McLaughlin knocks off rival in contentious treasurer's race

In nabbing the Republican nomination Tuesday, Melissa McLaughlin is poised to become the next Canton Township treasurer.

the library's total circulation at 1,000,000 items for 2008.

Kaur was rewarded for her special checkout with a free library tote bag filled with prizes from the library and $50 Jungle Java gift certificate.

According to Library Director Eva Davis, the library has experienced an annual circulation increase averaging nearly 5 percent, which has pushed the one million circulation mark to an earlier point in the calendar each year since November of 2002 - when the library reached the milestone for the first time.

The library was particularly busy in July, when 184,836 items were checked out. The total was the library's all-time record for a single month.

Davis said the increased use of the library probably has a lot to do with the poor economy and the fact that people are looking for cheap things to do closer to home.

"Overall, library usage has been up, which is typical in times of economic hardship," said Davis. "Summer reading participation is high this year and that has increased our circulation. Also, we have removed limits on some items in response to patron requests, so they are free to check out more items at a time. The public library is a great deal when you are watching your budget."

Incumbents lead way to victory in trustee race

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

After a few moments of attempting to get a glance of the computer screen through the small crowd, the woman gave up, turned to Pat Williams and asked: "Are you winning?"

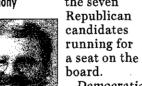

Williams, later chosen as one of the four Republican trustee candidates to advance to the November election, responded, "We're doing good. It's not final but we're doing good.'

On Tuesday night, Williams and his supporters gathered around two computers at his home to monitor the township's election results as they poured in.

When Williams, a political newcomer, learned that he had advanced out of the primary, he celebrated with Trustee Todd Caccamo and trustee candidate John

Anthony. The three, along with Trustee Karl Zarbo, received the largest number of votes out of the seven Fred Bolden, a longtime Canton activist, earned 1,767 votes to finish fifth, followed by newcomers Mike Andro (1,694 votes) and Jaldhar Prasad (565 votes).

"Obviously, I'm flattered with the results and I'm motivated to keep doing what I do," Caccamo said.

"I'm happy that people can see that I'm trying to do the right thing. It's about more substance than show."

After the final numbers were reported, Anthony, a former FBI agent, clasped the hand of his wife, Gloria, and credited her with his victory.

With Taj on the ballot, Anthony said his seat on the board isn't guaranteed and he's ready to continue campaigning for November.

"I didn't get into this thing to stop in August," he said. "I'm looking forward to the challenges ahead."

ITC tree removal

Over the next couple of weeks, crews working for the International Transmission Company (ITC) will be marking trees for removal in the high power electric corridor that runs through Canton. Federal guidelines necessitate the clearing to ensure there are no disruptions to their service. All trees designated for removal will be marked on the corridor side of the tree. In some instances, trees that are within their safety boundary could be located on, or near, private property. In those cases, ITC will negotiate with the property owner.

For questions or concerns please call ITC directly at (877) 483-4839.

"That's just today," said Plakas, with the realization the bigger prize is in November. "There's 90 days from now."

fund raising and trying to get financial contributions from a lot of the same people, five other campaigns you have to monitor," said Plakas. "All I know is that we gave it everything we had and ultimately the people would decide the two finishers."

"I'm a little bit shocked, but I'm very happy," said Barone. "Everybody ran a great race." The winner in November will take the seat being vacated by Judge John MacDonald, retiring after 24 years on the bench. Plakas, who won the primary two years ago and lost to incumbent Judge Ron Lowe, said his strategy will now shift with Barone the only other candidate in the race.

"That's one advantage I've had, I've done this before," said Plakas. "I know the difference between the primary election and the general election ... it has to be a different strategy. "It certainly isn't going to be easy," he said. "Joe (Barone) did a great job with his campaign and it showed in the numbers."

Barone said he knows it will be a tough challenge the next to catch Plakas' number of votes. "I think I'll have to work that much harder, rally the troops

Township Clerk Terry Bennett said 11,455 voters participated in the township primary, which is about 20 percent of Canton's registered voters. Bennett, who is running unopposed for reelection, said the low turnout was surprising.

"We've had better primaries," she said. "I expected a larger turnout, considering how much the candidates got out there and knocked on doors and all the money that was spent on this campaign. I thought it would be up around 30 percent."

Bennett received 4,640 votes.

'Unofficial' results cause brief court confusion

When Joe Barone went to bed early Wednesday morning, he was on Cloud Nine after learning he'd just been voted one of two candidates to run for 35th District Court judge in November.

However, just hours later he was deluged with phone calls suggesting he lost the primary election to fellow candidate Martha Snow.

The Wayne County election Web site, as well as those of several media outlets, had Snow edging Barone by 36 votes.

"I received a phone call from Joe (Xuereb, husband of Snow) about 7 a.m. saying Wayne County has some different numbers and Martha beat me," Barone said. "Then my cell phone was ringing off the hook with people wondering if I had won.

"My heart sank, so this (Wednesday) morning I went to each individual clerk's office to verify the numbers." he added. "For a few hours, I was really on edge."

McLaughlin, who has been a trustee since 1992 and a planning commissioner since 1991, estimated that she visited 1,500 township homes and acknowledged the benefit of voters being able to put a face to the name.

With months to go before the general election rolls around, McLaughlin said she hopes to begin learning the inner workings of the office with the help of retiring Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter.

"I hope to use the time we have now to get some rungs on the ladder climbed," she said. "I want to take full advantage of the opportunity to learn from Elaine."

McLaughlin's goals as township treasurer include maximizing the newest technology with various payment plans and options, simplifying the treasurer's Web page to make it more informational and providing immediate access to information and services regarding financial assistance programs, foreclosures and tax deferrals.

McLaughlin also wants to publish an annual report to "enhance transparency and accountability to the public" and accept taxes paid by mail as "on time" if they are postmarked as of the due date.

In filling the role of treasurer, which has a salary of $98,790, McLaughlin would continue her legislative duties to the township and said it's important that Canton progresses regardless of the state's tumbling economy.

Scholarship program helps local students get jump on college

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Mayur Patel will begin his freshman year of college $1,000 richer because of the Kiwanis Club of Plymouth Canton Breakfast Grant.

"This is pretty good help," says Patel, 17, who will study pre-med at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Patel is one of two dozen local students that will begin the fall semester with a scholarship awarded through the 2008 Canton Community Foundation Education Grant Program.

Patel learned of the program after a friend received a CCF scholarship last year.

"I'm really glad that I got it," he said of the Kiwanis grant. "It's going to help me out."

Other scholarships in the program, which dates back to 1990, include the $500 Penelope Hope Klei Scholarship for a student planning to attend a Christian college; the Denski Family Scholarship worth $500 for graduating cheerleaders from Plymouth-Canton Schools and the Harold Rosin Grant valued at $1,000 for non-traditional students.

"No matter the amount of the scholarship, students have been able to help pay for materials and tuition," said Katie Robiadek, CCF programs assistant. "We have received so much feedback from recipients saying that this helped a lot."

While the majority of the program's scholarships are in the $500-$1,000 range, two of the most sought after awards could total $8,000 each. The four-year renewable $2,000 Yazaki North America, Inc. Scholarship was awarded to Xin-Kan Su and Stephanie Wong, both of Canton. Su and Wong each plan to attend U-M-Ann Arbor.

Emily Patton, 17, was selected to receive the Canton Lions Club Scholarship.

"I'm excited," the Salem High School graduate said of the $500 award. "This will help me further my education."

The Lions award is designed for any sight or hearingimpaired individual or a student who intends to major in a sight or hearing-impaired field. Patton, who is hearing impaired, will study nursing at Northern Michigan University.

"I learned about the scholarships through a family member and I think it's good that (CCF) is here to help students," she said.

3 Wayne-Westland staffers take on new assignments

BY SUE MASON OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

There will be new faces in the top spots at Wayne-Westland's two high schools this fall.

The school board earlier this month approved the appointment of Valerie Orr as principal at Wayne Memorial High School and David Ingham as principal of John Glenn High School. They replace John Albrecht, who has joined the district's administrative staff as the executive director of student and legal services, and Joan Sedik, who has been named the executive director of human services.

Orr told the board she was "very excited, overwhelmed and humbled" by the appointment.

"There's not many people in world who can say they got the job they always dreamed of," she said. "My roots grow very long in this community. I love Wayne-Westland, I love the kids, and I am very proud be here. There's no better place be than Wayne Memorial High School."

Orr, a Wayne resident, has been with the district since 2001. She was a mathematics teacher at Franklin Middle School for six years before being named an assistant principal at Wayne Memorial. She has a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and sociology from Eastern Michigan University and a master of arts degree in curriculum and instruction from the University of Phoenix.

She has participated in the Wayne County RESA Aspiring Principals Program, trained as a district staff development leader and developed and presented staff in-services on student-led conferences. She also has served on the district's middle school scheduling committee.

Orr also thanked her husband, Brent, telling the board that he "has been very supportive and understanding of my love of education."

Ingham is a familiar with John Glenn High School, having served as an assistant principal there during the 2003-04 school year. He moves from Adams Middle School where he had been the principal since 2003.

"This almost seems like an awards acceptance speech because I'm thanking everyone," the Howell resident said. "But it's appropriate because we need support of everyone here."

Ingham has a bachelor of science degree in natural resources management from the University of Connecticut, a master of arts degree in management and supervision from Central Michigan University and a master of arts degree in secondary education from Marymount University. He was as a teacher, department head and interim assistant principal at Taylor Truman High School before joining the Wayne-Westland district in 2002.

Ingham also had a special thank you for Superintendent Greg Baracy for hiring him from Taylor schools.

"You gave me the opportunity to be in excellent district where focus is always on students and matches up to our focus," he said. "I appreciate that and accept the opportunity to serve."

Sedik also was thankful for being tapped for the human resources position.

ON CAMPUS

"This was not some I had imagined as my plan for the future," she said. "I'm excited about the new challenge and the new position, and I look forward working with human resources, Dr. (Greg) Baracy and the board."

Sedik will move a few hundred yards down Marquette from the school she's been at since joining the district in 1970. She worked as a teacher at John Glenn High School for 25 years before being named an assistant principal in 1995. She was named principal in 2000.

A Westland resident, Sedik has a bachelor of science degree in business education, social science and English from Wayne State University, a master of arts degree in reading from Eastern Michigan University and an education specialist degree from WSU in

The appointments drew praise from board Secretary Cindy Schofield, who was excited to see the three administrators "step forward to new positions."

Larkin calls differences with McCotter 'crystal clear'

BY HUGH GALLAGHER OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Livonia attorney Joseph Larkin says that he and U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter have "crystal clear" differences on the major issues of the day and he is looking forward to a debate in the fall campaign for the 11th Congressional District.

accept a win or a loss. "I believe I have a healthy view of being a public servant," he said. "I'll give them my point of view. I have to be true to what I believe."

Larkin said he has strong differences with McCotter over the war in Iraq, the foreclosure crisis, energy and the economy.

"I am going to bring ideas that will be a big, positive step forward," he said.

Kriewall said Wednesday that newspaper endorsements for Larkin "killed me."

"I didn't think it would be that big a factor, but it was," he said.

Kriewall said he believes he did better than Larkin in television interviews and in their joint forum. He said newspaper endorsements portrayed him as leaning more Republican.

"I thought I was a good candidate," he said.

Kriewall said he has no plans to run for office again. McCotter released a statement Tuesday that he was "honored and humbled to be nominated" for the fourth time as the Republican candidate in the 11th Congressional District.

"I will strive to uphold their trust as, together, we fight to revitalize our Great Lakes State and keep our America the greatest nation on earth," the statement read.

With a giant 'King' sign glowing behind him, Phil Simmons said it's only fitting that Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat serve as the first production of the newly-formed 8th Wonder Theatre company.

"Joseph really has something for everyone," said Simmons of Ypsilanti, who runs the Ann Arbor-based company with Ryan Lewis and Brian Carbin. " Joseph is one of the few musicals that appeals to audience members of all ages." Simmons and Lewis, both professors at Eastern Michigan University, joked about the wide range of personalities depicted in the popular play, which relays the Biblical saga of Joseph being sold into slavery by his brothers and eventually reunited with his family.

"There's a little Elizabeth Taylor, a little country music, Elvis and Barack Obama. If you don't like a number, just wait a minute," Simmons said, while Lewis added, "It's like the weather in Michigan, it keeps changing."

The play opens Friday with an 8 p.m. show at The Village Theater, 50400 Cherry Hill Road.

The production has a cast of 23 actors and a 16-member children's choir from an Ypsilanti elementary school and 15 crew members.

With this being his eighth production of Joseph, Simmons, who has toured internationally, said he never tires of the production.

"Even if you are in a really bad mood or have had a tough day, you can't help but smile," he said.

Lewis applauded the talents and dedication of those participating in the production, which includes students from EMU, the University of Michigan, Penn State University, Michigan State University, Grand Blanc High School and Oakland University, and said he hopes 8th Wonder will be able to expand next summer.

"We want to be a professional company for summer stock work," he said. "We've gotten pretty good feedback on people that are happy and pumped up about us bringing this to the area. A lot of things focus on younger and older (actors) but the in-between has been lacking."

t seems that every week there is another announcement that more people in the auto industry are losing their jobs. Last week, General Motors announced it is cutting 5,000 white-collar jobs. One issue all those people will face is what to do with their 401(k) plan. In fact, people who are changing jobs or retiring also are faced with this decision.

When someone leaves a company for whatever reason, he/she generally has a few alternatives when it comes to a 401(k) plan. In most situations, an individual can simply leave his/her 401(k) or retirement plan with the employer. Most employers do not require you to transfer your retirement savings account into a different retirement vehicle. The other option, the one I recommend, is to move the money into an Individual Retirement Accounty (IRA).

The problem I have with people keeping their retirement money at their old employer is the issue of control. Over the last few years, we have seen a trend where employers are changing retirement vehicles much faster than in the past. If you are participating in a plan that changes, whether you are retired or still working, you have to adjust your portfolio.

Sometimes these changes are to the benefit of the employees because they offer new and better investment alternatives. Unfortunately, this is not always the case. Employers are adding new independent information. In the recent past, employers Money Matters were adding plans and these were basically mutual funds where an investor could receive independent information about the fund. This is no longer the case. For whatever reason, there is a trend to offer fewer investment options and many of these are not mutual funds.

I believe the key is to depend upon independent research. With many of these new types of investment vehicles, there is no independent information. The investor must rely on the information provided by the investment company. I never want to rely on information provided just by a company. My general rule is if you cannot find independent information, you ought to walk away from the investment.

There are many options to transfer your retirement money when you leave a company. The problem with many is high fees and high costs, which do nothing but erode the return of an investor.

Too many people who leave a company end up going into an investment product they are sold and one that makes no sense for them. One example is variable annuities. Variable annuities are great for the salesperson, as not only do they make a substantial commission, but they make ongoing fees every year. They are an investment that most should avoid. When someone leaves a company, they are swamped by the sales vultures who care only about making the sale as opposed to putting someone into an appropriate investment product. One clue that you are dealing with the wrong person is if you are dealing with an aggressive salesperson.

I know this is old-fashioned and I've said this many times in the past, however, one way to make sure that you are not being taken advantage of is to pay close attention to fees and costs. You just can't ask the salesperson about fees and costs. You need independent information. I think you will find that high-commission, high-fee products underperform and end up putting more money in the salesperson's pocket than in your pocket, where it belongs.

Don't be negligent with your retirement money. Make sure you make an informed decision. Take your time. If you are getting pressured, particularly from a salesperson, the easiest thing to do is walk away.

Help ensure pupils are set for school

Kudos to the The Plymouth Salvation Army Corps and its partners for coming up with the idea to help make sure all students in the Plymouth-Canton and Van Buren school districts are prepared and ready to go once the new school year starts on Sept. 2.

The Plymouth Corps, which also serves the Canton community, is hoping to fill an entire school bus with school supplies to donate to children from families that are struggling in these turbulent financial times.

According to Laurie Aren, the Plymouth Corps' director of family and community ministries, the number of people asking for help before the start of school will certainly surpass the 36 families (113 students) that requested help last year. She said they've already received plenty of calls from families that are seeking help because one or both parents have lost jobs. And they are expecting more calls to come in as the school year approaches.

You might say that this is just one more downside to living in the current Michigan economy.

Fortunately not everyone has lost their job or is having to scrimp to get by like so many Michigan workers currently are. If you are fortunate enough to be in that category, there are a lot of kids getting ready for school that could use your help.

From 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 22, volunteers will be on hand at The Salvation Army church and community center at 9451 Main in Plymouth to accept donations of pens, paper, crayons, backpacks and other school supplies.

While school supplies may seem like a minor detail to some people, they are a big deal for children who don't have any. If you think about it, a pencil and paper are on the front lines of the educational experience.

No child should have to come to school and feel inferior because their parents can't afford to buy these supplies. So, please, help if you can. Making sure all our children have an equal footing in our schools is something that benefits us all.

Good ideas merit adequate funding

The story is a familiar one to area school district administrators.

State officials come up with a great idea - so great, they figure every school district in the state should implement it. Do it or else, they say - and, by the way, don't bother asking us for any financial help in paying for it.

The resultant dilemma is called an unfunded mandate.

It's happened time and again, so no one should be surprised that the state Legislature has taken up an all-day kindergarten program that could cost districts plenty.

In her state of the state message, Gov. Jennifer Granholm called it a "simple step" that would make a dif-

Dress code enforcement overdue

Hats off to the Plymouth-Canton Schools officials who decided it was time to finally start enforcing the dress code for students -- something that has been long overdue.

Yes we want students to have freedom and expression, but we also want them to learn respect for others and respect and modesty for themselves - and apparently that is something that is not being taught to all of our students today. Students should be there to learn, and a good dress code will aid in having a healthy learning environment for everyone with no unnecessary distractions — and I am sure the teachers will appreciate the students being able to focus more on the curriculum instead of what the person next to them "is" or "is not" wearing. And yes students, you still have freedoms. If you don't like the dress code, you have the freedom to find another school to go to.

Thanks school officials for bringing some decency back to the classrooms.

response to that of Judge Bokos.

Initially, I wanted to discuss why it is important to select an individual for office instead of simply by name recognition and campaign support. Comments such as "endorsed by over 50 judges" is great, but people need to look further than just campaign slogans and look to the person for themselves. Personally, I find it intriguing that Joe Barone has his campaign headquarters at his office in downtown Plymouth, while Jim Plakas had to rent out a special space to be inside the district.

Plakas' employment history is primarily in Westland and not in the 35th District. I do not attack Mr. Plakas personally as he is probably a fine attorney and may make a decent judge, but I want someone who has shown a dedication to my district, someone who has worked and lived in my district. Mr. Plakas is better suited for the 18th District.

Barone, on the other hand again, has his office in Plymouth and represented more cases in the 35th District than any other candidate. Barone is a devoted family man and an extremely active member of the 35th District communities. Just because my name does not have "judge" before it does not mean that I cannot be a good judge of character. I chose to endorse Joe Barone because of his service and dedication to the 35th District. When I find someone to believe in, I do not back down.

she crashed her motorcycle into the side of a van on Ford Road at the Ridge intersec-

Reportedly the motorcycle slammed into the side of the van with such force that the van ended up on the south side of Ford Road even though the impact of the rider took place just behind the driver's seat.

The police department in Canton has charged the girl driving the van with negligent homicide. I think that is an error in process that needs to be addressed. This benefits the court while sparing MDOT from any bad press.

The intersection of Ford and Ridge has no stoplight because at the time a school was built at Ford and Ridge the Michigan Department of Transportation put a light at the entrance for the school. They refused to put a light at Ford and Ridge because they claimed the second light would be too close to the first light. The Canton Charter Township Board of Trustees had been informed of the danger of the intersection some time ago.

On paper the distance between the light in front of the school and the busy commercial intersection of Ridge and Ford appears to be adequate. However, a physical visit to the location shows bushes and small trees along Ford, with larger trees appearing before the light, so if a person of normal stature in a car even the size of a Yukon SUV would stop at the intersection during any season other than the dead of winter the effective viewing distance would be seen as being greatly foreshortened. That is inadequate. The Michigan DOT says everything is fine at Ford and Ridge and the intersection doesn't need a light so they won't kick out the $70,000 to put it in. Any normal person going to that intersection will see the need for a light. You will also see that a motorcycle traveling at 45 mph at that location would be hard to see - one going at 55 mph would be a danger, and one in excess of 55 mph would be a weapon. A MDOT representative has stated that putting a light at the intersection would be "do-able." Nice word, but the intent is what I am concerned with. They have no apparent intent to do it and avoided doing it even when clearly instructed to the danger that exists at that intersection and for which they are solely responsible.

ference. But simple by whose definition?

While many districts in the area are moving toward that goal, still others know that the mandate will require more space and more teachers at a time when state aid already has fallen behind increased costs.

The problem of unfunded mandates doesn't stop there.

Recently, the state Court of Appeals ruled that the governor and Legislature violated the Headlee Amendment by requiring school districts to compile data on student progress without reimbursing them for the cost.

The issue could be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

"The (state) constitution is very specific" on requiring mandates be funded, Michael Adamczyk said of the ruling. The assistant superintendent for business in the Trov district is also president-elect of the Michigan School Business Officials group.

The frustrating part, he said, is that even though the state has lost the argument in the past, it still puts up a fight.

Adamczyk said it would be difficult to place a dollar amount on the cost of collecting such data, suggesting that school staffers would have to keep tally sheets on the amount of time spent.

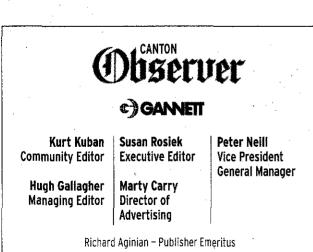

But the costs continue to grow. First, the state required fourth Friday counts in September to calculate enrollment and state aid, he noted. Then the state also required counts at mid-year, and now it also requires tabulations on safety, school crime and school employees.

For some districts with current software, computers take the brunt of the work. But other districts, Adamczyk said, have to either buy new software or update what they currently have.

Districts "don't argue the merits" of gathering data, he added.

Nevertheless, time is money, whether it be in gathering data or fighting a lawsuit.

It not only makes sense to fund mandates, it's the law.

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

Listen to elders

I know my thoughts won't be important to the kids in school. After all I'm 65 and an old man. When I was a student we didn't have a say in our dress code. We just followed the direction of our elders.

Perhaps there wouldn't be such a fuss now if the elders had not been remiss in enforcing the codes consistently since 1993 when they were enacted.

Thank you for the opportunity to put my two cents in.

Letter was another attack

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack's letter ("Stop the personal attacks," July 27) was a perfect example of the slanderous attacks he so disdains.

I worked as Joan Noricks' office assistant at the Canton Community Foundation and can attest to both her excellent leadership and her efficient, transparent handling of CCF funds. She is an expert at building and maintaining relationships. Everything Joan, together with a dedicated board, has done to advance the status of the foundation is a matter of public record. In no way did I witness the negative things Mr. Yack outlined in his letter. If things were so bad, why didn't the board (on which he served) just fire her?

Please, Mr. Yack, cease to engage in the "politics of personal destruction" you so righteously condemn.

Campaign was a journey

Campaigning for local office is an amazing journey. As I write this letter I have no idea if I was successful or not. What I do know is that I am glad I took the trip and that I have met so many new people (thousands) while I was going door to door and attending various events. Most people I met are as passionate about our Canton community as I am.

I am very grateful for so many good people supporting me with their personal commitment and encouragement along the way. Thank you to all who have helped my campaign during the past six months. Regardless of the outcome, your commitment of placing signs, working the polls, money, sending notes to your friends and other efforts did not go to waste. A special thank you is also owed to my wife and children for their patience with me during the process.

With so many qualified people running for the trustee positions the benefit to all is that a lot more Canton folks became involved in discussions about our community. These discussions were what Canton Township is all about. Please do stay involved to help our new leadership team focus on where we need to go as a community.

P.S. - Going door to door was a very healthy way to lose 20 pounds in two months.

Again, thank you.

Michigan's black dropout rate, The online barroom has a call for outrage and action s an angry and embarrassed citizen of depressed and eroding Michigan, it would be rhetorical to ask why bad news about public education and especially that of our black students is getting worse.

Michiganders ... it is time for a citizens uprising and education revolution. Do the math and add together the reports released by the Schott Foundation for Public Education, Given Half a Chance (specific to school year 2005-06) and Education Week's Quality Counts 2008 (specific to school year 2006-07). Michigan has the highest dropout and lowest graduation rate for black males across all 50 states and highest dropout and lowest graduation rates of the 50 largest school districts, and the information has only gotten worse. In fact we are so far below the national average that we are not only the worst in the Midwest; worst of the nation's largest states; worst of the nation's smallest states; we are the worst in the entire United States!

And all state Superintendent Mike Flanagan and his newly enriched and extended contract through 2011 can say is, "It's obvious that the way we've been trying to educate these students is not working" (Ya Think!) ... and DPS spokesman Steve Wasko (DPS Superintendent Connie Calloway is nowhere to be found) adds insult to injury with, "The numbers would not shock anyone who has looked at our school-by-school data Shocked? Of course not. Outraged, depressed, but with courage of conviction and stalwart resolve - committed to raising passionate and educated noise for as long as it takes for a Michigan governor and legislature to recognize their fiduciary and moral obligations to educate ALL of our 1.7 million children - absolutely!

A bit of historic reminiscence is necessary to remind Michiganders this crisis in educating our state's most fragile and precarious citizenship has been decades in the making. Former State Superintendents Arthur Ellis and Tom Watkins had a hand; the state's abysmal take-over of Detroit Public Schools; the revolving door of DPS superintendents, school boards and mayors - lack of concern under Govs. Blanchard, Engler and Granholm's education-less administrations?

Maybe some or all should be quoted for their current thoughts on the state of public education in Michigan and how it eroded during their years in office? Where have three decades of House and Senate Education and K-12 School Aid committees been ... at least until we wrecked our Legislature with term limits in 1992?

The time is long overdue that we march onemillion-strong down the streets of educationallywar torn Detroit. (And like Iraq and Afghanistan

- let us not forget Highland Park, River Rouge, Hamtramck, Flint, Saginaw, Pontiac, Southfield or Oak Park) and to the Capital in Lansing and loudly proclaim our revolt against public education in Michigan and the illiteracy, poverty, homelessness and crime it brings in its wake.

What we are doing to Michigan's black children is egregious. There are no palatable excuses left – end of story. Dr. Martin Luther King spoke to the "fierce urgency of now." This situation is 40 years urgent and the next obliterated Class of 2009 is only six excruciating weeks away. There are answers and they should not include vouchers and tax credits. We need an education revolution and not the end of public education.

This is not rocket science. The nexus to literacy, grade level proficiency, standardized test scores and turning students into taxpayers instead of tax burdens - starts with a hot breakfast, intensive daily research-based reading instruction and followed by after-school tutoring and dinner. Food and literacy are equally necessary to feed, expand and extend a child's mind. A few small high schools in Detroit as proposed by Gov. Granholm and bankrolled by the stingy K-12 School Aid Committee won't make a dent in this ship that makes the Titanic look appealing.

Small classes with properly certified and highly qualified teachers providing intensive, daily reading instruction is the necessary start Michigan schools and Detroit Public Schools has been missing. Students who can't read have no reason to stay in school and sadly, this the students have figured out in droves. Still, based upon the numbers - more will figure it out this year, than the last and the year before that and before that and before that.

State Superintendent Mike Flanagan and DPS Superintendent Connie Calloway must take a page from former Michigander and current District of Columbia Education Chancellor Michelle Rhee's playbook that starts with the core belief "her" students, their achievement levels and preparing them for postsecondary education and the global workforce is her only concern. No more excuses and that starts with Mike Flanagan, Connie Calloway and every administrator in this state.

And while former Vice President Al Gore has challenged the United States to solve its energy crisis over the next 10 years - someone might tell the next president to solve the education crisis in America and especially for our black, Hispanic and special education students. It is time to remind and ingrain in all of us that education and our children – white, black, brown and of all socioeconomic stations; with and without disabilities - are the energy our economy and our nation rides and rests upon.

As someone who has usually embraced change, I wonder if my current resistance is just a sign of advancing age. Politics has always been a rough-and-tumble experience, dating back to the days of Jefferson and Hamilton. In those days, all newspapers were blatant partisan journals supporting one side or the other in the debate over federal power. Sometimes these journals presented cogent arguments to support their partisan positions. Most times they offered up salacious rumors, wild accusations and downright lies about their opposition.

Beginning in the 1830s, newspaper publishers found they could gather more readers and, most importantly, advertisers by the eliminating or at least soft pedaling partisan positions on their news pages and saving them for opinion pages.

Of course that hasn't stopped partisanship from creeping into news accounts and it hasn't stopped some publishers from using their newspapers for blatant political reasons. But, the principle remains in place at most newspapers and the major broadcast networks.

But now we have the Internet - blogs, comments on online stories, chat rooms. Everyone is invited to offer up an opinion or two or incessantly. There is little censorship over these comments and the result is something like the elevation of barroom arguments into written political discourse. The back and forth on almost every issue is every bit as vulgar, misinformed, bullheaded and, quite often, offsubject and distracting as your usual Friday night after work at the local friendly.

Being churlish about these things suggests a disdain for democracy and free speech. I'm with Winston Churchill about democracy being the worst form of government except in comparison to all the other forms of government that have been tried. As for free speech, well, here I am ranting so I guess if I can rant, so can everyone else.

On the national scene these comments probably have little effect. Candidates running for federal positions are pretty much immune to this stuff, although this year provides a test on dealing with one of our most prickly issues - race relations. But it is at the local level, the state, county, city and township levels that we cover that this sort of nasty business becomes troubling.

This isn't about taking a position on something like the annexation issue in Livonia or a particular slate of candidates in Canton or Redford townships. Everyone who lives in those communities should take an interest in those topics, speak out on their positions and be a part of the debate. The problem is when that conversation becomes vitriolic, personal, accusatory with vague and harmful charges that aren't and can't be substantiated. Quite often the writers drift off the issue entirely to launch a personal attack on someone who has offered an earlier comment. (Good thing the 'net isn't a bar because the fists would be flying all the time. Or we'd see a return to the days of Hamilton and Burr, when a duel satisfied the issue.)

As we move into the general election season, the focus in many of our communities will switch from the local scene to the presidential election. Many of our communities are oneparty strongholds in which the primary was the election. But there will be ballot issues coming in November that will set off alarms for many political junkies.

We can only hope they spend some time honing their arguments, focusing on the issues and eliminating the vitriol. ("Fat chance, Killjoy!")

The 2008 Summer Olympics were the furthest things from the minds of Ralph and Gail Schmitt when they signed up their 6-yearold daughter Allison for basic swim lessons in 1996.

"Like all of our children, we just wanted to make sure Allison knew how to swim so she'd have fun when we went to the beach and went on vacations," Ralph Schmitt reflected.

Little did the Schmitts know that the lessons their third of five children soaked in at the Salem High School pool that year would become the first steps of an incredible journey that will continue a half a world away at the Games of the XXIX Olympiad in Beijing, China over the next three weeks.

Allison Schmitt earned a spot on the 20-member United States women's swim team July 2 when she placed second in the 200-meter freestyle event at the Olympic Trials in Omaha, Neb. Schmitt is the third-youngest member of the star-studded contingent -23 years younger than teammate Darra Torres - and is believed to be the first Canton resident to ever compete in the Summer Olympic Games. 'Everything has been amazing so far," Schmitt said last month from the team's domestic training camp in Palo Alto, Calif. "I'm swimming with the best swimmers in the country and swimming for the best coaches in the country. The entire experience has been unforgettable." And it's only just begun.

Early signs of greatness The tall slender swimmer's

"High Points" award at the 2003 Michigan 12-and-under State Championships.

Schmitt's physical tools - most notably her long, strong limbs - were impressive, but it was her mental make-up that stood out in the mind of Josh Morgan, her coach at the Ann Arbor Swim Club during the middle school vears

"If I had to describe Allison with one word, it would be 'fearless," said Morgan. "When she was in the water, she wasn't afraid of anybody. And she hated to lose.

"She had a great attitude, too. You could tell she was interested in learning and getting better."

Considering the vast wealth of swimming talent in the United States, Schmitt's meteoric climb to the elite level of athletes in her sport is awe-inspiring, Morgan said.

"First of all, only the top 1 percent of swimmers in the country even make it as far as the Trials,' he said. "Then, once you get there, you have to perform at your peak on the day of your race. If you're not at your best, you don't get to try again for four more years.

"The odds against doing what she's done may not be astronomical, but they're pretty darn close."

Focused on success

Schmitt's times in the freestyle events continued to plummet under the tutelage of the Ann Arbor Swim Club's Dan Olm, who coached her during her freshman and sophomore years of high school.

Olm attributed Schmitt's ascension to the national spotlight to her unrelenting ability to focus.

"Swimming fast is not the Love, who was crowned PGA Champion back in 1997 at Winged Foot Golf Club in New York, offered up a 60minute clinic - presented by American Express - on the ingredients that go onto producing a fluid golf swing and ultimately experiencing a more enjovable game overall.

Often, it appears unfair how effortlessly and predictable the results are from the professionals, but Love promises it doesn't happen by chance.

"People think that we have some secret, you know, like Titleist gives us some special golf ball, teachers have something they're telling us they're not telling the general public, but in reality, every time I see my teachers, it's the same stuff over and over and over and it's still fundamentals," Love said. "We still work on our fundamentals. It's the things we get away from because we're trying too hard to get better. Hopefully, the fans understand the fundamentals are still the most important thing as we still work hard at them." Tami Bealert, PGA professional at Carl's Golfland in Plymouth, agrees.

Bealert, along with a number of PGA professionals, have been on hand all week at the Learning Center to serve up instructions to needy duffers seeking improvement. The 10-minute sessions provide a video analysis and computerized breakdown of such areas as weight shift, shoulder turns and muscle tensions. Participants usually depart feeling better about their prospects next time out. "Ten minutes isn't a long Westland's Jared Williams has won numerous awards in taekwondo. including two gold medals at the recent AAU Junior Olympics held at the Rock Financial Showplace in Novi.

Martial artist Westland teen makes his mark in taekwondo at AAU Junior Olympics

BY BRAD EMONS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Jared Williams has a slew of awards and trophies stacked in and around his bedroom.

But what he'll cherish more than anything right now and put on a special display is pair of gold medals the 17-year-old from Westland captured last Friday in taekwondo competition at the 2008 AAU Junior Olympic Games held at the Rock Financial Showplace in Novi.

Seven years of hard work came to fruition as Williams captured first place in traditional forms for Boys 16-17 in second degree dan and up (for black belts). He also won his weight class (135-165) in points sparring, which consists of a pair of two-minute rounds, posting a 12-5 mercy vic- Alex Enriquez, an instructor tory in the finals.

For Williams, an honor student at Novi-Detroit Catholic Central High School, it's a seven-day a week sport in the Korean martial art.

"I usually train three to four hours per day, then cut back maybe one or two on Sundays," Williams said. "It's mostly done in my back yard, but when is cold or rainy I usually go inside to the School (of Martial Arts USA in Dearborn Heights)."

Williams, who proudly wears his pair of gold medals, was urged on by "my biggest cheerleader at all my tourneys," his sister, Courtney Walker, a recent graduate of Michigan State. Williams also received encouragement from Master who was once an AAU National Team alternate (2001) and AAU National gold medalist (1999). Williams also receives instruction from three other masters from the Dearborn Heights studio -- Marcus and Nick Imsande, along with Steven Yu.

"I felt really good and the reason why I went to the (National) Junior Olympics was that it was in Michigan," said Williams, referring to Detroit as the host city. "I went in there to try and win. I train as hard as I could, and it turned out well for me."

Williams bested five other competitors in traditional forms, which consists of an individual demonstration of a required series of hand techniques, strikes and kicks.

In traditional forms, he received an opening-round bye into the finals before facing his opponent from Colorado.

match and I envisioned in my head what I'd be like," Williams said of his match. "The second round I kicked him in the head twice (good for two points each) and got a huge lead and was able to finish him off."

What the 6-foot-1, 165-pound Williams enjoys most about taekwondo is the individual pursuit.

"It's not a team sport, when you go to a tourney it's one-on-one," he said. "It's about yourself and all the work you put in. You have that sense of determination and you want it more than someone else.

Money would be used mostly to buy nonessential equipment and uniform needs, although Tomasaitis said he would like to buy a new water-supply system for the upcoming season.

"She went out way too fast most comfortable thing in the world to do," said Olm. "A lot of swimmers think about how they're going to feel when their race is over and it affects their performance. Two-and-a-halfhour practices can seem like an eternity.

"Great swimmers like Allison are able to live in the moment — they don't think about how much they're going to hurt or how much longer they have to go."

Olm remembered a 1,650meter event Schmitt raced in a few years ago that typified her world-class competitiveness.

the first three or four minutes," the highly respected coach recalled. "She was real close to her personal bests over the first 200 and 500 meters, so she had a pretty good lead, but I'm thinking, 'She's not going to have enough at the end to finish.

"Well, toward the end of the race, another one of our swimmers - who was in the lane next to Allison — was getting close to catching her. But Allison saw her out of the corner of her eye and refused to let herself get passed - even though she was very, very tired. She ended up winning the race, which was pretty amazing considering how fast she went out."

Olm forecasted great things from Schmitt - not just over the next three weeks, but for the next several years.

"I don't want to put any pressure on Allison, but with her talent and work ethic, I think she's going to be a worldrecord holder someday," he predicted. "I could see her going 1:53 or 1:54 in the 200 and doing great things in the 400, too.

"And I don't think her ability has caught up to her body yet. Once it does, she could be doing things similar to what Michael Phelps is doing on the men's side."

Which means those basic swimming lessons she took 12 years ago have more than paid off.

Marshals enjoy time at Oakland Hills Country Club

BY MARTY BUDNER O&E STAFF WRITER

Paul Zimmerman and Len Tosto are marshals this week on hole No. 8 at Oakland Hills Country Club for the 90th PGA Championship. It's a job they anxiously anticipated.

Security at that hole is the responsibility of Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville where Zimmerman was a two-term president and seven-year board member.

Zimmerman is captain of the eighth hole and responsible for securing the long and challenging 491-yard, par-4 layout. His job is to oversee the 70-some volunteer marshals and deal with any other problems that happen to arise during the weeklong tournament that began with Monday's practice rounds and concludes with Sunday's championship final.

While it is a tough task, the 62-year-old Northville resident is an experienced attendant as he served in that same capacity for the 2004 Ryder Cup at Oakland Hills.

"On days like this it's more relaxing and fun, but when you get to Saturday and Sunday it's like you're so busy it's hard to relax and enjoy what's taking place," said Zimmerman, who was dressed appropriately in a red shirt and PGA hat on Monday.

Former Meadowbrook Country Club president Paul Zimmerman (left) is serving as a marshal captain on the eighth hole at Oakland Hills Country Club for this week's 90th PGA Championship.

"There are times when some very interesting things take place. I can remember one of the European players — Colin Montgomerie — let a spectator come out and putt during a practice round on the seventh green, and he actually made a pretty good putt. The crowd really enjoyed it.

"It was just interesting how there was a lot more inter-play between the spectators and the Europeans than there was with the Americans and the crowd at the Ryder Cup," he said. "It was almost like the Europeans won the American spectators over. As the day went on they were talking to the crowds and enjoying the crowds, while for the Americans it seemed like it was all business." Zimmerman, whose son, Jeff, was a captain on the Orchard Lake St. Mary's golf team and whose daughter, Julie, was a captain of the Mercy High School tennis team, figures to enjoy the PGA as much as he liked the Ryder Cup.

"Another major event like the PGA and being this close to home and at Oakland Hills, I figured why not come out and partake one more time?" he said. "Both myself and Mike Wick, who is the other hole captain, we share responsibility. We both did it for the Ryder Cup so we decided let's work together again and do this one and it should be easier since we were fairly well-trained at it and we knew what we were doing.

"Basically we have over 70 marshals who are assigned three different shifts and we have to coordinate their activities between shifts," he said. "And we move them around the course so they get exposure to all parts of the course and we have to track their hours so that we can relieve them when they need relief. Basically we coordinate all their activity."

Meanwhile, Tosto, a Bloomfield Hills resident who is working for Zimmerman, is making his marshal debut. The 44-year-old Forest Lake Country Club member said on Monday that he decided to put in his 15 hours at the beginning of the week.

"Obviously it's a chance to get a lot closer to the pros and stand within feet of where they are at and watch their swing and watch what they do," said Tosto, who lives just three miles from the internationally renowned course. "I had hoped to see Tiger, but that's not going to happen.

"My job is to just rotate from spot to spot, and most of it is crowd control to see that the people stay outside of the ropes," he said. "And if the ball is outside the ropes we have to make sure there is enough room around the player and make sure he has enough space to swing."

What does he plan to do the rest of the week? He hopes to take some of that knowledge he gained from watching the pros Up North where he and a few friends will gather for some golf of their own.

"I chose the practice rounds because every year I have seven buddies who I do a golf trip with and this was the week," he said. "But this is a neat experience. It's not an extremely difficult job, especially for these early rounds, but it will pick up by the weekend and it will be fun. It's interesting to study the pros."

Revival to inspire Christians of all denominations CALENDAR

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN O&E STAFF WRITER

Pastor Jonathan Allen likes to compare the browning of the grass at this time of year to waning spiritualism in the church and community. The good news is that like dormant lawns which only look dead, Christian faith can be revived – although it takes more than water to restore enthusiasm for the Lord.

For four days, Aug. 10-13, Allen is holding inspirational Revival services at Community Baptist Church in Garden City complete with evangelist speaker J. Curtis Goldman and a praise band.

Allen began attending revivals long before he became pastor of the church in 1980. His father James B. Allen regularly held revivals from the time he became pastor of the church in 1945.

"We pray and ask the Lord to renew our spiritual life," said Allen, who leads the congregation of about 100 members. "It's a concentrated time to bring that renewal of spiritual life. The purpose is to try to send that refreshing rain of spiritual revival to the church and reach out to the community. We're praying for a real revival of God's spirt and a demonstration of his power and presence."

Years ago Allen said many revivals started as prayer meetings. Rev. George Whitefield, an English evangelist, is credited with bringing preaching to the masses outdoors in the American colonies in 1740. He was part of the second wave of religious revival known as the Great Awakening that took place from 1730 to 1745 and extended from Maine to Georgia.

Community Baptist Church's special services will be held indoors, last about $1 \frac{1}{2}$ hours and are open to the public. Allen says real revival isn't denominational but affects everyone in a city.

"We heard stories about the early part of our nation when churches were on dirt floors, few people attended,' said Allen. "Whenever God worked and moved spirituality blossomed. That's when a whole city could be changed. The Great Awakening Revival, which was one of the first ones, church attendance went up. There were less crimes. Teens quit using foul language. I think revival changes people. "Revival was pretty common in the South. When an evangelist came to town, everyone went. Revivals stir up that spirit of getting to know Jesus Christ as your savior, to encourage growth and live a Christian life."

The goal, says Allen, is to concentrate people's attention for four days and hope the inspiration builds.

"We try to get a revival of our members and others to come too. We encourage people to come all four days," said Allen. "Anyone who wants to come is welcome. People get blessed and express themselves. Baptists have been known to say a few Amens and Hallelujahs."

Goldman is making a return appearance at Community Baptist Church. He first preached there in the 1950s. Goldman and Allen's father went to Bible college together. The younger Allen renewed the friendship when he saw Goldman at a fellowship meeting in Texas.

Goldman established Temple Baptist Church in Albuquerque, N.M. in 1953. He retired as pastor in 2003. A World War II Glider Pilot, the 85-year-old Goldman has written a book, Silent Warrior. "I wrote to him two his 3-wheel bike racing a little boy on his block," said Allen.

"He was winning when the boy's bike nudged his back tire and he went tumbling over but never broke a

Rams sweep Sharkey's in Johnstown tuneup

In their final tuneup before heading to the AAABA Nationals, the 20-and-under Michigan Rams improved to 28-10 overall by sweeping an exhibition double-header Sunday from host Sharkey's of Flint at Mott Community College.

Three pitchers – Derek Mosher, Colin O'Connell and Tom Whiting – combined on a four-hit shutout in the opener, a 5-0 triumph over the unlimited-age National Amateur Baseball Federation district champion.

Mosher, the starter, hurled three hitless innings, allowing just a pair of walks while fanning four. O'Connell came on and kept Sharkey's off the board during the next three innings to pick up the victory. He gave up two hits, struck out five and did not allow a walk before Whiting came on in the seventh to preserve the shutout, allowing two hits while fanning two.

Offensively, Josh Kirsten paced the Rams going 3-for-4, including a triple and two RBI. Aaron Wick also added a pair of hits, while Mosher, Tim Cross and Matt Tuttle (Livonia Stevenson/Adrian College) each knocked in a run. Luke Davis, the losing pitcher, gave up two runs on eight hits and two walks in five innings. Reliever Erik House allowed three runs on three hits and a walk.

In the nightcap, Kirsten went 3-for-3 with two RBI and three runs scored in the Rams' 6-4 triumph.

Everybody needs neighbors: Study shows surroundings aid kids in staying on right path

BY JULIE BROWN O&E STAFF WRITER

New research shows that urban middle school students who felt safe in their neighborhoods were better able to resist instant gratification, and in turn engaged in fewer violent and other risky behaviors.

In a study, researchers from the University of Michigan School of Public Health surveyed students in two Flint middle schools. Researchers assessed positive and negative neighborhood experiences, time perspective, and tendencies for violence and property crimes.

Those who work locally with atrisk youth agree with the study's findings.

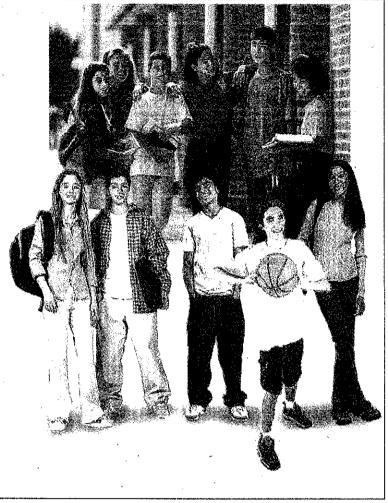

"It's really true," said Dale Yagiela, executive director of Plymouthbased Growth Works, which focuses on such areas as court intervention and substance abuse among young people. Yagiela cited other research on the "Community That Cares" approach out of the University of Washington which looks at risk and resiliency factors.

"One of the factors they look at is stability in a neighborhood," said Yagiela, a Novi resident. For about 30 years in juvenile justice the "control bond theory" has indicated that if kids have a connection to conventional social values, and involvement in things that matter like school and family, it helps keep them on track.

"When you provide those things for kids they do pretty well," Yagiela said. "The more stable a community, the higher probability kids will be successful."

He's concerned about less state shared revenue funding to cities to address juvenile justice.

"I really think it's put a tremendous burden on local governments." Yagiela did a presentation to the Conference of Western Wayne earlier this year, and noted: "Even during these difficult times, there's a lot going on" to help kids.

'When you provide those things for kids they do pretty well. The more stable a community, the higher probability kids will be successful.' DALE YAGIELA, Growth Works communities are important to kids' well-being.

Agreeing is Natalie Marchione, a licensed master social worker with Oakland Family Services, a private human service agency serving Oakland County and southeastern Michigan. "It makes absolute sense," the Royal Oak resident said supervision is an issue. With peers, there are issues of drug use and availability vs. academic competence. The community weighs in, too, with poverty factors and others.

"It holds true for preventing pretty much any kind of at-risk behavior," said Marchione of those factors related to substance abuse. Having neighbors you know and trust and a safe place to go matter. "The afterschool time is the highest risk factor" for middle school, she said.

"In the safer neighborhoods, you're going to get more adult interest," Lynd added. Marchione noted the factor of parents being a home, an issue with workplace demands. Kids can learn "to say no but also working on social competencies like accepting diversity and learning to get along with peers." The ability to delay gratification is thought to have a large impact on an individual's life, including psychological health and economic success, the U-M researchers noted. This study showed that youth who felt safe and experienced fewer negative neighborhood events were less likely to engage in violent and destructive behavior. This relationship hinged, however, on the sense that good things come to those who are patient and make an effort even if they do not benefit right away. "It is not just that people imitate the environment around them."

said Daniel Kruger, research scientist in the U-M School of Public Health and lead author of the study. "Neighborhood social experiences actually change one's psychology, and this influences their behavioral patterns." If youths feel that their environment is too unsafe to expect their efforts to pay off far in the future, they will look for instant gratification.

Neighborhood interventions that provide a greater feeling of safety and stability could reduce risky and destructive behaviors and lead to a sustainable healthy environment.

The researchers measured whether youths felt safe in their neighborhood, whether they saw the people in their neighborhood being helpful with each other or fighting with each other, whether or fighting with each other, whether they had been threatened or harassed, or had been the victim of a theft. The youths also reported whether they had been involved in fights or carried a weapon, and whether they had perpetrated a theft, trespassing, arson, or purposeful damage of school property.

Kids who delayed gratification were 40 percent less likely to be in a fight. Those who were focused more on short-term rewards were three times as likely to carry a weapon and six times as likely to commit arson and intentionally damage school property.

The study appears in a recent issue of the Journal of Social, Evolutionary, and Cultural Psychology. Co-authors are Thomas Reischl and Marc A. Zimmerman, both of the U-M School of Public Health.

The University of Michigan School of Public Health has been working to promote health and prevent disease since 1941, and is consistently ranked among the top five schools in the country. Faculty and students in the school's five academic departments and dozens of collaborative centers and institutes are forging new solutions to the

Licensed builders must prove skills

Q: I understand that there is a new law in Michigan with respect to licensing of builders.

A: Simply stated, licensed builders and maintenance and alteration contractors are now required to show evidence of "continuing competency" in order to maintain their license. Continuing competency is different from continuing education. While taking approved courses or participating in distance learning are two ways of showing continuing competency, that will not be the only way. Licensees can also show continuing competency through comprehensive testing and participating in mentoring programs, participation in international council code hearings, publication of articles in a trade journal or regional magazine, and serving as a lecturer or discussion leader in an approved educational course. The Department of Labor and Economic Growth will also be approving other activities licensees can use to fulfill their continuing competency requirements. There are also requirements for additional education for a period of years. Also, an employee of a licensed residential builder or contractor that earns a salary, wage, fee, or percentage, or commission, and who as part of their regular job solicits sales, must be licensed as a builder or salesperson. This requirement also applies to staff and home centers that sell product and contract for its installation. A salesperson may be licensed and an employee of only one residential builder, or maintenance or alteration contractor, and an application for a salesperson's license must be submitted by the employing residential builder or residential maintenance or alteration contractor.

"It's consistent with what all the other data supports," Yagiela said of the recent U-M research. The Hawkins/Catalano studies from the University of Washington emphasize attachment, commitment, involvement and belief. "It's about the morality of law, that there's right and wrong," Yagiela said of belief.

Attachment is "really being connected to family and school." The Washington researchers' youth survey is used in Michigan to obtain federal money for delinquency prevention. It helps figure out where to put social investments "so you can strengthen the community," Yagiela said, adding safe, secure of the U-M research. "Certainly, it matches with all the prevention research."

She and colleague Kathleen Lynd, also a licensed master social worker and vice president of planning and communications for OFS, cited protective and risk factors. "Children do respond in positive ways," said Marchione.

There are developmental assets across boundaries, said West Bloomfield resident Lynd, including neighbors taking responsibility for monitoring young people's behavior.

Marchione cited such factors for the individual as early aggressive behavior vs. better impulse control; for the family, lack of parental complex health challenges of today, including chronic disease, health care quality and finance, emerging genetic technologies, climate change, socioeconomic inequalities and their impact on health, infectious disease, and the globalization of health. Whether making new discoveries in the lab or researching and educating in the field, faculty, students, and alumni are deployed around the globe to promote and protect our health.

Q: We have a declaration that gives the board authority to govern common areas and to suspend a member's golf privileges even though there is no explicit reference to the golf course in the declaration. Do we have a basis to do so?

A: It depends on your documents, but in a similar case, an appellate court found that the association had broad authority to properly enforce rules and regulations covering the use and enjoyment of the common areas. The court took judicial notice of the fact that the co-owner in question's conduct was inherently dangerous and could have subjected the association to liability if a third person were hurt by a golfer's actions, which include a list of bad conduct. The court found that it depends on the documents and in your situation I would suggest that you consult with a community association attorney to review your documents.

Birmingham Showcase

Weir Manuel associate broker Rebecca Meisner has been chosen by Wellington Chase Homes to list the Birmingham Showhouse, a new home of exceptional architecture and design. Proceeds from the sale of the home will go to the Barbara Karmanos Cancer Institute. Wellington Chase Homes and Swanson Meads Architecture collaborated to create this special Birmingham residence. It is one of the most distinctive homes ever offered in its price range ($1,395,000). This concept features a family-centered floor plan emphasizing "quality" - rather than "quantity"

- of space, and reflects a woman's perspective. For example, there is a multipurpose room adjacent to the kitchen that can be a children's study for homework in the afternoon and be converted to a large staging area for dinner parties during the evening. There are also special rooms for his and her quiet time.

"We are pleased to be involved with the marketing and sale of this special home." said Kelly Sweeney, owner and CEO of Weir Manuel. "Everyone involved in this project has gone above and beyond to make this endeavor a huge success for Karmanos. The new owner will be getting a wonderful home that could not be duplicated at this price." This environmentally friendly home contains all of the quality appointments for which Wellington Chase has become known. The Michigan Design Center used a neutral palette, which emphasizes architectural features such as soaring ten-foot coffered ceilings, substantial crown moldings and detailed millwork. This home offers many features and amenities normally found in much more expensive properties. A charity preview event is scheduled for Sept. 12 and will be open to the public during the following week.

Weir Manuel Realtors is a leading real estate company in southeast Michigan, with more than 150 professionals in three Michigan offices: Birmingham, West Bloomfield and Rochester. Its Web site, which includes "real-time" live assistance, is at www.weirmanuel.com.
