WHAT'S INSIDE CANTON

Gazebo gazing

One of the most pleasant backyards in the area belongs to Mr. and Mrs. McNamara of Penniman Avenue in Plymouth. What better way to enjoy the dog days of summer than sitting in an old-fashioned gazebo. Other features of the yard include a railroad crossing sign and a fire alarm call box. Turn to Page 8A of today's Observer for the story and pictures.

Summer's waning

We hate to be the one to break the news but summer's slipping away fast. The sunflowers are turning to seed and school-aged children are being dragged to the store to be fitted for shoes, pants and dresses. See Page 3A for a story on people who are flocking to local merchants' back-to-school sales.

Walch honored

The Rev. Henry Walch of Plymouth has been honored by the McCormich Theological Seminary for his 50 years in the ministry. Walch commented on the liberalization of the Presbyterian faith; which he says is a far cry from the days when Presbyterians were referred to as "God's frozen people." See Page 11A of today's Observer for the story.

After being formally sworn in as Canton's second chief of police, Walter MacGregor pledged to work for a full-time police department. Clerk John Flodin administered the oath. (Staff photo)

MacGregor sworn in; says millage is crucial

Now in his first week at the helm, Canton's new police chief believes a top priority for the part-time Canton Police Department should be expansion to a full-time force.

Although Walter D. MacGregor was officially sworn in as the township's new police chief Tuesday night, MacGregor said he dove into his new job on Saturday and began assessing needs of the department.

"The police millage has so much to do with it. I really can't say what direction the department should take right now," said MacGregor, referring to a proposition on the Aug. 27 ballot which asks voters to approve a special assessment district for police.

If that vote passes, board members say they'll levy a maximum of two mills ($2 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) for the police.

"If the millage does pass, my primary objective would be expansion to a 24-hour day. We'd start small and increase with demand, but always stay within the budget."

TOWNSHIP BOARD members Tuesday charged MacGregor with establishing rules and regulations for the department and told him to begin thinking about ways the two mills could be spent if the issue is passed by voters.

According to Trustee Eugene Daley, the department's existing rules and regulations are designed for part time reserve police. Regulations for a full-time, certified department are needed, he said.

MacGregor, former police chief for the City of Wayne, said he is impressed with the Canton Police Department and has high hopes for its future. He said he will work a split shift—during evening hours when the police are on the road and during the day when they're not—until the department is expanded to 24-hour patrol.

The chief said he is losing no sleep over board members' 4-3 vote to appoint him, or over allegations that he won the appointment because four board members knew him.

"Everyone has their opinion," he said. "If I don't have the ability to do the job, I expect them to take action against me."

Even the most vocal critic of MacGregor's appointment, Trustee Lynne Goldsmith, says she now supports the new police chief fully. Although Goldsmith favored the appointment of another applicant, she says MacGregor is qualified for the job.

ALTHOUGH MacGREGOR'S experience as police chief is in the urbanized City of Wayne, he expects no problem applying his experience to Canton's semi-rural setting.

"I think serving the public in a police capacity is the same any place," he said. "I think services the people demand are the same."

Asked if he plans a move to Canton, the Wayne resident laughed. "If I pass my one-year probation," he said.

Anchor Inn permit revoked, reinstated

Although the Michigan Liquor Control Commission suspended the Anchor Inn's liquor license last week, the bar continues to operate without interruption.

The bar, located in Pinckney, allegedly served drinks to six Plymouth teenagers—five of whom were killed—shortly before the car they were riding in went out of control and hit a tree in Dexter Township during the early morning hours of July 23.

The suspension, however, was unrelated to the multi-fatility accident.

According to Walter Keck, supervisor of the hearings and appeals division of the liquor control commission, the suspension resulted from charges the bar was not being managed by the people whose names were on the license and from the failure to pay an "additional bar" fee.

The Anchor Inn is divided into two sections: a topless bar and a disco bar. The owners were found guilty of not notifying the commission when the disco bar was added, Keck said. The license, Keck said, was taken away until the owners paid a $250 fine and took over the management of the bar.

"To my knowledge, both of those violations were corrected shortly after the suspension order was issued. By the time our investigators went out to pick up the license, the bar's attorney had an affidavit showing that the fine had been paid and the owners were managing the place.

"I don't think the doors were ever closed. And they probably won't be until after I retire."

The bar has also been charged with four other violations and Commissioner Thomas VanTien will convene a hearing on them Aug. 18. The other charges are: improper conduct (lewd dancing); allowing patrons to take an active part in entertainment; refusal to cooperate with law enforcement officials; and allowing patrons to stay in the bar after the legal closing hour.

In addition, the parents of an 18-year-old youth killed in an automobile accident last year are suing the bar for $500,000. They charge the youth was served drinks there before his death.

"I suspect there will be a number of private law suits against the bar," Keck said, "but they have a tendency to drag out in the courts for a long time."

Leslie Provow seeks trial today

Leslie Provow, now 20, will return this afternoon (Thursday) to seek a new trial in the circuit courtroom where she was given a seven to 15-year prison sentence nearly two years ago.

On Aug. 28, 1975, Mrs. Provow pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of manslaughter, and since then she has been in the women's division of Detroit House of Correction.

This time she has a new attorney—Robert Delaney, of Plymouth, who has been retained by her family. Delaney will ask Judge Thomas Roumell for a new trial and also request that she be freed on bond.

DELANEY WILL contend the Wayne County prosecutor failed to produce critical evidence, and that other relevant evidence produced later wasn't available during Mrs. Provow's hearings.

Mrs. Provow and two others were charged in the Jan. 28, 1975 slaying of Plymouth resident Terry Buchman in Canton Township. Another young man, Lloyd Cash, was beaten.

The bizarre slaying, which shocked the community, occurred after an evening of drinking and taking "acid." Three days later, the defendants were picked up by state troopers in Laramie, Wyo.

Mrs. Provow's husband, Barry, then 26, was found guilty by Judge Roumell after a non-jury trial.

The second defendant, Robert Umney, then 23, went on trial before Judge Horace Gilmore, his defense handled by Delaney.

Before Umney's trial concluded, Mrs. Provow, her defense handled by Gerald Davis of Livonia, entered her no contest plea before Roumell. Two days later, the jury declared Umney innocent.

ROUMELL sentenced Barry Provow to life in prison.

Mrs. Provow could have settled for an appeal. Instead, she hopes a new trial will clear her name.

Schoolcraft may bring new campus to Canton

Schoolcraft College officials are concerned that the school's image in the Plymouth-Canton community is not what it should be, and they are making plans to change it.

"We have a visibility problem," said college President C. Nelson Grote. "I hear residents of Plymouth and Canton feel we are not doing all we can to serve them."

To combat this lack of visibility, the college is planning to offer about 15 classes at the Centennial Educational Park this fall.

According to Ron Griffith, dean of community services, they will be full credit courses in business, math, language and art.

Although this is not the first time Schoolcraft has offered extension courses in the Plymouth area, Grote said the results will be watched very closely. If the response is good enough, there is a possibility the college will build a permanent campus somewhere in the community.

"At this time, it is a future project," said Grote, "but we are aware that Plymouth-Canton is the most rapidly growing area in our district. We are definitely interested in establishing a branch out there."

HOWEVER, EVEN IF the response to the courses is good, there is still the matter of money. Grote said that were a satellite campus to be constructed, the college would have to sell bonds and levy additional millage.

But judging from Schoolcraft's track record at the polls, taxpayers are not all that anxious to see anymore of their money go to the college.

Just last June the voters turned down a .8 operating mill request. And the year before a .53 request was denied.

"Maybe if they promoted a little more activity out here, they'd have better luck on the millage," commented School Supt. John M. Hoben.

"We've got the population out here, but too many people think of it as a Livonia college."

Hoben approached Grote about building a campus on the CEP property. "We've got the land, and I think we should build something, even if it's only a box, to establish a presence."

Future landscapers learn trade

These young architects touch up the entrance to their castle in Edenbrooke Subdivision in Canton. The conversion from a sand took the group of 12 children nearly two full days.

There is a group of future landscapers, ages 6 to 14, serving their apprenticeships in Canton Township these days to fill the waning moments of summer vacation.

A dozen children from four families in the Edenbrooke Subdivision, near Ford and Lilley Roads in Canton, spent most of last weekend converting a pile of dirt for construction use into an artistic sand castle.

Complete with towers, houses, tunnels, entrances, bridgework, plateaus and a Danish flag, the elaborate sand castle took two full days of diligent modeling by the Canton crew to construct.

The life expectancy of the sandhill, however, is less than a week, according to Ed Chevillot, sand castle building inspector and the eldest of the young architects at 14. Because of the threat of thundershowers all this week and the traffic of nearby construction workers running over parts of the hill, the great castle's days are numbered, Chevillot said.

THE YOUNGER ARCHITECTS, Mike Zschunke, 6, and John Chevillot, 7, don't see the writing on the wall concerning the castle's death.

"We hope it lasts a year," John said. "Maybe we can get the workers to cement it," Mike added.

The castle is located on Gloria Drive, in front of a residential lot with only a foundation.

In case of destruction, the developers intend to continue their apprenticeship by taking on an even bigger assignment on the next block, where there lies another sandhill, according to a spokesman for the group.

Other youngsters lending a hand in the project are Pat and Mike Chevillot, Gordie, Eddie, Bobbie and Chris Wurster, Greg Zschunke and Shari and Vicki Klatt.

The group's public relations director, Mike Chevillot, 11, said he thought of waging a media campaign by calling the Observer for the exclusive.

"This is the biggest news to come out of Edenbrooke Subdivision since the latest rummage sale," the PR man said.

Twelve Canton youngsters, ranging from ages 6 to 14, take a break to pose for a picture atop their sandcastle masterpiece. The neighborhood group intends to tackle a bigger project later this week. (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Board ponders chocolate milk

Why chocolate milk? Why white bread? Why 24 two-way radios at $1,000 a crack?

These were some of the stimulating questions asked by members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday before it awarded bids for milk and bakery goods and the purchase of a mobile communications system.

The fun all began when the board was asked to award bids for milk products to the Wilson Farm Dairy.

The contract called for $172,533 to be paid to the milk company, a savings from last year's total of $184,000 when students and staff consumed a phenomonal 1,808,440 ½-pints of milk.

But before the board voted on the expenditure, Marcia Borowski, board president, wanted to know why the schools were serving chocolate milk as an alternative to white milk.

"The schools should set an example in nutrition," Ms. Borowski said. "I can see having chocolate milk once a year around Christmas, but not every day."

Raymond Hoedel, assistant supt., assured Ms. Borowski that students on the state funded hot lunch program only drink white milk, but brown baggers were given the opportunity to choose between the two.

WITH THAT SETTLED, the board unanimously approved the bid by a 5-0 vote. Tom Yack and Stephen Harper were absent from the meeting.

The next item on the agenda asked the board to award a bid to the Way Baking Company for bread supplies, which prompted Trustee Joe Gray to ask "why do we serve white bread?"

The board approved the bid, noting the inexpensive price of 38 cents per 20 ounce loaf and insisted the home economics classes take advantage of these prices rather than buy bread at the grocery store as in past years.

The next item called for the approval to purchase two-way communication radios at $1,075 apiece for 20 new school buses. Trustee Richard Arlen was surprised by the high costs and wanted to know the reason why they were so expensive.

Said Gray: "These prices astonish me when you look at the cost of citizen band radios these days."

Flossie Tonda, board secretary, provided her bewildered colleagues with the answer. "The reason why these radios are so expensive is because they are good units with a wide range (50 miles).

"The cost is really cheap because those same radios were going for $1,000 two years ago. Besides, the radio company recommended we buy the best models because of the condition of our roads."

"I'm sure they did," Arlen quipped.

The board passed the measure without further fuss.

Road deaths down in July

July traffic accidents in Michigan took the lives of 185 persons, which was 11 less than the loss of 196 lives during July, 1976, according to the provisional figures of the state police traffic division.

The provisional total includes 30 deaths resulting from accidents during the July 4 holiday weekend. The same number of deaths occurred during this year's Memorial Day weekend.

The July toll was 13 more than the average of 172 for the month during the five-year period since 1972. High July traffic deaths, 225, were recorded in both 1972 and 1973. Low was 59 in wartime 1944.

The July deaths brought the accumulated count for the first seven months this year to 1,015, which is 17 less than 1,032 charged to the same period in 1976.

So far this year there have been four months showing decreases in traffic deaths (July, April, March and February) compared to the same months last year. The other three had increases.

As is customary on traffic death accounting, provisional totals for July and the accumulated period will be increased somewhat by reports of delayed deaths that are charged back to the months when the accidents happened.

Indian project is being expanded

Native American Indian students in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will be provided with expanded programs and services this school year because of additional funds received from the U.S. Office of Education.

This year's project is scheduled to include visitations to Indian reservations in Michigan, attendance at Pow Wows, individual tutoring, arts and crafts programs, special Native American Indian classroom activities, and use of a large new collection of books, materials, artifacts and equipment by parents, staff, and students.

Monies also have been alloted for district parents to attend conferences and meetings of state and national Native American groups.

Besides these activities, the program will welcome suggestions from the parents and students for other possible programs and services.

THE FIRST organizational meeting for the Native American Indian project will begin 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16.

The meeting will be held in the school district's Administration Building, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth. Anyone interested in receiving information and participating in this year's program is invited to attend this meeting.

Schools open before Labor Day; spurs annual outfitting spree

Amy Mulholland is looking forward to attending the Plymouth Children's Nursery School on Warren Road in Canton Township.

Students of all ages—kindergarten through college—are beginning to think about that first day of the fall term.

Refurbishing wardrobes is a comparatively pleasant task for parents of younger children with still malleable tastes in clothing. The checking account may take a beating, but the joy and excitement over all those new clothes is worth it.

Parents and sub-teens through teens may have wide differences of opinion in their ideas of proper school attire. Whatever the age, it's a far cry from the way it used to be. Blue jeans are still the standbys from kindergarten through university years for both sexes.

Dana Whinney, a senior at Arizona State University, worked during the summer months at Famous Men's Wear on Ann Arbor Trail.

"Jeans and flannels are the combination," said Whinney. "Later in the season it will be cords and flannels."

He explained the popularity of the plaid flannel shirt. It can be worn with a T-shirt under it. Buy it big and it can be worn over another shirt or for football games, over a sweater.

It doesn't stretch or shrink when washed. The wool and polyester combination makes it an easy-care fabric.

"I look for a bit of blue in the plaid to go with jeans," Whinney explained.

As for footwear, he favors gym shoes, the padded look, or casual suedes.

MRS. ROBERT Millard and daughters were school shopping at Minerva's Dunning's.

Julie, 7, will be a second grader at Bird Elementary. She was interested in slacks and knitted tops. Older sister, Cheri, an eighth grader at West Middle School, said she preferred jeans and overalls for school.

"Three weeks from tomorrow is the day," said Mrs. Millard, referring to the Aug. 31 starting date for schools on the traditional schedule.

Over at Little Angels Children's Shop, Nancy Norwood was trying on a dress that she obviously loved.

"I'm going to wear it the very first day of school," said the second grader. Her mother, Kathy Norwood, said her children were in the Clarenceville School District but they came to Plymouth to shop.

"I wonder if she could take a size smaller in this," mused Kathy as the cuffs almost hid Nancy's hands.

Joan Schuler of Plymouth was shopping with Kelly, 8, and Mickey, 6. Kelly said she would be in Mrs. Danforth's third grade at Fiegel. Mickey will be a first grader in Miss Anne Welch's class.

IN THE leather shop in the Penniman Avenue Shops, Michael Ball displayed the new super convertible book bag which he said "is a great favorite of college kids."

His wife, Nancy, modeled it. The soft leather back pack converts to a shoulder bag. He had two kinds—one he made, the other was a California import. The homemade bag goes for $50, the California import is $35.

"Belt buckles have been our big seller in the back-to-school items," said Ball.

Lolly Nicholas, a June graduate of Plymouth Salem, will major in fashion merchandising at Eastern Michigan in September. She has been working in Sue Ann Fabrics during the summer.

Looking over the bolts of fabric in the store, Miss Nicholas said her thinking for a fall wardrobe encompassed denims, suedes, corduroys and wools.

She said many of the high school girls would be making their own clothes for school. "Many of them made their own bathing suits this summer." She pointed to a striped terry cloth that had been a popular fabric choice for the bathing suits.

PHYLLIS MULHOLLAND was shoe shopping at Del's with her two daughters.

Mickey Schuler will be a first grader in Anne Welch's class at Fiegel school.

Dana Whinney extolled the versatility of the flannel shirt.

Police insurance quadruples

Liability insurance for Canton's part-time reserve and fully-certified police officers quadrupled in price today and the policy's total coverage has been reduced considerably.

As of Aug. 11, Canton carries $100,000 worth of liability insurance on each of its 14 certified officers and 15 reserve officers. The new price for liability coverage is $400 per officer for a year. Last year's rate for $100,000 worth of liability coverage was about $100 per officer.

Last year Canton was insured with Stuyvesant Insurance Co., but the firm has stopped writing police insurance. The current carrier is Bellefonte Insurance Co., through Fairlane Associates of Dearborn, the township's insurance agent.

Two supplementary policies which provided additional protection against lawsuits are no longer available to Canton, according to Thomas Burr, account executive at Fairlane Associates. The $200,000 additional liability coverage which was in effect until today has been dropped, Burr says, because the Bellefonte company will only write up to $100,000 in police liability insurance.

And the $3 million "umbrella policy" which expired today cannot be renewed because the carrier, Citizens Insurance Co., requires at least $300,000 in primary liability before providing umbrella coverage.

BURR SAYS his agency cannot find any insurance company willing to insure Canton police "for the limits we desire."

"One company that is writing this coverage in Michigan with limits higher than $100,000, . . will not write (policies for) any police department within 50 miles of Detroit," Burr states.

Deputy Treasurer Mike Gorman called the insurance rate jump "a skyrocketing expense" but added that he believes Fairlane's quotations are the best available. Gorman said Canton's police carry better insurance coverage than many larger departments which are "dangerously" cutting insurance costs.

2 days remain to file for seat

Only two days remain for residents of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District to apply for an opening on the school board.

The vacancy was created by the impending resignation of Board President Marcia Borowski who is leaving later this month for Atlanta, Ga. where her husband begins a new job.

The deadline for applications is Monday at 4:30 p.m. The school board is asking all persons interested in the position to write their name, address, phone number and reasons why they wish to serve on the school board.

Applications should be turned into the board office, 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth.

Stein to assemble Canton car wash

Canton Supervisor Harold Stein, who owns a Westland car wash, can't seem to keep away from the suds.

The supervisor Tuesday urged township board members to abandon the normal bidding procedure to allow him to personally purchase and assemble equipment for Canton's own portable wash at an estimated wholesale cost of $1,200 to $1,600.

The washing equipment, he said, would allow DPW employees to wash the township's many cars, trucks and other large pieces of equipment. Employees would no longer have to drive to a car wash in Plymouth.

BOARD MEMBERS at Tuesday's meeting quickly approved Stein's proposal and voted 4-1 to waive bidding.

The supervisor said he will probably buy the equipment wholesale through his car wash business.

Trustee Robert Myers was the only board member who voted against purchasing and assembling the car wash equipment. Trustees Brian Schwall and Lynne Goldsmith were absent from Tuesday's meeting.

Clerk John Flodin applauded Stein's car wash suggestion. DPW employees spend valuable time driving to and from private car washes, he said. In addition, the practice runs up a sizable bill.

"I don't know if I'll actually dirty my hands putting the equipment together," Stein admitted after the meeting. "But I certainly will supervise."

Song composed for the memorial

Saturday night's memorial concert for the six high school boys who died in a car accident July 23 will end with a song about the tragedy written by Mark Even.

"It will be the last act," said Tom Wilson who has helped organize the program. His younger brother, Brad, was one of the victims.

Sylvia Mullen, who first proposed the concert idea said, "I hoped the kids would help with the planning. They just took over and lined up the talent. They are wonderful."

Members and alumni of the Plymouth High School stage band have volunteered to perform. College students and present members of the band decided that for just one night, it will be the "People's Band."

It will be a one-time performance.

THE TWO—HOUR concert will begin at 8 p.m. in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, Joy Road at Canton Center. There will be no intermission.

The concert will be free and tickets will be available at the door. Donations will be accepted. Those persons who cannot attend the concert, but wish to contribute, can mail checks to: Memorial Concert Fund, Box 584, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

"We are letting the parents of the crash victims decide how the money will be used," said Mrs. Mullen. "They have given it much thought. The letters to state legislators asking that the drinking age be raised are printed and will be available at the concert."

The auditorium seats 1,000 persons and concert planners hope it will be filled.

THE FIRST GROUP to perform will be "The Romantics."

Tom Wilson said the rock band is very popular in the Detroit area. It is under contract to Capitol Records and has a 45 single that is selling well.

The Romantics are taking time out from an engagement to play the benefit.

A guitar duo will follow — one of them was Brad Wilson's guitar teacher. "He has chosen some of Brad's favorites," said Tom Wilson.

Plymouth Friends Band will be the third group on the program.

Mark Even's band will be the last to perform. The special song will be the finale.

S'craft may build locally

When the college was originally built, it was intended to serve the educational needs of five school districts: Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Northville, Garden City, and Clarenceville.

As of now, the highest percentage of students is from Livonia. But of the five, the Plymouth-Canton district is the second largest. And that will change in the near future.

"Our studies indicate that by 1985 the Plymouth-Canton district will be substantially larger than Livonia," Grote said. "And we feel the need to serve that population."

KEEP MOVING
Continuing Education at the University of Detroit
The Division of Continuing Education plays a significant part in the services offered to the community by the University of Detroit. We know that many people today must work full, or nearly full-time schedules while pursuing additional schooling. We know, too, that the job market increasingly demands more highly skilled men and women. We offer help in meeting these demands by offering evening degree programs, scheduled to permit you to move toward your career goals while continuing to work or run your home, as usual.
At the University of Detroit you will find a first-rate faculty and a high degree of individual attention. Adult students are offered academic, career and placement advice as well as personal counseling. At U of D you will not feel neglected or overwhelmed. We encourage you to explore your own potential and give you the freedom to do so.
The University of Detroit is conveniently located. The downtown Renaissance Campus is in the heart of the Renaissance Center area. The McNichols Campus is easily accessible by bus or car. Both are well patrolled, with parking very close to classrooms.

U of D Continuing Education courses are an excellent way to prepare for a career, upgrade job skills, increase work-related knowledge, get oriented or re-oriented to college and/or complete your bachelor's degree program.
Evening Undergraduate Degree Programs are available in the Evening College of Business & Administration, College of Engineering and Science, College of Liberal Arts, Nursing, and Criminal Justice Studies.
If you are interested in program information or enrolling at the University for Term I, which begins September 5, please contact the Undergraduate Admissions Office by phone at the number below. Or visit the Admissions Office which is located off the main lobby of the Fisher Administration Center at the corner of Florence and Livernois on our McNichols Campus. It is open 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday. During registration office hours are maintained from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Thursday, September 1; from 9 to 5 on Friday, September 2, and from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, September 3.

The Stroller

Let's revive town meetings

By W.W. EDGAR

Down through the years Plymouth always has been proud of its colonial heritage. No matter where one looks, especially in the downtown area, there are reminders of the days when our Pilgrim Fathers landed and settled the first colony at the big rock in Plymouth, Mass.

For instance, there is Kellogg Park, which is a great take-off of the Village Green in Plymouth. It is one of the few such parks in any of our Michigan cities and it is a real jewel in the center of the community.

Then there is the Mayflower Hotel, named for the ship which carried the Pilgrims from their homes in Plymouth, England to establish a new nation.

Once inside the Mayflower, there are reminders of the Pilgrim Fathers everywhere. The dining room is filled with colored prints of famous paintings of life among those early settlers.

Not far away are three outstanding symbols of the colonial heritage, with the City Hall in the center, flanked by the Historical Museum and the Dunning Library. The latest addition to the colonial picture is the new national bank.

Even the new store fronts on Penniman Avenue and Ann Arbor Trail smack of this link with the Pilgrim fathers.

WITH ALL THESE links to colonial days, The Stroller has cause to wonder why the Pilgrims' practice of town meetings on the village green or in the park never were carried out.

This thought came to him on the recent election day when there was no more excitement than one would find on a balmy Sunday afternoon.

Always noted for the calmness with which it took its elections, this year's primary seemed more quiet than usual, except in the few places where the office seekers and their followers gathered.

The thought struck The Stroller a bit deeper when he asked one of his luncheon companions whom he thought would win, and was greeted with "Who's running?"

This never would have happened in the old days when the Pilgrims struggled to eke out a livelihood on the rock bound coasts of Plymouth, Mass. There would have been town meetings at which all hands would have a chance to see the candidates, and question them. And more than that, the town meetings gave the voters a chance to tell the candidates what they wanted—and expected.

If such meetings were held in our Plymouth today there would be far less apathy during the campaigns and at the polls.

Not one to foster a campaign that would plaster the city with all sorts of posters and shop window placards, The Stroller is heartily in favor of the old town meetings style of campaigning.

CAN YOU IMAGINE what it would be like if a town meeting was held in Kellogg Park, with a "town crier" riding up and down the residential streets inviting the populace to be on hand.

It is certain there would be little apathy under those conditions and the candidates could get their messages across, as well as the voters getting a clearer insight into those seeking office.

And even if the weather was such that the park was not the best suited, there is always the Cultural Center with its stage and auditorium, or the Penn Theater that could be made available, or even the Meeting House.

It was at town meetings such as the Pilgrims sponsored that The Stroller got his first real taste of politics.

Our neglected children—Part VII

I had intended to end this series today, because a seven-part series is more than most people can handle pleasantly—especially myself. But the efforts of a reader has come to my attention which should be shared before concluding this discussion on the neglect of our children.

A point repeated again and again is that children must be given real responsibility if they are to become mature adults capable of contributing to a future society. That type of statement may sound generalized and idealistic.

But, after having made it a couple of times, I discovered a project in which a Plymouth resident is involved that demonstrates the point in specific and practical terms.

PAUL NASTOFF of Plymouth is a teacher for Wayne-Westland School District.

Students in his class are getting practical lessons in organization, planning and democracy. The 22 students vote every six to eight weeks on a new class president, and the class is allowed to make a tremenduous amount of decisions. They learn to do things by doing.

What impresses me is not the techniques used but the results. As part of the project, Nastoff put together a filmstrip of the class' activities. The script of that filmstrip came into my hands, and the attitudes expressed are pretty impressive results.

What it shows is that students can come up with positive attitudes and values with a bit of prodding. It's not really a matter of placing words in their mouths, but opening their mouths so words can come out. What's important is the opportunity to experience responsibility and to be expressive. And, more important, is the existence of a model in a classroom setting to exert positive influence on a young person's outlook on life.

AFTER LOOKING OVER the script, I talked briefly with Paul Nastoff and would like to repeat this one statement from him:

"Those who are in charge of training the youth of society must be held responsible for any lack of participatory democracy."

I now would like to turn to the results—the attitudes and values of the participating students. Following are some examples:

"We learn that the most important part of any group—anywhere—is the individual person. We get to know more about each other by hearing and respecting every member's opinion."

"Being a leader means caring for others—being responsible and willing to do things for others—besides doing one's own work. Having a club teaches us to become self-directed students."

"We discover that there are really only two ways to do any job. One is to wait for someone to tell you what to do. The other is to know what the job is and do it independently."

"We learn that when people love what they do, each member finds joy in doing what has to be done. In the word American, the last four letters are I-C-A-N. They spell I CAN. When one learns to say, "I CAN," no job is too big or too hard. We learn that democracy means making responsible choices on the level of our own understanding."

"We, as young citizens, are learning to prove that democracy is alive today by practicing self-government at our grade level of understanding."

"When we do a job for someone without being told, we call that using initiative. At home, we try to think what we can do for mom and dad instead of waiting for them to do things for us."

"To have fun starting a club, the members need to know the meaning of these terms: attitude, ballot, campaign, candidate, democracy, election, freedom, government, initiative, nominate, privilege and responsibility."

"One of the first lessons we discuss is that a classroom is a place where one should not be afraid nor ashamed of making mistakes. Everyone learns best by doing."

"One of our club slogans is: "Those who care, love to share." Another is, 'Each one teach one.' We enjoy helping each other solve problems as members of an organized group."

"While we are learning the 3 Rs—Reading, Riting and Rithmetic—we practice the 4th R, which stands for responsibility."

As Paul told me, the major priority of his project is to "plant seeds" in youth for the garden we all will harvest in the fall. I think that worthy of more than a wild sowing of seed, without aim or purpose.

Youngsters read up a storm

A number of Plymouth-Canton youngsters have been reading up a storm this summer—and they each have a certificate to prove it.

At the last meeting of the Dunnning-Hough Library's Summer Reading Club all of the members who had read 10 books and done a written book report on each were awarded reading certificates.

Certificate winners were: Marcy Alvardo, Gail Baird, Taimi Bane, Dan Baughman, Karen Baughman, Linda Baughman, Holly Berndt, Marna Bida, Kimberly Bida, Karen Boluch, Joseph Bonnett, Susan Bonnet, Bradley Boyd, Daphne Briggs, Lisa Brining, Tami Brozeck, Mike Bruner, Chris Brydenthal, Matt Brydenthal, Audrey Buck, Jennifer Buck, Mike Burke, Susan Burke, Shelly Burnside, Karen Cameron, Karen Carter, Michael Coletta, Teresa Coletta, Janice Connors, Kevin Cousino, Jimmy Crews, Jennifer Croll, Beth Dauzett, Michelle DeSemplarere, Craig DeRoche, Paul DeRoche and Jennifer Dorset.

Also: Erhan Erden, Nurum Erden, Kathleen Ervin, Jim Ervin, Carter Etienne, Lisa Farmer, Kevin Fielman, Tiffany Fisher, Todd Fisher, Marie Elaina Fontana, Paul Fraser, Beverly Gildhaus, Catherine Grant, Chris Harvey, Pamela Harvey, Amy Hodson, David Holmes, Andy Hoover, Kathy Hoover, Susan Kemnitz, Shawn Keough, Michelle Khurana, Lisa Kisabeth, Robbie, Kisabeth, Jennifer Knapp, Julie Knapp, Kim Leesch, Scott Leesch, Scott Leesch, Craig Leonard, Kathy Lustig and Mike Lustig.

More than 350 children participated in the library's reading club this summer. Besides reading books, each Thursday members attended meetings featuring movies, a magic show, and a magic trick contest.

Lots of free calls

More than 15,000 companies have toll free, "800" long-distance telephone numbers. If you call an out-of-town company frequently, find out if it is among the "800" users.

District hires new teachers

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education beefed up the teaching ranks in the district by hiring 37 new employees Monday.

Eight of the new faculty will teach at Centennial Educational Park. The rest are divided between the elementary and middle schools.

Of the total new hires, 10 are Plymouth residents and three live in Canton Township. Plymouth residents are: Robert Blohm, Sandra Frank, John Gravlin, Ruby McClendon, Ann Schlick, Carolyn Anulewicz, Martha Latham, Virginia Myrtle, Jane Paulsen and David Thomann.

Theresa Larson, Judith Stone and Carole Robinson reside in Canton.

EMU station boosts output

WEMU-FM, Eastern Michigan University's radio station, will increase power in October from 10 to 15,000 watts and expand its audience to almost 5 million people, including western Wayne County.

With the power increase, WEMU-FM, 89.1 on the dial, will have a potential audience of five milion people in southeastern Michigan. The signal will be virtually interference-free for almost one million listeners. Almost five million listeners will be able to receive WEMU-FM—dependent upon the quality of their receivers.

The station will expand its news coverage, but will strie to give primary emphasis to Washtenaw County, western Wayne County, Van Buren Township and the Belleville area in addition to the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

The station will expand its primary coverage northward towards the communities of South Lyon and Pinckney and southward towards Milan. Ann Arbor is also included in the primary coverage.

WEMU-FM will expand its secondary coverage to Albion and Jackson to the west, Toledo to the south, Fenton to the north and the Detroit river to the east.

The station waited 10 years and resolved several interference problems with other stations in its area before the power increase was approved by the FCC.

Rare collection fills backyard on Penniman

By W.W. EDGAR

When it comes to unusual gardens one would have a most difficult time trying to better the grounds surrounding the Leo McNamara home at 1011 Penniman Avenue in Plymouth.

Unlike most people who plant friendship trees and surround them with urns of flowers and a nice green lawn, the McNamaras have a garden filled with memories of their families that run the gamut from an old fire alarm box from Detroit to an old-fashioned railroad crossing sign, and the bell and scythes from the farm of Mrs. McNamara's parents in Rochester, N.Y.

Through this galaxy of memorabilia, there are dozens of flower pots, hanging baskets and rock gardens—all reminders of their childhood.

"Dorothy (that's Mrs. McNamara) likes flowers," her husband Leo explained, "and we try to give them to her in all shapes and sizes. No matter where she looks in the gardens, she is looking at flowers."

Leo then went on to reveal that his father had been a battalion chief in the Detroit Fire Department and that his brother, James, also reached the stage of being a battalion chief.

"We're all well indoctrinated in the fire system," he went on. "That's why we have the fire alarm box in the yard." And with a smile, he added, "and the pole on which it is fastened was given to us by the telephone company. So, it is as close to the real thing as we could get."

The railroad crossing?

"My nephew, Tommy McNamara, worked for the railroad right here in Plymouth, before he was transferred to Portland. That's why we have the railroad crossing, with the old red light and all the trimmings that were used before everything became automatic."

AS SHE SAT on the patio looking around at the beauty of the garden, Mrs. McNamara pointed to the two old scythes hanging on the side of the old barn that is now the garage.

"They came from my parent's farm in Rochester, N.Y. My mother was born in Dublin and my father in Switzerland. He was a chef and worked at many of the leading places in Detroit, including the historic Pontchartrain before it was razed years ago.

"They met in Rochester, N.Y. and were married there and lived on the old farm. Many a time those old scythes were used to keep the place clear.

"The iron kettles you see that are now filled with flowers were used to scald pigs. And we brought the old hitching posts here to remind us of the days when my parents had the farm. In fact, there is one out on the curb on Penniman Avenue."

One of her choice pieces in the garden is an old-fashioned gazebo with a chair or two in the middle. This is in the center of hanging baskets of flowers and is topped off with a model church that once was used as a Christmas tree decoration.

PRIOR TO MOVING to Plymouth the McNamaras lived in Detroit, not far from old Corktown and the ball park.

For years Mrs. McNamara managed the art gallery on Seven Mile Road for Rev. Hickey. Then, just before the Detroit riot in 1967 they decided on a move to Plymouth.

At the time McNamara worked at Western Electric and the drive became too much for him to take daily. As this burden grew, the McNamaras decided they'd like to live in Plymouth.

They went in search of an old-fashioned house that they could rehabilitate in their leisure time. They finally found it on Penniman Avenue.

"It was what we wanted," Mrs. McNamara said, "even though there was a pile of ashes almost to the back door. But we went to work and now wouldn't trade places with anyone."

With the move to Plymouth Mrs. McNamara became the manager of Rev. Hickey's art gallery at Deer and Ann Arbor Trail. It since has been razed.

Her love of art is shown in Mrs. McNamara's home. While she loves the flowers and the beauty of the outdoors, she is enthralled by the various oil paintings seen throughout the home.

Along with the paintings she has collected all sorts of wood carvings and dishes that are priceless.

And with each and every piece, there is a story or a memory of someone in the family.

The entire place—inside and out—is most unusual and one of the most prized beauty spots in Plymouth.

Most people get arrested for pulling false fire alarms but Dorothy McNamara does it twice a day. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel).

Tarot's Catch 22

The Major Arcana of the tarot deck is made up of 22 cards, numbered 0 through XXI.

The card numbered "0" is the Fool card. This card is symbolic of each of us as we set forth on our journey through life.

It is placed at the beginning of the Major Arcana in most tarot decks, indicating that he (we) must pass through the experiences depicted in the other 21 cards in order to enter into the dance of life.

Near the end of the Major Arcana, we come to card number 20, the "Judgment." In the Waite-Rider tarot deck, which is probably the most popular deck in the western world, this card reflexes Christian, Jewish, and Moslem, as well as Buddhist, influence.

Here, we see the Hebrew angel Gabriel, coming out of the clouds, and blowing his trumpet to summon the souls of mankind up from the grave.

Attached to the trumpet is a flag, bearing a cross with four equal arms. This is the flyfot (the Buddhist cross), with its terminations shut off, signaling the end of the wheel's turning in card X, the Wheel card.

The Koran tells us that, upon the Day of Judgment, "when there shall be a blast on the trumpet, ye shall come in crowds."

This card brings to mind the Christian scripture, "the hour of judgment is come." (Rev. 14:7)

Thus it will be, sooner or later, that the hour of judgment will come upon each and every one of us.

Actually, the day of judgment is no final and universal event. We may each be called at any time to face up to our actions thus far.

We may be called up from our old dead self, now, while we are still in living bodies, and find ourselves face to face with our karma—our own heaven or hell which we have created by our own deeds.

The figures on the Judgment card are all naked, symbolizing that all false cover will be stripped from us, and our innermost secrets will be revealed.

Naked we come into this world, and naked we will leave it. We will not be judged by possessions we have accumulated, or outer vestments in which we clothe ourselves.

If our ears are not deaf to it, we can hear the trumpet call day after day. For there is a cause and effect in each thing that happens to us.

It is like the boomerang effect of which I have so often spoken to you. Whatever we toss out to others comes back and hits us in the head.

And as card number 20 reveals, we will be called upon to face judgment, pay our debts, and reap our rewards.

This card does not depict the end of life, but the continuation of it. For each time we are called to judgment, we must go on and live out that karma we have created for ourselves, be it in this life, or whatever comes after.

ORDINANCE NO. 77-9

CITY OF PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH, CHAPTER 3, BY ADDING NEW SECTIONS, WHICH NEW SECTIONS SHALL BE ENTITLED, "MUNICIPAL PARKING COMMISSION."

THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH ORDAINS:

Section 1. The Code of the City of Plymouth is hereby amended by adding new Sections, which new Sections shall be designated as Sections 1.151 through 1.154 of Chapter 3, Municipal Parking Commission, of Title I, as follows:

1.151. Municipal Parking Commission. The Municipal Parking Commission shall consist of five (5) members, each of whom shall be appointed by the Mayor with approval of the City Commission.

1.152. Term of Office. The first five members of said Parking Commission shall be appointed: one for a term of one year, two for a term of two years and two for a term of three years, beginning on and dating from the first day of July, 1977. Thereafter, succeeding appointments shall be made for a term of three (3) years. All members shall hold office until their successors are appointed. Members may be removed in accordance with the Charter of the City of Plymouth. Vacancies for any reason shall be filled for the remainder of the term by the Mayor with approval of the City Commission.

1.153. Meetings. The Municipal Parking Commission shall meet at least quarterly and then as often as necessary.

1.154. Duties. It shall be the duty of the said Parking Commission to advise the City Commission with respect to the ways and means of developing and financing public parking and of reviewing and recommending to the City Commission on all aspects of parking consistent with the Parking Policy.

Section 2. This ordinance shall become operative and effective on the 23rd day of August A.D. 1977.

Made, passed and adopted by the City Commission of the City of Plymouth, Michigan, this 1st day of August A.D. 1977.

Public invited to golf outing

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce's golf outing will take place Aug. 24 and the public is invited to join the fun along with the Chamber's membership.

This year the outing will take place at Fox Hills Country Club. The package of 18 holes and a delightful buffet dinner is $15. A luncheon option is available for an additional $6. Tee times are being reserved through the Chamber at 453-1540. Tee-off begins at 12:30 p.m.

Prizes are being donated by the local merchants, some of which include: A pass for two for one year to the Penn Theatre; a $25 gift certificate from The Pendleton Shop; a beautiful golf umbrella from Plymouth Trading Post; a gift certificate from Lent's Custom Clothing; and a delicious ham from Penniman Market.

Ladies are encouraged to play in the outing. Or, sprouses or friends may join the golfers for dinner at a reduced price. Call now for your reservation.

Dinner includes roast beef or friend chicken, Swedish meatballs, scalloped potatoes, green beans almondine, tossed salad, green bean salad, relish trays, jello, rolls, coffee and dessert. The luncheon menue includes luncheon meats and cheeses, potatoe salad, macaroni salad, cole slaw, hot baked beans, jello, rolls, coffee and dessert.

THE PLYMOUTH COMMUNITY MAP now is available at numerous local business facilities at the price of 50 cents each.

Not only a detailed map of the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township area, the map also contains information relating to local service clubs, churches, schools, media, emergency numbers and local government.

As an added feature, a pictorial view of Plymouth is highlighted on the reverse side—an ideal and informative sourvenir of Plymouth. The map is suitable for framing or coloring.

Stores presently selling the map are: Hugh Jarvis Gifts, Sideways, John Smith of Plymouth, Cher's Closet, Young Sophisticats, Little Professor, The Corner Candy Store, Wayside Gifts, Me & Mr. Jones, Kay's of Plymouth, The Pendleton Shop, Cloverdale Farms, Jerry's Bicycles and The Penn Theatre.

Maps also are available at the Chamber office, 878 Wing Street.

THE CHAMBER office will close an hour earlier from now through Aug. 22.

The office will be open until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and starting Aug. 22 will again remain open until 5 p.m.

Beginning with the Fall Festival in September, this will be a busy season for the Chamber. Plans are under way for the second annual chicken race in October, for the Chamber's annual meeting, and for the first annual charity ball. Work also has begun on the next edition of the Plymouth Community Map and on next year's circus.

Become active in your community by joining the Chamber and lending a hand. There's plenty to do for everyone and anyone.

2 days remain to file for seat

Only two days remain for residents of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District to apply for an opening on the school board.

The vacancy was created by the impending resignation of Board President Marcia Borowski who is leaving later this month for Atlanta, Ga. where her husband begins a new job.

The deadline for applications is Monday at 4:30 p.m. The school board is asking all persons interested in the position to write their name, address, phone number and reasons why they wish to serve on the school board.

Applications should be turned into the board office, 454 S. Harvey in Plymouth.

Five persons have formally expressed an interest in the position, according to Supt. John M. Hoben. They are: Elizabeth Hamann and Richard A. Smith of Canton, and R. Richard Hayes, Jr., Elaine Kirchgatter and Roseanne Rogers of Plymouth.

The remaining six members of the board of education must make the selection within 20 days of Ms. Borowski's formal resignation. If they do not, the vacancy is filled by the Wayne County Intermediate School District, Hoben said.

At this time, Ms. Borowski has yet to officially hand in her resignation to the board. Hoben said he expects it at the board's next meeting on Aug. 22.

McAninch sets the record straight

Editor:

In order to correct a false impression, implied in one of your recent news stories, let me set straight the facts (which can be substantiated in the Plymouth City Commission minutes).

It was stated in your news story that I said, "Dial-a-Ride should be only for the elderly and handicapped." At no time did I so state. I did say, in public meeting, that the commission should consider initiating Dial-a-Ride for the elderly and handicapped, because such service will, within a year, be fully funded by SEMTA and by Wayne County.

In a later edition, the day prior to our primary election, your letter to the editor column included a letter from Old Village merchants complaining that Mr. Moehle and I had opposed Bloc Grant funds for a series of improvements to Old Village. Again, as a matter of record, the playground, for which I have campaigned for some time, is and was already approved, by the whole commission, as well as by the county and the federal agency.

Opposition to the other improvements arose because they consist, not in people-oriented acitivities, but in parking and other related improvements. Thank you for helping to set the record straight.

City fathers need vision

Editor:

Permit me to congratulate you on the splendid presentation you made in a recent issue of the Observer relative to the proposed improvements in downtown Plymouth.

Rather than pick flaws and criticize proposed improvements of the business section of Plymouth, I would suggest our commission look to the future in place of immediate circumstances.

Long after the present commission has ceased to exist, Plymouth will continue to be a "city of homes." It will have all the niceties of what constitutes worthwhile living.

Ralph Lorenz has presented to the city fathers a method of expansion that will reflect on the far sighted judgment of this governing body.

May they have the foresight to see the light.

Minister honored for service

By W W EDGAR

Sitting in the living room of his comfortable home in Lakepointe, Rev. Henry Walch, retired Presbyterian minister, proudly displayed the certificate he recently received from the Mc Cormich Theological Seminary in Chicago that marked his 50th year in the ministry and noted the many changes that have come about in the church during the past half century.

"The church today is much more liberal," he commented, "and now is more of a humane institution. Sure, we had a bit of leeway in the past—but at a price."

He smiled a bit when he remarked that the Presbyterians at one time were so "stiff" that they were referred to as "God's Frozen People." But he quickly called attention to the Fact that Presbyterians have "loosened up" in the past decade.

ANOTHER SURPRISING thing he noted was that despite liberalsim in the churches, there is a marked falling off in attendance and even in membership.

He recalled that back in the days when he started his career behind the pulpit most families considered it a duty to attend church on Sunday and prayer meetings during the week. Now attendance is more or less a take it or leave practice.

"Take the cases right here in Plymouth," Rev. Walch noted. "There is a falling off in attendance, not only at the Sunday services, but at St. John Seminary on Five Mile Road.

"Designed to accomodate 350 students it now has an enrollment of about 150, and that is far from the old days."

The biggest change in the church has come about because of the ecumenical movement during the past decade or so, according to Rev. Walsh.

"This movement is a coming together of people and I think it is a good thing.

"As a matter of fact, I honestly believe that we have too many denominations in the Protestant religion. We would be better off with fewer denominations."

While he didn't admit it, Rev. Walch hinted that if there were fewer denominations, there would be fewer church buildings required and that would be a great savings.

"Our churches are always admitting a need for money and the congregations are asked to contribute and contribute to keep the churches on a firm footing."

LOOKING BACK OVER his half century behind the pulpit, Rev. Walch confided that, in his mind, the greatest change in the church came when the late Pope John XXIII opened the door to this getting together philosophy.

"First he decreed that the mass could be said in the language of the country in which the church was located. Up to then Latin was demanded.

"And, in a way, I liked the use of latin," Rev. Walch went on. "There was a certain rythmic ring to it that is missing now when spoken in the various languages.

"Under Pope John it no longer was mandatory that you belong to a certain parish—mass was open to everyone. This took a lot of the 'stiffness' out of religion and I think it is a good thing."

Over the years since he started preaching in a little church in Oakfield, N. Y., Rev. Walch estimates that he has presided at about 1,000 weddings and from 800 to 1,000 baptisms. When he left the first little church he moved to Rochester where he served for five years. Then it was on to Detroit where he served and another five before coming to Plymputh where he held the pulpit for 28 years.

While he is officially retired Rev. Walch still keeps busy. He does what he calls "pinch hit" duty for various ministers when they are sick or on vacation.

"I mind the store for them until they get back," he jokingly explained. His activity also includes being the chaplain at the Presbyterian Village in Detroit.

"This retirement is the best job I ever had," he said as he laid aside his 50-year certificate.

Henry Walch proudly displays his certificate from the McCormick Theological Seminary which he recently received for 50 years of ministry service for the Presbyterian church. Walch lives in Lake Pointe Village in Plymouth Township. (Staff photo)

New guidelines set for firearm safety

Accidents involving firearms cause thousands of deaths every year, according to Red Cross statistics.

If you plan on hunting this year, the Red Cross urges you to note these precautionary suggestions:

•Guns should be kept unloaded and under lock and key in a sturdy cabinet, where children and others unqualified to handle them cannot get at them. Guns should be well cared for and inspected before use. Ammunition should be checked for age and condition of casings. A malfunction could result in a lost or misplaced shot and possible injury to the hunter or his combanions.

•A hunter should be prepared for the elements in the area he will cover. In cold weather he should wear sturdr boots and clothing that will be adequately warm. he also should wear highly visible clothing and carry a compass, small flash-light, first aid kit and map of the area where he will be hunting. A loud whistle can be carried also, to summon aid if needed.

•Both law and courtesy require a hunter to ask permission to hunt on private property. The landowner can advise of location of other hunters in the area. When leaving the property, notify and thank the landowner.

•Be sure the ammunition is the right caliber for the gun to be used.

•Inspect the gun muzzle often to make certain it hasn't been accidentally plugged with earth or weeds. A plugged barrel could explode or split when the gun is fired, causing injury or death.

editorial opinion

Out-county deserves nearby service center

Arthur M. Carter of 19479 Lauder, in north central Detroit, is a Wayne County commissioner who has been vocal lately in opposition to locating any county services in the western part of the county.

His first point is that a jail shouldn't be located in the out-county area because the 1976 ballot proposal wisely approved by voters stated the property tax revenues would go for "a jail" and not to multiple "jails."

But such i-dotting, t-crossing accuracy is hardly Commissioner Carter's real motivation. His real motivation is a rigid, hard-line attitude that any service rendered in the out-county area weakens Detroit.

For the moment, it looks as if Carter has the legal points to hold his position. At this writing, it seems doubtful an out-county jail, for one service, will be built.

YET THE IDEA of offering out-county services is an excellent one. And if there is to be no jail outside Detroit, county commissioners shouldn't overlook the possibility of other services.

A non-resident of the City of Detroit, desiring to acquire a marriage license (August is now as important as June as the month of brides), must make a round trip of up to 70 miles to get to the county seat. The mileage alone, at 15 cents per mile, amounts to $10.50.

Then one must consider the positively evil parking fees to be paid. That City-County Building where the clerk is located is right across the street from the Renaissance Center, and land isn't cheap, so if you want or need to park there, you must pay plenty.

And of course, a trip like that isn't something you can do on your lunch hour.

It seems to us that a comparatively simple and cheap procedure as acquiring a marriage license shouldn't require a trip to downtown Detroit. One could joke, we suppose, that the long trip would give the couple time to think it over, and the young lady could see a test of her fiance's personality as he bucks downtown traffic, but this isn't the place for such jokes.

THERE ARE OTHER comparatively simple and cheap procedures for which one shouldn't have to make a trip downtown.

You shouldn't have to travel downtown to fill out the initial application for a concealed weapons permit.

You shouldn't have to travel downtown to file the little legal paper to use an assumed name for a business.

Your attorney shouldn't have to travel downtown to file a lawsuit with the circuit court clerk.

The same with filing a deed or conducting a simple transaction with the county treasurer.

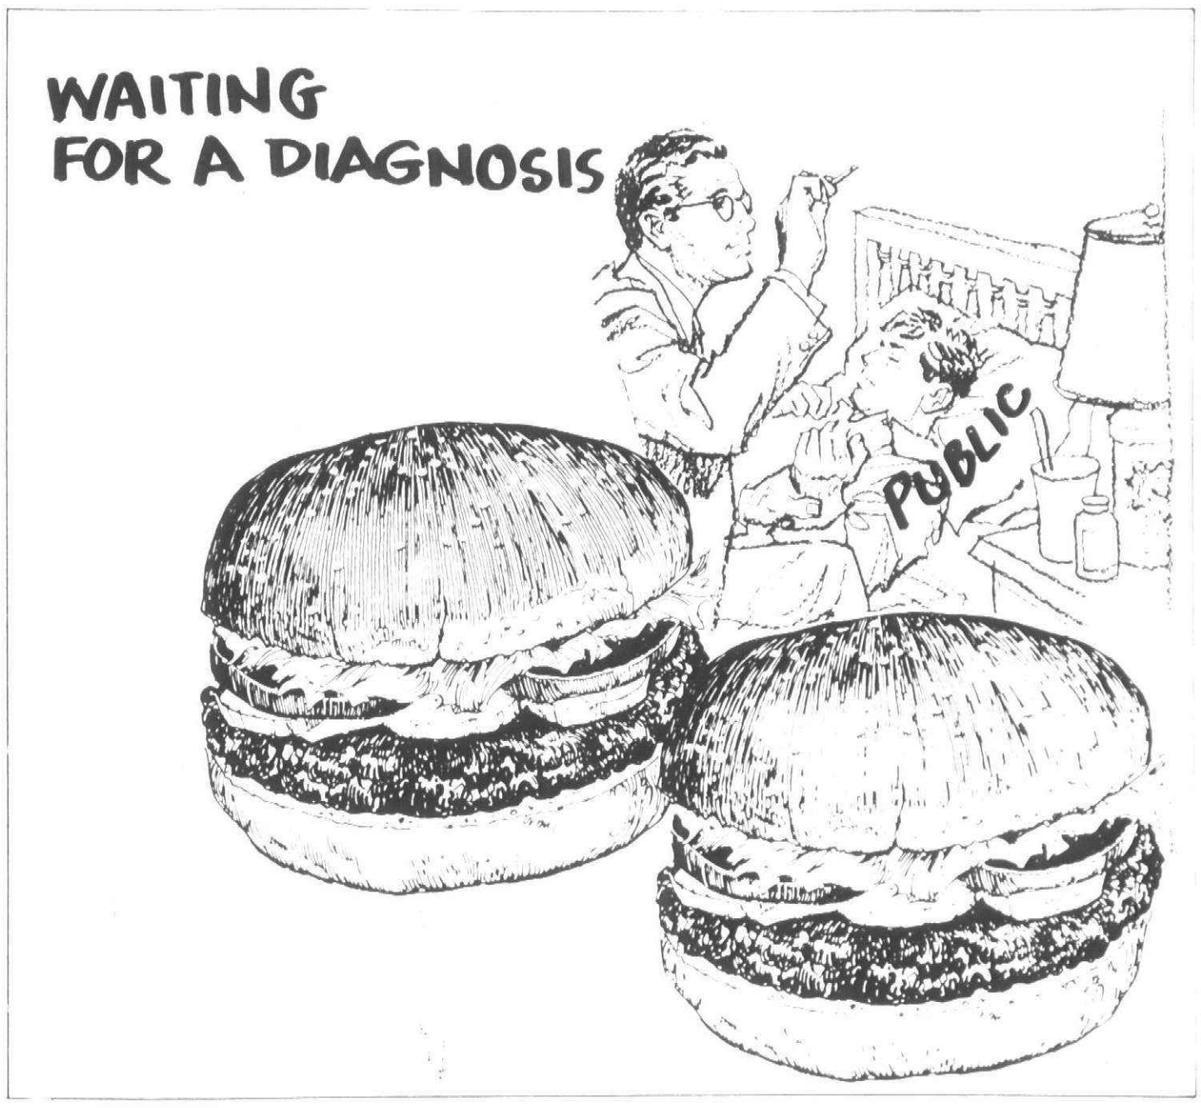
It used to be that all Wayne County residents used to have to travel out to Westland to the Wayne County General Hospital for their services. But under more humane guidelines, all they need do is go to the nearest medical facility and receive the needed services, and subsequently that hospital will bill these services to the county.

The same humane treatment ought to be accorded out-county residents. They shouldn't have to travel to downtown Detroit for simple transactions.

As of today, the population of the out-county area is probably greater than that of the City of Detroit. As the out-county builds up, it will only a short time before the center of population is considerably west of Detroit city limits.

Indeed, the western communities, if organized into a county of their own, would constitute the second largest county in Michigan, running ahead of even Oakland and Macomb.

The notion of splitting off the western communities into the County of Suburbia is, as we have said in the past, extreme, unwise and probably unnecessary. Yet it would be a convenience—and no real harm to the City of Detroit—if its neighbors could handle those little five-minute, paper-pushing transactions at a more convenient location.



PBB: the first of many scary tales of chemistry

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Eaten any hamburgers or hot dogs from the back yard grill this summer?

Chances are if you have, you have also eaten some PBB.

How much? Nobody knows.

Enough to be dangerous to you or your family? Nobody knows that, either, although at long last somebody's going to try to find out.

Last week, scientists testified before a congressional committee that people who have eaten large amounts of PBB tend to get sick because the chemical damages their white blood cells. And last Saturday, the Michigan Department of Public Health was directed to start testing non-farm state residents to see whether levels of PBB in their bodies are high enough to be harmful.

It all goes back to 1973, when somebody accidentally mixed an unknown amount of PBB, a fire-retardant chemical, with cattle feed. Michigan cows ate the contaminated food, introducing PBB into some state dairy products. Later, unknown numbers of contaminated cattle were sold and made into hot dogs and hamburger.

IT'S A BAD story. Scary. Modern. And likely to be just the first.

It's scary because through negligence some poison (PBB) got mixed into cattle feed to pose a possible health hazard to everybody in the state. Then this fact got covered up by the officials responsible.

It's modern because PBB is only one of literally thousands of new chemicals scientists are inventing and companies are manufacturing each year, some of which have had unforseen and dangerous side effects. None of this happened in the old days because chemists simply did not know enough to invent new chemicals way back then.

It's likely to be repeated because our modern society has become hooked on using new chemicals which are initially regarded as useful and harmless, but later turn out to be dangerous. DDT kills bad bugs; it also turns out to kill birds. Vinyl chloride helps make good plastics; but if you breathe it, you're likely to get cancer. TRIS stops children's pajamas from flashing into flame; it also seems to cause cancer.

Many of these new chemicals are useful and constructive. The problem, though, comes in the trade-off. They may be useful or harmless if used in one way, but they become dangerous or unhealthy if used in another.

It's like the old saw: You don't get something for nothing.

I THINK the whole question of toxic substances is one of the central issues of our times. And like most central issues, it's not an easy one to throw simplistic solutions at.

We could ban all new chemicals. But do we really want to deprive our standard of living of all the benefits that chemical technology has to offer?

We could get the Food and Drug Administration (or the Environmental Protection Agency, or some other government department–jurisdiction over this area seems very badly fragmented) to test all chemicals, both those which exist now and future inventions. But testing is time-consuming, expensive and likely to produce ambiguous results.

We could require that all companies making chemicals or using them in generally marketed products certify that they have no harmful side-effects. But that would be expensive and time-consuming.

And so on.

What is probably needed, at least as a first step, is increased public and governmental recognition that the problem exists. Perhaps that would lead to consolidation of government jurisdiction in this area into one single department. And perhaps that, in turn, would at least lead to some hard-headed thought about the problem.

If that doesn't happen, I guarantee you the PBB story will be only the first and certainly not the worst.

Rights attacked

Young people are losing

Tim Richard

Student councils at Michigan colleges and universities would be wise to chip in and hire themselves the best lobbyist they can—someone in the Jim Karoub category. The young people have suffered a serious decline in popularity since the "youth cult" of the late 1960s and early '70s.

One thing that will almost certainly happen is that the legislature will raise the drinking age from 18, where it has been since 1972, to 19 at least.

And if some of the churchy folks around the state are successful with their petitions, we'll see a ballot proposal to hike it to 21.

Anti-youth feelings are running high in other areas. Each year the state Department of Natural Resources issues a list of parks where drinking is prohibited and where no visitors, other than campers, are allowed. Each year that list grows longer and longer.

One can also wonder if the so-called "taxpayers' rebellion" at community college and K-12 school property taxes isn't really the expression of older adults against the young folks.

I SAY THIS not from the point of view of the taxpayers and the churchy folks who would clamp down on the young people. Rather, I speak as one of the last, remaining, vocal defenders of the new age of majority.

Student leaders need to look at the nearby world the way the older adults are seeing it, which is like this:

Two persons are killed in June in Southfield when a carload of youngsters plows into their vehicle. The case is going through the courts. Drink may be involved.

Six Plymouth area youngsters are killed in July in the wee hours of the morning on their way back from the Anchor Inn in Washtenaw County.

A Free Press columnist who heard the Detroit Concert Band: "The scene was the Civic Center Plaza at the food of Woodward in downtown Detroit, on a beautiful Sunday evening. . . . The traffic on Jefferson was a mere hum. . . . But every once in a while there was a terrible noise as unmuffled motorcycles roared by. Not even Sousa could withstand the awful din. There was nothing the listeners could do except wait for the idiots to drive their stupid bikes out of hearing range, which was just the other side of the Ohio border."

A JUICY ONE from the New York Times Service, out of Ann Arbor, where the University of Michigan is conducting an orientation for parents of new students.

"All the parents knew that the young people often drank alcoholic beverages. What many didn't know was the universtiy provides beer and wine free at dormitory parties. That struck Thelma Sparks, an Indiana mother, as being out of line with a university's job." (The university's elaborate reasoning, incidentally, is along the line that if we don't provide it, they'll get it someplace else where they won't be safe.)

From the same NY Times yarn: "There are four all-female dorms on campus. Isn't that a way of avoiding roomate abuses? Joan and Frank Moran of Birmingham thought so. However, from the orientation, they learned that men frequently sleep in the women's rooms in Stockwell, the largest of the four, too. The Morans were taken aback, and then they were resigned. 'I guess we were just trying to be old-fashioned,' Mrs. Moran said with a nervous laugh."

I save the juiciest for the last: the Hines Parkway mess. Drink. Drugs. Vandalism. Litter. A task force of public officials from local, county, state and community college governments.

All of this has hit the public prints in a very short period of time. All of it has a devastating effect on the mass reputation of young people. Some of it may be false, but try to tell that to the cops, the judges and the legislature.

Detroit, Norris win; Wings' fans lose

Eccentricities

by HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

In the minds of the core city folk, there is great competition between the city and the suburbs. They feel every time something good happens in the suburbs that it is bad for the city.

The suburbanites don't necessarily feel that way because they are not organized as a unit to fight for preservation, and most suburbanites work in the city and know that if there is no strong city, there will not be suburbs in the long run.

The 1970 census tells us that there are now more suburbanites than urbanites in our county. And these suburbanites are the most affluent and best educated of the people in the total metropolitan area.

Whose fault is it that people have moved to the suburbs? Probably it's no one's fault, but as people earn more money they look for a bigger house on a lot with a barn, and this type of place is more available in the suburbs.

Whose fault is it that the suburbanites don't use the facilities downtown at night? Chalk that up to the image that downtown is not safe at night. There are downtowns that are safe at night. Chicago and Toronto, for example.

Detroit doesn't fall into this category. Therefore, someone downtown could be doing a better job of cleaning the streets of crime.

This preamble leads up to the recent decision of the Detroit Red Wings hockey team to move into a new arena downtown.

The Red Wings' attendance at the Olympia has fallen off tremendously. Detroit sports fans like winners, so this could be the reason—the Red Wings haven't been winners for a long time.

But the murder of a Farmington man in a parking lot next to Olympia has added an additional dimension.

THE RED WINGS had planned to move out to a new arena across from the Silverdome in Oakland County.

The Lions moved to the suburbs, and even without a winner their attendance has increased significantly.

Mayor Coleman Young, of Detroit, was bound and determined to build a new sports arena in downtown Detroit, but he didn't have any tenants. The Red Wings and Pistons had indicated they were both moving north to where the paying customers were.

To make sure his palace would not be a white elephant, Young had to do something to fill the arena, particularly because this is an election year.

Bruce Norris owns several companies. Among them are the Red Wings and the Olympia stadium.

It is no secret that the Red Wings have lost over two million dollars over the last two years. The Olympia stadium has been profitable because it controls the concessions and parking and brings in many attractions other than hockey.

So Mayor Young gave away the store to the Olympia people to keep the Red Wings downtown.

For $450,000 he rented not only the new arena but the existing Cobo Arena, and he gave the concession business at both arenas to the Olympia group which earned a sum close to the rent just on the old Cobo arena.

So Bruce Norris got two stadiums for 30 years practically rent free. There is no question that it was an offer he couldn't refuse.

WAS DETROIT hurt by Young's largesse? Not really, because anything he can do to attract people downtown to spend money will help the city.

Oakland County is a loser because it now won't get a new arena across from the Silverdome which would have brought them increased business activity.

But the real losers were the Red Wing fans. Many would like to support the team on a regular basis, but they live in the suburbs, particularly Oakland County, and just don't want to go downtown.

There's little difference in their minds between the new and old location when it comes to safety.

But Bruce Norris is a businessman and he must perceive he can make more money with two arenas, practically rent free, than by increased attendance at Red Wing games, which in a nutshell is why so many sports are fighting declining attendance.

The fans are asked to be loyal to "their" team, but the team owner is often only loyal to the dollar.

Higher inflation forecast by university economists

University of Michigan economists, in a recently released economic forecast for 1977-78, project declining growth rates, slowly falling unemployment, and somewhat higher inflation.

Based on the econometric model compiled by the U-M Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics (RSQE), the revised forecast for 1977-78 calls for:

•Declining gowth rates in real Gross National Product (GNP). By the last half of 1978 the real GNP growth will decline to 3.3 per cent.

•Slowly falling unemployment rates. In the last quarter of 1978 unemployment rates are forecast to average 6.46 per cent.

•Somewhat higher inflation rates. Although the rate of inflation varies during the forecast period, it does so largely in the 6 to 7 per cent range and without a noticeable trend.

In addition, Saul Hymans and Harold Shapiro, University of Michigan professors, predict declining rates of growth in real disposable incomes, constant dollar consumer durable purchases and real business investment in capital equipment.

The pattern of declining real growth rates, they explain, stems in part in the automotive and residential construction sectors. In the former case automotive expenditues are forecast to plateau at record levels from mid-1977 through mid-1978 and to then fall back somewhat from these levels.

Demand in this sector, therefore, ceases quite quickly to contribute to real growth and by mid-1978 begins to constitute a bit of a drag on aggregate growth rates. In the housing sector, activity is forecast to peak at the end of 1977—at a level below that of early 1973—and then decline somewhat under the impact of more difficult credit conditions as they impact on the supply of mortgage funds.

The major difficulty in the housing sector is the continued expected weakness in the area of multi-family starts. This sector was hit hard by financial crises in the 1974-75 recession and currently expected rents do not seem to be keeping pace with expected costs despite delining vacancy rates. A full recovery in this sector, therefore, is not expected over the forecast horizon.

The U-M economists expect growth of business capital spending to remain strong through 1978, although annual growth rates should be down in the 7 per cent range by the end of 1978—compared to growth rates in the 9 per cent range during the remainder of 1977 and early 1978.

Growth rates in this sector are not forecast to be sufficient to overcome the developing weaknesses expected in autos and housing, they observe.

The RSQE figures imply overall inflation rates of 5.7 per cent for the year 1977 and 6.7 per cent for 1978.

Weavers win at Meijer's

Gloria Weaver (right) and her husband, Charley, were the big winners in Meijer Thrifty Acres' prize give-away last week. Winners of $1,000 in gift certificates, the Weavers haven't decided what they'll buy with their windfall. "I walked through the store the night I won," said Mrs. Weaver, "but I don't know yet. We may get a few Christmas presents or some major purchases." Other contest winners were Donna Strosdin, Richard Horner, Berta Kirk, Kathy Tsom, Barb Theison, Priacille Rybinski, Steven Wendland, Dorothy Lawson, John Delaney, Maureen Kocsis, Joyce Miriani, Judy Mach, Marge Tyree, Steve McCaffrey, Linda Phillips, Hazel Burley, Georgina Thayers, Pat Chevillat, Anne Hurtubise, Gerald Bilunn, M. Skydivers, trick llama at carnival

Pony rides, a performing horse, sky divers, a trick llama and all kinds of games are planned for a super muscular dystrophy carnival Saturday and Sunday in Canton Township.

Ray Bayliss and Cindy Richards of the McDonalds restaurant, Ford Road between Canton Center and Sheldon roads, said there would be no admission charge to the carnival which will be adjacent to the restaurant. Rides, games and food will cost 25 cents each with all the proceeds going to the MS drive headed by Jerry Lewis.

"We're going to be on the Jerry Lewis telethon," said Cindy, a recent graduate of Plymouth Salem High School.

Show hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday. There will be a pancake eating contest at 11 a.m., Saturday. Ronald McDonald will be there on Sunday.

A photographer will be on hand to take pictures of children with the llama or a pony. There will be a $1 charge for the photographs.

A dunk tank will be set up. "I don't know who all will be there for the dunking," said Cindy. "I know some people from Channel 4 have promised to come."

Bayliss and Ms. Richards had confirmed several celebrities for the dunk tank when the whole show had to be canceled because they could not obtain permission to use the property behind the restaurant.

They were given the okay on Monday to go ahead with their plans. The property is available and the carnival is on.

Mayflower built as symbol

By W.W. EDGAR

One of the oddest chapters in the history of the Mayflower Hotel, which will celebrate its 50th anniversary in November, is the fact it was primarily built to serve as a symbol of the community, not to make money.

It was over a luncheon table back in 1926 when a group of the city's businessmen decided the area needed a symbol and the greatest need was for a hotel which would serve that purpose. Once that decision was made it required only a half day to raise the money and the hotel was opened on Nov. 11, 1927.

Each of the men had his own business and the profit motive was far from their minds. It was a symbol they wanted, and not money.

This fact is established in the instructions the group gave Ralph Lorenz and his family in 1964 when it sold them the hostelry.

Taken from the yellowed pages of history, here are the instructions as laid down to the new owner:

FIRST, this is a community hotel, so participate in all community affairs willingly.

SECOND, run a clean and proud place of business.

THIRD, this is a hotel founded by 234 stockholders who had faith in the hotel and community. Try not to let them down.

FOURTH, always set aside a certain per cent of every dollar taken in to keep the hotel in a competitive position.

FIFTH, if you can accomplish all of these things it would be nice if you could make a profit.

"It was Lorenz's desire to carry out the orders and serve the purpose for which the hotel was intended. And now, 13 years later the hotel is more a symbol of the city than ever before.

Lorenz's entry into the Mayflower picture also is unusual. For the first 10 years of operation, the hotel, under the board of directors, had a real struggle. In the midst of the depression in the thirties, the stockholders became disenchanted and were on the verge of giving up. They had suffered heavy losses.

Determined, though, to keep the hotel as a symbol of the city the board engaged Lorenz, who was a graduate of Plymouth High School, to manage the place.

Ralph had worked his way through Eastern Michigan University by working in the food department of the College Union and was no stranger to a kitchen or the food business.

It was this background that attracted the board of directors, and Ralph went to work on March 1, 1939.

In fact the Mayflower is one of the few small town hotels still is in existence. Most of them have given way to what was termed progress and were absorbed by the big chain motels. But not the Mayflower.

Over the years Lorenz not only has kept faith with the stockholders in continuing the symbol but he also has followed instructions to make the hotel a community center and to participate in all community functions.

Aside from carrying out those instructions, Lorenz has turned most of the profit back into the business with the result being the Lorenz Square, containing the hotel, the Meeting House, the hotel, the First National Bank of Plymouth and the office complex that houses the stock exchange.

It is now one of the largest taxpayers in the city and the top year-round employer.

K of C roasts hot dogs and corn to combat MD

The Plymouth Knights of Columbus will sponsor a hot dog and corn roast on Sunday, Sept. 4 in connection with the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon being held that weekend.

The end-of-summer corn and dog roast is at the Plymouth Knights of Columbus grounds, Mill Street south of Ann Arbor Trail. Festivities begin at noon and end at 8 p.m. All net proceeds go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The dunk tank, a consistent crowd-pleaser, will be installed on the grounds to allow citizens of Plymouth and Canton the opportunity to dunk Plymouth Mayor Joe Bida and Canton Supervisor Harold Stein. If political dunking doesn't excite you, take a shot at knocking Fr. Robert Kellar of Our Lady of Good Counsel into the drink. Don't worry, it's not a sin.

The ladies' auxiliary of the K of C will begin distributing muscular dystrophy drive collection canisters in local stores next week.

Canton residents Matthew and Christopher Yotti, foster children for the metropolitan Detroit area, will be special guests of honor at the cookout.

Roger Morahan, grand knight of the Plymouth chapter, hopes the picnic will enable people to contribute to a charity while they're enjoying the food and fun.

The VIEW from 461 SOUTH MAIN

by ELLIE GRAHAM

THE BIRTH of Dale and Elaine Yagiela's daughter Heather, Aug. 9 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, was a much heralded and long awaited event.

For Elaine's students at New Morning School, it was the highlight of the summer vacation. Dale's young people at the Youth Center on Main Street were a bit more restrained in their enthusiasm, but nevertheless, most interested.

Elaine Yagiela founded New Morning School, an alternative school for youngsters kindergarten through middle school. Before the students published their first newspaper early this year, our Canton Township editor, Craig Piechura, was invited to discuss journalism at the school.

Craig's emphasis on who, what, where and when made quite an impression on the young writers as the following story reveals. The hand-printed head on the front-page news item was an inch and a half high: "Elaine's Baby."

"Monday, December 20, 1976 Elaine Yagiela told New Morning School that she was expecting a baby on August 5, 1977. Elaine Yagiela prefers either a boy or a girl. Elaine is eating meat, cheese, eggs, vegetables, whole wheat bread, milk and lots of fruit. She is planning on having another baby but not right away. By Brian Way."

The whole school—parents, students, and teachers—had a surprise potluck dinner and shower for the baby. There was even a baby-naming contest.

It was more exciting for the children than having a new baby in their own family.

ON THEIR WAY back from Mackinac Island, Lorraine and Paul Sanders stopped at Goodale's Bakery near Clare.

They loaded up on baked goods that were familiar to many Plymouth residents when Goodale's was an institution to Starkweather Elementary School students. The bake shop was on the corner of Starkweather and Spring, where New Gal in Town and House of Glamour are now.

It was instant recognition when the Sanders showed one of the giant doughnuts to their daughter Sharon Burow. She needed no prompting. "It's a Goodale doughnut."

She immediately bought them from her mother.

JULY 28 WINNERS at the party bridge game at the Plymouth Cultural Center were Ann Prevost and Christi Hoagland.

The Thursday afternoon games are continuing through the summer. The center is air conditioned and all bridge players are invited to join the group by Margaret Swartz, manager of the games.

KAREN ANN COOK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cook of Plymouth, has been accepted for admission to the International Fine Arts College in Miami, Fla.

She will study fashion merchandising and design. During her two years at the school she will work in fashion shows and design centers in Miami. Field trips throughout Florida and study tours in Europe and the Orient also are included in her college schedule.

PLYMOUTH IS GOING to have a spot in "The Betsy," the movie now being filmed in the Detroit area.

It just happened that arrival of two contestants for the city's second annual chicken flying contest coincided with a scene being shot at Metro Airport.

Creon Smith and Kirk Lorenz agreed to cooperate with the movie makers. The specially trained chickens were flown in from Texas in a white plastic carrier. Creon and Kirk simply had to alight from the plane carrying the chickens.

Before the filming was completed, the two Plymouth men, Sir Lawrence Olivier, Catherine Ross, Robert Duvall, lesser stars, extras, and the two (newly arrived) Plymouth chickens had spent eight hours on the set. They started about 5 p.m. and finished at 1 a.m.

"It was quite interesting," said Kirk. "At one point, they thought they wanted the chickens to get loose, but they changed their minds.

"The lead (Catherine Ross) got off the plane right behind us. Sir Lawrence got off ahead of us."

He said that when she was not on camera, a little lady followed Ms. Ross around with a jewelry and cosmetic case. Kirk was amazed at the amount of equipment the crew brought with them.

"One of them wanted a flight board changed in the airport. He said,

Snack shack ladies 'fill the void'

"Best diamonds we ever played on."

"Your players were gentlemen on and off the field."

"There was no trouble—not one incident."

Compliments like these made the long hours of work and planning for two national baseball tournaments all worthwhile.

Hosting the tourneys last weekend was a cooperative effort for many Plymouth families.

Marie Palubinsky, who co-chaired the snack shacks with Helen Holloway, said, "It was our turn to help the men."

Mrs. Palubinsky reasoned that, "The men have volunteered their summerfor years, coaching and managing junior league baseball and football. I know my son has been involved for 10 years.

"They worked on the diamonds, put up the fences, built dugouts and put up snack shacks at two diamonds. Some of them would go out at 5 or 6 in the morning and put in several hours at the diamonds before they went to their regular jobs."

ACCORDING TO MARIE, all the women did was:

- Hold a rummage sale to help finance the tournaments.
- Bake brownies, rice krispie bars and chocolate chip cookies for the four-day tourney.
- Made gallons of coffee. (They had to carry the water to the snack shack at Plymouth Salem high.)
- Stocked the three refreshments booths each of the four morningsby 7 a.m.
- Cooked and sold more than 500 hotdogs.
- Made sure there was someone behind the counters to sell refreshments from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

She gave special credit to her co-chairwoman, Helen Holloway, and Sandy Wilcox, Nancy Runge, Ruth Huddleston, Joy Gray, and Yvonne Johnson. "And I'm sure I left someone out. Many of them baked and helped in other ways," she said.

Audrey Etienne had all the players, parents and managers at her house Sunday night after the last game of the tournament.

They had a pizza party and bats and trophies were handed out. "It was a combined effort," said Mrs. Palubinsky.

SHE PRAISED the efforts of the men who organized the tournament so well that the visiting teams hoped Plymouth would host it again next year.

Mike Michalek, Bill Runge, Ivor James, Al Campbell, Ben Wilcox, Dave Albright, Dick Holloway, Brian Gilles, Mel Johnson, Fred Crissey and Clint Etienne rated special mention from Mrs. Palubinsky.

"And the nice thing about it," she added, "The tournaments are over and the diamonds are in beautiful condition. The schools will benefit too if they just keep them up."

Apple Run members judge garden contes

Members of the Apple Run branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, zipped around in golf carts last Saturday judging a garden contest at Honeytree apartments.

Showers did not dampen their enthusiasm or the barbecue which followed.

Judges were Sharon Palise, Rosemary Smith, Vi Stevens, Ann King and Virginia Hicks. Bobbie Plopan, the club's new publicity chairperson went along, camera in hand, to record the occasion for posterity and a garden club publication.

First prize for a balcony went to Millie Duncan. The garden clubbers liked the way she carried out an African theme with a bamboo screen, masks, hanging pots and baskets of plants.

"There was balance and originality in her design," said Mrs. Plopan. "And splashes of color to add to the total effect."

MARIE ODOM had the most creative patio.

She used old rustic logs as a border and planted them with flowers— all from seed.

In the patios over-all category, the judges ran into some difficulty. The original plan was to award three $100 first place prizes. There were three patios that deserved awards and it was difficult to choose one.

"The manager said she would give three prizes," said Sharon Palise. "The first was $100, second $75, and third $50 off one month's rent."

Bob and Mary Lou Warnke received the $100 deduction. Doug and Charlotte French were second and Ruth Verdure was third. There were five honorable mentions.

The judges were invited to return next year for the second annual garden contest. It was such a success they decided to make it a yearly event.

Apple Run garden club members scooted from patio to patio in three golf carts during the judging. (Staff photos)

Canton chatter

By SHARON STARON 455-5322

August is the second most popular month for vacations, out-ranked only by July, which is number one. If you've already taken a vacation this year or are still looking forward to one, we'll all agree everyone needs one.

Webster defines vacation as a specific interval of rest from work. Others may describe it as the feeling that if they don't get a break pretty soon, they'll go bananas.

There are probably as many different kinds of vacations as there are human beings. It may be the one time during the year that one may be said to really be "doing their own thing."

What may seem like a lot of fun to one person, may be looked upon as absolute insanity to someone else. Even the closest of friends may go in opposite directions when it comes to vacation time. No one has to agree with you on what you think is relaxation because no one has to do it with you.

Some may jet over to Europe for two weeks or take an ocean cruise around the world. Others fly to Hawaii, or it's possible the Bahamas' scene is chosen for fun in the sun.

WHEN WE HEAR about these friends and neighbors enjoying themselves on the Riviera, most of us would find it hard not to say, "Now there's a vacation!" We even may plan on taking a trip like that ourselves one day.

For now, many of us are content with just getting away from it all. Sometimes, we will be taking it all with us.

Especially those who are blessed with children. This is where we get into family vacations. Now we don't worry about a good time for one. Plans must include a group.

Camping is a very popular activity for a multitude of families. But even this type of family fun has a variety of differences.

There are those who drive their air-conditioned Airstreams to a campground with room service and call it roughing it in the woods. Then there are those who opt for the wilds of Canada with backpack and pup tent and really get back to nature.

Somewhere, in between, we find families with the deluxe camper, the pop-up camper trailer, or a 12x12 tent with attached screened patio. They will go as far as California or as near as Brighton.

There are campgrounds adjacent to lakes or those which advertise a gigantic heated pool. There are hot showers in most and others include only the old-fashioned outhouse.

MOST CAMPERS agree that this type of vacation stimulates the imagination on how to entertain one another or how to prepare a meal over an open fire.

Camping also builds character. It is a test of one's endurance to overcome the fumes of insect repellent and to stay dirty for more than a week without complaining. Anyone who has ever spent three days in a camper with the whole family while it pours down rain outside gains a great deal of respect for sunshine.

There is another group of families who spend their leisure time with their loved ones at "the cottage." This home away from home inevitably will face a lake or be very close to one.

The cottage may be as comfortable as one's own home with all the modern conveniences and probably should be referred to as a summer home rather than a cottage. Or, it can be a one-room shack that may keep out the rain but little else.

The family may own its cottage or simply rent one for a limited period of time. Usually, this type of vacation truly takes one away from it all—away from the telephone, the television, the noise of the city, the neighbors, the supermarkets and, unfortunately, the dishwasher.

TO SOME, a vacation means getting into the car and traveling to a planned destination of one's own special interests. This may be a trip to Washington, D.C., the mountains of Colorado, or Florida's Disney World.

They drive all day and stay in motels along their route. They become sore from sitting for hours on end and begin to get hallucinations from the white line in the middle of the road.

Parents may get a little weary from answering the question "How much further is it?"

The trip usually is worth the time getting there if the new and thrilling sights fulfill expectations.

Still others would never think of leaving their owm backyard when the time to take a break arrives. These people probably travel so much during their regular working hours they enjoy the peace and quiet of home.

ONE MOTHER with three children under the age of four considers a half hour in the bathroom—alone, without anyone pounding on the door—a vacation in itself.

As for me, just sit me down by the water's edge on a comfortable cot, and give me a tall glass of iced tea and an engrossing novel.

Add bright sunshine and temperatures anywhere from 90 to 100 degrees. Don't ask me to do anything and I'll be ready to return in a week.

Whatever you consider a vacation is probably different from anyone else. When you have honestly taken a break from your normal routine, then you have fulfilled the requirements.

Sometimes a vacation simply makes us appreciative of what we left back home.

What kind of vacation did you take this year?

So the annual chicken race which attracted nationwide attention last fall somehow became involved in "The Betsy," the movie version of the Harold Robbins best seller.

KIDS OF ALL ages can have lunch with Mickey Mouse at 9 a.m. Aug. 25 at either Hudson's Westland or Briarwood stores. There will be cartoons, other entertainment and souvenirs to take home. Parents may take pictures of their children with Mickey Mouse.

Reservations must be made in advance at Hudson's ticket service. Cost of the breakfast and all is $2.50.

Madonna learns of CPR

The Madonna College campus is a bit safer place to be because of a recent session with faculty members Diane Krzyston and John Fick on the subject of cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Ms. Krzyston, director of the advanced emergency medical technology program at Madonna, and Flick, a teacher in the program, are both instructors certified by the Michigan Heart Association.

They said they arranged the session so that member of the faculty and staff would have some idea how to assist a person who has stopped breathing or has had a cardiac arrest.

"The faculty and student body at Madonna range in age from 16 to 60," Fick pointed out, "and some are in the high risk group, so CPR training here is a safety precaution."

He added that many factors along with age make a person a high risk. These might include smoking or lack of exercise.

Louis Brohl, director of admissions said he felt better equipped to handle an emergency he knew might arise.

"I hope I will never need to use it, but it's good to know the technique," said Brohl. "I think I know the right steps; Ms. Krzyston and Mr. Fick gave thorough instructions."

Brohl made his comments after a sesssion in which students practiced life-saving methods on each other.

Ms. Krzyston, a director of the Southeast Michigan Heart Associan, given instruction on television and for local industry.

She told her fellow staff members at Madonna the CPR life-saving method was developed during the 1960s at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. The method already has helped save thousands of lives.

The instruction was based on an American Medical Association film titled "New Pulse of Life." The film describes the three vital steps of CPR, open the airway, restore breathing and restore circulation.

Class members used Resusciannie, a dummy, to practice life saving methods.

"Reaching the victim within four minutes after breathing has stopped is of vital importance," Ms. Krzyston told them. "After four minutes, the victim has only a 50 per cent chance of survival."

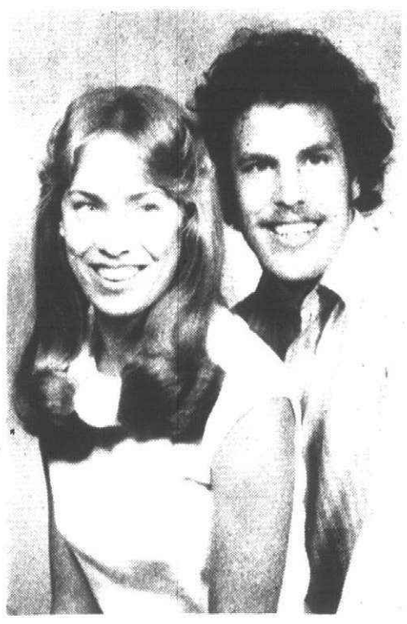
Although CPR is usually associated with heart attack, it also is used in cases of suffocation, drug overdose, smoke inhalation and drowning. CPR must be continued on the victim until emergency medical aid arrives.

Staff and faculty members who participated at Madonna were urged to take refresher courses on the method once a year to keep the knowledge fresh in their minds.

New Voices

Karen and Bill Lantgios Jr. of Plymouth announce the birth of their second daughter, Jessica Lynn, July 19 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor. Her sister, Jennifer, is 1½.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cox Jr. of Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. William Lantgios of Livonia.



Adams-Mason

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Adams of Jener Street, Plymouth, announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela, to James Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell E. Mason of Horton.

The bride-elect is a senior at Michigan State University. She graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1974. Her finance graduated from Plymouth Salem high the same year and also is a senior at MSU.

They plan a mid-December wedding.

Antiques appraiser at annual league show

The Plymouth Symphony League has added a new feature to its annual antique mart. For the first time there will be an appraisal booth at the show.

Rae Choma will appraise practically anything in the realm of antiques or collectors items—jewelry, glass, art objects, china. There will be a $1 charge for each verbal appraisal.

Ms. Choma is a certified member of the Antiques Appraisers Association of America. She also is a member of the National Association of Dealers in Antiques, Inc., Friends of Greenfield Village, and the Museum of American Folk Art in New York.

She exhibits in antique shows as Drovers East Antiques.

She has conducted classes and seminars on antiques and is a favorite guest speaker for area clubs and groups. She is the author of a soon-to-be-released feature article, "Folk Art, an Ever-widening Horizon," in the Museum of American Folk Art magazine.

She has the reputation of being knowledgeable about the canging values of antiques and collectibles.

RAE CHOMA

Mart chairman Fran Lang said, "The service is intended to add a new dimension to antiquing and make the show more interesting for the patrons."

The 15th annual mart will be Sept. 9-11 in the Plymouth Cultural Center on Farmer Street during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Combined effort

Canton Township and Plymouth members of the Plymouth Community Arts Council are working together in planning the seventh annual arts and crafts show for the Plymouth Fall Festival. THE KINGDOM IS LIKE A FISH-NET

Again the kingdom of heaven is like a drag-net cast into the sea, and gathering fish of every kind." (cf. Matt. 13:47-50). In terms of this parable, first consider the basic realities that stand over us in our existence on this earth. There is coming a day when a separation of the wicked and the righteous shall be forever effected. In that day, there will be no fear of being victimized by those who do not value human life. Furthermore, this day will initiate the eternal punishment of the unrighteous. This is a solemn truth. The reference to the furnace of fire is not to be taken literally. Rather the language is figurative and is designed to impress us with the intensity of everlasting punishment. The lingering agony of a burn only begins to indicate to us the finality of God's wrath. Finally, the day of separation will also be the initiation of the eternal blessedness of the righteous; they will be forever separated from the ungodly; they will receive a glory given by God and an inheritance from God the Father in heaven.

Second, consider the distinctive point of this parable: the kingdom comes in the mission of spreading the gospel to all men. In the time between the coming and the consummation of the kingdom, the gospel is to be proclaimed to all men everywhere. The church has the gospel as a trust. Proper discharge of this trust will involve a following of Christ as "fishers" of men. The doctrine of sovereign election is no excuse to this work. Actually, it is an encouragement because we know God has a certain and settled saving purpose in which he has chosen sinful rebels unto salvation. He will save them. His method is Gospel mission. Our message in this mission is to announce the definite salvation secured by the substitutional death of Christ.

The gospel stands out in relief against the backdrop of the reality of the judgment. Hear this gospel, believe and obey Jesus Christ, the Lord, and you will be spared the agonizing sorrows of the end of the age.

Summer is Bible school time in churches all over the area. Bible school in August represents a break in a long summer of comparative idleness for the youngsters and a chance for some informal instruction on the part of the staff.

Bible school involves a variety of activities, but churches all strive in varying ways to center the days' activities around what's in the book that has for hundreds of years been the basis of Christian teaching.

So on the summer mornings when the programs are in session, you are likely to find children reading Bible stories, looking up Bible verses, planning dramas about Bible characters and turning bits of the Bible into inspirational banners.

Bible school at Bethany Baptist Church of Livonia translated Bible study into banners the children could take home. Lucy Picciville, 11, finds in the scripture the passage she's spelling out in felt letters. (Photo by Les Raebel)

Staff and children at St. Paul Lutheran of Livonia prepare for the parent's night in the sanctuary, the program to end a week of vacation school. (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

CHURCH BULLETIN

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, 45000 North Territorial, Plymouth, will hold its annual vacation Bible school with the theme, "Sing it Out-Jesus Loves You," 9:15-11:45 a.m. daily, Aug. 15-19.

The classes are free.

GOOD SHEPHERD REFORMED CHURCH, 6500 North Wayne, Westland, will present a series of films for the evening programs of its annual vacation Bible school beginning Aug. 13.

The first two evenings, Aug. 13 and 14, the Nicky Cruz film, "The Cross and the Switch Blade," and "All Alone," a Davey and Goliath film for children, will be shown. "A stranger in my Forest" and "Bell Ringer," another Davey and Goliath show will be presented Aug. 17. Aug. 19 interested persons may see, "The Rapture," by David Wilerson and "The Waterfall," a third Davey and Goliath film.

All movies begin at 8:15 p.m.,and all are invited.

ST. PAUL UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 27475 Five Mile, Livonia, will offer Vacation Bible School with the theme, "Reaching Out to Receive God's Love," 9:30 a.m. to noon daily except Fridays, Aug. 15-25.

Children,three years old through those in the sixth grade, are invited to join in worship, Bible lessons, crafts, music, and recreation and refreshments. A special trip is also being planned. The Rev. Bob Cox will be in charge.

Registration information may be obtained by calling the church, 422-1470 or Virginia Jensen, the director, 476-7391.

WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, at the corner of Six Mile and Farmington Roads, Livonia, will host, as guest preacher, the Rev. Matthew J. Welde, executive secretary of Presbyterians United for Biblical Concerns, at all regular services Sunday.

He will speak on, "The Secret of His Presence," at the 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. services, and at 7 p.m. his topic will be, "Love is a Many Splendored Thing."

Following the evening service a reception will be held in the Fellowship Hall and Rev. Welde will be available to answer questions.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF WAYNE, 36125 Glenwood, will hear the Rev. W. Alfred Pruett speak at the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. services Sunday.

Rev. Pruett had been a missionary in Viet Nam for 18 years, an Army chaplain for three years, and a church pastor for 25 years, which included a radio ministry.

He is currently the spiritual counselor and pastor of Friendship Village Retirement Center in Milwaukee.

NEWBURG UNITED METHODIST CHURCH, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia, will its annual chicken barbeque and corn roast, sponsored by the men's club, from noon to 6 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 21.

Adult tickets are $3 and children,12 years and under, $1.50. For more information call Larry Johnson, 425-0567.

CLARENCEVILLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH 20300 Middlebelt, Livonia, will hear the "New Directions" singing group perform, "An Action Experience in God's Love", at 7 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 21.

The interdenominational and interracial group, compsed of high school and college age people, has traveled extensively throughout the Western Hemisphere, performing for audiences of all kinds to present their unique blend of music.

The group began singing in 1968 with J.L. Williams acting as the founder and director.

The concert is free of charge and open to the public.

Organ program set

Music of Bach, Handel and Buxtehude will be performed on the Christ Church Cranbrook 4,069-pipe organ at 5 p.m. Aug. 14 when Curtis Murawski is guest organist.

Murawski is minister of music of St. Ambrose Roman Catholic Church, Grosse Pointe.

The organ concert follows the 4 p.m. carillon recital. Both are free to the public.

Murawski's program includes Buxtehude's "Fuge in C Major (known as "The Jig"), Handel's "Andante and Allegro," Hindemith's "Sonata No. 2 for organ," Leo Sowerby's Prelude on "Song 46" and Bach's "Prelude and Fuge in D Major."

A student at the Institute of Pastoral Liturgical Ministries, Murawski has played the organ in Detroit-area churches for the past 11 years. He also studied with Matthew Walsh and John Callaghan.

Westland Long Horns find

Opryland is more than glitter

By BOB MOREILLON

A whoop went up in Tootsie's Orchid Lounge when the master of ceremonies welcomed Westland's Long Horns CB radio club. Chuck Tober and 30 members of the Long Horns were here at this famous downtown Nashville watering trough of the country stars after the Saturday night Grand Ole Opry performance.

Like millions of Americans and Canadians, the Long Horns were on their annual pilgrimage to the homeplace of country music in America. It was the Long Horns' third year, and they homed-in on the Grand Ole Opry and its surrounding Opryland U.S.A. via Opryland's own citizen's band station monitoring channel one.

Just behind Tootsie's is the ancestral home of country music, the Ryman Theater, home of the Grand Ole Opry from 1943 to 1974.

You see, the Ryman wasn't air conditioned, and the performers worked up quite a sweat fiddlin' and singin.' Between acts, they'd slip out the back door and into Tootsie's for a cold one.

Their scribbled notes and autographs and photos paper the faded yellow walls of the Orchid Lounge, where beer is served by handing the can over the counter. Sixty cents, please. You pull your own tab.

TOOTSIE'S IS still thriving on tradition on Broadway across from Ernest Tubb's record shop and the Alamo. It's 1 a.m. Sunday, but the Alamo is still open. Thirty different models of Stetsons line the walls, and the racks glisten with rhinestone-studded cowboy suits that get more garish every year, part of the show biz that is country music.

But the drand Ole Opry has moved out. Its new $26 million digs out on Briley Parkway opened in 1975, sporting the finest sound and broadcasting systems money can buy.

It has plush upholstered benches for 4,400 people, instead of the Ryman's raw plank ones, and a mammoth 101-foot-wide stage. But the Grand Ole Opry is still a "down home" operation.

"It's like old home week for the performers, who come in off the tour and get together backstage here to catch up on the hometown news," said Charlotte Davidson of Opryland.

AND SO IT IS, when we visit the Opry. Whole families are mingling and chatting backstage, with kids running amok like anywhere else.

On stage, it isn't much different. Three rows of friends and neighbors of the stars are seated just behind the performers, who informally carry on conversations just out of earshot of the microphones where legendary country stars like Ernest Tubb and Roy Acuff are performing.

WSM radio is carrying the Saturday night Grand Ole Opry tonight, as it has for 52 years. (The station can often be heard on radios in the Detroit area at 650 kHz.)

Tubb sings his famous "Have you ever been lonely, have you ever been blue?" and then another number. Then everybody stands around and chats and musicians change seats while a series of commercials is heard.

The Opry's oldest advertiser, Martha White Self-Rising Flour, is still on. But now a new product has been launched, Trail Blazer Dog Food.

NAMES OPEN doors of memories and nostalgia for thousands, the older ones remembering George D. Hay, "The Solemn Old Judge"; Uncle Dave Macon; Tex Ritter; and Whitey Ford, "The Duke of Paducah." The younger ones at least remember Minnie Pearl, Rod Brasfield, Hank Snow and Roy Acuff.

They come to Nashville on pilgrimage, more than 800,000 to the Grand Ole Opry last year.

And they see Hank Snow, sponsored tonight by Coca Cola. But he doesn't act like a legend. He and one of his band members take turns poking the guitar player in the ribs while in midtune. The victim grunts audibly each time and watches over both shoulders alternately, while playing, to avoid the jabs.

Finally, on his way off stage, Snow gooses the guitar player and gets a startled leap out of him . . . just like out behind the barn.

Hank Snow stops to lean on the piano and talk to pretty female vocalist Skeeter Davis, while someone else is at the mike.

SKEETER, in her floor-length cotton print dress, has brought her little boy on stage and he hangs onto her hand looking unconcernedly around at the capacity crowd.

"Are you a country music fan?" I asked the citified-looking woman next to me, who turns out to be from Winston-Salem, N.C.

"Not really. My background is classical music, but I can appreciate this," she said.

"This is Americana," she states, wonderment in her voice.

Down on stage, Americana is indeed represented by Roy Acuff and his Smokey Mountain Boys. The fiddle sawing out the long harmonic groans that are undeniably like the groans of bagpipes out of the genealogy of the Scotch-Irish who settled Appalachia and the Bible Belt.

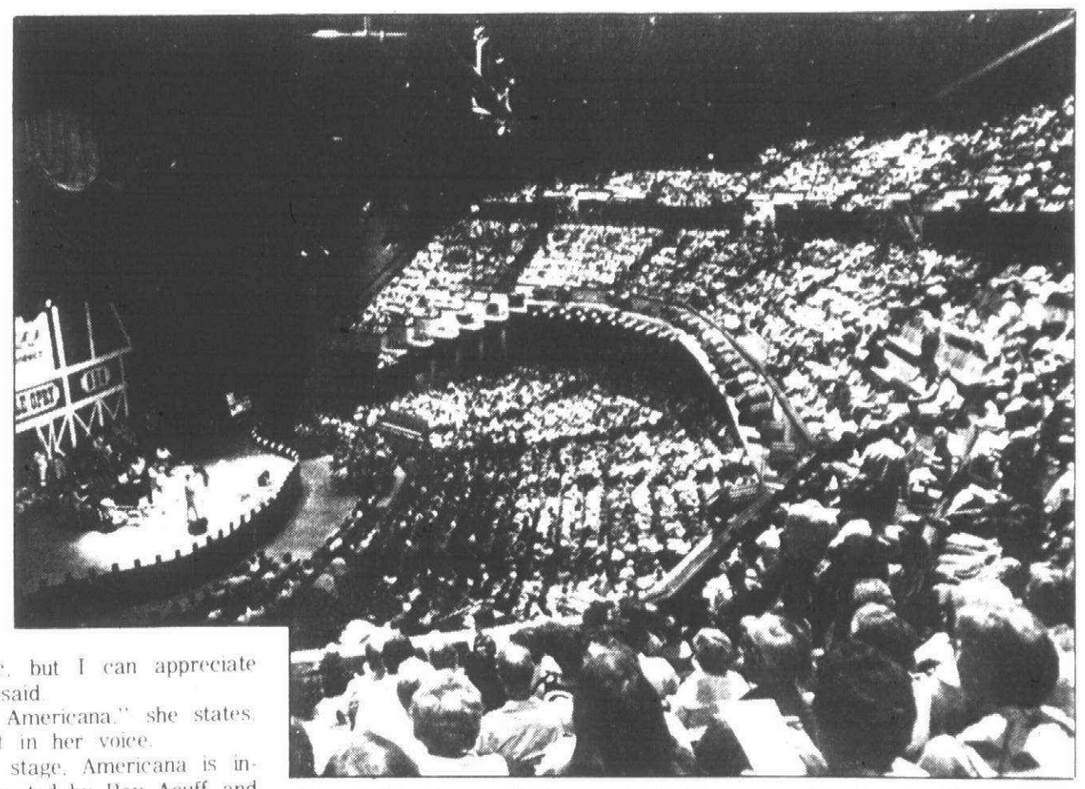
Grandpa Jones, in his knee boots and smashed-down felt hat, gets a thunderous welcome from his fans who are familiar with his weekly appearances on the "Hee Haw" television show produced in Nashville.

Charlie Louvin is on next for Beech-Nut Chewing Tobacco. He's 45 minutes early because he was here and the star who was supposed to go on was late. Very informal, this Grand Ole Opry, but maybe that's what "country" is all about.

AND SO IT goes, from 9:30 to midnight every Friday and Saturday night, year-round. No intermissions but plenty of commercials. You get up and saunter out to the rest room or refreshment stand any time you want. All for a $5 reserved seat.

During the busier summer months, matinees are held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with reserved seats for $4.

Spread out on 358 acres around the Grand Ole Opry House is Opryland U.S.A., a theme park where the theme is music.



Grand Ole Opry, which moved into its new auditorium in 1974, entertains country music fans from around the world 52 weekends a year.

It's a grand, open-air celebration of music in the heritage of the country, from country to rock, Dixieland jazz, minstrel shows, the showboat, ragtime and back to bluegrass and country.

Roll up a small version of Cedar Point Amusement Park, a botanical garden, animal petting farm, a dozen stage shows, a music museum, a music hall and a couple-dozen restaurants, nestle them in a garden setting along the banks of the Cumberland River, and you have Opryland U.S.A.

ADMISSION IS separate from the Grand Ole Opry and seems formidable at first: $7.50 for adults, $7 for children 4 to 11, and free for age 3 and under.

Walking into Opryland, you are greeted by a lush, almost tropical appearance, from many trees and flowers in beds and pots hanging everywhere.

Pathways through the flowered grounds lead past ice cream and popcorn stands, an old-fashioned white gazebo where two of the original Smokey Mountain Boys have just finished playing and are signing autographs and posing with visitors for photos.

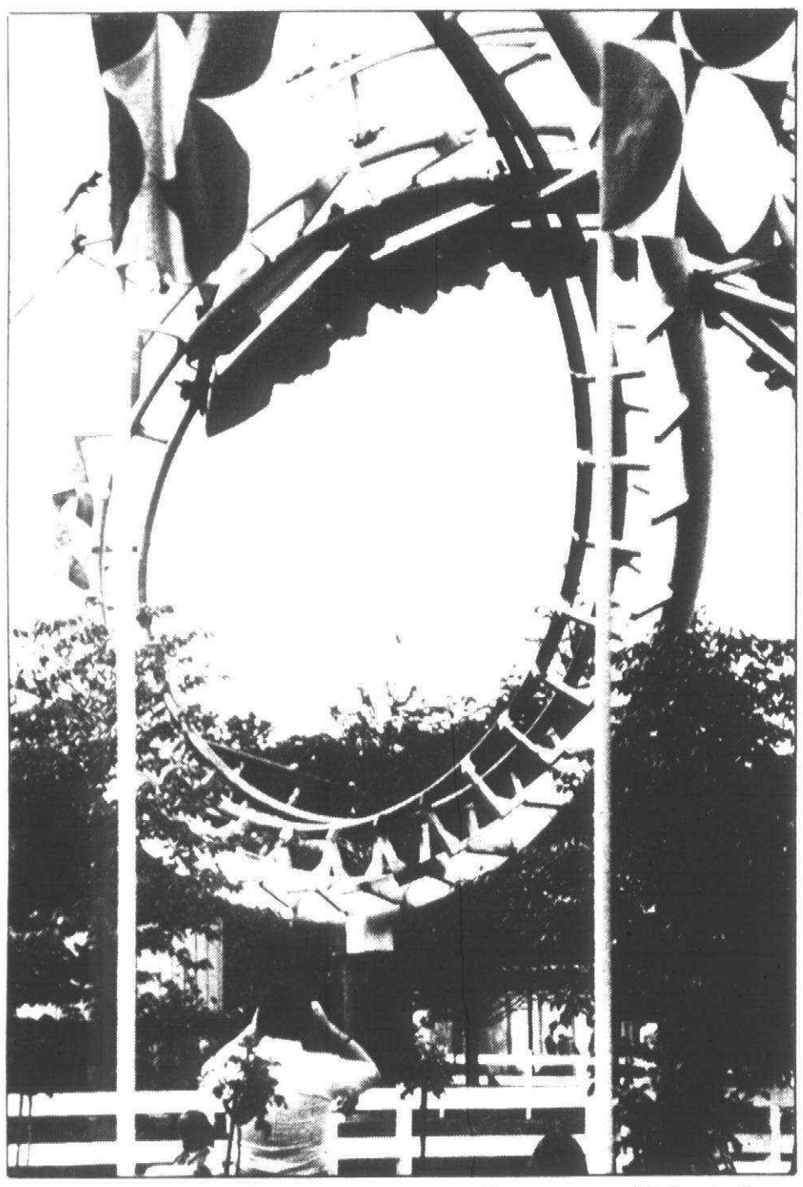
If the National Life and Accident Company, Opryland's owner closed it down tomorrow, Kodak could probably open it the next day and support it from the profit on film sold and processed.

BUT FAR FROM closing, Opryland is bustling seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. This will last through Labor Day, when Opryland goes on a weekends-only schedule.

Walking down a shaded path, the first music theater looms up ahead. It's the new Gaslight Theater, an old-fashioned white frame building open on three sides. It matches well the turn-of-the-century music in "For Me and My Gal," the show that plays there four times a day.

A 16-piece orchestra and cast of 18 in colorful costumes of the era put on the 45-minute show.

The first impression of the show, with its young people in frilly bonnets, leg-o-mutton sleeves, striped coats and celluloid collars, is that the singing and orchestral accompaniment are too professional.



"Wabash Cannonball" upside-down rollercoaster whirls at Opryland.

Music Hall readies new dance attractions

For the fall season Music Hall has signed 11 attractions for metropolitan area dance fans, including classical and modern groups ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime.

The ridiculous refers to the "Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo," a group of male dancers who spoof traditional ballet (complete with tutus).

Opening the series in October will be the Twyla Tharp Dancers. Twyla Tharp is considered by many to be the most important new choreographer in America.

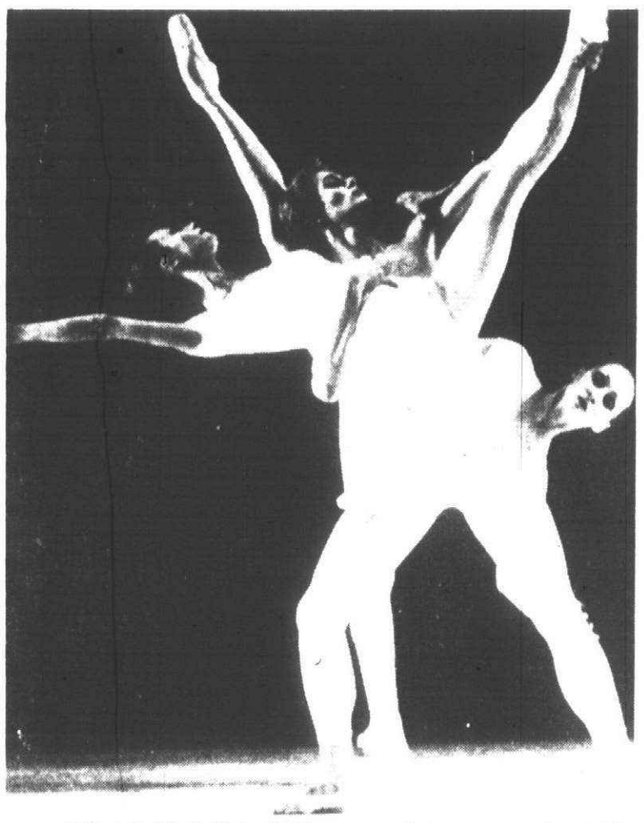
In November, the Pennsylvania Ballet comes to Music Hall with the Pennsylvania Orchestra for audiences who enjoy the precision and beauty of a fine classical company.

The next attraction is the Eliot Feld Ballet, the new company led by the former American Ballet Theatre star.

Dance series tickets and information can be requested by calling 963-6943. Series ticket buyers receive best seating and a discount that represents one-and-a-half shows free. Student and senior citizen discounts are also available. Interested organizations should call Joan Heidt at 963-7622 for group ticket information.

Single performance tickets go on sale at the Music Hall Sept. 12.

In addition to the six attractions in the Dance Series, Music hall will have the Yatran Ukrainian Dancers Oct. 12, The Hoofers (an extravaganza of tap dancing) on Oct. 21; the Israel Classical Ballet starring Edward Villella on Nov. 20; the Oakland Ballet for holiday presentations of "The Nutcracker" and "Hansel and Gretel" in December, and the Ballets Trockadero, mentioned earlier, March 8.



Eliot Feld Ballet will be part of the new series which opens at Music Hall in October with the Twyla Tharp Dancers.

The Music Hall is located at 350 Madison Avenue in Detroit, three blocks off the Chrysler Expressway's Madison Avenue exit. Lighted parking lots surround the theatre and valet parking parking is available.

Opera Theater plans to revive 'Regina'

A $15,000 grant has been awarded by the National Opera Institute to Michigan Opera Theatre (MOT) for its production of "Regina" which will open the 1977-78 season of opera in English at Music Hall.

The grant, the second awarded by the National Opera Institute to MOT (the first was for MOT's world premiere production of "Washington Square"), is part of the Institute's program to provide direct financial assistance to opera companies for the production of new or rarely performed works.

It is intended to encourage innovative programming which will, in turn, offer audiences new operatic experiences, and provide for the re-introduction of neglected masterpieces into the repertoire.

Blitzstein's "Regina," which premiered on Broadway in 1949, has not had a major revival in 20 years. Lillian Hellman said about the work, "It is, to me, the most original of American operas—the most daring."

Performances of "Regina" are currently under consideration for Washington D.C., Houston and New York.

Glimpses

NEW RELEASES

THE DEEP (PG). Suspenseful aqua-thriller with exciting underwater action and photography. Jacqueline Bisset, Nick Nolte and Robert Shaw dive for treasure.

THE LAST REMAKE OF BEAU GESTE (PG). Marty Feldman directed this fourth remake of this farcical French Foreign Legion film that bears no resemblance to any of the others. Feldman stars as Michael York's identical twin.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK (PG). Vintage music abounds in the '40s-era musical with Robert DeNiro as a saxophone player in love with band vocalist Liza Minelli.

ORCA (PG). Richard Harris, fisherman, and Charlotte Rampling, marine biologist, are adversaries in this oceanic adventure of a hunt for a killer whale.

THE OTHER SIDE OF MIDNIGHT (R). Tawdry film of vanity and vengeance. Marie-France Pisier wastes her talent in this clinker. More sex and less story and they could have gone for the "Emmanuelle" trade.

THE RESCUERS (G). Beautifully animated Disney film of two mice who rescue girl from clutches of the evil Mme. Medusa.

ROLLERCOASTER (PG). Suspense thriller about extortionist (Timothy Bottoms) who plants bombs at amusement parks and a safety inspector (George Segal) who doesn't think that's amusing.

SORCERER (PG). Roy Scheider stars in this remake of the hair-raising film "Wages of Fear." Four men contract to drive a cargo of explosives across 200 miles of wild terrain.

Crime stoppers catching crooks without cops

Observer SPOTLIGHT

In Maricopa County, Ariz., over 200 elderly citizens have left their flower gardens and golf courses to form the Sun City Posse—a group of amateur crime fighters dedicated to running burglars, rapists and murderers out of town.

After a series of rapes last fall in Washington, D.C., neighbors in the Adams-Morgan District put together an artist's sketch of the man some of them had seen. When the suspect, who lived in the neighborhood, walked into a liquor store one night, he was recognizd and held until the police came.

All over America, private citizens are organizing just such "posses" to fight crime in their own neighborhoods.

While criminologists cite the severe winter cold as a major factor in last year's decreased crime rates, law enforcement officials point to the growth of a community anti-crime movement.

Community assistance was cited by police officals in Wayne and Oakland counties last month to explain a more than 20 per cent drop in crime so far this year.

Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis credits the proliferation of neighborhood anti-crime groups with a 25 per cent reduction of crime there.

But others, including some police and residents of poor and black neighborhoods, see the boom of amateur crime-stoppers as a sinister threat liable to promote racist attitudes and to produce unofficial police spying.

"I think they could turn into racists or into a bunch of vigilantes," warned John Jones of Washington's Adams-Morgan Organization (AMO), a community action alliance that refused to cooperate in the neighborhood manhunt and seizure of the alleged rapist.

AMO representatives point out the citizen crime fighters were mostly comfortable, middle-aged professionals who work for the federal government—and that few of them were the blacks and Latinos who until recently made up most of the neighborhood's population.

Despite AMO's criticisms, many of the crime fighters are clearly without racial motivation.

Black Men Against Rape, for example, was organized in black southeast Washington, D.C. after a series of rapes and murders went too long unsolved with insufficient attention from the police department.

A LOSS OF FAITH in the police accounts for the evolution of many urban crime-fighting clubs.

"The police just can't handle all the rapes and muggings anymore," says one city cop. "People have to start standing up for themselves. Two or three years ago, we couldn't get any information on a hit-and-run accident because people didn't want to get involved. Now that's changing. People are getting involved—there's no longer a choice about it."

The Citizen's Local Alliance for a Safer Philadelphia (CLASP) organized in 1972 as a response to the rape of a woman in a tough, almost all-black section of the city.

Now there are members all over Philadelphia and CLASP receives funding from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to teach crime-fighting techniques to groups in other cities. Project officials say crime has decreased as much as 20 per cent in some sections of Philadelphia because of CLASP.

IN THE SUBURBS, most neighborhood crime-fighting groups concentrate on burglary, the fastest growing crime in the country.

Beginning with residential security surveys and marking property with identification numbers, Bowie Against Burglary, a Maryland group, plans block watches or block patrols. Armed with maps listing their neighbors' names, addresses and phone numbers, volunteers look for suspicious activity and immediately report their suspicions to their neighbors as well as to the police.

"One block had a problem with vandalism," says Sherry Ann Kinikin, who organized Bowie Against Burglary, "and it seemed like the incidents were occurring around sundown when everyone was having dinner and putting their children to bed. They patrolled the neighborhood in groups of two during the vulnerable time periods. They'd had seven cases of vandalism in two weeks; since the patrol started, they haven't seen one."

Sure, you bet these groups cut down on crime," admits one experienced Washington police detective. "If I'd been in Germany during Hitler's day, I'd have done the same thing. If you've got every second house on a street covered, naturally it'll cut down on crime, but it'll also expand a real police state.

"The problem with them is that they don't have expertise or arrest authority. They have to turn to the police, and pretty soon they're all out working for the police. Otherwise they become vigilantes."

AMATEUR KOJAKS could become gun-toting vigilantes, but most clubs discourage that. "Occasionally when I go out to speak with groups about neighborhood crime prevention, some nut in the audience will start waving a gun and talking about taking the law into his own hands," says Philadelphia's Ellie Wegener, organizer of CLASP.

"But when his neighbors inform him they won't go near his house on the block patrol if they have to be afraid he'll mistakenly shoot them, the gun lover usually quiets down."

The elderly are easily victimized and more anti-crime clubs are becoming geared to crime prevention by and for senior citizens. In Maricopa County, Ariz., where 3,000 citizens make up the biggest volunteer law enforcement program in the country, the Sun City Posse is composed almost entirely of senior citizens.

With 275 members, the Sun City Posse is the largest of 40 posses in Maricopa County. A retirement community 20 miles northwest of Phoenix, Sun City is unincorporated and its 45,000 citizens, 11 golf courses and nine shopping centers did not seem to be adequately protected by the three patrol cars provided by the sheriff's office.

So the Sun City Posse was formed and now senior citizens wearing police uniforms and bearing sidearms patrol their neighborhoods in golf carts and jeeps.

The Maricopa County Sheriff's office just bought the Sun City Posse six new cars equipped with flashing lights, sirens and two-way radios to show its appreciation of their crime-fighting success.

Last year, the Maricopa County posses saved taxpayers over $1 million in law enforcement costs, according to Sheriff Jerry Hill. Trained by the sheriff's office and paying all their own expenses, posse members do everything from providing security for high school dances to flying over the desert in small planes looking for drug smugglers.

In August, LEAA will begin awarding $15 million in grants to neighborhood anti-crime groups.

Yet despite the successes, some critics still question the advisability of so much crime consciousness. "Although I am taking more security measures to protect myself," says one man who's joined a crime prevention club in Washington, "I am left with a new sense of insecurity.

"I have more lights, more locks, but every time I come home, I wonder if someone has been here. And at night when I'm lying in bed listening to the walls creak and the house settle, I no longer think 'What is that?' Now I think 'Who is that?'"

Wife beating revealed as a 'silent crisis'

By SHIRLEE IDEN

Mary Agnes lives on a street of wooden, two-family houses in Gary, Indiana. Martha has a $100,000 home next to a former presidential candidate in a fashionable section of Washington, D.C. Charlene is black; her home is a Chicago ghetto. Sharon is a nurse working to put her husband through medical school and Nora is a college professor.

A diverse group of women, yet there is a tragic commonality among them.

Mary Agnes's husband works in a steel mill; Martha's is a lawyer and successful lobbyist; Charlene's husband is a laborer; Sharon's is a student and Nora's a college professor.

Equally diverse, these men also share a commonality.

The women are battered wives, and the men are the husbands who beat them. Although diverse and individual, the bond they share is violence.

Wife beating, thought by most people to be the brutish sport of society's dregs, is present everywhere in American life.

"Wife beating in this country is almost as much a national pastime as baseball," reports "Women in Transition" a handbook compiled by researchers who spent three years counseling women seeking separations and divorces.

CASE HISTORIES like the ones above are part of the findings of Roger Langley and Richard C. Levy documented in their recent book "Wife Beating: The Silent Crisis."

In a recent interview, Langley said the book grew out of research for an article.

"It was to be a major article," Langley said, "and when we dug in to research it, we found that little has been done on the subject.

"In over 20 years in "The Journal of Man and the Family" a leading sociological publication, there hadn't been a single story with the word violence in the title.

"The FBI had no statistics at all. Nor did various police departments."

Yet, Langley pointed out, the most dangerous assignment for a cop is a domestic disturbance call. "The second is robbery," he said.

Despite this, no one was interested enough to collect data, according to the writer.

He said the National Organization of Women has recently done a great deal to call attention to the problem and that the best source of information for the researchers was not official channels, bu

"Crisis centers and people dealing with alcoholism and divorce lawyers became valuable for data," he said.

LANGLEY AND LEVY used questionairres and telephone interviews and travled widely across the country.

"The weight of the evidence became so heavy, that we found no need for a scientific survey," he said.

Studies done since the book came out sampled 1200 families and fought about 25 per cent to be involved in violent episodes.

"This means everything from a open-handed slap to use of a weapon," he said. "One woman had her teeth pounded out with a hammer."

He said the study was done by three top people in sociological studies. Dr. Murray Strauss, Dr. Richard Gelles and Dr. Suzane Steinmetz from three different universities.

"They say their studies underestimate the problem," Langley said. "It's easy to find doctors, lawyers and judges who estimate violence in 50 per cent of marriages.

"We estimate 28 million battered wives in our country. With numbers like that, it's everybody's problem."

Langley's own wife of 12 years, Norma, helped on the research for the book. "She's a free lance writer and teacher of business subjects in a community college," he said.

The pair have three children.

"Wife Beating: the Silent Crisis" came out on April 25, published by E. P. Dutton Company, and has gone into a second printing.

It presents what sociologists, criminologists and psychologists have discovered through vivid case histories of victims.

DRAWING on interivews with doctors, lawyers, and judges, Langley and Levy also provide information for the ictim that will help her or him indealing with social agencies and the courts.

One chapter deals with battered men.

Langley and Levy wrote their book on the basis of a mutual interest in social problems. Langley is Washington Bureau Chief for the World News Corporation and Levy is an international television and film consultant based in Washington.

Langley recommend that a woman finding herself in the battering situation should don't think it will never happen again. He said there are three choices:

"One is to take more beatings, the second to seek counseling by a psychologist or psychiatrist or clergyman and third is to end the marriage," he said. "Historically, most women go through all three.

"We never ran across a case where a woman called the police the first time."

Police, he said, by training will talk a woman out of pressing charges by saying it will get in the paper, it will take time or the judge is away. "They usually won't make the arrest," he said.

"Even when police witness a beating, they often fail to make arrests. Some of our reports include Michigan."

Langley said it's vital for a women to make a lot of noise if she is abused. "In the Kitty Genovese case, 34 witnesses saw her being murdered and thought they shouldn't interfere because the man was probably her husband."

BATTERING FAMILIES are not a matter of economic status or of education, the researchers found.

"The National Committee on Violence did a study by Louis Harris whereby people were asked something like 'is it okay to beat your wife once in a while?' and the answers showed more vesses from the educated than the under-educated," he said.

Women in a battering situation have a complex problem with religious and cultural ramifications.

"Sometimes it boils down to do you stay and get beaten or leave your children," he said. "It's not simple. You can't pass a law to change human nature."

Langley said a study is needed to look a just how much violence our society will accept.

"Some men consider violence a resource tool to control their environments" he said. "And sadly, children learn that people who love you beat you."

A recent newspaper story recounts the tragic case of a Mason, Mich woman, Mrs. Francine Hughes who turned herself into the authorities clutching the cap to a gasoline can and screaming: "I did it, I did it. I burned him up."

The 29-year-old mother of four is awaiting trial on charges of murdering her ex-husband and her plight has become a cause for women fighting to protest women from abusive husbands.

Mrs. Hughes was the victim of repeated beatings by her husband.

Like rape until recently, wife beating has encountered a conspiracy of silence. Now, voices are beginning to be raised.

Wife beating is thought to affect some 28 million American wives in every strata of our society.

Little children learn to comprehend that people who love you beat you.

O&E

O & E hosts 9th annual golf event

Golfers who have worked at improving their skills all summer will have an excellent opportunity to discover how well they are against some of the best amateur competition in Wayne and Oakland Counties next month at the Observer & Eccentric Open Golf Tournament.

The ninth edition of the tourney, cosponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Whispering Willows Municipal Golf Course in Livonia, will be contested Sept. 10 and 11 for men and Sept. 15 for women.

As in years past, the men will play two 18-hole rounds and the women one 18-hole round. Participants will compete in stroke play in flights based on handicap.

Entry fee for men remains the same as last year—$22. It includes greens fees, trophies and merchandise certificates as prizes. The women's fee of $10 includes golf, a basket of practice balls, trophies and merchandise certificates.

Entry blanks are available in most editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and at Whispering Willows, which is located at 20690 Newburgh, just south of Eight Mile, in Livonia.

Last year, 202 men and 47 women made up the largest field in the history of the O & E Tourney.

Seventy three men competed last year in the championship flight, 71 in flight 1, 44 in flight 2 and 14 in flight 3. Ten women battled for honors in their championship flight, 19 in flight 1 and 18 in flight 2.

Gary Whitener, Whispering Willows pro and tournament director, said that flights for the men's tournament this year will be organized on the following approximate handicaps: Championship, scratch-8; flight 1, 9-14; flight 2, 15-21; flight 3, 22 and above.

Whitener said he would be unable to set approximate flights for the ladies until later because "their handicaps fluctuate so high."

Because so many men registered the last date before the deadline last year and the field will be limited to 225 this year, Whitener encouraged prospective participants to register as soon as possible.

Final registration dates this year are Sept. 6 for men and Sept. 12 for women.

The course, a 6,265-yard par 71 layout for men, and 5,772 yards par 71 for women, is in excellent shape at this stage of the season, Whitener reported.

The Bird signs autographs at Meijer's today

Here's your chance to see Detroit Tiger pitching star Mark (The Bird) Fidrych in person—along with some of his friends.

Fidrych and Tiger teammates Mickey Stanley and Dave (The Rose) Rozema will all be at the Canton Township Meijer Thrifty Acres on the corner of Ford and Canton Center Roads today between 2 and 4 p.m. to sign autographs for all interested fans.

The public is welcome to come talk to their favorite stars.

Chief netters urged to try out

Tennis tryouts for all interested girl netters wishing to be members of Plymouth Canton's High School team will begin Monday, August 15 at the Centennial Park courts.

Tryouts and practices will be held weekdays between 10 a.m.-noon. Any girls, grades 9-12, are eligible to play. No experience is needed.

Coach Cyndi Burnstein exsects a young squad this season and counts on many girls trying out for the team. The Canton tennis season starts the second week of September.

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

If old Jim Shillady were looking down from that Valhalla where all old time bowling promoters go, he would be enjoying a good laugh now that the All-Star Classic has enrolled a women's team.

It was Old Jim who actually started women's bowling on a high plane in Detroit when he managed the now defunct Recreation Building and predicted the day would come when women would play a big role in the bowling game.

When he took over at the Recreation in 1916, one of the first things Old Jim did was to establish a floor with 22 lanes to be used exclusively by women. He had women on the counters and for a time he even tried women as pin setters.

Nothing like it ever had been tried and many figured Old Jim was doomed to failure. Until then, the women who wanted to bowl had to enter the establishments by a side door and bowl behind a curtain. Some of them bowled regularly, but not until old Jim launched his program had they ever attempted to bowl regularly in a league.

No one ever dreamed (except old Jim) that the day would come when the women would be almost on a par with the men in numbers and even bowl in the top all-star leagues.

The real breakthrough is happening with the opening of the new season when the Bonanza women's team will bowl with the men in the Thursday division of the all-star league at Orchard Lanes.

THIS IS JUST a start. There'll be another mixed team league bowling in prime time on Friday nights at Westland Bowl and the latest is a new league called the Plymouth Slims, that will bowl at prime time on Fridays at Plymouth Bowl. Along with these will be a strong ladies league at Northville Lanes.

Another group will return in prime time when Garden Lanes hosts its classic for the girls on Friday nights. So, it's no wonder Old Jim Shillady would be smiling.

EVEN THOUGH Gail Griwicki, of Canton Township, failed in her bid for a place in the U.S. team that would bowl in the International Federation tournament, Michigan will be well represented.

Frank Gadaleto, of Lansing, who won the ABC singles title last spring gained a place on the team by averaging 193.82 for 28 games to place sixth on the nine-man team.

THIS IS A BIG WEEKEND for the bowlers in the metropolitan area.

The members of the Bowling Proprietors Association of Greater Detroit are sponsoring what they call the "Good Old Days" with prices of bowling turned back to the 1930 era.

Over the weekend the prices of everything in the establishments will be those of the good, old days.

WHEN IT COMES to close finishes it would be difficult to beat the finish in the men's trio classic last week at Westland Bowl, where only six pins separated the top three scorers.

Dave McDaniel showed the way with games of 217 and 239 in 647, while Rick Capaldi landed the runner-up spot with games of 210, 210 and 224 for 644. Jesse Melendez finished third with a 263 in 641.

ANSWERING THE MAIL The first automatic pinsetters installed in America were placed in operation at the Bowl-O-Drome in Mt. Clemens by the AMF Corporation in 1951.

Canton golf scores

Estella Heidt and Virginia Atwoof moved into first place of the Canton Township women's golf league after taking all three points from Chris Matson and Frankie McNutt in duo meet action last week.

In the men's league, John Tetsworth and Paul Oberhelman won the league title last week with a nine-week total of 33½ points.

Kay Nichols and Ginnie Johnson moved into second place in the women's competition after taking three points from Helen McGee and Pauline Pryor. McNutt and Matson dropped to third in the standings.

The best nine-hole round of the week was shot by Nichols with a 50. Mary Kay Frey and Silvis Dickenson had the second-best scores both posting 57's.

Caesars win title

s 8-11 Little Caesar of the Canton Township Women's Softball League breezed past its last obstacle of the season, Meijer Thrifty Acres, to preserve its perfect record enroute to the league championship.

Caesar whipped Meijer, its closest rival all season, 14-2 last week to finish the season with a spotless 12-0 mark and the league honors. Meijer ended the season in second place with a 10-2 record—both losses coming against Caesar.

Caesar was led by Lee Jaskolski's three-for-four day against Meijer. All-star selection Carole Smith continued her consistent hitting by adding a triple and single to the attack.

Janice Tunison and Pam Flanigan chipped in with two hits each, and Debbie Smith contributed a timely single which sparked a five-run fourth inning surge which put the game out of reach.

Meijer's Shelly Arner banged out a double and single for her squad, while teammate Betty Bird turned in a fine defensive performance at third base with several great catches.

Diane Jaskolski and Rita Spaulding shared the mound duties for Caesars, combining for the victory. The Caesar mound duo allowed Meijer only four hits.

OVIDON MANUFACTURING won its showdowm contest against second place Metro Bolt & Fastener, 5-4, to capture the Men's Division "C" crown last week.

Winning pitcher Dick Sanford slammed a two-run homer to spark the victory.

Baseball tourneys were a big headache

The two big baseball tournaments are finally over.

Or better yet, I think it's more appropriate to say the two big HEADACHES are finally over.

As far as the tourneys were conducted, there were no problems. The fields were all in great shape and the visiting teams gave nothing but compliments to the officials who were in charce of making sure things went smoothly.

Yes, the Plymouth-Canton area accomplished its goal of gaining baseball respectibility with a request to hold the same tournaments again next year.

The thought of making these events an annual happening in this area to put Plymouth-Canton on the national map as a baseball capital is within the community's grasp. The NABF and AABC executives, Ron McMinn and Joe Cooper, were that impressed with our community.

But the sad part of this whole affair is that this community probably won't host these tourneys next year—at least not with the same dedicated people.

There was so much complaining, bickering and utter frustration at all three diamonds I visited over the weekend that I actually question whether this whole experience was really worth it.

I ALSO QUESTION whether this community is really the baseball town I've always thought it was over the past few years.

It truely is sad because I feel there is a lot of good baseball talent in this area. But it's evident that the community doesn't really care.

The main problems with these tournaments were a severe lack of both financial and physical help to make things easieror everyone concerned.

Sure, we impressed the outsiders with the way the tournament was handled and how the diamonds looked. These compliments gave a little pride to the community. These out-of-towners won't forget what a great weekend visit they had in the Plymouth-Canton area.

The question is whether everyone in this area can truely have pride in themselves for the way the tournament was conducted.

The truth is that only a handful of people—the same people—can actually hold their heads high and say they helped make the tournaments successful.

A LOT OF people I talked with concluded that the reason for all the bickering and headaches was because the tournament committee took too much responsibilkity for one weekend-that two tourneys on three diamonds was just too much work.

I really don't buy that reasoning. Sure, it was too much work only because the same handful of interested people were busting their butts so everything would turnout good for the community.

And these same people are full of resentment about the lack of help and vow they will not help run another baseball tournament in this community—even though Plymouth-Canton has been asked to be the host again.

Doc's Corner

By DENNIS O'CONNOR
Sports Editor

THE TOURNAMENTS were supposed to be a combined Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton Koufax and Mantle team project.

That means there are 120 parents of the 60 players.

So now explain to me why the same 15 or 20 people had all this responsibility on the three diamonds? Where were the other 100 parents who could have offered only a few hours of their time to avoid all the bickering and mounting headaches?

As far as the finances are concerned, the official totals have not yet been released. But it's a very good bet that the tournament committee will not meet all expenses. And nobody knows where this money will come from.

My question is where were all the local merchants when it came time to help. Seven teams from New York and Ohio, along with other teams within the state, came to Plymouth-Canton last weekend.

Now don't tell me the local merchants didn't benefit from these visits. Money had to be pumped into the community over the weekend, but many of the merchants weren't interested in giving some of that money back.

THE FUNNY THING about the weekend happenings was the way the school maintenance department was one of the few groups who were an extreme asset to the tournament.

I've been bad-mouthing the department all season about how horrible its been in maintaining the baseball and softball diamonds.

But during this past weekend, the maintenance department couldn't have been better. Under less than perfect weather conditions, they were always there to help get the fields in spectacular playing condition.

IT'S TOO BAD I can't compliment everyone this same way.

To the same handful of people who gave that 150 per cent all summer to make the tournament successful, you should feel proud for a job well done.

But to the other people and places which failed to give at least 30 per cent for the good of the community, you may take the responsibility for not giving the Plymouth-Canton area a fair chance to be a recognized baseball community around the nation.

Glen Head, Lansing cop tourney honors

DiPonio takes 4th in NABF competition

At least Plymouth Salem's DiPonio team can walk away saying it beat the North Junior tournament champions—even though it had to settle for fourth place.

The North Shore A's from Glen Head, N.Y. rallied from behind to edge the Detroit Eagles, 7-6, in eight innings to win the 12-team National Amatuer Baseball Federation (NABF) North Junior event held last weekend at the Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High School diamonds.

DiPonio, coached by Mike Michalek, qualified for the nationals after besting Plymouth Canton in regular Mickey Mantle League play.

DiPonio joined the Eagles as the only two undefeated teams Saturday afternoon after winning three straight games in the 15-16-year-old competition. The victory was a 2-1 triumph over the tourney champions.

DiPonio started the tourney with a convincing 7-2 victory over regular season rivals Detroit Southwest Thursday afternoon. The Plymouth squad then defeated Dearborn Slayton's 4-1 for its second win before edging Glen Head to reach the top rung of the undefeated bracket.

The Salem team then hit a wall as the Detroit Eagles broke through for six runs in the third inning enroute to a 10-1 romping over the host squad.

DiPONIO was eliminated in its next game by a 1-0 score in nine innings to Town Boys' Club Royals from Buffalo, N.Y.

DiPonio was locked in a 0-0 game late Saturday afternoon with Buffalo when the game was called after eight innings due to darkness.

Both teams resumed action Sunday morning and Buffalo tallied the lone run of the game in the first stanza og the day to win the game.

DiPonio's Bruce Piper, Brian James and Doug Holloway were on the mound in the losing effort. DiPonio managed only two hits in the entire game. The winning Buffalo run was unearned.

Buffalo had to settle for third place when it was eliminated by the Eagles in the next game.

The championship battle found Glen Head behind 6-4 going into the bottom of the seventh inning as the Eagles looked like the sure winners.

But the New York squad took advatange of costly Eagles' throwing errors to score two unanswered runs in the last inning to send the game into overtime.

The Eagles went down in order in the top of the eighth inning, setting the stage for Glen Head's winning run in the bottom of the inning.

Glen Head earlier defeated the Eagles on Saturday afternoon.

GLEN HEAD advances to the NABF Junior World Series against the South Junior winner in Dayton, Ohio.

The 12 teams which competed in this tourney included four squads from Ohio, three from New York and five from Michigan.

The Ohio teams included Wagner's County Inn from Lakewood, Lancester, D.B. Johnsen Co. from Akron and the Toledo Meats from Toledo.

The New York representatives were from Commack, Buffalo and Glen Head. Michigan teams included the Detroit Eagles, the Detroit Yankees, Detroit Southwest, Dearborn Slayton and Plymouth Salem.

AGAINST GLEN HEAD, DiPonio shined thanks to the brilliant two-hit pitching of Canton High School's Brian James. James struck out seven and walked three in the seven-inning stint.

Doug Holloway stifled Dearborn Slayton, 4-1, going all the way on the mound, allowing only seven hits. Dan Palubinsky and Matt Etienne each connected for two hits to pace DiPonio's eight-hit attack.

DiPonio scored twice in the first, second and fourth innings and once in the fifth to stake Bruce Tiper to an easy 7-2 victory over Detroit Southwest.

Plymouth 'A' squad creams Southgate

The first-annual Plymouth-Southgate "A" League baseball tournament saw the Plymouth squad from the American Division 2 conference smother the Southgate Nationals, 28-8, to win the championship game in the 11-12-year-old event.

Both teams were awarded individual trophies for the first and second place finishes.

The single elimination tournament, which featured the top eight teams from Southgate and Plymouth-Canton areas, was played last weekend at the Plymouth Township Recreation Field.

In first-round action Friday night, two Plymouth and two Southgate teams won contests. The eventual Plymouth champions defeated the Southgate Capitals while Plymouth American Division 1 squad whipped the Southgate Americans.

The runners-up from Southgate tripped the Plymouth National Division 1 squad, while the Southgate Capitals bounced Plymouth National Division 2 out of action.

In the semifinal round played Saturday morning, Plymouth's American Division 2 team knocked off the Southgate Capitals, while the Southgate Nationals were beating the Plymouth American Division 1 squad.

The championship game proved no contest right from the start as the Plymouth American Division 2 crew breezed to the 20-run victory.

Tournament director Terry Sweeney of Plymouth was very pleased with the fan interest in the event and hoped to expand on next year's competition.

The Plymouth "A" League competes as part of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League.

Plymouth Koufax grabs 3d in AABC

East Lansing wallopped East Jackson, 13-2, Sunday, to win the state regional Sandy Koufax tournament but the visitors from the capital won't forget the battle Plymouth Salem's team gave them in the semifinals.

Plymouth finished third in the American Amatuer Baseball Conference (AABC) event held at Central Middle School last weekend.

And the third-place finish was highly respected after the Plymouth squad lost its first round game to Redford in the eight-team double-elimination competition. Plymouth, coached by Bill Runge, rebounded from Thursday's 4-2 Redford setback to record convincing victories over Westland and Marshall before losing to the champions from Lansing, 7-6, in the semifinals.

"These kids lost but they were still winners," Runge said after the tourney. "These kids were super all year."

Salem qualified as the host team of this event after compiling a better record than Plymouth Canton during the regular season of the 14-year old league. And their chances for a tourney victory were not out of range until late Sunday afternoon.

"The kids from Lansing were talking about a merey game at the start but our kids took them to the ropes," Runge said. "We gave Lansing its toughest battle of the tournament."

IN PLYMOUTH'S final game, the host team scored four runs in the fifth inning to overcome a 4-2 Lansing lead. But Lansing battled back with three deciding tallies in the sixth to pull out the one-run victory.

Greg Etienne and Jim Sonnega each smacked three hits to pace the Plymouth offensive attack. Kevin Merrill and Mike Symonds each added two safeties.

Lansing's Ron Hanses made sure the championship contest wouldn't be as close with Jackson as he hurled perfect baseball for the first six innings. Hanses went into the final inning with a comfrontable 13-0 lead before allowing two runs and Jackson's only hit of the game.

The other teams Lansing played in the tournament were Marshall, Westland, Redford, Holland and Dearborn West Seven. Lansing advances to the national tourney in Knoxville, Tenn.

TO GAIN its third-place finish, Plymouth defeated Marshall 11-1 and Westland 8-7.

The easy Marshall victory saw Plymouth score five times in both the fourth and fifth innings adding to a single rally in the second. Sonnega, Mitch Wilcox and Dave Meador all belted two hits each for the winners.

Plymouth spotted Westland four first-inning runs but put together a three-run rally in the sixth and five more in the seventh for a come from behind win.

Symonds and Etienne both recorded two hits to pace Salem.

The Redford loss saw the Plymouth bats turn quiet as they produced only seven hits in the game.

Good Time Bar breezes past Wagenschutz for tourney win

By DENNIS O'CONNOR

It's becoming a habit with the Good Time Bar.

The Livonia men's modified softball team, which is also sponsored during the regular season by the Box Bar of Plymouth, breezed to an easy 11-3 victory over Wagenschutz to win its second-straight championship in the Plymouth tournament last weekend at the Massey diamond.

The 13-team double-elimintion event was held for the third year in a row in cooperation with the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department.

Good Time, perennial champions of the Plymouth league during regular season play, was the only team to travel through the winner's bracket without a defeat enroute to gaining individual and sponsor trophies.

Wagenschutz also received trophies for its runners-up spot. Wagenschutz, third-place finishers in the Plymouth Tuesday-Thursday league this season, finished in second place the hard way, losing its first-round match to the Livonia champions, Earl Keim Realty, 5-4, and then rebounding with five consecutive victories.

Side Street II, the Monday-Wednesday league champions in Plymouth, finished in third place. Side Street and Good Time were the last two undefeated teams in the winner's bracket.

GOOD TIME handed Side Street its first loss, 5-0, putting the latter in the loser's bracket.

In the meantime, Wagenschutz was busy regaining respectability with victories over the Stoners, Bee Jay's, the Liovonia Merchants and a revenge 5-4 triumph over fourth-place Earl Keim.

With only three teams left, Wagenschutz continued its surge by knocking out Side Street with an 8-4 victory to gain the championship game.

The mood of the finale shifted to Good Time favor early due to an unfortunate freak accident.

With Good Time holding a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning, Good Time batter Jim Lawson smashed a line shot back to the pitching mound which hit Wagenschutz hurler Larry Duty on the side of his head knocking him out cold for a few minutes.

Duty's performances on the mound in previous games was one of the main reasons for the high finish of his team.

The Wagenschutz hurler recovered but wasn't the same as Good Time roared to victory.

A six-run fourth inning put the game out of reach as coach Mike Nye's squad continued to be the class of modified teams in the area.

THE BIG BLAST of the inning was a three-run homer by powerful cleanup hitter Ron Ray. Ray's blast, against the wind, was a 315-foot drive which cleared the left-centerfield fence.

Ray finished the game with a perfect night at the plate, four-for-four, plus four runs batted in. Winning pitcher Al White, who held the offensive-minded Wagenschutz squad to only seven hits, added two safeties along with Lawson.

Mark Falvo and Rob Willette each had two hits for the losers.

MAJOR NON-IMPACT PRINTER DEVELOPMENT

A growth opportunity for both non-impact printer specialists

Computer Peripherals, Inc., the joint venture company of Control Data Corp., SCR Corp. and ICL, Ltd., has several key openings in a long term high technology program destined to make significant contributions to the state of the art. Impact printer specialists will also have opportunities to extend their expertise into the non-impact area.

NON-IMPACT DEVELOPMENT

MANAGER, INK JET TECHNOLOGY
You will be responsible for ink jet technology development for low speed non-impact printers, including direction of a staff of engineers, technicians, and design and drafting personnel. A BS degree plus a minimum of 10 years' related experience including project management and low cost design engineering are required.

PRINCIPLE ENGINEERING SCIENTISTS
- Ink Jet Technology. Selection, design & development of materials and processes.
- Electrostatic Phenomena. Extensive research in electrostatic deflection of ink droplets.
- Fluid Mechanics. Properties, flow boundary, modeling and analysis of hydrodynamics.

SENIOR ENGINEER, EPG
You will be a member of a technology team which will establish and provide design approaches for use in electrophotographic high speed printer products. Two to six years of EPG design and development experience with specialization in EPG image development and fusing needed. BS degree in engineering or physical science or equivalent experience required.

MANAGER, MECHANICAL DEVELOPMENT
Leading the team responsible for development and application of mechanical aspects of ink jet technology, you will have a substantial annual budget and a staff of approximately 10 engineers, technicians and support personnel. A BSME, MS preferred, plus a minimum of 10 years' related experience, including accountability for the design of a portion of a manufactured product are required. A background in low cost design and project management is also desirable.

PRINCIPLE SCIENTIST Electrophotographic printers
Lead a technology development team in establishing design approaches for new products. Ten years' EPG design and development experience with specialization in EPG image development and fusing required. A BS in engineering or physical science is also required.

IMPACT PRINTER DEVELOPMENT

MECHANICAL DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER
You will be responsible for the development of a new generation of band printers utilizing low cost innovative designs, in addition to responsibility for development of band printer paper stacker. Your background must involve the ability to direct a staff of approximately eighteen engineers, technicians and design and drafting personnel. Position requires BSME or the equivalent (MSME desirable) and a minimum of ten years' previous related experience including previous design accountability for a portion of a manufactured product, experience in project management and low cost design.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS
Mechanical production design background including mechanical processes as they apply to design, and value engineering techniques. Proven product development experience with expertise in mechanisms, structures, electromagnetics, electronic packaging, cooling, and value engineering. A BSME or the equivalent plus 4-6 years related design and manufacturing experience.

ELECTRICAL (Electronics) ENGINEERS
A strong background in electronic circuit design including digital logic design, microprocessor design, and programming is required. We are looking for a BSEE or the equivalent with 3 years' design experience and the ability to direct engineering support personnel, design analog and digital circuits, AC power, and servo mechanisms.

These positions, both in the non-impact and impact areas, offer exceptional career potential, competitive salaries and excellent benefits. For confidential consideration, please forward your resume including salary requirements to:

REALTY WORLD

A WORLD OF QUALITY welcomes you from the gracious foyer through the formal dining room of this appealing home. A homemaker's dream, the U-shaped kitchen with dark stained cupboards and lighted ceiling adjoins a spacious informal dining area with more cupboards and a wide doorwall to let the outside in. Built-in bookcases and huge fireplace in the family room give a warm, comfortable feel to this family home. In addition it boasts 4 generously sized bedrooms and 2 full baths on the upper level. A fine neighborhood and good assumption make this home one you won't want to miss. $64,500.

Set back from the winding street on nearly 2 acres of prime land this custom ranch home is in a class by itself. Crown moldings and fine carpeting quietly grace the formal living and dining rooms. Across the back of the house is the spacious open informal living area. Here is the bright, fully equipped kitchen, large eating area and family room with its fireplace. There are four bedrooms, 3½ baths and a beautifully finished recreation room with wet bar. Add such extras as thermo windows, marble sills and an in-ground sprinkling system and you have a WORLD OF DIFFERENCE. $125,000

A WORLD OF BEAUTY awaits the owner of this home. The deep spacious yard is framed by heavy woods. A full wall bay window in the formal dining room overlooks the view. The Country kitchen and family room both have doorwalls onto a balcony built around to rear of the house—again with the view of serenity. A den and first floor utility room, 4 bedrooms and 2½ baths make this a home for every kind of living. The full basement has its own fireplace and another doorwall to the yard. Unbeatable at $95,500.

FIRST OFFERING-CITY OF PLYMOUTH. Most cities have their established residential sections boasting tree-draped streets lined with charming homes that have great character and style. This striking example is an appealing CAPE COD with 4 bedrooms, 1½ baths, formal dining room, fireplace, family room, basement and attached garage. A BEAUTIFUL YARD WITH MANY TREES! $56,900. 453-8200.

FIRST OFFERING! NORTHVILLE! The handsome Cedar exterior of this one story country home fits well into its magnificent 2 ACRE wooded setting. Large rooms are pleasantly arranged to provide spectacular views during all seasons. 26 x 24 living room with 24 x 24 family room with fireplace, a large foyer, and 2½ car attached garage. A Screened porch and a large wood deck are fine outdoor features---to face a view for outdoor dining or just lounging. A FINE LOCATION AMONG BEAUTIFUL HOMES OF EQUAL VALUE. $120,000. 453-8200.

THIS IS A HOME THAT KEEPS ITS VALUE from year to year and from family to family. It has so many features that never lose their popular appeal: a center hall of gracious size, 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, family room with fireplace, formal dining room, basement and attached 2½ car garage. An important focal point is its beautifully developed landscaping and covered front porch. $61,900. 453-8200.

WONDERFULLY LARGE and TREED, this special setting is perfectly appropriate for this well preserved FARMHOUSE. Easily affordable and well cared for, its rooms are all large: 3 bedrooms, formal dining room, kitchen with eating space, enclosed porch, and basement. THERE'S MUCH MORE TO THIS PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP HOME. Don't overlook it! $42,500. 453-8200.

NORTHVILLE! New on the Market. The elements of GREEK REVIVAL architecture will never go unnoticed in this inherently charming historic home. TWO ACRES of grounds graced with an inground pool. The interior is luxuriously spacious and includes everything you would hope for: 34 x 17 living room with fireplace, formal dining room, a "KEEPING ROOM" complete with fireplace and room for conversational furniture, 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, recreational room with fireplace and 2½ car garage. EXPRESSLY for those who are seeking a lovely family home with warmth of character and an inviting atmosphere. $109,000. 453-8200.
