Las Vegas fire sparks work on rental law

A fire which killed 84 persons in a Las Vegas hotel last month has sparked concern about the safety of motels and apartment units in Canton Township.

A proposed law being compiled by ordinance director Bruce Phillips would require the installation of smoke detectors in all of Canton's rental housing units.

A 1975 state law requires the installation of smoke detectors in all single-family homes, apartment units and motels which are under construction. The law does not require the devices in structures built prior to 1975.

According to Fire Chief Mel Paulun, several apartment buildings and motels in Canton lack smoke detectors.

He said firefighters visited all of Canton's motels following the recent disaster at the MGM Hotel in Las Vegas. Landlords were advised to install smoke detectors, fire extinguishers and sprinkling systems in their buildings.

BUT TOWNSHIP BOARD members feel that more should be done.

At a meeting last week, Trustee Stephen Larson brought up his concerns about the safety of motel and apartment residents in the wake of the Las Vegas disaster.

He endorsed the concept of requiring smoke detectors in all rental units built before and after 1975.

"If someone has a fire in their own home and there's a loss of life, that's tragic," said Larson. "But homeowners should be able to protect themselves."

"It's different for a person in a motel or apartment building."

Phillips hopes to submit his ordinance proposal to the Township Board later this month or early in January.

He said he was told by township attorney Gerald Hemming that laws requiring smoke detector installation in existing buildings have been tested successfully in courts of other states.

THE DRAFTED LAW is a revision of an ordinance proposal which Phillips and Paulun submitted to the old Township Board about six months ago.

That proposal required the installation of smoke detectors in all housing units — including single-family homes. A mandatory inspection by township employees at the time of the property's sale would have insured the presence of a working smoke detector.

The death of a young Canton boy in a 1979 home fire prompted the ordinance proposal. The home where the child and his family were sleeping was not equipped with a smoke detector.

But Township Board opposition to a mandatory inspection of single-family homes killed the proposal. Some board members, such as second-term Trustee Larson, said the ordinance intruded too greatly into private citizens' lives.

Paulun said a Canton motel or apartment complex last was struck by a major fire about five years ago. No one was injured in the blaze, which destroyed a building of the Canton Gardens complex on Joy near Interstate 275.

There are no high-rise apartment buildings or hotels in Canton Township.

Paulun said many apartment buildings and motels built prior to 1975 are equipped with basement sprinkling systems and fire extinguishers.

Phillips said the ordinance he is drafting will contain one of two effective dates for required smoke detector installations. Landowners either would be required to install the devices by a specific date or at the time that occupancy of an apartment unit changes.

"Put out that cigarette," is the message of a recent anti-smoking clinic in the community.

Snuff it out!!

Smokers gather to kick the habit

By ARLENE FUNKE

"The average smoker smokes the equivalent of a six-foot cigarette every day," says the narrator on a filmstrip.

"Or equal to the average (sized) coffin," the narrator adds.

The 100 or so adults in the auditorium at Plymouth Canton High School giggle nervously. The movie soon shifts to another scene.

A man in a laboratory coat gives a dose of liquid nicotine to a white mouse. The mouse thrashes his legs, twists his body and dies.

The audience gets the message. They are chewing gum and sucking candy to stave off the urge for a cigarette.

THIS SCENE, which occurred last week, is a familiar one for John Swanson, 36, of Canton Township.

Swanson, who has a master's degree in public health, has worked with more than 5,000 persons who want to quit smoking during the past three years. Assisting him is Dr. Arthur Weaver, associate professor of surgery at Wayne State University and a long-time outspoken critic of smoking.

Swanson coordinates Better Living Seminars, which is affiliated with the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Michigan, a denomination whose members neither smoke nor drink coffee.

Other clinics offered by Swanson cover health and exercise, vegetarian diets and nutrition (many Adventists don't eat meat) and weight control.

Swanson says he doesn't smoke, but he has tried it.

"You ask how a non-smoker can help somebody stop smoking?" says Swanson. "You don't choose a psychiatrist on the basis of how many years he spent in a mental institution."

Swanson says most people who attend the non-smoking clinics have a 10-year habit. Some need to repeat the clinics before they can toss away their cigarettes.

School mail disappears in federal offense prank

By TERI BANAS

Plymouth-Salem school officials are disturbed by the disappearance of a mailbag from the building's general office last week.

The mailbag, containing some 30 letters, including class failure notices addressed to parents, disappeared between 11:30 a.m. and noon Wednesday.

What disturbs officials, such as principal Bill Brown, is that the possible prankster may not have realized that the action was a federal offense.

"The maximum fine for stealing just one piece of mail is five years imprisonment and/or a $10,000 fine," said Eddie Cox, a U.S. postal inspector. "If you're looking at 30 pieces of mail, that's about 150 years imprisonment and a $300,000 fine."

"I would say that's sufficient fine and sufficient time for any crime."

Brown said the outgoing mail contained many personal letters from teachers, their bill payments to utility companies and credit unions, as well as notices to parents of their students' poor classroom performance.

"It was a pretty bold act since the office was supervised the whole time," said Brown, who suspects a student may be involved in the theft.

BROWN AND Det. Richard Fenton, of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, do not suspect, however, that the thief had intended to steal the mail for the checks.

The student body and teaching staff were alerted to the theft early Thursday morning. By Friday some reported their letters, and checks had reached their destinations.

Brown suspects someone may have lifted the bag, had second thoughts, and then mailed some of the letters.

By press time, there was no accurate account of the number of outstanding letters and bill payments.

Brown reports this account of the incident:

As has been the practice for 10 years at Plymouth-Salem High, a mailbag of outgoing letters had been placed on the general office front counter for pick-up by a postal carrier.

Office staffers noticed the disappearance at noon when the carrier arrived and asked for the mailbag. Present in the office were two adult staff members and three student workers.

Office manager Lucille Johnson began an immediate search of the area, suspecting that a staff member or student decided to deliver the mail without notice.

By the end of the school day, the school determined that the mailbag was missing and called federal postal agents.

"It certainly doesn't look like someone intended to cash any checks," said Fenton. "It looks like someone didn't want his or her parents to see the failure notice."

"Uttering and publishing, cashing a check, is a state felony and carries a maximum of five years in jail," he said.

When asked if school officials would prosecute a student, Brown said "we will take appropriate actions."

"Actually, there are two things to look at," he said. "There's the law of the school and the government law."

Brown said he was reluctant to blacken a student's life with a police record but would refuse to have the school principal be treated as "a patsy."

Riordan steps down

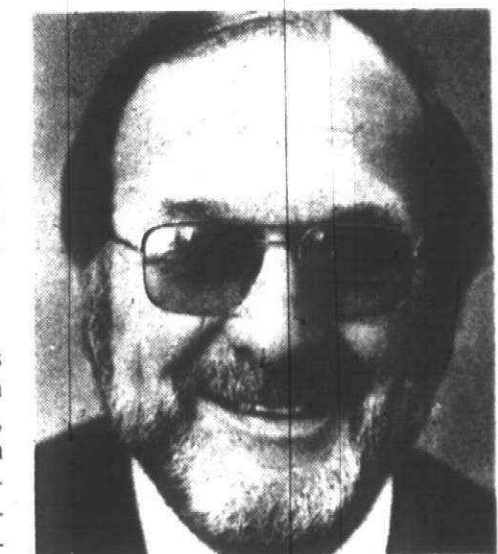

Tom Riordan, a 34-year veteran of the newspaper business, has resigned his position as executive editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

In January, Riordan will join his wife, Marilyn, to help her handle the increasing workload of her growing printing business in Garden City.

"We are sorry to lose Tom, who has been a member of the O&E team since January 3, 1978. We wish him and Marilyn the best of luck," said O&E General Manager John Reddy.

Riordan, 59, began his newspaper career in 1947 as a Michigan State University campus stringer for the old Detroit Times.

The MSU grad's career includes stints as a publisher of papers in Greenwich, Ohio, and Tecumseh, Mich., and managing editor of the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot. Prior to his arrival at the O&E, he conducted newsroom management seminars for publications throughout the Midwest.

Group studies store problems

We'd like to know if you shop here

Do you shop in Canton? Store owners have been complaining for years that their business isn't as good as it should be.

Some have pinned much of the blame on a strict sign ordinance, which allows free-standing signs of only a maximum 24 square feet in area. They complain of poor visibility of their stores from the road.

Others say that strict zoning and occupancy requirements stymie initial efforts of store owners to establish a profitable business.

But only you — the consumer — really know why your family shops in one store instead of another.

To find out your views, the Canton Observer is conducting a survey of residents' shopping habits.

Do you look for product variety, low prices or the tidy appearance of a store when you're ready to buy a coat or pair of shoes? Will you buy your Christmas gifts in Canton or in a mall in another community?

You can find the questionnaire form inside today's edition of the Canton Observer. The deadline for receiving your answers is Dec. 29.

WE'LL REPORT the results of our survey and turn over your forms (minus your name, address and telephone number) to the Canton Township Business Task Force after the deadline. The task force, an idea of Chamber of Commerce president Frank McMurray, was formed last fall to research the problems of local businesses and make a recommendation to the Township Board on possible solutions.

Task force chairman Bob Czerniak, who owns a store in the Kings Row shopping center, believes the views of consumers could help shop owners improve their businesses.

"The result for the consumer would be better places to shop and stabilization of taxes," he said.

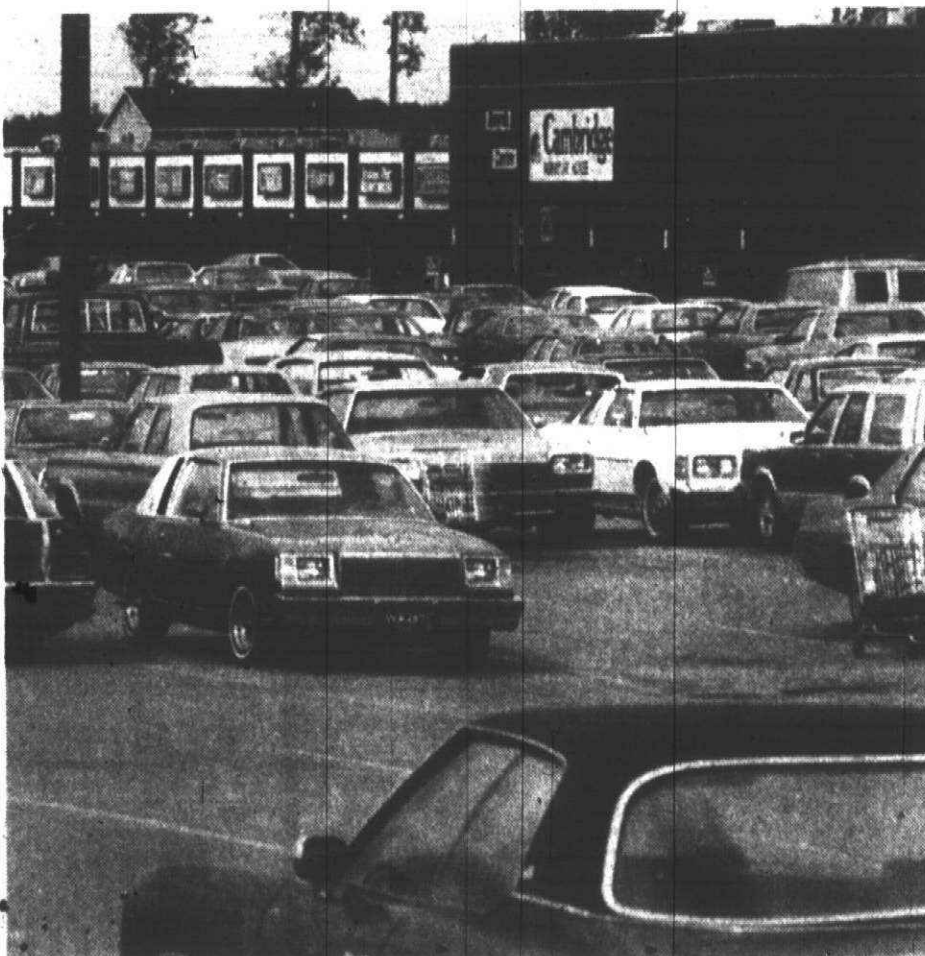

Although the task force invited residents to last month's public hearing on business problems, none showed up.

Attending were about 20 business persons — a turnout which disappointed Czerniak. The committee sent notices of the hearing to about 200 businesses in the township.

Gripes about the sign ordinance and strict zoning regulations abounded at the hearing. Some business persons complained about the insensitivity of township officials to their needs.

Czerniak said the task force will hold no additional hearings because of the poor turnout at the November session.

Officials slate tree lighting

It's time to decorate the Christmas tree!

A decorating ceremony will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 11 in front of Canton Township Hall at Canton Center and Proctor.

Canton residents are invited to place an unbreakable ornament on the tree. Ornaments may be personalized with your name and year to record your participation in 1980 ceremonies.

Santa Claus will arrive by sleigh or horse-drawn buggy with Christmas Carol to hear the wishes of children and distribute candy canes.

The Canton Singers, directed by Gordon Limburg, will lead participants in the singing of carols.

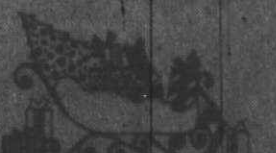

Refreshments will be served inside Township Hall following the decorating and tree-lighting ceremonies.

Glen Hornbeck and Lonnie Sisco will donate the horses and equipment for Santa's ride.

Shops prepare for new vehicle inspection law

By TIM RICHARD

Auto-repair shops are beginning to line up for licenses to make tailpipe tests under Michigan's new vehicle-inspection-and-maintenance (I/M) law. "We sent notices to all the licensed shops. Of 2,000 facilities, we got responses from 800," said Roger James, director of dealer licensing for the Michigan Department of State.

If too few shops are willing to make

I/M tests, the Department of State could do the testing itself. But he added, "The results of the survey are encouraging."

New Jersey state government does its own inspecting, and Arizona contracts with a single private garage. Rhode Island and Michigan, however, opted to license private garages to make annual tests of motor vehicles.

UNDER THE federal Clean Air Act, states must improve air quality in order to qualify for federal aid.

The Michigan Legislature gave the state Department of Natural Resources the job of testing to see which counties had dirty air due to auto emissions. The DNR put the finger on Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw.

James and other Department of State staff members were in Southfield last week at a meeting set up by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments to brief garages, fleet owners and the general public on the I/M law and departmental rules.

James said that if everything went according to schedule — that is, if the Legislature approved the proposed licensing rules and provided $1 million in funding — persons whose autos need plates in January 1982 would have to have the vehicles inspected by state-licensed garages.

TO BE LICENSED to test for emissions, he said, a firm must:

1. Register as a motor-vehicle repair shop. Such shops have been licensed in Michigan since 1975.
2. Acquire an emissions-analyzer machine, which costs about $4,000 new. When a vehicle's motor is idling, a probe is inserted into its tailpipe to measure the concentration of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide. The tester's fee is limited to $10 by law.

3. Employ a trained inspector. Auto manufacturers, private firms such as Chrysler's MoTech and community colleges are expected to provide the training.

The licensed testers will be inspected monthly by the Department of State, James said.

Owners of a fleet of 10 or more vehicles — such as municipal governments and their police departments — can be licensed to test their own vehicles.

HERE ARE answers to questions from dealers and the public:

Q. Who gets the test fee?

James: "The testing station. The test is a pass/fail one. If the vehicle passes, the testing station issues the owner a certificate, which the owner needs to purchase his license plates."

Q. How do you control a conflict of interest — where the inspection station also does tune-ups of emissions equipment?

James: "We plan to closely monitor each testing station. We should know soon into the system the percentage of vehicles that fail." This failing percentage will indicate to the Department of State whether a station is flunking too many cars in order to get repair business.

Q. If you check each inspection once a month, how many inspectors will you need?

James: "At least 25. We have 30 field people right now."

Q. What will be the cost of this program to the state?

James: "The Department of State is asking the Legislature for $1 million, which would cover the inspectors, printing, licensing procedure and so on."

The cost could rise if the DNR determines that more counties fail to meet clean-air standards. Prime candidates: the southeastern counties of Livingston, St. Clair and Monroe, along with such outstate areas as those around the cities of Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Lansing and Niles.

Toys from outer space top best-selling gift list

By ALICE COLLINS

It's impossible to describe or even list the thousands and thousands of toys on the shelves and floors of the 1980 Christmas toylands.

But be assured, toylands are stocked and stacked and waiting for you.

You'll find items ranging from old-fashioned rag dolls to space toys reflecting the future.

You'll find stocking stuffers priced as low as 19 cents and video games tagged at $248.

The trendiest and hottest-selling single line of merchandise of the season will be the new generation of "Star Wars" characters and their space paraphernalia.

That's the prediction of Steve Beane, inventory control manager for the nine Toys-R-Us stores in Michigan. Five of those stores are in metropolitan Detroit.

Yoda, the ugly little man-creature star of "The Empire Strikes Back," this year's "Star Wars" offering, is the hottest-selling little item on the shelves, said Beane.

"Ever since the new movie, that merchandise is selling like crazy," he said.

NEWEST "Star Wars" items are the "Sno Speeder," "Attack Base" and "Tann Tann Beast." But if your children don't already have Luke Skywalker, Princess Leia, Darth Vader and other character figures from the original movie, they're probably out of luck. Beane said they're no longer being manufactured.

Besides the "hot-trend merchandise" highly visible in TV commercials, shoppers will find a wide range of dolls, preschool toys, electronic games, trains and car sets, stuffed animals, building kits and blocks and many, many more.

We already have dolls that sleep, smile, walk, wet, talk, snuggle on your shoulder, squeeze your finger, burp and grow hair.

What will dolls be doing next? Among the new dolls this season is one that smells like a strawberry and wears strawberry clothes, one that feels real, one that "cries real tears," and one that chews gum.

"These are the ones we call 'basic TV dolls,'" said Beane. "They're advertised on TV, the kids see them and they're in great demand."

At Toys-R-Us, the dolls range in price from $10 to $12, he noted.

BARBIE is still around and selling well, now for $7. Besides Barbie, there are her buddies Skipper, Ken, Scott, Tracy, Kelley, and Shawn.

Popular TV shows like "Mork and Mindy," "Dukes of Hazzard" and "Chips," have also spawned dolls and related accessories.

At the Thunderbird Shop in Bloomfield Township, shoppers can find dolls of all ages, from babies to grandma and grandpa, said Manager Kevin Caverly.

Thunderbird specializes in life-like dolls with special outfits rather than dolls that do something, he said.

For those searching for toys that reflect the spirit of Christmas past rather than the electronic Christmas of the future, owner Sandy Barr offers a selection at the Village Barn in Franklin.

What makes you shop at a certain store?

The committee will meet next on Jan. 5 to compile recommended solutions on business problems.

MANY PERSONS in the business community, including chamber president McMurray, say many stores in Canton are hurting financially.

According to McMurray, a telephone survey conducted by the chamber two years ago on a wide range of topics showed that many residents shop outside the community.

"Because we're a bedroom community, many people who live in Canton shop outside Canton — because that's where they work."

McMurray offers other possible reasons on the poor financial state of some stores.

"Part of the problem was the makeup of the Township Board. I don't think they were very business-oriented," he said in reference to the sign ordinance and other business regulations.

"A problem is the layout of our shopping centers. Let's look at Plymouth. People will park their cars and walk around. (Plymouth) can handle specialty stores.

"You're faced with high rent in Canton. You're faced with a (difficult) kind of advertising coverage. We don't have the kind of community that people can say Canton TV, Canton this or Canton that."

Czerniak offers another possible reason why some Canton residents may shop outside the community. He questions the merchandising strategies of some local shop owners.

"Ninety percent of these people are in business for the first time," he said. "They think they're doing the right thing. If a person didn't feel his store was merchandised properly, he'd change it."

"Some of these business people grasp for excuses — anything to say why they're not doing well. But, sometimes, they're their own worst enemies."

"Maybe, if the consumer said some of these things, these people might wake up," Czerniak said.

Shopping Survey

Do you shop in Canton for clothing, home furnishings and the hundreds of other items which you buy each week? If you don't, is it because of small signs, a skimpy selection of goods or some other factor?

The Canton Observer is conducting an informal survey of your shopping habits. Results will be turned over to the Canton Township Business Task Force which is researching the problems of local businesses. The task force will make a recommendation to the Township Board on ways to improve the business climate.

Legislators poise for another vote on abortion

This story was compiled by Observer & Eccentric reporters and editors. It was written by Lynn Orr.

With pro-life buttons everywhere in Lansing and a rally planned Tuesday, abortion foes are beginning the count-down in hopes of winning their first victory in Michigan.

Their fight began three weeks ago when Gov. Milliken vowed to veto a bill to prohibit Medicaid funding of abortions except when the mother's life is endangered.

The abortion foes immediately began pressuring state legislators to override Milliken's expected veto. A two-thirds vote in both houses is needed to override a veto.

Milliken squeezed an override attempt by holding out on the veto until Friday afternoon, leaving the lawmakers only a few days until the end of the session to get an override through both houses.

Both backers and opponents of the bill agree that the Senate will override the veto but that the House vote is too close to call.

THE VOTE is critical to women in Wayne and Oakland Counties, who received about 10 percent of the abortions paid with state funds.

Between Sept. 1, 1979, and Sept. 30, 1980, Medicaid paid for about 38 percent of the 44,142 abortions performed in Michigan.

Medicaid paid for 16,200 elective abortions at a cost of $4½ million, and 640 therapeutic abortions (for the treatment of a medical condition) at a cost of $316,000, according to Norm Charles of the Medical Services Administration of the Department of Social Services.

By comparison, there were 35,299 live births in Michigan during the last three months of 1979, and the Office of Vital Health Care and Statistics estimates 109,190 live births through Sept. 30, 1980.

In the suburban area, only one state Representative, Ruth McNamee, R-Birmingham, voted against the bill. Area representatives and senators are divided on whether they will vote to override Milliken's veto.

The majority of those who voted to discontinue funding back an override. Others, like Republicans Sylvia Skrel and Jack Kirksey of Livonia, voted for the bill but declined to commit themselves to an override vote.

"IT'S VERY likely that a decision I won't have to make," said Kirksey, who predicted the votes aren't there for an override.

State Sen. William Faust, the Senate Majority Leader whose district includes Westland and Canton Township, voted for the bill but said he will not work to override Milliken's veto.

"I haven't decided whether I will vote for it," Faust said. "I've taken a pro-life position my whole career, but I have a strong obligation to the institution and traditions here as Senate Majority Leader.

"The maneuvers used to produce the bill were deplorable. The constitution spells out very clearly how a bill is to be enacted, and it was not enacted properly."

The content and intent of the home heating bill was changed to prohibit abortions, according to Faust.

"The constitution says we cannot change the intent of a bill. I certainly hope that the actions are contested, not on the grounds of abortion, but on the constitutional mechanics used."

Republican Wilbur "Sandy" Brotherton, who represents Farmington and Southfield, also predicted that the override vote won't come up.

"The problem we'll have in overriding the veto is getting enough bodies in each chamber to vote," said Brotherton, who added that an override would not be a repudiation of Milliken's leadership by pro-life Republicans in the Legislature.

"Some issues are non-partisan, and this is one of them."

As an alternative, Brotherton supports the concept of private trust funds to pay for abortions so that persons morally opposed to abortion won't have their tax dollars paying for the operations.

REPUBLICAN State Sen. Robert Geake, who represents Redford, Livonia and Plymouth, voted for the bill. He will vote to override Milliken for the first time in Geake's eight-year career in the Legislature.

"I'm sending a letter to him (the governor) that my override vote will be because of my deep personal conviction on the issue and should not be interpreted as a repudiation of his leadership."

Asked about whether he considered it discriminatory to withhold funds for a legal operation, Geake said, "Just because it's legal doesn't make it right."

Sen. Doug Ross, a Democrat representing the Farmington and Southfield areas and one of the lone opponents of the bill in the Senate, doesn't believe the issue should be decided by the government.

"Low-income women should have the same access to the same services as everyone else. We shouldn't be singling out poor women."

Skrel, who is a Roman Catholic and represents parts of Livonia and Westland, said her mail has been overwhelmingly in support of her vote and many constituents have urged her to vote to override. She doesn't believe there are enough votes to override and hasn't decided how she will vote.

She also doesn't view her vote as discriminating against poor women. "Abortions are still legal and they (poor women) have the same right as others do. They still get welfare and Medicaid. It's a matter of priorities," adding, "I don't think poor women really want abortions anyway."

Smokers try clinic approach

THE SMOKERS talk about their feelings.

"I've been feeling good and bad, off and on," says Gregg, who has been smoking 1½ packs a day for 19 years. "I'm hungry for almost anything."

"I was very irritable," says Lisa, who has been smoking one pack a day for about two years. "I had to avoid a lot of my friends."

"I've done it before (quit) several times," says Ken, a two-pack-a-day smoker for 15 years.

Dr. Weaver congratulates them on their determination to quit smoking. He then reinforces that with statistics.

For example, a Public Health Service information pamphlet on lung cancer indicates this disease strikes 100,000 Americans each year, 95 percent of whom are smokers.

In addition, the average male smoker is 10 times more likely to develop lung cancer than a non-smoker. The lung cancer death rate for women has increased 400 percent since 1930.

Risk of developing lung cancer drops when smoking is discontinued. Cancer of the larynx (voice box) is rare among persons who don't smoke or drink heavily, according to another Public Health pamphlet. This form of cancer claims the lives of 3,200 Americans a year.

And smoking is also linked to heart disease and emphysema, says Dr. Weaver.

"Stopping smoking isn't without pain," he adds. "You can either pay now or later, because if you don't stop, you're going to pay later."

PERSONS attending the five-evening seminar are encouraged to keep a log of how they feel, and when they have a craving to smoke. They are urged to consume plenty of fresh fruit and juices to cleanse the body's system.

Coffee is out, because of the psychological and physical link between caffeine and nicotine. According to Weaver, caffeine stimulated the central nervous system is while nicotine is a depressant.

"Many of us are as addicted to coffee as we are to nicotine," says Weaver.

"The nerves get worse," he added. "It's like tapping a horse, then saying 'Whoa.'"

Persons are urged to avoid situations or friends who might prompt a craving for a cigarette. And they wear a rubber band around their wrist as "aversion therapy."

"Snap it every time you want a cigarette," Swanson urges. "It associates pain with the cigarette. Otherwise, it (a cigarette) was your friend or your pleasure."

Other sessions in the workshop deal with the role of diet and exercise, or "how to keep from looking like a beach ball with arms," Swanson says.

And there is a segment on the effect of smoking on childbirth.

According to Swanson, a donation is requested at the end of the workshop to cover the cost of the pamphlets and working materials.

Upcoming stop-smoking seminars are planned for the Bloomfield Hills area in January and Livonia in February.

For more information, write Better Living Seminars, Box 574, Plymouth 48170.

Arson suspect is held for W-W school blaze

School officials hope to have the John Glenn High School auditorium, damaged by a fire Wednesday, back in operation by the first of the year.

Police say they have a suspect in custody in the fire, which is being considered arson. Since the suspect is a juvenile, details on the investigation and the suspect are being suppressed.

According to Glenn Principal Tom Svitekovich, most of the investigation into the fire was done by high school administrators. Svitekovich said the district will press legal charges against the suspect.

The 2,300 students at Glenn were evacuated from the school at 11:30 a.m. last Wednesday when the fire was discovered. No students were injured, but Capt. Robert Perry of the Westland Fire Department said one fireman, Sam Grisom, was treated and released at Wayne County

General Hospital after falling off the auditorium stage in the dense smoke.

Perry said fires were started in five locations in the auditorium. He estimated damage at $20,000 to $50,000, most of it from water used to extinguish the blaze.

Svitekovich said the fire was primarily located near the front stage area of the auditorium.

Jim Sutelif, director of construction for the school district, said contractors will not be able to determine actual costs from the damages until the end of this week. Adjusters are then expected to decide how much will be covered by the district's insurance.

One auditorium performance had to be rescheduled due to the fire. A Wayne-Westland YMCA travelogue was held last Saturday in the Glenn cafeteria instead of the auditorium. No other events had been scheduled for the auditorium for the rest of this year.

Residents nab B&E suspect

Canton police are crediting watchful residents of Sherwood Mobile Village for their help in nabbing a suspect on a breaking-and-entering charge.

Anthony Stempien, 24, of Canterbury Circle in Canton, faces a Dec. 15 preliminary examination in 35th District Court.

The case came to attention of police Thursday after the manager of the mobile home park, at Michigan Avenue and Haggerty, received a telephone tip that someone was breaking into one of the houses.

When the manager investigated, the man ran away. But according to police Lt. Larry Stewart, residents "chased and held down" the man before police arrived to make the arrest.

"It was terrific work by the residents," Stewart said. Later investigation indicated that the door of one of the houses in the mobile home park had been pried open with a crowbar.

A stereo and a television set had been stacked near the door, Stewart said.

Stempien was arraigned Friday before 35th District Judge James Garber. The court entered a plea of innocent in Stempien's behalf, and he was sent to Wayne County Jail in lieu of $25,000 personal bond.

Breaking and entering a house is a felony punishable by up to 15 years in prison upon conviction.

Stewart said Stempien had come to stay with his parents on Canterbury Circle only two days prior to the incident at the mobile home park.

Stempien recently had been released on parole from Jackson Prison on a breaking and entering conviction, according to Stewart.

Program aims to clip fuel bill

The Wayne County Office on Aging is seeking applicants in the Plymouth-Canton community who own homes in need of repairs for energy efficiency.

Help is available from the agency for winterizing one's house at no cost to low-income residents of western Wayne County who meet federal requirements.

However, the program's future is uncertain, frozen for the time being by cold, fiscally restraining winds blowing out of Washington.

The weatherization program, which serves 17 communities in the area, received almost $1 million from the federal government in the last half of 1980. Funds come from the windfall profits tax.

"We've been assured of funding for at least the first six months of 1981 but the big question mark is in Lansing and Washington as to what Reagan's attitude will be for this type of program," said James Brown, program coordinator.

"Most federally funded programs are short ranged but our program is designed to attack long-range energy problems."

DESPITE THE CLOUDY horizon, the office provides repairs through federal funding from the Department of Energy as well as the Michigan Department of Labor.

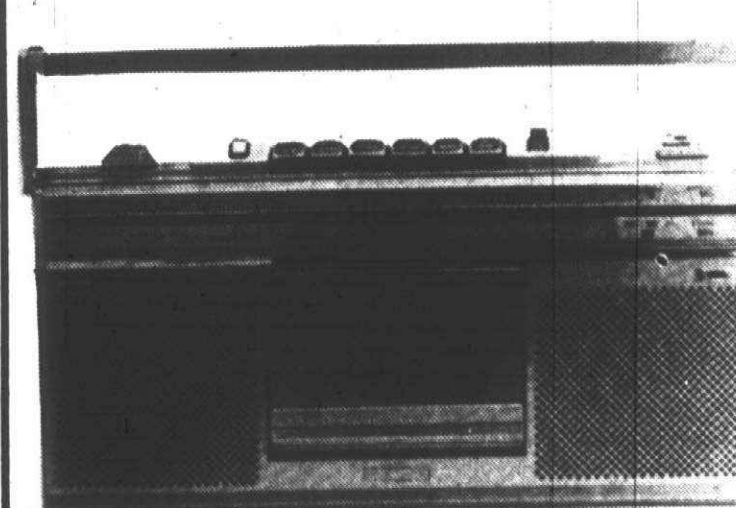

To qualify for this assistance, one must own a home and meet federal low-income standards.

Brown said such home repairs have meant as much as a 30 percent reduction in one's home fuel bill.

State addresses abortion funding

State Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, voted for the bill and will vote to override, he said.

"We're in a budget crunch," is how he explained his vote. "I don't think we should be spending tax dollars for abortion at this time."

"It's also a moral issue with me. I don't think the state should pay for abortions."

McNamee views the bill as discrimination against the poor.

"I'M NOT an advocate of abortion, but as long as it exists, I agree that it should be available to both those who are poor and those who are able to pay."

"Abortion, regardless of laws, will always take place, and I want them to take place in sanitary conditions."

"I don't believe in abortion," said

State Rep. Roy Smith, R-Ypsilanti, who represents much of the Plymouth area. "That has been my position all along. You can't be on both sides of the issue."

State Rep. Tom Brown, D-Westland, whose district also includes Canton Township and southeastern Plymouth Township, also will vote for an override.

However, he said he would not push for an override and doubts that one will be taken or successful.

Brown said the state's financial problems make the Medicaid cutoff more important than ever.

"Abortion is not like funding for a disease or a sickness. A pregnancy comes about because of an individual's own agreement. There's an act that brings this about. It's not like a disease in the air."

Views on Dental Health

By Philip Meizels, D.D.S.

EARLY TOOTH OVERCROWDING

When should crooked teeth be straightened? As soon as they're detected! The old adage about an ounce of protection is especially true in orthodontics, where crooked teeth can be prevented by early treatment.

Diagnosed at a sufficiently early age, an unusual trend can often be stopped in its tracks - and its effects completely eased. To ensure early detection, a child should have a checkup by the family dentist at intervals of about six months, beginning at 2½ to 3 years of age. Overcrowded and crooked teeth are most likely to make their entrance with the arrival of the four permanent incisors and the four permanent molars at around age six.

Prompt treatment is recommended when teeth are overcrowded. Some baby teeth may be removed ahead of their normal shedding time to allow nature to do a certain amount of tooth straightening. Known as interceptive orthodontics, it involves a one-by-one extraction in a well-planned sequence to make room for a better bite.

Will poor lose right to choose?

Suppose your daughter is 14, unwed and pregnant. She has three options: to give birth and raise the child, to give birth and allow the child to be adopted, and to have an abortion.

The choices are not easy. Raising a child while still a teen-ager is difficult at best. The decision to give up a child for adoption is a decision that can haunt unwed mothers all their lives.

The moral and psychological effects of undergoing an abortion face every woman who makes that choice.

As a parent, you attempt to support your daughter, to help her make the best decision. Some parents even assume the responsibilities of raising their grandchildren.

But whatever decision is reached is the mother's.

SUPPOSE, however, that your daughter is 14, unwed and pregnant, and you are raising her with a monthly check from the Department of Social Services.

Your check allows no room for medical expenses; but Medicaid pays for most of those bills.

Your daughter, perhaps guided by you, decides to have an abortion.

You turn to the Department of Social Services to pay the bill, but a social worker tells you that the state Legislature has banned funding of abortions.

Your daughter no longer has three options; she has two, unless her parent can come up with the money to pay for an abortion.

AN UNWED pregnant teen-ager in the suburbs, as well as most pregnant women living in these suburbs, has the financial means to pay for an abortion if she decides to make that choice.

But this week, the state Legislature will vote on whether or not to take away that right from a specific group of pregnant women.

Abortion foes argue that the pregnant woman still has that option; that she can determine her priorities and come up with the money to pay for an abortion if she so desires.

Abortion foes argue, and the majority of state Legislators agreed last month, that it is immoral for the state to pay for abortions, despite the U.S. Supreme Court's landmark ruling that legalized abortions.

Governor Milliken vetoed the legislation once again. Legislators need a two-thirds majority to override his veto this week before the session ends.

The bill would prohibit state funding of abortions, except when the mother's life is in danger.

In other words, abortion will become legal only for those who can pay for one.

IT'S EASY to cite the arguments against this kind of thinking: It's discriminatory; it's the imposition of moral views on others; it's even fiscally unsound. The cost to the state of raising a child is hundreds of times that of an abortion.

Abortion foes have their own arguments. Basically, they believe that abortion is immoral, that the right to life is sacred, that they do not want the state paying for what they consider is an immoral act.

You might say they're trying to legislate morality, but abortion foes do not believe that the decision to give birth is the mother's alone. They're concerned about the unborn child.

It's a valid concern, but one that doesn't hold up when you consider just some of the children who will be born to mothers who wanted an abortion but couldn't afford to get one.

A heroin-addicted child born to an addict. A child born to a mentally retarded 12-year-old without the means to have pre- or post-natal care.

A child born to a 45-year-old woman, with four or five children in her teens, all supported by state welfare.

Abortion foes argue that woman who want abortions should have thought about the consequences before they had intercourse.

That's the same kind of thing suburban fathers and mothers tell their unwed, pregnant daughter. But then, if they choose, they can write out a check to rectify her error.

IF THE right-to-lifers succeed in imposing their views on the poor, they will be the only ones who will lose the right to control their bodies.

When asked about whether it was discriminatory to deny legal abortion to the poor, State Sen. Robert Geake said: "Just because it's legal doesn't make it right."

Perhaps he, as well as other legislators who intend to override Milliken's veto, should remember that just because abortions were illegal didn't prevent them from happening.

Those who can afford it have rarely been denied an abortion. They simply found a doctor who was willing to do it for a price.

If the state Legislators succeed in overriding Milliken's veto, things will be pretty much where they were when I was a teen-ager — except that at that time, before abortions were legalized, even the daughter of wealthy parents could die from a self-induced abortion, or a botched job.

If abortion foes win this round, they can be comforted with the thought that we will have to hear and read only about the poor dying in emergency rooms because they didn't have the money to pay for the abortion they were determined to have.

And only the destitute victims of rapists will be forced to bring another unwanted child into the world.

Silent night: Choppers murmur 'round yon battle zone

The gaunt soldier sat alone looking into the silent night.

In front of him was a small artificial Christmas tree, unlit and decorated with a solitary elf-like figure.

Darkness, deep and rich, permeated the area. Only the distant stars and scattered candles around the encampment helped outline the silhouettes of bunkers and machine guns.

Lighted candles in combat zones usually were forbidden. But tonight was different. It was Christmas 1968. Cease fire had been declared in Vietnam.

The familiar combat sounds were absent — cacophonies of artillery thundering through the palms; bursting flares eerily lighting the sky; automatic weapons clattering in the distance; and helicopters purring through the tropical night.

All that could be heard were the hushed tones of soldiers gathered in a small group.

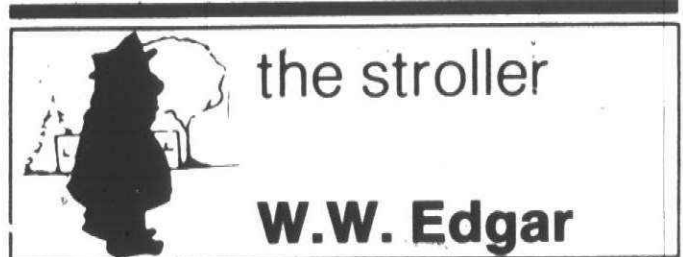

The lone soldier, the one in front of the Christmas tree, found the silence disconcerting. For many months he had listened, day after endless day, to the unceasing rumble of combat.

It had become the ordinary. The near-silence was deafening.

After a time, he stood up and walked over to the group, deserting his lonesome vigil.

"Gotta cigarette?" he asked routinely.

THE ACNE-SCARRED kid from Chicago reached

Harbor fight slips 'neath sea of time

It doesn't seem possible that 39 years have slipped by since that Sunday afternoon when The Stroller was rudely interrupted by his neighbors while giving the utility-room floor a coat of red rubber paint.

They came to the door and yelled, "Have you got your radio turned on?"

This seemed a rather peculiar question to ask early on an otherwise quiet Sunday. And when The Stroller confessed that the radio was in another room and turned off, the neighbors, Jim and Martha Ryder, shouted:

"The Japs are bombing Pearl Harbor. They already have sunk several of our best battleships and it looks as though they'll ruin most of the our Navy over there."

For a moment or two The Stroller and the lady who runs our house just listened in dismay. Then the thought came that maybe it was some bit of trickery on a radio show.

But the neighbors would have none of it and the paint job was set aside while we went into the living room and turned on the radio (there was no television in those days) and we just couldn't believe what we were hearing.

It seemed as though the world was coming to an end as one commentator after another told the tale of the worst destruction of warships in our history.

All afternoon long and late into the evening, the almost unbelievable news came over the air waves.

Early the next morning we sat at the breakfast table to get the latest news.

Then came that long-to-be-remembered moment when President Roosevelt appeared before Congress and said:

"This day will live in infamy."

A growing salute to Emily Dickinson

By JOANNE STEIN

Dec. 10 will mark Emily Dickinson's 150th birthday. "How can anyone live that long?" asked the man on one end of the telephone.

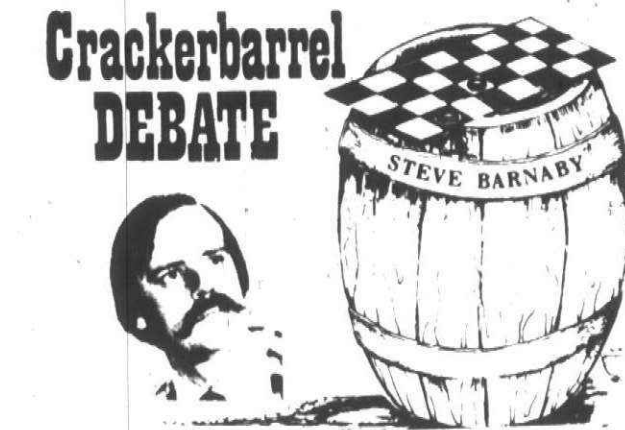

"By writing poetry," came the reply — "especially her kind of poetry."

Although Emily Dickinson lived only 56 years, her poetry lives after her and grows steadily in importance year by year. Even her small circle of admirers in 19th century Amherst, Mass., would be amazed that she has come to be known as one of America's greatest poets.

In fact, many scholars now consider Emily Dickinson and Walt Whitman the most important poets establishing the American tradition.

ALL THIS would have been heady news to the quiet woman who published anonymously only seven poems in her lifetime.

And yet she had a strong confidence in herself as poet, even a sense of vocation. After her death, more than 1,000 poems were discovered on scraps of paper in her bedroom. Today we have 1,750 of them in print. And even more may turn up in old letters in somebody's attic.

into his fatigue shirt pocket and pulled out a wrinkled pack of Ruby Queens, a French brand of cigarettes which combat soldiers smoked as a matter of status.

"Didn't think I'd see a Christmas tree this year," he said, in a vain attempt at humor.

"Ya, I know. I've been carrying that damn thing around on my back for two weeks. What the hell, anything after 40 pounds doesn't matter, anyhow."

Smiles creased the weary soldiers' faces, then the silence returned. They gazed into the night, alone in their thoughts — about home and what the future held for them.

For some of them there wouldn't be any future.

But all of them, on this night of cease fire, believed differently.

"Say, this is sort of stupid, just standing here. Let's celebrate," said the Wisconsin soldier.

They walked over to the boxes stacked up next to one of the bunkers and grabbed cans of warm beer.

"Let's get some food together and have a Christmas feast," said one.

"Sure, why not?" said another. "Might as well."

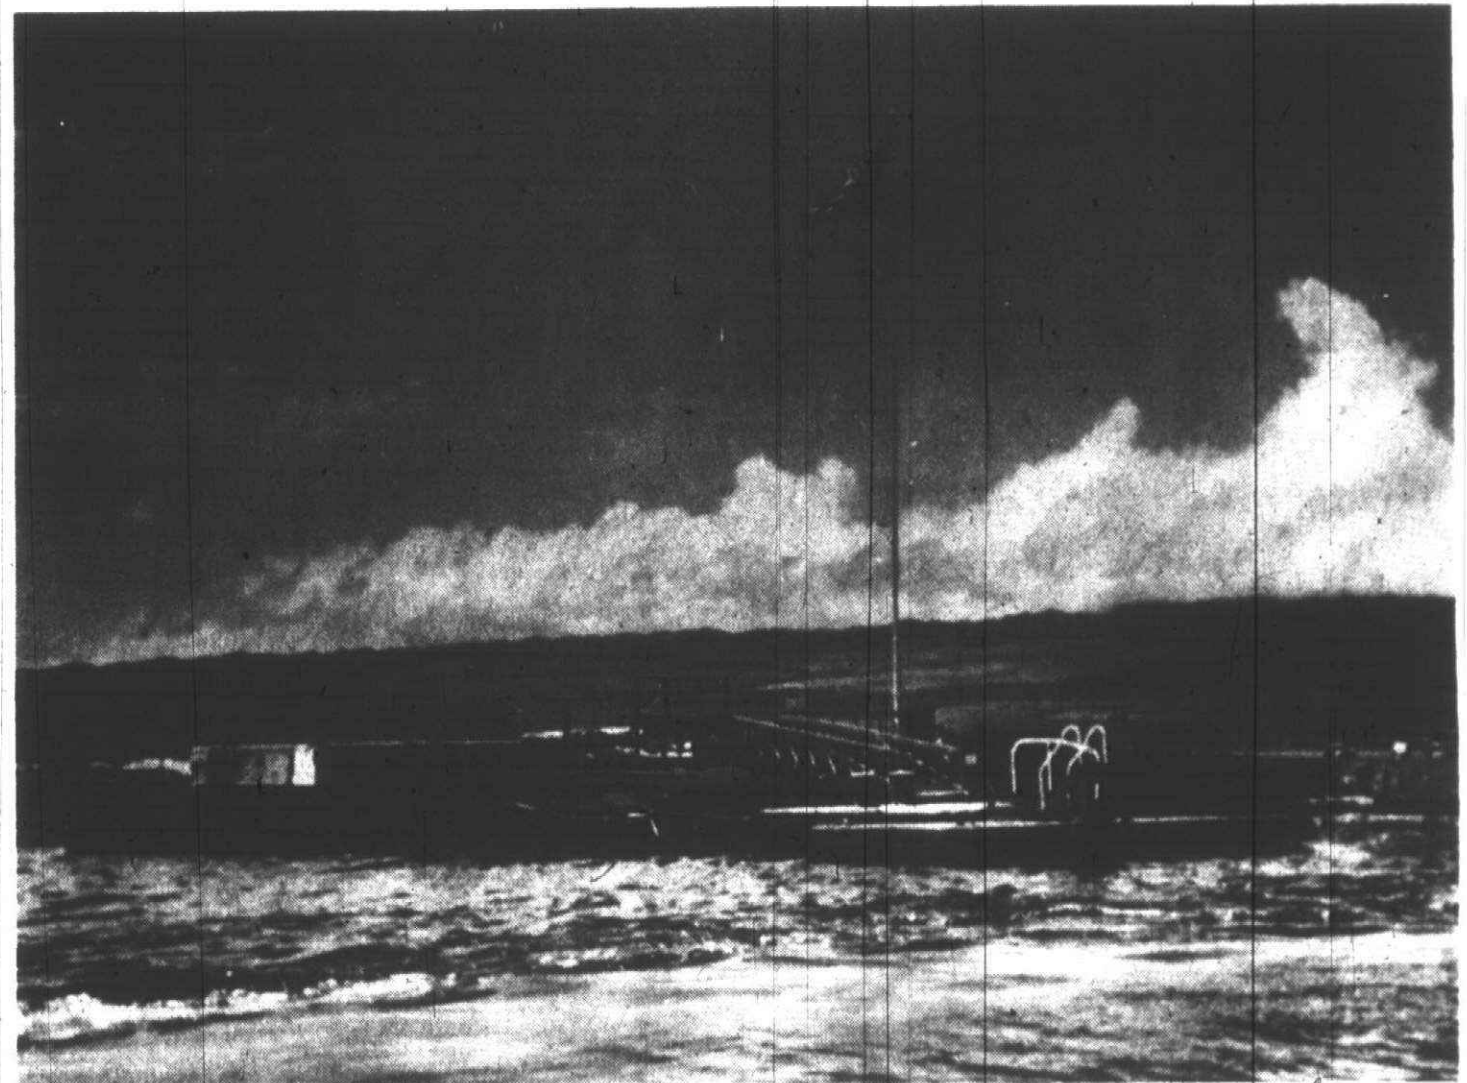

C-rations cans of ham and lima beans, white bread and jelly, were thrown into a pile next to the Christmas tree.

"Well, it ain't turkey and ham. But it beats starving."

A THREAD OF joviality bound together the diverse group as they heated up their holiday repast over wads of C4, a plastic explosive. Regulations prohibited wasting the valuable explosive for such use. But on this night sergeants and officers would turn their backs.

For a while the soldiers laughed and told stories as they stuffed their bellies and became drunk on the warm beer. But soon they fell quiet again, each staring into the small Christmas tree decorated with the solitary elf-like figure.

The next morning, as the sun crept over the horizon, the soldiers were awakened. In the distance could be heard the helicopters, engines purring, coming to cart them away to another day of battle.

A flagpole rises to mark the Arizona's underwater grave in Pearl Harbor, seen here in a photo taken by The Stroller in 1956.

A lot of water has gone under the bridge since that never-to-be-forgotten morning. Our country has engaged in two wars, we have had several recessions and even the importance of Pearl Harbor Day has dimmed.

If, however, you ever have had the opportunity to visit Pearl Harbor the sights of that devastation will always live with you.

Some years ago The Stroller and his wife were part of a group that was invited to tour the scene of that wanton destruction.

Before our government boat left the dock, one of the old-time admirals told us the story of that awful day and the events that led up to it. Then we were taken around the harbor with the warning that we were to take pictures only at designated places. If this were disobeyed, the old admiral said, both camera and film would be taken.

The first sight to cause a lump in our throats was the bow of the battleship Utah sticking up out of the water. The Utah had been trying to make a getaway — but was hit just at the mouth of the harbor.

The biggest scene was near the spot where the battleship Arizona was sunk. Only the smokestack was sticking out of the water. (This was before the monument was constructed over the hull).

With a choked voice, the old admiral who was our guide said that several hundred members of the crew went down with the ship. He explained that the Japanese bomb had gone down the smokestack and the crew down below never had a chance.

Through a smile from Lady Luck, The Stroller obtained a fine picture of the smokestack sticking out of the water — and it is a picture he cherishes among his souvenirs.

Yet, as he looks at it today, The Stroller just can't make himself believe that 39 years have passed since that Sunday afternoon — December 7, 1941 — when he was rudely interrupted while painting the utility-room floor and told that "the Japs are bombing Pearl Harbor."

It sure was a day that has lived in infamy.

An early biographer, not satisfied with the stark beauty of Emily Dickinson, retouched her photograph with curls for hair and frills for collar. But we are now returning to the real Emily Dickinson. And we are certainly richer for that.

LOCALLY, Plymouth Book World Vol. II, on Penniman Avenue, will celebrate Emily Dickinson's birthday with poetry, music, sherry and biscuits from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday.

The Bottom of the Hill, Plymouth, will serve copies of Emily Dickinson poems with meals all day Wednesday.

Livonia residents may recall they have been honoring Emily for several years by having named Dickinson Junior High for her.

Joanne Stein has taught in the English department at Schoolcraft College since 1967. She currently teaches a three-credit hour course called "Breakfast and Poetry."

Unfortunately, absurd myths obscured the reputation of Emily Dickinson for years after her death. The worst, perhaps, assigned her a "little girl" image, the Emily of "I'm Nobody! Who are you?" fame.

That some persons grow up remembering only this poem of the 1,750 is a pity, because this is a poet who wrote with incredible strength about love, joy, pain, loss, eternity and deep religious conflict. This is the poet who can speak to us in ways and at times that few others can.

After great pain, a formal feeling comes
The Nerves sit ceremonious, like Tombs
The stiff Heart questions was it He, that bore,
And Yesterday, or Centuries before?

The Feet, mechanical, go round
Of Ground, or Air, or Ought
A Wooden way
Regardless grown.
A Quartz contentment, like a stone

This is the Hour of Lead
Remembered, if outlived,
As reeling persons; recollect the Snow
First — Chill — then Stupor — then the letting go

Better know what you're doing

Chestnuts roasting on an open fire?

By LEM MESEE

Right about the time my wife puts the turkey in the oven — that's when I start. The reason is that it takes me a long, long, long, long time.

It's traditional and comfortable to have a fire in the fireplace on a holiday. But most outdoorsmen have one weak spot in their bank of skills. Mine is building a fire, no matter if it's on a camping trip or in the fireplace.

I've used half a can of lighter fluid, an eight-inch stack of shredded paper and two packs of matches without being able to get a fire going.

The other day, my wife tossed a little pamphlet at me. "Building an Easy Starting Fire" it was called. "I called the Cooperative Extension Service in Pontiac at 858-0880 and got it," she said.

How do you like that? The woman not only gets me a pamphlet but memorizes the extension service telephone number.

"Be sure the damper is completely open," it said. I already knew that.

"Start with finely split, dry kindling. It should be about half the diameter of a pencil. Pine, spruce and straight grained larch are good kindling species," Boy Scout stuff.

"Mix with a little paper or shavings. Do not use too much paper. It is not necessary for a properly laid fire."

Now that is the most gargantuan line of nonsense I have heard since the late election campaign. I always need copious quantities of paper to start a fire.

"Place it on the firegrate in a teepee pattern."

"Work up to one-inch diameter wood pieces. Continue the teepee pattern."

For me it doesn't work. The teepee always collapses and the fire is smothered. Or else the top part of the teepee ignites, but the rest just goes out.

"Never use gasoline, kerosene, lighter fluid or other flammable liquids to start a fire. Commercial products are available if needed."

I knew that. I have tried letting the lighter fluid soak in. I've tried lighting it right after spraying on the fluid. Either way, the stuff burns off, leaving the wood slightly tan, not even charred.

"Wait until the small wood is vigorously burning. Add wood up to two inches in diameter."

"Maintain a one- to two-inch bed of ashes under the grate. This adds heat to the fire. Too much ash will block air flow to the fire."

BAKE A GIFT OF LOVE

Homemade gifts from the oven provide a special way to personalize gift giving. Baking a gift of love requires no sizes or colors yet the recipient knows that your care and attention have not been spared. And, the time and effort you spend, the love you give, will be most appreciated.

It's never too soon to start planning your gift giving. Don't wait until the last minute to get everything done. Plan your time—make out a schedule, consider special preferences and determine if the gift will be mailed. Plan to make extra baked goods of Fruit 'n Nut Breads and Hint O' Mint Drops for last minute giving and family enjoyment.

Involve the entire family in your baking activities. Even small children can help grease cookie sheets, shape and decorate cookies, design gift cards and especially take part in the actual gift giving.

This holiday season put yourself into gift giving and give your gift of love with pride.

GIFT GIVING CONTAINER

Complete your gift of love by saving the oatmeal tube and using it as your gift giving container. Cookies and candy will stay freshest if the inside is first lined with foil. It should extend several inches above the top and turn down over the lip of the tube. A plastic bag may be used as a removable inner lining. Decorate the outside with colored foil, wrapping paper, felt, ribbon or yarn. Fill the decorated container with your own home-baked cookies and give it as a generous expression of your love.

| 2 teaspoons salt | 1 cup chopped fresh or frozen cranberries |
| 1 teaspoon soda | |

Heat oven to 325°F. Generously grease three 1-lb. coffee cans. Combine flour, oats, sugar, nuts, baking powder, salt and soda in large bowl; mix well. Add milk, eggs, apricots, butter and orange peel; mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in cranberries.

Drop by well rounded measuring tablespoonfuls onto greased cookie sheet about 2 inches apart and 1-1/2 inches from edge of cookie sheet. Bake at 350°F. for 12 to 14 minutes or until golden brown. Cool 1 minute on cookie sheet; cool completely on wire rack. Makes about 2-1/2 dozen cookies.

Cooks will love these low-cost gift suggestions

A foray into a gourmet cooking store should provide a wealth of low-cost gift ideas. With that in mind, I recently visited Kitchen Stuff (330 Hamilton in Birmingham) and came away with, not just a fund of ideas but with an armload of inexpensive items I couldn't pass up.

One such item was Vege-Paper, a packet of four 22-by-22-inch sheets of pure vegetable cellulose paper (each of which can be reused about 15 times). Stiff and parchment-like in the envelope, the sheets soften when ringed with water and are used to wrap vegetables before dropping them in boiling water. The vegetables remain dry, remarkably crisp, nutritious, and flavorful. It was worth the $3.50 price just for the fascination of seeing the Vege-Paper work.

If you wanted to make a gift set including the Vege-Paper, you could combine it with a citrus juicer and salad spinner. The citrus juicer, available for $2.49 from Kitchen Stuff is actually a tiny spigot which simply pokes through the skin of the fruit and funnels out the juice without the bother of cutting and squeezing. Even non-cooks would enjoy using this gadget for fixing drinks — from a morning glass of fresh orange juice to a whiskey sour.

The salad spinner is one of those gadgets I had considered to be not worth the cupboard space until I tried it. Working on the principle of centrifuge, the salad spinner throws all excess water off salad greens, leaving them perfectly dry so that salad dressings will adhere rather than running off the leaves.

The method is more efficient than patting greens dry with towels and doesn't leave you with stacks of soggy paper towels (save a tree) or tea towels (save on laundry). The salad spinner is available for $6.97 from Wells Fargo.

Tie your gift set together with a recipe card for a green salad with crisp-cooked vegetables and a lemon-vinaigrette dressing.

WHILE IN KITCHEN Stuff, I also noticed the Grease-Mop, a device which is supposed to absorb oil and grease from the surface of soups, sauces, etc. I had always eyed this item with suspicion — even if it did work, what did anyone want with a used grease-mop?

My suspicions were allayed by Fran Hayes, co-owner of Kitchen Stuff who has had her own Grease Mop for three years and who assured me that it does work. It is, in fact, made by the same company that makes the ropes to clean up oil spills in the ocean. The mop simply rinses clean although, if it becomes discolored, for example by a spaghetti sauce, it is dishwasher safe.

The perfect gadget for anyone with a health- or aesthetic based distaste for excessive fat in foods, this precludes the time-consuming stop of chilling a dish to congeal fat so that it can be lifted off. ($3.95 at Kitchen Stuff)

Another thoughtful gift for the health-conscious individual would be a bag of Columbian De-Caf coffee beans which yields a remarkably rich cup of coffee without the negative effects of caffeine.

ANYONE FOND of things Italian would appreciate a gift of French Roast or Italian Roast coffee for making fresh espresso. Fran Hayes recommended Dutch Chocolate Coffee beans which can be brewed for a delicious, unusual after-dinner drink, a beverage described by one of the Hayes girls as "a sin." If sinful as an after-dinner drink, imagine waking up to a cup of Dutch Chocolate Coffee.

You might even time your gift to arrive on a weekend, accompanied by fresh, flaky croissants — definitely something to linger in bed with. The croissants could come from your own oven or be purchased from a good French baker (available from Le Petit Prince, 124 West 14 Mile in Birmingham or from Twining's Cafe). The coffee beans mentioned, plus six other varieties, are available from Kitchen Stuff at $5.95/lb., $3/1/2 lb., $1.50/1/4 lb.

FOR THOSE WHO prefer tea, a sampler of exotic teas would provide a pleasant break from the ubiquitous orange pekoe.

I came away from a visit to the Eastern Market this past summer with a small bundle of 1 oz. tea packets, including Oolong, Darjeeling, Keemun, and green tea, and with a sense of having been adventurous, self-indulgent, and extravagant — all for a total of about $2. Combining these tea samples with a tea ball would result in a lovely gift set for the tea connoisseur.

Perhaps one of the nicest aspects of buying kitchen gifts (along with price) is the shopping itself. A world apart from crowded and impersonal markets, gourmet cooking stores offer a respite, a chance to spend an hour or an afternoon browsing through a fascinating array of kitchen tools and gadgets. Unlike department store clerks, who are too often totally unfamiliar with their stock, the salespeople in a family-owned establishment are knowledgeable and personable.

Their enthusiasm is so contagious, you might end up with an assortment of items designed to speed you through your own holiday cooking. Whether for yourself or others, these items answer the need all of us have for "toys" under the Christmas tree.

SALAD TORCOLATI
1 1/2 lbs. small white potatoes
3 tbsp. fruity olive oil
1/4 to 1/2 cup fresh-minced parsley salt
fresh-ground black pepper
1 lb. slender young zucchini
1 lb. thin green beans
1 cup paper-thin carrot slices
2 heads Boston lettuce
Simple Vinaigrette

Boil the potatoes in their jackets in salted water until they are just tender. Drain the potatoes and chill them. When they are cold, peel and thinly slice them. Put them in a bowl with 3 tbsp. of the olive oil, the parsley, and some salt and pepper. Toss and put aside until you are ready to serve the salad.

Slice the zucchini 1/4-inch thick, cutting on a slant if they are particularly slender, and drop the slices into boiling salted water. Cook the zucchini for 5 minutes exactly, drain, and run cold water over them. Chill the zucchini.

Trim and wash the green beans and cut them in 1-inch lengths. Boil them in salted water until tender but still crunchy. Drain the beans, run cold water over them, and chill them.

Boil the carrot slices in a little salted water for just a few minutes — they, too, should be a bit crunchy.

Hare raising

Any rabbit can swim if it has to. But some, such as the marsh rabbit that inhabits the Atlantic and Gulf coastal states from Virginia to Alabama, take to water almost as readily as ducks. Marsh rabbits have been known to outswim dogs.

A Question of Taste

By Hilary Keating Callaghan

Wash the lettuce, dry the leaves by patting them gently with a tea towel or spinning in a salad spinner, and then tear them into manageable pieces.

Just before serving, combine all the vegetables in a bowl, pour the vinaigrette over them, and toss lightly until everything is evenly coated. Add salt and fresh-ground pepper to taste. Serves 6 to 8.

(Adapted from The Vegetarian Epicure Book Two by Anna Thomas)

SIMPLE VINAIGRETTE
1/4 cup white wine vinegar or herb vinegar
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. dry mustard or 1 tsp. Dijon mustard salt and fresh-ground black pepper
1/2 cup olive oil

Combine the vinegar, lemon juice, mustard, salt, and pepper. Add the olive oil, a little at a time, beating with a whisk until the mixture emulsifies. This may also be combined in a blender.

CAFE AU LAIT
(This is the traditional French breakfast coffee.)
4 cups strong fresh hot coffee
2 cups whole milk
Tiny pinch of salt
Granulated sugar, if desired

Have ready 4 large coffee cups, warmed. The fresh hot coffee should be kept warm in a little pan or pot over hot water while the milk with the salt is warmed in a separate little pan. Bring it just to a boil, stirring all the while. Pour the coffee and milk simultaneously into each cup. Season with granulated sugar, if desired. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings, depending on size of cups. (From The Dione Lucas Book of French Cooking by Dione Lucas and Marion Gorman).

CROISSANTS
3/4 cup butter
3 to 3 1/2 cups flour
3 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 pkg. yeast
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup water
2 eggs
1 tbsp. milk

Cut the butter into 1/4 cup of the flour until the mixture is a paste. Place between 2 sheets of waxed paper and roll to a 10x4-inch rectangle. Chill one hour. Combine 1 cup flour, the sugar, salt, and yeast. Heat 3/4 cup milk and the 1/4 cup water to 120-130 degrees. Add to the dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed, scraping the bowl occasionally. Add 1 egg and 1/4 cup flour. Beat at high speed two minutes. Stir in more flour to make a soft dough. Turn onto a floured board. Roll to a 12-inch square. Place the butter on the center of the dough. Fold a third of the dough over the butter; cover with the remainder of the dough. Roll to a 12-inch square. Fold as above. Roll and fold 3 more times. Wrap in waxed paper; chill 2 hours.

Shape 1/3 of the dough at a time. Roll each into a 12-inch circle. Cut into 8 pie-shaped pieces. Beat together the egg and the 1 tbsp. milk. Brush on the points. Roll up each piece, beginning at the wide end. Seal the points. Place on greased baking sheets, points down; curve slightly. Brush with the egg mixture. Let rise in a warm place, until light, about 30 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees about 12 minutes, or until done. Makes 2 dozen.

The VIEW from CANTON CENTER

FORTY MEMBERS of Kappa chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma toured the Plymouth Historical Museum Sunday afternoon. Members of the international honor society for teachers and guests admired the holiday decorations, the special seasonal exhibits and the two floors of historical memorabilia in the Dunning Memorial Building.

Following the tour, the group attended a Christmas tea at the Dunning residence on Penniman Avenue. The tour and the tea were arranged by the fellowship committee of the society of which Irene Waldorf is a member.

Nancy Tanger, a member of the Outer Detroit chapter, served at the festive tea table, assisting the hostesses Margaret Dunning and Irene Waldorf.

JOANNE STEIN and Hazel Gibson are arranging a birthday party for Emily Dickinson. It will be from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 10 and will mark the 150th anniversary of the American poet's birth.

The party will be in Volume II on Penniman Avenue, Plymouth (beside the post office) and all Emily Dickinson fans are welcome.

Hazel and Joanne had been considering a party for Emily, next year. When they realized 1980 was her 150th anniversary, they quickly made their plans.

by ELLIE GRAHAM

Emily loved music, so there will be piano music and poetry. She served sherry to her sister-in-law when she came over and played the piano for Emily. This was in her reclusive stage so Emily didn't actually serve the sherry herself, she had a member of her household serve it. Hazel and Joanne decided to serve sherry and biscuits at their party. To add to the festivities, they will have ribbons bearing the words "Happy Birthday Emily, 1830-1980." These will be available at cost which is 25 cents.

Emily was born in 1830 and died in 1886. Joanne, who teaches English at Schoolcraft College, also originated a breakfast and poetry program. She says Emily's poems, which were not published until after her death, must have involved one of the greatest editing jobs in history. They were written on little scraps of paper and were found singly and in batches. One of her biographers believes there may be more that have not yet been discovered.

Emily's birthday party is such a neat idea. Hope there are many of her readers in attendance.

SUSAN JENKINS, a sophomore at Alma College, was one of 46 Introduction to Anthropology students who went on a field trip to Chicago. During their two-day stay in Chicago, the students inspected artifacts on display in the Field Museum of Natural History, the Chicago Art Institute and the Museum of Science and Industry.

MORE THAN 30 Farrand Elementary School mothers, fathers, grandparents, aunts and teachers have been working since June, making items for the annual Santa's Workshop at the school.

The result is more than 4,000 beautiful gifts ranging in price from 10 cents to $3. The thought behind this annual project is to have a wide assortment of worthwhile items with prices within child-sized budgets.

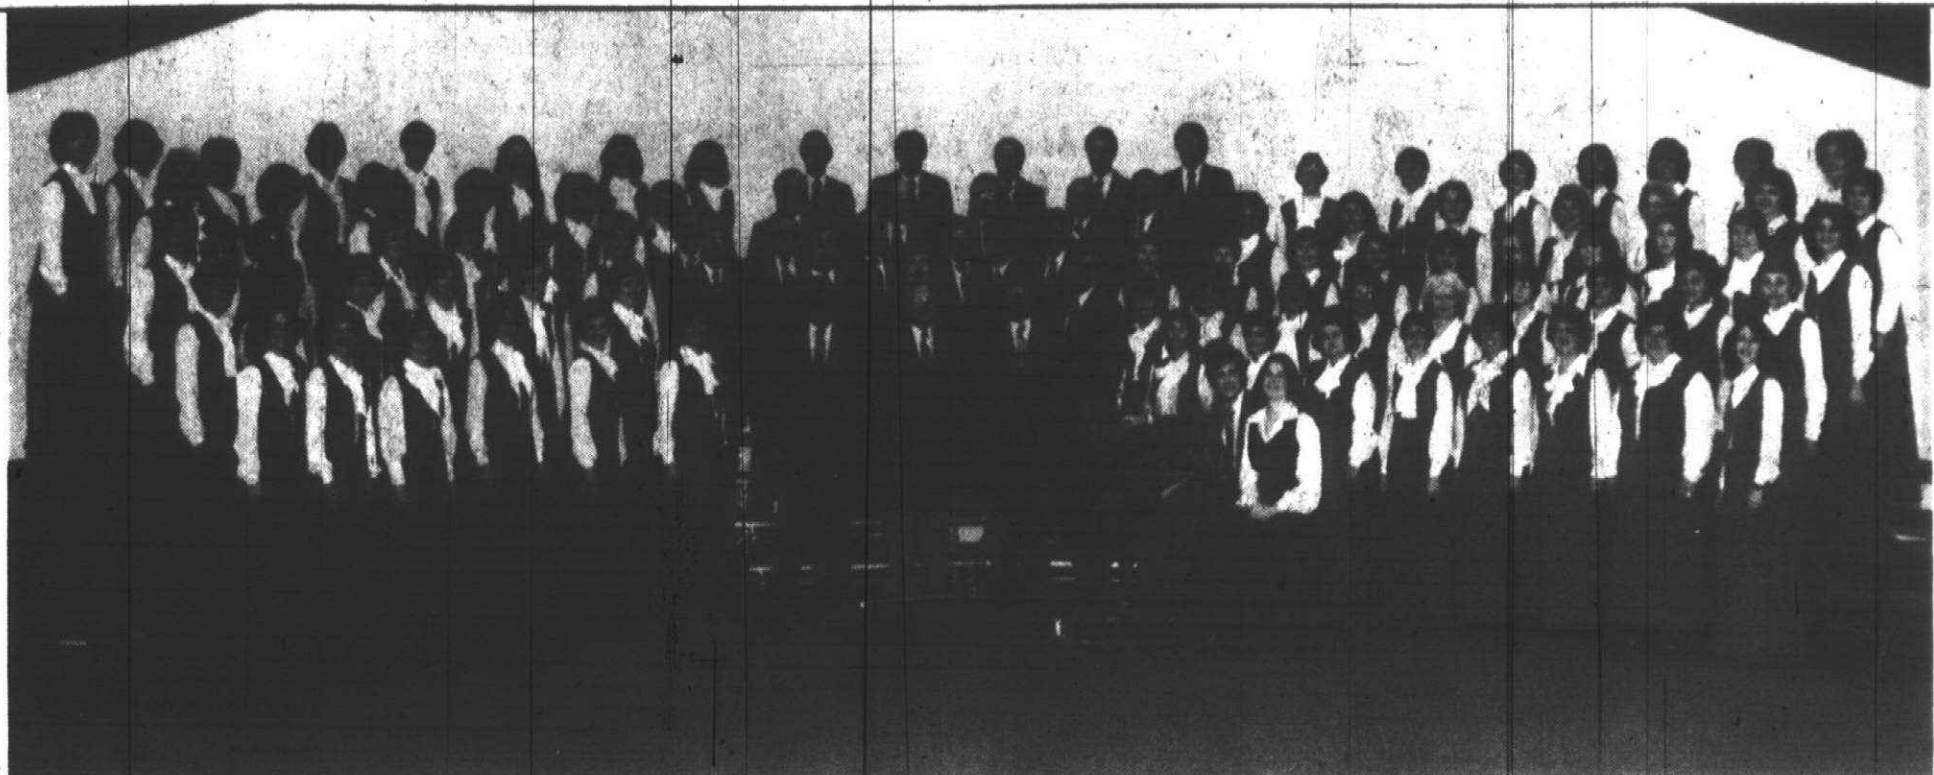

It is the perfect spot for young Christmas shoppers. Farrand people have first chance at the workshop but it will be open to pre-schoolers from the Plymouth-Canton area from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 12. It will be open to the public that afternoon from 1-3 p.m.

Sue Armstrong chaired this year's workshop. Profits go to the Farrand PTO to buy extras for the school — gifts from Santa that are used the year round.

TRUDY DEETZ will have one more puppet workshop at Dunning Hough Library on Main Street. Next Saturday's will be from 10-11:30 a.m. in the library on Main Street beside the City Hall.

PLYMOUTH PAW Prints 4-H Dog Obedience had its annual banquet recently in St. Timothy Presbyterian Church. A grooming table was presented to the Michigan Humane Society in honor of Brian Reel, a member who died in the fall.

Christmas concert has many firsts

The Plymouth Community Chorus will open its Sunday concert with "It's Beginning to Look Like Christmas" and that will be the theme of the annual performance.

Concert time will be 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, Joy Road west of Canton Center.

The whole concert will be taped by Omnicom Cable Television for broadcast during the Christmas season. This will be a first for the chorus in a performance marked by other innovations. It will be the first time they have had more than 125 voices for a concert; the first time they will use their new risers; and the first time the auditorium will be especially decorated with poinsettias and greens for their concert.

Director Michael Gross has programmed traditional Christmas songs. "O Come All Ye Faithful" will be done a cappella. "The Christmas Song" will be dedicated to Nat King Cole. Soloist for this very blue song will be Gayle Lang of Canton Township, a soprano who moved to the community from Toledo, Ohio and who has sung with the Toledo Symphony.

"I HEARD the Bells on Christmas Day," will be followed by "Joy to the World," and "Sleigh Ride" a piano duet by Carol Chen, chorus accompanist, and Kay Ray, a member of the chorus.

"God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," "Jesus, Jesus Rest your Head," a cappella, and "And the Glory of the Lord will complete the first half of the program.

Following a 15-minute intermission, the ram will continue with "Deck the Halls," "Silent Night," "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "White Christmas." "Angels We Have Heard on High,"

"Little Drummer Boy," "Baby What You Going to Be" one of the choir's favorites; "Let It Snow, Let It Snow," with Judy Hollister doing the lead-off soprano solo; "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" and the Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah" will complete the concert.

DRESS REHEARSAL for the concert will be Saturday evening at St. John's Seminary.

The chorus will be at Westland Mall tonight where they will be appearing with Dick Purtan from 7-8 p.m. then give a half-hour concert. They will be at the Fairlane Town Center for a performance from 7-7:45 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 16.

Admission to the concert is $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and 12-year-olds and under. Pre-sale of tickets has going very well and a sell-out is expected. Persons wishing ticket information can call Jeannine Hayden, 455-4873.

The concert is made possible through donations by the City of Plymouth, Colonial Kiwanis Club, Plymouth Rotary Club and the Plymouth and Canton business communities.

Morning sickness drug investigated

By SHERRY KAHAN

The drug called Bendectin, which millions of American women have taken to control morning sickness, may cause birth defects.

U.S. Rep. William Brodhead wants to see it investigated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, and until that happens he thinks physicians should stop prescribing it.

J. Douglas Peters, attorney with the Detroit firm, Charfoos, Christensen, Gilbert and Archer, believes it may be another thalidomide, but not as powerful. Thalidomide was banned by the FDA in the 1960s because it caused serious birth defects. Peters' law firm is handling 18 suits charging that children have been born with defects after their mothers used Bendectin.

He stated that the children involved have limb defects such as missing hands, forearms, feet and legs. Some have missing or incomplete sternums. Others have heart defects or brain damage.

Dr. Alan Done of Wayne State University's faculty has testified before the FDA that he believes the drug is a low-grade teratogen. That word is defined as a substance causing birth defects.

Southfield attorney Sanford Steiner of the Detroit firm, Ripple, Chambers and Steiner, has filed a suit in Wayne County Circuit Court asking $10-million damages in the case of a child reportedly born with deformed feet and hands.

Bendectin, manufactured by Merrell National Laboratory of Cincinnati, is prescribed in the last three months of pregnancy when the fetus is most vulnerable.

Brodhead, Detroit Democrat whose district also includes Redford Township and parts of Southfield and Farmington, said the drug was approved by the FDA before the thalidomide controversy led to changed standards.

"There is reason to suspect it," he said in an interview. "The drug was approved many years ago. If they applied the new drug standards to it, I don't think Bendectin would be on the market because of the suspicion about it."

BRODHEAD SAID he became interested in the drug after reading an article in the Washington Post.

A staff investigation convinced him there was a problem, he said, so he wrote to the FDA. He said he received no answer pointing out that the drug is "marketed as safe and effective with FDA approval."

The letter added that Bendectin "was found to be 78 percent effective in the firm's (Merrell's) efficacy study involving 1,599 patients. A followup of all these patients revealed a 1.2 percent fetal malformation, which is not an unusual incidence even for a non-drug-exposed sample."

The Post estimated some 30 million women have taken the drug since 1956.

Brodhead sent copies of the information gathered by his staff to a House committee which oversees the FDA. He also wrote House members about the drug.

As a result of pressure from Congress and individuals already concerned about Bendectin, an advisory committee to the FDA held hearings in September. The committee upheld the drug, but claimed that research did not exclude the possibility that it is weak teratogen.

Following the hearing the FDA said it would recommend that information be included in the package telling of possible effects and risks of Bendectine. Doctors would be advised to prescribe the drug only for significant nausea and vomiting.

Congressional members continued to prod the FDA by calling for a hearing on its handling of the case before the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigation of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. This committee oversees the FDA.

The hearing was scheduled for November but cancelled because the national election left the committee chairman a lame duck. However, Rep. Don Edwards, D-California, whose granddaughter was born with birth defects after her mother took Bendectin, hopes to reinstate the plans.

DR. DONE, who is adjunct professor of pharmacology and pediatrics at WSU and director of clinical pharmacology at Children's Hospital in Detroit, has researched the drug. He testified before the September FDA hearing, according to press reports, that he believes the information Merrell provided for the FDA was a misrepresentation. He has declined comment on the situation because he is scheduled to give court testimony in the coming year in Bendectin cases.

After Brodhead read the Washington Post article, his staff began gathering information from medical schools, the Library of Congress and the FDA.

"The more material we got, the more I felt there was a real question here, despite the fact that the material was not conclusive," he said. "Our information filled a cardboard box. We made three copies of all of it and sent one copy to the committee of the House in charge of overseeing the FDA. We sent another set to the FDA, and we kept a set. I began to write to colleagues in the House about it."

"What caught me about Bendectin is that it is a drug that women don't have to take. Morning sickness is unpleasant but rarely life-threatening. A powerful drug is being prescribed for a condition which can be dealt with in other ways. The best scientific minds tell pregnant women not to take any drugs. But Bendectin is taken in the early weeks, which is the time when the fetus is most threatened."

Brodhead maintained that it is inappropriate that Bendectin has been so widely prescribed. He also is angry at what he calls "the inactivity of the FDA."

He said: "It is the FDA's job to look after health," adding that it should have taken action once it had in its files 86 letters from people claiming their child had been born with birth defects after the mother took Bendectin.

"The FDA is slow-moving," he maintained. "It is tough on new drugs coming on the market, and I think it should be. But it is much too easy on existing drugs."

Photographs of historic homes to be presented

Jim Rawlinson, a professional photographer, began taking a series of photographs of 19 local buildings. Each had been selected by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women as having historic value.

An AAUW committee had researched each building in a program started in 1972. Since that time, 19 bronze plaques have been awarded, usually on Heritage Day of Michigan Week in May. Among the first to be designated landmarks were the Shattuck-Garlett House on Church Street, built in the early 1840s, and the Lyon-Moss House on Ann Arbor Trail, built in 1929.

The 1980 award-winners were the old Plymouth Hospital, founded in 1932 in a home built in 1890, and the Hamilton-Moon house, built in 1874 by Clarence Hamilton, inventor of the air rifle.

When the AAUW meets at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 11 in the Plymouth Historical Museum, Rawlinson will present a set of his photographs to museum director Barbara Saunders and another to AAUW president Mary Uhl for the Landmarks Committee.

The museum photos were mounted by the museum on matting donated by the AAUW committee and have been on display since earlier this fall.

Following the presentation ceremonies, landmark homeowners attending the meeting will be introduced and the AAUW Chorus will sing seasonal songs.

Salem wins!

3rd time's lucky for Rocks

By BOB GROSS

Salem and Livonia Bentley took their show on the road Thursday to Southfield. The script was the same. But the ending was different — the Rocks defeated Salem, in overtime, for the first time in three meetings, 43-41. This game was for all the marbles. The win gave the Rocks the Southfield Regional championship. "I don't know what to say about the game," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "I'm happy we won." My team played a good game," said Bentley coach Tom Lang, "and Bob's team played a good game. "All of our games have been like this. Whoever scores last usually wins it. That's what happened tonight."

SALEM PUT THE game away with seven seconds left in overtime. The Rocks cleared out the left side of the floor for Eileen Moore. She went baseline on Bentley's Carla Campbell, beat her by half a step, then scooped the ball up and off the backboard for the game winner. "Eileen's got that ability," said Blohm. "She can make that one-on-one move." Salem held onto the ball for almost the entire overtime before Moore made her shot. "In the last 2:10," said Blohm, "we called a timeout. We were going for that one-on-one shot." Thursday's game could've gone either way. Bentley had plenty of chances to put the game away before it ever got into overtime. Ann Roy had a shot from in close with less than two minutes left with the score 41-39 Bentley, but Salem's Cheryl Sobkow got a piece of it.

CAMPBELL ACTUALLY scored with 55 seconds left, but she was called for traveling and the basket was not allowed. Bentley still had a 41-39 lead with 13 seconds left.

But Salem's Carol Ross cut into that lead by sinking the second of two free throws. Bentley got the ball back, and Salem alertly fouled Campbell. She missed the front end of a one-and-one. The Rocks got the rebound and sent it up court quickly to Cheryl Sobkow who was fouled on her move to the basket by Lori Swanson. Sobkow sank the first of two free throws, with two seconds left, sending the game into overtime. The teams traded shots in the opening minute of the overtime, then Salem went into its ball control act.

'It wasn't because we were great, or had great coaching. We just had the last opportunity to score.'
— Salem coach Bob Blohm

"I WASN'T concerned until they scored," said Lang. "Too many things can happen in basketball." Bentley led most of the way, taking a 14-9 lead in the first quarter. Salem started to come back in the second quarter, but the Rocks' were stymied by two technical fouls — one on Blohm and one on the bench in general. "First of all, the T's were not planned," said Blohm. "When you're playing a great basketball team like Bentley, you don't want to put your team at any disadvantage. It wasn't planned, believe me."

Bentley's Roy sank three of four free throws on the double technical, giving her team a 19-14 lead. Salem started coming back in the third quarter. The Rocks actually took the lead, 33-32, on a basket by Jan MacKenzie at 2:19.

BUT KIM ARCHER scored for Bentley at 2:09, and the Bulldogs ended the quarter with a one-point lead. Bentley went into a spread offense in the fourth quarter, with Lisa Parsons penetrating with the ball down the middle and dishing off to the forwards. It worked for the first four minutes of the quarter as Bentley built a 41-35 lead. "We just wanted to bring them out," said Lang, "and we did. We got things accomplished that we wanted to, but then we got a little too timid."

Salem was able to come back in the last four minutes, tie the game and send it into overtime, then win it on Moore's layup. "It wasn't because we were great," said Blohm, "or had great coaching. We just had the last opportunity to score." Moore led all scorers with 15 points. Sobkow joined her in double figures with 14. Archer was high for Bentley with 13 points. Roy had 10. Salem now goes onto the quarterfinals at Lincoln Park against Suburban Eight League foe Trenton. Game time is 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Dedication pays off for figure skaters

By TERRI BANAS

Garey Dye, 17, formerly from Ohio, has been living with his West Bloomfield coach for six years, training for the 1984 Olympics. While most people his age attend high school, he received his high school diploma from correspondence courses. It gave him time for ice skating practice. Jim Bowser, 26, of Westland, roller-skated for years before he took to the ice four years ago. He's a member of a pairs skating team and also works as a bartender at night to earn enough money to continue his amateur career. Someday, he'd like to coach. Meanwhile, Sherry Snyder, 16, of Plymouth, enjoys her ballet classes but it's a secondary interest. Ballet, you see, keeps muscles conditioned for skating. All three young people have different backgrounds, but their present time, energy and devotion is focused on skating. They're amateur ice skaters who were among 322 from seven states to compete in the Great Lakes Figure Skating Regionals in Plymouth last week. The competition was the first step toward a possible national and a world championship. According to some area coaches, not all amateur skaters share the same dreams. Some keep the hopes of an Olympic medal tucked in the back of their minds, others plan to coach in the future, and some talk of joining the traveling ice shows.

BUT BEFORE those dreams are realized, they take one competition at a time to perfect their skills and gain a professional reputation. "The Olympics is the ultimate goal," said Bowser. "But a lot of skaters just take it as it goes because of the uncertainty of getting there." "Your primary goal at the regionals is to do as well as possible to align yourself for the next competition," said Jim Mills, a Detroit area coach and former Olympic bronze medal winner. "At this level of competition, your foremost thought is to make it through." "This kind of competition runs you through all the emotions you have," said Ann Seror, who coaches Livonia's Theresa Romano, a senior ladies entry. "We've had a hundred ups and a hundred downs in one week. The ones who make it are really emotionally strong." To add to the tensions of competition is the week's grueling time schedule. "The hardest thing is that we skate at different times," said Sherry Snyder, who lives in Plymouth and skates in the junior ladies division. "Last night I skated until 11:30 and then I had to get up at five in the morning to skate again. I'm getting drained, more or less."

WHAT BECOMES evident from conversations with amateur skaters at the regionals is that skating is number one in their lives, edging out other possible interests and activities common to others their age.

Immediate family members also play an important role in the skaters' interest in the sport. Many skaters talk of thousands of dollars spent annually to keep them in lessons and competitions. Registration fee for this competition alone was $60. "Skating is what takes up my time," said Colleen Armstrong, 12, who has been skating half her life. "If I do well in a competition, I just want to do better. I now practice about three hours a day and in the summer I practice five hours a day." An intermediate figure skater, Colleen has competed for three years. Dye, another figure skater, says he's given up "just about everything" to continue his amateur career. A member of the Ice Co. of Southfield, which produces amateur ice shows, he logs as many as eight practice hours daily on weekdays and weekends. When his coach moved to the Detroit area from Ohio, Dye followed him north. "My mother would like me to live at home but I've got to keep pushing it to make it." Although Dye says he's been approached by the Ice Capades for a career with the outfit, he says he's holding out for the Olympics. CAROL FIELDING, mother of 12-year-old Leslie Fielding of Bloomfield Hills, talked of the family's role in a young figure skater's life. "I guess we all contribute," said Mrs. Fielding. "I provide the transportation and her dad provides the money to be there." "Skating takes over your life. When you practice six days out of seven, that's a lot of your time." As the mother of a skater, she finds it's best to sometimes ease back and let her daughter take over. "I think I get more nervous than Leslie about a competition. The more I stay out of her way, the better she does. She's a real trouper, so resilient. We didn't have a good week but I found Leslie bounced back from defeat better than her mom." Approaching a competition such as the regionals, skaters say they decrease their practice time just before the event, and prepare themselves emotionally. "There's always a certain amount of tension right before an event you've been working toward all year," said Bowser. "In the final days, we practice even less. By this time, you're fully prepared and there's no reason to dwell on things you've already got down." "I'm usually super critical when I coach but when we get to a competition, I ease-up a little," said Johnny Johns, a Troy coach who brought 13 students to the regional competition. "The kids can feel the pressure themselves." "One of the coach's main goals is to keep a kid up because the competition is never over until the end of the week," added Seror.

Canton splits double dual

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team split a double dual meet at Ann Arbor Huron Thursday, defeating Huron 40-32 and losing to Howell 51-19.

The Chiefs totaled five pins against Huron. Canton had that match wrapped up after the 155-pound bout.

Jeff Escote won for Canton in the 98-pound division on a void. Tim Collins won the 112-pound class by pinning his opponent at 2:51. Kevin Decker also won on a pin at 119 pounds at 1:23.

Brett Haalara had a pin at 1:04 of the 126-pound class. Brian Lee won on a major decision, 8-0, in the 132-pound division. Kevin Santini had a pin at 3:04 of the 138-pound class.

Bob Mullen recorded his second pin of the night in the 155-pound class at 1:52.

"I obviously was very pleased with the number of pins," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko, "and the way our team is right now, that's what we're going to have to do — go out and stick someone."

Holiday tourney set for Dec. 27

CANTON IS A young team with only three seniors on the roster, said Chrenko. The Chiefs are also short-handed right now with heavyweight Craig Tearnis sidelined with a separated shoulder.

Canton winners against Howell were Tod Bartlett in the 98-pound class with a pin at 3:09. Steve Hamblin won the 145-pound division with a 9-0 major decision. Mullen pinned his opponent at 1:08 in the 155-pound class, and Mike Dupuis won at 167 pounds on a 7-0 decision.

"We did a good job of wrestling with four freshmen on the varsity," said Chrenko, "and our heavyweight out. I wasn't too discouraged."

Canton is 1-1 after Thursday's double dual. The Chiefs are at Westland John Glenn on Saturday for the John Glenn Invitational.

Chiefs win opener, 67-61

Canton defeats Franklin

By BOB GROSS

The Plymouth Canton boys' basketball team hit on 25 of 30 shots from the free throw line Friday against Livonia Franklin.

That's hitting at 83.3 percent.

And that was also the difference in the game. Franklin outscored the Chiefs from the field — hitting 25 field goals to 21 for Canton — but Canton won the game at the line, 67-61.

"I think we converted six one-and-ones, or four one-and-ones there late in the game," said Canton coach Craig Bell.

"Our ballgame was over on the free throw line."

Franklin shot better than 50 percent from the line, hitting 11 of 21 shots, but that wasn't enough.

"IT WAS A matter of them (Canton) getting on that foul line too many times," said Franklin coach Jim McIntyre. "It was a free throw shooting derby, and we didn't get to the line and put ours in."

"I give Canton a lot of credit," he continued, "25 of 30 is a hell of a percentage for the first time out."

Franklin took the early lead in the game, jumping out to a six-point margin, 18-12, at the end of the first quarter.

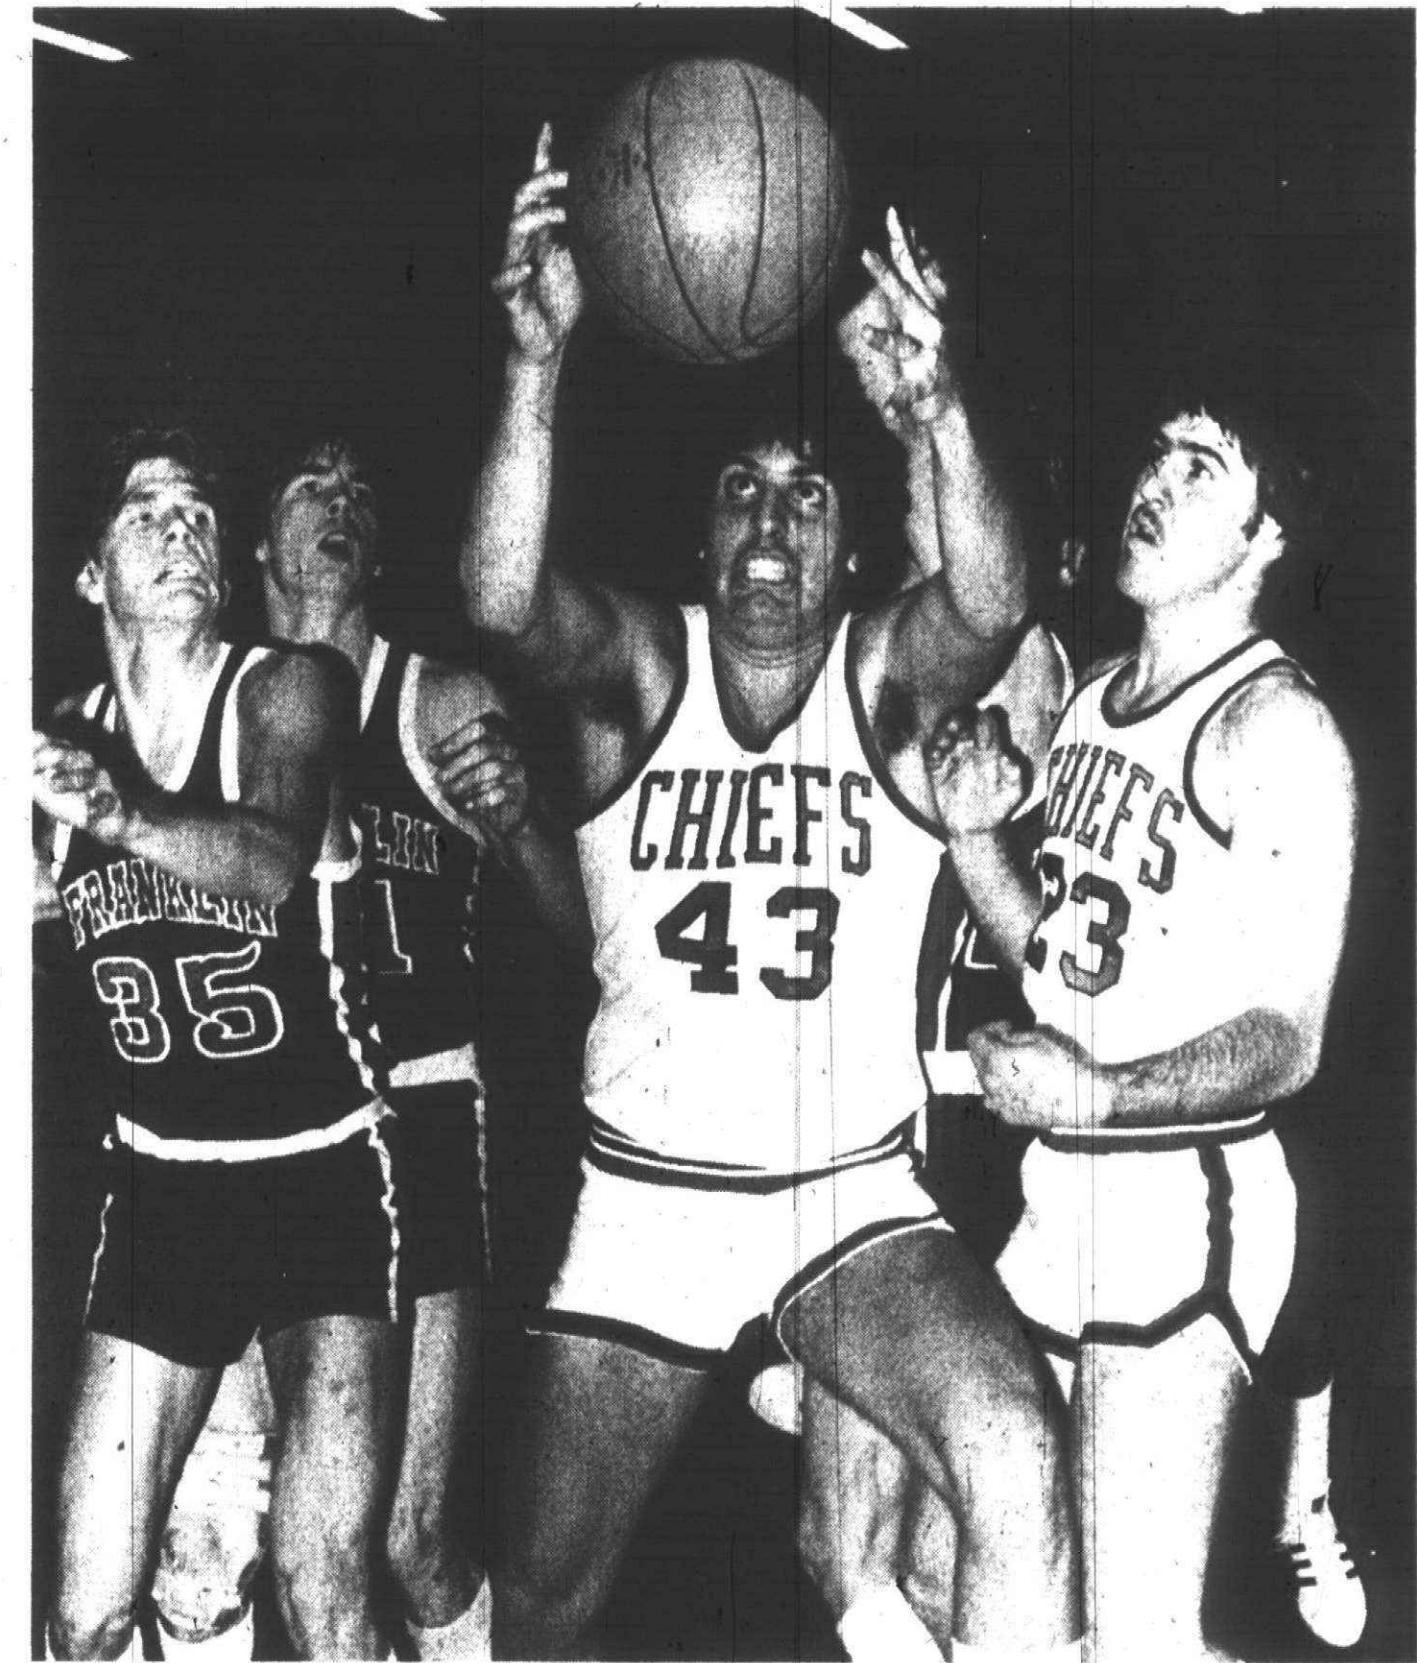

But Canton came back in the second quarter, taking the lead, 22-21, on a pair of free throws by Bill Childs at 4:23.

Franklin, however, did not fold. The Patriots took advantage of some Canton turnovers and regained the lead. They were up by one, 32-31, at the half.

Canton finally took the lead for good at 7:02 of the third quarter on a bucket by Matt Thomas.

"Their zone," said Bell, "gave us fits early. I felt that once we found the right angle to get the ball into the zone — reverse the ball into the zone — we were very successful."

THE GAME AT that point, however, was far from over. Franklin was able to tie the score at 54-54 at 7:04 of the fourth quarter on a long jumper from outside by Jeff Wojcik.

But Childs hit two free throws to put Canton back on top, and that was it.

Wojcik led all scorers with 28 points. He was the only Franklin player to reach double figures.

Thomas paced the Chiefs with 20 points. Sean Houle had 16, Dave Malek had 14, and Childs had 12.

Franklin, 0-1, is at Garden City West on Tuesday. Canton is idle until Friday when the Chiefs host Livonia Churchill.

The Canton jayvee team defeated Franklin, 66-56.

IN ANOTHER game played Friday, Plymouth Salem edged non-league foe Walled Lake Central by two points, 54-52.

New plot twist brightens film about army life

A review of "Private Benjamin" (R) is overdue but not overlooked. Certainly it hasn't been overlooked by the hordes of filmgoers who have made it a profitable product at theaters around the country.

The attraction of "Private Benjamin" is that it is a humorous film built on a familiar gimmick but with a new twist.

The gimmick is the nebbish thrust into military life and the rigors of basic training. Picture Woody Allen, or better yet, Jerry Lewis, in the Army. The new twist is that the recruit is a woman, Judy Benjamin.

Goldie Hawn plays Judy. She's a simple-minded girl from a middle-class Jewish home. She is accustomed to being cared for and looked after, to shopping and decorating. A crisis, for Judy, is when the piping on the upholstered ottoman isn't the shade of mushroom she wants.

JUDY SEEMS to have no salable skills, but she has never been troubled by this deficiency. She has never been independent and never understood why any woman would want to be.

The disaster that catapults her into the army is a truly traumatic if blackly humorous one. Her second husband dies on their wedding night while they are having sexual relations.

Poor Judy. She cries into her cuisinart and wonders what to do with her life. She's 29, a widow and a displaced person. How can she go back to her parents again?

She winds up in the army. They'll look after her, she reasons. She won't have to make any decisions about her own life.

The only problem is that she's so out of condition and so incredibly stupid. Really, hasn't she ever seen a movie or TV show where people were in the army? Apparently not, since she asks for a uniform in a different color. It's funny but somehow it's just carrying things too far.

GOLDIE HAWN with her thick, shaggy hair and big, sad eyes looks like a human version of Benji. (Is that why the heroine's name is Benjamin?) Even so, it's easier to believe her being vulnerable and silly than suddenly (it seems sudden) pulling herself together and becoming an independent "unmarried woman."

Hollywood appears to be trying to hedge its bets in films like "Private Benjamin" that attempt to reflect contemporary thought. There is a recognition of changing lifestyles and the changing roles of women. Judy Benjamin is the helpless female who joins the Army, almost washes out, but laces up her combat boots and makes it.

Along with the recognition, however, there is also the perpetuation of popular myths. Otherwise, why make Judy such a cute little blond bundle who can't keep her helmet on straight?

"Private Benjamin" is a nice try, but not exactly a gamble.

'French Christmas' staged in AA

The Theatre de la Jeune Lune will present "A French Christmas" at 7 p.m. Thursday in the University of Michigan's Power Center for Performing Arts in Ann Arbor.

A Professional Theatre Program special attraction, the evening of select theater combines elements of mime, burlesque, vaudeville, acrobatics and sound effects.

Act I, entitled "A French Christmas," is composed of two original stagings of traditional French folk tales, performed in English by the company of eight actors.

"Les Trois Messes Basses" is the story of an unfortunate French priest who dreams of holiday feasting while rushing the three high Masses. In "Misere et Pauvrete," God gives a blacksmith and his dog three wishes, which they use to outsmart Satan and ensure themselves eternal life on earth as Misery and Poverty.

LIVE MUSIC and masks spin these tales into a Christmas fantasy designed for young and old alike.

Act II, "Jeux de Masques," features comic mime artists Dominique Ser-rand and Barbra Berlovitz. A new version of a 1974 piece, it opens with two characters, in doughy, nearly blank masks venturing from their places as audience members to find the show they've paid to see. As in days long past in France, the Theatre de la Jeune Lune passes through, staying only briefly in any town.

Children's tickets are half price and group rates are available. For prices and further information, call 764-0450.

True Grist offers revue

The premiere production of "My Oh Mi," an original revue about life in Michigan, continues through Christmas at True Grist Dinner Theatre in Homer.

The musical commentary about the ups and downs of Michigan existence opened Dec. 4 and marked the fifth anniversary of the Homer entertainment center.

Set to play through Jan. 18, "My Oh Mi" is presented Thursdays-Sundays, with Wednesday matinees. Reservations are required.

For more information, call 517-568-4151.

007's latest

A Lotus Esprit Turbo will be featured in the newest James Bond movie 'For Your Eyes Only.' The 150-mile-per-hour luxury sports car is actually three cars. All three look alike, but one is only a shell so it can be destroyed at minimum expense.

Cars and comments

Big car may be best buy

Your best buy in a 1981 automobile might be (of all things) a big car.

There are two main reasons for that view, according to the Automotive Information Council.

1. The larger cars have been given lower percentage price increases than their smaller brothers because of the higher popularity of the small cars. For the same reason, dealers will give better discounts on the big cars.

2. The larger cars have received big gains in fuel efficiency this year. The 10-mpg gas hog has just about disappeared. Even the larger cars that pointedly do not advertise gasoline mileage are far better than they were a few years ago.

But the smaller cars give better fuel economy, you might argue. True, but the savings will be less than in the past years because of the improvements in gasoline economy for the bigger ones.

Fuel improvement for many full-size and intermediate cars has doubled when compared with their 1972 counterparts, while gains for small cars have been about half that. The mileage difference, therefore, has been changed.

For example, if a driver covers the average 12,000 miles per year with a 30-miles-per-gallon subcompact, the annual gasoline expenditure would be $500 (at $1.25 per gallon).

The owner of a large 22-miles-per-gallon car would spend $681, or a difference of $181 for the year.

Therefore, there is more than gasoline economy to be weighed when considering a new car. Think about how many people the car will carry and how often, the luggage space and the purchase price. These all must be weighed before making the final decision.

If you must have a high-mileage car, buy one. But even with the cost of gasoline going up, the difference may not be what it seems.
