Olga's Kitchen founder dies

Namesake's chain once had more than 50 locations

Olga Loizon, who opened a small Greek sandwich shop in 1970 that grew to become the popular restaurant chain Olga's Kitchen, known by generations of metro Detroiters, has died at age 92.

The Birmingham resident died Monday at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. a restaurant spokesperson said.

Best known for its unique pita bread sandwiches, spinach pies and curly fries, Olga's Kitchen had more than 50 sit-down restaurants at its peak in the 1980s - many inside shopping malls with franchise locations as far as New York City, Clearwater, Fla., and Austin, Texas.

Loizon, a Detroit native, started the business in Birmingham and, after selling her ownership stake in the mid-1970s, continued to have a role in the growing enterprise and made regular appearances at Olga's Kitchen restaurants well into her twilight years, greeting customers and taste-testing dishes in her namesake kitchens.

In time, Olga's Kitchen achieved a level of affinity comparable to other beloved metro Detroit brands such as Vernors, Faygo, Sanders and Better Made.

Yet the restaurant chain never really caught on out of state. The company downsized in the 1990s and refocused on its home market in Michigan. It faced new struggles in the 2000s as its once-

When most developers open a hotel, they call big corporations, event planners and tour groups to drum up business. In the case of the Hyatt Place Royal Oak, people started calling before it even opened in November to find out when they could book rooms.

That is how Namou Hotel Group, which manages the Hyatt Place and opened eight new hotels in Michigan last year, knew its latest development on Main Street would be a success.

"The demand is there," said Chris Ab-

Delving deeply into his research into the 1993 modern classic Western film "Tombstone" gave Livingston County author John Farkis opportunities to interview famous actors, as well as crew members, stuntmen and locals who remember when the films were shot.

Val Kilmer, Billy Zane, Stephen Lang, Frank Stallone, Joanna Pacula and Peter Sherayko were among actors who starred in the film and who spoke with Farkis for his new book.

Farkis also was able to chat with Catherine Hardwicke, a production designer on the film who went on to di-bo, Namou's vice president of construction and operations. "Take the Christmas week, for example. The volume at the Royal Oak Hyatt was the best out of all the properties we have. Normally, we see a slowdown at the holidays. People wanted to be there."

Hotels are suddenly hot in southeast Oakland County, which is seeing a mini boom along Woodward Avenue, with new properties and impressive renovations that are upping the number of rooms available at a key time in the region's development.

In addition to the six-story, 123-room Hyatt Place, new hotels are planned for downtown Birmingham and at the Woodward Corners development at 13 Mile and Woodward in Royal Oak. The DoubleTree Hilton at Long Lake and Woodward in Bloomfield Hills just reopened after a complete overhaul and the Townsend Hotel in downtown Birmingham has completed $15 million in renovations in recent years.

This growth comes when Detroit has seen the opening of the Shinola Hotel, the Element at the Metropolitan and others. As a result, occupancy rates downtown have reached an average of 70 percent as the city attracts more events and meetings, according to the Detroit Metro Convention & Visitors Bureau.

The number of rooms available across Oakland County, including the southeast region, has increased about 11 percent over the last five years, from 13,500 rooms to about 15,000, said Michael O'Callaghan, COO of the convention and visitors bureau.

"Southeast Michigan and the city of Detroit have become more attractive destinations for meeting planners, conventions, leisure visitors as well as friends and family visiting," he said. "The changes here are because of Detroit's renaissance and the Pure Michigan campaign, which have caught people's attention."

Having more hotels opening in Detroit is helpful because it brings more events and conventions to the city as well as the suburbs, O'Callaghan said. If there is an overflow from Detroit, those attendees always end up in cities such as Troy, Birmingham and Royal Oak, he noted. Everyone benefits from having a new property open or a well-done renovation to an existing hotel. Occupancy rates for the region are at about 70 percent, a big improvement over the 48 percent seen after the economic downturn in 2008 — and a sign of a healthier market and greater demand, O'Callaghan said.

Demand in Royal Oak

In Royal Oak, residents and businesses were asking for more hotels, particularly downtown, said Todd Fenton, the city's economic development manager. Law firms and other companies wanted a place for clients to stay when they were in town, and residents wanted a local spot to host family as well as a new place to entertain people.

Fenton also is excited by the re-imagining in recent years of the former motor lodge on 11 Mile, east of Main, that became a boutique property known as Hotel Royal Oak. That new site combined with the Hyatt Place and a potential hotel at 13 Mile and Woodward bodes well for the future, which he said hopefully also includes great retail, residential and transit options for area residents.

"That's how we keep this economic engine churning," Fenton said. "We're trying to balance a lot of interests which can be competing at times. But, ultimately, people love this community because of its diversity and we want to continue that. It makes for a great community."

Downtown Royal Oak's nearby highways, restaurants and shops, as well as mix of need from residents and corporations, made it a good spot for a hotel. The Hyatt Place Royal Oak filled "a hole in the doughnut" in the Woodward Avenue strip, Abbo and others agree.

Luxe rooms in Birmingham

A few miles north along Woodward, the luxury Townsend Hotel in downtown Birmingham has seen the hotel boom trend and expects it to continue, managing director Steven Kalczynski said.

It faces new competition from the luxury Daxton Boutique Hotel on Old Woodward, an estimated $55 million project with a five-story, mixed-use building that combines a 143-room hotel with a restaurant, ballroom, commercial space and residential rental units. The project broke ground in October.

"We welcome competition," Kalczynski said. That means adding amenities at the Townsend that continue to attract a luxury customer, such as Bose radios, Nespresso coffee machines, whitenoise machines and 49-inch televisions in all guest rooms. Its three Presidential Suites have high-end Hastens handcrafted, all-natural fiber mattresses as well as Frette linens with 300-thread counts.

The Townsend has invested more than $15 million in décor, room updates and additions since Kalczynski joined the staff nearly seven years ago. The 150-room hotel known for its celebrity clientele and home to athletes visiting metro Detroit has a luxurious environment. It has been recognized by AAA Four-Diamond for more than 30 years and Forbes Travel Guide rated as a Four Star Hotel. The Rugby Grille restaurant inside the hotel is also a Wine Spectator two-glass award winner and Forbes rated.

"In order for Detroit to be able to attract some of the large conferences, it is important for these hotel developments to continue to occur," Kalczynski said. "We benefit as well. But we know that hotels have to evolve every year, so we're always taking a step back and looking at our product to see what needs 'rejuvenation' and is new and exciting in the market and what we need to do to stay competitive."

busy mall locations lost foot traffic amid the retail industry's upheavals.

Olga's Kitchen was bought out of Chapter 11 bankruptcy in late 2015 by TEAM Schostak Family Restaurants and regained its financial footing. Today, there are 26 locations, all but one in Michigan.

"She really was a pioneer of her age," said Loredana Gianino, marketing manager for Olga's Kitchen and TEAM Schostak. "She went through so many obstacles and did things that were completely bucking the trend of what a woman of that time should be doing.'

Greek inspiration

Loizon's inspiration came during a 1960s trip to Greece, the birthplace of her parents, where she so enjoyed the Greek souvlaki sandwiches that she paid $300 for a vertical broiler that she had shipped to Michigan.

She then spent several years experimenting in her Birmingham home with recipes for what became Olga's Kitchen pita bread.

It was in her Birmingham home that Loizon created the original Olga's sandwich of seasoned lamb and beef, smothered with tangy "Olgasauce," topped with tomatoes and sweet onions and wrapped in a signature pita-like bread.

She opened her first sandwich shop, originally called Olga's Souvlaki, in a small 11- by 10-foot space inside what was then the Continental Market in Birmingham.

"The place was so small we couldn't even make the bread there," Loizon said in 1984. "I had to make it at home and drive it in. I can say that now, but it was all a bit secret then."

Loizon recalled in an interview with Crain's Detroit how she was the first woman to obtain a business loan from her local bank, Detroit Bank & Trust, which she used to open that shop.

Word spread about Loizon's unique sandwiches and Olga's shop developed a cult following, attracting lines of customers

In 1975, Loizon sold the Olga's concept to a group of private investors. The business was rebranded as Olga's Kitchen and began expanding across the state, to Fairlane mall, Lakeside mall and, later, Ann Arbor and Lansing.

"The Olgas are without a doubt the most exciting idea in eating the sandwich," read one 1970s advertisement

Loizon kept an active presence in her restaurants, approving menu items and visiting various Olga's Kitchens several times a week. She made regular appearances as late as last year.

"She would walk in and say hello to everybody and ask, 'How was your meal? How did you like my Olga bread?"" Gianino said. "She wanted to make sure that everyone was enjoying everything."

The investor-owners set a national vision for Olga's and tried to expand well beyond Michigan. A two-story Olga's Kitchen opened in Manhattan in 1986, with visions at the time for as many as 40 more Olga's in the New York area. But the brand never resonated in outside markets to the degree it had in Michigan

In 2015, after several years of losses under then-owner Robert Solomon of Palm Springs, Calif., Olga's Kitchen declared bankruptcy.

The business was later purchased by Livonia-based TEAM Schostak Family Restaurants, which returned the chain to profitability by closing money-losing mall locations, opening new locations and bringing back classic recipes for popular Olga's dishes.

'Olga Loizon was a Detroit original whose trademark was to leave everything she touched wrapped in love from creating her Original Olga and meeting with our loyal guests to caring for her family and supporting her community," Mark Schostak, executive chairman of TEAM Schostak Family Restaurants, said in a statement.

Born in Detroit

Loizon was born Olga Patrick in Detroit and brought up in Hazel Park. In 1947, she married John Loizon, who survives her.

She was preceded in death by her parents and two siblings, Alexandra Zoyes and Costa Patrick.

She is also survived by three children, Emily Kontos, Bill Loizon and Ernest Loizon, and two grandchildren.

TEAM Schostak Family Restaurants has launched the Olga Loizon Memorial Foundation, which is aimed at providing financial assistance to Michigan's aspiring female entrepreneurs.

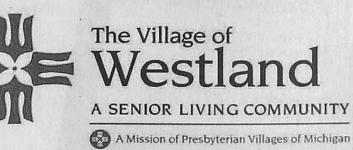

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made to the Olga Loizon Memorial Foundation and sent to TEAM Schostak Family Restaurants headquarters at 17800 Laurel Park Drive North, Ste. 200C, Livonia, MI 48152.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Praise for retiring reporter

When we recently learned of the early retirement of Mr. Brad Emons from your organization, we understood the reasons for the pending decision of your organization. Technological diversity and an ever increasing demand for expeditious information drives much decision making with regard to informational outlets.

This being the case, I did not want to allow the early retirement of Mr. Emons to go without notice or mention. Brad Emons has been both an icon and wealth of information concerning local area sports in the State of Michigan. His historical perspective and athletic pedigree are second to none in our area and for that matter, much of the Midwest. His longevity is unrivaled and I have never met an individual in all my years in athletics who has a greater recall than Mr. Emons. His unbiased and precise reporting is something which should be envied by all journalists. I have no idea how he spends as much times as he does with all of the schools and individSaints Catholic School in Plymouth, took first place in the Patriot's Pen scholarship competition. On behalf of many of the local coaches, athletic directors, and parents in our area, I would like to extend our sincere thanks to Mr. Brad Emons for a distinguished journalistic career in athletics which is second to none. He leaves behind a legacy of knowledge and integrity which will never be forgotten, nor ever be replaced. You do not replace a Brad Emons, you simply move forward and attempt to fill the cavernous void the best you can. Thank you Mr. Brad Emons for all you did and for all you have accomplished within the athletic arena. More importantly, we thank you for your selfless promotion of educational athletics, your unwavering support of every level of athletics and lastly, for never forgetting which word comes first in the phrase "student athlete."

rect 2008 vampire romance "Twilight."

Farkis's book, "The Making of Tombstone: Behind the Scenes of the Classic Modern Western," was released last month by McFarland & Company, Inc. Publishers.

"The book tells the story of the making of the movie from the perspective of people involved in making the movie and it also covers the history, how the city of Tombstone was created, Wyatt Earp and the gunfight at the O.K. Corral and the creation of the film itself," Farkis, a 69-year old Green Oak Township resident, said.

His research included interviewing more than 140 people who worked on the film. He also collected and studied all sorts of photographs and documents such as internal communications, call sheets and daily film reels.

One of his favorite finds: He obtained 11 drafts, or different versions, of the script.

"A lot of people don't know there were two directors," Farkis said. "The original screen-writer Kevin Jarre had written 'Glory' (1989) and because of his success with the screenplay andwas hired to direct 'Tombstone,' which is why a lot of the actors got on board, but he had trouble translating it into a film."

Farkis obtained four versions of the script Jarre penned before getting fired as the film's director. George Cosmatos took over directing the film and actor Kurt Russell was also deeply involved in the film's creation.

"Reading the scripts were interesting, because you could see how the script evolved," he said.

He said he would have loved to interview more stars who appeared in "Tombstone," but it wasn't in the cards.

Russell and Sam Elliott were too hard to reach, he said.

"I had interviews set up with Bill Paxton and Powers Boothe, but unfortunately they both passed away before I could speak with them," he said.

Farkis traveled to Tucson and Mescal, Ariz., where scenes were filmed to hunt down more stories.

"A lot of people working behind the scenes stayed in a Holiday Inn in Tucson, which is still a hotel, and I went to the address ... some of the maintenance crew worked at the Holiday Inn and gave me a lot of stories about what happened around the pool," he said. "I tracked down the manager and her husband was an extra in one of the bar scenes. She found reels of film stored away in the hotel that were dailies filmedby the first director who was fired and they aren't in the film."

He said extras were given maps to filming locations. He followed one of the maps to see locations for himself.

Farkis has also written two books on the making of 1960 John Wayne film "The Alamo," and donated many photographs, props, posters and other materials to the John Wayne Birthplace & Museum in Winterset, Iowa.

W LOCK GOL STREEM

Author John Farkis stands near his writing desk in his Green Oak Township home. His new book "The Making of Tombstone: Behind the Scenes of the Classic Modern Western" is about how the film was made and the history of the notorious town. SUBMITTED BY JOHN FARKIS

One aspect of the film that Farkis found interesting: while the film is relatively historically accurate, it was also representative of the time period in which it was made.

"It's 1881 Tombstone, but it was also made in 1993 Hollywood," Farkis said. "You could see topics being incorporated into the script that made the characters more modern than typical characters in Westerns made in, say, the 1940s."

Wyatt Earp's love interest Josephine Marcus, who actress Dana Delany portrayed in the film, "was a very modern woman and very aggressive in both her sexual appearance and activities and she was a stage entertainer at the time," he said. "Typically, you don't see that type of female characters in films in the 1940s and 1950s, and drinking and drug use are prevalent in the film and you didn't see that in old Westerns."

Beth Cox, a marketing representative for McFarland & Company, Inc. Publishers, thinks the book will appeal "to movie lovers of all stripes, but particularly fans of the Western, which is again making a comeback," she said. "Movie buffs will appreciate the comprehensive behind-the-scenes coverage of 'Tombstone.' John's access to rare photos and personal commentary from the cast and crew attest to his ability to really deliver the often elusive behind-the-scenes perspective to movie fans."

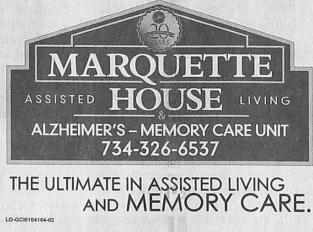

Where to buy the book

The book, which was released by McFarland & Company, Inc. Publishers last month, is available for purchase online through the publisher's website, mcfarlandbooks.com/product/the-making-oftombstone, Barnes & Noble, Amazon and other websites.

Personalized autographed copies can be ordered directly from Farkis by emailing him at jkfarkis@earthlink.net.

Farkis said the book should be for sale at brick-andmortar locations in the near future. He is also planning a book tour.

MIHL Prep Showcase on tap

A total of 42 teams, including ones from Wisconsin and Ohio, will converge on the Kennedy Rec Center

Brad Emons

hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

It's going to be a high school boys hockey extravaganza like no other.

For the 19th year, the Michigan Interscholastic Hockey League Prep Showcase, partnering with the city of Trenton and the Trenton Public Schools district, has scheduled a total of 42 high school games featuring teams from Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio during three-day period from Thursday, Jan. 31, through Saturday, Feb. 2, at the Kennedy Recreation Center.

"The main goal of the MIHL is to promote quality high school hockey, strong competition and sportsmanship," MIHL president and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook coach Andy Weidenbach said. "The Showcase complements that mission. The first 18 Showcases were tremendous successes and we are very optimistic about this year's event. High school hockey in Michigan has experienced tremendous growth; accordingly, the Showcase has expanded from 12 to 42 teams so that we can continue our mission of providing exposure of the best in high school hockey."

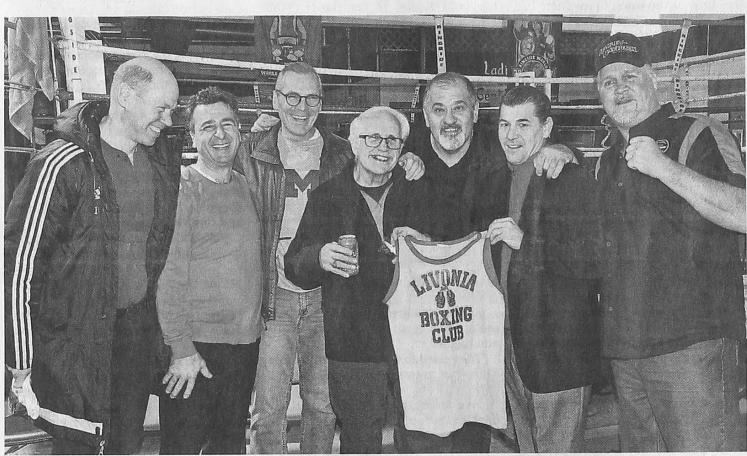

A majority of the top 10 teams, according to the Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association rankings, will be participating, including six from Division 1, seven from Division 2 and nine from Division 3.

Kennedy spurs Mustangs to convincing win over Marlins

Brad Emons hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

Although she's only a sophomore, they might have to start calling her "Ms. Efficient."

Birmingham Marian's Shannon Kennedy made it look easy Jan. 18, scoring a game-high 23 points on 10of-15 shooting as the Mustangs roared out of the gate in the first quarter and never looked back in a 60-41 victory at home over rival Farmington Hills.

80 YEARS YOUNG

Dynamic Boxing Club trainer Soucy still going strong

Brad Emons

hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK — MICHIGAN

To say Dynamic Boxing Club is Paul Soucy's home away from home would be a gross understatement.

So when the trainer, coach and director got a call Jan. 19 that there was an emergency at the Westland gym, he headed right over with his wife Rita.

Little did the 80-year-old know that, when he turned on the lights, a surprise birthday celebration was awaiting him.

"It was great, a lot of fun and saw a lot of old faces, people I've known over the years that I haven't seen," said Soucy, who has been in the fight game for more than 50 years. "It was great and we should do it at least once a month. You see a lot of familiar faces that you haven't seen in a while. It was interesting."

The Livonian arrives daily at the Dynamic Boxing Club around 3 p.m. each weekday until close. He's also there each Saturday as well to lend his expertise.

"It keeps me young," Soucy said. "I work with amateur and professionals. I work mitts with them, everything it takes a fighter to get to the top, and I'm there."

With the win, Marian improved to 9-0 overall and 4-0 in the Catholic League Central Division.

Kennedy got some much-deserved applause when Marian coach Mary Cicerone took her out of the game with just three minutes to go.

"She played very well and Shannon has played well in big games already," Cicerone said. "She played really well against Grosse Pointe North, which is a good team. She played really well at (Warren) Cousino. She played really well here against (Macomb) Dakota. She reads the game well. She knows when to cut, when to go and when to pull out. She's got a lot of good basketball instincts that a lot of girls don't have, decision-making with the ball."

The 5-foot-10 Kennedy scored 11 first-quarter points as the Mustangs jumped out to a commanding 23-5 advantage.

"We're always working on defense — everything — defense generates offense, so that was our main focus tonight," Kennedy said. "I was very happy this game, yes. I'm just kind of like using the screens, get open, quicker release."

Mercy (7-2, 3-1) had no answers for Kennedy or the Mustangs as they missed their first six shots, committed five turnovers and made only 2-of-21 shots from the field in the opening

How Canada stole Michigan's top competitors

Jeff Seidel Detroit Free Press USA TODAY NETWORK

Michigan was once the ice dance capital of the country.

A long list of U.S. champions and Olympic medalists were made in Michigan — cranked out like they were coming off an assembly line on ice.

Teams that trained in Michigan won the national title in ice dancing for 14 straight years (2004-17), usually beating out other teams from Michigan. It was common for Michigan teams to dominate the top three, if not top four, places at national competitions.

But over the last few years, several elite teams have left Michigan and are now training in Montreal, the new hot spot for ice dancers.

It's like the Motor City has a new export to Canada — elite ice dancing teams.

Now here comes the twist — or twizzle, if you will: those teams are coming home this week.

Madison Hubbell and Zachary Donohue, who now train in Canada, will return to Detroit to defend their national title in ice dance at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships at Little Caesars Arena.

"We are really excited to perform in Detroit," Hubbell said in a teleconference. "I'll have a lot of family at the arena. It's going to feel really wonderful to defend our title with so much support in the crowd."

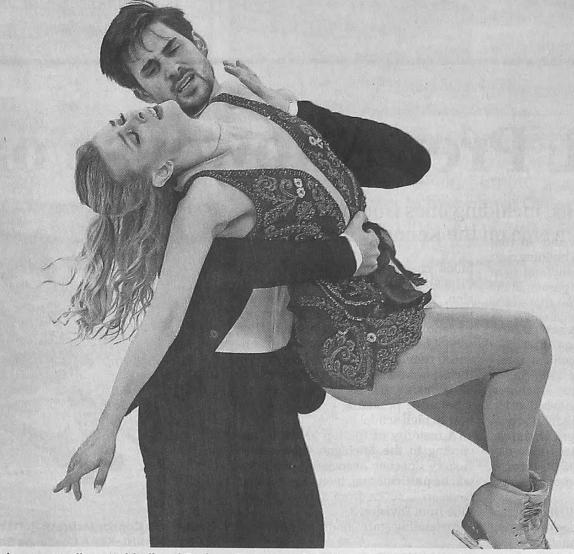

Hubbell, who was born in Lansing, and Donohue trained at the Detroit Skating Club until moving to Montreal in 2015 to train under Marie-France Dubreuil and Patrice Lauzon — the hottest coaches in the world. Several former Michigan ice dance teams have bolted to Canada to work under Dubreuil and Lauzon, like free agent football players wanting to play for the new, highly successful team.

Since making the move, the results have been remarkable for Hubbell and Donohue.

After winning the 2018 national title, Hubbell and Donohue took fourth place at the 2018 Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, South Korea, and then earned the silver medal at the World Championships.

They are undefeated this season and are favored to win their second national title after winning the 2018 Grand Prix Final.

"I don't know if momentum is the right word," Donohue said. "It's nice to look back and see your hard work bear fruit. Honestly, it kind of motivates us more."

It's nothing new to see ice dance competitors practicing together at the same rink, at the same time. There is a long history of it — but that history used to be in Detroit.

"We do have a past, especially Evan and I having grown up together in this sport," Hubbell said. "We know, deep down, we are friends. Their goal is our goal. ... We seem to be at a peaceful point in our careers. We have really enjoyed having them around. They are very fun to train with. They are a lighthearted and charismatic couple."

Chock and Bates, who won the 2014 national title, finished in ninth place at the 2018 Games, in part, because Chock had a foot injury.

But they took 10 months off from competition after Chock had surgery on her foot.

"I can tell you, it felt like a very long 10 months," Chock said. "I needed to put my health first and make that a priority. I was just kind of holding on last season and pushing through, because the Olympics was the most important At the 2018 Winter Olympics, Canada's Tessa Virtue and Scott Moir won the gold medal in ice dance, while France's Gabriella Papadakis and Guillaume Cizeron earned the silver — both teams trained in Montreal.

When Virtue and Moir decided to step away from skating, it opened up a spot for Chock and Bates to move to Montreal.

Now, here comes the irony: Virtue and Moir used to train in Canton, before they bolted for Montreal.

"We knew if we could move there, that would be the place that would spark our passion again and give us the daily competition we have been craving," Bates said. "That's what has been beneficial on the ice."

A third team in Montreal

Kaitlin Hawayek and Jean-Luc Baker are another team with a strong chance at a medal.

They used to train at Detroit Skating Club, but moved to Montreal in the spring. why we are doing what we are doing. Having a championship mentality."

What about the Shib sibs?

Olympic ice dance bronze medalists Maia Shibutani and Alex Shibutani are sitting out the 2018-19 figure skating season.

But they stopped short of calling it a retirement. They could return after taking the year off. Still, they seem to be everywhere.

They were at the Golden Globes and Maia had her picture taken with Olympic greats Nadia Comaneci, Bart Conner and Carl Lewis.

"NO BIG Deal," she wrote sarcastically on Twitter.

Miller time

Hannah Miller, a junior at Michigan State, will be competing in the ladies event.

Over the last few years, she has battled a sports hernia and an ankle injury.

Others to watch

Hubbell and Donohue don't have to look very far to watch their competition. They see them every day at practice.

Madison Chock and Evan Bates trained at the Novi Ice Arena until moving to Montreal last spring. They now work alongside Hubbell and Donohue.

"Maddie and Evan are looking incredible," Donohue said.

They are friendly, close rivals.

Chock and Bates are still adjusting to new coaches and a new city. They are learning new techniques and say they feel invigorated. Chock had trained in Michigan for 13 years, while Bates had trained here his entire life.

"We needed, I think, a change, just to feel reinvigorated for the next four-year cycle," Bates said. "Obviously, there is something special going on in the camp in Montreal. You see the success they've had, especially at the Olympics." "We are both really excited to head back to Detroit," Hawayek said. "It was our home for almost eight years."

Hawayek and Baker took fourth at the 2018 U.S. Championships and feel as if they have improved in Montreal.

"I definitely feel we have (changed)," Baker said. "I don't necessarily think we have changed so much, as we have a deeper level of understanding on who we are and why we skate. Our coaching team is very strict. The want us to know "She's excited to be in Detroit," said Kirsten Miller-Zisholz, Hannah's aunt and longtime coach. "She's excited to be a hometown girl."

A top 10 performance is within reach — maybe even a top five.

"Anyone who is there is capable of top five," Miller said. "I believe there are 20 girls and they are outstanding competitors. I've competed against most for my life and I'm also good friends with a lot of them."

quarter. The Marlins also missed their first six free throws of the game.

Mercy coach Gary Morris burned a pair of early timeouts to try to settle his team down.

"Like I said to the kids at the half and even during the timeout, I said, 'We're playing 150 miles an hour out there. You can't do that and you've got to slow it down," Morris said. "We were playing right into their hands. We were taking shots off-balance, awkward shots, and that's why we were missing a lot of shots. Sometimes we couldn't hit free throws, anything."

Marian, meanwhile, came out, redhot making 10-of-18 first-quarter shots.

"We came out and we looked good," Cicerone said. "We got after it, finished well, defended well."

Marian also dominated on the defensive end by blocking nine Mercy shots on the night.

"They blocked a lot of shots and we kind of figured that," Morris said. "That happens to us and, unfortunately, we're not that tall. But we need to be smarter in those situations, not just trying to shoot through somebody."

Kennedy, who nailed one triple, made all three of her shot attempts during the final quarter as the Mustangs hit 7-of-8 as a team.

Marian's Shannon Kennedy, introduced before the game, was all smiles as she scored a game-high 23 points during a 60-41 win over Mercy. JOHN HEIDER | HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

"She just understands how to get to a spot to get a shot," Cicerone said. "She needs a left hand, but she's working on it. I wouldn't say she's the greatest passer or the greatest ball-handler, but she knows where to get to spots. She takes herself there or she cuts without the ball. That's what she's doing very well."

Marian senior forward Megan Kraus added 12 points, while senior guard Olivia Moore and junior guard Faith Mancini chipped in eight and seven, respectively.

"They're a tough team to guard," Morris said. "They have a lot of weapons and you know they're always going to defend. So you put it all together and play like we did the first quarter, you dig yourself a hole -18 points."

But despite the victory, there's always room for improvement in Cicerone's estimation. She is ever the perfectionist and, on the downside, the Mustangs committed 16 turnovers.

"We've got these little peaks and valleys," she said. "They don't have much of a killer instinct kind of thing. They do well, they get up OK. I like that I have a very good bench. I feel very comfortable putting them in. My first group is a little better, but I'm very happy with my second group that I can rotate people and we don't lose too much. I think we have a lot of talent. Sometimes, they make a lot of ding-dong mistakes that they shouldn't at times and my seniors, too, which just boggles my mind. Bad passes, missed shots, turnovers like that ... that's part of the game. But not boxing out on free throws, get a layup off a free throw ... I mean, the little things like that shouldn't happen."

Sophomore forward Ellie Tisko scored a team-high eight to lead Mercy. Sophomore guard Julia Bishop added seven, while senior guard Annie Treharne and sophomore guard Lindsay Lukomski contributed six apiece.

Soucy

located next door to the Westland gym on West Warren Road (between Middlebelt and Inkster), met Soucy when he was 15.

"It was the second gym that I ever went to," Phillips said. "At that time, it was the Livonia Boxing Club, so that was my introduction and, since then, (I've) followed him around until I was probably 25. I think he had four gyms after that at four different locations."

Phillips opened Dynamic in 2005 and it remains at staple in the neighborhood.

"Thirteen years ago, Paul was walking his dog in the neighborhood," Phillips said. "I bumped into him. I hadn't seen him in many years and, at that time, I had just acquired a building next to my landscaping company and right then we just started talking and had the idea to get a gym going and that's how Dynamic started 13 years ago and we've been going at it ever since."

The two have remained close and Phillips gives Soucy plenty of rope to run the gym the way he sees fit.

"What keeps it going is Paul Soucy," Phillips said. "That's what keeps it going. He's just an extremely genuine man and I like to call him the real deal. I know that was Evander Holyfield's fight name, but he's the real deal. His heart toward the craft and his heart toward helping others is just phenomenal. He's in there every day it's open. That's what really makes him unique, is his drive and his spirit."

Early years

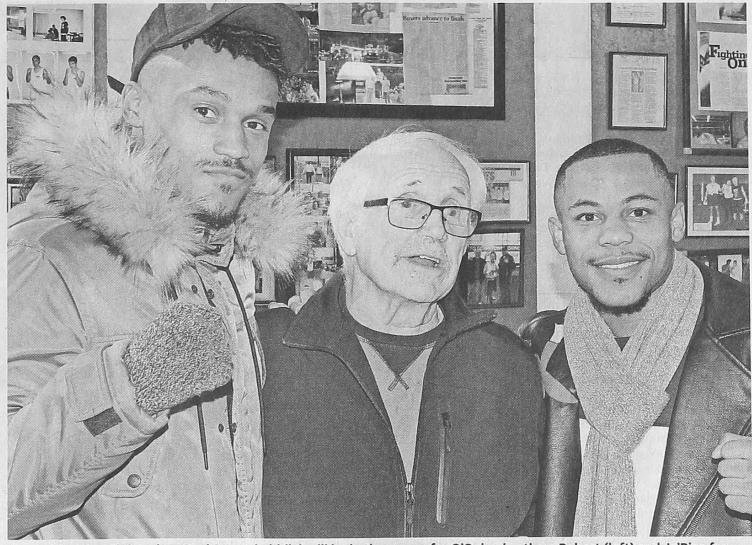

Soucy grew up in New Hampshire and started his boxing career in 1957, when he was 19, in the Golden Gloves.

When he ran the Livonia Boxing Club back in the 1980s, Soucy coached several promising amateur and pro fighters, but he is best remembered for training one of boxing's greatest trivia questions.

It was there when Soucy coached an amateur heavyweight named Craig Payne, who defeated a then 16-year-old Mike Tyson for the National Golden Gloves title, along with Cuban legend and three-time Olympic gold medalist Teófilo Stevenson and 1984 Olympic Gold medalist Tyrell Biggs, whom Payne lost to on a controversial judges' decision to go to the L.A. Games during the finals of the U.S. Trials. (Payne died in May 2017.)

Fast forward to 2019 and Soucy is in another corner, along with fellow trainers Chad Jacquillard and Tony Colino, for the O'Quinn brothers — Ja'Rico, who sports a 10-0-1 record, and Robert, who is 3-0.

also a diabetic, the proverbial "Cat with Nine Lives."

"I haven't fought in a while, but I intend to one more time," Soucy said. "They have this big tournament for the masters division and, as far as I know, I'm one of the oldest guys who have ever fought in the masters division, but I want to make sure my record is not threatened, so if I go at 80, I don't think there's too many people fighting at that age."

Family ties

Soucy and his wife Rita raised five children, four sons and a daughter. The have nine grandchildren and one greatgrandchild.

"The only one that doesn't think I shouldn't be doing this anymore is my wife (Rita) and I got to be careful what I say after 58 years of married life," Soucy said with a laugh. "I turned 80 a couple days ago and I'm still doing things the average person can't do. And if I ask my fighters to do something, it's going to be something I can do, too. I'm not going to ask them something that I can't do, so it keeps me shape."

Ja'Rico O'Quinn calls Soucy "a special guy."

"He's been here 10 years since I've been here and even longer than that and terweight (118 pounds), will be facing Alex Rangel (17-8-4) of Sonora, Mexico, as part of a card Friday, Feb. 8, at the Motor City Casino.

Robert, 24, a junior welterweight (140 pounds), returns to the ring Saturday, Feb. 23, at the Dearborn Heights Performing Arts Center, where he faces Charles Johnson of St. Louis, Mo.

Additional work

When they're not sparring at Dynamic, the brothers can also be found twice a week at Pryde Athletics in Canton, where the do their strength and conditioning training under Colino, who is experienced with pro and amateur fighters alike.

Soucy discovered the O'Quinn brothers when they were 13- and 14-year-olds playing basketball at the O'Shea Recreation Center in Detroit, where Soucy and a few of the Dynamic coaches put on an exhibition.

"Paul actually boxed with my brother ... that's how I got started," Ja'Rico O'Quinn said. "I said I can fight and get paid for it. I was getting in trouble because I was fighting a lot in the streets, getting in fights at school, running around in gangs and stuff. That saved me. I figured that I could fight and not get in trouble, literally. When I stepped in the gym, it was, like, love at first sight. I fell in love with it and I haven't turned back since."

O'Quinn said Soucy has always been in his corner inside and outside the ring every step of the way.

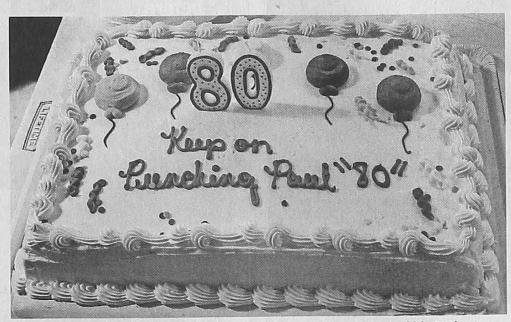

"He saw the potential and took me places that I thought I'd never go," O'Quinn said. "I didn't have the money to go. My parents didn't have the money to take me and he looked out for us and we brought back championships. That's a blessing right there. I can't thank him enough."

Masters champion

When he was 73, Soucy became a four-time Ringside World Champion in 2012, when he captured the 165-pound age division by defeating Bill Gruze, also 73, in the third round. It was his fourth Ringside title after winning previously in 2005, 2006 and 2008.

It was an incredible feat considering he had undergone quintuple bypass surgery, while also having metal plates in his ankle and neck.

Some may consider Soucy, who is he still doesn't act like he's 80 years old," the Detroit pro said. "He's got heart monitors on his chest and stuff like that and he still wants in the ring because he's a true champion and that's what a true champion is."

Ring knowledge

Jacquillard, a Toledo native who works construction by day and trains fighters at night, just marvels at Soucy's staying power as a boxing trainer and coach.

"Paul is just a great guy. He's been around the boxing game for 50 years, he's well-respected in the sport," Jacquillard said. "He has a lot of knowledge. He's 80 years old now and he doesn't move around like he used to, but his knowledge doesn't fade. He's always there and that's what make him so great, all the experience he's had with boxing."

Soucy is not ready to pull out his AARP card anytime soon.

"He's not slowing down," Jacquillard said. "Sometimes, I wish he would. He's stubborn and you can't tell him what to do. He works the mitts with guys. He hasn't been in the ring sparring for a while, but he said he's itching to get back in there, but we'll see."

Being at Dynamic, his home away from home, six days a week keeps Soucy young at heart.

"(Phillips) is a sweetheart, I just love him," Soucy said. "He lets me run the gym the way I want to run the gym. That's the way it's got to be. Chuck used to fight for me when he was a little guy and he worked his way up and I'm very thankful that when he needed somebody in that gym, that he called me up. And I'm very, very thankful and he's one heck of a nice guy. I'm appreciative that he remembers what I did for him when he was coming up the ranks and wanted to get into boxing. He could have called other boxing coaches, but he called me and that's loyalty."

Showcase

(Division 1) and Hartland (Division 2) will return, along with five state finalists and nine semifinalists who played in the 2018 Showcase.

Teams from the Upper Peninsula will be making the trek along with out-state teams Green Bay (Wis.) Notre Dame Academy and Cleveland (Ohio) St. Ignatius.

Meanwhile, several teams will be returning to the Showcase after an absence for a few years, including defending Division 3 state champion Beverly Hills Detroit Country Day.

"Detroit Country Day is really excited and honored to be back in the Showcase," coach Frank Novock said. "Having been involved in many facets, including playing, recruiting and now coaching in the MIHL Showcase, I have seen first-hand the tremendous opportunity these teams are presented. From the junior, college and NHL scouts that attend this awesome event, it gives these high school teams a chance to really show how good Michigan high school hockey continues to be and improve their on-ice product. I also can't fail to mention the amount of professionalism, organization and hard work that so many people put into this event to make it such a first-class stage to play on.'

The MIHL Showcase also gives players exposure to Junior A and college scouts over the three-day period, which includes six games Thursday and 18 each on three different rinks Friday and Saturday at the Kennedy Rec Center.

At last year's Showcase, scouts representing every U.S. Hockey League and North American Hockey League team were on hand, as well as several NCAA Division III teams. Many of the leading NCAA Division I programs had one or two representatives in attendance and there were six NHL teams represented.

More than 100 volunteers will help stage the three-day Showcase.

"Eighteen years ago, the MIHL Prep Hockey Showcase was a very modest event and we are very proud of how it has developed," Weidenbach said. "The MIHL met its goals as a league and as a co-sponsor of the event. All teams, players and coaches of high school hockey in Michigan have benefited. The Showcase

Great second-stage careers for retiring baby boomers

Kate Lopaze thejobnetwork.com

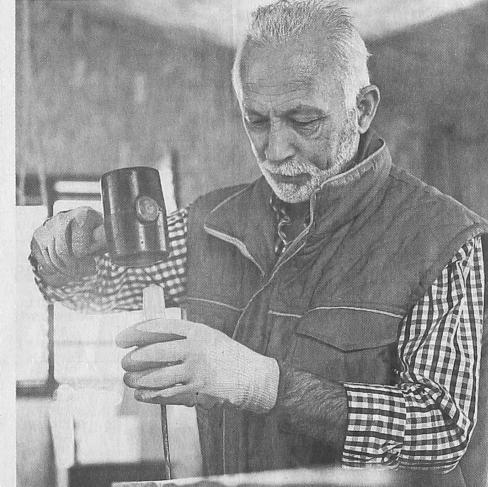

If you're one of the huge wave of Baby Boomers reaching (or already past) retirement age, you may be thinking a lot about the next phase of your life. For many, continuing to work is a financial necessity. For others, it's about staying professionally active without the same 9-to-5 grind. If you're looking for ways to stay active and stay earning, here are some second-stage careers to consider.

Teach what you know

One of the perks of coming to the end of your first career is that you have lots of expertise and experience built up. What better to do than share that expertise and get paid for it? Many local community colleges, continuing education programs, or online schools can always use qualified teachers who have flexible schedules. Or you could consider substitute teaching. Check with your local school district to see what their requirements are, but many states don't require substitute teachers to have a specific teaching degree.

Be a consultant

If you've got decades of experience in a particular field, consulting can be a way to transition from the full-time working world to one where you set your own schedule and salary. Many Baby Boomers find themselves in a position to do work for their former companies, and others expand their business to take on new clients. One of the biggest upsides of consulting is that it lets you take the skills and experience you have and use it to create a new business for yourself.

Make the world a better place

After all, the Baby Boomers are the generation of Woodstock and '60s social justice. Working for a nonprofit can be a way to keep that social idealism going, while staying professionally active. Nonprofits come in all shapes and sizes, so there's likely one in your area that fits with your worldview and your priorities.

Many Baby Boomers also find that volunteering and giving back to the community is a way to create a new wave of productivity. Like consulting, volunteering capitalizes on your skills, experience, and time to help others.

Find a franchise

Owning a ready-made franchise can be a great way to build a business without building it from the ground up. Franchisees can often be as involved or hands-on as they want to be, directly managing the business or being the boss from a distance. It's also a way to learn new sides of a business, whether it's food service, a retail store, or other venture.

The existing branding and marketplace can ease the transition into a new field, making it ideal for someone looking for a next stage instead of a startover.

Whatever your interests and Build a business out of a hobby

If you find yourself with more time after retirement, you may find that what used to be a hobby can now be a profitable side hustle.

Now more than ever, people are seeking out unique or artisan goods, so it may be time to ramp up that home woodworking shop or set up that Etsy store.

With a variety of ways to sell goods and services online, something you've always done for fun can make for a fulfilling and profitable next wave of your career. strengths, there are plenty of options and opportunities for building a second income, developing skills, or filling the time after you've transitioned away from your first career.

✓ Introducing Oticon Opn™

Finally there's a hearing device that lets you hear what you want to hear, even in the most complex hearing environments! It's Oticon Opn.^M Only Opn features a revolutionary microchip that adjusts and balances all the sounds around you, not just the ones directly in front of you. It separates speech from noise and lets you focus on what's important. And because Opn works in harmony with your brain to process sounds exceptionally fast, you'll enjoy 30% better speech understanding, reduce your listening effort by 20% and remember 20% more of your conversations*. With Oticon Opn, you can open up to a fuller, more natural hearing experience.

Come in with a friend or a loved-one and receive: Complimentary/no-cost testing and hearing aid evaluations for new patients

NDONSOS DINE

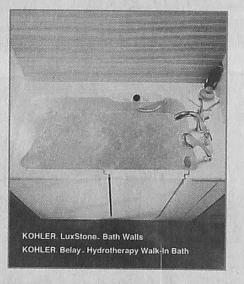

877-365-3078 🔤 🔤 📥

After three back surgeries, Mary experienced chronic pain as well as neuropathy in both feet. The 73-year-old had trouble finding a bathing solution to accommodate her mobility challenges. She lives alone in her Texas home, and was not ready to move. "I love my house, and I want to stay in my house as long as I can," she says.

She realized her traditional bathtub was no longer an option, as the rim of the tub was too high for her to step in safely. Mary liked her walk-in shower, but missed sitting and relaxing in the bath.

She purchased the KOHLER®

"You're buying a lot more than a tub," she adds. "You're buying security, you're buying safety, you're buying comfort. It's a deal!"
