Another election day rolls around on Tuesday

Tuesday is decision time in Canton Township.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. to allow voters to select Democratic and Republican nominees for all seven seats on the Township Board.

Also on the ballot are candidates for a variety of county and state seats and a proposal for establishing a charter commission for the reform of Wayne County government. Two Republicans are vying for a chance to unseat U.S. Rep William D. Ford, the lone Democrat in that race, next November.

Voters may also qualifiy third-party candidates for a spot on the November ballot, if they forfeit their right to elect Democratic or Republican nominees.

IN MANY RESPECTS, this year's Canton Township race departs from past history.

For the first time, all seven seats on the Township Board are up for grabs. Candidates tapped in the Nov. 4 general election will hold the reigns of local government for four years.

In the past, only trustees held four-year terms. The supervisor, treasurer and clerk were elected to two-year posts.

Canton's part-time treasurer postion will become a full-time post on inauguration day — next Nov. 20. The position includes administrative duties at Township Hall and legislative decisions on the Township Board.

More candidates are competing in the township's primary on Tuesday than in any past election.

The names of four candidates will appear in the Democratic column for supervisor. However, one of the candidates — John Barnettee — announced Monday that he is no longer interested in the race.

James Poole, the only Republican supervisor candidate, is assured a spot on the November ballot.

Three Democrats and two Republicans are vying for the treasurer's position. The race for available trustee seats includes nine Democrats and six Republicans.

Long-time Clerk John Flodin is unopposed in his re-election bid.

IF VOTERS APPROVE Proposition A on Tuesday's ballot, a Wayne County Charter Commission would be created.

The commission would be authorized to reform Wayne County government and place some kind of chief administrator in charge of the departments which now report to the 27-member Board of Commissioners.

Gov. William G. Milliken, who has held up state aid to the deficit-plagued county until some kind of reform occurs, pushed for the restructuring along with New Detroit, Inc.

In Tuesday's election, voters also will nominate candidates for charter commission seats in districts that are the same as county commissioner districts.

Seven charter commissioner candidates appear on the Democratic side of Canton's ballot. They are Walter Hink, V. Gregory Holland, Robert Myers, W. Edward Wendover, J.D. Wiegand, Patrick Foley and Gloria Hammands. Hagbard J. Berg is the only Republican seeking a charter commission seat.

If Proposition A is approved, winners of the primaries will square off Nov. 4.

The charter commission then would have six months to do its work and place two versions of a charter before voters, presumably in November 1981.

By a new state law, one charter must call for a county executive elected on a partisan ballot. The other must call for a county manager, appointed by the Board of Commissioners. Voters will select between the two versions.

A proposal similar to Proposition A was on the 1968 ballot, but was rejected by voters. Under a new state law, a 1981 charter commission will have leeway to make a few more reforms than under the previous law.

In wake of disaster

Chief plans request for equipment

By ARLENE FUNKE

Canton's police chief said he plans this month to ask the township board to approve spending between $50,000 and $100,000 for additional emergency "disaster" equipment.

Chief Jerry Cox, who heads the township's emergency preparedness team, said the money would be used to buy equipment for sirens, generators and sending out alerts.

"The community needs three or four (more) sirens and additional equipment," said Cox.

Canton now has a "disaster" fund of about $20,000 — money which the township board several months ago set aside from federal revenue sharing funds. Each year $2,000 from the general fund also is set aside, but reverts back if unspent.

However, there may be claims against the disaster fund. Expenses from a windstorm last month currently are estimated at $8,000-$10,000, said Cox.

A WIND storm which hit western Wayne and Washtenaw counties July 16 did an estimated $5.5 million in damage to Canton Township homes, businesses and buildings, said Cox. He also expects crop losses to hit $50,000.

Garages were blown away, mobile homes ripped from their foundations and trees uprooted. Some residents were without power or phones for several days.

The storm caught officials off guard. There are three sirens, all located in the eastern portion of the township.

The sirens didn't go off.

"I think that our system — not to discredit it (because) it's as adequate as any around — only alerts for tornados," said Cox. "The (wind storm) didn't come within the guidelines."

Cox said the present system, which is manually tied to Detroit Edison power lines, "doesn't meet the needs of the community."

The police chief also believes the township should have some form of radio hookup to schools to give "timely notice of weather bulletins.

"IT WOULD give the school people more time to implement their own plan," said Cox.

The township's role during the days following the storm was to buy up large quantities of dry ice and distribute it to residents. Later, officials arranged for refrigerated boxcars and trucks to be available for residents to store rapidly spoiling meat.

Help was provided by the Civil Air Patrol, Red Cross and Salvation Army, who assisted residents and distributed meals.

STILL UP in the air is a decision on state or federal aid for storm-hit communities. Last month, Gov. Milliken declared 10 Michigan counties (including Wayne) state disaster areas.

However, Lt. Gene Conley of the emergency services division of the Michigan State Police, said the state disaster fund is "depleted." Any additional funds will have to be appropriated by the state legislature, which is in recess until September.

In any case, state guidelines provide only a maximum of $20,000 to eligible communities. In order to receive funds, a community must have a disaster plan and be able to prove that damage was extreme and beyond normal ability to cope.

Last Wednesday, President Carter rejected Milliken's earlier request that the counties be declared federal disaster areas. That would have made a range of federal assistance programs available.

The president gave no immediate reason for the rejection.

"I'm disappointed," said Canton Supervisor Noel Culbert. "We're sending letters to (Sens. Donald) Riegle and (Carl) Levin.

"Rep. (William) Ford is very upset," added Culbert. "We're still trying to get Small Business Administration (SBA) loans," continued Culbert. "They're hard to get and it's a lengthy process. We don't want to get people's hopes up."

Robert Law — a former state representative from Livonia who now is an assistant to Milliken — said he is more optimistic about federal aid for farmers. Law said he expects to receive word on that this week.

Culbert said Rep. Ford has supplied the township hall with copies of federal publication 547, which gives tax information on disasters, casualty losses and thefts.

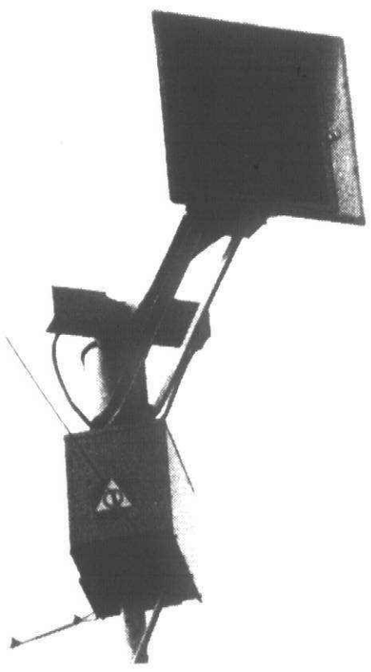

Residents may pick up copies of the publication in the supervisor's office.

Be on alert if sirens blare

Sirens failed to activate during the recent disaster.

Canton Township is considering installing emergency warning sirens on the west side of the township.

The sirens would be a part of a coordinated warning system involving Plymouth, Northville and Canton.

The township presently has three tornado warning sirens on the more densly populated east side of the township.

While the sirens are being considered, township police chief Jerry Cox has prepared a flyer expaining the actions to take when a siren warning is sounded. The flyer was mailed to Canton's 16,000 homes recently.

Included was a sticker with emergency phone numbers to be placed on home telephone.

THE TORNADO signal is a three-minute steady wail sounded every 15 minutes. The all-clear signal is three short blasts.

According to the flyer, tornados develop from dark thunderstorm-like clouds, most commonly between 3-7 p.m. during the months of April through July. They occur most frequently when temperatures are between 70-75 degrees with high humidity.

It is important to know the difference between a tornado watch and a warning.

"Tornado watch" means that conditions exist for severe weather. During a watch, persons should listen for bulletins on radio or television, monitor weather and closely supervise children.

TORNADO WARNING, issued by the local weather service, means a tornado has been sighted or indicated on radar. Pay attention to weather warning sirens and take shelter immediately.

Go to a basement, sit under sturdy furniture or next to a heavy appliance or under a staircase.

If there isn't a basement, take cover in the center of the house on the lowest floor, in a small room, closet or bathroom, or under furniture. If you have time, open a window.

Mobile home residents should go to a central shelter, such as the township hall. Bring only small personal items.

If outside, try to get away from the car and take shelter in a basement or lie in a ditch or low area.

For further information about Canton's emergency plan, call 397-3000. During an emergency, use special numbers of 397-3350 for police, and 981-1111 for fire department.

Board reviews lunches

The annual food service review workshop will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Plymouth Board of Education offices.

"Tonight's meeting will review last year's actual performance and next years forecast," said Dan White, financial director for the school district.

Although participation in the school lunch program has increased, school administrators estimated a $104,936 loss for this year.

About 4,500 students in this district purchase lunch each school day. Last year was the first in which a private contractor took responsibility for daily

The Aug. 5 township board meeting has been canceled because of the primary election.

Township hall will be open for regular business from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.

O&E

Here's last-minute look at candidates

By this time, 26 candidates for seven seats on the Canton Board of Trustees have had an opportunity to speak their piece on the issues.

On Tuesday, voters will end the campaigns of candidates or send them on to the Nov. 4 general election.

The Canton Observer has been printing the profiles of candidates since June. The following is a brief summary of their positions as stated in interviews with the Canton Observer staff.

SUPERVISOR CANDIDATES

Democrat

• John Barnette: Although his name will appear on the Aug. 5 primary ballot, Barnette announced Monday that he will withdraw from the race. He is no longer interested in the supervisor's position.

• Noel Culbert: As Canton's incumbent supervisor, Culbert lists industrial development as his number-one concern and proposes creation of an industrial coordinator position. He hopes to increase the township's recreational offerings and says funding of a development rights program can wait.

• Robert Greenstein: Supervisor from 1974 to 1976 and a current trustee, Greenstein perceives leadership as the main issue — a quality he believes he holds. He favors tight government spending in current economic conditions and preparations for disasters and emergencies. He views farmland preservation as "vitally important" but says development rights funding can wait.

• Harold Stein: Supervisor from 1976 to 1978, Stein sees a pressing need for more industry in Canton. He says a development rights millage should be brought back to the people for a vote along with an alternative millage proposal for park acquisition in western Canton. He expresses concern that lowered property assessments in the agricultural district will raise homeowners' taxes. He says ordinance officers should be banned from carrying guns and opposes a township manager form of government.

Republican

• James Poole: A trustee from 1972 to 1976, Poole cites a pressing need for more efficiency and better administrative procedures as a way to cut government costs. He says more industry is needed but expresses concern about the environmental impact of new developments. A farmland millage request should be placed on the ballot again. He opposes a tax cut on agricultural lands owned by speculators. He favors more spending for recreation.

TREASURER CANDIDATES

Democrat

• Anna Bradley: Treasurer from 1976 to 1978, Mrs. Bradley opposes the township's farmland preservation program. She favors revision of the zoning ordinance to allow high-rise developments as one way to provide open space. She considers industrial development as a number-one priority and favors more money for recreation. Ordinance officers should be prohibited from carrying guns.

• Gerald Brown: The candidate supports farmland preservation and better relations with the business community. He plans to talk to citizens about their hopes for the township and make legislative decisions on that basis. Once in office, Brown plans to map out plans to invest the township's surplus funds. Brown has obtained management experience while in the Air Force and at an automotive company.

• Maria Falkiewicz: Deputy treasurer for the last 1½ years, Ms. Falkiewicz views legislative and administrative aspects of the treasurer's job as equally important. More industrial development is vitally important, she says. Additional recreation programs are needed, but Ms. Falkiewicz says that costs should be carefully considered in making decisions on recreation. She favors establishment of an advisory committee with representatives from all interest groups.

'Safety busing' could be sliced

Some 550 bused children of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools may be walking to school in the fall if a proposal of the district's transportation department is accepted.

The move to cut back on busing is a reaction to dwindling state reimbursements of local transportation costs, says school personnel director Norm Kee.

The largest area to be trimmed in the district's so-called "safety busing" program can be found in the area of West Middle School where 128 children have been targeted.

Presently, the district transports all those students that live more than 1½ miles from school. Safety busing was instituted to pick up and deliver those students who lived closer than that distance but were unable to walk to school because of obstructing neighborhood construction, lack of sidewalks or traffic problems.

The state has provided some reimbursement in the past due to safety busing, but next year it's expected to be lower than previous years.

In addition, a local study by the transportation department found certain areas within the safety busing program have been alleviated of these hazardous conditions.

Dale Goby, head of the transportatin department, says the district expects to save "at least $13,000" if these proposed cuts in safety are made.

LAST YEAR the district bused some 12,000 of 17,000 students. About 1,792 of those were bused because of neighborhood construction or lack of sidewalks. It's these students, the district says, that cost money. If walking conditions are available, they would not be bused.

The cost to the district last year was estimated at $45,563.

Goby says it's been two years since the busing program was reviewed and since then some of the problem areas have been cleared up, making walking possible.

"We're not putting children in jeopardy for $13,000," he says. "We're just tryihng to apply safety busing standards equally across the district."

"As neighborhoods and areas mature these things are settling down," added Kee.

Fifteen of the district's 20 schools have been targeted for some cutbacks in the number of students bused, generally between 20-55 students per school.

The proposal, to be reviewed by the board of education Aug. 11, includes these areas:

Galimore school: Children who live in the Forest Trail Subdivision; students in grades three to five who attend Smith School and live in the Hartsough-Burroughs area; K-2 students of Bird School who live within a mile of the school and live in the Farmer Street area between Sheldon, the rairoad tracks, and north of Penniman Ave.; Hulsing School students of the Mayflower Subdivision; students of the Addison-Fairview area; students of the Canton 87 subdivision; Miller School students of the Carriage Hills subdivision; and Fiegel School students of the Holiday Park area.

Secondary school students affecte include: Pioneer Middle School students of the Westbriar Village subdivision; East Middle School students who live south of Ann Arbor and north of Joy roads; West Middle School students who live east of McClumpha and north of Ann Arbor roads as well as those who live in Trailwood II and III subdivisions.

Sailboat race thrills rookie

By W.W. EDGAR

Ordinarily one would think that a young real estate broker's biggest thrill would come the day he passed his first million dollar mark in sales.

But this wasn't the case with Robert Bake, the young realtor whose offices are located at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey, and he delights in telling his experiences.

"Would you believe it?" he asked, "if I told you that the biggest thrill of my life came on the water. And it was a thrill that never will be surpassed.

"I have just returned from my first trip on a boat in the Port Huron to Mackinac race. If you don't think that is a thrill out there in the middle of Lake Huron, you don't know what a thrill can be — especially if you were caught in a storm like we were."

Accepting an invitation from his friend, "Larry Nickel, owner of Coverage, a 41-foot Islander, he smilingly tells you that he went aboard the craft on the Black River in Port Huron at 10 a.m. Saturday and didn't leave it until the early hours of Tuesday morning in the pitch darkness of the Mackinac Island Harbor.

"I was on board with a crew of nine and was the only one who wasn't a sailor, so you can imagine how I was received. The night the storm came, we were all friendly.

"You can't imagine how it felt when the storm hit out there in the lake. I was ordered "down below" and sure did some rocking and rolling until the storm subsided."

As he spoke, Bake's eyes sparkled, for he was reliving what was one of the most frightening and thrilling moments of his life.

Then, as he unravelled his yarn, Bake confided that he has always had a liking for sailing, but the best he ever did was engage in the small sail boats at his summer home in Harbor Springs.

"I thought I had reached the peak of thrills last year when I spent three days on a raft bobbing around in the Whitewater raft in Idaho."

He confided that the thrill out on Lake Huron was much different.

"I never knew there were so many sails on a boat. We changed sails about 22 times during the race. I was given the job of trimming the sails and, believe me, I got an education.

Here's last-minute look at 26 board hopefuls in Tuesday election race

Republicans

• James Kearney: His goals are to improve Canton's budgeting methods, attract more industry and improve services such as police, fire and recreation. He favors a "zero-base" method of formulating township budgets. He favors farmland preservation. Kearney holds a bachelor's degree in economics and is working on a master's degree in accounting and finance.

• Leo Knasiak: Knasiak says he has the qualifications to be the "professional" treasurer Canton needs. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration and has work experience in budgeting, accounting and other areas. He pushes better day-to-day procedures at Township Hall and better utilization of employees. He endorses more accurate record-keeping of travel and business expenses. He endorses a program "to clean up the community" and improve its image as well as more funding of recreation.

TRUSTEE CANDIDATES

Democrats

• Carol Bodenmiller: An incumbent trustee, Ms. Bodenmiller supports farmland preservation and a variety of steps to help farmers withstand development pressures. She sees no immediate need for funding of a development rights program, however. She sees a pressing need to stimulate industrial development. Ms. Bodenmiller says the township should become more involved in the establishment of safe federal standards for mobile home construction.

• Larry Bowerman: A former merit commissioner, Bowerman favors more money for recreation. He believes the township should revive talk of a growth control ordinance to prepare for a return of booming times. He believes that an improved economic climate will make the purchase of development rights a necessity. He favors a ballot question for farmland funding and endorses hiring a full-time township attorney.

• James Bridenthal: He views industrial development as one of the most crucial issues. He supports farmland preservation, if a non-local funding method can be found. He favors more spending on recreation and opposes abolition of the merit commission, as proposed by some current Township Board members.

• Eugene Daley: A current trustee, Daley opposes the township's farmland preservation program. The Township Board should come up with an alternative plan for growth control, which could include large-acre homesites in western Canton and annual limits on development. He lists the need for industrial development as a major concern and favors more funding of recreational programs. He believes the township should plan ahead for senior citizen housing.

• Mary Dingeldey: Ms. Dingeldey says more industrial development is a must and favors additional spending for recreation. She supports the township's farmland preservation program, but sees no immediate need for a development rights millage. Canton's police and fire chiefs should be given more authority to run their departments.

• Elizabeth Hamann: An attorney, Ms. Hamann believes her background in municipal law would be an important asset to the Township Board. She believes the amount of money spent on legal fees is "outrageous." She favors stripping the right to carry guns from ordinance officers. She sees a "legal, ethical and economic" dilemma in farmland preservation and says the time may have come to "re-evaluate the whole issue." She favors placing a request for a development rights millage on the ballot again. She says Canton must attract more industry.

• Dianne Neihengen: A current planning commissioner, Ms. Neihengen sees an "urgent" need to establish an administrative structure for the implementation of farmland preservation. Several sources of revenue should be considered for implementing a development rights program. She favors a campaign to attract environmentally safe industry. The township and Chamber of Commerce should conduct a survey of existing businesses and industries and meet regularly to discuss business needs. She endorses a plan for a "downtown" Canton and favors earmarking a portion of revenue sharing funds for recreation. She favors investigating a move of an Oakland County township to establish its own road commission.

• Michael Quick: The candidate considers industrial development as the number-one issue of the campaign. He endorses farmland preservation and says voters eventually must be asked for a development rights millage. Profits from Fellows Creek Golf Course should be earmarked for recreation. He opposes efforts of some Township Board members to abolish the merit commission.

• Gary Roberts: The candidate believes farmland preservation must be settled with voter action on a development rights millage request. He opposes the present farmland preservation program. and would rather see one- and two-acre homesites in western Canton. The township should selectively solicit "clean" industry. He says the township should consider the possibility of digging wells in subdivisions to curb high water bills for outdoor water use. The township should earmark funds for recreation and stick to that allocation each year.

Republicans

• Loren Bennett: Chairman of the farmland preservation committee, Bennett adamantly supports efforts to save agricultural lands. He maintains that farmers should be exempted from some township requirements and restrictions. He says commercial and industrial development is needed and favors investigating the idea of a township manager form of government.

• Duane Bordine: A farmer, Bordine maintains that farmers need lower taxes more than development right monies. He describes his stand on farmland preservation as "middle of the road." He maintains that industrial development is crucially needed and suggests the publication of a business directory to be sent to homeowners. He favors a tax break for senior citizens.

• Thomas Carman: A current planning commissioner, Carman believes Canton should investigate cityhood as a possible way to improve roads. He adamantly supports farmland preservation and says funding of a development rights program should be obtained during the next four years. He believes more industry is needed and endorses a closer relationship between the township and the school districts. He says more funding is needed to make capital improvements of parks and opposes abolition of the merit commission.

• Stephen Larson: A current trustee, Larson endorses "fiscal responsibility." He opposes increased spending for recreation in the current economic climate and lists police, fire and DPW as top funding priorities. He endorses farmland preservation, but sees "no particular urgency" in requesting a development rights millage. He says the township must aggresively seek industry to reduce the tax burden on residents.

• Robert Padget: Chairman of the planning commission, Padget supports farmland preservation. But he maintains that another request for a development rights millage must be placed on the ballot. He lists the need for industrial development and more recreation as short-term priorities. He says the township must re-examine the growth control issue "while growth is slow." He favors exploration of the township manager form of government and opposes the practice of ordinance officers to carry guns. He favors formation of a senior citizens advisory council.

• Robert Schaetzl: Chairman of both the Economic Development Corp. and industrial and commercial committee, Schaetzl pushes vehemently for more industry. He says more recreational services are needed and favors a millage for the purchase of park land over a tax for development rights. He says the farmland preservation issue should be presented to voters again for a vote. He says expenditures for attorney fees must be cut.

CLERK CANDIDATE

Democrat

• John Flodin: The incumbent clerk, Flodin is seeking re-election unopposed. He sees a pressing need for more industry and endorses more spending for recreation. He believes landowners in agricultural districts need fair property assessments and tax reductions.

LWV not involved with Voters Guide

The League of Women Voters has no part in a political pamphlet distributed in Canton last weekend, according to Cindy Fanslow, the league's voter service director.

The pamphlet, called "A Canton Voters Guide," endorsed candidates for the township board. It said the LWV hopes for a good voter turnout.

The LWV does not endorse candidates.

Hoggin' it

Fortunately, these pigs will be ruled ineligible contestants in the sweet corn-eating competition scheduled for this weekend's Canton Country Festival in Griffin Park. Eligible (and hungry) contestants should line up at 3:45 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 10 to see how fast they can "hog" an ear of corn.

District re-assigns its principals

Plymouth Canton Community Schools have announced two new assignments for district elementary schools.

In the reshuffling of administrative staff, Bird Principal Carroll Nicholls has been reassigned to Tanger Elementary School as principal effective this fall.

Former Tanger School principal, Lolita Buikema, has been moved to Miller Elementary School, replacing former principal Shirley Spaniel. Mrs. Spaniel recently was promoted to director of elementary education for all district schools.

Two vacancies remain in the district. Ron South, Smith Elementary school principal, has taken a two-year professional leave of absence to teach at a U.S. military school in Germany.

A vacancy remains at Central Middle School, where assistant principal Brian Kidston has been reassigned to a teaching position in the district.

Interviews are being held for replacements at Smith and Central Middle schools.

operations in the lunch program.

Factors in the food program deficit included skyrocketing food prices, cutbacks in state and federal cash subsidies, a spring contract settlement with cafeteria workers and unmet productivity levels.

Last year, school menus were standardized throughout the district and a parental advisory group was responsible for new emphasis on serving fresh fruits and vegetables.

Interested persons are welcome to attend the workshop, expected to last 2½ hours.

The nights will get longer, the days will get cooler.... It's time to think "must-haves" for your back-to-schoolers

It's a full primary ballot

VOTERS DISSATISFIED with Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter may have their last chance to say so Tuesday. To do so, they'll have to stay away from the Republican and Democratic columns and vote "yes" for one of the minor parties. These are:

• The Libertarian Party, whose November candidate will be Ed Clark, running on a platform of unfettered free enterprise and civil rights.
• The Anderson Coalition, a group which supports U.S. Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois.
• The Citizens Party, headed by anti-corporate, environmentalist Barry Commoner.
• The Socialist Workers Party.

A state law aimed at keeping the ballot from getting too long requires minor parties to garner .03 percent of the total votes cast in Michigan, or about 4,000 votes, to qualify for ballot status Nov. 4.

THE ONLY NOTE of excitement in countywide partisan primaries will be the Democratic race for county treasurer. One-term incumbent Raymond Wojtowicz is being challenged by a field of five, most aggressively by State Sen. George Hart of Dearborn.

In other Democratic county primaries, Prosecutor William L. Cahalan is challenged by Roman S. Karwowski of Detroit; Sheiff William Lucas faces Wayne D. Lynn of Lincoln Park; Clerk James R. Killeen is unopposed; incumbent register of deeds Forest E. Youngblood is challenged by Detroiters Edward Opanowski and David J. Sobczak; drain commissioner Charles N. Youngblood is unopposed; and auditor Richard T. Kelley is challenged by Darlene Olson of Canton Township.

In the Republican column, there are no candidates for prosecutor, clerk, treasurer, register of deeds or auditor.

Jo Price of Belleville and J. Vida of Trenton seek the sheriff nomination, and George H. Cully of Trenton is unopposed for the drain commissioner nomination.

State Rep. Tom Brown (D-Westland) is seeking re-election unopposed.

Back in the saddle

Cowboy's gear gallops in

By W.W. EDGAR

There was a time in America when the Wild West was being won that the identity of white man's home area was revealed by the type of cowboy hat he wore.

The buckeroos from Dodge City wore the peaks down in the front. Those from Sioux City had the rim turned up on both sides, and still others from places like Wyoming wore their hats back on the their heads.

Now the stylists are turning back the pages of history and the trend in men's wearing apparel is toward the wearing of the famed leather hats.

Unlike the old days when fellows like Buffalo Bill were roaming the vast plains of the middle west, the wearer today can choose his own style — the turned up rim, the tipping of the rim down over the forehead or tilting to any sort of an angle. But the trend has started.

The trend was given additional emphasis recently with all the hulaballo raised over who shot "J.R." in the Dallas series on TV. Polls are being organized in offices across the land to wager on the identity of the person who shot "J.R." in the final episode last season.

All sorts of wagering and guessing is going on and in some areas, J.R. fan clubs are being organized and some of the members can't wait until the fall series begins to learn the identity of the villian.

"Emphasis on cowboy hats is nothing new," Michael Ball, owner of the Hands on Leather Ship in Forest Mall, pointed out.

"If you attended movies, you easily can recall John Wayne and the straight away manner in which he wore his hat in all of his cowboy films. And surely you can recall the TV series Gunsmoke, were James Arness, the leading character, had the rims curled up at the sides. And before him came Wyatt Earp, who thrilled a gathering by waving his hat in the triumphant returns from battle."

Ball, who was born in Indiana 29 years ago, never has ridden any of the large ranges in the middle west. He smilingly tells you that he was raised in Hawaii and returned to the middle west as a youth to attend high school in South Bend.

Later he studied chemistry at the University of Michigan and started dabbling in leather to make gifts for friends. Then, so engrossed was he in his hobby, that he opened the leather store in Forest Place and became an authority on coyboy hats.

He took one look at this writer and said, "With your face you should wear the peak down over your forehead like they did out in Dodge City in the old days."

He graciously fitted the hat over the Pennsylvania Dutchman's face, and said, "There, you'd be right in style out there if we were still fighting to win the west."

For more than a half hour the different trends were shown and fitted, much to the delight of the man who made them.

Then he came to the prize of them all — a hat with the rims turned up high on the sides, and he smiled at the appearnce of his handiwork.

"The nice part of the new trend to cowboy hats," he said, "is that you do not have to abide by any set style. If you don't like what they wore in Dodge City, just turn up the brims as high as you want or as far back on your head as you want.

"And another nice part is that you don' have to ride a horse or the other paraphenalia the cowboys wore. Just take one of the new hats and twist and turn it in any shape you want. And you never have to ride horseback on the plains or try to lasso a steer to earn the right to wear it."

AN OPEN LETTER TO PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP VOTERS...

On August 5 you will go to the polls to make your choice for candidate for Township Supervisor.
The person you choose bears the responsibility of managing the Township in accordance with policies determined by the Township Board of Trustees.
During the past 20 years, the Township has grown from a small, rural community to a medium-sized urban community. We must have good business management to insure our tax dollars are not wasted.
My experience in law, business and township government convinces me that we need effective management now more than ever.
I deeply believe township government can be the most economical and efficient form of government. It can reflect the idea that "PEOPLE ARE OUR PRIORITY". I have fought to keep the Township a "PEOPLE" community these past 20 years.
I ask that you consider me as your candidate.
Sincerely,
Maurice M. Breen

Lots of folks think of Davy Crockett as more of a legendary figure than a real, live American hero. Not so! Davy fought and died in the famous battle of the Alamo in 1836 during the Texan War of Independence.

Davy liked Levi's, too. He says in his autobiography, "Fashion is a thing I care mighty little about, except when it happens to run just according to my notion." And Levi's men's denim flare jeans fit Davy's notion of practical, hard-wearing fashion to a "T".

Reshuffling election cards

Shirlee Iden

In 1980 the players are Jimmie Carter, Ronald Reagan and John Anderson. But the game's the same as it was in 1824.

That is, if the scenario of no presidential candidate receiving an electoral majority becomes the playbill in November.

As mandated by the U.S. Constitution, the election for president would then go into the House of Representatives with each state delegation casting one vote.

This might get sticky where a state has an even number of Democrats and Republicans elected to the new Congress in 1981, but it could be even stickier when the politicans begin their dealing.

Back in 1824, just as today, three candidates vied for office.

First: John Quincy Adams, son of the first president, minister to the Netherlands and Prussia, Secretary of State, author of the Monroe Doctrine and a Federalist.

Second: Henry Clay, lawyer, orator, senator from Kentucky and one-time Speaker of the House of Representatives and a Whig.

Third: Andrew Jackson, child of the back woods, Tennessee judge, hero of the War of 1812, father of the modern day Democratic Party, and later, seventh president of the U.S.

The election was decided when Henry Clay threw his support to Adams, making him president, and Adams, in turn, made Clay Secretary of State.

JACKSON raised a four-year hue and cry, accusing Adams and Clay of foul play and corrupt bargaining and wound up in the presidency himself in 1828.

Meanwhile, Adams had little popular support. His lot was an unhappy, ineffective administration, despite his well-intentioned plans to institute vital internal improvements.

After losing his bid for re-election he returned home to Massachusetts, but only temporarily.

He was later to serve in the House of Representatives from 1831 to 1848 as its most outspoken critic of slavery.

In retrospect, Adams' greatest contributions to the nation were his authorship of the Monroe Doctrine, which warned all foreign powers against meddling in either American hemisphere, and his support of the Smithsonian Institution. Neither accomplishment came during his term as president.

Adams' father, crusty old John Adams, Washington's vice president, and the nation's second president, was a great influence on his son.

JOHN QUINCY accompanied his father on diplomatic missions to Europe and in 1781, even went to Russia with Francis Dana while still a Harvard undergraduate.

His credentials established while serving in George Washington's administration, he was dispatched as emissary to Prussia during his father's presidency.

While Rosalynn Carter's qualifications to represent her husband in capitols around the world, and Billy Carter's expertise in lobbying for Libyans may be in question, John Quincy Adams' abilities in diplomacy were never in dispute.

His father, the former president, died one year before he became our sixth president.

Wonder what problems he'd have had if his dad was still around to give advice. The names change, but not much else.

Think John Anderson (or hey, Ted Kennedy) wants to be Secretary of State?

What Birchers want us to believe

Jackie Klein

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience" — Patrick Henry

The John Birch Society isn't a minority party in the 1980 election.

But top Bircher Robert Welch has a lot to say about presidents and politics in general. And in a recent copy of the John Birch Society Bulletin he pleads, "Please believe us."

The quote at the beginning of this column refers to a statement in the bulletin. Welch maintains instead of being guided by that lamp, Americans take it for granted they will always be protected and favored and will never suffer the horrible fate being inflicted on the gentle, peaceful Cambodians.

Having said that, Welch takes off on just about every elected and appointed federal government official of the century.

It's not my intention to espouse or knock the John Birch Society in print. But just as I'm curious about the philosophies of the Libertarian, Socialist Worker's, Citizens and Anderson Coalition minority parties, I'm interested in knowing what the Birchers are up to.

In the bulletin, Welch blames the whole upper echelon of the State Department and the entire presidential cabinet for giving "powerful support to the merciless Communist drive for the enslavement of all mankind."

CONGRESSMEN encourage President Jimmy Carter in his rivalry with Richard Nixon for the love of the Chinese Reds, Welch contends. Welch claims almost every U.S. president had pro-Communist leanings.

Gary Handy, another bulletin writer, claims America is critically sick. He maintains Franklin D. Roosevelt, during his 12 years in the White House, marked the path and laid the groundwork for most of the tyranny of subsequent administrations.

"Immediately following Roosevelt's first nomination, he started to fill Washington with assorted revolutionaries of the left," Handy contends. "FDR began his intense promotion of alphabet socialism as the panacea for our national ills."

Handy also alleges that Roosevelt immensely improved the Soviet's position by extending dimplomatic recognition to the Red dictatorship. The administration of Harry Truman was most noteworthy for continuing the destructive programs of the "Roosevelt gang," he says.

Truman, among other alleged boo boos, led the drive that saw the U.S. become a charter member of the Communist conceived and controlled United Nations, according to Handy. Truman, Handy emphasized, had an affinity for Communist causes.

On Nov. 4, 1952, nearly 34 million Americans voted for Dwight D. Eisenhower, believing things would be right again. But according to Handy, good citizens were duped by "Ike's phony campaign rhetoric."

"ENDORSED AND supported by some of FDR's most radical, pro-Communist backers, the overwhelming majority of Eisenhower's appointments were of a similar ilk," Handy maintains."Ike gave full support to the pro-Communist policies to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Eisenhower led a vicious campaign to destroy the life and career of Sen. Joseph McCarthy."

John F. Kennedy's short term in the White House virtually was an unceasing assault from first to last on the best interest of the American people, Handy said. JFK continued FDR's socialistic programs, expanded federal spending, appointed left wingers to his cabinet and strengthened America's Communist enemies, according to Handy.

The Great Society of Lyndon Baines Johnson was great only for the architects of national disaster, Handy maintained. LBJ signed into law the Civil Rights Act of 1964, one of the most radical pieces of legislature ever enacted, Handy said.

"Lyndon Johnson also participated vigorously in the Moscow-directed attack on the rapidly developing anti-Communist movement in the U.S.," Handy alleges. "Along with his Marxist colleagues, he too singled out the John Birch Society for his most vituperous ridicule."

During the many campaigns in his long political career, Richard Milhous Nixon always ran as a conservative. But once elected, he aligned himself and voted with the left on almost all key issues, the writer maintains.

Nixon traveled to Red China to shore up Mao's then shaky regime, says Handy, and the Republican president terminated no programs of destruction begun by his Democratic forerunners.

"THE INEPT Gerald Rudolph Ford, America's first appointed president, served such a short time nothing much needs to be said about him," Handy writes. "But with or without his helmet, he continued to play ball with the Communists.

"There's no destructive national or foreign policy begun by his predecessors that James Earl Carter hasn't continued or improved upon with a vengeance."

Handy claims his article isn't meant to be a detailed list of various acts of national destruction perpetrated by successive presidential administrations from 1933 to the present. He says the purpose of his writings is to detail some of the reasons which have brought the U.S. to its sorry domestic and international state.

The Birchers are fighting a bill which would make the birthday of Martin Luther King a national holiday. And they want elected officials who are proven patriots as a way to reverse the headlong rush towards national destruction.

Welch points out that Birchers don't like Communists, even in striped trousers. It isn't difficult to get that drift.

"Education is our total strategy and truth is our only weapon," Welch announces. "We believe we can get more good people to read of our truth most carefully in an election year than at any other time."

Welch admits the Birchers aren't likely to be of any help selecting specific candidates. They simply want to explain issues which, he contends, apply to all candidates (he doesn't mention Ronald Reagan). And, most of all, Welch wants us to believe.

Tim Richard

Nix on that hand-cutting old religion

Some fellow from out Northville Township way dropped a political pamphlet on my doorstep the other day.

Ron Fisher says he is running for state representative in the Aug. 5 primary, though he never says whether it's the Republican or Democratic primary.

Nor does he bother to state his qualifications, so we don't know what he knows about taxes, labor law, highways and the rest.

What he does tell us is that "I believe the time has come for the MORAL BACKBONE of this State to say in a very powerful way — We want Biblical Morality back in our laws, and Now!!!!!" The italics and capital letters are his.

WHAT WOULD it be like to have a state which enforced biblical morality?

For one thing, you would suffer the death penalty if you worked on the sabbath (Exodus 35:3). Meanwhile, there would be a life-or-death argument between the Christians versus the Jews and Seventh-day Adventists over whether Sunday or Saturday should be the sabbath.

We would have to leave our homes unheated on the sabbath (Ex. 35:3).

We wouldn't be able to eat rabbit or pork (Leviticus 11:6-8), which will make Texas happy but hurt Iowa and the small game hunters.

Red Lobster restaurants and Chuck Muer will be in trouble because we won't be able to eat shrimp or lobster (Lev. 11:9-12).

A woman who bears a son will be considered unclean for seven days and may not enter the sanctuary for 33. If she bears a daughter, the mother is unclean for 14 days and may not enter the sanctuary for 66 days (Lev. 12:1-5).

Just to give you an idea of how bad "unclean" can be, note that lepers are also considered unclean (Lev. 13:1-17).

Rare steaks are out (Lev. 12:26).

A MARRIED man and married woman who fool around are subject to the death penalty (Lev. 20:10).

But if the man fools around with a female slave who has previously lost her virginity, then the errant man may atone for his sin by sacrificing a sheep — male, of course (Lev. 19:20). I have difficulty understanding that kind of biblical morality, because I was taught I would suffer for my own sins, not a sheep.

This one will drive women's libbers into a frenzy: A priest's daughter who fornicates must suffer the death penalty — by burning (Lev. 21:9). But there is no word on what happens to a priest's son who fornicates. The double standard is older than I realized.

The 1980 census would have been easier to take because we would only count males (Numbers 3:15). That will lead to enormous complexities in suburban government. We use snob zoning to keep young adults out of town, and under biblical morality, we would find ourselves zoning out widows, too, because they wouldn't count in the census and would reduce our federal aid.

A MAN WHO suspects his wife of adultery may take her before a priest and have a conditional curse placed on her, the curse applying only if she had been naughty (Num. 5:11-28).

Tough luck for the woman who suspects her husband of adultery. There's no provision for her to get a conditional curse inflicted on the man.

Here is one gem of biblical morality some parents might like: A "stubborn and unruly" son who is a "glutton and a drunkard" may be stoned to death if his parents wish (Deut. 22:18-21). That's known as detoxification the hard way.

A man who has sexual relations with a betrothed female shall be put to death. But if the woman wasn't betrothed, then the man's punishment is to marry her with no chance of divorce (Deut. 23.23-29).

If two men are fighting, and if the wife of one endeavors to help her husband by seizing the private parts of his opponent, she shall have her hand chopped off — "without pity" (Deut. 11.11-12). We'd better teach our wives karate.

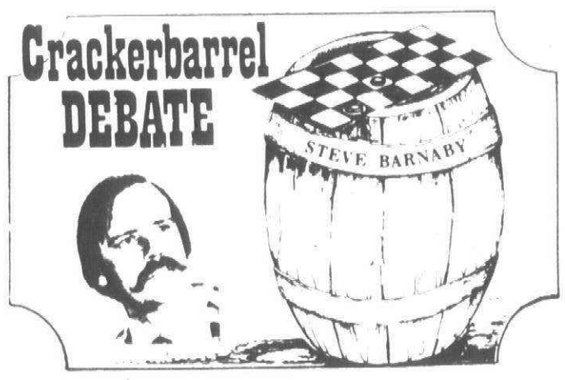

Thus saith the Lord.

IF YOU WANTED to see biblical morality in action, you could travel to Iran, where that goofy ayatollah is doing a fair amount of head chopping and hand severing.

Even Saudi Arabia isn't going whole-hog on morality because that adulterous princess was executed quickly, by gunfire, and not slowly by stoning.

Myself, I think I'll pass on this biblical morality stuff. Give me a state representative who supports rapid transit and workers compensation reform.

Convention bash restored area's

Metropolitan Detroiters have won back their pride.

The convention showed us that.

From Delray to Bloomfield Hills, from Sterling Heights to Canton Township, Detroiters are standing tall because we pulled off the biggest party of the year and came away looking good.

The Republicans loved our party and so did the national media, which gathered by the thousands in a downtown area that a decade ago was given up for lost by many.

Republicans and media were cynical about coming to what was once notorious as "murder city."

They expected the worst, but we gave them the best. Delegates brought Mace and left their valuables at home. The media brought their cameras to record the crime, the rotting neighborhoods and the garbage heaped in the streets.

But their cynicism was groundless.

The convention showed us that.

Certainly Detroit, like any other major city, has its share of problems. But it never has been as bad as many persons in other parts of the country believed.

Frankly, it's nicer than most other metropolitan areas. That's a fact that metropolitan Detroiters quickly are finding out for themselves. For if there have been any big cynics about Detroit, it's Detroiters.

OVER THE LAST DECADE, since the 1967 riots, we have been our own worst enemies.

Many of us fooled ourselves into believing that the suburban cities and townships were enclaves, separate from the core city. While we fenced with one another, the rest of the country turned its head and called us all Detroiters.

They were right. The convention showed us that.

We all are Detroiters, no matter where we live in the metropolitan area. Economically, we are interdependent.

The convention showed us that.

AND FINALLY, we all must remember in the future that we are Detroiters.

The Republican convention is just the start of a new era for us. Certainly, there will be more difficult times ahead.

But unlike the past, we must pull ourselves together when we do experience difficulties. We have shared this good time together with great pride.

We must share all times together, good and bad, with the same pride and determination.

We all are Detroiters. The convention showed us that.

Did you know that at one 10-year period in Detroit's early history, the town gained more than 400 percent in population? This was the decade between 1830 and 1840, when total population jumped from 2,222 to 9,102. It more than doubled in population the next decade and again the following decade.

Anti-charter commission group suffers setback in court

The Michigan Supreme Court has refused to hear a suburban group's argument that a proposed Wayne County Charter Commission would be based on unequal representation of the western and downriver county areas.

Attorneys for the Wayne County Communities for Equal Representation received a "standard form denial" Friday from the seven-member state high court, according to a supreme court clerk.

The brief written statement said in part: "The court is not persuaded the questions presented should be reviewed by this court."

WITH THE court's denial, the 36 community member suburban group has exhausted all appeals within the state court system in its attempt to force the proposed charter commission to be based on 1980 census figures and accordingly apportioned new districts.

If approved by voters Tuesday, the 27-member charter commission would be based on the existing county commissioner districts, based on the 1970 census. The charter group would propose county government reforms, including giving voters a choice whether Wayne should be led by an elected county executive or Board of Commissioners appointed manager.

Use of the 1972 apportionment, which could give the Detroit bloc 16 votes on the charter panel to the suburbs' 11, had previously been upheld by Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley, Wayne County Circuit Court and the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The suburban group had sought "immediate consideration" from the supreme court in hopes of blocking Tuesday's charter referendum vote.

"THEY (THE SUBURBAN group's attorneys) seemed so confident that the court would hear it, I'm quite a bit disappointed," said Plymouth Township Supervisor Thomas Notebaert, a named plaintiff in the lawsuit.

• "I certainly hope that we vote it (the charter) down then for the present time," he said. "We don't have much to gain from reorganization if Detroit is going to run it anyway."

Atty. Patrick McCauley said the suburban group "will have to sit down and decide whether to pursue the case in federal court."

The suburbs' contend the proposed charter districts violate the "one man, one vote" constitutional apportionment principle because the districts don't reflect population changes since 1970. The charter districts would be the same as the 27 existing county commissioner districts.

"We ought to consider U.S. District Court or go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court," said Milton Mack Jr., a city of Wayne councilman and member of the equal representation group.

"IT MAY be the Michigan courts are just too political," Mack said. "We've got Governor Milliken, Mayor Young and all the other private intertest groups who seem to be having their way with the judiciary."

A federal court suit, however, will cost the suburban group more money.

The group has been funded by local suburban governments who contributed on a five cents per capita basis. The group is some $30,000 short of paying its law firm for the court case thus far, which is expected to cost a little more than $70,000. It plans to ask its member cities and townships for more money.

"I don't think anyone will be enthusiastic (about seeking more public funds)," said Mack. "It's well worth it to continue fighting."

Regarding Tuesday's charter referendum vote, Mack said: "With Mayor Young opposed to the plan, we may have a chance to defeat it."

Young said at a press conference last week that he will personally vote against the charter proposal.

A pro-charter group is being led by New Detroit Inc., county officials from Detroit, the United Auto Workers and district Democratic Party officials.

Ravitz running for circuit court

Allyn Carol Ravitz, 38, is among 15 candidates seeking three seats on the Wayne County Circuit Court.

A Detroit resident, Ms. Ravitz earned her law degree in 1972 from the University of Detroit. She has worked as a trial attorney with an emphasis on family matters, including child custody for the past eight years.

She describes herself as "more of a judicial activist than a strict constructionist."

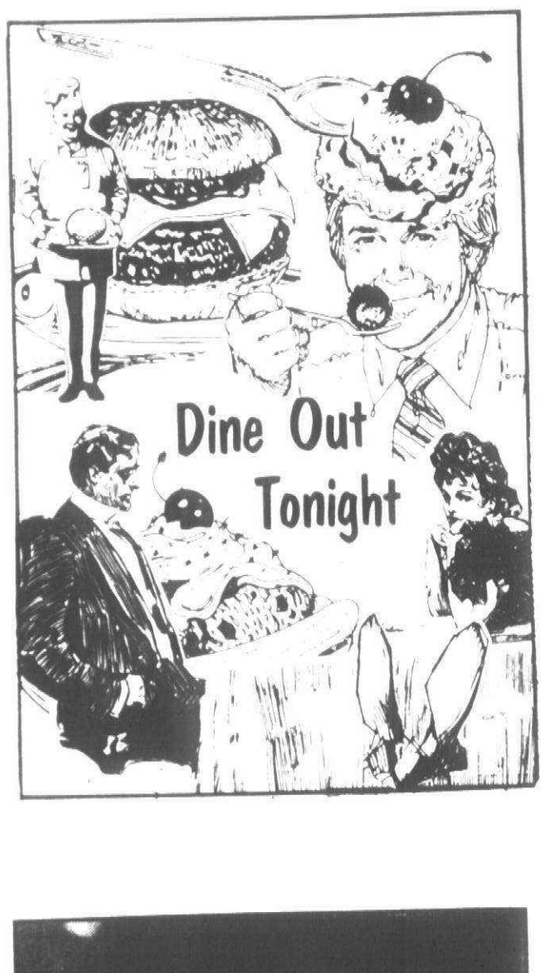

"I believe laws should be applied fairly and compassionately to benefit persons before the court. Too often the laws are interpreted in a strict and narrow fashion to cause the suffering of litigants," said Ms. Ravitz.

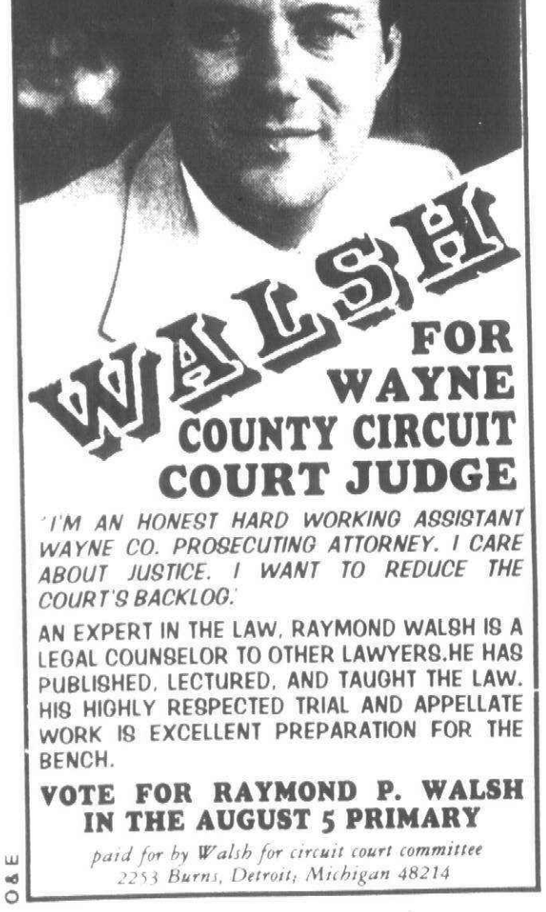

Ms. Ravitz believes her experience as a trial attorney would be beneficial on the circuit court.

"I've been a trial lawyer for many years and I have seen judges properly and improperly behave toward lawyers and clients. I would make every effort to be a fair, compassionate and hard-working judge. I believe I am sensitve to people who come before the court — particularly to the rights of children in child custody cases because of my expereince in those cases. Too often judges make a quick and erroneous decision and children are the ones to suffer," said Ms. Ravitz.

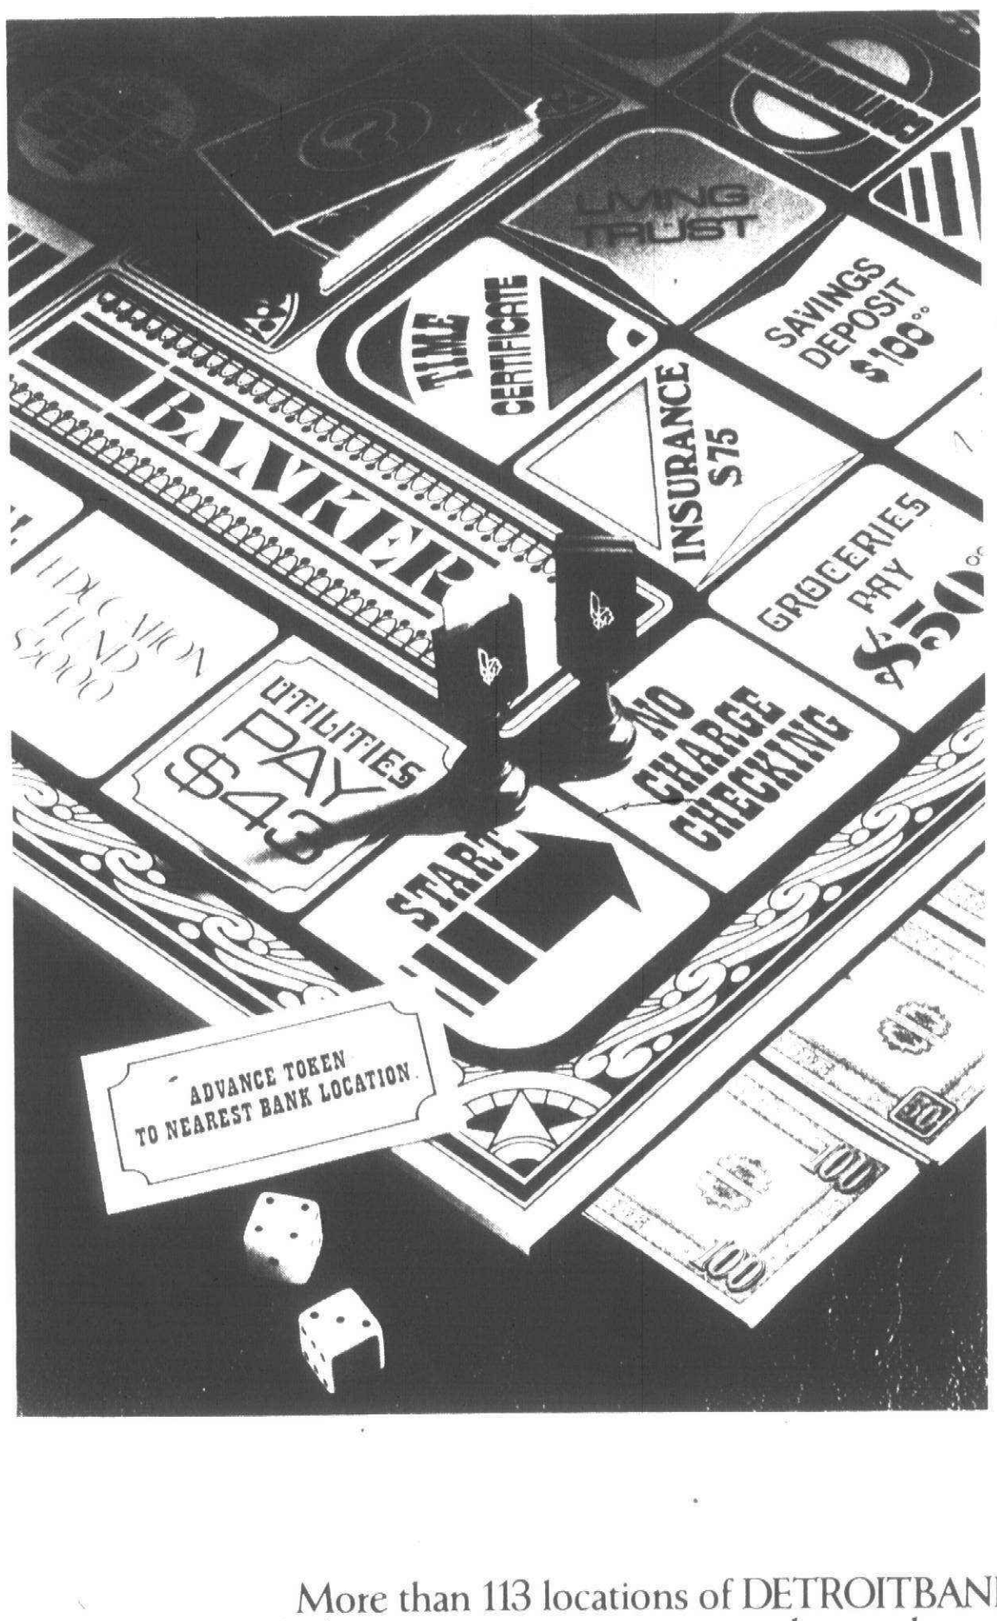

A member of the American and Michigan Bar associations, Ms. Ravitz served on the Detroit Bar Association Circuit Court Committee. A member of the board of directors of the Women Lawyers Association, she is a member of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association. She assisted drafting the Michigan Credit Discrimination Act and Michigan Fair Housing Act Amendment. She is former legal counsel for the Metro-Detroit NOW Chapter.

She was rated "qualified" by Civic Searchlight.

Plain Janes

Slow going for homemakers seeking work

Jane was 50 when her husband took off with a younger woman, leaving her without an income or a sense of purpose. But the worst blow to her pride came weeks later from an employment agent who told her, "You have no marketable skills. You've done nothing for 30 years."

"Typical of her generation, Jane had raised four children. She cooked, sewed their school clothes, served on a dozen boards and committees and managed a tight household budget — experiences that are more often overlooked than exploited," says University of Michigan education Prof. Mary Ann Zawada.

"The biggest problem facing displaced homemakers is not lack of competence but lack of self-confidence."

"Displaced homemakers" is the term that has come to describe older women who have experienced a sudden personal or economic crisis due to divorce or death of a spouse and the departure of their grown children from the home, Zawada explains.

Turning to the job market to regain a sense of security and identity, they often find it is biased against them due to their age, sex, and long absence from school and the work force.

Zawada, who chairs the guidance and counceling program at the U-M School of Eduction, is working to change these attitudes on the part of councelors, prospective employers and the housewives themselves.

"We're shifting the emphasis away from 'unemployment' toward acknowledgement of the numerous skills and aptitudes that are acquired over years of running a household. For example:

- "A homemaker acquires research skills through years of price and quality comparisons she makes in the process of selecting food, furniture and appliances.
- "She gains organizational and leadership skills in church work, organizations of a small office accounting system.
- "Sewing skills represent an aptitude for numerous machine operations jobs that require form perception, coordination and finger dexterity.
- "Cooking talent can be applied to food service jobs ranging from menu planning and preparation to banquet skills.

"An interest in gardening or flower arranging can lead to a job in a nursery or flower shop.

"In short, every kind of homemaking experience you can name, from interior decorating to child care, is related to applying job opportunities," Zawada says. "Our goal is to help women recognize these skills and aptitudes and capitalize on them."

As a counselor for several years in Detroit's federally funded Work Incentive (WIN) Program, Zawada worked directly with housewives, widows, single mothers and other job seekers. "Displaced homemakers share a number of overlapping problems with other special applicant groups such as older workers, minorities and welfare recipients," she explains.

"Like other workers in their mid-40s or 50s, they are often handicapped by outdated skills, physical impairments and a resistance to change. Like many minorities and welfare recipients, they may be hindered by poor quality education and self-esteem. And like women in general, they may need assistance in working out child care arrangements and building support systems."

The displaced homemaker, however, often experiences multiple crises, Zawada says. "With widowhood or divorce may come feelings of anger and abandonment, a sharp loss of income, and the physical trauma of age-related illness, surgery or life cycle change.

The suddenly alone housewife sees her status shifting on many levels, the U-M educator explains.

Zawada suggests that a good approach is to emphasize not what the displaced homemaker needs and lacks but what she has going for her. As a WIN counselor, she would ask a job applicant, "Describe to me a typical day," and the client would disclose numerous skills and talents.

'The biggest problem facing displaced homemakers is not lack of competence but lack of self-confidence.' — U-M Prof. Mary Ann Zawada

Loan makers

Research on redlining has been hampered because all financial institutions which loan mortgage money are not required to record how many people are turned down for loans, says Michigan State University geographer Joseph Darden.

Without that information, researchers have been unable to adequately assess the demand for housing, says Darden.

The Home Mortgage Disclosure Act now requires all federally chartered lending institutions to report where loans are made by census tract. Darden thinks Congress should amend the law to require those lending institutions to also make available information on where people are rejected for financing.

A majority of all financial institutions which lend mortgage money are federally chartered and the words federal or national appear in the name, Darden says. The remaining are state chartered.

Redlining occurs when people are denied financing to purchase a home in an area which the lending institution considers a declining neighborhood. The decision is made regardless of the person's ability to repay the mortgage. Darden says such decisions usually have racial overtones, although redlining might also occur in a poor white neighborhood.

A pattern is established when other lending institutions also deny financing for homes in that area based on the same criteria.

"That's not their job," says Darden. "Their job is to assess whether or not the person has the ability to pay. If a person is a good credit risk, the bank shouldn't be concerned with the potential resale value of the property."

He believes lending money based solely on a person's ability to pay will increase home ownership, improve the quality of housing and upgrade the neighborhood.

While there is no federal law requiring all lending institutions to report those rejected for credit, a few progressive states have passed such legislation, Darden reports.

For instance, all lending institutions in Iowa are required to compile information by census tract on where loans are made and rejected. Michigan compiles similar information, which is available at the state's Financial Institutions Bureau in the Department of Commerce.

Some limited data on those rejected for credit is available at federally chartered mutual savings banks. Applicants at those banks fill out an Equal Housing Opportunity Lender Form required under the Equal Opportunity Lender Act passed in 1976. Each mutual savings bank must keep these forms on file, but these banks make up only a small portion of mortgage lending institutions, says Darden.

Redlining research is a relatively new field, says Darden, who has been researching various forms of redlining for almost 10 years. Without being able to pinpoint all those rejected for financing, researchers have based their work on established patterns in particular neighborhoods. But even if one potential buyer is denied financing for the wrong reason, that's discrimination, says Darden.

As it is, researchers must now use a variety of available data to assess the demand fo mortgage financing, including legal property records, federal mortgage disclosure statements, real estate directories, state disclosure data, equal housing opportunity lender form and even local surveys.

THE SUMMER SIDE OF NUTRITION

How can you eat light — and still eat right — in summertime? Wholegrain oats not only help to make it possible, they also make it easy and fun.

With these recipes — portable, pretty and packable enough to fit right into your lifestyle — you'll see just how simple it is. You add natural wholegrain oats to the kinds of summertime foods you naturally enjoy.

Wholegrain oats, the quick or old fashioned oats you grew up on, contain seven B vitamins and vitamin E. They also supply minerals — nine in all: iron, calcium, magnesium, sodium, potassium, phosphorus, copper, manganese and zinc. They contain virtually no sugar, are low in sodium and calories, and provide fiber. And wholegrain oats are cholesterol free.

Join in the summer side of nutrition. Add wholegrain crunch toppings to main dishes and desserts. Use Ground Oat Flour in cool, fresh vegetable soups, cakes or fish coatings. Serve side dishes of Golden Oats and taste what Toasted Oats do for cookies.

Nutritional values are listed for each recipe so you can literally see the value of wholesome wholegrain, summertime eating!

For jewel-toned jars of jam and jelly

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

"You make your jams and jellies with packaged pectin?! Why?" The tone was sharp, inquisitorial and incredulous. I had a faint inkling of how Lizzie Borden must have felt when questioned about her celebrated crime. My answer (I can't speak for Lizzie) was a lame, "Because I don't know any other way."

I was soon to learn another way — one which yields a superior product. That the product would be superior was a foregone conclusion (even before a private, luscious tasting) for my tutor was a perfectionist - Yvonne Gill, owner of Tweeney's Cafe. What was surprising was how quick and easy this natural method proved to be. I had assumed that any such process would be long and tedious or why would they sell those boxes of pectin in the store?

Having always assumed that pectin came from a box, I was startled to learn that it is present in the fruit you are preserving. Why, then, pay extra money for a substance you already have?

Actually, the commercial pectin is not exactly the same as that found in the fruit. It has added sugar (Added sugar? With all the sugar you will adding yourself?) and preservatives (Isn't one reason you put up your own food to avoid preservatives?). Some other change must also take place when pectin is powdered and packaged because the amount of sugar required for proper setting is greater when using packaged pectin than when relying on that in the fruit itself. The result is a jam or jelly that tastes less of fresh fruit than of sugar.

NO WONDER my confession of substance abuse had met with such incredulity!

The speed with which Yvonne's jams and jellies are made is more than just a convenience. It is an essential factor in producing a quality product. This need for quick-cooking influences both equipment and procedures used.

The piece of equipment most directly related to the length of time required for cooking is the pot. The pot used should be of heavy metal and large enough so that the fruit should fill it only about one-third full. For five pounds of fruit, this is a 15-quart kettle; for 8 to 10 pounds, this is a 20-quart kettle. The full, rolling boil which must be maintained for quick cooking would cause boiling over if the kettle was too small. This would not only create a mess on your stove, it would necessitate your lowering the heat to contain the boiling mixture in the kettle. It would, consequently, take longer for the correct temperature to be reached, sacrificing clarity in flavor and color.

A second, essential, piece of equipment used to minimize cooking time is a candy thermometer. The fruit mixture must reach a particular temperature in order for the jam or jelly to set. Depending on the amount of pectin in the fruit, this temperature is somewhere between 210 and 220. When the correct temperature, as specified in the recipe, has been reached, the pot is removed from the heat. At this point, proper setting should occur. As a precaution, however, a saucer test is performed. A small spoonful of the jam or jelly is placed on a saucer which is set in the refrigerator for about 5 minutes. After this time, the fruit mixture should be softly congealed. If it is still quite liquid, more cooking is called for.

Cooking beyond this optimum point leads to a loss of color, producing a brown — rather than jewel-toned jar of jam. Worse, excessive cooking can lead to a break-down of the pectin.

Perhaps the single most important procedural step in minimizing cooking time is preheating the sugar in a 200 oven. Simply pour the sugar into a shallow, flat pan large enough so that the sugar is no more than an inch deep. Set the pan in the oven while the fruit is being warmed on top of the stove.

TO HELP insure a clear color and to prevent crystalization in the jam, it is important to stir the jam as little as possible. The mixture must be stirred when the warmed sugar is added to the fruit but only until the sugar dissolves. (The sugar has dissolved when the liquid takes on a relatively clear appearance.) No further stirring should be necessary until a temperature of 190 is reached and then only the minimal amount of stirring to prevent scorching should take place. Heavy jams, in particular, need to be watched carefully at this point to guard against scorching.

The stirring can be accomplished more efficiently with the use of square-bottomed wooden paddles which make more contact with the bottom of the pan than the traditional spoon shape.

A single skimming at the end of the cooking time is also recommended to help produce a beautiful, clear jam or jelly. Skimming is the process of lifting the foamy residue that rises to the top of the cooked fruit mixture and discarding it. This is accomplished most easily by using a skimmer, an implement resembling a large, long-handled spoon with the bowl portion flattened out (available from restaurant supply houses). A large serving spoon could also be used. If the skimmer or spoon are wet before running them over the surface of the jam, the sticky residue will rinse off more easily.

The jam or jelly can now be poured into hot, sterilized jars with the aid of a wide canning funnel. About a quarter of an inch head-space should be left to allow for the paraffin seal. The edges of the jars should be carefully wiped clean. The edges of the jars should be carefully wiped clean so that a seal forms between the paraffin and the jar. Remember that paraffin is extremely flammable and should be melted in a double boiler — never over direct heat.

Your jam or jelly is now finished — quickly and easily, preserving all that is best of summer fruit in texture, flavor, and color. It is hard to say which jar will taste best — the one you sample immediately, unable to resist, or the one you open deep in February, bringing with it a flood of summer memories. In order to find out, you will have to set to work immediately while summer fruits are at their peak. You might even be very efficient and cook two different batches at a time as long as all your equipment is out.

Whether your preserves are intended for holiday gift-giving or your own enjoyment, this winter will find you grateful for your timely summer efforts.

WILD BLACKBERRY JELLY

4 quarts blackberries
1 cup water
¾ cup sugar to each cup of juice

Wash blackberries and place in 15-quart preserving kettle. Add water and simmer gently for approximately 30 minutes over low heat to extract the juices. Strain through a jelly bag or cloth. Allow to drip for about 4 hours. Measure juice and allow ¾ cup of sugar per cup of juice. Warm the sugar in a 200-degree oven.

Heat the juice in the preserving kettle, add sugar and stir until dissolved. Raise the heat and boil rapidly until sugar thermometer reaches 210 degrees. This takes approximately 20 minutes. Remove from heat and clean scum from the surface. Pour at once into hot sterilized jars. After sitting for a moment a thin skin will form on top of the jelly. Lift this off with a spoon at the same time removing any air bubbles which may have formed around the edges. (Mold can form in these pockets of air). Carefully wipe the edges of the jars. Seal with paraffin wax. Yield: Approximately 6 pints.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

5 lbs. strawberries
4 lbs. sugar
1½ pints water
Peel from 2 oranges

Dissolve sugar in water over a medium heat in a 15-quart heavy pot. When liquid is clear, raise the heat and boil the syrup without stirring until it registers 220 degrees on a sugar thermometer. Peel the outside skin from two oranges and cut into very fine strips. Blanch the strips by immersing in boiling water for 5 minutes, drain and cook under running cold water, then hold until later. When syrup reaches 220 degrees immerse all the washed, hulled whole berries. Turn off the heat and let berries sit for 30 minutes. Turn heat to high and bring to a fast boil. Turn off the heat and let foam subside. Repeat the full boil once more and skim off the foam and scum. Carefully stir in orange strips then leave preserves in the pot in a cool place overnight. The next day bring them to a full boil, then drain berries into a colander and hold. Return syrup to preserving kettle and boil rapidly to 220 degrees. Turn off heat and add berries to the syrup. Let sit for 30 minutes before pouring into hot sterilized jars in order to prevent the whole fruit from floating to the top. Seal while hot with paraffin wax. Yield: 4-5 pints.

RASPBERRY JAM

5 lbs. raspberries
3 lbs. sugar

Preheat oven to 200 degrees and warm the sugar in a pan. Place raspberries in a 15-quart kettle over a low to medium heat to draw out the juices. Leave for approximately 20 minutes, stirring twice to prevent sticking. Add the warmed sugar and stir together to dissolve, for about 5 minutes. Raise heat and boil rapidly until thermometer reaches 210 degrees. This should take about 20 minutes. Stir jam two or three times after it reaches 190 degrees to prevent scorching. Remove from heat and pour at once into hot sterilized jars. Seal while hot with paraffin wax. Yield: 5-6 pints.

Byrd's Kitchen

Backyard gardener

"Lima beans don't do well in Michigan," Frank Sidley told me, pointing to the single row of limas in his garden. Though the plants seemed green and healthy, they clearly did not match the lush growth of the rest of his vegetable garden.

For the 27 years he has lived in Birmingham, he has planted a 16 by 40 foot plot in his backyard with neat rows of early broccoli, sweet peas, lettuce, onions, beets, peppers, carrots, green beans and tomatoes. Sidley plants a strain of cucumbers called Spacemasters which grow three feet in each direction, then stop. They are heavy producers and the limited growth of the vines make them ideal for home gardeners.

Last year, one 16-foot row produced fresh cucumber for salads as well as 26 quarts of bread and butter pickles and six quarts of dill pickles.

A man of medium build whose face is distinguished by a salt and pepper mustache and gold rimmed glasses, Sidley grew up on a farm near Salem, Ohio.

In the late 1930s, Ohio farmers were selling tomatoes for 25 cents a bushel, grade A jumbo eggs at 19 cents a dozen and a bushel of peppers would go for about 40 cents. Even for post-depression years, those prices represented little or no return for the farmer.

"That's when I told my father I was leaving the farm," said Frank Sidley. "It had gotten too hard to make a living."

Today he works for B.B. DuPont in Troy, heat treating dies for cold heading machines that make fasteners for the auto industry.

During the growing season, evenings and weekends, he becomes a farmer again. He breaks up the soil in the spring with a rototiller, then dispatches weeds with a five-prong long-handled weeder. The best fertilizer, he said, is rotted manure, which he used to get from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, which at one time had three horses and, of course, a stable.

For a couple of years, he got manure from a private riding stable, a source which eventually proved unsatisfactory because the manure was cleared out of the stable before it had rotted sufficiently for garden use.

"We haven't bought green beans since we moved here in the fall of 1952," Mr. Sidley said. Six rows of green beans produce enough for summer meals and for freezing for winter use. Elaine Sidley is in charge of canning and freezing.

"I never buy green bean seed either," he said. Each year a few beans are allowed to dry on the vine, then stored in a basket in the garage. Then, on some quiet winter evening, Disley shells them and grades the bean seed by size. The largest and finest are kept for the next year's seed. The result is a bean that continues to improve in productivity and flavor.

FRESH GREEN BEANS

1 lb. fresh green beans
3 or 4 quarts boiling water
Salt and pepper to taste
2 or 3 Tbsp. butter, or to taste
Few drops lemon juice

Snap the ends of the beans. Cook in the boiling water 8 to 20 minutes, depending on whether you like a crisp and crunchy bean or a tender one. Drain in a colander. Return the beans to the pot over very low heat and add the lemon juice, salt, pepper and butter. Shake the pot, tossing the beans, until the butter is melted and the beans are coated. Adjust seasonings, if necessary.

"GOOD FOR 60 DAYS ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH FOR US."
At Bob Evans Farms® we believe in only one kind of sausage. Fresh.
So while other sausage makers may let their pork sausage sit in the store for 60 days, we date ours to sell in less than 18. Even though we know it will keep fresh longer.
And while other companies ship their sausage frozen and sell it thawed, we deliver ours farm fresh, so you can fry it up farm fresh.
Other companies may tell you their sausage will keep in the supermarket for months. But we make our Bob Evans Sausage so fresh and delicious, it's hard to keep it in the store for more than a couple of days.

Did you know we can find a breast cancer as small as the head of a pin?

Such a tiny cancer can almost always be cured. A cancer of this size can best be found by mammography —a technique of low-dose breast x-rays. Using far less radiation than ever before, mammography can detect a cancer long before a lump can be felt. While the cancer is still highly curable.
Not every woman needs mammography. But for those women over 50 or with special reasons to be concerned, like those with symptoms or a strong family history of breast cancer, mammography can find a tiny cancer before it has spread. Ask your doctor about mammography.

ESTHER SCHEPPELE, who lives on Lilley Road in Canton Township, attained Life Master rank in the American Contract Bridge League by fulfilling all master point requirements at the 1980 North American Summer Championships at Chicago.

The master points were earned when she won section top in the Illinois State Silver Trophy Open Pairs. Her partner, Barbara Tucker of Northbridge, Mich., was a complete stranger and they were playing together for the first time.

Esther and her husband, Robert, have 10 children. Her bridge was limited to the party variety until seven years ago when she became interested in tournament bridge. She attended as often as time allowed and plays Standard American and Modified Precision.

Among the millions who play bridge, fewer than 30,000 players hold life master status, a rank awarded players who earn 300 master points. Fifty of these must be achieved at demanding regional and championship tournaments.

The American Contract Bridge League, with international headquarters in Memphis, Tenn., is governing body for bridge play and ethics throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and Bermuda.

FRANCES PETERS and Emily Griffore had high scores at the Thursday afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street, Plymouth. There were eight tables in play.

ROB GORDON and Skip Armstrong were high north-south at the duplicate bridge games Tuesday evening at the Cultural Center. Clarice Gordon and Jane Lundy were second. The French/Lawrence team was first for east-west and M.J. Willette and Fran Lang were second.

The Wednesday afternoon duplicate group had Jean Chase and Freda Galli in first place for north-south. Ruthella Butz and Marilyn Maher were second.

For east-west, Sharon Flower and Rita McClumpha were first and Betty Malone and Liz Zimmerman were second.

CLEMIE AND LOU Cyburt's two acres out on Lotz Road in Canton Township were a real disaster area after the big storm. Altogether, they lost about 10 trees and they could not start cleaning up until Detroit Edison did something about the tangle of branches and wires.

They were without electricity for a week and their children were not allowed in the back yard. A birch and a maple were uprooted out there and several trees were topped.

"Lou and our son were helping a neighbor clean up. Ours was a mess. Then, last Sunday, the nicest thing happened. About 25 people came marching down the road, they had parked their cars down the road."

Clemie said there were men, women and children. They were carrying chain saws and food hampers. They announced, "Here we are. Don't worry about food, we brought our own."

They had come from Drayton Plains, Southfield, East Detroit. They were members of a psychic class Lou attends.

They went to work and in one afternoon "saved us about one month's work."

Clemie said they sawed off branches, attached a trailer to a tractor to haul them away. They sawed logs into pieces that could be handled.

"You've heard of Char, the Southfield psychic?" asked Clemie. "She was here, working all day. And she had to be back in Southfield to be on radio later that evening. It was a wonderful help."

Clemie said she knew there were many stories of cooperation and neighborliness during and after the storm. Theirs was another example of friends coming through in time of need.

Year in Finland leaves hope to return some day

By ELINOR GRAHAM

Mike Asquini of Yorkshire Street in Canton Township is back home after a year in Finland as a Youth for Understanding exchange student. He'll be back at Plymouth Salem High School in the fall, completing his senior year far from the northern Scandinavian country that was his home from July 1979 to July 1980.

Mike had two "families" in Finland. He spent the first eight months in Raisio, a coastal city with a population of 20,000. The father was a service consultant for the Sisu Truck Company and the mother was a nurses aide. They had a son and a daughter. Main industries of Raisio are a dog food manufacturing company and a butter, margarine and flour plant.

His second family lived in Espoo, a ship-building city with a population of 90,000 — the fifth largest city in Finland. His family had four children. The father was vice president of a company and the mother was an English teacher.

Finnish breakfasts are hearty meals, according to Mike, with cereal or porridge, bacon, eggs, sausage, toast, coffee, cheeses, meat, jams or jellies. Jam or jelly made of red whortleberries, which grow wild, was new to the exchange student.

He walked or rode a bicycle the two miles to school. "School work is harder there. They have university-level courses."

"FINLAND IS a neutral country, keeping on good terms with both the United States and Russia. It has a president who is head of state. Uhro Kekkonen has been president since he was elected in 1956. Once a president is elected, he drops party politics.

"There is also a prime minister, who is leader of the majority party, and a parliament," explained Asquini. He said the Center, or moderate party, is now in control.

Medical care costs are low with free care from birth to 16 years of age, he said. The Finnish inflation rate was about 8 percent last year, lower than the United States. Couples marry in their early 20s, usually between 23 and 25, and the average family has three children.

"Most people live in apartments or condominiums. They have every modern convenience and appliance that we have here, although microwave ovens haven't been introduced there yet.

"One of reasons they live in apartments or condos is because they own summer homes on the inland lakes," he added. "They average at least one car to a family, they drive Volvos or Saabs, and will drive 1,000 miles up to Lapland to ski. They cross-country ski. There is no downhill."

He said the Finns go to Greece, Cyprus or Crete for winter vacations. "It rained all fall and there was less snow than we normally have here in winter. There is no spring. The lakes were still frozen over the beginning of May, we could walk on them.

"Suddenly it's summer and they plant large vegetable and flower gardens."

DURING THE summer months, fish appears on Finnish menus. They have herring, pike, perch and salmon. "But in the winter, salmon goes up to $15 for two pounds."

Food is plentiful in Finland. They eat lots of potatoes, pork beef and lamb. Asquini had his first taste of reindeer and moose steaks, which he said tasted a lot like beef.

He said most of the people are 100 percent Finnish. They are fair-haired while the Laps in the north are dark and smaller.

English is required in the schools from third grade on. "The Finns are naturally a shy people. If I initiated a conversation, they would respond."

Although he learned the language, he found it "hard to carry on a conversation. There are few common words. There is no language like it."

The two television channels are government subsidized. They also received one Swedish channel. The population is 94 percent Finnish, about 6 percent Swedish, plus a small minority of Orientals.

American movies are shown on television with subtitles. American TV shows like "Three's Company," "Taxi" and "All in the Family" appear regularly.

The drinking age for beer and wine is 18 years. He said beer is the national drink and the brands are named after Finnish cities or provinces. "And there is one called Laps Gold." It comes in bottles, never in cans."

At the age of 20, spirits are allowed.

CHRISTMAS is observed at home with the immediate family.

"The kids dress up as elves, red suits and long red cloth hats with bells on the tips. They hand out the gifts on Christmas Eve."

Asquini said the gifts are small. "No one would ever get a big present, like a bicycle, for Christmas."

Christmas dinner was ham, vegetable salads, macaroni salad, turnips, carrots and a liver/rice/raisin combination which he didn't like.

Teen-agers who are interested in sports join clubs "although there are soccer and basketball teams in the high schools in the big cities." Hockey, basketball and soccer are the most popular sports but track and field events attract more participants.

"Finland has the best long-distance runners in the world," said Asquini. "They have two hopefuls for the 10,000-meter run in the Olympics. They also excel at rowing. I watched their best single rower practice at the rowing club. He rowed in a pool with his boat in a fixed position."

A VISIT TO RUSSIA early in June was one of the highlights of the year. Asquini was one of 30 students in a group of 24 American exchange students, four Finnish and two French students who spent 10 days in Russia. The trip was arranged by Youth for Understanding and the American Field Service.

They spent one day touring Moscow. They visited the Kremlin and the Lenin mausoleum.

Asquini said the wait in line at the mausoleum was about an hour on the day they were there. But because they were a special group, they waited only half an hour.

"The line keeps moving the whole time and everyone is very solemn. Some Moscow residents go there every day. Some go once a week. Newlyweds go there. Sometimes there there's a three-hour wait. It's almost as if he were a god."

Mike had it figured out that a a visit to Lenin's tomb was almost like an act of faith. "You know a city of 1.5 million people will have about 3,000 who attend church. Lenin seems to have fulfilled some need. There's very high security there, too."

The remainder of their time in Russia was spent at a youth camp near the

Women warned about caller

Plymouth-Canton women should be alert to a man conducting a bogus telephone survey about rape, say Michigan State Police. Two calls have been logged from this area since May, they report.

The man calls only women at home. He states he works for a radio station and is conducting a survey on rape. According to police, the man, believed to be in his 20s, picks the call letters of local radio stations at random, then proceeds to ask them intimate questions.

If you receive a call, remember how the voice sounds and record and distinguish characteristics in the voice, like accents, advises Garcia. Then, contact the state police at 348-1508 in Northville.

Antiques authentic at symphony mart

Carol and Eric Nordell were married five years ago and they have been collecting antiques ever since. They returned recently from two weeks in Ohio where they spent their vacation on a buying trip.

Their prize purchase was a handmade, dated and signed hobby horse.

"The body is made from an old log. It has a face and a broomstick handle. It is marked 'horse for Asa,'" Mrs. Nordell said.

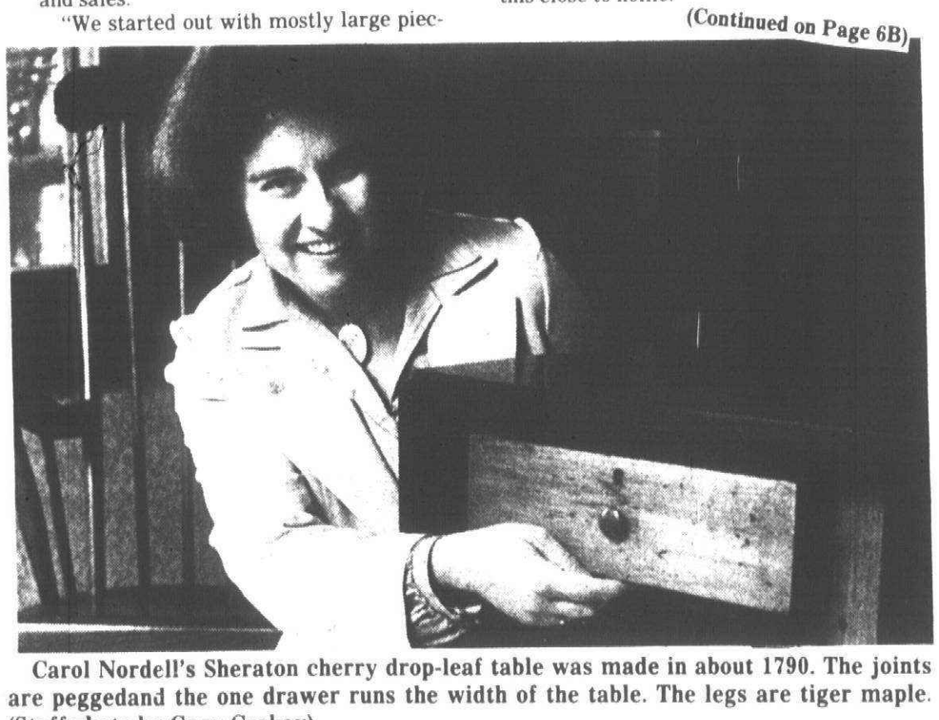

Antiquing has become a full time vocation for her — a big change from four years of teaching high school in Cincinnati. It has become almost a second job for her husband who continues his regular work and shares in refinishing furniture, buying stock and going to antique shows and sales.

"We started out with mostly large pieces of furniture, carefully selecting pre-1850 items. We have added smaller accessories, coverlets, tinware and forged iron. They're getting harder to find all the time."

They are particularly proud of a huge handmade chest. "We are 98 percent sure that it is Shaker. We took it to an Indianapolis show where it was verified as early 1800s and from the South Union Shaker settlement in Kentucky. The back is a single piece of walnut. It's very simple and hand-planed."

THE NORDELLS are looking forward to the Plymouth Symphony League's antique mart Sept. 5-7. This will be the first time they have had a booth in the show and the first time they have done a show this close to home.

Dealers are setting aside special pieces for the annual Plymouth Symphony League antique mart. Among the primitives to look for are Carol Nordell's wooden, tin and stoneware items. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

Antique dealers prepare for mart

They have been in business since March of this year. Since that time they have "done" shows in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana. The mart in the Plymouth Cultural Center will be the shortest haul for their larger pieces of furniture.

Consequently, they are saving some special pieces for the show.

They said pie safes are becoming very scarce and they are sold as soon as they are put on the market. They have one that they have started to refinish and hope to have it for the show.

"Pie safes are hard to find, but once in a while we pick one up in Ohio or Pennsylvania," said Carol Nordell.

Besides doing the antiques shows and sales, the Nordells share space in the Country Store on Liberty Street in Old Village with three other dealers.

They will join 21 other dealers at the Symphony League's 18th annual antique mart during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

Theater Guild looks ahead to new season

Members of the Plymouth Theatre Guild have been at work during their off-season, choosing plays for the 1980-81 season. The selections will be announced later this month.

The new board of directors has been elected. They are Patricia Bray, president; Joe Marsh, vice president; Robin Galick, co recording secretary; Nancy Sievert, corresponding secretary; Richard E. Brown, treasurer; Sue Ankofski, script; Karen Groves, tickets; Jackie Heneghan, publicity; and Janine Kateff, membership.

The guild members manned the club's cotton candy wagon at Old Village's Dearie Days and will be in business again, Sept. 4-7, during Plymouth Fall Festival. The cotton candy wagon has been a money-maker for the guild for many years.

The PTG float in the Plymouth Fourth of July parade was awarded third place honors.

Anyone who enjoys theater is welcome to join the guild, which is one of the oldest community theater organizations in the state. There are opportunities to be involved in all aspects of play production — directing, producing, acting, stagecraft, costuming, public relations, etc.

Persons interested in joining or being included on the guild's mailing list can call Janine Kateff, 459-1523, or Jackie Henegan, 397-3464, or write to Plymouth Theatre Guild, PO Box 451, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

Walches celebrate 50th anniversary

Dr. and Mrs. Henry J. Walch celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Aug. 3 at an open house arranged by their family. Geraldine Klix and Henry Walch were married Aug. 8, 1930 in Rochester, N.Y.

They came to Plymouth in 1943 where he was pastor of First United Presbyterian Church until his retirement in 1973. At that time they moved to their home on Crestwood Drive in Plymouth Township.

They have two children, Sandra Sergent of Richmond, Ind. and Ralph Walch of Mountain View, Calif.; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild who was christened by her grandfather.

Walch still is asked to officiate at weddings and funerals. He has been an active member of the Plymouth Rotary Club since he joined in 1943. His retirement hobbies have been playing golf and spectator sports which he enjoys watching on television. He is an avid walker and has an extensive library of classical music albums.

Mrs. Walch is an avid gardener, and their flower beds reflect her hours of work and her very green thumb. Their family gave them a new blue spruce tree as an anniversary present. It replaces a favorite tree which was uprooted in the recent storm.

Kolaks wed 50 years

Bruce and Evelyn Kolak of Rocker Street, Plymouth Township, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon with a dinner party at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post on Mill Street. Friends, family and relatives came from Florida, Texas, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Colorado, Pennsylvania, New York and Canada for the event.

The Kolaks moved to Plymouth from Detroit in 1953. They have three sons, Charles of Albany, N.Y.; Alvin of Brentwood, Tenn.; and Jerry of Northport, Mich. They have seven grandchildren.

Bruce Kolak and Evely Renhack were married in Detroit in 1930. He was born in Germany and she was born in Canada. He was in the construction business until his retirement in 1972. He still keeps his hand in the business, doing carpentry work. He built homes in the area and in the 1950s, he built Brentwood Lanes on Plymouth Road. With 20 lanes, it was one of the largest bowling alleys of its time.

Finland remembered

Polish border. "It was a place where good workers could go for a vacation. Out of the city, the Russian people seemed poor but friendly. They had small farms and we saw some poultry farms.

"The Russian food was not spectacular — hard-boiled eggs, saltless butter and really good dark and light breads."

The camp had a beach and a man-made lake. "There were more girls there than men. Anyone from 16-60 is a Russian youth, but most of the Russians at the camp were from 16-40."

Some day, Mike Asquini would like to return to Finland. He has "a lot of friends over there and some are planning to come over here as exchange students."

His top priority now is completing high school then studying medicine when he goes on to college.

But sometime, he'll go back.

Merriman-O'Grady

Kathleen Marie O'Grady and James Leon Merriman exchanged marriage vows July 8 with Judge Dunbar Davis officiating. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carrier of Seminole Street, Redford Township. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merriman of Carol Street, Plymouth.

Their attendants were Paula Patterson, the bride's sister, and Jim Humphries. The bridegroom's brother read "Praise of a Worthy Woman" from the Bible as part of the ceremony.

Following a wedding reception in the Jacob Room of Hillside Inn, the couple left for Denver where the bridegroom is stationed at Lowry Air Force Base. He is in the United States Air Force where he is a motion picture camera specialist. They will be stationed in the Philippines in October.

The bride attended Thurston High School and graduated as a registered nurse from Madonna College. She is an employee of Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

Duston-Wilson

Kimberly Fae Wilson and Lloyd Duston Jr. exchanged marriage vows June 28 in the Little Wedding Chapel, West Palm Beach, Fla. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Jean J. Wilson of Lantana, Fla.

The Wayne Grambow family of Delray Beach, Fla. and close friends of the couple were attendants.

Vickie Grambow was maid of honor. She made her own A-line mauve dress and the rose-bud pink dresses worn by her daughters, Joan and Jennifer, who were flower girls. Wayne Grambow was best man and Timothy Grambow was ringbearer.

The bride's gown was a family heirloom with a sweetheart neckline, tapered wrist-length sleeves and a skirt made of five layers of Spanish lace with a chapel length train. A lace and seed pearl headpiece held her tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of silk baby's breath, daisies, roses, carnations, orchids and stephanotis.

The couple honeymooned in Florida following a wedding reception at the home of the bride's grandmother, Priscilla Lahti, of Delray Beach. They planned a second reception at their home in Plymouth.

Both are graduates of Plymouth High School. The bride is employed at Consolidated Metallurgical Industries Inc. in Farmington Hills.

Camera focuses on action scenes, not characters

Except for a relatively dry spell during the Korean war, films about soldiers and battle have been among Hollywood's staples, from the uncomplicated heroics of "Wake Island" to the complexities and scope of "The Deer Hunter" and "Apocalypse Now."

The most common variation on the theme is to follow the fortunes of a particular group of soldiers through their combat experience. That's what "The Big Red One" (PG) does.

The camera traipses along as a grizzled sergeant (Lee Marvin) and a squad of young recruits ("wet noses," he calls them) fight their way from North Africa to Sicily and Western Europe.

The film opened to good reviews at the Cannes Film Festival and was well received by the French press whose critics pride themselves on being the first to appreciate the bold, direct style of writer-director Samuel Fuller.

FULLER, BETTER KNOWN abroad than in the United States, impressed a small, alert number of critics with a succession of low-budget, hard-hitting, action-adventure films, including "Pickup on South Street," "Hell and High Water," "Forty Guns" and "Shock Corridor."

Fuller's achievements have been overlooked by many, but "The Big Red One" is hardly the vehicle to rectify the neglect. The film lacks exactly the quality that distinguishes his other films, the stamp of the director who imprints his own style and vision on a work.

This is all the more surprising when you consider that the drama is based loosely on Fuller's own experiences in World War II.

Conceived 35 years ago while he was a corporal with the 1st Infantry Division (known as the Big Red One because of the red shoulder slash insignia), the movie may have materialized too late. His experiences seem to have been dulled by time. For a film that is semi-autobiographical, there is an amazing absence of personal involvement and emotion.

In the press notes, Fuller is quoted as saying that he "decided the film should be a very intimate story, where the heart was exposed and the private emotion stripped to the bone." But that is exactly what the film avoids.

THERE IS SO LITTLE interaction and dialogue among the men that after two hours we've hardly learned anything about the principal characters.

Even when one of the soldiers (Griff) has a problem, it is not really shared with us. There are several references suggesting Griff is a coward, but the film introduces the subject and leaves it. We never learn more about his background, his feelings, how he handles his fear and how he survives the long string of campaigns.

The absence of character development puts the burden on the action scenes to maintain our interest. Here again the film fails. There's a lot of noise, but not much excitement and almost no suspense.

The squad locates enemy artillery, cleans out snipers from a town and a forest, keeps slogging or doing whatever it is ordered to do. That's fine for soldiers, but not for drama and not for audiences.

Lee Marvin is the sergeant, a soldier in two global wars whose life is a world of combat, in "The Big Red One."

The Meadow Brook Music Festival's seventh week opens with the Dirt Band and Levon Helm appearing on a double bill Tuesday, the "Tonight" show's Doc Severinsen (above) on Friday and a laser-light show Sunday. All concerts are held in the Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus near Rochester, with entrances on Walton Boulevard and Adams Road. For tickets, dinner reservations or program information call the festival box office, 377-2010. Tickets also are available at Hudson's, Sears, Grinnell's and Discount Records.

These kids are off to see the wizard

By DONALD V. CALAMIA

While most young people have been spending their summer months out in the sun, about 45 youthful thespians have been working diligently towards producing what they feel will be their best production ever.

Sponsored by the City of Southfield, Department of Parks and Recreation, the Southfield Summer Music Theatre will present the musical version of "The Wizard of Oz" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday at Southfield-Lathrup High School on W. 12 Mile Road east of Evergreen.

Purpose of the program, according to producer John W. Puchalski, is to give local teenagers an extension of their high school theater programs. "We give them the opportunity to learn new and different techniques while taking on more of the show's responsibilities," he said.

"In fact, we picked 'The Wizard of Oz' primarily because it's different than the classical form of musical theater the kids have been used to doing.

"IT WILL REQUIRE much more from them as actors and actresses, as children's theater requires performers to relate more to the audience than would a straight adult show."

Though the ultimate objective of the group is to put on a musical production supervised by theater professionals, the program is also designed to be an educational workshop series.

"The performers are learning new styles of acting, and the set crew is learning to utilize steel in their set construction," Puchalski said.

Auditions for the show took a full week. Eric M. Johnson, a recent theater graduate of the University of Detroit said, "One of the first things I had to do with the kids as director of the show was to get them to just read the script. They were giving me dialects and were being cute with the characters.

"Naturally, a lot of these kids have not developed the basic skills of acting. They've been taught some of the techniques, stage directions, how to talk loud, and how to show emotions, and that's about it.

"We've tried to stress to them that the bigger-than-life quality of theater does not mean the actors have to be unreal. I think they're learning that the most important thing about acting is being honest and believable. Once you've got those qualities, you can go anywhere with your characters."

BESIDES PUCHALSKI, who also produces the Southfield Civic Theatre, and Johnson, other theater professionals working on the project are choreographer Angelina Fiordellisi, recently named best actress of the season by theater critic Lawrence Devine of the Detroit Free Press; musical director Darian Martus, who appears with Other Things and Company, a local touring theater company; constumer Barbara Oleszczuk, who has directed and costumed numerous local theater productions; Technical Director Ron Shwedel, a Southfield High School graduate studying technical theater at Western Michigan University; and set designer Kimberly Kirkpatrick, who has designed sets for several theaters including the Birmingham Theatre.

Another innovation this season, according to Puchalski, is that each performance will be "signed" for the benefit of the hearing-impaired audience.

"Betty Miller and John Ray of the Detroit Hearing and Speech Center will be at all four performances to provide this service to our community," Puchalski said. "This will give an extra opportunity for our hearing-impaired audience to see live theater in the Detroit area.

"IN FACT, we're so excited about this, that we're also going to utilize this service for at least one performance of every Southfield Civic Theater show this season, too."

The real challenge, Johnson said will come not from a tough children's audience but from the adults. "We're making this production interesting to people of all ages. Adults will love this show as much as their kids. Fairy tales are not just for youngsters. Everyone can enjoy them. 'Wizard of Oz' is nothing but a complete fairy tale for young and old alike."

Save food after a storm

When your freezer quits because of a summer electrical storm or any other reason, don't panic about food spoilage. Instead, there are some steps you can take to save your food.

The Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Maryland suggests you do one or more of the following:

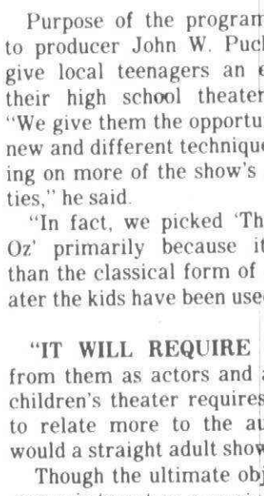

- Keep the freezer door closed;
- Move food to a locker plant;
- Add dry ice if you can obtain it;
- Can the food if necessary or possible.

Food may stay frozen for 24 to 48 hours after the power goes off — even in summer — if you keep the door closed. The length of "safe" time will depend on the amount and the kind of food in the freezer, the room temperature around the freezer, and the size of the freezer.

Dry ice will keep food frozen for several additional days. How much to use depends on the size of your freezer and the quantity of food. You can get dry ice at meat-packing plants, beverage companies and ice cram manufacturers.

Since dry ice is frozen carbon dioxide, be careful when you're handling it, and try not to inhale the fumes. This material expands as it evaporates in the form of gas; so keep your freezer door slightly ajar to avoid a dangerous pressure build-up. And keep the area around the freezer well ventilated.

Since dry ice can have a temperature of minus 100 degrees F., protect your food packages by packing them in heavy pieces of cardboard to avoid dehydration.

Did you know we can find a breast cancer as small as the head of a pin?

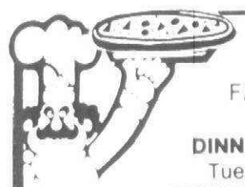

Such a tiny cancer can almost always be cured. Mammography, a technique of low dose breast x-ray, can detect a cancer long before a lump can be felt. While it is still highly curable.

If you are over 50 or have special reasons to be concerned with breast cancer, ask your doctor about mammography.

Prof's book traces GOP

A slim new paperback, "The Republican Party in Convention," has come at just the right moment to become a piece of 1980 convention memorabilia.

Author-editor Harold F. Powell is professor emeritus at Wayne State University and recently taught genealogy at Oakland University and Henry Ford Community College.

Powell is a former Fulbright lecturer and in association with the Burton Historical Collection of the Detroit Public Library published "Genealogy of the French Families of the Detroit River Region" in 1976.

This newest work is a handy, easy-to-flip-through volume with more pictures than text. Its value lies in its attractive presentation and that it is the only one of its kind currently available.

The name Spiro T. Agnew may ring a bell, but how about Charles W. Fairbanks, Levi P. Morton or Schuyler Colfax?

Fairbanks ran as vice presidential candidate on the 1904 Republican ticket with Theodore Roosevelt. After the successful campaign, he served as vice president for four years.

He ran again in the same capacity in 1916 with Charles Evans Hughes, but lost. As railroad lawyer and later U.S. senator from Indiana, Fairbanks was a doninent force in the Republican party in the early 20th century.

MORTON RAN on the 1888 ticket with Benjamin Harrison. They were nominated at the Chicago convention on the eighth ballot.

The Republicans won the election with the electoral vote. President Grover Cleveland had more popular votes, but lost.

Colfax, Indiana newspaper editor and U.S. Congressman, was vice president under U.S. Grant from 1869-73. Grant was re-elected for a second tern, but Colfax was replaced by Henry Wilson.

Photos or drawings of each of the candidates in the party's 126-year history plus brief facts about them, a picture of the campaign poster and essentials of each platform are included.

This special convention publication, a project of the Friends of the Detroit Public Library, is $5. It is available through the Friends office at the Detroit Public Library or Galerie de Boicourt, Third Floor, Fisher Building, Detroit.

Dog desease hits Detroit

Parvovirus Infection, a new disease that affects the gastro-intestinal tract of dogs, is rapidly becoming a potential threat to canines in the Detroit area.

Although the disease has been found in spotty areas of the country for more than two years, it is only in the last week that metropolitan Detroit dog owners are being put on the alert. A dozen cases were admitted to the Veterinary Clinical Center at Michigan State University in East Lansing over the Fourth of July weekend.

Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, president of the Southeastern Michigan Veterinary Medical Association, said that although the association is issuing a watch at this time, disease symptoms pose a hazzard in themselves, as they may easily be misinterpreted by dog owners as a normal reaction to the summer heat.

If your dog becomes infected, anything less than immediate attention could be lethal within a day or two.

There is a vaccine available, but it must be considered only a secondary precaution. Supplies are limited, and, for the most part, reserved for those animals whose risk of exposure is greatest, such as show dogs and dogs which will be traveling and boarding all over the country with their owners.

Dr. Leininger said that Parvovirus Infection is transmitted from one dog to another through the feces and advises that there are two major precautions to be taken to insure prevention of the disease in a pet:

Clark: the other Californian

Libertarian presidential candidate Edward E. Clark is seeking government's biggest job by running against government.

The 50-year-old Californian, an anti-trust lawyer for the Atlantic Richfield Company (ARCO), is the Libertarian Party's standard bearer. The party, started in 1972 by Vietnam war opponents who favor a "free market" economy, claims to be the third biggest in the country.

On Tuesday's primary ballot, the Libertarian party is listed with the year-old Citizens Party, the (John) Anderson Coalition Party and the Socialst Workers Party. All seek at least 0.3 percent (an estimated 4,000 votes) of the Tuesday primary vote to qualify for the Nov. 4 general election.

If the "minor parties" fail to get the required number of votes Tuesday, their candidates won't appear on the November ballot.

CLARK, WHO spoke in Plymouth this weekend, was interviewed recently by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

He's banking on widespread public disillusionment with government as a rallying point for the Libertarians' theme: "Government is the source of most of society's problems."

Clark opposes the military draft, favors the Equal Rights Amendment and says government should regulate neither people's work nor wages.

The Vietnam War, Watergate and the recession-plagued economy has "undermined faith in government as an omnipotent problem solver," Clark said.

During the 1970s, the "public's confidence in the government's ability to solve economic problems has been undermined," he added.

As president, Clark says he would cut taxes by "billions," reduce military spending, totally deregulate oil and prices of other energy resources and offer special incentives for private investment.

ON MONETARY policy, Clark says, "I listen to Milton Friedman." A conservative economist, Friedman advocates stabilizing the economy through regulation of the money supply rather than budget deficits or surpluses. Friedman also criticizes most government regulation of the economy since the Franklin D. Roosevelt era.

Clark is a supporter of the Tisch property tax cut referendum, feared by state government officials as a potential "meat axe" to education, mental health and other state services dependent on property tax revenues.

Clark said he supports lower state government spending, because there would be "less stealing, less waste."

He calls revenue sharing, which started in the Richard Nixon administration and has become a staple of local government revenue, "an absolute disaster."

We're counting on you.

Red Cross The Good Neighbor

Single woman parents: 3 phases mark concerns

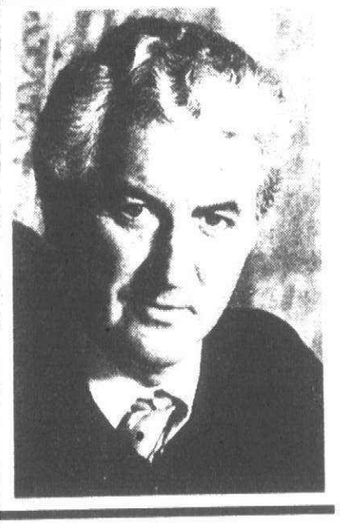

Recently widowed or divorced women are facing the most stressful time in their lives, but just knowing that can sometimes help them cope, says a Michigan State University Extension home economist.

These women face multiple concerns, like raising a family alone, providing financial support and coping with their own feeling of loneliness, says Marion Prince.

People, she says, go through three stages after a divorce or the death of a spouse: disintegration, response and reintegration. "During disintegration, you may feel like you're falling apart; it's like a vacuum, like the bottom is falling out," Prince says.

Then your body begins to respond to the stress, and sometimes women become ill. Afterwards comes reintegration, when women start to rebuild their lives. "Many people make a new life for themselves, but some never do," she says. "They never learn how to say good-bye."

KAUFMAN
Runs
FOR CIRCUIT COURT
Candidacy Endorsed by AFL-CIO's United Transportation Union

Do the presidential election prospects have you leaning toward "none of the above"? Do the candidates for local office seem to be coming out of the woodwork? There is one name to watch — Richard Kaufman. "Richard Kaufman?" you say, "the name sounds familiar . . ."
You may recognize the name as the attorney who championed the cause of Wayne County residents, and unmarried drivers, against the automobile insurance companies who charged them higher rates. Attorney Kaufman also worked for years as legal advisor to the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force.
Kaufman, an honors graduate of the University of Michigan and Wayne State Law School, is a candidate for Wayne County Circuit Court in the August 5 Primary Election. He has strong feelings about the quality (or lack of quality) in the Michigan judiciary after practicing law in Wayne County for years. "Often a judge in Michigan retains his office for so many years that he ceases to be a servant of the law, and instead views the law as his servant. I believe there are strong arguments in favor of a limitation on the amount of years a person can hold judicial office."
On August 5, when you pull the lever, or punch the holes, on the primary election ballot, take a moment to read down the list of candidates and find the name, RICHARD C. KAUFMAN. He will make a fine judge and he deserves your vote.
Information provided, and paid for, by Kaufman for Circuit Court Committee, 19952 Stratford, Detroit Michigan 48221.

Canton Elks mow down tournament foes

Smith looks sharp in NABF opener

SCOTT ADLER

The Plymouth Canton Elks won two games on Friday to remain in the winners bracket of the NABF Mantle Junior Tournament on the Elks' home field.

The host team whipped L' Anse Creuse, 7-0, in a midday battle and nipped a tough Allen Park squad, 3-2, in the nightcap.

Kevin Shaw, acquired from North Farmington, led the Canton charge when he scattered nine hits against Allen Park in the evening contest.

The Elks backed up Shaw with one of their finest defensive efforts of the season, and he took advantage of it as he failed to strike out any Allen Park batters.

"Shaw gave us a great effort," said Canton coach Dave Racer as his team's record improved to 22-2.

"It was a super effort from everybody. We really played heads-up ball. We're in great shape as far as pitching goes because both pitchers went the distance."

Allen Park started the scoring in the opening inning as Chris Seychel led off with a double and scored when catcher Billy Hanis threw out Kevin Shmidt at second on an attempted steal.

CANTON TIED the score at 1 in the top of the third when Fred Rumberger led off with a single and advanced to third on an error by the Allen Park second baseman. Rumberger scored when Keith Stone hit into a double play.

Allen Park got a run back in the bottom of the third when Seychel doubled and scored on Schmidt's single.

Dave Malek walked to start off the fifth inning and was moved to second on another Rumberger single. Scott Bricker hit into a fielder's choice and moved Malek to third. Stone drove him home with a single to center.

With men on first and second and two out, Dale Sklar, another former North Farmington player, hit a shot to deep center field. John Recker made a tremendous over-the-shoulder catch before ramming into the centerfield wall to save at least two runs.

Designated hitter Steve Johnson ripped a double up the alley in left-centerfield to lead off the seventh inning. Johnson moved to third on a throwing error by the shortstop Tony Demarti. Malek promptly hit a sacrifice fly to deep centerfield to score the deciding run.

"It was a helluva ball game," said a happy Racer. "We've knocked out two of the top teams in the tournament (L'Anse Creuse, 21-3, and Allen Park, 21-2).

"Scott Bricker played a great game both offensivly (two hits) and defensively. We played two super games today."

IN THE opening game, Dan Smith pitched a two-hit gem for the Elks to power them past a baffled L'Anse Creuse team, 7-0.

"He mixed his pitches effectively," said Racer of Smith. "Danny was tired in the second and third innings but he came back strong."

Canton scored two runs in the opening inning on a Stone RBI double and a single by Sklar.

The Elks got another run in the second but the crushing blow came in a five-hit, four-run fourth inning.

"The kids are really ripping the ball," Racer said. "They just came out and hit the ball." Sklar went 3-for-4 and Stone had two hits in four at-bats.

Bricker scored three times for Canton.

Caesars win 2-of-3 at Pontiac

By BRAD EMONS

Canton Little Caesars stayed alive in the Connie Mack state district baseball tourney at Pontiac Jaycee Park by winning two of three games during the first two days of play.

Caesars met the Detroit Eagles in a must-win encounter Saturday morning. Complete results of the tournament will appear in Thursday's Observer.

Pontiac-Transign handed Canton its first loss of the double-elimination tourney late Friday afternoon, 10-9. Caesars had opened play with a 3-2 win Thursday over Birmingham, and then defeated Cranbrook, 12-3, in a game halted after six innings because of the tourney mercy rule.

Canton had its chances against Pontiac, but fell short by one run. Caesars trailed 10-4 after five innings and then rallied with three runs in sixth and two in the seventh.

"We had the bases loaded each of the first three innings," said Canton coach John Gravlin. "We could have blown it open early, but got only four runs."

Dave Meador, Canton's slick-fielding first baseman, had a field day at the plate. He hit a two-run homer against with Steve Schumacher aboard to cut the Pontiac lead to 10-6. Al Lipinski then reached base and scored on a throwing error.

CAESARS THEN sliced the margin to one run and threatened with two runners on base before yielding the final out.

"We made some mental mistakes," Gravlin said, "but I was real proud of the way our kids came back."

Bob McCarrick slammed the door on Canton during the third, fourth and fifth innings. The Pontiac pitcher had to be removed in the sixth because he used up the allowable 12-inning limit during a two-day span.

Pitcher Jim Jimmerson, who was picked up by Canton from the Plymouth Elks, lasted only three innings before giving way to Elks' teammate Greg Etienne. Jimmerson allowed nine runs, including a three-run homer by Kevin Krause.

Schumacher and Dreher combined on four of Canton's six hits. Pontiac collected 13. Meador added an RBI sacrifice fly to give him three runs batted in against Pontiac.

Against Cranbrook, he went 3-for-4 and scored three runs.

Canton broke loose for three runs in the fifth and five more in the sixth to put the game away.

Lefty Dan Funkhouser hurled the first five innings to pick up the win. He got relief help from Jimmerson in the sixth.

Schumacher led off with a triple against Cranbrook and scored on a throwing error. Al Lipinski then walked and later scored on Meador's RBI single. Meador crossed home on sacrifice fly off the bat of Jeff Stemberger as Canton raced out a 3-0 lead after one inning.

CRANBROOK GOT two runs back in the third, but Canton countered with a single run in the fourth as Funkhouser singled, reached second on an error and scored on Paul Dobry's suicide squeeze bunt.

Schumacher and Dobry each had two hits as Canton collected 13.

Lipinski, a righthander, scattered eight hits in beating Birmingham in the tourney opener.

Canton managed only two hits — one an RBI single by catcher Frank McMurray in the first to score Schumacher.

Dreher scored Canton's final two runs. He walked in the third and later scored on a passed ball. The Caesar second baseman then scored all the way from first on a heads-up running play on an infield error off the bat of Gary Kucher.

Builders capture modified regional

Battling back from the loser's bracket, Morrell's Builders of Plymouth won the American Softball Association (ASA) Regional Modified Softball Championship, July 26, at Central Middle School.

The never-say-die Builders earned their second straight trip to the ASA National Tournament to be played Aug. 21-24 in Waterville, Maine.

Morrell's gained the trip as a result of beating arch-rival Bill's Market twice. The two teams met three times during the two-day event which drew six teams.

Morrell's romped to a 10-4 victory in the finals in a game manager Rick Grimes called, "our best performance of the year."

The winners jumped on Bill's pitching through the first five innings. The Builders carved out a commanding 10-0 lead.

Pitcher Al White went all seven innings for Morrell's, scattering five hits and allowing four runs in the final two innings.

Brent Boegler, Steve Karas, Rob Willette and Charlie Johnson each drove in two runs for Morrell's. Boegler, Johnson and Steve Robb each collected two hits.

The Builders reached the finals with a 5-2 win over Bill's as White pitched superbly.

Morrell's broke a two-all deadlock in the fourth inning when Karas led off with a triple to right-center field and scampered home on Mark Falvo's sacrifice fly. Robb then singled, stole second and scored on a double by Boegler. The Builders added an insurance run in the sixth on singles by Robb and Falvo.

BILL'S, the Plymouth City playoff champs, handed Morrell's its lone loss of the tourney earlier, 6-3.

"We've played Bill's 10 times this year and we're 5-5 against them," said Grimes. "They are an excellent team, but we proved again that we win the big ones."

Morrell's opened tourney play with a 9-3 win over Bee Jays. After its first loss to Bill's, the Builders bounced back to beat Sports Illustrated in an error-filled game, 14-13.

Grimes' squad will enter the ASA Nationals with a glittering 38-11 record. The Builders have won three tournaments, placed second in three others and fourth in yet another.

Morrell's finished 22nd in last season's nationals, dropping two games by a single run.

Falvo, a second baseman, is the team's leading hitter. He is batting .431 with outfield Robb at .417. The Willette brothers, Rob and Tom, are hitting .394 and .392 respectively.

Much of Morrell's power is provided by Charlie Johnson, Brent Boegler and cagey veteran Pete Lomonoco, who hit a hefty .461 in the regionals.

Other team members include Mark Crawford, Mike Nye, Randy Shoemaker and Mark Allen.

Area netters roll at Schoolcraft

Area netters stole the show last week in the fifth annual Schoolcraft College Junior Tennis Open.

Plymouth's Chris Gilles, a nationally-ranked U.S.T.A. girls 14 and under player, captured the Schoolraft girls 17 and under crown with a 6-1, 6-4 triumph over Northville's Holly Sixt.

Gilles, the No. 1 seed, downed Lisa Parquette in the semifinals, 6-0, 6-1.

Betsy Moon of Plymouth teamed up with Gilles to win the girls' doubles title. They defeated Vickie Sterling of Canton and Marnie Dillow of Northville, 6-2, 6-2.

In the girls 14 and under final, Lisa Maggio of Plymouth defeated Breita Johnson of Northville, 6-2, 6-1. Maggio reached the finals with a win by default of Beth Roberts of Ypsilanti.

John McCarty of Livonia, an incoming senior at Detroit Catholic Central, captured the boys 17 and under crown with a 2-6, 6-1, 6-3 win over Eric Topliss of Ann Arbor. McCarthy gained the finals with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Plymouth Salem's Scott Crespo.

In the other semifinal, Topliss beat Plymouth's David Kennedy, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0. Canton senior-to-be Kreg Kinnel and Ann Arbor's John Restuccia won the boys' doubles title with a 6-2, 7-5 triumph over McCarty and Dean Nascimben of Livonia.

Northville's Tom Spade captured the boys 14 and under championship with a 6-0, 2-6, 6-1 triumph over Scott Burrell of Livonia.

Golfers grab lead

Dick Kraft and Tony Valenti swept all five possible points from Mike Ryan and Bob White to take the lead after five weeks of play in the second round of the Canton Township Recreation Fox Hills Men's Golf League.

Kraft and Valenti now have 18½ points after last week's round.

Mike Wesner and Sherman Moore fell to second place with 18 points after winning three of five points against Roger Haslick and Ron Hoffman.

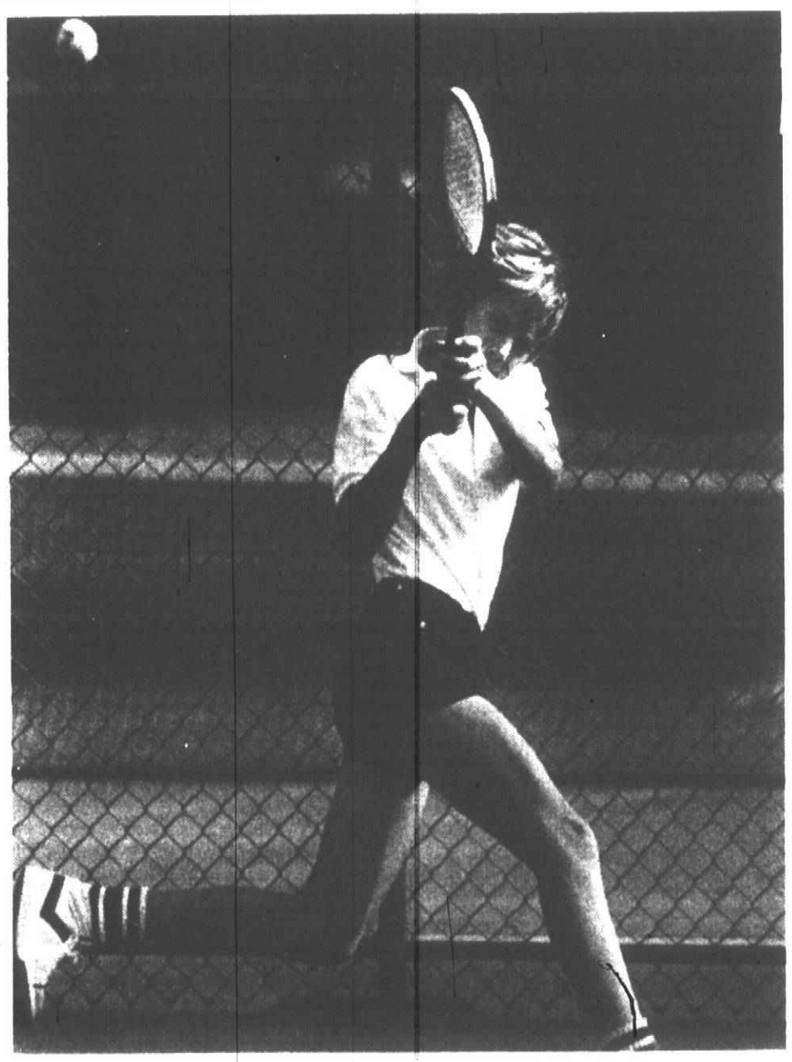

Bob and Jack Koers along with Don and Glen Ponte are tied for third spot with 16½ points each.

Valenti and Bill Duncan carded the best rounds of the week. Each shot a 39 for nine holes. Mike Moggio and Mike Roemer each carded 40s.

JOHN HUSAK holds a slim, one-point lead after two weeks of play in the second round of the Canton Recreation Seniors Golf League at Fellows Creek.

Husak scored all five possible points last week to move into first spot with 20. Bill Begg and George Nolan tallied four points each last week to tie for second place at 19.

Steve Bird collected three hits and drove home four runs to lead Rusty Nail to a 9-6 Canton Recreation Class C Division II softball victory last week over the Classy Chassis.

The winners scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to break a 6-all tie. Bird had two single, and a homer.

In other Division II games, Dennis Smithman ripped two triples and knocked in four runs as the Canton Cougars beat K & C Construction in eight innings, 15-10.

The Cougars won it by outscoring K & C in the eighth, 7-2.

IN CLASS C Division IV play, the Canton Jaycees whipped St. Michael's 15-14 as Michael Jurlin went 3-for-4 and Attilla Wagner drove in four runs.

JAMES GOEDDE had four hits and three RBIs to lift Pellegrino's Sales to a 17-8 Class C Division V triumph over Denny's Service.

Larry Gates also contributed by going 3-for-3 while driving home four runs.

Pellegrino's out-hit Denny's, 22-12.

Steve Thompson had a triple and homer in a losing cause.

A two-run homer by Ron Bernard enabled John & Dude's Towing to edge Statewide Aluminum, 8-7.

George Saffron had three hits for the losers.

DIANE KASPER hit a homer and Pat Payne added two singles to spark Rusty Nail to a 6-1 victory over Do-Rite Duds in a Women's League slow-pitch battle.

Jean Croskey slammed a homer for the losers.

Rusty Nail collected 22 hits and coasted to a 23-0 win over Jack's Sports. Joanne Wright had four hits, including a homer, while Payne added three singles. Jack's Sports managed just three hits.

League-leading Gould Realtors bombed Jack's Sports, 27-5, as Shelly Arner collected three hits and three RBIs.

Michelle Anderson and Donna Ramsey also had three hits. Gail Guse had two.

Peloquin Enterprises stayed on Gould's heels with victories over Do-Rite Duds, 14-4, and Practical Home Builders, 12-1.

Judy David had three singles in the win over Do-Rite Duds. Vicky David and Diana Henley crashed homers against Practical Home.

Sandy O'Neil paced the Class Chassis to a 14-6 victory over Practical Home. Maria's Bakery then handed Practical Home its third straight defeat, 23-9, as Debbie Sikori blasted two homers and Loretta Sobditch added three hits. Titan Steel downed W.E. Hennells, 7-0, on a forfeit.

Livonia Adray wins marathon, 1-0

It was almost a deja vu experience.

Livonia Adray and Wendy's last year had butted heads 14 innings in the Livonia Adray League baseball playoffs before Livonia came away a one-run winner.

When the two protaganists met again last week in a first-round game of this year's playoffs, they dueled tooth-and-nail again.

There was no scoring through the regulation nine innings. Spectators and several players on both teams were murmuring about a possible repeat of the '79 marathon.

Neither team scored through the 10th, 11th and 12th innings. Thoughts of an all-night stand intensified. As the hour grew late, people began to drift home.

Livonia finally scored the only run of the game — without the aid of a hit — in the last half of the 14th inning to prevail 1-0. It was nearly 1 a.m., almost four hours after the first pitch had been thrown.

Wendy's again had to swallow a bitter pill.

"I really felt we had the better scoring chances," said Wendy's manager Don Beyrand, who was not associated with the team last year. "We had people on base two or three times with none out and our bunting wasn't working.

"When we got someone over (into scoring position), we couldn't get the key hit."

Ron Hellier, Livonia's manager who also coached the team to victory last year, concurred that Wendy's had the better chances to break the ice and score.

"They had more scoring opportunities. We were just fortunate that we did it," said Hellier.

Jeff Sergison, Livonia's lead-off hitter in the 14th inning, reached first base safely when Bill Kopanakis bobbled a ground ball. Jim Ross bunted Sergison to second base.

Jim Wilson was issued an intentional walk by Paul Assenmacher. Both runners then moved into scoring position on a wild pitch. Art Wendt then drew an intentional walk to load the bases and set up a force out all around the infield.

Nino Devitis walked on a 3-1 pitch to allow Sergison to cross the plate with the only run of the game.

Assenmacher, the losing pitcher, threw an excellent game. The lefthander pitched all 14 innings, struck out eight, walked five and scattered six hits.

"What a ball game he pitched," said Beyrand. "It was a tough way to lose it."

Beyrand said that the 14th inning would have been Assenmacher's last even if he had come through unscathed. "When you get past that many innings, you get tired," he said.

Hellier agreed that Assenmacher was exceptionally tough on his batters.

"He did the job. He kept the curve down and over the plate. I think the ironic part of the whole ball game is that the only walk not intentional won the game. He did just a super job."

Hellier was also pleased with the pitching work of Mike Migoski and Ross.

Migoski worked 10 full innings, struck out 12 and walked only one. Ross relieved in the 11th inning with two men on and none out and retired the side with a strikeout and two groundouts.

Ross also pitched all of the 12th, 13th and 14th innings.

"I could see that (Migoski) was tired and his fast ball wasn't there any longer," said Hellier, who added that Migoski fired hard and with control during his 10 innings of work.

"Ross throws harder than anyone in the league," Hellier added. "He's our stopper when we have to bring someone in."

Hellier said he thought last year's game playoff game was more exciting than the one played between the two rivals last week.

"Last year, there was more action, more defensive plays. This year, everything seemed to be in the pitchers' hands. I didn't say the game was boring. The pitchers did the job," said Hellier.

"Last year's game was a long 19 innings," Hellier added. "This year's game was a short 14 innings with three up and three down."

Approximately a half dozen Livonia players and three from Wendy's have been part of the extra-innings excitement both this year and last.

"Nobody likes to lose like that when the game was as well pitched on both sides as it was," concluded Beyrand. "It's just too bad."

The words of Wendy's manager Pat Ruvolo at the end of last year's game would be just as applicable this year.

Surveying the scene helps keep coffee hot

How do you rate hotels and restaurants when you travel? I don't consider myself a critic, because you must visit establishments often and anonymously to get any real feel for a place.

I do, however, try to get some general sense of the places I visit, so that I can give readers general advice about where to go. I was very interested in a talk given recently on the subject by Peter Blythe, vice president of food and beverage for Western International Hotels.

You must always evaluate survey information (i.e. Proctor and Gamble conveniently discovered that more travelers are concerned about their bath soap than anything else). I was impressed with Blythe's ability to explore travel needs without too much reference to his hotels.

One survey shows the following facts about dining out: one in three meals is eaten out, half the population eats out once a month, 30 percent twice a month.

What they want to know, according to Blythe, is whether a restaurant is what it pretends to be. If the decor and menu are formal, the food should be haute cuisine and the service formal. If decor and menu are homey, food and service should match.

They also want to know whether they will get value for the money. Blythe checks that by checking one or two typical foods, especially soups and bread and by checking the wine list. If wine is marked up more than twice the market price, it's too high.

If the specialty range is too wide, it means too much of the food comes frozen.

Ask yourself these questions the next time you visit a restaurant: Is the focus on bar or food? What kind of music is played and at what sound level? Is it a madhouse of contemporary decor, or does it have candles, flowers, soft lighting and folded napkins? How does the menu feel?

Are the tablecloths too long or too short? What about paintings, food displays, salad bar? How long can you linger without feeling uncomfortable? How is the service?

SURVEYS SHOW that hotels are rated by their customers by the following standards. Cleanliness is far ahead of everything else, followed in order by convenient location, large comfortable bed, quiet, friendly attitude, security, convenience of service, available restaurants and family comfort.

Blythe said his chain looks for 10 items when rating its own hotels. How are reservations handled? How does check-in work, including front desk, doorman, parking, bellhop? Are rooms fresh, repaired and have a good bed?

What is the quality of food and beverage service? Are public areas inviting? How is the design and decor? What about signs, graphics, brochures? Additional services, like shoeshine, and concierge? How are you treated at check-out? What about location, views, nearby tourist attractions, etc.?

I asked him about my four pet peeves: cold coffee from room service, inadequate luggage racks, shower heads that dribble, and having to climb behind the floor lamp to plug in my hair dryer.

HOTELS HAVE always been designed for male travelers, who have only recently started to use hair dryers. They will be standard soon enough, if men keep using them. Simple luggage racks are cheap and therefore attractive to many hotels.

Check the shower head; if it doesn't say self-cleaning it will probably plug up.

If you need help in your room, never talk to anyone except the executive housekeeper. She handles everything from irons and beds to laundry and typewriters, and knows more than anyone else in the hotel. If you need something, she usually can get it for you.

Cold coffee? Some brilliant salesman sold glass "hottles" to hotels all over the country, despite the fact they don't keep liquids hot. When you order from room service, ask for a pot of coffee.

North to Alaska

The Holland America cruise liner S.S. Rotterdam will begin making trips along the west coast from San Fransisco in 1981. The schedule includes seven 12-day jaunts to Alaska in the summer.

Dates for these are June 17 and 29, July 11 and 23, and Aug. 4, 16 and 28. Stops will be made at Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Victoria in British Columbia, and Ketchikan, Juneau and Sitka in Alaska.

Rates are $1,795 to $3,875. Those prices do not include air fare. Several fly/cruise packages will be offered. For information, see your travel agent.

The Eastern Summer Nationals drag boat race is Aug. 9-10 at the Holloway Reservoir near Flint. There is a guaranteed purse of $7,500, plaques, and $17,500 in contingencies from various sponsors.

Time trials begin at 11 a.m. that Saturday with elimination rounds beginning at noon that Sunday. Boats race side by side in straight, quarter-mile acceleration runs. Classes are divided according to hull type, engine modifications, and type of fuel burned.

Area contenders include the Mist, owned by Butch Marriott and Jack Henry of Walled Lake and driven by Larry Cowell, and Hydrophobia, owned and driven by Paul Smith of Canton and sponsored by Square Wall Construction Co.

Holloway Reservoir is in Columbiaville, at Columbiaville and N. Lake roads. It's I-75 to Mt. Morris exit, east from there to M-15, then north to Dodge Road. Admission is $4 Saturday and $6 Sunday. Children younger than 12 get in free.

● ART APPRECIATION

Sixty woodblock prints of Japanese stage, fictitious heroes and the pleasures of the leisure class are in the "World of Kunisada," at the Indianapolis Museum of Art.

Utagawa Kunisada was regarded early in his 49-year career as a great ukiyo-e artist.

The show is in the Beesley Gallery at the museum at 1200 W. 38th St.; 317-923-1331. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays-Sundays.

When you're young and all the world is new, where but to see it all than from the top rail. The growing number of guest ranches scattered around the Alberta countryside provide a relaxing and healthful alternative to the bustle of city quarters. (Photo by Iris Sanderson Jones)

This Canadian potpourri will tickle your fancy one way or another, eh

Editor's note: The Canadian province of Alberta is celebrating its 75th year in the Canadian confederation this year. Last week, we took you from the capital city of Edmonton to Jasper National Park in the Rocky Mountains. This week we complete our western Canada tour by visiting the Athabaska Glacier, Rocky Mountain House, a guest ranch, dinosaur museum and Calgary. For further information on travel in Alberta, contact Travel Alberta, 10065 Jasper Ave., Edmonton, Alberta, Canada T5J 0H4.

By IRIS SANDERSON JONES

As we drive south on the Icefield Parkway, the morning mist rises slowly out of the valleys and blue sky breaks through the cloud cover. Our route is between misted evergreens beside the Athabaska River. Our destination is the Athabaska Glacier.

This is the most scenic mountain road I have ever seen. From the road and the adjacent river, a great sweep of green trees mounts to sharp peaks on every side, jagged against cloud-puffed blue skies.

Across the great green valley is the Athabaska Pass, where explorers and fur traders went through these mountains to continue their 600-mile trek to the Pacific Ocean.

From the Interpretive Center where a curved windown gives you a full view of the Athabaska Glacier, a model recessed in the floor shows the 130-mile-long Columbia Icefield.

Here you can see it as you could never see it from any other spot on the ground. The icefield, which is the source of the many glaciers, spreads like a huge frozen lake across the top of a mountain range. Glaciers flow down the valleys in all directions from the icefields: Castleguard Glacier, Dome Glacier, Saskatchewan Glacier, Athabaska Glacier.

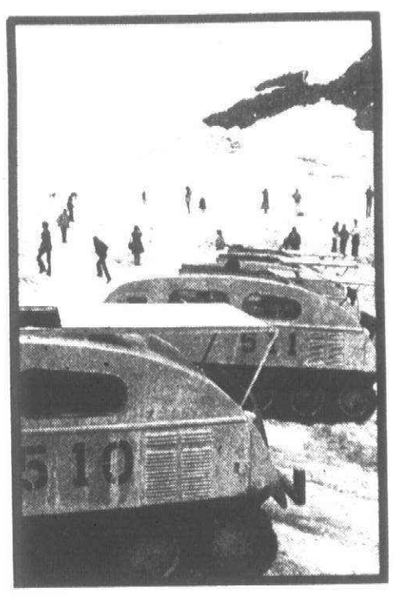

We will climb the Athabaska, which descends 4.5 miles from the rim of the icefields in a sloping tongue of ice that is as deep as the Empire State Building is tall. The glacier loses 30 feet a year.

THE TOURIST experience here is a strange one. A bus takes us up a high, rough road to tour buses mounted on tank treds. Smaller groups board smaller yellow vans, also riding on treads. The treads grip a steep 45-degree-angle road that leads us straight down to the surface of the glacier.

From here, the glacier makes a hard bumpy surface between rocky mountain peeks powdered with snow. The glacier is dusted with coal. Runoff follows a ditch downhill. This natural wonder is created from compressed crystals, not from snow, so it is blue when the sun shines through it.

The frozen road through the glacier needs only a yellow line and a stop sign to make it real.

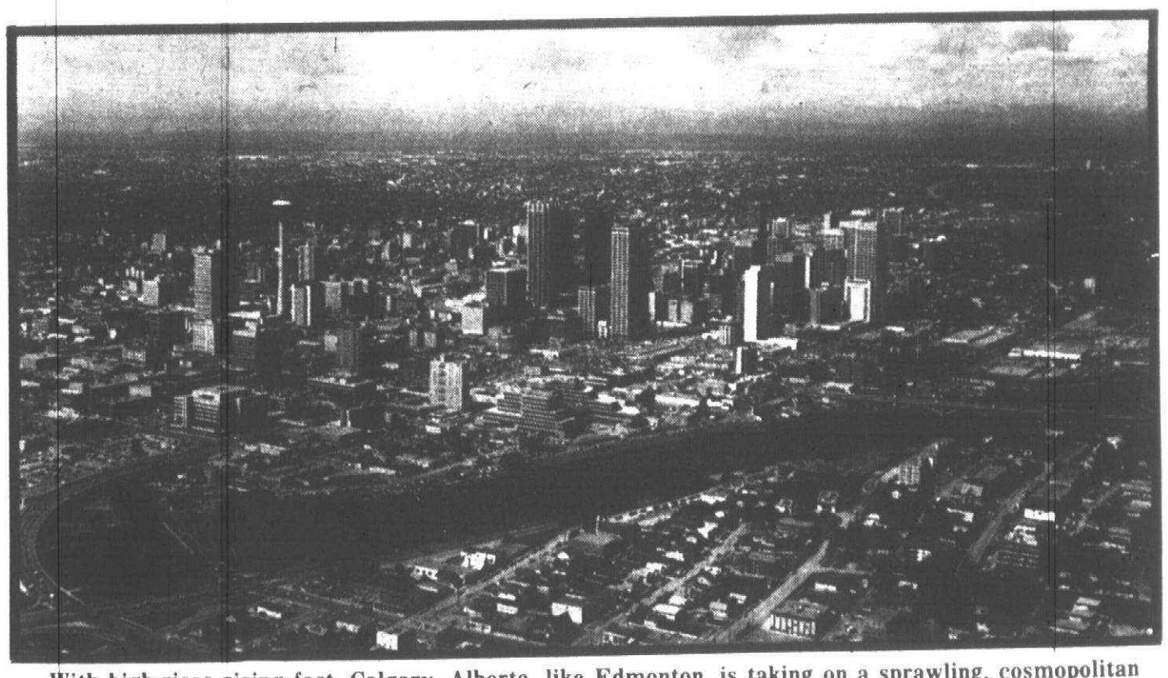

At the end of the road, where the strange tour vehicles park and later run around, we get out to walk the glacier.

Special vans mounted on tank treds carry tourists across the Athabaska Glacier.

MOST PEOPLE would head south here to Lake Louise and Banff, two of the most scenic areas in the mountain. We have gone that route before, so we will drive out of the mountains toward the foothills on the David Thompson Highway, with stops planned at Rocky Mountain Hosue, the town of Red Deer, a guest ranch and a dinosaur museum.

People swarm up the hard, cold surface, and a few go out to the red flags that mark the glacier's flow. It is chilly but not really cold. It is easy to imagine what the first explorers, like David Thompson, must have felt when they saw these great rock and ice barriers for the first time.

With high-rises rising fast, Calgary, Alberta, like Edmonton, is taking on a sprawling, cosmopolitan look.

Blyth, Ontario

It's not where you would expect to find a thriving summer theater

By DENNIS ROSENBLUM

BLYTH, Ontario — Through the cornfield and across the street from the bar is the only reason most people would ever give this town a moment's notice.

It's the old town hall, where townsfolk and nearby farmers flock to see professional summer theater.

To the surprise of just about everyone, the Blyth Summer Festival, now in its sixth year, has been a big success. Saturday country suppers, started last season and held before the play at a town church, quickly sold out for the season. This year, they've expanded to include suppers on Fridays and Saturdays, and lunch before the Thrusday matinees, with some meals in neighboring towns.

Also, a series of theater workshops for local children as young as 6 has been expanded, facilities for the handicapped have been added, and the hall's balcony has been fixed up and opened for the first time since the festival began.

THIS ALL HAD its start with a modest campaign by the local newspaper editor to save the old hall, built in 1920 to host traveling vaudeville shows. It had been vacant for years and the town council was considering demolishing it.

The building was renovated and became the Blyth Center for the Arts with a 400-seat theater. The performing company is all-Canadian, with many members from Toronto and others from across the country.

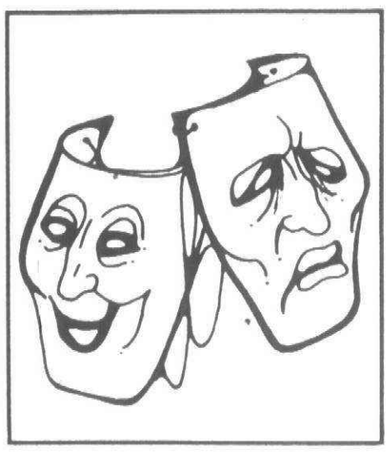

The turnouts are heavier than normal when it rains because the farmers can't work in the fields. The seats are filled on Saturdays but not on Fridays, which is shopping night.

"It's amazing a town of this size can handle it," said Janet Amos, the festival's artistic director who has performed in Ontario's better-known Shaw Festival and grew up in the region.

"But that's really what makes it," she said. "Your audience is where you are."

Members of the cast are often stopped on the street by people who recognize them from the stage. And each spring the town gossip turns to whether so-and-so who played in such-and-such last year will be returning.

"Probably the only place in Canada where there are stars is in Blyth," Ms. Amos said.

THE CLOSEST rival the theater has for a crowd is the bar, which provides a steady diet of beer and country music. In a town this size (population 814) a live theater is a giant and constant source of pride.

But a visitor expecting a formal night at the theater should be forewarned. Blyth has hardly been caught up in the heady world of entertainment. Despite the added dose of culture, it remains the same farming town it always was.

One actress told of the time a bar regular sat with a group from the theater and began lecturing on why the format of the curtain call should be changed on one of the plays he'd seen.

"You know, we did," she said. "He was right."

WHILE THE STAGE fare here is not that of Shakespearean Stratford (44 miles away) , neither is it the Neil Simon of most summer theater.

The theater is dedicated to presenting original works by Canadians — mostly commissioned for Blyth — which are of particular relevance to the region. It's a lesson that was learned in the first year when a production of Agatha Christie's "Mousetrap" flopped.

One of last season's plays was "This Foreign Land," a sometimes funny story of Europeans emigrating to the Blyth area in 1951. Local people were interviewed for two weeks to gather stories for the script, and the subjects happily showed up to see themselves portrayed on stage.

This year's schedule includes the story of a small-town Newfoundland miner feeling pressure to move to a bigger city, a witty piece called "St. Sam of the Nuke Pile," satirizing a nuclear power development, a comedy thriller teasing "back-to-the-landers" searching for a peaceful rural living, and a musical about a Wrold War I troupe that toured Canada.

Despite its success, the Blyth Summer Festival appears to be in no danger of going big time. In fact, said Evalina Webster, one of the theater's biggest boosters, "We're amazed that city people come here and like the plays."

THERE'S NOT MUCH in the way of tourist business. The closest motel is eight miles away. There's a problem getting dinner for everyone on weekends.

A variety of accommodations are available withing short driving distance. The famed Benmiller Inn is down the road; for informaiton, call 1-519-524-2191. Goderich, the closest city, has a few motels.

The festival office will provide a list of nearby guest homes which offer bed-and-breakfast arrangements.

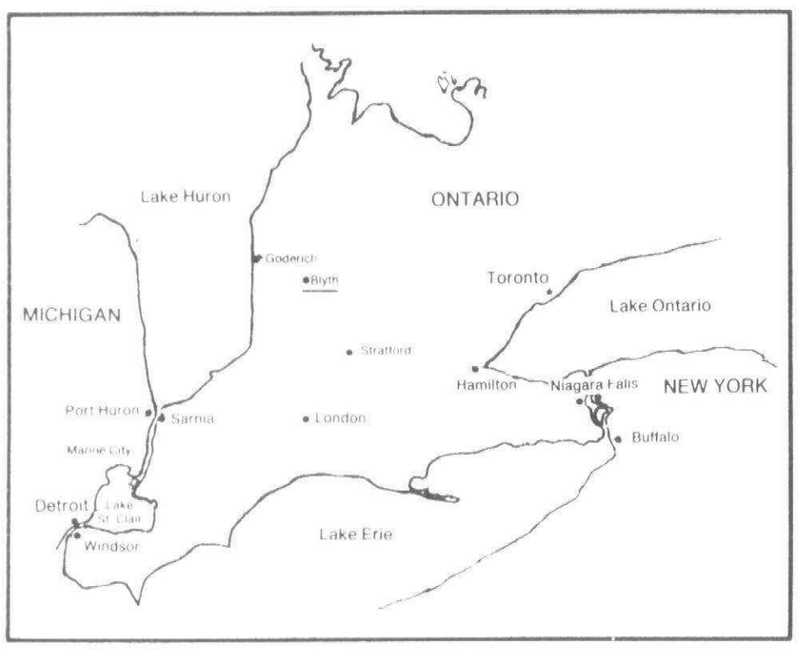

Two public campgrounds are also nearby. The Falls Reserve Conservation Area in Benmiller is seven miles east of Goderich on County Road 1. It has 145 campsites and a rocky falls of sorts that feels like a whirlpool bath. Reservations are not taken, but the camp never seems to fill.

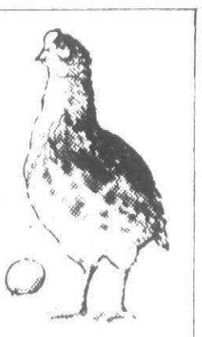

Point Farms Provincial Park, on Lake Huron, is slightly more plush and has 200 campsites. It's four miles north of Goderich on Highway 21. For information, call 1-519-524-7124 daily from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Blyth is on Highway 4, 13 miles east of Goderich. Take Highway 21 along lake Huron from Sarnia, or Highway 4 north from London.

Shows are at 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays-Saturdays and most Mondays, with 2 p.m. Thursday matinees. Reservations are advised, although 30 tickets are held until two hours before the show. If you arrive early, just join the crowd which gathers on park benches in front of the hall to relax and talk.

For both the plays and dinners, the Blyth Summer Festival reservations number is 1-519-523-9300 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

25 MILES PER GALLON AND THE PERFORMANCE OF A BMW.

At a time when the national conscience is consumed with fuel efficiency, the BMW 320i is truly remarkable. With 5-speed standard transmission the 320i delivers 25 EPA estimated mpg and 36 estimated highway mileage.*

Yet, what makes the BMW 320i even more impressive is that it achieves these mileage figures without ever violating the one thing that makes the car worthy of the BMW marque—extraordinary performance.

Press the accelerator and you'll immediately see what we mean. The four cylinder, 1.8-liter, fuel-injected overhead cam engine responds with a force that is exhilarating even by pre pollution control standards.

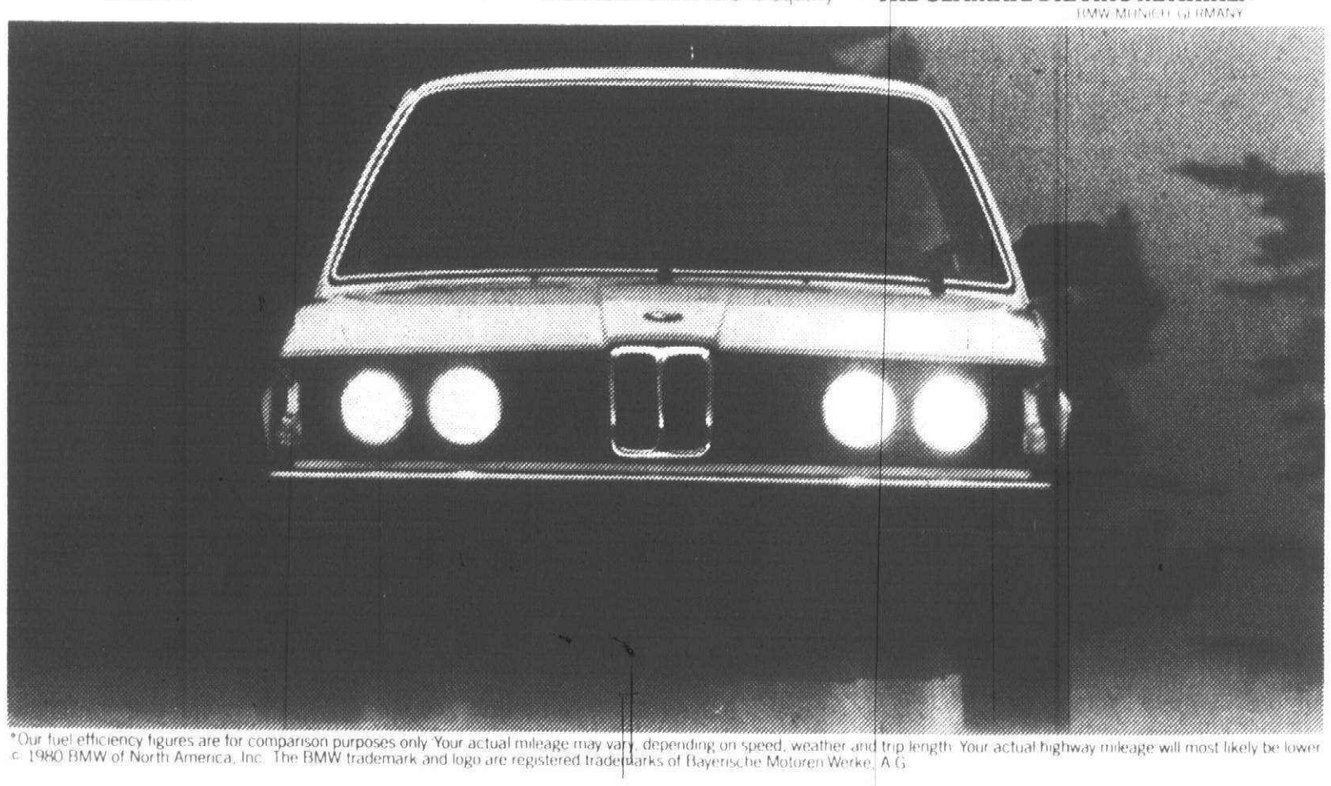

On winding roads and tight turns the legendary BMW suspension system—independent on all four wheels—makes one feel as though the car were slotted into the roadway.

The interior of the 320i is equally sophisticated. With every facet strategically planned to help eliminate driver fatigue.

Before you commit yourself to any one of today's increasingly mediocre cars, commit yourself to a test drive in a BMW 320i.

It's proof that performance and efficiency can coexist under the same hood.

THE ULTIMATE DRIVING MACHINE.
BMW-MUNICH, GERMANY

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

A champion!

Medium-duty buses don't have to look like their big-city counterparts as evidenced by Champion Home Builders' new Champion Bus. The company, a leading manufacturer of commercial and recreational vehicles, has introduced another mass-transit vehicle — the SHARE-A-VAN commuter vehicle.

New standards can save country gas

The nation could have acceptable automotive pollution controls and still reduce its gasoline consumption by 6 to 10 percent with some new, sensible auto emmissions standards, said Kenneth Mills.

Mills is a former engineering executive who quit the Environmental Protection Agency because the standards set by that agency were made too stringent.

Mills was acting director of the EPA's Motor Vehicle Control Division and now is an independent consultant.

"If we could compare what we have right now with what I would consider to be an acceptable level of controls for most of the U.S., we're probably losing 6 to 10 percent (of our fuel)," he said.

At the same time, federally mandadated regulations, most of which are for emission controls, cost $700 per new car, and another $250 to $400 will be added for even stricter standards in 1981, says the Automotive Information Council.

"Los Angeles does have an acute problem, and no one will deny that," Mills said. "But manufacturers, at least the domestic manufacturers, traditionally have been able to build special cars for California and some for the rest of the country without being terribly distruptive or terribly expensive.

"But the part of the thing that is so ridiculous to me, where California has a tremendous photochemical smog problem, they're really concerned too much about carbon moncxide."

Mills said a recent DuPont analysis concluded that a CO standard of 25 for 27 grams per mile would be quite suitable everywhere, except possibly in downtown Chicago for one hour each year.

Asked if the current standards caused other problems, he said:

"It's brought a tremendous expensive on the part of the car manufacturers to develop the best means of trying to comply with these standards."

Auto slump hits our pockets

The auto industry slump is touching the lives of virtually every American to some degree, reports the Automotive Information Council.

The effect on the nation's total employment is massive and widespread, says AIC, which points out:

For every car not built, there is a reduction in U.S. production of five tires, five wheels, six windows, four shock absorbers, four to eight spark plugs, a complete exhaust-muffler system, hoses, belts, wiring, battery, yards of fabric and vinyl, gallons of paint and hundreds of other supplier-made items — plus the basic raw materials of steel, iron, aluminum, plastics and zinc.

That helps explain why 650,000 employees in auto-related industries have joined the 250,000 autoworkers on layoff, says AIC.

But the "ripple effect" goes even deeper, affecting even the farmer, the oil worker, the miner, the cattleman, the luberjack and the trucker.

People who are on layoff have to hold down their spending, so a further ring of ripples goes out to reduce sales of all types of goods and services, expecially those which are considered discretionary, or not an immediate need.

Reduced income and sales tax revenues also result.

It therefore becomes apparent that the auto industry slowdown touches almost all of us, said AIC.
