Local woman headed to D.C. to celebrate beginning of new era

BY KURT KUBAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Canton's Natalie Mosher, a politically active Democrat, was overjoyed last November when Barack Obama was elected president. She knew immediately that she wanted to part of history when Obama is sworn in as the 44th president Tuesday.

Unfortunately, she tried for months to get tickets to the swearing-in ceremony without any luck.

"I was told to contact my congressman, which I did, but was told those tickets were a hot commodity and they went very fast," Mosher said.

That didn't stop her quest to be part of the festivities.

Mosher, who is a selfemployed consultant for the nonprofit sector, was able to obtain tickets for the ritzy Michigan State Society's inaugural gala, which will take place Tuesday evening at the Smithsonian's Museum of African-American History. Most of the state's major political players are expected to attend, including both Republicans and Democrats. And she expects to get as close as she can to the swearing-in ceremony during the afternoon.

Mosher and her husband, Bob, along with her sister and brother-in-law, jumped in the car early Friday morning and headed to D.C. for what she is sure will be a major moment in America's history, as the first African-American president is sworn in.

"We just want to be there," she said. "I'm so excited to be going.'

The biggest problem for the Moshers was finding a place to stay. Before moving back to the area about four years ago, the couple, who have been married 42 years, recently lived in Alexandria, Va., which is close to Washington. They contacted an old neighbor, who told them the going rate for rooms during the inauguration is about $5,000 a night, but he would cut them a break by charging them $2,500.

Newest judge takes his place at 35th District Court

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Jim Plakas has practiced law as an attorney for 23 years, some of it in 35th District Court in Plymouth.

However, as he walked into familiar surroundings Jan. 2, Plakas underwent a lifechanging experience - his first day on the other side of the bench after being elected to be one of three judges who preside over the court.

"I put on my robe and walked into the courtroom ... it was such a surreal experience," Plakas, 41, said. "And when the day was done, I wanted more of it."

While attending several days at "judges school," Plakas learned the basics of his new iob.

"There was a long list of things never to do as a judge," Plakas said. "Everything we do is a reflection of every MacDonald reflects on long career, A5.

Plakas spent several days on the bench learning with MacDonald.

"I sat a lot next to Judge MacDonald during his final three weeks and he was a tremendous help," said Plakas. "He was very good at what he did and I learned a lot by his side. What I really noticed was how many of the attorneys wanted to thank him for his service and being so good at what he did. It hit home to observe that."

Plakas said he also spent many hours talking with 35th District Court Chief Judge Ron Lowe about what to expect. However, like anyone else starting a new job, there's a lot to learn.

Typically felony (preliminary) exams are more nervewracking because they're serious offenses ... and I had one my first day," Plakas said. ___en minutes later I had a walk-in arraignment. You definitely have to juggle a lot of balls at one time. "It was an out-of-body experience, everything sounded muffled," admitted Plakas about his first day on the bench. "It was a bit overwhelming, but there wasn't a second I was nervous. I said from day one this is what I want to do for the rest of my life."

Watch Obama inauguration on big screen with 450 friends

BY KURT KUBAN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Tickets to President-elect Barack Obama's swearingin ceremony Tuesday in the nation's capital are hard or next to impossible to come by. If you are among the disappointed people who would like to go but are unable to, Emagine Theater in Canton may be offering the next best thing. As part of a promotion by MSNBC and Screenvision, Emagine Canton will be showing MSNBC coverage of the inauguration live.

Ruth Daniels, vice president of sales and marketing, said the coverage will be shown in its largest theater, which seats 450 people.

"It will be a lot of fun. We're really excited," she said. Coverage of the event begins at 11 a.m. and runs through 3 p.m.

To obtain a ticket, you must log onto http://msnbcevents. com and enter your e-mail information, as well as the theater location. If you are awarded a ticket, you will receive an e-mail. Admission is free but is first come, first serve and tickets are no guarantee of admission.

Daniels has no idea how many people will attend the event, though she does expect some people to show up without tickets. She said the theater will try to accommodate everyone.

We've never done anything like this before, so we don't know what to expect," Daniels said. "But I know everyone is very excited and interested (about the inauguration). It could be a full house." Daniels said doors will

Dem's bill aims at auto sales hike

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

State Rep. Marc Corriveau (D-Northville) plans to re-introduce legislation he hopes will help boost Michigan's economy and improve the bottom line of auto manufacturers and their dealers, as well as save consumers money.

Corriveau's bill - originally introduced in April 2007 - could save consumers $100 million in sales tax.

For example, if a new car costs $20,000 and the dealer is giving the customer $10,000 for a trade-in, the 6-percent sales tax would only be paid on $10,000. Instead of paying $1,200 in sales tax for the new vehicle, the customer would only pay $600.

"It helps the consumer, dealer and manufacturer," said Corriveau, whose 20th House District includes a slice of east Canton along I-275, Plymouth and Plymouth Township. "Very rarely do you get to help all three segments. It's certreasury, but moving vehicles is our lifeline." According to some estimates, the state would take a $100 million hit in the budget. "Some things you can't afford to do," Corriveau said. "I'm looking for something to turn Michigan around. We can't sit on our hands and hope it will turn around on its own." Corriveau said he will introduce the legislation to the House Tax Committee as soon as committee chairs are positioned. At that point, there will be testimony on the legislation, followed - Corriveau hopes - by a vote to send the bill to the House floor.

Jim Schebil of Fox Hills Chrysler-Jeep in Plymouth Township said the legislation would put Michigan on par with most other states.

"We're one of the few states that has tax on the whole car and then you get nothing for your trade-in," Schebil said. "You've already paid sales tax on the trade-in. It would also help the auto dealers take in more trade-ins. You've got to stimulate the economy and put more money in people's hand, and this is a good way to do it."

In 2007, Corriveau's bill made it to the House floor, but that's as far as it got.

"There are a lot of hurdles to get over," Corriveau said. "If it passes the House, it goes to the Senate, where it starts all over.

"We have to do something to get people into the showrooms to buy cars," he added. "If we're not selling cars, that's a problem."

Asked if his bill was written to help sell cars from domestic automakers, Corriveau said, "I want to help people buy new cars in the state of Michigan. Let's keep it home and buy an Americanmade vehicle.'

State grant will help pay for bridges along Rouge trail

Instead, the Moshers leaned on their son, who owns a condo in D.C., not far away from the Mall area where Obama will be sworn in.

"He could have made a lot of money by renting out the condo, but he agreed to let us stay there. He is going to stay with a friend while we are in town. It really worked out perfect for us, because we can literally walk to the Capitol," she said.

In addition to being the association president at the Ravines of Canton subdivision, Mosher is very active in the community, helping out on food drives and coat drives, and she served on Canton's Board of Review until recently. She said she is very excited about an Obama presidency.

"I'm very optimistic, especially with the way he is engaging people from the grass-roots level. I'm impressed with his transparency and honesty," she said. "He's really reaching out. That's what I value in my life. He's going to govern in a much different way.'

The disconnected segments of a five-mile recreation trail in Canton Township will soon become one long stretch weaving throughout the township with the help of a $350,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The grant was awarded last month and - along with $200,000 from Canton Township - will be used to construct five bridges and a number of wayfinding signs on the Lower Rouge River Recreation Trail. It will transform the walking, running, mountain biking and cross country skiing trail into an unbroken link from Canton Center Road to I-275.

The first phase of the project opened last summer with a trail head on Morton Taylor Road, north of Michigan Avenue, and a trail that stretches about 1.5 miles.

"What is accessible now, without any of the bridges, is about two miles," said Leisure Services Director Ann Conklin. "These bridges will make it all connect to about five miles.

"We did a citizens survey in 2004 and the number one thing on the list were trails and walking paths," added Conklin. "It's been a combination of public and private partnerships, people work-

Recall supporters press case with state over WW district policy

BY DARRELL CLEM OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Www.hometownlife.com

Two recall supporters who claim local officials improperly blocked their effort to circulate petitions on Election Day have ratcheted up their pleas for state intervention.

The latest developments come after a signature-gathering attempt has stalled and as recall supporters indicate they may try to renew their efforts, even if they have to start the process over.

While some earlier recall organizers have pulled away from the public spotlight, Donna DeWitt and Judy McKinney have continued their fight against what they perceive as an injustice waged by local officials.

DeWitt, McKinney and others had hoped to recall Mayor William Wild and Westland City Council members James Godbout, Bill Johnson, Michael Kehrer and Dewey Reeves for supporting a controversial senior citizen village, including a threestory apartment building, that 'a developer hopes to build in a neighborhood of single family homes on Joy east of Newburgh.

However, recall supporters said their effort was thwarted by a Wayne-Westland school district policy that prohibited them from going onto school property on Election Day to collect signatures on their petitions.

Charlotte Sherman, district deputy superintendent, said Wayne-Westland has long had a policy to block political activity on school property, except for people who want to campaign on Election Day for issues actually on the ballot. By state law, any literature has to be distributed beyond 100 feet of any polling place. Sherman said a district lawyer contacted the state Attorney General's Office in 2000, amid an earlier city recall effort, and was told that Lansing officials "did not have a problem with the policy at that time."

On Thursday, she said, "As of now, we have received nothing in writing contrary to the direction we received in 2000."

Still. Sherman confirmed that the district has sent documents to the state to get the issue clarified once again, but no word had come late in the week.

DeWitt and McKinney have criticized city officials, such as Clerk Eileen DeHart, for advising them prior to last Election Day not to circulate petitions on school property because of the Wayne-Westland policy. DeHart has said she simply was reiterating the policy and that she didn't set it.

DeWitt wrote a post-election letter to the Secretary of State Office inquiring about the district policy. In response, Bradley Wittman, director of the election liaison division, wrote in part that on Election Day, "there is nothing to prevent an individual from collecting signatures on a recall petition outside of the polls as long as the individual remains at least 100 feet from the doorway being used by voters to enter the building in which the polling place is located."

However, Sherman said it has been the district's understanding that local officials can establish more restrictive policies requiring that petitions be circulated only on public sidewalks near school property. She said the state has been given district documents so the issue can be reviewed.

Meanwhile, McKinney has suggested that if the district's policy is ruled improper, the city should move its polling places away from the schools unless the policy is changed. City officials have indicated that moving the polling places would be a monumental task that would confuse many voters and potentially disrupt the election process.

CARING FOR YOUR KNEES IN WINTER

Your knees in winter are like your furnace heater. If a breakdown is likely to occur, it will come when the weather is at its worst, when the knee, like the furnace, is under the most stain.

At this time of year, the best way to protect knees is to wear the best possible gear for your feet. The greatest threat to your knees is a slip and/or a fall. A sudden change in footing can cause a torque that strains knee ligaments and menisci, or results in a fall that can cause a knee bone bruise or fracture. While it is not always possible to stay indoors in bad weather, it is possible, even necessary, that if you venture outside, you wear proper shoes or boots. Your footwear should give you maximum traction up and down slippery steps or unexpected patches of ice, and keep our toes warm if you may be outside for an extended time.

You should use upmost caution in your initial steps outside. No matter how great the need to hurry, take the first steps slowly. Give both your feet and your face the chance to become acclimated to wind and freezing temperature. If you have knee arthritis and know those joints are less than best for an unexpected turn of slip, start out with a cane. To ensure solid support, be sure the cane has a large rubber tip, or even better, is a four prong cane.

In sum, the best way to care for your knees in winter is to look after your feet. www.drjjweiss.yourmå.com

Circuit City closing – another loss for Westland

BY DARRELL CLEM OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Westland's core shopping district was dealt another economic blow Friday as beleaguered electronics retailer Circuit City Inc. announced it has asked for court approval to close its remaining 567 U.S. stores, which employ about 34,000 workers.

"It's very unfortunate, and it's totally out of our control," Westland Economic Development Director Lori Fodale said. "Obviously, we're saddened by a corporation failing, but we're going to work very hard to find a new tenant for that location.'

Westland's store, on Warren east of Central City Parkway, had weathered earlier Circuit City problems and had become an area corporate headquarters. Amid an economic meltdown facing many retailers, however, acting company CEO James Marcúm said in a statement Friday that "we were unable to reach an agreement with our creditors" to avoid closing down, though "we are extremely disappointed by this outcome." An employee of the Westland store said Friday that an expected closing date wasn't yet known. Barring a sudden shift, the nation's second-largest consumer electronics chain is expected to start selling off its merchandise after failing to find a buyer or secure a refinancing plan.

"It's not insignificant (for the Westland retail district)," City Council President James Godbout said. "We, like many other communities, are going to be facing these severe economic realities. With the economy in the state it's in, we're just going to have to work through it."

"It's unfortunate that Circuit City is a casualty of these economic times. But we can't go around like the sky is falling," Godbout added. "It's an unfortunate part in the economic swing. It has happened before, although it hasn't been this severe in a long time. We've always come out of it in the past, and we'll come out of it again.

Circuit City's closing would only add to a growing list of vacancies in the heart of Westland's retail district, including its onetime next-door neighbor Cost Plus World Market, as well as Value City Department Store, Sam's Club, the old Best Buy building, Service Merchandise and, more recently, Fan Zone in Westland Shopping Center.

Westland also has lost both of its movie theaters, although officials remain optimistic that a state-of-theart fitness facility will be built on the site of the shuttered Quo Vadis near Wayne and Warren.

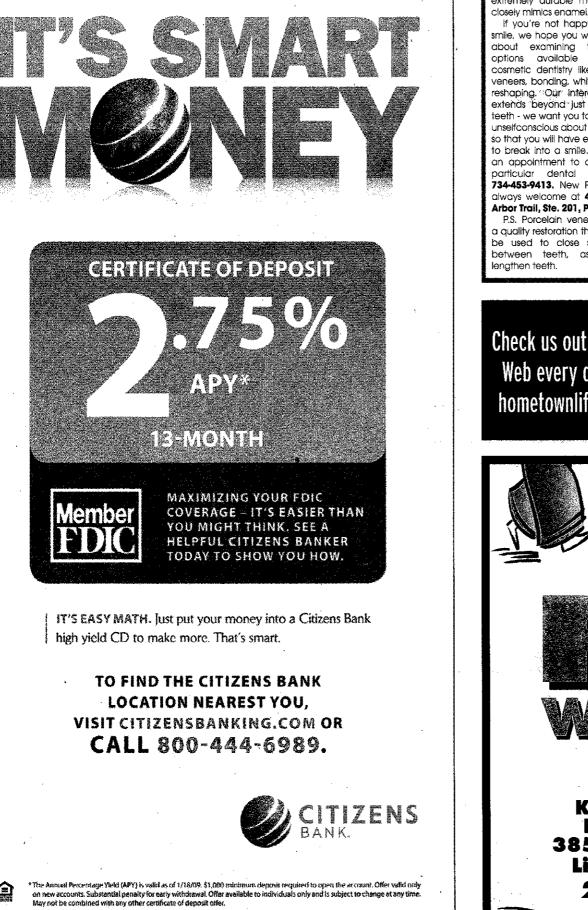

Moreover, consumers still will have a major electronics store in Westland with the newer Best Buy, located at Wayne and Central City Parkway.

GEMS boosts girls' interest in math, science

Kahan tips her hat to the

BY JULIE BROWN OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If you've got a daughter interested in a math/science career, be sure to mark Saturday, March 21, on your calendar.

That's the day the Plymouth-Canton and Livonia school districts will present the Girls Excel in Math and Science (GEMS) Conference for fifth-through eighth-graders, 7:45 a.m. to noon at Plymouth High School.

"It's a marvelous day to see all those parents and their girls," said Janet Kahan, K-12 math and science coordinator for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. "We get great evaluations."

This is the 13th GEMS Conference, although it's now done every other year, Kahan said, so it dates back some 20 years. Kahan and other organizers are heartened to see how concerned parents are about daughters' futures. "It's a different era than when I grew up," she said. You can download the registration form at www.pccs.k12. mi.us. Information is on the Livonia district Web site at www. livonia.k12.mi.us as well, and

More young women now take Advanced Placement higher math like pre-calculus and calculus, as well as probability and statistics. Their numbers are higher in honors biology and physics, but educators remain concerned.

"There's still a concern that girls are not equally represented." Middle school years are critical for girls making decisions, so educators hope to expose them to a variety of rewarding careers.

"We may help them keep those doors open longer," she said.

Keynote speaker March 21 will be Jennifer Aurandt, an assistant professor of biochemistry at Kettering University in Flint. She's younger, and GEMS organizers hope to show girls that having a family and career can work.

'We've been trying to move it around the community," said Kahan, citing past keynoters such as a General Motors vice president and Lear auto supplier staffer.

The conference, for which girls will register with a parent, will include breakfast followed by choices of two 50-minute sessions. Those range from the water cycle to managing a cougar population to forensics.

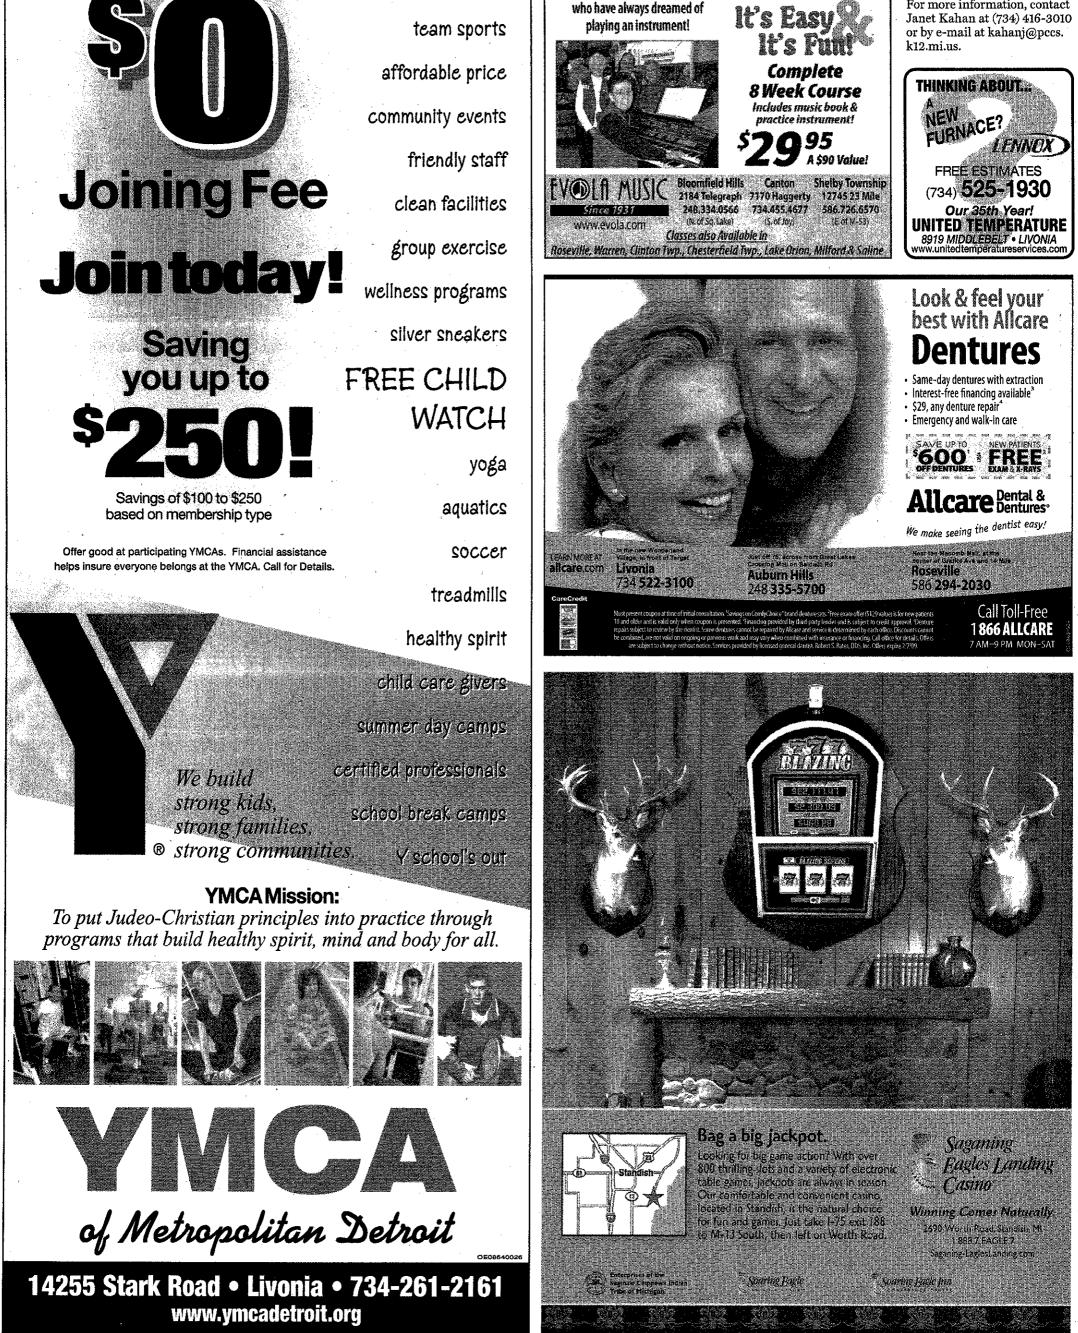

"The girls and their parents get to make choices when they register," she said. The fee is $20 per pair (girl and parent), waived if the girl is getting free or reduced price school lunches.

The day will feature the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park high school Robotics Team, with GEMS girls taking turns driving robots. That will be followed by two role model sessions, with such professions as engineer, physician, museum curator and math teacher.

There will be a panel of University of Michigan undergraduate women in science and engineering for the role model sessions.

Last year, 160 students signed up. "We're hoping to do as well or better," said Kahan, who appreciates the LPS cosponsorship again this year. Teachers from Livonia are also offering role model sessions."

Boys can attend, as can students from nonpublic and other area school districts. For more information, contact Janet Kahan at (734) 416-3010 or by e-mail at kahanj@pccs. k12.mi.us.

Retired judge reflects upon long career on bench

BY TONY BRUSCATO OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Www.hometownlife.com

After presiding on the bench in Plymouth's 35th District Court for nearly a quarter century, former Judge John MacDonald has to learn a new job retirement.

"After 24 years I don't have to get up and go to work," said MacDonald, 74, whose term ended Dec. 31. "I'm trying to reorganize a home office, and there are lots of other things that need to be done.

"What I'll miss most is the relationships with the lawyers and staff... and you won't find anything nicer than 35th District Court. It was a nice atmosphere to work in," he added. "But, you knew it was coming because judge's are age limited."

Judges must retire at age 70, or afterward when their term expires. MacDonald said he wouldn't mind seeing the age restriction changed.

"I think in light of the fact people are living longer and healthier we could easily change it to 75," said MacDonald. "But, it's in the state constitution and it would take a lot to change it. However, there is some merit in getting new faces and ideas into the court system.

The mandatory retirement age isn't restricting MacDonald from working when he wants.

"I've sat as a visiting judge in Berkley for a few days," he said. "Am I really ready to go back to work? I just may do some more of that.'

A STATE OF A

Whether to buy or lease a car depends on your situation

Q: Dear Rick: With the auto show in town and the car companies needing all the help they can get, I decided to buy a new car. What factors should I consider in deciding whether to buy or to lease a car?

A: I think what you are doing is great, and I hope more people around the country decide to buy cars from the "Big Three."

The decision whether to buy or lease a car is based upon two major factors how long you plan to own your car and how many miles you drive on an annual basis.

My general rule is if you plan to buy a new car every three years or less, leasing is the way to go. If you plan keep the car for more than four years, buying it makes more sense.

If you drive more than 15,000-18,000 miles a year, leasing generally becomes too expensive for most people.

If you decide to buy a car, the next issue is whether to pay cash or to finance the purchase. Considering interest rates and tax consequences (unless you can get inexpensive financing, generally under 3 percent) I recommend paying cash for the car. However, if you don't have cash available then you would have to obtain financing.

Whether you buy or lease it, it is important to shop around and get the best deal possible not only on price but financing options. One of the mistakes people make when they lease is they assume they can't receive competitive bids. This is not the case. Not only can you shop the car at different dealerships, but there also are other institutions such as credit unions that do leasing.

In shopping for leased cars, it is important to consider monthly payments as well as other terms of the agreement such as security deposits, early termination fees and excess mile charges.

Many people do not understand that leasing a car is simply renting that automobile for a period of time. The

Money Matters

lease payment is the depreciation on the vehicle. Because you are leasing the car for a set period of time, you are able to drive a more expensive car for a lower price. In fact, that is one of the main advantages of leasing. However, leasing does offer other advantages such as driving newer automobiles and not having to worry about reselling a used car.

Purchasing a car also has its advantages such as the car belongs to you and, thus, when you decide to sell the car, you will get some of your money back. In addition, you can lower your cost of driving by extending the length of time you own your car.

I am often asked which is better, buying or leasing. There is no correct answer. The key is what is best for an individual situation. My advice is that prior to obtaining a car you should know how it will be purchased before you visit the dealerships. Knowing how you will finance the purchase prior to even looking at the automobile itself will help you focus on making the right decision.

Plymouth icers power past Canton, 7-3

BY ED WRIGHT OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Thirty minutes of powerful play by the Plymouth hockey team nearly got wiped out by the granddaddy of all power plays Friday night at the Arctic Edge Arena.

The Wildcats surged to a 5-0 lead against state-ranked and once-beaten Canton before the Chiefs took advantage of a late second period five-minute major penalty to storm back to within 5-3.

In the end, the Wildcats managed to regain their composure and post a 7-3 triumph — and learn some valuable lessons along the

"If you give a good team like Canton a five-minute power-play because of a bad penalty, they're going to make you pay," said Plymouth coach Paul Fassbender. "We have a good team, but we're young and we're prone to mental lapses like we had tonight. Hopefully, we learned from it."

The win improved Plymouth's record to 9-5-1. Canton dropped to 10-2-1.

The Wildcats have now defeated. two top 10 teams and lost 1-0 to a third (Northville).

The Wildcats led 2-0 after one period thanks to Tyler Sanders' short-handed net-finder from Ryan Renault and Renault's powerplay goal that was assisted by Pat Smiatacz and Chris Merrill.

Plymouth built a seemingly insurmountable cushion with three second-period goals from John Deal (from John Maurer and Mitch Martin). Taylor Currier (from Deal and Martin) and Smiatacz, who was assisted by Renault and Ryan Cigile.

But Canton answered with a trio of power-play goals during the opening moments of the third stanza.

The first came from Donny Barlow, who was assisted by Bryan Davison.

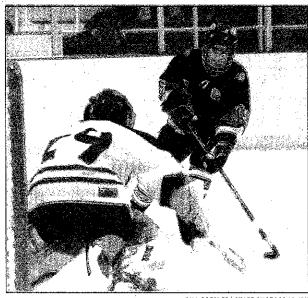

Canton's Nick Tomilenko then revived the Chiefs with back-toback goals, the second of which came with a five-on-three advantage.

Mark Barath assisted on Tomilenko's first goal while Barlow and A.J. Rosales picked up helpers on his second.

Just as the contest's momentum started taking on a red tint, the pendulum swung back toward the Wildcats thanks to thirdperiod goals from Kyle Callahan (from Zach Gambrell) and Evan Swieczkowski, who was assisted by Sanders.

Cliff Notes Wildcats pass Salem test on Buttermore's 22

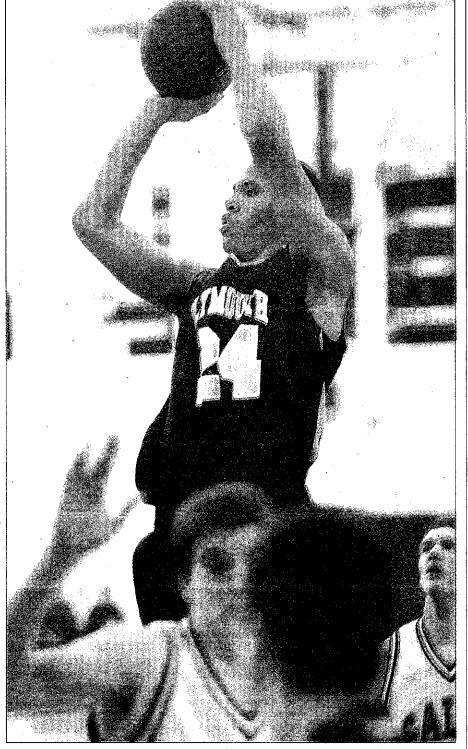

BY ED WRIGHT OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

At least one thing is certain in the wake of Cliff Buttermore's one-year hiatus from high school basketball: He hasn't lost his touch.

The senior guard, whose shooting stroke is as smooth as his last name, exploded for 22 points -15 the result of five beyond-the-arc bombs - to lead Plymouth to a 54-45 road victory over Salem.

Buttermore didn't play last year, but you never would have guessed it by the display he put on Friday night in the Rocks' gym.

"Cliff had a great outside shot when he played for our junior varsity team in tenth grade," remembered Plymouth coach Tom Van Canton connected on just 5 of 17 free throws, an issue that was magnified by the Wildcats' 8-for-11 night at the line.

Novi never trailed after building a 15-6 first-quarter lead. Canton trimmed its deficit to 30-26 at the intermission, but Novi padded its cushion to 46-39 with eight minutes to play.

Sophomore guard Dietrich Lever paced the Chiefs with 15 points. Kyle Biega added 10 and Kevin Weisz chipped in with nine. Kierre Daniels had a productive night off the bench, tallying seven points and a teamhigh nine rebounds.

Canton couldn't contain Novi's Chris Bellamy, who poured in 26 points.

Goodbye, purrr-fection 'Cats knock Chiefs from unbeaten ranks

Canton's impressive string of season-opening victories was finally snapped Friday night by the steady hand of Novi's Caroline Johnson.

Johnson scored nine of her team-high 11 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Wildcats to a 37-33 triumph in Canton's Phase III gymnasium.

Novi improved to 5-3 while the Chiefs fell to 7-1.

"The kids battled and played hard," said Canton coach Brian Samulski. "We took the lead with five minutes to go and they stayed in their two-three zone. Looking back, I probably should have forced them to come out of their zone, but I didn't.

"Our zone attack wasn't great tonight, which is my fault.

That's something we need to work on more in practice." Sara Schmitt led Canton with 10 points. Kari Schmitt added nine points and nine rebounds, and CarolAnn Sexauer contributed six points and six boards.

The game was deadlocked at 7-all after one quarter before the Wildcats seized a 20-17 halftime lead.

Novi maintained a threepoint edge -26-23 – with eight minutes to play.

More than half the Chiefs' points came from the freethrow line, where they sank 17 of 25 attempts (68 percent). The Wildcats made 12 of 20 free throws.

"Novi has a solid team," Samulski said. "Hopefully we can learn something from this and move on."

Davis' heroics lift Rocks to 2-point victory

BY ED WRIGHT OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Carrying around the heavy burden of serious foul trouble for more than half a basketball game can make many players tentative and ineffective.

Thank goodness for Salem's girls basketball team Chelsea Davis isn't one of those players.

Despite getting whistled for her third foul midway through the first quarter and her fourth with 6:26 left in Friday night's cross-campus battle at Plymouth, Davis sparkled, netting a team high 15 points in the Rocks' 42-40 triumph.

The senior forward's biggest basket came with 18.1 seconds left when she calmly drained a 17-foot step-back jumper to break a 40-all deadlock.

Prep bowling feats

A couple of studentathletes are making names for themselves in the inaugural season of the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park's competitive bowling teams. Competing in a match against the Walled Lake schools earlier this month, Canton's Andrew Kline rolled a 300 game against Walled Lake Northern at Wonderland Lanes in Commerce.

Salem's Ryan Clark nearly matched the feat as he registered a 299.

and I hoped it went it," said Davis, reflecting on her game-winner. "I haven't been playing that well lately, so it felt good to make a big shot."

The victory was a much-needed one for the Rocks, who improved to 2-5 heading into the start of KLAA Central Division play next week

The Wildcats, who led by seven early in the final quarter, dropped to 2-6. Half of their setbacks have been last-minute heart-breakers.

"The girls are playing hard right down to the wire every game," said first-year Plymouth coach Ted Sturdivant. "That's what we're preaching and they've been very competitive. Our biggest problems tonight were the inability to defend Salem's pick-and-roll down the stretch and we didn't finish some of our good looks at the basket.'

Senior Victoria Brotz, Salem's most potent perimeter threat, tallied 11 points. Sara Stone contributed eight points and seven rebounds - the same number of boards Davis collected.

"I thought our defensive intensity in the second half was pretty doggone good," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, when asked about the keys to his team's win. "I thought we moved the ball better in the second half. too.

"This was a big victory for us. Hopefully, it gets us back on track."

Wildcats' attack with 14 points, 12 of which came in the first half when she led her team to a 25-21 lead.

Robinson brought the first-half curtain down in dramatic fashion when she beat the buzzer with a long triple - her third of the contest.

Plymouth's Shaakira Haywood was her usually productive self, adding nine points and eight rebounds while getting Davis in foul trouble with her motor'salways-running style of play.

"Before the game, I told myself, 'Don't get in foul trouble, don't get in foul trouble,' but it's hard not to against Shaakira because she's so athletic and spinning off you and stuff," said Davis.

Plymouth extended its advantage to 38-31 19 seconds into the fourth quarter, but Salem's defense clamped down and didn't allow one fourth-quarter field goal. The Rocks' comeback was ignited with 7:11 left when Brotz swished a pair of free throws. Twenty-six seconds later, Stone separated herself from a defender with a slick spin move near the free throw line then deposited a layup to make it 38-35. The Wildcats' final points of the night came with 6:26 to play when Haywood nailed to free throws to put her team ahead 40-35.

Salem knotted the game at 40-all on a Davis basket and free throw and a Brotz driving lefthanded layup with 1:09 to play.

After Plymouth missed the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity with 57.4 seconds remaining, Stone grabbed the rebound to set the stage for Davis's late heroics.

Haywood was fouled with fourth-tenths-of-a-second on the clock. Her first free throw hit the rim. Needing two point to tie, she banked the second one off the backboard in an effort to try a game-tying putback, but Salem was given possession because the ball did not hit the rim.

Salem was 17-of-46 from field (36.9 percent) and 7-of-10 from the free-throw line. Plymouth hit 12 of 31 field goals (38.7) and 12 of 17 from the charity stripe (70.5).

The future is bright for the Canton boys swimming and diving team as all but four members of last year's thirdplace division squad return for second-year head coach David Le.

"We're looking pretty good," said Le. "I expect us to do well and compete for the (KLAA South) division title. Hopefully, we can finish in the top three or four in the conference and have quite a few state qualifiers."

The Chiefs will be led by senior captains Richard Zhang, who has already qualified for the state meet in the 200 freestyle, Jordan Gorzalski, a freestyle specialist, and Eddie Koelzer, who can swim whatever event the team needs him to, Le said.

"We have three outstanding, hard-working captains," said Le. "Their hard work wears off on the rest of the team."

The remainder of the Chiefs' senior class consists of Matt Figlewicz, the team's top diver; Rick Peters, a sprinter: fouryear athlete Akhilesh Menawat, who excels in the freestyle events; diver Nick Austin and Alex Malilsky, a German foreign-exchange student.

Canton's top junior is Brandon Tolinski, who does his best work in the 200 freestyle, 100 freestyle and 100 butterfly races.

"Brandon works very hard in practice," raved Le. "His knowledge of swimming and what it takes to succeed has really improved the past couple of vears. He understands now that it's more than just swimming laps. He understands the technical aspects of the sport."

BOYS SWIMMING PREVIEWS

Among the team's top underclassmen are sophomore Chris Krebs, who swims the 200 free style, 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke; and fabulous freshmen Jay Jin, who "can swim everything," according to Le, and Victor Zhang, who has already joined his older brother, Richard, as a state-qualifier.

PLYMOUTH

The Wildcats feature solid depth in all strokes, said veteran coach Doug Schade.

We will be led by seniors Dan Stoscup, Paul Snyder and Kyle Dull," said Schade. "Junior who will make a significant impact will be Chris Wilson, Adam Wing, Ethan Weiner, Jack Gruczynski and Kyle Wilkenson.

Schade has high expectations for his sophomore class, which includes Ethan Christenson, Alex Juney, Peter Burns and Zack Koch.

"They should all score points for our team this season," Schade said of his 10th-graders.

We should compete for the South Division title and possibly return a couple of relays and individuals to the state meet," Schade concluded.

SALEM

The Rocks' youthful squad will be led by Adam Seroka, one of most-accomplished sophomores in the state.

The 10th-grader placed ninth in the 200 individual medley event at the 2008 Division 1 state meet as a freshman - and he's far from reached his potential, Salem coach Chuck Olson said.

"Adam is a hard worker and he has a lot of talent," said Olson. "I expect a lot more out of him this season. He's already made his state cuts in the 200 free, the 200 IM, and the 500 and 100 free."

The Rocks are loaded with talented underclassmen, but their roster is dotted with just three seniors: Joe deTassanyi, who has earned the role of captain along with Seroka and junior Alex Suriano; Dan Kuang, a freestyler, and diver Alex Porambo.

We had some good swims at the Rock Kilgore meet last week, but we still have a long way to go," said Olson. "We have a strong sophomore class and a few freshmen who can help us right away." Among the sophomores Olson is counting on are Matt Collingwood and Max Mills. The freshmen class is headed by Noah Santer, who is already earning points for the Rocks.

"(Matthew) Collingwood has qualified (for state) in the 500 free. We made him swim the 50 and 100 freestyles tonight - He hasn't qualified yet for the 200 freestyle and sprints aren't really his events, but we're working on his starts and coming off the walls." Stevenson, meanwhile, is the favorite to win the KLAA's Kensington Conference title this year, but the Spartans will face some stiff competition in their own (Central) division (the Central). Before joining the KLAA for the 2008-09 season, Stevenson won last year's final Western Lakes Activities Association meet. "Stevenson is still the clearcut favorite," Olson said. "Then Northville is the next best. And South Lyon (Unified) just defeated Novi, and had a good meet."

Stevenson rolled to a 117-69 dual-meet victory Thursday night over the host Rocks as senior Chris Behler figured in four first-place finishes.

Stevenson is now 3-2 overall after starting out the season with dual meet wins last month over Monroe and Beverly Hills Detroit Country Day before losing last week to the state's top-two ranked teams in Division 1, Ann Arbor Pioneer and Saline.

"I think we're on track - but we have good days and bad days," Shoemaker said. "We're ranked sixth in the state right now (in Division 1). I feel we can be top four, but we've got to prove it. Northville is our biggest adversary. We have a meet with them in three weeks (Thursday, Feb. 5 at home)."

Behler took firsts in the 50yard freestyle (23.44) and 100 butterfly (57.52).

He also anchored the firstplace 200 medley relay team (1:43.1), which also included Kellen Schoff, Joey Wingett and Michael Cruce.

Salem, despite slipping to 0-2 on the year, had some noteworthy performers led by returning state placer Adam Seroka, who captured the 200 individual medley (2:00.84) and 100 backstroke (56.57).

Max Mills took the 200 freestyle (1:57.54) and Noah Santer placed first in the 500 freestyle (5:03.57), each edging Stevenson's Daniel Schoff.

"They (Stevenson) were pretty nice to us tonight," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "We're just looking forward and we'll keep getting better. We just have to figure out who can do what and where."

Whalers chew up Barrie, 5-3

Plymouth Whalers head coach Mike Vellucci has waited two months to get his full lineup on the ice at one time. Friday night, he saw the full effect as the Whalers defeated Barrie, 5-3, in an Ontario Hockey League game played at Compuware Arena.

Plymouth's two-game winning streak pushed the Whalers' record to 20-19-4-0 and 14-8-2-0 since Vellucci returned behind the bench on Nov. 10. Plymouth moved into a tie with Erie (21-20-2-0) for sixth place in the tight Western Conference race. Plymouth and Erie both have 44 points, two points ahead of Owen Sound (16 - 17 - 6 - 4)

"I like our team — (in fact), I like it a lot," Vellucci said earlier this week. "We haven't had a healthy lineup for the last two months and the day I took over, (captain) Chris Terry had mononucleosis. So we had his injury and other injuries (Tyler G. Brown, Scott Fletcher) and other guys out of the lineup."

Terry - who also missed three weeks with a sprained shoulder - came back tonight and recorded a goal (team-leading 20th of the season) and two assists.

Matt Hackett stopped 30-of-33 shots and Ryan Hayes potted his 14th and 15th goals of the campaign.

Tyler Seguin added a goal and an assist and Kaine Geldart scored his ninth lamp-lighter for Plymouth.

threes in the second quarter. And we were limiting them to one shot.

"In the second half, we committed too many turnovers against their zone. We were shooting too quickly and we weren't making good decisions with the ball."

Plymouth seized the lead for good in the third quarter, outscoring its hosts 20-13 to claim a 41-39 edge. The Wildcats won the fourth stanza, 13-6.

Sophomore Justin Moss complemented Buttermore's perimeter fireworks with 12 interior points for the winners.

Van Wagoner also praised the play of Marquee Taylor, who contributed five points; Brad Lineberry, who added seven, and Brennen Beyer, who led all rebounders with 10.

Posler's 15 points and Mullins' 12 topped the Rocks' scoring ledger.

Plymouth connected on 13 of 19 free throws (68.4 percent). Salem knocked down 5 of 8 freebies (62.5).

over the first two periods. One of the primary catalysts of Plymouth's early lead was goalie Michael Justus, who turned in a spectacular effort between the pipes.

Zane Birchler started in goal for the Chiefs.

SALEM 8, FRANKLIN 0: On Friday, Mario Macari's goal with 11:40 left in the final period gave the host Rocks (66-3, 2-5-2) the KLAA South Division mercy rule triumph over Livonia Franklin (0-10, 0-8) at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Salem led 1-0 after one period and put it away with six second-period goals.

Ryan Quigley tallied a pair of goals in the win, while David Russell and Kurt Driscoll each contributed a goal and assist. Patrick Patin and Nick Gennety also scored goals, while Josh Jarvela had two assists. Other assists went to Kyle Zinks, Sam Ott, Kyle Powell and Steve Haburne.

Junior goalie Andy Sensoli posted the shutout in goal for the Rocks. Matt Slinder and Brandon Hawkins tended goal for the Patriots.

CANTON 6, FRANKLIN 3:

A.J. Rosales and Ryan Lash each tallied a pair of goals Wednesday in a KLAA matchup as the Chiefs (10-1-1, 5-1-1) earned the South Division victory over host Livonia Franklin (0-9, 0-7) at Edgar Arena.

Trent Taylor and Nick Tomilenko also tallied goals for Canton, which led 3-O after one period before Franklin cut the deficit to 5-3 after two.

Jordan Chisholm had a pair of goals and assist for the Patriots. Tyler Barnes tallied the other goal, while Robbie Ringe and Connor Jelonek also drew assists.

Gaming for good Program makes therapy play for children with autism

Matthew Cripps lifts his arm nearly in sync with the box on the screen. Only a few months ago the 12-year-old Livonia boy had trouble raising his hands to the top of his head, then occupational therapist Teresa Garland introduced Core:Tx into their twiceweekly sessions. The tool made work play for Matthew, who has a high-functioning form of autism.

Core:Tx, a software and hardware system, trains the brain by visually tracking movement through a sensor on the wrist. After two months of using the game-like program the sixth grade student was able to wash his hair independently, a task his mother never thought possible.

"I've seen improvements in dressing himself," said Shawne Cripps. "He has problems with buttons and zippers. He's doing better synchronizing arms and legs in swimming. He's more socially aware, wanting to get involved with kids. He's starting to initiate conversations. He usually hangs around in the background."

Shawne Cripps first knew something was wrong with Matthew's development at 18 months when he didn't speak.

Diagnosed with autism at age 2 1/2, Matthew is no stranger to occupational and speech therapy. He started working with Garland last May to resolve a number of issues including running into objects and people. As with many autistic children he was unaware of his personal space until visiting Garland at Brain

Tune-ups, her Ann Arbor business, and Building Bridges in Plymouth. Since that time he has gained two years of age functionality in his arms.

"Children with autism don't always know where the arms and legs are in space. Core tracks his arms for him," said Garland of Plymouth. "Matthew also has a wide gait. We're now trying to retrain his hip muscles so they do their job correctly."

Garland originally challenged Matthew with exercises provided by Interactive Metronome, another computer-based game. On Tuesday she demonstrated the program at Building Bridges, a therapy center for children with developmental disabilities. The green circles on the screen indicate Matthew's ability to match the beat to the sound he hears through headphones. Metronome uses a hand trigger to improve motor planning and sequencing processes. Motor planning and sequencing are critical to functions ranging from walking to organizing sentences.

"Metronome helps regulate time in the primitive part of the brain that feeds everything from movement to thinking to senses," said Garland. "Timing in the brain is a very critical component in our ability to do everything. Metronome gets the Nearly 1,300 people turned out to hear West Bloomfield writer Jeffrey Zaslow speak at Northwood University. Zaslow co-authored the book, 'The Last Lecture,' with the late Randy Pausch. Published by Hyperion in April 2008, the book became a New York Times No. 1 best-seller.

In an e-mail to the Observer. Bowman writes "The election of a mixed-race president is a positive step in race relations, but we cannot assume that it is an end to racism as there is still much more to be done on a local level as well as nationally. I think we need to get to know each other as individuals instead of lumping people together by race, culture or religion. When we get to know people who are different than we are, we realize that we have much more in Midwest Fathers Conference Saturday, Jan. 24, at North Farmington High School. This year's theme, Making Every Moment Count, focuses on helping dads improve parenting skills in workshops ranging from discipline strategies to setting priorities as a father and husband, grandfathering, love and logic, divorced dads' issues, and the joys of African-American fatherhood.

Zaslow, a West Bloomfield writer, coauthored The Last Lecture with Randy Pausch who wanted to leave a message for his children to live life to the fullest. Pausch was a terminally ill professor at Carnegie Mellon University when his speech was heard by millions around the world after YouTube made it available on the Internet. The first 300 registrants receive an autographed copy of the book released by Hyperion not long before Pausch died of pancreatic cancer in July 2008 at age 47. He left his wife, Jai, and three young children.

'We don't know how many moments we have," said Edwards of Farmington Hills. "Too often as a dad we say I'll do it next year. Kids are going to grow up way too fast."

Edwards, who co-founded the conference, resigned as chief meteorologist for Fox 2 about 18 months ago to spend more time with his son, Chase, 12, and daughter Summer, 9. When he isn't working on the conference he co-founded or with Partnership for Dads which sponsors the event, Edwards fills in occasionally at the television station.

"It's a very energizing day," said Edwards.

Jeffrey Zaslow (right) co-authored 'The Last Lecture' with the late Randy Pausch.

"Every year I make it a point to sit in the workshops focused on giving men practical information they can use from the moment they go home. There's a session each year devoted to dads and daughters, Last year I came away with how I need to be very careful with my words about body image, talking about the beauty of every kind within her. All come away with something different."

LAST LECTURE

Zaslow will share lessons learned while writing the book with Pausch. Even though he gave about 50 lectures last year, Zaslow always finds time for his three teenage daughters with wife Sherry Margolis, a co-

Auto show models in hot pants show off themselves and a concept car from Czech automaker Skoda - at the 2005 Frankfurt Auto Show in Germany.

Go to the North American International Auto Show to see the vehicles and talk to the models and then put it all into historical perspective with Margery Krevsky's book, Sirens of Chrome: The Enduring Allure of Auto Show Models.

Krevsky, a Bloomfield Hills resident who owns Productions Plus, a Bingham Farm-based agency that supplies auto show talent, will sign her coffee table-style book during the show, which runs daily through Sunday, Jan. 25, at Cobo Center in downtown Detroit. Packed with rare photos, programs and posters from private collections and corporate files. the book traces the history of the auto show model from the early 1900s - when images of mythological goddesses and sirens first appeared in vehicle marketing materials and as hood ornaments – to present day, when product information specialists of both sexes entice customers with both their knowledge of the vehicle, as well as their appearance.

Stories highlight the auto show displays, event hoopla, vehicle advertising campaigns, celebrity spokespersons and model changes - both human and automotive — over the past century.

RESEARCHING

"When you go into business, you collect a lot of stories," common and can focus on our similarities rather than our differences.

Colleen Mills shares Bowman's beliefs that's why she and husband George joined PLAID 10 years ago. The Livonia woman is president of Citizens for Peace.

"I see us as all united," said Mills. "You can not have peace when you're focusing on differences. This year, Citizens is doing an essay contest on peace to engage young people. PLAID donated $300 for Citizens for Peace activities including the essay contest. It's a wonderful partnership. We've raised a lot of awareness."

Scott Heinzman sadly remembers the 1967 Detroit race riots and that's why he helped Bowman start PLAID. The tense relations between blacks and whites resulted in the clash that burned the city. When I think back to those scary times I can still hear the gunfire downtown from my street in Livonia. It's going to take all of us to continue building bridges between the races.

"Having grown up in Livonia I felt there were definitely strong bigoted attitudes in our city," said Heinzman, ' who graduated from Franklin High School in 1979. "I still feel there's a lot of work to be done, I'm hopeful. People (age) 20-something are far less racist. I think younger people have a greater sense of justice, When I was born in the '60s there were states where you couldn't marry someone of a different race. Today the anger is more right now for Middle Eastern immigrants. We need leaders that can address these issues."

Heinzman's hope is that one day PLAID becomes unnecessary. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream too but didn't live to see his children living "in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character."

"I hope we get to a point where we're not going to have scorn for anybody except for their behaviors," said Heinzman, co-chairman of PLAID.

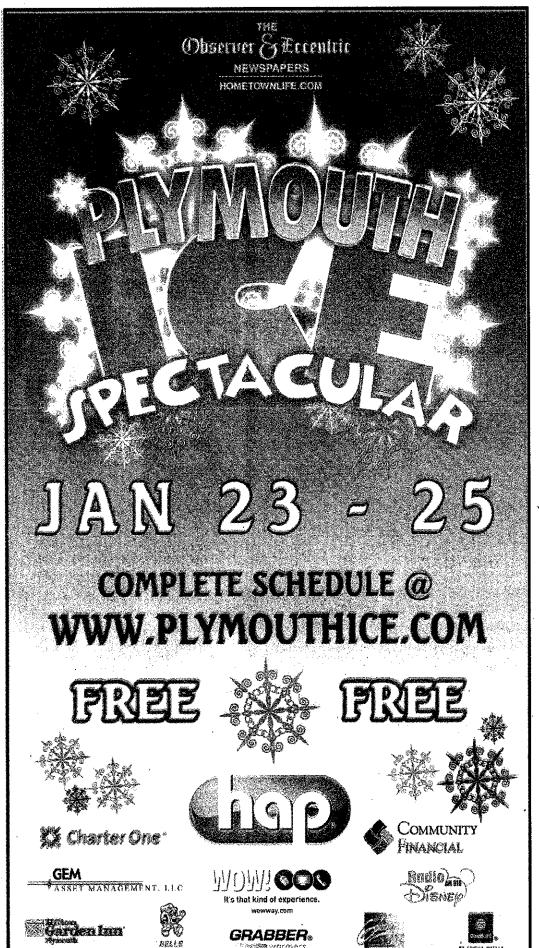

For those interested in joining or learning more about PLAID, call (734) 427-4199.

anchor at Fox 2 News.

"I hope I'm more patient and appreciative," said Zaslow. "Time is all we have and one day it's less than what they think. I admire the fathers who get up on a Saturday morning to attend the conference to learn more about being a better father. I'm thrilled there are fathers out there like that."

Zaslow is glad he took time to drive to Pittsburgh to hear Pausch give his last lecture and write a column for the Wall Street Journal. Zaslow could have done the interview over the phone. The actual experience was so inspiring he decided to write the book which went on to become a No. 1 New York Times bestseller. "I wanted to tell the story and about Randy as a father. He didn't want to write the book. He was conflicted about it cause he wanted to spend time with his kids. He ended up doing interviews with me while riding his bike so he didn't have to take any time from his children. I hope I can be brave as Randy was at the end and take the lessons and use them as a father. I would always send e-mails from readers and links to Web sites to Randy about the book. He said stop Googling my name and go hug your kids. Randy was never interested in accolades. The book was full of advice he wanted to give his kids."

VARIETY OF SPEAKERS Edwards looks forward to hearing the dads and daughters talk by Drew Yanke, Tom Haller on the best discipline strategies, and Bob Phillips on transitioning to middle and high school. Yanke is a regular speaker for the father's program at Beaumont Hospital; Haller is a child, adolescent and couples therapist as well as a nationally known author and speaker on parenting issues; and Phillps is dean of students at Flint Powers Catholic High School.

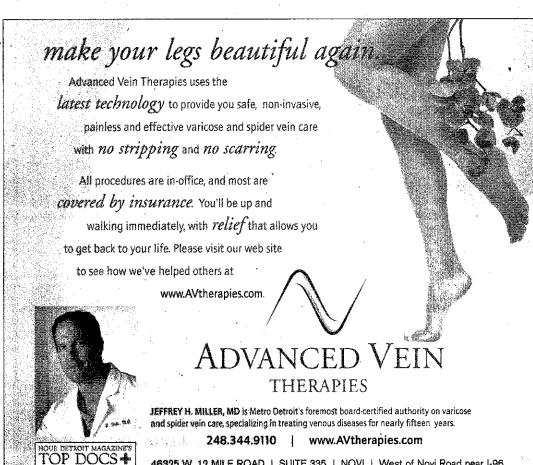

Phillips' words of wisdom for parents are based on studies of children in the transition period between elementary and middle school, and middle and high school. He became interested in the subject while dean of students at Orchard Lake St. Mary.

He has a son Mitchell, 14, and daughter Mara, 12, with wife Shari. He's concerned about the trend of teens experimenting with prescription drugs from the medicine cabinet.

"Research shows students are at greatest risk for mak-ing risky choices, alcohol and substance abuse experimentation, getting in with the wrong peers during in with the wrong ary period," said Phillips, a Waterford resident who grew up in Berkley. "These dads know how to parent and what is right, I empower and reaffirm them. Kids need parents. They don't need friends. If my kids are going to a party at someone's house I make it a point to call and introduce myself. It might be embarrassing for children but I find they're well-received by the other parent. The more parents connect with each other the more we can ensure our kids' safety."

Modeling on auto show circuit demands smarts and stamina

BY SHARON DARGAY O&E STAFF WRITER

Bobbie Petrik Kowalski is living her dream.

Cloud 9 comes complete with an occasional sore back, tired feet and overtaxed vocal cords, but the Canton woman says they're a mere inconvenience compared to all of the benefits she receives working in the glamorous and glitzy world of auto show modeling.

"The good overweighs the aches and pains," said Kowalski, a 10-year veteran of the auto show circuit who spends six to eight hours a day on her feet - in heels - pitching Honda nationwide.

"I would miss this job if it were no longer here. I love who I work for. Whoever is your agent can make or break how you feel about the job. Productions Plus treats us so well," she said, adding that Honda also regards its models "like family."

ON THE ROAD

Kowalski, who is married and has two teenagers and two stepchildren, has worked auto shows in San Francisco, Calif., Miami, Fla., and Indianapolis, Ind., this season. After the North American International Auto Show in Detroit, she'll head to Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill., and New York City, N.Y., among other towns. She'll work events at dealerships and take other work through her agent when the season ends.

During the shows, she'll serve as both a narrator, describing cars from atop a revolving platform, and as a product information specialist, who will Petrik Kowalski answer questions one-on-one in the Honda display area. "When you work for Honda you have to know the whole line. There are well over a dozen and you have to know each (vehicle model) level."

Kowalski, a Michigan State University graduate, enjoys talking about alternative fuels. The tailors her twice-hourly narrations to the audience around the car turntable.

"I'm not scripted at all, only because I know the car inside and out. I can get up there and start with what's under the hood. I improv it.*

Growing up in Redford, Kowalski "always wanted to be that girl" on the platform, standing next to a car and wearing glamorous clothing. As a Honda representative, she wears a business suit or a business casual outfit. "Back in the day, girls used to stand up there and smile in their gowns. Today you have to be intelligent, as well," she noted.

SWITCHING CAREERS

Kowalski worked as an accountant for eight years, all while taking acting classes, modeling and working various promotional gigs - from checking VIP wristbands backstage at Aerosmith concerts to performing a dance routine at the Parade Company's annual fireworks VIP Rooftop Party.

Her supportive family helped the then single mother while she prepared for a job change and later, landed the Honda account, launching a new career in 1999.

The 40-year-old now also credits her husband, Bob, for "pulling the weight" at home while she's on the road with her "extended family," the other Honda product specialists and narrators. While he's at home cooking dinner or tending to their children, she might be lounging on a Miami beach waiting for her work day to start.

When her 17-year-old daughter talks about following in mom's footsteps, Kowalski . cringes a little, envisioning her firstborn on the road. But she is helping her with resume and head shot photos, all while insisting that she attend college, as well.

"The whole job is about having personality. You do have to love people and love travel, too."

Stop by the Honda exhibit and see Kowalski in action at the North American International Auto Show, at Cobo Center in Detroit. The show runs 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., through Saturday, Jan. 24. It is open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 25. Tickets are $12 for adults; $6 for senior citizens, age 65 and older and children, age 7-12. Children under age 6, accompanied by a parent, are admitted free.

Madonna University's Office of Continuing Education and Professional Studies is offering 13-week or less medical certificate programs that will qualify students for immediate employment. Students can earn an EKG technician, pharmacy technician or medical billing and coding certificate. Pharmacy technician jobs, as well as positions in the field of medical billing and coding, are listed among the most indemand occupations on the state of Michigan's web site www.michigan.gov/healthca-reers. The winter schedule for Madonna's medical certificate programs runs 6-9:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays from Feb. 17 to April 16, for EKG technician; Mondays and Wednesdays Feb. 16 to April 13 for pharmacy technician, and Feb. 16 to May 20 for medical billing and coding. Registration deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 6.

All courses prepare students to take national board exams and apply for entrylevel positions. According to Joan Stephens, director of Madonna's Office of Continuing Education and Professional Studies, approximately 90 percent of students immediately pass their board exams after completing the programs.

As part of these classes, students are able to attend free workshops at Madonna University for resumé writing and job interviewing tips. Upon graduation, Stephens and the course instructors continue to work with students, assisting with their employment search. "After providing our students with a graduation pack filled with job search tools, we follow-up with them and provide job postings," said Stephens. "We do everything we can to ensure that they put their training to good use and are employed as soon as possible."

All classes are offered at Madonna's main campus in Livonia, located at the intersection of Schoolcraft and Levan Roads, off I-96. A detailed course schedule and online registration are available at www.madonna.edu by clicking on Future Students, then Continuing Education & Professional Studies. said Krevsky, who founded Productions Plus with former auto show model Harriet Fuller, in 1991. "There are so many stories connected with the auto shows. She jotted down ideas and began searching for photos, first through the National Automotive History Collection at the Detroit Public Library, and then from corporate and private collections.

"It took a year to conceptualize. There were so many pictures. That was the hard thing to do, to put them in order, to get permission to use them."

In some cases, Krevsky knew exactly what she wanted.

"I knéw I wanted a picture from the 60s ... there was an incident at a press conference where a model was mauled by a lion at BMW. I had heard the story. It was difficult to find the picture."

The black and white shot on page 112 of the book, shows the 21-year-old woman in short lederhosen, sitting with her arm around a live lion on the floor of the New York Auto Show in 1966. The accompanying copy says the animal locked its teeth on her thigh seconds later. The model survived, her leg intact, but a decade later took her own life.

Krevsky had heard another story, about a concept car called the Cadillac Debutant. It had debuted at a show in the 1950s, showing off an interior of 187 "Somali leopard pelts" and hardware plated in 24karat gold.

The photo, found on page 68 of Sirens, shows a model seated in the $35,000 vehicle, wearing a suit with matching leopard cuffs and collar.

UPDATED WARDROBE

 which was marketed as a woman's car - on their 10,000 mile trip across the country, advocating for the vote. Along the way the pair changed tires, replaced spark plugs and repaired its engine during an era when women still wore ankle-length dresses and tight corsets.

"They left wearing their vintage Victorian clothing and by the time they had finished the trip, their corsets and bustles had bit the dust."

Krevsky was instrumental in the evolution of auto show models, changing the glamor and cheesecake image to a more sophisticated look that complemented the client's product line. She also gave voice to the models, training them as product information specialists able to entice customers with facts.

"I went up to one of them (a model) and said 'Can you tell me about the car?' She said she wasn't allowed to talk about the car," Krevsky said, recalling a visit to an early 1980s auto show. "I thought to myself, there is some opportunity here. What if everyone could be both attractive and a gearhead?'

She turned her attention from the local fashion show scene to the auto show industry. Her revolutionary ideas - training models to become thoroughly versed in the vehicle and matching wardrobe to the brand — met with "a great deal of resistance" at first.

"Pontiac gave us the first opportunity, Nissan the next. They gave me one year to let me make my point. Historically, the time was right."

An exhibition featuring the "Sirens of Chrome" continues through April 30, at the Detroit Public Library's Rose and Robert Skillman Branch in Detroit. "Sirens of Chrome," a hardcover published by Momentum Books LLC, is available through select Barnes & Noble, and Borders bookstores, as well as online at Amazon. com and MomentumBooks.com. It costs $24.95.

GETTING READY TO CHANGE

The fact that something's wrong with your work has been gnawing at you for several months -- or longer. You've pinpointed the problem Culp in your situation. You've decided to change. How do you get from the decision to implementing change?

You might be fearful. Los Angeles psychotherapist Toni Galardi maintains that fear may be keeping you stuck: "We often fear that the change will (make us) uncomfortable at first as we adapt to the new." She advocates undercutting the fear of loss by telling yourself that "it's okay to surrender to new choices." Once you truly believe that, you've positioned yourself to develop a plan, then implement it. If, however, the problem is not being able to find a direction, there's another innovative solution. Sometimes small, self-directed action steps alone will reveal where you should be going. Look at the career of Allan Bacon of Avocationist.com L.L.C., and you'll think he's worked the structure. He earned a Ph.D. in physics at Duke University. As the Charlotte, N.C., resident puts it, he didn't enjoy R&D, hut "worked in technical and Internet companies large and small and a major bank. I also pursued a side venture in photography." However, he found work lacking in meaning. "I stumbled into recognizing that people can find purpose much more easily outside of work than inside of it," explains. "While working, they can go out and experiment with activities to get the essence of their unique calling." He turned to photography, surfing, even a house exchange with a family in Paris, among other things. For him, the list represents an element of fun he re-infused into his life.

Bacon mentions a speech writer for a banking executive. He decided to attended classes at night at a seminary and found that he enjoyed them on their own terms. Meanwhile, opportunities began to present themselves. He became a minister, an occupation he'd considered in his mid-20s but hadn't pursued. When he originally took the classes, he couldn't have predicted an outcome. METHOD

Bacon offers a new twist on the idea that doing something completely different often sparks ideas. He endorses process by indicating that this must be done over time. You become yourself. "If you start doing something you like," he says, "you naturally do more of it. Experimenting with small things will move you toward your sense of purpose without your having to make the process difficult or big."

There are two typical mid-career conundrums through which he guides clients. The first involves deciding whether boredom is the problem or whether the work is acceptable. Then, identify five activities "you always wanted to try," he recommends. "The more trivial the better. Find the quickest,

If, on the other hand, you're having physical symptoms from your work, Bacon advises that taking some simple steps will help you move on:

Automotion of the second secon Saturn Aura Miserly On Gas Mileage

Observer & Eccentric

CAReport

By Kevin Koloian For Avanti NewsFeatures and AllOpinionsAlltheTime.com

Foreseeing a seismic shift to fuel efficient vehicles, the people at Saturn shook up the Aura's model lineup for 2009, making fuel misers happy at the oil companies' expense.

Now, getting 33 miles per gallon on the highway, Aura 4-cylinder models lead competitors in fuel economy. And with the 4-cylinder XR joining the pack, the Aura is sporty and economical.

With the XR, fuel efficiency-minded customers can save at the pump and get standard amenities such as a six-speed automatic transmission, leather seating, alloy wheels and Bluetooth hands-free phone connectivity.

For a true hands-on driving experience, the all-new 4-cylinder XR is equipped with a six-speed automatic transmission with TAPShift, which features steering wheel-mounted paddles that allows drivers to manually change gears.

Saturn is offering a sport sedan that gets the best non-hybrid highway fuel economy numbers in its class, while keeping the ample room, style and comfort that have made the Aura a hot seller.

Both the base Aura XE and top-level XR 4-cylinder models achieve 33 mpg highway and 26 mpg city/ highway combined.

Four Aura models will be available, including the 2.4-liter I-4 XE and XR; the 3.6-liter V6 XR and the best fuel saver of them all, the 2.4-liter I-4 Aura, which features the GM Hybrid system.

The hybrid version features a small electric motor that starts the gas engine and adds small amounts of power under high load conditions. The gas engine produces 164 horsepower by itself and a net 169 horsepower when the electric kicks in. Unlike other hybrid setups, the Green Line offers full electric propulsion only up to about 3 miles per hour -- the Altima and Camry hybrids can get up to almost 30 mph. Therefore, city gas mileage isn't as good as its competitors.

This system is not as advanced as the company's two-mode hybrid system, which is offered in General Motors' full-size SUVs.

The new Saturn Aura gets 33 mpg on the highway for 2009.

Aura XE and XR 4-cylinder models are rated at 169 horsepower and the Aura XR V6 model pushes out 252 horsepower V6. It is the only V6 powerplant available on the Aura, as the 3.5-liter V6 is no longer an option on the XE model.

All 4-cylinder models except for the Hybrid are equipped with the Hydra-Matic 6T40 six-speed automatic transmission. The V6 Aura model gets the Hydra-Matic 6T70 automatic transmission.

Four-cylinder Auras get 22 miles per gallon in the city and 33 mpg on the highway, while V6 Auras produce 17 city and 26 highway. Fuel economy ratings for the hybrid are 26 city and 34 highway.

Standard on the $21,345-priced, 4-cylinder XE are 17-inch steel wheels and tires, while the new 4cylinder XR gets alloy wheels. V6-equipped XR models come with 18-inch alloy wheels and performance tires. New for 2009, the Aura Hybrid rides on larger 17-inch alloy wheels with low rollingresistance tires.

There are four new exterior colors for 2009; Quicksilver, Polar White, Urban Moss and Gold Mist Metallic.

Some major upgrades have also been made for 2009. Both 4-cylinder and V6 XR models get standard leather-appointed heated seats. The Ebony/ Morocco Brown interior leather is available on both the 4 cylinder and V6 XR.

Bluetooth hands-free phone technology is standard on Aura XR models and available on XE and hybrid when the Preferred Package is ordered.

Lighting of the Aura's interior is upscale thanks to the gauge cluster that uses LED-lit analog instruments, as well as LEDs projecting an amber glow from the overhead lamp and front door pockets.

For a premium feel and added convenience at night, self-dimming theater lighting illuminates the cabin.

One drawback to the Aura is a slightly smaller interior than its competitors. Passenger volume measures 97.7 cubic feet, still a generous amount of space.

All models come with dual-stage frontal air bags with GM passenger sensing system, head curtain sideimpact air bags, front seat-mounted thorax protection air bags, front safety belt pretensioners, LATCH child safety seat anchors, four-wheel disc brakes with ABS, StabiliTrak electronic stability control system and traction control.

The Aura has always been practical, but now thanks to the 4-cylinder offering, the Aura XR is an attractive alternative to its popular Japanese competitors.
