County land plan OK is given conditionally

Equity

That was the key word Wednesday as the Wayne County Planning Commission deliberated Canton's master land use plan. While the commission voted 5-2 to recommend approval of the plan, it included an amendment that "the plan will be implemented only with the provision for equity return to the owners. The amendment, according to one planning commission staffer, pertained only to property owners in the western half of the township affected by the township's controversial agricultural-industrial district. The commission never elaborated on

As co-owners of a 1,250-acre dairy farm on Ridge south of Cherry Hill, Hill and his brother Don are adjusting to a new way of life free from the hard physical toil that characterizes life on a farm.

Following a tragic accident involving ammonia gas which left both brothers with permanent lung damage and Don with second- and third-degree burns, the Gills' sons and employes have, taken over the hard work of the farm.

The accident occurred three weeks ago when the brothers attempted to use 82 per cent ammonia to force a woodchuck from

The Canton Fire Department rushed the brothers to Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti. There doctors examined the broth ers and later transferred them to Ann Arbor. # What's message behind tax loss?

By EMORY DANIELS

With the millage election being so close there is no clear mandate of any kind for the school district-except, perhaps, to put the question back on the ballot in Septem-

The high degree of interest in the election, and closeness of the outcome, is seen by administrators and board members of the Plymouth Community School District as reasons for putting the question on the ballot next fall

Although there were no clear mandates in the balloting, there were messages which can be implied by examining the precinct by precinct tally and relationship of the local millage vote to other results on the ballot.

FIRST, there was a general tendency to vote against increased taxes as evidenced by the 2-1 defeat of Schoolcraft College's request for 0.53 mills (53 cents per $1,000 state equalized valuation). The smallness of the amount asked for.

and its overwhelming defeat, suggests voters had to feel compelling reasons to pull the "yes" lever for more taxes. In the case of Plymouth's request for 4.75 ($4.75) per $1,000 SEV) added mills, many felt justification for the tax was compelling. Some 25 per cent of those casting ballots voted "no" on the Schoolcraft 1/2-mill but yes on the local 4.75 mill request. Without this feeling of compelling need, especially on the part of Canton residents faced with the realities of growth, the millage would have failed handily.

Another reason for the millage's defeat was an inability to turn out the pro-school residents who would have voted "yes." The built-in anti-millage forces in the district turned out in full force while large numbers of the pro-schools electorate stayed home. The 3,100 "no" votes Monday, according to one long-time election observer, is the normal size of the "no" vote which can be expected to turn out on any millage question. To get a millage passed, the district and its campaign organization needs to get a pro-school turnout of at least 4,000 and that goal was missed Mon-

ON CLOSER EXAMINATION of the tally sheet, there does appear to be a casual relationship between votes for school board candidates and votes for the mil-

The traditional yardstick used in analysis is to compare the votes gathered by an incumbent with the votes on the millage. The "no" votes on millage generally also tend to vote against an incumbent.

But there is no direct correlation which stands out clearly linking the defeat of incumbent Marda Benson to defeat of the

She didn't run particularly strong in precincts which gave a heavy "yes" vote on the millage, and neither did she do particulary bad in precincts which gave heavy "no" votes on the millage. So the usual yardstick suggests there was little, if any, relationship

However, there was a relationship between the victors in the trustees' race and the anti-millage vote. Richard Arlen and Flossie Tonda, both endorsed by Concerned Parents, gathered the most votes in those precincts in which the millage earned the fewest positive votes.

Concerned Parents, as an organization, took no official stand on the millage because its membership and officers were split on whether to support. But examination of the votes does suggest that Concerned Parents was instrumental in helping elect Arlen and Mrs. Tonda and in unseating Ms. Benson. Because this clout existed in the trustees' race, there is some significance to the fact that where Arlen-Tonda were the strongest the pro-millage vote was the weakest. This suggests the Concerned Parents bloc wasn't overly confident their candidates would win and that some members were hesitant to vote for the millage if the school board might consist of members not open to the group's anti-modular scheduling stance

Thus, the uncertainty of Concerned Parents members and supporters about whether their candidates would win probably led to a related uncertainty over how to vote on the millage.

ANOTHER FACTOR in the defeat of the millage is one which has been a factor in past millage elections and is likely to be in future votes-the "we-they" thinking of school district voters living in different governmental units As in the last money proposal on the ballot for Plymouth Schools, the largest "yes" vote came from Canton Township with Plymouth and Plymouth Township voters either split or on the "no" side. What was heard during the campaign from many Plymouth residents was that they would vote against the millage because the money wouldn't be needed if it wasn't for the new schools in Canton and that township's booming population growth. This argument can be seen in the vote totals since all Canton's precincts voted in favor of the millage while the Plymouth and Plymouth Township precincts voted it down

A few years back the same situation existed when the school district built Farrand Elementary to meet enrollment growth caused by establishment of Lake-

Although the request does not specify use of the land if it were rezoned, one township official speculated that Massey would build an auto dealership.

Massey declined to specify any plans for the Plymouth Township parcel. "I'm still working on Canton," he said. "I'd like to build there.

The auto dealer has already received site plan approval for a new dealership in Canton. The site plan calls for a 56,000square-foot building on a 9.25-acre parcel at the southwest corner of Lilley and Ford.

But rumors denying a Massey move to Canton have circulated in the area for months. One source acquainted with Massey's business dealings said the auto dealer will not move to Canton. The source said Massey is upset with Canton's berm requirement, because it would hide his used car lot, and the township's strict sign Massey has admitted indecision about a Canton move. That indecision stems from 'zoning restrictions," he said.

Juchartz is charged with conflict of interest

Chairman Don Juchartz came under heavy fire June 16 when a handful of Canton Township residents charged him with a conflict of interest as the commission considered Canton's master land use plan. Juchartz, who serves as county agricultural extension agent, met June 3 with a group of 24 property owners from western Canton who may lose considerable money if the land use plan is implemented.

Juchartz said he contacted Canton resident Bart Berg, one of the two planning commission members to vote against the plan at the local level, to set up a meeting.

"I thought it was a good idea to meet with some landowners to discuss the situation as far as equity is concerned," Juch-

"I asked them if they were against the plan per se, and no one said they were. They said they were concerned about

"I suggested, in view of the fact that they weren't against the plan, that they go to Mr. Greenstein (Supervisor Robert Greenstein) and tell him they weren't against the plan but to tell him they were concerned about getting their developmental equity.

"I SUGGESTED that they tell him they would endorse the zoning ordinance if they legally could be guaranteed equity.

"That would reunite the township, make more people aware that the burden of the plan shouldn't fall on a few landowners and the landowners affected would get their equity."

Juchartz said money for the development rights could be raised either by a millage election, through floating bonds or could possibly come in federal or state

"It's pointless for them to beat a dead horse-the plan has been approved. Instead, they should seek some guarantees."

But residents who attended the meeting with Juchartz said the planning commissioner told them:

o"I am not wearing the hat of the chairman of the Wayne County Planning Commission. This is an unofficial visit and I will deny any statements I may make here. Therefore, no notes of this meeting are to be taken.

•"There is no way legally to stop the Canton master land use plan.

•"You should support Mr. Greenstein which will raise him to higher office. The longer you wait to support the Canton master land use plan and Mr. Greenstein, the less you'll get for your property.

•"The plan will pass Wayne County Planning Commission and there is nothing you can do to stop it."

FIVE RESIDENTS in attendance signed sworn affidavits that Juchartz made those statements, and Harold Stein, although not at the June 3 meeting, hand delivered those notarized statements to the planning

Stein, "a concerned taxpayer" and a candidate for supervisor, said in a letter to the commission, "It appears from these statements that your chairman who is vested with the legal obligation to impartially pass upon master plans presented to the Wayne County Planning Commission, may have become an advocate for the plan.

"The dual role played by your chairman in connection with this matter may well have had a serious impact upon deliberations to date, and may well have a further impact on your future deliberations.

"While any past damage done may be beyond remedy, I would suggest that your chairman disqualify himself from future participation in connection with this mat-

One Canton resident, George Bradley, was more direct.

"I think it's a conflict of interests and I'm making that accusation. I want that on

"You should get out of that chair. Anyone that wears two hats like that is wrong. Anyone that licks Greenstein's boots like Mr. Juchartz shouldn't sit in that chair." Juchartz replied that he didn't think being realists. 'As far as what they claim I said, I find that disturbing. I didn't say they couldn't take notes, although I did say I was not speaking in my official capacity as chairman of the planning commission.

"I was speaking as an extension agent and I was hesitant to have what I said repeated in a public forum unless it was absolutely accurate. I didn't want people to take what I said out of context-which they apparently did.

"As far as I can tell from counsel, the plan was passed legally at the local level and I don't think the people can do much about that.

"But saying that I wanted them to support Mr. Greenstein for higher office is a deliberate falsehood. I never said that. I have no qualms about saying that I don't support him for public office, either as supervisor or any other office he may seek. "I don't live in Canton and I'm an impartial observer. However, I do think that the longer the controversy goes on, the less value their land will have." He added, "As far as saying the plan would pass, that was my reading of my fellow commissioners. The staff reviewed the matter and it appeared to me it would pass-that's all. "I didn't make any attempt to influence other commissioners.

"I didn't vote on the plan when it came before the commission.

"But I am concerned that the people get equity for their land if it is rezoned.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS are confident that a recount wouldn't change the outcome. The chances of an error in the voting machine precincts are quite remote. School officials, after checking the totals for each precinct, feel the tallies don't show any errors which would justify a recount. Because the poll books don't contain any numerical descrepancies, the administration is content that errors wouldn't be discovered in any recount of the nine precints.

Although there were 286 paper ballots cast by absentee voters, the administration is also assured there are no errors amongst the absentee ballots because these have been counted and re-counted so

The 281 absentee ballots were counted twice from 6:30 to about 9:30 p.m. Monday. when it was first realized a tie vote had resulted on the millage. The absentee ballots were then counted and re-counted with the same result each time-134 "yes" and 147 "no" votes. The five absentee ballots not counted until Tuesday afternoon also were counted twice and there's no question about the accuracy of that count. So as of Friday the administration reported the district had no plans to request a recount. Citizens may file for a recount independently by paying a fee of $5 per precinct, but no one had filed as of Wednes-

THE BOARD and administration will now proceed to make decisions on cuts in programs based on the proposed budget prepared in case of the millage's defeat.

Those program reductions and other cuts will total some $2.2 million. Among the cuts suggested earlier by the board were: elimination of reading, art, music, physical education and library specialists for the elementary schools; an increase in class size necessitated by the layoff of about 100 teachers; a cut of about $220,000 in elective courses, intramural athletics at the middle schools; a reduction in class offerings at the high schools; a $270,000 cut in supplies and textbooks districtwide;

$260,000 reduction in maintenance; and cuts in athletics, extra-curricular activities, sixth grade camp and closing of Geer School to save almost $345,000.

Because of state law preventing a school election within 30 days before or after a general election, there will not be another millage election scheduled until after school starts in September. The final vote on the millage, as certified by the Board of Canvassers, is: Precinct One (Central Middle) 344 yes, 407 no; Precinct Two (Gallimore) 404 yes, 345 no; Precinct 3 (Isbister), 325 yes, 361 no; Precinct 4 (Starkweather), 185 yes, 269 no; Precinct 5 (Allen), 361 yes, 406 no; Precinct 6 (West Middle), 460 yes, 470 no; Precinct 7 (Farrand), 371 yes, 443 no; Precinct 8 (Fiegel), 271 yes, 228 no; Precinct 9 (Miller), 576 yes, 355 ho; absentee ballot counting board, 136 yes, 150 no; total, 3,433 ves and 3,434 no.

Hearing set on crossing guards

A public hearing will be held Wednesday to allow for citizen input on the question of whether crossing guards should be provided for school children and, if desired, how guards should be paid.

The hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers upstairs in Plymouth City Hall. The hearing is being sponsored by the Intergovernmental Committee which hopes to see the conflict between governmental units in Plymouth-Canton brought to a closure.

"This issue has been kicked around for some time now between the governmental units," comments Tom Yack, chairman of the Intergovernmental Committee, "and so this hearing has been set up by the committee to give the citizens a chance to communicate their desires on this issue."

THE HEARING will begin with presentation of a brief history of the issue of paying for crossing guards. A representative from each governmental unit then will be given an opportunity to speak, and then the hearing will be opened for citizen

Earlier in the year, the school board had voted that it will not provide crossing guards this fall unless municipal governments in the school district agree to pay half the cost. The school district proposed it would pay half the cost with Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth townships sharing in the other half.

Canton has been paying its share for crossing guards while the city had been placing the money in escrow with payment promised once Plymouth Township agreed to pay. When the school board made its decision to eliminate crossing guards unless the other governments shared in the expense. Plymouth Township was singled out as the reason why agreement couldn't be Following that motion, Plymouth Township Supervisor J.D. McLaren then an nounced that it was the school district's legal obligation to pay for crossing guards and the township didn't intend to contrib-

The school board then asked for a legal opinion from the attorney general's office. Weeks later the opinion was returned that neither schools nor municipalities had a legal obligation to provide crossing guards although both could do so voluntarily.

At its last meeting, the Intergovernmental Committee decided to hold the public forum as the attorney general's opinion had at least stated the schools weren't legally obligated to pick up the cost by itself

Some members of the committee also felt the school board was hasty in making units decide. The city has maintained it will pay if Plymouth Township pays. A spokesman for Plymouth Township recently stated that the refusal to pay is not a philosophical position but an economic one-that the township is lacking funds and cannot afford to contribute.

committee of the school district has sent a memo to Plymouth Township residents urging them to express their feelings on this issue to township officials. The memo

"We, the districtwide safety committee of Plymouth, are very concerned with the safety of our school children.

"As stated by the Plymouth Board of Education, if Plymouth Township doesn't share in the salaries of the crossing guards, the school board has no alternative but to stop payment of their share of this expense. This would result in the removal of all school crossing guards in Plymouth Township.

The safety committee would like to inform you, parents of school children in Plymouth Township, of the above situation. As a concerned parent, please notify your township officials of your feelings for

"See all crossings safe with crossing

Although the school board hasn't altered its position, some members feel the possibility remains that the board could decide to provide crossing guards to those units who pay part of the expense and eliminate the service for those units who don't share

Last year, the crossing guards cost the district $16,500 and in the next couple weeks will be mailing bills to the governmental units for crossing guard service for 1975-76. Refusal by any unit to pay that bill action on this issue. School officials say Plymouth Township now owes the district $12,730 for crossing guard service provided in past years but not paid for.

Thorpe of 346 Irvin and Robert and Betty Kregoski of 15120 Amber Ct., expect to pack days of riding, camping, fishing, swimming and just plain good fun into the 21/2-week journey.

The boys, both of whom will attend lymouth Canton High as seniors next fall, began planning the trip last November and have been getting in shape ever since. Thorpe's job at Baskin-Robbins and Kregoski's work with his father helped the two to save money for the trip.

Thorpe said he and his friends have taken numerous jau ts with their bikes, but none quite so far as the Upper Peninsula. The longest trip the two had previously taken was a pedalling journey from Plymouth to the Brighton area.

But now the two hope to ride to Ithaca, Harrison; Gladwin, Otsego Lake, Sault Ste. Marie and westward along the Lake Superi-

"From there, I can't tell you," Thorpe said. "It's the longest trip we've ever taken, but then again, it's going to cover a lot more days."

W-W stressing basic reading skills

By MARILYN FITCHETT

While Wayne-Westland School District isn't trying to put Evelyn Wood out of business, it newly adopted goals for the next two years call for an emphasis on basic reading skills.

"Reading is a national problem," Supt. Timothy J. Dyer said.

"We have it here-no more, no less than in any other district.

"What we're going to be striving for is to give our students the language skills which are indispensable to learning anything else

The goals also include an emphasis on basic mathematic skills.

Dyer contended that educators until recently really didn't know how to teach reading.

Ms. Howell's vehicle, which had been traveling west on Schoolcraft, rolled over, police said. Ms. Howell was thrown partly out of the passenger window and pinned beneath the car.

Ranked behind the development of basic skills in reading and math is the development of a program including the parent as a primary component in the child's learning process.

"We've found through some programs that parents are scared of their children in their learning environments.

"Yet we've found once parents overcome their nervousness, they can be extremely effective teachers of young lear-

"So far our best vehicle for involving the parent is the SPARKEY pre-school program. But this could lead us to coordinating neighborhood leaders who could come into the homes to help with basic skills.

"You'd be surprised how many kids come into school not knowing the difference between an orange and an apple, a penny from a nickel or a hand from a foot,"Dyer said.

The third curriculum goal is the development of an individualized program that promotes learning through subjects such as science, social studies and career and vocational education.

"It's wonderful for a student to be aable to read," Dyer said. "But our students also have to be citizens and have to have careers. We want to use basic reading and math skills as tools to build on the other disciplines," Dyer said.

"Our vocational education program is tied into this, but we'll need the bond issue to complete that goal. And we'll be introducing career education at the early

Other district curriculum goals in order of ranking are

 Develop a program that facilitates mobility from one level to another such as pre-school to kindergarten or junior high to senior high. · Develop a program of individualized instruction through staff development and instructional skill development. · Develop and implement team planning approach within the curriculum depart-· Develop a program of alternative education.

· Develop a fine arts program integrated with all curricular efforts. · Develop a program for utilization of media services.

TOP GOAL OF student relations department in the field of special education will be to integrate special education student into general education programs.

"These children are not going to live in cocoon and they don't live in one now," Dyer said of special education students.

"To an extent we've already begun this by affixing the McGrath Center to Roosevelt School

"But just because a crippled child has to go to physical therapy is no reason to keep them in special education classes the rest of the day.

Second on the list is development of student performance objectives in special edu-

"The law says we have to have individual programs for special education students, but we just don't know how to do that yet. We need to develop a mechanism much as we needed a mechanism to find out what we needed to do to improve our reading skills," Dyer said.

The third goal is to train general education staff to recognize and accept the special education student in the classroom.

Dyer said this goal was related to the integration of special education students in the classroom. Teachers, he said, would be given training within the district to provide programs for students who have special problems but have the capacity to remain in the general education classroom.

Continuing to increase school and community awareness of handicapped youngsters and providing special education students with facilities and programs in the secondary schools were ranked equally with training teachers to service special youngsters in the classrooms.

Other special education goals were: · Building a workshop facility for Norris School which would provide work activity and gift shop space.

· Develop a feasibility study for transporting special education students outside the Wayne-Westland district.

STUDENT RELATIONS GOALS include departments of child accounting and attendance, student activities, gifted learning and pre-school.

Top goals included developing more "humanistic and effective" methods for implementing truancy and attendance problems. evaluating the current accelerated learning program and continuing to expand programs for children through age five.

pointe Village in Plymouth Township. After that school was built, city residents voted against a millage because the money raised would be used to benefit growth in the township.

At that time, Canton was basically agricultural with farmers paying school taxes to support growth in Plymouth Township and to support growth in the city before that

In 1976, though, it was the residents of Lakepointe and other areas of Plymouth Township voting against millage because the growth and new schools are in Canton.

This voting pattern, and irony of history, suggests the Plymouth Community School District might be more of a geographical entity than a community in the sense of concern for each other and sharing the responsibility of educating children in the dis-

For some voters, the number of which cannot be determined, the responsibility felt is one of educating children in the city or in the township but not educating children throughout the school district.

That split in loyalities is an old one that has existed for districts crossing governmental lines. Examination of the results shows the split still exists; the sense of community still is elusive.

A FINAL FACTOR which helped defeat the millage is the number of teachers living in the district who failed to vote. There is no good way to measure exactly how many teachers failed to vote. But there are some 1,000 teachers living in the district, and it isn't likely mathematically that the 3,100 "yes" votes conisted of 1,000 teachers and 2,100 "other" voters. From one report alone, there were seven teachers living in the district who teach at one high school in a neighboring district who didn't vote Monday. Although the actual number of teachers failing to vote cannot be determined, it can be said that the failure of the teacher bloc to turnout the vote was a factor

When preparing for the next millage election then, whenever that might be, administration and board must look closely at the lack of community identity within the district, the fact of the pro-school forces (including teachers) staving home, and the impact of Concerned Parents.

While there was no mandate on the millage vote, and no single explanation to accurately assess why it failed, there are some messages of importance for many to rapid transit and to reorganize the board of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

The full senate voted 20-13 on June 15 to send the SEMTA bill to the appropriations committee for further work

The appropriations committee on June 17 decided to substitute a "one person, one vote" formula for allocating SEMTA board seats and to use a flat $4 per vehicle tax as the funding tool.

"WE DIDN'T actually adopt the new bill," said Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth), a member of the appropriations com-

"I reserve my vote until I can see the draft of the new bill. There's too much at stake. All we did was to agree to some principles.'

All suburban senators on the appropriations committee agreed on the basic principles, he said. These include Chairman Bill S. Huffman (D-Madison Heights), Thomas Guastello (D-Sterling Heights) and Joseph Snyder (D-St. Clair Shores.)

THE PRINCIPLES they agreed on are: •Financing will be by a $4 per vehicle surcharge to be levied in the seven-county region. (An earlier version proposed by Gov. William Milliken called for a larger vehicle tax to be applied in only the three metropolitan counties-Wayne, Oakland and Macomb. A second version called for a real estate transfer tax.) • The SEMTA board will be expanded to 21 members: four from Detroit (mayoral appointments), four from suburban Wayne County (selected by suburban county commissioners only and ratified by the entire county board); three from Oakland, two from Macomb, and one each from St. Clair, Washtenaw, Monroe and Livingston counties; two appointed by the governor and two by the Southeast Michigan Council of Govern-

Pursell, who offered that apportionment plan, said it more nearly reflected population than the version offered by Gov. Milliken and Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young. Their plan called for a 15-member SEMTA board with Detroit getting five

·Language is being drafted to prevent the reorganization from taking place until SEMTA can acquire the assets of Detroit's Department of Transportation (D-DOT). (Current SEMTA board members say this is necessary to avoid the prospect of Detroit members on a reorganized SEMTA board being "on both sides of the bargaining table" in negotiatons.)

· A provision in the earlier bill requiring SEMTA to take over funding of D-DOT's pension system is being removed. Senators felt the D-DOT pension question should be resolved by negotiations between Detroit and SEMTA, not mandated by the legisla-

MAYOR YOUNG'S administrative assistant, William Cilluffo, labled the new version "ridiculous" and "a fiasco."

Young is known to favor a subway, at least for the downtown section of a rapid transit network, but the bill is aimed at prohibiting a subway. That language was inserted at the insistence of Sen. David S. Holmes (D-Detroit)

Even if the new version wins senate approval, it faces tough sledding in the house, where Young has more leverage. If the house passes a bill more favorable to Detroit, the two versions would go to a conference committee where Detroit, again, would have considerable strength.

THE APPROPRIATIONS committee's rewrite was made possible by the full senate's vote to send it there for revisions.

Supporting the move were all Observer. & Eccentric area senators: Huffman, Pursell, Donald Bishop (R-Rochester), Daniel Cooper (D-Oak Park) and William Faust (D-Westland).

At present, the SEMTA board has nine members-six appointed by SEMCOG and three by the governor.

There is currently no method for the southeastern Michigan region to pay its local share of construction costs for a rapid transit system. The $4 vehicle tax is estimated to raise $13 million annually.

Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy, who attended the appropriations committee meeting, said the suburbs' "tenacious stand" against the real estate transfer tax plan appeared successful.

But Murphy said he would still prefer to "The incumbent (Tom Brown) represents a kind of government that was around when Westland, Canton and Plymouth were largely rural townships. Times have changed, but the leadership has not.

"While my opponent is an accomplished politician and an expert back-slapper, he has had a lackluster record in Lansing.

STATE OF MICHIGAN MUNICIPAL FINANCE COMMISSION

ADDENDUM TO NOTICE OF SALE

Certain statutory notice of intent procedures with which, in the opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, the issuer has fully complied are required with respect to the above bonds. The constitutionality of a notice of intent law was questioned by the plaintiff in Harter, et al. v. City of Swartz Creek, et al., Michigan Supreme Court No. 58400, on the grounds that the law did not provide an adequate method of giving the notice to known persons. The Trial Court held the law constitutional and the Michigan Appeals Court, after reversing a previous contrary opinion, has held the law to be constitutional. On May 19, 1976, the Michigan Supreme Court denied plaintiff leave to appeal the final Appeals Court decision. The plaintiff, on June 8, 1976, filed pleadings for rehearing by the Michigan Supreme Court of its May 19, 1976 order and if rehearing is denied, plaintiff could appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. It, however, is the opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, that if such a rehearing is granted or such an appeal is attempted, the present holding of constitutionality by the Michigan Courts will be sustained. Upon request by the successful purchaser of the above bonds, Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, attorneys of Detroit, Michigan, will furnish an opinion stating the foregoing. The non-litigation certificate for the bonds will except this case.

Another honor for Salem hurler

Wolcott tapped for All-State

By BILL COLLINS

After completing a masterful season on the mound for Plymouth Salem this spring, senior Brian Wolcott has been bestowed with a final honor that consummates one of the greater tales of success achieved in the prep ranks: Being named the All-State pitcher by the high school coaches board.

Wolcott remained relatively obscure as a pitcher for the bulk of his prep days, but emerged rapidly over the past few months recording a 17-5 season for Salem by erecting a 15-0 mark himself. He appeared in 16 games, tossed 92 innings, fanned 128, walked only 25, yielded 52 hits, while registering a 1.47 earned run

"PITCHING HAS always come naturally to me. I've never had any difficulty getting the ball over the plate," the Rocks'

Wolcott pitched through little league and junior high levels at Our Lady of Good Counsel where he was undefeated, but was forced to make the transition to shortstop in his freshman year at Salem.

During his sophomore and junior years he played shortstop with the varsity squad, racking up a 2-1 record on the mound in the spring of '75 by pitching in three games at the end of the season.

Former Salem coach Wayne Sparkman, who coached Wolcott during summer baseball and in his first two varsity seasons said, "The concentrated development of Brian as a pitcher did not start taking place until last summer.

Last summer, Wolcott went 6-0 for the second year in a row in leading the Plymouth Elks to its fourth straight Connie Mack championship.

When speaking of this season, Wolcott points to the mental aspect of his game that supported his triumphs.

"Using the many deliveries I have to keep the hitters confused and keeping up my mental concentration made a difference, and so did the hitting my teammates gave me. Their support at the plate helped immensely.

CURENT SALEM coach Brian Gilles focused his thoughts in the manner Wolcott assumed the role of a starting pitcher.

"It shows you what kind of athlete the kid is when we ask him to pitch and he goes on to have the year he did, he won a lot of those ballgames upstairs by making the right pitches. He always lends 100 per cent of himself and his attitude made a difference on the ballclub

When the tables are reversed and Wolcott stands at the plate, he makes himself

During the summer, he will see most action at shortstop, playing for Detroit Adray Appliance along with former Salem All-Stater Tom Willette.

Backstop inks contract

KC Royals land Tom Close

By BILL COLLINS

Upon graduating from Plymouth Canton High School, Tom Close made his decision to enter professional baseball Wednesday night, by signing a contract to play for the Kansas City Royals.

For the 6-1, 170-pound catcher, the decision was an investment he firmly believes will return dividends in the future. "I've done a lot of thinking about college and pro ball and I feel that since the opportunity is here, I should take advantage of it. The instruction and coaching I'll receive with the Royals is much more comprehensive than at the college level.

Close commented that so many things can happen over the course of four years in baseball and he could best handle the changes in the pro ranks.

"I've received a bonus for signing, an incentive bonus depending on how well I play, plus a bonus that covers my education, which is at my disposal any time those things to fall back on, whereas in college, I might not be drafted again.' Close whittled down his reasoning for

"If I ever got injured, at least I'd have signing to basic form saying, "I feel that playing college ball for four years would be delaying the fact about whether or not I'm good enough to make it in pro ball."

Kansas City drafted Close in the fourth round of the free agent draft on June 7

Close reported to Sarasota Friday morning where he will spend the summer playing in the Class 'A' Gulf Coast League against other rookie clubs. He has also been invited to the instructional league, where the Royals' top 25 prospects spend the winter months futhering their skills.

Kansas City head scout Art Stewart was delighted to see Close sign with the Royals and had optimisite words for the young

"Tom has all the tools to become an outstanding part of the Royals organization, he's in an excellent position right now because our only weakness in the club is at catcher, where we have two journeyman receivers with the big team who are both 29 years old . . . I feel Tom has the aility. he's big, strong, carries plenty of power, and, at this point, he's very close to being a major league catcher when you analyze his defensive skills." said Stewart.

The Royals scout in the state of Michigan who saw the most of Close is Jerry Stevens, who Stewart passes the credit to for signing Close.

"Jerry does a fine job and he's very familiar with the personal makeup of Torn Close, we feel he has very high individual standards and that's an important factor we look toward when signing a player," Stewart added.

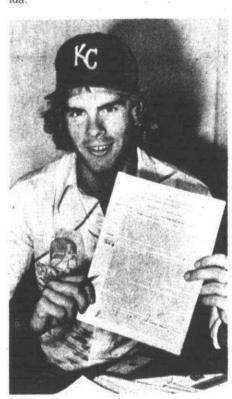

Kansas City is an organization oriented ballclub as the Royals are currently the best team in the American League with 14 of the 25 players on their roster coming from their own ranks.

As far as the John Close, Tom's father, was concerned, he conveyed a positive feeling about the signing of his son.

"If a person has the ability to do certain things they've got to try them out, if they don't they'll regret it the rest of their

He added, "Tom got an excellent contract and he has nothing to lose by playing pro ball right now.

Close will play 70 games in the Gulf Coast League this summer, and he has made plans to play winter baseball, in addition to attending a junior college in Flor-

The dedicated training of an area girl in the relatively obscure sport of fencing has carried her to the threshold of every athlete's dream-a chance to win a national championship

In the case of Terri Harms, a 15-year-old Westland resident, her dream is a double feature because she will later this month compete for a pair of titles.

Since Terri placed in the top four at the Michigan Amateur Fencers League of America Tournament early last month in Troy, she qualified for the senior national championships June 25-26 at Cherry, N.J.

After placing fourth in state competition, Terri finished feurth in the Midwestern Junior Division Championships in Clayton, Mo. a week later to qualify for the junior national title, also to be contested at

What is particularly impressive about Terri's situation, other than that she will likely be among only a few battling for two championships and her young age, is that she has been fencing only two years.

Terri said her goal at the nationals is to gain experience for future competition. Her sights have been set specifically on the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

Terri's fencing career started two years ago at Westland's Kettering Elementary School. A fencing program was initiated as an after-school activity and Terri said she dropped-in to see what it was all about.

She discovered that "it is fun," and she has been with the sport ever since.

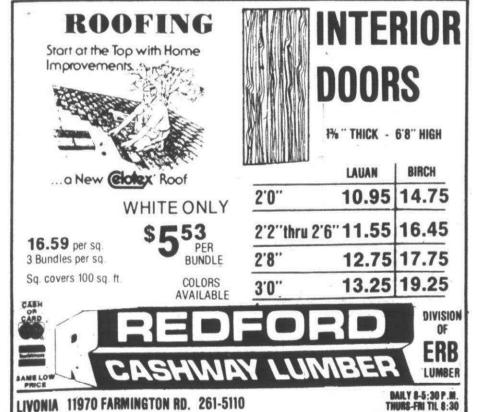

Dick Perry, director of the University of Michigan-Dearborn Fencing Club, saw her perform at an early tournament soon after she started. Terri said, and asked her to join the club

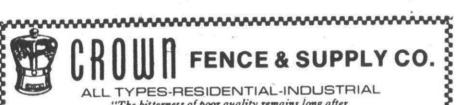

Terri is the youngest member of the group, which consists mainly of collegians. With the nationals quickly approaching. Terri said she has stepped-up her training program. In addition to her twice weekly practice sessions with the U-M Fencing Club, she finds time to joust with her sister, Sheryl, in the basement of their home.

Terri, who attended Adams Junior High the past year, competes exclusively with the foil. She admitted that occasional thoughts of knights of old pop into her mind during practice and meets.

Terri already owns one title, having won the under-16 division at the national Junior Olympics. Only a bright future appears to loom before one of the youngest fencers to compete in the Michigan championships.

New Morning an alternative in education

BY SHERRY KAHAN

The New Morning School of Plymouth is a combination of something old and something new.

In its 30-by-50 foot room in Epiphany Lutheran Church, this kindergarten through sixth grade institution has much about it reminiscent of the one-room school house.

But in teaching concepts, it uses new ideas, particularly concerning student self-direction and individual instruction.

A recent statement made by Gladys Ryder, retired member of the Livonia Historical Commission, about the one-room school house in which she once taught, could very well apply to the New Morning School.

The children helped each other, was Mrs. Ryder's observation about the eight grades she taught simultaneously. They looked after each other and learned from

At New Morning, 12-year-old Mark Landback often finds time to spend a few minutes reading a book to eight-year-old Brian Way. And when Karen Sand ran in to tell her teacher that Mark Unsworth had a minor injury in an outdoor activity, the youngster then took the boy in hand and went off to read him a comforting book.

Concerning this shared kind of learning. Mrs. Shiela DeJohn of Northville, parent of a New Morning student, noted that a child can suggest the formation of a group interested in snakes and amphibians.

"Children from five to 12 can join," she said. "It is really beneficial because older ones can teach younger ones about things they are too young to be able to read about."

MRS. ELAINE YAGIELA, a founder of the school and one of its two teachers, pointed out there is a family feeling at New Morning.

"The kids really do care about each other," she said. "The parents are involved and become close, and they care for other children as well as their own. They often bring in materials or articles for the other students."

But the main thrust of this school, which has just completed its third year, is its attitude toward the 21 children who arrive every day from local and distant points, including Livonia, Westland, Plymouth, Farmington, Northville, Detroit and Ypsilanti. It is this attitude that places New Morning in the category of an alternative school.

One of the goals of the staff is to help the students become self-directed.

"The children make their own study and activity plan," continued Mrs. DeJohn. "The younger ones make a plan for a day, the older ones for a week. They sit down and decide with their teacher what they want to cover, so much math, write a story or prepare a nature walk. It's a commitment to themselves. Later they all evaluate with their teachers the success they've had in carrying out their plan.

"As they get older, they begin to look forward to making their own plan and running their own life. It's good to learn to make decisions. Children don't run loose here. They are kept track of and are kept up to grade level.

"But it's an advantage to be in an atmosphere where they can learn to make decisions and the decisions are respected."

sions and the decisions are respected."

Mrs. Elizabeth Unsworth of Livonia, whose boys Donald and Matthew attend the school, said, "I feel that learning is fun when children at a young age are made responsible for their own decisions and planning, with the guidance of their teachers."

She added, "I don't think you can ask children to assume responsibility at 16 if they haven't had to assume it earlier."

A look around the school one afternoon during what the two certified teachers called "quiet time" revealed numerous activities. Karen Sand of Detroit and Jenny Ruokolainen of Farmington were getting ready to post informational signs along a nature walk.

Prepared by the girls in a variety of delicious colors, the signs presented all kinds of revealing biological information. To wit: "Trillium grow about a foot long. They have three green leaves and three petals which are very colorfull. Colors pink to pure white. When they die they grow purple berries."

grow purple berries."
"It was their idea to have a nature walk," said Mrs. Yaliela. "The students get an idea and really do follow through."

get an idea and really do follow through."

There was no sign of an adversary relationship between the students and their two teachers, Mrs. Yagiela and Mrs. Rita Heaven.

"I LIKE the freedom and responsibility in this school," commented Mrs. Sandy Landback of Farmington Hills. "I like the fact that the children get to know their teachers as people, not just as authority figures."

She also responded that parents are involved in all facets of the school. "We help with curriculum planning," she said. "We have contact with the school and see what's going on. There is a sense of commitment we get here that we don't get in public school."

Like cooperative pre-school, parents are expected to take a part in the school activities, as fund raisers, officers, teacher aides, or just plain moppers and tidyuppers.

THE REMAINING question to be answered about the highly individualized program at New Morning School is what would be the re-entry problems of youngsters leaving its friendly alternative shelter for public school.

"If a child has a good enough feeling about himself and is secure after having this school experience up to the sixth grade, he will have no re-entry problems," said Mrs. Unsworth. "By then he will be mature enough to handle it."

New Morning School staff and parents are currently hoping to expand the program to a middle school level. But they need larger quarters.

Feelers for space in unused public school classrooms have been rejected by a number of districts, including Livonia where it is against board policy to rent to a private agency teaching students of the same age as those enrolled in the regular K-12 program.

The policy is based on the board's belief it could be challenged for preferential renting of its space to one private agency and

The word means what it says.

The word "Emergency" over a hospital entrance marks a place of immediate medical action. It's staffed with specially trained medical teams. And equipped with special life-saving apparatus. Which makes it an expensive place to dispense general medical care.

A doctor's office, a clinic or the outpatient department of a hospital is the appropriate place for non-emergency care.

Saving our emergency resources for emergencies can help save health-care dollars. For you. For everyone.

We're sure you will agree, saving is a healthy thing to do.

Kellogg Park: Entertainment on the village green

The village green was the hub of activity 100 years ago in small American communities, and the City of Plymouth's Kellogg Park continues to play the same role today.

The triangular chunk of green in the center of town with its bricked paths, fountain, benches, trees and gaslights comes into its own in the summer months.

During the day, it is a cool spot for youngsters and oldsters to sit and visit, read or just watch the world go by. On Thursday evenings in June and July, all roads lead to the park. Lawn chairs or blankets in hand, the great migration to hear the band concert begins soon after the dinner hour.

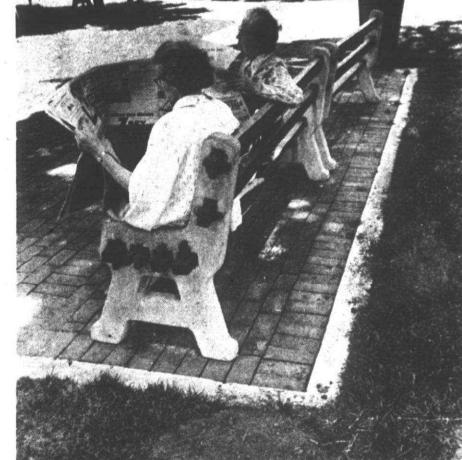

The old gazebo-type bandstand is gone-replaced by a mobile shell moved to Penniman Avenue for the occasion. Every seat is a good one-a blanket on the ground or a lawn chair-because the music of the community band is amplified to cover the whole park.

Special Bicentennial-in-the-Park performances this year have extended the Thursday night gatherings. They started in late May with a Michigan Week celebration involving the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, dancers and choruses from the elementary schools, and log-rolling and twoman-sawing contests by local high school students.

A number of couples from other Wayne County communities have discovered the Thursday night band concerts. They make a day of it. They spend the afternoon fishing in Wilcox Lake on the edge of town, have a picnic supper on the lakeshore, and then join the audience in the park.

Sleepy toddlers, snug in their parents' laps; wandering small fry; neighbor greeting neighbor, seniors keeping time to rousing band music-the scene is worthy of a Brueghel.

Some folks take their enjoyment from Kellogg Park in a most relaxed manner. It's a fine place to simply sit and read.

Go cruising down Michigan's rivers

Few canoeable streams in the state can match the blend of beauty and excitement found along Michigan's Pere Marquette,

Big and Little Manistee and Pine rivers. More than 2,000 canoes are available for up to two weeks' travel on the more than 500 miles of streams offering both whitewater action for the experienced and slower, smoother stretches for the novice. Of the four, the Pere Marquette is the southernmost and easiest to canoe, with no portages or rapids. Rising from fingerling creeks near Baldwin in Lake County, the Pere Marquette's main branch begins a the M-37 bridge

Baldwin is canoe headquarters for the river, with 700 craft at four liveries available for up to a week's journey 100 miles downstream to Ludington. Rental costs are Both Brown and rainbow trout are abundant, and the seven-mile-per-hour current quickly takes canoeists along high banks dotted with fishing lodges.

Those who prefer quieter waters can rent canoes at Branch or Walhalla, 15 and 20 miles west on US-10, respectively.

There is also a livery in Ludington. Both state and national forest campsites are available at six spots downstream from Baldwin. A city park for day or overnight use is located at Scottville.

Only 16 miles north of Baldwin lies the Little Manistee River, flowing cool and deep from Luther to Manistee. It offers perfect water for the beginner or expert. Trips from several hours to four days are offered by Solberg's Marina at Manistee for $7 daily rental. Many canoeists classify the neighboring Pine River as strictly for experts. The most traveled of the four rivers, it has 900 canoes available from seven liveries in Baldwin, Manistee and Wellston.

Trips from two to 14 hours take canoeists through sharp turns and rapids on one of Michigan's most challenging rivers.

A short portage around the Stronach power dam will take travelers to the Big

Canoeists on the Big Manistee can rent craft at nine liveries from Frederic to Manistee, with trips from four hours to 10 days at costs of $6-$10 daily

Dodge picks up trend by customizing pickups

The Beachboys drove, in song at least, a '34 wagon and they called it a "woody.

You can't find wood on production vehicles often, but Dodge has brought back the use of wood, on a customized pickup truck, if not a station wagon, as in the song.

Dodge is offering a special customized pickup, or trick truck, direct from the factory.

Called the Warlock, the 115-inch wheelbase pickup has fancy wheels, fat tires, gold interior and exterior tape stripes, bucket seats, and, of course, real oak sideboards. Even the oak sideboards on the utiline box have been given a gold accent.

"The market for this type of personalized truck has taken off," said R.H. Kline, manager of truck sales. "We think this market is going to grow as rapidly as the customized van market.'

The Warlock package gives the customer a trick truck that he can drive away from the dealership and bypass the customizing shop. It is available in the D100 (shown) or the W100 Power Wagon.

"This is a fun truck that can be obtained with either two-wheel or four-wheel drive.'

The D100 also offers as options tinted glass, bright rear bumper and power steering.

Both the D100 and the W100 have chrome-plated running boards. The running boards may be a bit compact, but they are running boards.

Either model can be ordered in black, dark green metallic or bright red. All have black interiors to set off the gold interior tape stripe accent on the doors and dash. The appeal of the customized truck is essentially a youth market. "But we know that utiline models are becoming popular with people who have never really given up their love affair with driving and their love for tough-looking vehicles

'This, plus the fact that many people are using a light truck as the second vehicle in the family, make this a very hot market." Kline said.

Dodge's largest selling body style on the West Coast is the short wheelbast sytle, which buyers then "trick up" by adding sporty wheels, fat tires and customized enterior paint jobs. Dodge saw buyers remaking their standard trucks and went into the customizing business, too. The result is the Warlock

PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES consume about 14 percent of all the energy and about 31 percent of all the petroleum used in the United States, according to the Federal Energy Administration. If we could reduce the fuel consumption of the average car just

15 percent, the nation's consumption of petroleum would fall by over 28,000,000 gallons

FIGURES, FIGURES,

FIGURESIII 14 percent, 31 percent, 15 percent, 28,000,000 gallons. WHAT DOES THIS MEAN

CONSERVING FUEL can be important for all of us in several areas. First...it would save money and cut pollution. Second---it would help stretch America's current fuel supplies. And---it would help bring us closer to America's goal of energy self-sufficiency.

BUT WHAT CAN I DO?

EACH INDIVIDUAL can do many things to conserve energy through better planning, better maintenance---and---through better driving. Here's a few ways

suggested by the Federal Energy

Commission to reduce the fuel consumption of passenger

(1) Accelerate gently whenever possible. Jerky acceleration can cost you an extra 2 miles per gallon in gas consumption.

(2) Drive at steady, moderate speeds. If you vary the speed repeatedly by 5 miles per hour. it can cost you as much as 1.3 miles per gallon. With speed limits now at 55 miles per hour.

you'll save more on expressways. Most autos get about 28 percent more miles per gallon at 50 miles per hour and 21 percent more miles per gallon at 55 miles per hour than

(3) Plan ahead. Short trips are costly. Can you combine several trips when you go out? Can you combine shopping and commuting? Did you know that a vehicle started cold and driven 4 miles may average 8 miles per gallon, while the same vehicle warmed up and driven 15 miles may average nearly 13 miles

(4) Check your tire pressure periodically. Underinflated tires can cost you as much as 1 mile

(5) Have you ever used your accelerator to hold your car in place on a hill? It's time to break that gas-wasting habit---use your brake instead to hold your car in place on a hill. Some other habits you may want to check

are pumping the accelerator

(6) Flow with the traffic and avoid unnecessary braking. For example, if the light ahead turns red, take your foot off the accelerator immediately and coast. The light may turn green before you reach the inand racing the engine.
