6-year-old boy killed in blaze; brother hurt

A Canton Township family, who thrives on love and affection, was dealt a tragic blow early Tuesday morning when fire swept through the upstairs of their home, killing one child and injur-

Judy and Alan Prince. Suffering severe foot burns was son Bobby, 9.

Canton firemen were called to the Prince residence at 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. Upon arrival, the firemen found the entire family, except Anthony, on the lawn in front of the large brick house. Members of the Prince family told firemen that repeated attempts to rescue the 6-year-old had failed due to extreme heat and overpowering smoke.

Firemen were sent upstairs and a ladder was positioned against the house, near a window in the bedroom where the fire is believed to have started. Anthony was brought out of the house through the bedroom window, and was pronounced dead on arrival at Wayne County General Hospital. According to Canton Fire Chief Melvin Paulun, the Prince child was died of smoke inhalation.

"ALMOST EVERYTIME someone dies in a fire, it is the smoke, not the fire that kills him," said Paulun. "The victim usually inhales smoke, gases and soot and is dead before the actual fire reaches them."

Bobby Prince was listed in fair condition Thursday at Wayne County General Hospital.

Canton fire officials, aided by State Police Fire Marshal Bob Delaney, said that the fire started in the upstairs bed-(Continued on page 5A)

Odd-even water plan OK'd by Canton board

An ordinance passed Tuesday night by the Canton Township board will make it necessary for residents to follow an odd-even lawn watering system.

According to Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert, the ordinance is needed to ease a water pressure problem. He claims the problem stems from the township's source of water, the city of Detroit - a charge the city disputes.

The odd-even system is set up by house addresses. If your street number ends in an even number, then you are to use water for lawn use only on evennumbered days of the week. If your street number ends an odd number, then you are to use the water only on odd-numbered days of the week.

"It is a terrible thing to have to do. " said Culbert. "I know it is not popular. but it is the only thing to do at this time." Everybody using water at the same time during a low pressure period makes the situation worse, said Culbert, and a stagger system is needed.

"The city of Detroit is just not giving us the needed pressure," said Culbert. "We have the equipment to meet the needs of our people, but if the pressure is not there, then there is not much we Culbert said the trouble may be due to Canton's lawsuit filed against the City of Detroit four years ago dealing with water supply. The suit is still pending, and according to Culbert, the current pressure trouble is being produced on a "retaliatory basis."

"I am sure that that is the problem. We have had trouble with Detroit for the last couple of years," said Culbert. "Our engineers are looking at the matter at this time." Even though the township has added new water mains in the recent past, a new main is needed in the Livonia area to help service Canton as well as other communities. Culbert added.

"The community has said that in effect they will pay for the new main, but for some reason Detroit will not build it," said Culbert.

As far as the current pressure problem, a spokesman for the city of Detroit's water department said that the water system is working correctly, but that the pressure is low in many communities.

"The weather has been hot and the people are using a lot of water," said Jerry Oakes, a water department supervisor.

"Canton Township is a growing community, in fact, the fastest growing community in the state. Maybe the township's water system is not built up

Whenever a community has trouble with its water pressure or supply the blame is always put on the city of Detroit, Oakes said. He added that the lack of heavy rain in the last few weeks

'The City of Detroit is just not giving us the needed pressure. We have the equipment to meet the needs of our people, but if the pressure is not there, then there is not much we can do.'

Planner gets raise, but no new staff

Canton Planner James Kosteva got a hefty raise Tuesday night, but his request for more staff in the planning department has been set aside for discussion at a later date.

. It was a mixed victory for Kosteva, whose new salary of $22,810 is now in line with that of other department heads even though some members of the Canton Township Board of Trustees argued that he is not a department

The most opposition to Kosteva's nearly-$5,000 raise came from Trustee Robert Greenstein, who first sought to have the subject tabled because Trustee Carol Bodenmiller was not at the Tuesday meeting.

When Greenstein's motion failed, he and Treasurer James Donahue maintained that Kosteva should not be given a department head salary because the planner is not actually a department

"I think the point needs to be made that Jim (Kosteva) is not now, and never has been, a department head," Donahue said.

"The department head position (for the planning department) was created but is vacant. Since the board created the position, I feel we either need to elevate Jim to Planning Supervisor or hire one," he said.

Township Clerk John Flodin, saying that he didn't see how Kosteva could not be considered a department head since "He's the whole damn department," moved to make Kosteva planning supervisor at the $22,810 salary.

Greenstein objected, saying that there would have to be testing for the planning supervisor position before Kosteva could be elevated.

The trustee also maintained that it would be cheaper for the township to retain the services of Wade Trim's (à planning consultant firm) Impact program rather than give Kosteva more money or staff.

According to Greenstein, the program would only cost Canton about $26,000 a year.

Kosteva, however, presented a breakdown of planning department costs, which he said amounted to $24,538 for a year for 400 hours and attendance at seven meetings a month.

According to the planner, the township's previous use of Wade Trim amounted to $82,637 for 33 hours per month and attendance at three meet-

Greenstein said it was improper for Kosteva to make the comparison because most of the Impact cost had been for special studies, including one on farmland preservation.

Flodin's motion to give Kosteva the raise without changing his title (and compensation time for meetings attended commensurate with department heads) eventually was approved, with Greenstein and Donahue dissenting.

Kosteva's request for additional staff was not discussed at the Tuesday meeting, although Supervisor Noel Culbert said it would be addressed at a future meeting.

has put a strain on the pressure at the Detroit plant. "With no rain, everyone is out watering his lawn all the time, and the water usage is tremendous," said Oakes. CULBERT said that the continuing problem with the City of Detroit has prompted him to ask Canton engineers to study the feasibility of a water tower for the township. "A water tower system is a great way to control our water pressure," said Culbert. "The tower is filled up at night at low usage periods and then it acts like a valve to give the community the correct pressure during the day." He was not sure if Canton residents would like a soaring water tower in their community, but said that a tower may be, "the best alternative to Canton's problem."

ONE BUSINESS feeling the water pressure pinch is the Classy Chassis car wash on Canton Center Road, just north of Ford Road.

"We have been having pressure problems for about three weeks," said Jim Stabnau, manager of the car wash. "It (the pressure) is all right in the morning - we usually have about 40-45 pounds of pressure then - but in the afternoon the pressure drops to 10 pounds and then we are in trouble."

The Classy Chassis has had to close down early because of the pressure trouble, he added.

"We can operate with 20 pounds of pressure, but when it goes down to 8 or 10 pounds, we are done. There is no way to operate a car wash without the

Culbert stressed the water use ordinance is like any other township ordinance and that it carries criminal penalties for failure to observe it. Canton police will, for two to three weeks, just remind residents of the ordinance. After that period, officers will issue tickets to violators.

"Also, people with new lawns may water their sod anytime they want for the next two weeks. And new lawns after that will be able to have two weeks to make sure their lawn takes a good hold," Culbert said. "We are sure that the people of Canton will help us and themselves by using the odd-even plan

Fond farewell

Erickkson Elementary School Principal Ron South got a warm send-off last Friday as he prepared to move on to Smith Elementary School to assume the duties of principal. Students in all the Erickkson classes prepared various memorabilia and compiled the assorted laminated pages into a book. The custommade memory book was presented to South in a special ceremony. Erickkson's new principal will be Bill Lutz, formerly of Smith School. The two principals are exchanging schools in a move to get Plymouth-Canton School District administrators to keep fresh ideas flowing by working in different buildings.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department may know by next week if it has a chance of getting $200,000 in state money for more facilities in Hines

The department is asking for $87,000 to renovate its recently opened ministation at Newburg and Edward Hines Drive in Westland. The mini-station, a former garage owned by the Wayne County Road Commission, is used to detain people arrested for misdemeanors or more serious charges.

The sheriff has also requested $80,000 for a holding station at Telegraph and Hines Drive.

TO ENCOURAGE the state to fund the security facilities, State Reps. Robert Law and Richard Young asked Gov. Milliken's budget director, Gerald Miller, to tour the parkway last Friday.

Although unwilling to make a commitment, Miller said he would make his decision this week. "The money isn't in the present

The committe may cut the bill $20 million at the request of Milliken. The county is expected to end the year with a $19 million deficit.

Funding for the Hines facilities could come from a separate package, however, Law said.

They included: Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, Kay Beard, D-Inkster, Alex Pilch, D-Dearborn, county board Chairman Richard Manning, D-Redford, William Suzore, D-Lincoln Park and John Korney and Dolores Bennett, both Detroit Democrats.

Wayne County Undersheriff Loren M. Pittman said the meeting with Miller Friday was not conclusive, just "exploratory."

"It's a sincere effort on our part to show him the potential here," Pittman said. "The Wayne County Road Commission has given us the building. We've raised money on our own and we've gotten people to donate horses. Is there anything in the budget to help us Renovation plans for the Newburg station call for a second story holding area for females and a downstairs holding area for men. On the main level, blueprints diagram a visitors waiting area and office.

According to Akhtar, the availability of the Newburg station has cutdown travel time for officers who previously journeyed to the Westland Police Station on Ford or to the eastern mini-station to drop off those arrested in the park's western end.

But I see some problems connected with the system.

First, our dearly beloved township board members, being the political animals they are, just might be inclined to do a little grandstanding. I'm not saying they would, mind you — just that the temptation to look good before all you folks in television land might be difficult to withstand.

Monday's Commentary

The first time I was in the Traverse City area was as a boy of 9 for a week of fishing with my grandfather, uncle

The next time was for an abbreviated honeymoon on Sugarloaf Mountain.

A couple years ago I made an aborted attempt to spend a couple days in Traverse City. We were returning from our annual week of fishing-swimmingsight-seeing in the U.P. and decided to spend a couple days in Traverse City the next week en route home.

But we failed to make motel reservations. We drove through and around town and couldn't find a place with vacancies. Every motel was jammed

SO WHEN WE decided to return this year for a few days of relaxation, we made sure we had reservations.

Even then, we were a bit nervous about going because Sunday was our departure day and the reports of Sunday gasoline station closings were

But that fear was unfounded. The good ol' Birch Run turn-off had a couple gasoline stations open with pumps pumping. But I passed it by.

For lunch we drove into Clare to the Hotel Doherty. After lunch I found two stations open - one in town, the other by the expressway.

There also was a gasoline station open on the north side of Harrison, and two or more which I noticed were open as I passed through Grayling.

And in Traverse City there were at least a half a dozen stations open for travelers.

The places I stopped at there were no limits on the amount of gasoline which could be purchased. So there was never any problem getting gas - on the way there, while there, or on the way back.

BUT THE FEAR of a gasoline shortgage in the north definitely was evident as I drove through Traverse City.

Motel after motel flashed "vacancy" signs. In fact, I can't remember seeing a "no vacancy" sign anyplace. It was a strange sight, especially for mid-June.

The motel we stayed in had relatively few families, and so the swimming pools were never crowded and there always was prompt service in the dining rooms. Most of the guests were business persons and conventioneers (Amway had a shindig going).

When we arrived at the sand dunes, the parking lot was less than one-fourth full. And we met very few tourists on our stops in Leland, Fishtown, Sutton's Bay and Northport.

The north was almost deserted. That made it pleasant for us, of course, but it certainly has a dismal affect on the area's economy. When you add that to the predictions of a poor cherry crop this year, the prospect for the local economy of Traverse City isn't very bright. While things may get worse before they get better, my experience was that there's no reason to be concerned about gasoline supplies for a trip north. The folks up there are much better off - on gasoline availability, at least - than we are in southeastern Michigan. And I hope that's the way things stay for awhile. The lure of the walleye is coming on pretty strong, and the first of August will, find me heading north again to survey the availability of gasoline between here and Manistique.

So don't worry about vacationing in Traverse City. Just stay out of the U.P.

waged against this country by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

While Americans collectively chew their fingernails wondering whether they'll have enough gas to get to work next week, at least one U.S. congressman has composed himself enough to come up with a pretty good idea.

In short, U.S. Rep. William Brodhead, D-Detroit, has proposed establishment of a federal purchasing authority. OPEC nations would be forced to bid through the authority to sell oil in this country. The lowest bidder would get the nod.

Brodhead believes this would drive down the price of oil. We would be freed from the cartel "rip-

Now, regular readers of this column know that the congressman and I don't always agree on what's best for this country. But in this case, the 17th District representative has my support. Actually, he is going to need a lot of support to get this bill approved. Opposition will be plentiful, vocal and strong, both politically and monetarily. More conservative members of Congress will yell that this is a slap against the free enterprise system. That is just a lot of bunk.

One major reason oil prices are so high is that this country is dealing with a cartel which unilaterally establishes prices. No free enterprise in that.

Secondly, we will hear from the oil companies which are more concerned with their pocketbooks than their political philosophy. American oil producers would like to sell their oil at the same prices as our Arab friends. So they are the last ones to want oil prices to come down.

They endorse taking off controls so American oil prices rise to their "natural level." They want $15 or $20 a barrel, whatever the going OPEC price is. The only thing natural about these kinds of price increases are the oil companies' natural greed. Still others will whine that this puts the government into the oil business, which really isn't a bad idea anyway. But this bill doesn't do that. So you folks who enjoy holding up the postal system as an example of inept government business practices can stow that argument. All this bill does is make the government an agent in transferring oil from OPEC to domestic distributors.

This proposal is a sane option, a workable solution which gives this country time to develop its own natural resources without having OPEC put the guns to our heads in the meantime.

have been grossly exaggerated.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: If one's general health remains good, and if the teeth have been well cared for during the early years, are the chances good that the person will stay healthy when he or she gets older?

Yes. Your teeth can remain in good condition throughout the life span if they are properly cared

But most people neglect their teeth, and so there is dental deterioration earlier than necessary. Furthermore, most people at one time or another during their lives develop generalized diseases that influence the health of the teeth.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: Is it natural for teeth to fall out as people enter their 60s or 70s? S.P.

Actually, this is not a natural phenomenon. Again, loss of teeth is due either to neglect or to some underlying diseases or disturbance in body function.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: Do older people have a tendency to develop dental decay?

Yes, because calcium deficiency in the aging is quite common.

Dear Dr. DeFrancesco: How often should older people have their teeth examined?

At least twice a year and, of course, whenever they develop symptoms.

room. The cause of the blaze had not been determined at press time.

Chief Paulin said that as far as he could determine, the Prince home was not equipped with a smoke detector

"If the house would have been guarded by a smoke detector, then maybe this would not have happened," said Paulin. He added that Canton has an ordinance that requires homes built after 1975 be equipped with such devices.

"What we need is an ordinance in this community that would make it mandatory that all houses have smoke detectors. They do not cost a lot, and we are working to see if we can get a law on the books for older houses."

MRS. PRINCE, contacted at her mother's house in South Lyon, said the family will stay at present. The Prince's had eight children before Tuesday's tragedy. Six of the children, including Anthony, had been adopted by the Princes since 1975. Dennis, 13, Hanh, 12; Len Jr.; Judi 11; Bobby, 9; Connie, 7; and Danny, 5 are the sisters and brothers of the late Anthony.

Although the fire took the life of one of the Prince family, the death toll could have been higher. Acc ording to Canton fire department records, 9year-old Bobby Prince displayed bravery and determination when he returned to the upstairs bedrooms and carried out his brother, 4-year-old Danny. Danny, who is paralyzed in both legs and one arm, can not walk without braces and helping devices. Bobby fought smoke and fire to reach and save Danny, but the heroic 9-year-old could not get back in to rescue Antho-

"After the fire broke out, our main concern was to get everyone out. Bobby brought Danny out, but no one could get back in to get Tony," said Mrs.

FIRE OFFICIALS estimated damage to the Prince house at $20,000. The blaze was contained primarily to the two upstairs bedrooms. Inspection of the bedrooms revealed broken windows, a charred ceiling, blackened walls and mounds of smoldering clothes and other personal items. Water dripped down from the upstairs into the living room, and the smell of smoke was every where. Family portraits lined the walls of the living room, and splinters of wood from the firemen's hatchets littered the entire front half of the house.

The Prince family began to grow to its present size in 1975 when Judy and Alan Prince became involved with a group known as AASK (Aid to Adoption of Special Kids). The Prince's at that time had two children, Len Jr. and Bobby. The purpose of AASK is to find homes for children that are termed "unadoptable."

AASK says that no child is un adoptable, but that it is merely a matter of finding that spe cial family that will accept and love the children.

Apparantly the Prince family fit into that category. By 1978 the Prince children numbered eight, including para lyzed Danny and Hanh, both of who were Vietnamese orphans.

THE GENEVA Presbyterian Church, of which the Princes are members, has been listed as headquarters for co-ordinating any fund raising or contribution drive for the Prince fami-

A spokesman for the Geneva church said that they are trying to determine just what the Princes will need. The church can be contacted at 459-0013 to find out what clothing or furniture is needed. Church personnel will be taking phone numbers of people who have services or items to contribute.

Workers at the Plymouth Post Office, where Alan Prince is employed, are taking up a collection among themselves for the Prince family.

Ron Rash, supervisor of delivery and collection at the Plymouth post office, said that Prince, "is the nicest guy you would ever want to meet." Rash added that Prince was a good employee and had even felt com pelled to call in at work Thursday morning even after his wife had already done so for him.

"He is a very conscientious employee," said Rash. "If we find out that the Prince family is in need of more assistance, then we will get it for them."

Suburbs lose round 2 in park patrol battle

By TOM LONERGAN

For the second time in a month, commissioners from Detroit blocked Wayne County board approval of a lease to operate a sheriff's mini-station in suburban Edward Hines Park.

But the action won't close the station, near Newburgh Lake in the Westland area of the parkway. The Wayne County Road Commission, which owns the building, has no plans to withdraw the lease offer, a spokesman said Fri-

Board of Commissioners Chairman Richard Manning, D-Redford, said the station would remain open without a lease, as it has for the past three Manning said he would bring the issue before the board again on July 12. Sheriff William Lucas is seeking $200,000 in state money to make the mini-station permanent and perhaps open two more in the park (see accompaying story).

APPROVAL OF a three-year lease with the Wayne County Road Commission at $1 a year fell one vote short of board approval last week. The road commission owns the mini-station, which was quickly put in operation last month after residents along Hines Drive complained of unruly youths in the park.

The mini-station, a former road commission storage facility, is used to detain those arrested in the park. The sheriff's department says it needs the mini-station to keep more deputies patrolling the park.

Manning said the road commmission wants a lease agreement with the county board because wants to avoid liability for any accidents that may occur at the mini-station. He said the sheriff's department could not enter into a lease without board approval.

THE MINI-STATION was supported by 13 commissioners — eight suburban and five from Detroit.

Six Detroit commissioners abstained and two voted against the mini-station The lease needed 14 votes for approval

Three suburban commissioners, who likely would have voted for the ministation, didn't attend last week's meet-

Manning said the Detroit opposition was a "political move" and may mean some Detroit commissioners want two counties, "a Detroit county and a suburban county. "I read that between the lines," he added.

Manning said Detroit commissioners were showing no concern with the problems of out-county commissioners.

S'craft adopts budget with only modest cuts

By TOM LONERGAN

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees has put its seal of approval on a $12.8 million budget for fiscal 1979-1980, which began July 1.

More than $11.8 million will be spent to operate the college. The remaining $1 million is for debt retirement, major maintenance work on the Haggerty Road campus and special equipment purchases.

The budget, which expires June 30, 1980, was unanimously approved.

The Schoolcraft property tax levy of $2.06 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation will provide $4.1 million for college operations and $675,000 for debt retirement. It is virtually

A western Wayne County resident with a $50,000 house ($25,000 equalized value), would pay $51.50 in taxes for Schoolcraft this year. The Schoolcraft district includes the Plymouth-Canton, Northville, Livonia, Clarenceville and Garden City K-12 school districts.

More than $4.9 million in state aid is expected during this budget year. Student tuition and fees will provide $2.6 million in budget revenue.

WHILE THERE are no instruction cuts, eight positions in other departments were removed from the budget.

All but one was cut in the past year through layoffs or attrition. They include one administrator, two secretary-clerks, one custodian, a security officer and two supervisors in the physical plant and maintenance department.

The college's cultural and public affairs events in the next year will likely be reduced due to budget cuts.

Under a federally funded Home Improvement Program approved by the Township Board, direct grants will be given to homeowners for repair, electrical or plumbing installation or other improvements needed now or in the near future to bring the home up to code. Elks rally to nip Little Caesars

By BRAD EMONS

The Plymouth Elks moved into second place by themselves Thursday in the Connie Mack Baseball League, beating Canton Little Caesars for the second time this season, 7-6, in eight innings.

Farmington leads the league with an 8-1 mark. Plymouth trails by one game with a 7-2 mark. Caesars slipped to 6-3.

It appeared Caesars had the game all wrapped up until the top of the sixth inning

Trailing 4-1, Elks' pitcher Matt Etienne ripped a Brian James fastball over the right field fence for a three-run homer.

The rally started with two outs. Sam Merrill reached base on a walk. Jim Anderson then moved Merrill to second base on a Canton infield

Both teams went scoreless in the seventh. Canton had two runners reach base on walks but Etienne gbt out of the inning as he struck out Mike Pathe.

In the top of the eighth, Plymouth struck for three runs.

Catcher Paul Dillon led off with a single. Merrill then laid down a sacrifice bunt. First baseman Jim Anderson then smashed a single to left field as Dillon held at third.

Dillon came home on a passed ball to score. Etienne then walked and Mike Woodard came through with a double which hit the base of the left field fence, scoring Anderson and Etienne, giving the Elks a 7-4 lead.

IN THE BOTTOM of the eighth, John Matthews hit a hanging curve and slashed a double. Steve Grav followed with a single, moving Matthews to third.

Gray then stole second but Matthews was cut down at the plate trying to score. Gray went all the way to third on the play.

After a pop out, Al Lipinski walked. Gray scored on a wild pitch and Lipinski then came home on an infield error.

Etienne ended the game on a called third strike.

Caesars took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Mandle sent a cannon-like shot over the centerfield

The Elks got a run back in the third when Mike Cimino raced home on a wild pitch. In the bottom of the third, Caesars collected two runs, grabbing a 3-1 advantage.

Etienne walked the first two batters in the fifth and appeared to be in trouble. With runners moving up to second and third, Don Dreher hit a fly ball to right field. Pat McNamara, on third base, ran home on the play.

CIMINO'S THROW from right field went up the line which Dillon tried to grab. He collided with McNamara as the ball grazed his glove and scooted toward the Canton dugout.

McNamara apparently scored but was ruled out because he failed to slide after making contact with Dillon. The play touched off an argument between Caesars' coach John Gravlin and the home plate umpire.

The Connie Mack League abides by high school rules which state a runner who makes contact at home or second base, must slide Gravlin contended that Dillon had interferred.

"It was a judgment call," said Elks coach Brian Gilles. "I'don't like the rule but it's stated in black and white.'

Junior League, Township end light dispute

Plymouth-Canton little leaguers, whose ballfield's condition put a crimp in their playing schedule, will now be able to finish the season without complications

After a couple months of playing under dimmed lights at McClumoha Park, which has been targeted by vandals, some light is back on the subject.

Plymouth Township directed an electrical firm to "rearrange" the light bulbs in overhead playfield lighting so that the youngsters could finish their last eight games of the season.

Board members agreed to the work last Tuesday and the lights were rearranged by Wednesday night, according to League President Jim Schols. There are some 28 teams in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League. The season ends July "It's adequate enough," Schols said. "We'll be able to play now and I don't forsee any problems in canceling. I just hope now that vandalism doesn't strike out hard against us. Believe me, I don't know what thrill someone gets out of that." The league uses three playfields at the park and lights at two of them were either partially or completly out. Schols and other parents previously expressed frustration with the board's slow action on the subject which he claimed was raised last May.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Thomas Notebaert just presented bids on repairing the lighting situation to the board last Tuesday

But rather than wait for the start of the entire project, involving replacement of light bulbs and lenses, an interim plan was approved. Board members agreed to rearrange existing light bulbs to areas of greatest need.

Asked why there was a delay in receiving bids, Notebaert said: "We didn't realize just how much damage was done, and it's not easy to get contractors to bid because they are busy with other projects."

One bid was submitted by Jack's Floodlighting Service at $8,399, but delivery on glass lenses was/ not expected for another three weeks. The other bid for $4,544 was submitted by Hubbs Electric Inc. with another three-four week wait for supplies. No official action was taken on awarding the entire project to one company.

Safety was the main concern of parents and little league officials who worried of injuries due to poor visibility at two of the three diamonds.

In the near future the referee or umpire may become part of the endangered species list.

The average fan might not know it, but sports officials are almost as hard to find as gasoline.

There is an acute problem finding officials for recreation-type leagues. The pay is not good and the harrassment at times is frightening Some competition exists at the high school level, at least among the more qualified crew of referees.

During the recent high school baseball and softball season, it was common to see just one official show up.

"We had problems in baseball but that was because of rescheduling games the weather," said Livonia Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer. This was the worst weather I've seen in 10 years."

In his first year as athletic director, Frayer learned he could find more officials.

cials for 4 p.m. games rather than 3:30

"A lot of guys don't get off work until 3:30 p.m.," said Frayer. "Next season I've scheduled more games at 4 p.m. because of the availability.'

Frayer believes there is strong competition for varsity officials in football and basketball.

"A lot of guys call me looking for game," Frayer said, "and I try to call people who I feel are good officials.

"It's really hard trying to find volleyball officials. They are in great demand. I've had them come in from as Troy.'

Frayer said it's sometimes hard locating competent officials for soccer and junior varsity games.

"I go through an association in soccer out of Royal Oak," he said. The Stevenson athletic director for-coming in.' Paul Sincock, assistant director of the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department goes through the Westland Athletic Officials Association when hiring summer baseball and softball umpires. "I think they're great," Sincock said. "Normally there is not a problem with them. They are always on time."

For a slow-pitch softball, umpires earn around $10 per game. The WAOA has a crew of female umpires who officiate men's games.

"They do a good job," said Sincock. "A lot of times they are better."

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department hires its own umpires for the modified pitch league.

"There are more things happening in modified," said the assistant director. "It's a different pitch and the rules are not the same as slow-pitch. More complaining goes on because of the pitcher.

"There's a fine line between a legal

Paul Kinder, a veteran official in three sports whose job it is to hire senior umpires this summer for the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department, said there is a parallel between the state of economy and umpiring.

"If the economy is good, you'll see a shortage of umpires," said Kinder. "If a guy can get overtime at his regular job, he'll stay away from working part time as an ump.

"He feels the harrassment is not worth it. Right now we do not have enough qualified (experienced) umpires this summer."

Kinder said its hard to find good young umpires.

"There are a number of reasons for it." he said. "Some have tried it on a Little League-type level and have left with a bad taste in their mouth. Some have had a bad experience while playing and don't want the same hassle.

"You have to blame coaches and frustrated jocks for part of the problem. A lot of coaches, especially on the little league level, don't know the rules. "A lot of times if there's a problem, you can settle it man to man. But that

Officials become a scarce breed rarely happens.' Kinder said the situation will get worse in the next few years. A way to correct some of the problems is to hold meetings and clinics for officials. "You have to blame society for the problem," Kinder said. "There just isn't any respect for officials today. If you please 50 percent of the people you're doing a good job."

Kinder said that high school officiating is the most enjoyable.

"I have less problems in high school than I do in college," he said. "There seems to be more hassles on the college level because a coach's job is at stake.

"Basketball officiating is the toughest. I've never had any real problems in football. In baseball, the biggest concern is consistency in calling balls and strikes."

During the summer, officials are paid $12 per game in a Connie Mack League baseball game. The high school's pay $20 per game.

Amateur Sports Hall moves to Fair Coliseum

By W.W. EDGAR

The Michigan Amateur Sports Hall of Fame that was designated by the state legislature last year as the official body in the state to honor its amateur athletes, now has an official home.

Working with the Department of Natural Resources which has taken over the operation and rehabilitation of the State Fair Grounds, the Hall of Fame has promised its cooperation in the rejuvenation in return for the use of The Coliseum as its official home.

The offer came from the state officials and the Michigan Amateur Sports Group, which immediately started work on a program that will have the "home" establishments when the work on the Coliseum is completed within the next 18 months.

To the present time, the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame that was organized by Larry Weis four years ago, has been scouring the area in the hope of finding a location that would do justice not only to the Hall but to the athletes themselves.

Under the present plan considerable thought is being given to the use of the interior wall of the lobby and the hallway around the show ring to hang the engraved plaques. In the preliminary study, William Upina, acting general manager of Expo 79, now running the Fair Grounds operation, pointed out that the area could accomodate the Hall's requirements for the next 40

In that time the entire interior could be covered in one of the finest tributes ever paid to athletes in the state.

Since the time of its organization to pay tribute to those athletes who have been partially forgotten in the loud hurrahs over the professionals, it has developed working relations with 42 amateur athletic organizations in the

Because of the large number of amateurs who have carried Michigan's colors in all sorts of events including the Olympic Games, the Hall of Fame sponsors two induction ceremonies each year. One of these is held in the

Aside from its local committees the Sports Hall of Fame also has three working commissioners in the out-state areas, who always are on the lookout for those amateurs deserving of prestigious honor.

In this manner the entire state is covered and the area of competition ranges from softball to track and field, swimming, and all the other events that attract those who compete for fun.

Under the plan for the rejuvenation of the Fair Grounds the state will spend $8 million as a starter. This will be spent for the most part on the Coliseum. Later all the other buildings, including the garden stand, will be razed and the entire area converted into a major recreation center for year-round

It is to this program that the Michigan Amateur Sports Hall of Fame has offered its full support. When completed, the project should/be on a par with that offered some years ago when Detroit sought the Olympic Games.

Parking plans set up

The North Course was built in 1919, and in its first incarnation was a public golf course owned by Oakland Hills. It was called North Hills then and went by that name until 1969. In that year, the clubhouse was torn down, a bridge was built over Maple Road to connect the courses, and it golf course.

It was also redesigned in the same year by none other than Robert Trent Jones, the man responsible for "The Beast" across the street.

The North Course, in its present life, is a relatively short par-70. According to Ted Woehrle, golf course superintendent at Oakland Hills, the course from the back tees is every bit as difficult as its sister course.

Jones designed the was turned into a private course with tight targets and plenty of bunkers. In

Alan Arkin hangs onto a speeding taxi, in which Peter Falk is held captive, in Warner Bros.' "The In-Laws."

Hold your sides when you laugh at 'The In-Laws'

Don't buy popcorn or goodies before taking your seat to see "The In-Laws" (PG). You'll want to have your hands free for holding your "The In-Laws" is a rare, hilarious creation, a paradox, because it manages to be both anticand restrained at the same time.

Peter Falk and Alan Arkin, the principals of the title, are a marvelously matched comic pair. They are individually funny and doubly funny together.

Arthur Hiller, the director, has fit it all together to show them off to best advantage. Arkin is a conservative, successful dentist about to marry off his only daughter, but he is filled with doubts because the groom's father has never made an in-the-flesh appearance. He seems to be involved in some vague sort of international enterprise which limits his social engagements.

WHEN THE FATHER-IN-LAWS meet for the first time at a dinner only a few days before the wedding, Arkin's worst fears are confirmed. Falk's à crazy person who astounds the dinner party with his eyewitness account of giant tzetze flies carrying off children, bursts into tears after toasting the engaged couple, then calmly insists on using the basement telephone for a business call.

That's for starters. Arkin gets finessed into aiding Falk in his zany schemes and the comedy broadens but remains punctuated with considerable wit.

The pair's behavior and absurd adventures bear some resemblance to the early Woody Allen comedies. Falk is the smooth-talking, though irrational leader, Arkin is your everyday, ethically-wavering coward who somehow gets drawn into situations he can't handle and manages to survive by the skir of his teeth (well, he is a dentist).

Trying to terminate their activities - just because they stole a few engravings from the U.S. Mint - are gangland hit men, federal agents and a crazy Central American dictator.

The dictator-general, whose palace is off United Fruit Boulevard, is a singularly manic character colorfully defined by Richard Libertini. While the general and his guests dine, a chorus of armed troops entertains them with a rendition of Joyce Kilmer's "Trees." That gives you some idea of the wacky scope of this comedy and why it brings to mind

AS TO FALK'S BUSINESS pursuits, well he might be a crook or a CIA agent or a looney who thinks he's one or the other, or he might be all

There is still some question about him at the end, but there is no doubt about "The In-Laws:" Relatively very funny.

Behind the fireworks

Lighting the sky takes some work

By KATIE KERWIN

Planning a fireworks display is something like orchestrating a full-fledged opera, according to Arthur Wright, J.L. Hudson special events director and the man in charge of the Freedom Festival fireworks.

"The whole show is looked at from a sense of color and sound and novelties. The way you put these together creates different kinds of shows," he said. "We try to vary the moods.

"You try to create some highs and lows, some louds and softs, some brights and not-so-brights otherwise it gets monotonous," Wright said. "Even 40 minutes of bang-bang-bang can be boring, unless you vary it with sound and color and combinations." All those factors are meticulously charted.

"Color spreads, bursts of all-gold or all-red, are plotted," the Troy resident said. "I also chart for Timing is also important, he said, and the shells are fired faster as time goes on.

"We start with a nice, easy-pace and build up with time to the crescendo which is the finale. With all that sound and color, there's so much excitement you feel like the world is coming to an end or something." Wright's face mirrors the expression of a youngster viewing his first fireworks display, when describing the show he has coordinated for 21

WRIGHT'S JOB begins in January with programming and placing orders six months in advance. "Many of the shells are from Japan, Italy, China, Germany and South America," he said. "You have to allow time for them to get here by boat."

Companies don't stockpile fireworks, they are made only on order. James Sorgi, owner of American Fireworks Co., makes most of the shells for the Detroit show. But Wright said he is always on the lookout for spectacular, unusual and safe foreign fireworks.

"Many countries have their own specialties," he said. Techniques, passed from father to son, are "developed and refined, almost like fine rugs, to the point where the techniques are jealously-guarded

Each fireworks shell is handmade. "It lasts only a few seconds," Wright said, "but every star you see up there is laboriously hand-packed so that when it explodes, you would see a perfect ball in the sky.

"They're real works of art," he said. "You have to admire them when you see it."

. Ranging in size from four to 12 inches in diameter, each shell explodes in a sphere of up to three city blocks across, Wright said.

"Each one of those shells (when exploded) is as big across as the tallest office building downtown." Those larger shells cost several thousand dollars apiece, he said. "In each flight, there could be doz ens of those shells," but he declined to discuss the cost of the entire display.

"But the easiest half of the show is the fireworks themselves," Wright added: "The most difficult part is the mechanics of staging the shows."

The coast guard, Army engineers, police and fire departments in Detroit and Windsor and riverfront festival committees must be contacted. Because

'You try to create some highs and lows, some louds and softs, some brights and not-so-brights — otherwise it gets monotonous. Even 40 minutes of bang-bang-bang can be boring, unless you vary it with sound and color and combinations.'

- Arthur Wright

the river is blocked during the fireworks, shipping companies must be alerted 60 days in advance,

THE FIREWORKS ARE shot off from three floating stations. Arranging to hire the necessary barges keeps Wright biting his nails right up until the last minute, he said.

"It's usually two weeks ahead before I can be reasonably - and that's only reasonably - sure how many I can get." Barge owners are reluctant to promise the ships far in advance, hoping to get a more profitable hauling job for the same time.

"They're not glamorous in any sense to look at but those barges cost from $10,000-$250,000 to rent," Wright said. Occasionally, Wright has found himself short a few barges at the last minute. Then he takes a scavenging trip along the waterfront.

"I've had to look up and down the river for a barge like we needed. Then I'd go knock on doors and ask when the barges were free.'

One such ship was loaded with machine parts for St. Louis. But it wasn't due to leave until after the fireworks. "The stevedores worked all night to unload it. We used it and then it was reloaded immediately and took off for St. Louis a few hours after."

Twenty-six workers are needed to put on the show. Three men fire the shells as the rest load, clear and reload the mortars. "If sparks were left in the mortars, the next shell would prematurely ignite," Wright said.

No one has ever been hurt at the annual fireworks, he said. Extensive precautions are the main reason. "There just can't be too many safety factors," he said.

SOME YEARS, WRIGHT is on the main barge during the show. "It's important that all the people involved in designing the show know what's going

But, from the barge, a viewer does not get the full effect of the show. Shells are encased in paper bags. The propelling charge sends the shell about 600 feet into the sky, Wright said. But that charge and the bag covers only go about 50 feet of the way.

There is a continual rain of brown paper bags and burning sparks around the barge." Clouds of smoke surround the barges as the shells are set off, obscuring the view, Wright said. "Also, there's 1,000 feet between the barges, so you can't see both

So Wright stands on shore some years, watching the display from different vantage points. He follows the show's progress on paper and in the air.

"I listen to the reaction of the crowd," he said "This is how we determinne pretty much what people like, so we can design the next show with better

Adults tend to prefer the blossoming color spreads, he said. "Children like the novelties." Wright has his own favorites, of course.

"Because I know the romance of hand-packing, it's probably the chrysanthemums. They're the biggest shells we fire and the most perfect.

Wright said he sometimes overhears more than oohs and aks, while listening to crowd reactions. "I pick up comments from parents: 'Can you imagine somebody being paid to do this?" Most watchers underestimate the complication involved in preparing the huge display, he said. "Most people don't realize how much goes into it. They think it's just a matter of going out and light-

Wright enjoys the fireworks, but with a few res-

"I certainly look forward to it, but my most relished moment is when it's over and has been done safely and been a good show," he said. "I feel the release of a lot of pressure.'

Safety worries are always in the back of his mind, he admitted. "There's an anxiety you can't ignore. You can say it doesn't bother you, but don't

New 'Python' episodes start on Channel 56

Starting Thursday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 56, the first of six new-to-Detroit episodes of "Monty Python" will be aired. These shows were recorded a few years ago and will have the same group of loonies except for John Cleese. Cleese, at the time, was working on his own series, "Fawlty Towers," which was seen last year on Channel 56. The new "Monty Python" series differs slightly in that each program starts out with a theme which - although the Python humor remains as insane and surreal as ever - is followed through to its ultimate, inconclusive conclusion.

In the first new episode a plumber/ narrator describes the Golden Age of Ballooning and how it began with the first ascent by the Montgolfier Brothers at Annecy. This is followed by Chris Quinn shopping at the great store, with gases and viruses in the basement and fresh air on the 10th floor.

The second program again shows the customer at the great store as he manages to select the ant he wants. However, to his dismay, he realizes that his ant is short two legs and has a false feeler. In another episode, Hamlet undergoes psychoanalysis.

"Monty Python," over the past few years, has consistently been among the top rated programs on public television stations. According to ratings published in the Chicago Tribune, "Monty Python" is attracting the youngest audience of any prime time public TV program. Its popularity is reported to be greatest with viewers in the 15-24

The title of the series means absolutely nothing. The show was created in 1969 by Michael Palin, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, John Cleese and Graham Chapman, all graduates of Oxford or Cambridge. The other member is Terry Gilliam, an American cartoonist who provides the animated sequences.

The result of these collective efforts has been called silly, insane, uneven, tasteless, inspired, hilarious or completely without redeeming value. One thing is for sure; it's different. As one critic said, "Television may have finally devised the electronic equivalent of the hash brownie.'

GLADYS AND NEAL Bowen returned recently from a five-week visit in England. They spent most of their time in Leeds with Madge and Harry Dove. The Doves have a wide circle of friends in Plymouth whom they met when they used to visit Phyllis and Tom Kelly who lived next door to the Bowens on Penniman Avenue.

They spent their last three days in London and while there, called Jerry B. and Kathy Fischer, former Plymouth residents. Jerry is in England for Ford Motor Cò. and they live in a charming old stone house in the country. Their nearest neighbor is a mile away.

Kathy told Gladys that their house has five bedrooms and no closets. Their children, David and Erica, enjoy their English school and both are involved in music - one on piano and the other on recorder. Jerry B. and Kathy said they appreciate the slower pace of life in rural England.

GLADYS' RESPONSE to how they spent their time with the Doves was. "We'spent a lot of time eating."

She explained: "We started ou the days with a tray in our room, tea or coffee in bed. This is really a nice way to start the day. It gives you an opportunity to talk and plan your day.'

First item on arising was breakfast. With that out of the way, at about 11 a.m., it was time for the British snack time called elevenses.

'Quite often their friends would come over for elevenses or we would be invited to someone's home for elevenses. There would be tea or sherry and little cakes or biscuits," said Gladys.

Lunch was served at about 12:30. "Harry bakes all their bread and for lunch we'd have sandwiches of thinly sliced bread - it was delicious - and perhaps thinly sliced cold roast beef. "

Tea time was 4 p.m. with Madge's delectable tarts and tea.

"Everyone has a tea cart and tea was always beautifully served. And everyone has stack tables. The Doves have three sets in their living room and they are used for tea. The rest of the time they are used for flowers or plants and are such good-looking pieces of furniture."

DRINKS WERE served before sup-

At 7 p.m., they sat down to a full dinner. "And there was always a snack about 11, cheese, crackers and tea, before we went to bed.

"Neal and I both gained wieght but the Doves and all their friends were so slim and trim," said Gladys.

The Doves took them sight-seeing and among the places they visited was the cathedral at Rippon where Gladys' father had sung in the boys choir when he was a youngster.

Their only unpleasant experience during their sojourn in England occurred when they arrived in London on their way home. They had made reservations in a bed and breakfast establishment. They had paid one night's lodging ($22) in advance. They had received confirmation of their reservation on very impressive notepaper. They took the train for the 200-mile trip from Leeds to London and when their taxi driver finally-found the address of their lodging, he suggested they had made a mistake. But there was no doubt about it, this was their destination.

A young man took them up three long flights of stairs to their room.

"There was a cot, a small bed with a sagging mattress and one straight chair. The young man had not offered to assist with our luggage and we had to stop and rest at each landing.

"We had to put our luggage on the beds because there was no room for it on the floor in that tiny room. There was a wash basin in one corner and he told us the toilet and shower were on the next floor."

NEAL ANNOUNCED immediately that he wasn't going to sleep in that room. So, at 3:30 P.M., they started to search for other accommodations.

There was no public telephone there so they left the building in search of one. They were across the street from a park which was completely surrounded by bed and breakfast places. An hour later after walking and making several calls, they had not found a place to Finally they took a taxi, and heading back to the railway station, they found a room in a hotel. Another taxi trip to collect their luggage and they were in their room in a fine old hotel.

Neal said he will never complain about inflation over here after seeing the high prices in England.

The half-day tour takes about four hours and they walked about four miles. The cave extends 300 feet below ground level and they descended 700

The only life the scouts saw within the cave was a packrat with his hoard of cigarette butts and used flash cubes. There were cave crickets, bleached white and colorless from their underground existence.

Some of the group thought they saw a bat but their ranger guide doubted

The scouts were expecting to see more stalactites and stalagmites. The ranger explained that they were found in caverns which are wet; caves are

> IT WAS DURING a cave tour that they met a group of Boy Scouts from Illinois. The scouts leaders invited the the Plymouth group to visit their camp that evening.

They accepted and COLU girl scouts were delighted.

The troop was given a formal welcome by the uniformed boy scouts. The boys provided entertainment - skits and songs - and a camp fire. The girls reciprocated with skits of their own and shared some of their songs.

The leaders were especially pleased with the compliments they received about their troop. Waitresses, rangers and hostesses praised the behavior of the scouts.

He wants to bring tennis from the parks and clubs and put it in backyards. Like the folks at Forest Hills and Wimbleton, he favors lawn tennis. And he likes to play it barefoot.

He thinks grass should be kept about 11/2 inches high so that the ball will bounce. "You get a low skip in lawn tennis, making it a faster game than tennis on clay or asphalt," he said.

However, the grass outside the court should remain long, so as to slow down the ball, and keep it from rolling into the neighbor's swimming pool. With the ball less likely to bounce away, high cuts the cost.

The court needs about one inch of water a week and it should be rolled once a week, or as necessary. The lawn should also be fertilized.

Skater endures with merchant's help

A Plymouth woman, Mrs. Jeanne Climie, was the second place finisher in the annual Jerry Lewis Skate-a-thon for muscular dystrophy.

Mrs. Climie, 37 of Marlowe, Plymouth, placed second by raising more than $1,500 in pledges from 285 merchants in the Plymouth-Canton area.

The cooperation of the merchants, she said, really encouraged her and provided the energy to skate during the 18-hour marathon from 1 p.m. Wednesday to 7 a.m. Thursday, June 28, at the Riverside Arena on Plymouth Road in Livonia.

"The merchants were really great, and I'd like to give a great big thanks to all the wonderful people who came through," a tired, but happy, Mrs. Climie said Thursday afternoon, after catching a few hours rest.

But by Thursday afternoon she already had collected $900, more than skates. In fact, this year I was offered a half the amount pledged. For her efforts in signing up sponsors and collecting the pledges early, she was awarded a prize of a brand new pair of skates.

"That was really exciting, too. These are my first new pair of skates and I've been skating all my life. I got my first pair of skates 30 years ago, a pair of second-hand skates from my dad.

"I always wanted a new pair of 'Thank you merchants!"

pair from a friend but refused. I had made up my mind, and set my sights on winning a pair by doing something for other people. That's why I'm so thrilled about the skates."

"The merchants were really great in helping out. I wish you could splash a big headline across page one saying,

Twin chairmen, Mao & Hua, presence is always felt

Everywhere we went there were always twin photos of Chairman Mao and Chairman Hua, hung side by side, high on the wall.

The one place tourists are always taken to shop is the Friendship Store, where a large, high banner boasts, "We have friends all over the world."

Merchandise available for sale included jade, ivory, silks, cashmere, china, pottery with the most beautiful glazes, cloisonne jewelry, carved lacquer, agate, hand embroidery, paintings, and onion-flavored peanut brittle.

PROBABLY THE highlight of our tour was our visit to a commune, where two rice crops are produced yearly.

There were 7,083 households with a total of 30,790 persons. Eighty percent of the land is planted in raspberries, rice or peanuts, but the other 20 percent is devoted to cash crops of fruits or pigs, which are handled independently by members so inclined.

It was a "dogs' life for the people before liberation," according to the spokesman. "People had no regular job then and had to go to a nearby village and do odd jobs to live.'

"After liberation, water conservation projects of three reservoirs and 15 water-storage ponds were built, so that annual rice output has risen dramatically. With five irrigations stations, rice can now be planted where it was not possible before."

Living standards are vastly improved, and they no longer suffer from periodic famine.

"Workers go to the fields on two wheels, instead of on foot," he added. Now, all children can attend school, and 98 percent do so. If children can Touring through the commune hospital, which provides 41 beds for in-patient care, I noted a pile of tree branches on the floor under the bed of one of the patients. My inquiry revealed that they would be boiled in water to make Chinese medicine.

The hospital was termed "very basic," according to the English female M.D.'s with our tour group. The surgery room was not being used, so we witnessed no operation being performed under accupuncture.

We also were allowed to visit a typical small farmhouse, which was very functional and without much embellishment. The family had a young cat, but there were no dogs - they are not, allowed, because "dogs bite people."

AT LUNCHTIME we were taken to an outdoor communal wash-up with two wash basins of water, one cake of soap and a small stack of wash cloths. but not enough to go around, so we had and other assorted mouth-noises managed to indicate that he was thoroughly enjoying his meal. As I strove to maintain a straight face, I didn't dare look at him.

I had been actively campaigning for a chance to see the Giant Pandas at the local zoo, and on the return trip from the commune, our bus did stop at the zoo. It was a beastly hot day, and two large blocks of ice had been provided inside the panda house, which very effectively kept the pair indoors. We could see them sitting atop their iceblocks, and they would not be coaxed

I had always thought of pandas as being cute and cuddly-small; not so they're big as bears. But it was quite a thriff to see them in the flesh.

The guide finally lured us all away from the panda house with the promise of a cold drink, which turned out to be a "red bean popsicle" with a nut-like texture and probably more nutritious than the sugared ones that American children consume.

THE LAST EVENING we were taken to a "fancy restaurant" for dinner, which was an unbelievable 18-course extravaganza, including a roast suckling pig with special glaze at every

She was not unobserved, however, and when she rose to leave, she was stopped and quietly ordered to return it. No doubt this caused her a most painful loss of "face," but it's interesting that the Chinese handled it that way, when she might have been thrown in jail.

The quality of honesty has been so ingrained in the Chinese people, that for years there were no locks on hotel doors. But this is not always true of all tourists, so door locks and keys are now more generally provided. As a matter of fact, it's almost impossible to throw anything away in China, because discards, as well as gratuities are invariably returned.

The last morning, as we boarded the bus to depart, after our luggage had al-unbeknownst to us, our rooms were being checked for forgotten belongings.

Finally a hotel employee emerged bearing a wire hanger, from which hung a pair of men's trousers, which were duly returned to the forgetful guest. Only then were we able to be on our way.

One just does not wander around toweeks. It wouldn't be allowed. Howevready been stowed aboard, there was a er, the only thing we had done apart from the official tour was to walk from the hotel to a city department store where the locals do their shopping.

There were no obstacles put in our way and, done without the aid of a guide, which we were allowed to do, it was a memorable "extra." Starting out with a hand-drawn map, (essential to have because the streets are marked only in Chinese) we counted off so many blocks in one direction, turned left and walked several blocks further.

We were met with friendly smiles all returned. Several children even greeted us in English, as they seemed to sende that we were Americans. It's surnising what one can do to communicate across the language gap by drawing pictures and using gestures when tally on his own for several days or those are the only tools available to

Some teary eyes, some sad goodbyes

QENA, Egypt — As we drive away from this desert city, the young student is waving politely from the town square outside the bus. He no doubt is confused by the shine in my eyes. Why should I get all choked up because a bunch of kids want to shake hands with a stranger?

I've only been in town half an hour, on my way from the Nile to the mountains of the Eastern Desert. My destination is the Red

All the pictures I carry away in my head from Qena are about hands. Men wave their hands from the steps of an ancient building on the square. A young boy with a big grin waves both hands from the back of a burro, where he is making his friends laugh with his antics. He wants his picture taken and uses all the international kid tricks to attract attention.

There are people scattered around the square, in front of the mosque, lined up at a shop door and gathered around the place where they make pottery. Women go by without raising their eyes but the men and children stare.

FEW TOURISTS GET this far off the beaten track. The Arabs in most places are curious and friendly. Only in the most wellknown tourist sites like the pyramids and the Valley of the Kings do they push beads in your face or ask for money.

One small child here pushed his small hand forward tentatively and said "baksheesh," the eastern word for "give me money" but his elders scolded him.

That outstretched hand was one more hand of Qena. I grabbed it playfully and circled the palm with my fingertip, singing "All Around the Mulberry Bush.

It was a sensation and soon every small child in town wanted to play "Pop Goes the Weasel." There was another hand, unseen, that made me jump. I did not expect to get pinched by a teenager in a long Arab robe in a desert town. But the main story of the hands began with the serious young man, perhaps 15 years old, in a pair of slacks and a brown knit shirt. His arms were full of school books, when he stopped in front of me. "Good morning," he said.

"Good morning. "Are you American?"

"Yes. You speak English!"

"A little. I learn in school. Where are you from in America?" "I'm from Detroit," I said. He looked puzzled so I started to talk about living in the city where they make cars. Detroit was as foreign to him as Qena was to me. A crowd of chidren gathered around us.

SUDDENLY THE BUS horn sounded our departure. "Goodbye," I said, shaking his hand. He shook hands solemnly and that's when it happened

A small hand shot into the circle. It was so low the owner couldn't have been more than 6 or 7 years old. "Goodbye!" he said. I shook his hand, too.

"Goodbye, goodbye, goodbye. . . "

Hands shot out on all sides. I waded through them to the bus. shaking thier multiple outstretched hands with both of mine and saying "goodbye, goodbye" as I walked.

The Hurgahada Tourist Village eventually will have 200 bungalows around a clubhouse, all in the style of a bikini-and-fun Club Med resort.

Red goes Med

New-wave resort

by the sea, by the sea

Story and Photos: By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

HURGHADA, Egypt - A deep blue sea washes a golden sand beach. But this is the Red Sea, not the Caribbean, and the sand beach flows for a desolate 100 miles to the horizon.

Can you really build a tourist resort on the edge of the Eastern Desert, in a land so barren that water must be hauled from a single nearby well or piped hundreds of miles from the Nile?

When I arrived at this new resort, I was cynical. The sign that read "Welcome to Paradise" was backed by a desert that only a camel could love. When I left, I had a different view about deserts. The Eastern Desert never lost its barren look, but it has advantages after all. It literally never rains here. The sun is hot but dry, and the average summer temperature is 70-90 F. It is sun hat and suntan lotion weather in the noon-

The tourist trade hasn't discovered it yet, so the people who live in the nearby desert village are curious and friendly. There is nothing but disco and authentic bedouin dance entertainment to distract you from the eating and drinking and playing that are at the heart of resort life. Best of all, there is the Red Sea, described by marine experts as the last unpolluted sea in the world. It has an underwater smorgasbord for snorkeling, scuba diving and above-or-underwater photography.

WHERE IS HURGHADA? If you think of Egypt as a square 600 miles long and wide, with a green river valley called the Nile cutting it in half north to south, the Eastern Desert covers most of the land from the Nile to the Suez Canal and the Red Sea.

It is a 45-minute flight or a sevenhour drive southeast from Cairo, or a four-hour drive east from Luxor, to Hurghada. The Egyptian government is encouraging public and private investment here, as well as on the Mediterranean coast near Alexandria, as part of its effort-to add 27,000 hotel rooms and double the tourist trade by 1983.

There are no antiquities here, although the desert sand had filled in the swimming pool of this resort hotel when it was abandoned during construction because of the Mideast war.

No battles have been fought here, but it has been an extensive military zone. Even now you must put cameras away and go through security to check in at the army-run Hurghada airport.

The hotel opened as the Hurghada Sheraton this month. A second resort, run on the Club Med principle, opens one mile to the south next fall.

The Hurghada Sheraton is built on the courtyard theme, with rooms built like stacked circular bracelets around an open atrium. Tourists use the hotel as a homestead, eating, drinking, dancing and socializing inside the hotel or on the terraces and beaches. The only place to go, except by bus to the nearby village, is out to sea.

Phase two of the hotel includes an international diving center, but the main occupation at at sea right now is

AS THE MOTORBOAT moves Cacross the sea at dawn, the low desert landscape makes a golden ring around the water. The low hills of Hurghada are behind us and the sawtoothed sandstone mountains of the Eastern Desert are misted in blue against the western

To the east is Saudi Arabia. To the northeast, the Sinai has just been transferred back from Israel to Egypt.

Tourists are sitting in fishing chairs at the back of the boat and on the short upper deck, all of them eating breakfast that has been served in lunch box-

"My daddy wouldn't have called that fishing" said a voice that was clearly from Mississippi. Below on the fantain aft, an Egyptian deckhand baits a rod that makes the only skyline against the capped blue sea.

The hotel staff assured us tat we need only drop our lines overboard and we sould "haul in a fish every three or four minutes." The tourists have lines overboard on all sides, but we catch nothing but the reef. The young Egyptian deckhand with the same line and bait, but a lifetime of experience, pulls in a small red fish, called bongos, every few minutes until they are piled against the bulkhead.

On another boat, fisherman have hauled in a 25 km nagelf and a 10 km

THE NEARBY VILLAGE of Hurghada is one of the main sources of fish in Egypt.

On the village beach, where boats are towed in for repair, another sign of war remains. Smuggled boats, their owners now in jail, rot on the beach.

The village includes a large mosque, and a small shopping area where you can buy authentic bedouin goods. A few blocks away, in the small market street, villagers sell melons, potatoes and huge seashells on either side of a dusty road. This is the Egypt of the ancient desert, with only a few T-shirts. and polyester slacks to remind you that Women robed in black carry pots on their heads and men herd goats down the street. Children follow you, saying, "Hello! American? Welcome? What's your name?"

The people are used to soldiers of every kind, now, but they are still curious about tourists from across the sea. A SHORT DISTANCE south of the town and the hotel is the C.M. Magaw-here. This is the frontier of tourism.

ish Hurghada Tourist Village being built by MIRT Travel, a public-private Egyptian travel organization which is the main agazizing force for travel in More than 200 bungalows are scattered across the desert landscape around a central clubhouse by the sea. For most of the year, Club Med will run this resort on the bikini-and-fun principle of other Club Med resorts.

Land and water sports facilities will be available, as well as dining room, bar and discotheque.

The village is expected to attract large numbers of young European travelers eager for guaranteed sun in the middle of dreary European winters.

It's a long way from the stone-andhieroglyphics Egypt that most people come her to see, but it is a definite travel adventure for anyone content to live with sand, seas and first-class cooking.

TWA flies to Cairo from Detroit twice daily from Kennedy airport in New York City. Air Egypt flies twice a week to Hurghada. For information, contact your travel agent.

The Hurgahada Sheraton is helping to attract tourists to pleasure spots being developed on the Red Sea.

Rites of spring

The Jeep CJ-5 and CJ-7, which plowed through the winter storms, convert to open air "convertibles" when the weather warms and recreational activities lure people outdoors. The Jeep CJ soft-top models, with four-wheel-drive capabilities, are among the few soft-top cars still available - few nowextinct convertibles had roll bars.

If you don't use gas, you can save money

The best way to save gasoline is to not use

Tuning your engine helps. Keeping your tires properly inflated helps. Driving a small car helps. Driving sensibly helps.

But if you don't drive those miles, you won't be using gasoline. And you will be saving

Planning and consolidating trips is akin to not driving because you are getting the maximum use from the miles you drive. Why drive to two grocery stores to save 40 cents if you will burn 40 cents in gasoline? In some compact cars, a mile costs seven cents, just in gasoline.

To get an idea of what it costs to drive a mile, divide the current cost of the type of gasoline you buy by the miles-per-gallon you are getting. Then round the cost up a penny.

This takes into account the poorer gas mileage for short trips, but totaly ignores the other costs such as wear on tires, car insurance and

876 Oldsmobile

cellent condition, $6200

depreciation of the car. The government allows 18 cents per mile, taking into account these other expenses.

Is it cheaper to drive to the bank than to cash your check by mail? If you are getting 15 miles per gallon and your bank is more than one mile from your home or normal driving route, you are ahead banking by mail.

If you can save $1 on a pizza from a pizzeria seven miles from home, you are better off not "saving" that dollar.

Driving two miles to a utility office is an obvious way to waste gasoline - and money as well, assuming you get fewer than 38 miles

In addition to saving gasoline, you can save a nice sum by selling an unused second (or third) car. Insurance costs a minimum of $2 a week in this area. You may be paying $7 a week or more for insurance on a car. Is having an additional car worth that constant drain on your wallet?
