Canton beefs up complaint system

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton residents annoyed by potholes, property flooding, damaged water meters, downed electrical wires, fallen trees, missed trash pickup, dead animals and other problems now have a new way to report it.

It's an online tool designed to make it easier to report complaints during evenings and weekends, when township offices are closed, though residents may use it anytime if they'd prefer to avoid trying to reach the appropriate employee by phone.

"Hopefully we'll be able to track complaints better and get a quicker resolution," Municipal Services Director

Tim Faas said.

The service isn't intended to replace emergency calls. Those still should be made to the Canton Public Safety Department by calling 9-1-1.

The new tool for now works only for the Canton Public Works Division, but that department's manager, Bob Belair, said it could eventually be expanded to other areas of service.

Residents who have a complaint may simply go to www.canton-mi.org, look for the Government tab and follow it to Municipal Services and then Public Works. There, they will find a link for Citizen System Request Service to file complaints.

"It allows the residents and businesses to be more engaged with what we do," Faas said, adding later, "They won't have to wait for our offices to open up if it happens on weekends and nights."

The site uses drop-down menus and other methods to improve efforts to report problems.

Belair said residents using

LOCAL WALKERS TAKE ON BATTLE AGAINST BREAST CANCER

Michigan 3-Day walkers find extra energy from the large crowds lining Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth.

A path to a cure

By Brad Kadrich

The 1,000 walkers who made the three-day, 60-mile trek in the annual Susan G. Komen Michigan 3-Day to beat breast cancer drew a lot of praise and love from supporters along the route.

But one woman who came in for a large batch of support, as well as providing her own dose of inspiration, traveled the entire 60-mile course without ever setting foot on the path.

JoAnn Thomas of Sterling Heights, a one-year breast cancer survivor, spent the entire walk in a wheelchair, the victim of a broken foot suffered just two weeks before the event. Even more impressively, her boyfriend Frank Woodward pushed Thomas the entire 60 miles in her wheelchair.

"I wanted to walk last year, but my oncologist wouldn't allow it," said Thomas, who said she immediately began focusing on this year's walk. "Then this (pointing to the large cast on her leg) happened. I was devastated."

Not missing it

Woodward, who said he and Thomas have been dating for some six months, saw the disappointment in his partner's eyes and the answer was simple.

"I couldn't let her miss out on this," he said.

Rhonda Miller of Canton, in her first time walking, found the event to be inspirational. Miller walked in honor of

Slavens, Stewart garner social media support

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

For people who say they haven't made a decision about whether to challenge incumbent state Sen. Patrick Colbeck for the 7th state Senate District next year, Dian Slavens and John Stewart are getting quite a bit of support.

Facebook pages have popped up trumpeting possible campaigns for both Slavens, the Canton Democrat who will be term-limited next year from her 21st House District seat, and for Stewart, the Plymouth attorney and former state representative in the 20th District.

The deadline to file isn't until May 10, but rumors are running rampant about the candidacies for both Democrats. Stewart, who was a Republican when he served in the House, ran against Colbeck as an independent four years ago.

As of Tuesday morning, the page supporting Slavens (Friends to Elect Dian Slavens) had drawn "likes" from 162 people. The page supporting Stewart (John C. Stewart for State Senate) had been liked by 118 people.

While she appreciates the support, though, Slavens insists she hasn't made a decision.

"It's so nice of people, but I need to focus on what I have to do," she said. "It's very nice, but I'm going to focus on doing my job. I have plenty of time to make that decision."

The district will be redrawn next year. Gone will be all of the Downriver communities, traditionally supportive of Democratic candidates. The district next year will include Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Northville and Wayne.

The way we cover Canton is evolving fast

I started reading a newspaper from cover to cover at about age 10. My older brother, Roy, was a prep football star and my mom got out the scissors every time he made the paper. Dad coached football so it was just about religion in our house. By the time our gridiron hero graduated from high school, that scrapbook was three inches thick and full of memories. I didn't know it at the time, but my mother's devotion to poring over those pages forged a connection to community newspapers that still resonates with me today.

Our mission of informing and enhancing the lives of readers has been constant, but just about everything else has changed. The biggest difference between then and now is how fast news travels. Papers still arrive at the house and our readers — some with scissors in hand — still want to know who is getting married, which family welcomed a baby into the house and what business is opening down the road.

But our readers also want to know what is going on as news develops, and we are evolving to meet the chal-

Two hospitalized after crash

Police suspect alcohol, speeding

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton resident Jeff Buck was sitting on his deck with friends when they heard a speeding vehicle crash and overturn Friday night not far from his driveway, along a hilly, gravel stretch of Napier north of Warren in Canton. Jeff Buck

Two people were taken to a hospital from this accident on Napier north of Warren in Canton. JEFF BUCK shortly after 11 p.m. Police say a 23-year-old Canton man apparently lost control of a 2002 Honda CR-V, struck some trees and rolled the vehicle over on Napier.

Police said the driver and passenger, a 25-year-old Plymouth man, were taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Lt. Patrick Sullivan said it appeared the men didn't make it home.

Buck said he has seen other serious accidents along the 25-mph stretch of Napier, a place where he said some drivers tend to speed even though the road is hilly and gravel-covered.

Though the investigation was continuing, Canton police say Friday night's crash apparently involved speeding and alcohol.

"I heard the car zooming down the road and I sort of heard a skidding and a thump - I assume the thump was when it turned over," Buck said. Buck and his friends went to the scene and, without interfering, stayed with the accident victims until police and fire department paramedics arrived.

Police haven't released the names of the driver and passenger. The Canton Police Department's Accident Investigation Team was called in to investigate the crash. Sullivan said police will await toxicology results to determine if a warrant will be sought in the case.

Stewart thinks that might make the district tough for Slaven, whom he says has a more liberal voting record, to win. He thinks his more moderate approach would be a better fit.

"In the (21st District), you have a democratic base of Van Buren and Belleville, and all you have to do is go 1-on-1 with someone in Canton," Stewart said. "In the new district, it'll also be Livonia, Plymouth, Northville and Wayne. I would be the only one (if he runs) who's won a precinct in any of those places."

Bill Ballenger, editor of Inside Michigan Politics, said the political climate at the time of next year's election will have as much to say about who wins as anything else.

Colbeck, Ballenger pointed out, rode a Republican wave as a Tea Party candidate to win the seat in 2010. If 2014 is a Republican year, he said, Colbeck would be tough to beat. If not, the seat could be had.

"It could be a pretty close year, so either one conceivably could have a chance to beat Colbeck," Ballenger said. "I don't think (Colbeck) is impregnable. A lot will depend on the climate next year. If it's like 2010, it'll be tough to beat him."

The other problem, according to Ballenger, might be name recognition. While Stewart is well-known in the Plymouth-Canton area, he hasn't held public office since 2006. Slaven would be running as an office holder and might have an edge there.

"The problem is he's been out of office so long," Ballenger said. "In politics, six years is an eternity. Slaven is an incumbent office-holder, her name has been out there. She can't be underestimated. I think she's done very well as a candidate."

In the end, it may not matter for a couple of reasons. For one thing, Stewart doesn't believe he could win a primary against Slaven if turnout were low. Stewart believes straight-party voters would dominate, and Slaven would get the bulk of them. He believed he'd need to draw strong support from moderate and independent voters to have a shot.

"We're less than 12 months away from the primary," Stewart pointed out. "If the independents and moderates would be in the primary, I could win it. But when you have primaries that turn out 7 percent of the voters, you only get the far-left and far-right."

Aside from that, Stewart's decision hinges on Slaven's choice. He said if Slaven gets in, he will not.

"Would I like to run? Yes, but if (Slaven) files, I will not run," he said. "I have made an iron-clad promise to my wife and daughters that if I Dian gets in, I'm not getting in. If she doesn't, it's highly probable that I will."

lence. In case you haven't noticed, we have even changed the name of our company to Observer & Eccentric Media to better reflect not only what we do, but our commitment to the future of community journalism.

The name of your hometown paper hasn't changed, but the way our journalists cover the news certainly has. We are committed to breaking news online and engaging readers as stories unfold through social media. When a beloved prep football star died unexpectedly, Sports Editor Ed Wright reached out to the community, wrote a compelling account of what happened and had it online at our website.

www.hometownlive.com, in hours. A link to the story was posted on our Facebook Page at www.facebook.com/OEHometown and within two days thousands of people had read the story before it hit newstands.

Photographer Bill Bresler was shooting a victim's short time after a major fire broke out in Westland. Our digital readers knew that a serious situation was unfolding and we reported that a firefighter was missing long before other outlets had a sense of what was going on.

Again, thousands of our readers were aware of the news as it occurred and many mourned the loss of the firefighter on our Facebook page.

Earlier this month, voters defeated a $222 million bond proposal for Farmington Public Schools and the results were posted online within 90 minutes of the polls closing. By the following Wednesday afternoon, staff writer Allen Wingblad had updated the story with in-depth analysis of why voters rejected the bond and what would happen next. We also posted crime news online every day, not just on Thursday and Sunday.

We cherish every reader who subscribes to one of our 13 newspapers and are proud of the work we do in our communities. But we also want to encourage people to visit hometownlive.com every day. Our site truly has something for everyone. Our reporters are in the communities they cover, writing about interesting people, events and issues that hit home. We have special sections that focus on women, families, area events and lifestyle.

If that's a community festival in western Wayne or Oakland counties, O & E Media is likely covering it with a story, photo gallery and video. Our devoted readers already know that we have the best press sports coverage around, but they may not know that we now feature college sports online too thanks to our new partnership, Gannett Michigan.

her best friend, three-year survivor Amy Siebert, to raise money "so they can find a cure so younger kids don't have to go through" breast cancer.

Miller was moved to tears by the support shown as the walkers made their way along Ann Arbor Trail through downtown Plymouth, where thousands of supporters lined the streets to offer hugs, water and other support.

"It's just overwhelming," Miller said Saturday. "They're cheering and I didn't really do anything. All the women who fight (cancer) did something. It's so emotional, it's an amazing event."

Nearly everyone walking the route was doing so in honor of someone or in memory of loved ones who've passed away.

It's about family

Luckily for Alicia Paulina of Milford, her honorlee is still battling. Her sister, Angela Horvath of Gregory, is a one-year survivor who couldn't make the walk. So Paulina made it for her.

"I want to support her and all of these other women," said Paulina, who made the walk for the first time. "She's my sister. You do anything for your family!"

Not all of the support for the event comes in the form of walkers. Nearly as many volunteers, crew, safety and medical folks are on hand, supporting the walk in various ways.

Lisa Kubany of Westland parked her car at the entrance to one of the pit stops along the route Friday. Walkers stopped by to sign their names in a show of solidarity.

"I'm doing this out of pure love and hope that one day we will never have to fight this disease again," Kubany said. "I lost a good friend's mother to this disease and my mother-in-law is now a five-year survivor. So I do this out of love and hope."

Walkers can't help but be attracted to the fountain in Kellogg Park, the water in which is always dyed pink for the occasion.

"It's just overwhelming. They're cheering and I didn't really do anything. All the women who fight (cancer) did something. It's so emotional, it's an amazing event."

Benefit helps TEARS support grieving families

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Volunteer Laurie Carpenter (from left) registers Chris Smith, his wife Jodie and son Josh as Team Justin for the TEARS Rocket and Walk fundraiser in Canton Sept. 14.

"There's something inherently wrong in planning your child's funeral," said Shuh.

'Incredible blessing'

Even worse was not having the money $1,500 to pay for it. Family, friends and their church "out of the goodness of their hearts" helped the Shuhs. It was an "incredible blessing," that Shuh hoped he could do for others some day.

And he can as president of the Michigan Chapter of the TEARS Foundation, a national nonprofit that helps pay the funeral expenses for families who have lost a child between 20 weeks gestation and one year of age.

Shuh shared his story with a small group of people last week in a kickoff of the chapter's Rock and Walk fundraiser planned for Sept. 14 on the grounds of the Plymouth Christian Academy in Canton.

Participants are being asked to form teams and raise $200 per member for the event. They will walk around a track lined with butterflies, containing the names of infants whose have passed away. There will be an opening ceremony and a hope lap as well as time to spend rocking in a chair in the middle of the field.

"It's similar to Relay for Life, but it's not a walking event, it's not even a SK, it's more of a meander," Shuh said. "It's a time meander and remember. It's a memorial and every family gets an opportunity to sit and rock and remember."

The need for such assistance is great. Shelby Shuh paid a visit to Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor and learned that there are some 200 infant deaths each year and half of the families affected need help with funeral expenses.

"It's very dear to my heart that I can share with others who are in the same spot we were in," said Shelby Shuh, choking back tears. "It's very healing. It's the way God is going to continue to heal me by doing."

Helps Michigan families

All money raised stays in Michigan to help families in need pay for the burial or cremation of their child. Currently, the chapter has just $1,200, given by three churches where Shuh spoke about the organization. It's enough to help one family. Shuh would like to raise $20,000 through the walk.

Michigan is the 12th state to have a TEARS chapter. Its name, while written in capital letters, isn't an acronym. It simple stands for the tears shed by grieving families.

The TEARS Foundation was started in Washington State in 2002 by Sarah Slack. Slack and her husband, Sanford, experienced the stillbirth of their son, Jesse Curtis Slack in November 2000. Through the loss of her son, Slack decided to turn her tragedy into an opportunity to reach out to other families who have lost a baby and make a positive impact in her community.

It was Slack who contacted Shuh after he shared his story of Bella as a contestant on NBC's The Biggest Loser. It was an answer to Shuh's dream of one day helping others.

"I thought that one day I could be on the other side and help people pay for their children's funerals," he said. "Parents are prepared to buy a crib not a casket. An infant's funeral can cost $1,000 to $1,500. TEARS wants to help with the casket, a grave marker and grief counseling."

Chris and Jodie Smith of Redford and Scott and Trisha Schlaff of Allen Park can relate to what the Shuhs shared. Twenty-three years ago, the two families both experienced the death of an infant child.

The Smiths' son Justin died a month after being diagnosed with a heart defect. He was 4 months old.

"My parents helped pay for the funeral and someone helped with the headstone, we don't know who," said Chris Smith as the family registered for the Walk and Rock. Their team be named after Justin and will include their three other children, family members and friends.

"We've wanted to do something for years, this is perfect," said Jodie Smith. The Schlaffs knew about TEARS through Shuh and attended the meeting to find out more.

"I like that it encourages people," said Trisha Schlaff. "It lets them know they're not alone in their journey, there's someone there to hold their hand. There was nothing like this for us 23 years ago." "It's a great organization, it inspires, honors and celebrates life," her husband added. "I like that it's just there to help people and make this part of the journey easier. It's a long journey and at least families can give their children a final resting place."

The Shuhs remember Bella is a special way. On her birth date and death date, they return to Ronald McDonald House in Detroit to prepare and serve dinner to the families who are staying there.

"Their loss will never go away, but they know they are helping other families who are taking the same journey."

"You don't have to have to lose a child to have a team," said Shuh. "You walk to remember someone. I encourage you to go where your heart is."

Canton Community Foundation hosts veterans summit

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

In an effort to educate veterans who might be unaware of the benefits for which they are eligible, the Canton Community Foundation joins forces with Legal Help for Veterans, PLLC, to find a way to arm military veterans with the correct information they need to succeed.

Toward that end, the foundation hosts its fourth annual Veterans' Summit at Laurel Manor in Livonia Sept. 12. This free event is open to veterans of all branches of the military along with their friends and family members.

Veteran Affairs experts will educate attendees as to their entitled benefits in such areas as health care, pension, disabilities, burial and VA eligibility. Following the formal program, veterans will have an opportunity to meet one-on-one with VA representatives and other advocates to help them solve their specific problems and to visit the Veterans Expo to check out area sponsors and their programs for veterans.

Organizers said educating Michigan veterans "provides a significant investment in Michigan's economic health."

For more information or to register for this free event, go to www.cantonfoundation.org or call Beth Meade at 734-495-1200.

Domestic assault

A 68-year-old Canton woman called for help after she said her husband assaulted her during a domestic violence incident that was reported Aug. 13 in the 8200 block of Alton, southeast of Joy Road and I-275, a police report said.

When police arrived, the husband said he and his wife of 52 years had been arguing over money. He told police she has been spending thousands of dollars but he didn't know how the money was being used, the report said.

The man said he pushed the woman, but she said he punched her with a closed fist on the side of her head. She also said he tried to choke her. The woman reported the man had the phone away from her and threw it across the room when she had tried to call for help.

The reported noted dispatchers had lost contact with the woman while she was on the phone. A police report said the man was placed under arrest on the night of the incident, with possible charges pending with the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

Teen found

Canton police helped a mother find her 18-year-old son after she reported he was running through a wooded area and yelling for help Saturday night, a police report said.

The woman told police her son had used LSD in the past and smokes marijuana, and she was fearful he might hurt himself.

Police met up with the woman in an area near Warren Road and I-275 after receiving a call around 10 p.m. Saturday. Authorities brought in a police dog and also surrounded a wooded area, but the mother managed to get her son on the phone and learned he was sitting on top of a semi-truck near Haggerty and Koppernick.

Police found him in the roadway at the intersection, the police report said. He told authorities he had smoked what seemed to be highly potent marijuana. He said he couldn't remember anything and had been depressed partly over a break-up with a girl friend, the police report said.

Hoss help

Canton authorities sent a police dog to help in the search for suspects shortly before midnight Sunday after a man said the suspects had taken his wallet in neighboring Plymouth, a police report said.

K-9 Hoss was sent to the scene along with his human partner, Officer Bryan Szo-tak, to search an area near Hines Drive. Although the efforts of Hoss were stopped without finding the suspects, authorities said an arrest of two suspects had been made through other means.

A man had reported the incident, saying his wallet had been taken during an assault. A Plymouth police report indicated the incident resulted in a car chase that ended in a crash near Seven Mile and Hines Drive before arrests were made that resulted in criminal charges.

No one was hurt during the crash.

Shed break-in

A 68-year-old man notified police to report someone had broken into the shed of his home and taken a bicycle while he was out of town for several days prior to Aug. 3. The incident happened in the Academy Point mobile home community southeast of Michigan Avenue and Haggerty.

Workplace theft

A woman who works for a company in the area of Haggerty and Warren notified police to report someone had gone into her lunch bag in a locker room, stealing her license, bank card and some cash, a police report said.

The incident happened between midnight and 7 a.m. Friday. She had notified her bank and learned that her card had not been used fraudulently used.

Woman, dog escape unharmed from condo fire

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

An elderly Canton woman and her dog escaped unharmed early Monday after a fire started in the basement of her residence at The Winds, a condominium complex southeast of Cherry Hill and Haggerty roads, Fire Chief Joshua Meier said.

The woman was alerted by a smoke detector and called for help at 8:23 a.m.

"No one was injured,"

Meier said. "The lone occupant and her dog were able to escape without injury prior to our arrival."

Firefighters initially responded to the Northwind Drive residence from all three Canton fire stations.

"The fire department had a very quick response time and made a very quick interior attack on the fire," Meier said.

The fire appears to have been accidental, the fire chief said. The cause remained under investigation Monday afternoon.

"There was fire damage to the basement and some smoke damage throughout the condo," Meier said.

The quick response by firefighters kept the blaze from spreading to other residences, some of which Meier said sustained only minor smoke damage.

PLYMOUTH CRIME WATCH

A 51-year-old Canton Township man arrested in the shoplifting of a $35 watch said he had been "stupid" after he was detained at the Kmart on Ann Arbor Road on Aug. 14, police said.

The incident occurred around 1 p.m. according to a Plymouth Township Police Department report, a store security employee saw the man pick up a watch from a display, walk to the store's luggage department and, with a folding knife, cut the packaging from the watch. The man then put the watch in a pocket and left the store without paying, and the employee confronted him outside, the report said.

The man went to the store's security office without incident, where a responding police officer arrested him on a retail fraud charge. The officer's report says the man said, as if talking to himself: "I shouldn't have done this. This was stupid."

Credit-card theft

Someone went on a spending spree in Pennsylvania and New Jersey with a township woman's credit-card number over a three-day period late last month, police report.

The victim told police Aug. 13 that more than $2,000 had been charged to her card at gas stations, drug stores, big-box stores like Walmart and Target, and other places, all between July 29 and July 31.

The credit-card account was canceled; the victim told police she did not know how the card number had been compromised.

Identity theft

A township woman reported this month that someone had used her Social Security number to open a cable television service account at an address in the city of Inkster in late 2011.

The woman told police she recently found she had a poor credit record after applying for a loan, and that further research led her to find that her Social Security number had been compromised, a police report said. The phone cable account was opened in October 2011 at an apartment in Inkster, she said, and closed the following January for nonpayment of a bill of $467.

Yard break-in

A man cut the chain on a locked gate at Plymouth Trailer Storage on Haggerty Road early on Aug. 12 and was on the grounds for more than an hour, but nothing was reported stolen.

The manager told police a security video shows that a pickup truck pulled up to the gate at 2:45 a.m. and a man got out and cut the chain. The video shows the truck leaving just after 4 a.m., a police report said.

There was a similar break-in recently, and the manager suspects the same man was involved in both incidents.

Fuel theft

A middle-aged man with a late-model black Cadillac stole about $55 worth of gasoline from a gas station in the township on Aug. 12.

The clerk at the Mobil station on Northville Road near Five Mile told police the man drove up shortly before 5 p.m. and that he turned on a pump for him. The man pumped $55.09 worth of gas and drove off, southbound on Northville Road, without paying, the clerk said.

Amazing Technology Relieves Serious Back Pain!

GET RID of Sciatica, Bulging Discs, and Leg Pain ONCE AND FOR ALL! (ONLY $35 TO ANYONE WHO IS SUFFERING WITH THESE CONDITIONS)

Do You Have Any of the Following?

- Sharp pains in the back of the leg
- Lower Back Pain
- Herniated/bulging discs
- Numbness in your arms or legs
- Shooting hip or thigh pain
- Muscle spasm, sprains & strains

If you've suffered from any of these annoying conditions, you may have "Sciatica".

Sciatica is a compression of the sciatic nerve, usually by an L4 or L5 disc herniations. As you know, sciatica can be a very painful problem, even crippling at times.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your back or sciatica hurts and the pain just won't go away!

Fortunately, if you are suffering from any of these problems, they may be relieved or eliminated by non-surgical spinal decompression combined with cold laser therapy.

"What's the Chance This Will Work for Me?"

A medical study found patients went from moderately painful to almost no pain with decompression treatments. Those that took pain pills improved less than 5%.

— Am Society of Anesthesiologist, 2006 Chicago, IL

Another study presented at the American Academy of Pain Management in 2007 showed...

"Patients reported a mean 88.9% improvement in back pain and better function... No patient required any invasive therapies (e.g. epidural injections, surgery)."

These are just two studies out of a dozen done in the last few years, all showing promising results.

Finally, You Have an Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or cold laser, is having a profound effect on patients suffering with pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, cold laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance cold laser therapy could be your pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Here's the point of all these studies... spinal decompression combined with cold laser therapy has a high success rate with helping disc herniations, sciatica, and back pain.

This means in just a matter of weeks you could be back on the golf course, enjoying your love life, or traveling again.

The Single Most Important Solution to Your Sciatica and Back Pain

- It's time for you to find out if spinal decompression combined with cold laser therapy will be your sciatic pain solution. For 10 days only, $35 will get you all the services I normally charge new patients $250 for!
 - What does this offer include? Everything. Here's what you'll get...
 - An in-depth consultation about your health and well-being where I will listen...really listen...to the details of your case.
 - A complete neuromuscular examination.
 - A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if a spinal problem is contributing to your pain or symptoms.
 - A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
 - You'll get to see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients. The appointment will not take long at all and you won't be sitting in a waiting room all day either.
- And the best part about it is...

No Dangerous Drugs, No Invasive Procedures, and No Painful Exercises

Spinal decompression treatments combined with cold laser therapy are very gentle. In fact, I even catch a few patients sleeping during sessions every once and awhile.

"But I feel fine – as long as I take my pain pills."

There's a time to use pain medications, BUT not before seeking a natural way to correct the CAUSE of the problem!

Spinal decompression combined with cold laser therapy just may be the answer that you've been looking for. Ask yourself ... after taking all these pain medications and playing the 'wait and see game', maybe for years...are you any better off?

Call and tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Special Decompression &

Cold Laser Evaluation before September 5, 2013.

We can get started with your consultation, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Kramer Chiropractic and you can find us at 34441 W. Eight Mile Rd., Ste. 116, in Livonia, MI.

I look forward to helping you get rid of your pain so you can start living a healthier, more joyful life.

Sincerely,
Dr. Greg Kramer, D.C.

P.S. The only real question to ask yourself is this...

What Will Your Pain Feel Like 1 Month from Today?

One of the biggest myths about pain is that it goes away all by itself, without any treatment.

A May 1998 study in the British Medical Journal proved this myth false, showing that 75% of back pain sufferers who do nothing about it will have either pain or disability 12 months later.

Let's face it, if the pain hasn't gone away by now, it's not likely to disappear on its own. Life's too short to live in pain like this. Call today and soon I'll be giving you the green light to have fun again.

The Michigan 3-Day begins Friday in Novi as breast cancer fighters stroll along Grand River Avenue west of Beck. JOHN HEIDER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Walkers raise $2.7 million to fight breast cancer

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

Every year, walkers by the thousands join in Susan G. Komen's Michigan 3-Day fight to eradicate breast cancer. This year, the walkers and crew members (some 350 of them) took a big step toward that goal, raising some $2.7 million toward the cause.

The announcement was made Sunday at Ford World Headquarters in Dearborn, where a rousing closing ceremony put the finishing touches on the 2013 walk, which wound its way through Novi, Wixom, Lyon Township, Milford, Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, Westland and Dearborn.

The fundraising total probably didn't surprise Dr. Sheri Phillips, Komen's national spokesperson, who has been watching the success of the events for three years.

"I love the fact the 3-Day community is so powerful," said Phillips, in her third year as the spokesperson. "This is my 32nd event, and it feels like the first one. The participation and love is very inspirational."

Rhonda Miller of Canton did her part this year, becoming one of the 1,000 walkers – down from about 1,100 a year ago – to raise money in the hopes of erasing the disease. "I wanted to raise the money so they can help find a cure so that young people never have to go through that," said Miller, who walked in honor of her best friend. "All of these women who fight (cancer) did something. It's so emotional, and an amazing event."

Seventh- and eighth-grade cheerleaders from St. Michael School in Livonia got to see just how amazing it was up close, handing out "Victory" T-shirts at the finish line in Dearborn.

"The walkers loved seeing the girls waiting at the finish line with their Victory T-shirts and they met a lot of encouraging survivors," said Sabrina Gazzarato, St. Michael cheer coordinator.

Frank Woodward was still pushing JoAnn Thomas' wheelchair on the final day of the Michigan 3-Day. Woodward pushed the chair the entire 60-mile route after Thomas, a one-year survivor, suffered a broken foot two weeks before the walk.

Crew keeps 3-Day walkers in stride

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

The 1,000 walkers making the 60-mile, three-day trek to try to end breast cancer get the lion's share of the attention during the Susan G. Komen 3-Day for the Cure, and that's the way the walk is designed.

But organizers, staffers and walkers agree: It wouldn't happen without the efforts of the 350 volunteers who "crew" the event, performing duties as varied as mapping the route and serving meals to acting as road safety guards and simply just cheering the walkers on.

Could it be done without them? "Absolutely not," said the event's national spokesperson, Dr. Shari Phillips, an occupational medicine doctor from Chicago. "They have to get there early, they stay there late. They do the work we'd have to pay someone to do, and they do it all volunteer. There's no way to do it without the crews."

Most of the crew — like most of the walkers — have done it before. Kathleen Sparr and her husband, Jared, alternate between walking and crewing.

Helping 'Feet'

The couple started a non-profit, Team Happy Feet, to help walkers defray the costs (each walker is asked to raise $2,300) and make the walk easier to complete.

Sparr got involved with Komen through a friend who has since passed away, and because a couple of her current friends have breast cancer.

"They keep giving me a reason to do this," said

Sparr, who was hauling luggage on the walk's first day. "Until there's no reason, I'll keep coming out."

Victor Clement of Lapeer spent the weekend helping walkers get safely across the street at a variety of intersections. He had a kind word, a fist bump or a smile for all 1,000 walkers.

Clement works the event in honor of his mother, who developed breast cancer. She passed away from other health problems, but it's the breast cancer that keeps Clement coming back.

"The (emotional) benefits to me are phenomenal," Clement said.

Same journey

Ed Doehne's wife, Tara, is a four-year cancer survivor. He displays a photo of her during treatment, his head shaved bald just like hers, as a way of paying tribute to her struggle.

Doehne, who posed as "Mr. June 2012" in a fund-raising calendar, has walked the event three times, and this weekend marked the fifth time he has crewed.

Doehne traveled the 60-mile route with loud music, a microphone and a smile. It's a journey he and Tara have traveled, and one he's intent on sharing with others.

"Everyone here has been affected by cancer, so they've all been through, in one way or another, what I've been through," Doehne said. "You try to find a connection with the people on the road. The whole shtick is to make people smile. I saw what my wife went through. I just want to make people happy."

Man dragged by car in iPhone theft

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton police say a 61-year-old man was dragged by a moving car after he reached inside to try to retrieve his grandson's iPhone, which was being stolen by two suspects who answered a Craigslist ad.

The incident happened in broad daylight shortly before 3 p.m. Sunday in a business parking lot near Ford and Hagerty roads, one of Canton's busiest intersections.

Deputy Police Chief Robert Kerr said the grandfather was dragged onto Ford Road but didn't appear seriously injured and refused medical treatment.

The incident arose after a 12-year-old boy sought to sell his iPhone on Craigslist and arranged to meet a supposed buyer who arrived with a passenger, identified only as two males.

The boy and his grandfather approached the car to show the iPhone when the attempted sale took an ugly turn and the phone was seized.

"The grandfather had his hand inside the car (trying to grab the iPhone)," Kerr said. "The car took off and he was dragged onto Ford Road."

Kerr said a police report indicated the victim had abrasions but apparently sustained no serious injuries.

Craigslist offers the following tips online when meeting someone for the first time:

- » Insist on a public meeting place like a café.
- » Never meet in a secluded place or invite strangers into your home.
- » Be especially careful when buying or selling items that are high in value.
- » Tell a friend or family member where the exchange is occurring.
- » Consider being accompanied by a friend.
- » Trust your instincts.

The boy and his grandfather followed many of those tips, but Kerr said it's important to be as cautious as possible.

"If something doesn't look right or feel right," he said, "leave the area."

Read this before you cash out U.S. Savings Bonds

I was talking to a client recently who was going through his safety deposit box and discovered a substantial number of U.S. Savings Bonds he had forgotten about.

He looked at it as found money and figured he would cash out the bonds. However, I told him there is a strategy to cashing out U.S. Savings Bonds. In addition, before cashing out, he needed to determine the interest.

It would be nice if I could tell you that all U.S. Savings Bonds are paying so-and-so rate of return. Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way. Your interest rate is determined by when the bond was issued. In fact, some bonds that were issued in the 1990s are still paying upward of 4 percent.

In today's world, that is a great rate of return for a fixed-income investment and probably a bond you should keep. Keep in mind, too, if you have a U.S. Savings Bond that is more than 30 years old, it is no longer paying any interest.

U.S. Savings Bonds pay interest every six months. In addition, the interest is not prorated. In other words, if you have a bond that pays interest in January and July and you cash the bond in December, you don't receive the five months interest; you forfeit that. Therefore, it always makes sense when you cash out U.S. Savings Bonds to redeem them after interest has been credited to your account.

Cash out matured bonds

The numbers are astounding as to how many people have U.S. Savings Bonds that have either matured and are no longer paying interest or that are lost. Either way, you are losing money.

If you have a U.S. Savings Bond that is no longer paying interest, cash it out. There's no reason to keep it. On the other hand, if you know that you have U.S. Savings Bonds, but you can't locate them, it's time to do something about it. You can search for lost bonds through the U.S. Treasury Department's website (www.treasury-direct.gov). The website will also determine the interest rate that you are receiving.

It's a good idea for everyone to do a lost bond search. After all, let's not forget that particularly for those of us over 40, it wasn't unusual for us to receive those $25 savings bonds for birthdays and holiday gifts. The search is easy, quick and certainly worth a few minutes of your time.

One last note on U.S. Savings Bonds. It's a good idea to determine what interest rate they are paying. After all, if you have high-interest rate charge cards and you're receiving very little on a U.S. Savings Bond, why not cash them out, pay the tax on the interest and use the proceeds to pay down your debt?

Whether you use U.S. Savings Bonds to pay down debt or just to leave them as is, they are an investment and you should know what they are paying you.

Good luck!

Winners announced for Christmas in July contest

Ann Crespi of Livonia said she had never won "anything" until this year's Observer & Eccentric Media Christmas in July contest.

The Livonia resident was among the 27 percent of entrants who found all the holiday icons and her name was selected in a random drawing earlier this month.

Linda Robin, owner of Showroom of Elegance, presented Crespi with the grand prize—a $500 gift card to the Canton jewelry store and a bottle of fine wine, courtesy of Showroom of Elegance.

Crespi said she searched Inspire cover to cover three times to make sure she found the icons. She said one icon—on page 44 of the July publication—was hard to locate, but she found it.

Other eligible entrants who found the icons and won a prize in the Observer & Eccentric Media's third annual Christmas in July giveaway included:

Carol Banaszak of Northville, second place of a $100 gift certificate to the Rugby Grill in the Townsend Hotel in down-the more than 345 mailed entries correctly identified pages on which icons were published. Twenty-seven percent of Facebook entries also correctly identified all 14 icons.

Pages with holiday icons included the cover and pages 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 18, 20, 24, 30, 42, 44 and 50.

The icons most often missed were on the cover and pages 4, 6 and 44.

Some readers cut out the icons and sent them with entry forms as proof, others took the time to decorate their entries. Others just had a good time searching.

Back to school

Education choices are many in 2013

School starts soon for the majority of students in the Plymouth-Canton area. But back to school in 2013 is a lot different than it was just a few years ago.

Students, parents and teachers have many choices when it comes to education in 2013. While Plymouth-Canton Community Schools continues to be the tie that binds our communities together, other choices — charter schools, online schools, home school, year-round schools, private schools and parochial schools — have dramatically changed the landscape of K-12 education in recent years.

Charter schools are establishing a large footprint in Plymouth and Canton (the first charter high school in the district is slated to open in September 2015) while religious schools remain the choice of many. The number of students being home-schooled has increased exponentially over the last decade and, as technology marches on, on-line education is attracting many more students.

Private schools have always attracted those with the ability to pay. Oakland County boasts some of the best private schools in the country and they have long been a destination for those seeking an alternative to public schools. But some public schools — in spite of funding issues — have risen to the competitive challenge. Specialized academies — such as STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math), IB (International Baccalaureate) and others — along with increases in honors and AP classes, and many schools of choice options have provided the choice many parents were seeking.

Some believe the increased competition has pushed public schools to change. Others point to technology and/or political polarization as reasons for change and choice in education.

While most parents already have opted for a school that best suits their child's needs, some are still searching and their choices are many. The quest for the perfect educational environment, however, will never end and that is a good thing.

The issue of quality education must always be at the forefront of any discussion about the future of Michigan.

Wak provided more than I bargained for

I thought this would be an easy column to write. Walk 60 miles in three days. Listen to people's stories. Relate those stories. End of column.

But it's not an easy column to write, because nothing is that simple. You try to be the outsider, the journalist along for the walk. The stories don't really affect you and so you think it'll be easy to just repeat them.

Then you listen to the mother whose 27-year-old daughter has been diagnosed with breast cancer or you watch the woman whose oncologist wouldn't let her walk last year, so she prepared for this year's Susan G. Komen 3-Day, only to break her foot two weeks before the event. And you watch her boyfriend push her in her wheelchair the entire 60 miles.

And you can't help but be drawn into the stories. The wheelchair lady, JoAnn Thomas of Sterling Heights, cried her eyes out at Sunday's closing ceremony and she hadn't technically walked an inch. But everyone in the place wanted to see her, to be a part of her story, to hug her (and her boyfriend, Frank Woodward).

For years, I've heard how emotional the walk is from folks like Dan Dwyer and Ed Hengelberg and Dorothy Twiney and Deb Madonna and Michele Potter and I'd always jot down their thoughts, relate them in a story and then move on to the next assignment.

After walking the event this year with Potter (OK, technically I walked it far behind Potter), it's not as easy to move on to the next story. This one, I think, will stay with me for a very long time. I will forever remember the woman whose T-shirt read

Brad Kadrich

"Walking in memory of..." followed by more than a dozen names of friends and family members she'd lost to breast cancer.

Or Alicia Paulina from Milford, walking for her sister, a one-year survivor. And Rhonda Miller of Canton, who cried while walking through Plymouth, affected by the love and support of the gazillion or so people who lined Ann Arbor Trail. Miller's best friend, Amy Siebert, a three-year survivor, and Miller was walking for her.

Of course, it would be surprising if anyone made it through Plymouth with completely dry eyes. That's something else Dwyer and Hengelberg and Potter have always said: Everyone gets a huge boost of energy and emotion walking through Plymouth.

I always wondered if that was them being "homers." But it wasn't. After walking 20 miles Friday, I listened to a lot of very tired walkers reminding others that Plymouth was coming. I admit to waking up in the wee hours of Saturday morning and drawing my own energy from the presence of Plymouth on the schedule.

And the community didn't disappoint, as it never does. The supporters were great in Novi and Northville, in Wixom and Livonia. But nothing matches the sheer excitement of walking through Plymouth, with its pink-watered fountain and die-hard supporters and the pure rush of genuine love for what we were doing.

Traci Sincoc asked me, "Have you ever had anyone say 'thank you' that much?" and I told her I hadn't and I wasn't sure why they were thanking me. The walk is all about these amazing women (and men) who walk for their own reasons, who hope someday to eliminate the need to have the walk at all. It's not about me. I never wanted my walk to be about me. It's about them.

But when I got up Monday morning and opened my email, I found a note from a Livonia woman who said she'd been diagnosed just a few days ago with breast cancer. She'd read in the Livonia Observer how I was walking and just wanted to thank me. It was the first time I felt like — just maybe — it was a little about me.

When we finished up Sunday at Ford World Headquarters in Dearborn, the walkers all lined up and marched into the closing ceremony. They were followed by breast cancer survivors and suddenly it was clear what the walk was about.

In the 17th mile on the first day of the walk, I was already wondering what I'd gotten myself into, wondering how I'd make it the last three miles. I decided to do it by just putting one foot in front of the other and then it dawned on me.

That's exactly what all of these people are determined to beat breast cancer. One step at a time.

Brad Kadrich, the community editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observers, was honored to walk in the Susan G. Komen Michigan 3-Day last weekend. He can be reached via email — as long as he doesn't have to walk far to get it — at bkadrich@hometownlive.com.

Superior alternative

I had the pleasure of attending a seminar in Lansing regarding an alternative to Medicaid expansion.

Senator Patrick Colbeck, sponsor of Senate Bills 459 and 460, was part of a panel which included Dr. Rob Steele, Dr. Matt Corvick, state Rep. Nancy Jenkins, Avard Roy, Senior Fellow-Manhattan Institute of Policy Research, Tom Valenti, Blue Sky Health, a direct primary care service, and Dr. Josh and Dr. Doug of Atlas, MD, a direct primary care service.

The short version was that there are alternatives to Medicaid expansion that expands access to a higher quality of health care for a lower cost than government-run programs such as Medicaid. Approximately 40 percent of the total cost of today's health care is consumed by administrative costs.

By eliminating the middlemen of expensive health insurance and the federal government, the monthly access fee for normal and preventative medical service is down in the $100 to $150 per month range for an adult. Senate Bill 459 is all about the positives of patient-centered care and reducing needless costs of large insurance companies, hugely burdensome federal bureaucracy and laborious new coding schemes.

This allows doctors to do what they do best, taking care of patients and guiding them to wiser health choices while improving care and reducing overall costs. One of the crowning benefits of Senator Colbeck's approach is that it will benefit all 10 million Michigan citizens and not just the 400,000 extra persons that the Medicaid expansion bill is projected to address.

I urge you to contact your own state representatives and senators to vote yes on SB 459 and 460. This vote could come as soon as August 27.

It sounds good

In a recent letter John Rosengren accused me of either "attacking the First Amendment rights" of the proprietor of a Plymouth business or "hoisting a liberal banner for Obama." I did neither. Mr. Rosengren's Palin-esque accusation sounds good at first blush but is actually absurd on its face. The First Amendment protects citizens from government making laws abridging freedom of speech and has nothing to do with interactions between citizens.

Likewise, the "hoisting a liberal banner" charge may sound good, but none of the economic realities I listed could remotely be identified as solely liberal outcomes or objectives. Most, like those that indicated increased inequality or upward redistribution of incomes and wealth, are specifically opposed by liberals.

Mr. Rosengren simply refuses to acknowledge that based upon the evidence President Obama has presided over an era that has been particularly good for capitalists. If I used cherry-picked facts as Mr. Rosengren suggested, I must have won the Traverse City Cherry Festival grand prize. Again the cherry-picked facts accusation sounds good but has no substance. In a cursory review I was able to identify 10 irrefutable facts in my piece representing facets of the economy that are indicators of robust capitalism.

Apparently Mr. Rosengren thinks using fancy Latin terms like ad hominem is cool because they sound good. Perhaps he should familiarize himself with the term non sequitur. That one sounds good too. His mention of slow GDP growth designed to counter in one fell swoop all the evidence that I listed that Bolsheviks are not on the march is in fact a non-sequitur.

Despite anemic growth, those who make their livings with capital are doing better than ever historically; hence, Rosengren's logic doesn't follow. Mr. Rosengren also accuses me of mudslinging and issuing an ad hominem attack based on my statement, "his claim was so easily debunked that some may consider him lazy or glib or even dishonest, all bad for business." I guess that ad hominem stuff sounds good, too, except where within that quote did I state that anyone was lazy, glib or dishonest? I was merely speculating on how some within the proprietor's customer demographic may react to his attempt to perpetuate a mythical narrative unsupported by the facts because you know, (wink, wink) these kinds of things (communist takers) can happen with a Kenyan socialist in the White House.

On-Stage cast members get ready for the debut performance of "A History of Broadway," which plays this weekend at the Village Theater at Cherry Hill in Canton.

Musical revue traces history of Broadway

BeckRidge Productions' Youth Theater program, On-Stage, opens this weekend with its debut performance of A History of Broadway. This musical revue takes its audience through the highest critically acclaimed to the most obscure musicals of the time. The cast of 25 young people range in age from middle school through college, and is directed by Greg Wiklanski. Wiklanski has directed many shows at the Village Theatre, including Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Grease, and Hairspray, among many others. Wiklanski is an adjunct instructor at Rochester College.

"Greg is not only a great director, but an amazing teacher," said cast member Brandon Waldenmayer. "He takes the time to break down each song with us so we can learn what we're really singing about, which is a big part of what makes this show so much fun." While Wiklanski will direct, his wife, Kristyn, is choreographing the production. Kristyn, a three-time Radio City Rockette, pushes the kids to reach their full potential as dancers. "Kristyn is an unbelievable dancer, but an even better teacher," said cast member Cara Gross. "When we dance, we dance hard. We leave sore and sweaty, but with a feeling of pride, like we've accomplished something none of us thought we were physically able to do."

Michael Gross, artistic director of BeckRidge Productions, serves as the show's music director. He allots time for private instruction, as well as leading group rehearsals. All of his time is used in an effort to bring out each individual's best musical performance. Songs included in the revue come from a wide range of musicals, including (but not limited to) A Chorus Line and The Producers, and even lesser-known shows such as Chess and Fiore the Red Menace. A History of Broadway runs in the Biltmore Studio at the Village Theater in Canton Aug. 23-25 with tickets priced at $15. Friday and Saturday performances begin at 7 p.m., with the Sunday matinee scheduled for 2 p.m. Tickets can be purchased online at www.beckridgechorale.org. For additional information, contact the BeckRidge Chorale at 734-667-3127.

Plymouth gridders eager to start

Wildcats ready to leave 2012 turmoil in the dust

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

For most of the 2012 season, opponents had trouble stopping the Plymouth Wildcats. Plymouth rolled to a 7-2 regular season and knocked off Livonia Churchill in the Division 1 district final, handing the Chargers their only loss of the season. The Wildcats couldn't get past Novi-Detroit Catholic Central in the regionals, but that loss did not spoil a wonderful year on the gridiron itself. A couple of months later, however, the MHSAA ruled Plymouth had to forfeit all nine wins due to an administrative oversight involving the eligibility of a reserve player. That ruling probably still stings returning players, who know from personal experience that the team—from head coach Mike Sawchuk on down—prides itself on doing everything the right way. But with the 2013 season about to begin (Plymouth faces Salem on Thursday, Aug. 29), it's time for wearers of the black and silver to trample any residual effect from that nightmare.

Focusing on 'family'

They can do just that by racking up victories. And the Wild-

Rocks one step away

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

With each passing season, Salem head football coach Kurt Britnell seems to be securing the next stepping stone in his quest to transform the Rocks into a KILAA contender. Injuries to key players have at times derailed those efforts and in 2012 the Rocks (finishing 5-4) slumped down the stretch and missed out on the magical six-win mark. In 2013, however, Britnell and company look poised to take that last step into the MHSAA playoffs. Teams with six victories earn an automatic ticket to the postseason. If the Rocks do so, it would be the first playoff spot landed during Britnell's coaching tenure, which began at the start of the 2009 season. "At a minimum, I promise you that we will be very competitive in all games," Britnell said at the podium during the recent KILAA football media day. "I'm very excited about the season. Going into my fifth year, this will be the best Salem team, the strongest and most athletic. We're very excited about the year and we look forward to getting better as a program." For any playoff berth to be landed, Britnell noted the Rocks will be called upon to show poise along with the already abundant promise of excellence. "The outlook for our season, we lost a lot of seniors, so we're going to be very young," Britnell said. "The big question is how they're going to be able to adapt to the speed and intensity of Friday nights."

Job to do

One key returnee who is confident Salem will reach six wins and finally enjoy Week 10 is senior co-captain Justin Sydlowski, a 6-0, 218-pound linebacker and tight end.

"On August 29 against Plymouth (the season opener) we're looking to come out strong and hopefully get the win," Sydlowski said during the recent KILAA football media day. "We got a lot of young players, but we're also stronger than we were last year, bigger and faster. We lost a lot of good players, but the young guys are looking

On this play from last season, Canton quarterback Greg Williams (No. 7) tries to elude a Plymouth defender. Williams is looking to take things up a notch in 2013, both for himself and the Chiefs.

Hard-driving Chiefs won't skip a beat

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

The more things change with Canton football, the more things stay the same—and that's a good thing. When the Chiefs square off Thursday, Aug. 29, against West Ottawa, standout lineman Cameron Dillard won't be there, as he is starting his college career at Division I Florida. Also having graduated are spectacular running back Malcolm Hollingsworth, sturdy tight end and free safety Matt McCoy and linemen Dan DeRosio and Mike Ditzler. "When you lose an offensive lineman as great as he (Dillard) was, he's still one guy and he can only block one guy," veteran Canton head coach Tim Baechler said. "That's not as concerning as maybe losing your starting quarterback or your leading rusher."

Still, all signs point to another big season for the Chiefs, a preseason pick of Kensington Lakes Activities Association coaches to top the Kensington Conference. "Offensively, we lost some playmakers, but I think we got some guys back who are very capable of making plays," Baechler said. "They just need to be consistent. We've got three experienced offensive linemen back (K.J. Wooley, Stephen Lyle, Nathan Michalik) and we really just need to find a tackle and a couple tight ends. "But I think we got the guys. I think our depth on both sides of the ball, on the line, is much improved, better than it's been for a couple years. I'm excited about this group."

Leading the charge

Canton, finishing with a 6-4 record in 2012, will bank on junior quarterback Greg

To the Max

It doesn't hurt to have family and friends willing to go through a wall for you. Max Merget definitely has that going for him. The Salem graduate (who played varsity baseball and boys hockey for the Rocks) is fighting a brain tumor as he gears up to begin his college career at Grand Valley State University. At his recent graduation party, Max (through his website, Max4YourBrain.org and generous donations) announced he had raised about $20,000 to help advance brain cancer research efforts.

Friday night at Salem High School, the Salem and Plymouth volleyball teams are picking up the crusade with a special program to take place between the season-opening junior varsity and varsity matches. The varsity contest will begin about 6:20 p.m., following the JV game and a presentation including the Merget family.

"There is going to be raffles, auction, T-shirt sales and bracelets," Salem varsity coach Amanda Nies said. "We are very excited to help out this amazing kid."

Nies, who said Max's older sister Nicole was a four-year mainstay for her squad, said the teams will be "Playing for Max" in hopes of continuing to raise money and awareness.

She added that, although Canton won't be on the volleyball court that night, the Chiefs also are participating in the effort.

The program with the Merget family will take place at approximately 6:15 p.m., Nies added.

Local bowlers capture gold at AAU Junior Olympics

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Bowlers from the Park literally are knocking over the competition and it doesn't matter what time of year it is. At the recent Amateur Athletics Union Junior Olympics at Super Bowl in Canton, gold-medal-winning boys and girls teams featured a decided Plymouth-Canton Educational Park imprint.

"It's nice to see the kids from the Park do well in these tournaments," said co-coach Karl Brubaker, who during the high school season coaches Canton's varsity boys bowling team. "This was real good competition."

Echoing Brubaker was another turn-of-coach, Kathie Hahn, the Salem varsity coach. "I think the AAU Junior Olympics are wonderful for kids," Hahn said. "Especially for high school kids to put on the resume, to say that they've bowled in Junior Olympics. We had three teams for Super Bowl and they all finished wonderful."

There were two Super Bowl entries in the boys 15-and-over division and one in the girls 15-and-over division at the tournament, which took place from July 28-30.

"The kids pretty much pick the teams themselves," Brubaker said. "We're just here as coaches to help them out. But it's a combination of all the schools in the area. The kids all know each other from other leagues and stuff."

"It's all high school. Some of these kids have graduated; as far as AAU, they can bowl until they're 20. Some of them are older, but they wanted to compete."

Local ties

The boys team that won gold included Canton's Aaron Madsen and Salem's Steven Cadwell (who both will again bowl for their high schools in 2013-14), Redford Thurston's Nick Bell, Zack Colosimo (Livonia Stevenson), Ryan Winters and Jarrett Cutting.

Colosimo, who will bowl at Siena Heights University, led the way with a 235-236-471 scoreline in regular games. In the team standings, Super Bowl No. 2 finished first with a total of 4,462 for two regular games and 10 Baker games. In second with 4,457 pins was Team Score No. 4. Another Super Bowl boys team won a medal for fifth place (4,366 total). On that squad were Canton grad Kurt Kowalski and Salem alum Kevin Williams, plus Josh Pozan (Canton), Brandon Allison (Salem), Jacob Peltz (Canton) and Nolan Rudis (Salem).

As for the gold-medal winning Super Bowl girls team, which topped the field with 4,194 pins (well ahead of the 3,980 chalked up by Team Score No. 3), members included Salem grad Kristin Larkins (high game of 278), Plymouth's Caitlyn Webb, Sara Schultz (Novi), Allison Morris (Ann Arbor Huron), Maddie

Klein (Walled Lake) and Daniela Perez (Belleville).

Both Brubaker and Hahn said it is beneficial for bowlers to stay sharp over the summer in such competitive tournaments.

After high school season ends, they move over to various travel leagues. From there, those interested in joining the AAU squad for Junior Olympics begin practicing in late spring, Brubaker explained.

"I think it helps them going into college," Hahn added. "Most of these kids are already on their high school teams. There's a few of them who go to Livonia schools and unfortunately Livonia won't recognize bowling as one of their sports for high school.

"But all the other kids are all high school bowlers already or have graduated and going on to college to bowl."

Both Larkins and Williams told their former coach they would be trying out for club teams at Schoolcraft College.

Meanwhile, several P-CEP bowlers made their mark in lower age divisions.

Meghan Macunovich, entering ninth grade at Canton, won the girls 14-and-under singles event with 234. She also was part of the first-place doubles team in that division with Lucy Pugh. They rolled 170 and 189.

In the boys 14-and-under division, Salem freshman twins Shane and Mitchell Rusinek teamed up to place second in the doubles event. They bowled 198 and 162.

North stars

Brubaker, who said this was the fourth AAU Junior Olympics but first in Michigan, said there were 10 boys teams (virtually all from the state) and three girls teams.

One of the teams, from Rogers City (located north of Alpena), featured 300 games by Justin Hazel and Nicko Robinson.

"These two shot 300 the same game, on pairs next to each other," Brubaker said. "That was something."

Hazel and Robinson also won gold in the boys 15-and-over doubles event; Justin's brother, Zach Hazel, won gold in the boys 15-and-over singles event for the second consecutive year.

Power-packed Schoolcraft spikers show plenty of promise

By Brad Emmons
Staff Writer

Fourth-year Schoolcraft College volleyball coach Rod Brumfield has assembled a potentially potent lineup for the 2013 season—not to use a pun—that is fit to kill.

"The girls I have are significantly more technical," said Brumfield, who guided the Lady Ocelots to a 20-15 overall record in 2012. "And that's important to me. It's not just not athletic and talent, you've got to be technically sound. And we're getting there very quickly. That's kind of what we've been seeking in this recruiting class. You're going to see an entirely different roster."

Schoolcraft is coming off a third-place finish (9-3) in the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association and a first-round setback to Muskegon CC in the quarterfinals of the NCAA Division II District E tournament.

The most notable losses to graduation were the Kempinski twins from Livonia Churchill, Kara and Nicole, a pair of second-team All-MCCAA picks who will play this fall at Marygrove College.

Two All-MCCAA freshman players, however, return, including 5-foot-11 outside hitter Emily Bondar (Allen Park Cabrini) and 5-6 outside hitter Stephanie Gibson (Brighton). "They've already represented very well," Brumfield said. "They lead on and off the court very, very well. They know what their jobs are and part of our initial success will be a result of how they're leading."

Two other sophomores will be on the roster, including 6-foot right-side hitter Morgan Copperstone (Livonia Stevenson), 5-9 opposite hitter Cayla Bone and 5-5 setter and defensive specialist Julene Pummell (both of Garden City).

Breanne Rudolph (Waterford Mott) will also play the back row and possesses good jumping ability and a 65 mph jump serve, according to Brumfield.

Other incoming freshmen include 5-9 setter Lindsey Umin (New Boston Huron).

"She comes to work every day and enjoys the game," Brumfield said. "She's lean and mean and will be an impact player."

Also expected to contribute will be three players with Observeland ties, including 6-foot right-side hitter Morgan Copperstone (Livonia Stevenson), 5-9 opposite hitter Cayla Bone and 5-5 setter and defensive specialist Julene Pummell (both of Garden City).

Breanne Rudolph (Waterford Mott) will also play the back row and possesses good jumping ability and a 65 mph jump serve, according to Brumfield.

Other incoming freshmen include 5-9 setter Lindsey Umin (New Boston Huron); 5-10 middle hitter Katie Summers (Cabrini); 5-10 right-side hitter Sydnee Miller (Monroe Jefferson); 5-4 setter-defensive specialist Amber Staudt (Novi); and 5-9 defensive specialist Karlee Harding (Kennedy).

"I think we're going to ramp up comfortably," Brumfield said. "The first couple of scrimmages have been a lot of nerves. We're predominantly freshmen, so everybody is pretty nervous. But we've recovered very quickly and very well, as I've expected with this team. The kids look good. They're healthy and athletic. They have skills and they're getting better each day an inch at a time."

Brumfield has a couple of concerns, however, as the Lady Ocelots open their season Friday and Saturday in the Oakland CC Lady Raider Block City Classic.

"We have to adapt to the level of competition that we play," he said. "The speed and physicality ... we need to adapt. That's our weakness for now."

But the fourth-year coach remains highly optimistic.

"I've watched Schoolcraft between 10 and 15 years in the past and this has to be the nicest looking, balanced freshman class I've seen come in, certainly since I've been here," he said. "It's very promising."

Mercy High reloading varsity for promising new girls golf season

Marlins hope to be state-title contenders again in 2013

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Mercy High School had some major graduation losses after one standing 2012 season in girls golf, but coach

Nicky Kowalski has a new set of players ready to step up and fill the void.

Instead of lowered expectations, the result could well be another successful campaign for the Marlins, who were the Division 1 state runners-up to Plymouth last fall.

All-state selection Brenna Hammond was among the graduates. She was a first-team all-area player, as were fellow Class of 2013 members Sarah Montone and Gillian Hickey. Hammond is playing at Eastern Michigan University, Montone at the University of Detroit-Mercy.

Senior Jess Geer and junior Erica Heath are returning players who were part of the state finals team and they'll be supported by a group of capable players who were on the varsity 'B' team.

"In the back of their minds, they're wondering, 'Can we do this? Can we take it all?' Kowalski said. "We don't have the superstar. But we didn't have the superstar last year. If we can put five girls in the 80s, we'll be in contention (for the state title)."

"Brenna did get all-state. Part of that was where she finished in the state finals. In the overall scheme of things, it was a balanced, team effort that made Mercy successful. We went to a lot of tournaments where we put four kids in the 80s and that put us in contention."

Geer, a second-team all-area player, is ready to assume the role of team leader as the No. 1 player in the lineup, according to Kowalski. "She said, 'I don't care who we're playing against; I can play against them, so she's ready to take on the best competition in the state,' she said. "Last year, I think she surprised some people at the state finals. She was our second-best golfer behind Brenna."

"She was a young lady who steadily improved. You can never discount her effort. She works harder on her short game than any player I've ever coached. She's a real workhorse."

Senior Alysa Graf, who was injured most of last season, has played well early and moved into the No. 2 position.

She attended a boot camp in the winter and played a lot of tournaments in the summer to get ready.

"I really liked what I saw in tryouts," Kowalski said, adding the girls played 18 holes three days in a row. "I really like the way she carries herself around the golf course. She's very sure of her game."

"It was too bad she couldn't play too much last year, because she might have been a known name, too. I'm hoping she'll shine this year and open up some eyes."

Senior Katie Baird was the sixth varsity player last year and went to the state meet as a potential substitute.

At the present time, sophomore Julia Shaw and senior Kristin Swad complete the six-person 'A' team. Shaw played in five varsity events, but both were on the 'B' squad for much of last season.

Junior Olivia Asta, who also was on the 'B' team for two years, and senior Natalie Bozomowski are pushing for a spot in the varsity lineup, too. Senior Lizzie Schmitt, junior Amy Vlachos and sophomore Kendyl Kirkland complete the 11-player varsity team. All three were on the JV squad last year.

The Marlins hope to have another undefeated season in dual matches and repeat as Catholic League champions.

Just like the old days! D'Angelo head coach again

By Marty Budner
Staff Writer

It's been 14 years since Joe D'Angelo strolled onto the football field as a high school head coach.

But there he was this week backing instructions, teaching drills and sauntering through three-day practice sessions on the picturesque Cranbrook Kingswood campus, like he did in the old days at neighboring Detroit Country Day.

Yes, D'Angelo is enjoying his return to the gridiron. He was particularly excited by a solid two-minute drill with his offense completed 24-of-25 passes at the tail end of Thursday's late practice session.

"It's been really good," D'Angelo said. "We're getting a lot done and I'm excited."

"We have some great young kids and our practices have been going very well," he added. "We have some skilled players and I see a lot of potential. I think they were surprised at the demands we have put on them so far, but they are responding very well."

D'Angelo coached for 21 years at Country Day, where he had only one losing season (4-5 in 1997).

He led the Yellow-jackets to 11 playoff appearances and three state championship games, which resulted in a pair of state titles.

D'Angelo retired as DCD's head coach following the 1997 season. He stayed away from coaching until last year, when he returned as an assisstant coach at Cranbrook Kingswood under then-head coach Steve Graf. Graf, also the school's athletic director, stepped down as head coach last year after three years at the position. D'Angelo was offered the job as head coach and accepted in February.

"Certain things from an organizational standpoint have not changed as much as point come back easy," said D'Angelo, elected to the Michigan High School Football Coaches Hall of Fame in 1990. "I have to say, it's been fun getting back into it. Even when you are away for so many years, things tend to come back quickly."

"The game has changed to some extent, like offenses are a bit different now, and to those things I defer to my assistant coaches." "My role is basically to bring things together. We have a great coaching staff with a lot of experience and they are really helping me out."

Cranbrook Kingswood has enjoyed just one winning season — 5-4 in 2009 — over the past seven years. However, D'Angelo optimistically looks forward as the school has invested in a new artificial turf football field, new uniforms, new locker rooms and an upgraded weight room.

"Our numbers are a little bit better than last year, but we're looking for a little bit more participation right now," said D'Angelo, whose preseason roster consisted of 40 total players.

"But I think it's just a matter of winning some games."

"Once you get going and start winning, you begin building momentum," he added. "That's the way it was at DCD, too. But I like the potential here and I still have a passion for the game. They have been really good to me here."

to step up right now. They're working hard. Things are looking good for us."

Sydowski will be at the other end of throws from strong-armed sophomore quarterback Alex Nicholson or junior Colin Savage.

A number of players will be vying for a share of reps at wide receiver, too. Candidates include seniors Michael Hoover, Brenden Sherrod, James Upshaw, Zaid Hanif, Joshua T. Laurent, Josh Boctor and Jon Nushi. Underclassmen in the mix at wideout are juniors Miles Newton, Chris Cook, Brayden Amadesso, McCoy Mason, Joe Miazek, Anthony Polce, Lewis Campbell,

Joe Campana, Alex Petracca and D.J. King. Of course, a major cog in Salem's offense will be senior running back Drake Jordan, who amassed more than 1,200 all-purpose yards in 2012. Augmenting Jordan in the backfield will be seniors Gu-wain Ingram and Andrew Hunt. Others expected to carry part of the load are juniors Devin Cameron, Anthony Georguev, Lawrence Cook and Ty Traynor.

Lining up

Britnell's blueprint for success obviously features stellar work in the trenches, underlined and highlighted.

Junior co-captain Ben Howie packs a blocking wallop despite being just 5-9 and 205. He also will be a key component of the defensive line.

Another key lineman is 6-1, 270-pound junior Lucas Callahan.

The list of two-way linemen is long, with other hopefuls including seniors Tony Avant, Ray Williams, Travis Babb, Paul Somerville, Vince Troher, Cody Olive, Joshua Branch and Andrew Asquith.

If the offense can't finish off a drive with a touchdown, the Rocks can rely on the steady work of senior kicker and co-captain Alex Ken-

Williams spearheading the offense and senior linebacker Jake Boucher being the defensive catalyst.

Baechler noted that Williams is "a year smarter, more experienced. He's faster and stronger, he's going to be more assertive when he runs the ball. I think he's going to be excellent."

Early projections are for junior Chuck Turfe and senior Robert Daoud to be the go-to runners, with Boucher a prime target out of the backfield.

Baechler said one challenge is finding "some more guys who catch the ball and make big plays at the other end," but he is confident that the Chiefs' offense will put plenty of points on the scoreboard.

"Obviously, we're Canton, so we're going to be running the ball with power, using the play-action," Williams said. "But Jake (Boucher) can go out there and be a wideout and catch the ball. We got some other guys that possibly could do that. I think we can spread it out a little bit."

Williams added that he will be on a mission to "step up and make more plays. ... Be more of an effective player, not just to throw the ball and hand it off, but to be like a dual-threat quarterback. But I'm excited for the season."

One challenge will be to find a kicker to take over from graduated Connor Shennan and pin opponents inside their own 20-yard line thanks to through-the-end-zone kickoffs.

Make things happen

And then, the defense will go to work on forcing as many turnovers as possible to help set up the offense.

"We must create more turnovers, tackle better and eliminate the big play defensively," Baechler said.

Boucher will be gearing up to do just that, with considerable help from senior defensive backs Weston Price, James Hall and Daniel Kilgore and junior Turfe. "Hopefully, our defense comes through this year with bigger plays and holding our opponents to less points,"

Boucher said: "We really need to work on every angle of defense. I wouldn't say it was terrible last year, but it definitely wasn't Canton defense where we want it to be."

When asked for a definition of Canton defense, he called it "nose on the ball, hitting people hard, just not letting them get past the line of scrimmage."

WILDCATS

cats are expected to do a lot of winning, at least according to an informal coaches poll ranking them second in the Kensington Conference.

"We just got to look past it," senior lineman Jacob Lackey said during a media event kicking off the season.

"We can't focus on that as much we just got to focus on the season coming up."

Whatever transpired a year ago might be a motivating factor for the 2013 Wildcats, or maybe it won't even matter. That's because they are as united as ever, according to senior wideout and defensive back Connor Stella.

"I think we should be good, we've got a lot of young kids that are really going to step up," Stella said. "Everyone's really excited for the season. We're coming together as a team."

"Everyone loves each other, that's what we focus on. We focus on family, that's the heart of everything we do — 'Family!'"

Senior leaders

The man at the head of the table sets the tone. "I've got my seniors to be good leaders, as always, but I need my young kids to grow up quick," Sawchuk said. "They've had a really good summer in the weight room, in the 7-on-7s."

"We could be starting anywhere up to three to four sophomores, so I'm going to need the maturity to come quick."

A four-way scrimmage Thursday against South Lyon will help Sawchuk gain further clarity about any lingering questions. It looks as though the coach has no worries in the leadership department, especially with Stella and Lackey.

"Nate (Emminger) was a great player, but this year we're focusing on the team as a whole," Stella said. "We need everyone to do their part for the team. We've got a lot of young kids, so we're going to have to coach them up and do everything great."

Echoing those sentiments was Lackey. "We're young, like coach said," Lackey said. "It's going to be really exciting and interesting to see how we do, because we need everyone to grow quick."

"We need everyone to fill in the roles because we only have a small amount of returning starters."

Sawchuk already knows not to take any for granted in the ultra-competitive KLAAS.

"Our league, there's so much parity in it and it keeps getting better," he said. "It's going to be a kind of every game."

As always, the quarterback position will be crucial to how much success the Wildcats enjoy.

Sophomore Christian Walls is putting some heat on senior A.J. Conventino, who was a back-up in 2012 to now-graduated Jamaril Eiland.

Go-to players on offense include senior running back DJ Rossell more than 1,000 yards rushing) and Stella at wide receiver.

Other targets for the quarterback could include juniors Deji Adebisi, Phil Avromoski, Tim Kays and seniors Josh Morris, Matt Busch and Doug Lyons.

When Walls isn't under center, he'll be another player Conventino can throw to.

FAST FACTS

School: Plymouth.

Head coach: Mike Sawchuk (seventh year).

League affiliation: KLAAS Kensington Conference (South Division).

2012 record: 4-3.

Notable losses to graduation: Jamaril Eiland, QB; Nate Emminger, WR-DB; Matt Janke, WR-DB; Brenton Zuzo, K-P;

Josh Derrard, DB; Stefan Turrentine, RB-LB; Mike Kennedy, RB-LB; Jake McMillan, OL-DL; Chris Matelli, TE.

Key returnees: Derrick "D.J." Rossell, Sr. RB; Jacob Lackey, Sr. OL; Connor Stella, Jr. WR-DB; Shane Raymond, Jr. LB; Logan Luttrell, Jr. OL; Viet Nguyen, Sr. K-P.

Sawchuk outlook: "We have to replace lots of really good skilled starters; play great defense in a multiple 4-3 scheme; be great on special teams."

2013 schedule (all games 7 p.m.): Aug. 29, Salem; Sept. 6, at Milford; Sept. 13, Livonia Churchill; Sept. 20, at Livonia Franklin; Sept. 27, at Westland John Glenn; Oct. 4, at Wayne Memorial; Oct. 11, Canton; Oct. 18, KLAAS crossover; Oct. 25, at Grand Blanc.

Winning blueprint

It will help to have a strong offensive line (featuring Lackey), as well as yet another strong-legged kicker in senior two-sport athlete Viet Nguyen — who also is on Plymouth's varsity boys soccer team. The soccer-football connection is by design. "Listen, we need to be great on special teams and control field position," So he's done a great job as far as getting kids interested."

Junior Logan Luttrell (also a tight end) will anchor the defensive line, with junior middle linebacker Shane Raymond another force to be reckoned with.

"We've been fortunate to have some great athletes the last three years," Sawchuk said.

"We're going to be very, very young."

The Wildcats might be younger than previous seasons, but they'll still pound the football, control the clock and play shut-down defense.

Local players lead Detroit to international crown

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

One of the most intense United States vs. Canada athletic battles in recent memory played out Sunday afternoon at Windsor's Mic Mac Park – and (surprise!) there wasn't a hockey puck in sight.

The sport was baseball and the eventual championship team in the International Children's Games wore red, white and blue uniforms and calls places like Garden City, Canton, Southfield, West Bloomfield and Dearborn home.

In one of the most riveting games head coach Craig Cotter has ever taken part in, his Detroit team edged Windsor, 3-2, in the ICG's gold medal contest.

The Americans' victory avenged an earlier 3-2 setback to the host team in a pool-play classic.

Detroit upended a team from Marion, Ind.,

7-0, in a semifinal match-up. Japan and Pakistan were also represented at the tournament. Each team consisted of 14- and 15-year-old players.

"The atmosphere for that championship game was absolutely unbelievable," said Cotter, who is an assistant baseball coach at Dearborn Divine Child.

"It was standing-room only – I'd estimate there were over 1,000 people there. The Canadians' horns were blaring, there were 'USA! USA!' chants. It was so much fun to be a part of.

"The most impressive thing about the entire game was that both teams played like major league teams. There was one remarkable defensive play after another. Our kids had a lot of fun with all their free time during their stay there, but when it was time to play ball, they were dead-on serious."

The Detroit entry finished with a 4-1 record

Members of the Detroit team celebrate after defeating Windsor 3-2, in the championship game of last week's International Children's Games. Four Garden City players and a Canton resident played on the team. WINDSOR STAR in the tournament. Led by Southfield native Amani Godfrey's five-hit, complete-game gem in the title game, the locals yielded just two runs over their final 23 innings of competition.

"We didn't hit the cover off the ball," Cotter said, "but our pitching and defense were amazing."

The four players who represented Garden City – Dakota Mahkimetass, Tyler Kelly, Alex Centofanti and Kyle Wadysiak – all made huge contributions, Cotter noted.

"Dakota had some timely hits and pitched extremely well in our first game against Windsor," Cotter said. "Tyler pitched twice and was flawless, while making several great plays in the outfield. Alex gave us solid defense in center, right and left – his versatility was huge. And Kyle is one of the best defensive first basemen I've ever seen at this age."

Canton's Ryan Radwan also played a key role while serving as the team's leadoff batter and starting third baseman. "Ryan is probably the most popular kid on the team," Cotter said. "He's always laughing and smiling. But once he steps foot on the field, he's all business."

An RBI single by Mahkimetass gave Detroit a quick 1-0 advantage in the top of the first before Windsor countered with two runs in the bottom of the inning.

Detroit evened the ledger at 2-2 when Mahkimetass was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in the top of the fifth.

The eventual winning run scored on Godfrey's bases-loaded fielder's choice ground-out in the sixth.

Mark your calendars for Livonia's outdoor flea market

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Stories of finding inexpensive crystal pieces and hard-to-find artifacts are legendary among the bargain-hunters at the Livonia Historical Society's annual fall flea market.

"One of our volunteers has a Waterford sense and she can spot Waterford anywhere. She'll tell you, 'Oh, my gosh, I got this for a dollar or that for two dollars.' Another member found a beautiful footed silver tray for 75 cents," said Linda Wiacek, program supervisor at Greenmead, Livonia's historic village. "People have been thrilled about what they got. I've seen birdbaths, lawn statues, antique sewing machines, toys—it runs the gamut. I know Olympia Stadium seats have been purchased here."

Robert Legel of the society recalls that a volunteer and Civil War buff once found a coveted "reverse trumpet" at the show.

"It goes over your shoulder and the horn points backwards so that when they were marching, they'd hear the sound," Legel explained. "There's a lot of Civil War stuff, old records, glassware, it's a whole panorama."

They guarantee shoppers will find many treasure-hunting opportunities at this year's show, set for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8, at Greenmead, located at Newburgh and Eight Mile. Admission is $2 for adults; children under 12 are admitted free. Food and refreshments will be available and from noon to 3 p.m. the village will be open for tours.

Wiacek said more than 170 vendors will sell their antiques, collectibles and garage sale items, making the upcoming fall show the biggest yet.

Proceeds for preservation

The fall show is one of two flea markets held annually at Greenmead. The June event benefits Greenmead. The society co-sponsors the fall show with the Livonia Historical Commission, but its proceeds also benefit the historical village.

"Money from the flea market goes for preservation and restoration of the buildings here at Greenmead," Wiacek said. "Our biggest project ever attempting is coming to conclusion—the Simmons Hill house. We've been raising money for that for decades and working on it less than a year."

A restoration company is refurbishing the house from floor to ceiling, fixing plaster, the roof, radiators, upgrading electrical, plumbing, heating, repainting and re-doing floors. Air conditioning was added to help keep the building at a consistent temperature in the summer, aiding preservation of artifacts.

"We're not done with the project. The exterior looks fabulous and the interior looks good. We hope to have it open in December."

The June show drew more than 4,000 visitors to Greenmead. Wiacek expects a repeat next month if weather stays dry.

"In June, we had so many people walking out with kitschy-looking artifacts, decorative things you'd find in a home. There was a lot of interesting stuff."

She found a 1940s telephone that reminded her of her childhood. "I was thrilled with it," she said.

LOCAL MOM GOES ORGANIC ON A BUDGET

By Pamela A. Zinkosky
Correspondent

The word "organic" seems to be popping up everywhere. Most grocery stores now offer some organic fruits and vegetables. There's organic yogurt, organic milk and even organic snack foods. It's enough to make a mainstream eater think twice. Organic, a label regulated by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration, means the food was produced with no genetically-modified organisms or other chemical additives. Is it really better? And is it worth the extra money?

Yes, says Julie TwoMoon, a naturopathic doctor and the founder of Seven Directions Center for Restorative Medicine in Plymouth, who feeds her family of five only organic foods.

"The most poignant importance is not eating genetically-modified foods and the residues," TwoMoon said. "They're directly related to dramatic cellular changes," also known as the precursors to diseases like cancer.

Studies on mice have shown the results of eating genetically modified corn. There's immediate bleeding in the digestive tract, and cancerous cells have developed within two years, TwoMoon said.

Granted, it's TwoMoon's business to support organic foods as a naturopathic doctor. But her arguments were enough to win over her office manager, Elizabeth Dunham, a Plymouth resident with a 10-year-old son.

Making the change

"It was something I had been thinking about for about a year," Dunham said. "One day there was that tipping point."

Dunham went all organic last winter. During her first week on the new diet, she paid $50 more for groceries because she bought staples, including a big bag of organic flour. It turned out that with a little planning, buying organic isn't nearly as expensive as she thought.

"I was feeding a family of five for $150-$200 per week," she said. At that time, her household included herself, her son, her husband, her mother-in-law and brother-in-law.

Dunham's prime sources for organic are Better Health and Pure Pastures in Plymouth, along with some farmers markets.

Coupons are available for 10-20 percent off groceries at Better Health, depending on the day you shop, she said. At Pure Pastures, it's not uncommon to find a diet that entitles you to a free chicken if you spend $50.

Dunham noticed one other savings perk. "What I noticed first was I was able to buy less (of the meat) and it went further."

She said the taste of the food seemed to improve — no "soapy after-taste" — and best of all, her health improved.

"When I started working here (at Seven Directions), I was about 100 pounds heavier," Dunham said. "Once I made the switch to organic, I started melting."

It's a phenomenon Dunham attributes to the chemicals in the food she previously was eating. "It would be like putting sugar in the gas tank of a car," she said. Your body just doesn't work as efficiently as it does without those additives, she explained.

And it's not that she isn't eating fat or is consuming only low-calorie foods. Dunham said she is choosing a higher standard — organic — for her food.

Growing their own

Dunham recently collaborated with TwoMoon to create an organic garden that will supply her food and cut costs even more. It's called a hugelkultur garden, and it's poised to yield more produce and herbs than other gardens. It needs little to no water.

Originally developed by Austrian agricultural consultant Sepp Holzer, the garden starts with a trench filled with 200-pound tree trunks and other large pieces of wood. The wood acts as a sponge in absorbing water and continually providing moisture to the soil.

TwoMoon has two such gardens — one in her front yard and one in her back yard — and said they cost next to nothing to build.

The trees and wood came from local companies that were happy to donate them for gardens, rather than pay for their removal. But it does take work to dig the trench.

"Ours is down about a foot and a half," TwoMoon said. "To the naked eye, it looks like a landscape berm," she said.

Since Dunham helped build the gardens, she has "joint custody." As harvest time draws near, she'll have access to free produce. TwoMoon also uses the produce to feed her family, and she harvests herbs like dill, fennel, Echinacea, basil and oregano for cooking and medicinal purposes.

TwoMoon encourages patients to eat organic, but understands it's not easy at first. "I have a philosophy that we're going to take giant baby steps," she said. "It's all about making that choice to start."

TwoMoon recommends starting with meat sources, since chemicals fed to animals can be the most toxic. Seek out grass-fed beef and chicken as well as organic eggs. Next, she recommends moving to organic grains, and then produce.

"We have sources right here in Plymouth," she said. She shops at Pure & Local Food in Plymouth as well as People's Food Co-op in Ann Arbor and Zerbe's in Livonia.

Dunham, for one, is happy she made the switch.

"You're still able to eat normally," Dunham said. "You're just making different choices. I'll still eat a bagel and cream cheese. It's just really the quality of the food."

Good to know good neighbors in times of need, joy

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Denise Semion of Plymouth Township values neighbor Joanne Wibright.

"When I'm gone, she waters my pathetic little garden," said Semion, who lives by Wibright in the Lake Pointe subdivision in northern Plymouth Township. "She has a magnificent garden. She's bringing over a bounty of tomatoes soon."

Semion, communications manager for the Huron-Clinton Metroparks, and her husband alert the Wibrights when they're out of town. "It's always a comfort to know you've got somebody to depend on," Semion said.

The women also talk over the fence, gaining emotional support. Semion had a medical issue with her mom. "We talked for a while and she gave me a hug," she said.

Semion moved to the neighborhood in 1994, Wibright shortly after. Semion will give Wibright leftover cake for their three kids at home (there's another off at graduate school) to reciprocate.

"I think Lake Pointe has always had a good reputation for nice houses and nice people," Semion said of her purchase. She also considered freeway access for commuting.

Realtor Bob Bake of Plymouth, with Coldwell Banker Weir Manuel, has been in the business since 1967. Bake, who grew up in Northville, agrees good neighbors matter when buying.

"I don't think buyers give enough attention to who might live behind them or next to them," he said. He knows Plymouth and Northville well, but still encourages prospective buyers to ask a neighbor or two about living there.

"It makes sense to make an inquiry privately with a neighbor," he said. The prospective buyer can ask about schools.

"It can really help the buyer make the right judgment," Bake said. "I think neighbors are important. They are to me."

You can even visit the local police station to check reports on any safety issues. "I think that's a good step to do as well," he said.

Due diligence on buying includes schools for those with children. "Schools are always a major influencing factor for young families," Bake said. Walkability and bus stop location are key.

He encourages a visit to the local elementary, middle or high school to check it out.

Bake has been in his Plymouth home 25 years. "Yes, I'm very fortunate," he said of neighbors. "I really had a high comfort level before I made the transition." His work gave him that knowledge.

He knows others who've been adjacent to a lighted, pro basketball court in the rear yard. "It's a real noise-maker," Bake said. "You really have no privacy on your patio or terrace."

That can happen with a backyard pool, too, he said, although the season is much shorter.

Expect to pay in Rome

Q: Are residential housing prices any more reasonable in Rome than has been the case in the past?

A: Generally not, since the availability for building new residences is limited by space and stringent municipal regulations. If you want to purchase an apartment or house overlooking the city, perhaps 20 minutes away from the Colosseum, it can be even more expensive, similar to Paris or New York. As in the U.S., you should retain a lawyer, along with an experienced real estate broker, before you sign any agreement.

Q: I am thinking about buying a villa either around Sienna, Italy or Florence, Italy. Am I better off buying a condominium or a villa and where?

A: Both cities are quaint and majestic and offer housing at relatively reasonable costs depending, of course, on the location. If you want a reasonable apartment, you can find one in Sienna near the center of town at a reasonable cost, but in Florence you will have to go outside of the core city if you want anything resembling a high rise. As to a villa, anywhere in Tuscany can be lovely, but more pricey, look carefully before you leap!
