New building ban fizzles

The already "over-taxed" sewers in Canton Township are not likely to get any relief, unless board members can come up with a way to slow down subdivision construction

Two months ago, the trustees discussed the possibility of enforcing a moratorim on subdivision platting until more sewers were built. But township attorney Bert Burgoyne says they don't have the legal power to make the moratorium stick. In a voluminous legal report, Burgoyne concluded that the "Charter Township of Canton does not have the power or authority to prohibit or place a moratorium on the approval of all new residential subdivisions effective, until the availability of new sewer capacity in the manner pro-

Although Supervisor Harold Stein has been charged with being "pro growth," it was his idea to try a moratorium. At the time he called the proposed ban a way "to buy time until we formulate some kind of workable master plan and zoning map."

However, the final board vote was 5-2 to send the matter to Burgoyne for his legal opinion.

NOW THAT BURGOYNE has pulled the rug out from under the idea, board members will have to either abide by his decision or plan a

School board weighing possibility of pay raise

By GLENN BUNTING

Although a vote isn't scheduled in the near future, members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education are informally discussing a change in state law which would allow them a pay raise of $19 per meeting.

The school board can now pay themselves up to $30 per meeting, thanks to a recent amendment to the Michigan school code passed by the state legislatur.

Under the new provision, which became effective June 29, school board members may compensate themselves up to $30 a meeting for no more than 52 sessions a year. If the school board did vote for the pay increase, the change would mean a maximum cost of nearly $11,000 to local

The seven members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education now evenly divide $2,000 among themselves each year (SII per meeting). according to Supt. John M. Hoben. The $2,000 figure was approved by voters several years ago and is charged to the general operating fund.

THE ISSUE OF compensation isn't expected to receive light treatment from local board members, some who are for and others against receiving

Tom Yack, vice-president, said he knows of a couple trustees who oppose the measure and anticipates a. close vote if one were to be taken.

Yack himself said he doesn't yet know where he stands on the board compensation issue. Tve got mixed feelings. Sometimes it's difficult to look at other elected officials knowing they receive compensation. No one expects full pay but at my house. I've got four small children and a wife who ought to receive some small tangible benefits from my involvement.

"BUT WE'VE MANAGED without compensation for so long and people already assume we're getting paid. If you bring up the issue, people will say you weren't paid before, why now? People are always looking for excuses to defeat millages other than high taxes and this could be one.

There's certainly no rush to make a decision. I'd like to take a long look at it, have a public hearing and find out where the people are coming from on this." Yack said. Marcia Borowski, new board president, is not nearly as apprehensive as Yack about approving compensation "I am strongly in favor of paying board members because we should never have a situation where only the well-off should be able to serve.

Being a board member has been a real financial drain on me and I don't believe it ought to break someone. Transportation expenses, phone bills. paying a babysitter-it all adds up. I shouldn't have to keep an eye on the clock at every meeting to see how much I owe the babysitter.

Ms. Borowski estimates she spends $7-800 in actual expenses each year. The board is scheduled to meet twice a month, excluding special sessions, which would result in revenue of approximately $750 annually.

HOBEN SAID SUBSIDIZING board members for their efforts "is warranted and long over due." The superintendent pointed out that for all the driving board members do and the expenses some must bear, the proposed pay scale is a pittance.

E.J. McClendon, who served on the school board for four years before stepping down last week, feels compensation is appropriate. I was once against receiving pay on the groundthat the job should be voluntary and it (compensation) produces bad candi dates. But if you look at what being a member does to people's time, some may find it economically impossible

By paying board members, the citazenry can expect some level of accountability, whereas in the past, this wasn't necessarily so. I would just hope there would be some control of the number of meetings, because this board has had a tendency over the years to hold far too many special ses-

Stephen Harper, board treasurer the replaced McClendon said he tell very uneasy about the issue and would probably vote against it. "We've got to come up with a posttion that will satisfy the state requirements and at the same time, not force all board members to accept compensation.

There is a split among board members on exactly what the new state legislation calls for, according to Yack. Some feel it pertains to all meetings, while others feel it excludes workshops. Yack said.

Board members will have plenty of time to settle their differences. Harper said he doesn't expect the issue to surface until late August or early Sep-

The Canton Township Board of Trustees Tuesday denied a platting request for a proposed subdivision, because the developer refused to concede land for a proposed cutoff road between Sheldon and Canton Center.

The board unanimously denied developer Milton Rottenberg's platting request for Hampton Court West Subdivision, proposed for the east side of Canton Center between Warren and Joy. Trustees Lynne Goldsmith and Brian Schwall were absent.

Platting is the process of dividing land into lots.

The Wayne County Road Commission plans eventual construction of a cutoff road from Canton Center to Sheldon through Rottenberg's land to ease traffic congestion near Joy and Canton Center.

According to Township Clerk John Flodin, the road commission must still acquire about seven acres to construct the proposed road. Rottenberg and other landowners would have to

Although Flodin said he would favor condemnation procedings to acquire the needed land, he said the road commission has not taken that route.

"I feel we can't approve this request," Flodin told other board members. "I think construction of that road is critical to our township."

School window vandalism a constant, costly problem

By PATRICK TOUTEY

Along with the epidemic growth that has buffeted the Plymouth-Canton school district has come a rapid increase in vandalism, particularly window breaking.

One school maintenance supervisor says that he spends the first hour of every morning with a broom, sweeping up the broken glass.

Last year, the district paid approximately $5,000 to a private contractor to replace broken school building windows. And the contractor estimates that figure will double for this year.

Plymouth Glass Company, said the bigger bill for window replacement reflects higher installation fees and use of costlier, but hardier, laminated safety glass.

We don't do all the work for the schools. On some of the smaller, less complicated windows, the maintenance staff at the individual buildings makes the repairs.

In addition, he said, his figures did not cover broken bus windows. In any event, it would be hard, he said, to determine whether they were broken by vandals or during the course of regu-

A rock was tossed through the window of Supt. John Hoben's office, and two windows above it were shattered.

Farrand Elementary School in Dick Anderson, manager of Plymouth Township had 27 windows broken in a nine-month period, according to one source.

However, several schools report little or no breaking. We've had only one window shattered in the last year" said Barbara Moran, mainte-

It was interesting, and we got the background and the workings of the entire city. That experience has helped a lot through the years.

Recalling her early experiences, she explained that when the fire alarm was given either of the two girls on the job had to race out to the fire department and write the site of the fire on a large blackboard. In that way, firefighters lost no time before they headed for the blaze.

"Every one around here became so excited that we all went to the fire. The only one we left behind was the city treasurer. But that never will happen again.

forming at all home football games for both Canton and Salem high schools, while the pep bands will be provided for half of the home basketball games.

The above changes, if approved by the board tonight, are scheduled to take effect for the 1977-78 school year. A recommendation has been made to the central administration that for 1978-79 separate marching bands be created "in such a way to enable them to perform singly and as a marching band representing CEP. This would require more money for additional uniforms and overlays for Canton and possibly for some added color" instruments.

Supt. John M. Hoben, however, isn't recommending separate marching bands for 1978-79 at this time. We want to evaluate the changes for the coming year and see how they work before making any recommendations for the following year.

THE BOARD will be discussing what should be done with the $300,000 remaining from the 1974 bond issue.

In almost every case, the original amount budgeted for specific projects has been exceeded in terms of the cost of labor and materials." notes Hoben. "In some cases, such as Gallimore, the original costs budgeted were $29,900-the project today has expenditures of $101.934. A number of un-

The 1974 bond issue was used for three new elementaries, Phase III at the CEP, and other projects.

Hoben said the board could decide to reapportion contingencies and money earned from interest to beef up individual projects vet to be completed, or to complete existing projects and spend the balance on projects within the bond issue where further work could be done

Other projects the board is expected to discuss are a storage area and metered tennis courts at the CEP and roofs and paving projects. The board also might consider petitioning the state for permission to re-allocate funds for new projects, such as air conditioning for schools going on the Extended School Year calendar or for a bus wash rack.

To date, the school district has earned about $1 million interest from the $9.9 million bond issue approved in-1974.

Earl West recalls automobiles sales days on dirt road

By W.W. EDGAR

Looking down Forest Avenue in Plymouth the other afternoon Earl West, the retired auto dealer, said, "You wouldn't believe that this was a dirt road only 30 years ago"

As he spoke, Earl was looking at the building which is now occupied by auto repairmen, and continued, "I ought to know about the street, for it was in that building we conducted the auto dealership.

As he recalled the days when he and his brothers-Bill, Dutch, Joe and Stan-switched from farm equipment to automobiles, he said: "It doesn't seem possible, but it is just 30 years ago that we moved into the building. It wasn't on the Fourth of July, but just a few days later. And we had the big searchlights of those days helping to call attention to the opening.'

While the memories came rolling back, he recalled that the opening was one of the big events of the month in Plymouth.

'It wasn't just one day, the celebration lasted three or four days. We had vaudeville acts, street dancing and all that went with the old time opening day celebrations.

WEST SMILES about it now, but he and his brothers were among the auto dealers in the country who tried desperately to sell the ill-fated Edsel Car-the only Ford that ever was considered a flop on the market.

When the West brothers decided to take an auto dealership, it was to sell the Nash car. This later became the an American Motors product. They followed the Nash with the Edsel and finally took on the Mercury dealership-now located on Ann Arbor Road, just east of Haggerty.

Reviewing his mental picture on the Forest Avenue of 30 years ago, he envisioned again the Cloverdale Dairy of that time and smiled as he told how Herman Backus, former Cloverdale owner, sold ice cream cones with five flavors of cream for a nickel.

"He had special cones made." They had a hole or a pocket at the top and then four smaller ones around the edges, and he put a different flavor in each cup. It was quite a cone. OTHER MERCHANTS on the street included Ezar Penny, whose house was on what is now the Weideman parking lot, and Dick Kimborough, an appliance dealer whose store was later the Stop and Shop, one of the most popular places in the downtown area. The building that was once their pride and joy is still standing and West is hopeful that the day may not be far distant when it will be taken over by some energetic firm that will give it the prestige it once held when Forest Avenue was a dirt street. Many of the merchants of those days have now left the scene. Several have died and Bachus, like West, is retired. But the memory of the old dirt road

This is how the West Brothers dealership looked years ago when Forest Avenue was a dirt road.

A bump shop operated by Dave Geddes now is in business where the West dealership once thrived, Forest is paved, and the remainder of the block developed. (Staff photo)

'Rollercoaster'

Up, down and around thriller

Amusement parks never seemed very amusing to me. Scary? Yes. Amusing? No. 'Rollercoaster' (PG) is a movie for those of us who want the security of being safe combined with the excitement of being scared. It concentrates on the thrills, white knuckles and hold-your-breath aspects of amusement parks.

George Segal, in the kind of low-key role he plays so well, is a safety inspector (Harry Calder) whom everyone tries to ignore. He sports a thin, tight mustache that does nothing to enhance his appearance or prestige. It would be hard to find a more lackluster hero.

Timothy Bottoms, also cast against type, is a fiendish extortionist with the face if a cholrboy. After giving a convincing demonstration of his destructive capability, he threatens to plant bombs on rollercoasters all over the United States, unless park owners kick in $1 million.

Like so many movie villains, he is an evil genius. He has an expert's knowledge of explosives, electronics, engineering, business and police procedures. If some distant, future generation were to reconstruct our history based upon our movies, they might conclude that we were a generation of master criminals, probably with Ph.D.s from M.I.T. or the Harvard Business School.

THEY ALSO might conclude that all the dropouts became law enforcement officers. Richard Widmark plays the Federal agent (Hoyt) in charge of the case. It's a cut-and-dried role, shored up by Widmark's commanding voice and pres-

Hoyt is a fatuous know-it-all who puts down or ignores the humble Calder's suggestions. Hoyt plants dozens of agents and security men in the amusement park to catch the extortionist when he attempts to pick up the million dollars. Each agent stands out like a vegetarian at an ox-roast

All the happy-go-lucky park visitors are in jeans, shorts, tank tops and sport shirts. The inconspicuous Federal agents who mingle with the masses are in dark business suits, white shirts and ties-real swingers.

The big thrill, visually, aurally and tactually, is the rollercoaster ride. The movie camera, apparently fastened to the lead car, captures the upward chug, the sreeching descent and the whiparound curves with all the stomach-churning sensation of the real thing.

The Sensurround sound reinforces the sensation with its big-output speakers strategically placed within the theater. Their volume sound and vibrations reach out for everyone in the audience. The simulation is real enough to give one vertigo or, at least, reason to pause before eating more popcorn.

THE MOVIE HAS its share of deficiencies, especially the character stereotypes, but it also has small, nice touches of humor. This is a quality often absent from melodrama and thrill movies. Calder's ever-failing efforts to quit smoking and his inane conversation with his ex-wife are little human touches that are a welcome respite from the overwhelming impact of the rollercoaster and Sensurround.

In terms of the medium, the photography is particularly pleasing. Not just the rollercoaster sequences, which one expects to be first-rate, but many of the panoramic shots of amusement parks viewed against a gentle background of calliope music are equally effective. Rollercoaster is a fun movie, if you're not averse to noise or heights.

By LEM MESEE If the French have a word for everything. Michigan scientists now have a number.

The state Department, of Natural Resources has a new water quality index (WQI) to express the quality of every river on a scale from zero (low) to 100 (high).

On that scale, it's suprising how many of our rivers rate fairly well. Water with a quality of 50 or less can be considered poor; 51-70 is medium; 71 and up, good.

Naturally, a stream's quality varies throughout the year. What's reported here are aver-

ON THIS SCALE, the Rouge River in western Wayne County had the lowest rating in the state, an overall 51. The Flint River wasn't much better at 53.

The interesting thing is that the Carp River in Marquette County, in our unspoiled upper peninsula, rates an overall 60 but has a low rating for the year of just 39.

Highest rating of 86 went to the Tahquamenon River as it flows into Lake Superior in the UP. Others scoring in the 80s were the Au-Sable at its mouth, the Boardman in Grand Traverse County, the Menominee, the Muskegon, the Presque Isle (Ontonagon), the Sturgeon (Houghton County). Thunder Bay and Whitefish (Delta County). THE HURON to the west o. us got a surprisingly good 77 above Ann Arbor and 75 below Ann us, the Clinton rated 74 above Pontiac and 65 below Pontiac. The Raisin in Monroe County stood at 64.

The WQI was developed by the National Sanitation Foundation in Ann Arbor after scientists and water quality experts across the country were polled on what constitutes good or bad water quality.

The WQI takes into consideration nine different measures., Most important are dissolved oxygen, which is what fish need to breathe, and fecal coliform, which is bacteria from intestines and indicates raw sewage that could contain disease organisms.

Other measures are BOD, for biochemical oxygen demand (organic matter in water that ab-To the near north of sorbs dissolved oxygen), cers start using words like "some" or "a few," you know only a small proportion of anglers are showing up with even satisfactory creeks.

So the report this week said: "One 48-inch, 15-pound muskie was reported taken on a small lure from Woodland Lake (near Brighton). A few northern pike are being taken on live minnows on Ore Lake.'

Incidentally, the Huron River chain of lakes in Livingston County, the Huron's westernmost point, showed up frequently in this week's report, indicating fishing is either pretty good or that DNR officers are checking it more thoroughly.

Some nice largemouth bass are being taken from Woodland and Crooked lakes on lures and night crawlers. Nice bass 15-20 inches were checked taken on crabs from the Huron River.

"Fishermen are having some success on Bishop Lake for bass and bluegills with crawlers and worms.

New store fronts spruce up 'The Trail'

By ELINOR GRAHAM

It soon will be a case of "look to your laurels, Penniman Avenue"; the Ann Arbor Trail business section is undergoing a sprucing up too.

Famous Men's Wear has its new front. Next door, in the building which formerly housed Bonnie Discount. Larry and Diane Janes have been hard at work getting ready for the opening of Gourmet Gallerie. They have seta target of July 29, in time for the annual sidewalk sales. The exterior decorations—both front and parking lot facades-will be real eve-catchers. They were designed by architect and woodcarver Don Hoogenstyn of Traverse City, longtime friend of the Janeses. He carves then entitled "Slim Living."

Are your dreams of short shorts and string bikinis melting in the summer heat because you didn't shed those extra pounds?

Cathy Grieve of Abby Court in Canton turned that dream into reality.

She and a friend, Eva Sears of Westland, lost pounds and inches by participating in a six-day physical fitness event at Camp Ohiyesa near Holly. It was all part of the vital woman program offered by the YMCA.

The camp's purpose was to improve an individul's style of living, concentrating on the cardio-vascular system. Through proper exercise and diet, the heart muscle is strengthened, becoming more efficient and in turn, improving other body functions.

It sounds good, but what does it mean in practical terms for the 65 women who participated? The diet, according to Cathy, was nothing to write home about. It was fat and cholesterol free, designed to clear the arteries.

A TYPICAL DAY at camp began with a wakeup call by the yoga teacher at 7 a.m. Cathy said no one countermanded this instructor for fear they woyld be put in the lotus position and Although refreshed and revitalized. Cathy's first action upon arriving home was to stop at Hillside Inn and eat "everything but the table legs." Fear not, after this minor Tapse she returned to her weight-watchers' diet and is now adding a new pair of shorts to her wardrobe.

NICK AND PAM Alexander are leaving Canton Township today for their new home in New Hampshire. Nick has been appointed district sales manager for North Central Airlines' new Boston to Detroit flight.

Pam, a reservation agent, was given a farewell party by fellow United Airlines workers at Amatos restaurant in Dearborn. She will be taking a break in her career while settling into into a new house located on more than an acre of wooded land in the New Hampshire countryside.

Nick will continue his hobby as a pilot and Pam will continue to tend her houseplants and begin another prize rose garden with the hope of someday opening a florist shop.

They foresee two small problems during the transition. Archie and Mehitabel, the couple's Siamese cats, are poor travelers and have not expressed much enthusiasm for the journey.

Hopefully, the felines will adjust as well as Nick and Pam and we wish them success and friendship in their new adventure.

Thank you.

Dear Mrs. C. In some areas of your life you are able to make decisions without much difficulty. (This is shown by the ending strokes that do not fade, but re-

In your letter you speak of the many changes that have occurred in your life during the past year, and I think you are presently involved in so many decisions that they appear overwhelming to you at this particular

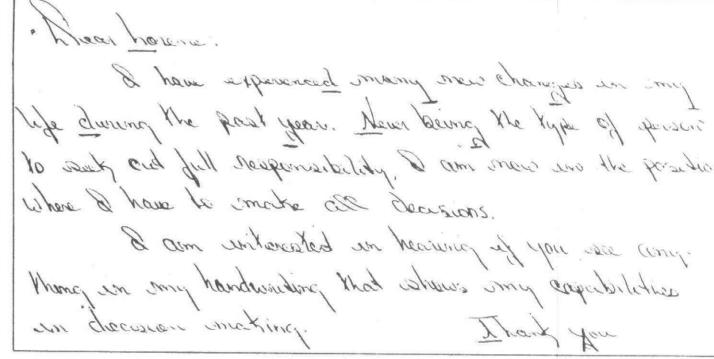

Probably the most salient feature of your handwriting is your very backhand slant. This tells me you are a reserved person, somewhat introverted when in the company of people you do not know well. You do not always need to be surrounded by people, and enjoy time by yourself. You have inner resources and do not rely on others for all of your happiness. (Many of the lower loops are straight sticks with no return stroke up to the baseline.) Several of your capital letters are printed, which suggest an appreciation of beauty, especially nature.

Greek ds are prominent in your handwriting, indicating interest or perhaps talent in the field of literature.

You are a direct person and can get right to the point (absence of beginning strokes on many words).

Women find new horizons

By SHERRY KAHAN

"Hey, it's time for me."

This is a sentence Shirley Emerson likes to hear from men and women. To her it means they've become interested in developing themselves and are starting to grow.

Dr. Emerson spends most of her time as a counselor at Schoolcraft College, talking to those who need academic, vocational or personal advice.

On Wednesdays, she heads for the Women's Resource Center, south of campus, to offer counseling services. While most of her clients there are women, she encourages men to take advantage of the counseling as well as the other resources of the center.

"Women's lib should be people's lib," says Dr. Emerson, who earned her doctorate in counseling at the University of Michigan. "When individuals develop, whether male or female, everyone around is enhanced."

THE MAJORITY of those she meets in individual counseling sessions-in the center or in in a class she leads called New Horizons-are women at the crossroads of their life.

"They have been at home many years," she says. "The last child has gone off to school, and they find time on their hands. They want to start developing themselves

"They may decide to do it by going to school, volunteering or through personal growth experiences. Or they may prefer a job or career. "In the New Horizons classes they start to share experiences with other women. I hear them saying, 'It's nice to find people who feel the same as I do; I thought I was crazy."

Dr. Emerson hopes the class and the counseling will give them the feeling that it's OK to develop them-, selves, and thus help them gain con-

"It's acceptable now for women to be people," she says. "I find that many women have trouble believing that about themselves. They have been trained for a life of service, and too many of them have put themselves in the role of slaves. I don't think men really like a slave. I think they'd like a partner.

"As they get permission to be people, they find they can be a person without stepping on anybody.

MANY OFthese women have turned up at Schoolcraft courses in human potential, transactional analysis and assertiveness training. "We are learning that more and more depends on whether we think we can do something," she stated. "If we think we can't, we'll never accomplish it.'

Dr. Emerson says the study of human sexuality may soon sweep the country as the human potential movement did recently.

The college, which has offered human potential and assertiveness training as part of its community services program, is prepared to give two hours of credit in the fall for courses

In this field. One is called "Human Development"; the other is "Strategies for Life-work Planning

The Women's Resource Center will continue to offer its seminars and workshops. One that will start in the fall, called "Self-guided Career · Search", has been prepared by John Webber, the director of counseling

He will be looking for volunteers in August to serve as leaders for the workshop.

AS A WOMAN who went back to school twice, Dr. Emerson identifies strongly with those who launch themselves into new fields as they approach middle age. When her children were young, she studied for an MA in English. Years later she returned to college once more to become skilled in counseling.

"As an English teacher at Henry Ford Community College, I used to read a lot of student papers," she began. "People put a great deal of themselves and their troubles into their writing. But as an English teacher I could only help them to a certain degree. So I took up counseling.

To these women, who she says are at the crossroads of life, she would offer encouragement about the possibility for success

"It is being done," she maintains. "It does work. There are jobs for middle age women. And no wonder-

The Stroller On Horatio Alger

By W. W. EDGAR

lunch with a member of the legal profession or the law enforcement agencies he can expect the conversation to make most any kind of a turn.

For instance, the other day The Stroller was priviledged to enjoy a dish of soup with former Judge George Bowles, an old friend who has discarded the robes of the bench to return to the practice of law.

We had been chatting about the sad condition in which we find the world today and the fact that the news, both in the newsprints and on the tube. deals mostly with crime-murders, muggings, thievery and the use of knives to the extent that was almost unknown a generation ago.

IN THE MIDST of the discussion the good judge asked a most interesting question:

'Whatever became of the American Story? You know, the story of the poor boys working and striving and finally reaching the top.

For a few seconds no one at the table answered.

Then a portly gent spoke up. "We haven't heard much of this since Horatio Alger died. He sure could steam up the young fellows with his wonderful tales of conquering adversity.'

'That's what I mean," Judge Bowles said. "There seems to be something lacking today and now that you mention Horatio Alger, it is the absence of fellows like him that has helped to bring about the present con-

Any time a fellow sits down to ditions-and we have lost the American story.

The name of Horatio Alger may mean little to the youth of today, but there was a time when every young fellow followed him and his stories from one month to another.

Such fictional tales as "Tom the Bootblack" provided the incentive for the young lads of the time to go and do likewise.

In his novel Horatio had Tom rise from the shoe shine stand to a man of affluence in his community. And each of his novels carried much the same

"Every young fellow was eager to learn to read so he could enjoy Alger's books," our friend the Judge. pointed out.

And while he didn't bluntly blame the present lack of reading ability in the public schools he inferred that there are no magazines or novels today that would cause a student to struggle in class until he mastered the art of reading.

Mention of Horatio Alger brought back many fond memories to The Stroller. He was a devout follower of the Alger tales in his youth. And when they started to pass from the scene there was another called The American Boy that was printed in downtown

The American Boy is best remembered because it was written by our gourmet friend, portly George Pierrot, who came here from the west coast to gain fame, first as an editor, and later as the producer of the Adventure series that attracted thou-

When he left another editor used The American Boy to reach fame and fortune. He was Clarence Buddington Kelland, a reporter on the Detroit sands to the tube several nights each

Kelland attracted nationwide attention with his writings and it wasn't long until he was one of the most prolific writers ever engaged to fill the pages of the Saturday Evening Post, back in the days when it was sold for a nickle and was the most widely read magazine in the country.

"If we had magazines such as that today," one of the remarked, "things would be a lot different. The kids would have an incentive, they would want to master the art of reading and thus eliminate one of the major problems in our schools today. And with that incentive they would want to get ahead, too, and we would have less c

'Today they have things too easy. They are allowed to leave school even thugh they can't read—and they have no incentive to get ahead. Our welfare programs and unemployment and other handouts take care of that."

All agreed and it was further proof that even the chatter over a bowl of soup cam be interesting

NEEDS BARGAIN

Twp. to hear sewer plea

How much responsibility does local government have in paying for and maintaining sewers for private businesses?

That question will be a major issue at the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday.

The meeting will be in the township hall at the corner of Ann Arbor and Lilley roads.

Warren Smith and G. David Whitmore, owners of S&W Hardware and Pilgrim Party Store, respectively, are asking the towship to construct a storm sewer on their property on the southwest corner of Ann Arbor Road at Main Street.

Stanley Jaroh, new owner of the L&D Party Store on Ann Arbor Road at Ridge, has offered to pay for his own sewer but wants the township to accept maintenance and repair responsibility for it upon it's com-

From all preliminary indications, the trustees will turn thumbs down on both requests.

Smith and Whitmore have appeared before the board before asking it to authorize paying the cost of extending the present storm sewer which stops at Ball Street. They, in turn, have offered to pay for the cost of paving about 170 feet of Ball Street.

The township claims that when the original sewer was installed, it was stopped at Ball Street because officials could not get an easement to go on the businesses' private property. Smith says he was out of town at the time and was never asked if he wanted the sewer to run on his land. "If we go on their property and pay for the sewer, it will be a dangerous precedent," said Clerk Helen Richardson. "We made the Clock Restaurant and the other businesses on the other side of Main Street pay for their own sewer. I think Smith and Whitmore should, too. Mrs. Richardson also said there could be some reluctance to approve Jaroh's request because of the size sewer pipe he is planning to install.

"It's pretty small. I think the township could be opening up a can of worms if it accepts dedication."

IN ADDITION, the board will hear a request from Brian Kidston, assistant principal of Central Middle School, to put more sidewalks in the township to cut down on traffic hazards.

Kidston specifically has a complaint about the Ann Arbor Road "corridor," from Sheldon Road east.
