The 45-15 year-round school expansion for next vear kept popping up during a special workshop meeting held Monday night by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. The board had called the workshop to discuss the millage renewal and $29.7 million bond issue which will be on the ballot Saturday, April 23. See Page 3A for a report of concerns of taxpavers.

Teachers turn thumbs down on offer

By EMORY DANIELS

Following 22 hours of intensive bargaining over the weekend, the school board and teachers union were only a handshake away from agreeing on a contract. But the hands were never extended.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education met until past midnight Monday and finally agreed unanimously to authorize an offer of settlement to be made to the Plymouth Education Association (PEA)

At 1 a.m. Tuesday, the board's offer was rejected by the PEA negotiating team which then prepared for a general meeting of its membership late that afternoon in the Penn Theatre.

After an airing of the board's offer. the membership gave the PEA leadership a vote of confidence by confirming rejection of the offer. PEA members also voted to continue the executive committee's authority to call a strike.

UNTIL 1 A.M. Tuesday both sides hoped a contract settlement was near While the school board was being presented with the results of the week end bargaining sessions, the PEA negotiating team was waiting in the cafetorium of Plymouth Canton High School. School trustees were in the conference room at the back of the principal's office in Canton High School getting a briefing of the weekend marathon bargaining from its chief negotiator, Norm Kee.

The board authorized a higher economic offer if the PEA would agree to five other provisions in the contract.

The school board, feeling its five requests were reasonable, also hoped for a settlement once its total offer was presented to the PEA team.

The school board adjourned its session with Kee about 12:45 a.m. Tuesday, and the PEA team was invited into the conference room. Kee talked with them for about five minutes, and then left them alone for a caucus. Kee met with them again for about three minutes, and then the PEA team filed out announcing that the offer had been rejected because it was unacceptable.

True ZBA will be decided by judge

Canton's "true" Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) will be chosen by Wayne County Circuit Judge Neal Fitzgerald, if the court agrees to render a declaratory judgment deciding which of the two disputed zoning boards has legal Harold Stein, Canton Township supervisor, instigated the court action Monday and announced that he is paying the attorney's fee out of his own pocket, not the township's.

There is some question as to whether the rest of the township board would support spending public money to decide which five people should legally sit on the ZBA," Stein said. "To avoid all the criticism I know we'd get about playing politics with taxpayer's money, I figured the easiest way to resolve the issue would be to pick up the tab myself.

Canton's attorney, William Sempliner, is attorney for plaintiffs Stein and Gary Sands, chairman of the most recently-appointed ZBA. Four of Sands' fellow board members are listed as defendants in the case along with Jim Donahue and the other four members of the "defunct" ZBA that Sempliner believes was appointed ille-

Stein said he hopes Judge Fitzgerald will resolve the controversy before March 30, the date of the next scheduled ZBA meeting. Chairmans of both questionable ZBAs have reserved meetings but both have been advised to postpone sessions until the court makes a decision.

The first order of business for the "true" ZBA will be to consider granting the Canton Township a zoning variance that would allow officials to break ground on a three-story township hall. The present zoning law limits buildings to two stories.

from the former administration's action of September 28, when five persons were appointed to the ZBA as required by 1976 state law. Former supervisor Robert Greenstein appointed himself, Jim Donahue, Robert Miller, John Burdziak and Tom Quinn to the ZBA despite howls of "cronvism" from Trustee Brian Schwall.

After the new township administration took office in November, the township's counsel, Sempliner, issued an opinion that the ZBA headed by Donahue was illegal because Canton never amended its zoning ordinance appointed. Contacted Tuesday, Donahue was surprised that Stein requested a declaratory judgment.

"This is news to me," he said. "I'll have to consult with the others (on the defunct ZBA) to see if we should get an attorney to represent us."

Donahue said Sempliner may be courting with a conflict-of-interest by representing Stein and Sands with township documents when "private citizen Stein" is being represented: Two weeks ago Donahue alleged that Stein told Sempliner "the legal opinion he wanted and asked Sempliner to make it legal.

Sempliner said he called the case "the way I saw it," and wouldn't "be put in the middle of a political fight." Sempliner said there are no grounds for conflict-of-interest charges.

"I'm representing the supervisor of the township and the chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals in their official capacities," Sempliner said.

A SPEEDY RESOLUTION in the ZBA dispute is necessary. Stein said to "clear the air of the cloud that exists over the ZBA status. Time is of the essence," Stein said, before quot ing a "crucial section" of the legal request for declaratory judgment:

Deer Creek tough on rowdy tenants

Park Apartments are launching an all-out campaign to rid the complex of "troublemakers" who gave a reputation of vandalism and rowdiness to the apartments on Joy near I-275.

Standard Realty of Southland, the firm that purchased three of Deer Creek's four phases last January, is attempting to evict residents caught breaking the law or otherwise disturbing the peace on the apartments'

"I want to get the troublemakers out," said new resident manager Nancy Cusick. "We're going to tell them, 'If you can't abide by our rules for family living, then we just don't want you here. Either they clean up their act, or they get out.'

ACCORDING TO Miss Cusick, vandalism has been "rampant" at Deer Creek during the last few years, Residents vandalized other tenants' apartments and cars, and committed malicious pranks, such as throwing shampoo into Deer Creek's pool and gluing mailboxes shut.

Others have broken Deer Creek's rules and disturbed neighbors around them by cooping up large barking dogs or throwing frequent rowdy par-

Donahue and LaBell now say Stein recall talk is premature

Purported leaders of an alleged campaign to recall Canton Supervisor Harold Stein say they have no plans to spearhead a recall drive-at least not now.

"It's just not true," said Jim Donahue of published reports that he and Canton resident Linda LaBell are spearheading a recall drive.

"But I will be in the middle of a recall campaign if one ever comes up. I think Stein has taken the township to the cleaners.

Donahue, former co-chairman of the Committee to Re-elect the Greenstein Team, and Mrs. LaBell, a member and critic of the township's land use study committee, were identified in a recent edition of the Canton Eagle as

'My statement was that sometime in the future, if the situation warrants it, petitions will be circulated," Donahue said. "I was explicit that nothing has been done at this time."

According to Mrs. LaBell, a parttime employee of the Canton Eagle asked for her feelings toward a possible recall drive.

"I said I would have to weigh my feelings about a recall if it came up,'

"What I stated to the reporter was that I can't see how Mr. Stein can serve the people without listening to that Mr. Stein's direction is the same good things by the time it comes up." the public interest."

as that of the whole township." Although Donahue believes grounds for a recall campaign now exist, he does not believe the majority of Canton residents would support a recall-Stein campaign

"He's doing little piddly things that the average person doesn't pay attention to," Donahue said of Stein. "The average person doesn't care about the controversy over the ZBA (zoning board of appeals) or that Stein appointed a new police chief."

Stein did not appear worried by recall threats.

Auto sales here follow profit levels

By W.W. EDGAR

If coming events cast their shadows before them, the automobile dealers in the Plymouth community are headed for their biggest year.

On the heels of announcements of record profits by the Big Three, the area dealers confide that it is no longer a question of selling cars but one of getting shipments from the factories.

Both Jack Selle, the Buick dealer, and Leo Calhoun, the Ford dealer on Plymouth Road, don't hesitate to tell that they can sell the cars as fast as they can get them—but getting them is another problem.

Selle confides that the month of Janharv and the extreme cold cut into his sales, but toward the end of the month and thus far in February business has been better than expected.

It was the same with Lou LaRiche. the Chevrolet dealer on Plymouth Road "One of the big things that is helping is General Motors plan to grant extra incentives to retired employees by increasing the rebate to $200 and $300

Kirk to debate school financing

Russell Kirk, well-known author, columnist and native of Plymouth, will debate public school financing in Michigan April 1 at Alma College.

Kirk will debate against Dr. Wilbur J. Cohen, head of the school of education at University of Michigan.

The debate topic is: "Resolved, that a new system of financing public education in Michigan should be adopted which would include a greater degree of state and federal participation.' Cohen will present the affirmative with Kirk presenting the negative

Reacting to the debate, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. April 1 in Down Auditorium on the Alma campus, will be a panel of educators and state government officials, including James Phelps, special assistant for education to Gov. Milliken. The program is open to the public without charge.

More '45-15' predicted if bond vote fails

Year-round school is certain to expand next year but will be extended to more buildings if the April 23 bond issue fails.

That was one of the recurring responses from the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night during a question-answer session on the bond issue and millage renewal ballot proposals.

About 250 persons, many of them teachers, jammed the cafetorium of Plymouth Canton High for the twohour public workshop on the election issues.

The workshop began after a short meeting at 7 p.m. which resulted in the school board voting 6-0 to approve the language of the proposal to appear on the ballot Saturday. April 23.

SUPT. JOHN M. HOBEN began the workshop by noting that the school district expects 1.400 to 1.500 additional students next fall and the projections beyond this year "are even more

Our projections indicate there are 5,000 new homes to be opened within five years, and that equates to about 5.000 additional students we have to find classroom space for. We are faving an enrollment which will climb to Hoben stressed that the new construction proposed in the bond issue by itself won't accommodate the future growth. "We still must use alternatives, such as greater use of Extended School Year (ESY) or portable buildings, along with new construction to keep pace with the growth. By using these alternatives, though, we hope to avoid overbuilding.

"The growth is expected to peak at about 19-21,000 and then decline. We hope to use alternatives to absorb the growth up to its peak so we aren't stuck with school buildings which cannot be used at the decline stage."

Four years ago voters defeated a proposed $25 million bond issue for five years, and voted down a second proposal of $17 millon for three years. Finally, in 1974, a $10 million proposal for two years was approved. "Those two years are up and we are now directly faced with the growth we anticipated four years ago," Hoben added.

SMITH HORTON, a resident who chairs the school district's population projections committee, supported Hoben's projections as being accu-

•On the need for the operating renewal, it was noted the district is facing inflationary costs of eight per cent a year. Utility and medical insurance combined will account for one-tenth of the operating budget next year.

•Of the $29.7 million in the bond issue, about $23 million would be spent on new buildings, $6 million on renovation and fees for architects, engineers and other professionals.

· For every year the school district delays building new schools, construction costs will rise by six to eight per cent.  Portable classroom units cost $14,000 to $16,000 apiece to erect. It would take six portables to house 180 students at a cost exceeding $80,000. ESY can expand capacity of one building by 230 students without capitol outlay. The district, thus, needs money from the bond issue to use portable classrooms as an option

•The former Wayne County Child Development Center at Five Mile and Sheldon isn't a viable option for the schoolMost of the buildings are cottages unsuitable for classroom use. One larger building could be used as a high school, but the costs to bring the structure up to code for school use are prohibitive, an expense which includes installation of a complete elevator system.

 The parochial schools planned in the Plymouth-Canton community won't be sufficient to absorb any significant portion of the growth, primarily because most of the private enrollment will come from out of the dis-

Twp. postpones court date

Windsor parkers fight apts.

Even though the Canton Township board shot down site plans for an apartment complex on the northwest corner of Morton Taylor and Warren, the township's own attorney feels the developer has a stronger case than the township

Bert Burgoyne, attorney for Canton. advised the board that he saw little chance for victory in the lawsuit filed by Slavik Development Co. against

Canton for its Nov. 9 vote which rejected site plans for a 153-unit apartment complex called Windsor Woods. But if the township demands it, Burgoyne said he'll fight the apartmenets

A decision on the lawsuit was postponed Tuesday night to allow the attorney for the Windsor Park homeowners to meet with Burgoyne to argue the merits of the fighting the case against Slavik in court. Supervisor Harold Stein said it is his hope to "avoid unnecessary litigation"but that the homeowners could intervene in the lawsuit between the township and the developer

"Does that mean the township will vigorously defend our interests," William Botwick asked the board. He was told that residents would have input in the negotiations.

'What is going to happen?" Botwick asked. "Will there be two plaintiffs in court and one intervener? "I'm concerned about the future effects if the township gets a reputation of folding every time someone sues them or challenges them in court. Botwick argues that the Canton board of trustees was on sound legal footing Nov. 9 when it nullified previously approved site plans for Slavik's planned unit development (PUD). The original developer secured a PUD agreement with the township in 1969 which called for construction of 55 condominiums and 98 apartments. In 1972 the PUD was amended to allow the builders to build 90 condominiums and no apartments. After four condominiums were built, Slavik went back to the township board in 1974 to explain that the market had collapsed on condominium sales and asked that the PUD be amended to allow 153 apartments on Botwick claims that although the Canton administration, under Supervisor Phil Dingeldey, may have made an oral agreement to allow Slavik the right to build 153 apartments, the amendment was never put in writing and is therefore meaningless.

"Then, as of Oct. 15, 1975, the PUD agreement as amended does not include the right to construct apartments," Botwick said, "persuant to Windsor Woods' plan.

Members of the Windsor Woods Homeowner Association said they supported Botwick's stand.

In Slavik's lawsuit, the company's lawyer, Norman Hyman, said Canton "has no right to unilaterally rescind or amend the agreement.

'The site plan is in conformity with the agreement," Hyman said, "and the defendants are bound by it."

The new program, which starts this week, enables seniors to make an appointment for students to come to their homes and mark easily stolen articles with an identifying number.

"This approach has been successful to cutting down thefts in areas of the "country where it has been tried," said Terry Carroll, senior citizen coordinator. "And I think once it gets going here it will do some good.'

Although marking property won't prevent theft, the numbers make it easy for police to give recovered stolen property back to the lawful owners.

The police department is providing students with the engraving tools and Sgt Joe Kahanek, community service officer, met with the students to give them tips on what kind of household articles burglars most often take.

ban concealed weapons on its grounds and in its buildings.

The incident which precipitated the discussion occurred in mid-February when a student, who also happened to be an off-duty Livonia policemen, accidently caused his gun to misfire during a class.

The room was dark, and as the students watched a film, the officer turned in his seat, causing his gun to discharge.

The bullet ricocheted, hit the officer in the buttock, and then lodged in the

No one else was hurt.

"THIS WARRANTS action," said trustee Mark McQuesten."But the question is what course is best for us to take. I think the whole issue is in need of serious discussion."

E.F. Petersen, manager of business services for the college was charged with investigating the incident. He said the matter is complicated by the fact that Michigan law allows officers to carry concealed weapons and that the state police, Wayne County Sheriff, Farmington, Garden City, Livonia and Northville Township all require their officers to be armed off-duty.

The cities of Northville and Plymouth leave the option up the individual officer.

Petersen added that the gun was not holstered at the time of the incident-against department policyand that the offending officer was dis-

WHILE SOME trustees suggested the incident was a freak, McQuesten, who as a Schoolcraft student fought to have guns restricted on campus, pushed for a solution to the problem.

eration," he said.

Trustee Rosina Raymond echoed McQuesten's sentiments. "This disturbs me. It sounds pretty bad to have armed people in a classroom. It's ludicrous, almost unethical.

Trustee Nancy Blatt said the board had to take a more practical vantage point. "I hate guns, too," she said. But let's face reality. Policemen do carry guns and they need to.'

Petersen said the possibility of a lawsuit existed if the board banned concealed weapons on campus.

He said presently there are 48 police officers enrolled in law enforcement courses and untold others taking other classes at Schoolcraft.

PETERSEN SAID an attorney told him the school could probably set a no-guns policy, but that the matter needed further research.

While Petersen and some trustees indicated a no-guns policy might be discriminatory against policemen because it forced them to either drop classes or disobey departmental rules. one teacher in the audience suggested that letting policemen carry concealed weapons in class was an infringement on the rights of other stu-

Trustee Gerald Cox disagreed. "Officers need guns-be it in church, the classroom or a factory," he said.

McQuesten said it was up to the board, not local police departments to make policy for the campus. "I don't want to be dictated to by any police department. What happens next time if this happens again?

"If we had acted in 1971, the gun wouldn't have been there in the classroom in the first place

The board will continue its discussion on the issue at its next scheduled study session. April 6

Insurance, 45-15 snags pact

agreement on the salary packageboth parties signed at the table. The PEA is quite aware that total agreement must be reached before we have negotiated a master agreement."

All last week both sides remained in suspense over whether a settlement was imminent. Kee maintained the economic offer was only good if the PEA agreed to give up something in return, while the PEA maintained tentative agreement had been reached on economics and it was up to the board to accept that tentative agreement.

The PEA bargaining team felt the school board had rejected the economic offer signed by Kee. Supt. John M. Hoben says, though, that the school board last week never took a vote on the economic offer.

MONDAY NIGHT trustees gave Kee permission to make a total and hopefully final offer

That offer did include a three per cent economic offer but the board insisted that to get the three per cent the PEA must agree to five stipulations in the contract.

One of the five provisions was contract language on extended school year (ESY). The PEA had indicated it would agree to extension of ESY to 12 buildings during the next three years, but any expansion of ESY beyond that must be mutually agreed upon between the board and PEA.

The board wanted to raise the number to allow extension of ESY to 16 schools in three years, and wanted to eliminate the phrase that expansion of ESY was a negotiable item. The board argues it is management's right to implement ESY as it is an educational program, and that management shouldn't forfeit its right to administer in a labor contract.

The PEA, however, sees ESY as a drastic change in the school year and argues it must be negotiated because the calendar is a negotiable item.

"The right to negotiate ESY is in the master agreement that expired this year," says McKinley, "and I'm not ready to give away something as important as the right to negotiate the

ANOTHER STIPULATION wanted by the board was an agreement to 'cap'' payment of medical insurance

Under the board's proposal, if medical premiums exceeded $100 per teacher in the third year of the contract, the school board and individual teacher would share half of the increase over $100. (If medical premiums reached $110 per month in the third year, the school district would pay $5 and the teacher $5 a month. The teacher's contribution would be deducted from his cost-of-living allowance).

The board hoped the PEA would agree to the cap because it would mean a very low cost, if any, to individual teachers for the three years of the contract. The board wants to tie escalating medical premiums to costof-living payments because insurance rates are inflationary.

"便是这些魔物或是"GLEELX"我们是是这种感染的影响的说明,更一定中心现在,我们就是这些感染的感染的感染的感染的感染的感染的,这个"这个"这个"这个"这个这个是这种不识的不知识,这个这种心理是不是

"It might be true that the medical insurance cap won't cost teachers anything for three years," reacted Candi Reece, PEA president. "But that's not justification for accepting a cap. Once the board gets a cap in the contract, it will remain in all future contracts. We aren't going to create that kind of a problem for future bargaining

"The PEA is willing to continue working with the administration on reducing medical insurance costs. I understand it's spiralling and getting out of hand. But we cannot accept a cap.

Another condition of the board was that the PEA agree to abide by all the tentative agreements worked out over the weekend.

THE BOARD ALSO wanted further reductions in stripends paid to teachers for special services performed.

Last year's contract contained schedule D, which provided for stripends to be paid to certain specialists such as psychologists, social workers, middle school representatives, counselors, and type A crisis room teach-

The board's offer is to eliminate stripends for all but the middle school representatives. The board's offer provides that all teachers now receiving stripends would be grandfathered and continue to receive the payment.

New hires, though, wouldn't receive the stripend. The elimination of the stripend was to take effect in the third year of the new contract. The board estimates it could save $60,000 over three years by elimination of schedule D.

THE FIFTH board request is to eliminate a clause defining the school board's liability in case of a lawsuit on the PEA's agency shop rule.

By agency shop agreements, teachers must pay union dues to the PEA as a condition of employment. If dues aren't paid, the school board, by master agreement, is supposed to dismiss the teacher.

The clause in the contract which the board objects to that the PEA won't participate in the defense of any lawsuit a teacher might bring for dismissal under the provision. The clause places all liability and defense actions on the school board.

THE REJECTION by the PEA of the board's five proposals means a settlement is no longer close, although technically the table position remains the same as it did following the 22 hours of bargaining over the weekend.

The board's higher salary package remains an offer, contingent on the PEA's acceptance of the board's five non-salary proposals.

The offer probably will remain in limbo until the two sides meet again at the bargaining table, which could happen before the end of this week. Until that time, another stalemate exists with the board waiting for a move from the PEA.

into retailing. The hand-tailored product will be information. The buyers will be small and medium-sized businesses, in the communities Schoolcraft serves.

The price to businesses-neglible At its March 30 meeting, the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees will consider accepting a grant to join project SEM-TAP (Southeastern Michigan Technical Assistance Program).

If trustees vote to accept this year's $5.000 grant from the Economic Development Administration, it may pave the way for substantial funding at a food program later date, according to college president C. Nelson Grote.

The project will make technical information discovered through federal research more available to business and industry.

The community college would serve as a pipeline for the "technology transfer

Ronald Griffith, dean of Schoolcraft's community services, last week at a study session described the school's role as a conduit

"THE KEY word here is technology transfer. The small business person, and some of the smaller firms in industry, have not taken advantage of the knowledge available to short circuit design problems

The community college would be the mechanism to get the information into Michigan. We would also be the first in line to take advantage of the information.

If Schoolcraft decides to accept the grant, it would join a network of other community colleges in southeastern Michigan and the "wholesaler" in the operation, an Ann Arbor-based thinktank called ERIM (Environmental Research Institute of Michigan).

Griffith said ERIM has a history of working with federal agencies, particularly those concerned with federal research and development. It would offer "staff and facilities that provide an impressive local resource for technical assistance and contacts with

SC child care center given first license

The Schoolcraft College child care center has received its first provisional certificate of approval from the Michigan Department of Social Services under a new state law.

While the center has been open a number of years, licensure was not required previously because the law had waived the requirement for educational institutions

Schoolcraft's center was inspected and reviewed by the State Department of Public Health and fire marshal. The certificate will be in effect for six months. When it expires, the center will be reviewed, and the college then anticipates receiving a twoyear license

The center is supervised by Marilyn Petoskey. It can accommodate up to 23 children ages three to five at one time, and presently serves almost 100 children each week. It is open during the fall, winter and spring. Family registration is $5 each semester and $2.50 in the spring, and there is a 60cent hourly charge for each child.

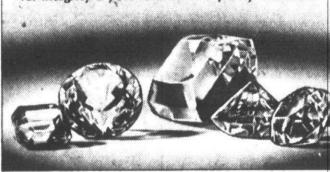

Established by vice president Edward V. McNally, the center is a service of the student affairs division of the college. Ms. Petoskey is assisted part-time by Nancy Michalak and four students. Jeanette Kniel and Carole Minear of Livonia and Barbara McCulloch and Christopher Leger of Children participate in physical activities such as climbing, tumbling and block building as well as arts and crafts activities. An outdoor swing set was recently donated to the center and Ms. Petoskey hopes to acquire additional outdoor equipment in the fu-

The Stroller:

Life without energy

When President Jimmy Carter took to the air waves the other night to sound a warning that our nation may be without energy by 1980, he caused a lot of evebrow lifting.

One of the younger generation, on hearing the warning and fearing the worst, asked, "My Gad, what will we do? How can we get along without gas and electricity'

Before anyone could answer, he continued. Just think what that means. We wouldn't have radio or television. We would have no lights and what would we do for heat

Then, turning to The Stroller, who is many years his senior, the young lad asked. "Just what will we do? He seemed frustrated just at the thought.

Well, for the benefit of the other young folks in the present generation. even if we do run out of energy such as gas and oil-and that means gasoline, too-things won't be as bad as they might seem. In fact some things might even be more enjoyable.

When The Stroller was a young lad we lacked many of the things we have

WHEN WE were told, along about the turn of the century, that the day was not far away when we could have a little box in our home that would bring us the voices of people giving us the news of the day, we listened in dis-

Finally, it came. It was the strangest thing. When the little machine was turned on, folks not only listened but sat and watched it. Imagine what folks would think today if you told them you were going home to watch radio.

Now, we not only have radio in our homes, but in our autos. The world is brought right to our seat at the steering wheel while going along the high-

Before radio we had music in the home. But it was from what we called the talking machine. It was a Victrola that played records and you had to wind up the spring with each playing.

At the same time we had kerosene lamps—the forerunner of the electric light. It was the duty of the young folks in each home to see that the lamps were filled with the fuel and each Saturday time was taken out to trim the wicks.

And automobiles. They were for the rich. The rest of us walked. We walked to school. We walked to the neighborhood grocery store (there were no supermarkets) and we walked to church regardless of how far it was or the weather.

The Stroller well recalls one Sunday morning when, about a half mile from home, he got stuck in the snow drifts. It was a precarious moment, for at the time he had a perfect attendance record in Sunday school and he was afraid he would miss. Fortunately, he was rescued in time and his record remained intact.

THEN ALONG came television and our entire lives changed. People now sit at home and watch the entertainment on the screen and watch events almost as they happen. The news not only comes to your door, but football and baseball games are played in living color right in your living room.

COPYRIGHT 1977, SUPERX DRUGS

With all this, the old-time neighborhood visits passed from the scene. The old-time poker and pinochle clubs that were the highlights of entertainment, vanished. Everyone remained home and watched television. Having the pictures come into your home also did away away with conversation. In the days before the tube, families used to sit around after a meal and chat during the evening. It was fun talking with your parents. These chats are gone now.

V STRAWBERRIES BY THE BARRELFUL WE'VE GOT THE BARRELS AND THE EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES!

Strawberries are just about everybody's favorite small fruit, yet if you want the real mouth-watering strawberries are the real thing. This doesn't mean you need a large garden patch or even several 20 foot rows in order to produce a harvest-you can grow a respectable crop in a very small area. And as a matter of fact, you can grow them in a BARREL OR WOODEN TUB. There is nothing really new about these methods—people have been growing strawberries in barrels for ages in Europe and, to

You can even grow a crop on a small apartment terrace, provided you have plenty of sun and water and feed your plants regularly. Early spring is the best time to set in a crop of strawberry plants. There are some fine new varieties of repeat-cropping strawberries that give more than one harvest a season. Strawberries are perennial plants, so they will last for years. And you can root baby plants Further, even between harvest, strawberry planters are decorative assets to your garden.

BARREL and TUBS: A WOODEN BARREL IS BEST, for a metal one is likely to heat up too much in summer's sun and this is bad for plant roots. You can use an old barrel except one that contained pickles, vinegar or sauerkraut. Old barrels are obtainable in a hardware store or shop catering to home-made wine hobbyists, such as American Hardware. Before you use an old one, scrub out the interior with a stiff scrubbing brush and two or three washings of strong detergent, then rinse well. (Salt or other materials might have been in it that will kill plant roots). Blore a row of 1½ inch holes 6 inches up from the bottom, spacing them 6 to 8 inches apart. Measure first and make a mark where the center of each hole will be, so they will be evenly spaced, for the barrel circumference changes on each row. Make a second row about 6 inches above the first, then a third row, and so on til you reach 4 to 6 inches from the top. Stagger each row of holes so that they center between those of the

In the bottom, bore % inch holes for drainage—eight to 16, according to the size of the barrel or tub. Then roll the barrel to its permanent site and set it up on three or four bricks to keep it off the ground. Filled with soil, barrels get too heavy to move easily. Cover the bottom-with a layer of coarse gravel 3 inches deep. On the top of the gravel center a fall 1 pound coffee can with both top and bottom removed and fill it with gravel or sand. Then fill the space around it with soil, gravel or sand. Then fill the space around it with soil, packing it down till it reaches about the center of the Trim the roots of the strawberry plants (see sketch) and remove all dead or yellowed leaves.

leaving three to six healthy ones. Working from inside the barrel, plant one strawberry plant in each hole till the junction of roots and crown barely reaches the inside of the barrel. Place each plant near the top of its hole to allow for settling of the soil. Spread roots fan-wise, pack soil over them till a few minutes, then with a gentle twisting motion, lift the coffee can until its bottom nearly reaches the level of the soil. Refill the can with sand or gravel, then pack soil around it as before. Plant a row of strawberry plants in the holes at that level. Proceed with planting one row at a time, lifting the can and filling it. When the can top is level with the barrel top, leave the can in place and do not fill the top 4 to 6 inches with gravel.

The sketch of the cut-out barrel shows the column of gravel that has been created through the center of the soil. This will be the place for watering, a kind of "watering column." If you like, you can plant a colorful annual plant in a pot that fits into the can, removing it when watering is needed. Plant a row of strawberries 8 inches part in the top of the barrel

This letter is in reference to my motion to postpone the April 23 bond election until the board of education's regular June election. This action was taken for three reasons:

• It was my position that additional information was required (in the form of board action) before voting on the

• It was my hope that a resolution to delay might result in swifter decision making by the board.

• It was my feeling that there was insufficient time to supply the electorate with adequate information on which to base a positive decision.

As far as reasons one and two are concerned, the board of education has taken action on: 45-15, the design of the new facilities, the possible construction of a new high school, and the establishment of an attendance boundary committee.

Yet to be acted upon are alternative plans for 1977-78 if the bond issue or millage request (or both) are defeated. Both plans have veen discussed extensively, but as yet no formal action has been taken.

Given the present body of information, I am now fully prepared to vote in favor of the bond issue. A delay in a ves vote by the electorate will only produce more over-crowding, more bussing, more disruption, andi in my opinion, reduced student achievement and reduced property values.

The one point which does deserve consideration is the necessity of providing the electorate with sufficient information on which to make a deci-

As to whether a plan exists to accomplish this, you are cordially invited to attend the election kick-off to be held on March 28 at Plymouth Canton High School.

I can assure you the board has spent more than 100 hours studying the complexities of the bond issue. It is my hope that each citizen will take the necessary time to read the information provided and make a decision he or she can live with.

Dropout tells problems at Salem, Canton high

I have been reading the articles about attendance problems at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools. As a dropout I would like to say how it really is at the

I don't feel absenteeism is the parents' fault. I have seen parents try to get kids to their classes but they cannot follow them all day and walk them to their classes.

My parents busted their backs to try to get me to my classes. My mom made out reports and gave them to my teachers to fill out. All they had to do was write ves or no answers to a couple of questions and write down the number of times I had not been in class. She could not even get a 20 per cent cooperation.

The principal of Salem and my counselor said they would make sure the teachers filled them out. She still didn't get very many of those reports. I was put on structured schedulingthat is where I had to be at a certain place all through the day and get my schedule signed by the teacher in charge. The teachers got mad when I asked them to sign and told me to forge their names.

Aly counselor kept asking me to see the school psychologist so I finally did. The psychologist was real nice when my mom was there but as soon as she left he said that it was my parents' fault. That made me mad and I told him that it wasn't their fault, it was mine. I am responsible for my

I never went to see him again. I know for a fact that he told other kids the same thing, and they agreed so they didn't have to blame themselves

It is a cop out for the kids. Every single one of those kids at the high schools are old enough to be responsible for their own actions. They aren't little kids anymore. I don't think it is a bit fair to blame the parents. I am sure there are some parents who don't care but I'm just as sure that there are more parents who do care but cannot get the school to

WHY DO the kids skip? The kids skip because it is so easy.

CHEEREDIN LESS TO THE CONTROL OF THE

Nobody at the school cares if you are in class. My area coordinator, my counselor and my teachers would ask me if I had been to any of my classes and I would say no. That was the end of it. They didn't do anyting to see that I was reported or suspended. The faculty just doesn't care.

The kids also skip because they would much rather be with their friends than sitting in a classroom. The modular scheduling just makes it easier to skip because no one is going to stop you in the hall and ask why you aren't in class.

I feel that if they do away with modular scheduling and have all day school where there is no free time and strict discipline, the attendence problem would stop being such a big problem. It also would do some good to make sure that anybody who doesn't belong at the schools are kept off school property.

The strict discipline also would help to stop the filthy language between the teachers and students. I think that nobody should be allowed in the halls at anytime. If this was to be done it would stop the free flow of drugs in the schools that are ruining a lot of our lives. It also would stop the sex in Salem and Canton aren't schools. they are the filth and grim that drag us down. All I saw at that school was filthy language, kids out of their heads from drugs or booze, and free open sex.

This is what's going on at the high schools. This is why we, today's teenagers, are so disgusting. I am very disappointed and disgusted with the way the high schools are run. If the school had been on a strict schedule where there was no free time, except for lunch, and very strict discipline. I would still be in school today. So many other kids are dropping out because of the school's conditions.

A dropout getting school through the mail and loving it too, no thanks to Salem and Canton Settle at what price?

This is intended to further clarify the position of the Plymouth Education Association in regard to recently publicized plans to expand the 45-15-ESY program beyond the confines of Miller School.

Further expansion and implementation of this concept by unilateral dictate of the board of education and central administration is clearly in violation of the contract under which Plymouth teachers are now working and are expected to continue working pending ratification of a new master agreement.

Attempts by the board of education and administration to ignore various aspects of this legal document exemplify a flagrant abuse of power and authority. The dictatorial tone with which these plans are being outlined to the community displays lack of discretion, empathy and insight to the desires, apprehensions and support of parents and all other taxpayers.

In addition, the persistently imperious tones emanating from the policy makers and implementers are certainly not conducive to restoring the harmonious relationship between the professionals and the managers which this school district and community once enjoyed.

The PEA negotiating team has bargained in good faith for nearly a year to reach agreement on a new contract which would be fair and equitable for both parties.

THE POWER BROKERS who now control the Plymouth Schools are formulating and attempting to enforce policies which increasingly lose sight of the fact that the children of this community depend upon receiving quality education through daily contact with teachers who have real, just and ongoing needs, economic and oth-

These needs are being blatantly sidestepped by design, complicity with other school districts, teacher supply and demand in today's job market, and other methods which corrupt the negotiating process.

The PEA is accused of demanding "all of the pie." Meanwhile, administrative reshuffling and additions of doubtful value continue unabated coupled with incredibly unrealistic salary increases for top echelon man-

It is an unwritten priority of the board of education that teachers "give, give, give" (or resign) in order that administrators may proportionately "Take, take, take?" Is the cry for teacher accountability to everyone intended to balance board of education and administrator accountability to no one?

It is a strange and ludicrous paradox that while the professional teachers are constantly subjugated to the whims of omniscient school boards who deride just goals and objectives as "money hungry," "self-serving,"

THESE SAME professionals are frantically sought after when the socalled leadership is in pressing and frequent need of large numbers of competent, accessible people to provice necessary communication skills, "mend the fences" destroyed by inept board members and administrators, and sell millage and bond issues.

Plymouth teachers do care about children-yours and ours. The primary goal of your teachers is that of providing an educational opportunity for each and every child that is second to none. It has always been so, and as professional educators, we would subscribe to nothing less.

However, we ask-at what eventual price, and with what motivation, does the board of education and administration continue their cavalier course of disdain, disregard and obvious callousness toward legitimate teacher needs, contractual as well as the more tangible demands in hundreds of classrooms daily.

Editor:

I cannot help but respond to the rather glib effort of Annalee Mathes to equate her own prejudices with the public good. The national League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan organization, performs a public service-informing. The local chapter, headed by Ms. Mathes, is more interested in the business of selling. It has in fact become a highly politicized organization, serving on the interests of our own brand of fat cat.

Open meetings challenge officials' attitudes

Many public officials who bitterly (if quietly) fought the state's new Open Meetings Act are now saying the new law, which takes effect April 1, will have little effect on them. They're wrong.

The Open Meetings Act, though not a model piece of legislation, nevertheless does make some fundamental changes in the way policymaking boards, commissions and councils in state and local government operate.

The big change must be in the attitudes local officials have toward the public. "Trust us good of" boys" is the song of the past. Even the lawyers to whom our officials turn for advice haven't grasped that elemental fact

There are three basic changes in the way governing bodies will have to operate

UNDER THE OLD system, closed meetingseuphemistically called "executive sessions."were a way of life. A board simply didn't discuss certain subjects in public, and that was that.

The new law allows closed meetings on certain limited topics, but there must be a two-thirds roll call vote of the board in order to close the meet-

That's not all: The purpose(s) for which the meeting is closed must be stated in the minutes. On top of that, the board must keep for 366 days minutes of what occurred at the closed meeting. A judge can require that the minutes be made public if this law is invoked in court.

The whole idea is to make our leaders think twice before closing a meeting. They should now ask themselves: "Is this secrecy really necessary?" If they don't reflect on the need for secrecv. then voters and reporters should start challenging them.

It's significant that the new law provides: Nothing in this act shall prohibit a public body from adopting . . . a greater degree of openness relative to meetings of public bodies than the standards provided for in this act."

THE NEW LAW provides governments with fewer excuses for closed door meetings

CHECKER CHECKER CONTRACTOR CONTRA

In the past, they closed the door for discussions of employee and student discipline cases. The doors may still be closed now-but only at the request of the employee or student.

Meetings may be closed for discussions of collective bargaining, purchase and lease of real estate and consultations with an attorney on pending liti-

Again, we point out that closing the door should never be automatic. The intent of the law is that public officials stop and really think about whether secrecy is necessary. Often they could decide that their past secrecy was anti-public and even paranoid. Secrecy should no longer be a way of life in our local governments

FINALLY, THE NEW law has teeth

For a first offense of intentional violation, a public official may be fined up to $1,000. For a second offense within the same term of office, the official may be fined up to $2,000 and imprisoned for up to a year.

Moreover, it will be possible for the official to be personally liable for actual and exemplary damages of up to $500.

The fly in the ointment is that the people can't always tell if their government officials are doing bad things if the officials meet in secret. It will take a lot of close watching to make openness in government a reality

We in the newspaper business, as guardians of the public trust, realize we have prime responsibility for keeping watch over our officials. We will do our best.

Should man bite hot dog?

This editorial is being written by a person who enjoys nothing better than a coney island hot dog dripping with spicy chili and oozing with onions.

So don't write this article off as the rantings of a health food fanatic

It's just that the statewide concern about eating milk and meat products—in light of the PBB contamination controversy—is enough to even make someone with an iron stomach think twice before biting that dog or burger.

Dr. Richard Copeland, chief chemical analyst at the Environmental Research Group (ERG) in Ann Arbor, told the Observer & Eccentric last week that he has found no detectable trace of PBB in meat or milk taken from groceries in the past year. The contamination occurred almost entirely in 1973 and '74, he claims. That's reassuring in part, but the demand for food safety should not PBB IS ALREADY in our bodies. Because it is a sturdy chemical, it is likely to remain there for the rest of our lives.

Some people use the ostrich technique in assessing articles about PBB, and now. PCP, a wood preservative that has entered the food chain. These persons calm justified fears by calling the whole food contamination controversy a "media

They argue that the whole issue is an excuse to sell newspapers. Two years ago it was Watergate. last year it was PBB and now it's PCP. "Who cares what the scientists say," said one cynic last week. We all should care about food safety. Traces of PBB, PCP, and PCB (polychlorinated biphenol) have been identified in meat samples examined by Dr. Copeland. Even though DDT was banned more than five years ago. Dr. Copeland says he still finds traces of DDE, a DDT by-product, in meat

Who's guilty for the intentional and unintentional contamination of food?

Dr. Copeland claims "we have no one to blame but ourselves" for demanding chemical preservatives that prolong the shelf life of a food but may shorten our own lives. Copeland's claim is questionable. Consumers may be accessories to the national crime of poor nutrition but few of us are involved in the busi-

We're not the ones who decided more people would enjoy brushing with "hexo, hexo, hexoclorophine," as the jingle promoted.

How many meat eaters suggested that cattle breeders outght to start feeding their herds with hormone injections called "steroids.

IF CONSUMERS carry any guilt, it's for buying these products without squawking. It's for gobbl-, ing up creamfilled cupcakes and eating lunchmeat of questionable origin on bread that stays "fresh" for three weeks.

For every tragic mistake such as the Nutrimaster-Firemaster mixup that put poison in our food chain, there are chemicals deliberately added to

Let's let food companies know we don't want chemically induced flavor enhancers and preservatives. When we buy a canned ham we don't want it pumped up with water and chemicals.

The wisdom gap

It used to be said that an intellectual was some one who had all the common sense educated out of his head. Oakland University has come up with

It's a course called Remedial Wisdom. A general education course, with the catalog moniker of NCC 321. Remedial Wisdom is described as "an attempt to confront the student with the totality of problems facing an educated person today and explore the various attempts being made to solve

It is open to seniors, and 13 of the 1,550 persons in that august group at OU are currently taking Remedial Wisdom. The rest we may expect to be good workers and do as they're told.

Suspects plead guilty anyway

There's no savings with plea bargaining

What's plea bargaining?

Listen to Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson, and you'll conclude it's immoral, unlawful, and fattening. Listen to the harrassed judges and prosecuting attorneys, and you'll find it's the only expedient to keeping up with the work load in the courts.

Plea bargaining is the plactice of defense lawyers negotiating with prosecutors to reduce the original charge (say, murder) in order to get a guilty plea to to a lesser charge (say, manslaughter). This eliminates the need for a lengthy trial.

Opponents say that the practice corrodes the integrity of the criminal justice system, since it does not punish criminals for the crime they actually commit and makes the courts little more than a forum in which lawyers negotiate the level of the charge.

Supporters say that the courts are already so overloaded that without plea bargaining the backlog of untried cases would become impossible.

PLEA BARGAINING came home to the suburbs this week in two ways

• Farmington District Judge Michael Hand took a call last Friday at 5 p.m. from an official at Detroit Recorders Court, one of the most heavily overloaded courts in the state. "You are to report to the court at 9 a.m. on Monday," the official said, with the weight of the state supreme court's order to promptly reduce the Recorders Court backlog behind him. "I'll be there." Hand replied. and that's where he is this week.

• Word recently seeped out that the Wayne County prosecutor's staff has been quietly refusing to plea bargain with defendants charged with armed robbery. Reason for the secrecy was to avoid criticism that refusal to plea bargain would clog the courts with long trials. But a review completed last week shows that most armed robbery suspects plead guilty to the original charge anyway, even though it means a certain prison term.

"We compared the period from December 1976 through February 1977 with the same period last year, and found that the number of armed robbery defendants going to trial hardly changed at all," said Chief Assistant Prosecutor Dominick Carnovale.

THIS EVIDENCE is extremely important. It prevails against the main argument for plea bargaining as an essential, if uncomfortable, expedient to quick administration of justice.

No doubt evidence from just armed robbery cases is inadequate to make a generalization that banning plea bargaining would do little to inObservation Point crease the number of jury trials. But the numbers are suggestive that all the sound and fury produced by plea bargaining proponents may not stand up under scrutiny.

What I don't understand is why nobody ever thought to test the idea until now

SOME JUDGES do make the argument that not all cases of plea bargaining are wrong. Some warrants written in haste are "over-written! from the start, and as evidence comes in they need to be "written down" to make the charge fit the facts.

Some cases—such as a man with an unblemished driving record who is charged with drunken driving may require a fairness test which takes individual circumstances into account when reducing the original charge.

Both these methods of reducing an original charge are not, strictly speaking, plea bargaining Further, they can be arranged at the arraignment or preliminary examination rather than waiting for the start of a full-blown trial

My own view is that plea bargaining has no ar gument for it other than expediency—and that ar gument is now under real question. Systems should be worked out to allow inappropriate warrants to be amended or charges reduced in individual cases, but plea bargaining is inherently wrong and should be severely curtailed

Quest for people's rights threatens majority rule in U.S.

Abraham Lincoln hoped that "government of the people, by the people and for the people." would not perish from this earth.

The founding fathers of our nation apparently did not totally agree with Lincoln when they wrote the constitution because they severely limited the voice of the people.

They created three branches of government: the legislative, the judicial and the executive IN THE ORIGINAL constitution, half of the legislature was designated for election by popular vote-the house of representatives. The other half, the senate, was elected by state legislatures. Later, by consitutional amendment, this was put in the hands of the people, but not The federal judiciary is appointed by the president with the advice and consent of the senate. The people have no say about who serves or who should serve in this important branch. The chief executive, or president, of course, is elected by the electoral college. I have in frustration discussed this many times before, but very few seem to want to do anything about giving this prerogative to the people. MAYBE OUR FOREFATHERS were correct in not entirely trusting the people. Our country grew and prospered when popular input was rejected. But this is not what America is all about. We pride ourselves on our freedom and self-govern-

During the 200 years of our country's existence, we have moved more to Lincoln's view than that of the original founding fathers.

THE QUESTION IS: Has the pendulum swung so far, in terms of our quest for people's rights, that we may destroy the institution we call the United States government?

When our country was founded we were not a democracy (and really still aren't one) because our president was not elected by the people. We were and are a republic

We work for majority rule by the people, not government by a few of special class or birthright. Today, we are ruled by the wishes of the mi nority in our zeal for protecting people's rights. What is worse is that our government is run by special-interest groups because they are organize ed, instead of the people who, in general, are apathetic and uninterested. I AM WRITING this column in the nation's capital. As I look out my window, I am awed by the beautiful edifices surrounding me. This morning I met a man named Andrew J Biemiller. Several congressmen have told me that he is the most powerful man in Washington today and he runs our congress.

Who is he? He is the director of the legislative department of the AFL-CIO. IF HE WERE chairman of General Motors it

Time voters wake up

Editor:

It's about time that all of us here in Plymouth Township speak up, show up, and vote down the increase in taxes coming up

I'm sick and tired of hearing sob stories about how our children will lose out if the millage does not pass. If all of us, with or without children, unanimously vote down any tax increase put before us, the board of education and township will get the message.

Since when are we supposed to pick up the tab for a bunch of ill-managed managers and the like? I personally think we need some business-minded, experienced people to run this township and board of education

Just because someone has held an office for one or more years does not qualify them as experts in their position. But, year in and year out, all we hear around election time-outside of promises that are never kept-is how long and how sincere these so-called officials have been with us and how they have looked after our best inter-

To all of this I say "BUNK!" They are only playing on our sympathy. and like lost sheep we follow right along behind them

The other aspect of voting on a tax or millage increase is the confusing wording in which a proposal is written. There again, folks, our swift officials keep on trying to find a way to trick us into voting for one thing and getting the other

A prime example of this is one of our last increases we voted on. If all of you remember, we had to vote yes to defeat a millage increase. To me this does not make any sense. If they would be forthright and honest and just simply say. "Vote yes if you want an increase and no if you don't," it would be a whole lot easier on every-

But let's face it, this will never happen. At least it hasn't yet. I'll be anxious to see how the wording will be on our upcoming millage tax.

I really think it's about time all of us exercise our right to vote. All of you reading this letter who can't make it to the polls, please obtain an absentee ballot now or forever hold mated between $1,700-1,800. Take the lower figure and multiply it by 30 years and it's $51,000. And that's without any increases. Multiply that by the number of other taxpayers, and it's really pathetic. You tell us, officials, where is it all

I like open classrooms

The letter from H. Sue Mills and R.C. Mills entitled "Modular scheduling isn't for everyone" has prompted me to respond.

I am also a teacher and my husband is a high school graduate with no college, so we, too, come from different backgrounds. However, we are very interested in what we feel is good for kids.

I wish Mr. and Mrs. Mills had stated their definition of open schools. Before moving to Canton, our children attended an "open school.

The physical plant itself is an open space structure which facilitates multi-age grouping of students and team teaching.

We were unfamiliar with this style of education but we are very much in favor of it because the program offered to the children is individualized. Children are individuals and, as such, have different learning styles. The open-spaced school my children attended was as structured as any traditional classroom I have been in.

My biggest regret since moving to Canton is that my children are not offered a program which meets their individual needs. I prefer a program which has two or three grade levels of children working together with two or three teachers for a three-year period of time

I feel this best meets the needs of the child. He or she becomes comfortable with the teachers and the kids and they in turn become comfortable with him or her.

AS FOR UNIFORM report forms throughout the district, perhaps there is a need, but let's have a report form that spells out specifically what the child is working on and how he is or is-not mastering specific objectives.

Furthermore, if children are helped to become responsible for their actions and directed in making rational decisions, it seems to me that we wouldn't have the problems we do have accepting modular scheduling in the high schools.

You don't take a child who is told what to study and when to study it for 10 years and then instantly expect him to make responsible decisions and-or choices about his education. The decision-making starts in kinder-

Open classrooms? I support them. Team teaching? I support it. Multiage grouping of children? I like it. 45-15? I support this also. I ,too, am a taxpayer. I, too, would like to have the most for my tax dollar and I support the Plymouth-Canton Community

GS leaders protest ERA endorsement

A Garden City Girl Scout leader is resigning her post as heighborhood chairman and four others in Livonia have called a protest meeting in the wake of their organization's top-level endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

Diane Raleigh, chairman of Neighborhood 45 in Garden City, told leaders in her neighborhood last week she was writing a letter of resignation after seven years as a Girl Scout lead-

In Livonia, Neighborhood 52 council delegates Carol Rogman and Rita Dahn, along with troop organizer Carol Skamiera and a former neighborhood chairman Marie McGee scheduled a meeting at 9 a.m. next Tuesday in Mt. Hope Congregational Church on Schoolcraft to draft a written protest.

Both actions came after the leaders were informed in neighborhood meetings that the Metropolitan Detroit Council of Girl Scouts had decided to put its stamp of approval on earlier action by the Girl Scouts National Board to support ERA. If ratified, the constitutional amendment would bar discrimination based on sex.

The local women said they were told the action would be announce officially, complete with a statement from the Detroit council president, in the April issue of Knapsack, the council's monthly newsletter.

MRS. RALEIGH and the Livonia women all insisted they were acting because they felt it was wrong for the Girl Scout organization to get involved in a political issue and because they had not been consulted before the Detroit council acted.

"It's the principle," said the Garden City leader. "The council did wrong in endorsing a political issuethat's never been done before.

As to her personal opinion of ERA, Mrs. Raleigh said she finds "there's both good and bad." Her quarrel, she added, is with the organization throwing its prestige behind the issue without consulting membership "Neighborhood voting delegates weren't told of the decision." Mrs. Raleigh added. "We should have

She said she didn't know whether there would be widespread resigna-

"In my neighborhood," she explained, "most of the leaders don't like it, but they are caught in the middle They have active troops and don't want to drop them.'

THE LIVONIA WOMEN reacted in similar manner, insisting "they could have asked us how we felt."

They said it was the manner of endorsement more than the pros and cons of ERA that led to calling the meeting.

"We agree with the national board that ERA will have an impact on the present and future lives of more than three million members of our organization," said Mrs. McGee.

"That's why, at least at the council level, some attempt should have been made to see how we felt on a public issue of this magnitude

The meeting will explore possible ways of expressing displeasure with the council action.

It will be up to the group to decided the extent of the protest

Invited are chairmen of Livonia's 11 neighborhoods, including two in Westland, as well as service teams, council delegates and leaders and inter- zation that benefits from public ested parents of girls in the approximately 100 troops involved

Mrs. McGee said the action taken might be just a protest or could involve boycotting the April 20 general meeting in Cobo Hall, a session that the Livonia women contend could have been used to put the ERA matter to a vote.

"It's up to the group to decide," she

THE NATIONAL BOARD, in endorsing ERA several weeks ago, announced that the action represented a public statement by its 35 members and does not preclude councils, girls and adult leaders from acting on their individual opinions.

"We certainly intend to exercise that option," the four women said

"At first, we were stunned by the announcement," Mrs. McGee said, "because it appeared to be the kind of political involvement that Girl Scouts normally avoid.

"Our next reaction was one of amazement. The endorsement appeared to be so illogical when you consider that Girl Scouts themselves, at their recent national convention, voted to remain a single-sex organization.

"ERA's ratification almost certainly would wipe out a special exemption we now have under Title IX, the comprehensive federal law which bans sex discrimination by any organi-

The national board's explanation to council presidents noted that the board has at other times spoken out on legislation affecting Girl Scouts nationally, such as postal rates and camp safety.

Esther Hulsing of Plymouth, a member of the board, said she considered the action in line with a decision that the Girl Scout organization should be actively involved in current issues which have an impact on the lives of Jan Griffis, public relations representative for the Detroit council, said there had been some letters and tele phone calls protesting the nationa board's endorsement, "but up to now no one has taken any action.

Dennis Cockrum of Plymouth rehearses for his role of the Mad Hatter in Eastern Michigan's production of "Alice in Wonder" which opens this weekend.

BPW hosts employers

Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club had its annual bosses night party March 21 in the Plymouth Hilton Inn. More than 145 persons gathered for the standing rib roast dinner, music, and to hear guest speaker Ray Lane. The sportscaster had just returned from Florida and a visit at the Tigers spring training camp in Lakeland. He was introduced by BPW president Janet Richwine, a fellow graduate of Mackenzie High School in Detroit. (Staff photo)

'Alice in Wonder' opens Friday at EMU

Dennis Cockrum, son of Denver and Dorothy Cockrum of North Territorial Road in Plymouth Township, has the role of the Mad Hatter in "Alice in Wonder" which opens Friday in Quirk Auditorium at Eastern Michigan Uni-Cockrum, a graduate of Plymouth

Salem High School, is a senior majoring in dramatic arts at EMU. He starred in dramatic productions during his high school years and at Eastern.

The play was adapted from Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" and "Alice Through the Looking Glass" by Virginia Koste of EMU. She'll display her talents as playwright and director in the Theatre of the Young production Friday through Sunday (March 25-27). Curtain-time is 8 p.m. each day with two 2 p.m. matinees on Saturday and Sunday.

Although the TOY company will give five public performances, another 2,000 youngsters will be bussed to Ypsilanti to see the play during school hours. Students in Margo Panko's drama class at Central Middle School are among those who will attend the special showings.

THE TROUPE also will perform for the national convention of the Children's Literature Association which will be held on the EMU campus the same weekend.

"One of our main thrusts in the Theatre of the Young program is to bring to life the great works of literature for children's theatre," said Ms.

She will give a presentation to the convention, "From Page to Stage," describing how to best dramatize a piece of children's literature. Her play will illustrate how she thinks a Carroll fantasy should be done.

She stresses that the play is not solely for youngsters: that it works for all ages. Even the cast members range in age from two 6-year-olds to an actress in her 30s.

Tickets for "Alice in Wonder" are $2.50 for general admission; $2 for EMU students; and $1.50 for students through high school age.

Those wishing more information or reservations can call the Quirk Box Office, 487-1221.

School District, you are a resident of Schoolcraft Community College District. When you start thinking of going back to school and have less than two years or 60 credit hours completed, Schoolcraft is a great place to get started back on your education.

The counselors there are tops and always are willing to help by answering any questions you may have. They do not mind having part-time students, in fact they have a curriculum there called "undecided" which is what I was on at the beginning of my college career.

For mothers with young children the college has an on campus nursery school at a very small cost.

It's a super place to get back in the swing of classes and books and study. There are more of your neighbors attending classes at Schoolcraft than you may realize.

If you have doubts about going to school with young adults of 18. I'll tell you it will give you new insight into the youth of this country. If they're all as great as the ones at Schoolcraft then we're doing fine. Anyway, you'll be seeing a lot of the more mature attending classes then you can imagine.

If it seems like too many years and too many classes, remember everyone starts out with zero and the only way is up from there.

It took me longer then the two years required to transfer to a university and I started out with the zero I've mentioned, but I'm just as old

Reading help is in summer program

Applications are now being accepted for admission to the summer remedial reading program at Madonna Colege, Livonia. The psycho-educational center accepts both elementary and high school students in its five week session which uses an individual approach to improve reading skills.

Since each student is evaluated individually prior to admission, early application is important in the admission process," said Sister Mary Martina, Ph.D., director of the Psycho-Educational Center. Remedial exercises are then prescribed to improve identified learning problems. Evaluations are being conducted now through May

ONE OF OUR young residents, 16year-old Frances Cyburt of Lotz Road, has had a busy schedule lately. She just completed one of the lead rolls of Mericat in the Plymouth Theatre Guild's production "We Have Always Lived in The Castle," is now in rehearsal for her school's play of South Pacific

Frances will be playing the piano as the musical accompaniment for the show. She was asked to step in as a last minute replacement. It meant extra time and practice for her but she accepted the challenge graciously.

The performance is scheduled March 26 and 27 and again on April 2 and 3, at Divine Child in Dearborn.

Her mom Clemie Cyburt has been super busy also. Clemie is this year's president of the Plymouth Theater Guild. She has been actively involved with the guild for 11 years. She win be going to Midland with the group to compete in the Community Theater Association of Michigan's one act play

She also is helping with the wardrobe for the Plymouth Community Arts Council follies "Jest Foolin" which will open April I in the auditorium at Plymouth Salem High School.

She is very proud of the guild and would like to remind us Cantonites that we are part of it. "There are many Canton residents in the group' she states. "Look at me, I live in Canton and I'm president.

Everyone is welcome to join. There are plenty of things to get involved in beyond acting. The people with experience teach those with less expe-

Voyagers send SOS for men

The Voyagers, a singles group that meets in St. Paul Presbyterian Church of Livonia and will hold a dinner dance there at 7 p.m. Friday, is sending out a call for more male members.

The group was organized for singles interested in a discussion-plus-sociability format, has from its beginnings sought a more even balance of sexes to keep diversity in its program.

Organized with the assistance of the Rev Charles Webster associate pastor of the church located on Five Inkster, the Voyagers feature in their twice-monthly meetings discussions led by guest speakers and social events like Friday's potluck dinner-dance.

"We get calls from men," said Jane Arthurs, one of the leaders, "but, though they say they are lonely, they don't seem to show for the meeting the next week'.

"We'd like to reach men who don't see drinks as the main requirement for a good eveningthose who see relationships as important and are not ashmaed to admit it.

Price of the potluck dinner dance, for those who don't bring a passing dish, is $3.75. Those interested in attending should call Dorothy Hayball 261-7832, Jane Arthurs, 525-0183, or St. Paul Church, 422-1470

Cantata Academy to sing

The Cantata Academy, a 36-voice metropolitan area choral group directed by Frederick Bellinger, will present a Palm Sunday concert in Newburg United Methodist Church, Ann Arbor Trail at Levan, at 7 p.m. April 3.

Members of the group all have studied music extensively and many are music teachers. The rooster includes Terry and David Gladstone, directors of the youth choirs at Newburg.

The program will present a variety of music, including several spirituals, two double-choir numbers. "Come Let Us Sing," by Gabrieli and Robert Washburn's Spring Cantata.

Following the performance, the Newburg Youth Choir will host a coffee hour.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. They are available from the church choir members or may be purchased at the door

Catholics to convene for Pastoral Assembly

Over 440 delegates from throughout the six counties of the Archdiocese of Detroit will meet Saturday and Sunday. March 26 and 27, to consult with Cardinal John Dearden and the four assistant bishops at the fourth annual Archdiocesan Pastoral Assembly at Sacred Heart Seminary, Detroit.

"The delegates are able to speak out directly and honestly to give their feelings and opinions," said Mrs. June Shada, a member of St. James Parish, Ferndale, who will serve as moderator. "More important, they know they are being listened to because many recommendations from the previous assemblies have been implemented by the Cardinal.

Mrs. Shada added that the delegates have been elected or appointed from the grass roots level and are a crosssection of Catholics, including laymen and women, priests and religious,

Phillip Tanguay, delegate for the laity for the Archdiocese and executive secretary of the Archdiocesan Pastoral Council, noted the assembly is in keeping with the concept of "shared responsibility" outlined by the Second Vatican Council.

"People from all walks of life come together to surface spiritual and temporal needs as they have observed or experienced them in their parishes and neighborhods," he explained. "The Cardinal is president of the assembly and the delegates make recommendations to him on how the church might respond in a pastoral way to the needs."

Observers are welcome to attend the assembly which will run on Saturday, March 26, from 9 a.m. to 4:50 p.m. and on Sunday, March 27, from 8:45 to 4 p.m. at Sacred Heart Seminary, 2701 Chicago Boulevard, Detroit. For more information on the assembly, telephone the Delegate for the Laity Office, 237-5853.

Double bill of talent on UM-D stage

Nationally-know folk singer Chuck Mitchell will join Buffo, musician, mime and clown, at University of Michigan-Dearborn Recreation Organization Center at 9 p.m. March 25

Buffo combines music, mime, dance, comedy and pathos in his act. He has played many colleges and clubs across the country, including the Raven Gallery in Detroit, Reno Sweeney in New York City, Comedy Store and "Improv" in Los Angeles, and Cellar Door in Washington, D.C.

The late Herb Cohen, owner and director of the Raven, wrote: "In my 14 years of hiring talent, I've had the pleasure of presenting many great artists, but none approach the uniqueness of Buffo or the impact he has on audiences.'

Mitchell, as has Buffo, has performed on the Merv Griffin Show and at collges and clubs across the country. During his sets, he sings and recites pieces by Brecht, T.S. Eliot, Gerard Manley Hopkins, Sandburg, Shakespeare, e.e. cummings, Vonnegutt, and his own work.

Mitchell and Buffo will be doing workshops in UM-D psychology and music classes on the day of the con-

'Disappointed but proud' - Gilles

Rock spikers deserve credit

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

The Plymouth Salem volleyball team lost in the quarterfinal round of the state tournament last Saturday afternoon at Schoolcraft College. But despite this setback, one had to be impressed with the intensity the Rock spikers displayed.

By reaching the quarterfinal round, the Rocks finished as one of the last eight squads left in the state tournament. A setback to Mt. Clemens stymied any thoughts of winning the state title.

Even though it was a disappointing end to a great season, this community can still be proud of the effort the Salem girls gave throughout the season.

It has been a difficult three years for coach Brian Gilles and his players. Gilles took over a two-year volleyball program which had not reached the stability that many had hoped for.

Gilles started with a majority of freshmen and sophomore players in his first year. And as the Rock mentor grew in the knowledge of the sport, so did his players.

An increased number of games on they played this year.

the schedule, plus the addition of two more tournaments, added to the growth of the program.

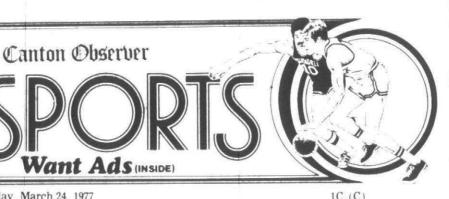

BUT IT was still a struggle for Gilles and his teams. Despite a highly-respected 17-4 Suburban Eight League combined record over the past three years, the Rocks always found one opponent stronger. Salem was frustrated its last two years because it could not win that coveted conference crown.

But things finally gelled this season. As Gilles put it, "We finally matured and played like I thought we could—up to our abilities."

The Rocks earned a tie for that Sub-8 title last month—the first ever for this sport at Salem.

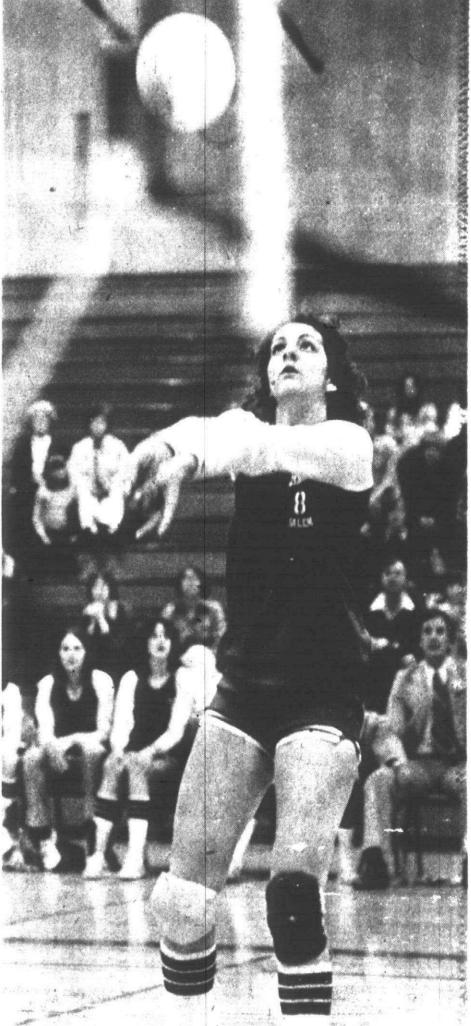

But the winning didn't stop there. The Rocks proved to all fans that they were the best team in this area and one of the top eight squads in the state with the fine tournament showing.

Gilles summed up the season perfectly last Saturday after the quarterfinal loss when he said, "I'm disappointed that we lost, but I couldn't be prouder of these girls for the way they played this year."

Register for skating

Registration for summer figure skating classes will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 26 at the Plymouth Cultural Center. The session will run from July 11 to Sept. 2 at the plymouth Cultural Center. For more information contact the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department at 455-6620.

Eli, Mandle, Hewlett cop Observer honors

By DOUG FUNKE and DENNIS O'CONNOR

The recently-concluded prep basketball campaign produced a few surprises, not the least of which was that no single squad ran roughshod over the others, as has been the case in years

Plymouth Salem again defended its Suburban Eight League title as did Livonia Churchill in the Western Six League Westland John Glenn tied for the Northwest Suburban League championship.

Talent also seemed to balance out.

No one individual seemed to dominate the basketball scene.

Area coaches met recently and selected 15 players for the 1976-77 all-Observer basketball teams. Here are the results:

FIRST TEAM

Tom Bay, Livonia Churchill. Captain of the Chargers this season, Bay averaged 19.3 points per game this season. Her also hauled down 269 rebounds and counted 57 assists.

The senior, a two-year all-Western Six League selection, holds single-season and career scoring records at Churchill of 483 and 781 points, respectively. He is second in career assists and third in steals.

"Tom is a 3.6 student and a fine team leader," said Churchill coach Pat Montagano of the 6-4 forward who sparked the Chargers all the way to the regional finals.

Dave Gilland, Livonia Stevenson.

Most Valuable Player of this year's team and an all-Inter Lakes League choice, Gilland shot at a 50 per cent clip from the field and averaged 12 points per contest.

Also, an aveallant student (4.15)

Also an excellent student (4.15 grade point average on 4.00 scale), Gilland, a senior and two-year starter, came up with 98 assists and 51 steals this season.

"He's a point guard who made our offense go," said Stevenson coach George VanWagoner. "He led our fast break. He works very hard and is dedicated—a great person to work with."

Dan Loacano, Garden City East. A tri-captain of the Panthers, Loacano was a sharpshooter, averaging 19.1 points per game. The three-year letter winner, who played wing, grabbed 111 rebounds during the campaign.

East coach Billy Joe Young said Loacano has been East's best outside shooter while being closely guarded in a decade. "He has excellent ability to get open without the ball," the coach stated.

Dan Diadiun, Westland John Glenn. The 6-3 senior led the Rockets in several categories this season—scoring, 15.3 points per game, rebounding, 11.3 per game and free-throw shooting accuracy, 73 per cent.

Diadiun was Glenn's Most Valuable Player during both his senior and junior seasons. He was co-captain of this year's team.

"Dan played with intensity in all our games," said Glenn coach Gordon Davis. "He was an outstanding leader by performance. He was our key man on offense."

Diadiun carries a 3.7 grade point av-

Tom Ellinghausen, Plymouth Salem. Ellinghausen, who picked up where brother Jim left off last year, led the Rocks in both scoring and rebounding this season. He averaged 19.5 points per outing and collected 149 caroms during the campaign.

Ellinghausen had a streak of eight consecutive games during the season in which he scored 20 or more points

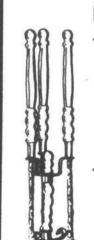

He shot 49.7 per cent from the field and 70.7 per cent from the free-throw line. He was an all-Suburban Eight League pick.

Is there any enthu- worry about passing or siam for wrestling at the shooting with other playmiddle school level? What a silly question.

Anyone who doesn't think that the enthusiasm is present for middle school grapplers must not have attended last Saturday's first annual Plymouth Middle School Invitational Wrestling Tournament at

After watching Plymouth Salem's volleyball team lose in the quarterfinals of the state tournament at Schoolcraft College, I headed over to East Middle School to watch a bit of the tourney.

On my way over, I had second thoughts about this tournament. I really questioned what kind of interest there was in the community.

Tournament organizer Dan Riggs has been fighting for years to get wrestling on this level. He finally got his wish to run a four-school tourney, and he is one to admit that he had some of the same doubts that I had.

I WALKED into the East gym at about noontime—312 hours after the tourney began.

When I reached the door I couldn't believe all the parents and kids crowding the area. There were hundreds of people there.

I had not vet reached the scorer's table when three different parents approached me and asked that I write something about the tourna-

These parents were extremely excited about this weekend that he has the procedings and credited Riggs for all the work put into it.

Among the comments I received were, "My kid's really enjoying this sport. It gives him something to do on his own.

Middle school mat tourney

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

Middle School wrestling was introduced to the Plymouth-Canton comthe first-annual Plymouth Middle School Invitational Wrestling Tournament held throughout the day at East Middle School.

More than 150 seventh and eighth graders from East, West, Central and Pioneer Middle Schools competed in this tournament that proved to be an overwhelming success.

Hundreds of parents were present during the day's action which lasted close to 10 hours.

First, second and third-place ribbons were awarded to grapplers in each weight class. While team points were not accumulated at the meet, it was the general concensus of the officials that Pioneer won the champion-

"The biggest thing in this meet was for the kids to come together and to promote wrestling on this level," said tourney director Dan Riggs. Riggs, a physical education teacher at East and the junior varsity wrestling coach at Plymouth Canton High School, started the idea to have this tournament and organized the meet.

EACH MIDDLE SCHOOL conducted wrestling sessions during physical education classes. After the basic skills and rules of the sport were taught, the schools held separate matches that qualified its wrestlers to compete in the tourney.

"This tournament had some excellent wrestling," Riggs said. "It was exciting because the kids did well. "We (the coaches) all looked at each other and couldn't believe what we were seeing. The style of wrestling was really good. Riggs coached his students from East. Steve Holmgren brought his grapplers over from Pioneer. Tom Williams coached the West participants and Mark LaPointe was in charge of the Central wrestlers. Riggs expressed his thanks to all the coaches for their interest. He also extended thanks to all who helped him run the tournament.

Canton and Salem varsity coaches munity last Saturday afternoon with Dan Chrenko and Ron Krueger were on hand working at the scorer's table. Also helping with activities at the scorer's table was Canton High School student Cathy Verduce and Riggs' student teacher Randy Lee

Hall, 128 Canton Center Road. These meetings are open to the public and

2. All regular and special meetings of the Township Board shall be open to the public and its rules of order shall provide that citizens shall have a reasonable opportunity to be heard. 3. Four members of the Township Board shall be a quorum for the transaction of business at all meetings, but, in the absence of a quorum, 2 members may adjourn any regular or special meeting to a later date. B. Special - Special meetings of the Township Board shall be called by the Township Clerk on the written request of the Supervisor or any 2 members of the Township Board, on at least 24 hours written notice to each member of the Township Board, designating the time, place and purpose of any such meeting and served personally or left at his usual place of residence by the Township Clerk or someone designated by him. Notwithstanding the foregoing requirements for the calling of special meetings, any special meeting of the Township Board at which all members of the said Board are present or have, in writing, waived the requirements that notice be given at least 24 hours prior to the time specified for the holding of such meeting and at which a quorum of the said Board is present, shall be a legal meeting. No business shall be transacted at any special meeting of the Township Board unless the same has been stated in the notice of such meeting. However, if all the members of the said Board are present at any special meeting thereof, then any business which might lawfully come before a regular meeting of the said Board may be transacted at such special

C. Notification - Public notice of the time and place of regular meetings of the Township Board shall be permanently posted in a conspicuous place to be viewed by the public at two locations: the Township Business Offices, and the Township Fire Hall. Whenever possible, notice of special meetings will be posted at those two locations at least 48 hours prior to such meet-

D. Publication of Agenda - Printed agendas shall be made available to the public at the two above mentioned locations by noon Thursday preceding the regular meeting.

E. Supporting Informational Packets - Supporting informational packets will be made available for public inspection in the above mentioned locations by noon Thursday preceding the regular meeting. At the direction of the Township Clerk, certain items of information may be omitted from the public packets, when, in his estimation, such information may be detrimental to the welfare of the Township, or to the rights and privacy of individuals. In these decisions, the Township Clerk will be guided by the resolution of the Township Board as found in the minutes of the meeting of March 23, 1976. F. Agendas and Packets to Board Members - Copies of published agendas and complete informational packets will be delivered to all members of the Township Board by noon Thursday preceding the regular meeting. These agendas and packets will be delivered personally or left at the Board member's usual place of residence or business, by the Township Clerk or someone designated by him.

G. Agenda Cutoff - In order to facilitate the meeting of time requirements regarding publication of agendas and availability of informational packets, all items to be included on the printed agenda will be in the hands of the Township Clerk or the Secretary to the Township Board by noon on the Wednesday prior to publication so far as it is practical.

H. Conduct of Meetings - Meetings of the Canton Township Board will be conducted according to Robert's Rules of Order, except as specifically noted. Recommended references are: Robert's Rules of Order Revised, General Henry M. Robert, William Morrow and Company, Inc., New York, 1971 (Paper); and The Meeting Will Come to Order, Simplified Guidelines to Parliamentary Procedure, Extension Bulletin 294, Cooperative Extension Service, Michigan Extension Service, East Lansing.

natural platforms are nice and look good, but consider applying paint Now that you've bought the house, how do you make it home?
While some individuals believe that the only affordable decor is early orange crate, there are alternatives to that rather rustic look.

cheaper

And those alternatives are not dependent on the size of your bankroll.

Instead, decorating can be a matter of mixing paint, fabric, wood and imagination to create a comfortable setting that doesn't cost a fortune.

It all begins with platform boxes, spiced with color and bedecked with giant, overstuffed pillows. Five or more boxes, either all the same size or in varying heights and widths. Will become your furniture.

Depending on how they are arranged, they can be chairs, tables, or even a sofa.

The platforms are easily made with plywood and some careful carpentry or can be purchased in some lumber stores.

Once you have the boxes and once you've decided how you will use them, the most important facet of decorating is the color scheme of the room.

If you haven't had much experience in mixing colors, it is best to keep the shades neutral, and follow the way mother nature mixes her colors.

If you've had previous experience working with color, then your color options cover the rainbow and beyond.

Once a scheme is selected, hit every fabric sale in town until you find exactly what-you're looking for at a price you can afford.

The fabric, which will be used for pillows, curtains, and possibly, tablecloths, must be heavy duty, it doesn't all have to be only one design.
