Building decline may tighten purse strings sharing funds could make 1980 a tight financial year for Canton government.

Proponents of a growth management plan have looked forward to the time when building activity in Canton Township would decline.

But a sharp decrease in the number of building permits issued this year and a prediction that construction activity will remain at the same level next year could contribute to mandatory tight spending in 1980, according to Supervisor Noel Culbert.

The township receives approximately $320 in permit and inspection fees for each single family home constructed in Canton. according to chief building inspector Aaron Machnik.

During the first seven months of staff and equipment next year.

A sharp decline in building activity 1979, the building department issued 45 and an expected cutoff of state revenue percent fewer single-family permits than the number issued during the same period in 1978. The decrease from 967 to 522 permits - meant a loss in revenues of approximately > Finance director Mike Gorman is also predicting that state revenue sharing funds will be cut off this year. In 1979, the township received $450,000 from the state. The allocation represented 60 percent less state funds than the township received in 1978.

> The township's 1979 budget totaled $4.28 million.

CULBERT, WHO must submit a rough draft of the 1980 budget by Sept. 1, says a tight money supply will probably preclude an expansion of township

Although no layoffs or curtailment of services are planned, Culbert said an in-house engineer will probably be the only new staff position created in 1980.

Township administrators are proposing the creation of additional patrol officer positions in the police department. But those positions would be financed by a proposed two-mill increase ($2 per $1,000 assessed property valuation) in a special tax assessment for

Last week, the township board tabled a request from ordinance department supervisor Bruce Phillips to create a new position in his department. Although board members appeared to recognize a need for the position, they expressed concern that a tight money supply in 1980 could not support the additional salary or finance the purchase of an additional car.

Machnik said two vacant positions in the building department will probably not be filled because of the money situ-

Culbert said he is currently meeting with department heads "to see where we can cut the fat" from their 1980 monetary requests.

"I think it's reached the point where we'll be very tight the end of this year and the beginning of next year," Gorman said. "But it's too early to tell exactly where we'll make cuts."

Under the township's charter, the 1980 budget must be approved by Oct.

ALTHOUGH A DECLINE in building activity will contribute to the township's loss of revenues in 1980, Culbert appeared pleased that the township's decade-old building boom has tapered somewhat.

"Right now, we're at a good level," he said of construction activity in the Canton's mushrooming growth has been a major political issue for the last several years. Many have advocated enactment of a growth management policy that would limit the number of building permits that could be issued each year.

Machnik attributed the decline to the economic crunch.

"But it's sort of nice," he said of the slowdown in his department. "We're getting caught up and doing things we didn't have time for before. The inspectors aren't being pushed to the point of being ridiculous.

Machnik said the township building department has expanded by "leaps and bounds" during the last decade. The department, which now includes 22 positions, employed only two building inspectors when he first came to Canton four years ago.

to pay a part of a road paving project for the first time in Canton's history.

An allocation of $125,000 has been approved by the township board in order to ensure the paving of Haggerty between Warren and Joy. The board approved the concept of the project some months ago.

Supervisor Noel Culbert recommended approval so the township get a better price for industrially zoned land

The township has earmarked money it owns near Haggerty and Warren. The cost of the paving will be shared with the Wayne County Road Commission and the federal government.

ALTHOUGH THE PROJECT will cost Canton $125,000, Culbert is confident that the money will be recouped through sale of 128 acres that fronts on Haggerty.

Two industrial developers have expressed interest in buying the land if Haggerty is paved, the supervisor said.

Canton bought the land about a year ago for $6,400 an acre. Culbert believes that Canton could sell the land for about $11,000 an acre if Haggerty is Construction of a good paved road ould spur industrial development in the area, he said.

"In the long run, it'll pay off for the taxpayer," the supervisor said.

Culbert said money from sale of the industrial land could be used to finance other road improvement projects with the road commission.

The WCRC is responsible for maintaining and improving roads in townships, since townships do not receive a share of state gasoline and weight tax-

But because of financial limitations, the road commission has proposed a shared-cost program with townships in order to speed paving work.

How to manage as a secretary—and survive

By BETTY MASSON

Secretary's spread used to be about the only disease that secretarial flesh was known to be heir to.

Today there are some new ones. Paperalysis. The Treadmill Syndrome. The Do-It-Better-Myself-Syndrome. The Storage Complex.

Secretaries have to be hard-working, dedicated, and maybe a little devious to keep not only themselves, but also their bosses up to the mark.

All of this was learned at an in-service training session for secretaries of the Plymouth-Canton school system, held last week in the Mayflower Meeting House.

How to recognize the symptoms and treat all of these "diseases" of secretaries was one of the topics on the allday agenda.

Advice came in a segment on "Time Management" conducted by secretaries Jan Woodring, Fran Venske, Joan Egner, Diane Williams, Ruth Hoeprich and Lorraine Champagne.

THE FIRST THING a secretary has to ask herself, said Ms. Woodring, is "What is the purpose or mission of my

After this has been settled, she should make a list of her strengths and weaknesses, likes and dislikes, and figure out what she can delegate, preferably from the weaknesses and dislikes

Next, she should do the same thing for her boss.

A little thought can turn you from a Level One secretary, who acts only on orders and assumes little responsibility (Correct title: window dressing) to a Level 6 secretary, who runs the office 100 percent, unless there is a new project.

The latter "assures that the boss rises in management by the kind of help she gives him. If he does not rise far enough, fast enough, she finds a boss more deserving of her skills or moves into management herself."

Fran Venske, speaking on dictation and dictators, pointed out the following time relationship: one hour at dictating machine, plus typing two hours of standard dictation plus typing equals five hours of handwritten work later typed. Therefore, all bosses should be encouraged to invest in dictating work from A to B to C. machines, and definitely discouraged from writing things out by hand.

TO KEEP PAPER in its proper place (usually the waste basket) and to prevent Paperalysis, a good rule of thumb is, "If you haven't referred to it (a piece of paper) for a year, then throw it away" (unless someone like the IRS agent is apt to be interested in

Keep a small alphabetized file on your desk. When you get around to filing, a lot can go directly into the basket. Always remember it takes 30 minutes to file 50 sheets or four weeks of work to fill a filing cabinet.

Secretaries are advised to avoid the Treadmill of plowing through their

They should know and take advantage of their own and their boss' peaks and lows. "I plan to do typing during high energy periods, and organize papers during the lows," said Ms. Hoeprich.

They should establish priorities, by jotting down A Items, Must Do Today; B Items, Should Do; and C Items, May Do. B Items should be kept out of sight and C Items should be delegated if possible. They might be someone else's A

Secretaries should resolve to accomplish three things a day. "You'll be lucky if you get them done," they were

This is because of constant interruptions. Keeping a time sheet to pinpoint interruptions and interrupters is a good idea. People who tend to be chronic interrupters can be politely advised that saving up all the problems for one daily or weekly session could save their time. You don't have to mention that it would (more importantly) save yours.

MEETINGS CAN BE time-wasters. Only schedule them when they are absolutely necessary.

Memos can be valuable for informational purposes, but again, a warning is

There are memos to postpone work; memos that are "militant" i.e., used to convey a message you'd rather not deliver face to face; "look how hard I'm working" memos; and "who's in and who's out" memos (if you don't get one, you or your boss is in trouble).

Other interesting tips: Convince your boss you should open all the mail. You not only save his time. but you'll be more useful because you'll know what's going on.

Block forms for letters and memos are time-savers.

Persuade your boss to let you take messages and have him call back if possible. This saves him from interruptions, and every boss needs a block of time (about 90 minutes) every day, when he can really concentrate and get down to work. Especially if you're both going to rise quickly.

My pleasure stems from the fact that a few years ago I was employed by The Detroit News. One of my duties included processing wedding and engagement announcements. I know from experience that some girls waited months to have their announcements printed. (In fact, I mailed my announcement to The Detroit News on July 25. To my knowledge, it has not yet been printed.

I thank you again for your speed and expert handling of my announcement. I wanted the whole world to share in my happiness; the sooner, the better as far as I was concerned. The News advertises, "When you read the News, you know." Perhaps a slogan for your paper could likewise read, "When you read the Observer, you'll be pleasantly pleased." I, for one, am very pleased.

The taste of things to come

In a move to increase efficiency and quality of the school lunch program, the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has contracted with ARA, Inc. to oversee the district's food service pro duction.

The company would be taking over the lunch program immediately, said Dan White, school executive director of Representatives from ARA conducted a presentation Tuesday outlining for the school board the company's background and how ARA can be of service to the Plymouth-Canton school district.

PAUL SEIDEL, the ARA food service director for the Plymouth- Canton district, said that with ARA's resources and knowledge in the food service operation, the district's lunch program will be getting the best help in the business. While the ARA team is putting new ideas into practice, it will need time to understand the district's present lunch operation, Seidel said.

"After we get settled in, we hope to have a standardized menu throughout the district," said Seidel. "I want to say, however, that nothing will change for at least one month, because we do not want to upset anything. Our people are working and seeing where help is

While Seidel will be the overall director of the service in Plymouth-Canton, two people will be on-site managers of the operation. The two assistant food service director's are Christine Neff and Bernadine Lane.

Ms. Neff's area will include Plymouth Salem, Bird, Farrand, Smith, Stark weather, Tanger, Hulsing, Isbister, West and Central.

Ms. Lane's coverage area includes Salem, Allen, Fiegel, Gallimore, Miller, Geer, Field, Erikson, Pioneer and East. Both Ms. Neff and Ms. Lane will work out of Plymouth Canton High. They will work around to the other schools in

THE ARA firm has contracts with hospitals, institutions, the Pentagon and airlines. ARA was responsible for the food service along the Alaskan pipeline and at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal

The school district studied several firms before contracting with ARA.

"We went around to six different companies, tasting their food, talking with the school personnel, asking questions and generally checking the situations out," said White.

The most important thing he found out was the need for a good on-site manager, White said. The background of Seidel convinced board members and cafeteria people to go with ARA.

"The bids came in, and ARA was competitive. We choose ARA because of their track record and the credentials of Paul Seidel. We wanted the manager to be able to work with us from the start, not come in at a later date. We think ARA is the best."

No new equipment will be needed to start the school year, Seidel said. No current cafeteria employees will be let go, as the staff of kitchen workers will be used to cook and serve as always. Supervision will be handled by the

AFTER THE MEETING, board members and principals ate a lunch by ARA at West Middle School.

Many thought that the lunch would be the type served to the school child ren. But instead, the lavish lunch was a treat paid for by ARA to entertain the school employees.

Meeting the crowd as they entered the West cafeteria was a huge decorative table-tree loaded with giant cocktail shrimp. The main course included beef tenderloin and braised potatoes, with fresh fruit and sculptured apples. Tasty salads and rich desserts were all part of the fare. All of this was the work of ARA chef Gus Evangelives.

Evangelives will be working with Seidel for a week helping school kitchen staff. While the menu will not include such treats served at the meeting lunch, the chef will be teach ing ARA recipies and cooking tricks.

"I will be working for a few days getting everyone happy," said the white-hatted Evangelives. "It is important that the kithcen help n know how ARA works, because as time goes on, ARA will be a bigger part of the operation." He will come back to the district whenever a problem arises that calls for his culinary expertise, Evan-

Many school officials used the luncheon to discuss food service problems with the ARA staff. Questions of nutrition were raised, and according to ARA they have a "Rainbow Education" policy that teaches nutrition in the schools.

Food delivery, sanitation, problem solving, management flexibility and cost were all discussed. ARA's Seidel said all of these items will be worked on with the district school officials.

ARA also said that it is interested in providing the food service for extraschool activities such as banquets, meetings and social functions.

"Contracting with ARA will help us turn over the food program to someone who has expertise in the area," said White. "And while we were getting along doing it ourselves, the burden will be lifted from us and put on ARA, and that is their business."

School management personnel gather for a lunch- the contract for the Plymouth-Canton school district's eon put on by the ARA Co., which was just awarded lunch program.

Registration begins Sept. 4 for community education classes offered by the Plymouth-Canton Community School District's education department.

Area residents will receive in their mail the community education fall bulletin, which lists all courses, programs and activities beginning the week of Sept. 17.

Residents will be offered a wide variety of programs in leisure time and recreation activities, general equivalency degree preparation and testing, high school completion courses and special programs for senior citizens and children.

Fourteen daytime adult education classes are offered for adults who work evenings or prefer a daytime schedule.

As part of the academic enrichment program, David Dursum, assistant director of community education, encourages residents to take advantage of the vocational courses offered this year, with job placement assistance provided to those seeking employment in a skilled field.

"We offer many excellent skilled training opportunities with highly qualified instructors and well-equipped classrooms," Dursum says.

"Students who successfully complete one of our vocational programs are prepared to seek entry level employment in positions compatible with their

In addition to machine shop, vocational courses offered to residents include blueprint reading, welding, dental assistant, medical assistant, heating and air conditioning, shorthand, typing bookkeeping, secretarial science, auto body and graphic arts.

Of special interest to the community, according to Dursum, is that all vocational and academic classes are free to those who are working toward a high school diploma and not attending a day school program. They also are free to high school graduates under 20 years of age and to senior citizens, providing minimum enrollment is reached.

Sen. Geake urges veto

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, has urged Gov. Milliken to veto Senate Bill 460 — the legislation implementing the mandated cost section of the Headlee Amendment.

The bill would exempt many state mandates allowing for large increases in cost to be unconstitutionally passed on to local units of government across the state, said Geake whose district includes Plymouth and Plymouth Town-

In Geake's opinion if SB 460 does go into effect, local governments will be forced to sue the state government for unconstitutional incursion into local government activities and services.

"Despite the Republican caucus' best efforts to fairly implement the Headlee Amendment," said Geake, "we saw our version of a mandated cost bill soundly defeated in the Senate.'

Geake said the Democrats pushed through a very weak bill bearing little relationship to the actual implementation of the Headlee Amendment.

"For example, the definitions of 'service' and 'activities' in SB 460 are worded so as to exclude many major personnel costs. These oftentimes are a large part of the cost of new programs.

"Another section of the bill exempts those costs which apply to a 'larger class' of persons or corporations and do not apply exclusively to a local unit of

"If, for instance, the state were to mandate an expansion of unemployment compensation benefits to new classes of citizens, local units of government would have to pick up the increased costs for their employees. This would be a significant increase in their budget and would require either cutbacks in other services or increases in local property taxes.

"Republicans were successful in amending parts of the mandated cost bill, but the final result of our efforts was only to turn an objectionable piece of legislation into legislation merely a little less objectionable.'

Carl Pursell donates papers

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, has donated his political papers to the University of Michigan's Bentley Historical Library, home of the Michigan Historical Collections.

Pursell's contribution updates the local congressional archives, including material from three of his predecessors - Earl Michner, George Meader, and Wes Vivian.

The collection also contains papers from Pursell's service in the State Senate where he "was author of a substantial amount of important legislation," according to Robert M. Warner. director of the library.

Pursell is a second-term congressman. His immediate predecessor was Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor.

With Pursell's collection, Warner explains, the library will introduce a new procedure for material selection and preservation.

Archivists will work in Pursell's office to identify papers appropriate to the library. This arrangement, Warner adds, also will allow Pursell's staff to dispose of material inessential to the historical record.

Information derived from such an approach could have considerable impact on other collecting agencies' techniques, says Warner.

Usually you would have to tie up your savings for years to get a dividend that begins to compete with inflation. And it seems it would take years to save the amount needed for one of those fancy $10,000 Money Market certificates. Until now you've had to content yourself with choosing between long-term savings accounts or low dividends. But if you consider yourself a serious saver, you'll welcome this news from your credit union.

> NOW YOU CAN EARN THE SAME DIVIDEND RATE IN 3 YEARS AT YOUR CREDIT UNION THAT BANKS AND S&Ls PAY IN 4.

Look at the charts above and compare: with a Community Federal 3-Year Certificate you can earn the same or HIGHER DIVIDEND for LESS TIME. Now you have greater flexibility to plan your savings and to save for the things you want to buy. And before you know it, you've saved the amount needed for a 'fancy' money market certificate.

The maximum rate on Certificates is determined monthly by the U.S. Department of the Treasury. The rate you are quoted the month you purchase is paid for the term of your 3-Year Certificate. Dividends are compounded quarterly and the term and minimum balance, like most credit union savings certificates, are designed for the serious saver who isn't rich.

So if you've got money that's "just sitting" in a bank or savings and loan, bring it to your credit union. Our 3-Year Certificate is just one of many savings programs that can help you beat inflation.

The final results of State Sen. Robert Geake's, R-Northville, district survey found 59 percent of the respondents opposed to reducing the penalties for possession and use of small amounts of marijuana.

A bill which passed the Senate this past session and Geake opposed will reduce the penalties for possession and use of small amounts of marijuana. The bill is now before the House for consideration.

In other crime related questions, respondents overwhelmingly agreed that the death penalty should be reinstated in Michigan.

In Geake's annual poll last year 86.8 percent of the respondents wanted to have the opportunity to vote on the issue, This year, 70 percent felt that capital punishment should simply be reinstated and soon.

"My constituents in northwestern Wayne County have shown me again this year that they want a hard line taken against criminals," commented Geake. "Fortunately, the crime rate finally seems to be decreasing in the Detroit area and my constituents want to see that trend continue."

Some 70 percent of the respondents also felt that the needs of juveniles who are runaways or school truants would be better handled by social service agencies instead of by the courts.

(Part III) Among the many plaques and trophies he has earned during his athletic career, Bob Hitt of Plymouth has one from the Wolverine State Horseshoe Pitcher's Association.

In 1933, when Bob was only 11, he had demonstrated his precocious ability to a crowd of 600 spectators at Dearborn by leading the West Dearborn Club to the International Horseshoe Pitcher's Association championship.

He topped the Dearborn club in scoring by winning all five of his games, one from the current state champion. In the finals, his opponent was Donald Stephens of the John R. Club. Stephens, a tall man, towered two feet above Bobbie's 4 feet, 2 inches.

"Don't get nervous," young Bobbie told his opponent as the match started. Hitt then proceeded to toss 11 out 12 ringers to take an early lead and eventually win the match.

After the matches, Bobbie's father told a reporter:

"This is the final gratis match for Bobbie. From now on I'm going to be his booking agent and manager. He's going after big gates." But that was in the days before television, and big purses, and instant national fame. The big purses never materialized.

Forty dollars was the top prize for winning at the state level. At exhibition matches, the price of admission, and the money paid to the performer were miniscule by today's standards.

When Bob Hitt appeared in a match against Henry Balk, at Monroe, Mich. on Sunday, Sept. 24, 1933, the price of admission was 10 cents. The promotors of the affair undoubtedly thought they were being generous in paying the winner the big sum of $15.

IN ADDITION TO being a champion horseshoe tosser, Bob Hitt also was an accomplished baseball player. In high school, he was the pitching ace of the Plymouth Rocks in the late 1930s.

In 1938, he established a new Plymouth High School strikeout record, fanning 102 batters in a single season. The previous record, established in 1934 by Warren Bassett, was 82 strikeouts.

Hitt never achieved his ambition to play in the major leagues, but he did play professional baseball for a couple of years. He pitched for Eau Claire, Wis., in the Northern League in 1946-47. The league was the one that spawned one of the modern greats -

Hitt also starred on the Plymouth High School football team. From his position at right halfback, he did most of the passing for the Plymouth team during his three years on the squad.

Two years after he graduated from high school, Hitt was inthe military service, seeing action in World War II with the U.S. Marine Corps (1942-45). In an artillery unit, he participated in many marine landings in the Pacific theater of the war.

AFTER THE WAR, Hitt renewed an interest in bowling which had started when he was still in high school.

He soon began to establish a reputation in bowling not unlike that which he had enjoyed in horseshoe pitching.

In one week, during the late 1940s. Hitt bowled five perfect games at Parkview Lanes, then located opposite Saxton's Garden Center on Ann Arbor Trail. He has credit for three league play ABC sanctioned 300s - one in 1949, one in 1955 and another in 1960.

In 1959 and '60, Hitt's mean average in bowling was 215 — the highest of any bowler in the Detroit area. He was known at that period as "King of the Bowlers."

For three years, 1957-60, he bowled professionally for the Pfeiffer Beer team which won the world's bowling championship in St. Louis in 1959.

In the 1960s, Hitt was dubbed "the bowling milkman." He had bought a milk route, which he still operates, and was making frequent appearances on Fred Wolfe's bowling program on television. On the show, Hitt competed with many well-known out-of-town bowlers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitt (Eleanor Hart) live in Plymouth at 440 Ross Street with Mrs. Hitt's two children, Debbie and Randy. Bob also has three grown children, (Lowell, Julie and Janice) and five grandchildren.

16,000 dinners planned

Plymouth Rotarians to hold giant cook-out

If all goes as planned, Plymouth Rotarians will once again serve up one of America's greatest mass meals with the help of modern technology and inspired precision.

Sunday, Sept. 9, the Rotary Club of Plymouth will help end the Fall Festival with its 24th annual chicken barbeque.

The club is planning on serving some 16,000 chicken dinners this year complete with corn on the cob, potato chips, roll and butter, white or chocolate milk, and coffee.

Also available will be soft drinks, ice cream, and pies baked by the Plymouth Rotary Anns.

DINNER WILL be served from noon to 6 p.m. Sept. 9 in Kellogg Park.

Take-out dinners also will be available in the park or at the special takeout service area by the Michigan National Bank at Ann Arbor Road and

Last year the pick-up area served some 5,000 dinners.

Mike Corp, this year's barbecue chairman, says tickets may be purchased in advance from any Plymouth Rotarian or on Sunday at the pick-up area or at the Kellogg Park ticket booth for $3.50 per person.

Assisting Corp will be Joe Smulsky, last year's chairman, and: Glen Meadows, purchasing; Ed Olson, food preparation; and Bill Morrison, ticket

Proceeds from the Rotary barbecue will benefit the charities and other community organizations which the club supports each year through its Rotary Foundation.

THE BARBECUE started out as a picnic in 1956.

Plymouth historian Sam Hudson, who also is a Rotarian, says that in 1956 Don Lightfoot, a member of the club's youth activities committee, suggested the club sponsor a fund-raising chicken barbecue.

At that time the Rotarians were raising funds to furnish playground equipment for a playground at the east end of Wing Street.

The picnic, held in May of that year, attracted some 500 residents which was enough to pay for some playground equipment and to inspire the Rotarians to make the affair an annual

Hudson, in his "Plymouth Past and Present," says the second picnic was held in June 1957 at the Hamilton Street playground. Again, the $505 in proceeds went towards playground

By 1958 residents were looking forward to the Rotary's third annual "Plymouth Community Chicken Barbecue." The site of the picnic was moved to what now is Central Middle School athletic field and the date was switched from spring to fall - Sept. 18. Tickets, which had been $2 for adults the year before, were dropped to $1.

BY 1960 the time had arrived when the barbecue had come to be more than just a picnic, but was a genuine community event.

In that year, with enthusiasm growing, the event moved to Kellogg Park. Hudson himself, as president of Rotary that year, helped oversee the picnic's transformation into a major event. Hudson credits Rotarian and former mayor Harold Guenther with suggesting the name "Fall Festival."

Hudson recalls how he sought a chairman who would be up to the challenge of coordinating the expanded

"festival" and he asked Frank Arlen. Arlen agreed, but only if he could have an able group of Rotarians to sup-

City commission approves water hike proposal

At the next Plymouth City Commission meeting water rates will be increased by 15 and 21 percent.

Monday night the commission approved the first reading of the ordinance change to increase the water

The proposed new charges will be 90 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons consumed (a 15 per cent increase) and 70 cents per 1,000 gallons for all volume more than 50,000 gallons (a 21 percent increase).

The current rates are 78 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 50,000 gallons and 58 cents per 1,000 gallons for users of more than 50,000 gallons.

Earlier the commission had decided against increase sewer rates as it believes the accumulated reserves in the sewer fund is sufficient to absorb the expected operating loss during the coming fiscal year.

In other action, the commission awarded a bid for parking lot improvements, set a new fee for parking credits, and approved a Planned Unit Development (PUD) project for the old Bennett House.

THE COMMISSION accepted the low bid of $34,553.40 from the Morrison Company for the parking lot improvements. The city had budgeted $36,000 for these projects.

Some 24 spaces will be added to the new parking lot behind city hall on city-owned land where the city recently demolished an old residence.

The improvements will result in 30 parking spaces in the Festival Lot by the Penn Theatre, half of which will be leased to the Plymouth Post Office for its employees.

The other half, on the east side of the lot, will be metered for public parking. City Engineer Ken West assured the commission that the added 30 spaces will not interfere with use of the lot by civic clubs during the Fall Festival as it still can be used for the barbecue pits. Construction will not begin this year until after the Fall Festival.

The commission approved a fee of $2,250 per space to be charged busicredits when it is impossible to provide actual physical parking spaces to meet city code requirements in downtown Plymouth.

The rate had been set at $1,750 per space two years ago. The rate set is intended to represent 50 percent of the cost of providing a parking space if it were constructed, explained Mayor Tom Turner.

The commission also decided that anyone not paying cash for the parking credits may make installment payments over a 20-year period at eight percent interest. The commission had considered charging the prime interest rate, which now is at about 12 percent.

THE COMMISSION voted 6-0 to approve a PUD plan for the Bennett property at 134 N. Main Street.

The commission approved the PUD site plan upon recommendation of its planning commission which had con-

New ordinance aimed at dirty streets

A new Plymouth Township ordinance is being drawn up after residents of several new subdivisions complained of dirt on the streets and in the sewers.

The dirt, a result of home construction, was not being cleaned up, according to Trustee Barb Lynch. Lynch introduced the ordinance after receiving complaints from the residents. The ordinance, which must be read publicly and published before it becomes law, calls for a $500 fine for those contractors who neglect to clean up the streets he said that they do it on Saturday's. I periodically.

"We have asked some of the developers to clean up their act and they just did not do it," said Lynch. "It is a real problem and something had to be Lynch said that the board authorized the township attorney to draw up the ordinance to rectify the situation.

"I asked one of the contractors when he cleaned up his construction site and went around on Saturday and found that no one did anything.

"When I got back to the guy and asked him why he lied to me, he said that he was just pulling my leg. Well, this is no joking matter," she said.

Lynch said that she had the full support of the board and that the feeling in the community was one of general sup-

Based on an analysis of collision fatalities, researchers at the University of Michigan's Highway Safety Research Institute (HSRI) have found that vans and pickup trucks "are not demonstrably less safe" than passenger

While production and use of vans and pickup trucks has in creased greatly in recent years, these vehicles are exempt from some federal motor vehicle safety standards regulating the performance of passenger cars used in the United States, the researchers noted. Focusing on data obtained mainly through the federal Fatal Accident Reporting System, HSRI researchers James O'Day and Richard J. Kaplan, analyzed single- and two-vehicle accident and fatality statistics for four categories of vehicles: passenger cars. pickup trucks, vans, and station wagons built on a truck chassis. One of the findings was a comparatively low rate of fatalities among occupants of vans involved in collisions.

The U-M researchers said vans and small trucks "appear to perform somewhat better than passenger cars on a scale designed to reflect gross safety

But they cautioned it is not clear whether this finding relates to "inherent safety" of the vehicles or to the types of accidents in which they are commonly involved.

"Compared to passenger cars, pickups have a considerably higher (accident) involvement rate, but only a slightly higher fatality rate (for occupants). Vans, which are about as equally involved (in accidents) as passenger cars, have a lower fatality rate," reported O'Day and Kaplan.

For passenger cars, the U-M researchers found a rate of .349 accidents per 1,000 vehicles, while corresponding figures for the other types of vehicles were .452 for pickup trucks, .349 for vans, and .073 for truck-chassis station

They found occupant fatality rates, per 1,000 vehicles, of .242 for passenger cars, .264 for pickup trucks, .182 for vans, and .053 for truck-chassis station

Downtown plan gives Canton its own identity

If you wanted to go to downtown Canton, where would you go?

Well, folks, there is no downtown Canton, so you wouldn't be going anywhere.

Canton Township has its share of shopping centers, grocery stores and eateries, but it suffers from an affliction typical to many of the more recently developed suburbs.

There is nothing that even remotely resembles a town center, and there is not likely to be.

A plan to establish a central business district in Canton has been formulated by township planners. The district would be along Ford Road between Canton Center and Morton-Taylor roads. Another development along a village square theme has been suggested for the area at Canton Center and Cherry

BOTH SUGGESTIONS are excellent. A central business district would eliminate the bellyaching of merchants who now want to stretch their businesses in a commercial strip along Ford Road as an attempt to attract the motorist whizzing by.

Canton could use more stores, especially ones offering such amenities as clothing. It could use a movie theater and a dime store.

What Canton doesn't need is a strip of auto-oriented businesses with loud blaring signs. There is a place for business, but that place is not as stores have been allowed to develop thus far. In these days of the energy crisis and a growing awareness of the environment, it makes good sense to revert to the kind of logic that caused our ancestors to develop towns with a central business district, a town square and an outlying ring of residences that becomes less dense as one gets further from the center of town.

CANTON GREW as a place where people lived but didn't work. It was, and for the most part still is, a bedroom community. With the exception of Canton's shopping centers, you must drive from one business to another.

One of the reasons Canton has had such difficulty establishing a community identity can be attributed to the fact that there is no identifiable community

One of the reasons there is such antagonism between subdivision homeowners and development or commercial interests is there is no way the interests of all groups can come together, as they do in a community laid out as a community.

In spite of all the good reasons to give Canton a downtown, it seems unlikely to happen. The costs would be too great and the effort of convincing land owners and developers too much. But those who operate the township are a stubborn lot, and they've succeded in promoting a number of brazen ideas. Perhaps they could succeed at this project as well.

Richard

Headlee a taxing nightmare

I have this nighmare in which I walk up to a group of theologians who are arguing. They are disputing how many angels can stand on the head of a pin holding X number of cherubs. I begin to read to them from Genesis. They get angry and shout me down.

The theologians, in this case, are the local politicians who are angry at the way the Michigan Legislature implemented the Headlee tax limitation amendment

They had been lured into supporting Headlee with the promise that if the state required any new expenditures by local governments, the state would pick up the cost.

The theologians, and St. Richard Headlee himself, say Senate Bill 460 allows the state to pass onto local government many new costs. They wail and shriek. The Saint hires his equivalent of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John — McMaster Associates Public Relations — to send out news releases asking the governor to veto the bill. The governor signs it.

THEY HAVE REASON for their anger. In 1972, the state adopted a presidential primary law - an extra election in May. Local units of government, namely cities and townships and to some extent counties, had to pick up the tab.

That was when talk started about requiring the state to pick up the cost of local services the state

The slimmed down version of the Headlee amendment, as placed on the ballot by the secretary of state, said it would "prohibit the state from adopting new or expanding present local programs without full state funding.

My colleagues and I tried to tell the public last fall the Headlee amendment was full of fishhooks, that there were many costs which passage of Headlee couldn't hold down.

Between early 1978 and election day in November, voter support for the Headlee amendment slipped from about 80 percent in the polls to 50.1 percent at the ballot box. Some folks were thinking but not enough.

STATE SEN. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, a Headlee supporter, does a fine job of outlining what's wrong with SB 460:

"The definitions of 'service' and 'activities' in SB 460 are worded so as to exclude many major personnel costs. These often are a large part of the cost of new programs.

"Another section of the bill exempts those: costs which apply to a 'larger class of persons or corporations and do not apply exclusively to a local unit of government.

"If, for instance, the state were to mandate an expansion of unemployment compensation benefits to new classes of citizens, local units of government would have to pick up the increased costs for their employees. This would be a significant increase in their budget and would require either cutbacks in other services or increases in local property taxes."

I NOW INSERT some Genesis-type thoughts into

There are three levels of government - right? No. Wrong. The U.S. Constitution recognizes two levels of government — federal and state.

Local governments are creatures of the state. They depend on the state for their existence. They depend on the state for their powers. They must perform the duties required by the state. That's

Look at any list of legislative bills and half or so will pertain to local government. Something like 41 percent of the state budget is appropriations for local government - schools, community colleges, cities, villages, townships, counties, special authorities, intermediate school districts, regional planning agencies.

"We want state government out of local government's business," thunders Headlee, thereby revealing that he literally doesn't know the first thing about government.

OUR LOCAL politicians have a case, emotionally, anyway, when they cuss the legislature.

But the more important fact is they were bamboozled when they followed the siren song of "tax limitation."

To paraphrase Genesis: "In the beginning, the state created the counties and the cities

Paging through my book of quotes one evening, I noticed an oddity, of sorts.

Quotes on that great American pastime, the vacation, were missing. Imagine, 200 million persons in this country work the year through to make it to vacation. Yet not a quote has been preserved on that great subject.

Now since I'm on vacation presently, it occurs to me that something of great historical import must have happened on someone's vacation to be recorded in time's annals.

I sit at night, watching the camp fire burn and hearing the sounds of nature in the distance. It's peaceful out here in the north woods. City folks tend to forget that such peace exists.

A glance at the night sky reveals a panorama of stars and constellations which not even the greatest of artists could come close to copying.

The lake gently ripples as the cool night air lightly sweeps across its surface. The stillness is broken by the faint sound of a fisherman's small outboard motor nudging him to a flickering light in the dis-

The mind becomes so relaxed in the northern woods. A person's senses are brought back to life after only a few hours in the back country. Food tastes better, the pipe tobacco is sweeter and the wonder of nature's aroma consume the nostrils.

A quick glance in the mirror reveals that the wrinkles disappear or, at least, become less obvious. Those dark circles under the eyes diminish into nothingness. The skin becomes tan. Leisure opens the body and mind to new adventures. A person is compelled to briskly walk through the woods to nowhere in particular. Long-neglected books are dusted off and their knowledge revives the thinking man.

Nature's colors dart out vividly as a vacationer awakens from the long year of toil. No matter how civilized the world in which we live becomes, vacation still relieves us and provides a time to renew

For a time the bomb, the boat people, a stagnating economy and Jimmy Carter seem like problems far adrift from the vacationer's world.

Our jaded view on life becomes properly readjusted to reality and sensibility. What a wise and wonderful feeling it is.

A trip to the north woods reassures us that, indeed, we are the individual who survives on his own. We realize that life really isn't a mad rat race of senseless rules and regulations.

It is a life of struggle but one which we are sure can be harnessed and tamed.

Vacation brings such wonderful thoughts to a person's mind.

Somehow the great thinkers made a mistake along the line. They forgot about the importance of a vacation. They forgot that while man's life is to improve the world, the reward is hesitating to refresh our minds and bodies.

Great thing, these vacations. I think I'll go bait a hook, light up my pipe and think for awhile — about nothing much.

'Suburbia County' bill a bad joke

The County of Suburbia. Has a nice ring to it.

That must be what state Rep. Tom Brown was thinking when he re-introduced a bill in the state house to split Wayne County in two.

There couldn't have been much else on his mind

Detroit, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes would remain Wayne County, the western and downriver suburbs that presently comprise the rest of the county become 'Suburbia.

He's serious.

His re-introduction of the bill — for which he could find no co-sponsor — was pegged to the county's mounting fiscal problems

There is little question the county's monetary woes need to be addressed. Right now, the county faces a record $19.5 million deficit, and commissioners are asking the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission if the county can once again borrow against next year's tax revenue.

There have been layoffs, more are pending, and commissioners are making noises about a four-day workweek for many of the county's employees. The unions are howling.

This is not the first year Wayne County has run a deficit. In fact, it's becoming a habitual occurrence. so much that the finance commission's overseer for the county is demanding more than unfulfilled promises from the county commissioners.

THE SOURCE of the problem is manifold: inflation, a taxbase that isn't increasing as fast as costs, mandated county services and a circus-like county government that can't seem to act with any degree of fiscal responsibility.

There is no place the buck stops. They pour through the cracks of county bureacracies, the commission, and various other elected county bodies. Lines of responsibility are blurred, and the problem is aggravated by a commission that often divides along city and suburban lines.

Support of a Wayne County executive, as in Oakland County, faces the same city-suburban split at the commission level.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young doesn't even want a county. Disband the county and let each community take care of itself, he says.

Govenor Milliken says let's have an executive, and he backed that up with a veto of state aid funds for the county.

SOME REASONED thinking and problem solving, minus the political shenanigans, is in order. Enter Tom Brown.

He says make the problem smaller by cutting it in two. Nothing else has worked, so why not try 'Suburbia.

Why not?

Let's disregard the problems of establishing a whole network of services, of getting funds for those services, of underlining what antagonisms exist between suburbs and city in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Let's disregard the fact that time, money and energy will be spent in a futile attempt — that his bill has no chance of passing.

Ignore the fact that if the bill's intended to give the suburbs more control over county affairs; the 1980 census, through reapportionment of county districts, may serve even better.

It's OK, because Tom Brown will be getting plenty of mileage out of, but no action on, his bill.

Of course, Brown may not be serious. He knows he lacks enough support to make 'Suburbia' a separate political entity. In fact, he knows it well enough to suggest that it could be called Brown County, or anything else for that matter

Let's hope the legislature, and the public, won't put up long with this whimsical nonsense. And let's hope the good Rep. Brown can find more constructive projects while in office.

There is, after all, plenty of serious business to

Tom Riordan

Is there really a 'Terrible Jean?'

Terrible Jean said she would kill me if I wrote about her joining the floor show (at the Woodbridge bar in downtown Detroit) to give her singing imitation of a chicklen laying an egg.

Jim Fitzgerald, Detroit Free Press colum-

So did he write about the floor show? Of course Then Jim explains, "I feel the public had a right to know what a 52-year-old mother of five will do to break into show business.

Is there really a Terrible Jean?

You bet there is. She's alive and well, living in Southfield at 29672 Somerset Drive, and I give you the address so you sensitive readers will know where to send cards of sympathy the next time her brother picks on her in one of his Free Press col-

Her formal name is Mrs. William Fitzgerald. It might seem odd that she never lost her cherished maiden name. Well, the truth is that Jean was into women's lib long before that movement was born. She decided she wanted to stay a Fitzgerald and the best way was to look around for a husband until she found a guy named Fitzgerald.

HOW DOES the affable Jean feel when her brother writes about her and her two sisters?

"Each time I pick up the Free Press off the front porch in the morning I pray there will be nothing about the family.

But often there is. Terrible Jean is the best known of the three put-upon sisters, but Mary Lou and Linda get their share of jibes, however never as regularly as poor Terrible Jean.

Maybe that's because on one occasion Jim wrote that Linda, who now lives in San Antonio, Texas, was so pregnant that she "couldn't get through a tunnel sideways.'

Linda was sincerely incensed. She said she would never again speak to her brother. Jim for once was so thunderstruck that he drove to Port Huron, the Fitzgerald hometown, where Linda still lived. He searched for her, finally locating the miffed Linda in the Fogcutter restaurant. There, in front of the amazed patrons, he pled for forgiveness.

ONCE HE teased in print his sister Mary Lou, who with her husband and children, try to live quietly in Bloomfield Hills. Jim informed his readers that Mary Lou is his wealthy sister and when he parked his Volkswagen in her exclusive driveway her burglar alarm went off

Ever since that article, when Jim and his wife Pat are guests at Mary Lou's, her husband, an IBM executive, refuses to mix a drink for Jim. "You're on your own," he'll say, apparently only half kid-

When Jim, a weekly editor for 25 years and known for spilling family secrets in print, landed his present plush assignment as a four-times weekly columnist for the Free Press three years ago, the sisters huddled.

It was Mary Lou who told Jean, "The only thing for us to do is move.'

Until then, Jim had been doing his column writing for the Lapeer County Press, a weekly with 18,000 circulation. Often he had lampooned his family, but they knew the family-closet stuff was localized to the Lapeer area.

But with the move to Detroit, Jim was going statewide.

JEAN EXPLAINS that when the families of Jim. Jean, Mary Lou and Linda get together, "it's all in the paper.

It reminds her of the days when she was a preteen and Jim, who constantly stalked his older sister,

"would throw my diary to the mob." Jean has special praise for Jim's wife. "Pat is a real saint. If anyone has taken a beating, it's her. It doesn't seem to bother her. She goes along to his crazy movies, sees everything, even the rotten ones.

It should be explained that Jim is an incurable motion picture addict, with an apparent thirst to see every movie that is produced.

TERRIBLE JEAN isn't exactly tongue-tied when it comes to dealing with her brother. The only problem is that her barbs to him are limited to oral thrusts in small circles of friends and families.

Once while he was Lapeer editor he felt charitable and turned over most of one column to her. Jean made the most of it:

You devoted your entire little life to making me miserable. You should have grown up to be G. Gordon Liddy. Your literary career began when with your fat little hands, you recorded in your ever-present notebook all of my transgressions for future blackmail use.

Witness your life of complete sloth around

"Terrible Jean" Fitzgerald is a mild-mannered commercial artist with an Irish twinkle in her eyes. She posed for this "halo effect" picture in front of what happens to be the trademark for her present employer, Western World Wide Agency, Inc., located on Civic Center drive in Southfield. Before getting married, Jean, a Marygrove College graduate, was an illustrator for the Kresge advertising department. (Staff photo.)

the house. If your wife Pat — God bless her hadn't come to the rescue you would probably be living in our basement now and following me around the house - a typical no-good Irish bachelor.

But Jim reserved the last word for himself, "I'm glad she wrote that violent letter. It proves I wasn't kidding you about my black and blue childhood.'

And that's the last Jim Fitzgerald's readers saw of any sisterly rebuttal.

Fetus can't drain teeth's calcium

A misconception still persists that a developing fetus can draw calcium from the mother's teeth and thus cause cavities.

The old wives' tale, "For every child, a tooth," is not true. While the fetus does require calcium and will rob the mother of her calcium if the supply from the diet is not sufficient, the mineral does not come from the dental enamel.

Instead, there is much more available supply in the mothers' skeletal bones. The mineral contained in the enamel cannot be withdrawn into the bloodstream and circulated to another tissue, organ or to the growing fetus.

Calcium is fixed in the enamel and can only be removed by exernal action such as acid forming on the tooth surface as in dental caries or by cutting with dental instruments.

THERE IS NO evidence that women who have borne large families have experienced dental decay than have comparable women of similar ages who have never been pregnant.

If decay becomes more active during pregnancy, it is more likely to be because of a letdown in oral hygiene, particularly where there has been an increase between-meal snacks and milk drinking.

If there has been frequent acid regurgitation with bouts of so-called "morning sickness," the natural acid-neutralizing agents in the mouth may be used up or less able to combat the acids forming in fermenting food.

That is why the pregnant woman should practice meticulous oral hygiene and rinse her mouth thoroughly with water if it is inconvenient for her to brush after eating.

THE PREGNANT woman may experience some inflammation of the gums. Here again, the degree of cleanliness and the removal of tartar, rough cavity margins, and other sources of irritation will reduce the amount of swelling and inflammation.

When the teeth are in good condition, the gum tissue usually returns to normal within a short time after the baby is born and the hormonal balance retuns to normal.

Cunningham joins Redbird cagers

Canton High School boys' and girls' junior varsity basketball coach Pat Cunningham has taken a one-year leave of abscense for work on his master's degree at Illinois State Uni-

Cunningham, 27, who played basketball for the old Plymouth High School in 1968-70, has been girls' coach since 1975 under head coach Mike McCauley. Cunningham began coaching in the same year for Salem High Schools' freshmen basketball team. He switched to the junior varsity at Canton in 1978 staff whether they are voluntary or on after Craig Bell was named head coach following Casey Cavells' retirement.

Cunningham also coached Salem's freshmen baseball team for three years, reserve for one and varsity assistant for one year.

" I'd been thinking about this for a few years," Cunningham said. " I applied to a lot of schools because I wantgram somewhere.'

He had trouble finding a position on the payroll.

"I was originally accepted at Akron before I found openings at Kent State and Illinois State.

Cunningham will be a "volunteer assistant" under Redbird head coach Bob Donewald, a former assistant at Indiana under Bobby Knight.

" I'm interested in coaching on a ed to get involved in a basketball pro- smaall college level and he (Donewald) is giving me that oppourtunity to learn," Cunningham 'said. He also a staff coaching because the NCAA stated that he was going to take a onelimits how many coaches can be on the year leave of absence last year but the oppourtunity arose to coach with Bell at Canton.

"The reason I have the chance that I do is because of a few people. For one, I'm appreciative to Bob Blohm for the interview with Donewald, "Cunningham said. Blohm previously coached with Donewald at South Bend (Ind.) St.

Joseph High School. Cunningham was also generous in his praise over McCauley, Fred Thomann and Bell.

"I don't know if the community knows how lucky they are to have these people coaching their kids."

Plymouth, Canton netters dominate Westland tourney

Some local residents scored well in the Westland Open Tennis Tournament last weekend.

Bob Deyo, a Westland resident, Scott Crespo from Plymouth, and Kathy Horton, also from Plymouth, earned two championships, and Leon Paesani from Dearborn Heights reached the finals in three different events.

Deyo defeated Joe Brennan of Livonia in consecutive sets, 6-4 and 6-1, to win the championship in men's single.

Deyo teamed with Brennan to whip Larry Wood, from Plymouth, and Dave Jeruilliger, from Westland, 6-1 and 6-2, to reap the men's doubles title.

Paesani needed three sets to down Mark Plawecki, from Dearborn Heights, 6-7, 6-1 and 6-3, and gain the single championship for boys' 18 years of age and under.

Paesani also advanced as far as the boys' doubles and the 18-and-under mixed doubles, but couldn't quite make it to the winners' circle.

Paesani and John Sauchak, from Dearobrn Heights, were clipped by Scott Crespo and Mark Thomas, both Plymouth residents, 3-6, 6-2 and 7-5. in boys' doubles.

Paesdani and Nancy Guido, from Dearborn Heights, were crushed by Crespo and Kathy Horton, from Plymouth 6-1 and 6-2, in 18-and-under mixed THERESA LOFTUS, a Livonia resident, defeated fellow Livonian Nancy Estrada, 7-6 and 6-0, to reign as titlist in the girls' 18-and-under division.

Vicki Sterling and Marnie Dillow, from Canton and Westland, respectively, made a complete turnaround to win the girls' 18-and-under doubles championship.

After losing the first set, 6-1, to Guido and Crystal Gloffop, from Dearborn Heights, Sterling and Dillow came back to score consecutive victories of 6-2 and 6-1.

Steve Halnick, from Trenton, bettered Livonia's Scott Burrell, 6-1 and 6-3, for the boys' 14-and-un-

Sylvia Kazaleh, from Livonia, defeated Cindy Hill, a Wyandotte resident, 6-2 and 6-1, for the women's single championship.

Roberta Jopolsky, from Westland, and doubles partner, Beth Redman, from Northville, won that title by edging the duo of Hill and Marsha Coosaia, from Detroit, 7-5 and 7-5.

In the adults mixed doubles division, Bill Nelson and Horton, both Plymouth residents, toppled Jim Thompsett, from Westland, and Nora Smittle, from Livonia, 6-2 and 6-2.

Dave VanWagoner and Phyllis Cunningham have been named junior varsity coaches of the boys' and girls' basketball teams, respectively, at Canton High School.

Phyllis Cunningham, 22, a 1978 graduate of Alma College, is taking over for her older brother. With previous coaching experience, Cunningham has wanted to coach in this area for some time.

"I COACHED Alma High School's junior varsity girls' team and am happy to except this job in Plymouth," said Ms. Cunningham said.

She will be working with varsity coach Mike McCauley, whom she has known since her days at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

"I played in the Catholic League at Good Counsel under Bill Moore and Jack Corey. Mike (McCauley) started coaching in my senior year so I never played for him, just against him," laughed Ms. Cunningham.

Both McCauley and Ms. Cunningham agree that it is advantageous to have a woman on the coaching staff.

"It's helpful for both of us as far as training rooms and lockerrooms are concerned," she said.

Bolstered by the return of senior cocaptains Paul Hess and Jeff Haertel, Plymouth Salem cross country coach Scott Dunson is expecting improvement over last season's 5-5 mark.

The Rocks climbed to the .500 plateau in Dunson's first year as coach. The team also beat Livonia Churchill for the first time and gained its highest finish ever in the Schoolcraft Invitational (sixth).

"We're still kind of rebuilding but we should be improved this season," Dunson said.

Salem has not won the Suburban Eight title since 1970. Last year the Rocks had a chance for second place according to Dunson but an injury to Hess hurt the team's chances.

Bo optimistic about Wolverines

By W.W. EDGAR

"For our 100th year in football we will have a damn good football team." With this terse statement, Glenn "Bo" Schembechler, coach of the Michigan Wolverines, issued a challenge to all others in the Big Ten that his team will have to be considered again for top honors in the title race. Speaking to the members of the media at the opening wedge of the 1979 season, Bo confided that much of the team's strength will lay with the eight returning defensive players. But he also added that the offense - the best in the league last season — will be in good hands.

In evaluating his 1979 squad, Schembechler stressed that the Big Ten race no longer can be considered the "Big Two" - namely Ohio State and Michigan. Instead, he pointed out, that Michigan State, co-champion a year ago, must be considered a real contender along with Ohio State, Purdue and Min-

With the mention of the Gophers, the Michigan coach advised the media not to sell them short. They could be the real dark horse of the conference race,

Among the things that has pleased Bo to date is that he has six qualified candidates for the quarterback spot vacated by Rick Leach

AMONG THE CANDIDATES is Rich Hewlett, who starred at Plymouth Salem for the past three years. While Bo claimed he had not yet made a decision, he did admit that Hewlett looked "damn good." There was a twinkle in his eye as he spoke and it wouldn't be too surprising if the former Plymouth star would be the quarterback when the Wolverines open the season against Northwestern Sept. 8.

"It's unlikely that a freshman will start at quarterback," said Schembechler, "but I always learned never to say the word never. Leach did it four years ago."

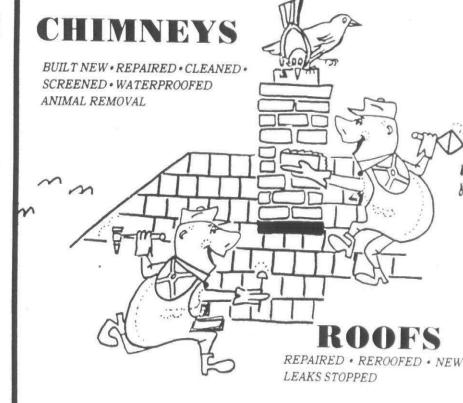

Schembechler said that Hewlett "has many of the characteristics of a Leach."

"Hewlett didn't throw the ball much in high school but that doesn't mean he can't throw," Schembechler warned. In another bright note, Bo pointed out that he often dreamed of having Butch Woolfolk, the New Jersey speedster, and Stan Edwards, another crafty wingback, in the same backfield, something that could possibly happen this year. Along with them is Ralph Clayton, a senior letterman, and it's possible he may be shifted from flanker to

One of the real surprizes, according to Bo, is Ali Haji-Sheikh, who was born in Ann Arbor, but whose parents, moved to Arlington, Tex. He is a kicker and nothing like him has been seen in the stadium for years, Bo predicted.

Summing up the team, Bo said it should be physically stronger than last year - especially on defense - and the new backfield candidates are fast and sure pass catchers.

All told, he repeated, "We'll have a damn good football team to face one of the toughest schedules in years, with Notre Dame in the second game."

Agnew dedicates self

U-M walk-on out to prove he belongs

BRAD EMONS

Doug Agnew is hoping a summer of hard work will pay dividends.

He must be tenacious if he's going to succeed. That's the only way he can do it if he wants to play football for the University of Michigan.

The 1978 Plymouth Salem graduate enjoyed a fine high school career and had offers from a lot of small schools but decided he wanted to play against the best as a walk-on at Ann Arbor.

"I thought I could play at a big school so I went to Michigan," said Agnew. "It's a good school and I had nothing to lose.

As a freshman last season, Agnew dressed for every home game except against Arizona when he sprained an ankle at practice. He did not make the road squad.

To become a walk-on athlete (nonscholarship) football player at Michigan, one has to be invited.

"The coaches looked at my films and then I waited to be notified,' explained the 6-2, 205-pound outside linebacker. "They obviously saw something and invited me to play," he said. Agnew spent most of last season in practice on the demonstration team, learning the opponents' defenses.

"They treat everybody the same here," Agnew said. "I believe I'll get an opportunity to show what I can do."

AGNEW ALSO spent a lot of time playing on special teams in practice.

"That's one of my goals," he explained. "I'd like to make the special teams and show I can hit. I'd like to get into some action at the end of the games also this year.

"All I can do is work hard and do the best I can.'

At Salem, Agnew played football, basketball and ran track. In football he was an All-Suburban Eight League choice two years and gained All-Metro and All-Area berths his senior year.

One of Agnew's problems going into Michigan was his size. He has gained 15 pounds since high school and now runs the 40-yard dash in 0:4.9.

"When Doug came to Michigan he was bench pressing around 200 pounds but he's really worked hard and is up to > 'Doug (Agnew) has a lot of tenacity and desire. He's continued to make progress.'

- U-M assistant coach Bob Thornbladh

300 now," said former Plymouth High School star Bob Thornbladh, now coach of the wide receivers at Michigan.

"Doug has continued to make progress and is a great kid. He has a lot of tenacity and perseverance. He really contributes in terms of practice," said Thornbladh, a former Michigan player

"I think I'm ready for this season," said Agnew. "I ran a lot this summer and feel I've improved my speed."

The Plymouth gridder is hoping he can catch the eye of head coach Bo Schembechler during the two-a-day drills which started this week.

"BO IS AN interesting guy to play for,"said Agnew. "He's a great coach who really runs the program. He's very

An education major in his sophomore year, Agnew will be joined by freshman Rich Hewlett, his teammate two years ago at Salem.

Hewlett could be a contender for the quarterback's job when the season opens Sept. 8 against Northwestern.

"He's got a chance," said Agnew of Hewlett. "No one knows for sure right now. He worked out this summer throwing the ball a lot."

Although Hewlett's chances of playing seem brighter than his at the moment, Agnew plans to stay in Ann Arbor for four years and graduate from U-M no matter what happens on the tartan turf.

DOUG AGNEW

Adray club eliminated

Livonia Adray had a one-run lead slip through its fingers in the eighth inning and fell to Milford, Mass., 4-2, last weekend in the All-American Amateur Baseball Association championships in Johnstown, Pa.

The loss to Milford was the second for Livonia manager Ron Hellier and his team in the doubleelimination tournament. They won two of four games before bowing out.

Milford scored three runs during the eighth inning rally on an error, a walk and three singles. Livonia led after seven innings, 2-1.

Livonia scored both of its runs in the sixth inning on a walk to Otis Manning, a triple by Ken Scarpace and a single by Craig Walker.

Livonia managed only five hits during the game. Walked singled twice.

Brent Erickson was the losing pitcher.

"IT WAS QUITE a tournament. Obviously, we found what it takes to win a tournament of that caliber. It takes a few more ball players, it takes a couple of key hitters," said Hellier.

"Before we left, I felt we could compete and I thought we competed very well. We got the toughest draw anyone could get," Hellier said.

"I think the kids got nervous. Our goal was to get to Point Stadium, the major stadium for the tournament.

"When we got there against Milford), "We were a little nervous. We didn't hit the ball and we were not as aggressive," Hellier said.

"With a couple of breaks, we could have won four ball games or zone all the way. You never know."

DETROIT ADRAY, managed by Robert Atkins, advanced to the championship game of the tournament and lost to Baltimore, 2-1.

The Detroit team had been defending champi-

Baltimore scored two runs in the eighth inning on a pair of singles, a walk, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly. Mark Jacob had limited Baltimore to two hits prior to the eighth inning.

Detroit scored its only run in the top of the first inning. Geoff Nash walked, stole second base, moved to third on a fielder's choice and crossed the plate on a wild pitch.

Detroit out-hit Baltimore, 6-4.

EARLIER, Detroit was shut out by Baltimore, 4-0, and bombed New Orleans, 15-5.

Four players hit home runs against New Orleans. Doug Davis and Joe Maffesoli each hit three-run homers, while Joe Maloney and Jim Irwin each hit solo home

Bruce Seid also hit play at first for missing four hits in its initial loss what appeared to be a home run, but he was the bases. called out on an appeal

Corvair car convention scheduled

The parking lots of both Northland and the Michigan Inn will be filled with hundreds of bright shiny Corvairs of every style and color, as the Corvair Society of America (CORSA) holds its 10th-annual convention starting today and continuing through Sunday.

Sounds like something out of one of Ralph Nader's bad dreams.

Nader, as a matter of fact, was invited to attend the event, according to chairman Jerry Moons, but never returned the invitation.

Events scheduled to coincide with the convention include a Friday tour of the Willow Run Assembly Plant where most of the Corvairs were built; a tour Saturday and a style show at the GM Tech Center in Warren; and an autocross and other competitions in the Norhland parking lot on Sunday.

Corvairs - and their drivers - will start arriving at the Michigan Inn today, some in large convoys. A convoy as big as 100 cars, escorted by the Detroit Corvair Club, should pull into the Michigan Inn parking lot around 1 p.m.

Two large convoys will clog the roads Friday and Saturday. A caravan of approximately 200 cars will leave the Michigan Inn early Friday at 8 a.m. for the Willow Run Assembly Plant. The caravan will travel down I-696, I-275 and I-94.

The same number of cars will leave the Inn at 9 a.m. Saturday bound for the GM Tech Center. The cars will proceed up Greenfield across 12 Mile and on out to Warren.

Foster home can be profitable business

The Mental Health Code of the State of Michigan gives residents of state mental institutions the "right to live in least restrictive" circumstances.

Judith Shelden, a clinical social worker, has been given the awesome assignment of returning 400 emotionally disturbed adults to foster homes in their communities. She has three years to accomplish this task.

Wayne County has three institutions for its mentally retarded and emotionally ill residents. They handle about 3,600 admissions each year. Northville State Hospital is the largest followed by Metro (formerly Eloise) and Detroit Psychiatric Hospital in East Detroit. Canton Township residents are admitted to Metro and Livonia, Plymouth city and township residents go to Statistics for the 1977-78 fiscal year show that there were 58 admissions to Northville State from Plymouth Township and the city of Plymouth. "The state department of mental health feels people should return to their home communities," said Mrs.

Sheldon. "But the foster homes all are where they are accountable for their located on East and West Grand Boulevard and in the Tiger Stadium area. Suburban families do not want their relatives placed in inner city environments. But there is a complete lack of homes in the Plymouth area."

"THE IDEAL time to get them out of the hospital is after the first admission," said Jean Bacheldor, community relations director for NSH. The women explained that some patients become dependent on the sheltered hospital life. "They are safe, sheltered and have no responsibility. Some of them get sick again on purpose when leaving the hospital is proposed."

Mrs. Bacheldor said that when NSH was built in 1966 there were just under 2,200 patients. "They were 'warehousing' the emotionally ill at that time. They expected to have 3,300 patients, eventually. But new medications have cut the patient load to about 700."

Providing foster homes for the emotionally ill who have reached the point own behavior and have something to contribute to society, is a business.

"In most cases, the middle class suburban family can't or shouldn't take their relative back into their home," said Mrs. Shelden. "When the alternative is a foster home near Tiger Stadium or on West Grand Boulevard, what do you do? We need community support from people in the suburban communities.

SHE SAID foster homes are moneymaking businesses for many widows and housewives.

First step for persons considering starting a foster home is making application to the state Department of Social Services. "It takes between six and eight months to get an adult foster care home license,"said Mrs. Sheldon. "There are a series of inspections the state fire marshal - and others that have to be passed."

The home provider has the option to saying "yes" or "no" to who will be admitted to her home. They are placed under contract to house a predetermine number of adults.

"A person contracts for five ladies. There must be 24-hour supervision, two daytime, two afternoon and one at night. One of these can be the owner. Program in home is geared to getting these ladies active. They must be responsible for their own personal care," said Mrs. Shelden.

Some may go to school. Some may go

She said funds are provided for transportation, for hiring a staff, for insurance, telephone, electricity, mortgage payments and equipment such as sewing machines and typewriters. The owner also receives her own salary for running the home. The patients receive $32 a month for spending money.

The foster home supervisor "must show accountability for every dime." A case manager oversees the project. Each home has the professional assistance of a ward team consisting of a doctor, a nurse, an occupational therapist and a social worker.

"THESE ARE the emotionally ill not the mentally retarded. The foster homes are sort of a half-way house. We have every hope that these people will make a complete recovery and return to their communities," said Mrs. Shel-

"A person with a heart attack stays at home to convalesce after being released from the hospital," explained Jean Bacheldor. "A person who is sick emotionally needs the same period of home 'convalescence' before returning to normal activities.'

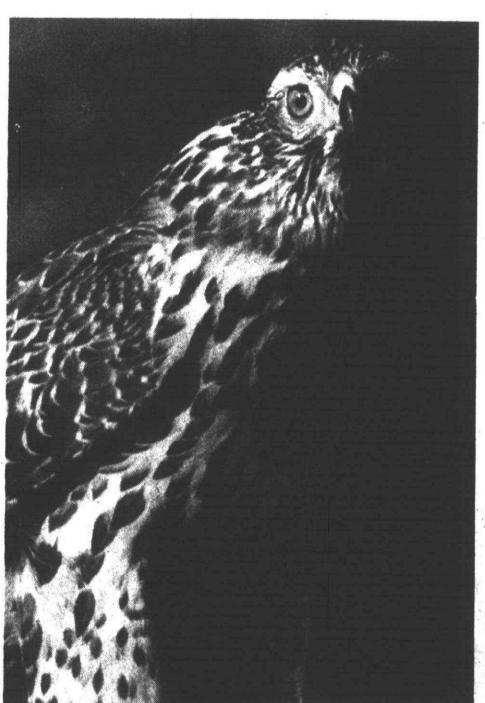

"Many of these are brilliant people - Ph.D.'s, teachers, doctors, musicians, persons with very high IQs," added Mrs. Sheldon.

Anyone who would like to have more information about the foster homes can call Mrs. Shelden at the Community Development Placement Program office, 837-0015.

Clubs, service or church groups can call Mrs. Bacheldor who will speak at their meetings and describe the pro-

Hawk was victim of nest-snatching

By ELINOR GRAHAM

(Last Thursday, the Observer carried a story about a hawk that adopted George and Ethel Zeruzal. who live on Powell Road in Plymouth Township. The Zeruzals were feeding the hawk, which was so tame it was believed to be someone's pet.)

No one came forth to claim the hawk that practically moved in with George and Ethel Zeruzal last week. By the end of the week, events proved that the person who owned the large bird would be liable to arrest and a stiff fine.

The beautiful hawk with its bright yellow legs, claws and eyes had been identified by the Zeruzals as a Cooper's Hawk. As the days went by, it became something of a problem.

The next-door neighbors kept their two small children confined to their house because of the hawk. A voracious eater, he consumed about six pounds of raw meat and began to spend most of his time peeking in the Zeruzals' windows and calling to them.

"He just followed me around from room to room," said Mrs. Zeruzal. "If I sat down to eat, he'd be on the window sill flapping his wings, yelling, and watching me eat. He even found me in the upstairs bathroom and peered through the window, yelling and flapping those big wings."

CONCERNED for the bird's safety and worried about his dependence on them, the Zeruzals called the conservation department. It was suggested that they discourage him by tossing stones at him.

Then they called the Nankin Mills Nature Center in Hines Park.

"Would it be possible to catch him?" they were asked.

"Very easily," said George Zeruzal. "He comes to the patio every time we go out there."

At first, Zeruzal had whistled and waved a white cloth to call in the hawk. After a few days, the cloth was unnecessary as the bird watched their every

"We were getting to the point where we thought we might as well invite him in and set another place at the table," said George.

John Covert of Livonia arrived with a net to catch the hawk. It proved to be a simple operation. Covert was surprised.

"When you called," he told the Zeruzals, "I thought it must be a Redtail, but it does look like a Cooper's." Covert is a biology teacher at Livonia Stevenson High School. His special interest is hawks and owls. In the fall, he goes to Holiday Beach on the Canadian side of Lake Erie to help band hawks.

COVERT WAS on his way to Ypsilanti to deliver a barn owl to Merlin Minick, a biologist at Eastern Michigan University. He took the hawk along, Minick examined the bird and said he was in perfect physical condition. But, he was not a Cooper's Hawk. He was identified as a young Goshawk, less than a year old and probably a And this it where the plot thickens.

'Goshawks are native to northern Canadian forests. They are rarely seen in the lower peninsula, but there are a few in the Upper Peninsula," said

Covert and Minick agreed on the

"There's a 99 per cent chance that this hawk was born in the north woods and brought here, illegally, by a falcon-with birds of prey. The name comes from the days when falcons were the exclusive choice of such hunters.

Covert explained: "Several years ago, in the late 1950s, falconry was made illegal by the federal government. Only those persons who were licensed were allowed to continue. There now are probably only 11 legal falconers in Michigan. But there are an unknown number of illegal falconers.

"The Goshawk is a favorite of falconers." Covert believes that the hawk was born in the north and stolen from its nest when very young to be raised by a falconer.

"It is against the law to keep a hawk or an owl as a pet. The federal government has relaxed its falconry law, leaving it up to the individual states. But it is still illegal in Michigan."

MINICK SAID this was the first Goshawk he'd seen in this area in 20 years. Because it was a young bird, he understood why it had been identified as a Cooper's. As the bird matures, its beak will turn green and its wingspread will reach four feet. The female is larger than the male.

Minick is going to attempt to "train" the hawk to live in the wild. He has taken it to his home aviary where it will be placed on a diet of wild field mice and other natural food. No more chuck steak handouts - it will be taught to fend for itself and hopefully, reach the stage where it can return to its natural environment.

Once Minick is assured that the Goshawk is capable of survival in the wild, he will take it to the Upper Peninsula and release it.

"I wouldn't trade that week with the hawk for any other week in my life," said George Zeruzal, who developed an

Royers attend Indian powwow

The Canton Township Newcomer's Club is starting its new season. All women who have lived in Canton Township for two years or less are invited to join. It's a social and service group designed specifically to acquaint you with other new Cantonites.

General meetings are the first Wednesday of each month, September through June. Social events for couples also are planned during the year, the first one being a golf outing Sept. 29. But the place to really become better acquainted and meet new friends is in the interest groups.

Connie Tiano is chairing the interest groups this season, and has something to interest everyone. Crafts include braided rope hangings, knitting, macrame, burlap flowers, pine cone wreaths, and ribbon wreaths.

Other activities include bowling, tennis, antique browsing, book discussion, bridge, pinochle, garden club, babysitting co-op, microwave cooking luncheon, and a gourmet group.

Annual dues are $5. This enables members to participate in as many of the interest groups as they can fit into their schedules. Each member will receive the monthly newsletter and membership directory, which will be published in November.

The first meeting of the club year will be at 7 p.m., Sept. 5, at Pioneer Middle School, 48081 W. Ann Arbor Road. Persons wishing more informa-

Theme:

"The Year of the Child"

Thursday, August 23, 1979

1979 has been designated the International Year of the Child. No matter how diverse the lifestyle of Observer & Eccentric readers, one common experience is shared: We have all been children.

We ask you, then, to think back to the days of childhood to discover those things that made growing up special to you. All you need to do is search the face of the nearest child, and you will find that those same special experiences haven't really changed.

Then, tell us--through the eyes of your camera--what's so special about growing up in the suburbs. All you need is some slide film, a camera and a child (or children) doing what comes naturally.

You'll find them at carnivals, shopping centers, playgrounds and quiet river banks.

Since there is no age limit to our contest, children who enter may have an added advantage, since they don't have to resort to memory to tell us what's special about growing up in the suburbs.

We will publish the winning entries--in color--right here on the pages of your hometown newspaper.

Contest Rules:

- There are no age limits, but the photographer must be a resident of one of the communities in which Observer & Eccentric Newspapers circulate.
- The contest is open to amateur photographers only. No employee or family member of an employee of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers is eligible to enter.
- The deadline for entries is Sept. 17, 1979. Each contestant may submit two color slides. Each slide should be marked with the name, address and phone number of the contestant. An entry blank should accompany the slides.
- 4 Slides should have been taken during the period of September 17, 1978 and the contest deadline date.
- 5 All entries become property of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and CANNOT BE RETURNED.
- 6 Permission of any persons in the slides must be obtainable in the form of a signed release upon publication.
- 7 Entries will be judged by a panel of Observer & Eccentric reporters, editors and photographers. Winners will be judged on the basis of originality, use of color and adherance to the theme.

Miniatures at Mall

By NANCY AUSTIN

When you combine an empty ledge in a home with a lady who "loves beautiful things" you have the ingredients for the beginning of an extensive miniatures collection.

This is how it happened to Ruth Heilman of Livonia, who will have her miniatures on display and for sale at the Livonia Show Aug. 25 and 26. "There comes a time when you have had all the enjoyment out of them you can get," said Mrs. Heilman, "so now I am going to sell most of them. Mrs. Heilman, who has collecting miniatures for about 16 years, has more than 500 pieces, many of them antiques. The miniscule objets d'art include pieces from all over Europe and are made of pot metal, copper, brass, bisque, straw, ivory, china, and even the rare French lelic glass.

She estimates the entire collection to be worth about $2,000. The most expensive piece is worth about $22, the least expensive about $1.

ONE OF THE SMALL-EST groups in her collection includes a brass ash tray, table top lighter, tea pot and creamer. All measure no more than half an inch. But the smallest piece is an Indian bean which has been hollowed out to contain five carved ivory elephants, each a sixteenth of an inch in length and about the thickness of a human hair. Mrs. Heilman acquired these from an exposition in Toronto. Her china animal collection, which contains about 150 different pieces, came from tea boxes in England. "The boxes had 50 tea bags in them and also these various animal figurines," she said, and added that she had collecting help from relatives in Montreal and wother parts of Canada.

O The least expensive piece is a pair of dice in a plastic container, like the kind out of a bubble-gum machine. "And look at this," said the Germanborn collector, holding out a replica of a German helmet from World War

"I BROUGHT SEVER-AL pieces from Germany with me when I came to America 26 years ago, but I was limited in what Mall's Doll and Miniature I could bring," she recalled. "I built up most of this collection since I have been here."

Leadership criteria taken straight out of the Bible

When the leaders of Memorial Church of Christ of Livonia talk about getting a good man for the job in various church capacities, they put the emphasis on the word good. And they back it up with specific bib-

Nominations for Memorial's deacons and elders are based on qualifications straight out of the New Testament, as written in the books of 1 Timothy, Titis, Peter and the Acts.

Thus the church's elders are recommended as men "of honest report, full of the Holy Spirit and full of wisdom."

It is also required that they be "not double tongued, not given to much wine and not greedy of filthy lucre."

Deacons' requirements are that they be "blameless, vigilent, given to hospitality, sober, of good behavior, just, holy, patient, temperate and of good report from without."

And the criteria do not ignore home life. Nominees for both offices are to be "husband of one wife." It is required that deacons be capable of "ruling well their own house and children" and possessed of a wife who is "grave, sober, faithful in all things, not a slanderer."

For the elders, this qualification is expressed in slightly different words -"having children not accused of riot."

THE CRITERIA are listed on checkoff sheets that are distributed to members of the congregation and then turned in to the nominations chairman, this year Jim Miller.

When the nominations are in, the committee begins its fall chore of sifting through the recommendations to choose leaders for the coming year.

"Doing it this way keeps the congregation involved," said Miller. "It generates leadership participation, and some people who might otherwise be overlooked get put on the list by this

But the nominations are scrutinized closely, Miller added.

"It might be that a member of the committee knows that some of those mentioned have qualities the signer does not know about," he explained.

Those making nominations may not check all the qualifications, Miller said. "We ask that they list the qualities know to them personally," he added. "If a member is not sure on some of the criteria, he does not list that one."

MARK McGILVRAY, Memorial minister, said the biblical qualification listing is one followed by many congregations of the Church of Christ brother-

"It's in keeping with our effort to follow the teachings of the New Testament," he said.

"What we want to do is get back to the way the early Christians practiced their faith. They elected elders from the congregation and used criteria like

McGilvray explained the differences between the offices of deacon and elder and the reason for somewhat differing

"According to the scriptures," he said, "elders are the overseers of the congregation, or flock.

"They take the role of spiritual overseers, and they are in charge of the religious aspects of church life, for instance, the hiring of the minister.

"The deacons are responsible for the physical needs of the people, things like dinners and programs."

Does choosing officers this way make members feel perfection is Well, we want leaders who are full of wisdom, and when we look at ourselves we realize that is not always the case," the minister said.

"But it's the desire that is import-

On-the-job training continues

Growth Works is continuing its program of hiring young adults 18-24 for on the job training (OJT) funded by the Michigan Department of Labor. The program, which started in April, has shown such success that hiring will continue through the end of October.

An individual involved in OJT can learn a trade and acquire skills through working in a supervised environment. Many local businesses have taken Growth Works participants for training in various areas.

These include tool and die, landscapheating and cooling, retail sales, leather crafting, and culinary arts.

Employees are subsidized by the state of Michigan for trainees' employer in the job area of their interest. The subsidized OJT lasts up to 60 working days. At the end of that time, employers are encouraged to hire their trainee on a permanent basis.

To qualify for the program, applicants must be unemployed, out of school and living in western wayne County (excluding Detroit). They also must meet Michigan Employment Program income guidelines.

A group of young people is enrolled every few weeks. Anyone interested in applying should call Ann Bieri, Jimi Cooper or Jan Ziegelman at 455-4090 or stop at the center.

Mark Flint to conduct symphony

Mark Flint, music director of the Michigan Opera Theater, will conduct the opening concert of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's 1979-80 season.

Guest conductors have been hired to conduct the orchestra for all six concerts of its 34th season. Because of the retirement of Wayne Dunlap, PSO conductor for 28 years, the board of directors of the Plymouth Symphony Society decided to wait until next season to hire a full-time conductor.

The season's opener will be at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School. Guest soloist will be baritone Charles Roe.

Rehearsals for the concert will begin Monday, Sept. 10, in the auditorium of Central Middle School, Main Street at Church, Plymouth. Musicians wishing to audition for the orchestra can call Fran Lang, 453-5064, for information or can attend the Sept. 10 rehearsal. It is suggested that they be there by 7 p.m. There is a special need for string players but all instruments may audi-

Club celebrates an anniversary

The Roundtable Club of Plymouth celebrated its 20th anniversary last week as members gathered for dinner and dancing in the Mayflower Meeting House.

As they dined on steak and champagne and danced to an 18-piece orchestra, charter members looked back and discussed the beginnings of the private club.

Back in 1959, when the club was founded, it seemed doubtful if the city of Plymouth residents ever would vote in the right to sell (and buy) liquor by the glass in a city restaurant.

Just outside the city's borders in Plymouth Township, Hillside Inn and Lofy's Arbor Lil were dispensing liquor by the glass.

A well-organized group - church people and private citizens - opposed intemperance in the city. Time after time, it was voted down. The temperance group predicted drunks pouring out of saloons and putting an end to the Plymouth Fall Festival.

So the private club was formed as part pf the Mayflower Hotel. Over the years, 1,900 members have joined. Creon Smith has managed the club for the past year. He succeeded Marcella Martin who was there for 17 years.

Guests attended from Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Farmington and Farmington Hills, Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills.

Mrs. Earl Brown was welcomed by Creon Smith, manager of the club.

It's the people who keep a talk show alive

By JACKIE KLEIN

It's 8 a.m., an hour before Kelly & Company showtime on Channel 7. Backstage all is calm, cool and quiet — no last-minute frenzy.

The machinery of the five-day-a-week, 90-minute talk show is well oiled by three producers and two program interns, one of the largest production crews at WXYZ-TV.

Producers do research for Kelly & Company which, according to some critics, has become a model of sorts for other daytime shows in the area. It's an attempt at making a morning show more than the usual stop for middle-range performers, self-help experts and authors selling books, critics say.

Producers also write scripts and questions for the husband and wife

Nancy Lenzen, producer of the show, is in charge of booking guests. If she doesn't call them, they call her and ask to appear in a segment.

"We look for dynamic, colorful personalities who are good speakers and appeal to our viewers," she said. "Our studio audience is mainly 18- to 50-year-old women."

Kelly & Company is an audience-participation show. Members of the production staff take reservations two weeks in advance for persons who want to see the live performance in the studio.

IT'S NEARLY 8:30 a.m. Ms. Lenzen, associate producers Diane Atkinson Hudson and Randy Barone, production assistant Howard Makkonen and program interns Calvin Houts and Lisa Klein answer phone calls and get ready for the audience to file in.

Summer ends, State Fair returns

What do a giant cucumber, lots of freckles and the Hurricane Hell Drivers have in common? The Michigan State Fair, of course.

The nation's oldest state fair (it started in 1849) opens tomorrow at the fairgrounds, Eight Mile Road east of Woodward in Detroit, and runs through Labor Day, Sept. 3. Officials are hoping for a fourth straight year of record attendance.

"People are looking for good family entertainment close to home," says fair manager William Upina. "There are so many different attractions, you could spend a week's vacation at the fair."

THIS IS THE first year the fair is operated by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, which took over operation of the fairgrounds from the Department of Agriculture.

But have no fear. The earth-shattering vegetables, blue ribbon pies and healthy heifers have not gone the way of the Edsel. Tuesday, Aug. 28 is Agriculture Day at the fair, in fact, but exhibits of various prides and joys run throughout the length of the The freckles pop out next Saturday, Sept. 1, in the freckle contest, one of the almost-daily children's contests held at 11 a.m. Kids who want to enter should show up a half-hour early to register.

"Many of these contests and games take skill," Upina says. "You can't just go out, toss eggs and blow bubbles and gulp pies without practice.
"It may be a little late to do much about preparing for the freckles contest, the look-alike twins and some of the others. But come anyway. You just might win a prize."

And those Hurricane Hell Drivers are part of the fair's entertainment program. They appear at 2

All shows are at 3 and 8:30 p.m. daily, except for Styx at 7:30 p.m. only.

EACH DAY of the fair has a special designation. This Saturday is Clowns Day, with contests to pick the best clown costume and best act by individuals and groups. All clown contestants will be admitted to the fair free when wearing their costumes and makeup.

Sunday, Aug. 26, is Fabulous Fifties Day, with cash prizes and trophies awarded for best costume and dancing.

Monday, Aug. 27, is Senior Citizens Day, with a variety of contests including Queen of the Day, Senior Citizen of the Year, baldest head and prettiest hat.

Pacific Northwest produces fine wines

One of the fastest growing and most promising wine regions in the United States is the Pacific Northwest. Long known for their fruit and beary wines, the last decade has witnessed a real surge in quality grape production.

Today such names as Amity, Elk Cove, Eyrie, Hillcrest, Humbug (really), Knudsen-Erath, Ponzi, Reuter's Hill, Siskiyou, Taulatin, Bingen, Hinzerling. Preston and Vierthalen are unknown on Michigan shelves.

It will probably be some time before we do see any of them. But if chance requires you to travel in this most beautiful area, there is a great variety to find on local wine merchant shelves.

However, one winery, Chateau Ste. Michelle, bonded quietly back in 1934, has attained national distribution and now has their full line of wines on our shelves. In general they are priced in the middle of the range of West Coast wines, most releases in the $3.50-7 range. I have recently sampled the whole group and am most enthusiastic about them.

The vineyards are located between the Yakima and Columbia Rivers in the Yakima Valley, east of the Cascade Mountain Range. The grapes are then taken to the winery in Woodinville, a suburb of Seattle, just northeast of town. The vineyard latitudes correspond almost perfectly to Burgundy, as the growers are proud to point out in their promotional literature. To date their releases have been predominately white wines, although at least three reds have shown as well.

Following are some general tasting impres-

JOHANNISBERG RIESLING: - (estate bottling called "White Riesling") Their most prominent and successful release, the wine is beautifully balanced with soft fruit and enough acid to produce character.

SEMILLON BLANC: — a lush, soft wine from a varietal greatly out of favor in California now. Excellent introduction to a most elegant grape of subtle spice.

SAUVIGNON BLANC: - excels most of the white Bordeaux now coming out at half the price. This is my personal favorite of their white GEWURZTRANINER: - light flowery nose with a beautiful after-taste. A marvelous accompaniment to a mildly spicy dinner.

CHABLIS: — their only generic release, this is a crisp wine with a strong hint of fruit. This is vintaged dated. Be sure to get a recent vintage; this you'll want to drink young.

GRENACHE ROSE: - very full-bodied and rich in color, the fruit nearly jumps out of the glass. This is as close to a Tavel as the West Coast has come. It may even be a bit too rich for CABERNET SAUVIGNON: - the 1973-4-5 vintages are all available and all worthwhile. They tend more to the soft and elegant style and will require little more bottle age.

To be a wine critic suggests some negative comments are in order somewhere, and it is somewhat frustrating to acknowledge that, to date at least, no Chateau Ste. Michelle wines have disappointed me. They are dependable and frequently exciting and, perhaps best of all, they aren't yet sold at those inflated prices that some of their California counterparts are. Let's hope this continues and the quality holds.

Count Basie overcomes the weather

By MARK E. GALLO

The Jazz Series at Meadow Brook's Baldwin Pavilion in Avon Township has, sadly, come to a close, putting a large dent in the weekly plans of the many aficianados who set aside each Friday night for the fine showcase of America's black classical music. And what a season it was.

No more fitting a finale could have been dreamed up had the administrators taken years to do it. Oscar Peterson, aged 54 years and two days, opened for William "Count" Basie, just four days short of his 75th birthday.

Though closer to Peterson's birthday, the evening paid special tribute to the Count's, which was actually on the 21st.

THE WORST WEATHER of the year did little to dampen the spirits of the thousands of faithful. Umbrellas, makeshift tents and lean-tos so densely covered the hills that it was a bit of a miracle that everyone didn't slide to the bottom

Oscar Peterson chose to open with an old Bing Crosby standard, "Old Folks." The elegant pianist performed a brisk solo set at a $50,000 Bosendorfer piano.

Had an anticipated duet between Oscar and the Count taken place, another was in the wings. It would have been the first time in history that two of these magnificent instruments had been on one stage.

For whatever reason, it didn't happen.

DEFINITELY ONE of the greatest living pianists, Peterson plays with what might be described as a refined intensity. His stature is pure elegance, yet his hands are a blur, a mass of notes cascading off the keys in lyrical clumps.

His interpretation of Billy Joel's "Just the Way You Are" was the most contemporary tune of his set, most of which was spent in singing the praises of his two major mentors, Art Tatum and Fats Waller, in stylistic approach if not in actual material.

The material did, however, include selections from his beautiful "Canadian Suite" and a piece from his as yet unfinished suite to Africa, "The Fallen Warrior," written for an imprisoned Nelson Mandello.

FATS WALLERS' "Honeysuckle Rose" and a medley of Duke Ellington compositions including "Caravan," "I Got It Bad (And That Ain't Good)" and "I Don't Get Around Much Anymore" were all wonderfully executed and received. In fact, everything the man played was typically brilliant and predictably beautiful.

Following a brief intermission, local television personality Jim Herrington ambled onstage to make some brief comments on the longevity and creative importance of Basie as he introduced him, to a standing ovation, and presented him with a plaque from the people at Meadow Brook in appreciation of the 42 years of joymaking that the Count has brought the people of Michigan and of the world.

POMP OUT OF the way, Count Basie and his 16-piece band proceeded to demonstrate, in a much more universal language, why he is so loved and revered the world over.

A short disappointment crossed the minds of many immediately. Our Detroit pride, Butch Miles, was not at the drums. That proved to be a short disappointment, however, as Duffy Jackson showed his stuff and drove the band at a blinding pace, which was all the more amazing considering his whole three days in the band.

It was difficult to catch all of the Count's introductions over the din of applause, so it's uncertain who many of the soloists were. "John III" featured the young bassist John Clayton Jr. "There'll Never Be Another You" had a familiar face, whose name was unclear, blowing a mean flugelhorn.

ANOTHER TRUMPETER indulged in a bit of nostalgia by playing Bunny Berigan's signatory, "I Can't Get Started." Freddy Green, who has been with Basie from 1937 and is noted for not taking a solo, took a solo.

We should have known better, as his "solo" turned out to be a strum at the end of a musical comedic dialogue between the guitarist and the planist. Basie is the master of sparseness and in that short interlude said more with a couple of notes than most could say with a handful.

Detroiter Dennis Rowland played "Watch What Happens," "In My Solitude," "Chain Gang" and "Everyday I Have the Blues." His voice is in the Arthur Prysock-Billy Eckstine mold and should improve.

Ms. Turner walks in wearing a lowcut blouse. Her husband tells her that her underwear is showing. There's laughter from the gallery.

"Shut up back there," Kelly quips, pretending to yell at the crew behind the scenes. "We're doing a TV show in here and we want 90 minutes of spontaneous applause.'

The show is casual. A lot of it is ad lib and the audience appears to be integrated with the talk show host and hostess and their guests.

BEFORE THE daily "postmortem," the after-the-show meeting to discuss what happened and what didn't, Barone explains a little more about how guests are selected for Kelly & Company.

"Our best sources are the Fisher and Birmingham theaters," he says. "We find out who's coming six months in advance and we try to get them to appear on our show. Sometimes we have to twist their arms.

"We research newspapers, magazines and organizations and keep catalogues on current topics and new people. Our program interns observe and get a feeling about who would make a good guest. We like to keep the show fresh so we don't repeat the same performance for at least three months. We want variety, local celebrities and consumer-oriented material."

The informal meeting begins. Ms. Turner says Brolin is good looking and sweet. Kelly says he wasn't thrilled with the film clip of "Amityville Horror," a new movie staring Brolin, Dr. Steve Kiley of Macrus Welby fame.

"The audience was pleased," Kelly

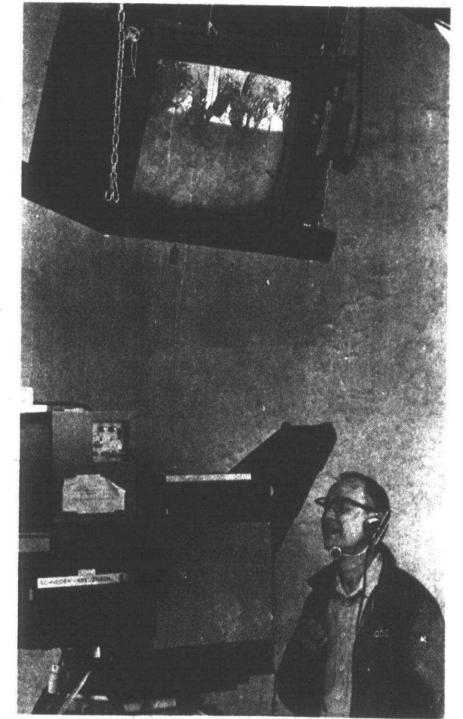

Co-host Marilyn Turner confers with a co-worker on the set.

DIANE HUDSON, associate producer, is already talking about the next show featuring disco roller skates. She asks Kelly and Ms. Turner for their skate sizes since, as usual, they'll be getting into the act.

"You've got to get a lot of ideas for 90 minutes of live TV," Ms. Hudson says. "If we're doing a show on rape, for instance, we try to find victims willing to appear on television. This kind of thing keeps audiences interest-
