Bonus baby?

Hundreds of autograph hounds were left empty-handed in August when more than 2,000 people showed up for Meijer's Tiger Autograph Day in Canton. So, in an attempt at reconciliation with the disenfranchised fans, Meijer management brought Detroit Tiger pitcher-heartthrob Dave Rozema back last Wednesday. People who had written a complaint letter to Meijer's or registered their gripe at the courtesy desk were specially invited to see the Tiger star. A few fans were upset that Mark "The Bird" Fidrych couldn't make it, but most people thought Meijer's made the best out of a bad situation. Store management did their best to keep a lid on the second coming of Rozema, fearing the pitcher's return visit would cause another outbreak of pandemonia among 14-year-old girls. In the picture above, Rozema cradles a bonus baby, Theresa Ann Jordan, while grandma kootchie-kootchies. (Photo by Janine Kateff) a more lenient sign ordinance in the township at tonight's planning com- open, if the ordinance is approved as it mission meeting.

Free-standing ground business signs, now banned in Canton, will be permitted if a proposed revised signordinance is adopted. But business people want more concessions Bruce Phillips, architect of the existing strict sign law, said he decided to allow "low-profile" ground signs in the revised sign ordinance after hearing numerous complaints from the business community

Independent businesses would be allowed to build a sign up to 6 feet high and 32 square feet under the proposed revised ordinance

"It was put in at my suggestion," said Phillips, the township ordinance officer. "I think a low-profile sign meets business desires and it will satisfy the resident's aesthetic desires,'

Frank McMurray, chamber vicepresident, says the business community isn't opposed to controls on signs and landscaping but feels it has been denied a voice on a matter which has "a profound effect on business visibility.

The existing sign ordinance is being reviewed by the planning commission in an attempt to clear up confusing and contradictory legal language in it. This year's citizen sign and berm committee concluded that the aesthetic purpose of the existing ordinance should be preserved but felt "a carefully structured document easily read and interpreted by legal and lay persons" was needed.

THE NEW PROPOSED sign law would require that a sign be set back two-thirds of the distance required for the building setback. McMurray argues that an establishment such as the Super Bowl would have to place a sign too far back from the road to do any good under the proposed ordinance.

One Canton business, Palace Fine Food, would like legal permission to construct a tall sign that could be seen from the I-275 expressway. Phillips

"We have no provision allowing that type of sign at all.'

In the revised sign ordinance, shopping centers with six or more stores would be allowed one main free-standing ground sign up to 150 square feet in size, no higher than the height of the shopping center. Any signs already built would be allowed to stay under the grandfather clause, but could not be changed or moved without following the new requirements.

Flashing or moving signs would continue to be prohibited under the new ordinance. Lighted business signs

A grave trend unearthed

Personalized epitaphs on the rise

W.W. EDGAR

If you were looking for some of the latest fashions, it's very doubtful that you would visit an area cemetery and look at the cold, gray stones and grave markers.

Yet that's exactly where you will find them.

The old-fashioned stones bearing the age old "Rest In Peace," "At Rest" and the other somber thoughts are now giving way to what are being called "personalized stones." And the result is most surprising.

Among the latest fashions is to have the hobby of the departed etched out on the stone. For instance, if the person who has been called to his final reward was a hunter, a hunting scene is now being offered. It will serve as the background for the other data that is common on tombstones.

Likewise, if he or she was a traveler, the stone would depict a moun-

Longtime resident dies

Venita Adams, a longtime resident of Plymouth, was buried Friday in her hometown in Riverside Cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Adams, 96, were held in Schrader Funeral Home with the Rev. Samuel F. Stout of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth officiating. She died Sept. 30 in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Because Mrs. Adams felt her roots were in Plymouth, she never sold her home on Joy Street in the City. Because of the climate, though, she built a small home in Florida 24 years ago. She had just spent three weeks in Plymouth recently, visiting her cousins Norma Cassady and Edna Taylor, and a close friend, Irene Shaw.

Both of her parents had belonged to Plymouth pioneer families. Her mother, Frank Libby Baker, was born in 1854 on the 80-acre fruit farm on the corner of Beck and N. Territorial Roads.

Mrs. Adams' father, John Adams—brother of Dan Adams—was of the Westfall and Adams families. Their father was one of Plymouth's earliest inn-keepers. The Plymouth Historical Museum has a picture of their old hotel on the northwest corner of Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail with the Adams name at the top of the building. A stage coach and horses stand is shown in the front of the inn, waiting for passengers and mail.

Mrs. Adams fatyher, in knee breaches and barefooted, is the little boy in the foreground of that picture. Mrs. Adams was born in 1881. tain scene or some outstanding view of the country's best tour attractions.

"The personalized stone is just coming into its own," Mike Allen, owner of the Allen Monument Works in Northville, explained. "It started almost a decade ago and now is being used more and more."

The new styling is going far beyond picturing the hobbies and travels. It also depicts scenes from real life.

One of the finest examples of the trend was shown by the family of Mary Evans, who operated a bakery in one of the neighboring communities. When she passed away last year, the family insisted that the Evans Home Baking venture be produced on the stone. And and that's how it reads in the cemetery.

"I had another case not long ago," Allen commented, "when I was asked to cut the picture of a banjo player on the stone because the departed was well known in country music down in Nashville."

THERE WAS ANOTHER teacher who had taught in a one-room school-house for years. Her survivors wanted all the world to remember that. They had a picture of the schoolhouse cut into the stone.

One of the oddest came from a nearby community when the family of a boy who had been killed on a hunting trip wanted the picture of a gun and a simple statement "Gone Hunting."

Among the most elaborate Allen has

Among the most elaborate Allen has done was for the Sheraton family. The departed was a great lover of cats. She had six of them. They are all on the tombstone in Howell.

Much of the new fashions cane be traced back almost a decade when Allen hit upon the scheme of recycling tombstones. Under this plan the face of the tombstone would be removed by means of a chain saw and carbon. Once the new flat surface was ready, they would place rubber over it and cut new words by use of a stencil.

"Once we started cutting new letters," Allen commented, "we got the idea of personalized stones. This is the result."

He was the first to recycle tombstones and now is the first with the personalized stones. But even the somber business of manufacturing markers to pay tribute to the departed is not without a few smiles along the way.

"Would you believe that I have changed the tombstone of a woman in this vicinity four times. She has been married that often and with each marriage she came in to have the name changed."

Yes, even our cemeteries are now being caught up in fashion changes.

An Art Open House from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 16, in The Art Gallery is being sponsored to raise funds for the ERA by the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi.

The open house will combine art, champagne and hors d'œuvres in the gallery at 459 S. Main, across from the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

Tickets for the open house are $2 and may be purchased at the door. Funds raised will be used to support ratification efforts for the Equal Rights Amendment.

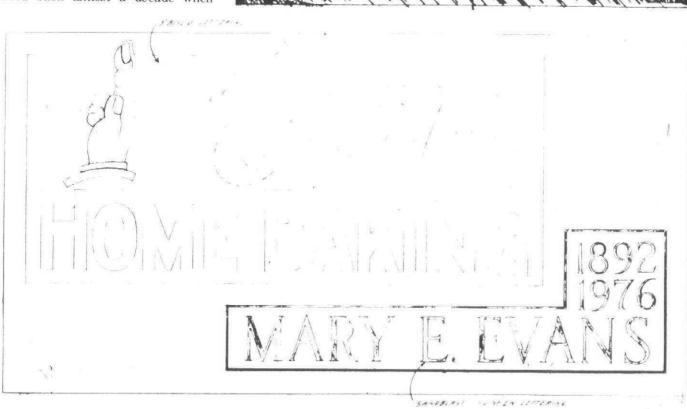

Oils, water colors, and graphics done by professional painters will be on sale at a 10 per cent discount. As an added feature, a $50 picture will be given away. Persons with admission tickets will have an opportunity to win the picture, or may purchase a 50 cent ticket separately. Tickets may be purchased in advance from Lori Watt at 453-8902 or Neva Carter at 459-0441.

Graphics by Edna Hibel, Normal Rockwell, Salvador Dali, Joan Miro, and Wayne Cooper will be available. Water colors include works by Hugh Parselle, a Michigan artist, and Rick Burger, a local artist whose paintings portray upper Michigan scenery.

Among the oils on sale will be paintings by Alfred Jackson. Morando Duque, and Joseph Navy, an impressionist.

People's attitudes about handicapped improving

Richard Stone thinks people have changed their attitudes about the handicapped a great deal in the last year, but they still have a long way to go.

Stone, a Plymouth resident, has just been reappointed to the Michigan Commission on Employment of the Handicapped, an advisory group selected by the governor.

Is barrier-free law too strict?

The Barrier Free Design Law aimed at providing equal access for handicapped persons needs to be amended to make it less restrictive on businessmen and builders, State Sen. R. Robert Geake reported to a Plymouth audience Friday.

Geake (R-Northville), whose 14th Senate District includes Plymouth, spoke to a joint meeting of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club of Plymouth at noon Friday in the Mayflower Meeting House.

Geake is uring the Senate to approve amendments he has co-sponsored to make the legislation less restrictive. The bill now is before the state affairs committee of the Senate.

PASSAGE OF THE measure is needed, he stressed, "to meet the needs of both the handicapped and employers in Michigan."

The Barrier Free Design Law, passed in 1974, was designed to assure equal access and facilities for the handicapped in public buildings but has been criticized by some for its inflexibility.

"No doubt, the law has produced some very good results," said Geake. "There certailly are many more facilities available available to the handicapped now then prior to its enactment.

"Unfortunately, it also is proving to have some very bad results. We have learned, for example, that the law is simply being too stringently enforced—to an almost ludicrous extent in some cases. It is also turning out to be costly and, as a consequence, is creating a deterrent to business expansion in our state."

Geake noted the main problem with the law involves requirements for existing buildings which are undergoing remodeling or expansion.

"We simly cannot go on allowing rigid requirements to hamper our efforts to encourage employers to hire more workers by making it too costly for them to remotel or do so. And, we cannot go on discouraging, in effect, service industries from expanding their facilities and contributing to the growth of our state's economy."

GEAKE'S AMENDMENT would ease the remodeling requirements for existing buildings.

To earn his living, Stone works in the employment office of Michigan Bell Telephone Company. His job fits in nicely with his volunteer duties on the commission.

"I was asked to take the commission seat several years ago when Bell started a major program to hire the handicapped," he said. "It was a pioneering effort on the company's part, and I had a personal interest."

Although the commission has no legal authority. it does advise matters concerning the handicapped.

It also throws its weight behind programs and legal efforts which will bring handicapped people into the mainstream of society.

SINCE FIRST joining the commission, Stone said, he has had a chance to put his ideas about hiring the handicapped to work—both at Michigan Bell and at other companies.

Part of his duties consist of attending seminars at business around the state and telling other employers what he knows about handicapped people as workers. "I'm lucky that Bell lets me attend the other companies as part of my job. It allows me to tell others what our experiences have been and answer some of the more common questions." Stone said one of his most difficult tasks is getting employers to make distinctions among the handicapped rather than lumping them all "In a lot of people's minds, when you mention handicapped, they think of the most severe cases. They don't understand that the definition can include alcoholics, ex-drug users and any number of other people with some kind of disability. Many employers psych themselves out before they give employers psych themselves out before they give the handicapped a chance."

* Stone said he tries to get employers past their bad images and to stop them from worrying about the problems that might occur by putting stress on positive experiences he has had and been informed

But in order for any company to have a good handicapped employment program, he feels, there has to be a commitment from the top down.

"There is just no way that one person can keep a program active. The upper level management has to set the tone and style and be the example for those who work under them."

In areas other than employment, Stone said, the commission has been able to make a good deal of progress in the years he has been on it.

"We have seen a lot of good things happen, particularly at the legislative level. The commission is interested making transportation available to the handicapped, more adequate housing open to them, along with more comprehensive civil rights.

"You might say that this year has been the year of the handicapped, and I feel good about what's been done. But we still have a lot to do."

Schools brace for budget, censorship talk

An operating budget balanced at $25½ million will be presented for final adoption to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education at tonight's (Monday) meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater of Plymouth Canton High School, 8415 Canton Center Road just south of Joy Road.

The school board also is expected to take final action on a policy to censor school newspapers, to take action on a resolution concerning lack of side, walks in residential subdivisions, and to hire a coordinator for the talented and gifted education program.

During the early portion of the meeting, trustees will hear a presentation from the secretarial association which is negotiating a contract for secretaries in the individual school buildings. Trustees also may take action on raising the compensation paid to members of the school board.

PUBLIC HEARINGS have been held on operating budget, with the most recent one being Oct. 5.

To come up with a balanced budget, the following cuts have been made from the original budget document: instructional supplies, $110,000; utilities, $40,000; special education, $25,000; insurance, $20,000; athletics, $10,000; the PEPSII management-byobjectives program, $10,000; and $5,000 from the following-warehouse, talented and gifted program, transportation, adult education, and legal

DISPOSITION OF land owned by the school district also will b discussed

The district owns a 15-acre site for a future school on Powell Road in Canton. Because an expected subdivision at Cherry Hill and Canton Center Roads hasn't developed, the administration now believes the site may be less valuable for a future school.

Canton Supervisor Harold Stein has contacted school officialn about the possibility of buying the 15 acres or acquiring it by trading another site the township owns which might be suitable for a school.

Canton now owns 60 acres to the east of the school district's 15 acres, and has options on 20 acres on the west

The administration also will ask the board for direction on whether to dispose of a sites on Barchester and

Also coming before the board is a proposal to swap parcels with Richard Lewiston in Sunflower Subdivision, Canton, to allow for construction of a public walkway once a school is built for elementary pupils in that subdivision.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Plymouth Canton High student newspaper, The New Media, will be addressing the board about the proposed censorship policy.

Towards the end of the agenda, the board is expected to give final approval to a new censorship policy which provides for a review panel and specified appeals procedure on any questionable materials to be pub-

Trustees also will be discussing a change in board pay to allow $35 per meeting at a maximum of 52 meetings per year. The change is being proposed because of a change in the state school code.

The proposed policy on board pay doesn't actually mention the $35 per meeting payment, but states trustees will be paid based on the maximum allowed by state school code.

School secretaries still steaming

Angered and frustrated after six months of fruitless bargaining, members of the Plymouth Secretarial Association (PSA) are threatening to take their gripes directly to the board of education tonight (Monday).

The PSA represents about 65 school secretaries throughout the Plymouth-Canton district. According to Louise Gates, president, the association is fed up with the administrations stalling tactics. The secretaries have been working without a contract since June.

"We are going before the board to see if we can hurry up the contract settlement and to let the board know how we feel." she said.

Mrs. Gates said that there has been no progress in the bargaining talks, and the association and the school board negotiator are "farther apart than ever.

"We would like to know just how long this can go on. We meet at least once a week and we're worse off than when we started.'

The major dispute revolves around wages, she said. But other issues are dental coverage, and cost of living adjustments.

WALTER BARTNICK, a new negotiator hired by the district to deal with non-teaching staff, acknowledges that the situation is far from good. "We are at a standstill," he said, "but I'm optimistic. I've never seen a contract yet that didn't get settled eventually.

Mrs. Gates, however, does not share the bright outlook. "We don't have a dental plan, and the custodians and bus drivers have had one for some

"The board was supposed to give us a retroactive pay raise for 1976, and it still hasn't been done. The other workers all get cost of living, and we think

"We don't want to be unreasonable, but we don't want to be paid below everyone else.

Bartnick brushed aside Mrs. Gates's complaints. He said the secretaries's salaries were in line with other districts.

"I've researched this and checked into what surrounding school districts are paying their secretaries. And we are competitive. We're not the highest and we're not the lowest. But we are competitive.

He also said that comparing one bargaining unit against another didn't impress him. "Every bargaining group has different needs at different times. I can't negotiate with secretaries and talk about custodians and bus drivers. We have our proposal on the table and we'll have to work with it."

Canton's entry in PCF weighed

Residents looking forward to the Plymouth Community Fund taking Canton Township under its wing are in for a bit of a delay.

That's the word from L.D. Evans, president of the PCF board of directors, who said a decision probably will not be announced until the current fundraising drive is over.

The board of directors is scheduled to discuss the issue at its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce building on Wing Street.

"There are a lot of questions that remain to be answered," Evans said. "We're taking a long look at the ramifications of joining with Canton rather than going into this thing blindly.

Some of the things Evans said the Plymouth Community Fund will look into concerning the acquisition of Can-

One month ago, Canton Township board members voted unanimously to notify the United Foundation that Canton wished to be released as a member community. The reason, according to Harold Stein, township supervisor, is that UF money isn't coming back to the community.

If the Plymouth Community Fund decides to reject Canton's offer, the township will set up its own community fund, Stein said

The Stroller: Labor's pendulum - By W.W.EDGAR-

Every time he picks up one of the public prints and reads that some group is threatening to strike unless its demands for more wages, shorter hours or additional fringe benefits are granted. The Stroller shudders to think how far the labor pendulum has swung during his entrance into the workaday

He was stunned several weeks ago when the garbage collectors in Detroit were granted a raise that boosted them above $8 an hour plus fringes. But the crowning point came this week when the teachers in a neighboring community complained that a six-hour day was too long with only a 15-minute break

AS HE POURED OVER these words, The Stroller couldn't help recalling that in his younger days he worked 13 hours a night in the steel works and got only a half-hour break or junch. And those nights, as he remembers them, were long and

But when garbage collectors can demand-and get-more than $8 an hour, plus fringes, it seems that the labor pendulum has swung as far to the right as it was to the left years

It so happened that when The Stroller learned of the $8 rate for garbage collectors, he was in the company of a young general manager of a modern

'What do you suppose that will do to our skilled employees? When unskilled labor can collect wages like that it is a cinch that our skilled labor will demand more, and we can't afford it. That's why there is so much unrest today.

It seems almost unbelievable, but when The Stroller joined the labor force as a young high school dropout he became an apprentice in the machine shop of a large cement company and earned 55 cents a day. That's 5½ cents an hour! And every payday he drew an envelope containing $7.60 for two week's work.

Even in his fourth and final year as an apprentice, The Stroller was paid only $1 a day. Out of that he had to pay car fare from home to the plant and return and carry his lunch, too.

In those days, a half century ago, the going rate for machinists was 221/2 cents an hour and 25 cents an hour if you worked the long night shift. As he elected to work on the night shift, he drew $16.25 a week. And that was tops.

Then came his first taste of "big" money. One of his uncles was working in the Bethlehem Steel shops and making what he called "good" money Each morning as he returned from work he stopped in to visit. And each morning he begged The Stroller to go down to the steel works and get in on the "big" money

FINALLY, one morning he said, "I told them at the plant that you would be down today. So don't disappoint them!

That afternoon The Stroller hired himself to the steel works and was stunned when the top man informed him. "We are not hiring machinists We are hiring machine hands. If you'd like to try, you can select any machine you want. The Stroller selected a 24-inch motor lathe, and was breathless when he was taken out into the shop. It was seven stories tall and one mile long.

The superintendent stood by while The Stroller placed a piece of metal into the jaws of the lahe. Next he picked up a cutting tool that heeded sharpening. When he asked the location of the grindstone, the superintendent took him over to a big wheel. But no somer had The Stroller starting sharpening the tool than he way stopped and told to return to the office. . Is heart sank! He thought he had

"When I saw you start to sharpen the tool," the superintendent said, "I knew you were not a novice. So, when can you come to work?

Told that it could be next night, The Stroller then asked: "How much money will I get?"

"The rate will be on your time card when you check in," the big boss answered.

Anxiously awaiting the next night, The Stroller got the real surprise when he took the new time card out of the rach and read "Grade A, 48 cents an hour, plus piece work, plus bonus.

Imagine that! With the piece work and bonus he was a member of the top wage flight-and earning close to $40 a week. He was among the elite.

1977 WATERFOWL SEASON STEEL SHOT AREAS

Death at dusk's fate of season

By LEM MESEE

Outdoors writer Now that school has started, drivers are looking out for kids playing at dusk.

But there's another kind of traffic accident that occurs frequently at dusk in October through Decemberhitting deer.

And don't assume, because you live in the metropolitan area, that it only happens out in the boondocks.

Last year, says the state Department of Natural Resources, Wayne County recorded 16 car-deer accidents in which one person was killed and five injured, and Oakland County recorded 83 accidents with no human deaths but eight persons injured.

Altogether, Michigan recorded more than 14,000 traffic accidents involving deer last year with two human deaths and 862 injuries.

You'll never guess which counties recorded the most accidents involving deer, so I'll tell vou: Kent (Grand Rapids), 543; Jackson, 501; Montcalm, 487; and Calhoun (Battle Creek), 485. All but Montcalm are metropolitan counties. All are in the southern half of the state. "If you see a deer standing alongside the road," said David H. Jenkins, DNR wildlife division chief, "assume it will do the worst possible thing because it probably will. And the worst possible thing is jumping right through your windshield.

He adds, "When you see a deer, it is more than likely there are two or three more there. When you see one deer, assume there are more than lead shot, C.O. adds, "I haven't found steel shot in 25 lb bags for you reloaders. And once us 'roll your own' hunters find the shot, we may still have difficulty obtaining loading data that will make our shots pattern but not gouge our shotgun barrels.

Get a guide book, he advised, or consult an expert.

Two years ago, when southern Michigan had a similar wet fall and wild mushrooms sprouted in profusion. there were several poisoning deaths and many more cases of serious illness among persons who didn't know their mushrooms.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO FACE THE TRUTH

Poor readers at Schoolcraft avoiding help

By MICHAEL MATUSZEWSKI

Some 500 students admitted to Schoolcraft College this year have identifiable reading problems. Yet, college officials, have discovered that only a handful will avail themselves of the school's reading center.

The center gives problem readers a chance to improve their skills. But a lack of space, manpower, money and the school's open admissions policy have limited the program's success.

"We have our share of problems here at Schoolcraft," said Earl Manery, coordinator of the reading program.

The college specifies no mandatory entrance requirements, even in the case of a student who has an identifiable reading problem. Instead, it is policy to have college counselors advise such students to make use of the reading center.

Manery said about 10 students may come down to center at the beginning of each term, but only three or four "stick it out

"It's the old story," said Larry Ordowski, director of Liberal Arts: "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink.

Even though the reading center's doors are always open, and students get help free of charge, several hundred students who have problems refuse to go for help.

"There is still a stigma associated with being part of a remedial program," Ordowski said.

WHILE THE CENTER tries to offer students ....th problems as much individual attention as possible, it also offers "two skills-sharpening courses for the genral campus population. Sixty-four students, not necessarily those included in the group of 500 with problems, are enrolled in a study skills course and 70 are taking a speed reading course offered by the program.

The study skills course, according to Manery, is "geared toward getting a kid through college." It emphasizes test-taking, note-taking and reading for content

"The motivated student, the one who wants to succeed later on," according to Ordowski, is the target for the Ordowksi feels that the college has a limited obligation to prod enrollment in its remedial reading program."As loing as we have a program available, and it is published and advertised, the job is being done," Ordowski said.

MANERY DISAGREED. He said he preferred the "West Coast philosophy," referring to the State of California's approach to higher education.

Public community colleges and fouryear colleges there have an open door policy, but they set requirements and standards for their students

Ordowski feels, however, that the college already sets reasonable standards. SC courses require a "satisfactory high school background or basic English with a minimum grade of 'C'," he said. He did not specify what a "satisfactory high school background" was, however.

A panel commissioned by the College Entrance Examination Board and the Educational Testing Service, in a study of reasons behind an alarming drop in the level of entrance test scores, found that 11th-grade texts are being written at ninth- and tenth-grade

EVEN IF STUDENTS who have ignored the reading center's opportunities changed their minds, the problem wouldn't end, say Manery and instructor Dumont (Rusty) Hixson. They cannot handle any more clients.

"With a two-man staff, we have more students than we can handle, 'Ordowski said. With a twoman staff, the program has had to rely on audio-visual equipment, self-testing materials and a minimum of personal instruction.

"There's such a variety and diversity of levels and needs," Ordowski said, "The only way to multiply your efforts is with the hardware. You can only do so much, because you're spr: ad'so thin."

Manery said the reading center needed Inother $40,000 and more space to do an adequate job. The center is presently spread through three classrooms, one of which is reserved for

HE COMPARED Schoolcraft's facilties to those of other community colleges across the state, "We're a matchbox compared to a battleship.

Even though many reading center staff and funding problems may be traced to the failure of two millage proposals. Manery said the program has not received as much adminstra tion backing as he would like.

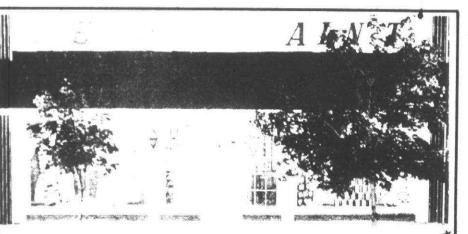

"Philosophical difference are the greatest," he said. He said he was not fond of the open admissions policy, the college's lack of requirements and standards and a policy requiring the service center to conform to classroom load requiremnts to obtain

He added that he did not like having to depend so heavily on "educational hardware.

"I'm flat against tape and TV. The relationship between the student and teacher is so important. When you lose that, you lose a lot in education," he Ordowski, however, said he thought the program had received "more support from the top all the way down.

"I think we're moving steadily down the road.

'Valentino' bio tells lurid story

"Valentino" (R) is a bizarre movie. Difficult to classify in any category but odd. It is not a romance, not an accurate biography of the legendary lover of the silent screen, and not a historical piece that keeps people and events in perspective.

Rather, in typically outrageous Ken Russell fashion (Russell directed "The Music Lovers" and "Tommy" as well as the award winning "Women in Love"), the film focuses on the titillating and sensational aspects of Valentino's life and the lurid exploits of the movie colony to which he belonged.

Rudolf Nureyev as Valentino is a mixed blessing. He is exciting to watch-every movement, gesture and facial expression. He certainly adds lustre to the character of Valentino who began his career as a "dime-a-dance" partner for unescorted ladies

But when he speaks, that's something else. Attempting to convey an Italian-American accent with a Russian accent smacks of parody. Similarly, the necessarily exaggerated acting style required in recreating scenes from silent movies contains a comic element that undermines serious intent.

THE STORY of Valentino's life is told in flashback seg ments by the women who knew him. As one might anticipate, the recollections give ample screen time to Valentino, the dark, smoldering lover

Carol Kane plays his first wife, a bimbo who went from waitress to movie star in one year. Leslie Caron appears as the perverse silent screen star Nazimova, who tapped Rudy to play opposite her in "Camille." Michelle Phillips is alternately moody, vampish and hysterical as his second wife Natasha

Russell exploits both the Valentino legend and its antithesis. The eroticism is there, but its nature, whether homo pr heterosexual, is questioned repeatedly Valentino is shown dominated ed by Natasha (who is a lesbian or bisexual) and constantly defending his honor against a continuing barrage of insults about his manhood.

One of the most grotesque scenes occurs when Rudy challenges a newspaper reporter to a fight because of the reporter's mockery. The lean, sinuous Valentino/Nureyev waits in the ring wearing boxing shorts while formally dressed men and women dance around the arena. His opponent, about 70 pounds heavier, shows up in a suit and tie.

RUSSELL HAS a good feel for capturing crowd scenes. He reveals the meanness and hostility of the fight crowd with the same deftness that he shows the adulation of the crowds of women outside Valentino's home and the frenzied crowds of mourners filing past his bier.

The entire movie with its overdecorated sets, garish costumes emphasis on perverse events is deliberately stagey and theatrical, as the film idol's life might have been.

Rudolf Nureyev portrays Rudolph screen lover Valentino.

Ken Russell is a director who revels in the fantastic and provokes extreme reactions. His "Valentino" is not definitive biography, but hyper-biography, the story of a person's life interpreted as a series of emotional highs.

Death on the doorstep A Westland doc puts the knock on America's killer compounds

If you seek polluted peninsulas, look

That is not quite Michigan's motto. but if the state continues on its chemical-strewn way, it may someday be the slogan we see on official state

Our fish are tainted, our cows are sick,our air is often a grotesque shade of brown, and the evidence is that chemicals are killing us, according to a Westland doctor who has penned an informative but depressing book on the way the devlish compounds have eaten their way into our lives. "CANCER AND CHEMICALS," by Dr. Thomas H. Corbett, a staff physician at Wayne County General, tells the sad tale of how one of our nation's most hideous diseases-cancer-is caused by the massive numbers of chemicals we have devised to do things like make our bread stay fresher and our grass grow greener.

"The Big C," as Big C survivor John Wayne called it, wipes out nearly a Currently, over a million persons are half million Americans each year, undergoing cancer treatment. Average

'The incidence of cancer should skyrocket to epidemic proportions by the beginning of the 21st Century.'

-Thomas H. Corbett, M.D. in 'Cancer and Chemicals'

medical bills for cancer patients hover

And, when it comes to cancer, whitefrocked lab sleuths are finding additional proof each day that chemicals with names like urethane and polyvinyl chloride are the culprits. In fact, scientists now believe up to 80 per cent of all cancer is caused by chemicals and approximately 25,00 new chemicals are invented each year. WHERE ARE THESE CHEMICALS? Everywhere. Dr. Corbett details how most of the things we do in our daily lives. from eating breakfast to sipping coffee at work to work itself (especially work itself), is bringing us that much closer to the grave

Dr. Corbett brings excellent credentials to his book. Viewers of the recent PBS documentary on the Michigan PBB disaster will remember him as the soft-spoken doctor who tried to warn authorities before it was too late. Nobody listened.

Also scary is the fact that PBB takes up only one chapter in the book.

A rather bold poster, judiciously displayed at our local post office, draws one's attention to the fact that October is National Craft Month. It. Invites the craft-fancier to collect commemorative postal stamps

While not a stamp collector myself, I have read about and conversed with people who are stamp collectors. All attest to the fact that it is interesting, educational and informative.

While stamp collecting may or may not be your choice of a craft, or hobby, all dieters would do well to pay special attention to craft and hobby

When I was a little girl, my teachers would constantly remind us in school that "idle minds are a devil's workshop." So, too, idle hands are a dieter's downfall. Crafts are a definite advantage to the dieter, providing it is a two-fisted craft.

MACRAME IS IDEAL, as it is nearly impossible to tie knots with only one hand. Decopage has an advantage because one becomes totally immersed in the minutest cutting detail, lacquer, steel wool. stain, and as much as twenty-three layers of Summer gardening is great because it takes you out of your kitchen, where you can grapple with Mother Nature at her dirtiest. Along about this time of year, when the fall frost hangs in the air ready to steal away our summer, one can thwart those attempts, and bring cuttings into the house to begin a winter garden. But please, don't set up vour winter garden in the kitchen. While all those plants may look beautiful, displaying their feathery foliage, from the macrame planter you just made, try to keep your garden out of the kitchen area. It is too close to the food and to temptation. Basements are ideal for a Gro-Lux Bulb and shelving to hold twenty to thirty plants.

Needlepoint has regained its popularity, and while it doesn't require total concentration, it is a craft requiring the use of two hands, as do knitting and crocheting.

craft-minded town in which to browse. A walk down Main Street will take you past at least eight craft and hobby shops, all of whose proprietors will be pleased to show you the latest in the world of crafts. Each shop has a different specialty and many teach classes, should you find yourself in an unfamiliar world.

Those of us who enjoy reading as a hobby are at a slight disadvantage. While we are gaining knowledge, sometimes we are also gaining girth. Unfor-*tunately it is the most sedentary of hobbies, and is one-handed. Should you be among those of us who like snuggling themselves up in their hand-crocheted afghan, on a wind-chilled night, with a gentle fire crackling in the fireplace and the latest best-selling novel at our beck and call, remember you can read without the bowl of popcorn at your side. Try, instead, a cup of hot, mulled cider or one of the popular cups of soup, or perhaps this is just the time to fill your delicate, seldom used porcelain tea pot with some hot, steamy, jasmine tea.

TRY TO STAY away from hobbies centered around food. For example, cake decorating, while beautiful for the cake, isn't the best thing to help show off the size 10 dress you are determined to

Maybe your family room just can't accommodate one more wooden, decorated plaque; your living room is already laden with the latest dried flower arrangements; your kitchen walls haven't another inch for any more framed, needlepoint vegetables; and your ferns have all been repotted a half-dozen times.

What, then, can you do with your burgeoning collection of craft accomplishments? The local civic organization or church group you belong to would be delighted to have your items donated for their Christmas bazaar. Perhaps the PTA would like to raffle off the Americana afghan you just finished, or perhaps thé old folks home could use some new wall decor to brighten up an otherwise dull sitting

Whatever craft or hobby you choose, immerse yourself, totally, in it. Become a part of it. Your accomplishments will far out weigh the temptations of food, and you won't be so likely to get caught with your hand in the cookie jar.

I'm writing concerning the issue of splitting the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park Band.

Five years ago, the Plymouth School District split its high school into two schools—Salem and Canton. One year later, the varsity sports were split. (All extra-curricular activities except for the band were split).

As a member of the coaching staff at Plymouth Salem, I was in favor of remaining one school and working out of two buildings. At the time, I knew I was not alone in feeling this way. The fact is, I cannot remember one coach who favored the split.

HOWEVER, we were told that the split would allow twice as many students the opportunity to participate and this was more important than achieving excellence in sports. We had no choice but to accept the split.

We worked very hard. A check of our sports records at Salem and Canton will show that we have done quite well in spite of the split.

This year I thought that the band was finally getting the same treatment geon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None Rescinding of Easement: Resolution by Akey and Davis to rescind the motion of April 25, 1977, granting to the City of Livonia an easement on the Madison School site, as legally described. Ayes: Akey, Davis, Hierta, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, With-New Easement: Resolution by Akey and Strom to grant to the City of Livonia a 12-foot easement on the Madison School site, as legally described. Ayes: Akey, Davis, Hierta, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers. Nays: None Easement: Resolution by Akey and Davis to grant to the City of Livonia a 40'x30' sewer easement in Section 18, as legally described. Ayes: Akey, Davis, Hierta, Pridgeon, Scarr. Strom. Nays: Withers (who felt the school district should receive some financial gain from the granting of this easement) Property Sale Procedures: Resolution by Akey and Strom that the Board adopt a procedure for the sale of school property as described in Option 4 of the document presented to the Board by the Building and Site Committee and administration.

Ayes: Akey, Davis, Hierta, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers, Nays: None Career Center: Resolution by Hierta and Akey to approve the Career Center final drawings. Phase II, and, further that the administration be authorized to secure bids for this project. Ayes: Akey, Davis, Hierta, Pridgeon, Scarr, Strom, Withers.

Recommended School Closings: The Board received an administrative recommendation to consider closing Wilson and Jackson elementary schools effective September, 1978. (Mr. Davis left the meeting at 9 p.m. due to a business commitment.) After discussion, the Board approved a procedure to begin communications with the school communities. It was stressed that this authorization does not mean that the Board has made a decision relative to the closing of schools. It is simply authorization to begin the communication process Task Force: Mr. Scarr noted that the Citizens Task Force on Declining Enrollment planned to hold a closed session on September 22 and he questioned this action. A majority of the Board agreed with Mr. Scarr's concerns, and it was agreed that the Board President will call the chairman of the Task Force and express the Board's feelings relative to this matter.

Board Hearing: 1) In reply to Mr. Scarr, Dr. Garver said he had requested the Community Education Services Director to investigate a matter relative to the fact that a Little League team was denied the use of a high school football field. 2) Mr. Scarr noted that Donald Tavarozzi has accepted an elementary principalship in another school district and he publicly thanked Mr. Tavarozzi for the years of service he has given to the former Nankin Mills District and to the Livonia School District. 3) Mr. Withers said he had received a suggestion that signs by posted in school parking lots and playgrounds that they are closed at 10 p.m. 4) In reply to Mr. Withers, Dr. Garver stated the Board will receive a report relative to a change in schedule at Lincoln. 5) Mr. Akey asked if all special education programs could be housed at one location. Dr. Garver replied that the Mandatory Special Education Law greatly reduces a school district's ability to centralize special education services, since these programs must be disbursed throughout a district. 6) Following Mrs. Strom's report on her attendance at a MAISL meeting, the Board asked that a letter be sent to State legislators urging them to support the inclusion of the amendments to S.B 714 (unemployment compensation). 7) At the request of Mr. Akey, the Board was updated regarding the maternity leave case. It was also noted that there is pending federal legislation affecting this situation. The Board asked that a letter be sent to our congressmen and the two Michigan senators apprising them of the impact on this district if the legislation is passed. 8) Mr. Pridgeon noted that the Board will probably hold its budget hearing the second meeting in Octobe Adjournment: President Pridgeon adjourned the meeting at 10:14 p.m.

that all other extra-curricular activities received four years ago. I found out that I was wrong.

Why am I writing this letter? This past weekend I attended the Edsel Ford-Trenton football game. It was homecoming for Edsel Ford and the Edsel Ford band performed the halftime show. The band was small, its lines were crooked, and in no way did it approach the quality of our Plymouth CEP Band.

Later that evening I attended our homecoming. The band was very impressive-far superior to any other high school band that I have ever

Again-why am I writing? I am writing about the priorities of the CEP Band. The CEP Band is supposed to be representing both Salem and Canton schools. However, as Salem and Canton both happen to have home games on different nights of the same week, CEP will only play for one of the schools—the other school gets to listen to a record. This doesn't seem very

OUR BAND HAS performed at some pretty impressive places: Rose Bowl Parade, Orange Bowl Parade, Pontiac Silver Dome, Michigan Band Day plus a whole lot more.

However, last year the band was not willing to play for one of Salem's home games because it meant playing two nights in a row. This year the same situation will take place again. We will not have a band for the Salem-Edsel Ford football game. The reason being that CEP Band will not play for Salem and Canton on two consecutive nights.

I feel that if the CEP Band can perform two days in a row when it means performing at the Silver Dome or for Michigan Band Day, then it can give the same effort for both schools it supposedly represents. (Especially when both teams play away the following week and the band is off both nights.)

I know that when we go to Trenton this week, their band will be there to play and cheer its team on. A year ago, when Trenton came to Plymouth, our CEP band didn't want to play two nights in a row

So when you attend the Salem-Edsel Ford game on Oct. 15, and sing the national anthem to a record and watch an empty field at half-time, think

If there were two bands representing their respective schools you wouldn't have this problem. Either band would sound and look better than a record

An idea from citizen to 'keep zoning honest'

Editor:

The Butchers, Bakers and Candlestick makers have asked for suggestions regarding alternative uses for the property on the corner of Wing, Forest, and Harvey

Alternatives have been suggested, but were either ignored or disregarded-such as a proposal for a new B-4 zoning. Well, I have a suggestion that would benefit all concerned parties. But first, let us review some recent events

Ralph Lorenz was turned down on his request for a city financed parking structure where he would lease "air rights" for a motel. Lorenz lost out on his attempt to contribute a viable asset to the community

The Dartmore Development Project, which is proposed for nearby property, has created a heated controversy on whether our zoning laws are being violated.

One area where we all seem to agree is the fact that his property needs to be developed.

It seems that the West Brothers property has not actually been sold, but is a contingent deal. So perhaps there is an investor or investors who would be willing to develop this property in a different manner. A threestory motel could be designed in such a way that it would fit the current zoning laws regardless of interpretation. It would provide a larger tax base for the city, it would be a viable business venture for investors, it would bring more business to the downtown area, and asthetically conform to the surrounding area

This is only a suggestion from a member of the citizens' group known as "Keep Zoning Honest.

The change made over the years in Plymouth had to be made to keep up with the changing times From horse and buggy to auto, from stoves to furnaces, from lamps to electricity, etc Extreme fashion changes we accepted because we couldn't do anything about

The controversy over the Mayflower Hotel addition, which was presented with drawings and hopes, was squelched before Ralph Lorenz hardly finished presenting the idea. # Rocks show Trenton who's the best in the west, 19-7

By DENNIS O'CONNOR Sports Editor

Home field advantage. What home field advantage

Close game between two even teams. What close game between two even teams?

There was absolutely nothing close about the big Suburban Eight League televised game which saw the Plymouth Salem Rocks win the battle of the unbeatens with a throughly convincing 19-7 victory over Trenton Friday night on the Trojans field.

This win not only bolstered Salem's claim to fame in the state rankings with its spotless 5-0 record at the midway point of the season, but it also earned an outcight first-place standing in the Sub-8 race—thanks to the help supplied by pesky Redford Union.

Redford Union tripped Dearborn, ranked third in the state, 19-14 Friday, to leave the Rocks alone and the still unbeaten squad in the conference

"I think we can definitely consider ourselves the favorite in the Sub-8 after this victory," said a jubilant Salem head coach Tom Moshimer.

THE ROCKS wasted little time showing the near sellout crowd which team would take control, scoring 12 first-quarter points on their second and third possessions of the game.

The score remained 12-0 at halftime. although Trenton's ball control offense dominated most of the second quarter

The Trojans tried to make things interesting on their first possession of the second half, moving into the Rocks' end zone at the beginning of the third quarter to tighten the score

But the Rocks came back strong on their very next possession and reassured everyone which team was the boss, scoring on a long drive of their own to maintain the comfortable two touchdown margin.

"I was kind of disappointed with our second quarter letdown," Moshimer said. "We had a chance to bury them early but they came back with the third quarter touchdown and were all charged up.

'It was a credit to our kids to come back and get that final touchdown. Our kids proved what they were made of and what it takes to be champions."

Salem's opening drive ended on a pass interception, but Rock linebacker Doug Rowe reversed the momentum back to Salem's favor by recovering a fumble on Trenton's first offensive play after the initial Rock turnover. Five plays and 32 yards later, Rock junior quarterback Rich Hewlett scampered around right end from nine yards out to make the score 6-0 at the 6:07 mark

On Salem's next series of downs, Hewlett faked to his fullback Rowe and squeaked through the center of the Trojan line enroute to a 62-yard touchdown on the first play to raise the

Salem times improve but racers still lose

"Our times keep improving with each match," said Plymouth Salem cross country coach Fred Thomann. "Although we lost to our opponents this past week, the team is still right on schedule to peak at the league

The Rocks lost last Tuesday to the runners from Livonia Churchill, 32-23. Going into this match, Salem had a 2-3 season record but now holds a 2-6 record as the Rocks also lost to Belleville and Dearborn last Thursday in dual meet action Against Churchill, the Salem runners posted good scores starting with Tom Rubadue who came in at 16:50. Rubadue took second place behind Churchill's Robin Jones, who came in

Coming in fifth was Salem's Paul Hess at 17:16; seventh was Bob Stiffler at 17:38; eighth went to Jeff Econom with a time of 17:59, and Dan Lybarger came in 10th at 18:19.

Churchill's runners took third, fourth-sixth and ninth places to add to Jones' first-place finish for its total 23 to Salem's second, fifth, seventh, eighth and ninth place finishes for a 32 spot against Belleville and Dearborn with a time of 16:40. He was followed by Hess (17:03), Stiffler (17:18), Econom (17:36) and Lybarger (17:59) Salem took a second-place finish

11th and 12th place finishes for a total of 39 to Belleville's 20 points. Dearborn took first, third, fourth, fifth and seventh place finishes against

Salem for a total of 25. Salem ran in the second, fourth, sixth, eighth and 12th place spots for a total of 32. The Rocks are now 2-3 in the Suburban Eight League with the conference meet coming Oct. 26. Salem's next meet will be against Dearborn Edse Ford Thursday at Edsel Ford's home

"It was a very exciting game," stated a very pleased Salem coach Debbie Hatcher. She also added: "It was a defensive game. We had a difficult time getting our shots off due to their zone defense."

Hatcher felt the Rocks played excellent in the first and third quarters, but performed poorly in the second and fourth stanzas. Poor shooting and numerous turnovers epitomized Salems' second and fourth period play.

8-0 Chiefs crush Northville

By ANDY MELIN

Large margins of victory have been commonplace for the Plymouth Canton girls' varsity basketball team this year, and the Chiefs continued that trend with their annihilation of the Northville Mustangs, 77-15, at the Northville gym last Thursday night.

The win kept the Chiefs record unblemished at 8-0.

'We played very good aggressive

Mike McCauley. The Chiefs allowed the Mustangs to score only eight points in the entire first half. Canton's 19 first half steals also aided in the onslaught.

The Chiefs had a good rebounding night as they cleared the boards with 20 rebounds. Eight of those 20 rebounds came from co-captain Sue

Rekuc led the Chief scoring attack

Butler, Kathie Peck and Vicky Cavallaro, each added 10 points. Pederson's 10 points all came in the first quarter. "Pederson, Cavallaro and Butler, all had fine games." said McCauley.

Everyone saw action for Canton, and all but one Chief scored.

The Chiefs led all of the way, taking a 21-4 first quarter lead, stretching it with 11 points. Jill Pederson, Laura to 42-8 at halftime, and 58-9 at the end of three periods of play. The Canton junior varsity squad also downed its Northville counterpart 39-24, increasing its record to 7-1. The Chiefs will take on Western Six

What spoiler? Rock netters are winners

Everyone thought Plymouth Salem's girls tennis team might play the spouler role in the Suburban Eight League championship match but nobody ever expected the Rocks to come out a winner.

The league championship, which was held 'last Thursday at the Plymouth courts, not only saw the Rocks win handily over their rivals from Trenton and Dearborn, but the victory was so devastating it earned the Plymouth crew a share of the Sub-season. Dearborn was the loop's only undefeated squad.

But Salem won four of the seven medalists positions, which totaled a massive 16 points and an easy first place victory.

Trenton aided the Rocks' chances of tying for the title, coming in second place with 13 points, ahead of the stunned group from Dearborn.

By virtue of this surprising league meet finish, all three teams finished as tri-champions for the league title.

It marked the second time in the past three year that the Rock netters, coach by Jan Lawson, have shared a conference crown. Last year, the Rocks finished in second behind Trenton.

BECKY CRESPO stared Salem off on the winning track, defeating archrival Stephanie Tober from Trenton 6-3, 6-3 in the championship. Tober was favored to win the first singles title. Crespo was seeded second.

An unexpected surprise occurred at the second singles position where unseeded Salem sophomore Courtney Warrick advanced all the way to the finals before bowing to Trenton's Lori Schiedel 6-1, 6-2, settling for a second place finish.

There was no surprise at third singles where undefeated Rock sophomore Kathy Horton continued to dominate all her opponents with an easy 6-4, 6-1 victory over Dearborn's Julie Klask in the finale. Horton was the overwhelming choice to win third singles as the first seed

Salem freshman Besty Moon sparkled as well in the fourth singlescompetition, winning in straight sets 6-4, 6-3 over Lynne Johnson of Dearborn for the championship.

It meant three of the four singles medals, and a runners-up finish, went to Rocks. And this same foursome comes back in full next year due to their underclassmen status.

Salem's third doubles combination of Renee Braun and ClarisseHartnett were the last of the Rock medal winners, taking an exciting championship match on the last point of a nine-point tie breaker to beat Dearborn's Sue Porty and Mary Little 1-6, 6-4, 7-6

Everyone contributed to Salem's victory as first doubles Lynne Hath away and Sarah Hathaway and second doubles Wendy Webb and Sandy Bozi mowski each won a first round match before facing defeat.

"The team played potentially like I knew they could-they were up. said Lawson. "I thought we might play the spoilers, but we just played so well They were all tough matches.

Non-traditional job? It's the one with top pay

By SUSAN ROGERS

"What would you say is a non-traditional job?" Janet Good asked the roomful of women at Schoolcraft Col-

Manpower, dirt, grease, heavy lifting were some of the crietera mentioned in response to her question. "I define a non-traditional job as one that pays more than $10 an hour. How many of you here make more than $10 an hour?" she asked.

The room was silent.

Ms. Good, an equal employment opportuity specialist for the Michigan Employment Security Council, presented her lecture entitled "What in the Work World is Going on?" at Schoolcraft College's recent International Women's Decade Festival. Her well-attended presentation was evidence that women are concerned with their present employment situa-

UNEMPLOYMENT is always high for women regardless of the state of the economy," Ms. Njiwaji said. "Woman are crowded into employment catagories.

"There are three basic things that can be done. You must increase your awareness about occupations that exist and feel free to get into jobs that are considered men's jobs.

"You must develop a set of comprehensive career plans for yourself. Know what your desires are and match these desires to what's available. Your plan for implementing your goals should include increasing your confidence and developing a clear idea of what you want to project to a perspective employer. You want him to know you're a person who knows what

"The third thing is to attack collectively Get together and join interest groups. These can wield a lot of power in getting laws enforced

Another way to get into the occupation you want is to contact the Michigan Occupational Information System, she said. Through this system it is possible to find out what a job is about, training needed, wages, related occupational training and the occupational outlook for that particular job.

*There are health and science technical areas that require as little as two years of college," said Ms Njiwaji.

"Most of these pay as much as collge degree jobs.

APPRENTICESHIPS were also stressed by Ms. Njiwaji. "These are great because you get classroom and on-the-job training," she said. "The programs usually last from three to five years, and you are paid for your experience and as you learn. Jobs such as die setters, electricians and photog raphers are available through this program, and most start at $13,000 and Military training programs are also something to look into, according to Ms. Njiwaji. "Combat areas are the only ones women aren't allowed in," she said. "You get room and board as well as experince, not to mention veteran's benefits.

"The image of women in the military is rapidly changing. There are many jobs in the health field, such as survival techinicians and training programs in hospitals and community col-

Ms. Good explained women are making great strides in the tool and die making field, formerlly considered a man's domain. "The first woman in history to be employed as a tool and die maker began work in the Buick plant in Flint in August. We are making great progess, but it's up to you. Everybody has the same problem," believes home economist Johne Criner. There are only 24 hours in a

Speaking to a classroom full of women at the Schoolcraft College Women's Festival, Ms. Criner of the Michigan State University cooperative extension service in Wayne County. described how women could plan and utilize their time more effectively.

There are four steps we must go through." Ms. Criner said, "First, we must admit we waste time, discoverthe time wasters, work to omit them, and eventually have more time to do the things we want to do

It sounds easy, doesn't it?" she asked

She then went on to explain that working to omit the time wasters such as television, phone conversations, and morning coffee klatches, is not an easy

'At first you have to spend a lot of time planning exactly what you're going to do, and when you're going to do it." she said "For a while it will take longer to accomplish something than it does now." "But hang in there," she said. "It will work out in the long run.

MS. CRINER suggested that each woman discover what her own time wasters are by keeping a time log of everything she does for one week, hour

Then she can begin working to omit them. First she must set goals for herself and learn to make priorities.

"You must decide your goals," she said. "Maybe you like to take a walk in the woods or paint. "If doing that for some hours each week will make you a happier, more contented person that should be your goal, and you must try to save enough time to do it.

She did caution that the time you save may only add up to minuteseach day. "But, a few minutes each day can add up to hours in any one week.

Ms. Criner also stressed that a housewife is not a housekeeper, but a

"Try using some of the techniques business people use when you run your house, she suggested, "After all, you really are running a business." "Try taking personal phone calls only during delegated times of the day, say 2-4 p.m., " she said. "Many business people do that at the office and it

"You know a mentally retarded person with a seven-year-old intelligence can be taught to completely support himself," she continued.

"The point is that there are a lot of things a 7-year-old can do that mothers are not making them do. There is no reason why your 7-year-old can't learn to make his or her own bed of lunch."

"Even if doing that makes you feel like you're not fulfilling your duties as a mother?" asked one of the mothers in the room.

"Remember," Ms. Criner replied, 'you are training and developing your children to become adults, and that is not going to happen when they become 18 if you don't start training them when they are young."

She also suggested that the women make a list of the things they have to do each day and then assign a priority to each of those.

"If the dishes being done is what is important to you, then give that a high priority," she suggested.

WHEN THE TALK got down to specific tasks some of the audience also offered suggestions that worked for them as housewives. One Westland woman suggested that a wife find out what it is about the house, unmade beds or dirty dishes, that bothers her husband most. Then, make sure that if nothing else gets done, at least that does.

Another mother, Delores Mielke of Plymouth, said, "Divide your child's toys up into a few groups so that he or she only has a certain amount to play with each day.

."I found when the kids were younger that if they only had a few toys and different ones to play with each day, it made my picking up tasks a lot easier," she concluded.

Ms. Criner brought the discussion back to more general topics when she suggested that setting priorities and 'sticking to them' was most impor-

"Remember, you have set some goals for yourself, and you want to be able to accomplish those goals," she

"So, if someone tries to interrupt you when you are doing an A-1 priority, by dropping by for a cup of coffee, ask yourself this question: What is the best way I can use my time right

'Health care today isn't set up to fit the individual'

By MARGARET MILLER

Being an informed consumer from a health care standpoint means getting more and better information from your physician, right?

Not necessarily, say two who are involved in the Feminist Health Center of Detroit. It also means having better understanding of the role of the hospital, and the drug and medical equipment salesmen and the insurance companies in the total health care picture.

'There are some very sensitive doctors out there," center representative Camilla Cracchiolo told the workshop she conducted with Julie Schneider during the Schoolcraft College Women's Festival.

"But sometimes when they try to be more helpful in addressing the needs of women they get harassment from the local medical society, or they might be in difficulty with the hospital where they are on the staff.'

The visitors from the center, located at 15251 W. Eight Mile in Detroit, pointed out a number of factors they said contribute to the need for women to be better informed about their bodies and how they are treated. Among these they included: Physicians and surgeons are trained to treat diseases and abnormalities, but a large percentage of the women patients are visiting them in connection with normal conditions, like pregnancy and childbirth.

·Patients in hospitals have little control over what happens to them

•For many physicans, information on medical developments since they finished medical school comes largely from drug companies' salesmen and literature, and these often do not point up risks involved.

•Health insurance plans are designed to fit the needs of the physician and hospital rather than the consumer, the patient

THE FEMINIST CENTER, said Ms. Cracchiola, is designed to help women learn more about their own bodies and begin to have some control over the way they are treated.

"This kind of center started in California," said Ms. Cracchiola, "and the woman who organized the first one had been employed by a doctor.

"It hit her one day that she had never seen her own cervix, so she took home a speculum (instrument used by physicians for examining the cervix) and used a flashlight and mirror to examine it.'

That led to her bringing together a group of women for the purpose of self-examination, the workshop leader said. That in turn helped the women to be able to recognize variations within the normal condition, and then they started studying old medical journals and folklore to learn of possible

One that turned up, said Ms Cracchiolo, was the use of vogurt to clear up a vaginal infection caught early. Another natural remedy for infection they mentioned was garlic. "Women tried these and they seemed to work," she added.

ONE WORKSHOP participant was interested but sceptical.

"You are telling me there are reasons why I should not trust doctors. she said. "But why should I trust you. I hate using my body as a guinea pig. Do you have credentials?

Ms. Cracchiolo took the question seriously.

"We are not back-to-nature freaks." she said, "and we know these femedies are not for every woman and there are conditions that need the most sophisticated of equipment.

"But we talk about them in the context of how we have to get health care today. We do not say all doctors are wrong. What we do say is that the system of health care in this country is not set up in the interests of the individual patient.'

Ms Cracchiolo said the Feminist Health Center offers series of workshops designed to help women understand their bodies and to improve medical consumerism.

To get information on when the workshops are offered, those interested may telephone 341-5666.

Excitement awaits Welcome Wagon

In last week's column the saga of an uninvited goat joining the Geneva Presbyterian Church hayride and picnic began but was not concluded due to lack of space.

The interloper had disrupted the festivities despite repeated attempts by the group to redirect his interests. The goat even managed to savor a tasty bite of Sarah Vance's hand during the confusion.

Geneva members finally decided to eat everything in sight or put it away. Very little had to be put away but the stubborn old goat eventually got the hint and wandered off.

Coordinating the afternoon's food and entertainment, not necessarily the goat's, were Laurie Hellier, Terry Miller, Harriet Wehrheim, Rita Morris and Phyllis Redfern.

There are eight weekly presentations at Schoolcraft on Monday nights but you may register for only six of the eight.

The first selection for Val and Audrey was a discussion of the book "Your Erroneous Zones" conducted by Nancy Zojac of the Dearborn Center for Human Development. The topic centered on selfdestructive behavior.

According to Ms. Zojac, feelings are reactions we choose to have-a physical response to our thoughts. If we can control our thoughts we will be able to eliminate such destructive behavior as guilt and worry.

The ladies' second selection was a mindboggling experience presented by noted physic Barbara Backos. The clairvoyant concluded her lecture by revealing some startling facts concerning her

It'll only get worse

By PATRICK KELLY

Since all winter driving problems cannot be avoided the best rule is to plan ahead and be prepared Don't wait until cold weather arryies.

Now is the time to have your car checked and funed so that it will run efficiently and reduce the chances of a roadside breakdown in the dead of winter

Make sure the following vital systems are •Battery: Make sure it will stand up to the extra power required for cold weather starts. Keep the freeze solution. battery and terminals clean. Keep the battery fully charged. Also, have your voltage regulator them properly inflated. Air pressure should be

•Ignition system: Check the condition of the tread depth reaches 2/32ds of an inch. replace the ignition wires and distributor cap. A cracked cap tire or faulty wires can result in engine drown out when it snows or when slush is thrown onto your car and into the engine compartment. A tune-up Check the condition of the cross chains and before cold weather sets in should reveal ignition replace broken links or those that are almost worn problems if they exist

·Heating and cooling system: Have the antifreeze in your radiator checked. If there is a leak trunk with those items you'll need to combat snow in your radiator or hoses are deteriorating, have or ice. Put the following items in your trunk so them repaired or replaced before adding anti- that they'll be readily available when you need freeze Test your heater and defroster (if you them haven't already) to make sure they are function. Also put these items in your glove com ing properly. If they aren't putting out enough partment: A flashlight, an ice scraper, a brush to heat, have your thermostat and heater checked remove snow from the car (under seat if too long). Also check your intake vents and remove any extra fuses, and a rag to clean lights and the inside debris or other matter that can plug them up

A DRUG basically has two actually is the name of the drug product itself. The brand name is the name assigned to that drug product by a particular manufac turer. All drugs have a generic name For example the generic

WHAT ADVANTAGES ore there to using generic rather than brand name products? Savings! It gives Meijer the opportunity to prescription by using a lower priced generic of the medication

GENERIC SUBSTITUTES may not always be available since drugs approved by the FDA are given a 17-year patent. This gives the original manufacturer 17 years (from the time they receive approval for the drug before another company can make it We also cannot use a generic if the prescribing doctor indicates "D.A.W." or Dispense as Written". And thirdly we would not substitute if the patient has

WE HAVE ASKED OUR PHAR MACY personnel to say to each person submitting a prescription the following "If it's okay with you we will be dispensing the lowest priced generic we stock of the medication prescribed by your doctor" If the patient gives his or her approval the dispensing pharmacist will then deter mine from the prescription if there is a generic substitute

TO IMPLEMENT the Generic Substitution Program we have mailed to over 5 000 doctors in the state an informational letter explaining what we will be doing and the companies we will be using for generic substitutes.

MEIJER BUYS generic drugs from top quality manufacturers (Example: Parke-Davis Lederle Pfizer Purepac Smith Kline & French Wyeth Abbott and oc casionally others.) Thus Meijer is the first company in the state to have generalized substitution of generics by brand name companies. We are also the first company to inform prescribers exac tly what we are doing and request permission from all patients prior to substituting. By promoting generic drugs in our stores. Meijer is able to give our customers top quality prescrip tions at the lowest prices

With one simple statement, Meijer cuts the cost of prescriptions.

GENERIC-DRUGS A LOW COST ALTERNATIVE

Since April 1977 Michigan law has allowed phormacists to replace higher onced brand name date: with less expensive decore drips inscept when your doctor specifies. I spin in as written on the previous or colle a managed towards amone boards and a collecthere with your last that why and platmay assumed clarks are supported to infain. you of the apportunity to have namely in your pener planes by sayon it is girly with you well be dispensing the lowest brice

If you indicate no preference, we If fill your prescription with the generic drug. Unly if you or your doctor specifically ask for it will we give you the higher priced name brand

WHAT ARE GENERIC DRUGS?

A generic drug by ldw is the exact chemical equivalent of a broad name drop. The only of terence is that a brand name drop has a profit home injusted at the Potent (If tice and usually costs more for example Boyer is a broad ration Aspirar is the gondtil minns Herquise must new drops when first in traduced are protected by betent rights not

REFILLS REQUIRE YOUR PERMISSION

If your original prescription called for a specific brand name medication, we'll contimue to refill it with that brand name drug until you tell us to replace it with the equivalent anneric drug. In some cases, we'll call your doctor to make sure he concurs with the generic drug interchange

It may happen that the generic version has a different appearance than the brand you ve heen taking Our pharmacists usually will point this out to you when you bick up the refull Keep in mind that only the appearance a different the generic drug is just as safe. and effective as the original brand name
