Residents fighting lease

Do high tension wires cause high blood pressure?

That was the contention of at least one resident who came Tuesday night to protest the township's attempts to negotiate a lease with Detroit Edison for the use of land in Edison's corridor.

Edison owns about nine miles of land in a T-shaped strip that runs parallel to Cherry Hill east and west, and parallel to Morton Taylor from Cherry Hill to the township's southern border. Several weeks ago the township board empowered the administration to investigate the possibility of leasing the land, located under the utility's high ten-

But that attempt brought fire from a score of residents whose property is adjacent to the corridor. Residents said they feared that if the township leased the land for a bicycle path or bridle path for horses, it would endanger their property.

Don Zachseck, a resident of the Canterbury Woods subdivision, told board members it might result in vandalism and litter-

"I "HAVE SOME serious reservations about public recreation areas. They often have negative connotations as in the case of Hines Drive.

"It would be nice to have a park, but then you are faced with the problem of crime control."

Supervisor Robert Greenstein who has been negotiating with Edison, along with other members of the administration, responded that the corridor would not be used for a park, but rather for bicycle and horse trails.

"It won't be changed or improved at all," he explained. It might be mowed in

But several residents responded that police protection already was insufficient in

"How do you control potential problems that might arise?" one resident asked. "We have genuine concerns about our property investments. How will you control problems without police? "Who would be liable for an accident? What would happen if one of the wires came down? We'd have another tragedy on our hands.' Greenstein replied that open space for the township was a top priority and the Edison lease would provide it at minimal

UNDER THE TERMS of a lease the utility worked out with Sterling Heights, the township would pay rent equal to the cost of insurance on the land.

Edison officials would have to approve any improvements on the land and use of motorized vehicles such as dirt bikes and snowmobiles would be prohibited as would be flying kites and model airplanes.

Any recreational equipment would have to be removed within 90 days of a written order, if Detroit Edison has maintenance work on the power lines.

While township adminstrators had no quarrel with those terms of the proposed agreement. Greenstein said he wanted a longer lease.

Presently, the utility is offering a five-year contract. But some residents found much to dislike in the leasing arrangement. "We don't want to pick up other people's litter," one women said. "If it's so safe why don't people use the land right now."

Residents said they feared that once a lease was approved, too many people would be riding right past their homes. But Greenstein, saying that the lease was still an undecided issue, answered,

"This is an opportunity for the first time to do something new and innovative. Whatever we get into, we can get out of just as quickly. "But if we have to buy land for open space and recreation—and we will when 100,000 people live on the east side-it will be coming out of everyone's pocket.

"THIS SORT of experiment is low costit's just the maintenance of the area. We're better off with the township patrolling it and clearing it than Detroit Edison.

"We might as well face the fact they we are going to have to have more open space for the future and now is the time to plan

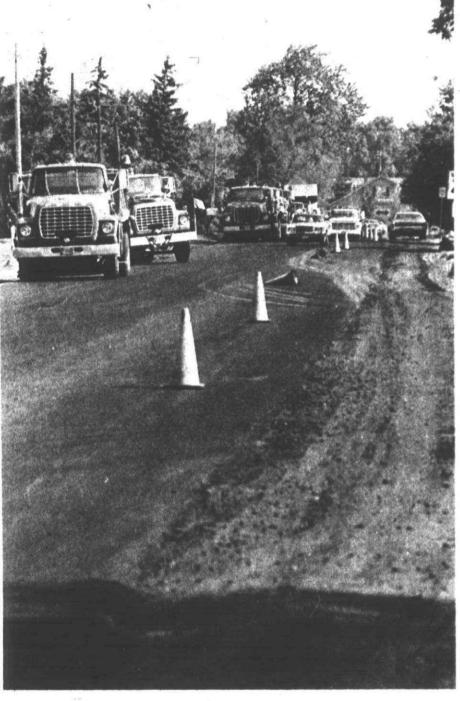

"We don't want to be like Southfield, paying $40,000-$60,000 for an acre of land to build a baseball diamond.

Clerk John Flodin added that the cost of the insurance for the corridor would run about $6,000 annually.

Presently some farmers have arranged leases personally with Edison to cultivate the land under the high power wires, and Greenstein said that parts of the corridor west of Canton Center may not be used for

"The pressure is on the east side, what happens over there may be another

Homicide charge expected in death of Canton youth

By RICHARD GOLD

A warrant charging Jesse Perkins, 23, of 1912 Marlowe in Canton, with negligent homicide in the death of Munna Mohla, 4, of Canton was expected to be issued Friday, according to a spokesman in the Wayne County Prosecutor's office.

Perkins was driving the car that hit the vehicle in which the young boy was riding June 2.

The accident, which took place at the intersection of Hanford and Sheldon, occured at 3:45 p.m., just as scores of youngsters from Miller School were lining up to cross

Witnesses said it was only the quick thinking of a pair of crossing guards, Cindy Monks and Sue Goodchild, that saved those children from possible injury. Although police were unable to estimate the speed of Perkins' auto, they said both vehicles suffered extensive damage. Two other children were injured in the accident, one seriously. Perkins also was injured and left the hospital two days after the accident

ACCORDING TO police, the car young Munna was riding in was headed southbound on Sheldon and had stopped to turn left on Hanford at the time it was rammed from behind by Perkins' vehicle. If convicted of negligent homicide, a high misdemeanor, Perkins faces a maximum sentence of two years in jail.

A spokesman in the prosecutor's office said not enough evidence was available to charge Perkins with manslaughter. "We have enough witnesses to show what happened did happen, and basically what we're saying is that he didn't have

"He was driving in such a manner that he couldn't stop in time-it could be for a variety of reasons-but he wasn't driving carefully.

Varskin Baydarian, an assistant to Wayne County Prosecutor William Cahalan, said he hoped the warrant could be approved by the court Friday.

"We've recommended a warrant for negligent homicide and that will have to be taken before a judge," he said.

Baydarian said he expected approval of the warrant because of the volume of witnesses at the time of the accident. He said he didn't know when Perkins would be arraigned if the warrant was ap-

Spokesman for the sheriff said Perkins was not in custody

IN OTHER developments since the accident, both state police and the sheriff department have concentrated more manpower on the intersection following appeals by residents and school personnel for help in slowing down motorists on Sheldon.

Lt. William Tomczyk, commander of the Plymouth State Police post, said he has had men on Sheldon between 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., the time the Hanford-Sheldon intersection is used most heavily by Miller "I've informed my people to make their presence felt at that location, manpower permitting. We've got the summer schedule for Miller and were going to make every effort to continue more concentrated coverage there." The state police and the Wayne County Road Commission presently are taking volume counts at the intersection and reports from both are expected within a month.

ON SEVERAL occasions in the past, residents of the area, the school safety committee and the Miller safety committee had asked the county for a speed reduction zone and full phase traffic signal at the in-

Bank, township resolve problems

Bank of the Commonwealth and Canton Township buried the hatchet Tuesday night when the board of trustees approved a consent judgment negotiated between township and bank lawyers.

Simultaneously, the board gave site plan, approval to the bank.

The consent judgment provides that the bank will complete a permanent facility on its site at the corner of Sheldon and Warren within 180 days in return for an exten-

"There were certain misunderstandings in the past and I think they are now cleared up.

"We want to be good citizens of Canton, not the bad guys.

About two months ago, the ZBA, in essence, told the bank to move out by rejecting an extension of the bank's temporary occupancy permit. The bank took the township to court, and from there the matter was handled in out-of-court negotiations. Earlier, the ZBA had granted the bank

Centennial idea is re-created

Because 100 years ago a farmhand near Niles conceived his own plan of celebrating the nation's centennial, June 11 was tree-planting day in the state.

By governor's decree, Friday was proclaimed Centennial-Bicentennial Tree-Planting Day in Michigan. And although no one seems to remember the name of the person responsible for the event, thousands of maple trees throughout the state will commemorate this patriot.

ACCORDING TO THE executive declara-

"In 1876, a row of sugar maple tree seedlings were planted near Niles, Michigan, by a farmhand as a personal centennial observance. Those trees still stand. Seeds from them have been gathered and propa-gated and seedlings distributed to interas a bicentennial observance.

ested bicentennial groups about the state "The bicentennial celebration commemorates the past and looks to the promise of the future. The birth, growth and rebirth of the trees of our land are a classic symbol of this feeling of continuity, stability and hope."

City of Plymouth, Plymouth and Canton townships each received one of the seedlings from the department of national resources with an explanation:

"I regret to have to tell you that the seeds did not propagate as well as the first plantings indicated they would. This is unfortunate, but the fewer seedlings there are, the more significant they become. The parent trees are old and many of the seeds were not fertile or the seedlings did not survive the first few weeks of grow-

THE TINY SEEDLINGS are about six inches high. Area Bicentennial Commission members Elizabeth Folger and Pat Whitsell were concerned about their survival over the first few years. Dan Sandmann of the Rotary School Farm promised to look after their well-being and they were planted on Friday.

Plymouth Township's sugar maple was planted by two township residents who are fifth graders at Isbister Elementary School. Gail McCormick and Ken Morton carefully packed the soil around the roots and watered the seedling. Sean Cirino, Scott and Susie Magaldi planted Canton Township's tree under the supervision of Lauren Buerhle, Mrs. Folger and Mrs. Whitsell.

Don't forget to cast school ballot

Within a few hours the votes will be counted that will decide the fate of the school millage and which two candidates will be elected to the Plymouth Board of For those who haven't cast ballots yet in munity School District, the polls close at 8 p.m. Anyone standing in line at closing time will be allowed to vote. ALTHOUGH school election workers are cautious about estimating voter turnout, the interest in this election indicates that the annual election of the Plymouth Com-

probably at least 7,000 will cast ballots. The previous high for a school election is some 6,400 voters. Since last June, about 3,000 additional residents have registered to vote so the school district now has a total of some 27,000 registered voters. Many of the new registrations are due to interest in the May presidential preference primary, the August primary for the town-

A possible indicator of interest in this election is that some 280 residents have taken out absentee ballots this year compared to 80 last year. This increase may be due, however, to the fact today's election follows the closing of school and many families may be on vacation this week.

ON THE BALLOT will be a request of Plymouth schools for 4.75 mills ($4.75 per $1,000 state equalized valuation).

The additional operating millage, if approved, may be levied for a period of five years. This is the first tax increase requested by the district in three years. Also on today's ballot is a request for about 1/2 mill by Schoolcraft Community College. The exact amount requested is 0.53 of a mill (53 cents per $1,000 SEV). This millage, if approved, would be used for both operating and debt retirement. Schoolcraft has had no voted millage increase since 1966.

Today's election also will see two candidates among six being selected for the Plymouth Board of Education. The candidates are: Richard Arlen of Plymouth; William Brown of Plymouth Township; Marda Benson of Plymouth; Steve Harper of Plymouth Township; Betty Hamann of Canton; and, Flossie Tonda of Canton. The Observer & Eccentric has endorsed as most qualified Ms. Benson and Harper. The Community Crier, acting independently, also endorsed Harper and Ms. Ben-

The Plymouth Education Association (PEA), teachers union, has endorsed Arlen and Ms. Hamann. The Plymouth Concerned Parents are backing Arlen and Mrs. Tonda.

Election results are expected to be known about 10 p.m. Readers may find out the results by calling the Observer & Eccentric at 459-2700 between 10 p.m. and midnight.

State racing commission opening Plymouth office

Area race tracks will breathe a sigh of relief when the state racing commission moves into its new offices tomorrow.

Instead of having to drive to the State Fairgrounds in Detroit to conduct business, owners, trainers, jockeys and riders will be making the trip to downtown

Plymouth instead.

The geographical closeness of Plymouth to the major tracks was the prime reason for the move, explains Fidel Faure, state racing commissioner. "Our new office will be in the center of horse racing activity in Northville, Livonia, and Jackson and offers a great deal more convenience for the commission itself and those who must come to our office for licenses and hear-

The office at 485 S. Main, right next to the Observer & Eccentric office in Plymouth, is four miles from Northville Downs, eight miles from the Detroit Race Course in Livonia, and about 25-30 miles closer for the Jackson Raceway.

THE STATE headquarters for the racing commission was located at the Michigan State Fairgounds years ago when the DRC was located there

In the mid 1950s the DRC relocated to Livonia, but for the past two decades the commission's office remained at the fairgrounds. Eight Mile east of Woodward. The closest track to the fairgounds is Hazel Park, but the driving distance was considerable for track personnel at DRC, Northville Downs or Jackson Raceway.

The move to Plymouth was officially announced late Thursday by Faure, who said his staff would move in the following Tuesday. Faure, a former vice-president, of University of Michigan who lives in Ann Arbor, was appointed racing commissioner about a year ago to replace Leo Shirley.

The decision to relocate to Plymouth created a bit of a political furor among Detroit legislators, who wanted the office to remain in Detroit.

State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth). who was among those instrumental in getting the move approved, commented after it was all over: "The black politicians from Detroit are madder than hell at me." A few months ago, the switch to Plymouth became known in political circles and was almost derailed by political pressure.

THE OFFICE in Plymouth is being rented from Ralph Lorenz, owner of the Mayflower Hotel, Mayflower Meeting House. and property on the east side of Main between Ann Arbor Trail and Wing.

Backers of the track from Plymouth point out that the traffic the office will generate will bring a number of people into the city which will improve the business climate of the central business district.

Pursell notes that a bill signed a month ago by the governor gives authority to the racing commission to license and regulate quarter-horse activities in the state, which will draw more persons to Plymouth since outstate individuals promoting quarterhorse racing at county fairs now will come to the comission.

"Location of the office here is good for the Plymouth economy because it means a lot of people from throughout the state coming to do business and then eating, shopping and buying gasoline," Pursell said Friday. The commission's office will be the first state agency to be headquartered in Plymouth. The office will employ a fulltime staff of seven persons plus another 30 stationed throughout the state who will be in and out of the Plymouth office, Faure explained. The office also will be the site of any public hearings conducted by the racing commission.

It took five assistants and 26 attempts to finally come up with this illustration of atomic theory by Salvador Dali and Phillipe Halsman.

Halsman is LIFE's cover king

By CRAIG PIECHURA

Photographer Phillipe Halsman, undisputed king of the late LIFE magazine (with 101 covers to his name), says mass-circulation magazine photography is kaput in America.

"People magazine is very uninteresting, I think," said Halsman. "There's still Time and Newsweek, but they use their pictures so small. There are good photographs in Playboy, but their interest is very restricted—usually limiting themselves to the waist on down."

Halsman showed more than 100 slides of his work last week at Schoolcraft College. In the 36 years he has lived in America, Phillipe Halsman has photographed most of the famous people of the 20th century.

Chronicling all the names is impossible. Because in doing so you might leave out Winston Churchill, Albert Einstein, Marilyn Monroe, Mae West, Bertrand Russell, Richard Nixon, Louis Armstrong, Aldous Huxley, Gina Lollabrigida, Alfred Hitchcock, Angela Davis, Bing Crosby, Muhammed Ali, John F. Kennedy.

HALSMAN'S PHOTOS have helped make starlets into stars more than once. He was asked by a Life editor to go to 17 countries in the world to find and photograph the most beautiful woman in each nation.

"I accepted this assignment," said Halsman, leering.

In Italy, he took a picture of Rosanna Schiafano, who, at the age of 16, was signed immediately for motion pictures.

His picture of a lovely woman soldier from Israel was seen by an American who fell in love with the image and flew to Israel where he married the lady.

The bulk of Halsman's photographs are of movie stars and politicians. He was asked which he preferred.

"I'd rather take pictures of politicians."
he said. "On the whole, people of achievement are more interesting than actors.

There are, of course, exceptions."

THE BIGGEST exception would be Marilyn Monroe who, Halsman says, was his favorite subject.

The week she was first featured on the cover of Life (in 1952); her salary jumped from $175 a week to $750 a week.
"She had a cheap two-room apartment,

"She had a cheap two-room apartment, and the first thing she said to me, which struck me as odd, was 'Phillipe, I'm fighting gravity."

"First, I took a picture of her standing in the corner of her room (which was used as the cover). Life editors specified that they also wanted a picture of Marilyn in a negligee. When she came out after changing, she had on a very revealing negligee and I said to her, 'What do you mean you're fighting gravity? You seem to be supporting yourself quite well.'

"The first negligee was too revealing for Life magazine, so she went back and changed into a pink negligee. There was myself in the room along with my assistant and a Life editor. Marilyn was flirting like hell with all three of us. And I think every one of us felt: If only the other two would leave the room."

Halsman said that underneath Marilyn Monroe's famous shell "was a scared little girl with a frightening inferiority complex."

JUMPING CELEBRITIES is one of Halsman's recurring themes. A believer in the theory that people cannot mask their emotions when they jump in the air, he published a popular book called "Jumpbook," with people such as the Duke and Duchess of Windsor bounding in the air.

Richard Nixon's jump is pathetically comical. Nixon's jump is a short one, his legs held tightly together and his hands clenched in an uptight, effeminate hop.

In 1967, Life asked Halsman to photograph the "new Nixon." Editors told the photographer they were tired of seeing photographs of Nixon attired in a drab business suit. They wanted the new Nixon photographed in shirtsleeves.

"I went to his Fifth Avenue apartment in New York," explained Halsman, "and the first picture I took was a picture of him wearing a suit jacket he was wearing when I came in.

"After that shot, I told him I'd like to take a picture of him without his jacket. 'Take off my jacket?' said Nixon, as if I'd asked him to remove his pants for the picture. 'I never photograph without my jacket on,' said Mr. Nixon."

Trying to persuade Nixon and get the picture that his editor had requested, Halsman said he told Nixon that the new wave among politicians was to appear to be a man of the people with rolled-up shirtsleeves.

"After hearing that, Nixon took off his jacket and rolled up his sleeves," said Halsman. But the first, formal picture Halsman took became Nixon's official presidential portrait.

"Two weeks later, he ordered 3,000 copies of that one," said Halsman. "The papers still said Nixon was not a candidate. But with incredible shrewdness, I realized that those 3,000 pictures were not for his immediate family."

ONE OF HALSMAN'S most elaborate and dramatic photos, called "Dali Atomicus." came about through the combined efforts of artist Salvador Dali and himself. Halsman wanted the picture to illustrate the atomic principle: Dali and his art would be suspended in space.

Dali first suggested that a perfect way to illustrate the atomic concept would be to put a stick of dynamite in a duck's behind and photograph the result. Halsman reminded the artist that they were in America.

The picture idea they came up with involved Dali's painting on a suspended easel, with three black cats falling, and a sheet of water splashing across the surreal

"It took us 26 attempts to get the shot just right," explained Halsman. Twenty-six times we threw the cats, tossed the water and had Dali jump in the air at the count of four. After each try I had to run upstairs to develop the picture.

Then we'd have to wipe off the studio, dry off the cats and tell Dali to quit jumping on the count of three."

Not with these coaches

At a time when girls play Little League hardball and boys try out for the girls' high school volleyball team, men coach women's sports and women coach men's

"We were starting a female track team." explained Redford Union girls' track coach Mike Krafchak, "and to my knowledge, I was the only person to apply for the job, and I got it.

Fred Thomann, boys' varsity basketball and girls' varsity track coach at Plymouth Salem, said he was asked to take the job as the track coach on girls' team.

"Nobody really showed any interest in coaching the girls' track team," said Thomann. "I was asked if I would take the job Coaching track is not something new for Thomann. "I spent two years as assistant, and one year as head coach of the Willow Run boys' track team. While it was easy for Thomann and Krafchak to get the job of coaching a team of the opposite sex. Lois McDonald, who is the head swim coach for both the boys' and girls' squads at Livonia Stevenson, was not sure if she would get the job.

"I think that some people had their doubts about a woman coaching a guys sport in high school," said McDonald. but I did feel I was qualified for the job.'

Apparently so did former swim coach and present athletic director at Stevenson

"Lois McDonald was simply the best coach available for the job," explained Fetz. "She qualified in every way as a swim coach, whether it be boys or girls." Fetz does not feel it matters if McDonald coaches boys or girls, and neither does McDonald. "I do not have any preference whether I coach the male or female team," said McDonald. "I don't look to see if they are male or female. It shouldn't matter to any coach what sex his players are as long as they are out there doing the very best that If McDonald has no preference who she coaches. Thomann and Kraftchak do. "I prefer coaching the girls," said Krafchak, who also coaches a coed cross country team in the fall. "but also do enjoy coaching the boys. I just seem to get along better with the girls.

"I enjoy working with the girls' track team," said Thomann, "but I have strong loyalties towards the boys. Though I must add that I have very healthy regard for the girls, and their hard work and desire to achieve exellence

Communication problems do not seem to be part of coaching a team of the opposite

"We do not have many communication problems due to difference of sex." said Thomann. "We try to be as open as possible. Actually their ideas are the same as Krafchak said that he has some problems, but very few. "Oh, we have a few problems because of the sex difference. Naturally there are some things that a girl just will not discuss with me. But it really doesn't hinder our team too much.

Krafchak added that when he coaches his coed cross-country team he treats the girls the same way that he treats the boys regarding workouts McDonald sees no problems at all with communicating with the boys on her swim team. "As I said, they are all swimmers. The boys are are not much different than the girls. I am out here to teach them and they are out here to learn.'

Most of the coaches agree that boys and girls have different emotions and personal-

"I think that the girls get a little more excitable," said Thomann. "Maybe they are just more free with their emotions than the guys.

Krafchak says that the girls and guys are about the same emotionally. "The girls cry a little easier." he added.

McDonald said that girl swimmers are more emotional at Stevenson because they finished second in the state behind East Lansing. But she added that the boys also get exited, although they were only battling for the league championship.

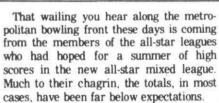

'The one difference about the boys is that their jokes are a little different," said

The chief complaint is that there is too much oil on the lanes and it affects those bowlers who throw what is termed a "roller." With this type of delivery, under the oily conditions, there are all kinds of spares left standing, and there are few strings of strikes.

Nothing is more embarrassing to these shrapshooters than failure to put together these strings

One of the few women who keeps rolling right along is Mary Mohacsi, the Livonia school teacher, who, at one time, had trouble with oil. She learned to overcome it and now is among the leaders in the allstar group

She paced the women's section of the loop Wednesday night at Ford Lanes with a 582 series and now is averaging 198 after three weeks of competition. The leaders on the distaff side are Jerry Ritter with 203 and Carol Yerkes with 198.

THE LONG wait soon will be over for Cora Fiebig, Elvira Toepfer and Kathy Haislip, the three metropolitan area allstars who are leading their divisions in the Michigan Women's Association tournament at Grand Rapids.

The tournament has three more weeks to run, and Cora is on the threshold of both the singles title with 683 and the allevents crown with 1,867. The remaaining teams are from the small house leagues around the state and shouldn't offer too much of a challenge to the leaders. ALONG WITH the all-star mixed league that made its bow this summer, another group has started weekly tournaments on a much lower level.

This is the Michigan Tournament Bowlers Association, which ushered in its first schedule a week ago at Crown Lanes. The format is copied from the pro bowlersfive bowlers qualify for the finals and then compete in one-game knockouts.

Pats, Spartans losing tourney

By DOUG FUNKE

There will be no Livonia teams in next week's state Class A baseball finals at Flint. Wayne captured the Wyandotte regionals Saturday with a 6-1 pounding of Livonia Franklin

Livonia Stevenson was nipped by Wayne 2-1 in a nine-inning first-round regional

The Zebras touched Franklin starter Mike Flood for five runs on five hits in the first two innings of the regional finals. As things turned out, that's all the boys from Wayne needed.

Wayne pitcher Pat Bledsoe, with his fastball and curve, limited Franklin to one hit. Except for a stretch in the third inning when he walked three, Bledsoe was free from control problems.

Wayne fielders helped their pitcher's cause by making several outstanding defen-

An error hurt the Patriots in the opening inning, as a subsequent single and a tworun double by Bill Crews forged Wayne to a 2-0 advantage. The Zebras counted three more in the second on two singles, a walk and a two-run triple by Rick Pittman. The Patriots scored their only run in the fifth frame on a pair of errors and a solid single to right field by Jerry Pollard. Calvin Beer relieved Flood in the fourth inning and limited the Zebras to one run the rest of the way

Earlier, Wayne edged Stevenson in a contest that was evenly matched from start to finish. The final play of the game typified action during the entire tussle. With a Wayne runner on third base, one out and the Spartans' infield pulled in for a play at the plate, Bledsoe chopped a bouncer to shortstop. Ron Colone fielded the ball, checked the runner, then threw to first for the put-out. On the throw to first, the Wayne runner on third steamed toward the plate. First sacker Jim Snyder rifled the ball to catcher Tom Pacion, who made a sweeping attempt to tag the runner. The runner jumped to avoid the tag and was ruled safe to give the Zebras the victory. Stevenson scored its only run in the fourth inning on a triple by Tim Murphy and a successful suicide squeeze bunt by Murphy, who pitched the entire nine innings, relinquished only six hits, struck out 11 and walked three. Rob Rose connected for two of the Spartans' seven hits. Franklin counted a pair of runs in the fifth inning of its oopening game to insure a 5-2 win over pesky Taylor Truman.

Tim Hollandsworth punched two hits and batted in one run. Other RBIs were collected by Pollard and Steve Tresik. Al Castrodale, who hurled the distance, fanned five and gave up seven hits.

Snyder's gears for showdown

It was another ho-hum week for Snyder's Softball Club of Redford-four more victories and a lead now up to four games in the West Division of the Major Metro Travel League

Snyder's started the week with a pair of easy wins over Bert's Blackhorse of Detroit, 24-6 and 22-5 Outfielder Dave Rhodes went nine for 10 in the two games with four home runs and 11 runs batted in. Third baseman Doug Gerdes was seven for nine with four homers and 10 RBIs. Another big performance by Gerdes led Snyder's to a sweep over Wolverine Bumper, 20-12 and 17-7. Gerdes was a perfect six for six with three home runs and nine runs batted in.

Snyder's now has a record of 21-1. The Redford contingent faces a stern test Tuesday when it tangles with Uniroyal, the East Division leader.

The doubleheader is slated to get underway at 7 p.m. at Oak Park's City Park No.

Royals blank Elks

Crowe and Associate Royals banged out 13 hits to crush the Plymouth Elks last week, 10-0, in an opening game of Connie Mack American Division baseball play.

Ron Cross led off the first inning with a single and moved to second on a double by Mike Robbins. Both runners scampered across home plate on a single by third baseman Brian Butcher.

The Royals then exploded for five more runs in the third inning when Cross singled and moved to third when Butcher singled to rightfield. Bill Moser followed with an RBI single moving Butcher to third. Tim Oakley hit into a fielder's choice with Butcher scoring and Moser out at second. Dan Dinsmore kept the rally going with a double, Bill Burgess walked and Kevin Miceli doubled in the final two runs of the in-

With a seven-run lead, the Royals were not done scoring yet, as Cross collected his third hit of the game. Outfielder Mike Robbins drilled his second double of the game to score Cross from first base. Brian Butcher walked and both runners hustled home on a double by Moser.

Bob Thiebault went the distance on qhe hill for the Royals, tossing a three-hitter and striking out eight Elk batters.

Dave Nidzgorski was the losing hurler. 'We hit the ball very well for our first game of the year," said Royals' coach Dick Devries. "The real big bright spot of the game had to be Bob Thiebault. He had good control all through the game, and he kept the Plymouth hitters off balance with his breaking ball.'

DETROIT MUTUAL-LUCKY LINDY A pair of Connie Mack Leage teams with distinctive Livonia make-ups last week battled in the loop's initial baseball contest of the season. Mutual came up with a couple key hits to win, 4-3.

Mutual had scored a pair of runs and a single marker in the first and second innings, respectively, while Lindy turned just the opposite trick, scoring one in the first and two in the second.

Jim Ross, who relinquished seven hits, was the winning pitcher.

Wedding bells echo again

Wednesday, June 16 will be just another day in the life of many thousands around the country. They'll arise shortly after dawn, hasten to their daily tasks and, in the evening, take a little relaxation before turning in for the night.

But not The Stroller-he'll be reliving one of the most exciting days of his life. Each year, as the date arrives, the memory of the excitement becomes even green-

You see, on that date, The Stroller and the little lady who runs our house will be celebrating the 46th anniversary of the day we walked down the aisle and joined in the bond in matrimony.

Celebrating a wedding anniversary is a joyous time in many households. But to The Stroller, his wedding day was unlike any other he had heard of or seen. And he has seen and taken part in many wedding

This wedding day-June 16, 1930-was different for many reasons, and it caused one of the most hectic hours in the annals of the Metropolitan Methodist Church in Detroit

The ceremony-so carefully plannedbrought together a strange group in the official wedding party.

The Stroller had invited his boss, Harry Bullion, sports editor of the Detroit Free Press, to serve as his best man. The invitation was accepted, but with an explana-

The sports editor pointed out that it would be a privilege to be part of the wedding party, but that he would need some advice in that he was a devout Catholic and never had set foot inside a Protestant

Sheldon Ford workers denied trade adjustment

The U.S. Department of Labor has denied a request for worker trade adjustment assistance made by employees of the climate control division of the Ford Sheldon Plant in Plymouth Township.

Announcement of the denial of the Sheldon workers claim was made by the Labor Department when it ruled that some 22,300 workers at eight Ford auto plants in Michigan and Ohio have been certified as eligible to apply for trade adjustment assist-

Such assistance has been made available to workers who have been unemployed as a result of increased imports of subcompact and luxury small cars at seven plants, and as a result of increased imports of automatic transmissions at one

When granting assistance for workers at these eight plants, the Labor Department also denied petitions for adjustment assistance filed for about 26,900 other Ford employees at 25 plants in seven states.

In the case of those plants where assistance was granted, the Labor Department determined after public hearings that the imports contributed importantly to decreased sales and employment at the plants.

Among the findings of the Labor Department were that:

 Increased imports of luxury small cars from Canada and overseas imports of subcompact cars contributed importantly to the total or partial separation of workers;

·Seven of the auxiliary plants produced a significant proportion of their output for use in Ford subcombact and luxury small for 2.8 liter Pinto engines was eliminated at the Sharonville, Ohio plant in 1975 and transfered to a Ford facility in Bordeaux, The Trade Act of 1974 provides that workers who believe they have been or will become unemployed due to increased imports may petition the Secretary of Labor for certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance. The petitions were filed in December, 1975 by the UAW. Assistance provided to workers may include cash trade readjustment allowance, training, testing, counseling, job placement, job search grants, and relocation allowances. The assistance itself is administered in this state by the Michigan Employment Security Commission. Under the Trade Act, workers whose petition has been denied by the Labor Department may file for review with the U.S.

Court of Appeals.

Assured that there was little to do, except to walk down the aisle and be a witness to the official ceremony, his fear that he might make a mistake here or there along the line was alleviated.

The bridesmaid was a sister of the bride who never had served in such a capacity. She, too, was nervous about it all and wondered if she could make it to the altar without losing the bouquet.

With this pair, The Stroller had invited C. Bryant Huff, secretary of his Masonic lodge, to sing a solo as part of the ceremony. Bryant, long since past, was a former concert soloist and loved nothing better than to fill a room or hall with his deep baritone. He gladly accepted-for a twofold reason. He wanted to oblige the groom, but inasmuch as the bride had once served as the lodge office secretary, he wanted to please her too.

"If I may make a suggestion," he said in accepting, "why not get Francis McKay, celebrated organist of St. Paul Episcopal Church, to play the organ?" It was a great idea, and Francis, who was a friend of both of us, deemed it a pleasure,

Finally, came the day-June 16, 1930-in the depth of the Depression. It broke nice, with a full sun rising in the sky, and it was just the type of day that most brides and grooms could wish for to make it com-

This was just the start. What happened later still causes many a laugh.

At the appointed time-3 p.m.-the wedding party arrived at the church. The bridegroom, more nervous and excited than expected, was chewing gum at a great rate. The bridesmaid was walking the floor in the anteroom.

On time, C. Bryant began singing, and his booming voice carried the strains of "I Love You Truly" into the far recesses of the church. And our friend, the organist, was never better.

After the solo, there was a pause. Then Bryant started singing again-and again. After half an hour, folks started coming into the anteroom to learn if either the bride or the groom had had a change of

"THERE'S NOTHING wrong," we countered, "except the minister is not

Suddenly, the door opened and in walked Rev. Mike Rice, one of the city's top clergymen.'

"Sorry folks," he said. "I was speaking out at Ypsi Normal and got caught in a violent rain storm.

"Where's the license?" he asked. We told him that we had left it with him several evenings before.

"OK," he said. "We get along without

And so, Bryant stopped singing; Francis Mc Kay stopped playing the organ; and the marital knot was tied.

Chevrolet firemen get new training

The fire brigade at the Chevrolet bumper and spring plant in Livonia will "fight fire with fire" during a two-wweek training program scheduled to start today (Mon-

Plant manager Bernard J. Kearney said the goal of the program is to update employees who voluntarily serve on the brigade on the latest methods of putting out industrial fires

The annual training session is supplemented by a year-round prevention train-

Kearney said that in planning the sessions, emphasis is put on ways to minimize excessive smoke, undesirable fumes and other other matters. "We plan to have enough of a fire to make it realistic and worthwhile training activity without causing a serious air pollution problem in the area," Kearney said. He said test fires of different types will be set under close control in a safe area of the plant on Eckles north of Plymouth road The brigade will then get instructions on how to identify the cause of the fire and in picking the right extinguishing agent.

The program was arranged with the approval of the Livonia Fire Department which also will take part.

The manager said experiences at Chevrolet's 21 manufacturing and assembly plants in the nation confirms that realistic training is essential to safeguard employees and plant neighbors in case of a real

CHESTER BUDZYNSKI of Ridge Road was honored last Thursday at a luncheon for 40 years with Michigan Bell Telephone Company. As well as gifts of appreciation, he received congratulations for his record of 31 years of driving without mishap. Budzynski works in the New Center Building in Detroit.

THE KILDEER who built her nest on stones in the Ford Motor Co. parking lot on Sheldon Road did not make such a poor choice after all. Her two eggs are hatched and she and her youngster are safe in the fields adjoining the plant.

But not without a good deal of worry on the part Ford employees.

Kildeers are great fakers. To brotect their nests, they pretend to be wounded and flutter off with a dragging wing, leading suspected enemies away from their

A visitor to Fred Wheeler's office told of the poor wounded bird he had seen in the parking lot. Investigation revealed the nest in the stones, and Wheeler decided she needed some protection. A wooden sawhorse was placed over the nest. Then, to make sure no one moved it, the sawhorse was painted bright blue.

The safety of the mother and her eggs was everyone's concern. There was a general sigh of relief when the eggs finally were hatched.

"She didn't stay around long after that." said one of the employees. "They hatched one day and the next day they were gone."

"YOU SMOKE, I Eat" is the title of Al Mathews' latest publication now available at local book stores.

Mathews, of 44957 Deer Run in Plymouth Township, collected his "wise sayings to tive by" over a period of 36 years. He says, "By strange coincidence, the period happens to be what might be referred to as my marital period.'

He adds, "When troubled, read this book once or twice a day. When untroubled, read it once a week to avoid the necessity of reading it twice a day."

Night flight to Frankfurt

"Night Flight to Frankfurt" is not the title of an Agatha Christie whodunit. It marks the June 16 departure of a party of senior girl scouts for a 20-day European tour which will include a sojourn at the Girl Scout Chalet in Switzerland.

Members of Troop 501 attending the chalet conference are Debbie Burger, Myra and Due Dostie, Suzanne Hartnett, Joyce Hurtik, Kathy Lewelling, Beth Martinek, Karen Overhiser, Lisa Raycraft, Doreen Rorabacher, Jeanne Sellman, Barb Stevens, Dawn Wall and Janice Wheeler.

Adults accompanying the girls are troop advisor Lorraine Hurtik, Marilynn Bartholomew and Janice Fox.

They will arrive in Frankfurt at noon (EDT) June 16 and will travel by train to Munich—a 5½-hour trip. That night, they will stay at a guest house-Jugend-Gas-

Apple Run garden club plans perennial sales

Members of Apple Run garden club are asked to take along a perennial from their garden when they meet at 1 p.m. June 21 in the home of Shirley Taylor, 41811 South Drive, Canton Township.

The newly-formed branch of the Michigan Division, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association is attempting to establish an operating budget with the plant sale. A sale of houseplants at an earlier meeting brought a good response.

Officers in the club are Violet Stevens, president; Jean Gryglewski, vice president; Joyce Ankofski, treasurer; Roberta Brown, recording secretary; and Maggie Winter, corresponding secretary.

Margo Whiting is program chairperson and Cheryl Wachlarz is in charge of hospitality. Sharon Palaise is handling publicity and any Canton residents interested in joining the club are asked to call Mary Ann Speir (453-5714).

Let's make it an annual affair

The Plymouth Community Arts Council proved once more the old saw, "Necessity is the mother of invention" is true. Five simultaneous cocktail parties on a Saturday afternoon was the members' answer to budget problems. The project was not only a great financial success -- the guests decided it was one of the best parties of the year. Members Esther Hulsing, Judy Lewis, Mary Rose Hausman, Alice Smith and Pat Rhinehart hosted the parties. Members prepared the hors d'oeuvres and the punch bowl all were filled -- and refilled -- with the same concoction. One of the larger groups (left) assembled at the Kenneth Hulsing home. Although there was no head count, it seemed all 190 who accepted invitations were there. (Staff photo)

"I've gone full circle," said Elizabeth Donnelly, "I started out in fourth grade at Starkweather, and I ended my teaching days in the same place, same grade.

Friday was the last day of school and the bulletin boards were still covered with dozens of "Happy Retirement" cards made by her first grade neighbors in the classrooms next door. The carefully lettered messages inside the cards were full of love and good wishes for her future.

Mrs. Donnelly was looking forward to her retirement years with the same zest and enthusiasm she displayed as a classroom teacher.Her husband Mac retired last December from Consumers Power and they plan to stay in Plymouth. "This is home, and our seven children and 16 grandchildren all are in this area."

GEORGE SMITH was superintendent when she began teaching fourth grade at

"I was paid $25 a week, and because the district was short of funds, we taught without pay for the last two weeks. And then because I was the last one hired, I was pink-slipped at the end of the term.

"But Mr. Smith discovered another teacher was retiring, and he said, 'We want you back.""

Mrs. Donnelly said some of the students must be third generation Starkweather families. "Starkweather was my first love. It is the family school.

She reminisced about the days when Central and Starkweather were the only schools in the system. "Mr. Smith used to have a fritter fry every year for all the teachers. There weren't very many of us. The only way you could get his apple fritter recipe was to get married. I never did get it because I was not teaching here when I was married."

She had been asked to set up a creative writing department in the Trenton schools and left the Plymouth system for 41/2

"When my youngest was three years old I got the urge to return to teaching." And now, 16 grandchildren and five school superintendents later, she is calling it quits. ELIZABETH DONNELLY has been an innovator in education. She taught both French and Spanish in the early elementary grades. Her summer Spanish program in the late '50s attracted area-wide attention and she was interviewed by Jac LeGoff on the "Detroit Speaks" TV program. As a volunteer, she taught a weekly night class in creative writing at the Woman's Division, Detroit House of Correction. She was born in Bay City where her father was registrar of deeds and her mother a kindergarten teacher. She earned her bachelor's and master's degrees at Eastern Michigan University. She was a charter member of two honorary societies, Delta Kappa Gamma and Phi Theta Kappa.

While doing graduate studies, she found time for involvement in PTA, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, Rosary Society of Our Lady of Good Council and an area co-op group.

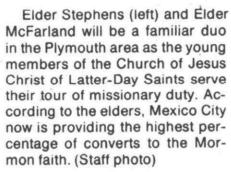

THE DONNELLYS' travels have included the United States and Europe. They plan to see more of the world during their retirement years. And she doesn't lack for hobbies. She paints, sews, collects rocks and enjoys visiting the great museums of

When her family was younger she was chosen "Mrs. Homemaker of Greater Detroit."

Somehow, with her wide interests and happy enthusiam for life, retirement will not be dull for Elizabeth Donnelly.

Electronic ignition kit made for pointed cars

Seven solid-state electronic ignition conversion kits, designed to fit most late-model cars and light trucks, are available from Ford.

Sold under the Motorcraft brand name, the kits are available through the parts departments of all Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealerships and many independent retail outlets.

The system is touted as a simple distributor conversion which replaces the conventional points. condenser and breaker plate assembly with a sensor/frigger-wheel assembly.

"Motorcraft's electronic ignition is an economical, efficient system for most vehicles with conventional ignitions." said Philip Benton of Motor-

"THE SYSTEM will provide improved fuel economy for owners who normally operate their vehicles beyond the recommended maintenance and/or replacement cycles for conventional ignition systems.

By eliminating the point set and condenser, the system saves the owner time and money on tuneups and provides reliable, virtually maintenancefree components and solid-state circuitry. The easy-to-install kits also insure quick starts:"

The Motorcraft system fits virtually all American cars and light trucks made after 1968. It delivers an accurate spark and avoids ignition system deterioration inherent with the conventional point

It will fire plugs at low cranking speeds and voltage levels for fast starts and smooth running under nearly all conditions. The system is designed to be shock- and moisture-resistant.

THE UNIT IS completely maintenance-free due to its electronic design and a special potting compound which seals out dirt and moisture while protecting against damage from shock and vibration.

ing needed to complete the conversion, along with

The system-uses conventional spark plugs and all existing wires, rotor, distributor cap and coil. These parts should be inspected and replaced only if worn.

Conventional tune-ups are virtually eliminated because there are no points and no condenser to wear out and be replaced. Since there are no mechanical wearing surfaces connected with the sensor and trigger wheel, timing and dwell remain constant for the life of the system.

THE SYSTEM is compatible with most engine analysis equipment, timing lights and tachome-

It uses a sensor, trigger wheel and electronic control. The sensor is a proximity switch which acts as a metal detector.

As the trigger wheel turns with the distributor shaft, the teeth pass by on each side of the sensor. Each time the sensor detects the passing teeth, it signals the electronic control to open the ignition coil primary circuit. This is the equivalent to opening the contacts in a conventional ignition system.

From here, high voltage from the coil travels through the distributor cap, rotor and wires to fire the spark plugs and ignite the fuel mixture in the cylinders
