarding the need for blood cell and marrow donors and providing a forum to make others aware. We were also able to share the locations of the many free registry drives that occurred in our area. Several people said that they joined the donor registry because of the article.

I would also like to thank the many businesses in northwest Livonia that allowed us to post flyers in their establishments about the donor registry drives. Several people also mentioned seeing the flyer in a store or restaurant and following up to register at one of the drives listed.

The strong community support was overwhelming, and you will never know what an important role you played. I hope our community will support your establishments as much as you supported this cause.

Finally, I would like to thank our family and friends who gave so unselfishly of their time and energies in organizing registry drives, distributing flyers and working at the drives. Thank you all so much for your efforts. I was unable to participate, but based on the results, it's apparent you gave it your all.

As a result of the donor drives organized by our small group, nearly 700 new potential donors joined the marrow registry, giving renewed hope to those in need of blood cell and marrow transplants. (Including the Ford Motor Co. drives being held across North America, I am confident the number of new registries will exceed 1,000.)

We may never know if someone who joined the registry during these drives was a match for one of the over 6,000 people in need, but know that because of your efforts, the possibility that someone's life will be saved is very real.

I thank you all from the bottom of my heart. For more information on joining the marrow registry or the most recent list of registry drives in your area, please visit www.marrow.org and click on "join".

Beware of the loyalty

Of the many juvenile characteristics possessed by President G.W. Bush, I think the most humorous are his penchant for giving everyone a nickname and his Little Rascal-like devotion to a misguided sense of loyalty. Not loyalty to authority.

Not loyalty to truth, but loyalty to the gang. If it weren't so childish, it would be Nixonian.

Former Bush press secretary Scott McClellan's new book includes description of the Bush administration's dishonesty in their runup to the invasion of Iraq. I knew it. You knew it, but it's always nice to get confirmation. Of course, Bush defenders scurried from beneath the woodwork to attack McClellan, but oddly enough, they didn't dispute his words. Instead, they were incredulous that Scott would do such a thing.

Loyalty to the truth before loyalty to G.W.? Shame on McClellan! I'll bet in the near future there will be more insiders coming clean to avoid having their pictures taken in leg irons after a Democrat occupies the oval office ... but don't despair, you Bushies. I'm sure that lil' George is changing the secret handshake and password as we speak and you always have Bush the Eldest, nicknamed John McCain.

G.W. took us to the brink of Armageddon and John McCain wants to finish the job. He's a loyal guy and he knows the handshake. Voter, beware!

"My doctor said I needed a hip replacement. After planning the surgery, I learned I needed to plan my recovery, too."

My doctor suggested HCR ManorCare, a "nursing home." My doctor told me, "they're different than you think." So, I met their physical therapists, visited their rehab area and talked to the admissions director and case manager who reviewed their successful patient outcome history. After my surgery, HCR ManorCare helped me rehabilitate my hip so I'd be ready to go home. I was surprised at how young the patients were and that many of them were receiving medical rehab and returning home.

At HCR ManorCare, our team has the expertise to guide you through your personalized care program so you can plan your recovery as part of your planned surgery.

Hunter's best advice to young hoop players: 'Hard work pays off'

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If Lindsey Hunter's early childhood athletic dreams had come true, the Plymouth Township resident would probably be preparing to hold a series of football clinics this summer — not the basketball camps he's set to host beginning later this month at High Velocity Sports in Canton.

"I was a football player when I was younger," said the 37-year-old Hunter, a 15-year veteran of the NBA who has enjoyed two successful stints with the Detroit Pistons. "My dad and I always thought I'd play wide receiver for Jackson State (his alma mater). I grew up watching Jerry Rice and guys like that."

Hunter, who is widely regarded as one of the NBA's most tenacious on-the-ball defenders, didn't switch his sport of choice until his freshman year of high school.

"I had a ninth-grade basketball coach who thought I had a lot of basketball talent and he kind of catapulted me from there," said Hunter. "I wasn't even the best player on my high school team, but I worked, and I worked and I worked to get better."

Eagles 11th at state golf meet

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Mid-way through the Division 4 team state golf meet held Friday and Saturday at Forest Akers West Golf Course in East Lansing, first-time attendee Plymouth Christian Academy was holding its own.

Following Friday's opening round of the 36-hole event, the Eagles were in 11th place with a score of 358 — 30 more than front-runner Saugatuck.

Scores were affected by the hot (90 degrees) and windy (30-miles-per-hour gusts) conditions.

Senior returning All-State performer Ross Gerulis was leading the way with an 80 on the demanding layout, which is the home course of Michigan State University. Gerulis' eight-over-par total placed him in a tie for eighth among all of the competitors. White Pigeon's Chase Olsen was leading the medalist race with a first-round 70.

Also competing for PCA were Robert Qualls (91), Mitchell Geracz (92), Scott Hampson (95) and Ryan Palmer (99).

A pair of local golfers competed in the Division 1 individual portion of the tournament, which was also held Friday and Saturday.

Belleville High School's Zach McCurley, a resident of Canton, fired a 79, which put him five shots behind first-round leaders Matt Alessi (Birmingham Brother Rice), Tim Shield (Grosse Pointe South) and Jackson Davison (Rockford).

Canton High School's Zach Conrad, the lone PCEP player to qualify for the individual state meet, carded a 10-over 82.

Brother Rice's 314 led the Division 1 team tournament following Friday's first round.

PCS lacrosse alumni game

The third annual Plymouth-Canton-Salem Alumni vs. Varsity lacrosse game will be held Friday, June 13, at 6 p.m. at the PCEP varsity stadium.

Alumni of the PCS teams that played for the Warriors from 2002 to 2007 are invited to take on graduating seniors from this year's Plymouth, Canton and Salem squads.

This spring marked the first year each school had its own team.

All alumni who are interested in playing or who have questions regarding Friday's game should call Nina Smithpeters at (734) 981-3290 or e-mail her at nsmithpeters@wowway.com; or contact Stephanie Saia at (734) 453-6914 or sasaia@comcast.net.

Alumni are asked to arrive at the field by 5 p.m. o Friday.

The game will serve as a fundraiser for the 1/24 Battalion Memorial, which benefits the 1st Battalion, 24th Marines Division, which four alumni have served.

Last year's game raised over $500 for the memorial.

PCA's Allen lauded

Plymouth Christian Academy's Jordan Allen earned All-MIAC champion distinction at the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference meet last month.

Allen, a first-year competitor, took first place in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 11 inches.

Allen also excels off the track as has served at the Congressional Student Leadership Conference and National Student Leadership Conference.

PCA ousted by Gryphons in shoot-out

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Christian Academy girls soccer team's do-it-all season was done in Wednesday night by a do-it-all goalkeeper.

The Eagles, who entered the game ranked No. 2 in Division 4, were edged 1-0 by nemesis Ann Arbor Greenhills in a thrilling double-overtime shootout Regional semifinal contest at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School.

Gryphon sophomore keeper Madeline Hutchison not only made two saves in the shoot-out — one of which was a spectacular diving effort — she also scored the clinching goal to give her team an insurmountable 4-2 lead with PCA having just one shot left.

It was the second consecutive year the Gryphons sidelined the Eagles, who enjoyed a stellar season, winning their second straight Michigan Independent Athletic Conference title while losing just twice prior to Wednesday's setback.

PCA goalie Sara Ross matched Hutchison save for save during the first 110 minutes of play — the two 40-minute halves and the pair of 15-minute overtime sessions.

The shootout, which consisted of five shots by each team, was knotted at 1-all after Greenhills Emma Betzig and PCA's Jalese DeBiasi converted their shots. However, the Gryphons seized a 2-1 advantage after round 2 when Andrea McIntosh scored and Hutchison stoned Brooke Williams' hard, knee-high shot.

Greenhills took a 3-1 lead on Sara Nelson's high, hard shot into the right corner, but PCA stayed alive thanks to Jenna Misch's tally that brought the Eagles to within 3-2.

PCA received new life when Gryphon mid-fielder Miranda Dershimer's effort sailed just high, however, Hutchison denied Kimberly Cleary when she went horizontal to her right to knock the firmly struck ball out of harm's way.

Hutchison then ended the shoot-out in the fifth round by hitting a low shot past Ross to make it 4-2.

Several Eagles shined in defeat, most notably DeBiasi, Alyson DeKruyter, Meghan Polera, Misch, Peggy Abraham and Annette Somercik.

The victory propelled the Gryphons into Friday night's final against the winner of Wednesday night's Monroe Catholic Central-Bishop Foley match-up.

Workman students enjoy running club

There's a lot more than running involved in Workman Elementary School's "Girls on the Run" program.

While an increased level of fitness is one of the program's goals, the 10-week course also offers third- through fifth-graders important advice on how to recognize rumors, how gossiping hurts everyone, good food choices and the difference between inner and outer beauty.

To conclude the course, participants will run in the 5K Father's Day Run in Plymouth to celebrate their accomplishments.

"I was impressed by how quickly the girls went from running relays to running laps to becoming friends," said coach Michelle Homsy. "It's been a great success and the girls are the winners."

Studies show tart cherries may help prevent heart disease

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
O&E STAFF WRITER

Mitchell Seymour doesn't let a day go by without eating tart dried cherries. As a University of Michigan research assistant, he's learned about the health benefits derived from a diet rich in fruits and vegetables. The most recent study at the University of Michigan Cardiovascular Center showed that tart cherry powder reduced cholesterol, body fat and weight gain — risk factors for heart disease — when obesity-prone rats were fed the supplement along with a high-fat, American-style diet.

Anthocyanin, the bright red pigment in cherries, is a flavonoid known for its antioxidant activity. Antioxidants have been shown to prevent free radicals from damaging cells in the body. Flavonoids are part of a group of antioxidants found in fruits, vegetables, green tea, red wine and cocoa. Cherries, blueberries, cranberries, blackberries, eggplant, red wine and red cabbage are all rich in anthocyanins. Tart red cherries were studied rather than the darker sweet Bings because of the sour fruit's higher levels of anthocyanins.

"We think as a class, anthocyanin-rich fruits and vegetables could be a component for preventing cardiovascular disease and diabetes. Cherries as part of an anthocyanin-rich diet are really helpful," said Seymour, a U-M research associate under the direction of Dr. Steven Bolling, a U-M cardiac surgeon and director of the laboratory. Seymour was senior scientist on the project.

"We're interested in a compound in anthocyanins because of some promising research where it was tested in test tubes for its effect on individual cells. It affected some enzymes related to inflammation and cholesterol."

The latest study at the U-M Cardiovascular Center followed research done on lean rats fed a low-fat diet with or without cherries. The animals who received cherries had lower blood sugar, cholesterol and fat storage in the liver. The findings from both studies were revealed at annual Experimental Biology meetings.

"We were looking at effects of cherry in otherwise healthy animals," Seymour said. "When tested in normally lean rats, we found it lowered cholesterol and triglycerides, basically affected a fat accumulation in the liver, reduced fatty liver. We thought what if we tested this in an obese rat and looked at other tissues and organs."

"In the second study, we found that the dose of cherries, only one percent of the diet from whole cherries, reduced body fat in the abdomen of these animals, which is an increased risk for cardiovascular disease. We also found reduced markers of inflammation in the plasma. We also found the same thing in the first study, that the cherries lowered triglycerides and cholesterol. These animals were genetically prone to obesity and eating a Western-style diet like humans with saturated fat and cholesterol."

Seymour says previous research, which looked at blueberries containing similar compounds, was encouraging and led to the U-M studies.

"These studies are going to help support the evidence," Seymour said. "At this point, we only have anecdotal evidence. We want to back that up. We think cherries are acting through this particular target for treating metabolic syndrome and could be complementary to standard medical treatment."

The U-M Cardiovascular Center is currently in the midst of studying the effects of cherries on humans in a clinical trial, with results expected this fall. The center is also studying grapes and apples as they pertain to heart disease. Grapes were the first fruit studied by the center, in 2003.

"The cherries first worked in lean animals, but we're talking about impacting humans. We're going to put the cherry to the test from that standpoint," Seymour said. "We have a clinical study under way now, similar to the first study, with relatively healthy individuals with a dose equivalent to what we gave the rats. We're looking in blood and urine for what compounds are there. For the human study, we're using whole cherries, frozen tart cherries, doing two different doses, 45 cherries, the other 90 cherries or about two cups."

"We need to know the long-term effects. We know the short-term effects. We know you're going to have a lower blood pressure eating fruits and vegetables, but we don't understand the mechanism, how is this working."

HAP sponsors Splash Bash

More than half of the 20.6 million American adults who have diabetes also have arthritis, which often keeps them from being active and controlling their disease.

Health Alliance Plan is encouraging western Wayne County residents with arthritis and diabetes — and others who have trouble exercising on land — to give the pool a try this summer through HAP's free Moms in Motion and Senior Splash Bash classes.

Classes will be held 3-4 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, beginning June 17 and ending Aug. 21, at the Bailey Recreation Center pool, 36651 Ford, Westland.

Physical activity, such as water aerobics, can help control blood sugar levels and reduce joint pain; however, according to a report in the May 9 issue of Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, people with diabetes and arthritis are more likely to be physically inactive (29.8 percent) compared to those with diabetes alone (20.1 percent).

Water aerobics can be ideal for people with arthritis because the buoyancy of the water reduces stress on joints, bones and muscles. Many of the pools participating in this HAP-sponsored program have zero-depth entry, which make it easier for anyone to enter and exit the pool.

In 2007, nearly 5,000 metro Detroiters participated in Moms in Motion and Senior Splash Bash classes, with an average daily participation of more than 500. HAP hopes to continue to grow participation this summer as it has done each year since the program began.

While the program targets mothers and seniors, any adult may participate. Classes are not limited to HAP members. For more information about classes, contact HAP at (313) 664-8420 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday. Registration is required.

and I went to Jackson State, which wasn't really a highly touted school. But I kept working hard and ended up getting drafted (with the 10th overall pick in 1993 NBA Draft by the Pistons)."

Hunter chuckled and shook his head when asked if he had a state-of-the-art facility like HVS to sharpen his hoop skills while growing up in Utica, Miss.

"No, I had a hoop in my backyard," he said. "At first, it was a dirt court, but my dad said if I worked hard enough, he'd put down concrete, which he eventually did."

"Looking back now, it wasn't a real big court, but at the time I thought it was the best court in the world."

Hunter said he jumped at the chance to help out at the week-long basketball camps HVS is offering beginning June 23, July 7 and July 21.

"I haven't done camps in about four years, but I thought it would be a great idea to help out because I enjoy working with my own kids (he has three sons and a daughter) and I like to get active in the camps," said Hunter.

"The biggest thing I want the kids thinking about when they walk out of the camp is that if they really want to excel at something, they have to work hard at it. Everybody isn't going to be a superstar, but everybody can learn to be a good basketball player if they're willing to work hard."

Hunter said he's enjoyed living in the Plymouth-Canton area since moving from Bloomfield Hills in 2004.

"We sold our house in Bloomfield four years ago when I got traded to the Lakers," he said. "I love this area — it reminds me of the South where I grew up — so we were going to stay in Michigan, regardless of who I played for."

"We found this house on the market in Plymouth with a lot of land that we liked, and since I didn't play for the Pistons, we didn't have to live close to the Palace. But as soon as we closed on this house, I got traded back to Detroit."

Hunter said he sympathized for ex-Piston coach Flip Saunders, who was fired on Monday.

"Yeah, I feel for him — it's unfortunate for anyone to lose a job," he said. "Unfortunately, it's the nature of this business. Players get traded, players get cut and coaches get fired."

Hunter was non-committal when asked who he thought would win this year's NBA Finals between Boston and Los Angeles.

"It's too painful to watch because I think we should be in it," said Hunter.

"I hope it ends in a tie," he concluded, chuckling.

Michigan Eye Doctor Helps Legally Blind

Dr. Sheldon Smith fits special glasses to help those with macular degeneration and other eye conditions keep reading and driving.

By Elena Lombardi

Most of us take things like reading, watching TV or playing cards for granted. But poor vision from conditions like macular degeneration, glaucoma, diabetes or cataracts makes these tasks difficult or even impossible. When people have insufficient vision to do the things they want to do, they have low vision.

Today Michigan Optometrist Dr. Sheldon Smith has the answers many of these people have been seeking. Dr. Smith, a Low Vision Specialist, helps people with these types of eye diseases see better. A Fellow of the International Academy of Low Vision Specialists, Dr. Smith is one of a select group of doctors serving the visually impaired.

"People don't know there are experienced doctors who can help them with specialized low vision care," says Dr. Smith. "Many people are told by their own doctors that nothing more can be done for their eye condition, but there are ways to improve vision" says Dr. Smith. "We fit special devices to help patients meet their various visual goals."

Patients often end up using weak, clumsy handheld magnifiers trying to help themselves see better. Conversely, Dr. Smith prescribes hands-free devices that are easier to use. "We use the same telescopic devices surgeons use during operations," says Dr. Smith. "That's how powerful and convenient they are."

Special prismatic reading glasses and microscopes help make reading a little easier. Telescopic glasses primarily focus on distance objects like TV, passing neighbors or scenery. Telescopes can also be adapted to closer tasks like playing cards or computers. "Telescopes can even help people meet the driver vision requirement" Dr. Smith explained.

Michigan is one of 46 states that allow bioptic telescopic glasses for driving.

Mr. Leo Hakola, age 85 of Livonia, Michigan saw Dr. Smith last May.

Macular degeneration, cataract, stroke and double vision were causing reading and driving problems. Dr. Smith prescribed a complete low vision system which included telescopic glasses for driving and special prismatic glasses for reading. The entire cost was $2789. Leo said "the telescopic driving glasses really help me see traffic lights and street signs down the block. And reading is much easier and single now with these special reading glasses. I am glad I found you, Dr. Smith."

In addition to the spectacle vision aids, Dr. Smith offers training to help people accomplish their daily activities. Visual aids help patients use their remaining vision to its fullest capacity while rehabilitative training improves the patient's ability to carry out necessary independent activities. And of course safeguarding present vision levels is crucial. Sun filters and nutritional supplements can improve vision and prevent further loss.

"Each patient has a unique amount of vision and their own goals," says Dr. Smith. "I am committed to helping patients do what matters most to them and improving their quality of life."

Special reading glasses start at $600 and custom telescopes can cost from $1800 to $2,500.

If you or someone you know is struggling with their vision, call Dr. Smith to find out how low vision care can help. There is help available. You just need to know where to find it.

You can reach Dr. Smith and Suburban Low Vision of Michigan at

Be honest about long-distance relationship

My boyfriend is moving to Florida. I don't know if I should wait around for him or if I should move on. I don't want to move on, but I feel like I have no choice. What should I do?

Long Distance in Garden City

I'm so sorry to hear your boyfriend is moving so far away. Losing a friend, boyfriend or girlfriend, can be very hard. Maintaining that relationship from so far away is even more difficult! You need to ask yourself if it's a realistic idea that your boyfriend will return to this area. If he's not planning on moving back in the near future, there may be nothing to wait around for. If moving back is a small possibility, it might be nice to try to maintain a friendship while he's gone.

These days, with MySpace, Facebook, IM and e-mail, long-distance friendships are a little easier to keep. If he moves back, you two can decide to try dating again and see where things go from there.

You both have many years ahead of you and the opportunity to meet many new people in that time. You both might find it difficult to stay committed to each other and you might be setting each other up for "cheating" opportunities. Be honest about the reality you're facing and try not to set impossible and unrealistic goals. Start by being friends across the miles and see where the road takes you!

My friend had to put her dog down last week. Her dog meant a lot to her and, knowing this, I've made an effort not to talk about the dog or anything related to him. Well, the other day, I heard her talking to another friend. She said I was being insensitive. I was really confused - I've been treating her the same (I never talked about her dog before) and I even gave her my sympathy. I think she might be too sensitive and I'm upset that she talked about me behind my back. What should I do?

Lost Puppy Love
Garden City

It sounds like you may have hurt your friend's feelings even though you were trying to do the right thing. Sometimes, people do want to talk about how they feel after losing something or someone so important to them. Your friend probably doesn't realize that you were actually trying to help by not bringing up painful memories. As for talking about you behind your back, I think she was feeling very confused about what she thought was insensitive behavior on your part. I encourage you to talk to her and explain that you were just trying to save her from painful memories and that you didn't mean to be insensitive. Let her know that you'll always listen if she ever wants to talk about her feelings and about the loss of her dog.

I have a problem about a friend with a problem. My friend's problem has to do with food - he's addicted. And my problem with that is that he steals all of my food! Every time I see him, he's scarfing down a cheeseburger. What do I do?

Starving
Garden City

It sounds like there are two issues going on ... your concern for your friend's eating habits and your anger about your friend stealing your food. First, tell your friend to keep his hands off of your food. If he's stealing your lunch food, tell him that he can't eat your lunch anymore. Let him know that you feel angry when he helps himself to your lunch. Second, you can help your friend by letting him know that you are concerned that his eating habits aren't healthy ones. Ask him if there's something else going on that he'd like to talk about. Lots of times, people use food as a way of feeling better when they are under stress or feeling depressed. Invite him to shoot hoops with you or challenge him at a round of Guitar Hero ... exercise and activities not only help keep pounds off, they help us feel less stressed and less depressed. And if his hands are busy playing Guitar Hero, he can't be scarfing down cheeseburgers!

Bill Kramer compares serving on a destroyer to being tossed around like a cork in a bathtub. It's a rare experience sailors have shared since the first warship of this nature was built in the late 1800s.

Once a year, Kramer looks forward to hearing the stories of men who sailed aboard these vessels, but first he has to find them. As chairman of the annual Michigan Bull Session of Tin Can Sailors, Kramer is expecting the usual old salts Saturday, July 12, at American Legion Post 32 in Livonia, but would like to see some new faces. The Tin Can Sailors is the National Association of Destroyer Veterans.

Individual states hold the one-day events for all destroyer sailors regardless of when they served or which vessel they were on. Kramer served on four different ships including the U.S.S. Alvin C. Serious piano students happy to play through summer

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Rie Summers doesn't mind driving all the way from the Lansing area to Schoolcraft College in Livonia. She would do just about anything for her daughter Lisa to study with professor Donald Morelock at the Summer Piano School for students from mid-elementary through high school.

Lisa is especially looking forward to attending the Piano Concertos and Chamber Music program July 7-17. The first session, Solo Piano and Piano Duets, takes place June 16-27. Morelock is director of the summer school that offers intense sessions in music theory and history, composition, sightreading, keyboard technique, and master classes.

"Her piano teacher in the Lansing area was recommending Mr. Morelock," said Rie Summers of Mason.

Lisa began studying piano at age 5 and today takes lessons with teacher Gerardo Ascheri. She learned about the Summer Piano School a couple of years ago when Morelock judged one of the competitions she entered.

"I liked both sessions last year," said Lisa Summers. "It's been awhile since I was interacting with kids my age who like music. Last summer I starting learning to be more of a performer. Doing competitions and performing is a bit of a different crowd. I've been more conscious of how I present myself. There's a certain way to move."

Lisa needs to learn as much as she can before applying to the University of Michigan School of Music to study for a degree in music performance. Lisa enters her senior year in high school next fall. She admits she likes playing piano, because she's the center of attention. The Concertos and Chamber Music Performance session gives her the opportunity to rehearse and perform with a professional string ensemble.

"I like performing, people watching me and showing what I can do," said Lisa who recently won a Lansing Matinee Musicale scholarship. "I'm looking to be more comfortable playing with other people. I'm used to being the solo. I need to work with a quartet."

Anne Greenstein and the piano teacher members of the Farmington Musicale can't say enough about the Schoolcraft College summer school. Greenstein is chairwoman of the musicale's summer scholarship program which provides funding for students attending the Schoolcraft sessions as well as an operetta workshop at the Detroit Opera Theater.

The nonprofit musicale provides free monthly music programs from September through June and is affiliated with the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs.

"If we don't help the younger generation there won't be a future in music," said Greenstein of Farmington Hills. "Last year we sponsored three students, this year two students. We also do a citywide music competition for students (and award cash prizes)."

This year Kate Knott and Zachary Jirik were selected to attend the summer piano school. Knott is taught by Susan Coseo of Northville, Jirik by Janice Smith of West Bloomfield. Both teachers are members of the Farmington Musicale. To contribute to the scholarship fund, call (248) 626-7768. For more information about the Farmington Musicale or its teachers, visit FarmingtonMusicale.com. Parkwest Gallery in Southfield is a major donor for the piano workshop.

Smith, a past musicale president, said last year Jirik attended the workshop and although the first day was somewhat overwhelming, by the end of the session he was so enthusiastic he did not want the workshop to end. His enthusiasm carried over into his piano studies this year.

"We offer these opportunities based on the child's abilities and a recommendation from one of our club's teachers," said Greenstein. "These are talented students."

In addition to registering students for the summer school, the Schoolcraft College music department is signing up young pianists for the fall semester for its Piano Academy. The Elementary Division offers students in grades 1-4 a one-hour group lesson and a half-hour private lesson once a week. Intermediate Division students in grades 4 and above receive a 45-minute private lesson every week and a monthly master class with Donald Morelock, chairman of the college's music department.

For more information or an interview, call (734) 462-4403. An audition is necessary to enter the Intermediate Division of the Piano Academy.

UPDATE ON OSTEOPOROSIS

Osteoporosis is the name given to fragile bones. This fragility often occurs in women after menopause when the decrease in estrogen production causes a loss of bone density and strength. A similar process of bone fragility often develops in men at a later age and is related to loss of androgen production.

DEXA imaging is the most common way of assessing bone loss. The DEXA scan evaluates the lumbar spine and both hips and generates a series of scores that a physician uses to determine if your bones have developed osteoporosis.

Technicians can perform another test, the vertebral fracture assessment. The vertebral fracture examination uncovers unsuspected vertebral bone fractures due to bone fragility.

Experience shows that at times, the DEXA test fails to show osteoporosis, but the vertebral fracture assessment imaging reveals a fragility fracture has occurred. In such instances, the vertebral fracture assessment finding overrides the DEXA results; then you should receive treatment appropriate for osteoporosis.

When your doctor orders a DEXA examination, it is in your best interest to inquire if, at the same time, you can have a vertebral fracture assessment. The results of both examinations will give clearer answers about the question if you have osteoporosis than could either test alone.

GUIDE

and what's the potential market for the book," he said.

In the end, the publisher wanted a book that covered the whole state, including Detroit and other urban areas.

The Explorer's Guide publisher asks their writers to veer away from chain lodgings, restaurants and stores to find the unique and local. They pay all expenses, writers are not allowed to take complimentary meals, admissions or lodging.

But Counts wasn't sure Michigan fit the "New England" model of other Explorer books.

"You can't swing a dead cat in New England without hitting a bed and breakfast or a cute little inn or quaint country store," he said.

DIFFERENT LURE

While Michigan has its share of B&Bs and quaint stores, it also has towns where the only place to shop is an IGA and the only places to stay are roadside cabins.

Hunting, fishing and boating used to be the major lures for visitors from outside the state, but Counts says that times have changed.

"Hunting and fishing are down, but even hunting and fishing have changed," he said. "More couples are involved. Hunting and fishing used be Bud and Fred in a bass boat and how much you could fill your freezer or did you get five deer this year. There is still some of that, but now people are traveling for a lesser amount of time but for a better experience."

Counts said a Michigan traveler can be fishing a trout stream one day and attending a wine tasting in Traverse City the next. The state has hip urban communities, pristine beaches, bike trails, vast forests and legendary trout streams.

The book is organized geographically to include every section of the state with interesting facts, places to stay, places to eat for fine dining and casual lunches, recreation opportunities, cultural and entertainment venues, museums and more. In addition to gathering the information and providing lively commentary, Counts also took the numerous black and white photos. The book also includes maps for each section of the state.

WANDERING AROUND

Counts, publisher of the outdoor magazine Streamside Journal, has some strong opinions about different parts of the state that he admits don't fit with the views of others.

"My favorites are not the favorites in the book," he said. "My favorites are the quirky places. The publisher lets you be honest."

He says that Traverse City, the urban center of Up North Michigan, is "overrated," but he enjoys the quieter, nearby Lake Michigan towns of Ludington, Manistee and Frankfort. And he loves the UP and devotes a large section to Michigan's rich wilderness land from Grand Marais to the Keweenaw.

Counts said it is the vast amount of public land that makes the UP so special.

"In the UP we have thousands and thousands of acres," he said. "Nobody around, the towns are cheap, rent a hotel room or camp. You can bird watch or canoe or camp, mountain bike all over the place. It's that old 19th century thing where you can wander. That's been lost in modern day society."

Counts says the state government hasn't been doing a good enough job promoting the state's recreational resources to other parts of the country and he thinks his book might help spread the word about our special place.

"This is a good book to give to any prospective employer because employers are looking for places with a good quality of life," he said.

Counts said he's already started to hear from people about their favorite places that he wasn't able to include.

"I had a 100,000 word limit and at the end I was getting frantic and started to cut," he said.

JEFF COUNTS

But he's been taking notes for a second edition. The Explorer Guides are updated every couple of years.

Meanwhile, he'll be making the rounds for book signings in the weeks ahead and planning some other writing projects.

SAILORS

event from as far away as West Branch, Indiana and Ohio.

"We're looking for any Navy or Coast Guard who served aboard tin cans. In the old days that only covered the destroyer then they built the destroyer escort," said Kramer, 75, of Livonia. "The destroyer is a tin can, it's how you're bounced around. More guys serve on destroyers than anything else, but it's for any sailor that served aboard a destroyer, destroyer escort, APD ship which hauls the frog man, or fast frigate which is taking the place of the destroyer. The Bull Session we get together for the camaraderie, yak away, tell sea stories. We sell merchandise too, shirts and jackets with Navy insignias and children's stuff, belt buckles and rank insignias."

Kramer delights in spouting off in sea terminology saying a bubblehead is a submariner, snipes an engineer and the poop deck is as far forward as a sailor can go on a ship. It's apparent that Kramer, who was a deputy sheriff for Wayne County for 25 years, never lost his love for destroyers. He belongs to seven Navy-related organizations and twice a year works on a museum ship in Albany, N.Y. The U.S.S. Slater was built in 1943 and is one of seven museum ships around the country which are supported by Tin Can Sailors.

Bill Biggerstaff attended his first Bull Session 20 years ago in Jackson. The 84-year-old Wayne man served during World War II on convoy duty with the Reuben James which was sunk by torpedo off of western Iceland in October 1940. The Sturtevant DD 240 was later sunk in April 1942 off Marquesas Key, Fla., but he survived to spend the next 30 years as a Wayne police officer. Biggerstaff served a total of 42 years in the Navy and reserves as a chief torpedo man.

"When the war started all the merchant ships were taking cargo to Europe. The Sturtevant had sonar for submarines so they could drop depth charges on enemy submarines," said Biggerstaff. "There were 60 ships in the convoys. Some had big bombers strapped on the ship. We were taking everything we could to England. They weren't doing too good. They were losing the war and we were in the North Atlantic taking convoys across. This was before Pearl Harbor and German U boats and Hitler sent the Bismarck."

"When you think of most of the ships in the Navy, you think of big battleships, but then they started building destroyers, but they're small and they started calling them tin cans even though you're 300 feet long."

Biggerstaff likes telling and listening to stories, that's why he's attended not only Michigan Bull Sessions but events in San Diego, Denver and New York.

"You meet different people. Once a year they hold the national this year in August in Pittsburgh. You meet a lot of sailors but they're fading away. They're dying away," said Biggerstaff. "I like the Navy people and they're all old timers like me, but Tin Can a lot of younger guys go to it."

Ted King won't be attending the bull session because of his emphysema but enjoys talking about his Navy days as well. When he was younger, the 86-year-old Alpena man served in World War II with Biggerstaff. He remembers the day the U.S.S. Sturtevant was sunk, April 26, 1942. He'd been on the boat 13 months to the day.

"There were a lot of German subs in the gulf (off Florida)," said King. "The month of April '42 merchant ships were sunk and the beaches were covered with oil. Miami Beach was nothing but oil."

Donald Smith is one of the younger Tin Can Sailors who likes listening to the stories of old salts like King. Smith served from 1960 to 1963 on a destroyer tender, a repair ship, and then a destroyer, the U.S.S. Turner, an escort ship to aircraft ships which is used for close in combat where other ships can't go and for anti-submarine warfare. He's been to the bull sessions four times. He sailed all over the Atlantic, Mediterranean and Caribbean.

"It's interesting to talk to people on different ships and different times," said Smith of South Lyon. "Sailors from the late 1930s to early 2000s attend. Some were in the Second World War, Korean War, at Vietnam or around Vietnam."

CIRCUMVENTING A NARCISSISTIC BOSS

by Mildred L.
Culp

psychologist and executive coach Randall White, principal at The Executive Development Group L.L.C., in the Greensboro, N.C., location. "They tend to be perceived as overly ambitious... (with) an 'it's all about me'-quality, becoming extremely harsh with employees."

He maintains that this self-orientation shapes a view of the world that colors everything they do and say. It also sets agenda as theirs alone. Most are task-oriented, "letting the crumbs fall down on employees to make the boss look good," White adds.

David Nour, CEO of BeOne Now Inc., in Atlanta, a coaching firm specializing in relationship economics, points out that narcissists "actually get joy or, perhaps, attention from creating discomfort for others." Also a coach, he believes further that narcissists can be skilled manipulators who think that they can get others to perform by manipulating them. Unfortunately, sometimes the tactic works.

BEHAVIOR

It's easier to avoid the traps than to get out of them, but you have to learn how to spot them. While you might think that conversation alone — virtual or face-to-face — can ensnare you, that's not the case. Bill Krug, associate professor in the Organizational Leadership Department of Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., reports that bosses with impossible performance demands might well be narcissists, endlessly "nitpicking, no matter what you bring. They're never satisfied. After the fifth change, you bring your original..." and they accept it.

Krug says to watch the nature of their assignments to you. Meaningless ones, such as personal errands, tasks completely outside of your job description, and burdensome duties requiring "unreasonable hours for your position" suggest that you're their "step 'n fetch it." And that won't change.

Nour observes that the fact that they're narcissistic is evident in the manner in which "they telegraph" it to you. You don't get a critical memo or an invitation to a key meeting until it's too late for you to add it to your schedule. "They use delay tactics," he continues, "blame tactics to intentionally disrupt, cause stress within the team and the organization. They tend to target individuals they're threatened by, such as the high performer who might outshine them."

GETTING OUT

Fortunately, there are several ways to get out of the trap. Leaving — getting promoted or completely moving on — might be an option, if you can get a good recommendation, according to Nour. But there might be compelling personal or professional reasons to keep your job.

In this case, you must come up with something that won't get you fired, because, as Nour emphasizes, "It tends to get worse before it gets better. Narcissistic bosses will not stop." But before you take action, Krug recommends, document incidents, because harassment is a possibility. Then, consider your options:

— Reconsider. "In this global war for talent, I don't think anyone should have to deal with narcissistic bosses" (Nour).

— "Learn to expect a temper tantrum and let him do that if you can, but not if you're the only person being belittled in front of others" (Krug).

— "Realize that this is a learning opportunity for you, if only that you'll never treat people this way" (White).

You have one final option in an individual case, which is to confront the person. White advocates "appealing to the person's potential enlightened self-interest by saying something like 'If I can do my best work, I can make you look better.'" In other words, creep, it does you no good to make me feel incompetent, bad or something else, because it will keep me from doing my best job for you.

You'll put the jerk on notice that, as White indicates, you won't "punish yourself for the person's behavior" by quitting. You also won't submit.

Wow, New Homes With Unbelievable Features Starting In The $140's

Danny Veri couldn't believe it when he crunched the numbers and saw a family with a household income of about $40,000 could move into a home in Brookfield Estates.

"This is just and incredible value," said Veri, a partner in Livonia Builders who teamed up with Tim Breault of Breault Homes to build the "neighborhood within a neighborhood" bounded by John Hix and Cherry Hill in Westland.

Brookfield Estates consists of 63 homes with 3 available floor plans starting in the $140,000's.

"We set out to build affordable housing with exceptional standard features and people are responding. In just over 16 months we have sold over 100 homes in our communities with these features."

The Baymont, a colonial, measures 1250 square feet and boasts 3 bedrooms, 1.5 baths, a great room, and a second floor laundry for only $149,900. You can add a master bath for only $5000 more.

The Regency is a 3 bedroom, 2 bath ranch with a formal dining room, a great room, a first floor laundry, and starts at just $159,900.

The Brookstone is a 4 bedroom, 2.5 bath open floor plan that is just under 1700 sq. ft. at $169,900. Each home has an attached 2 car garage and a full basement. The average lot size in Brookfield Estates is 60x120. Larger and wooded lots are available.

Veri said buyers can choose from many different elevations for the colonials.

Buyers will be even more amazed at the homes' affordability when they see the upgrades Livonia Builders and Breault Homes include as standard features.

Guests are welcomed into the foyer by oak floors which are also used in the kitchen and nook. Granite countertops, Merillat cabinets, a designer faucet, and undermount double bowl stainless steel sink comprise just some of the kitchen's amenities.

The cabinetry and faucets are carried into the ceramic-tiled bathrooms with the powder rooms featuring a pedestal sink and oak floors.

12 x 12 Ceramic tile is also used in the laundry rooms and carpeting covers the great room, dining room, and bedrooms where ceiling lights illuminate the nighttime chambers.

Each room is surrounded by upgraded 4 inch thick baseboard moldings and 3-inch door casing moldings finish out the two-panel interior smooth finish doors.

The homes include a high efficiency Comfortmaker furnace, 13 SEER Comfortmaker air conditioning unit, a high-efficiency 40-gallon hot water tank, R44 ceiling insulation and a fireplace with gas logs.

Veri said the exterior is "100 percent maintenance free".

The ranch is completely brick as is the first floor of the two colonials. The second floor of the colonials is finished in vinyl siding. Overhangs on all three models are either aluminum or vinyl trim.

Pella vinyl windows with Low E glass, as well as glass block on the basement windows finish each home.

Other accoutrements include a limestone address block, sodded yards, sidewalks, and city water and sewer.

Coach lights outside the garage and Owens-Corning 30-year dimensional shingles lend to the aesthetics as well.

"As you can see Livonia Builders & Breault Homes use namebrand, high quality features. Our floors are real oak, finished on site (not pre-finished flooring). Our windows are Pella, not a no-name brand that may be out of business before the warranty ends," said Veri.

An advantage to using Livonia Builders & Breault Homes are the financial stability of the companies. They are cash-strong and combined have been in business over 50 years. The buyers also get to deal directly with the owners of the companies through the whole building process, not superintendents or salespeople. "Our sales and construction process makes our buyers very comfortable. They know they are dealing directly with the owners of the building company."

Brookfield Estates is on the Canton border and very close to Ford Road shopping. It is in the Wayne/Westland school district and is nestled in Brookfield Village, an existing subdivision where home values range in the mid to upper $200,000's, Veri said.

Ford Road is a mere mile away and in close proximity is I-275 and local home improvement stores.

"It's a very welcoming neighborhood," he said. It is tucked away and embraced by deep woods and wetland area.

Veri said he can't get over the affordability of the homes.

"We worked on slim margins to keep working", he said "The main theme to this whole project was creating affordable housing with luxury features. With an hourly wage of $19 per hour for household income, you can buy a house with all these features."

Veri worked with his in-house mortgage lender, Mortgage Concepts, and came up with a 5% down, 30-year fixed rate mortgage plan which includes taxes and insurance for about $1200 a month.

"We even have a program that has no out-of-pocket closing costs," he said. "It's just a phenomenal deal for a first time home buyer or someone looking for more square footage."

SUDOKU

Level: Beginner

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
