The Canton Connection

A SLIP of the tongue? A local resident called the Observer and complained about obscene and uncomplimentary remarks heard on Omnicom's channel 8 last Monday, during the taped replay of the Canton Country Festival parade. Shaun Bredin, program director at Omnicom, declined comment.

Schools want new attendance policy

By Scott Adler staff writer

Getting parents involved in their children's absenteeism while keeping the kids in school is the aim of a newlyproposed attendance policy at Centennial Educational Park.

The proposed policy, expected to be voted on by the Board of Education Aug. 23, is a revision of a 1981-82 school year pilot policy. The revision is a "cleaner procedure," according to Plymouth Salem High School principal Bill Brown.

One major change is the elimination of written notes from the parents of an absent student. The parent would be required to call the office by 3 p.m. on the day the student is absent and no later than 3 p.m. on the day the student returns to school, or the absence will be considered unexcused.

"THE MAIN thrust is to get parents involved," said Brown, who was a revision committee member. "I think the new policy is going to cut down on the (needed) time for teachers. I think it's an accepted fact that most notes aren't authentic and the phone calls mean getting parents involved with their son or daughter's absenteeism."

Absences from class for reasons of illness, family emergency, family business, or school business are considered excused absences.

After a student's second absence the teacher will notify the student's area coordinator if they are unable to contact the parents by telephone.

After five unexcused absences, the teacher is to complete a referral listing the exact dates the student was absent and file it with the area coordinator's office. The same action continues with eight and then 10 unexcused absences.

Another change instituted during the pilot policy, and continuing with the proposed revisions, says the student will not be dropped from a class without credit after eight unexcused ab-

Lean times put squeeze on service

By Arlene Funke staff writer

The poor economy is pinching funds from non-profit clubs and community groups in Canton.

The case in point is the Canton Country Festival, which allows non-profit groups to sell food and sponsor games. While some booths racked up good earnings, others - especially those serving full meals - suffered a disappointing drop in patronage from past years. The economy is being blamed.

It's important to these groups, because profits from the meals are used for community service projects.

According to festival guidelines, organizations serving a full meal pay a $150 permit fee, to cover insurance. Concession booths pay a $50 fee. All groups must kick 20 percent of their earnings back to the festival's till for operating expenses.

THE CANTON Business and Professional Women's Club teamed up with donations from the new Mr. Steak restaurant in Canton to offer a half-pound hamburger, with extras, for $2.50. With a sale of 540 dinners, the club expects to net $500-$700 for its civic fund, said Deborah O'Connor, Canton librarian and first vice-president of the BPW.

Cardinal resigns broadcast position

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

The 10-year administrative veteran of WSDP will be leaving the station at the end of the month.

Jeff Cardinal has accepted the director of promotions position at a newly-formed Lansing television station, bringing to an end a long career at the high school radio station.

Cardinal, the last of the charter members of the WSDP staff, says he isn't surprised at the station's progress since its start in 1972.

"We set some long-range goals years ago - we are about threequarters of the way there," the father of two says.

The annual WSDP auctions are just part of the program Cardinal has set up as station coordinator. The auctions, held to raise money for the FM station, have come to be recognized as a community affair.

"The auctions are a very fun activity for the community and (for) us out here."

The first auction, held some three years ago, paid for needed equip-

"I felt we had gone to the school board for a lot already. They paid for our power increase to 200 watts, that ran over $10,000. "Eastern Michigan University picked up the cost for the switch of frequencies (the station is now at

"I figured if we could work for the money we could get some equipment we needed," Cardinal says.

When he took over the station there wasn't a budget of any kind.

THE STATION'S advisory board, now a standing school board committee, was another facet of the operation Cardinal help start and keep

"The purpose was to give input on what was being done at the station. We asked the community to take part in the long-range planning of WSDP."

Throughout the years, Cardinal's students have gone from high school into positions at college and commercial stations.

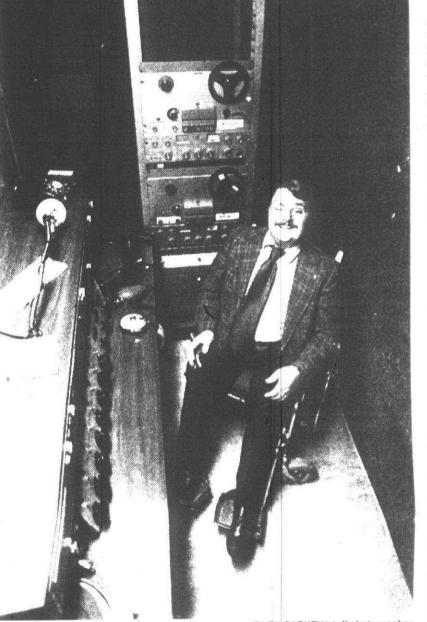

"We offer them a real-life situation here." Cardinal says.

"It's as close as you can get to any real-life radio station. Our students know what they have to do - which gives them a big edge over other kids.'

WSDP is one of only 17 licensed high school stations in the state.

"Our students very often can waive college courses - or else do very well in them. I know our program is equivalent to two basic college courses in radio.

Cardinal's new job is with WFSL-Channel 47, a new UHF station in the Lansing market.

Officials unhappy over cable service offer (HTN-Plus) and Showtime - all cost companies are offering to the commun-

By Dennis O'Connor staff writer

Should cable viewers served by the same company receive the same services — and at the same rates?

Local officials are upset after learning about a cable franchise proposal from Omnicom of Michigan for Clarkston and Independence Township residents. They believe those potential Omnicom subscribers are being offered a better basic cable package, for the money, than presently received by Plymouth-Canton-Northville residents.

Omnicom gained the Plymouth-Canton-Northville franchise three years Company officials say the two cable systems are very different, and in completely different competitive situa-

Initially, Plymouth-Canton-Northville residents paid a regular rate of $6.95 per month for a basic system and another $6.95 for additional channel

Ourrently, local residents must pay a regular rate of $7.95 for the basic package (36 channels, 2-37). They must also pay an additional $7.95 per month if they want the satellite tier system that expands the number of channels to 52.

That's a total initial (charter) rate of $13.90 per month and a current rate of $15.90. Omnicom officials say that if comparisons are made, then initial rates should be compared to what the company is offering to Clarkston-Independence.

If Omnicom lands the Clarkston-Independence franchise, those residents will receive the same 52-channel service (including full satellite service and FM reception) as part of their basic package at $9.95 per month, according to "Cablevision Facts," a publication produced by Omnicom.

In addition, Clarkston-Independence residents would pay an added $1.50 per month for the converter box.

Plymouth-Canton-Northville residents get a remote control channel selector with the satellite service, an option not being offered to Clarkston-Independence, according to Omnicom.

The so-called premium channels -Home Box Office, The Movie Channel, Cinemax, Home Theatre Network extra. Both Showtime and HTN-Plus can only be received through the satellite tier. So subscribers to the cheapest system - that is, the 36-channel basic system - cannot receive two of the five premium channels.

The premium services - HBO, Movie Channel, Cinemax and satellite tier - are $7.95 a month. Satellite-only customers can also get HTN-Plus for an additional $2.95 a month and Showtime for $7.95.

Plymouth-Canton-Northville residents currently don't have FM reception because Omnicom is experiencing equipment and technical difficulties. However, when this FM service is offered, it will cost an additional $2.50 per month.

PETER NEWELL, Senior Vice President of the Northern Division for Capital Cities Cable, which owns Omnicom, says the two proposals are structured differently.

"You're comparing apples with oranges," Newell said. "It's a competitive situation. It depends on what other

Newell said Clarkston residents also will have to pay $9.95 per month for each additional premium service (HBO, Movie Channel or Cinemax). The total cable package costs more than $50 per month under each proposal if subscribers request total cable service, he

Chuck Miller, head of Canton Township's Cable Advisory Committee, believes the Clarkston plan means an unequal rate structure for the basic ser-

"It's apples and oranges when it comes to the rate structure, but it all should be oranges," Miller said. "When you add up their (Clarkston's) basic package, it would be $18.40 for us.

"For the additional $2 ($7.95 to $9.95), the residents of Canton (and Plymouth and Northville) could receive more in the basic package - and it certainly wasn't an option proposed to

"Ask any Canton resident who watches cable," Miller added. "We'll fight for the same $9.95 package as they get since less than 10 percent of the subscribers in Canton take only the basic service."

Newell said the Plymouth-Canton-Northville system includes extra or different services such as two-way operational capabilities, the institutional channels and more emphasis on local programming and local orientation.

"We have a very sophisticated system in Plymouth compared to the one (offered) in Clarkston," Newell said. "And, again, you get what you pay for. I'm sure Clarkston rates would be higher if they wanted all the other ser-

Miller disagrees. He doesn't think Plymouth-Canton-Northville has an elaborate local programming studio or facilities. He also believes the system's services are comparable because local residents have not benefited from twoway capabilities or the institutional channels, as originally promised.

"The complexity of the system, to date, is much the same," Miller said. "The degree of sophistication is not that different out here.'

Newell maintains cable service in Plymouth-Canton-Northville will expand depending on the need and demand from residents.

Dorothy Priebe recently found herself with some unexpected live-in boarders who didn't want to heed her eviction notice.

Priebe, who lives in the Carriage Hills subdivision, Canton, discovered a family of five raccoons living in her chimney. And it was only after a tough struggle that the animals were flushed

"We did everything," Priebe said. "We tried noise, music, I mean everything. My daughter held the radio and I went up on the roof to see and they (the Chimney Sweep, who was called to help remove the raccoons, it was a dilemma he doesn't often encounter.

'We don't see these as much as birds and squirrels," Bobee said. "But they are a little bit more fierce.'

Bobee was called in after the Canton Animal Controller, John Swalley couldn't take out the damper in the chimney and get down to remove the critters.

After the damper was removed by Bobee, a cloth soaked in ammonia was dropped in the chimney. The fumes smoked out the mother, but the babies remained and died.

"When the mother came out, she was four months. (Swalley) couldn't believe how big they were."

The raccoons are believed to have come from the field behind the house. Other residents in the subdivision have had similiar problems, Priebe said.

The raccoons also stored their food in the gutter, plugging up the drain everytime it rained.

"It was quite an ordeal," Priebe said. "My neighbors were out there. I probably could have sold popcorn and peanuts it was such a show.

Raccoons and other animals that are not supposed to be in chimneys can be kept out, according to Bobee. A good wire mesh chimney cap should be put raccoons) just yawned at me. # A week at fair

LL THE fun, flair and flavor of a 4-H fair was experienced in Belleville last week.

The annual fair, which ran from last weekend to this weekend, was put on by the Wayne County Extension Service.

The participants, which included farm-minded people from Plymouth, Plymouth and Canton townships, brought their foods, animals and crafts to compete and show in the extravaganza.

Trophies and rosettes were given to the many winners in the wide range of categories, which included, sheep, dairy goats, rabbits, chickens, geese, ducks, horses, handicraft, photography, bee-keeping, entomology, horticulture and foods.

Although many of the categories seem to be farm related, the competitors in many cases grew their livestock in backyards, fair officials explained.

Many of the 4-Hers received their animals as donations and then sold them back to the club after the fair.

The club is always looking for new members, especially in bee-keeping and poultry. They also are looking for adult teachers in needlework, crafts and rockets.

Four Wayne-Westland school board members have gone to court to stop a scheduled Sept. 14 recall election.

A hearing on the suit was to have been scheduled for 10 a.m. today before Wayne County Circuit Judge James Kirwan.

Initiating the civil suit are board members Mary Arbour, Donald Rusnock, Kenneth Marshall and Mil-

The civil suit is the latest development in ongoing controversies which began earlier this year.

The recall petitions were circulated and filed by a citizens' group called Taxpayers United Together (TUT) after months of controversy involving an extension and salary raise for the Wayne-Westand Education Association, which represents nearly 1,000 teachers; a proposed local community college plan which has since been dropped; and the level of teachers' salaries.

The four said the petition circulators violated a state law which prohibits signatures from being obtained through "fraud, deceit or misrepresentation."

The four board members said in the brief filed by their attorney, E. Peter

Drolet, the "fact sheet" used by peti-information about the average salary for local teachers to encourage voters to sign the petitions.

In their court brief, the board members said:

"BY PROVIDING false and misleading information on the 'fact sheet' relative to teachers' salaries allegedly authorized by plaintiff school board members in order to obtain signatures, the circulators of the recall petitions violated their own 'certification' on which they attached to and filed" with the county clerk May 6.

out," Plymouth Canton High School principal and committee member Kent Buikema said. "Our statistics don't show any significant difference in attendance (with the pilot policy), but that's not what we set out to do. We set out to keep the kids in school and that's what we did. Our records show that many did get to remain in school and get credit for classes that didn't the previous year.

The administration's responsibility under the proposed policy is to contact the parent when the teacher has been unable to do so after the second unexcused absence. After the fifth unexcused absence, the area coordinator is to have a conference with the student, notify the parent and assign one hour of detention.

Detention requires the student to stay after school in a study hall setting. After eight unexcused absences, the area coordinator assigns the student to two days of in-school suspension and requires the student to make up a contract, stating his or her intent to attend

IN-SCHOOL SUSPENSION has the student remain in a classroom separate from his classes where they stay the entire day except during a 40-minute lunch break. In the suspension setting, the student is required to do the work normally done during a school day.

"We found that the kids hate it (inschool suspension)," Buikema said. "Typically, they do what they have to not to go through it again. We found it

The Canton BPW, only two years old, is a newcomer to festival participation. But the firefighters' union and the Rotary Club have done better in previous years, for various reasons.

In the past, businesses were better able to donate supplies for dinners, said Harry Harrison of the Canton firefighters' union, which serves a spaghetti dinner at the festival.

Now, more items must be purchased, which gnaws away at the profit for the fund-raiser. Despite a modest $3.50 ticket price, attendance was down for the dinner this year, said Harrison.

They served almost 300 meals. Harrison was unable to provide a breakdown of earnings from the dinner. The firefighters' union has donated funds to the burn treatment center at University Hospital, Ann Arbor, and to send a terminally-ill girl to Disney World.

ATTENDANCE ALSO dropped for a pancake breakfast put on by the Canton Rotary Club, which supports the Canton Historical Society and other projabout 50 from last year. I think the economy had something to do with it." The Rotary expects a net profit of about $350-$400, said Salla.

Figures were unavailable for the Chamber of Commerce's chicken barbecue. Festival chairwoman Flossie Tonda said more barbecue pits were added this year, but workers often had difficulty keeping up with the demand.

A carry-out booth was closed, in order to devote more energy to the sitdown business, said Tonda. Although some diners had to wait as long as an hour, complaints were few.

One person complained about his dinner not being fully cooked. Another opened his carry-out box, to discover that hasty workers had failed to include the chicken.

THE ECONOMY doesn't seem to have hampered Canton dentist Dr. Jack Falvo's annual fund-raiser for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Falvo has sponsored a softball tournament during the Canton Country Festival.

Falvo estimates the tournament has yielded $17,000-$18,000 totally over the past five years, with this year's total projected at $3,200.

"It continues to grow," said Falvo. "This is our fifth year. "The whole committee is neighbors and friends who enjoy going out there and doing something for charity. It's a lot of fun."

'West Side Story' attracts actors, singers

By Maurie Walker staff writer

Like a giant magnet, the call of the theater drew aspiring actors from all over the area to the Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre's "West Side Story" auditions last week.

More than 75 persons from Westland and nearby suburbs like Garden City, Canton, Plymouth, Redford, Livonia, Farmington, and as far away as Grosse Pointe Woods came to the First United Methodist Church in Wayne for the auditions.

Broadway in the late 1950s and became a movie in the early 1960s, will be presented by the Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre Oct. 8-9 and Oct. 15-16 at the Wayne Memorial Auditorium.

The popular musical tells the story of two gangs, the Sharks and the Jets who roamed the streets of New York.

Interwoven is the love story of Maria and Tony, victims of the slums and racial strife.

In addition to exciting dance routines, the musical features such

"West Side Story," which opened on songs as "Maria," "Tonight," and "I Feel Pretty.'

Gail Mack of Canton, director of the show, said that of the more than 75 persons auditioning, only about 26 will be

"We are looking for dancers, singers as well as actors," she said.

Mack has been directing shows for 10 years. She directed the Civic Theatre's production of "Godspell" last winter. She also directed "Carnival" for the Wayne Summer Theatre and was co-producer of 'Li'l Abner." She was a teacher at Ferndale High School.

Producer is Mary Cobello of Westland who is also handling publicity for the show.

Persons auditioning ranged in ages from 14 to 33. Some were seeking dancing roles, some acting parts and others just wanted to be in the show.

LEANNE HAVERLAND, 16, of Livonia, is a senior at Churchill High School and said this was the first time she had auditioned for a part.

"I took ballet a few years and thought I'd like a dancing part in "West Side Story," she said.

Her mother, Shirley Haverland, has directed shows for the Livonia-Redford Civic Theatre.

Cindy Ciura, 21, off Westland, said she would like a singing role. A student at Eastern Michigan University, she is in the university's choir. "I'm really not aiming for any particular role. I just want to be in the show," she said.

Mark Renfrow, 19, of Wayne is a magician, a dancer and makeup artist. "I'd like the role of Renardo or be one of the Sharks," he said.

This is his fourth year with the civic theater. This year he will be working in the makeup department with the Michigan Opera Theatre.

Terry Crouson, 27, of Westland, is a furniture salesman. He did some acting in high school and worked with the Plymouth, Southfield and Wayne-Westland theater groups.

"I don't know what part I'm aiming for. I can't get a hold on any particular role. Most of the people here are younger than I. I'll be glad to take any part," he said.

THE YOUNGEST to audition was Patti Burgert, 14 of Northville. She has had. I wanted to act since I was in high been dancing since she was 4 years old. "Any part will do," she said, " But mostly I want to dance.' Karen Wilcox, 28, of Canton, would like the role of Maria, one of the lead parts. She took drama at Eastern Michigan University.

"I have two children, 2 and 6 which keeps me pretty busy. But I have wanted to do some theatrical work for some time. I thought this would be my opportunity to realize a desire," she said.

For Bill Hartwig, 17, of Westland, a part in the show would give him the opportunity to do what he likes, best dance

Some patients, for psychological reasons among others, don't take readily to the idea of an injection. What is needed is a form of anesthetic where the patient feels pretty good, where nothing could bother him, not even pain, and where he is completely relaxed.

Dentistry has an agent that can bring a patient to a high degree of relaxation and is easily administered, with almost no side effects. It is nitrous oxide, sometimes called "laughing gas." It has been used by dentists for more than a hundred years. When inhaled with a mixture of oxygen, it will lessen pain sensations and put the patient in a receptive frame of mind for dental treatment.

Nitrous oxide is not ideal for long, intricate procedures. Many dentists start treatment with nitrous oxide, and after the patient has reached a relaxed state, will augment it with a local anesthetic. When the treatment is completed, pure oxygen may be given to flush the gas out of the patient's system, and he immediately recovers to a fairly alert state of mind.

Just when I learn the notes, song is rewritten

I don't understand what's going on at the local gas pumps.

I can recall quite a few years ago, as a new driver, pulling up to the gas pumps and getting $1 worth of gas.

It didn't take long and I was pulling up to the same pump and asking for $2 worth of gas.

I never paid any attention to how many gallons went into the tank. All I knew was that $1 (or $2) would last me two or three days if I didn't take any

As I recall all my driving days, I have never pulled up to the pumps and asked for so many gallons of gasoline or for a fill up.

I always purchase gas by the dollars' worth, not by volume From personal observation, many people do the same.

In recent years, the industry has tried to confuse us by putting metric measurements on the pumps. It seemed, for awhile, like I was buying liters instead of gallons.

But it really didn't matter. I was getting my $5 worth, whether it came in gallons, liters or syringes.

Having lived through the gas price wars, the various shortage crises, and metric conversion, I now find myself confused about how much goes into my tank and why.

What confuses me is the new cash discount programs.

In case you haven't been suckered in yet, a number of major gasoline stations are promoting cash sales by offering a discount of four cents per gallon for gas paid for with cash.

We are led to believe that credit card customers pay the full price.

That's an unusual marketing program in itself. For years, credit has been pushed upon the American consumer by anyone wanting to sell any-cially liked credit because they could earn interest income as well as income from goods or services sold.

But something has changed and credit is now frowned upon and cash sales are being pushed.

SO A FEW WEEKS ago I pull up to my friendly gas pumper and tell him I want $10, no-lead.

He pumps gasoline in my tank and gives me 24 cents change.

So apparently the pumper put $9.76 worth of gasoline in my tank. How much farther could I travel with $10 than with $9.76, I wonder?

My impulse is to give the friendly pumper his 24 cents back and insist on $10 worth.

He would tell me, of course, that I got the same number of gallons in my tank for $9.76 as I would have for $10. But I would have told him I don't by gasoline by the gallons but by the dollars' worth.

I had wanted $10 no-lead in my tank, not $9.76.

But why confuse him just because I'm confused.

Time passed and one day I drove up to my friendly pumper again and asked for $10 no-lead. He asks me, do I want the discount in my tank or in my pock-

I tell him, in my tank. So, I get $10 no-lead in my tank - just like I asked.

Now I wonder, did I really get $10 worth in my tank, or $10.24 worth or

If I got $10 worth, then where's the discount.

I get so confused, I'd rather buy with credit and keep it simple.

NOW, IN the midst of the confusion, I get information in the mail from the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan.

The association argues that the discount for cash is an illusion and consumers are being misled.

The dealers point out that Amoco Oil Company, for instance, raised gasoline prices before the cash discount program went into effect.

The result is that Amoco stations throughout metro Detroit are selling gasoline for up to four cents a gallon more than the competing stations that still believe in credit.

The dealers argue that Amoco has imposed a 4 percent fee on its retailers for the acceptance, of Amoco credit cards. The association stresses that Amoco does not have a cash discount program but a credit card charge of 4

What am I really paying for credit? Should I decide to quit getting confused by paying cash for my gas? Everytime I fill my tank up with non-cash, no-lead gas, I pay 80 cents for the privilege. If I fill my tank up 45 times a year using a credit card, I pay $36 for the privilege, plus 18-22 percent a month on the unpaid balance.

Some other charge card folks charge me yearly fees of $15 to $25 for use of their cards.

I don't like that idea, but it sure beats paying $36 or more. They all charge the same interest rate.

The next time my friendly gas pumper asks me if I want my discount for cash in my tank or in my pocket, I'm going to tell him where to where to

Northville joined Schoolcraft District in 1963

(Part XV)

The year the college was named after Henry Rowe Schoolcraft - 1963 also saw groundbreaking for the institution's first buildings, an election of trustees, and the addition of Northville to the college district.

And, 1963 was also the first year in which Schoolcraft representatives participated in the area's annual "College

Held in Plymouth High School in October of that year, the conference gave an opportunity to high school students from Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City, Clarenceville, and the two Redfords to Leroy C. In April, two months after the college was renamed, Schoolcraft received a gift of rare books from Hazen E. Kunz, a resident of Livonia. Kunz, who was president of the State Historical Association and an authority on Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, contributed several volumes from his personal library, including two original editions of books written by Mr. Schoolcraft.

One, published in 1821, before publishers discovered short titles, was called "Narrative Journal of Travels from Detroit Northwest Through the Great Chain of American Lakes to the Sources of the Mississippi." It reports on Schoolcraft's discovery of the source of the Mississippi and includes a detailed map of the expedition. The other, published in 1848, was entitled "The Indian in his Wigwam - the Characteristics of the Red Race in America.'

BY A NARROW VOTE, Northville decided to join the college district at this election.

Dr. Gordon Forrer became that community's first trustee on the college board, enlarging its membership to eight. But South Redford, by a big margin, rejected - for the second time a proposal to join the college district.

Prior to the election, a circular opposing the proposal was distributed from house to house in South Redford. Contending there was no need for a community college, the writer of the unsigned flyer posed the question: "Is this the first step by Livonia to absorb South Redford?'

This gave Mrs. Sattig a year before the college opened to develop a nursing program, to employ faculty for it, and to establish standards for recruitment.

During the same month, the board named Ed Draugelis of Plymouth to serve as attorney for the college. Meantime, work was progressing on three of the buildings at the campus site. Contracts for construction of the library were not awarded until September.

In August it was announced that State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of the college district had been set at $562,780,712 and the 1964 tax levy was set at one mill. As early as October 1963, about 40,000 families in the Schoolcraft district received circulars concerning admission to the college.

The first application for admission was turned in by Richard Gray, 19, of Livonia. Gray, a star baseball player at Livonia Bentley High, was standing at the door of the old Newburgh School, with application and matriculation fees in hand, on the morning the college accepted applications for the first time.

By Nov. 6, 447 applications had been received. Of these, 199 were from Livonia, 129 from Garden City, 57 from Plymouth, 21 from Clarenceville. And 22 were received from non-residents.

In January 1964, Dr. Bradner announced that 905 persons had applied, that catalogs would be available in March, and that 22 of the college's 47 faculty members were under contract.

Sight of yellow corn always is fascinating

The sight of yellow corn always has been fascinating to The Stroller.

From the days of his youth when he lived only a stone's throw from the fields of yellow corn, his mouth has always watered, as the Pensylvania Dutch say, for a cob of the delicious kernels. And more so at picnic time in

To him, there was no greater meal than to sit down at the table, take a steaming cob, brush it with melted butter, and then sit and enjoy a feast.

When we were youngsters and Mother had to stretch her funds, we had many a meal of corn on the cob and "red beet" eggs. You don't see the eggs any more, but the corn on the cob is still among the fall favorites. However, the folks out here in the

A noisy gang of kids just does not evoke smiles

Yesterday, I had 12 kids playing in my house. I wish I were kidding. I counted, and, by golly, there were 12 of them. Strangely enough, I had never even seen half of them before.

The noise was tremendous. While all this was going on, I sat in the kitchen trying to hear my thoughts so I could figure out just where I had gone wrong in life.

I thought of that commercial where the front yard is full of kids and the mother comes out with a pitcher of Kool Aid. She's looking fresh, happy, and thrilled to serve the active little tykes. Well, I decided that woman is crazy.

You show me a woman who serves a noisy gang of kids anything while wearing a big smile on her face, and I'll show you a lady who has just laced the treats with Mickey Finns. Either that, or the noise level has caused her to crack, and she doesn't know she should bolt the doors and hide in the back bedroom with a good book.

I LIKE HAVING kids over to visit. I

In all fairness to my two overlyzealous sons, I must confess that even they were surprised at yesterday's turnout. It seem they had decided to set up a "Spook House" in the basement. Being the type of mother who wouldn't dare stifle a creative urge, I gave my consent. The project involved lots of scotch tape, paper bags, rubber bats, and such things. It kept them busy, any-

The next afternoon, my 7-year-old son announced, "We're going to open our Spook House now."

I said, "That's fine, dear," and naive-Iv went back to reading my newspaper. When I next looked up from my paper, I saw a line of children extending from my front door through the house to the stay for long periods of time. I like the basement stairs, and heard a wave of screams commencing from the basement. I don't know who handled the But there were 12 of them here yes- publicity for this particular event, but again?

THE KIDS LOOKED at me as they passed by as though I were a piece of the furniture. I'm used to that.

When they had all filed into the basement, the screaming, screeching and howling was like nothing I've ever heard before. They were obviously having a very good time.

My 7-year-old ran upstairs three different times to say, "I'm sorry, mom. I didn't know they'd scream so much." Then he'd run back downstairs and start growling again. (He's basically a good kid.)

So, today, nobody is allowed in this house. And I like it. I don't have to gingerly step over five or six youths sprawled all over my family-room floor, playing Atari, just to get to my desk. No one has opened my refrigerator door but me. And, I can even talk on the phone and actually hear what the person on the other end is saying. It all

Cancer services available at 'grass roots' level

By Leonard Poger staff writer

The American Cancer Society is moving to bring its health message of education, prevention, and treatment closer to home.

To help more people become aware that one in four eventually will have a "cancerthreating experience," the ACS is decentralizing operations so staff members will be closer to volunteers and patients.

That policy change was initiated more than a year ago. In its newest implementation, ACS representatives are moving into a 135-yearold vacant home near Garden City Osteopath-

Working out of the building at 6227 Inkster, between Warren and Ford, will be Susan Lerch, whose territory is Garden City, Westland, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and Wayne; and Kathy Harrison, who serves Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Canton, Plymouth Township and Northville Township.

Both formally had offices in the Eloise complex ne . Wayne County General Hospital

THE NEW ACS HOME is known as the Stewart house because it was owned for many years by a family by the that name.

The move, expected to be completed Thursday, Aug. 19, will make a difference for both volunteers and cancer patients, according to Lerch, Harrison and Lisa Nirider, ACS public relations director.

It allows the staffers to work more closely with community and educational groups on the society's goals of teaching the public of cancer's danger signals and how to avoid contracting the disease, they noted.

"It will make it easier for the public to get cancer prevention materials and for patients like those at Garden City Hospital to get information and help," Nirider added.

Then there are benefits like cutting travel time and costs and the opportunity to form longer-lasting alliances with volunteers.

Teamwork should improve, said Harrison, as the volunteers and the public "take ownership for cancer control activities within their tocal community."

Other major benefits noted by the trio would be giving more responsibility and authority to volunteers, increasing fund-raising through a grass roots level organization, closer community relationships, increased cancer education, service and research, and improved recruitment, training and retention of

BEFORE THE decentralization move started in mid-1981, all members of the Detroit region staff worked from an office in Southfield.

Now Lerch and Harrison, each serving territories with about 3,000 volunteers, will be better able to cover their western Wayne County areas.

The Cancer Society has its new quarters rent free and gained use of the house somewhat by accident.

Lerch said she was meeting with administrators of Garden City Hospital last spring to discuss work of local units of the society.

"I mentioned we were looking for a new location," she said. "The hospital staff suggested the Stewart House, which had been vacant on and off since the hospital bought it nearly eight years ago."

The two-story house is located on an acre of land directly in front of the 370-bed, threestory hospital.

The ACS staff will use three rooms on the first floor for a reception area, office for Lerch and Harrison, and a room for board of directors meetings

An open house will be held, probably in mid-September, to let people know of the new off-

That Algerian gas:

It's due in September . . .

Consumers Power Co.'s largest supplier of natural gas, Trunkline Gas Co., announced Monday that shipments of liquefied natural gas (LNG) from Algeria will commence in September.

But the Algerian supply is of questionable reliability, the Michigan utility added.

liquefied natural gas at $7.18 per thousand cubic feet (MCF) "is not out of line with field prices for new gas produced in the United States," a company announcement said.

The result: cost increases for Consumers Power gas customers next winter of less than 10 percent. Consumers Power serves most Detroit suburbs.

"However," said CP Chairman John Including transportation, the cost of D. Selby, "the company is deeply concerned that Trunkline has agreed to a modification of the formula governing the future price of liquefied natural gas (LNG) under this 20-year contract, which is beyond the scope of the arrangements approved by the federal government in 1977 when the LNG project was before it.

"This factor, along with Algeria's failure to live up to its contract, raises serious question as to the country's commitment to the project and the long-term reliability of this source of

Consequently, in hearings which will be held before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Consumers Power intends to oppose the revised pricing arrangements and question the advisability of placing reliance upon Algerian LNG as a dependable longterm source of gas, Selby said.

but MichCon's president wants to keep it out

Robert W. Stewart, chairman and chief executive officer of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., said that his company would "take every legal action possible to prevent deliveries of Algerian Liquified Natural Gas (LNG) to its customers."

Responding to an announcement that a Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co. subsidiary had agreed to a price increase permitting shipment of the LNG, Stewart said that the higher priced Algerian gas was "not needed nor marketable at this time.

Michigan Consolidated serves Detroit and a few suburbs. Most suburbs buy natural gas from Consumers Pow-

"OUR CUSTOMERS have been telling us for some time that enough is enough," Stewart said. "We do not want the Algerian supplies, we cannot sell it, and we will oppose taking the gas during Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) hearings on this mat-Although LNG would account for only about 1 percent of MichCon's total supplies, Stewart nevertheless characterized the Algerian agreement as "typical of the insensitivity which interstate pipeline suppliers have shown for natural gas consumers.

"Unfortunately, there is nothing that can be done about this issue here in Michigan," Stewart said. "This battle must be waged and won in Washington before the FERC and the Congress."

STEWART TESTIFIED last Friday in Washington before a subcommittee of the Energy and Commerce Committee, chaired by Rep. John Dingell, D-Dearborn, on the need to hold down the federally controlled cost of natural gas.

Stewart criticized Panhandle Eastern and its subsidiary, Trunkline LNG Co., for agreeing to a new escalation formula governing the future price of the Algerian supplies. "Our customers can't afford the original price of $7.18 per MMBtu - it's priced too high for the market," he said.

Stewart added that MichCon will also be seeking relief through the FERC of any take-or-pay clauses with Panhandle so that the Algerian LNG "cannot be forced upon us and our cus-

"Pipeline companies must become more responsive to the marketplace," Stewart warned. "Distribution companies and consumers are no longer going to take all the risks of higher priced natural gas supplies."

Library peaks in hard times

The present economic condition with its growing list of the unemployed has brought about a vast increase in daily traffic in the Hough-Dunning Library in Plymouth.

No longer is the traffic confined mostly to book lovers who visit to read the available books or glance over the out-of-town newspapers.

The demand for service far exceeds the ordinary day in a public library.

"The men — and some women — eagerly look for the out-of-town newspapers, hoping there will be some signs of help wanted they could provide," Librariian Patricia Thomas explained.

"Outside of the Detroit papers, we carry only those from New York. I wish we could provide more, but what we have does provide interest daily. In many cases, a family has one Detroit paper delivered, and then comes up

Renni

One of the interesting things is the growth in the children's reading classes and the desire of the older people to read up on their occupation with the hope of bettering themselves - if and when they return to work.

"Our children's classes were expected to be smaller when we sent the Canton chidren to their own library, but we now have 412 in our reading class. That's more than we have had in the

The increased traffic has not disturbed the regular readers who come to enjoy the reading room and the comfort of having the best books available.

"We always have had demand for the best books each month and Plymouth has earned the reputation of having a well-read public. But this new influx has proven most interesting to the librarians."

With the economic conditions, fewer and fewer families are taking off on vacations. Instead, it is not uncommon to see a family come here to spend time just reading. It is an outlet for them away from home and out of the torrid temperature.

The class of 412 children, Librarian Thomas pointed out, do not come at one time. The children can come at their leisure — and that makes the program all the more interesting."

She admitted that it was quite a sight to see entire families visiting the library and spending a few hours reading in the quiet of the reading room.

And the men and women, too, are intersting as they are striving to improve their knowledge of the work they had been doing. This includes math and other subjects of which they have been

Sunny Summer Barbecues

Summer means barbecues and happy get-togethers. It's a time to sit on the terrace and enjoy good friends and the tantalizing aroma of meat cooking on the grill.

If what you want is a quick-cooking, no-fuss meal, consider Ham 'n Vegetable Kabobs. Cubes of ham, alternated with chunks of potatoes and pieces of green pepper are threaded on skewers, brushed with herb butter, then broiled.

Seasonal fruits make up a delectable Summer Fruit Salad with Lime-Apricot Dressing. Fresh Florida lime juice adds a piquant note to the dressing and accents the flavor of the grapes, peaches, strawberries and fresh pineapple.

Cranberry Pineapple Zing, a thirstquenching combination of cranberry juice cocktail and pineapple juice, is a wonderful fruit juice drink to complement this easy menu.

What's cooking this Sunday is a boneless leg of pork, basted with a cranberry glaze, a mixture of whole berry cranberry sauce, chili sauce, mustard and ginger. This juicy tender pork roast makes great eating. Yielding four servings per pound, it's economical, too. An Americana Wild Rice Salad is a nice accompaniment.

A light and refreshing dessert teams ripe melon wedges with a quickly assembled lime sorbet. Fresh seedless limes from Florida give the sorbet a tart-sweet taste, making it the ideal ending to a sum-

New cookbook has Michigan recipes for all seasons

HERE'S A new cookbook out by the American Cancer Society, called "Seasonal Samplings.

It's a culinary look at seasons of Michigan, filled with hundreds of favorite recipes from great cooks from all over Michigan. The book is a result from countless volunteers who were kind and generous enough to share their favorite recipes.

Many of the recipes that are included are appropriate for a particular season and are coded accordingly. Special recipes have been included for festive fare, harvest hits, wild game greats, barbecues and fruit favorites.

There's a restaurant sampler with recipes like shrimp de Johng from the Bear Track Inn, Machus cheddar cheese soup, deviled crab balls from Joe Muir's, Pumpkin Cheese Cake from Restaurant Duglass and many more.

The American Cancer Society, with the help of student and faculty of Oakland Community College's Culinary Arts Department, has been promoting "Seasonal Sampling" by bringing a treat from the book called Blueberry Buckle to radio stations to spread the word about the cookbook.

The American Cancer Society is attempting to raise $50,000 through sales before the end of August. The money raised will be used to support research to find causes of cancer and ways to control it. Funds are also used to tell people about cancer and ways they can protect themselves from this disease, and dollars are also used to help those with cancer to live as rewarding life as Myself, being a cookbook enthusiast, found "Seasonal Sampling" filled with easy and exciting recipes. Having a copy of the previous cookbook, "Michigan Cooks Collection" and enjoying it so. I was equally impressed with "Seasonal Sampling.

This book would be a great gift for friends of family that live out-of-state, and a must for your kitchen at home.

"Seasonal Sampling" is only $6 a copy, which is a small price to pay to help fight cancer - and get a great Going through "Seasonal Sampling," I chose some interesting selections from the book to give you a idea of how great this cookbook is.

They pioneered antique mart 20 years ago

By Elinor Graham staff writer

The Plymouth Symphony League antique mart will mark an anniversary when it opens at noon Friday, Sept. 10 for a three-day run in the Plymouth Cultural Center. It was 20 years ago that the first antique show was planned in conjunction with the Plymouth Fall Festival.

That first effort was a resounding success and over the years the mart has continued its record as the league's single largest fund-raiser. As a fall festival project, it ranks right behind the Rotary Club Chicken Barbecue and the Community Arts Council Artist and Craftsman Show as the third highest moneymaker.

The cast of antique mart planners has changed, but its aspirations remain the same: To produce the best small antique show in the state.

What they lacked in quantity, they would make up for in quality. The league could not compete with 100dealer shows. They would have to compensate with select and varied an-

They had flyers printed, made posters and booth signs, sewed calico skirts for the hostesses and ticket takers, decorated not only the Grange Hall and the Community Building but hung attractive signs and figures in the trees in Kellogg Park.

The mart opened as scheduled in the two buildings on Union Street and antiquers flocked to the show.

PHYLLIS VAN Antwerp chaired the mart the next year, and Jane Moehle took over the third year. Heavy, old pieces of furniture had to be hauled upstairs at the Grange Hall and downstairs at the Community Hall. Each show had its major and minor crises. The over-flowing toilet in the Community Building was a recurring nuisance.

Ruby Morrison's The Red Sled was one of the original dealers who will be back this year. Pauline Work will return for the 17th year with her lovely antique jewelry, glass and silver. Symphony League members boothsat for dealers when they needed a break and delivered dinners from service club meals served in Kellogg

It was early summer of 1962 that Wayne Dunlap, former conductor of the Plymouth Symphony, suggested to Joanne Hulce that an antique mart would be a fine adjunct to the fall festival. Since that time, proceeds from the mart have helped keep the orchestra

THE MART was housed in the two building on Union Street until 1973. The Plymouth Cultural Center on Farmer Street at Theodore had been completed in 1972 and the mart moved to that location the following fall.

For the first time, the mart was under one roof with plenty of free parking

Members of the Plymouth Grange had space in their hall to serve meals downstairs and initiate a crafts show in the upper level. The Community Building on the corner of Union and Church streets was torn down and the property paved for a parking lot.

Members of the Symphony League prepared food for the dealers, instead of carrying festival meals from Kellogg Park. Visitors continued to visit the mart in increasing numbers.

22 antique dealers selected for show

Sharron Davy and Helen Merrill are co-chairing the Symphony League's 20th annual antique mart. More than 150 league members contribute their time and talents to the show which will be Sept. 10-12 in the Plymouth Cultural Center

Barb Brewer, head of the dealer selection committee, has been assisted by Cindy Merrifield and Maret Garard. Twenty dealers have accepted invitations to participate as well as two auxiliary dealers. They will bring a wide variety of antiques and collectibles:

Garagiola unravels other side of TV work

By Patty Radzik special writer

It's early in the evening. You're sitting at home, exhausted from a hard day at work. You switch on the tube and there's Steve Garagiola, sitting poolside and chatting with Billy Sims at the Detroit Lion star's Texas ranch.

"Boy, if I had his job," you say to yourself.

"If those people had my job," Garagiola says, "they'd want their old jobs

The life of a television personality is perceived to be glamorous. But looks can be deceiving.

JUST ASK Garagiola, a sportscaster for Channel 7 who lives in Plymouth. His face is telecast into thousands of homes throughout the Detroit area eve-

It looks simple enough. Viewers see the polished sportscaster on the screen and figure anyone can handle that job. But television news is a fast-paced, high-pressure business. The 10-minute sports wrapup that appears on the screen takes hours to produce.

"Some people think it's such an easy business, and they don't really understand what really goes on," said Garagiola, who has worked for two years at York he grew up in. ABC-owned Channel 7. "That's the way it should be. It should look easy."

Garagiola, like others in his business, works hard to make it look easy. And he enjoys every minute of it.

THE CAMERA never records him standing in the rain at Tiger Stadium. waiting to do a "live" spot. It never catches him at a high-school football game, shivering in frigid weather waiting for a game to end so a report can be

There will never be any film of Garagiola editing tape or writing his script or researching a story. Surely the camera wasn't rolling when, together with his crew, he drove all night to get to Hooks, Texas, just to sit poolside with Sims and get an exclusive story.

"It was about 2:30 in the morning, and there was no one out there but us and the prairie dogs," Garagiola recalled. "One of my crew in the car looked at me and said, 'What, give up show biz?""

GARAGIOLA WAS born in St. Louis and raised in New York City. He enjoys Plymouth, where he lives with his wife, Carol, and their 11/2-year-old daughter, Katie. It is a sharp contrast to the New

"New York is a mean city," he said. "You learn to be just as pushy and mean as everyone else there after a

"My first impression of Plymouth was that I could let down a barrier. The people are nice, and it's a quiet, happy atmosphere to be in."

When time allows, he and his family bicycle to Kellogg Park for ice cream. "I enjoy my job, but it's not my whole life. I could do without it.

"The fulfillment of my life is not to be a big TV star. I find my fulfillment with my family. I want to be with my wife and watch my daughter grow up."

A GRADUATE of Notre Dame University with a major in business, Garagiola began his broadcast career at Channel 10 in Lansing in 1977. After three years there, he joined Channel 7.

"I really don't believe there's a better operation in the country," he said about his station. "I hope to make a significant contribution in this business and, being a part of an organization like this, I feel that I can make that Garagiola recently signed a threeyear contract with Channel 7 and said that he could "easily spend 30 years here because it's such a good, productive environment."

HE ENJOYS the fringes that go with the job, like the recognition. "It happens a lot when I do the grocery shopping. I get a lot of people who aren't sure who I am, but a lot just want to say hello and talk.

"They feel they know you, which is the biggest compliment of all because then I feel I am relating well to the audience and getting their attention."

Besides the public acknowledgment, Garagiola thrives on the hectic routine behind the cameras. "First of all, I love sports. I consider myself a fan. I enjoy the changes. Every day the stories, people and hours are different. There is a lot of variety, and I'm always working against the clock.

"Sometimes I don't like the hours at times there are too many of them."

RECOGNIZED AS A local TV personality, he is also known as the son of Joe Garagiola, former major league baseball catcher who now is a network baseball broadcaster for NBC.

"I get a lot of, 'Hey, you're Joe's kid' when people first meet me, which doesn't bother me because I am proud of my father and don't mind the association. Most don't make any connection at all, which is OK too because I want to be recognized on my own ability."

The year he was born his father retired from baseball, so Steve never saw him play and never had any inclination to pursue the sport as a career.

"He never expressed any desire to have me play sports," Garagiola said of his father. "He always supported anything I decided to do and never had a preference as to what I did.

"I THINK HE was naturally happy when I chose broadcasting as my profession because it's his field. I think he didn't want me to play baseball because he knows first-hand how hard a Garagiola still keeps close ties to his parents, who live in Arizona but often visit. He also has an older brother who serves as his agent and a sister.

Everything considered, Garagiola is happy with his career and what he is doing. His plans for the future are similiar to those in his past - just to enjoy highlight of my life".

"The discus is my pride event," he says with relish. "I work my tail off in it to prove to everybody that a CP in a wheelchair can throw a discus well."

As for his winning the gold in the discus, he remarks: "It was an achievement that took me five years to get to."

Anderson is like any athlete. Goals are reached, hopes are dashed, and rivalries intensify competition.

Anderson tasted all three in Greve. While he won three golds, he missed a fourth in the club throw when he hit his shoulder on his second attempt.

"It totally ruined my competition," he recalled. The winning throw was 14.48 meters, a distance Anderson threw in last year's nationals.

ANOTHER MEMORY is more agonizing. It came in table tennis, the only event he entered and failed to win a Jorgen Andersson. It's a name Anderson has etched in his mind with a new goal to aim for.

Andersson, from Sweden, carved up the competition in the table tennis with the precision of a brain surgeon. Anderson thinks he may have scored more points in his match with the Swede than anyone else in the tournament. He lost by 21-4, 21-6 margins.

Anderson has vowed vengence. His sights are set for the 1984 Disabled Olympics to be at Hofstra University in New York.

Anderson plans to continue his athletic career at least through the Olympics, perhaps beyond. He is hoping the U.S. team will fare as well then as it did at Greve: 40 gold, 28 silver and 21 bronze, 89 total, compared to secondbest totals by France of 17 gold and by England of 66 total medals.

HE IS ALSO hoping the games will be greeted by Americans with the same enthusiasm that it was by the Danes. The opening ceremonies in Greve drew 8,000 spectators.

When the U.S. played Canada in soccer in a game that would eventually determine the gold medal, a crowd of 2,000 showed up (The U.S. won, 2-1).

"It really gets you pumped up," Anderson says. "It makes you feel good that people know and appreciate the competition."

Again, the emphasis on competition. CP athletes don't want a pat on the back or a hug just for trying. They want the recognition any athlete who spends weeks working on technique and endless hours practicing gets.

So Anderson keeps working, educating people about disabled sports. And working on his various sports - especially table tennis.

Because he has to settle a score in

Bowling 'lines' differ

The grand old game of bowling has one of the most unusual systems in the entire sports world.

The participants don't know how much they pay per line for league bowling. This is brought about by the weekly fee each league charges its members, including the costs of bowling and the contribution to the prize fee. In some cases, this runs as high as $9 per week.

The cost to the bowler is predicated on the amount on the prize list, voted on at the start of the season by all participants.

A survey as the season approaches reveals that the price per line varies with prime time (early evenings) costing as much as $1.25 per line. The lowest evening price (late hours) is down in many areas to 90 cents per line.

Day fees vary from establishment to establishment.

THE AREA'S young stars, Cheryl Daniels and Aleta Rzepecki, are doing quite well on the ladies pro tour.

In the Red Lobster Classic, bowled two weeks ago in Joliet, Ill., Daniels finished 111 winning $775. Rzepecki, meanwhile, picked up $630 for her 19th place finish.

Give shoes proper comfort, fitting

A major area of confusion facing most joggers is their shoe-selection process. The decision-making process is often based upon effective advertising, magazine ratings, or such factors as color and word of mouth.

As a foot specialist involved in sports medicine, I believe that the consumer's knowledge of the available products is essential in the selection process.

The following features are those which I believe comprise a good quality shoe:

• The type of rubberized tread pattern should be selected as to fit the particular running needs of the athlete. The waffle or "snow tire" is suggested for outdoor running and a flattened, smooth type of tread surface is recommended for indoor running and activi-

• The weight of the shoe is an important consideration, particularly in marathons. Although an individual determination, the assessment can readily be made through a comparative examination of other available shoes.

• The durability of the outer sole, to jogging

Dr. Charles R. Young

a large extent, determines the life of the shoe. The black carbon rubber soles, common in waffle patterns, is a long-lasting material as opposed to its counterpart - the crepe and/or gum rubbers. A white polyethylene sole is available in certain shoe lines and is very durable as well as a shock absorp-

- Ventilation is another important quality. I usually suggest the nylon or mesh uppers for warm-weather jogging and the suede and leather type for cold- or wet-weather running.
- One of the most important features of a quality running shoe is adequate flexibility in the ball of the foot. During the toe-off phase of the gait cycle, it is essential that the sole of the shoe be flexible enough to allow proper motion and weight bearing to occur.

- · A shoe with ample toe room is another essential necessity. During the running gait cycle, there occurs excessive sliding and compression of the digits within the shoe. There must be adequate room to compensate for these
- The topic of heel flare is an interesting issue since there is confusion as to how much is actually good. A flaring out of the shoe at the heel has a sound principle in that a wider base of support provides additional foot and ankle stability. But too excessive of a flare can interrupt the gait cycle itself.
- Most of the running shoes today have a padded tongue extension up to the back of the heel. The purpose is to provide added grip and conformity of the foot in the shoe, and, it serves to protect the achilles tendon. I suggest you select the softer, well-padded and flexible type as to lesson the possibility of irritation.

- · An adequate type of insole padding is essential in reducing the pressure and friction upon the bottom of the foot. Commercial and professional insoles are available for dealing with these factors. Adequate padding in both the heel and the ball of the foot is essential for foot comfort in the runner.
- The final trait is perhaps the most important of all. Simply stated, how does it fit? After all is said and done, the shoe must feel good on the foot Since each manufacturing line has its own inherent styling and structure, seemingly minimal differences can produce major changes in fit and feel. Purchase a shoe that fits well and feels

In closing, I have reviewed some of the more essential traits of what I consider to be in a good running shoe. We' as runners must know the basic shoe characteristics in order to better select the most favorable shoe for our needs opera in the French thriller, "Diva."

the movies

Louise Snider

French film 'Diva' appeals to senses with bright results

Considering how our senses are under constant assault in our overly communicative environment, it comes as a pleasant surprise to find a movie that actually makes an effort to appeal to them, rather than numb them.

"Diva" (R) appeals, tickles and delights. The movie (in French with English subtitles) is filled with surprises. Sometimes the surprises are visual, sometimes verbal. And sometimes they are unexpected actions or developments.

The director, Jean-Jacques Beineix, loves to build up our expectations toward an event and then resolve the situation in a way we "Diva" is stylish. It's high-tech chic. It's special without special effects. I think that Beineix must have had fun making this movie, because it is so much fun to watch.

WHAT MAKES "DIVA" all the more remarkable is that it is the director's first effort. Until now, Beineix has been working as an assistant director for various French filmmakers. He obviously learned well from these experiences and transmitted his knowledge as well as his enthusiasm to this initial effort. It's a movie made by someone who likes movies.

The elements aren't different from those found in hundreds of other romantic thrillers, but what Beineix does with them makes Jules (Frederic Andrei) is an 18-year-old postal delivery boy who is an ardent and devoted fan of opera singer Cynthia Hawkins. (Hawkins is played by Amrican soprano Wilhelmina Wiggins Fernandez, who has sung with the Michigan Opera Theatre in "La Boheme," "Don Giovanni" and "Porgy and Bess.") Hawkins is a purist who has never made a recording.

At one of her concerts, Jules sneaks in a recorder and captures her performance on tape. Her song is from Act I of "La Wally" by Catalani. The music is a brilliant choice for this film. It is not familiar and overworked, but it is a beautiful aria that become familiar and haunting as it is repeated throughout the movie.

Unwittingly, Jules also becomes the possessor of another recording. A prostitute has made a cassette recording in which she identifies a prominent individual as the top person behind a white slavery racket. As she runs from goons who are chasing her, she drops the cassette into Jules' mailpouch.

BEFORE FILM'S END, the police are hunting for Jules, the goons are after him and two mysterious Taiwanese who want to steal the concert tape and make pirated recordings are trailing

Meanwhile, he has charmed his way into the opera singer's life, and he has become friends with two amazing characters, not encountered in films before.

Alba (14-year-old Thuy An Luu) is a young Vietnamese girl living with Gorodish (Richard Bohringer), an artist-philosopher, with the smarts of an undercover agent and the coolness of a zen mas-

Alba is a brightly colored popsicle, all glitz and plastic and cellophane. She is completely unself-conscious and unexpectedly wise.

Frederic Andrei also wins us over with his portrayal of Jules, the street-wise young man who still has the youthful capacity to SUSPENSE, LAUGHS, romance and novelty, "Diva" has them all: A chase scene through a Paris subway that leaves you panting, sets that make you do a double-take, singing that raises goose bumps on you, images so beautiful you want to frame them, witty references (alluding to everything from surrealist painting to a Marilyn Monroe movie) that keep you guessing, and nasty villains you enjoy hating.

That's "Diva," the best French film in a decade.

"Diva" will be shown at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 4 and 7 p.m. Sunday at Detroit Film Theatre at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"Diva" pairs Thuy An Luu and Richard Bohringer as a mysterious couple who live together.

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!
