Teacher pay offers are revealed

By EMORY DANIELS

The difference between both sides bargaining for a teachers' contract is narrowed down to about four per cent. But the lack of movement since reaching that point has caused a temporary stalemate between the negotiating teams.

In a statement released by the school board Tuesday, trustees reported the situation in negotiations is "very serious." The same day, Candi Reece, chief negotiator for the teachers, reported that the possibility of a strike was "real."

Although the two sides are officially about 20 per cent apart, based on positions placed on the table, informal talks have reached the point where the disagreement has narrowed down to a gap of four per cent on what the total money improvement will be.

Norm Kee, chief negotiator for the school board, reports the hang-up now is whether increment pay increases should be counted in the total salary improvement figures and which formula should be used to compute cost-of-living adjustments. Ms. Reece says cost-of-living isn't really the big issue but that the roadblock is the total amount of money improvements over the next three years.

THE BOARD of Education met in a workshop Monday evening and discussed budget and negotiations for more than four hours. Trustees have agreed to meet as often as necessary to achieve a settlement with the teachers.

Regular conferences between Kee and the board have been scheduled. Trustees stress they are backing their negotiating team and will remain in close touch with all its actions.

In a statement released Tuesday, the board reported: "We really appreciate that the teachers are working without a contract. Their job security and working conditions are very important to us, too."

The board expressed its deep concern for the welfare and education of students in the Plymouth Community School District and reiterated that the 4.75 additional mills approved by voters Sept. 2 would be spent for learning materials, curriculum improvement, class size, and support services. "We are resolved to reach a fair and equitable settlement as soon as possible."

KEE IN REMARKS Tuesday morning said a fundamental difference now between the two sides is how to define cost-of-living adjustments.

The board has offered a formula providing for COLA at five per cent of the base salary (pay for a first-year teacher). The Plymouth Education Association (PEA), says Ms. Reece, wants the five per cent applied against the salaries at each step in the pay schedule.

The difference is that the board would take five per cent of about $10,000 and offer each of the 650 teachers $500 for COLA. The PEA position would result in a beginning teacher getting $500 for COLA and a teacher at the top of the scale getting about $1,000 for COLA.

"By applying five per cent to the base salary," explained Kee, "each teacher would get the same amount of increase. But if we applied five per cent to all salary steps it could cost the district up to $500,000 additional over our base-salary proposal."

Ms. Reece responded: "The district paid us COLA last year at each step of the salary schedule, and it didn't break them. In fact, the district ended up with a surplus of some $160,000. The proposal of five per cent of base pay would totally destroy the salary schedule over a period of time. Teachers at the bottom of the scale would make out okay, but as you go up the scale you lose buying power. What happens is that the experienced teachers would be punished."

The COLA provision in the present contract calls for teachers to receive two-thirds of whatever the increase was in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) during the previous year. This year, for instance, teachers would've gotten two-thirds of 5.2 per cent.

KEE EXPLAINED the board's first offer was a straight four per cent pay hike, plus increments. The argument given then was that the four per cent increase was insufficient to cover cost of living, except for beginning teachers.

On Sept. 2 the board made another offer for two years, a four per cent across the board in 1976-77 and one per cent across the board in 1977-78. In addition, the offer included uncapped COLA against the base salary for the second year.

The district, by state law, must pick up the cost of teachers' pensions by July 1, 1977. Kee, in the Sept. 2 offer, asked the union to include the pension contribution as a pay improvement amounting to five per cent—the amount of extra money which would show up in a teacher's paycheck. The Sept. 2 board offer amounted to a 10 per cent improvement over two years, plus uncapped COLA in 1977-78.

Later the board offered a three-year contract with 1978-79 calling for a one per cent across-the-board increase, plus uncapped COLA against the base salary. Kee also made an offer that the board would begin paying half of the pension contribution, 2½ per cent, beginning in the second semester of the current school year.

The three-year offer represented a pay improvement of 15 to 16 per cent, Kee explained, plus an additional 12 per cent for increments (automatic pay increases given due to seniority) for a total improvement of about 28 per cent.

"Teachers don't like to talk about increments," Kee observed. "They argue that increments were foisted upon them by school boards in the old days before unions. But the district will have to pay out about $400,000 just for increments which represent an average increase of four per cent for each teacher."

"Teachers at the top of the scale don't get increments, or about 25 per cent of our teachers. So most teachers will get increments ranging from 4½ to 6½ per cent."

KEE NOTED that the two sides are about 20 per cent apart based on the formal offers remaining on the bargaining table. The 20 per cent gap includes increments, an inclusion disputed by the PEA.

"Off the table we are a lot closer, perhaps about three to four per cent apart on a three-year package, based on discussions Monday night with the school board and with the PEA," Kee added.

Kee said the last formal board offer was placed on the table Sept. 16 and the PEA's last formal offer was placed on the table about Sept. 22.

The board also has offered to pick up 100 per cent of the cost for dental insurance. Teachers now pay 45 per cent of the premium.

In summing up his position, Kee said: "We have never said we cannot afford what the teachers are asking but that we are seeking what's fair and equitable."

MS. REECE COMMENTED: "Norm feels that everything is going lovely, but the table position hasn't moved for three weeks."

"It's illegal to strike, we are told. That's fine. So we went back to work without a contract, and there has been no progress at the table. It's very frustrating. Kee's optimistic, but I'm pessimistic."

"We are seeking a three-year contract to have three years of labor peace in the district. The PEA has asked for COLA of 5.2 per cent the first year plus a three per cent pay improvement. And that's not much to ask considering the administration has received an eight per cent pay hike. The second and third years we are asking for unlimited COLA and a three per cent pay hike across the board. In one of our last discussions, we offered to cap COLA at 10 per cent in the third year."

"Not counting increments, the PEA is asking an improvement of 25 per cent over three years while the board's offer amounts to 20 per cent. Our 25 per cent offer was given to them five days ago, under the table. We have made three to four movements now."

"The biggest problem is the total percentage increase, not COLA. The PEA has done the moving to narrow the gap, and we cannot come down any further—that's why a strike is a real possibility. We have moved down, and this is it! The board has made no movement in the past two weeks. The community must get on the board to deal with the issues and pressure it to settle."

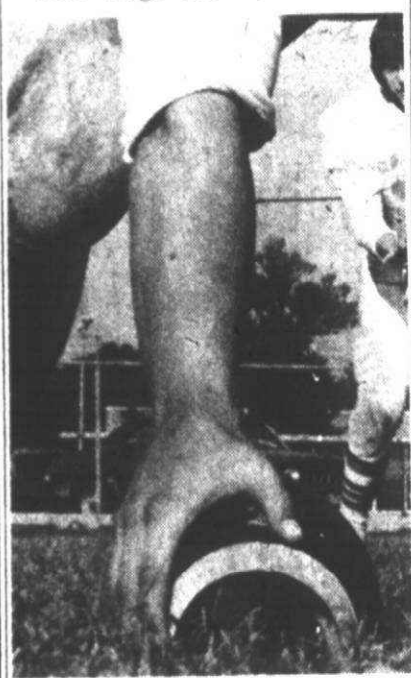

MS. REECE said the PEA negotiators are now holding individual meetings with groups of teachers to inform them of what is happening with the negotiations. "After that we will meet with the executive council to determine our next step."

Fears foes will 'try something'

By DARLENE STINSON

Even though Supervisor-Police Chief Robert Greenstein will probably earn official police certification within the seven weeks, Greenstein says he is not seeking the diploma because he wants to be a cop.

Rather, Greenstein says his enrollment in the seven-week police certification program at the Criminal Justice Institute of Detroit (CJI) is designed to ward off possible attacks on the 14 reserve officers enrolled in the program and insure their completion of the course.

"I'm not doing this for personal certification," said a tired Greenstein after completing the first day of classes, which last from 6:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. "I'm doing this to make sure Canton gets reasonable police protection."

"I anticipate the same people who screamed we weren't certified will try to keep us from getting certified," he continued. "I'm going to stop it. I'm going to give this township adequate police protection if it costs me everything I got."

Greenstein noted repeated criticism of the police reserves by Harold Stein, the Democratic nominee for the supervisor's post, as well as the unsuccessful court cases which sought to restrain the police department.

"They scared people with the reserves in the election," he said, "and the people didn't know who to believe. The reserves were so slandered, so violently attacked that I felt the only way to protect my men from people who tried to ruin the program was to get them certified."

Township board members recently approved enrollment of a maximum 15 reserves in the CJI program, scheduled for five days a week from Oct. 4 to Nov. 19. The program is entirely funded by federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act (LEAA) funds, directly administered to the CJI by the State of Michigan.

Under CJI rules, any problems with pupils enrolled in the program must be taken up with the officer's police chief. Greenstein points to those rules as the rationale for his enrollment.

"I felt I couldn't send my men downtown without being with them," he explained. "They can't kick anyone out of the program, unless they've done something terrible wrong. They can't convince me something terribly wrong happens if I'm right there and know it's not true. I can react immediately."

Greenstein believes opponents of the township's reserve police department will "try something" before the program is through.

"I'm talking about Stein and (Trustee candidate Eugene) Daley, their supporters, the Sheriff's union and all the other people who've been screaming about the police reserves."

"There are people who feel strongly they'd lose their bread and butter if we get certified," continued Greenstein, referring to talk that Canton should contract for police services with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, if a suit attempting to force the county to fund Sheriff deputies' services in seven townships fail.

"There are a lot of people in this county who feel they'll get a lot of money from our and other townships, if they knock us down," Greenstein maintains.

Although Stein, Daley and other members of their slate attacked the reserves in the primary election campaign, they have repeatedly denied charges of political wrongdoing.

Greenstein claims numerous persons telephoned the CJI on Monday, the first day Canton reserve officers attended classes, with complaints about the officers' enrollment.

"I have no ambitions of becoming a police officer," stressed Greenstein, who said he would lose his certification within six months of the program's completion, if he is not sworn in as a certified police officer. "I'm too old to go through a police academy for 25-year-olds. It's miserable for someone who's almost 40. There's tremendous physical activity, and it's a tremendous strain on me."

"But I'm going to do it. I just hope I don't get a heart attack in the process."

Physical activity at the CJI includes push-ups and climbing up and down six flights of stairs, Greenstein said. The supervisor has promised to conduct township business after classes at 3:30 p.m. and work a 16-hour day, when necessary.

"I'm in the program at a great personal cost to me," he said, "but I was elected to do a job, and, damn it, I'm going to do it."

"If I had become supervisor to perpetuate myself in office, I would have done a thousand things differently. I could have been a dear, sweet man and got nothing done."

Greenstein maintains a contract for services with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department would cost township residents $600,000.

He adds, "I'm not going to let the people of this township be blackjacked into that."

A defeated candidate in the Democratic primary for the supervisor's post, Greenstein would probably be ousted from his position as police chief of the township's part-time police department, should Stein or Republican candidate Peter Bundarin win the November election.

But Greenstein, who says he would like to continue working with the police department, counts on winning reelection through a write-in campaign, now being launched by his supporters.

"I don't even think about what will happen if Stein or Bundarin get in," he says. "I'm going to win that write-in."

Daley, Stein say they won't interfere

Supervisor-Police Chief Robert Greenstein's comment that opponents of the police reserves will "try something" to discredit the reserves who are going to school for certification was greeted with derision by his named opponents.

Greenstein said this week the reason he was attending the Criminal Justice Institute (CJI) school was that he was worried his reserves would be victimized by "Stein, and Daley, their supporters, the Sheriff's union, and all the other people who've been screaming about the reserves."

Eugene Daley, who is a candidate for Canton trustee and a member of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, said "If CJI has accepted them, what can I do to stop them from being certified?"

Harold Stein said much the same thing: "My opinion of them is immaterial. We said they needed more training and I'm not against something that is for the betterment of the township. But I am against something that isn't budgeted for."

Both Stein and Bundarin say they have reservations about the qualifications of the reserves who are in the CJI class. "Are they physically and mentally suitable to send to school to become regularly employed police officers of Canton Township?" Stein asked rhetorically. "We have to have some kind of standards set up for the men we send to school, not just the word from the supervisor who nominates these men because he believes they are qualified."

"I am for qualified, professional police protection and fire protection," said Stein. "But, we've got to have standards."

Daley said he wonders why Canton has no height requirement for policemen.

"Usually, the minimum height requirement is 5 foot, 8 inches, but Canton has no minimum height requirement," Daley said. "But, again, if CJI accepted it, then what're you going to do?"

Daley said "it was a shame" that the 15 CJI openings were not open to everyone in the community, "instead of a hand-picked few."

Both Daley and Stein said they are concerned that Greenstein is attempting to set up a full-time Canton police department without putting the matter to a vote from the citizens.

"When these men graduate from CJI, they'll be regularly-employed part-time officers," Daley explained. "The next thing you know they'll be unionized and they won't be earning $2.30 an hour."

"Do people want a full time police department in Canton Township?" said Daley. "I keep hearing that people already turned down a police millage here. I never knew of any police millage question appearing on the ballot. There was a safety millage which we voted on, but that didn't specify how much would be spent for what and I think that's the reason it went down. But we never had a millage specifically for police protection."

Daley said that the 1975 millage indicated that people were satisfied with the present police protection.

"I don't see any crime wave," he said. Daley said that Greenstein's worry about someone threatening the reserves who are going to school is a "familiar tactic."

"Most of the dirty tricks he alleged in the primary backfired on him," Daley said. "When he charged that two people were posing as policemen, it turned out that they were legitimate policemen who were answering a complaint."

Election laws to be discussed

Two meetings to discuss election laws have been scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 13, by the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi.

The first will be held from 9 a.m. to noon in the Geneva Presbyterian Church on Sheldon Road in Canton Township and the second session will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Martha Lyon, 710 W. Main, Northville.

The League has been discussing the topic of election laws during the past year and will reach a consensus on Oct. 27. Some of the areas to be discussed Oct. 13 include open vs. closed primaries, methods of shortening ballots (such as more appointed positions).

Arlen warns of strike

SC classes may close Monday

If teacher contract negotiations are not settled at Schoolcraft College by Sunday night the school's 7,705 students may not have classes on Monday.

According to Dick Arlen, president of the Faculty Forum and chief negotiator, the faculty's strategy committee told the teachers, "Either you're going to have a contract ready to sign by Sunday night or tell the troops we'll have some job action on Monday with signs and picket lines — the whole bit."

Although the teachers' extended contract expired Wednesday they had agreed to work under the old contract through the end of this week.

But Mrs. Nancie Blatt, member of the college's board of directors and its treasurer said she thinks the faculty would be more comfortable working under a contract and is hopeful for a settlement by the week end.

"If it looks like there's movement in negotiations and they are close to a settlement, I would assume that the board would extend the old contract," she said. "But if it comes to a stalemate I would venture to guess that the board would not extend the contract."

Even if the old contract is extended, Arlen said that generally the faculty feels they've waited and stalled too long.

The way the contract is now, I would say that the faculty is not going to work until they get a contract."

A full faculty meeting at 4 p.m. Friday in the Little Theatre on campus will decide the teachers' plan of action for Monday.

"I don't want to take any job action," Arlen said, "but we're not going to duck the issues either."

Arlen said the contract negotiations have been willed to six issues, the two major ones being money and class size. He said the teachers want a three year contract with a 5 1/2 per cent wage increase in the first year and a six per cent increase in the second and third years. The board is offering a three per cent increase.

"The faculty will probably be glad to get a five per cent increase," Arlen said. "Five per cent is a pretty reasonable settlement. They (board of directors) say that money is tight but they're not broke and five per cent doesn't cover inflation."

The other major issue is class size. "In the last eight years our full time faculty has only increased from 157 to 163 members. The student population in the last eight years has gone from about 4,000 to almost 8,000 this year," he said.

Arlen added that most college level classes have 30 students, but the faculty is willing to take on 31, except in those classes where equipment limits space.

Arlen is also bothered by the board's desire to restrict the number of hours a faculty member can spend on campus in the third year of the contract.

"They want to turn the college into a punch in, punch out kind of thing and that's the kind of work they're going to get."

Other issues still not resolved in the contract according to Arlen are: student evaluation of full time instructors; faculty evaluation of administration; a place for part-time instructors to put their books and papers while on campus and the opportunity to buy additional life insurance at group rates.

"They're not going to stop a contract," he said about the last four proposals, "but they aren't unreasonable things to ask for."

BOTH THE COLLEGE and the Forum claim victory in court Oct. 1 before Wayne Circuit Judge Horace Gilmore.

Gilmore denied the union's request for an injunction to prevent the college from requiring a proof of illness certificate when a faculty member calls in sick.

The college board established that policy Sept. 22 after faculty members used sick and personal business days en masse to close down the campus.

Instead, Gilmore suggested that a faculty members could be required to sign a statement saying they were ill if the absence were three days or fewer.

After three days, the faculty member could be required to provide a written statement from a physician stating the general nature of the illness and the prognosis.

Beitner finds job in jewelry, music

There's an old saying that you can't judge a book by its cover and in this day and age it is difficult to judge what a man does for a hobby while watching him at work.

For instance, you'd never guess while watching Bill Beitner the jeweler and watchmaker, that his greatest leisure time joy is blowing on a trumpet. And he'll tell you "I have been doing it since I was four years old."

Beitner gets his greatest delight now when playing with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and his eyes light up when he tells you that he has been the soloist on several occasions.

He doesn't know what lured him to the trumpet, but he thinks it started when he was a babe with a desire to play with toys—and he got hold of a horn.

"I just can't remember," he says, "but it was while I was a youngster. How else could it have happened as I was only four years old?"

Now 47, he has been playing with the Plymouth Symphony for 30 years and is eagerly awaiting the coming season where again he will play a major role.

"I carried my love of the horn from childhood to high school," Beitner explains, "and studied under a number of teachers." The one to whom he gives the most credit is Jim Tamburini, who spent 25 years with the Detroit Symphony.

"When I joined the Plymouth group," he continued, "Paul Wagner was the director and now, under the baton of Wayne S. Dunlap, I still get a kick out of the concerts."

As he looks back over his musical career Beitner recalls that he has been a soloist on three occasions and his greatest thrill was playing the two-trumpet concerto for the first time in 1966.

As he rolled back the calendar, Bill confessed that he missed the first concert with the Plymouth Symphony in 1947.

"That was the year I started as a jeweler," he said, "and I was at a watchmakers convention in Kansas City at the time. And I was so interested in the watch making that I practiced only two or three times with the orchestra during my first year."

"When we went into business for ourselves (this brother Fred is a partner) I had more time and have enjoyed taking my place with the group ever since."

Bill recalls that he paid $15 for his first trumpet and brought it to Grinnell's in downtown Detroit. Since that time, he has owned 8 or 10, and, at the moment, he has three different instruments that carry the famous "Benge" trademark and are manufactured in California.

Asked if there were any other trumpet players in his family, he just shook his head and said, "No. I have a daughter, but she plays the piano. I only hope she enjoys that as much as I have the trumpet."

Boys still aspire to be firemen

By CRAIG PIECHURA

During a Fire Prevention Week demonstration at Eriksson Elementary School, a group of boys and girls were asked what they wanted to be when they grew up.

And it didn't take 7-year-old Jimmy Ryan long to decide.

"The first thing I want to be when I grow up is a fireman," said Jimmy.

And the second thing?

"The second thing I'd like to be is a policeman, of course," said the youngster.

But a group of girls looked puzzled and screwed up their faces when asked if they would like to be a firefighter when they grew up.

"A girl fireman?" said one of the second grade girls who was desperately trying to avoid being tickled by a boy behind her in the line.

Come to think of it, how many female firefighters are there? Every image we have of firefighters involves men.

There's the Norman Rockwell picture of a couple firemen playing checkers. Or you think of men sliding down a pole into their boots and men eating steamy stew made by the firehouse cook.

The Canton Fire Department has no female employees. One of the lieutenants commented that women have submitted applications recently, "but right now, that situation (hiring a woman) has not hit us yet."

But the kids at Eriksson were not worried about possible sexist discrimination in the fire fighting industry. They wanted to see the firetruck. They wanted to see the ladder go up, and they wanted to hear the siren.

Fire Chief Mel Paulun knew what the kids came to see and he did nothing to let them down. But first he had a public service announcement.

"Anybody out there play with matches?"

"NOOOO!" roared the captive audience.

"Anybody want to see us spray the water or hear the siren?"

"YEAH!" yelled the youngsters.

Firefighter Donald Adams demonstrated the air pack that keeps firemen breathing inside a smokey building.

"When I'm in a building it's a lot smokier than you see on TV," Adams said.

"It's usually so bad I can't see the hand in front of my face. I put on this mask and hook up this tank of air so I don't breathe smoke; I breathe air."

Without talking down to the children, Adams explained that he did not carry oxygen in the tank because oxygen was explosive and would "blow the fireman up."

Next came the hit of the program. Mike Rorabacher flipped the switch to extend the ladder causing a chorus of oohs to emanate from the crowd.

Firefighter Gary Sova was perched on the top rungs, and as the ladder extended he rose into the air.

When the ladder was fully raised (55 feet above the platform) Rorabacher turned on the hose, turning on the kids in the process.

Loud clapping greeted the firemen.

"Wow, look at the rainbow," said Brooke Cashewlow of Canton Township, who noted the spectrum produced by the water spray.

"Are you going to put my name in the newspaper?" asked Elena Legault.

THROUGH SUNDAY of this week the Canton Township Fire Department will be conducting an open house to acquaint young and old citizens with the fireman and facilities offered in Canton.

The chief wants people to jot down the new telephone number of the fire-rescue department. That number is 981-1111 for emergencies and 981-1113 for general business.

Phone stickers and Tot-Finder decals can be picked up at the fire station, which is located on the corner of Canton Center and Cherry Hill.

The chief also handed out a checklist for junior firefighters to fill out after inspecting their home.

By tomorrow, the Canton Fire Department should have visited every elementary school in Canton. The chief was asked why nearly every little boy says he'd like to be a fireman when he grows up.

"Yeah, a lot of kids still want to be firemen until they find out what's involved," said the chief.

The chief said he hopes the open house makes everyone in the community aware of the fact that Canton has three rescue vehicles and three men (one on each shift) trained in Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) skills.

According to the chief, there are still people in Canton who don't know that the operation is no longer merely a volunteer fire department.

Prime time TV outdraws $1.7 million budget talk

Television's "Bowling for Dollars" and "Name That Tune" apparently took precedence over Canton's proposed 1977 budget in the minds of most township residents Monday night, when only a handful of residents attended a public hearing on the proposed financial plan.

In sharp contrast to last year's budget hearing, when members of Total Citizens Power and other residents hurled strings of questions at township board members, this year's hearing was marked by nearly empty board chambers and slow-coming questions from residents who did attend.

The hearing, required by the township's charter, was scheduled to gather residents' feeling on the record $1.75 million budget, proposed for the fiscal year beginning Jan. 1.

But only nine residents attended Monday's hearing. Two were planning commission members. Bart Berg, treasurer candidate on the Republican ticket, and Joyce Willis, a write-in candidate for trustee on the Greenstein slate, were the only candidates for township offices who attended.

Board members voted to postpone closing of the public hearing, even after members of the audience no longer had questions or remarks. Board members failed to approve a motion to close the hearing, made about a half-hour after the meeting's start by Supervisor Robert Greenstein, by a 5-2 vote.

After hearing the brief comments and questions of residents, township trustees exchanged brief remarks and adjusted some figures on the proposed budgetary sheet, under study now for more than a month.

With revenues and expenditures balanced at $1,752,867, the proposed budget marks a five per cent increase over last year's budgetary total of $1,471,439.

Township officials expect a seven per cent increase in the revenues generated by taxes during the 1977 fiscal year—from the 1976 level of $920,000 to next year's expected level of more than $1 million.

An increase in population and a five per cent increase in the township's state equalized value account for the expected increase in tax revenues.

In addition, township officials are including an expected increase in revenues from building and plumbing permits in the proposed 1977 budget.

At the suggestion of Treasurer Carl Parsell, board members Monday added $60,000 to the revenue figures expected to be generated by building and heating permit fees. The revenue portion of the proposed budget now lists $130,000 under building permits and $60,000 under plumbing permits, contrasted to $70,000 and $35,000 in last year's budget.

Board members allocated the $60,000 added to the revenue portion of the proposed budget Monday night among salaries for the police reserves, capital improvement equipment, and a $4,000 donation to the Plymouth-Canton Junior Athletic Association.

THE $31,000 ADDED to salaries for the police reserves in the proposed budget brings the total of that itemized expenditure to $48,000.

The $25,000 added to capital outlay equipment brings that total to the $55,000 mark. Township officials added another $40,000 to land and improvements, bringing that total to $208,375.

The $40,000 added to land and improvements was transferred from firemen's salaries, an area where township officials last year budgeted an excess amount.

Township officials also added an itemized line in the proposed budget for an assistant director of the township's recreation department, but left the salary for the additional employee blank.

Deputy Treasurer Mike Gorman said township officials could transfer some funds from the capital outlay account to cover the assistant director's salary.

The proposed budget does not include $800,000 in expected federal revenue monies or the 1½-mill assessment for the second fire station. The latter revenues are not placed in the general fund.

Bradley's blight case postponed

George and Anne Bradley have been given a six-week reprieve by 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis in their blight violation case.

The judge left the courtroom Monday morning to personally inspect the Bradley's back property, telling them he would give them six months to comply with the Canton blight ordinance. This was the sixth time the matter had come up in 35th District Court.

Anne Bradley is candidate for treasurer on the Harold Stein slate and she alleges that she and other Stein supporters have been singled out for blight prosecution. Bruce Phillips, Canton's ordinance officer, said the claim that the blight ordinances are selectively enforced are unsubstantiated and "an easy out."

The Bradleys own B&K Lawn and Garden Service on 6438 N. Canton Center Road. Cited by the township for keeping "inoperable machinery" on his rear property, Bradley has said he needs to keep old machinery to repair equipment that is brought in.

Bradley still maintains that Canton's blight ordinance is illegal and too restrictive but adds that he will "move a few things around" and remove some of the items that have been labeled junk by Phillips.

"I already sold a lot of the metal and got rid of the junked cars," Bradley said. "I expect it all to be cleaned up in six weeks. I expect to move everything out that I can turn in for money. I'll keep farm machinery and anything that is saleable and useable."

League sets format for candidates night

The format has been set by the League of Women Voters for the candidates night to be held Oct. 19 in Plymouth City Commission chambers.

The Meet Your Candidates Night will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers at 201 S. Main, Plymouth. The event is sponsored by the LWV of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi, the LWV of Livonia, and the American Association of University Women of Northville, Plymouth.

FOR THE FIRST half hour, the congressional candidates from the 2d District will be introduced and will give a four-minute presentation.

From 8 to 8:45 p.m. Ed Pierce and Carl Pursell will be answering oral and written questions from the audience.

After a short break for coffee, the moderator at 9 p.m. will introduce candidates for the State House of Representatives from the 35th, 36th, 37th and 52d districts. She will then describe the geographic boundaries of each house district, give a brief job description, and introduce each candidate.

Four areas will be set up around the room so that the candidates from each house district may meet informally with constituents to answer questions and explain positions.

County commissioner candidates may circulate throughout the room, or join house candidates at their stations.

"It is our hope to acquaint voters with the candidates for the national, state and county legislative offices and to give candidates an opportunity to meet constituents from the area they hope to serve," explains Jane Watts, voter service chairman for the League.

"All certified—and only certified—candidates for the same office will be included, major and minor party candidates as well as independents.

"The purpose of candidate nights is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government and to act on selected governmental issues."

On Wednesday, Oct. 20, a candidates night also will be staged in Canton under the sponsorship of the League, AAUW and the Miller Community Action Council. Canton's state house, county commission and local candidates have been invited to this forum which begins at 7:30 p.m. in Miller Elementary School.

Canton seniors offered free or low-cost meals

Because of an increase in federal funding for the Wayne County Office on Aging, the Plymouth community will begin two new free or low-cost meal services for its older citizens—with the possibility of home delivery in some instances.

According to Terry Carroll, senior citizens program coordinator for the City of Plymouth, hot meals will be served Monday through Friday between the hours of noon and 2 p.m. at Tonquish Manor.

The tentatively scheduled starting date for the program is Oct. 11.

IN ADDITION to the meals served at the Manor, Carroll said that if volunteers come forward, food will also be taken to senior citizens who cannot leave their homes.

"I would encourage everyone who possibly can to come to the Manor and eat, because I think that the opportunity for meeting people is just as important as the food," he said. "But I know that some people just can't get out, and I hope we can get some volunteers who would be willing to put in an hour a day to take food to the home-bound seniors."

There is no income limitation on who can take advantage of the program. Any one 60 years-of-age or older who is a resident of Plymouth, Plymouth Township or Canton can come and be served. The meals are free, but a 50-cent donation is requested.

THE WAYNE County Office on Aging is responsible for contracting with a caterer to provide the food. The agency also provides a site manager and an assistant manager to coordinate the program with the city.

Plymouth has been on the waiting list for this program for over a year, according to Carroll, and has just received word that it is among the 16 new sites that the county has been authorized to add to its existing program.

"THE WHOLE PROJECT" was really on shaky ground for a while," Carroll said.

"We weren't sure that the money would be there, but now we just have to iron out some wrinkles."

One of the wrinkles is the four-week period of time it will take the county to process contracts for the site manager and assistant manager.

To avoid the delay that would be caused by this processing, City Manager Fred Yockey arranged for an intern from Eastern Michigan University to manage the site until county employees are available.

Another possible wrinkle is the procedure for serving the meals.

"We of course will try to be flexible and make adjustments as they are needed," Carroll stated. "But to start off we thought it best to establish some guidelines."

He said that senior citizens who wish to take advantage of the hot noon meal should call the Parks and Recreation Department (455-6620) and leave their name, which will then be put on a list.

Those who have called ahead and are on the list will be guaranteed a meal. Walk-ins will probably be served, depending on the amount of food available.

CARROLL SAID that the city anticipates serving 60 to 75 meals a day but has the capacity for more if it is necessary.

Once the nutrition program is under way, the city can also qualify for a health screening program to be set up in the same location.

"As far as I can tell, Tonquish Manor is an excellent place for the programs," said Carroll. "We can serve the food downstairs and use the upstairs for health facilities."

He added that he felt these programs would address a real need because according to the 1970 Census, the Plymouth community has the highest concentration of people 62 and over in Wayne County.

Individuals who would like to volunteer their time to help in taking meals to house-bound senior citizens can contact Carroll at 453-1234.

Hamper police

By PATRICK TOUHEY

Anyone who has lived in the Plymouth area longer than 24 hours has undoubtedly been delayed at a train track; and although delays are aggravating for everyone, they have serious implications for fire and police vehicles.

To discuss the problem of traffic blockage at railroad crossings, fire chiefs from the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton met Wednesday with two officials of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway.

Also in attendance were Trooper David Sass, community service officer of the Michigan State Police, and District Judge Dunbar Davis. Both Sass and Davis were there in an unofficial capacity.

The informal gathering was held at the behest of the fire chiefs, who wanted to express their concern that train-crossing blockage poses a continuing threat to providing their communities with fast, efficient emergency vehicle service.

CITY FIRE Chief George Scheonneman said that he thought the trains had become longer and beside that, they seemed to be moving slower than in past years. He indicated that it was because of the poor condition of the track bed.

Lawrence Judd, Plymouth trainmaster, responded by saying that as a long-time city resident, he was well aware of the difficulty caused by trains in general and specifically in the case of police and fire vehicles.

However, he said that repairs of existing tracks and track beds had been under way for some time, and that $500,000 had been allocated to continue a repair and maintenance program. But, he said, the age and condition of the tracks were not the only factors in slow train speed.

ONE OF THE possible solutions discussed at the meeting was the feasibility of installing electric warning boards in each fire station. These would be hooked up to train terminals and would show if a given train crossing was blocked.

The chiefs felt that this advance warning system would be of help to them in planning their responses to emergency calls.

Robert Stachurski, terminal trainmaster of Detroit, pointed out that two communities in the metropolitan area, Romulus and Wayne, had installed such systems several years ago and that there were pros and cons to such an undertaking.

"Don't forget," he said, "the warning lights will tell you if a track is in use, but they won't tell you the speed of the train or the direction it is moving. You could conceivably plan your route to avoid the train and instead run right into it."

Bradley

"We've been pretty agreeable to solutions. It's just that what might be junk to someone else might be useable to us."

Phillips said he felt vindicated by the six-month adjournment, especially in light of criticism that the blight ordinance was "selectively enforced."

"Bradley wanted the whole case dismissed saying that there was no blight," Phillips said. "We said we were willing to let the judge decide that. The decision from the judge is that he would not dismiss the case and told Bradley that he had some cleaning up to do."

Phillips said that he would go back and inspect the Bradleys' property before the six-week extension is over.

Township to apply for new hall funding

By PAT TOUHEY

City and township requirements, like clothes, go in and out of fashion. Since congress overrode President Ford's veto and appropriated funds under the Public Works Act of 1976, new municipal government buildings have become very popular.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees held a special meeting and public hearing Tuesday to discuss proposed plans for a new township hall and fire station complex.

In anticipation of applying for federal funds the board commissioned the architectural firm of Cummins and Barnard, Inc. of Ann Arbor to draw up plans and cost estimates.

Robert Carrigan, representing the firm, made a presentation to the board detailing site location and estimated expenditures.

The location for the complex is a small triangle of land bordered by Ann Arbor Trail, Powell Road and Beck Road, just south of Hilltop Golf Course.

IN HIS REMARKS to the board Carrigan said that the new buildings were contemporary in design. "We planned these structures with an eye on the residential nature of the area; I have no doubt that architecturally we will be good neighbors with both present and future development," he stated.

One of the unique characteristics of the township hall design, according to Carrigan, is that while the structure would look like a one-story building, it would actually have two above-ground-level floors and a basement.

"We felt that the issue of aesthetics was best served by keeping the building close to the ground," he said.

WHEN CARRIGAN finished explaining the fine points of the plans, he asked if there were questions or comments from the board members or the audience.

Trustee Russell Ash said that as far as he could tell from the drawings, the building looked too modernistic. "It seems to me that the buildings will look square and box-like," he commented. "They appear to be very cold and without character."

Trustee Richard Gornick addressed himself to Ash's comments by pointing out that a number of architectural styles had been considered, but that this one had been chosen because of cost and practicality.

"There are numerous types of design that could have been used," he said. "But most of them would have put the cost quite a bit higher; also there are advantages in regard to fuel usage and lighting in this design."

Carrigan also spoke to Ash's objections by saying that the structures had been designed with the goal of getting the maximum amount of use from the space available.

A TOWNSHIP resident in the audience asked if there were plans for a police station in the complex.

Norman Dietrich, township planning consultant, who worked with Carrigan in developing the plans, said that there was both building and parking space available in the event that the township got a police department.

Carrigan estimated that the complex would cost $1.5 million.

When the township completes the application and submits the site and building plans, it will be one of an estimated 5,000 small communities in the midwest area competing for funding.

Laurel Furniture expands

Some 50 years ago, a small building was a favorite watering spot for area recreation buffs. First a machine shop converted into a bowling alley and then a billiard hall, Laurel Furniture no longer offers such nightlife entertainment.

Instead, Julius Wurm of Canton and son Don of Plymouth Township, have expanded the once tiny recreation hall to in-

'Renewing Love' course begins Oct. 21

EmmaLou Matthews of Redford Township will lead "Renewing Love," a 10-week course for women, in the United Assembly, 42021 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, on Thursday evenings beginning Oct. 21.

The sessions will begin at 7 p.m. and each will last 2 1/2 hours. The price of course and workbook is $12.

Mrs. Matthews said the course is inter-denominational in approach and philosophy and has been attended by women of all faiths all over the country.

Its sessions include discussions on "What Men Enjoy in Women," "Clearing Offenses," "Effects of Criticism," "Art of Conversing," and "Lasting Values."

Other topics are "Giving of Self," "Door-mat to Dignity," "Submissive Independence," "Children Are a Blessing," "Becoming Optimistic," and "Enjoying Your Home."

"The structure of the course," said Mrs. Matthews, "contains topics designed to countermand the dull, listless, categorized existence too often accepted as the role of women in the home today."

"Women have seen the Scriptures come alive as never before, and thousands have become aware of their role in life."

To register, telephone Mrs. Matthews, 937-3634.

Burn week set by JCs

Burns Awareness will be observed by the Plymouth Jaycees here through Oct. 15.

The 1976 Burns Awareness program is under way now with canisters to solicit funds in stores throughout the Plymouth area. Funds collected are for the National Institute for Burn Medicine in Ann Arbor.

Besides placing canisters in stores, the Jaycees also will be distributing literature on what the institute does plus a pamphlet on first aid tips for burns.

On Friday, Jaycees will be at Main and Ann Arbor Trail and at Mill and Ann Arbor Trail from 5-8 p.m. On Saturday, literature will be passed out at Main and Penniman Avenue and at Main and Ann Arbor Road intersections from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The institute receives two-thirds of its funding from public solicitation, primarily from Jaycees and firefighters from throughout the state, and the remainder from federal grants.

clude a third showroom window and a spacious stockroom.

Laurel Furniture is located on 584 West Ann Arbor Trail, one block south of Kellogg Park.

After seven years of successful endeavors in the furniture market, the Wurms decided to expand their facility. "With just two showroom windows, people never realized how big are store really was," Julius said. "The old building measured 50 by 130 feet and was deceiving to the person walking in front of the store."

"With the expansion, the exterior gives one a better indication of the actual size of the store and gives us the storage room we needed so desperately."

CONSTRUCTION of the addition began in August and took only 30 days to complete. When it was finished two weeks ago, Laurel's was one-third larger. The Wurms then filled the new showroom window with furniture, improving the store's appearance tremendously.

And while Plymouth residents won't bring their bowling balls to Laurel's, they will be attracted by one thing—a sharp, snazzy exterior that by its size alone will dismiss any thoughts one might have of the old billiard hall next to the park.

Every now and then in this writing business, a fellow is called upon to turn off his regular path to write an obituary.

He is given the assignment on the theory that "he's a friend of yours" or "you worked with him" or "you knew him better than the rest of us."

It is never an easy assignment. Many times the words come hard and the writing is done with a great lump in the throat. But it is a job that has to be done and no one, friend or foe, can shirk it.

AND THERE NEVER is a time when The Stroller is called upon to pay the final tribute in type to anyone that he doesn't recall the time when he wrote an obituary under the strangest circumstances and it didn't get into the paper for 20 years.

This odd experience came years ago when The Stroller was a young sports writer on the Detroit Free Press, and one of his assignments was to cover the boxing matches in the small fight clubs around the city.

ON THIS PARTICULAR occasion he was seated at the ringside in the Mosse Hall on Elizabeth Street watching the activities when, suddenly, Johnny Weber, a likeable lightweight, was felled with a stiff punch and lay motionless on the ring floor.

He never even quivered when the referee counted the traditional "10" over him. Then came a rush of handlers into the ring, Johnny had stopped breathing and the word came that he was dead.

A ring fatality! One of the first ever in a Detroit ring! It was big news. The Stroller looked at his watch. There was little time left to make the final edition, and that edition could not be missed.

In the excitement at ringside The Stroller left the arena and raced for the office. He knew there would be some excitement over the late story. He made every step count.

At his typewriter, with the editors patiently waiting for his copy, The Stroller pounded out the tale of the drastic happening, telling how it happened—that Johnny was not a good boxer, but who was known as a "Club fighter" and one who could absorb punches. He told of the fallen fighter's dream of reaching the top in his profession and the riches that would come to enable him to raise a family in fine style. It was what is called a "heart throbber" in the newspaper profession.

THE MINUTES were ticking away to final edition time when the phone rang. Over the wire came the excited yell "He's breathing again." Johnny hadn't died on the ring floor after all.

Clever work on the part of his handlers saved his life and he went on to become a success in the painting business. He never lost his love of boxing and delighted in playing the role of a referee.

When the word came of his survival there was no choice but to cast the obituary aside and work as fast as possible to tell the story of the knockout.

Then one night, about 20 years later, word came that Johnny Weber, a former lightweight fighter from Detroit, had been killed in an automobile accident in a neighboring state.

It was a cruel ending to an usual career, but no crueler than it would have been had he not been revived on the ring floor.

And best of all, The Stroller reached in his file and brought out the obituary he had written 20 years before, and it reached type in the morning paper.

It was the oddest tale of an obituary The Stroller ever experienced in his many years of travelling the journalistic trail.

League sets format

The format has been set by the League of Women Voters for the candidates night to be held Oct. 19 in Plymouth City Commission chambers.

The Meet Your Candidates Night will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the commission chambers at 201 S. Main, Plymouth. The event is sponsored by the LWV of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi, the LWV of Livonia, and the American Association of University Women of Northville, Plymouth.

FOR THE FIRST half hour, the congressional candidates from the 2d District will be introduced and will give a four-minute presentation.

From 8 to 8:45 p.m. Ed Pierce and Carl Pursell will be answering oral and written questions from the audience.

After a short break for coffee, the moderator at 9 p.m. will introduce candidates for the State House of Representatives from the 35th, 36th, 37th and 52d districts. She will then describe the geographic boundaries of each house district, give a brief job description, and introduce each candidate.

Four areas will be set up around the room so that the candidates from each house district may meet informally with constituents to answer questions and explain positions.

County commissioner candidates may circulate throughout the room, or join house candidates at their stations.

"It is our hope to acquaint voters with the candidates for the national, state and county legislative offices and to give candidates an opportunity to meet constituents from the area they hope to serve," explains Jane Watts, voter service chairman for the League.

The Great Protector

Insulation is the greatest protection your home can have from the needless waste of energy and money. It keeps the cool in your refrigerator—the heat in your oven. Installed in your home, it provides a double benefit. It keeps the warm air in during the winter and the hot air out in summer. Insulation is the key to saving scarce energy and dollars on your heating and cooling bills.

How much insulation should you have? At least six inches of quality insulation in the ceiling of your home. Also, to increase your savings of energy and money, install storm doors and windows, weather-strip and caulk cracks.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

CAROL YURKES, one of the better known of the all-star women bowlers, made a strong bid for national scoring honors Monday night in the Bowlerettes League.

Captain of the Bonanza team, she linked games of 259, 235 and 231 for a 725 and thus became the first women to break the 700 barrier this season. In fact, her count bettered last year's high score of 715 posted by Mary Kilgore.

"It was sure beautiful bowling," Marge Kropacek, of Plymouth, who captained the opposing team, said of Carol's latest effort. "and that should stand up well for the season high and a place on the national honor roll."

Only a week ago, Jackie Archer, a Livonia housewife, rolled a perfect game that helped build up the prestige of women's bowling in the area.

ANOTHER WOMAN, Liz Augustine, gained a place on the honor roll when she turned in the best over-average count of the season. Carrying a 121 average she rolled a 227 game to go 106 spins over her average in the Mini League at Westland.

TO HELP the ladies take most of the spotlight for the week, Lorna Green stole the show in the Forest Park League at Country Lanes when she fired a 146 triplike.

JOHN ANDERSON had no trouble leading the parade in the Classic at Garden Lanes when he posted a 641 to beat Gordie Cantrell by 18 pins with Neil Beckman's 606 being good enough for third place.

In the ladies classic, Jan Dimmer showed the way with a 583 with Pat Lisowski in second place with 568 and Mary Mohacs and Virginia Mega tied for third at 566.

In the other leagues at Garden Lanes, Walter Wolfe edged out Dines Andrew by a single pin with 608 to pace the Vinco circuit. Dawson Hedges was top man among the senior citizens with 611, while Ron Hunter showed the way in the Wayne County loop with 634 and Bill Montgomery Sr. was top man in the Moose loop with 629.

Which Michigan to battle MSU?

By W.W. EDGAR

With more than 100,000 fans jamming every inch of the big stadium, the University of Michigan team begins the serious part of its 1976 campaign Saturday afternoon when it meets Michigan State in the great intra-state rivalry.

As time draws near for the showdown in conference play those who have watched the Wolverines in their first four games are wondering:

How good is Michigan?

Can the Maize and Blue go all the way?

Up to now, the Wolverines have been an in and out combination while running up fantastic scores. Against Navy, for instance, they looked unbeatable while piling up 70 points. Yet, last Saturday, they were sluggish and lacked the precision of the opening weeks.

Now the big question is which team will oppose Michigan State.

If it is the team that beat Wake Forest in a lackluster performance, Michigan is liable to be in for trouble.

Michigan State, under a new coach and carrying the burden of probation in the Big Ten, could cause some surprises. The Spartans have the players. It is just a question of fitting them into a productive machine.

Until now, Michigan has been playing for records while gaining the No. 1 spot in the polls. Jim Wood, the walk-on who is doing the finest kicking Michigan has seen in years, is establishing an almost unbelievable record on kick-offs. Only two so far have failed to go out of the end zone.

While he silently is building up a mark, Bob Lytle is moving up fast in the ground gaining race. Last Saturday he passed the legendary Tom Harmon and moved into fifth place in the all-time rushing record book.

So, it could be an interesting game—unless the State defense falters and the Wolverines explode like they did against Navy.

JA businesses opening on Monday

Brand new businesses will open up in the Plymouth area Monday, Oct. 11, when the Junior Achievement program gets underway.

Several hundred high school students will begin running their own small corporations on Monday at the Plymouth JA Center, 585 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

Organized and operated entirely by teenagers, JA companies are run like miniature corporations. JA members meet once a week, Monday through Thursday from 7-9 p.m.

Members sell stock, elect officers, select, manufacture and market their company's product and learn the principles of salesmanship, leadership and business.

Each company is made up of some 20 high school students and is sponsored by a major business concern. Under the guidance of professionals from business and industry, students get first-hand experience in business. Contests and social events are held throughout the year and local competition can lead to national recognition and scholarships.

Schools represented at the Plymouth JA Center include Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem, Northville High, Bentley, Churchill, Franklin, Stevenson and Ladywood of Livonia.

JA representatives have been visiting the high school during September, talking to students and signing them up for the program. Students interested in joining may call 838-4660 or come to the JA Center at 7 p.m. during opening week—Oct. 11.

Junior Achievement is a non-profit organization supported by more than 5,000 Michigan businesses. More than 150 businesses sponsor JA companies in the 24 centers throughout the six-county region of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe and Livingston.

Compromise on water bill goes to Senate

State Rep. John Bennett (D-Redford) chuckles as he tells the story.

"Bill Ryan (former speaker and a Democratic power in the legislature) came up to me and said, 'Maybe we can work out a compromise on your water bills'."

"I said, 'Compromise what? I've got the votes!'"

BENNETT DID indeed have the votes as the Michigan House of Representatives last week gave 80 per cent support to his companion bills to give Detroit's suburban water customers a louder voice in how the system is operated.

The measures go to the senate, where their outcome is unknown.

Pressure for the bills grew last year when the staff of Detroit's water and sewer department asked for a 39 per cent water rate increase. Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young fired Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara from the board for his persistent criticisms of departmental operations.

At present, the water board consists of seven members, all appointed and removable by the mayor. In practice, Young has continued to appoint three suburban members, although Detroit's new city charter doesn't require it.

HERE IS WHAT Bennett's bills would do:

• HB 5463, which passed 85-11, would require an annual audit by an outside auditor (Detroit's own auditing staff now performs this function). It requires the board to hold a public hearing at least 150 days before a proposed rate increase could take effect and a two-thirds vote of the nine-member board to approve a rate increase, giving the suburban members a veto.

• HB 5465, which passed 86-9, creates a new nine-member water board. The mayor of Detroit would have five appointments, and an "assembly" of customers would appoint four. The assembly would be made up of all cities, townships and villages that purchase Detroit water. Voting strength would be one vote per 10,000 population.

REPRESENTATIVES from the Observer & Eccentric area were solidly for the bills, although State Rep. W. V. Brotherton (R-Farmington) had an excused absence the day of the vote.

Bill Ryan (D-Detroit) also voted for both.

Opposing the bills were all black members of Detroit's delegation, one white Detroit and one white from Lansing. A dozen white Detroiters favored them.

As soon as the house had acted, Mayor McNamara began a letter campaign urging local officials in the 94 communities served by Detroit's water system to solicit support for the bills from their state senators.

HOW GOV. William Milliken will react is unknown, but his treasury department—which deals closely with local governments—is opposed to one important feature of the bill, the one requiring a two-thirds vote to approve a rate increase.

"The provision which requires that any rate increase be approved by two-thirds of the board could create grave difficulties for the department and the city (of Detroit). Under the Revenue Bond Act, the authority to set rates for services furnished by a city department for which bonds have been sold rests with the governing body of the city—in this case, the Common Council of Detroit."

Pursell-Pierce debate issues

By LEONARD POGER

Ed Pierce, Democratic candidate for congress, said that his campaign is based on economic justice with everyone getting decent medical care, housing, education, and nutrition.

His Republican opponent, Carl Pursell, said that he is opposed to increased federal intervention in the lives of individuals and wants more control returned to local governments.

Those were the major differences in the 2d Congressional District candidates who debate federal budgets, abortion legislation, aid to education, military spending and their past records before an estimated 40 persons at Schoolcraft Community College's Waterman Center.

The debate of 90 minutes was sponsored by the college's student senate.

PURSELL claimed that Pierce's proposed programs would be too expensive for taxpayers to afford.

But Pierce replied that he supports a pay-as-you-go basis and that his programs aren't as expensive as his opponent claims.

One example of the conflict between the candidates is a proposed national health insurance program which Pierce supports and Pursell opposes.

Pierce, an Ann Arbor family doctor, disputed the $118 billion cost of a national insurance plan, saying that the increase would be only $20-30 billion more than what is now being spent.

He added that he has never advocated a budget deficit to support the plan.

Pierce said he backs a pay-as-you-go plan that would provide adequate medical care and avoid persons going broke financially.

He pointed out that his plan would include cost controls.

In the past 11 years, Blue Shield has raised its rates 252 per cent for hospital fees while Blue Cross has boosted its medical charges 150 per cent.

Pursell said that the health insurance issue "is a good example of where we differ" and said that he opposes federal government interference in our lives.

The candidate, a state senator in his second term, said he prefers a health maintenance program with cost controls operated by private groups, not the government.

ALTHOUGH the two agreed on most other issues, they offered a contrast on which would be the most effective congressman.

Pursell said that he has a long record of accomplishments and a positive record in the state senate, where he opposed a $800,000 bond subsidy of Pontiac Stadium and supported more state support of public schools.

He also worked for bicycle paths in western Wayne County and new fishing docks in the same region.

He wrote the state's resource recovery act which encourages recycling of solid waste materials.

Pierce, a former Ann Arbor city councilman, opened the Summit Medical Center in that city to provide medical care for low-income persons.

On abortion, both oppose a U.S. Constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions.

They also agreed that the federal government should initiate zero-based budgeting to require agencies and departments to justify their existence on a regular basis.

One college official asked "Can Detroit be saved?" and what the candidates would do in congress to help Detroit.

"Detroit has to be saved," Pierce said. "We're pooling our misery in one area and many want to build a wall around it and let it rot."

But people must expand their horizons and "if the core of the apple rots, then the tissue is destroyed."

"The problem isn't a black or white one—it's both of ours."

Pursell said he supported constructive programs for Detroit as a senator and added that officials on all governmental levels must back rehabilitation programs for Detroit.

He stressed that monies should be used for improved housing, education, and transportation and not for Pontiac Stadium subsidies and laws allowing gambling in Detroit.

On defense spending, both candidates said they opposed the proposed B-1 bomber and said that priorities should be changed to improve social and human programs.

PIERCE SAID he would cut the defense budget by having our European allies and Japan share more of the military costs of their own defense while Pursell said that foreign aid expenditures should be cut to finance social programs.

Pursell said that the "fat" should be cut out of the Pentagon's budget.

During the discussion on priorities and responsible spending, Pursell criticized Pierce for advocating expensive programs.

Pierce answered that he favors budget surpluses when the economy is healthy and deficits when the economy is down.

The surpluses should be used to reduce budget deficits and "saved for a rainy day."

Stage band available to perform

The 18-member stage band at the Centennial Educational Park, under the direction of James Griffith, wants it known that the group is available to play for more than just the social events at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.

Since the stage band was formed from CEP's outstanding musicians several years ago, the band has performed for commercial events, wedding receptions and various dances. The musical fare includes selections ranging from Glenn Miller arrangements to Maynard Ferguson charts.

Instrumentation includes a five-member saxophone section, four trombones, five trumpets, and a rhythm section of four.

Anyone outside the realm of school functions wishing to arrange a performance by the stage band should contact Griffith at 453-3100, Ext. 268. Fees paid for the stage band's services are used primarily to expand the group's library of musical arrangements.

editorial opinion

Cop certification: yea Write-in attempt: nay

It's a lot like the beginning of those dreadful good news—bad news jokes.

The good news is Canton Township is finally sending some 14 of their reserves to the Criminal Justice Institute for certified police training so they'll be trained for the full spectrum of police procedure.

Police certification is something the Observer has pleaded for in the past.

The bad news of the week is that the Greenstein team has decided to attempt to run a sticker write-in campaign comprised of the four people on the slate who were defeated in the primary election.

We applaud the former and deplore the latter.

Supervisor-Police Chief Robert Greenstein is in the unique position of being a police chief who is going to school to become a cop. Greenstein continually claims the police reserve controversy is a paper tiger manufactured by his political foes to drive him out of office.

We disagree. In fact, one of the few encouraging things to come out of the police hassle is that the people of Canton want to take an active voice in shaping a fledgling police department. Enough people made enough noise that Greenstein finally enrolled many of the police reserves in a federally-funded police training course.

At the end of the seven week class, Canton will have adequately-trained policemen who can supervise the reserve officers of the department by riding in the same cars.

One of the unanswered questions is what Greenstein's future role in the police department will be. It is unlikely, that either Harold Stein or Peter Bundarin would keep Greenstein on as police chief. But this week Greenstein says Stein or Bundarin will not have to make that decision because he will be re-elected on his write-in attempt and he will remain as police chief. Recognizing the "possibility" of defeat in the race for supervisor, Greenstein says Stein or Bundarin would have to fire him to remove him from the post of police chief.

It strikes us that his remarks show a consistent disregard for cooperation from Greenstein. Canton's political front has been marked by crippling dissension and division. We can only see this atmosphere being inflamed by the announcement that four people who were defeated in the primary will muddy the political waters with a write-in.

The League of Women Voters has a policy that allows only certified candidates whose names appear on the ballot to speak at LWV Meet the Candidate programs. This policy will apply to the Oct. 20 debate at 7:30 p.m. in Miller Elementary School in Canton.

This newspaper has sent questionnaires to all the candidates—certified and write-in alike—to help the voters decide which candidates reflect their philosophy of local government. But the fact that we will recognize the existence of the write-in camp and report their positions on the issues does not mean that we endorsed the write-in attempt, despite the fact that we endorsed Greenstein in his primary bid.

Granted, the write-in process is an important guarantee and privilege of the American election system. Greenstein's argument that a 35 per cent voter turnout in the primary did not constitute a true representation of the voter's wishes smacks of our grapes. In the primary, we believe that the voters of Canton spoke very clearly and the message was that they were not pleased with the Greenstein administration.

Fighting for throwaways.

The lobby's propaganda

Tell your high school son or daughter to study the nasty campaign being waged by the beer and pop industries to defeat proposal A on the Nov. 2 ballot. Most students study propaganda measures in one literature course or another, and the group fighting the proposal to ban throwaway containers is using every classic propaganda trick in the book.

The group calls itself Committee Against Forced Deposits, which sounds like a civic group in the American tradition. In truth, the businesses who make money on the bottles and cans which end up as litter on our roadsides are putting up $750,000 for the effort.

One classic propaganda trick is to ignore the law. The litter lobby did this by printing up a million yellow tags to stick on beer and pop containers. The state, however, has forbidden political advertising where alcoholic beverages are sold.

THE NASTY yellow tags say you pay "a big tax" on a six-pack of beer. How much is big? That's what is known in propaganda circles as a glittering generality.

The second sentence carefully slides in the word "deposit." The trick is to get you to think of tax and deposit as somewhat the same thing.

They're not the same thing, of course. You pay a tax and never see the money again. When you pay a deposit, however, you get your money back. Because tax is a word that angers most folks, the litter lobby tries to confuse casual readers by equating deposit with tax. That's guilt by association.

Dirty, huh? But there's much more.

THE STICKER says, "Don't let them slap you . . ." That word "them" was selected very carefully by the advertising agency, Anthony M. Franco, Inc., to conjure ugly images in your mind of some kind of enemy. It's a demagogic technique to get you to hate some vague, sinister power trying to do evil to you.

In truth, "them" is led by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs aided by a long list stellar organizations—League of Women Voters, Federated Garden Clubs, environmental groups and the like.

And how do you like that verb "slap"? "Don't let them slap you." Rank, raw, reeking propaganda.

LOADED WORDS, glittering generalities, guilt by association. The list of propaganda tricks is imposing, for a sticker that measures only four by five inches.

There are other tricks—zany statistics that equate a gum wrapper with a shattered bottle, whoppers about how prices will soar, and on and on.

NOTICE!
YOU ALREADY PAY
A BIG TAX ON THIS 6-PACK.
DON'T LET THEM SLAP YOU
WITH A 60¢ DEPOSIT, TOO!
VOTE NO
ON "PROPOSAL A"

The litter lobby printed a million of these to plaster on pop and beer cartons.

Now, there are those who might suggest we're indulging in a little propaganda ourselves by labelling this group the litter lobby, and there's an element of truth to the observation.

But go into any shopping center parking lot, look along any roadside, examine any picnic site and ask yourself: "What should we call this group that's making money from selling throwaway bottles and cans? Are they really a Committee Against Forced Deposits? Or are they really a litter lobby?"

We say they're the litter lobby, we say they're indulging in propaganda, and we hope Michigan voters will pass proposal A on Nov. 2 and ban throwaways from our environment.

Rename the parties by philosophy

Did you select your political party after deep research into its political philosophy, or do you vote for a particular party's candidates because your father voted that way?

No intelligent person would admit the latter was true, yet statistics show that you are probably voting the same way that your father did.

Political philosophies are as much emotional as they are intellectual, just as religion is.

Because political parties design their platforms as broadly as possible to attract the most numbers of voters, any person can justify a home in either major party if he or she wants to.

Eddie Bowler and seven other members of Scout Troop 261 Monday picked up an incredible 1,043 cans and bottles along both sides of Eight Mile between Greenfield and Southfield roads, and Scoutmaster John Cecil said, "That was 85 per cent of the litter that was out there." The scouts' experience helps give the lie to the Committee Against Forced Deposits (beer and pop manufacturers), who say banning throwaway containers would decrease litter only 10-12 per cent. To help eliminate litter, support Proposal A, to ban throwaways, on the Nov. 2 ballot. (Staff photo by Gary Friedman)

Why our paper got back its old-fashioned name

What's in a name?

If you're a newspaper and your name has been Observer & Eccentric, that's not an easy question.

In the case of this paper, the Observer & Eccentric name came about as a result of a merger back in 1974 between Observer Newspapers and a company which published the Eccentric Newspapers.

After my colleague, Hank Hogan, and I got through working out the details of the merger agreement, we were faced with the very real problem of deciding what to call the resulting newspapers.

We talked with the people who at that time who were our resident marketing geniuses, and in the firmest possible terms they said, "We don't care what you call the papers, but you must call them by the same name regardless of where they are circulated. Otherwise, you'll lose any broad marketing advantage."

WELL, we thought about that for a while. The "Eccentric Observer" came quickly to mind, but we turned it down for the same reasons that we rejected the "Observant Eccentric."

Then we couldn't come to agreement on whether it ought to be the "Eccentric & Observer" or the "Observer & Eccentric."

Since it really was immaterial which version we picked (although there was a view that "Eccentric & Observer" would wind up as "Eccentric Observer" in the public mind, especially after a particularly surly editorial) we decided on a highly scientific method of advanced managerial problem-solving.

We flipped a coin.

The result was "Observer & Eccentric."

UNTIL NOW.

As you may have noticed, effective with this past Monday's edition, we have gone back to the simple, old fashioned, single-barreled name for our newspaper.

Why?

Simple. We are in business to publish local papers, relevant to the needs of people in each individual community we serve. We are not in business to produce newspapers as a broad, general

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

marketing package. We want to be simple, local, old-fashioned.

Hence, we decided to go back to the old name for our paper, which is what people in town have been calling it anyway ever since the merger.

We think it'll be easier for everybody. After all, who wants to use all 12 syllables in "Birmingham-Bloomfield Observer & Eccentric"?

WHILE I'm at it, you might be interested in knowing the origin of the "Eccentric" part of our newspapers, which (so far as I know) is a unique name in American journalism.

The Eccentric was first published in May, 1878, by two distinguished citizens of Birmingham, Almeron Whitehead and George H. Mitchell. Like Hank Hogan and myself after our merger, they could not decide what to call their new newspaper.

As it turned out, both men were members of a bachelor's club in Birmingham modeled after the famous club in Jules Verne's novel, 80 Days Around the World. That club was called "The Eccentrics Club," and they decided to name their newspaper after their club.

The paper was renamed "The Birmingham Eccentric" one year later and remained with that name until 1970, when U.S. Postal Service regulations forced a return to "The Eccentric."

As a name for a newspaper, "The Observer" is more common but, in Michigan at least, of older heritage. The first newspaper published in Michigan was put out by Father Gabriel Richard. The first edition came off the press in Detroit on Thursday, August 31, 1809. It was called "Michigan Essay: Or, The Impartial Observer."

So, whether it's Eccentric or Observer, our history is long and our task clear: to publish the best local newspapers we can. And we expect to be doing that for a long time to come.

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

IT IS NOT EASY to identify what a national Democrat or Republican really stands for, except in vague terms such as being for the common man or espousing "government that governs least, governs best" (a Republican slogan coined by Democrat Thomas Jefferson).

If you live in New England, it's easy to tell the players. If you are a white Anglo-Saxon Protestant, you are surely a Republican. If you are an Irish Catholic, regardless of your position in life you are probably a Democrat.

If you live in the south and are part of the establishment, you are most likely a Democrat. The common man in the south most likely votes Republican.

These two regions offer the most confusion because the conservatives are Democrats in the South and Republicans in New England.

MICHIGAN IS pretty well divided between what your role in business happens to be, since organized labor took over the Democratic Party as an experiment in politics. The Michigan Legislature, while controlled by the Democratic Party, is mostly non-partisan except in labor or election legislation.

The United States has been blessed with a two-party system. Blessed, not because of political philosophy, but because we are not plagued with many small splinter political groups that force coalitions in other nations. One party or the other controls the various houses of legislative bodies and the executive branch.

But isn't it time for a country such as ours to shuck off political party names that really don't mean anything any more and reform the political process with groups based on political philosophy instead of how one's father voted?

Shouldn't we have a Labor Party, or a Conservative Party and a Liberal Party, so that when a person runs for national office, the voters understand what he or she will be voting for when the lawmaker arrives in Washington.

This would be a great undertaking, and certainly those controlling the existing parties would fight it. But it certainly would make voting easier for everyone.

Why are teachers the fall guys?

Editor:

I'm tired—it has been another long (10 hour) day at school. I decided to read the Observer while I grabbed a quick sandwich before spending another couple of hours correcting papers and preparing lessons for tomorrow. However, I've just read your editorial, so the planning will have to wait as I absolutely need to ask someone—anyone—a question: Why are the teachers being blamed for the present state of negotiations with the school board?

The tone of your editorial indicated that you feel the Plymouth teachers are dragging their collective feet. You imply disgust that we have not thankfully grabbed the crumbs offered. You say the teachers will have to accept the blame if the upcoming millage renewal is defeated. Did anyone ever consider that the school board might possibly—just possibly—be the guilty party here? You did not mention that in the present "give and take," the teachers have been the only side to show any indication of compromise. As a teacher, I am tired of being caught in the middle.

I'm totally opposed to teacher's strikes. I am a professional educator, not a skilled laborer, and I believe that I and my fellow teachers deserve to be treated as professionals. This school board seems to have more consideration for the custodial help than for the people they have hired to teach skills.

I'm beginning my third year of teaching in Plymouth. I have to assume I was hired because the school board liked my credentials and my previous teaching record. They must have felt I could offer something to the children of Plymouth. I have tried not to cause anyone to regret the decision to hire me. I work hard. I sincerely care about the children and about meeting their individual needs.

I make provisions for the hyperkinetic children in my class. I try to plan enriching activities for the gifted. I make special games for the perceptually handicapped. I meet with parents and counsel them as would a social worker. I work on committees to improve our curriculum. I take graduate classes to improve my teaching. I do all this very willingly—without complaint, even gladly.

All I ask is that I get the respect I deserve. I don't appreciate being forced into acting like the guy on the assembly line at Ford. Let him walk the picket line—I want to stay in the classroom.

Am I asking too much? Do I really have to beg for a living wage? Am I supposed to eat and pay rent on my professionalism? Do I have to go against all that I believe in so that I can make at least as much as the custodians in this system? Yes, I am very tired tonight, but I'm also angered and sickened by your statements. I'd like you to compare the tone of your editorial to the article about the picketers for the UAW. Just where do your priorities lie? You will gladly pay the extra $400-$600 for a new Ford this year, but the teachers of your children don't deserve even that much.

My only hope is that your opinion does not represent the majority of Plymouth-thites. Doesn't anybody care about me and my fellow teachers? Can everyone really expect so much of me, but be so unwilling to support my efforts?

If you or your readers agree that the present negotiations between the school board and the teachers needs a settlement, then contact the members of the school board. Show that you care that your children get a truly quality education in Plymouth. Call the PEA Hotline between 3 and 7 p.m. (722-8190); ask your questions and at least listen to the teacher's side of this conflict.

Please don't assume the teachers are money-grabbers, and the school board is protecting your pocketbook—get straight answers before deciding who is "at fault."

Politicians must know the people they appoint

Editor:

"You're damned if you do and damned if you don't." But as usual, the media only expresses the do side—that being to criticize the Canton administration for appointing acquaintances to the various township commissions.

Please remember there is a distinct difference between friends and acquaintances. Now let's take a look at the don't side.

A candidate is elected on the promises made (with the exception of the present election). Let's say the newly-elected official then has to make appointments to various commissions (zoning board of appeals, planning commissions, etc.)—such commissions that could destroy the township by one action.

TO REFRAIN from getting the media flack, the official recommends the appointment of a person unbeknownst to the official, but who seemingly has fantastic credentials.

Then that appointee approves changes in the township that are against what the official (who recommended him) stands for and promised the people (who elected him on the promises made). Though hands are tied and the official tries to explain to the public that it was the commission's decision and not his—the public's response—"well, you appointed the person."

Also, bear in mind that the board as a whole appoints a single board member can only recommend the appointee. So, dear friends, at least with the Greenstein administration, if the zoning board of appeals or planning commission fail to meet your standards, then Supervisor Greenstein stands ready to take the blame, because he has recommended the majority of the appointments.

IT IS HARD to find a government representative who accepts the full responsibility of how that community is being run, but Greenstein takes "the buck stops here" stand seriously.

It's about time we had a representative who didn't pass the buck. I am going to write in the Greenstein team to keep that kind of representation. You can, too.

Gas and donuts

A new concept in the line of service stations hit the Plymouth area with the Sept. 23 opening of Dawn Donuts on 39600 Ann Arbor Rd. A Standard Oil gas station, the building doubles as a donut shop. Originated by Donut Service, Inc., a Flint-based firm, the addition of a donut shop reportedly doubles the sale of gasoline. With four other stations open around the state, the Ann Arbor Road shop is the first new building constructed by the firm. The others remodeled closed down service stations. Manager Marc Baumgardt says the potential of the gas-donut shop in the Plymouth area is great. He expects to equal the amount of success encountered by previous stations. ## Pursell cites personal income

State Sen. Carl Pursell, Republican running for the 2d District congressional seat in the Nov. 2 election, has publicly dis-

8th graders can enter

Eighth graders can win up to $500 in an essay contest on "America and Me." The contest is open to all eighth graders in Michigan and runs from Oct. 11 to Nov. 12. The three top essays from each school will be awarded honor certificates and each participating school will receive a plaque engraved with the name of the first place essayist.

Information on the contest is available from its sponsor, Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

closed his and his wife's financial records for the past five years.

Pursell, in the senate for six years, and his wife, a Livonia school teacher, earned $37,054 last year, of which all but $800 was from their salaries.

Pursell also disclosed that he and his wife have paid about 21 per cent of their income for federal, state, and local taxes.

He also supplied copies of his Internal Revenue Service returns for the past five years.

Pursell said that most of his personal worth is tied up in his Plymouth home and six acres of land, estimated at about $120,000.

There is an outstanding mortgage of $50,000 on the house and property, he said.

PURSELL SAID he supplied his financial summary to Common Cause, a public interest group, and assumed that it would make the information available to the public because it had his permission to release the financial record.

But the senator said there was an apparent misunderstanding because Common Cause didn't release the information.

"My finances have always been a matter of public record and I have no hesitancy in having them studied by the media or any interested party," Pursell said. "I have also included my wife's salary in this report. While her salary as a school teacher is an open record, she has developed that career herself and I can't see any logical connection between that and my campaign for congress."

"However, to prevent any illogical suggestion that I'm not willing to make a full disclosure, Peggy has agreed to allow her financial data to be included in my report."

Percy plans campaign stop for Pursell

State Sen. Carl Pursell, Republican candidate for congress, will receive a campaign boost from U.S. Sen. Charles Percy (R-Illinois) this afternoon.

Pursell announced that Percy will land at Detroit Metro Airport about 4:15 p.m. The two will then drive to the Detroit Press club for a 3:30 p.m. press conference. After the conference, Percy will attend a reception for Pursell supporters.

Pursell said he met with Percy in his Washington office recently and discussed the candidate's resource recovery act, which he sponsored in the Michigan legislature.

Pursell said during the meeting, Percy offered to support the candidate and campaign for him in the 2d District.

Craftsman follows in Stradivari's footsteps

By DARLENE STINSON

Crouched over a wooden workbench beneath an overhead light, Plymouth resident Mark Norfleet carefully applies varnish to a violin.

Selecting a tool from a box of gouges, he carefully forms the graceful curves of violin's scrolls or carefully curves the thin ribs of a would-be instrument around a molding form.

At 20, Mark is beginning a career seldom considered nowadays as a lifelong trade—a career in the tradition of the old Italian violinmaker.

"I like making things like this," said the 1974 graduate of Plymouth Salem High, as he proudly stroked the smooth varnish of one of his creations. "You sometimes end up working 12 to 14 hours a day, but as long as you enjoy it, that's fine."

A former student at the International School of Violinmaking in Cremona, Italy, the city where Antonio Stradivari and other masters perfected the violinmaking art, Norfleet recently returned to his hometown to establish a basement workshop in his parents' home on William.

There, Norfleet hopes to establish a reputation as a violinmaker and, hopefully, launch a career creating and repairing the stringed instrument.

"I CAN COME down here and do exactly what I want—make something that sounds and looks like a good violin," explained Norfleet, a stringed bass player with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. "I'm just going to continue making instruments, build up a reputation and try to make a living."

Although all of Norfleet's income so far has come from repair work on members of the stringed instrument family, he has created four violins and a viola de gamba—the Renaissance predecessor of the modern instrument.

Two of the instruments, created under the auspices of the Italian school, became property of the institution upon completion. A third violin, Norfleet recalled, crashed to the school's courtyard from a clothesline, where it was hung to dry.

"It really didn't bother me that much," confessed Norfleet, writing off the broken violin as an accident. "It wasn't all that bad, but it wasn't fantastic either."

He has higher ambitions for the violin and viola de gamba created in his basement workshop which he hopes will some day be purchased.

"This, I just felt like making," said Norfleet, as he plucked the thick-ribbed viola de gamba from a clothesline in his basement. "It's played like a cello, and it really intrigued me. There's still some demand for it for Renaissance music."

HE BEGINS the three-week task of creating a violin by bending the thin ribs or sides of the would-be instrument with heat and gluing them to removable blocks, attached to a molded form of the instrument.

The neck and scroll of the instrument are hand-carved from a large block of wood, while the front and back are gouged and shaped from thick sheets of willow, maple or spruce. The instrument is carefully glued together, and the purfling (a delicate, wooden outline along the edges of the instrument) is inlaid.

The instrument is varnished, and the finishing hardware—strings, chinrest, pegs and bridge—are attached.

Then comes the exciting part—testing the instrument's sound.

"I play them a little after they're finished," said Norfleet, who admits his ability on the violin is limited to such tunes as "Mary Had a Little Lamb." "I try to see what they sound like until I can get a friend who plays."

"The arching and thickness of the wood determines sound and quality of tone. So does the varnish, grain and type of wood that's used."

NORFLEET ADMITTED violinmaking is more difficult than it sounds.

"Some people find it incredibly difficult. Some people at the school couldn't visualize a scroll coming out of that block of wood."

Norfleet said many of the new violins sold today are mass produced on an assembly line.

"It started out with one person making all the scrolls and another making all the ribs. In Europe and Japan, many of the instruments are made on machines."

"It's picking up now, though," added Norfleet, referring to the art of hand-crafting violins. "Most of the makers are young, just starting out or quite a bit older. There's really no one in between."

The son of Ronald and Carol Norfleet, he first became interested in violin making and repair, when he attended the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp near Muskegon as a string bass player six years ago.

His teacher at the camp, Norfleet recalled, repaired instruments and captured his interest. That interest culminated in a 1½-year apprenticeship at a violin repair shop in Ann Arbor, where he first became interested in violinmaking.

"I JUST LIKED being able to repair them," he said. "Most people can't do much with their instruments besides putting on a string."

Norfleet's interest in violinmaking snowballed, taking him to Italy and, finally, to his own violin workshop in a basement on William.

Someday, Norfleet hopes to create cellos and his own instrument, the string bass. Estimating the price of wood for a bass at $800 to $900, he admitted that day may be a long way off.

In the meantime, repairing instruments and creating the smaller members of the stringed instrument family should adequately fill his time.

"I just like doing making instruments," Norfleet summed up.

Camp Fire Girls repay community for PCF aid

Judy Clement, Nancy Houser and Margaret Hanna talked themselves out of their jobs.

They informed their Camp Fire Girls last spring that, from now on, having passed from Adventure to Discovery Level, they would plan their own meetings and activities.

"We told them we leaders would be available to advise, chauffeur or chaperone," said Mrs. Clement. "But the responsibility for conducting meetings passes to them. This is the way Camp Fire programs are designed throughout the country."

But the leaders were not prepared for the girls' first order of business: They pooled their money for corsages and treated the three to a pizza dinner.

Cheryl Hauser, 12, explained, "We just wanted to let them know how great we think they are."

THE SENTIMENT IS MUTUAL. Mrs. Clement organized her beginning level Bluebird group seven years ago when her daughter Teri was in first grade. Mrs. Houser and Mrs. Hanna have been assistants for several years.

Camp Fire Girls share many of the same ideals and objectives as the Girl Scouts, but tend to have smaller groups (or troops) of about eight to 12 members.

The same leaders usually stay with the troop from year to year.

While scouts earn badges, Camp Fire Girls earn beads—different colors for creative arts, science, business skills, home-making, citizenship, camping and service to others.

The brightly colored patches on their vests signify council-wide activities in which they have been involved.

THE PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY Fund supports area Camp Fire Girls and supplements dollars the girls earn yearly by selling candy for the Detroit area Council. Contributions to the PFC can be mailed to Box 356, Plymouth. Local residents are reminded to designate their gift be returned to Plymouth if they give through an employer outside the city.

The PFC's investment to the Camp Fire Girls is returned many times over in their services to the community.

Mrs. Clement's group, for example, has assembled multi-media kits for the Red Cross, assisted at the Elk's Christmas bazaar, made tray favors for the residents of area nursing homes, and conducted about 22 second grade Bluebirds on their first camping trip.

The group led by Carilyn Fernandez "adopted" a grandmother, Miss Nancy Arbuckle, who resides in the Allen Dee Nursing Home in Wayne.

They have made gifts for her, held birthday parties in her honor, and brought her to meetings and other special events.

"EACH OF THE GIRLS writes to her every day," said Mrs. Fernandez. "They feel very close to her. They wanted to take her on a camping trip but she is in her 90s and the doctor would not permit it."

Camping remains a favorite part of the Camp Fire program. The Detroit Area Council, of which Plymouth is a member, owns Camp Withana with facilities ranging from fully equipped cabins to primitive shelters.

"I took four Bluebirds camping the first year," said Mrs. Clement. "We stayed in the cabins with stoves and refrigerators, lights, heat and flushing toilets."

"Then each year, we'd rough it a little more. We'd stay in the unheated cabins; then we'd eliminate kitchen facilities and cook all our meals outdoors. Then we moved up the trail where there is only a bare shelter and a biffy."

A biffy?

"Every Camp Fire Girl knows what it is. It's a Bathroom In The Forest For You!"

This year the discovery group will begin tent camping. They plan a series of weekend trips each year, in all seasons. One year they took advantage of an unexpected snowfall by tobogganing all afternoon on plastic garbage bags.

Mary Hanna, 12, (from left) Teri Clement, 12, and Cheryl Houser, 12, are Camp Fire Girls. Their colorful vests, with beads and patches, are evidence of their group activities and service projects.

No bedtime blues

Jerry (left) and Tom White of Greenbriar in Lake Pointe Village need no urging to go to bed since their dad, Thomas White, built the fire engine bunks. The beds are painted with non-leaded paint and put together with bolts and screws. It all started when the Thomases sent away $1 for plans in a magazine. After 80 hours of work, the 30-by 75-inch beds were completed, new mattresses were installed and the fire engine was ready for sleep and play. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

New Apple Run Club is off and running

Apple Run, Michigan Division Woman's National Farm and Garden Association was formed in Canton Township last spring. Although it is one of newest garden clubs in the area the members have displayed great enthusiasm.

After meeting during the summer months, they have settled down to their first fall schedule, and it is a busy one. Guest speaker at the September meeting was Tim Joy of Christensen's Plant Center. As well as discussing the damages caused by the summer's drought, he answered questions about gardening problems concerning ornamental trees, shrubs, bushes, lawns and houseplants.

He told the members that when they had a horticultural problem, simply to break off a diseased leaf or branch and bring it into his shop. He would endeavor to diagnose the trouble and prescribe a cure.

FIVE CHARTER members of the club attended the 23rd annual international tea sponsored by the Michigan Division. The tea and strolling fashion show were in the Coyle mansion which now is part of the Dominican Sisters estate.

Joyce Ankofski, Sharon Palise, Sandy Reid, Cheryl Wachlarz and Margo Whiting went to Oxford for the event and met Mrs. Robert Hanson, new national president of the Farm and Garden Association.

"The Dominican sisters took over the mansion in 1948," said Mrs. Palise, "and it is beautiful."

She described the matching wallpaper and carpeting in a bathroom and draperies that cost $100 a yard years ago.

"Members of the 4-H Club acted as guides," she said. Proceeds from the tea were given to the 4-H organization.

Emma Gibeau feted

No one enjoyed Emma Gibeau's 100th birthday celebration more than the honored guest.

Although she has had to use a cane for the past two years, she is "very alert and in marvelous health," according to her granddaughter-in-law, Mrs. Ralph Gibeau Jr. of Plymouth.

The dinner party in Dearborn Inn was arranged by Emma Gibeau's three children—Charles Gibeau of Belleville, Etta Symonds of Dearborn, and Ralph Gibeau Sr. of Plymouth. More than 55 relatives and friends attended. She has five grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Emma Schultz was born Sept. 25, 1876—the year of the country's centennial—in Wyandotte. She maintained her own home until two years ago when she went to live with her daughter in Dearborn.

Her main interest in life is her family.

But, she enjoys television, especially westerns. She was unhappy when several of her favorites were canceled. Now she watches the re-runs and the old western movies.

m.m.memos

I had a chance last week to pursue a romance with one of the great loves of my life.

And I'm glad to know first-hand that this object of my affections—Lake Superior—is as lovely, majestic and, well, superior, when viewed from the west, north and east as she is from my favorite beaches on her south shore.

I'm a native and true daughter of the land of the Great Lakes. My parents learned as children to love their vistas, and they took me and my brothers for strolls on Lake Erie and Lake Huron and visits to Lake Michigan.

But I was a young adult before I viewed Superior, and I won't soon forget the sensation that sight brought, sharp as the tingle of cold waters on a tentative toe.

I HAD TO WAIT a few more years to spend much time by my lake, the long drive seemed prohibitive with young children. But in the last few years our family has found it a mecca.

And each time I get back to its beaches to swim—yes, we do, regularly—watch sunsets, watch the waves crash or hunt for agates, I get more strongly the feeling that this is my place.

This summer the time there again seemed too short, so when our daughter's move to points west indicated an auto trip in that direction, we were delighted to use the opportunity to get back to Superior.

This time we went all the way around, viewing the shining waters from the Skyline Parkway in Duluth, admiring that city's residential section along the lake and enjoying view after view along the beaches of Minnesota and Ontario.

WE FOUND a couple of new waterfalls, despite the fact that dry weather had closed Minnesota's state parks, picnicked by beaches and at high lookout spots and glimpsed the lake between green pines, red maples and yellow birches.

The waters seemed more beautiful with each appearance, even beyond the taconite plants at the eastern end of the lake. We wound up the visit by enjoying a sunset over the lake from a high spot near Wawa and watching a freighter start through the locks of the St. Mary River at Sault Ste. Marie.

I STILL WANT to get better acquainted with the Keweenaw Peninsula, and I'd love to manage a visit to Isle Royale and sometime, some way, I'd like to be there in the winter when a storm is brewing and the lake is about to freeze over.

By

In the meantime, I'll cherish a memory of grand tour, from the first familiar sight of Munising's harbor to the last view of the lake beyond the locks. Lake Superior is ever superior.

Judge helps begin HELP

Judge James H. Lincoln will help St. Edith Catholic parish of Livonia kick off its new HELP—Help Everyone Love People—program when he speaks there at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 8.

The executive judge of Wayne County Juvenile Court will launch a lecture series with a talk on "Parents: Their Responsibility to Children and to the Community." St. Edith is located at Nuburgh and Five Mile.

Lincoln's lecture, and the entire HELP series, is designed to give parish people and others in this community a better idea of what can be done about some of today's pressing problems.

Vivian Blases, chairman of the St. Edith Christian Service Commission, said the program was coordinated from ideas from several of the church's organizations, committees and commissions.

"Many people were expressing a sense of helplessness in the face of various social and community problems," she explained. "We felt we should work together to try to respond to that feeling. So we came up with HELP."

Other topics coming later in the series are "The Role of Women in the Church," with Sister Rachelle Harper, RSM; "Changing Concepts of Work: The Person in Industry Today," with James Francek; "Individual Conscience and Social Morality," with the Rev. Anthony Kosnik; and "Potential Widowhood: Preparing Now," with Sister Margaret Basso, IHM.

In addition, the Rev. John Saliba will discuss the question "Are Cults Dangerous or Just a Fad?" There will be a debate on gun control.

The Rev. John VanAntwerp, St. Edith pastor, said the program is an attempt to meet the needs of people in the parish.

"There is something for everyone in the HELP series," he added.

The parish also is planning other programs, including a fall adult education committee course on world religions, to be taught by the Rev. Ron Modras of St. John Provincial Seminary in Plymouth, a marriage enrichment program that will be offered by the family life committee beginning Oct. 29, and a parent enrichment program planned in April.

"When we had the marriage enrichment program last spring we had to turn people down, so we decided to repeat it," said Joann Baker, head of the family life committee. "And many of the couples who came to the first program asked us to do something on parenting, so we are working on that."

Sister Barbara Celewsky, pastoral minister for education, called the coordinated program more valuable than "each one trying to do his own thing."

"To have a real impact these days you have to work together," she said. "That in itself is a sign to others."

JUDGE JAMES LINCOLN

Dr. Jenkins new pastor

Dr. Stan Jenkins is the new pastor of Central Baptist Temple, a Plymouth church established two years ago by the Rev. Robert Billings.

He arrived late in the summer to take over leadership of the congregation and the church located at 670 Church Street.

Dr. Jenkins was an evangelist for eight years before accepting, in 1962, a pastorate in Fowlerville, Mich. During his 14 years there, the church grew rapidly and now averages 650 attendance.

He also founded the Fowlerville Baptist Bible Institute and the Fowlerville Baptist School, and he instituted one of the largest ministries to the retarded and handicapped in Michigan.

Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins will make their home at 680 Church, Plymouth.

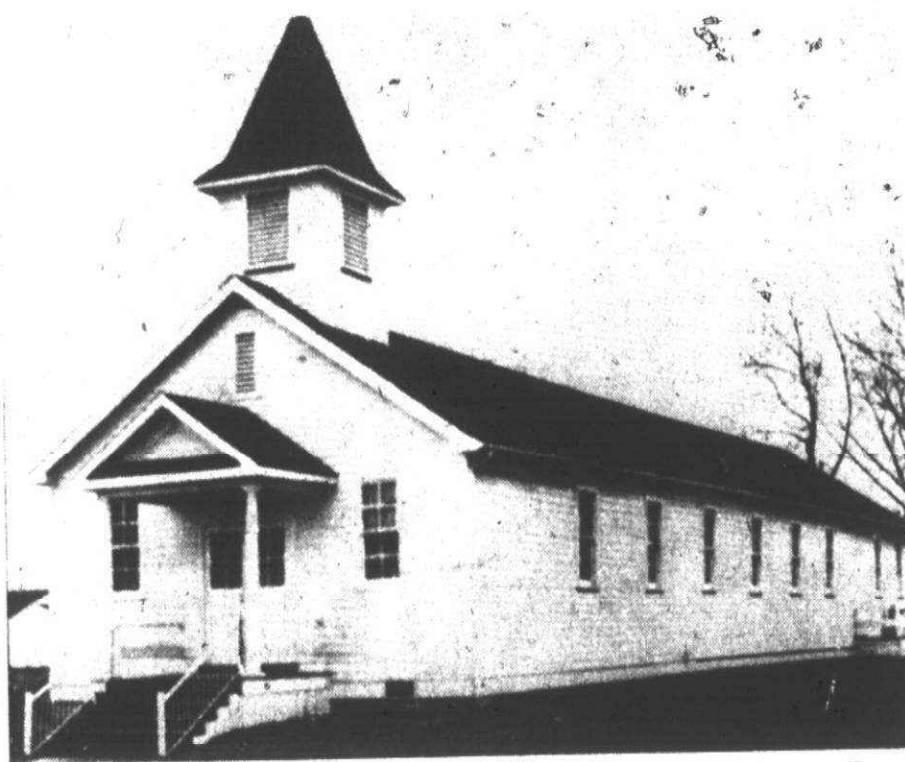

DR. STAN JENKINS

St. Paul marks 25th

St. Paul Presbyterian Church, 24475 Five Mile, Livonia, will mark 25 years of growth Sunday, Oct. 10, with a special service at 10 a.m. and a potluck dinner following. The Rev. John Davies, the pastor who led the church in its beginning years, will return for the festivities, along with three other former staff members, the Rev. Richard Milford, the Rev. Thomas Estes and the Rev. Arnold Dalzell.

A program following the potluck will review the history of the church, from its beginnings as a mission congregation of Calvin Presbyterian of Detroit to the present time when, a congregation of 1,800 is led by Dr. William Whittleage, the Rev. Charles Webster and the Rev. Robert Cox. Returning clergy and their families will be honored by a special reception at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 9.

Tired Legs? you gotta be putting us on—Jobst-Stridette®

Do you get so tired standing all day that you can't wait to get home? Maybe you don't understand it 'cause you're really healthy and strong.

Well, gravity is strong, too. It's underfoot every day to pull down on your circulatory system. Constant pressure on the veins in your legs all day long makes you tired. Sooner or later you gotta put your feet up away from the pressure of gravity.

Now you can wear counterpressure. You can stand up and combat gravity with Jobst-Stridette support pantyhose. These high-fashion elastic pantyhose by Jobst have just the right amount of support. And they're elegantly beautiful, too. Bathe your tired legs in a light, graceful sheen and support them in style. We have several popular shades including Professional White. Sold only through selected professional pharmacies and surgical supply dealers.

Style show to aid dental clinic

Barton Hills Country Club, Ann Arbor, will be the setting for the annual style show to benefit Washtenaw Children's Dental Clinic. Sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Washtenaw District Dental Society, the show will be at 1 p.m. Oct. 14.

More than 16 Plymouth area dentists are members of the Washtenaw District group.

Jacobson's will provide the fashions and Lucy Dobson of Radio Station WPAG will do the commentary. King's Keyboard House of Ann Arbor will provide the organ for the musical background.

Dessert will be served prior to the show and there will be prizes.

Models will be members of the auxiliary and their children.

Proceeds from the show are the only means of support for the Children's Dental Clinic which was founded in 1952 and is presently located in Mack School, Ann Arbor. Members of the dental society volunteer their time to treat needy elementary school children who are referred by their school nurses.

Members of the Washtenaw Dental Hygienists Association also do volunteer work at the clinic. e woman

The women's auxiliary provides funds for one dental assistant, equipment and supplies. Children treated at the clinic pay nominal fees to help defray the cost of supplies.

Tickets for the fashion show are $3.50. They are tax deductible and may be obtained from Mrs. Donald Davies, 453-7414, auxiliary members, or at the door.

Merit Cigarette Sets New Taste Standard.

'Enriched Flavor'™ breakthrough brings unprecedented taste to low tar smoking.

Today there's a way to get real taste from a cigarette without high tar.

That's the report on a new taste discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into tobacco without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco is remarkable new MERIT.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

In tests involving thousands of smokers of filter cigarettes, the majority reported 9 mg. "tar," 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

MERIT delivered more taste than five current leading low tar cigarettes having all the way up to 60% more tar.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, MERIT MENTHOL was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette. MERIT.

Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Our Indian Summers are filled with good times from the good old days.

Now's the time to stroll to stately homes and cozy shops at Greenfield Village, where America's past is thick as autumn leaves.

It's quiet, unrushed, now. And although summer's over, our antique train still puffs its way to Suwanee Park, where the magic of the penny arcade and old-time carousel awaits kids of all ages.

On weekends, our sternwheeler gracefully chugs around Suwanee Lagoon.

Friendly craftsmen are still at work down at the Crafts Center. Should the weather turn, Henry Ford Museum is just next door, where you'll enjoy endless galleries of memorabilia—plus the special Bicentennial exhibition, "The Struggle and The Glory."

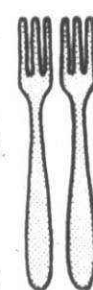

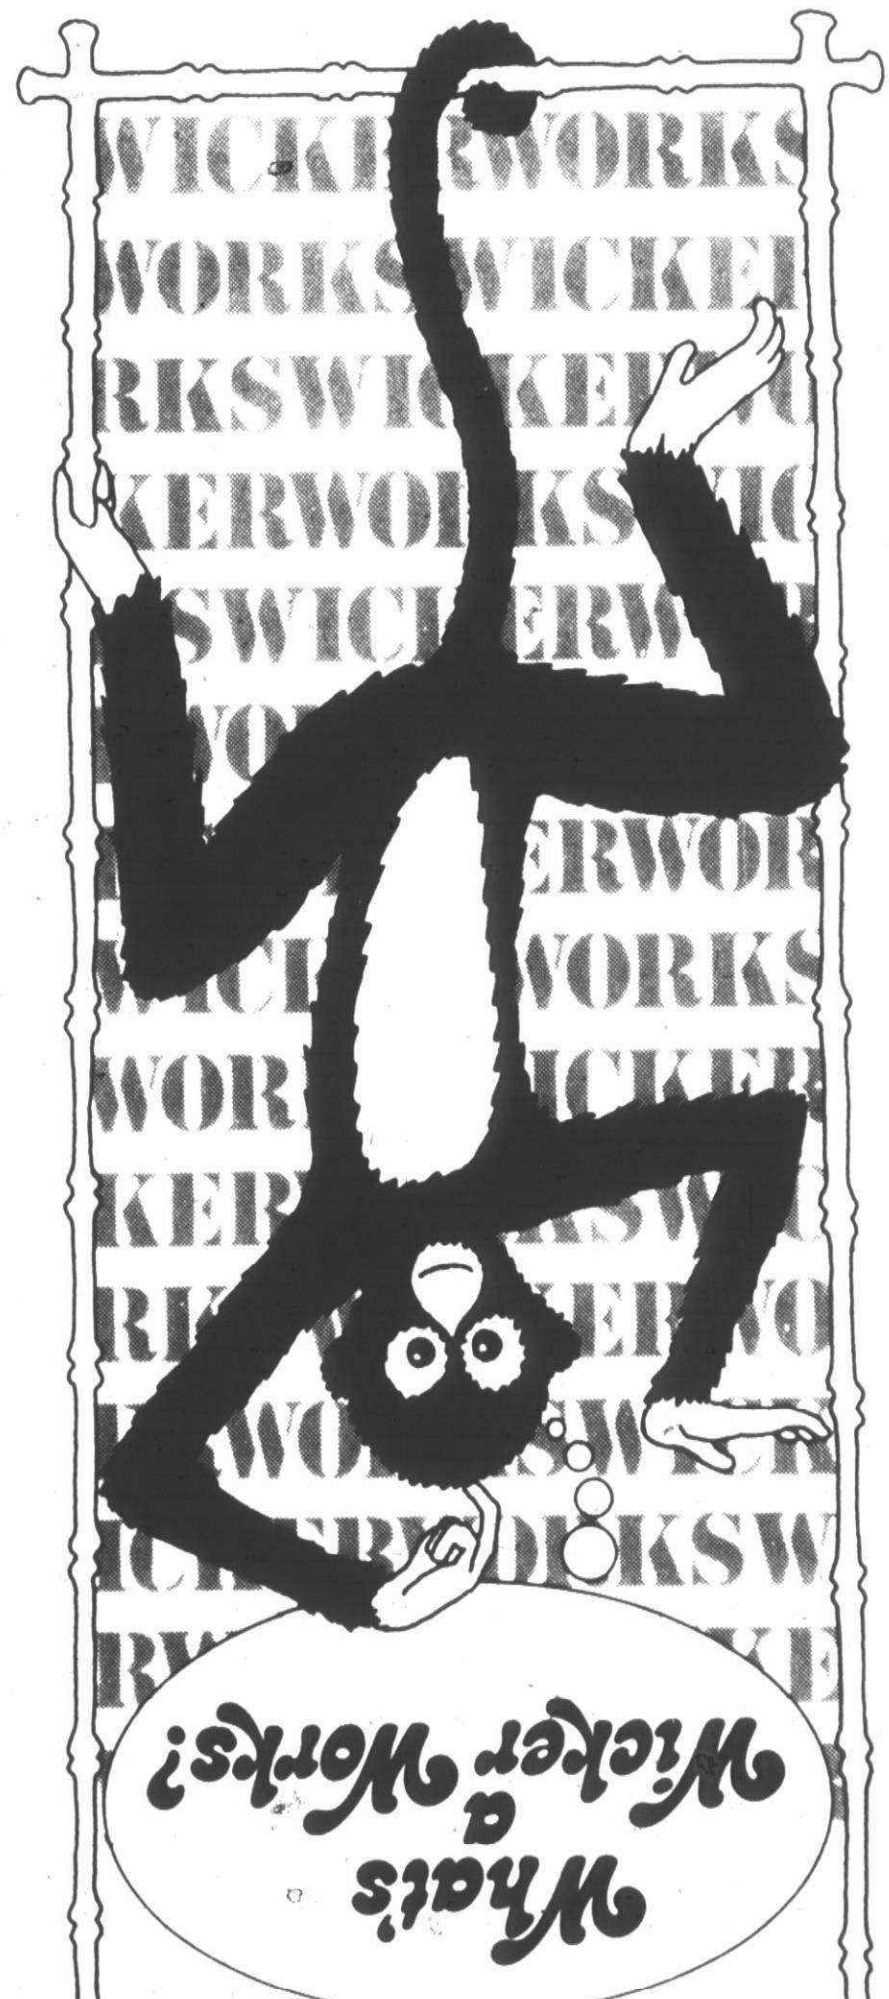

There's something for the whole family to see and do.

Long ago, but not far away.

What is a Wicker Works? It's a restaurant that serves only the finest French and Continental cuisine. A comfortable setting, an abundance of interior plantings, natural wicker, and solid oak, with a casually elegant touch. Two open hearth fireplaces for warmth and charm. A salad bar with an endless array of fixins' and where seconds (and thirds) are not frowned upon.

THAT'S a Wicker Works. Come see for yourself.

Westlander in EMU play

Jeanne Gurski, daughter of Eugene Gurski of 30419 Avon Court in Westland, is in the Eastern Michigan University production "Of Thee I Sing," which opens Oct. 13 in Quirk Auditorium.

In the musical spoof on politics, Jeanne plays Diana Devereaux, one of 52 cast members. # Music Hall to feature Grappelli's jazz Oct. 14

Carnegie Hall, "Ratso's" nightclub in Chicago and the UCLA campus have had little in common until this year when they were bound together as three of the stops made by legendary jazz violinist Stéphane Grappelli, who at 68 is, surprisingly, making his first coast-to-coast tour of America.

Detroit area residents will have a one-concert-only chance to "discover" this white-haired Parisian phenomenon when he and the Diz Disley Trio bring their show to the Music Hall at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 14.

"Legendary" isn't used lightly here since Grappelli's international fame goes back to the early '30s in Paris when he and that irascible gypsy hippie, guitarist Django Reinhardt, formed the original Quintet of the Hot Club ("le jazz 'ot" in the now illegal "Franglais").

That was more than 40 years ago and yet, last year, Grappelli was invited to go on tour with the very up-to-date The Grappel Dead. In a like manner, his recording collaborators have ranged from the classical Yehudi Menuhin to the acid rock Pink Floyd show.

HIS RECORDINGS also include his rock version of "Peter and the Wolf," as well as a huge legacy of recordings for the jazz buff.

In his Music Hall show, Grappelli will use mostly old jazz standards such as "Tea for Two," "Limehouse Blues" and "Sweet Georgia Brown" as the basis for his improvisations, but he will also sprinkle the evening with current hits such as "Killing Me Softly with His Song." Further coloring the program will be solos by his accompanying guitarists, England's Diz Disley and Burma-born Ike Issacs, and even an unusual treatment of "Satin Doll" by 22-year-old Chicagoan, Brian Torff, on his (non-electric) double bass.

For jazz insiders, there are several hidden tributes in the program. Grappelli almost takes off in a pyrotechnical rendition of "Daphne," played for his old buddy Django, who wrote it.

He turns to the piano and "Ain't Misbehavin'" in honor of Art Tatum, who "changed my life." "I've Got You Under My Skin" is for Mabel Mercer, for whom Grappelli played piano at the Bricktop's in Rome, where their audiences included the likes of King Farouk, Cole Porter and Doris Duke.

When Grappelli steps onto the Music

Hall stage, casual in velvet trousers and flowered silk shirt, there will be an artist who has slept on orphanage floors, played violin in the streets of Paris, performed for crowned heads and pot-heads, in concert halls and jazz joints. He is a legend, a virtuoso and the new sensation of 1976 America.

Tickets for the Music Hall performance can be obtained at the box office, 350 Madison Ave. at Brush, noon to 6 p.m., Mon-Sat. or by calling 963-7680.

Harrison, Trenton invade CEP

Gridders face tough tests this weekend

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

High school football fans in the Plymouth-Canton area are in for an exciting weekend of football at Centennial Park field, where state-rated Farmington Harrison, and powerhouse Trenton attacks both Plymouth teams.

The Plymouth Canton Chiefs continues its Western Six League schedule with a Friday night battle against Harrison beginning at 8 p.m.

Chiefs stand at 1-2 overall, and 0-1 in the league after last week's setback to Waterford Mott.

Head coach Dave Schuele knows that he must get his team to generate some offense this week, and play flawless ball to have any chance of knocking off the Hawks.

"If we play a super game, we have a chance to beat them (Harrison)," Schuele said. "But we've got to get rid of the 105 yards in penalties we committed against Mott."

When anyone talks about the success Harrison has had so far this year, the name Mike Bowden pops into the conversation.

BOWDEN is a 6' 1", 210 pound fullback who has led the Hawks to three initial victories without a loss, has gained over 400 yards on the ground this season and has averaged over 100 yards per game.

If the Chiefs are going to beat Harrison, they are going to have to find a way of stopping Bowden — if that's possible.

"He carried the ball 22 of the 33 rushing plays last week against Churchill," Schuele said. He doesn't try to run around people, he tries to run over them. "The kid is the biggest thing in the area when it comes to running the football."

Schuele is stressing gang tackling for his smaller defensive squad in hopes of stopping Bowden. On offense the Chiefs have had problems with the dumb mistakes that have cost many scoring opportunities. The Canton mentor believes that his squad must throw the ball more against Harrison in order to win.

"Harrison isn't as big as Mott, but they are a little better fundamentally," he said.

THE FOLLOWING NIGHT Plymouth Salem and Trenton battle in an important Suburban Eight League game for both clubs. Game time is 8 p.m.

Trenton lost its first game since the 1974 season last week to Dearborn Edsel Ford. Last season, Trenton went undefeated and won the Sub-8 title, rolling over everyone.

The Trojans were predominately a senior ball club last year and many people question the ability of this year's ballclub. But despite last week's loss to Edsel

Ford, Rock head man Tom Moshimer hasn't lost any respect for Trenton and doesn't doubt the team's ability.

"We all know they (Trenton) are as good as anybody. We are going to have to have a super effort, there is no question about that," Moshimer said.

"I think we are equal to them up front, but they have an extremely talented backfield."

JOHN DALL is another one of those bruising fullback that will run over people and Duncan Allen may be the top halfback in the conference. Both were starters last year in the Trojans' undefeated season.

"Last year they flat overpowered us," Moshimer said. "Hopefully, they aren't as strong this year, but I do know their football team is as good as any in the conference."

Both squads are running ball clubs and control is the key to this game, according to Moshimer.

Salem's defense, which has seven underclassmen in the starting lineup, has been vulnerable at times this season because of their inexperience. "We are getting better (on defense)," Moshimer said. "If we don't play good defense (against Trenton) they will control the ball."

With Trenton this Saturday and Edsel Ford next week, it's imperative that the Rocks win at least one game if it has even the slightest hopes of a tie in the conference.

"I think we are very much in the race," Moshimer said. "I think we are very much in the race Moshimer said. If we come out of these next two weeks with wins we will be the team to beat."

Currently, Edsel Ford and Belleville are the only two undefeated teams in the league with 2-0 records.

Salem netters hope for 2d Sub-8 title

The Plymouth Salem girls tennis team moves into the Suburban Eight League meet this Friday at Dearborn after winning two consecutive conference matches this past week.

The Rocks enter with a 4-1 dual meet record, and could conceivably share the conference title.

The only league loss Salem suffered this season was to Trenton, but a first place finish in the league meet would knof the two teams with a share of the crown.

Last season, the Rocks were in this same position, and won the Sub-8 meeting, to gain title honors.

The Rocks shut out Livonia Bentley 7-0 Monday to give them a 7-3 overall mark to go along with their league standing.

First singles Becky Crespo won her match handily 6-0, 6-2 while Courtney Warwick edged her opponent in split sets.

Senior third singles Nancy Grotz easily won 6-2, 6-2. Kathy Horton rounded out the singles sweep with a 6-3, 6-1 victory.

Lynne Stone and Tamie Crespo won their first doubles match 6-3, 6-4, while Cindy Cindrich and Kathy Sundendorf combined for a 7-5, 7-6 victory.

The third doubles combination of Laurene Kirchoff and Diane Miller finished the shutout by rebounding with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory.

The other Sub-8 win for the Rocks came last Wednesday where Salem edged Dearborn 4-3 at the opponents' court.

Crespo, Grotz and Horton easily won their singles matches and the second doubles combination of Cindrich and Sundendorf were also victorious.

Freshman Warwick was the tough luck kid in her match, losing a marathon two hour and 40 minute meeting 3-6, 7-6, 6-7 on the final point of the deciding tie breaker.

"Courtney is playing kids who are older than she and she is gaining experience," said coach Jan Lawson. "Her performances are speaking well for her age."

The only loss of the week that blemished Salem's record was a non-league battle against Dearborn Heights Riverside last Friday. The Rocks lost to this improved team, 4-3. Lawson changed her lineup slightly to let other girls play in this non-conference battle.

Kathy Weber and Laura Todd won singles exhibition matches against Riverside, while Clarise Hartnett and Sue Koziske were a successful doubles combination that day.

Wendy Webb was a lone Salem exhibition winner against Dwarborn.

Rock cagers top Sub-8 race; Chiefs rally past WL Central

The success for both the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton girls basketball teams continued Tuesday night, as both squads came out victors.

The Canton Chiefs had to come from behind in their non-league game against Walled Lake Central, but won the contest 42-39.

After trailing 20-14 at halftime, the Chiefs battled their way back into contention late in the game. Canton was still behind by a single point with 40 seconds left in the contest, before pulling out the victory.

The Chiefs overall record stands at 5-2 for the year.

The Canton JV team won its game handi-

Chief girl swimmers edged out

The Plymouth Canton girls swim team lost its second Western Six League meet of the season, but not before it put a scare into a strong Walled Lake Western squad, 95-76.

"They (Western) were surprised," said coach Ann Massey. "It was super. I was very proud of our kids."

The Chiefs were ahead until the last two events in this Tuesday night meet, losing the 100 breaststroke and the final relay.

The 200 yard medley relay of Cindy Shelansky, Sue Knight, Annette Piethe and Tina DeWalt won this initial event.

Jane Anderson remained her reliable self in both sprint races with close victories in the 50 and 100 freestyle events.

Shelansky also was victorious in the 200 individual medley and the 100 back, while Lori Hogan improved her time in the 500 free event by 14 seconds to win that race.

Second place finishes found Hogan swimming runners-up in the 200 free. Wendy Gray was second in the diving competition, as was Piethe in the 100 fly.

Kay Spring improved her time in the 100 fly by four seconds, despite a fourth place finish.

Sue Knight was third in the 100 breaststroke, while Kathy Toor placed fifth with an improved clocking.

Plymouth Salem was idle Tuesday, but will resume action at the Salem pool against Bentley.

Salem runs past Pats

Both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton boys cross country teams ran against Livonia Franklin Tuesday afternoon, with the Rocks beating both opponents.

Salem edged Franklin 26-30, while whipping the Chiefs 19-40. Franklin beat Canton handily 18-40.

The Rocks' Walt White led all runners at the Franklin home course with a first place time of 16:04. Salem's Scott Kleam finished third at 16:08 to aid the Rocks in the scoring column.

Other Salem runners that scored were Jeff Mangan seventh, Jeff Econom 10th, and Bob Stiffler 13th.

The Chiefs were led by Bill Murphy's 16:37 time that was fifth best. Mark Zydeck showed great improvement for Canton with an 11th place 17:17 clocking.

Dennis Hennells 15th, Brian Oik 18th, and Dave Spitz 18th, rounded out Canton's scoring.

Jr. sports roundup

The Plymouth Lions of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Football League swept past the Brighton Broncos Sunday afternoon at Central Middle School.

The Lions varsity won its first game of the year in a 39-8 romp.

After the Broncos opened with an early touchdown, it was all Plymouth after that.

A first period pass play closed the Brighton lead to 8-6. Then a second quarter interception by Steve Johnson put the Lions ahead for good. Brian Ebmeyer extend to Plymouth margin in the final minutes of the first half with a scoring run.

Dave Slavin, Bob Miller and Johnson each scored in the second half to complete the slaughter.

THE JUNIOR VARSITY evened its mark at 2-2 for the season with a 20-0 shutout of the Broncos. Kevin Kral led off the scoring with a 35-yard run in the first quarter. Duane March added a 50-yard gallop in the second quarter for another score, and Tom Wennerberg finished the point parade with a 15-yard jaunt late in the third period.

After that final third quarter score, the game settled into a defensive battle, the rest with the Lions junior varsity preserving the shutout.

Canton golfers triumph

Two victories over the past week were posted by the Plymouth Canton boys' golf team when on Monday the Chiefs beat Walled Lake Western, 211-251, after defeating Waterford Mott on Thursday, 222-234.

Monday's medalists were Canton's Steve Morman and John Pearson, both shooting 40s on the back nine at Brae Burn Golf Club, as the Chiefs boosted their season record to 6-3.

Craig Brass added a 42 to the Canton score and teammate Dave Visser chalked up a 43. Scott McGlone tallied a 46 for Canton.

Walled Lake scores saw Russ LaLonde leading the Lakers with a 41, while Terry O & E

McCleery putted out with a 49 and John Olson with a 52. Other Laker scores were 54 and 55.

Although Waterford Mott's Joe Walker gained medalist honors with a 41 at Brae Burn, Canton gained the team victory with 44s from Morman and Pearson while Visser, Dave Bricker and Don Tercherd added 45s.

Back of Walker's 41 for Mott were Mike Cudnufsky at 46, Mark Hampton, 47, Matt Adamczyk, 49, and Craig Hutchins, 51.

This afternoon (Thursday) Canton meets Farmington Harrison at Brae Burn.

Touch football results

The first game of the Plymouth men's touch football league featured the Stoners beating Vettese Builders 18-13.

In the first quarter, the Stoners opened the scoring when Gordon Goedde hit Larry Gates on a quick pass at the sidelines and Gates lateraled the ball to Jim Goedde who carried it into the endzone. The touchdown play covered 54 yards.

Second quarter action saw Vettese get on the board when Gary Gray intercepted a pass at the Stoners' 35. Five plays later Rick Neu scored on a one-yard run. As the period ended, Neu hit Scott Dunson and Vettese led at the half 13-6.

The third quarter brought the Stoners within one point, 13-12, when Larry Gates hit Brian Eschels with a 22-yard pass. Play moved into the fourth quarter with Vettese maintaining ball control on a sustained drive which moved them to the Stoners' 25.

But Neu rolled out to the right and tried to throw back to the center of the field but the Stoners' Bill Johnson intercepted the pass and ran 75 yards for the winning touchdown.

Game two matched the Mean Machine and Wagenschütz, both squads looking for their first victories of the year.

The Mean Machine started off early by moving the ball 64 yards. The drive was capped when Dan DeVito hit Lew Smith with a five yard toss. On the Mean Machine's next series, DeVito connected with Smith once again for a 42-yard touchdown.

Second quarter play opened with Wagenschütz moving the ball, as Harold Wilhelm and Dan Fisher combined on a 52-yard pass play. But Mean Machine's Herb Scott intercepted Wilhelm's next pass on the 10. From that point, quarterback DeVito again hit Smith with a 90-yard scoring pass. Wagenschütz finally got on the board as Wilhelm and Fisher combined on a 61-yard touchdown pass before halftime.

The third period was scoreless, but in the fourth, DeVito hit Jim Bolin and Dave Toole on short touchdown passes to finish the 34-7 Mean Machine romp.

In the third game, Realty World remained undefeated by shutting out Team 3, 16-0. The only score in the first half was a 21-yard field goal by Realty's Ron Martinez.

Realty World struck for two touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

The first was set up when Gary Knapp hit Dennis Finrock on a 53-yard pass play to Team 3's 17-yard line. Two plays later Knapp completed a scoring pass to Dave Wilkins. Two minutes later, Knapp again connected with Wilkins for 22 yards and the final score of the game.

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

Remember Jeff Roth? He's a 1975 Plymouth Salem High School graduate that was instrumental in leading the Rock linkmen to the 1973 state championship when he was a junior.

Roth served as captain in his senior year, leading his squad to another Suburban Eight League championship and a Regional crown in 1974.

After his senior season in Plymouth, Roth earned a four year scholarship at the University of Arizona.

After a freshman season which saw Roth participate on the varsity team, he once again finds himself doing better than ever this fall as a sophomore.

After six qualifying rounds of golf, Roth came in second place to make the U-A squad once again.

The six-man traveling team is presently headed for the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque for the Tucker Invitational Tournament held this weekend.

The 19-year old Roth will compete in this tourney as Arizona's second man. He competes against teams from Wake Forest, Arizona State, Oklahoma State and Ohio State in this first major tournament of the season.

Jeff is also an excellent student who is majoring in business administration at Arizona.

I'm sure all of us who remember Jeff, and appreciated his efforts three years ago, wish him the best of luck this season.

INTERIOR LINE COACH Ron Krueger of the Plymouth Salem football team seemed upset over the "observations" I made in last week's column about his line.

Krueger, who is on head coach Tom Mosimer's varsity staff said that the play of the linemen shouldn't be "criticized," but that it was the performance of the Rocks' linebackers that didn't meet up to par in the loss to the Belleville Tigers two weeks ago.

"These kids are busting their butts to gain all-league honors and then they are criticized," Krueger said to me.

"Laymen shouldn't make personal observations like that."

Krueger said in the Belleville game that defensive linemen Dave Champion and Reid Albert led the team in defensive points.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES:

Community football fans are in for a treat this weekend when the top two teams in their respective leagues come to town.

Both games should prove to be interesting for the fans who enjoy good high school football.

But for Plymouth fans, it may be a long night for both the Salem Rocks and Canton Chiefs, as both squads rate as underdogs.

Stevenson girls win relays

Flexing its muscles by winning four of the 10 events, Livonia Stevenson last week-end powered to its second consecutive team championship at the Redford Union Girls' Swimming Relays.

The Spartans, by besting the field in the 400-yard freestyle relay, the 200-yard backstroke relay, the 200-yard butterfly relay and the 400-yard individual medley relay, totalling 94 points to finish 35 points ahead of runner-up Trenton.

Curiously, Stevenson and Trenton also finished one-two last year.

Livonia Bentley, winner of three events and setting third with 52 points in two, placed third with 52 points.

Northville collected 45 points, Plymouth Salem, 42. Livonia Churchill, 24. Dearborn, 23. Plymouth Canton and Redford Union, 20. Wayne, 15, and Dearborn Edsel Ford, 14.

The Bentley foursome of Vicki Brown, Cindy Brown, Mary Scruggs and Sue Stone established a new relays' mark by winning the 200-yard breaststroke relay with a time of 2:19.7.

Laurie Sibert teamed with the Browns and Stone to set a new meet record in the 200-yard medley relay with an effort of 2:00.4.

Stevenson's 400-yard freestyle relay win by Carol Eggers, Lori Tobis, Theresa Sieh and Becky Stanley in 3:55.2 also set a new meet record.

The Trenton twosome of Jill Calvin and Gretchen Schlicht broke the relays' diving record by earning 168.70 points.

"Outside of having some people sick, we're doing real well," said Stevenson coach Lois McDonald. "Jackie Sieh swam the 200-yard freestyle in the crescendo relay in 2:08, and Stanley had a good 50-yard freestyle split of 25.1 seconds.

"Eggers always does well," the coach continued, "and Pixie Smith and Linda Hein both swam well."

Salem linkmen win meet

By BETTY DeLANO

The best match of the year was played by the Plymouth Salem boys' golf team Monday when the Rocks beat the Livonia Bentley Bulldogs, 155-174.

Salem junior Jim Ross was match medalist on Salem's home course, Brae Burn Golf Club. Ross gained the honors on the back nine with a 37 that included a birdie on the par-3 third hole.

Ted Kuhns, also a Salem junior, was second in Rock scores by shooting a 38. Salem's Mike Mullen, who birdied the 395-yard, par-4 sixth, added a 39 and Mike Wickham shot a 41 as the Rocks improved their won-lost record to 9-2. Mullen and Wickham both are seniors.

Bentley had 43s from Bob Crawford, Steve Morgan and Bill Kauppi, while Brian Gailbraith added a 45.

Last Thursday, Salem lost to North Farmington on the Godwin Glen golf course, 190-207, in a five-man match.

Mullen and Craig Stevens shot the white nine at Godwin in 39, while teammates Wickham, Kuhns and Doug Holloway all added 43s to the Salem score. North Farmington's Craig Loffman, Bill Helke and Cars Johansson shared medalist honors with 37s. Today (Thursday) Salem meets Dearborn at Brae Burn.

Netters fall

A tough Northville girls tennis team invaded Plymouth Canton territory Thursday afternoon, and the results weren't sweet for the young Chiefs.

The Mustangs shutout Canton 7-0 in this Western Six League match, dropping the Chiefs record to 1-6 for the season.

A disappointed coach Cyndi Burnstein wasn't surprised by the setback but expected a better performance from her singles players.

Canton's loop record is 0-2 with Walled Lake Western on tap next week.
