Westland calls for ADA-friendly parks

Shelby Tankersley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Starting with Hubbard Park, Westland is going to try to make its playgrounds a place where every child can play regardless of physical ability.

The city council approved the parks and recreation master plan, which looks forward to the next five years. Making all of the city's parks compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

"We met with the special groups that we had and we went through the disabilities concerns meeting and one of the things that they mentioned were the things that we were lacking in that category for ADA," said Kyle Mulligan, the city's parks and recreation director.

Mulligan said the city is "going to make every attempt we can to be as thorough as possible when it comes to our decisions for ADA compliance" by adding things like foam ground and wheelchair-accessible elements to play structures.

"(We want to have) a transfer area where a person with a wheelchair can either get their wheelchair or get themselves on the apparatus to be able to recreate... Transition platforms are really the main focus and getting kids the ability to get onto the play structure," he said.

Those with Parkinson's disease have to prepare themselves for the likelihood they'll someday lose control of their body.

But, rigorous exercise, from martial arts and cycling, can slow the disease's progression and let someone maintain independence. That's what the Rock Steady Boxing program tries to give people.

"It can be a devastating diagnosis," said Steve Styes, the wellness program coordinator at the Recovery Project, a physical therapy center in Livonia. "I've seen people come and they may be quiet and just not really confident. But I think once they get into a group of people and see what they can actually do and they see how they improve, it builds that confidence."

Plymouth gift shop set to close

Opening a stationary store was never in the cards for Tanja von Kulajta.

After being in a few different fields, she found her passion was in paper and creating unique invitations for events and other crafty uses. But she found nothing like that in western Wayne County.

"There wasn't really a place you could find a place with unique invitations outside of Bloomfield or Ann Arbor," the Northville resident said.

That led to the birth of RSVP in downtown Plymouth, a shop dedicated to creating the best invitations. But as the industry changed, so did her business. And now, after 23 years, von Kulajta is ready to close the doors on this part of her life and close down RSVP.

The business will shutter by the end of the month, ending a run at three different locations on Penniman Avenue

What's going on at your favorite restaurant? You may - or may not - want to know.

Dining out is a huge industry and something nearly everyone does in the area. It's up to county health departments to make sure those restaurants are doing things to keep you happy and healthy.

They inspect - Oakland County does it in-house and Wayne County contracts with Sword Solutions - restaurants and other commercial kitchens during unannounced visits at least twice a year.

How to file your taxes for free

Money Matters
Rick Bloom
Guest columnist

Probably the only word in the English dictionary that I like more than "on sale" is the word "free." I love free stuff; however, I am always leery any time I get an offer stating something is free.

My general view is that there are no free rides. That being said, there is something many of you should take advantage of that is free, can save you money and has no gimmicks: the IRS free-file program.

The IRS free-file program has been around for nearly 20 years, and over 50 million Americans have taken advantage of it. The free file program is a way for taxpayers to use software from private tax preparation companies for free. Most of the major tax software companies participate in this program and basically the only requirement to qualify is that your adjusted gross income must be less than $69,000.

I know many of you are thinking that if this is a tax preparation program connected with the IRS, there must be some catch; there is not. The software you would be using is the same software these companies sell on the open market.

It is also important to remember that the software programs use a question and answer format to make sure you're taking all the deductions you're entitled to. Thus, you don't have to worry if you're not a tax expert.

I've seen numerous ads over the years from companies offering free-tax software or things of that nature. Some of these offers are legit; however, a good portion of them are not. In many cases they are scams seeking to obtain your sensitive information. Therefore, you must be very cautious in using any so called free software. When you use the free-tax file program through the IRS you can be assured you're dealing with reputable companies. That being said, the key to the IRS free file program is that you must link to the software directly through the IRS website.

I believe if you have a relatively straightforward tax situation where you have wages, some interest and dividends along with normal deductions such as mortgage interest, property tax and charitable contributions, this program will work for you. For those with more complex tax issues you may want to look for a different alternative.

My philosophy has always been that money looks better in your pocket than it does anywhere else. Therefore, if you can save yourself hundreds of dollars in tax preparation fees by doing your tax return yourself, why not? Therefore, I encourage many of you to look into this program and take advantage of it. After all, won't it feel great to get something from the IRS that actually saves you money?

Good luck!

Westland council votes Londeau as president pro tem

Shelby Tankersley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

After being unable to appoint a council president pro tem at its last meeting Jan. 6, Westland City Council voted Mike Londeau to the position Jan. 21.

Londeau, who garnered the second-most votes during the November election, is currently serving his second term. He's replacing Councilman Peter Herzberg, who was also nominated for the role.

"I look forward to serving in this leadership role. ... I know Councilman Hart and I take great pride in this role," he said.

On Jan. 6, Londeau and Herzberg failed to receive enough votes to become pro tem, with Councilwoman Tasha Green choosing to vote against both. But, Councilman Jim Godbout voted in favor of Londeau on Jan. 21 after previously voting for Herzberg.

Godbout wrote in an email that he also would have voted in Herzberg's favor. However, council did not vote on Herzberg because Londeau earned enough votes.

Councilwoman Andrea Rutkowski and President Jim Hart joined Godbout in voting for Londeau.

Something as thrilling to kids as ziplines are even a possibility.

"There's ziplines that are available for handicap accessibility as well as regular ziplines," Mulligan said. "We can put two of those next to each other or something like that."

There's no real timeline for making every park ADA-compliant, but Mulligan said it won't happen right away. The starting point and one of the larger projects, Hubbard Park, will also get a trail in an attempt to connect Westland's parks.

"Our goal is to put a play structure up there a little closer to the street than where it is now and create a walking path around that park," Mulligan said. "We want to connect that park with walking paths to the rest of the paths in the city. That would then connect park to park and community to community."

But when all is said and done, Mulligan said the goal

Westland is looking to make its city parks more ADA-friendly. Wheelchair, crutch or cane users would have difficulty navigating over the mulch to get to the playground shown at Tatan Park.

is to make sure the parks and playgrounds are enjoyable for everyone.

"We just want to make sure that everybody is included in this," he said.

With the advent of e-invites and other ways of communicating for special events, von Kulajta has seen a dramatic shift in what her customers are buying.

"Just as all industries change," she said. "What used to be 70% of my business ... is now closer to 20% of my business."

With closing the store, von Kulajta hopes to begin a new chapter of her life, including starting a new church in Ann Arbor with her husband and traveling to see her children who live elsewhere. Having to run the shop made those other steps difficult, she said, and she's looking forward to a change of pace.

"Retail is all too encompassing," she said. "We are just too busy and I would like freedom to visit my kids."

While von Kulajta said she tried to sell the shop to keep it open, there were too many factors that prevented that and will close it down. It continues to sell items at a discount before the shop closes at the end of January.

Taking over the space will be Frame Works, which has a new owner as of this year. The frame shop will expand from its current location and add the space that contains RSVP as well.

Despite the closure, von Kulajta said she'll miss the welcoming atmosphere downtown Plymouth had to

Boxers

The Recovery Project has Rock Steady classes at all three of its locations; the business has facilities in Clinton Township and Lansing, as well. The program combines boxing techniques with exercise meant to help someone maintain independence.

"We've seen improvements with gait and walking and just functionally moving," Styes said. "The side of it that tends to get overlooked is really the non-motor symptoms. With Parkinson's there can be a lot of depression and anxiety that comes along with it, and you see improvements there."

For the students, the program means huge turnarounds.

"I can do things now that I couldn't do," said Jim Quinn, who was diagnosed about 18 months ago and has been boxing about a year. "I'm going to be back driving my car and things like that that I couldn't do before."

Being a physical therapy gym, the Recovery Project has its class taught by physical therapists used to working with dementia patients.

"We always incorporate boxing into the program, but there's a bunch of agility training, balance training, strength training and then cognitive exercises as well," Styes said.

Aside from the workout, students also get a support group environment.

"I really feel like when I'm not here, the motivation isn't there," said Gloria Bielicki, who was diagnosed in September 2017 and has been boxing for two years. "Mentally and physically, it definitely makes a difference when you're not here. When you're here it's like a judgement-free zone. We all have the same issues going on."

Students said the therapists are great and supportive, but it's special to be around so many people who understand what they're going through. Together, they make sure the disease they have doesn't get to define them.

"It's the most physically and mentally supportive group I've ever attended," said Nancy Hasek, who was diagnosed in April 2019 and has been boxing ever since. "It's just very motivational and helps us with the rest of our day."

Michigan's absentee ballots have a new envelope

Shelby Tankersley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Michigan's absentee ballots, which are starting to arrive in mailboxes, aren't packed in manila envelopes anymore. The state hopes the new design will be more user-friendly for voters and postal workers.

The new envelopes, colored white and blue, have city and township clerks worrying people will throw their March 10 ballot away. The return envelopes voters will use are white and green.

"It's new and people know what they're looking for right now," said Susan Nash, Livonia's city clerk, said. "They're looking for their manila envelope and this is something different. We want to make sure we get the information out."

If the ballot happens to get thrown away or gets lost in the mail, there's a way for clerks to fix that.

"If you happen to throw it out or realize you don't have a ballot. ... We have to have a signed something that says you don't have a ballot and asking to spoil that number for whatever number ballot they had," Nash said. "So we can spoil that ballot and reissue them a new one."

If that spoiled ballot happens to be found and filled out by someone who found it in the trash or otherwise, the ballot number would be seen as invalid and not counted, preventing voter fraud.

Absentee ballots are due to city and township halls by 8 p.m. on Election Day.

Absentee voting has surged in Michigan since a no-reason absentee proposal passed in Nov. 2018. Most clerks have said more such ballots have been issued now than ever.

People can now contact their local clerk before the election to vote absentee or can apply to be on the permanent absentee list in their municipality without needing a reason.

In March, Michigan voters will choose on Democratic or Republican nominees for November's Presidential Election. Voters in Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties will also vote on tax renewal request for the Detroit Institute of Arts along with any local initiatives.

Couple bound over on manslaughter, abuse charges

Susan Vela Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

There's enough evidence for a Livonia couple to face felony charges in the deaths of their months-old daughter, 16th District Court Judge Kathleen McCann ruled Thursday.

She listened to a few hours worth of testimony before binding over Allen Abel, 46, and Kimberly Davidson, 40, to face involuntary manslaughter and child abuse charges in Detroit's higher Third Circuit Court.

Livonia police were dispatched to their Rensellor Street home, near the intersection of Inkster and Seven Mile roads, at about 5:13 p.m. June 17 because of an unresponsive infant.

They would find an unresponsive baby on a couch and, hours later, test the parents' alcohol levels and find them double the legal limit.

McCann emphasized that Oakland County Medical Examiner Dr. Ljubisa Dragovic testified to Makenna Alice Abel dying accidentally from compression and asphyxia of the nasal passages.

"There was subdural bleeding under the lungs from the effort to breathe,"

HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

McCann said. "There was evidence of these broken blood vessels which were consistent with a child being on its face when it died."

"He said there was no regurgitation (and that) it was unlikely that the child had been fed recently because there was less than a milliliter of fluid in the child's stomach."

Makenna was born March 23, which means she was less three months old when her parents said they found her cold and needing emergency care.

Police said Davidson told them she and Abel left the child alone briefly to smoke and take a break outside.

Abel's statement to police was different. He said he was watching television when Davidson screamed for him, saying there was something wrong with Makenna.

"I am looking at two individuals who were more than double the legal limit that evening," McCann said. "They were untruthful at best about whether or not they consumed alcohol."

"This is a situation where this child was left in an environment where there (were) no adults looking after this child — no one who is competent."

Attorney Rebecca Tieppo is representing Abel. Attorney Romi Mezy is representing Davidson. The attorneys said there wasn't enough evidence to support the charges.

Tieppo said there's no clear evidence Abel had anything to do with Makenna's sleeping environment.

They both noted that at least one police officer never noticed the smell of alcohol on Abel and Davidson. They said their clients may have chosen to drink after their child was rushed to a hospital.

"For gross negligence, Your Honor, they have to show more than carelessness," Mezy added. "There had been no indication of abuse of this baby. What we have here is mere speculation and conjecture. My client should have never been charged."

Kroger shoppers this weekend have chance to help neighbors

Susan Bromley Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Going grocery shopping this weekend or next? If you go to one of several local Kroger stores, you will be given a grocery list and the opportunity to help your neighbors.

Kroger and Gleaners Community Food bank are teaming up in a major food drive, with volunteers accepting non-perishable items at Wayne County stores Feb. 1 and 2. Similar drives were held this past weekend in Oakland County.

Shoppers will be greeted inside Kroger vestibules, where Gleaners volunteers will provide lists of needed nutritious foods and personal items. The volunteers will remain on site to collect donations of food in boxes, cans, or plastic containers between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

The food collection is part of Kroger's Zero Hunger | Zero Waste plan to end hunger in local communities and eliminate waste across the company by 2025.

"These food drives serve as the perfect opportunity to lend a hand to over 650,000 men, women and children who will face hunger this year in southeast Michigan," Rachel Hurst, corporate affairs manager for The Kroger Co. of Michigan, said. "Our Kroger customers are always such loyal supporters of our efforts to end hunger in our communities."

This marks the ninth year Kroger and Gleaners have held collection events in January to battle hunger. Last year, five counties collected over 175,000 pounds — or 87 tons — of food for hungry neighbors through the Kroger and Gleaners collaboration.

"We are so grateful for this opportunity to team up with Kroger once again to continue to fight hunger in our communities," said Gleaners President & CEO Gerry Brisson. "This food drive comes at such a critical time to keep the shelves stocked at many of our partner agencies as many Michigan residents face the heartbreaking decision to buy food or pay their bills."

Customers may also make a donation at any register or select a pre-filled "From Hearts to Homes" box of groceries to add to their total at checkout for donation.

GATORADE NATIONAL VOLLEYBALL PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Mercy player earns top volleyball honor

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Awesome. Incredible. Selfless.
When asked to describe Jess Mruzik, these are the words that came to the minds of her former Mercy Volleyball teammates. However, for junior outside hitter Charli Atiemo, one word encapsulated every feeling: superhero.

"I thank God every day that I was able to live this with her," Atiemo said.

Despite leaving Mercy to enroll early and play volleyball at Michigan, Mruzik returned to Mercy High School Jan. 22 to cap off her high school career, being named the Gatorade Volleyball National Player of the Year.

Through this award, Gatorade recognizes the nation's most elite high school athletes in 12 different sports. Past winners include Peyton Manning, Abby Wambach and Derek Jeter.

The Mercy Athletics Department also announced that Mruzik's No. 33 would be retired.

"Looking back on it, I'm just so blessed and honored to be a part of such an amazing volleyball community and so highly respected among my peers

Brother Rice uses defense to win season series against CC

Colin Gay Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Coming off a loss on the road to Calumet, Brother Rice hockey had a chance to revive morale against its top rival: Detroit Catholic Central.

With the Shamrocks outscoring the Warriors 6-5 in two games, splitting the first two games of the three-game series, a win for either team would secure a leg up on the MIHL North division lead.

After allowing an average of 2.7 goals per game since its most recent shutout on Dec. 12, the Brother Rice defense (12-2-1) stepped up against Catholic Central (9-5), defeating the Shamrocks, 2-1, Jan. 22 at home.

"It always feels good to come out and get a win against that group," Brother Rice head coach Kenny Chaput said. "They work hard and they make you earn whatever you get."

In the first two periods, the Warriors had their fair share of chances to take a lead, but thwarted four power-play attempts in the first 25 minutes of game play.

But 61 seconds is all it took to turn the tide.

With 4:39 left in the second period,

Warriors forward Max Brown took the puck off a rebound after a miss from Matt DeTar, tipping it in the back of the net for the first score of the day.

Brother Rice then found the back of the net again, as senior Dylan McNulty scored the second goal of the game off an assist from Brother Rice forward Ryan Murphy.

"Every time we play CC, it's a special memory," McNulty said. "Being a senior, being the last time we are playing them, you got to come out every shift and give it your all."

Coming off an eight-point loss to KLAA East-leading Belleville on a few days earlier John Glenn basketball felt like it had learned from its mistakes, leading the charge Friday against Livonia Stevenson and holding a 33-19 halftime lead.

Howell taps Plymouth's Lewis to be football coach

Bill Khan Livingston Daily
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Friday was an emotionally exhausting day for Brian Lewis.

Along with the excitement of being named Howell's new football coach earlier in the day came the sobering responsibility of informing his now-former players at Plymouth that he would no longer be their coach.

"It was hard," Lewis said. "As a guy that is authentic, I try to pride myself in building relationships with people, especially with our kids. It was a very difficult day for me to talk to our Plymouth kids. Kids don't always understand exactly what's going on when you get older."

Hartland hockey drops 2nd tilt against Stevenson

Bill Khan Livingston Daily
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

LIVONIA – Hartland's best chance of winning a third straight state Division 2 hockey championship might be for someone else to do the dirty work of taking down Livonia Stevenson.

Stevenson, quite simply, has become the Eagles' Kryptonite.

While Hartland has fared quite well against other powerhouse programs in the state, the Eagles can't seem to figure out Stevenson.

The second-ranked Spartans beat fourth-ranked Hartland for the fifth straight time in decisive fashion, 7-0, Wednesday night at Eddie Edgar Ice Arena.

It's the second time this season that Stevenson has beaten Hartland. The Spartans beat the Eagles, 5-2, on Jan. 4 at Hartland Sports Center.

"What they have is a constant compete and we don't," Hartland coach Rick Gadwa said. "What's the difference between them and us? They compete and we don't."

The rivals could meet two more times this season. Stevenson or Salem will host Hartland or Brighton in the KLAA championship game. A fourth encounter could take place in the state semifinals March 12 at USA Hockey Arena.

TIMOTHY ARRICK/FOR HOMETOWNLIFE.COM

The manner in which they were dominated Wednesday will bring about some soul-searching by the Eagles as they head into the most important time of the season.

"It's about what we do now moving forward," Gadwa said. "Some guys can sink, some can rise to the occasion. We have a lot of work to do. We just got our butts beat."

"You can learn a lot from losses. We're going to look to do that, but this is a big one. This is a game where it looks like, do you have anything? Where's a response here? It's not there. Where's the compete at? It's not there. So, it's one of those things where we have to really dig deep to go find that."

Stevenson coach David Mitchell tried to not read too much into Wednesday's result, even if it was the continuation of a trend against Hartland.

"Again, they're the back-to-back state champs for a reason," Mitchell said. "Until someone takes that away from them, they're the defending state champs. They have what everybody wants. One game at a time to try to get to that point."

Stevenson smothered Hartland, which was unable to generate consistent puck possession in the offensive zone. The Eagles managed only 12 shots on goal against Stevenson goalie Brenden Stroble. Stevenson had 26 shots on net.

"We've been working on some things, and there are nights like that where things just click," Mitchell said. "We'll take it. We could just as much be on the other end of something like that with a team like Hartland. It ebbs and flows, and tonight was a good night for us."

The Spartans seized momentum just 69 seconds into the game when Jack Smith turned and fired home a shot from the slot. Seth Lause, who scored three shorthanded goals in the previous meeting with Hartland, made it 2-0 at the 4:15 mark.

Tanner Liptow, who finished with two goals and two assists, and Nick Justice scored in the second period to make it 4-0.

The Spartans were in a position to end the game by the eight-goal mercy rule when Tate Kovacs, Carson Kleven and Liptow scored three goals in a 2:19 span to increase the lead to 7-0 with 8:59 remaining in the game.

The Eagles didn't allow another goal, but they did lose by at least seven goals for only the second time in their last 157 games dating back to the 2014-15 season. A positive for Hartland was that it embarked on its first state title run after ending the 2017-18 regular season with an 8-0 loss to Detroit Catholic Central.

Hartland's inability to beat Stevenson stands in contrast to its record against some of the other premier programs in Michigan. The Eagles have beaten Brighton seven straight times, are 5-1-1 in their last seven games against Trenton, have three straight victories over Orchard Lake St. Mary's and are 2-1 in their last three against Birmingham Brother Rice.

Stevenson (14-1-1) extended its winning streak to 13 games, allowing two goals or less in 12 of them. Hartland fell to 11-3-1.

Hockey

Despite only scoring two goals, its second-lowest output of the season after its 4-0 loss to Catholic Central on Dec. 7, the Warrior defense stepped up.

Brother Rice allowed only five shots on goal in the first period, limiting the Shamrocks' chances to get good looks.

Catholic Central ended Brother Rice's chance at its second shutout of the season 16:17 into the final period, as Shamrocks forward Blake Salamon found the back of the net off an assist by Dylan Dooley.

While senior goalkeeper Cooper Duncan made the stops when he needed to, he said the Brother Rice defense, as a whole, put on a show, especially after allowing eight goals in its past two games.

"They made it very easy on me and it made a huge difference how great we played defensively because all we had to do was score two goals to win a game," Duncan said.

Chaput said the Warriors defense "kept it simple," concentrating on limiting space that the Shamrock offense had to work with instead of being careless with the puck and in transition.

While the output of each of the three games between Brother Rice and Catholic Central have been close, Shamrocks head coach Brandon Kaleniecki is not focused on what the score of each matchup dictated.

"I would like to think if we played them again, sure, we would be on the other side of it, but that is just the nature of it," Kaleniecki said. "We have a great rivalry, two very close teams. The score, 7-7 between the two games, shows that, but for us, we are looking at it that we lost two of them."

It was the wins and losses not the score differential that gives Brother Rice the upper hand in the MIHL North for the remainder of the season, something that had created an extremely confident locker room moving toward playoffs.

"We just got to be that top team," McNulty said. "We got to come into every game with that swagger and know that we're the best team right now and everyone is feeling that way."

Basketball

But John Glenn (6-2) answered with two layups in the fast-break offense, leading to a stop with four seconds to secure the Rockets' sixth win of the season, a 55-54 dogfight against Stevenson (6-4), who suffered its first loss since Jan. 14.

Here are three takeaways from the back-and-forth KLAA battle:

The final stop

Holding onto a slim one-point lead, John Glenn head coach Jerret Smith challenged his team: make a stop.

It was something the Rockets did for the first 24 minutes of the game, limiting Stevenson to 35 points in the first three quarters, making an impact in transition, recording turnovers and making stops consistently against a team that averaged 57.3 points per game.

The fourth quarter was a different story for the John Glenn defense.

Starting with Spartans senior guard Steven Shimko's 3-point make to start the quarter, Stevenson was off, making six field goals in the final quarter, one less than the amount of field goals the Rockets allowed in the entire first half.

A finish and a foul by Evan Bradford, who finished the game with 13 points, gave the Spartans the lead with less a minute to go.

After John Glenn guard Kyle Holt and forward Deonta Pearson each recorded a layup in fastbreak transition, giving the Rockets a one-point lead, Smith called for his team to come out of the hole it had dug itself into.

"I told my kids, 'You have to find a way to get a stop,'" Smith said. "We had repetitive stops for 24 minutes and then for eight minutes, we didn't know how to get a stop."

Stevenson head coach Kareem Smart

was dialing up a play, trying to spread out the John Glenn defense on an inbound and get to the basket with relative ease.

However, Smith, self-described as "not a gambling man," took a risk. He took out center Brendan Belko and inserted center Trey Smith, the biggest player on the roster, into the game and in front of the Spartan inbounder.

After being encouraged on the bench to be like an oak tree, putting his hands up and standing tall in front of the Stevenson player, Smith did just that, disrupting the Spartans enough to keep the lead for the final four seconds of the game.

Second-half success

Despite the comeback in the second half, Smart simply put that Stevenson's first-half performance was poor.

"We were bad, everybody was trying to do one-on-one stuff," Smart said.

After John Glenn amounted to a 14-8 lead after the first quarter, the Rockets offense started to click.

Four second-quarter 3-pointers, including three by junior forward D'Angelo Stoxsill, gave the Rockets a 14-point halftime lead.

When he left for the locker room at halftime, Smart's message to his team was simple.

"I told the guys, 'This is one of the teams that are in our district,'" Smart said. "We can lay down to them now so they will think they have the upper hand on us, or if you want to compete for a district, you gotta show these guys that you are ready to play."

"I think that's what they did in the second half."

Smart said Stevenson began to share the ball, becoming more energized offensively, which gave life to the defense as well.

The Spartans outscored John Glenn 35-22 in the final 16 minutes.

Despite taking the loss, Smart said Stevenson wanted to set the tone for future matchups against John Glenn and other division opponents.

"They just don't want to be known as quitters," he said.

The full 32

In the final four seconds of the game, leading by one, Smith said it was like playing chess, trying to make a move better than the one Stevenson made.

But the thing is, he never wanted to get to that point.

"At the end of the day, I never want to play chess, especially when it comes to the situation where you get them in the deficit that you get them in," Smith said.

The first-year John Glenn head coach said consistency has been his team's biggest struggle through the first part of the regular season.

He said the first three quarters of the game against Stevenson were representative of what the Rockets could be.

"Like we can be really good," Smith said, "but until we get 32 minutes hard work, all the time, we are going to continue to have hard grind-out games like that."

Lewis

After breaking the news to the players at Plymouth, Lewis headed to Howell to catch a girls basketball game and begin immersing himself in his new community.

The reception he received confirmed why he wanted to come to Howell in the first place.

"I got to meet some people and shake some hands," Lewis said. "That was extremely exciting for me. As sad as I was to tell the kids in Plymouth and as emotional as that was, the flip side was getting to Howell and getting the excitement and burning passion and desire I feel, because I get to see people who are true community. I could really sense that."

One of the reasons Lewis left Plymouth after two seasons to coach at Howell was the commute from his home in Pinckney is considerably shorter. He also likes that Howell is a one-school town, whereas Plymouth is one of three high schools sharing the same massive campus.

Howell hasn't made the state football playoffs the past three seasons, but Lewis said: "The potential is great, or else as a competitor I would not have pursued this job. Howell's still got freshman, JV and varsity; that is becoming more and more uncommon. Having the ability to have freshman, JV and varsity brings a different dynamic for me. I'm excited being able to work with that. The youth football program is still strong."

Lewis was 15-6 at Plymouth, getting the Wildcats to the state playoffs each season and winning the KLAA West championship last fall. His teams were known for defense, allowing 13 points or fewer 12 times in 21 games.

and coaches and everything," Mruzik said. "This is just unreal."

Taking Mercy to the next level

Mercy head coach Loretta Vogel knew Mruzik was going to make an impact the first time she saw her.

To Vogel, it was the way she passed the ball, the way she attacked, the way she jumped. The Mercy head coach was floored: she was in seventh grade.

"You've got to remember, she was 12," Vogel said. "Jumping and attacking that we take years to show other girls and Jess could do it right away."

Julia Bishop was already aware of Mruzik's skill, playing against her in middle school.

After shadowing her and eventually deciding to join Mruzik at Mercy, Bishop felt right away that this setter and outside hitter pairing would do big things in their high school tenure.

"She always was that player where 'she's going to be big. She's going to go far,'" Bishop said. "But it never kicked in how far she could actually go."

Mruzik came into her high school career knowing the pedigree of Mercy volleyball, that consistent success was expected.

The reputation of the program was extremely high, but the expectation of what Mruzik wanted to bring was even higher.

"I came into this program wanting to build it up," Mruzik said. "I just wanted to take it to the next level."

Coaches and teammates knew what Mruzik could do, starting and verbally committing to Michigan her freshman season and leading Mercy to a state semifinal appearance in her sophomore and junior seasons.

For her parents, her dominance on the volleyball court was something new.

"People were telling us, coaches and so forth, that she had a very high ceiling," Jeff Mruzik, Jess' father, said. "Having not experienced it before, we were like 'that's great, that's great.' Every time she did something, she did something else on top of it."

During the 2019 season, the 6-foot-1 outside hitter led the Marlins to a 59-1 record and Mercy's first state title in school history, compiling 495 kills, 209 digs, 47 service aces and 19 blocks. She also posted a .635 kill percentage and a .540 hitting percentage.

Mruzik also served as captain of the USA Volleyball Youth National Team, leading Team USA to the gold medal at the FIVB Girls U18 World Championships in Egypt and earning tournament MVP honors.

Along with the state championship, Mruzik was named as Miss Michigan Volleyball for the 2019 season.

While being appreciative of the accolades, it's not something Mruzik aims for.

"It's definitely super amazing to have won all these awards this year throughout my volleyball career, but I know it's not why I play the game," Mruzik said. "I play the game because I love the sport and I love my teammates and the competitive atmosphere that comes with playing volleyball."

Bishop does not need awards to tell her the quality of the teammate she has set for over the past few years.

"Me being her setter, it was an insane experience, such a beautiful thing to do, but also it opens your eyes that, I got to play with the best player in the nation right now," Bishop said.

Mruzik's legacy lives on

Vogel was asked once if Mruzik had a "big head" because of all the success the star outside hitter had accomplished.

In response, Vogel laughed and said, "She's not made that way."

"She's just been a joy to have. She's just a good kid. Her family's a good family," Vogel said. "With Jess receiving many awards, you wouldn't know. She's always Jess."

The 2019 season for Mercy will be remembered for the success on the volleyball court, the dominance of Mruzik in the front, the demolishing of opponents each step of the way.

However, for players and coaches, Mruzik will be remembered more by her actions off the court, by the amount of love she brought her teammates and coaches, the way she cared about each and every one of them.

To Jeff Mruzik, this means more than the volleyball accolades.

"As a parent, without a doubt that is one of the most incredible things anybody could tell you is that your child is not only a great athlete, but a great person and a great teammate," Jeff Mruzik said. "To us, that even goes deeper than some of the successes for volleyball."

Jess Mruzik did not know when she would be back to Mercy after enrolling early at Michigan.

However, when she opened the door, saw her teammates and coaches, the emotions came flooding back. With a trophy in hand, her teammates surrounded her, mobbing the senior outside hitter in a way similar to how they mobbed each other after earning the state title.

To Mruzik, walking back through the doors of Mercy High School, she realized that she didn't realize what she had until it was gone.

"I wouldn't be here without them," Mruzik said.

But Mruzik's legacy will never truly be gone from Mercy. The expectations have been set, with Mruzik's No. 33 hanging from the rafters in the gym, flying high above each and every volleyball player to wear a Marlins uniform.

 Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
