Canton earns 'very solid' financial report

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

As the Great Recession fades further in the rear-view mirror, a new audit shows Canton Township has its larg-est budget surplus in six Canton's latest general fund balance - the amount not allocated for specific purposes – stood at $6.9 million as last year ended. That's the largest amount since 2008, when a $7.3 million surplus was reported, Canton Finance and Budget Director Wendy Trum-bull said.

The latest figures, re-vealed Tuesday during a Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting, came from Plante Moran, an outside auditing firm.

"If you were selling stock, I would buy it," Plante Moran partner Michael Swartz told the board.

He warned that financial difficulties linger, but he said Canton appears in "very solid financial condition" after the board made recession-era decisions to trim spending, secure employee concessions and impose two public safety tax increases within four years totaling 3.25 mills. Supervisor Phil LaJoy, who has made long-range budget forecasting a linchpin of his administration's financial planning, welcomed news that Canton is continuing to rebound, without ever adopting the draconian cuts to services that some communities still

Trumbull said Canton's finances have been helped by a strong uptick in new development, particularly resi-

Fighting Parkinson's, orthodontist turns to art

> By Matt Jachman Staff Write

Ross Anderson's career for three decades combined science and art, so he's now turning toward art to help science fight a disease that changed the course of his life.

Anderson, who draws, paints and has a growing interest in woodworking, is hosting a small exhibit of his works 5-7:30 p.m Friday at the Plymouth Community Arts Council. The open house, with refreshments and live piano mu-sic, is a fundraiser for the Michael J. Fox Foundation.

Like the television (Family Ties, Spin City) and movie (the Back to the Future trilogy) actor Michael J. Fox, Anderson has Parkinson's, a degenerative disease of the central nervous system that causes patients to lose control of their movements. An orthodontist in Canton Township for 23 years, Anderson, 55, sold his practice and retired at the end of 2013 because of the disease.

"I was concerned about the quality of my work," he said.

But Anderson has continued making art, which, as in orthodontics, means working with his hands, something he's long enjoyed and now finds thera-

Categorical money may restore some P-CCS positions slated for layoff

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

A certain type of funding - categorical aid that is used specifically to help at-risk children just may restore some positions that were recommended to be cut as Plymouth-Canton school district officials hammer away at a more than $5 million deficit in 2015-16.

'At our last meeting, we tried to take a closer look at resources," Super-intendent Michael Meissen said as a way of introducing the impact of categorical funding on the budget.

Monica Merritt, assistant superintendent of human resources and labor relations, told a room packed with parents, staff and students Tuesday, that the district is anticipating $1.2 million in categorical state aid - also known as 31a.

Typically, the state does not complete its budgeting and announce the exact amount the district will really get until October. But at least 80 percent is expected, Meissen said.

The categorical funding, which is a grant, follows the needs of children who, for example, are at risk with reading skills. In Plymouth, reading interventionists work to get children reading at their grade level. But some of those interventionists were recommended for reduction to balance the upcoming new budget.

Now, expecting at least 80 percent of that funding, Merritt said, some of the positions may be restored as planning of the 2015-16 budget continues.

School board trustees questioned why they had not been informed during the last few weeks of budget deliberations. Meissen explained that since his arrival about two years ago, he and other administrators have been going though the district's financial puzzle. In doing that, administrators have been able to accurately determine where categorical funding has been previously spent and now redirect it - as are the rules - to students who require additional help.

That help is typically provided by interventionists, paraprofessionals and media specialists, which means some of these positions previously targeted for reduction likely can be re-stored. "It is pretty much based on student needs with various categories of at-risk students," Merritt said, adding that categorical aid is not part of the district's general operating fund. "This money supports the needs of a specific learn-

The increase amounts to an estimated total of about $631,548 (based on a current 17,543 student count) in additional revenue for the district in 2015-16. The current per-pupil state foundation funding is $7,241, which with a $10 equity payment totals $7,251, according to the district.

The board is expected to again review the proposed reductions at next week's meeting, sched-uled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 16. A public hearing on the proposed budget is expected June 23, at which time the board could adopt the docu-

Anderson has recently taken to painting scenes inspired by history. One painting in the show, "Daybreak at Gettys-burg," is a view evoked by the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania. A reproduction of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, hand-etched in glass by Anderson, can be set over the painting. The work is normally at Pioneer Middle School, where it is displayed on long-term loan from the artist. With a love for art, Anderson was also drawn to science. He studied chemical engineering at the University of Michigan (where he drew covers for the engineering school magazine), got his dentistry degree from U-M in 1984 and his orthodontics degree from the University of Rochester in 1990.

He's worked both in the clinic and in the classroom and still teaches at U-M, where he has a twice-a-month class in clinical orthodontics.

Aside from "a little bit of doodling," however, Anderson had put art aside for much of his career in dentistry and orthodontics. He picked it back up around the year 2000, he said, though in recent years it's become

The drawing is very hard with my condition, so I probably won't be doing many more ink drawings," he said. Fine movements, he said, become increasingly difficult for Parkinson's patients to control and are more exhausting for them than taking a walk.

'I have a responsibility'

Lately, Anderson has become more involved in woodworking, making picture frames, plant stands and jewelry boxes. Though the designs can be intricate, he said, power tools can do most of the tougher work for him.

"The fun part is being able to make a unique design, something that hasn't been done before," he said.

Anderson sees his Fox Foundation fundraiser as a way of giving back, "I just have a responsibility to help out," he said. Anderson lives in Sa-

An editorial about the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, its budget document and social media in the Thursday, June 11, Observer should have said that school administrators posted the weekly Board of Education agenda, including a 300-page proposed budget document, on the district web-site (www.pccs.k12.mi.us/). The budget document was not specifically requested by parents. # Wings of Wonder: Canton library gets butterfly garden

By Darrell Clem

An ambitious project to create a tranquil butterfly garden outside the Canton Public Library has gained momentum, giving patrons of Canton's information hub a place to observe nature.

It even has a name, Wings of Wonder, coined by Mrs. Sparks' firstgrade class at Dodson Elementary School during a contest sponsored by The Friends of the Canton Public Library.

Friends President Linda Garrett said the butterfly garden idea took flight as a community project spearheaded by the volunteer group. In part, it honors Friends members who have died.

'I've been wanting a butterfly garden for us," she said. "Finally, we have one."

The garden already is taking shape, but Friends member Rhoda Wolshon said efforts continue to secure donations of butterfly-friendly trees, flowers and shrubs from

Johnson Controls looks to spin off automotive division

By Matt Jachman

Plymouth Township Supervisor Shannon Price is asking for a meeting with officials and Johnson Controls Inc. following Wednesday's announcement that the company wants to sell off its automotive business, which has its North American headquarters and a technical center in the township.

Price said he would do what he can to ensure that, whatever ends up happening to the division, the jobs remain in the community. More than 1,000 people work at the Johnson Controls campus in the township.

JOHNSON CONTROLS

Johnston Controls' North American headquarters building for its Automotive Experience division is on Halyard Drive in Plymouth Township.

"That's a very suc-cessful facility," Price said Friday. "We have an area where a lot of hightech companies like to be next to each other and work together, collaborate."

He added: "I'm committed to working to do the best I can to keep as many of those jobs in Plymouth Township as we can."

Selling off the automotive division, which the company calls Automotive Experience, would essentially mean shedding the automotive seating division, as auto batteries are considered part of another division and auto interiors are being folded into a joint venture with a Chinese company, a Johnson Controls corporate spokesman said.

Spokesman Fraser Engerman said the process is in its earliest stage, that no potential purchaser or partner has been identified nor a plan for spinning off the division mapped out and that the company has set no timetable for the

"It really should be considered business as usual for our employees at our Automotive Experience business," Engerman said.

"Obviously we will be letting folks know as we go through this process," he added.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Alex Molinaroli was to appear at the Plymouth Township campus Wednesday to speak personally to employees.

Molinaroli said Wednesday the announcement "continues our strategy of proactive portfolio management to drive focus on strategic product-oriented businesses where we can be a global market leader, drive more profitable growth and deliver maximum long-term value.'

Johnson Controls is a global company with products and services in several sectors, including automobile components, building mechanical systems, batteries, real estate and facilities management. The company has about 170,000 employees globally, about 60,000 in its automotive division.

Starkweather's young authors get published

By Joanne Maliszewski

Maybe it's how the likes of best-selling authors James Patterson, John Grisham and Janet Evanovich started. If so, students in Sheena Clark's class at Starkweather Academy have opened a new door as their first-ever books are published

"Each of the books has a lesson to learn when you are finished reading," Clark said

In the project, "What Makes a Great Story? students in Clark's composition class delved into and used basic story elements, including plot, dialogue, characters and setting.

Clark built the project and learning how to write a creative story around life lessons that children should learn. The young authors also illustrated their stories. Her ultimate goal was also to have student books published.

Not an easy task, so Clark applied to the Plymouth-Canton Educational Excellence Foundation for a grant, which she received. The funding, in conjunction with the Delta Kappa Gamma, Gamma Gamma Chapter, allowed her to - with the purchase of a color scanner - print the books and put them online, as well as to have them published by Story Jumper. The books can be reviewed and purchased for $1.95 at www.storyjumper.com. "Look at the tremendous impact it is having on the schools," Carole Kody, EEF executive director, said about the grant program.

Clark's project is one of many projects supported by EEF. The book project grant, for example, was for little more than $600. "Donors think they have to tens of thousands of dollars to make an impact," Kody said. All of the students' books have been donated to the Plymouth District Library and to the Starkweather preschool. What's really neat is that Story Jumper officials were so impressed that they have asked Clark and the students' projects

Starkweather young authors showed their books to the public at a recent Meet the Author event at the Plymouth District to be part of the company's national advertising campaign.

The young authors, who have been in the middle of final exams, were unavailable for comment. But a number of them were on hand for a Meet the Authors night at the Plymouth District Library in early June.

The kids responded so well to it. It was even more wonderful when all of these great people (including the Wayne RESA and the Buck Institute) decided to help me make the project a reality," Clark said, adding that the school technology department, espe-cially Rick Coughlin, must be thanked for all of the additional help.

"It's not every day a teacher gets to see her students really excel at something. It's not every day a teacher gets to see a student create a lasting mark on their community," Clark said.

The young authors included Lindsey Blake, Steven Downing, Rachael Natiw, Matt Teefey, Sarah Knapp, Chaiya Sirga-ny, A'Sheir Fields, Tressa Griffin, Katelyn Scott, Jordan Kirkland, Keaton kids get to you. I got bullied a lot in middle school. I promise you that you can get through this. I'm not saying that it won't be scary at first, but you can do it. You can do anything you want to do as long as you set your mind to it," Katelyn quoted herself in the book, as her sister was concerned about being bullied at school

because of her illness. In the end, Katelyn's sister was welcomed back to school with classmates' support. "They learned that no matter what you are going through at that point in time, you can always overcome the tough time. It just may take some time, but you can do it!" Katelyn wrote in the last paragraph of her book.

With the basic parts of good storytelling in mind, the students were asked to interview a mentor - a parent, neighbor or other trusted adult - and find out what valuable life lesson they believe is a good one for children to

The next step was to take the lessons students gleaned from interviews and look at existing books to show how these lessons had been portrayed by other authors. Then came the book writing part. Students were asked to show the lesson learned rather than tell it to readers.

All Saints teacher tapped for Library of Congress program

Megan Flaherty, an educator at All Saints Catholic School in Canton, has been selected from a pool of more than 300 applicants to participate in the Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources Summer Teacher Institute for the week of June 22-26.

Each year, the Library of Congress provides the opportunity for a carefully chosen group of K-12 educators to attend one of its five teacher institutes in Washington, D.C.

During the five-day program, participants work with Library education specialists and subject-matter experts to learn effective practices powerful way to help students ask engaged, probing questions, develop critical-thinking skills and construct knowledge. All educators may freely access classroom materials, teaching tools and strategies for teaching with primary sources from the Library's site for teachers at www.loc.gov/teachers.

Applicants to the Teaching with Primary Sources Summer Teacher Institutes reflect the diversity of the world of K-12 education. Participants in a teacher institute session typically include school library media specialists and school administrators, in addition to classroom teachers. Those selected come from many different states, representing large metropolitan school districts and smaller, rural school districts. The expertise provided by the Library of Congress during the institutes can benefit every level of K-12 education.

Primary sources are the raw materials of history — original documents and objects that were created at the time under study. They are different from secondary sources - accounts or interpretations of events created by someone without firsthand experience. Students working with primary sources become engaged learners while building critical-thinking skills and constructing new knowledge. Teachers working in the Library's collections will explore the largest online collection of historical artifacts with access to millions of unique primary sources for use in in-

Many of the Library's resources and treasures may also be accessed through the Library's website at www.loc.gov.

Kohl's recipient

A Canton resident is among five students who have received $1,000 scholarships from Kohl's Cares Scholarship Program.

Alan Sun, 16, who is an aspiring musician, sought to bring the joy of music to others and hosted a four-week musical instruments workshop for elementary students from low-income households. The students learned to play together and performed free concerts for area nursing homes and senior centers.

The scholarships are awarded to students who have made a positive impact in their communities through volunteerism.

Robofest

A Canton resident is captain of Team RoboCruisers that won the DENSO first-place trophy in the Senior Game category of the Robofest World Championships held May 16 at Lawrence Technological University.

Team members were Charles Liu of Canton Salem High School and James Xue and Chris Geng of Northville High School. All are 11th-graders.

Robofest is a competition of autonomous robots - computerprogrammed to act independently and not remote-controlled that encourages handson learning of science, technology, engineer-ing, and math, known as the STEM subjects as well as computer science. Teams compete in the junior division (grades 5-8) or senior division (grades 9-12), using a variety of computer programming languages.

The challenge of this year's RoboBowl game is to build an autonomous robot to detect and knock down four pins (water bottles) by bowling tennis balls. In addition, the robot has to measure the height of the black rectangle shape on the table. RoboCruisers's average score was 99.41 out of 100.

The RoboCruisers senior team has been involved in robotics activities for past five years, mainly in Robof-est's Game Challenge, Vision Centric Challenge, and World Robot Olympiad. Before winning the champion this year, the team won fourth and second places at Robofest World Championship in Game Challenges in 2013 and 2014 and also represented the United States in the WRO held in Sochi, Russia, last

"The competition at the Robofest World Championships was nerve-wracking and things didn't go exactly as planned, but some quick thinking pulled us through. In the end, it was worth all of the anxiety," Liu said.

THE RISKS OF SPRING

Readers may be aware that spring is a dangerous time for anyone who is at risk for Lupus. The reason for that risk is that spring marks the return of ultraviolet light and when those rays strike the skin a reaction occurs in Lupus susceptible persons that sets of a cascade of inflammatory reactions.

The bright days of spring also bring out another condition: Lofgren's Syndrome

What happens is that a person experiences the sudden onset of large red blotches, often raised, on the lower legs and forearms. The blotches are painful to the touch and usually are accompanied by painful knees or ankles. In medical jargon the blotches are called Erythema Nodosum

Lofgren's Syndrome is often associated with lung findings, so a person in whom that diagnosis is suspected should not be alarmed when the doctor orders a chest x-ray. The lung findings need no special treatment as they clear with the same therapy given for the joint and skin findings

Prednisone is the mainstay of treatment in Lofgren's Syndrome The surest way to relieve the joint pain is to remove any excess fluid from the joint and inject methylprednisolone. For Erythema Nodosum, therapy centers on oral prednisone usually 10 mgm-15 mgm a day for 1-2 weeks with gradual decrease of dosage until the person is off steroids completely. Once a person has experienced an episode of Lofgren's Syndrome, that person will likely never have another episode again.

Who in Michigan doesn't live for spring and the feel of sun surrounding us? That is a marvelous moment, but it is not without its

Two students help Nepal earthquake victims

Two local tae kwon do students hosted a special one-time art exhibit to benefit earthquake survivors in Nepal. The fundraiser, which will took place June 6 at Midwest Tae Kwon Do in Plymouth, showcased artwork donated by seasoned and budding artists.

'Art for Relief" is the collaborative effort of Anya and Annika Chinnaiyan, two junior black belt students at Midwest, who were moved to help those affected by the devastating earthquakes in Nepal.

'We are delighted and proud that Anya and Annika have felt motivated to help others and are doing our best to support them," said Tanya Panizzo, partner at Midwest Tae Kwon Do. "Their efforts represent what we work to instill in our students and is a wonderful reflection of what is great about today's youth.

All proceeds from the art show were to be donated to the Detroit2Nepal Foundation (detroit2nepal.org). The girls chose the Detroit-based organization because it has been dedicated to improving the life of Nepalese children for nearly two decades.

Park standouts a cut above

Uneven team success did not stop individual performers

> By Tim Smith Staff Writer

Even though only Plymouth enjoyed much success during the regular season, 2015 was another rewarding year for the three varsity girls lacrosse teams at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

The Wildcats went 12-4 overall with a 3-3 mark in the Kensington Conference before bowing out 12-9 to Brighton in a hard-fought Division 1 preregional match-up.

Salem checked in with a 9-10 record (2-4 in the conference), while Canton struggled to a 1-15 mark, winning the regularseason finale at Swartz Creek.

Yet as evidenced by the 15 players who comprise the 2015 All-Park Girls Lacrosse Team, there were numerous standout individual performers.

Salem graduate to join Lourdes University women's cagers

Lourdes University head coach Karen McConnell has announced that Salem grad Maranda Armstead has signed a letter of intent to play basketball for the Gray Wolves beginning this fall.

Armstead, a Canton resident, helped Salem High School win the Kensington Lakes Athletics Association title after winning both the Kensington Conference and Central Division crowns as She helped the Rocks earn a district championship in in 2014-2015, finishing the year with a 20-5 record.

"Maranda comes from an excellent program that knows how to win," McConnell stated. "Her work ethic and aggressive play will bring a physical presence to court.

"I am pleased to have the opportunity to coach Maranda over the next four years."

A forward, Armstead earned Honorable Mention All-District honors as a senior at Salem.

REC-KING

Sometimes I grumble, that enough's enough. But the next week rolls around and back to the rink I go. What about you? Isn't there a sport or activity that you love to do, regardless of any physical suffering involved?

There must be pickup basketball leagues or softball teams filled with men and women who can't say no to sports they've always been attached to.

What about golf? Or soccer? Or solitary activities such as hiking, biking or swimming?

It would be nice to chronicle some of those athletic escapades in the Observer.

That's what I would like to do in a recurring series about adult recreation, which is to be called 'Rec-king It.'

Go ahead and email me (tsmith@hometownlife.com) if you have a story to tell, provided you are age 21 or older. You don't have to be a Tiger Woods, LeBron James or Serena Williams, either. Providing photos (sent via email as jpeg attachments) also is strongly encouraged.

If you, too, get off the couch to get in the game, think about letting me know about it

You don't have to "wreck it" to be in Recking It!

Ground rules

There are a few ground rules that I would like you to follow when submitting something for consideration.

Because my coverage area is Plymouth-Canton, I would like the series to spotlight Plymouth and Canton residents.

The leagues and activities do not have to be confined to that area.

however. A Plymouth woman who plays soccer in Wixom could send me her information, for example.

When sending emails, please include nuts and bolts information about yourself, the activity and why we should consider the suggestion for this series. I intend to write stories for Rec-king It on a recurring basis, perhaps a couple of times each month. Let the games (and stories) begin.

All-area gymnasts lauded for achievements

Allison Kunz, Canton: The defending state champion Chiefs lost several key members 2013-14 team to graduation. But the squad didn't miss a beat thanks to newcomers such as Kunz and finished second in the team finals

A senior, Kunz moved over to Canton from Eurostars (where she was a Level 10) and her lone high school season was stellar - capped off by a Division 1 state championship on uneven parallel bars with a 9.750

She also earned all-state honors on floor exercise (eighth, 9.450) and allaround (tied for fifth, 37.20)

Kunz matched Robyn Piwowar's Canton record on floor with a 9.775, became the team's first Elite All American in every event and was an all-state gymnast.

"Allison was the team MVP and was the primary reason for our state runnerup finish," coach John Cunningham said

Carina Wright, Farm. United: Wright is on the all-area team for a third consecutive year. A Division 1 gymnast, she was all-state in the allaround again with a 10th-place score of 35.975. She was the state runner-up on vault (9.55) and was all-state on floor. too. She was 10th on floor (9.325) and 16th on beam (8.525)

At the regional, Wright won the vault (8.95) competition and was second on bars. She was the runner-up in the all-around with a 34.675 total. She also was third on floor and fourth on beam.

"She's our No. 1 allarounder," coach Jeff Dwyer said. "She's loaded with talent. She averages in the nines on everything but bars. She's been all-state three years in a row. You don't see a lot of gymnasts do that.

"To be all-state in the all-around is one of the harder things to do. You can't do that without the talent and the work ethic. I look forward to next year. That senior year is a real big motivator.

Katie Dickson, Canton: With Dickson only a freshman this season, the future looks as bright as ever for the Chiefs. Competing as a D1 gymnast, Dickson excelled at regionals, where she won on balance beam (9.6) and qualified in the all-around with a 36.00 mark, good for sixth overall.

At individual finals, Dickson finished 10th on beam with a 9.175 to garner all-state honors.

"By medaling at states," Cunningham said, "Katie became an all-state gymnast and her scores made her an All American on every event except vault."

Rebeca Simu, Plymouth: Instrumental to the Wildcats qualifying for the team finals (Plymouth finished third at regionals), the junior cocaptain pretty much did it all for the team. There were nu-

honors bestowed on Simu to reward her for her stellar year. She was named the Wildcats' most valuable athlete for the second time in her career, highlighted by setting a school record on vault with a 9.225

Simu, an All America gymnast in the all-around and an academic all-state member, qualified for the individual state meet in D1 by finishing tied for second on balance beam (9.3), third on vault (9.2) and seventh on bars (8.8) and floor (9.075)

Her tally of 36.375 in the all-around also enabled her to qualify for the state meet. At Rockford, she tied for seventh on beam with a 9.225.

"Rebeca works hard, sees the best in each member of the team and is willing to help them achieve their best, always encouraging," coach Pam Yockey said. "Rebeca works to achiever her best in all she does, overcoming setbacks that come her way.

Hailey Hodgson, Canton: It was another outstanding season for Hodgson, medaling in all but one event in Division 2 at state finals

The junior was a force to be reckoned with throughout the regular season, when the Chiefs again cruised to KLAA Kensington Division and association titles.

Then, at the Plymouth High School-hosted regional, Hodgson captured D2 firsts on vault (9.3), beam (9.05), floor (9.2) and allaround (36.0).

She medaled in four events at the state finals in Rockford, including vault (tied for sixth, 8.950), beam (tied for sixth, 8.875), floor exercise (fifth, 9.225) and the all-around (fifth, 35.225).

"In the state's toughest region, Hailey took first place in every event except bars," Cunningham said.

"Next year's team captain was an Elite All American, All State and (received) the team's most dedicated gymnast award.

Brianna Rhoad, Livonia Blue: Rhoad was brilliant this season for Blue as she formed a dynamic duo with teammate Jess Weak. Rhoad shined brightest at the biggest meets, taking second in the allaround at the regional competition at Canton. Among her best events was the bars, on which she placed second at the region-

"Bri is a strong allaround gymnast for us," Blue coach Lisa Broomfield said. "She battled last year with an ankle injury but has come out strong this season and increasing her start value on each event. She is a force to be reckoned with."

Elisa Bills, Farm United: Bills was all-state in the Division 2 all-around as a freshman, finishing seventh with a 35.025 score and eighth on bars (8.625) to earn allstate in those events, too.

She finished sixth on the vault (8.95)

She was close on beam, finishing 13th (8.60)

Bills was the regional champion on vault (9.0) and bars (8.8) and was the runner-up in the all-around (35.00). She was fifth on beam and floor.

'At the beginning of the season, I knew she would be a valuable asset," Dwyer said. "She loves to practice, listens to advice and loves to compete.

'Sometimes, you can't teach kids how to compete under pressure. I was really proud of what she did this vear."

Jacquelyn Farquhar, Farm United: Farquhar was all-state in the Division 2 all-around, finishing in ninth place (34.875). She also achieved all-state status on vault (9.0) and beam

(8.7), placing fifth and 10th, respectively. At the regional, she was third in the all-around behind teammates Marissa Schuch and Elisa Bills. Farguhar was second on vault and floor at the regional, third on beam and fourth on bars.

"Jacquelyn is one of our hardest working gymnasts," Dwyer said. "She's hungry to get better. We recognized her effort in the gym and made her one of the captains as a sophomore.

"She has come a long way as a competitor. She has always had the determination and work ethic to be a high-level gymnast. She believes in her abilities and has gained confidence

> SECOND TEAM Haley Metz, Plymouth:

The junior co-captain qualified for the D1 individual finals in all events. She was the Wildcats' top performer in the allaround at regionals with 36.95 (third) and took second on bars (9.425), fifth on vault (9.1) and beam (9.25) and sixth on floor (9.175).

Other honors poured in for Metz. She set Plymouth records in the all-around (37.05) and bars (9.425), was the team's most valuable gymnast, earned selection to the academic all-state and all-regional teams.

In addition, Metz was the KLAA D1 all-around winner and a KLAA scholar athlete. And, for the third consecutive year, she was named an All American gymnast.

"Haley was a consistent performer and excellent team mentor," Yockey said. "She shows her love of gymnastics in every smile."

Brooke Rabban, Farm United: Rabban is a Division 1 gymnast and repeat member of the all-area team. She was a state qualifier in the floor, finishing in 12th place (9.3)

Rabban was the regional champion on floor (9.65) and the runner-up on beam. She was fourth on bars and sixth on vault. She earned third place in the all-around with a 34.125 score.

"She dominates on floor and beam," Dwyer said. I was most proud of her on bars this year. You have to work hard on your weakest event and she did. That's how gymnasts improve.

"She's a very coachable gymnast; she works hard every day. On floor, she took all the coaches' advice and worked on her dance. That part of her routine improved, and it was reflected in her scores."

Jana Hilditch, Canton: An influx of young talent helped the Chiefs remain a state powerhouse despite losing key performers to injury and Hilditch was at the top of that list.

Hilditch, just a sophomore, was a strong and consistent performer during the KLAA season and followed that up with major success at regionals and states. Her efforts enabled her to be named an All American gymnast.

At regionals, she missed out on qualifying for the state finals as an all-arounder by just 0.25. She did medal in two events (10th on vault, 9.225; ninth on floor, 9.4).

"Jana had a terrific year, excelling in every event and posting high scores in every event helping her team win every dual meet except one," Cunningham said. " ... She was one of our most consistent and most improved gymnasts."

Jordyn Williams, Salem: The freshman made an immediate impact with the ning the individual regional championship in Division 1 on floor with a mark of 9.7. She also qualified for the state meet on beam with an eighth-place finish of 9.0 at the regional. At the individual state finals in Rockford, Williams tied for third on floor with a

"Jordyn was a welcome addition to the Salem team, coming in as a freshman with a lot of talent," said Canton's Cunningham. "As the season progressed, her super tricks on beam and excellent floor routine became highlights.

Jessica Weak, Livonia Blue: Weak and Rhoad formed an awesome onetwo punch for Blue as they frequently registered 35-pointplus scores in the all-around. An example of Weak's strong season was reflected in her third-place all-around finish in the Division 2 regional meet, where she took third in the uneven bars and tied for second in the floor exercise.

"Jess is a strong allaround gymnast for us," said Broomfield. "She worked hard over the summer improving all she skills and getting new ones. She has grown so much in two years that nothing is going to stop her.'

Emily Chatterjee, Livonia Blue: A junior, Chatterjee is a three-year all-arounder who excels on floor and bars, her vealed. "Emily is the most graceful gymnast I have ever

coach re-

coached," Broomfield said. "She is a perfectionist and will not put any skill into her routine unless she knows it will be perfect. She is a huge part of our team."

United: Senior Marissa Schuh was a Division 2 regional champion in the all-around (35.475) and just missed being all-state, finishing 11th (34.325) and one place away.

At the state meet, she was tied for 14th on vault (8.75), 12th on bars (8.525) and 16th on beam (8.475). Schuh also was the regional champion on beam (9.20). She placed third on vault and bars, fourth on floor.

"Without her we're not regional champs three years in a row," Dwyer said. "I don't think we finished lower than fifth in the state in her four years. She was a main part of our 'A' team.

"She had a great career. She's one of the girls who puts her heart and soul into it. I wish it could have ended on a little better note for her.

"But she has my respect. I'd rather have a gymnast with her heart and soul than a gymnast who is blessed with talent and doesn't work at it."

Marissa McVey, Livonia Red: The talented junior qualified for the regional competition on the vault, bars and floor exercise. Among several highlights were a first-place finish on the beam (9.3) at the Lakeland Invitational. where she placed ninth in the all-around with a score of 35.35. McVey also placed 10th on the vault (8.75) at the Canton Invitational.

At the KLAA Conference Meet, McVey placed 10th on the vault, fifth on bars, eighth on floor and first on beam.

"Marissa is a very strong athlete," said Red coach Kelly Grodzicki. "She loves to compete and displays passion for the sport of gymnastics. I am very excited to see what her senior year will bring."

Michigan Bucks prevail in Great Lakes soccer showdown

The two perennial Great Lakes powerhouses of recent years squared off Tuesday at Ultimate Soccer Arenas in Pontiac with undefeated records in the young Premier Development League men's soccer season The defending champion Michigan Bucks (4-0-1, 13 points) shut out visiting FC London (4-1-1, 13 points) 3-0 to take over first place and run their PDL unbeaten streak to 14 games, including their run of nine without a loss closing out the 2014 season.

The 3-0 score line didn't paint an accurate picture, as the two teams were locked in a midfield defensive struggle for most of the game

The Bucks did, however, make the necessary adjustments they failed to make Saturday when they dominated the Pittsburgh Riverhounds U23 for most of the match, but failed to score.

They jumped on the scoreboard early Tuesday with some tight give-and-go passing inside the 18-yard box when David Goldsmith (Butler) found Sean Sepe (Akron) six yards out. The Zips forward neatly tucked a low shot inside the far post for his first goal in a Bucks uniform in the fourth minute.

Defensively, both teams were solid throughout the match and the key for the Bucks was rookie goalkeeper Drew Shepherd (Western Michigan), who was making his second start in goal for Michiinto action in his first game the previous week with two huge saves, including a last-minute beauty to preserve the shutout against Pittsburgh. He was on his game again Tuesday and made several point-blank saves to register his second career shutout in as many starts.

the Bucks and K-W United vie for possession of the ball at Independence Park.

The team's two top Goldsmith and Jeff Adkins made a 40-yard run raced down the right flank when he beat two defenders before sending a perfect cross into the area that Goldsmith volleyed home for his third goal of the season. The Bucks would basically put the game on ice when Sepe followed up a long rebound and unleashed a 24-yard bomb into the upper corner to give the Bucks a 3-0 lead in the 60th minute. The only question left was would the defense be able to register their third shutout in five PDL games. Shepherd and his back line kept a close eye on the dangerous London strikers to finish the match the ball hit the back of the opponent's net early in the game to give the team some confidence. "Anytime you have a game like we had the other night when the ball just won't go into the back of the net, you can get a bit frustrated. The boys came out and forgot about Saturday and just took it to London to see what they could create early. That fourth-minute goal gave us a ton of confidence and really put the pressure on London. Once we got the second goal, you had a feeling that we were going to tighten things up defensively and be OK even if they pulled one back. Fortunately, Drew made some fantastic saves to keep them off the score sheet and the rest of the team did their job. I hope to see more of the same with lots of attacking flair again on Friday

Boyd's flying Eagles win D1 regional

P-CCS teacher, coach guides team to first regional title in 13 years

By Tim Smith

Moments after Saline defeated Plymouth on June 6 in a Division 1 baseball regional semifinal game, virtually everybody at Saline High School thought the Hornets could begin making room in their trophy case.

Everybody, that is, except Taylor Kennedy head coach Bryan Boyd and the Eagles, who weren't about to be steamrolled in the subsequent regional final.

Behind the one-hit, shutout pitching of Cody Serafin and Tyler Butzin (who retired the final two batters in the seventh), Kennedy upset No. 1ranked Saline 1-0 to win the school's first baseball regional since 2002.

"This is a great group of kids who really have bought into the team concept," said Boyd, who over the past 10 years coached basketball and cross country and taught at Central Middle School (which has now closed). They really enjoy the process of working hard to get better.'

One reason for optimism in the Kennedy dugout entering that key contest was the lights-out pitching exhibited by the Eagles throughout the state playoffs. Boyd said Serafin's gem was the team's third consecutive shutout in the postseason.

Unfortunately, that streak ended Tuesday in a D1 quarterfinal at University of Michigan's Ray Fisher Stadium. Kennedy lost 5-0 to Portage Northern to finish the season with a 31-10 record.

Although he is enjoying success elsewhere. Boyd is no stranger to the Plymouth-Canton baseball community - having coached Plymouth High School's varsity team and Salem's freshman team.

He also coached in the Greater Canton Youth Baseball Softball Association as well as leading the Plymouth-Canton Mudcats in the Washtenaw Amateur Baseball Associ-

Boyd lives in Canton with wife Carrie and two children, Brennan and Grace. He will continue coaching and teaching in Plymouth-Canton Com-munity Schools despite the closing of Central. He will move over to Liberty Middle School for 2015-16.

"I'm very good at organization and working with parents. I think between leadership and organization and X's and O's, I think those were the main considerations."

He can't wait

Heitmeyer, during a recent interview, flashed one of his trademark smiles when discussing what the 2015-16 season might bring.

"I'm excited about the program," Heitmeyer said. "Between the returning student-athletes from last year include Natalie Winters and Madison Archibald and Erin Hult, all three will be captains on next year's team - with the remaining returners from last year and the JV group, yes. "I think, like iron sharpens iron, I think we'll make each other better as a group.'

But in order to look to the future, it is important to appreciate the past. That is something Heitmeyer has a firm grasp of.

After all, he worked on the staff of Salem coaching legend Fred Thomann, who died in December 2013.

"I owe a debt of gratitude to some special coaches who shaped me through the years," Heit-meyer said. "Working with Fred Thomann, Brian Samulski, Bill Mair, Rick Berberet and Jason Kaye gave me a great coaching foundation.

"I carry the experiences shared with them every time I step into a gym to coach studentathletes.'

Heitmeyer will get the chance to work with yet another legendary Park coach in Bob Blohm, who is joining his staff after

SEE STUNNING CLEMATIS FLOWERS ON PLYMOUTH GARDEN WALK

By Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

The International Clematis Society describes the fourpetal, indigo-violet durandii variety as an "old-timer" among clematis flowers.

It's definitely the most senior plant in Ann Warne's Plymouth Township yard, where pink, cranberry, purple and blue clematis are the stars of her garden.

"This one is 36 years old. It's French. It's the first one I put in. I just liked it. That is one of my favorites," said Warne, describing the durandii clematis that climbs on a trel-lis against the house she shares with her husband, Pete Warne figures she has planted approximately 12 cle-matis throughout the garden. They grow on trellises, archways and along a fence and will be in full bloom when visitors on the Trailwood Garden Club's annual Flowers Are Forever Garden Walk stop by to tour the Warnes' yard, noon to 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 30. It's one of several gardens in the Plymouth area that will be open to the public that day. Pre-sale tickets are $8 and are available at Saxton's Power Equipment Center, 587 W. Ann Arbor Trail, 734-453-6250, Backyard Birds, 627 S. Main, 734-416-0600, and Sideways, 505 Forest, 453-8312. Tickets are $10 the day of the walk. Tickets for children under 12 are half the adult price ticket. There is no charge for babes in arms. Strollers aren't per-

On the day of the walk, Warne, a Trailwood Garden Club member, will help coordinate the Club's plant sale, which will take place in her driveway. A master gardener will be on hand in the backyard to answer questions.

In the Warne's yard, ticketholders will see seven different hydrangea plants, eight

Do-it-yourself

One of her favorite areas is the stone pathway that runs under an arch-style trellis that's covered in clematis, and between garden beds at the rear of the yard. Warne created the path, a small patio under the backyard swing and flower bed borders.

"I did that myself. I dug all the stone work. Last year I dug it out again myself and packed it all again because it sunk over the years and it filled up with dirt. That was a hard job. It took me all summer to do

It's only 18 inches deep and 20 feet long, but the reflecting pool at Greenmead will figure into Livonia's upcoming garden walk in a big way.

After leaking for years and then remaining empty the water feature has been restored and is ready for visitors. Friends for the Development of Greenmead spent approximately $4,000 for new cement, and has added a small, portable fountain, along with potted plants

'The whole thing is cement but it had cracked and was leaking," said Sue Poster, a member of both Friends and the Livonia Garden Club, which tends to the flower beds near the pool. "The Garden would come out in the spring and they said last year they pulled out layers and layers of "People would try to repair the pond and it would just fail. There were three different types of liners and it looked horrible. The girls here (at Greenmead) had tried to get places to come out and fix it but they couldn't get anyone to come out and give an estimate.

Poster contacted RAM Construction, a waterproofing and restoration contractor in Livo-

"It's not something they normally do, but being a civicminded company, they came out and did this for us. We are absolutely thrilled and indebted to them because they took great care to make sure it didn't look new. The intent was to restore it, not make it brand

The restoration process retained the original cement pegs that line the pool wall, just below the water's surface. Poster said the pegs likely were used to secure wire that ran across the water to keep out ducks and other fowl. The original pool held goldfish, but the Friends doesn't plan to add aquatic animals.

Sue Poster, a member of Friends of Greenmead and the Livonia Garden Club, looks over the bond that was rebuilt at Greenmead - just in time for the garden walk.

Grand garden

Poster said Sherwin Hill, second owner of the Simmons/ Hill house, likely had the pool built in the 1930s as an "overall plan for the garden and to have something nice for Mrs. Hill.' "It was part of the grandiose scheme. When he married his wife, he promised her father she'd have fresh flowers every day of her life. That's why he built the greenhouse and that's our next project. It's been going downhill for years but it has been out of commission - this will be the third summer. We'd like to see it restored.'

The Greenmead grounds and five private gardens will be open to the public during the 26th annual Livonia Garden Walk, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 27. Tickets are $10 on day of event or $9 in advance and are available at Greenmead, 20501 Newburgh, Livonia; in community resources on the 5th floor of Livonia City Hall, 33000 Civic Center Drive; Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile; Carl Sandburg Library, 30100 Seven Mile; Alfred Noble Library, 32901 Plymouth Road; and from any of the Friends of Greenmead. All proceeds will benefit the restoration of Greenmead.

Pools, plants

The restored reflecting pool isn't the only water feature on the tour this year. Ray and Terri Alexander, whose yard was on the Michigan Koi & Pond Club walk last summer, are participating in the Livonia Garden Walk.

"It's pretty much the same," said Ray Alexander, comparing his backyard over two summers. "I got a couple of new trees because I lost some during the winter. I still have my bonsai trees." The 10,000 gallon, 5-foot-deep pond is stocked with colorful koi.

Nancy Connor, whose yard also is on the Livonia Garden Walk, added a circular pond three years ago. It's approximately 10 feet and includes a waterfall, water flowers and plants. She adds lillies, grasses, hostas, and ferns to her surrounding garden every

Other backyards on the walk include a "memory" garden with bird houses and specimen plants; a meandering garden in Rosedale Gardens subdivision where antique cars also will be on display; and an acre of park-like grounds with specimen trees and "big palms in huge pots," Poster said

Plymouth artist wins top award at VAAL spring art exhibit

A soft, pastel landscape by a Plymouth artist took first place in the Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL) spring art exhibit, which runs through June at the Livonia

Civic Center Library.
Mary Ann Adams won the first place award for her pastel, Three Kings.

Adams has taken art classes at Plymouth High School, VAAL, and Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center. Edie Joppich, master teacher at VAAL, taught her technique as well as color mixing in watercolor. Adams also studied with Janet Kohler, Jim Markle and Marla Baggetta. Although she has worked in acrylics, oil and watercolor, her favorite medium is pastel and nature is her muse. Adams enjoys painting landscapes from the southwest where she visits family. She is a long time member of VAAL and has won several awards for her art work

Joshua Newth, art educator at Schoolcraft College and Wayne State University, chose the art on display from the entries submitted by VAAL members and selected the award winners.

In addition to Adams, top winners were Virginia Bosak of Livonia and Martha Barnes of Northville. Bosak took second place for her papier mache, Garden Cherub. Bosak, who usually works in watercolor and acrylic, created the piece in a VAAL workshop. Barnes earned a third place for her mixed media, King of the Mountain. She conceived the idea for the painting depicting a rooster, when her son opened an antique shop in North Carolina called "The Red Rooster." He needed a picture of a rooster for his sign and pressed his mother into service.

Honorable mentions went to Beverly Johnston of Livonia for her pastel, Zing Zing; Barbara Eko Murphy of Northville for her watercolor,

Mary Ann Adams of Plymouth and her pastel, Three Kings, top winner in the Visual Arts Association of Livonia show Garden Cherub, by Virginia Bosak of Livonia, won second place.

Kensington Metropark has a day of fun and learning lined up as it prepares to host its 16th annual Women's Outdoor Adventure Program.

The event takes place from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 27, and gives women ages 18 and older an opportunity to try new outdoor skills and experiences as they spend the day learning to kayak, shoot target archery and geocache with experienced instructors. "We're also actually going to do a mini barnraising this year," said Kensington Farm Center interpreter Chris Williams, who will be on site to lead the project. "It will be kind of cool." "It's a community effort and a team build-ing exercise," Williams added. "Women don't often get a chance to do construction and building, so we thought this would be neat, and hopefully they'll come away with a sense of accomplishment.'

The program, organizers say, engenders camaraderie and is appropriate for friends, family members, coworkers and others who want to share the experience, as well as individuals looking to make new friends with similar in-

Learn ABCs of diabetes control during men's health week

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan (NKFM) recognizes National Men's Health Week from June 15-21, by educating men about the prevention and control of diabetes, which is the leading cause of kidney failure.

Approximately 15.5 million men have diabetes in the United States, which is 13.6 percent of all men ages 20 and older. Men with diabetes and their families can face devastating complications from unmanaged diabetes, especially since people with diabetes are at a high risk for heart attack and stroke. In addition to causing kidney failure, diabetes also can lead to blindness, lower leg amputations, and erectile dys-

Men with diabetes can reduce their chances of having life-threatening complications by managing their A1C, blood pressure, and cholesterol the ABCs of diabetes.

The A1C test shows what blood glucose levels have been over the last three months. The A1C goal for many individuals is below 7. High blood glucose levels can harm heart and blood vessels, kidneys, feet, and eves

The blood pressure goal for most individuals is 130/80. High blood pressure makes your heart work too hard. It can cause heart attack, stroke, and kidney disease.

Bad cholesterol (LDL) builds up and clogs arteries. The LDL goal for most individuals with diabetes is below 100. Good cholesterol (HDL) helps remove cholesterol from blood vessels. The HDL goal for most persons is above 40.

For those with diabetes and those at risk for diabetes alike, it's also important to maintain healthy nutrition and to engage in physical activity, according to the Foundation. It's also important for men to quit smoking. Smoking increases the risk of type 2 diabetes and makes diabetes harder to control, making it even more deadly and disabling for individuals with diabetes.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan offers My Choice...My Health: Diabetes Prevention Program for persons who are at risk for developing type 2 diabetes. For more information, visit www.nkfm.org or call the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan at 800-482-1455.

Fastest-shrinking jobs in America and alternative careers

SOME JOBS ARE SEEING MAJOR GROWTH...AND SOME ARE SEEING THE OPPOSITE.

America's economy looks very different today than it did, say, twenty years ago. A major shift in technology and the inner workings of international trade and shipping has left workers with different futures than we may have seen for ourselves when we were first setting off in our careers.

And according to CareerBuilder and Economic Modeling Specialists Intl. data,* there are a number of jobs that are quickly shrinking, as well as jobs that are quickly growing, which can leave you with some interesting options that include better career security. Here are three major areas of change that we see opportunity in.

Digital and Physical Publishing It's hard to say that libraries and bookstores were eagerly anticipating the technological overhauls that the new millennium brought. Along with e-books, browsing more content online and a cultural preference for consuming news on television and the Internet, there's been a national conversation about the future of writing and printing industries. Some occupations that focus on entering data and producing it are seeing quick decline, while opportunities abound in alternative occupations that embrace web and other tech skills and are in more lucrative industries that also need communication materi-

Shrinking occupations with a negative projected growth rate for 2011-2020:

- · Printing Press Operators (-12 %)
- · Paper Goods Machine Setters, Operators, Tenders (-13 %)
- · Data Entry Keyers (-13 %)

- · Print Binding and Finishing Workers (-14%)
- · Reporters and Correspondents (-16 %)
- · Word Processors and Typists (-16 %)

Alternative occupations that are projected to quickly grow 2011-2020:

- Market Research Analysts and Marketing Specialists (34 %)
- Web Developers (30 %)
- · Archivists (20 %)
- · Technical Writers (18 %)
- Public Relations and Fundraising Managers (17 %)
- Media and Communication Workers, All Other (15 %)
- Library Assistants, Clerical (14 %)

Snail Mail and Door-to-Door Sales Online shopping; twoday deliveries; email, text and instant messaging...how we purchase materials, have them delivered and have our own correspondences delivered is primarily dependent on private suppliers like Internet service providers, online stores and private shipping and logistics companies. Doorto-door sales workers and postal service workers are facing shrinking jobs as our needs have changed, but if you're drawn to these occupations due to their high rate of physical activity, being a part of the community or having the opportunity to earn more, there are alternative options that can capitalize on those preferences.

Shrinking occupations with a negative projected growth rate for 2011-2020:

- · Postal Service Clerks (-19 %)
- · Postal Service Mail Sorters, Processors, and Processing Machine Operators (-18 %)
- Door-to-Door Sales Workers, News and Street Vendors, and Related Workers (-18 %)
- Postal Service Mail Carriers (-15 %)
- Postmasters and Mail Superintendents (-12 %)

Alternative occupations that are projected to quickly grow 2011-2020:

- · Social and Human Service Assistants (26 %)
- Taxi Drivers and Chauffeurs (22 %)
- · Exercise Physiologists (21 %)
- · Athletic Trainers (21 %)
- · Dietitians and Nutritionists (20 %)
- Fitness Trainers and Aerobics Instructors (20 %)
- · Sales and Related Workers, All Other (17 %) · Sales Representatives, Services, All Other (16 %)

Textile and Apparel Production America's dependence on importing more and more commercial goods that are produced overseas is unsurprisingly affecting the number of workers who are needed to fill those production roles. While there's a major decline in the number of textile and apparel setters, operators and tenders, there are similar occupations that also require fine motor skills, attention to detail and contribute to manufacturing and production.

Shrinking occupations with a negative projected growth rate for 2011-2020:

- · Textile Knitting and Weaving Machine Setters, Operators, and Tenders (-41 %)
- · Textile Bleaching and Dyeing Machine Operators and Tenders (-36 %)
- · Shoe Machine Operators and Tenders (-29 %)
- · Textile Winding, Twisting, and Drawing Out Machine Setters, Operators and Tenders (-23 %)
- Textile Cutting Machine Setters, Operators, Tenders (-22 %)
- · Sewing Machine Operators (-21 %)
- · Fabric and Apparel Patternmakers (-17 %)

Alternative occupations that are projected to quickly grow 2011-2020:

- · Bicycle Repairers (27 %)
- · Welding, Soldering, and Brazing Machine Setters, Operators, and Tenders (27 %)
- · Mechanical Door Repairers (27 %)
- · Machinists (17 %)
- . Inspectors, Testers, Sorters, Samplers, and Weighers (11 %)
- · Separating, Filtering, Clarifying, Precipitating, and Still Machine Setters, Operators, and Tenders (11 %)

Staying ahead of economic trends can ensure that you're not left in a tight spot when the tides turn, or other economic struggles emerge. By beginning to research alternative jobs, and how you can bring your skills to those occupations, means that you're taking charge of your career, as well as your security and wellbeing.

*All figures for occupation growth and decline come from Economic Modeling Specialists International 2015.1 Datarun for QCEW Employees, Non-QCEW Employees and Self-Employed Workers in the United States from 2011-2020.

Fun By The Numbers

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Find the words hidden vertically, horizontally & diagonally throughout the puzzle.

New Honda Pilot Is Perfect Vehicle At Perfect Time In U.S. Market

reasons:

U.S. auto market in May with a 17-percent sales increase over a year earlier, extending early-2015 streak that saw Pilot sales surge by year-to-date nearly 47 percent. And that was the old model!

When the substantially overhauled new, 2016 Honda Pilot goes on sale this month, expect it to do extremely well in the U.S. market. It is appearing at a time that is highly auspicious for four main

Heavy contenting: At prices beginning at $30,875 when Pilot hits Honda dealerships on June 18, the line will include Honda's priciest U.S. vehicle even though the price of the lowest trim level rises only slightly. The fully loaded Elite trim level of the third-generation dazzled a dazzling price of $47,300, including shipping. With a forwardleaning package of amenities including a panoramic glass roof, LED headlights, and a heated steering wheel, Pilot Elite will outstrip the price of a loaded 2015 Honda Odyssey minivan by $1,820, according to Automotive News.

> And that's a good thing, because Honda executives are playing masterfully into Americans' appetite heavily contented versions of just about every vehicle these days - a remarkable and remarkably consistent pattern as U.S. car-sales growth has continued even against a highly erratic backdrop of overall economic growth. In fact, transaction prices for the industry grew by 4.3 percent in May over a year ago, Kelley Blue Book estimated, easily > > outpacing inflation. Low interest rates and increasingly attractive deals by car makers have been contributors to the

> > Quiescent gasoline prices: Clearly second-generation Pilot lately has joined other mid-size and large SUVs as a beneficiary of lower and relatively steady U.S. gasoline prices, after a sales drop for the nameplate in 2014. So there's reason to think that the next-generation Pilot will gain even further.

The new model is about 300 pounds lighter than the previous version and includes a fuel-saving cylinderdeactivation feature as well as a stop-start engine, a new standard six-speed automatic transmission, and an available nine-speed transmission. All told, Pilot will improve its fuel economy by as much as two miles a gallon combined, which Honda says makes it the most fuel-efficient midsize SUV available.

Meanwhile, it's expected that U.S. gasoline prices will continue to cooperate for a while. Gas prices this summer ought to be significantly lower than they were a year ago, according to new Purdue University research. And some analysts believe prices will ease to around $2 this fall after leveling off for the summer at around $2.50 a gallon. This in spite of how U.S. producers have been quickly easing production lately in the wake of the precipitous drop in oil prices that also allowed gasoline prices to fall.

Brand new vibe: Honda has lost about a half-point of U.S. market share this year so far, down to about 9.8 percent, according to Automotive News figures. But led by Pilot, times are about to get better for the brand that has tended to get a bit lost lately amid the booming American new-car market and a plethora of exciting and interesting product launches by competitors.

In fact, Honda should pick up a half-point of market share over the next four model years, according to the latest version of the "Car Wars" report by Merrill Lynch, which annually assesses prospects for each auto maker in detail.

The key: Over that period, Honda plans to redesign nearly all of its other nameplates, exceeding the plans of any other major auto brand in the U.S. market. And it's just as true now as ever: New sheet metal is what brings consumers to showrooms and boosts sales.

Sweet home, Alabama: It doesn't hurt that the all-new 2016 Pilot is being built in Alabama, which lately has seen its automotive output grow by more on a percentage basis than any other state. It's being produced alongside the Odyssey minivan, and Honda will begin producing an allnew Ridgeline pickup truck in Alabama early next year.

The fact that Pilot will be a new anchor of one of Honda's two major U.S. production bases - the other, older one is in Ohio - already has helped the company fashion a vehicle that appeals to American tastes and is likely to continue to do so. As Marc Ernst, chief engineer for Honda R&D Americas, put it in a release, "Our U.S.-based development team lives with the [Pilot] midsize family SUV every day and we have applied our deep understanding into development.'
