Official ponders deputy decision

Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz doesn't want a "figure head" for deputy.

Ms. Falkiewicz, who served as Canton's first working deputy treasurer, says she'll take her time to fill the position.

State law requires a township clerk and treasurer to appoint a deputy. The second-in-command can perform administrative functions of the elected official and even sit on the Township Board in the absence of the regular member.

Most deputies in Canton have had the title but no job responsibilities.

But Ms. Falkiewicz, who served as deputy under former Treasurer Jim Donahue, hopes to fill one of two vacancies in her department with a working deputy treasurer.

The appointee could sign checks and perform other job duties normally reserved for the elected treasurer in Ms. Falkiewicz' absence. On most occasions, the deputy would act as "head clerk," Ms. Falkiewicz said.

Although state law allows deputies to act as voting members of the Township Board, Ms. Falkiewicz balks at the idea.

"I don't think I'd utilize someone to that extent. You could get someone in there who could use a township board seat as a political move. Instead of working toward your goals, it could work just the opposite," she said.

DURING HER TENURE as deputy, Ms. Falkiewicz occasionally sat on the township board with full voting power in the absence of the elected treasurer — Jim Donahue.

Her deputy appointment and job duties contrasted sharply with that of other deputy treasurers and clerks.

Until her appointment, deputy treasurers performed no job duties inside Township Hall. They often were spouses of the elected treasurer.

John Flodin — Canton's clerk since 1956 — always has named his wife, Bernice, as his deputy. During his recent four-week absence from Township Hall because of a bout with mononucleosis, department employee Doris Kelley — not Mrs. Flodin — took over many of the clerk's job responsibilities.

Ms. Falkiewicz' appointment to the deputy treasurer position came shortly after the November 1978 election in which she competed with Donahue for the treasurer's post, then part-time.

At first, Ms. Falkiewicz worked inside Township Hall on a part-time basis for a deputy pay of $135 a week.

But her hours and pay later increased by Township Board action when Donahue became ill. Ms. Falkiewicz took over all administrative aspects of the treasurer's job and served as department head for pay of $18,000 a year.

Members of the old Township Board eliminated the deputy's pay during their last meeting as elected officials.

THE TREASURER'S job now is full-time. Ms. Falkiewicz continues to work as department head.

But unlike Flodin — who again named his wife to the deputy clerk position — Ms. Falkiewicz sees a need for a working deputy treasurer.

Builder made error

Trustees clip lot to allow home sale

By ARLENE FUNKE

Bryan and Cindy Prieskorn can heave a collective sigh of relief after cutting through heaps of red tape to sell their Canton Township house.

The Township Board last week approved a lot split and variance to the subdivision control ordinance, correcting a "multiplicity of errors" dating back four years.

That action by the board removes legal obstacles which had delayed the sale of the Prieskorns' four-bedroom colonial house on Duchess.

Mrs. Prieskorn said her husband's problems with allergies have spurred plans to move to Arizona the day after Christmas.

"Everything is settled," said Mrs. Prieskorn. "We (closed) on the sale Wednesday. We had to postpone it (and) have been living with relatives in Westland for a month."

IN THE PAST few weeks, the Prieskorns have had hearings with the planning commission, the zoning board of appeals (ZBA) and the township board. Snags over the lot emerged recently during negotiations for the sale of the house.

However, township records show that an error occurred four years ago when a contractor built the Prieskorn house and an oversized garage. The garage extended 1½ feet onto the lot next door where Mrs. Prieskorn's parents live.

The two parties agreed to change the lot boundaries. However, that meant that the parents' lot was about 143 square feet less than the minimum 7,200 square feet required under the zoning for that area, according to township records.

Mrs. Prieskorn said she had documents indicating the change in the lot line, but "it was a shock" when she learned several weeks ago that the contractor had failed to obtain required variances from township officials four years ago.

"It is our title policy," said Mrs. Prieskorn. "It was all clear as far as we were concerned."

Dave Nicholson of the planning department said the Prieskorns had gotten "stuck" with a problem that wasn't corrected before.

"The builder misplaced it (garage) on the lot," said Nicholson. "They (the Prieskorns) thought they could move the lot line but it was never formally recorded."

WORKING to unravel the snags have been the planning department, planning commission, ZBA and township board.

The zoning board's minutes of Nov. 13 note that there was a "multiplicity of errors on the part of the builder, building department, title insurance company and bank."

"Mr. Prieskorn has been unduly penalized by errors not of his making," add the minutes.

Mrs. Prieskorn said she regretted having to pay fees totaling $150 for special hearings and meetings, but she praised township officials.

"The township wasn't at fault," she added. "These were their rules and regulations."

Hard at work

It takes a lot of concentration to make a pretty drawing. Joyce Kunk, an employee of the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, helps Tiffany Morante with her drawing as Elizabeth Speranza looks on. The pair are enrolled in the Canton Crickets, a township program for preschoolers. The next session which begins in January already is filled. But another session tentatively has been scheduled for April. (Staff photo by Gary Caskey)

County clerks favor election reform

By TOM LONERGAN

Post-election news has focused on President-elect Reagan's honeymoon with Congress and Michigan's continuing budget cuts.

But what about election reform?

Wayne County's clerk and Oakland County's election director are all for it, and they favor making election day a national holiday.

However, they don't make the laws. Congress does.

CHANGING THE 2-century-old national election day is "not a high priority item of the Congress," says Wayne County Clerk James Killeen. "The problem is not critical."

Nonetheless, Killeen, a Democrat, is convinced that "we hold elections at the wrong time of year." He favors having the national election in September, the weekend following Labor Day.

"I think our system can stand some upgrading and overhaul," says Howard Altman, Oakland County's elections director. But Altman, an appointee of Republican Clerk Lynn Allen, stops short of endorsing an earlier election day.

"I don't know what it would accomplish," he said. "We always think about these things after the storm."

Altman agrees with Killeen that election day should be made a national holiday. "I don't think it would be a bad idea," he said.

THE FIRST U.S. Congress set the national election in November "to accommodate a largely agricultural population," Killeen said. "That is no longer a factor."

But election reform has traditionally been a thorny political issue. Southerners in Congress are "not too worried about whether people vote in Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and other places," according to Killeen. There's little pressure for a change from the western states as well, he adds.

One impetus for change may be declining voter participation and size of the national electorate. On Nov. 4, 52 percent of eligible voters either didn't vote for president or chose a third-party candidate.

There's also been a registration decline in the cities. In Detroit, there were 127,800 fewer registered voters this fall than in 1976. A 34,500-voter increase in the suburbs left Wayne County with a net 93,200 fewer eligible voters.

IN OAKLAND County, the opposite occurred. There were 80,600 more eligible voters this fall than four years ago. Oakland is predominantly Republican, while Wayne has been a long-time Democratic stronghold.

Killeen, who was active in President Jimmy Carter's re-election bid, is bothered by those numbers.

"There's a general feeling that the lower we go in the number of participants, the more critical the situation gets," he said.

"The facts are we're getting a reduced number of people in the metropolitan areas. Fewer are voting."

"We have the lousiest voting record in the free world."

Oakland County turnout was 70 percent of 644,000 registered. Wayne County's was about 64 percent of 1.35 million registered.

EXCEPT FOR long lines, Nov. 4 voting went smoothly, according to the two election officials.

Prowler nabs turkey

Is a certain turkey which used to live in a barn on Lilley Road near Michigan Avenue now free as a bird?

Or was it the victim of foul play? And did it end up as a mouth-watering meal?

Canton police are wondering.

A resident reported earlier in the week that someone had broken a lock on his barn and taken a 35-pound turkey some time between Nov. 26 and Dec. 1.

The fowl could have been taken early enough that it suffered a fate common to turkeys — being the main sustenance of a Thanksgiving meal, said Police Lt. Larry Stewart.

The resident also told police that a fire extinguisher in the barn had been emptied.

Lt. Stewart said there are few clues in the case.

With luck the department could run across a stool pigeon who will reveal the turkey's fate.

Dear Santa,

Please forgive me. About last Friday night, I mean. Since moving here from Nashville, I've been having so much fun that sometimes I forget I'm an important fellow.

And that's why I was 10 minutes late last Friday evening. Too much galloping around the corral when my master was trying to load me. Too many last-minute mouthfuls of hay and oats. So, Santa, you had to ride to your yuletide home in a police car, instead of our surrey-with-the-fringe-on-top. When I arrived at Kellogg Park, the Christmas carols had already begun.

Santa, if I promise to be a good carriage horse till Christmas and give lots of boys & girls rides, will you be my friend? And will you bring those ribbons for my mane and tail? I promise to use real horse sense from now on.

Schoolcraft trustees reject proposed anti-nepotism policy

Trustees at Schoolcraft College have rejected a proposed anti-nepotism policy in hiring but approved increasing its share of costs of election held jointly with K-12 school districts, from 35 to 50 percent.

But C. Nelson Grote, president of the community college, said the anti-nepotism rules would be enforced anyway because they are required in an executive order from the U.S. Office of Civil Rights.

"We need to have a policy in writing," said Vice Chairperson Nancie Blatt, who supported the proposal.

But the anti-nepotism policy failed to get a majority of four on the seven-member board. Supporting it were Mrs. Blatt, Chairman Harry Greenleaf and trustee Richard Hayward.

Opposed were trustees Mark McQuesten and Michael Burley. Abstaining was trustee Rosina Raymond. Absent was Treasurer Leonard Wozniak.

"IT'S UNNECESSARY and inappropriate," said Mrs. Raymond. "I'm opposed to so many rules and regulations, but I have no quarrel with the statement."

The statement would have said Schoolcraft "will not prohibit the initial employment, transfer or advancement of spouses or immediate family members in the same department or administrative unit provided that neither spouse nor immediate family member participates in making recommendations or decisions specifically affecting the appointment."

"Therefore, no person shall be employed in a position in which he/she directly reports to or supervises a member of his/her immediate family."

McQUESTEN said such a policy would be "discrimination," but Hayward replied, "It would be discrimination not to have an anti-nepotism policy."

"What is this really about?" asked Mrs. Raymond. "Is this to put the monkey on the board's back? I have a gut feeling."

Said Grote: "We are obligated to comply with 11246 (the number of the executive order). By this policy, the institution (Schoolcraft) would make it a board policy."

"We have had no major problems. We have had minor problems. It would be inappropriate to discuss family relationships" in a board meeting, he said.

Under usual parliamentary rules, only a person who voted in the majority may ask for reconsideration in the near future.

THE COLLEGE agreed to "pay up to 50 percent of the direct election cost, as mutually defined, to include only election workers' expense, moving and setting up the voting machines, and the printing and advertising notices" in the policy approved Nov. 19.

Previously, the policy called for paying 35 percent.

The Schoolcraft College District is made up of five K-12 districts — Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton and Northville — and a portion of Novi.

College trustee elections are conducted in odd-numbered years on the same day as K-12 trustee elections — the second Monday of June.

Election reform?

County clerks favor change

At some polls in Oakland County, including the Farmington area and Brandon Township, there were people voting as late as 10 p.m., two hours after the polls closed.

With each voter taking at least four to five minutes to read a variety of ballot referendums, lines were inevitable.

"We didn't receive any complaints that the wait was so long that people didn't vote," Killen said.

Altman said a 10 to 15 percent increase in voting by absentee ballot in Oakland County delayed release of final election returns. The county election office didn't have final returns on all races available until 4 p.m. the day after the election.

"Good Lord, we had some (local) clerks reporting at 5 and 6 in the morning," Altman said. In past presidential elections, the usual reporting time was midnight, he added.

Altman has been Oakland's elections director for nine years.

VOTING ABSENTEE is more convenient, and Altman notes that voter use of the procedure is "being encouraged by some of the clerks and a great deal by the candidates today."

Treasurer looks at deputy

"Personally, I hate to see a figure head," she said.

"The deputy could be like a head clerk. But, actually, he or she can have the authority to do an awful lot of things. That's the difference between a deputy and a regular employee."

Ms. Falkiewicz says she'll take time to pick the deputy because "you have to make sure the person is trustworthy and not political."

The treasurer said she already has received calls from residents who are interested in the position.

Current employees of the treasurer's department are not eligible for the deputy job because none are residents. Township board action would be needed for the deputy to receive higher pay than union scale.

In Southfield, between 7,000 and 8,000 voted by absentee, Altman said. The county was delayed in reporting final election returns by absentee ballots in Pontiac. Several thousand in that city's 50 precincts voted absentee. Counting them is "something you don't do in five minutes," Altman said.

Most absentee ballots are mailed to the voter. But in Bloomfield Township, absentee votes for this past election and the August primary were cast on one of six machines in the township hall.

For the November election, the machines were available 13 days prior to the election. Altman said 2,000 voted absentee in the township. The returns were counted prior to Nov. 4.

"BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP has the luxury of money to buy the equipment," said Altman. The machines cost $6,000 a piece.

He is encouraged by the procedure, particularly being able to count the absentee vote before election day, but Altman said there is a security problem.

Board OK's traffic lights

Traffic lights are earmarked for two busy intersections in Canton under a cost-sharing agreement between the township and the Wayne County Road Commission.

Former Township Supervisor Noel Culbert negotiated details of the agreement for traffic lights at Warren and Sheldon and at Warren and Lilley before leaving office.

Last week the new Township Board ratified the plan, which calls for a total cost to Canton of $10,000 for both lights. The WCRC will finance the remaining $10,000.

The board approved the agreement by a 6-1 vote, despite fears of setting a bad precedent.

The WCRC is responsible for improvements on all local and county roads.

"I think the county will admit its responsibility to provide these lights. But I think the truth of the matter is that the county doesn't have any money," said Clerk John Flodin.

According to Culbert, the supervisor's office has received numerous complaints about the two intersections, which now are marked only by flashing signals.

Treasurer Maria Falkiewicz dissented in last week's vote on grounds that Canton should seek reimbursement for its $10,000 cost when the county's financial picture improves.

You are invited to a special showing of Scholl shoes at JCPenney.

Hospice offers care for dying

By SHIRLEE IDEN

Taking leave of life with dignity — that is what a hospice is all about. It is a place where the emphasis is placed on the living patient has left.

It is a place where family and friends can gather, no matter what their age or the hour. And Ed can jump up on a master's bed bringing the kind of succor a beloved pet can offer.

A hospice is where music and art are used to enhance the precious hours left and familiar objects from home are welcome.

It is a place where death is thought of as a part of life.

On Monday, a single rose lay on one bed in the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan. "In loving memory of — from the staff" the tag read.

A staff nurse returning to work, eyes misting says: "A beautiful woman, it meant so much for her to be where her grandchildren could be."

"She had this lineup of little rocking chairs for them and they would come in and be near and then go out and play with toys in the hall."

"Society has a tendency of blocking out death — it's easy to forget it's happening when you don't see it."

THE NURSE and other health-care professionals are beginning to believe that even for young children being part of dying is as vital as being part of living.

Southeastern Michigan's hospice offers both in-patient and out-patient care. Dedicated last June, it began to accept patients earlier this month.

"We try to create an environment for people terminally ill," says Randy DuFour, director of operations at the Southfield facility.

"Home is the best place, it's the most familiar and the most comfortable. If patients can be cared for at home, we send nurses to them who can give the care they require."

"But sometimes they require in-patient care."

DuFour says the criteria for service is only that the patient be terminal. "We have a special program for children. Today, we admitted a 10-year-old boy with leukemia."

Peg O. McCuiston is executive director of the hospice and Jack Ingall M.D. is the medical director. The facility is located at 22401 Foster Winter Drive, on the top floors of the Southfield Rehabilitation Center.

VOLUNTEERS augment the services of health-care professionals. DuFour said about 70 volunteers have already been trained and 60 more are on the waiting list.

"They're involved in patient care, in helping decorate the room. They run errands for patients and families, and can be a friend to patients," DuFour said.

"Our volunteers are from all walks of life. We have teachers, doctors, all kinds of people."

Hospices differ in a number of important ways from hospitals and nursing homes.

"In a hospital or nursing home, the unit of care is the patient," DuFour says. "There's no attention to the family members. In a hospice the unit of care is the patient and family."

"The patient is losing everything, but the family is also suffering a loss."

Another difference is that hospices care only for terminally ill persons. Also at variance is the way that pain is managed.

Medications are prescribed by doctors in a way that not only alleviates pain, but keeps patients pain-free, DuFour says.

"AND WE ADDRESS not only physical but psychological and emotional pain too."

Though there are a number of hospices developing in Michigan, the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan is the first with in-patient as well as out-patient care. Patients can refer themselves, or be referred by their family, physician or a hospital.

A unique aspect of the Southfield facility is that it has been established by seven Detroit-area hospital corporations. They are Children's, Harper-Grace, Mt. Carmel, People's Community Hospital, St. John, Sinai and Providence.

Others included in the hospice are Botsford, Michigan Osteopathic Medical Center, Oakwood, Beaumont, Detroit Osteopathic Hospitals Corp. and Henry Ford Hospital.

DuFour says there's a great difference for a patient who can remain home with loved ones and still get the expert care they require. "We try to have the patient remain at home, but sometimes a family needs a break."

Disagrees with views on sheriff

Editor:
I think Tim Richard's attitude toward Sheriff Lucas is all out of proportion.
Since when does one have to be overpaid to be able to afford a lawyer? While you are interested in how much we are paying Mr. Lucas, suppose you check into the paychecks of the commissioners.

missioners: As Commissioner Thomas Presnell once told me, "this is a part-time job." Such a salary (plus raises and expenses) for a "part-time job."
Why pick on Sheriff Lucas? He and his men have done a fine job in the past, and if the commissioners were doing what they are getting paid to do, the Sheriff's Department would have a chance to continue doing a fine job.
You talk about the attitude of "sue the bastards," and charge Lucas with this same attitude. How do you know what his attitude is? What else is he supposed to do? What would you do if you were in his place?

Personally I think, in fact I know, we need the sheriff and his deputies much more than we need the commissioners.
I think you owe Sheriff Lucas an apology.

Budget woes to be aired

A seminar on state and local budget restraints will be held at 10 a.m. Monday in the Bailey Recreation Building, behind Westland City Hall, Ford Road east of Newburgh.
Sponsored by the Local Governmental Conference of Western Wayne, the seminar will give local government representatives tips on state funding sources for next year.
Among the presentations will be a forecast of the recession's impact on state and local budgets for 1981 by a representative from the Michigan Department of Management and Budget.

Editor:
Last week's paper had an article headline "Deer prances through yards."
Your rewrite man could have had a ball with that headline if he was aware that the female jogger was my daughter-in-law, Maureen McAuliffe Hunter, and the big red dog was a golden retriever named Reese because he's the same color as a Reese peanut butter cup.
"Dear Hunter spots deer in neighborhood"

Suggested headlines

"Deer startled by jogging Dear Hunter"
"Peanut butter colored dog bounds over back yard fences in pursuit of deer"
"Jogging doe-eyed Dear Hunter startles deer in Old Town" ad nauseam.

Career test is scheduled

Sophomores, juniors and seniors at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) will have a chance Saturday, Jan. 10, to participate in a career guidance and educational planning program.
The program, the ACT Career Planning Test, is designed to help young adults make better decisions about their educational and career plans.
Diane Pomish, counselor at Plymouth Salem High, points out that national studies reflect that students rank help with career planning as one of their most important needs.
"Yet, in many school settings, this need currently is not being addressed. It is in response to this need that Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools instituted the opportunity to participate in the career planning program."
Participating students complete the career planning program assessment instrument which measures the student's career related interests, experiences, abilities, and plans.
The information is developed into a report for each student to help him, or her, relate this information to career options.

The reports will be reviewed with students in a group and with individual counseling sessions following the program.
Pomish stated that the program is more than an assessment, but is a first step or a foundation for the start of each student's career journey.
About 85 percent of last year's seniors at the CEP said they were planning further education after high school.
Some 20 percent were planning toward a technical/vocational program and 65 percent were aiming for four years or more of college attendance.
"The aim of the school's guidance program is to assist all of these students, regardless of their objectives, with the process of learning about and exploring career opportunities," said Bill Brown, Salem principal. "We feel the career planning program will help us accomplish that aim."
Interested students should sign up in the guidance office at Salem and at the career center at Canton. The cost is $4 and deadline to register is Dec. 12.

Home burns

By TERI BANAS

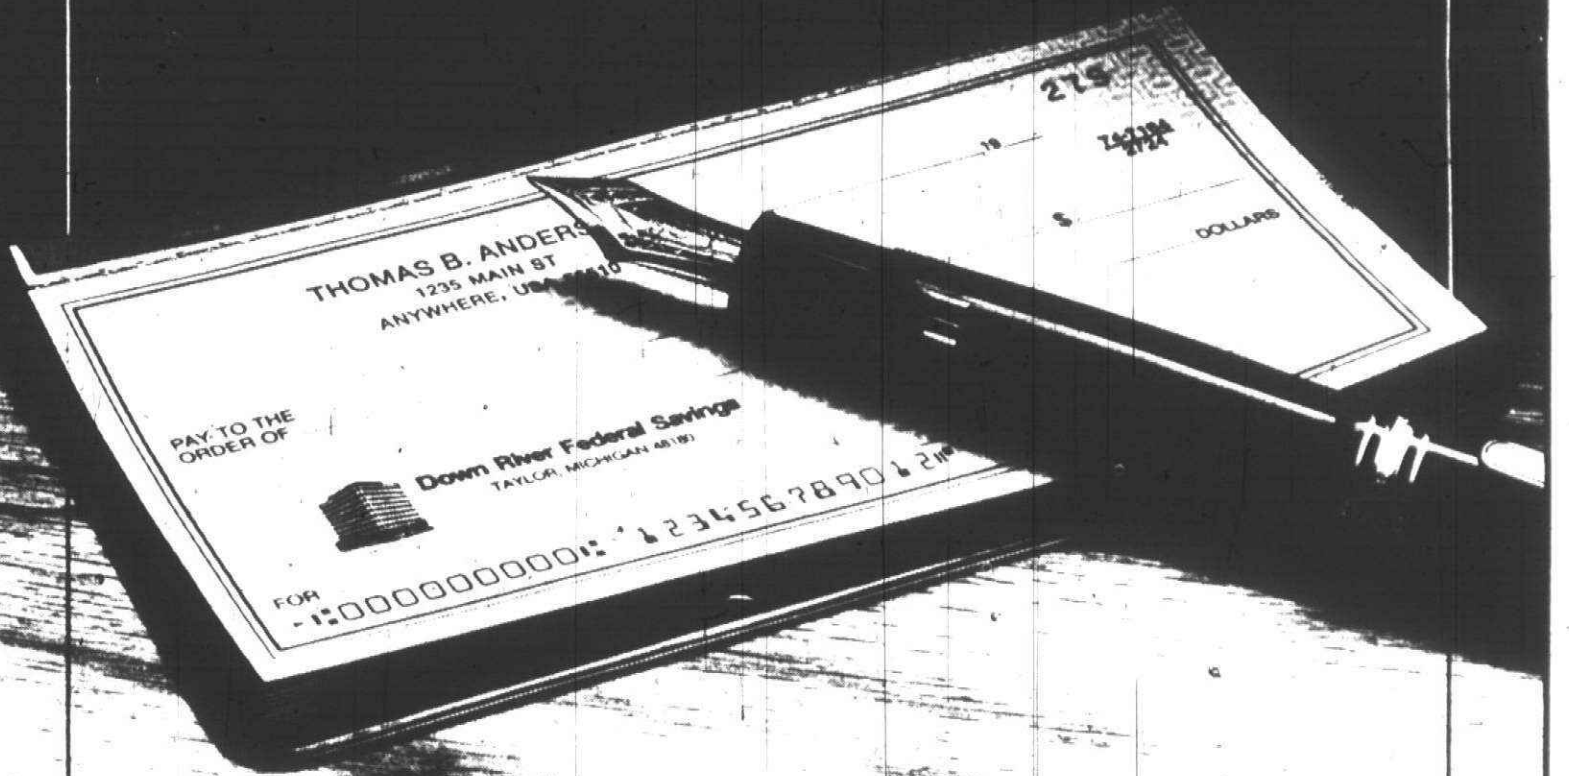

A faulty furnace has been cited as the cause of a house fire in Plymouth Township early Monday afternoon, say township fire officials.
The fire, which caused some $25,000 in damages to the house of William Comstock, 48975 N. Territorial, started about 12:30 p.m. and was blamed on an oil burning furnace that appeared defective, said Township Fire Chief Larry Groth.
Neighbors later told firefighters that the furnace was supposedly repaired by friends of Comstock the previous weekend. The house was vacant when the fire broke out. Comstock was away on a hunting trip.
"Whoever made the adjustment on the furnace put too much oil in the pot, which caused an explosion," Groth said.
It's suspected the explosion ignited a pile of stacked papers and other stored items in the basement less than two feet from the furnace.
"There were things like a movie projector there and other stuff that shouldn't have been so close to the furnace," the chief added.
It's estimated the fire smoldered and spread to a nearby storage area (beneath the basement stairway) for at least 15 minutes before a passing motorist spotted the fire and contacted the Plymouth Township Fire Department.
RUTH FULTZ, a Salem Township resident who lives in a subdivision west of the Comstock house, was driving on N. Territorial when she noticed smoke coming from the house.
"It was coming up through the chimney and around the front," she said. "I knew it was more than just a chimney fire because there was so much smoke."
When the firefighters arrived the blaze was still contained in the basement, reaching as far as the door at the top of the basement stairs.
"Another 10 minutes and the place would have been totally involved," estimated Groth.
Smoke and heat damage also filtered into the first floor of the two-story brick house with some smoke damage reaching to the second floor.

Salon tries new approach for kids

For years little boys have cried when placed into the barber chair for their first haircut.

"It's no wonder that they cry," says Ron Fetter of Plymouth. "From birth on they receive pain from people, like doctors, who care for them."

"Look at all the shots and vaccinations a child gets from birth to age 5. After going through all this, when you place a young child in a barber-chair for a haircut he automatically anticipates pain."

That's why Fetter has decided to try a new approach in hair care for youngsters, and he's picked December because the holiday season fits in very well with his idea.

Fetter is operating the International Salon in the shopping center at the northwest corner of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Roads in Plymouth, and he's been in the business of caring for hair of all ages for more than 20 years.

During December operators in his salon will be dressed up in Santa Claus costumes to greet young boys and girls coming in for their first (or second) haircut.

In January the operators will be dressed in a Donald Duck-like costume and in February will be dressed like Mickey Mouse.

"Santa Claus has an image of pleasure with kids, and by captivating on that the operator can start off on the right foot."

"We think children of all ages will enjoy getting a haircut from Santa, but for the real young kids it might make a real difference."

MFETTER HAD been operating a beauty salon in Las Vegas for the past year and just recently returned to the Plymouth community.

Before going to Las Vegas he had owned and operated the Entri salon, now renamed International Hair Salon. He had operated the Entri shop for some 10 years in Plymouth.

After serving four years in Korea, Fetter entered the hair treatment industry in 1958 and has been in the field since.

Starting Dec. 1 youngsters may call for an appointment to have Santa cut their hair. The International Hair Salon is open 9-9 on weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Our quest for a Good Samaritan

It's time to discover the Spirit of Christmas

The Canton and Plymouth Observer Newspapers are sponsoring a contest for the second successive year to honor an individual in the community who best typifies the spirit of Christmas.

In thinking about recognizing the spirit of giving and honoring someone who gives freely to others, we decided last year to offer the Good Samaritan Award.

The reason is that the Samaritan gave of himself to meet an otherwise unmet need. And we think that is what the spirit of Christmas is all about.

IF YOU REMEMBER the story, a man had been beaten by thieves and left by the side of the road to die.

Many persons walked by, stopped to stare, commented about the poor man's plight and then continued on their way. Also traveling on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho that day was a man from Samaria. This man, filled with compassion for the victim, attended to his wounds and took him to an inn in the nearest town.

The Good Samaritan paid the innkeeper for the man's room and promised, upon his return trip to the town, to pay for any other expenses incurred in the man's treatment.

The story of the Good Samaritan has come to have a narrow meaning in law, referring to the legal liabilities incurred by a layman who voluntarily gives first aid to an injured person.

But the story has much broader meanings which are especially relevant to the giving spirit of Christmas.

The story is about someone who, through no fault of his own, became a victim needing help. The victim was a stranger to all the travelers who ignored him except the Samaritan — a man of a different and despised tribe.

The Samaritan not only gave help to a stranger in need but went beyond the immediate need by providing rest and shelter. He gave all that was needed and, in the process, gave of himself.

While it is easy to condemn those who passed by, we think it is far better and useful to concentrate on and heap praise upon the one who stopped.

AND THAT IS what the Observer wants to achieve by offering the 1980 Good Samaritan Award.

We want to concentrate our thoughts on the positive acts of good people who gave of themselves in 1980 to address an otherwise unmet need.

We'd like to join with the community in praising individuals who took time to stop in the midst of a very busy personal life to do something for others.

And we would like your help in finding the Good Samaritan in our community.

Think of someone who best represents the Good Samaritan and let us know so the entire community can recognize that spirit of giving.

The announcement of the 1980 recipient will be made during the Christmas holiday season. By reading about that one person, an important part of the spirit of Christmas will be rekindled in each of us.

The community has many Good Samaritans, many unknown, who live by the Golden Rule throughout the year. Join with us by nominating one of them for the 1980 Good Samaritan Award.

Let's share the good news this holiday season.

Attila the teacher reporting

So I survived — well, sort of. As you recall, back in September I wrote of an impending nightmare — returning to college as a journalism instructor.

By asking me to teach, the faculty must have been seeking revenge for the difficult times I gave them as a student.

I scorned most instructors. Credentials meant little to me. Graduate instructor or doctor of philosophy, most of them were professional somnambulists. I thought, and I let them know it.

The few teachers I did admire were ranting, two-fisted crazies, more prone to flunking than passing a majority of the class.

ONLY SLIGHTLY do I remember anything about the first night's baptism under fire.

Fortified by a few very dry martinis, I strode into class, armed with a stern look and an authoritarian blue, pin stripe suit.

"So you all want to be journalists, huh?" I growled, reaching back a dozen years for my old Army drill sergeant's voice.

It sounded rusty and hollow.

Out of the corner of my eye, I looked for their reaction. Nothing. Just deafening silence and blank stares.

God help me! How would I ever get through the next three hours?

Well, I did get through the next three hours. In fact, I survived the next 10 weeks.

Of course, a few mental scars are etched into my soul.

MY CONTINUAL reference to "you guys" brought down the ire of some of the classes' women students. Imagine, Steve Barnaby, crusader for all that's good and right (or should I say left), staunch ERA supporter, being caught in a moment of chauvinism.

My middle-age ego was jolted up a notch with an out-and-out proposition. And I'm happy to report that for all we hear about changing sexual mores on campus, the propositioner was a female.

I refused, of course.

As the weeks passed, my confidence grew.

I quizzed them mercilessly ("Who was the first woman to hold a cabinet post?") and taunted them unceasingly ("For a moment I thought this was a law class. Everybody, every last one of you, convicted the suspect in your copy.")

I called upon their higher intellectual instincts ("Don't worry about grades. You're here to learn journalism.") and chided them ("Last night I fell asleep while grading your papers.")

I corrected their papers with a vengeance, pointing out every line, many times scribbling indecipherably out of sheer frustration. Other times I would poke holes, literally, in their papers.

God, how I loved it.

I pounded on the walls, drew silly pictures on the chalkboard and made fun of them and myself — anything to help them learn and remember.

AND I'LL REMEMBER all of them for years to come — the quiet ones, Holmes, LaBrenz and Rone; the tired Stiles; the diligent McKusick; the always late Piirto; the puzzled Dugal; the inquisitive Dubey; the worried Hittler; the frustrated Seraphinoff; the scornful Robinson.

And, of course, a special tribute to the back of the room crowd — the charming P.D. Cunningham; Haldane the horrible; the mischievous Toth; and, yes you, Cates, we'll all remember you.

Remember these names, dear readers. Someday one of them could be the editor of your hometown newspaper.

"God rest ye merry, gentlemen..."

Sports: wonderful nonsense

If ever you went on a search for the most bizarre happenings on this dizzy globe of ours, it might be well not to overlook the world of sport.

Down through the years this is the area in which Westbrook Pegler, one of the top sports writers of his day, referred to as the "world of wonderful nonsense." And he spent most of his career obtaining laughs from the activities of the athletes.

What a time he would have if he were living today and had been at ringside several nights ago when Roberto Duran, the welterweight champion, quit in the middle of the fight claiming he was suffering from stomach cramps. That is the biggest laugh of the year.

And whoever heard of a challenger being awarded the title for running away from the defending champion? That was the smile Sugar Ray Leonard got from Lady Luck.

BUT THAT IS not the most bizarre happening that ever took place in the square arena which the fight game refers to as a ring.

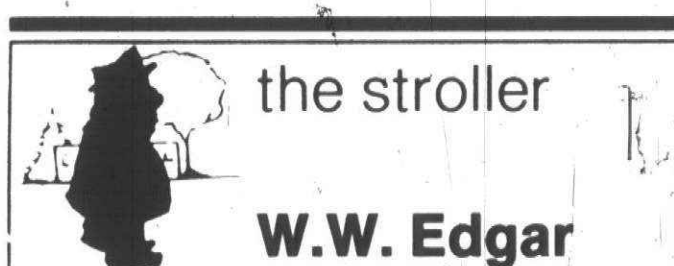

The Stroller remembers sitting at ringside in Chicago when Joe Louis was scheduled to fight one of the Windy City heroes, a fellow named King Levinsky.

The fight had gone only a few moments when Louis landed his fists on Levinsky's jaw and the King hit the floor.

He struggled to get up and finally sat on the lower strand of the ring ropes, held up his hand, and called to the referee, "Don't let him hit me any more."

Talk about a laugh. That was the talk of the athletic world for a long time.

AND WAY BACK in the early days of the original Rose Bowl football game, Roy Reigle, a California back, got his name inscribed indelibly in football history when he picked up a fumble and ran toward the enemy goal line. He would have scored a touchdown for the opposition if his teammates hadn't tackled him to avoid that embarrassment.

Then there was the Sunday in Tiger Stadium when the Detroit Lions were playing the Chicago Bears, and Coach Harry Gilmer called on Joe Don Looney to take a message in to the Lion quarterback and got this reply: "If you want a messenger why don't you call Western Union."

Joe wasn't a member of the team long after that.

THEN THERE WAS the day that Milt Plum, a Lion quarterback tossed a pass directly to one of the Green Bay players. That miscue cost the Lions the game. He didn't last long either.

Yes, the sports world is filled with bizarre moments and some entertaining characters. Who could forget the Dean Brothers — Dizzy and Daffy — when the St. Louis Cardinals were in their prime and defeated the Tigers in the 1934 World Series? They provided a laugh a minute.

One of The Stroller's favorites among the Tigers was Dizzy Trout, who always carried a red bandanna handkerchief with him to the pitching mound.

Asked why, he answered, "Did you ever see a bull fighter at work? When he wants to get the bull, mad he just waves the red banner in front of him. I do the same with the batters. When the big guys come up to the plate, I wave the red handkerchief at them. They are like the bulls. They get mad and I slip my fast one by them."

Oh yes, if you are looking for the unusual, you are bound to find it in the area that still provides some wonderful nonsense.

Tim Richard

Potpourri of modest proposals

Some excellent ideas that are too practical ever to be adopted:

At a holiday period, serve the turkey one day prior to the big feast. That will mean leftovers for the main holiday meal.

A group of us concocted this idea the day after Thanksgiving. You can guess what we were eating. And yes, the leftovers tasted better than the main meal.

The main dish that Friday was a casserole of mixed white and dark meat, dressing and mushrooms, all mixed together.

Actually, our group wasn't the first to make this discovery. Huckleberry Finn, when he was being civilized by the widow, noted that her meals were served with the food in separate dishes or on different portions of the plate.

Huck preferred his meals cooked in a single skillet. My old copy of that novel is long gone, but I can remember his words almost exactly:

"The juices slop around together, and things go better."

Ben Franklin, in Poor Richard's Almanac, opined: "Give me yesterday's bread, this day's meat and last year's cider."

Any connoisseur of pea and bean soup knows you make it early in the day, take only a light cup for lunch, don't expect much, try another cup for dinner and expect a bit more.

Next day you and the soup are ready for a big bowl.

Some of the diners at our post-Thanksgiving repast felt cole slaw and potato salad were also better the second day.

One thing that isn't better is warmed-up coffee. Only a few of the most expensive brands hold their flavor when reheated.

"THE WAY most cakes are made," said a friend, "is that there are two inches of cake in a layer and one-third inch of frosting."

"The way a cake should be made," he went on, "is with two inches of frosting and one-third inch of cake."

"HELLO, I'M Selling Junk."

That's the headline on a Mark Bricklin brief in Prevention Magazine of a year ago. Charitable organizations, wrote Bricklin, frequently sell "junk food" — cookies and candy — for their money-raising efforts.

"Why can't they sell useful items like kitchen knife sharpeners, vegetable peelers, brushes and things like that?"

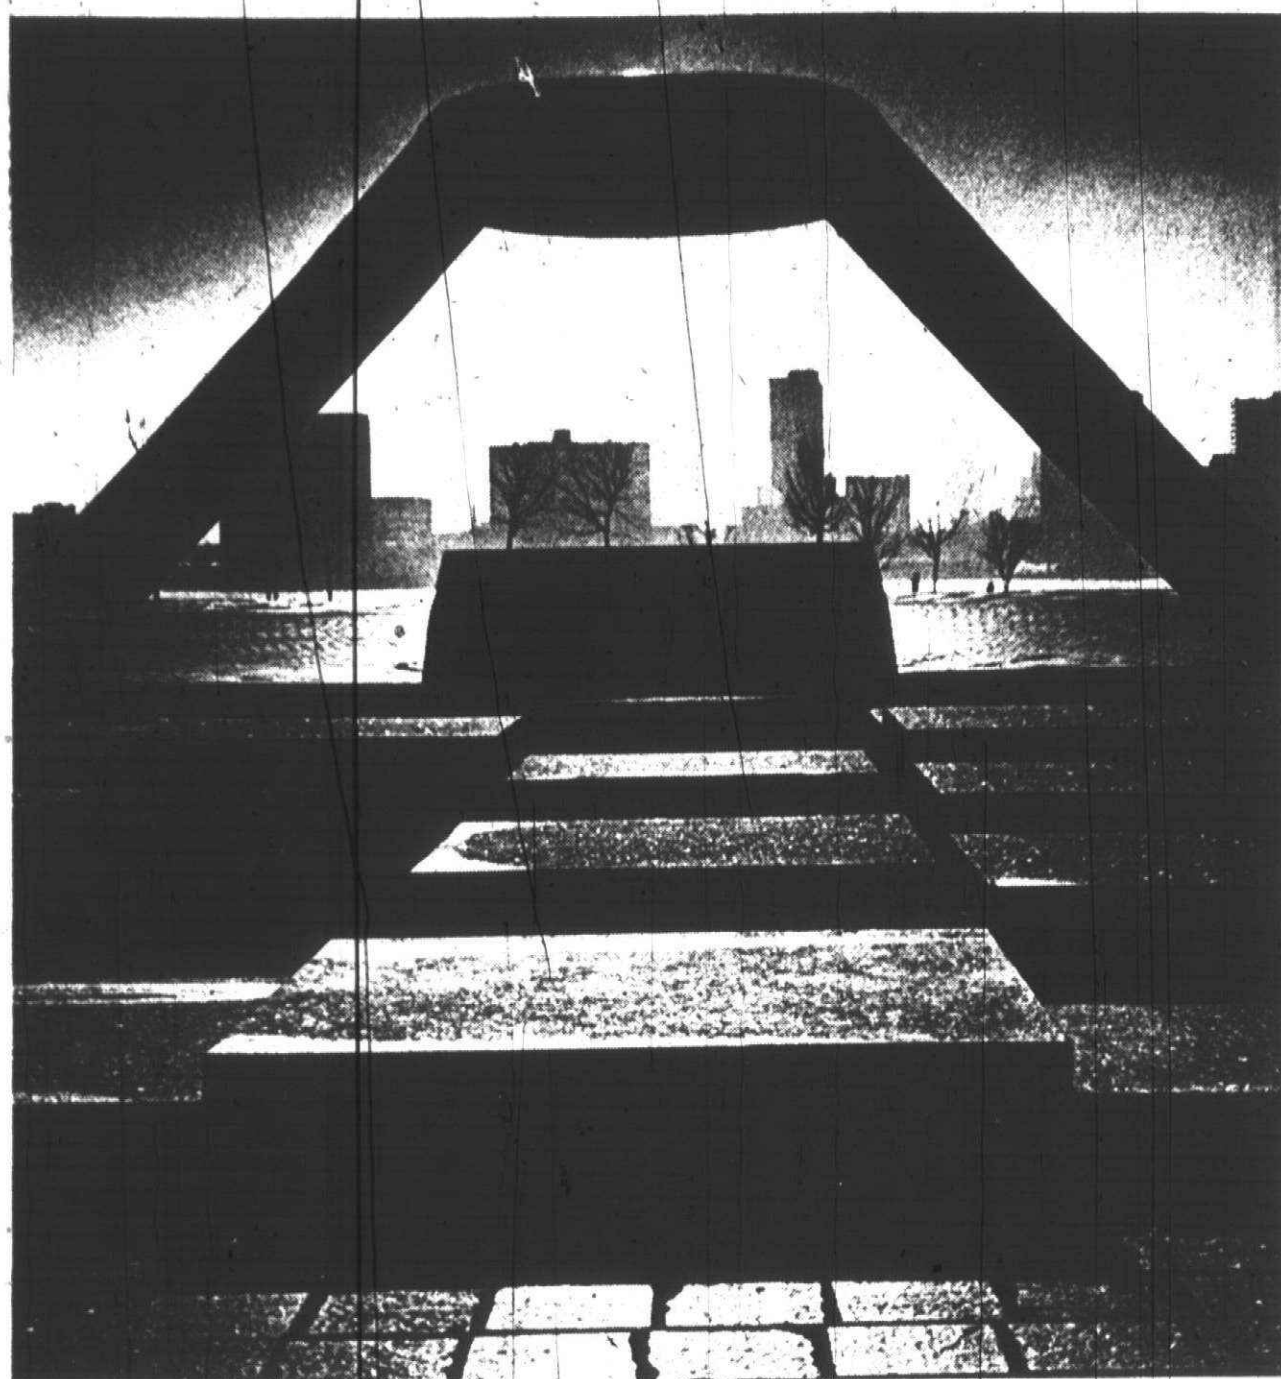

The marketing appeal of a vegetable peeler is certainly limited compared to candy, but his point is well taken. Persons concerned about the economic and nutritional health of America can vote with their dollars by patronizing groups which sell (say) bushels of grapefruit and oranges rather than those which sell junk food.

It's also a good ploy for turning down a group to which you don't care to contribute. Instead of saying, "I gave at the office," tell the sellers, "Candy is bad for you, and I won't have it in my house."

GOOD NEIGHBOR Jim, whose interest in promoting youthful piano performance has been mentioned before in this column, had an original idea worth serious thought but unlikely ever to be adopted.

"Instead of retiring guys in their 60s," he said, "retire them in their 40s, when they're young enough and healthy enough to enjoy golf, fishing and travel. Then when they're 50, let them go back to work for as long as they are able."

The idea has merit in a health sense. It also guarantees most men 10 years of retirement. It would bring into the work force older men with wisdom, experience, fewer family pressures and less inclination toward being-and-sheing on the job.

Don't be slave to meter; use 'zone system' tricks

Two weeks ago, we considered the fundamentals of the zone system in black-and-white photography, pointing out that all light meters read for zone 5 (middle gray). Dark subjects are in low zones, light in high zones.

We also mentioned the need to place certain values in their proper zones. Skin should be placed in zone 6 and your white cat in zone 7.

But you needn't always meter one area, place it in the desired zone and let all other values fall where they will. You can control this, too.

Suppose you are photographing a subject with greater-than-normal brightness range. You want to keep shadow detail in zone 3, but that will put the highlights into zone 9 and you'll lose all detail.

Do you give in and follow the dictates of your light meter? Of course not.

THIS SITUATION can be controlled when you develop the film.

Less development time will not significantly affect values in the lower zones but will noticeably alter negative density in the high zones. This is called "minus" development.

If a subject value which falls in zone 9 is developed to just enough density to print as zone 8, it has been shifted one zone down the scale. This is known as "normal minus one" development (N-1). Remember: "Minus" development compresses the subject values into print range value.

Now let's turn to "flat" subjects, or those with a shorter-than-normal brightness range. To avoid a flat print, give the film additional development time. This is known as "normal-plus" development. N-plus development will move, for example, a zone 7 value to zone 8 print value.

Thus, "plus" development expands subject values into print value range, while "minus" development compresses the values. Other values also shift when plus and minus developments are used.

Keep in mind that high values (above zone 7) are affected most, middle values (zones 4-6) less, and low values (zone 3 and darker) hardly at all. Amounts of time added or subtracted from normal development depend on type of film, developer and so on, but are usually in 10-15 percent increments.

You don't have to use all zones in every photograph. Pictures that contain only the middle zones can capture the mood of a softly lit scene. Conversely, pictures which display only the extreme zones of bright light and deep shadows will convey a feeling of stark reality.

PRE-EXPOSURE is another zone system tool for obtaining optimum negative.

Pre-exposing film (you must have provisions in your camera for double exposures) is actually taking a picture of a gray card. It will add a certain amount of light units to the film. Adding extra light to the low scale values (zones 1-3) will move subject values into print value range when the final exposure is made.

But the same extra light will not significantly affect the high values — thus another way of compressing zones. In practical terms, pre-exposure will enable you to obtain detail in shadow areas without sacrificing detail in the highlights.

In summary: The zone system is a creative and stimulating tool. It brings us back to the basics of photography. It encourages us to think, to plan, to visualize and to produce the finest possible print.

We're all handicapped; accept it graciously

Somerset Maugham, an outstanding novelist of a generation ago, indicated in his autobiography that his stammering was one main reason why he started writing.

A physical defect, he pointed out, can be of utmost value to anyone, especially one who is striving in the arts. It may increase the depth and range of his insight. In his struggle to overcome the handicap, the artist becomes something he otherwise might not have been.

To prove his point, Maugham cited the testimony of other lives and made a convincing case.

The poet Byron had a club foot, novelist Dostoevsky suffered from fits of epilepsy, scientist Pasteur was crippled by a paralytic stroke.

Beethoven, the genius of music, became deaf. Milton, a supreme poet, was blind. Moses, the highest of the prophets, was slow of speech.

So runs the record of biography — much of the greatest in the world is the product of handicapped people.

HOW DID THEY do it? Each of us needs to learn their techniques because all of us are handicapped in some way.

moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

Rare indeed is the person who does not feel a sense of inadequacy, failure or deficiency in some aspect of ability or function. To rebel and sink into self-pity is not the answer. It simply means failure and barrenness.

We must accept ourselves, our powers and our limits, not grudgingly, but graciously.

Since we all have difficulty in accepting the given and are reluctant to face facts, we engage in hypothetical thinking: If things were a little different... if my nose were not so big... if my parents were not so poor... if I had chosen a different profession or vocation... if I had seized the right investment opportunities... if I had not made the mistake of marrying Harry (or Gwendolyn).

How much better the whole prospect would have been if some of the "details" were different.

MATURITY involves acceptance. Each person enters into life with handicaps and imperfections.

A central task each of us faces in the formation of an identity is acceptance of those defects and limitations which are our destiny.

Self-acceptance is a prelude to responsibility and creative change.

It is impossible to delete those deformities and weaknesses which we are all tempted to despise without completely altering the person. If we do not like our lot in life, there are many others like us.

We must beware of the subtle ways in which we cripple ourselves by rejecting the given terms in which life is granted to us.

Furthermore, there are usually some parts of any particular given world which can be changed or mastered by our will. There is almost always an area of freedom available to everyone.

Those creative personalities indicated above — the ones who have suffered from obvious handicaps but succeeded in the arts — have shown us how great and useful life can be despite apparent limitations. What counts is the spirit in which we live, our courage, determination and imagination, our mastery of ourselves and our understanding sympathy for others.

YOU GET GREAT GIFTS AND HIGH INTEREST AT STANDARD FEDERAL SAVINGS

New! Checking Accounts with Interest

Until now, you've never had interest paid on your checking account. But on January 1, 1981, you'll have the chance to take advantage of a brand new service from Standard Federal Savings — checking accounts with interest. In addition to providing savings accounts which pay the highest rate available on insured savings, Standard Federal also offers the opportunity to earn the highest interest allowed on your checking account.

These accounts will earn 5 1/4% annual interest — continuously compounded — adding interest every month to your account for an effective annual yield of 5.467%. This is the highest interest allowed on checking accounts.

You may open an account in any amount. However, with a minimum balance of $500.00 OR an average daily balance of $1,000.00, you may write all the checks you wish, with no monthly service charge. (A $5.00 monthly fee is assessed if you go below the minimum or average requirements).

- Each month you'll receive a detailed statement of your account which lists your checks in numerical order, your deposits, any service charges assessed and the interest earned during the statement period.
- Personalized checks are printed free of charge if you choose not to have your checks returned with your monthly statement. There will be a charge for printing personalized checks if you wish to have your checks returned to you. With either option, you may select a style that provides a carbon copy of each check for your records.

- A permanent record of each check will be kept by Standard Federal Savings. If you need a copy for any reason, microfilm copies of as many as 25 checks per year (or all checks relating to an IRS audit) will be provided at no charge.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS 62 YEARS OF AGE AND OLDER:

Customers 62 years of age and older who have direct deposit of social security or other retirement checks into any Standard Federal Savings account will pay no monthly service charge on their checking accounts.

RIGHT NOW — receive a gift FREE or at big savings just for opening a new checking account with $1,000.00 or more. Gifts are also available for opening or adding $1,000.00 or more to any Standard Federal savings account.

26-Week Money Market Certificate*

Minimum Balance $10,000.00

The interest rate is determined weekly and has three options for payment of interest: interest can be paid at maturity, or paid on the last day of each month and automatically transferred to a 5 1/2% regular savings account, or paid by check every month. Call (313) 643-9583 for the current rate.

2 1/2-Year Money Market Certificate*

Minimum Balance $100.00

The interest rate is determined bi-weekly and compounded continuously giving the highest return available on these accounts. Call (313) 643-9583 for the current rates.

Non-negotiable Savings Certificate*

Minimum Balance $100,000.00

Terms range from 14 days to 5 years with interest rates quoted by Standard Federal Savings on a daily basis. Call (313) 643-9562 for current rates.

Retirement Savings Accounts*

IRA is a personal, tax-sheltered retirement savings program. It is available for any working person who is not currently participating in a private or government retirement plan. The Keogh Plan, a tax-sheltered retirement plan for self-employed individuals, is also available.

*Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate accounts and also prohibit the compounding of interest on 26-week money market certificates.
The rate established at the time these accounts are opened is the rate in effect for the full term of the certificate.

Central honors Salem gridder

Tony Vitale, a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was named Central Michigan University's most improved offensive football player at a recent awards banquet.

Vitale, a junior at Central, played offensive guard for the Mid American Conference champion Chippewas.

Joe Maiorana, a graduate of Detroit Catholic Central and another offensive guard, received a consistency award. Kurt Dobronski, a defensive end from Dearborn Fordson, also received a consistency award.

Chuck Stiver, a senior tackle from Port Huron Northern High School, was named Central's most valuable player by his teammates. He also received the fans' Most Outstanding Defensive Player award, and the coaches' outstanding defensive lineman and leadership motivation awards.

CHIPPEWA QUARTERBACK Kevin Northrup was named the most outstanding offensive back, and also received the fans' Outstanding Offensive Player award.

Robert Jackson, a senior safety from Allendale, was picked as the outstanding defensive back, and senior tackle Marty Smallbone, from Dowagiac, was named the outstanding offensive lineman.

The most improved defensive player was junior monsterback Mike McElrath from Kalamazoo Loy Norrix.

The top rookie was junior college transfer swingback Willie Heard of Detroit Southwestern. Tom Hutchinson, a senior defensive end from Watervliet, received the school's Scholar-Athlete award.

Tigers play basketball

A basketball team consisting of professional baseball players — including Detroit Tigers Lynn Jones, Dave Roze-ma, Milt Wilcox and Mark Wagner — will play a benefit game at 7 p.m. Dec. 13 in the Plymouth Salem gymnasium against members of the Plymouth Canton Junior Basketball Association.

Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students. There will be an advance sale Dec. 8 at Trading Post Sporting Goods and Canton Office Supply.

Other members of the team include Rick Leach, former quarterback for the University of Michigan, Jim Schmakiel, Steve McCatty, Jim Essian and Dave Steffan.

Plymouth resident Perry Younce was recently named Rookie of the Year at Flatrock Speedway. Younce, 19, is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School.

Younce reaps the fruit of his labors

Rookie honors reward hard work

By BOB GROSS

Life in the fast lane isn't all hot cars and glamour for Plymouth resident Perry Younce.

It's a lot of sweat and hard work. Younce works full time doing cement work for the T.H. Russell Co. to support his avocation — he races stock cars at Flatrock Speedway.

And he was recently named that speedway's Rookie of the Year.

But he didn't get there overnight. Younce has had a remarkably long career for a someone only 19 years old. He started racing motorcycles on an oval dirt track seven years ago.

"When I was about 9 or 10, my dad was a cop, and he used to get to go to the motorcycle races to do crowd control," said Younce.

Younce's father, Clyde, then a patrolman with the Wayne police force, liked what he saw and decided to get his young son into the act.

"HE BOUGHT ME a Harley Davidson 125," said Younce, "and we went up to the Autocity Speedway in Flint. I guess I was about 10, 11 years old."

"In 1977 (at the age of 16) I turned pro," he continued. "There was a circuit, and we went all over. Every Wednesday we raced in Chicago."

Younce continued racing motorcycles through 1978, but eventually gave it up.

"It went pretty good," said Younce, "but not good enough to make any money."

Younce got out of motorcycle racing after 1978. He didn't really plan to get into stock car racing, but he got the itch.

Last year, Younce raced at Flatrock in the street stock division. Street stockers are cars very much like those you see on the road, only they've been modified by the racers.

"WE WORKED two weeks solid to get ready for the first race," said Younce. "We didn't even know what we were doing, just going by what guys told us."

Younce moved up to the super stockers this year. About the only similarity between a super stocker and a street car is that they share the same basic body outline.

Younce's car looks a lot like a Camaro with an overbite. The body is made of Fiberglas, except the bumpers and the front doors, which are made of aluminum. And there's a 355 cubic centimeter Chevrolet engine under the hood.

Bentley has laughter with Dearborn Edsel

"He plays a running game against a lot of teams and has a lot of success with it, but he can't run with us."

Bentley was off and running in the first quarter, doubling Edsel's output and taking an 18-9 lead at the end of the quarter.

KIM ARCHER AND Carla Campbell, who have led Bentley much of the year, made things happen for the Bulldogs in the first quarter.

And so did Ann Roy who finished as Bentley's leading scorer with 20. She hit on seven-of-nine shots from the floor and was perfect from the free throw line, going six for six.

Bentley again scored 18 points in the second quarter, putting the game out of Edsel's reach, 36-19, at the intermission.

The Bulldogs outscored the Thunderbirds 13-12 and 11-6 in the last two quarters, coasting to the win.

Archer joined Roy in double figures with 14 points. Linda Jagger was high for Edsel with 10.

Rocks reach regional final

AND THEY INCREASED it to 42-32 at the start of the fourth quarter.

But Ford, led by Browner, came back. The Trojans scored six consecutive points, and cut the lead to 42-38.

Salem, however, got the points when the Rocks needed them. Ford, while trying to press to get the ball back, left the back door open for several easy baskets.

The Trojans found themselves in the position of having to foul to get the ball back. All their hopes went down the drain with two minutes left when Browner fouled out of the game.

"One of the things we wanted to do was make sure she was isolated on the ball," said Blohm, "so she had to make the foul. She's a nice player."

FORD FOULED five times in the last two minutes trying to get the ball back.

But Salem either made the foul shots, or got the ball back.

"One of our things," Blohm said, "was if we could get close to the ball, we'll tip it back to the foul shooter."

Salem was able to run out the clock and hang on for a 50-46 win.

Jacque Merrifield led the Rocks with 14 points. Carol Ross was right behind her with 13 points, and Sobkow had 12.

Tracy Nesbitt had 10 for Ford in addition to Browner's 22.

The win puts Salem into tonight's final against Bentley. Game time is 7:30 p.m. in the Southfield gym.

Southfield High School is at 10 Mile and Lahser.

Bowlers buy van for VA patients

The three bowling associations in the Detroit area — the bowling proprietors, the women's association and the men's association — have registered another strike for charity.

During the past week, they combined forces to purchase a new van to transport patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital to Thunder-bowl Lanes during the week and serve as the means of getting them around on other errands.

The cost of the van was $38,000 and replaces one that has been in use for seven years.

JOE BRASILI of Allen Park is the new old-timers champion. He won the title last Saturday when he rolled 645 on games of 212, 256 and 177 at Thunderbowl in the annual reunion of the veterans.

The oldest bowler who competed in the field of 515 was Russ Fulfer. He is 86 years old and put together games of 148, 191 and 145 for 484.

GEORGIANA DICKSHOTT, who set a new high single in the ladies classic at Wonderland Lanes when she left up the No. 4 pin and settled for a 279, didn't reign alone very long.

Last Tuesday night, Sue Johnson matched the 279 and added games of 177 and 161 for a 617. She didn't pace the loop, however, as Marilyn Wixom put together games of 213, 213 and 233 for 659.

FIVE NEW MEMBERS were inducted into the 700 club in the area during the past week.

Heading the group was Bob Goike Jr., who posted a 745 in the mixed classic at Westland. His big count was made possible by a finishing game of 278.

In the Wonderland Classic, Jim Knoll opened with a 265 to post a 726. A few lanes away, Tom Novotny used a 252 starter to get a 701.

At Plaza Lanes, Bruce Brown, bowling in the Hydromatic league, opened with 256 and closed with 267 for 723, and Don Parks had a 277 opener in the Father and Son League at Merri Bowl to go with games of 233 and 194 for 704.

LORETTA MARSCH walked off with top place in the Livonia Ladies Classic when she won the second of the three-game series with 181-32-220 and then the series with 547-96-643.

In the other games, Caroline Muderks took the opener with 178-25-213 and Delores Dawhan captured the third with 197-40-237.

MARY MOHACSEI again showed the way in the Ladies Classic at Merri-Bowl when she posted a 646 to beat out Ann Trokie, who had a 629. Lorraine Nagy landed third with 619.

In the Invitational Doubles, Judy Martin was high with 599 until Jan Wright finished bowling with an identical score to earn a deadlock.

In the senior citizens loop, Ernest Avie, who is 78 years old, had a middle game of 226 for a 560. Joining the high scorers was Martin McInerney, who had a 278 in the handicappers league.

DAVE AZEEZ was high man for the week at Woodland Lanes. Bowling in the Ford league, he posted a 641. His nearest rival was Fred Hopper with a 234 in 618.

In the Monday specials, Walter Lizer was top man with 560, and Sam Rack paced the seniors with 604.

DOUBLE-CENTURY figures were common at Garden Lanes.

Pam Anderson paced the Ladies Classic with 632, Sandy Berrington topped the senior house league with 621, and Chuck Seave was high in the County Road Commission circuit with 650.

In the Moose league, Bill Turnow posted a 627 to beat John Hockstad by a single pin, and Paul Hawlic was third with 624.

In the Vinco league, top honors went to Frank Cernik with 674. His nearest rival was Don Webber with 632.

LARRY FRANZ had an easy time in the Pile Drivers league at Plaza Lanes. He rolled 654.

Tom Hislop had a 233 middle game for 663 to top the business and industrial league. Dave Kauppi had a 266 game in the middle to land second with 637.

Hit deep to improve game

How many times have you heard a friend or a volleyball instructor tell you to hit with depth to win? And how many times have you tried to hit the ball deeper by smashing it harder and watched your shot land behind the baseline or into the net?

After losing a few points you develop a complex, get timid and scared and your shots start landing around the service line. Your opponent moves in and pounds in an easy shot for a winner.

Chances are no one has ever taken the time to explain how to get depth on your shots. As with many things, the principle is easy to understand, but you must practice until you feel comfortable with the shot, as comfortable as you now feel hitting short.

THE FIRST PART of learning depth is getting the proper height to lift the ball over the net. Most people aim low over the net because they think the best players aim low. That kind of thinking prevents them from achieving consistently deep shots. When you are hitting ground strokes from the baseline, your shots should rise from 4 to 6 feet above the net. Yes, 4 to 6 feet.

A high percentage of balls hit low drop into the net. And the balls that do get over will, for the most part, drop short. The next time you go out on the court, draw an imaginary line high above the net and aim for it. You will be surprised at how many balls land closer to the baseline and stay in. A large percentage of balls will drop in rather than go out.

You must develop a feel for hitting with depth. When the ball is on the strings, you must feel it. After you have hit enough balls, you will begin feeling depth. You have to feel comfortable with depth, and the only way to achieve that feeling is to practice.

FORGET THE POWER until you develop the proper feel and control.

Power is only as good as the amount of control you have. Most players think only about hitting the ball hard, harder and hardest. They never learn that control, not power, is the secret of winning.

The most important factor while learning is to be steady. At first make your objective to get all your shots between the service line and the baseline.

The next step is to place a row of balls across the court halfway between the service line and the baseline and practice until all your shots are dropping into the area that borders the baseline.

When you have achieved consistency and depth, begin trying for placement. Work on your crosscourt. Hit every forehand to your opponent's forehand.

Set a goal for yourself of 10 crosscourt forehands without missing, and then do the same down the line. Increase your number in increments of 10 until you reach 50 or 100 without missing. Next practice the same with the backhand.

How do you change from hitting crosscourt to down the line? It's easy. Just make contact a moment later. Don't change the positions of the wrist, shoulders and feet. The same procedure applies to the backhand.

Never forget that to achieve depth, hit the ball higher over the net. It is far better to see the ball drop beyond the baseline in practice than to hit short.

During a match, if your deep shots are going out it is much easier to correct by hitting shorter than it is to be hitting short and reaching for depth.

After you get comfortable, add power if you feel it's important to your winning. More than likely you will learn what most players do after they gain control of their deep rallies — power is not needed to win when you hit with depth.

Franklin cagers get ready for year

Coach Jim McIntyre and his Livonia Franklin boys' basketball team will be spending more time on the road this coming season than a long-haul trucker.

At least that's the case for the first part of the year. The Patriots will play eight of their first 10 games on the road starting with their opener Friday at Plymouth Canton.

McIntyre does have two starters back from last year's team to take up the strain of playing in unfriendly territory — seniors Jeff Wojcik and Ron Lohman.

Lohman, a 6-0 guard-forward, is entering his third year with the Franklin varsity. Wojcik is a 6-0 guard.

Another senior who should see plenty of action is 6-3 center-forward Dave Folsom. Folsom played some last year in a part-time role.

Seniors Tom Pollard and Gil Guzman, both 5-11 guards, should also have plenty of playing time.

Newcomers to the team include Franklin's tallest player, 6-4 junior center Terry Buchanan. Bob Hart is a 5-11 junior guard-forward, and Bob Stebbins is a 6-2 sophomore center-forward.

"We're not an extremely big ball club in comparison to some of the other teams," said McIntyre. "We're as big as we've been."

McIntyre hopes to make up for a lack of team height with team speed and quickness.

"We're very quick, so we're going to get it out and go," he said. "We will set up if necessary, but we've had a power run offense the past two years."

McIntyre will also take advantage of those team attributes on defense by going with a press and man-to-man.

Franklin is a member of the Northwest Suburban League which, according to McIntyre, "should be a very competitive league. Most of the teams are coming back with senior-type ball clubs."

McIntyre did give a slight edge to Redford Union and Westland John Glenn in the league race, but cautioned that it could very well be a dogfight.

REDFORD TEMPLE CHRISTIAN won a state championship last year. No, it wasn't the Michigan High School Athletic Association Class D championship. The Redford team won the Michigan Christian Schools Athletic Association championship.

And, according to coach Paul Clough, Temple Christian should have a good shot at defending that title. The Patriots return four starters from last year's 26-2 squad.

Leading the list of Temple Christian returnees is 6-0 senior point guard Kerrie Gilliam.

When you're down, go out and buy some birdseed

By LEM MESEE

When you were feeling low, did you ever splurge on something just to get even with Fate?

We've all done it. A person with a miserable job situation or a family problem goes out and buys herself a hat, or himself a pipe. They feel better and kind of get even with the world.

I had the blues like that one year when the first bad winter snowfall hit. For some crazy reason, I went out and got a bird feeder.

Our subdivision was still relatively new. The developer had knocked down every tree, shrub and weed in sight, and it was several years before we saw even a few sparrows.

To those of a snobbish bent, sparrows are the bums of the ornithological world. Their songs aren't much. But on a bleak morning when the sparrows at your feeding station are the only signs of warm-blooded cheer — well, you learn to appreciate those little brown creatures.

Our offering was a packaged birdseed from the supermarket. Later we tried sunflower seeds, but we had no takers. Our subdivision just didn't have enough cover for a great enough variety of birds to attract sunflower seed eaters.

Since then I have stumbled across a chart from the local Cooperative Extension Service explaining what kinds of food are eaten by which kinds of winter birds. Naturally, you can't attract species of birds if they aren't in your vicinity.

Here's the menu:

Mixed seeds are favored by the sparrows, juncos, goldfinch, pine siskin, cardinal, snow bunting, purple finch, pine grosbeak, redpoll and horned lark.

Sunflower seeds are yummy to the chickadee, nuthatch, cardinal, bluejay, evening grosbeak, crossbill, tufted titmouse, and goldfinch. Local chipmunks and flying squirrels may also go for them.

Beef suet, hard fat, peanut butter and cottage cheese are favored by the woodpeckers, nuthatches, chickadee, tufted titmouse, brown creeper, golden-crowned kinglet, ruby-crowned kinglet, bluejay, starling and the squirrel.

Soybeans, wheat, oats, small corn, millet and larger seeds are favored by such gamebirds as bobwhite quail, ruffed grouse and pheasant, along with mourning dove, meadowlark and small mammals.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing about running a feeding station, though, is you can't just do it as the mood strikes you.

If you want lots of customers, start feeding in the fall. That encourages birds to stick around.

And you can't retreat and forget your little friends when the snow is a yard deep. They need your help most when you are most inclined to lethargy in front of the TV set.

The Cooperative Extension Service came up with a hint I hadn't thought of. When there's snow on the ground, birds have plenty of water. But sometimes our ground is bare and frozen. Birds need water.

So here's their ingenious advice for a watering station: Start with a large tinware funnel supported by a drain tile. Run an outdoor electrical cord and light socket through the drain tile and into the funnel. Insert a 50-watt bulb in the socket.

Then place a pan of water on top of the funnel. The lighted bulb throws off enough heat and the funnel channels it, to keep the water from freezing. You'll have to let the bulb burn day and night.

So what if the whole process costs a few bucks for seed and a few cents for electricity? When you're feeling glum and gray on a glum, gray day, a bunch of birds at your feeding station makes you feel as good as a new hat or a new pipe.

Restaurant break-in nets $1,300

Thirteen hundred dollars in currency and between $100-$200 in coins was stolen from the Little Caesar's Restaurant at 1492 Sheldon in Plymouth Township last Sunday in an early morning break-in.

The suspects entered the building sometime between 2 and 9 a.m. Sunday through an unlit alleyway entrance, said Det. Richard Fenton of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

It's believed the suspects or suspect used a tire iron or crowbar to pry open the rear door, leading to the store's office and then pried open a second inside door to reach a cash register which held Saturday night's till.

Once inside, coin boxes in two pinball machines were also forced open. Between $100-$200 was taken from the machines.

The break-in, the second one since last summer, was detected Sunday morning by a store employee. The building does not have a burglar alarm system.

According to Fenton, the previous unsolved break-in involved the theft of coin boxes in the pinball machines, which were pried open with silverware. Entry then was gained through the rear door.

The VIEW
from
CANTON CENTER

TONIGHT'S THE BIG NIGHT

"My Oh MI," a musical revue about life in Michigan (MI) will have its world premiere performance at the True Grist Ltd. in Homer (population 1,600 — south of I-94 between Battle Creek and Jackson).

Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 and the curtain will go up at 8:30.

The revue's composers and lyricists, Charles Burr and Bobb Jones were in town for Thanksgiving with Charles' parents, Ruth and Sanford Burr.

Rather exhausted from preparing a revue which has 23 numbers — including a nostalgic song about the Mackinac ferry, a love song to the state, a folk ballad about a ghost town in the Upper Peninsula and a geographic song about cities with strange names — the young men looked as if they needed rest and good home cooking.

They had been working 14 to 16 hours a day, wrapping up last minute details. One of the more important of these details was transcribing the music from piano to paper.

by
ELLIE GRAHAM

Their moods changed from weary optimism to tempered enthusiasm. But all in all, they were very excited about the production.

THEY MET WHEN both were drama students at Eastern Michigan University. Bobb was an exchange student from Coventry, England where he attended the University of Warwick.

Jean Schultheiss and I went over to see Chuck, Bobb and Linda Dwyer in "Tuscaloosa's Calling Me but I'm not Going" in Quirk Auditorium at EMU. They were terrific.

The collaborators said they were hoping to get Linda and her husband, Randy Gianetti, for their revue. But, the couple is involved in "The Robber Bridegroom" at the Attic Theater. They had been down to Greetown to see the show and thought it was great.

A goodly part of "My Oh MI" was written with Chuck and Bobb talking over the telephone. Chuck was at the Boar's Head Theater and Bobb at EMU.

The collaborators said every tune is new. There are blues, folk ballads, a madrigal, a duet by the former Cherry Festival Queens, a vaudeville-type song and a dance which deals with no-fault divorce. The Zilwaukee Bridge is the locale of a vacation segment and even the state's professional sports teams come into the picture in a number entitled "Bottom of the Column."

"I HAVE NEVER studied so much history in my life," said Bobb, referring to his preparations for writing.

Dan Yuraitis of Chicago is director and choreographer of the revue. Jim Miller of True Grist is producer. "In fact he's backing it with his own money," added Chuck.

The cast includes two men and two women, one of whom is Paula Kline, another EMU classmate.

Musical accompaniment will be provided by a trio — piano, saxophone and drums.

The revue will be presented Thursdays through Sundays Dec. 4 to Jan. 18. There also is a Wednesday matinee.

Chuck said Homer is about an hour and five minutes from here. They take I-94 through Jackson to M-60, then south west to Homer where the dinner-theater in the old grist mill is easy to spot. Telephone number for information or reservations is (517) 568-4151.

I just hope "My Oh MI" becomes a hit and plays in every corner of the upper and lower peninsulas.

mJ. PATRICK WRIGHT will be in Volume II (in Emma's on Penniman Avenue) from 12-2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 13 autographing copies of his book "On a Clear Day, You Can See General Motors."

mLIONS CLUB of Plymouth is going to provide a one-year subscription of Reader's Digest Large Print Edition to the residents of Tonquish Creek Manor.

mPATRICIA BRAY has resigned as president of the Plymouth Theatre Guild for health reasons. Joe Marsh is taking over as president; Robin Galick is vice president; and Clemmie Cyburt is back on the board serving as recording secretary.

Dollmaker and students bring home the ribbons

By SHERRY KAHAN

One visit to Bea Roderick's Livonia home and you know all about her hobby.

Walk past a bedroom and you see dolls. Head down to the basement. More dolls. All over the house, dolls, dolls, dolls.

And on many occasions, that house is the scene of a doll-making class. Mrs. Roderick's instruction must be good, because in a Detroit Ceramic Show exhibit she and several of her students took top awards for their recreations of old-fashioned dolls.

Among the student ribbon winners are Helen Haight of Farmington who took the Freddie, the nickname given the exhibit's best of show award. Betty Manthey of Plymouth won a second in the porcelain doll category. Grace Kabel of Plymouth won a third for a French Doll, and Helen Darrian of Livonia won an honorable mention for a German doll.

Then there was Mrs. Haight's granddaughter, 12-year-old Michelle Daum, who picked up a first in the children's division with a Googlee doll.

Add in the first place and best of section award Mrs. Roderick herself won for a Pouty doll, and consider an earlier award won by Olga Rigsby who drives over regularly from Riverview, and you have an impressive array of dollmaking talent concentrated in the class.

THE STUDIO CLASS involves a lot of concentration on the part of the women. Join the group around Mrs. Roderick's table and you may see Mrs. Manthey brushing a faint blush of health onto her doll's face or see Mrs. Haight drawing eyebrows, ever so carefully.

"The eyebrows of the French dolls are the devil to do," she notes. "I like best to do French ones. They are so 'We have to have a doll authentic or she doesn't let us out of here. Sometimes we can spend a whole session doing eyelashes. You get it crooked and you have to wipe it off and start again.'

— Betty Manthey

hard; it gives you a feeling of accomplishment."

The dolls the women make are replicas of those fashioned in the latter part of the 19th century and the early part of the 20th.

If the antique originals were purchased, they might cost up to $7,000. Prize-winning reproductions are worth about $200, Mrs. Roderick estimates.

Her students feel she gives top-notch instruction in this art that has made tremendous gains in popularity.

"We have to have a doll authentic or she doesn't let us out of here," said Mrs. Manthey. "It's a reflection on her as a teacher if it doesn't look right. Sometimes we can spend a whole session on doing eyelashes. You get it crooked and you have to wipe it off and start again."

Mrs. Rigsby said he has studied china painting "and it's amazing what this woman brings out — it's professional."

MRS. RODERICK said she got into the craft almost accidentally.

"My husband, Bob, and I had a gift shop," she explained, "and we found we had a mold that looked like our little girl, Mona. So I got the mold, and now here I am in the teaching business."

Before the teaching, of course, came a lot of painstaking effort to learn the craft.

She found out the variety of ways in which reproduction dolls can be made.

Some have porcelain heads and bodies, legs and arms made of composition material. Others are all porcelain and much more breakable.

Mrs. Roderick and her husband started pouring their own composition bodies in a variety of sizes.

Three years ago they moved to Livonia, and a neighbor here who saw Mrs. Roderick's dolls suggested that she teach dollmaking at Greenfield Village. She carried her treasures there and was hired.

Her classes at the village are given Tuesday evenings. Then the demand for instruction grew, so she now teaches two-hour home classes Monday and Tuesday evenings and Monday mornings. Her daughter, Carmelle Bourbeau, takes over Tuesday evenings. The cost is $3 a session, and those interested can sign up by calling Mrs. Roderick at 421-8376.

"I LIKE to start a new girl off with a baby doll," she said. "They work on blushing, eyelashes, eyebrows, mouth and hair, so they get a feel for the whole doll."

Mrs. Manthey, who is president of the Three Cities Art Club, said she had found this new art a bit addictive.

"You start out by wanting to make one doll for a granddaughter, and you get hooked," she added. "You see more and more and you have to have them.

Betty Manthey's porcelain doll was awarded second place in the Detroit Ceramic Show. She gives credit to her teacher, Bea Roderick of Livonia, who is an uncompromising perfectionist. (Staff photo by Art Emanuele)

Your collection grows by size and nationality — French, German, Oriental."

Mrs. Haight noted that she found a doll that resembled her grandson, Kevin, and made it. "Then I made a girl to go with him," she added. "She looked like his sister, Michele."

Companionship becomes an important part of the classes, the women agreed.

The whole class winced one day when a crash rocked the studio. A baby doll being made by Dorothy Abbott, who drives in from Ann Arbor, had fallen off a self and crashed.

"I thought I had lost a real baby," she mourned.

Mrs. Haight nodded agreement.

"We really put our hearts into these things," she said. "You really get attached to them as you work. That's because you pour so much effort into them. I can hardly wait to take them home."

Jayne Doyle to compete in snowmobile marathon

Plymouth resident Jayne Doyle, Michigan District Junior Civitan governor, will compete in the Barrie Sno-Do in Barrie, Ontario Sunday, Jan. 25. The fact that Doyle would be a participant was announced by Robert Bichler, director of youth activities for Civitan International, at world headquarters in Birmingham, Ala.

The Barrie Sno-Do 100 is an annual fundraiser for the Barrie Civitan Club. The 100-mile snowmobile course takes each entrant on a challenging course through small villages, forests and fields. Each driver is sponsored for each mile he or she completes. Each is checked in at several points along the course of the seven-hour marathon.

Doyle's participation marks the sixth year that a United States entrant has made the Canadian endurance run. She is being sponsored by the Junior and Senior Civitans of the Michigan District as well as by merchants and businessmen of Plymouth.

JAYNE IS the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Doyle of Plymouth. She was elected district governor of the Michigan District Junior Civitans last spring.

The 17-year-old is a senior at Plymouth Canton High School.

She has ridden in a snowmobile just twice in her life but hopes to get some practice between now and Jan. 25.

"If we get some snow," she added. "We go down to Toronto on Friday, the 23rd, and we will have some practice in Barrie on Saturday. There will be 22 district governors in the marathon, some from down south who have never even seen snow, so it won't be too bad.

JAYNE DOYLE

"After all, it's not a race, you just have to finish the course. They will provide the snowmobiles and the snowmobile suits for the marathon. We have a friend who has a snowmobile and I'll need all the help I can get."

During the month of December she will be collecting pledges and sponsors from merchants, businesses and residents of the Plymouth-Canton area.

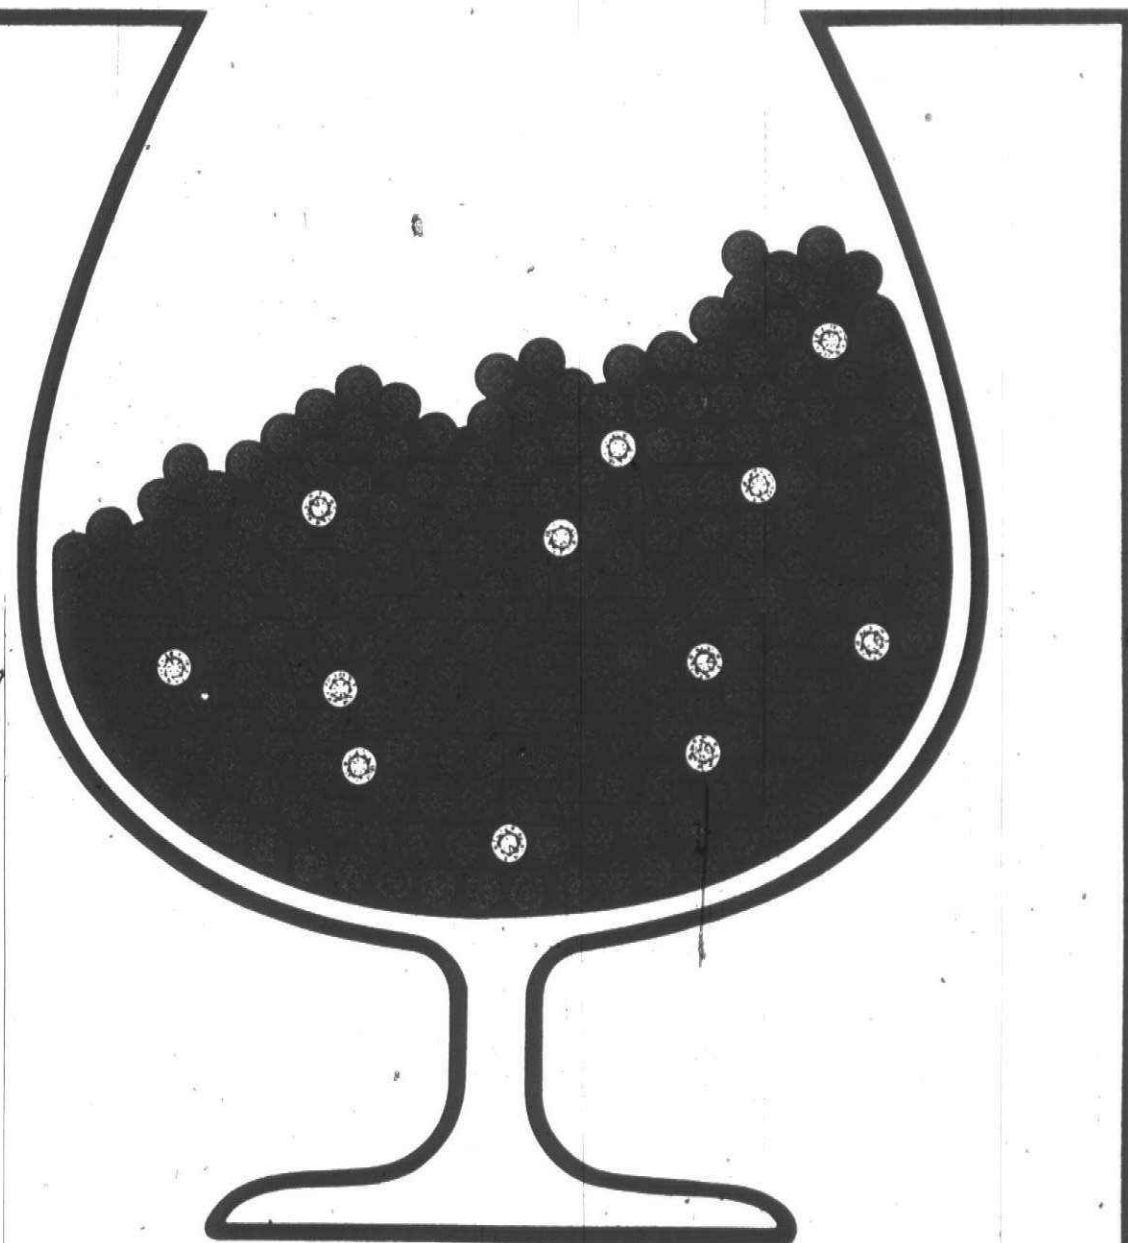

All proceeds from her participation will be given to the Prevention Campaign of the Junior Civitan Association for Retarded Citizens. Junior Civitan International has pledged $35,000 to this campaign to help prevent mental retardation.

AS GOVERNOR, Jayne Doyle spends much time helping start new clubs and spreading the word about Junior Civitans throughout the state.

"It does take a lot of time. I have two advisors, the district Civitan governor in Lansing and Ron Kulas, who lives in Canton Township and is a member of the Westland Civitan Club."

On the weekend after Thanksgiving she went to Lansing to take part in a 24-hour dance-a-thon.

Persons who would like to sponsor her in the snowmobile marathon can call her, 453-6257, or mail pledges to her at 9429 South Main Street, Plymouth.

Teachers hit road rally trail

How would you like to follow turkey tracks through a bowl of mashed sweet potatoes? This was one of several interesting clues in three recent road rallies.

"The Turkey Trot" was the title of the first scavenger hunt. Another clue was delicately placed inside a chicken drumstick. Several other interesting places of frustration were encountered at Fox Hills Country Club, the City Park, a butcher shop and Kentucky Fried Chicken carry-out.

When you are hungry and harassed all evening, minutes turn into hours. This intriguing rally was planned by Jim DeKiere, Joanna Brown, Elaine Quinn and Kathy Tosolan.

The winners were Alice and Dan Chrenko, accompanied by Toni and Mark Zink. They forfeited the first place prize because they have already put on so many rallies that they were not interested in another prize. The second place team of Kathy and Nick Petlicke and partners Gloria and Charlie Weaver also declined the awards.

Two 14-pound turkeys were presented to Bonnie and Bill Quillen and Carol and Tom Carr. They are eager to plan the next rally which will be some time next spring for the Eriksen School Teachers.

The last place team of Marguerite and Dick Harr with teammates Cathy and Jeff Fordell received loser buttons which read, "Don't follow Me - I'm lost" and "Turkey of the Year." The outing concluded at Amantea's Italian Restaurant where ralliers enjoyed a fine buffet and shared their experiences.

THE SECOND RALLY in our area presented a few sticky situations.

Janet Christensen, Pat Butzin and Judy Stone cored several apples, inserted a clue, dipped the apple in a caramel sauce and rolled it in a nut mixture.

It is quite a dilemma when you know where the clue is but you don't know how to do it until you read it. There were other strange places for clues to be hidden in this rally.

In their pack of information the entrants received a tape. It was a recording of the song "Adieu" from the Sound of Music sung by Marcia Porterfield, Bard Church and Lynn Opatry. Another interesting envelope gave instructions to get out your wallets and search for a $100 bill to determine the name of the president whose picture appears on it. The same question was asked of other bill denominations.

Several clues were written in French and German for a foreign touch to the adventuresome evening.

The first place team deserves a lot of credit for completing the course in record time. They were Brooke Dis-brow, Jim Marchio and Georgia Schutz. Everyone ended up at Lynn Opatry's home on Bartlett Drive for an array of food and drink. This is one way of combating teacher burn-out for the Pioneer Middle School teachers who participated in this enjoyable rally.

Being a veteran of road rallies myself, I have never had a clue that took me nowhere.

THE THIRD ROAD event was planned by Marguerite and Gerard Vollrath, Bev and Graham Liable along with Marilyn and Bob Thams.

This rally was planned for the teachers at the CEP. It was very strategic and totally economic for all who decided to enter.

Many of the clues were in downtown Plymouth, starting at Kellogg Park, with trying to find a specific name etched in the cement. They were able to discover many facts pertaining to the difficult questions by walking in a four block area. Old Village was another confusing place to meet other rally entrants. Then off to Northville to a Ford Plant that is no longer a Ford Plant.

The lively group ended up at the Cypress Gardens in Canton for a tempting buffet.

The first place car carried a computer math teacher. The other participants attributed victory to that fact.

Liz and Ron Carlson riding with Denise Gimpel and Bill Schroeder were in the first place car. Each couple received a $10 gift certificate from the Cheese and Wine Barn along with 1/2 bushel of apples. Brian and Carol Schwall accompanied by Liz and Steve Van Westenburg took the second prize of 1/2 bushel of apples for each couple.

It was an exciting evening for all who participated.

Ooops! I almost forgot the last place car of Alice and Dan Chrenko and Toni and Mark Zink. Each received a megaphone as a prize.

Remember this happy foursome declined the first place prize in an earlier rally because they were such experienced ralliers.

I HOPE everyone will support the Canton Goodfellows in their annual Newspaper Day Dec. 6. Needy families in our area will receive gifts and food baskets. If you can volunteer two hours of your time that day please call John Burdziak at 459-1313.

THE MONTHLY meeting of the Canton Coupon Clippers will be Dec. 10. This is the last time they will meet at the Fire Station on Cherry Hill and Canton Center roads. The ladies appreciate the courtesy extended to them at the station but will meet, in the future, in the Canton Library.

Slater-Collins

Jim and Marcia Slater of Richfield Avenue, Livonia, announce the engagement of their daughter Eileen to Keith Collins, son of Rosemary Collins of Old Salem Street, Plymouth, and the late William B. Collins.

The bride-elect is a 1974 graduate of Churchill High School and attended the University of Michigan. She is studying nursing at Bronson Methodist Hospital in Kalamazoo and will graduate in March. Her fiancé graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1975 and is taking classes in civil engineering at Schoolcraft College.

They plan to marry May 23 in St. Paul Presbyterian Church, Livonia.

WHAT IS CONCEPT THERAPY?

Concept-Therapy is a practical, workable philosophy of life which teaches man not only to "KNOW HIMSELF" but how to adapt himself constructively to the environment in which he must live and work. Thoroughly understood and properly applied in everyday living, it brings health instead of illness, abundance instead of poverty, peace and happiness instead of discord and confusion.

Newcomers decorate

They may not have lived in the community very long, but members of the Plymouth Newcomers Club, their husbands and children showed civic pride and participation when they spent a Saturday morning decorating Kellogg Park. Those ribbons, garlands and bows on the lamp posts in Kellogg Park, Pointe Park, and in front of the City Hall and the Historical Museum are the work of the Newcomers. They also decorated Santa's House and the Christmas tree inside. (Photos by Rick Smith)

The Secord family (left), Barb, Jack and Jason, worked in the park. Bob Hatcher (above) attached a red ribbon to a lamp post, while his daughter, Becky, carefully held another bow.

Getting settled made simple.

Correction

The box office for Sunday's Plymouth Symphony Orchestra concert will open at 3:50 p.m., not 3:15 as mentioned in Monday's Observer. The sing-along Messiah tickets have been at a premium and tickets will be sold at the box office only if seats are available.

The box office is in the lobby of Plymouth Salem High School auditorium, Joy Road west of Canton Center.

The VIEW

Joe stepped up from vice president. The rest of the board remains the same.

DON'T FORGET to find a score of the "Messiah" to take along for the sing-along with the Plymouth Symphony, at 4 p.m. Sunday in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

THERE HAS been a time change for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Pearl Harbor Day service in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. The brief commemorative service will be at 9 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 7.

Does club need license?

Every time a church or club wants to sell food as a fund-raising project, someone asks, "Do we need a food license?"

The Michigan Department of Public Health says the answer depends upon whether the food is prepared at home, or at the site where it is sold.

An organization does not need a license if it sells cookies, cakes, or fruit pies that have been baked at home. Nor is a license required if a charitable, religious, service, fraternal, civic or other non-profit organization serves home-prepared food in connection with its meeting, or as part of a community service, or as a fundraiser.

The key words are home prepared and organization.

A food license is required if an organization sets up a temporary food stand and prepares food on the site where it will be sold, and also when an individual sets up a stand.

TEMPORARY food licenses, effective for a maximum of 14 days, are available from the local health department. The fee is small compared to the revenue from the sale. Licenses can be obtained from the environmental health section of the county health department.

Where food is prepared on the site where it will be sold, a food sanitarian will appear early in the sale to be sure the temperature control for the food is proper, that the storage of paper plates, plastic cups and utensils meets sanitary standards, that the condiments are individually wrapped, and that proper disposal methods are established for the paper, plastic and left-over foods.

The sanitarian will explain the proper methods.

Churches and clubs already have food licenses for their kitchens and do not need special licenses for suppers, luncheons, bazaars and other events in their own buildings.

There are other sanitation regulations pertaining to profit-making businesses such as restaurants, bars, theaters, and vending machines.

Now, when someone asks, "Do we need a license?" the answer can be, "Not if it's homebaked."

New Morning School plans open house

New Morning School will have an open house and a museum from 7-9 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 11. The non-public, consumer-run school was founded in Plymouth. Now located in Dearborn Heights, it serves prekindergarten-through-eighth-grade students from the metropolitan area.

New Morning School regularly has museums, with students choosing topics and making the displays.

Local students participating in the open house and museum are Jude Larene of Plymouth, a sixth-grader who will present his display on boats, and the Romack brothers of Canton Township will present displays of rabbits, by kindergartener Brett Romack, trucks, by fourth-grader Brian Romack, and plants, by second-grader Craig Romack.

For more information about the New Morning call 292-0760.

Freiman-Front

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Freiman of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Elaine, to Marc Alan Front, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Front of Huntington Woods. The bride-elect is a junior at Michigan State University where she is majoring in fisheries and wildlife. Her fiancé will graduate from MSU in March 1981 with a degree in packaging.

They plan to be married in July.

Cancer is often curable.

The fear of cancer is often fatal.

If you're afraid of cancer... you're not alone. But some people are so afraid that they won't go to the doctor when they suspect something's wrong. They're afraid the doctor might "find something." This kind of fear can prevent them from discovering cancer in the early stages when it is most often curable. These people run the risk of letting cancer scare them to death.

Catholics here follow old ways

Each Sunday, 350-400 Catholics travel from all over metropolitan Detroit to attend Mass in a Redford Township building that once was a Mormon church.

Those who gather at St. Pius X Catholic Church, 23310 Joy, hear a Mass in Latin celebrated by a priest who faces the altar rather than the congregation.

He follows the forms that characterized the Mass in the days before Vatican II.

"It's just as if you turned the clock back," said the Rev. Donald Sanborn, pastor. He flies in from Connecticut some weekends to celebrate Mass and lead the local flock. On other weekends, one of several other priests comes here in his stead.

"Whatever rules existed years ago exist now in our society," added the priest, who looks younger than his 30 years.

The church is part of a growing list of institutions established in several countries by the Society of St. Pius X, founded in 1970 by Archbishop Marcel LeFebvre in Freborg, Switzerland.

And it is precisely its return to the past through rejection of Vatican II that appeals to members of the St. Pius X congregation. It's also the reason worshippers come from as away as Troy and the downriver area.

FR. SANBORN was not hesitant to note that "the Archbishop of Detroit would say that what we do here is illegal as far as the Catholic Church is concerned."

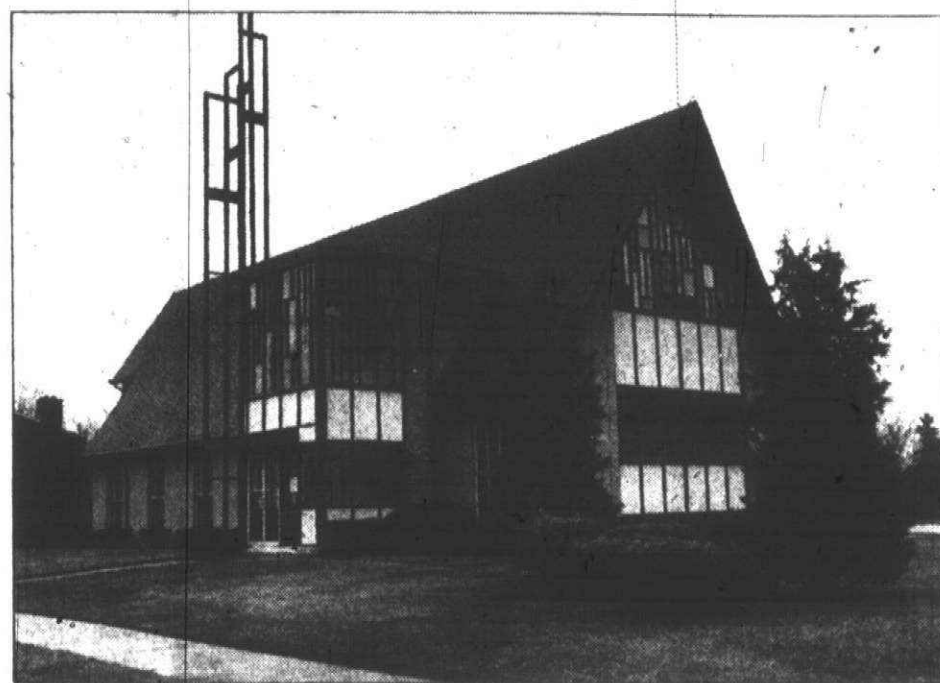

But he added that he feels neither the archbishop nor the pope "have the authority to outlaw traditions of the church and replace them with what is obviously detrimental to the church and have been condemned by former popes."

Such moves are detrimental, he said, because there has been "a loss of vocations and a dramatic decline in attendance."

A couple of parishoners spoke of the things that had drawn them to the Redford church.

It's the "serenity, mysticism and respect you feel," said Chris Jonasz of Westland, a registered nuclear medicine technician. Dorothy Dubouskas of Livonia goes to St. Pius X while her husband and six children go elsewhere because she finds "a real holy Mass, just like when we grew up."

"I found my peace there," she added. "New teachings are confusing. Now I am not confused, frightened or worried. But I worry about my children growing up."

WHEN FOUNDED a decade ago, the Society of St. Pius X had sanction from its Swiss diocese but not from the Vatican. It chose as its patron a pope who reigned early in this century and condemned earlier attempts at reforms in the Mass and Catholic dogma.

"It aimed to preserve Catholic tradition and the Mass the way it was before Vatican II," said Fr. Sanborn.

A young seminarian at the time the society was founded, he discovered its purposes matched his own thinking.

The feeling was that reforms of the council, such as using the vernacular and having the priest turn away from the tabernacle, "were borrowed from Protestantism and were the very things condemned by the pope at the time of Martin Luther."

"It is part of the theology of the Mass that the priest performs the Mass; the people participate by prayer but have no essential role," he added.

Fr. Sanborn heard about the society while experiencing his own doubts about Vatican II. He elected to enter LeFebvre seminary less than a year after it was founded in November 1970.

ABOUT THE TIME Fr. Sanborn was beginning his seminary training in Switzerland, a group of Catholics in Detroit were finding equal dissatisfaction in new look of their church.

They invited a priest to say traditional Mass, Fr. Sanborn reported, "and then they found out about us in 1973 and a priest was assigned in the Detroit area."

Services were held first in Ferndale and Royal Oak. In October 1978, the society purchased the Redford church from the Church of the Latter-day Saints.

"We're very happy with this building," Fr. Sanborn said. "It's a good location. We have doubled our attendance since we moved."

Some 200 persons worship in the Armada location each Sunday, he added. The society also runs mission groups in Saginaw and Traverse City, renting a hall once a month.

Other churches are in Cleveland, Norfolk, South Bend and Cincinnati. There is a priory (a monastery) on Long Island and a boarding school at St. Mary, Kansas.

All are served by priests from the society's St. Thomas of Aquinas seminary at Ridgefield, Conn., which Fr. Sanborn serves as rector. Different spiritual leaders go to the various churches.

"We change around," said Fr. Sanborn. "We might even decide on the way to the airport to switch destinations." No priests are on hand in the local parishes during the week, and he said that can be a problem.

"But we ask people to be very sensitive to needs and keep us informed," he added. "And if there were a major need, we would fly out. Even when priests are in the parish, there are many times when they do not get there in time anyway."

IN REDFORD, Sunday Masses are held at 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. There are daily Masses at 8 p.m. Friday and at 7:30 a.m. Saturday, but these do not fill the Sunday obligation.

Catechism is Thursday nights for all in grade school and high school and students come from all over the area to learn the traditional Baltimore Catechism.

Leadership in all the established parishes is being stepped up, but slowly, as training continues.

Thirty-five seminarians and three brothers are at the Connecticut school and four nuns trained in France soon will come to this country to serve in the boarding school.

There are waiting lists for the limited training facilities the Society of St. Pius X can offer, Fr. Sanborn said, as opposed to the decline in choices for the religious vocations in mainstream Catholic churches.

"Orders that retain traditionalism are flourishing," he added.

Speaking of his own decision for the more traditional ways, he said, "It involves judgment of conscience."

"It's not easy," he added. "But personally, I think every one of the parishoners here would say they know this is Catholicism."

"They are not sure about the other."

Solar financing facts offered

Michigan residents interested in solar energy installations for their homes can get information on financing from a publication of the Michigan Department of Commerce and Energy Administration.

A free directory describes programs that offer financial incentives to buyers of solar and other renewable energy systems. Called Sun Dollars, the booklet lists government-related sources for loans and grants and describes state and federal tax credits available. These help offset the cost of a renewable-energy system.

Single copies of Sun Dollars may be obtained by writing to the Michigan Department of Commerce and Energy Administration, PO Box 30228, Lansing 48909. It is also available by calling the toll-free energy hotline: 1-800-292-4704.

Gundella

No familiars in Gundella's home

Dear Gundella,
I have read many stories about you, and I have seen you on television many times. Sometimes they show your cat, and once they showed a rabbit in a chair at your house.

This year, on Channel 4, I saw you again, and they showed your dog. Are these animals your familiars, and what, exactly, is a familiar?

Mrs. M.R., Livonia

Dear Mrs. M.R.,

It was believed in the past that some witches called upon spirits to help them with their magic. These spirits were believed to take over, or possess, the bodies of animals so that the witch could keep them with her.

I do not have any familiars, and, as far as I know, I have never come in contact with anyone who has.

However, a woman once wrote and told me that shortly after her husband's death, a stray cat came to her house and she took it in. She fed it, and it became very affectionate.

She now believes it to be the spirit of her dead husband.

I do not believe in transmigration, since I believe that souls evolve and grow, rather than regress into animal forms.

In any case, my own animals are just what they appear to be — a fat cat and a playful puppy. (We no longer have the rabbit.) They are family pets, and we love them. But they are not possessed, and are not familiars.

Dear Gundella,

I saw you on television at Halloween, and you were green. You explained that you had colored your skin in the way witches used to do to identify with their cults.

But unless something was wrong with my television, your dog was green, too. Did you color it, or was I seeing things?

Mary P., Farmington

Dear Mary,

No, you were not seeing things. My dog was green.

When I was coloring my own skin, my children and I put green food coloring on her, too, just for the fun of it.

It was completely harmless, but it has not washed out well. She is still a little green.

She has enjoyed it, though, because she is a friendly dog, and likes all the extra attention being green has brought her.

Dear Gundella,

I think I might be a witch. Is there anyway I can tell for sure?

Sandy S., Southfield

Dear Sandy,

You are definitely not a witch. If you were, you would know it, for no one is born a witch. It is something you become through study, work and initiation into a coven.

You may, however, have a great deal of psychic power. You do not have to be a witch to be clairvoyant, or to use your mental powers in many other ways once believed to be supernatural.

All people have some degree of psychic ability. With practice, you can develop that power in many different ways and use it for many different purposes.

Fund-raiser will benefit Sr. Arline's research

Sister Arline Schmeer, cancer researcher, will join other celebrities at a benefit dinner dance on Dec. 5 at the Detroit Athletic Club.

Sister Arline, or the "Clam Sister," as she is known by her colleagues and

The benefit evening will include cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. followed by the program and dancing. Reservations for the $100-per-person, black tie (optional) event may be obtained by calling Mrs. B.P. Costello Jr., at 647-6220.

GEM WISE
GEMS OF THE MONTH

The reasons why particular birthstones to each month of the year remain a mystery. There may not be any satisfying explanation. One conjecture is that whoever was responsible for the assignments wanted everyone covered by adequate talismanic powers (as I discussed in my last two articles). If a gem was short on power, a second was added. Therefore, some months carried more than one birthstone.

A number of birthstone lists sprang up over the centuries, so to eliminate the confusion the National Association of Jewelers drew up an official list in 1912. Over the past 25 years the Jewelry Industry Council, Jewelers of America and the American Gem Society have modified the list. The following is the current official list recognized by these top jewelry trade associations:

January - garnet July - ruby February - amethyst August - peridot or sardonyx March - bloodstone or aquamarine September - sapphire April - diamond October - opal or tourmaline May - emerald November - topaz or citrine June - pearl, moonstone or alexandrite December - turquoise or zircon

If you would like to know more about any of these gemstones, our store passes out brochures on them free of charge. These brochures are published by the American Gem Society for increased consumer knowledge.

People's Church marks its first anniversary

The People's Church of Canton Township will mark its first formal anniversary Sunday.

It was in December 1979 that the church received its name, its own government, and grant money from Dutch Reformed Church headquarters in New York.

Pastor of the church, the Rev. Harvey Heneveld, moved to the community about three years ago and started from scratch.

There was no denominational interest in his church. He had not been called to head a group of interested parishioners. He started "walking the pavement" and talking to residents.

The first services were conducted in his home. At the end of the year, his congregation had grown to 10 families. He received a grant from church headquarters to rent space in Plymouth Canton High School where they continue to meet. At the end of the second year, there were 15 families and the church was organized officially. The parishioners chose the name, "People's Church," and chose their own governing body. The Rev. Paul Hansen arrived in mid-July to serve as associate pastor. Church membership had increased to 20 families.

SOME DAY they will have their own church building at Canton Center and Ford roads. They have been buying the property and hope to have it paid for in the near future.

In the meantime, they will continue to meet in the high school with regular Sunday morning worship services from 10-11 and church school classes from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The Dutch Reformed Church recently celebrated the 350th anniversary of its first organized congregation in this country. It was the first Protestant church in America.

While there are literally hundreds of Dutch Reformed churches in the Grand Rapids-Holland area of Michigan, the People's Church is the first in the Plymouth/Canton community.

After the first of the year, the congregation is planning the first of what it hopes will be an annual celebration. Each year, a different ethnic group will be honored by the church. There will be a dinner featuring foods from the country-of-the-year and other recognition of its people and its history.

Church members have decided to lead off with Holland, the country in which their church was founded.

Theater group buttons up musical show

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

When the Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre performs "Annie Get Your Gun" this weekend, you can expect the opening to be right on the Button. You see, Fred Button has been designing and directing construction of the set for the musical.

The Livonia resident, who is president of the Community Theatre Association of Michigan, said he started designing the set three months ago.

"This is a full set that's designed scene by scene. Anytime something moves, you have to show it move (in the design)," explained Button, an engineer with the Ford Motor Co. "Then all of us get together — the director, choreographer, musical director, producer and myself — and we go through the play page by page.

"I easily spent 1,000 hours on this show, including a week's vacation," said Button, who has a crew of eight working with him on set production. He hopes to add two more crew members by this weekend.

Working on sets gets to be "very frustrating at times, but it's fun," Button continued. The fun comes in watching "youngsters come in here as high school students or even younger. I've watched them grow and develop over the years," he said.

How many years?

"Oh, 15 . . . 18. Whatever," Button said, shrugging off the years.

"I've taken a youngster and got him started building sets. It's dirty, grimy and unassuming. But it gets their names in the program. I've seen them go from there to being a star in a show," he added, watching as dress rehearsals were underway for the group's first musical production in nine years.

"When do the spots go up?" queried a member of the light crew.

"Wayne Memorial (where the play will be performed) got a new lighting system this year. We'll be the first to use it, and we're learning how it works tonight," Button said. "We're putting it all together here tonight for the first time."

Up on stage, a director cautioned, "Kids, don't giggle quite so loud."

"It's not too bad for a first night," Button commented, watching the action. "The stage crew, lighting, dancing, singers and actors have all been working separately. All of a sudden it comes together. It's amazing, but it takes hard work from a lot of people."

"It's helped keep me young," Button continued. "I'm getting close to retirement. I'm going to retire from Ford and do this 100 percent of the time. I'm not kidding."

Button's job doesn't stop with the design. After a month of design work, plans are drawn and construction starts. Nearly two months later, Button

Exploring Christmas star

The mystery surrounding the Christmas star, an astronomical object described by the Magi, will be explored during December planetarium demonstrations at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

Titled, "Holiday Skies and the Christmas Star," the demonstrations will make full use of the planetarium's Spitz instrument and auxiliary projectors.

Recreated on the planetarium's dome will be brilliant winter constellations as seen this year from the Cranbrook grounds and as they appeared in the skies over Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago.

Planetarium demonstrations, free with museum admission, are given at 4 p.m. Wednesdays; 2, 3, 4 and 7:30 p.m. Saturdays; and 2, 3 and 4 p.m. Sundays.

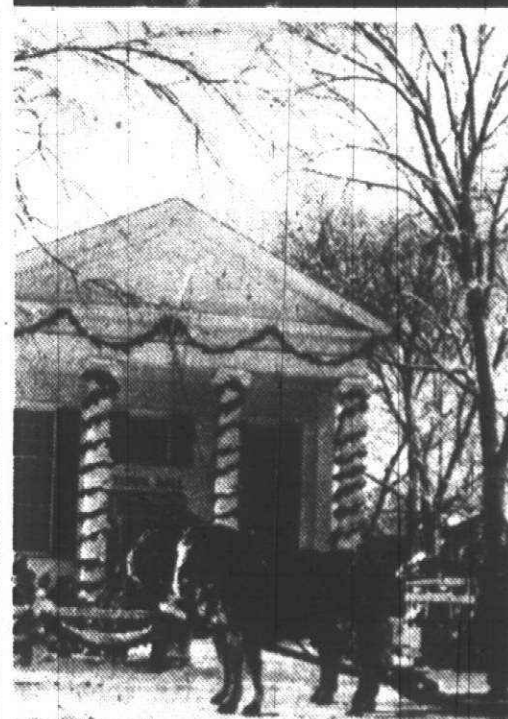

Additional shows will be given at 2 and 3 p.m. Dec. 22, 23, 26, 29 and 30.

Also free with museum admission are observatory demonstrations given from 8:30-10 p.m. Saturdays.

The museum is at 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills. For information, call 645-3210. The museum will be closed Dec. 24, 25, 31 and Jan. 1.

Alvin LaCroix of Plymouth as Pawnee Bill; Jess Spangler of Wayne as Charlie Davenport, Buffalo Bill's manager; and Charles Slagle of Willis as Sitting Bull.

Putting the production together are director Mary Anne Gustafson of Detroit, choreographer Kathy Tar of Dearborn, music-vocal director Bruce Scudder of Detroit and producer Lois Tobin.

The musical includes memorable selections such as "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Anything You Can Do," "I Got the Sun in the Morning," and "Doin' What Comes Naturally."

And his crew are adding the finishing touches to the paint job.

These jobs are becoming family affairs. For instance, the Guernsey family of Wayne has three members active in the current production.

"What more can you ask than this?" Button asks, chuckling. He answers his own question.

Winning streak goes on with 'Man of La Mancha'

By HELEN ZUCKER

The N.Y. Drama Critics' Circle Award Best Musical of 1966, "Man of La Mancha," sounds even better in 1980.

Dale Wasserman's original work, loosely based on Cervantes' spoof on chivalry, "Don Quixote," will probably be as enjoyable — in the right hands — in the year 2,000 as it is now.

Mitch Leigh's music and Joe Darion's lyrics are in the right hands in the Will-O-Way Repertory Theatre production of "Man of La Mancha." Brilliantly directed by Celia Merrill Turner (who seem to be on a winning streak this season) and associate director Eileen T. Weiss, "Man of La Mancha" is an evening of powerful, highly imaginative theater.

"Man of La Mancha" continues at 8:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday and Dec. 12-13, 19-20 at Apprentice Theatre at Long Lake and Telegraph in Bloomfield Township.

MELVYN HARDIMAN delivers his key line, "Facts are the enemy of truth," with total understanding. Hardiman's sure grasp on the difficult role of Don Quixote; the lovely mixture of madness, poetry and a sane, humane outlook on benighted humanity make this production one of Will-O-Way's most memorable.

Hardiman has a magnificent voice. I got shivers down my spine listening to Hardiman sing "The Impossible Dream." Whether speaking or singing, Hardiman is totally convincing as the "Knight Errant" who "misadventures" through the country side and lands in jail.

He's especially good in the "Aldonza" number; his persistence in believing Aldonza is his "pure lady Dulcinea" carries us past the absurd into the realm of truth. Hardiman pulses with conviction, and his shining honesty literally transforms Aldonza.

Maria Foster turns in a strong performance as Aldonza. Ms. Foster's mobile face conveys the bittersweet agonies of an illiterate kitchen scullion introduced to ideas of gentleness and goodness. Ms. Foster moves like a contained tiger, and she shines in the difficult "Aldonza" number.

We believe she is Dulcinea at heart, despite the rough treatment she gets from the muleteers and life in general. Ms. Foster is a good actress, and her soprano is sweet stuff.

I DON'T BELIEVE I have ever called a male actor "enchanted," but there is no better word to describe Richard T. Williams' fine performance as Sancho. Quick, willing, loyal to the bone, Williams is utterly endearing as the "Squire" who finds himself facing the inquisition with his "Knight."

When Williams shrugs, searches for an answer to Aldonza's question, "Why do you follow him?" and finally sings "I Really Like Him," all I could think of was how very much I liked Williams.

He gives us a Sancho who is forever hopping about, alert to realities, alive to romance. Williams turns in a fully realized performance.

George Martin is a sweet Innkeeper and a competent Governor of the Prisoners. Martin gets better with every role he takes on. Duncan Hursley, as The Padre, sings the Latin finale well, and he delivers his lines clearly. Richard Fielding is suitably villainous as the materialistic Dr. Carrasco, bent on "curing the mad Knight" (and inheriting his money before he marries the Knight's niece).

Fielding is especially good in the stunning shield-of-mirrors scene when he appears as the Dark Enchanter, the Knight's nemesis, and in a three-against-one duel — Quixote fencing against three men in shields made of flashing mirrors — exhausts the Knight physically but finds he can't destroy his spirit.

SABINE RAJAN is competent as the "sweet," selfish niece, Antonia. Ms. Rajan, alas, looks truly sweet. I suspect Quixote's niece would be a bit more like her villainous fiancé, Dr. Carrasco. Elaine Keiner captures the anxious spirit of Quixote's housekeeper, far more worried about "trouble in the house" and the neighborhood than she is about the Don.

Richard F. Blanchard is very funny as The Barber who loses his shaving bowl, the "Golden Helmet." Lance Washington is especially good as tough Pedro, the Head Muleteer. Dennis Thomas, Don Pohlod, Chris Hogen, Gerald Hoy and Jeff Nichols are frighteningly good as Pedro's rough companions. These muleteers all have good voices and serve up a beautiful rendition of "Little Bird," between assorted innyard battles.

Vivian Fielding is a real hoyden as Maria, the Innkeeper's wife. Ms. Fielding gives us a woman without an iota of manners or fellow-feeling. Bonnie Weinrob, as the woman prisoner arbitrarily chosen to burn, manages to utter a heart-rending cry in a tiny part. Ms. Weinrob, and the ladder that creakingly descends from ceiling to stage, tells us all about the terrors of the Inquisition in a split second.

Time and scene changes are handled well throughout the production. I want to give special credit to Sue Keeley, Jeff Nichols and Elizabeth S. Schweitzer for carrying off the Horse and Burro scenes. In a beautiful piece of medievalism, these three actors, dressed in great animal heads and dancers' tights, totally conveyed the impression of animals prancing across the countryside. Kudos to the prop people for the splendid heads.

CHOREOGRAPHER Michelle Levine was amusing as Fermina, the lead Moorish Dancer. The Muleteers, doubling as dancers, and the woman dancers, Caryn Alexander, Hattie Titus, Danielle Blanchard, Michelle Levine, Bonnie Weinrob and Sabine Rajan, were all very lively as they stole Don Quixote and Sancho's money.

Chris Hietikko was scary as Captain of the Inquisition. So were guards Dick Blanchard and Don Pohlod.

Musical direction by David Wilson was excellent. The tough score was played by clarinetist Deborah Schrader, flutist Caryn Alexander, drummer David Minick, Don Button on French horn, and Isabel Markowitz, alternate pianist.

Costumes by Helen B. King were dandy. The imaginative set was built by Jerry Wilson, Gerald Hoy, Don Pohlod, Chris Hogan and Eileen T. Weiss.

'Don Juan in Hell' preview announced

A preview performance of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Don Juan in Hell" will be presented at 8:30 p.m. New Year's Eve, followed by a gala buffet at Meadow Brook Hall on the Oakland University campus near Rochester.

Meadow Brook Hall is the 100-room Tudor home of OU's benefactors, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson.

"Don Juan in Hell" was a triumph from coast to coast when it was first performed by Charles Laughton's famed drama quartet. A full-length entertainment on its own, it was originally a dream sequence for "Man and Superman," a 1976 Meadow Brook hit.

In the play, Don Juan is in hell where he is confronted by a woman he betrayed in life and her father, whom he murdered. The Devil himself serves as an urbane moderator between Don Juan and his furious enemies.

George Bernard Shaw imbues this dynamic situation with his customary sardonic wit and wisdom.

Theatergoers who wish to attend "Don Juan in Hell" and the Meadow Brook Hall buffet following the performance must make reservations by calling 377-3316 before Saturday.

Patrons who wish to see "Don Juan in Hell" but do not want to attend the buffet may reserve tickets for the special New Year's Eve preview performance by calling either the box office at 377-3300 or the community relations office at 377-3316.

"Don Juan in Hell" opens its run Jan. 1, continuing through Jan. 25, at Meadow Brook Theatre.

"Abbott and Costello Meet the Killer, Boris Karloff" (1949), 8:30 a.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 94 minutes.

The title of this film conjures up all kinds of missed Hollywood opportunities. "The African Queen," for instance, could have been called "Katharine Hepburn meets the Tough Guy, Humphrey Bogart." Or how about "Moby Dick vs. the Saturnine Actor, Gregory Peck"? Anyway, neither Bud and Lou nor Boris is in prime form for this comedy, whose main focus is on bodies being carted around. Too bad Karloff wasn't on hand for the duo's encounter with Frankenstein the year before. Rating: $1.80

"A Tale of Two Cities" (1935), 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday on Ch. 7. Originally 138 minutes.

I haven't seen this one before, but it is an MGM 1930s production with Ronald Colman in the lead, so that guarantees some measure of glossy quality. Plus, Basil Rathbone is in the supporting cast. It is unusual to see Channel 7 screening an old black-and-white film on its 4 o'clock movie. Usually the "major" stations — 2, 4, 7 — seem reluctant to show anything that's not in color and is any older than "Police Woman." But, better a good black-and-white film than a bad movie printed on the latest in color film. Unrated.

"Zulu" (1964), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7. Originally 138 minutes.

This film about a small group of British soldiers who hold off thousands of Zulu warriors in late-19th century Africa hasn't been shown locally for a while. Could it be that scenes of blacks and whites killing each other are considered too inflammatory?

The historical setting, though, diffuses some of the racial overtones. The film is basically a variation on the Alamo theme, only this time the besieged garrison survives. Anyway, it is based on a true story and is authentic and intense. The film also offers a chance to see Michael Caine in an early role, before "Alfie" catapulted him to stardom. Rating: $2.90

"A Yank in Vietnam" (1964), 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on Ch. 20. Originally 80 minutes.

No, this isn't a film about Joe Pepitone making a tour of the front. But it is a member of the thin catalogue of Vietnam War films. Rarer still, it is one of the few — possibly the only — films to use the war as the backdrop for a programmer action story. World War II and the Korean War spawned their share of routine action movies, but things had changed by the time Vietnam rolled around.

That aside, this isn't a very good film. It lives up to its B-movie status all the way, providing a monotonous string of warfare scenes. Plenty of shots of machine-gun fire chopping up thatched huts, but don't look for much drama or insight into the American attitude toward the war, pre-Gulf of Tonkin. Marshall Thompson stars. Rating: $1.05.

"I Bury the Living" (1958), 12:15 a.m. Friday on Ch. 9. Originally 76 minutes.

This seems like an episode of some early '60s TV horror series, like "Thriller," which somehow got expanded into a full-length movie. Here's the plot: Every time Richard Boone, playing a cemetery director, sticks a pin on a plot in the cemetery map, the plot owner dies. This one film in which funereal pacing might have been an asset. There are fair-enough chills throughout, but a rational ending is tacked onto what had heretofore been an irrational story, leaving disappointed the viewer who likes his ghost stories straight. Rating: $1.50.

"Bedlam" (1946), 8 p.m. Thursday on Ch. 50. Originally 79 minutes.

With Val Lewton, a specialist in subtle horror, as its producer, and Boris Karloff cast as the sinister head of the famed 19th-century insane asylum, this film could not go wrong. Supposedly based on fact, the story centers on a woman's efforts to reform the treatment of the mentally ill. Karloff locks her up with the very people she is trying to help. Rating: $3

HYATT REGENCY DEARBORN

Symphony's unusual program rates high marks

By JOANNE K. PSENKA

Oakway Symphony Orchestra presented an innovative program of musical novelties by Gabrieli, Mozart and Prokofiev last Sunday.

Orchestra members attributed the effectiveness of conductor's Francesco Di Blasi's perceptive interpretations to the way he conveyed his intentions to them in rehearsals.

Gabrieli's Canzona Noni Toni a 12, as performed by the orchestra's horns, was a fascinating weaving of sound fabric, interesting for its unified stereophonic effects due to the placement of the performers on the stage. The location of three brass choirs was reminiscent of opposing sports teams. However, the competitive assaults were (happily) missing from this assertive, but muted harmony. The potential for the kind of percussive blasts associated with trumpet or trombone were absent in this listenable ligato.

MOZART'S GENIUS was treated well in the Sinfoni Concertante, a complex mixture of string duet, woodwind section and string orchestral accompaniment. Victoria Haltom, violin, and Scott Woolweaver, viola, as soloists, performed this coquettish composition delightfully. They demonstrated a skillful blending of motif and movement with melodies stated playfully.

The first movement, allegro maestoso, presented ascending thematic motifs in stately treble cadences. The string duet was spirited in its interpretation.

Descending episodes proved the skill of Woolweaver's violin merging with Ms. Haltom's violin statements. Nowhere in the first movement was a Bach-like contrapuntal interaction hinted at but the duo created touching effects of tonal purity.

The characteristic summons to the hunt, sounded by the horns, echoed, then orchestra and duo repeated motifs reminiscent of other Mozart works.

Haydn's influence is apparent in the andante, a slow movement. Here, strategic hesitations keep strict time, giving the stately tonal procession the effect of visual images and separate sound ideas with implicit visual coloration and intent. The audience hears and watches this music.

This immortal music, fashioned by a master who contemplated the frailties of mankind as he confronted the great mysteries of life, has classical vitality and universal appeal that makes spirits soar.

PROKOFIEV WAS a modern musical giant whose "Romeo and Juliet" Suite No. 2 is a celebration of tragic love in the tradition of Tchaikovsky masterpiece of the same name.

Recognized as an "enfant terrible" of Russian music, Prokofiev outlived his appellation by falling from official favor. In 1951, two years before his death, he regained his sanction in his native land.

The suite begins like a thunderbolt announcing a storm. After the launch of the familiar theme, the music gives way to a gentle pastorella. The Western nuance of a swing clarinet variation with drums enlivens the introduction.

Modest frivolity is suggested in the second movement. Allusions to other composers are stated gently. Exuberant youthfulness is musically contrasted with retiring shyness. A remarkable bridge section presents an atonal passage to a contrasting mode. Here the composer foreshadows the unhappy fate of Romeo and Juliet.

The dance movements, integrated in this work, present the sentimental feeling of love's tenderness and lyrical beauty in two rondo treatments in miniature — a contrast to the lovers' unfortunate quixotic death.

Backgammon

Michael Kiolan

of the American Backgammon Club

LUCK OR SKILL?

This example was sent in by Laura P. of Livonia.

As black in this position, she rolled double twos and proceeded with one checker from the 12 point, hitting white on the 8 point and continuing to the home board to safety the checker on the 4 point.

Her opponent, on the bar, rolled double sixes (a one out of 36 shot), hit her on the 12 point and continued on to win the game.

Laura asks: "What went wrong? Is this game all luck?"

First of all, the element of luck in backgammon comes because you are playing with dice. As you become more skillful with making proper moves, you reduce the element of luck considerably but you can never remove it.

This game will never be all luck; also, it can never be all skill.

THE MOVE

The proper play in this position would be to move both checkers from the 12 to the 10 point, one checker from the 4 to the 2 point, and one checker from the 3 to the 1 point.

Hitting white on the 8 point can do nothing but slow him down. Why slow him down? There is no reason to.

Playing for the gammon in this position is elusive. Once hit, white will have no difficulty getting off the bar and racing home. Also, if black leaves a shot, white could hit it.

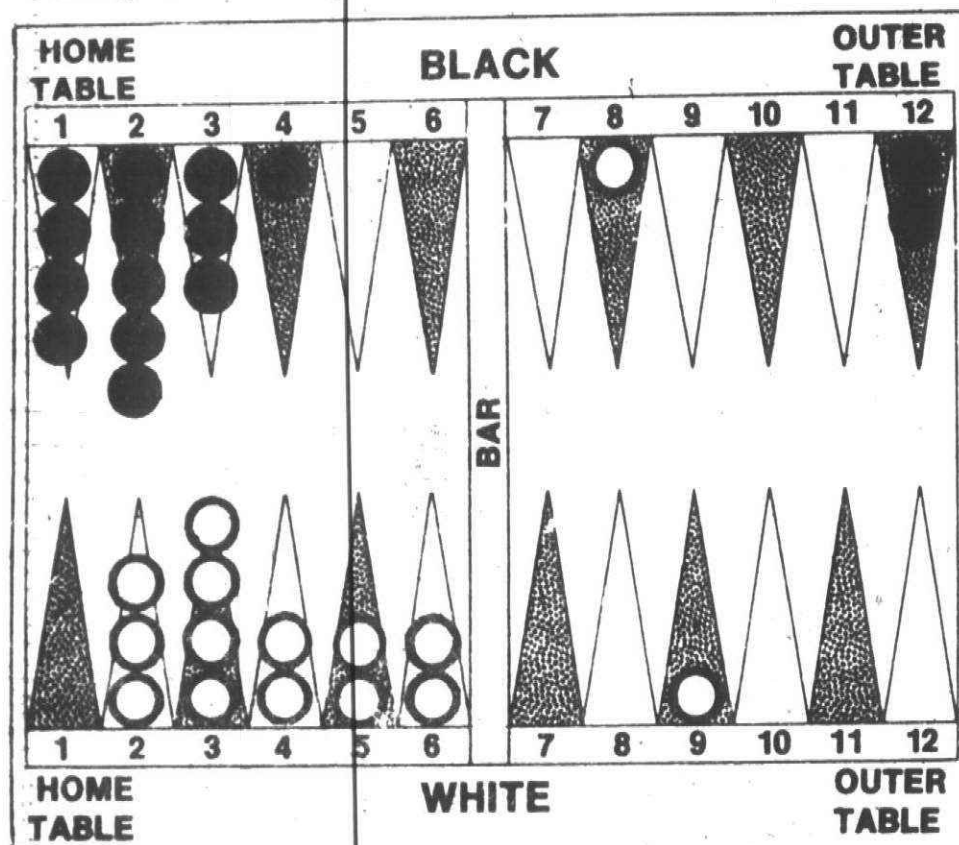

Consider the position. If black is hit, he has a tough home board to contend with. White does not.

Consider the race. Black is ahead in the race. Why hit? Black's home board checkers are ideally situated to begin bearing off. White's home board doesn't even come close.

Consider the doubling cube. Black owns the cube. Before your next roll, you may have had a chance to redouble white to 4, forcing white to drop, thus winning two points.

It would have been correct to hit and slow down your opponent — no matter what the consequences — if you had been way behind in the race. Fortunately, we learn from our mistakes.

On Dec. 2, 4 and 9, Kiolan will teach a course in "Beyond the Basics" for persons wishing to explore backgammon in depth. For information, contact the American Backgammon Club at 459-5776.

Is your budget house broken?

If you think there's no room in your budget for house payments ... or if financing fears are forcing your family's dreams out of the picture ...

We'd like to have a word with you.

Owning a house that's too big, too little, or too far from where you need to be, can be breaking your budget right now. Or, if you're renting, it may be costing you more than owning—and leaving you with a lot less.

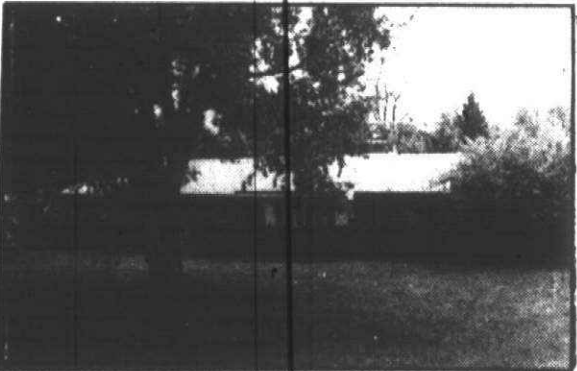

So even if you think your budget's house broken ... Break down and call us.

"ASSUMPTION BUYERS." We have funds to help you assume mortgages that may be too far to reach. Call for details.
