Officials eye federal aid for larger police facility

By Ariene Funke
staff writer

Canton officials will apply for a $1-million federal grant to help pay the cost of building a new police station.

The Township Board Tuesday gave approval to submit the grant bid to the Economic Development Administration in Washington, D.C.

"The grant money was made available through an announcement in the Federal Register April 29," grants coordinator Terry Carroll said. "It's on a first-come, first-served basis. The schedule is very, very tight."

ALTHOUGH THE Township Board has not yet formally approved a specific construction plan for a new police building, trustees and other officials agree the current 5,000-square-foot facility on Geddes Road is cramped and inefficient. In addition, the state Department of Corrections has cited the prisoner lockup area for safety deficiencies.

A study committee composed of Police Chief Jerry Cox, Finance Director Mike Gorman and Chief Building Official Aaron Machnik has been working with an architect on plans for a new building. The committee strongly favors a two-story, 28,000-square-foot police station next to Township Hall on Canton Center. The cost for construction and other expenses is pegged at $2.5 million.

If approved, the grant would cover about 39 percent of the cost, Carroll said. The township would have to pay the remainder.

According to Carroll, the grants will go to local public works projects which put "under-employed" people to work. A similar grant helped build Township Hall in the 1970s.

Work on the new building would have to begin within 90 days after approval, Carroll said. Construction would have to be finished in one year.

With that in mind, the Township Board also gave the go-ahead for necessary preliminary work on soil borings and engineering studies.

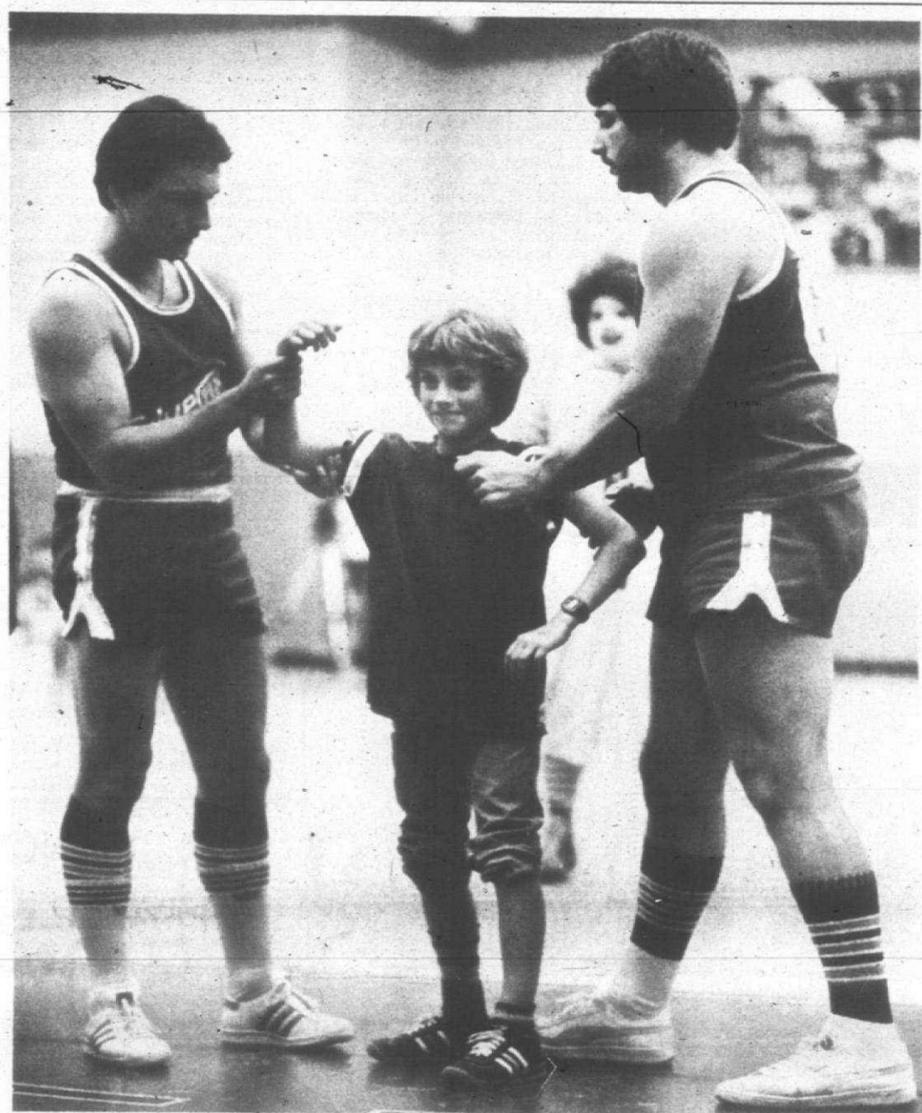

"It's a chance we'll have to take (the studies)," trustee Robert Padgett said. "We have to get going. It's my understanding if this kind of grant money is approved, we don't have a lot of time."

THE FINANCING plan for the township's portion hasn't been decided, Gorman said. Choices include selling bonds or borrowing from the township's capital improvements fund. Ultimately, the cost would be paid from the police tax, which is set annually by the Township Board.

The committee favors a 15-year lease-purchase agreement in which the township pays a set amount over a period of years, obtaining the deed when the debt is paid.

Other design plans included revamping the present police facility and building a one-story addition next to Township Hall.

The two-story plan, although the most expensive choice, offers the best opportunity for expansion, committee members said.

Shooting for charity

The Detroit Lions visited Canton Monday evening, challenging McDonald's of Canton to a basketball contest at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Complex. With the help of Canton's Chris Sego, a 9-year-old Field Elementary School student who substituted for David Hill at the free throw line, the Lions' hoopsters pulled out the victory. The real winner, however, was the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Game proceeds from the $3 charged per fan will fund the MDA's efforts in Western Wayne County. Lions Eddie Murray (left) and Amos Fowler (right) instruct Chris on the finer points of free throw shooting.

Festival to offer country fun

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

Where, in a week's span, can you view Canton from a helicopter, challenge your neighbors to a cow chip flinging contest, spoil your palate with shish kabob and barbecue chicken, and take in a rodeo and the antics of a trick pig and Count Scary?

A: At the annual Canton Country Festival, which kicks off at 1 p.m. June 12 with a bigger-than-ever parade. Nearly 100 entrants, including eight marching bands and a host of Canton-made floats, will sashay down Saltz Road under the direction of parade marshal Count Scary.

Oodles more is in store for the event, slated to take place at the 30-acre, newly dedicated Canton Recreational Complex behind township hall. A flea market and carnival — both are new this year — will swing into action Tuesday, June 14.

Wednesday, the rock group "Teazer" will entertain for free and coax listeners to "shake it" on the dance floor.

Bingo, Wolverine helicopter rides, games, concessions and Harold Tesch's "Trained Animal and Magic Show" headline Thursday's agenda. One of the world's smallest performing ponies; a schooled llama; the educated pig of "National Geographic" fame; a dwarf trick cow; somersaulting birds; and an earless trick goat are cast among Tesch's talented performers.

On Friday, June 17, a rodeo featuring cowboys, clowns, local bronc and bull riders and steer wrestlers will debut at the township extravaganza. An arts and crafts tent; a Jaycees' shish kabob dinner; a Count Scary look-alike contest, and performances by the Clark Family Players and a country band round out Friday's festivities.

(Attention Count Scary look-alikes: to refresh your memories, excerpts from a County Scary television performance will be shown at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Canton Public Library in township hall. Contest registration forms are available at the Parks and Recreation Department at 1150 S. Canton Center Road until June 10. Upcoming editions of the Observer will offer more contest information.)

Activities resume at 7:30 a.m. Saturday with the Canton Rotary pancake breakfast; a 9 a.m. five-mile run; a pet show; homemade food and needlework contests; a tug-of-war featuring the defending champion Canton Parks and Recreation Department staffers, and the Canton Business and Professional Women picnic dinner. Entertainment by the Canton Kitchen Band, the Polish Centennial Dancers, and the Homegrown Bluegrass Band will highlight the afternoon and evening events.

Anyone having too good a time can seek forgiveness at an 8 a.m. sunrise service on Sunday sponsored by the Canton United Council of Churches.

By 11 a.m. a golf tourney will be in full swing (organized by the Parks and Recreation Department), to be followed by an art contest, Canton Wheels square dance, corn eating contest, and baton twirling performance.

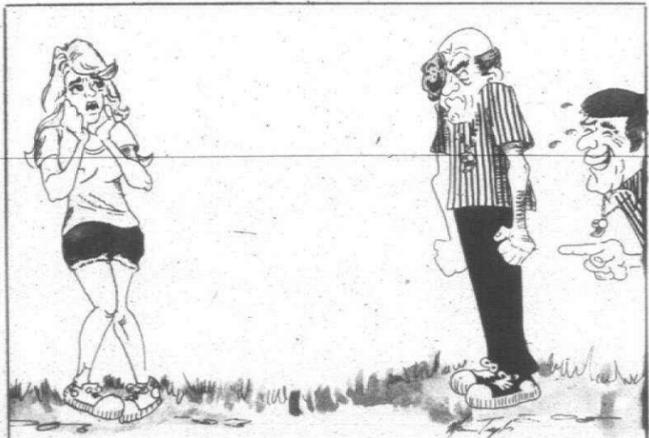

THE RENOWNED cow chip fling contest, (to which President Ronald Reagan and Governor James Blanchard have been invited) and a rodeo headline the afternoon's activities, while the Banjos of Michigan will hit it at 4 p.m.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce reports that the San Diego Chicken, well-known sports mascot, will make a rare local appearance to protest the chamber's chicken barbecue, slated for noon on Sunday.

The perturbed Chicken is expected to announce the chamber "should let them eat spare ribs."

For thirsty and hungry revelers, refreshments will be prepared by 27 non-profit Canton organizations.

Schools unveil budget plans

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education is considering reductions in non-teaching personnel and trims in high school athletics for the 1983-84 school year, according to a proposed budget plan.

School officials recently held a workshop to discuss the proposed $41.7-million budget. At the board's Monday, June 27, meeting, public comments on the budget will be welcomed prior to its scheduled adoption later that night.

Budget revision is set for midyear (January or February), when information concerning student enrollment, state aid and utility costs is available. Officials point out, however, that the budget is "a working document" constantly undergoing changes.

Highlights of the proposed budget include:

- A projected districtwide enrollment of 15,800, a decline of 499 students.

oral quarrel

Taxpayers often are credited with complaining less about funding police, fire and emergency services than about paying for other services.

Officials in Plymouth Township, which now contracts police services from the City of Plymouth, currently are investigating the possibility of establishing a township police department.

Residents of Canton Township, formerly served by the Michigan State Police and the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, have had their own department for about five years.

THIS WEEK'S ORAL QUARREL QUESTION IS, HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT THE QUALITY OF POLICE, FIRE AND AMBULANCE SERVICES IN YOUR COMMUNITY? PLEASE SPECIFY WHICH MUNICIPALITY YOU LIVE IN.

Think it over, and phone in your response to Oral Quarrel at 459-2704. Calls will be taken Thursday through 9 a.m. Friday. You'll have 30 seconds to respond. Look for your answers and those of your neighbors in our next edition.

Child abuse trust fund gets off to slow start

It's off to a slow start — but it's law. To prevent child abuse, the Michigan Legislature last year created a state Child Abuse Prevention Board and established a trust fund with a goal of $20 million.

"In Michigan, over $250 million is spent every year on treatment services," said state Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing. Stabenow was chief sponsor of the package of laws that created the board and the trust fund.

"Yet because treatment is often too little, too late, it does not stem the rising tide of cases."

Meeting resistance in an economic recession to a new program, Stabenow and co-sponsors such as then-Rep. Sylvia Skrel, R-Livonia, sold their colleagues on an income tax check-off system.

"Michigan's trust fund would be started with voluntary contributions through a check-off on tax returns, allowing taxpayers to contribute $2 of their refund to child abuse prevention. Other contributions would be accepted from foundations, bequests, donations and general funds," she said.

AS OF mid-April, Michigan taxpayers donated a bit more than $350,000 of their refunds to the child abuse trust fund — a bare 1/60th of the fund's goal.

Until the $20-million goal is reached, half the contributions will be banked to earn interest, and the other half will be spent on grants to local abuse-prevention programs, according to terms of the act. A 15-member state panel administering the fund may distribute grants to:

- Local child abuse prevention councils.
- Schools, churches, hospitals, and other local public or private non-profit agencies.

The local agency must provide a 50-percent match. Half of the match may be such "in-kind" services as staff salaries and overhead.

How safe is the money? That will be up to the Legislature. In times of financial crisis, Michigan state government has been known to borrow from the veterans' trust fund and the Kammer land trust fund to pay current bills.

THE IDEA of preventing child abuse came from Dr. Ray Helfer, professor in Michigan State University's department of pediatrics and human development.

Michigan is the third state — after Kansas and Washington — to set aside money in a trust fund solely for preventing child abuse.

Child abuse is virtually epidemic — or at least on the increase, Stabenow argues.

focus on families

In 1981, "Over 35,000 cases of suspected child abuse/neglect were reported to Children's Protective Services (an office of the state Department of Social Services). That's about 1 percent of the child population," Sta-

"Child abuse" is defined as "harm or threatened harm to a child's health or welfare by a person responsible for the child's health or welfare." The harm may be either "non-accidental physical or mental injury" or sexual abuse.

"Neglect" is "harm to a child's health or welfare by a person responsible for the child's health or welfare which occurs through negligent treatment, including the failure to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter or medical care."

The state can expect to see more child abuse and neglect in an economic recession — a time of stress, she said. In the majority of cases, two factors are present: 1) poverty and unemployment and 2) isolation and lack of social support.

Historically, child abuse is an old, old story. Ancient Greeks and Romans considered their children property, destroying weak and deformed infants. Illegitimate children often were killed to avoid shame, according to the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse.

Children were treated harshly in the New World. The Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1646 adopted a "Stubborn Child Law," invoking the death penalty for misbehaving children. Full punishment, however, rarely was invoked. Whipping was substituted.

"And because the problem is still in the closet," experts say only about one-third are likely to be reported.

Mistreatment harder to spot Suburbs reticent to report abuse

Mistreatment of children is different in the northwest suburbs. It's harder to spot. But it does occur.

"In the suburbs, private clinics may not report child abuse cases well," said Jim Benson, one of two intake workers for Wayne County Juvenile Court.

"They're more involved with the families. It causes a distortion in a picture of the clientele."

"The suburban cases we get are reported by schools, police and neighbors. Private hospitals rarely report them."

HIS COLLEAGUE, Judy Velleman, agreed. "Most of our referrals are from Children's, Sinai, Mt. Carmel, Hutzel — not a lot from Wayne County General," she said.

The picture of suburban reticence at reporting child abuse and sexual abuse cases is confirmed by their supervisor, Eleanor Austin.

"I went to a high school in Livonia a couple of years ago and was really impressed with their reluctance to get involved. The teachers were not secure that their anonymity would be protected," she said.

In upper-middle-class suburbs, Austin said, the predominant kind of abuse is sexual.

JUVENILE COURT employees distinguish these kinds of cases: neglect, physical abuse, "tick-o" sexual abuse (with children as young as one year) and incest-type sexual abuse (where a stepfather, boyfriend or husband of the mother has relations with a pubescent girl, not necessarily violently).

Despite conventional wisdom that child abuse increases during a recession, Wayne County's intake of abuse petitions reached its peak of 382 in 1979. By 1980, there were half as many — 190; in 1981, they had dropped to 162; last year, 131.

In the first four months of this year, there were 55 abuse petitions versus 63 in the same period of 1982, by Austin's calculations.

(At a legislative hearing this week on the state social services budgets, several witnesses professed to see an explosion of child abuse with the current recession. They were, however, counting lack of pre-natal care as child abuse.)

"Most suburban cases of physical abuse occur in places like River Rouge, Melvindale, Lincoln Park, Inkster — lower-middle-class industrial suburbs," she said. "In upper-middle-class suburbs, the predominant abuse is sexual."

Abusive parents are likely to be poorly educated, the intake workers said. The parents may see nothing wrong in "disciplining" kids with a belt or an electrical extension cord (an inner city favorite).

And Velleman notes the number of savage beatings seems to be up, even if the total number of abuse cases is down.

BUT IF ABUSE cases are down, neglect cases are rising.

There were 833 in 1979, followed by 1,048 in 1980, then 1,143 in 1981, and 1,151 last year, Austin said.

"These are just new cases," she said, "not old cases that may have been reopened."

The number of new cases in a month may range from a low of 40 to a high of 128. There is no pattern, except that the last four Augusts have been big months, producing 109 or more cases each, Austin added.

"We're seeing more neglect — parents giving up their kids," agreed Benson.

"A lot are single-parent families," said Velleman. "The mother gets behind in the rent, the home's a mess, the kids go to school dirty and hungry."

HERE'S HOW a case gets into the mill:

A doctor, teacher or counselor — all required by law to do so — reports abuse or neglect to the protective services office of the Department of Social Services (DSS) in the county. But any person may report such a case — and, indeed, many are reported by grandparents.

The identity of a person who makes a complaint about a suspected child abuse is confidential," Attorney General Frank

Parent tells of breaking cycle of child violence

Editor's note: The writer is a staff member of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers who wishes to remain anonymous.

My own horror story started when I was 4. The juvenile system in my home state took me away from my parents because they had neglected me. For the next 10 years, I was shuttled back and forth from foster home to foster home.

Each foster family was different. Some lived 'way out in the country. Some had kids of their own. Some eked out a modest living boarding homeless children.

But one similarity binds all the foster families together in my memory. No one — neither the foster parents nor their own children — liked me.

IN EACH family I was odd child out, an orphaned Martian who didn't really belong. The fact that I was "different" from everyone else was demonstrated over and over to me in a lot of little ways and big ways.

The foster family ate dinner in the dining room. Many times, I ate bread and butter on the basement stairs.

The family watched TV. I cleaned the bathroom. The foster parents' kids got away with murder. I was punished for every misstep.

In one family, my punishment was to sit for hours in a dark, cobweb-filled basement wall hole. In another, I got a hickory switch snapped across my legs.

In still another, a foster father once used a blowtorch on the ends of my fingers because I had stolen 10 cents. My fingers still bear the scars.

THEIR ABUSE inflicted pain as much on my mind as it did on my legs and fingers. And it is that psychological pain which can create another generation of child abusers.

I worried: Would I, too, become a child abuser? Newspaper stories allow some parents an easy "out" for what they do. The excuse is that abusive parents are merely repeating the sins of their own parents, that they are lashing out at their own children the way their own parents struck out at them.

The explanation is that they have not learned how to control their own anger or rage because they don't have a good self-image or because they don't know how to deal with a crisis.

Tragically, for some these excuses are true.

NOT EVERYONE who has been beaten or abused as a child grows up to see that violence is not the way to cope with a crisis. Not every abused child grows up to like himself or learn how to let off steam.

But for every once-abused parent who drags the cycle of violence into another generation, many others break out of it. They learn not to use their childhoods as a convenient excuse for inflicting the same on their children.

These parents learn somehow that they alone — not some forefather — are responsible if welts, burns and broken bones are inflicted on a son or daughter.

I know these parents exist because I am one of them.

A once-abused child who is thrust into parenthood doesn't know how to give love. He or she never learned by example how to cope when things go wrong. Once-abused children often fear parenthood, for a crying child might unleash the beast buried in their minds.

So it was with me.

I MARRIED not knowing how to give love. I had children when I didn't have the faintest idea how to be a parent. And I lived in dread that the angry beast inside me would one day terrorize my children.

I wish I could say that in one sudden burst of wisdom I learned the secrets of loving, coping and parenting and that I never abused my children.

The sting of the hickory stick against my flesh taught me what love and parenting are not. But it took many years of searching to find what both of them were.

During my search, my children were my own personal guinea pigs. If I made a mistake, they paid the penalty.

There is a big gap between keeping your cool and slapping a child around a room. Sometimes I was closer to keeping my cool. Other times I was closer to slapping out. A few times, I did lash out.

VERY EARLY on, the sheer self-disgust I felt after hitting my children made me switch to other punishments.

Over the years, that feeling of self-disgust, plus the memory of being beaten myself, kept me from hitting my children as I unraveled the secrets of loving and parenting.

If I did hit my children, I can't blame the bad lessons of childhood. I am responsible for what I do.

Only nature — through such perversities as epilepsy, leukemia, heart disease — has freedom to inflict pain on children.

No matter how good the excuse, I have no such freedom.

Adopted granddaughter sought

By Sandra Armbruster staff writer

Sherry Lynn Howell would be 29 years old by now. That much her grandparents know. What they'd like to learn is a place of a name — something they could use to find her.

"If we just had a name, we could search the records. Maybe we could find someone who had some information," said Sherry's grandmother, Sue Kalbassa.

Sherry's story — and that of her three brothers and sisters — began in October 1959. The four children and their mother lived in what is now the Norway area of Westland. Their father had moved to South Carolina, and their mother decided to place them up for adoption with the Children's Aid Society.

"None of us were aware of it for the first week to 10 days," Kalbassa said. "When we heard about it, we thought it was simple: We'd just go down and pick them up."

"But that's not the way it was."

THE TWO OLDEST children — Terry and Sherry — were transferred to a foster home in Gibraltar.

"That's where we picked Terry up. The courts gave us so much trouble. They wouldn't give us the rest of the children," Kalbassa continued.

Eventually, the other three children were adopted, she said, but never forgotten.

"We searched for years for the kids, grasping every straw," she said. "The two youngest children were adopted by the same family, and last October, the Kalbassas were reunited with them."

"We had registered with AIM (an organization that works to unite adoptees with their natural parents), and they (the grandchildren) had registered, too," said Kalbassa, who now lives in Romulus. "It took months for the computer to connect us up, but it did."

The reunion meant a spectacular Thanksgiving celebration for the Kalbassas, with 28 family members flying in from throughout the country.

"The reunion has meant a total new life for the little ones," Kalbassa said. "They found a whole new family."

"We had a ball, but the sad part is that we couldn't find Sherry," Kalbassa added.

BUT THE Kalbassas haven't given up hope. In fact, they think that Sherry, or someone she knows, may be living in Livonia.

"About 17 or 18 years ago, I bumped into a lady in the mall who asked if I knew what had happened to Sherry. She said she had seen her and knew she was with a family in the Livonia area."

"But we had no name to go on, and courts wouldn't open the records," she said.

Renewing her search for Sherry, Kalbassa has written to Lansing to see if birth records there may list her grandaughter under a different name. Wyandotte records list only the name of Sherry's natural parents.

Kalbassa hopes that events recalled in this story "might jog the memory of Sherry or someone who knew her. Kalbassa noted that Terry has had memories of his placement before being returned to the Kalbassas and knows that for a time he and Sherry lived in a house on the water in Gibraltar.

"Terry feels a responsibility to find Sherry," Kalbassa said. "He was the only one raised within the family realm. Before he left, he told her he would search until he found her."

She hopes that someone with information on Sherry Lynn Howell will write to the Observer at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. That information will be forwarded to the Kalbassas.

"We don't want to take anything away from the adoptee's parents," Kalbassa said. "We just want to find her, to let her know that her family loves her."

Red Cross fights blood shortage

In an effort to avoid blood shortages this summer, the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region, is opening its Detroit Blood Center every Saturday during June.

The center, 100 Mack Ave. between Woodward and John R, will be open for donations between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturdays in June. The center also will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from noon to 6 p.m.

Blood can be donated by anyone 17-65 who's in general good health and weighs at least 110 pounds. The entire donation process, including a free physical, takes about an hour.

For an appointment or more information, call 833-4440.

Hat trick

Eighteen-month-old Brandon Bray of Canton Township, a visitor to the first car care fair at the Wayne-Westland YMCA last Saturday, finds the motorcycle helmet will take some growing into. Visitors to the car care fair learned safe, trouble-free driving for all modes of transportation from cars to bicycles.

Proposed school budget unveiled

Local tax revenues based on an operating levy of 35.34 mills, the same as last year ($35.26 for each $1,000 of state equalized valuation).

The proposed state aid revenue is budgeted at $233.61 per pupil, based on Gov. James Blanchard's proposal. The proposed budget does not take into consideration potential or future executive order cutbacks which would reduce revenues.

Possible cutbacks, to be phased in over several months, are projected at a maximum of $783,700. Among the categories suggested for reduction are clerical and custodial staff, high school athletics, special education and alternative education.

While preparing for the final budget presentation and public hearing June 27, $655,700 was reduced from the 1983-84 county allocation budget, according to Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business.

The county allocation budget is submitted annually to the Wayne County tax allocation board outlining the need for 8.9 mills in county aid given to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools each year.

Emergency telephone for deaf available

In a medical emergency, fast action can mean the difference between life and death. Often fast action means reaching for the telephone. For the speech and hearing impaired, however, phone communication with emergency services can be restricted severely.

Annapolis Hospital recently has taken a step to correct the situation by installing a Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) in the emergency room. By calling 722-4346, speech and hearing impaired persons who own or lease a TDD can communicate directly with emergency room staff.

The TDD is a desk-top unit with a typewriter keyboard and a screen capable of printing out one line. When the special line in the emergency room rings, the receiver is placed in a cradle on top of the unit.

The hospital staffer answering the phone then types "hello, Annapolis Hospital."

The message is displayed on the caller's screen. Replies appear on the device is possible only if the caller also uses a TDD.

For more information, call 722-3300, Ext. 30. The device costs more than $600 and was donated to the hospital by the Annapolis Auxiliary. The device also can be leased from Michigan Bell by anyone with a speech or hearing handicap or anyone who needs to communicate with them.

Gear up for fest flea market and arts and crafts tents for June 16-19. To reserve a spot, call 455-6030 evenings. Applications are available at the Canton Public Library.

P.P.S. If you're accustomed to attending the festival in August and are puzzled with its early arrival this summer — it has to do with vacation. The members of the Canton Country Festival board decided that moving the date would give them time to take one. Also, staging the event in June will enable school bands to participate in the parade.

Madonna offers safety classes

The Michigan Department of Labor's safety education and training division (SET) and Madonna College will conduct a safety administrator course May 31 and June 1-2 at Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

The seminar will address accident investigations, the hiring and achieving of safety goals, accident recordkeeping, employee training, affirmative safety defenses and creating positive attitudes toward safety.

A $35 program fee is required. The fee includes lunch each day and all conference materials. Reservations may be made with the college's office of the academic dean. Enrollment is limited and advanced registration is necessary.

For participants interested in earning college credits, one hour of undergraduate credit will be given upon completion of the program. An additional fee will be required.

Directing the program will be SET consultant Donna Nott.

Query prompted by death game

A policy dealing with the use of school district property is expected to be presented by the Wayne-Westland School District administration at its next meeting.

The administration was directed to draw up such a policy at the May 9 meeting of the Wayne-Westland Board of Education after a PTA representative, members of the audience and board members expressed concern over such games as "Death Quest." The fantasy game involves roving bands of players who search for spells.

Nancy Kettler, president of the Area Council of PTAs, asked the board at Monday's regular meeting to adopt a resolution opposing use of school facilities for games played between "sunset and sunrise" in which the "object is to simulate killing your opponent." The motion was approved 5-1. Voting "no" was Dewey Combs. David Moranty was absent.

Memorial Day weekend marks park season opening

The Memorial Day weekend marks the beginning of summer for the 12 Metro parks of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. Most facilities will be ready by then, including lake and pool swimming, which opens Saturday.

Vehicle entry permits are required and are $7 for an annual pass, $2 for senior citizens. Daily passes are $2. Metro Beach, Stony Creek and Kensington Metroparks also have boat launching facilities which require boat launching permits. Fees are the same as for vehicle entry permits.

Here's a rundown of HCMA parks and the facilities they offer.

$500,000 needed County searches for park money

By Suzie Rollins Singer
staff writer

Wayne County commissioners today are expected to discuss where they will find $500,000 to fund the county parks for the summer.

Without the money, the recreation areas will be forced to close Monday, July 4, said Irma Clark, the Wayne County Road Commission's assistant public information director.

The road commission has jurisdiction over the county's nine parks. During the first five months of 1982, it has spent most of the $950,000 parks budget maintaining the parks.

"We need to have a line item budget, but not anymore," said Clark, noting that the funding has been cut from $3 million in 1979 to $1.2 million in 1981 and $950,000 for '82-83.

"We need the money just to maintain what we have. We have already spent $45,000 removing dangerous trees in the parks and more money cutting grass and opening 17 of the 56 comfort stations," she added.

The road commission appealed to County Executive William Lucas for the money, but he refused. He said the request was premature, and the commission should seek federal or state grants for help.

"Grants will only provide us with money for new projects, not operating money, and we don't need any new projects, because we have no means of keeping up the ones we have," Clark said.

"We built a $750,000 nature center in Elizabeth Park a few years ago, and because it hasn't been staffed (due to budget cuts) it's been vandalized and is a burned out shell that needs $300,000 worth of work," she said.

Clark said she is just waiting for the commissioners to give her an answer. "We can't close the parks, we can't block off the roads, when we run out of money we'll have to pull the employees out of the parks," she said.

"We presented our appeal to the commissioners and are just waiting for them to give us an answer," Clark added.

Commissioners Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, and Richard Manning, D-Redford, both said they would support the road commission's request for more funds. However, Dumas said she couldn't understand why the road commission spent all of its allocation this year.

"I recognize that there has to be cut-backs, but they've been managing with this kind of budget for a few years, how come they can't make a go of it now?" Dumas asked.

Dumas also added that part of the operation could be funded with money from the road commission's general fund.

"I also think interest from investments could be used as part of the budget," she said.

Manning said he is looking to Gov. James Blanchard for help. "If the governor's program on youth employment gets the ground I'd like to have some people hired for park maintenance. It's one area that the county executive could speak to," Manning said.

110 jobs available

Aimed at putting a dent in youth unemployment, the Plymouth-Canton co-op program, housed at Plymouth Salem High, is instituting a summer work employment program for residents between the ages of 16 and 21.

A total of 110 positions will be available for Plymouth, Canton and Northville youth who meet economic guidelines.

To qualify, each applicant must have an income of less than $4,680 and be totally self-supported. Applicants may live at home but cannot be claimed by parents for income tax purposes. If not self-supported, parents must be unemployed, on ADC, or fall below income restrictions based on size of family to qualify.

Joanne Hart, program coordinator, says college students who are working their way through college by summer employment would qualify if their parents do not claim them as an exemption on federal income tax forms.

The program pays $3.35 an hour. All employees work seven hours a day, Monday through Friday. The program begins Monday, June 20, and lasts six weeks through Aug. 5.

Persons may apply by contacting Hart or Bryan Richardson at 453-3100, Ext. 299, or by stopping by the Salem High Rock Shop between the hours of 7 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Teacher chairs authors group

Judy Stone, an English teacher at Pioneer Middle School, recently chaired a session of the young authors conference for junior high students at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Student writing portfolios, which had been submitted earlier, were critiqued and shared at the session.

Students also engaged in an introductory writing activity, explored movement from conventional to imaginative thinking, and created poems from their own extended metaphors.

Michigan poet Cynthia H. Cummings, main speaker, shared with the students her poems and experiences in getting her books published.

The conference for young authors is sponsored annually at the Dearborn campus of U-M and is coordinated by Dr. Grace Kachaturoff.

Appreciate Stage Band

To the editor:

I would like to take a moment to publicly thank a group of talented, dedicated and very giving young musicians: the West Middle School Stage Band.

On May 3 they took time from their evening schedules to entertain at the Volunteer Recognition Night sponsored by the school district. This past Saturday, May 21, they were on the scene at 8 a.m. for the dedication of the new pavilion ("The Gathering") which will be used for the Farmer's Market. Once again they provided enjoyable listening for the ceremony.

Their dedication and commitment to musical performance is both noteworthy and praiseworthy. As their director, I would like to thank them for volunteering their time and let them all know how very proud of them I am.

Memorial Day no time to celebrate or forget

A SHORT DECADE after an American war ended, we stand on the verge of yet another. We don't know where, for sure, or exactly when. But we know another conflict lurks in the shadows, eager to snatch away another generation of youth.

crackerbarrel debate Steve Barnaby

Perhaps the stench of a future war lingers so heavily on this Memorial Day because so many forget so easily. While wars rage around the globe, Americans once again have withdrawn into their shell of denial and isolationism.

Increasingly, we hear the naive refrains of the Neville Chamberlains and Charles Lindberghs. Yet, today, many who mouth those words know Lindbergh only as the man who flew the Atlantic, and they have never heard of the consequences of their fatal political legacies of isolationism and appeasement have been all but forgotten.

OF COURSE, triumph is illusory when it comes to those who actually fight the wars. No one really gains anything in war, even the notorious monied interests who so often are cited.

But America forgets these lessons. In previous decades, many would lament the patriotic celebration surrounding the Memorial Day. They would recoil at the glorification of tanks and artillery paraded down our streets. And they were right. There really is nothing to celebrate.

But today we choose to forget, altogether. Memorial Day is just another day away from work — one of those many three-day weekends to which we have grown accustomed and have come to cherish.

We picnic, play softball, go to the cottage, watch the Indianapolis 500, wax the car, plant the garden, and lie in the sun. We do all the things we would do on any other day when we didn't have to go to work. For many Americans, Memorial Day is the kickoff to summer — although it officially begins later in the month.

WHILE WE'VE finally grown away from celebrating war on Memorial Day, it is a mistake to forget. We should remember for the sake of the generations to come.

We should remember the perverse acts of all wars. We should remember the cowardice and bungling of political leaders who lead us to war. We should remember greedy industrialists who thought another war would make them rich. We should remember the fanaticism of the ideologues who were overcome by their own power.

And we should remember the masses of people who let these leaders get away with what they did because they closed their minds' eye in hopes that war would go away.

And, yes, we should remember the soldiers — all the soldiers in every war who left home and were separated from their families for a time or forever.

If you have a tough time remembering, think of the words of World War II cartoonist Bill Mauldin: "Look at the infantryman's eyes, and you can tell how much war he has seen."

Remember the eyes of the infantryman you know or knew. Then maybe for a time we will stop killing our youths — until that next war which lurks in the shadows.

LAST WEEK this state celebrated that unique event called Michigan Week.

Not being a native of Michigan, I have always been intrigued by the idea of having a week dedicated to honor a state and the persons who live in it.

I also have been struck by the different ways it is celebrated in different communities. In some, it is the highlight of the calendar year with parades, banquets and special school activities. In others it hardly gets a mention.

West Bloomfield takes its Michigan Week seriously. On Friday morning, community leaders attended an awards breakfast which lasted almost three hours because so many persons were honored for everything from planting flowers at township hall to fighting pornography.

The breakfast took so long that late in the program one bearded speaker quipped, "It was clean-shaven when we started this morning."

Yet, no one begrudged the time it took to give out the laurels. They realized that those who won the awards deserved them.

THE GUEST speaker, Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, chose not to focus on the past year but to look to the future.

As co-chairperson (along with former Gov. William Milliken) of the new state task force on high technology, she is in a unique position to assess what will happen in the years to come.

"New jobs in high tech will never replace what has been lost through the slump in the auto industry," she said. "The most we can see is 100-200,000 new jobs in the next 10 to 20 years." This compares with the approximately 300,000 persons laid off today in the auto industry.

Recovery will come only with a rebound of the auto industry, she said, citing a recent University of Michigan survey finding that 66 percent of the people believe it's a good time to buy a car. This compares to 33 percent a year earlier.

Instead, her task force will focus on specific means of diversifying the state's economy. Besides the much publicized robotics area, the task force also is looking into clothing, food processing and timber.

CLOTHING, SHE said, is the fifth largest industry in the United States.

"Few persons realize this, but per capita, Michigan produces more clothing designers than any other state," she said. "Our best young designers leave the state and move to New York or Europe. We have to bring them home."

She proposed creating a Michigan School of Design.

Griffiths said that Michigan residents eat more potato chips than any other state; "yet most of them are manufactured out of state."

Food manufacturers could reduce their transpor-

tion costs 6 percent by relocating in Michigan, she said. "Even allowing 4 percent for higher wages in Michigan, the manufacturer will net 2 percent."

Griffiths said the state government owns more timberland than any other state, "but most of this land is unproductive. The state took it over because the owners couldn't pay their taxes."

The task force wants to lease that land to timber companies.

LISTENING TO GRIFFITHS one realizes that she is firmly convinced Michigan will move ahead. At 71, she is not mouthing words to further her political ambitions.

Her plan speaking about the state's future added a dose of reality to the celebration of Michigan Week.

Tim Richard

Graduate students will be hit for 15 percent, up $264 to $1,968 for 24 credits.

Keep in mind that the state income tax increase amounted to a 38 percent hike, but it was the first increase in seven years, while college students have been getting hit with tuition blows like this approximately every other year.

LET'S LOOK again at the tuition increase juniors and seniors will pay — $155 a year.

One would have to have a taxable income of more than $8,800 a year for the Blanchard tax hike to hit you to the tune of $155. (That is, $8,800 of taxable income times 1.75 percent equals $154.)

Ah, but Michigan allows a personal exemption of $1,500. So an unmarried student at Oakland University would have to have earned income of $10,300 before he or she would be nicked as hard by the income tax as by the tuition increase.

I wonder how many OU juniors and seniors have incomes of $10,300 a year. Very few, probably.

Yet the OU board of trustees, of which Richard Head is still a member, is raising tuitions as fast as it can. He is raising tuitions as Gov. James J. Blanchard is raising income taxes on a single person with $10,300 personal income.

And for students with less than $10,300 income, the OU tuition increase is worse than the Blanchard income tax increase.

The people of Michigan are naive if they think they can hold down the cost of government by holding down taxes because there are too many other ways government can increase revenue.

Ask the trustees of Oakland University if that isn't true.

Dutch hex signs protect home, barn

YOU WON'T find it listed on the maps, but if you are driving east when you come to the land between the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers, you are in the Pennsylvania Dutch Country — one of the most colorful regions in the land.

It is there you will be fed scrapple for breakfast and shoo-fly pie for dinner. You will meet the offspring of the people who fled the banks of the Rhine River in Germany generations ago in search of religious freedom.

In the group will be all segments of religion — the Reformers, Lutherans, Mennonites, Amish, Quakers and the like. And many use "hex" signs on their homes and barns.

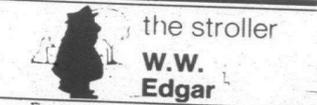

THEY ARE deeply superstitious people and believe that the witches would get them if they didn't watch out. The signs, commonly known as family etchings, were believed to let the witches know they were a religious sect of God-fearing people, and so witches had better beware.

The hex signs you see in many antiques and souvenir shops here in Michigan have their origins among the Pennsylvania Dutch.

Most Pennsylvania hex signs were homemade, and you will find them in various parts of the home and barns. In some cases, they are found at the door. In other cases, especially at barns, they are at all the windows.

The Amish and Mennonites shunned the hex sign, going their own ways. The Amish stuck to a closely-knit family, some leaving the section they settled. Mennonites had their own way of showing their belief in God, but the Pennsylvania Dutch proudly portrayed their hex signs.

The signs, aside from showing they were religious, were set up as signs that friendly people lived inside. A place with no hex sign was a good place to shy away from.

the stroller W.W. Edgar

HEX SIGNS were only part of the beliefs of these folks who sought religious freedom. They were superstitious to the last coruscule of their blood.

It was the Pennsylvania Dutch who put the curse on the 13th day of the month and carried good luck charms with them at all times.

They ignored the 13th of each month, even in business. If they had a "wednesday" write, they would date letters or checks the 12th. And when the 13th fell on a Friday, business places might as well shut down. These Dutch, of whom The Stroller is an offshoot, believed that the witches were out in full force on Fridays, and they never ventured far from home. Hence, there was little business.

There was another side to the hex belief. If people were taken sick, it was believed they were "hexed." Even in cases where the unfortunate were suffering mental ailments, it was the belief that they were "hexed" and the witches had gotten to them.

THE THOUGHT that a hex sign was protective even carried over into sports.

Well the Stroller remembers in his early days of sports writing in the Dutch country when "Punch" Christian, manager of the Macungie team, put up a hex sign at his team's dugout. When he reported the victory to the newspapers, he announced, "We hexed them."

So if you are traveling east, it is a trip worth while to switch off the Pennsylvania turnpike at Harrisburg and take old Route 22 for places like Shartlesville, Allentown, Reading, Bethlehem, Bath and Nazareth. You will not only enjoy the hex signs everywhere, but the speech of the older people will be fascinating, too.

These Pennsylvania Dutch sure can butcher the King's English such as telling a worker to take a curved rod and "bond it straight."

Tuition hike worse than tax increase

THOSE OF us who had hoped the state personal income tax increase would help colleges and at least hold the line on tuitions had our hopes dashed last week.

Oakland University was the first of what will probably be a long line of four-year colleges to announce a major tuition hike. The OU hikes will run in the 10-15 percent range.

For five years now, my editorial board colleagues and I have been arguing that the Headless, the Tisches and now the Recall Blanchard people have been short-sighted in concentrating all their attention on taxes.

There are a zillion kinds of "non-tax" revenues that government is free to jack up even when the lid is supposedly being placed on taxes. Besides college tuitions, these non-tax revenues include building permit fees, inspection fees, admissions to parks and museums, licenses to wed fish and drive, parking fees, swimming pool fees, . . . well, I've left out a few dozen, but you get the picture.

THE IRONY of this picture is that only folks with jobs get hit by the personal income tax increase, but folks without jobs — students, senior citizens, the impoverished — get hit by the fee increases, too.

In this light, let's look a little closer at the Oakland University tuition increase — not with the notion of picking on that fine school, but just because it's convenient and probably typical.

Freshmen and sophomores will take a 10.9 percent increase, up $139.50 to $1,410.50 for a full load of 31 credits.

2nd largest industry

Tourism called state's growth industry

Michigan's travel industry is a "low-technology growth industry" which increased promotion could provide 240,000 new jobs and generate $60 million more state tax dollars, according to Len Barnes, editor of AAA Michigan Living magazine.

Barnes touted the travel industry as the state's and the nation's only current growth industry. "Even in recession, tourism is growing," Barnes said.

"In Michigan, the direct and indirect dollars generated have doubled since 1975, topping $10 billion last year," said Barnes in a speech to the Adercraft Club of Detroit in the Sheraton Southfield.

BARNES GAVE the tourism industry the "low-tech growth" tag because Tourism employs 240,000 people, compared with the 211,000 employed in Michigan by General Motors and Chrysler Corp. combined.

— Len Barnes AAA magazine editor

it offers entry-level jobs to those who have no skills, the unemployed who need no retraining and employees who can learn and become upwardly mobile. Hopes that new, high-technology jobs will cure the nation's economic ills are overly optimistic, he argued.

"Tourism is the state's second-largest industry, a close competitor to the auto business," he said. In direct and indirect jobs, it employs 240,000 people, compared with the 211,000 employed in Michigan by General Motors and Chrysler Corp. combined.

Because the 240,000 travel industry employees "are not concentrated in one place, like an auto assembly line, we do not think of travel as big business," he said.

IN 1982, tourism contributed $451 million to Michigan's tax revenue and the contribution could double, Barnes said. Market research shows the potential for twice as many Michigan vacationers as there are now, he said.

"If only half of those indicating strong interest decided to come to Michigan, the direct and indirect dollar travel brings would be boosted to $20 billion yearly," Barnes said.

"Persons employed in tourism would increase to one-half million and tax dollars contributed to the state treasury would grow to more than $900 million each year."

Michigan's current annual expenditure on travel promotion is $2.9 million, only two-thirds as much as last year, Barnes noted. The Michigan Travel Bureau has proposed that $12 million a year be spent on state tourism promotion for at least five consecutive years.

State auto club predicts more summer travel in Michigan

Memorial Day weekend should help propel Michigan to a $1.5-billion summer tourism season and give the state's economy a 3-percent boost over last summer, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Such tourism barometers as expected increased holiday travel, a bigger demand for AAA routings, greater interest in camping and fishing and stable travel costs indicate we should have a very good summer season," said James Drury, Auto Club's Travel Operations manager.

"Requests from Auto Club members for routings to Michigan destinations and the volume of out-of-state AAA members served at our 56 offices statewide are both up about 9 percent so far this year over 1982," Drury said.

The Michigan Department of Highways estimates motorists on state roads will log 700 million miles, up 3 percent over the 1982 Memorial Day weekend. The 78-hour holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Friday, May 27, and runs through midnight Monday, May 30.

ALL FOUR Michigan regional tourist bureaus report an upsurge in travel inquiries this year. The Upper Peninsula Travel and Recreational Association has received double its usual amount of summer tourism inquiries. Some 400,000 additional pieces of literature, one-third above last year's level, have been distributed by the Southeast Travel and Tourist Association.

A 10-percent rise in summer tourism activity is expected by the West Michigan Tourist Association. The East Michigan Travel Association expects plentiful gamefish in Lake Huron and inland waters to lure increased visitors to northeast Lower Michigan this summer.

The Michigan Travel Bureau received a 20-percent increase in tourism inquiries during the first quarter of this year compared to 1982. Early requests for summer tourism information, which began in April, are equal to last year.

"Requests for AAA's Michigan campground guide are up nearly 20 percent over last year at this time," Drury said. The Department of Natural Resources expects state park campground reservations to rise about 5 percent over last summer.

Private campground reservations for the Memorial Day holiday are at least equal to last year, with southern Lower Michigan areas expected to fill first.

The Auto Club's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Holiday News Service will begin its 19th straight year of reporting on traffic and tourism via a network of 170 Michigan radio stations. It will operate with a 25-member staff 3-11 p.m. Friday, May 27, from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and Monday, and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday.

DIGEST LAUNCHED

A monthly newsletter on computer

security has been launched by Computer Protection Systems, 711 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

The newsletter will feature incidents involving computer-related crimes and security breaches, abstracts of pertinent trade and professional magazine articles on those subjects, and tools, tips and techniques for preventing, auditing and investigating such events, says Jack Bologna, president of Computer Protection Systems.

Called "Computer Security Digest," the publication will be edited by Timothy Schabek, a veteran in the data processing field and author of numerous articles and several books for data center disaster/recovery planning.

The current issue features an article on micro-computer security, a matter of concern among data processing professionals and top managers, says Schabek.

Subscriptions may be ordered by phone (459-8787) or by writing the firm at Suite 4, 711 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth 49170. Subscription price is $75 per year.

DOCTOR HONORED

Dr. Charles J. Westover, M.D., of Plymouth is among 77 Michigan doctors receiving 50-year pins from the Michigan State Medical Society in recognition of a half century of medical service since graduation from medical school.

This year's recipients graduated from medical school in 1933 in the midst of the Great Depression and in an era of limited medical/surgical treatments. Sulfa drugs and a few others were the only medicines available. Pneumonia was a common killer, and smallpox, measles and polio were feared by millions.

Westover and others who entered practice in 1933 have seen medicine evolve into space-age technology with computerized diagnostic tools, countless new antibiotic and antiviral drugs, and new surgical techniques. Smallpox has been eradicated and many of the other common diseases can be prevented through immunizations.

Collectively, the 77 physicians have accumulated 3,850 years of medical experience while serving more than a million Michigan residents.

HILTON CITED

The Plymouth Hilton Inn has been cited by the American Automobile Association for ranking among North America's best accommodations.

In recognition of that citation, Kenneth E. Windsor, Hilton manager, recently was presented with AAA's 1983 four-diamond plaque by John Plants, Automobile Club of Michigan vice president of corporate services.

Eight Detroit-area hotels are among the 25 in Michigan which earned four diamonds for significantly exceeding physical and operational standards. No properties in Michigan earned five diamonds, AAA's highest award.

CHAMBER EXPANDS

The following businesses are new members of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce:

Beverly Hoisington, president, AKVA America, 614 S. Evergreen, Plymouth, automated systems and robots; Mary Jane Dillon, Simply Oxygen, 44567 Pinetree Dr., Plymouth, home oxygen service; Bob Gembariski, Classic Container Corp., 350 S. Mill, Plymouth; David Willit, Community Vision Cable, city of Wayne, cable communications; Mission Hills Golf Club, 14830 Sheldon Road, Plymouth; and Dennis Willey, Lindsay & Pavelich Manufacturing Company, 300 Dunn, Plymouth.

LEARNING CENTER

Utech Computer Learning Center has opened for business in the Joy-Hix Shopping Plaza.

The center offers a variety of short courses and workshops designed to relieve confusion about personal computers. Students of all ages can receive instruction using Commodore computer systems. Jim Selleck is owner of the new shop.

Applications being taken

Asthma camp means fun despite allergy

Applications are being taken from area asthmatic children wanting to attend an unusual YMCA summer camp for youngsters suffering from asthma.

Camp Michi-Mac, sponsored by Detroit YMCA, the Michigan Allergy Society, American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Lung Association allows youth to participate in a full summer camp despite their physical handicap.

Among the physicians who volunteer to work at the camp is Dr. David Seaman, a Canton allergist.

The camp also has been supported in recent years by contributions from the Plymouth Rotary Foundation.

"Asthma is an obstruction of the air passages which causes wheezing and difficulty in breathing," said Dr.

Allan Sosin, medical director of the program.

ASTHMA IS characterized by irritability of the air passage, spasms in muscles around the bronchial tubes, excessive mucous, and swelling of the lining of the bronchial tubes. Sosin said that more than nine million Americans have asthma.

Because most asthma patients develop the disease before age 17, explains Seaman, the Michi-Mac program was developed in 1979 so asthmatic children could enjoy a normal camping environment.

The campers, who range in age from 7 to 14, have the opportunity to participate in swimming, hiking and playing games without fear of consequences because there is professional help available if they run into difficulties.

Supervision is provided for the camp by pediatricians, nurses and pharmacists on a volunteer basis.

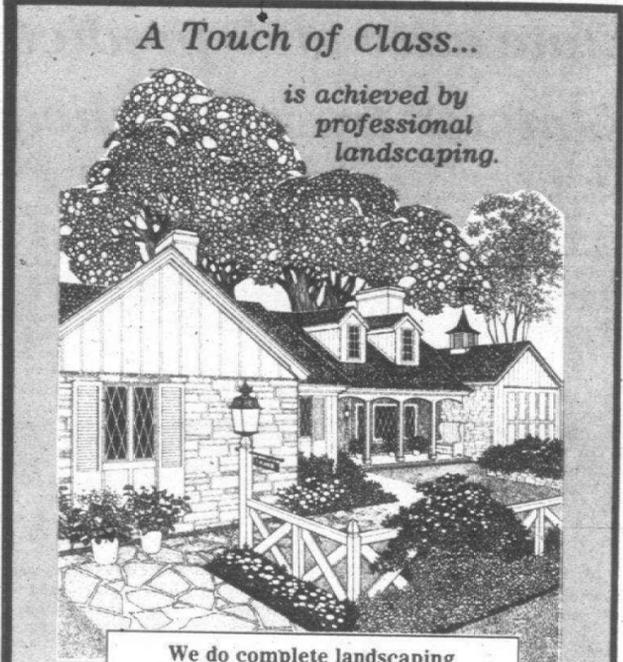

The YMCA camp also has a full complement of personnel who are professionals in running camps.

BESIDES THE usual camp activities, the asthmatic children have educational sessions in which they learn the relationships between the activity, medication and their asthma.

This summer the sponsoring agencies again will be sponsoring Camp Michi-Mac at two locations. From July 31 to Aug. 6, and Aug. 7-13, Camp Ohyesa will be the location. Near Millford, the program is designed for 7-10-year-olds. Oscoda, Mich., will be the site for a 14-day camp for boys and girls ages 10-14.

Anyone interested in obtaining further information about Camp Michi-Mac, can call 962-1590.

A GOOD MANY Canadians from Ontario came to Plymouth for their long Victoria Day weekend. The Mayflower Hotel was filled and many stayed over Monday to shop and explore. The shoppers were taking advantage of the city's no-discount-on-Canadian-currency offer.

The visitors were not tour groups who arrived by bus. They were individual families, traveling by private automobiles, who had heard on radio or television about the equal exchange on Canadian money. The majority of them were from the Windsor and London areas with some from Toronto, Dorchester and St. Mary's.

The merchants with red maple leaf stickers on their shops said the visitors were buying, which is what the parity deal is all about.

THE END OF THE school year brings announcements of teachers who are retiring. Among them is Jim Brown, assistant principal at West Middle School. Jim has been with the school system 28 years.

James Gallimore was president of the school board when he was first hired. His probationary contract carried an unusual clause — if the millage passed, he would receive a $100-a-year raise.

His first teaching job for the Plymouth Schools began in September 1955. He taught English and social studies at the junior high school which was then in the old high school, now Central Middle School. In 1962, he moved to Junior High East, as it was called, and then in 1970 to West Middle School as assistant principal.

Jim was a graduate of the Normal School in Ypsilanti. He earned bachelor and master of arts degrees from Eastern Michigan University and special education from the University of Michigan.

Eleanor Burton, music teacher, is retiring after 20 years in the school system. Louise Kohut, librarian at Allen Elementary is retiring after 18 years in the local schools.

THE FARMERS market opened Saturday in The Gathering, on Penniman Avenue across the street from Kellogg Park. It was Flower Day with flats and flats of bedding plants and colorful hanging baskets. The Gathering accommodates 28 undercover booths. These were occupied with more outside.

There was a dedication ceremony with the West Middle School Band, directed by Mike Chiumento, providing music for the occasion. Dave Sibbold, chairman of the Farmers Market, presented a check to City Manager Hank Draper and Mayor Pro Tem Dave Pugh. The check represented half the net profits of last year's markets (more than $1,000).

Marykay and Marty Puckett are market masters this year. Larienda Fitzgerald is in charge of rounding up animals for the petting corral. Celia Stuart had her goats with their newborn kids in the corral Saturday.

Although the flowers were stars of the opening day, shoppers discovered home grown spinach and radishes, farm fresh eggs, other produce and baked goods. New this year is a family baked goods stall offering all kinds of homebaked breads, cakes and other specialties.

WINNERS OF the Park Players cash drawing were picked at the Farmers Market. Margaret Wilson and Earl Reuter each won $1,000. Vicki Zydeck of the Salt Box won the grand prize of $2,000. Vicki had reinvested her winnings from the drama group's 50-50 draw to buy a $20 ticket.

Earl Reuter lives in Massachusetts. Heidi Wordhouse, a member of the Austria-bound troupe, said he is her Uncle Earl. Her mother had written to him about the high school group's invitation to perform in the international drama festival in Villach, Austria. He sent along his $20 to help the cause. The drama students will be at the Canton Historical Society flower sale and the Canton Rotary Club rummage sale this weekend at the Canton Historical Museum Proctor and Canton Center roads. They'll have their tickets for the lawn swing draw.

Madonna graduates urged to love, care

By Kathy Torick
special writer

BY CARING AND loving and by reconciling old values with new ideas and needs, they'll be able to brighten their corner of the world.

That was the message commencement speaker Dr. Russell G. Mawby gave Madonna College graduates at commencement exercises May 14.

Diplomas were presented to 552 graduates at ceremonies held in St. Genevieve Catholic Church in Livonia.

The graduates are "fortunate to be part of Christian, independent liberal arts institution," said Mawby, chairman of the board of trustees and chief executive officer of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

To a capacity audience, Mawby said, "My entire message can be summarized in two four-letter words — care and love." He stressed that the graduates will be confronted with value-laden problems and tough choices when they move on in the world.

"Today's graduates face a different world . . . but I find the challenge and potential of tomorrow as demanding and exhilarating as they have ever been," he said, "but you must maintain a proper perspective." By caring and loving and by reconciling old values with new ideas and needs, Mawby suggested that everyone can and should brighten the corner where he or she is.

AMONG THE 552 graduates were approximately 90 who graduated with honors.

At age 62, Stella V. Nastas of Livonia was one of the oldest graduates who completed requirements for a bachelor of science degree.

In addition to the students who received degrees, Mawby and Thomas S. Monaghan, founder, president, and chairman of the board of Domino's Pizza, were presented with honorary doctor of humanities degrees for their significant contribution for the betterment of society.

Madonna President Sr. Mary Francilene said, "The board chose to honor Mawby and Monaghan for their commitment to Christian humanitarian principles that have given great impetus and inspiration to the cause of youth, older adults, underprivileged and the needy, and for their benefactions of concern, wisdom and moral influence."

Mawby was noted by Francilene for "sharing his professional expertise to increase the food resources of the world and for his significant personal efforts to develop a partnership in Michigan among colleges, government and business to initiate and apply new technologies for economic rebirth."

MADONNA IS ONE of 16 Michigan colleges affiliated with the Kellogg Foundation, one of the largest philanthropic organizations in the United States, with endowments totaling more than $57 million annually.

Monaghan, founder of the 900-store

Domino's Pizza chain, was recognized by Francilene for his "successful application of human resourcefulness, energetic creativity, and single-minded perseverance in establishing his own business and sharing his success with others."

His faithful interpretation of the "golden rule" learned as a youth from the Felician order of nuns and applied to his personal and professional life, and his encouragement of it in others also were noted.

Several administrators and officers of Madonna also participated in the commencement ceremonies. They included Norene Daly, chairwoman, education/psychology department, who gave the invocation; Andrew Brodhun, chairman of the board of trustees; and Sr. Mary Lauriana, vice president for development, who presented the two candidates for honorary degrees; Sr. Rose Marie, academic dean, who presented the candidates for degrees and honors; and Louis Brohl III, director of admissions, who presided over the ceremonies.

10th birthday

Time for a celebration

The merchants in Forest Place Mall are planning a 10th anniversary celebration, and the grocery store turned mini-mall already sports a festive atmosphere. The main hallway is festooned with balloons, streamers and colorful parasols.

The two-day party will be Friday and Saturday, June 3 and 4. Bargain items will be featured in the retail shops; prizes will be given; and there will be free entertainment. Plymouth Book World will have story hours for the small fry. There will be music and magic acts. The parking lot north of the building will be closed and a stage erected with activities throughout the day.

Jim Jabara, John Thomas and Tex Thoman created the mall. More than 10 years ago, they bought the grocery store, Stop and Shop, from the Rucker brothers. Jabara and Thomas later became sole owners of the mall by trading a building they owned on Penniman Avenue to Thoman in exchange for his interest in the mall.

FIVE OF THE original 12 tenants still are in the mall. They are the Mayflower Beauty Salon, Nawrot Pendleton Shop, Plymouth Book World, Christian Science Reading Room and the Westfield Co. Baskets and Bows and Bed n' Stead were among the originals but now have new owners.

The Silent Man, Little Angels Shoppe, Muriel's Doll House, The Panhandler, and the Green Thumb were there in the spring of 1973. Little Angels, the Doll House and Green Thumb moved to larger quarters as did Frame Works, a later tenant of the mall. The Collectors Shop, Enchante and the Put Upon Shop complete the present roster of tenants.

Plans for the 10th anniversary party bring back memories of another party more than 35 years ago to Earl West. The West Brothers built the first business on the west side of Forest Avenue.

"WE STARTED construction right after World War II. Materials were scarce, and we couldn't get steel or cement," West recalls.

He and his brothers started building their International Harvester agency in 1946. It was to be one of four implement dealerships in town.

"John Deere was out on Ann Arbor Road, where the Honda dealership is now; Allis Chalmers was where Midas Muffler is now; and there was another small one on Harvey Street," West said.

Forest Avenue was a dirt street. "The only other business was Herm Bakhaus' Cloverdale across the street. He used to sell ice cream cones, five dips for a nickel, it was called the rainbow special."

When their building was complete and ready for business, the West Brothers had a three-day grand opening. "Jack Taylor, the mayor was there, and we had a dance and a show."

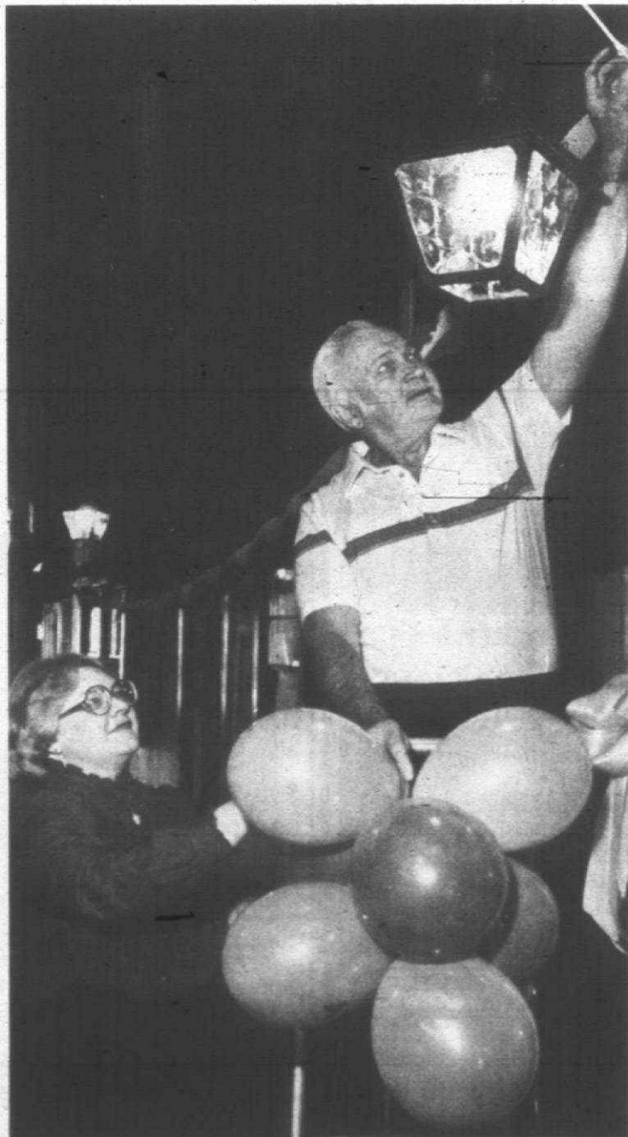

WEST SAID Forest Place Mall originally was Kimborough Appliance. "It was built later as were Beyer's Drug Store, the hardware store, Margaret Dunning's and the other stores."

Over the years, the street was paved, the West Brothers building was converted and extended to become Westchester Mall, and most recently, Forest became a one-way street. Jabara and Thomas added to the mall complex with new shops extending to Ann Arbor Trail.

The Forest Place Shops are marking another milestone with their birthday celebration.

Karen Olson of Bed n' Stead spoke for all the merchants in the original mall when she issued an invitation to the community to "come to our party." They promise prizes and surprises, free refreshments and free entertainment.

Sweet Adelines entertain

The We-Way-Co chapter of Sweet Adelines recently entertained the residents of the Hendry Convalescent Center in Plymouth Township. The group of 25 singers harmonized barbershop-style on old favorites like "The Start of Something Big," "Welcome in Dixieland," "Lost in My Own Hometown," and "Sentimental Journey."

Is your pet distinguished?

If you have a pet that looks well in a top hat and white tie, dress him up, take his picture and send it to the Livonia Jaycees' pet contest. Or maybe the resident beast or bird is cute as a button or as unusual as an aardvark. Snap his picture too. The Jaycees will give first-, second- and third-place prizes to the cutest, most unusual and most distinguished pets in the area.

With each pet send a $2 entry fee. The Jaycees are aiming to raise $2,000 to help area retarded persons attend International Olympics in Louisiana July 11-18.

The job of a loyal pet owner will by no means be over when he dispatches in the mail the picture of the pet of his choice. The pictures of all pets entered in the contest will be displayed June 11 and 12 in the Livonia Mall. Beneath each photograph will be a jar. A penny dropped in the jar means a vote for that pet. Stock up on pennies early. The one with the most pennies will win.

A pet can be entered in more than one contest. But send a picture for each entry and an extra $2. With the entry include the name, address and phone number of the pet owner. Include also the category in which your pet is entered.

Entries must be in by Wednesday, June 8. Send them to Dawn Groeck, 4435 Westminister, Canton 48187.

Burnside honored for TAG programs

Robert Burnside of Schoolcraft College received the first award presented by the Plymouth-Canton Association for the Academically Talented. The award was in recognition of Burnside's outstanding support for education of the talented and gifted (TAG).

He established, maintained and expanded class offerings for TAG students at Schoolcraft College. He has supported a broad range of enrichment activities to fulfill the special needs of the TAG students.

"Through careful planning and staffing, Schoolcraft's TAG program has grown from four classes in 1979 to its present schedule of 18 classes. These classes provide enrichment for the gifted child who is 7 through 14 years of age, with two classes geared for the gifted preschool child," Burnside said.

"ALL STUDENTS should be provided with learning experiences that challenge them, make them more aware and concerned about the world around them. Most elementary school programs have identified and concerned themselves with the learning disabled child, but not so much with the gifted and talented child."

"Consequently, the TAG program offers gifted children the additional eduational, experiences so necessary to their development."

Burnside received his bachelor of science degree in education from Eastern Michigan University and his master of arts degree in guidance and counseling from Colorado State University.

He taught for 21 years and has been at Schoolcraft College since 1967. Before joining the Schoolcraft faculty, he taught in Colorado, Flint, and at Groves High School in Birmingham.

Surprise!

The fifth and sixth graders at Bird Elementary School can keep a secret. During the hours of rehearsal for their performance of "P.T. Barnum," they did not let on to their music teacher, Eleanor Burton (above), that they had a surprise in store for her. After the Monday night show at the school, the students and the staff presented her with flowers. The Bird PTO gave her a music box in the form of a piano. It was their way of saying thank you. Burton is retiring in June after teaching music in the Plymouth-Canton schools for 20 years. John Chapman (right) was P.T. Barnum in the musical.

Fiegel students present 'Peter Pan'

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Peter Pan describes Never Neverland to Wendy. Peter is played by Tara Griffith, Wendy by Terese Rosinski.

Some 30 pupils of Fiegel Elementary School performed in the cast and more than 150 in the chorus this week as they presented the musical "Peter Pan" to other students and parents.

The play was performed during the day Tuesday for the students and Tuesday night for parents.

Peter Pan was played by Tara Griffith who pranced and danced upon the stage teaching the Darling children how to fly. The Darling children were played by Terese Rosinski as Wendy, John McDougal as John, and Sean Hunt as Michael.

When the children reached Never Neverland, they were greeted by the lost boys and Indians. The Indian princess, Tiger Lily, was played by Shelly Murray who led the Indians in a dance.

Suddenly the swiniest, swine in the world (Captain Hook played by Dennis McGill) and his band of outlaw pirates appeared on stage.

The pirates captured Tiger Lily and almost succeeded in killing Peter Pan. But Peter Pan rescues Tiger Lily, aided by the Lost Boys and a 'ticking crocodile, played by Danny Martin.

Verdict is still out on USFL spring football

It started at the Northfield Hilton in Troy way back in November.

While the Detroit Lions and their National Football League cohorts were negotiating to end a mid-season strike, the Michigan Panthers of the maverick United States Football League conducted their first press conference.

The Panthers announced themselves as the "new cat in town." It was decided they'd play at the Silverdome and be fashioned in Champagne Silver and Royal Plum. And, in renegade style, club officials intoned they'd conquer all of America by playing football during the spring.

"We're not competing with the NFL," said one team spokesman. "Our season will run from March to July because fans would like to continue watching football during the spring."

Nonsense, I thought. This will never work. Spring is for planting flowers and sprucing up the house. It's time to bring out the softball gear and rearrange the work schedule to attend the annual opening-day baseball game at Tiger Stadium.

SPRING MAY be "Miller Time," but it's not football time.

Now, two-thirds through the USFL's inaugural season, I still believe it will take more than the lure of spring for the league to establish itself successfully in America's free-market enterprise system.

You see, the Panthers are an attractive curiosity now — just like the Hope Diamond, the Budweiser Clydesdales and moon rocks from the lunar-landing missions.

The Panthers' loyalists are the football fanatics. Those purists can tolerate pigskins and post patterns whether they live in Alaska or Puerto Rico.

Panther officials and the USFL's 11 other franchise heads aren't after the loyalists. They want the normal fan — the guys and gals who enjoy sports and the winning atmosphere it conveys.

I'm not so sure it will work. Statistics clearly demonstrate that attendance and television ratings — which the league sorely needs — are down from the season's first games in early March. (I still can't believe some of the Panthers' home games are televised locally.)

Take the Panthers' last two home games, for instance.

EXACTLY 32,682 fans watched the Panthers defeat New Jersey and the league's flagship general — Herschel Walker — two weeks ago in an exciting game. It was the Panthers' sixth straight victory.

So, what happened Monday at the Silverdome in Michigan's overtime loss to the Birmingham Stallions? Only 20,042 fans showed up despite a formidable winning streak and the fact Michigan is fighting for a playoff berth in possibly the league's best division.

That couldn't have been a pleasant sight for Panther investors A. Alfred Taubman, Max M. Fisher and Peter B. Spivak.

But, forget about my humble opinion that football and spring are worse mates than bears during hibernation. Let's hear what some of those fans in attendance at Monday's nationally televised game (ESPN cable) at the Silverdome had to say.

I asked three basic questions: What brought you out to watch the Panthers? Will you continue to support the team in the spring? and, Do you believe the USFL has a legitimate shot of making it in the American market?

Here are some responses:

• JOEL SHANE (Lathrup Village): "I think football is here to stay during the spring. Football is replacing baseball as America's game and I think (the USFL) has a good chance to survive. The quality is better than I expected and I think people can't get enough of it."

• DARYL WARD (Livonia): "Spring football is a bit of a shock, but I'm getting used to it. I think the quality is almost as good as the NFL. I'd say give (the USFL) three years and it will be as good as the NFL. (The USFL) is playing with mostly rookies and has-beens now. I'm a big football fan and I think spring football will give more fans a chance to see the game."

• FRANK COLEMAN (Troy): "I'm just here out of curiosity. I wouldn't continue to support it if it's just not exciting enough right now. You have to have some names and they don't have them right now. But, I think the league can stay alive because of all the TV rights it has."

• JAY DOYLE (Livonia): "I'm here because of the cheap prices — we (his friend William Sullivan) had a coupon for $10 off. I came just out of curiosity, plus they're on a winning streak. I'd like to come back because I like the game. I think the league can survive because it has a lot of money and it looks pretty solid."

• JOE ACTON (Massena, N.Y.): "I'm here because a couple friends and myself were on our way to the airport from Flint and we decided to stop in. This league has a long way to go before it reaches the NFL. I think there's too much football. Once the baseball season starts, I'm a baseball fan. If the Tigers were in town I'd be watching them tonight."

Antoine Joubert can't find a shot over the Soviets' leaping Aleksandr Volkov during Sunday's cage confrontation.

Russian power stops All-Stars

By Ed Peper, Jr.
special writer

A packed house at Schoolcraft College waited for the "The Judge" to render a favorable verdict, but in the end, the Soviets ruled the court.

Antoine "The Judge" Joubert, a 6-foot-5 high school All-American from Detroit Southwestern, scored 30 points but it was not enough as the Russian Junior National team triumphed 91-84 over the Michigan AAU squad in the sixth International Basketball Classic. The game marked the first time the Russian and Michigan teams have played since 1980.

"I feel bad," said Joubert. "We played hard but they were just too big and physical. Our team was hurt because we had to play people who will be guards in college at the forward and center slots."

Taking advantage of the international rule which allows a team to throw the ball into play immediately after a violation (the referee does not have to touch the ball), the Soviets pulled away from a two-point halftime lead by reeling off eight straight points at the outset of the second half.

The Soviets increased their lead to 58-46, before Joubert and future U-M teammate Quincy Turner brought the Michigan team back.

MICHIGAN closed within three, 83-80, on a twisting jumper by Joubert with 2:40 to go, but couldn't score the equalizer. Two rebound baskets by Michigan's Steve Beck finished the scoring for Michigan team, which was forced to intentionally foul in the waning moments.

Michigan coach Quinton "Rocky" Watkins cited two reasons for his club's failure to win.

"We shot extremely poor from the field (37 of 100) and we had no other rebounding from anyone other than Beck," he said.

Beck, a muscular 6-3 forward from Detroit Southeastern who is headed for Arizona State, grabbed Michigan team MVP honors with 16 points and 15 rebounds. Joubert's 30 points came on 14 of 34 shooting from the floor. Flint Central's Darryl Johnson added 15 points.

Valery Tikhonenko, a 6-9 power forward, gained MVP honors for the Soviets with 24 points. Victor Zharkov added 20.

Through an interpreter, Soviet coach Vladimir Obukhov explained why his team got off to such a slow start.

"This is not the first time we've toured here," he said. "We spend our holidays resting in planes. The team is tired, but they want to show excellent basketball. We simply began to play our game in the second half."

"YOU HAVE to take into account that they are supported by their spectators and it's difficult to play against them. There is no place like home."

The Russians are 6-3 on their U.S. tour with two games remaining.

Meanwhile, Watkins' game plan was to fast-break the Soviets to compensate for their tremendous size advantage.

"You have to defensive rebound to do that, and that was something we just weren't able to do," Watkins said. "They've been competitive at every stop on their American tour, and are very sound fundamentally."

Their fast-break only hurt us when we gambled."

Watkins also felt the absence of Redford Catholic Central's 6-7 Mike Maleske, who missed the game because of commencement exercises.

"Maleske would have really helped us on the boards because he is our only legitimate post-up player," said the Michigan and Schoolcraft College coach.

MICHIGAN CONTROLLED the early stages of the game, jumping out to a 17-10 lead behind the hustling play of Beck, point-guard Garde Thompson and 6-8 Mark German of Bronson.

But on several occasions, Michigan players attempted a series of spectacu-

Salem clinches tie for softball crown

Plymouth Salem clinched at least a share of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) softball title with a 15-run fourth inning that ignited a 20-2 pasting of Walled Lake Central Monday at Central.

The victory gave Salem an 11-2 WLAA record and an 18-3 mark overall. The Rocks gained at least a share of the WLAA title, depending on how Plymouth Canton fared with Central yesterday. A Canton victory would mean the two schools would share the league championship.

Eight of nine Salem starters finished Monday's game with at least one run batted in.

"I'M GLAD WE scored some runs," Rock coach Rob Willette said. "I was afraid we'd go over there too cocky."

Instead, the Salem bats did all the bragging. Pam McBride and Leslie Culver each had two hits and three RBI in the contest, which was stopped by the mercy rule after five innings. Terri Lesniak contributed two hits and drove in one run.

Diane Murphy earned the victory with what Willette termed "her best pitching performance since coming back" from a mid-season injury to her pitching hand. The senior hurler surrendered just three hits, striking out seven and walking one in her five-inning stint.

Johnson tops Rock regional showing

By C.J. Risak

Fred Thomann knew the competition would be formidable at Saturday's Class A girls' track regional at Brighton.

It did, indeed, live up to his expectations. Thomann's Plymouth Salem team got a great performance from Dawn Johnson and a bunch of personal bests, but the Rocks could manage no better than a sixth in the team standings.

Ypsilanti was first in the fierce competition with 65 points. Ann Arbor Pioneer was a single point behind with 64, followed by Ann Arbor Huron (58), Brighton (47), Schwartz Creek (44½) and Salem (35). Plymouth Canton failed to score in the 18-team meet.

Team finishes at regionals do not matter at the state meet. The top three placers in each event qualify for the state finals Saturday, June 4, at Jackson.

"IT WAS TOUGH," Thomann said. "I was looking at some of the times here and we just weren't capable of beating those."

"I knew Brighton, Huron, Pioneer and Ypsilanti were very good. I didn't know how good Schwartz Creek was, and they sneaked in there for fifth."

"But we PBed (personal bests) in a lot of different places on the track. It was a good meet for us."

Johnson, a junior, highlighted the meet for the Rocks. As a sophomore, Johnson won the regional title in the 220-yard dash and just missed qualifying for state in the long jump by placing fourth.

girls track

This time Johnson qualified for state in both. She couldn't defend her 220 title, placing second in 26.3 (she went 25.9 in the regionals last year). But Johnson won the long jump with a leap of 17-4½, a personal best.

"Those are her events, and she had a great day," Thomann said.

ALSO QUALIFYING for state were Cheri Muneio, who placed third in the discus with a toss of 108-0, and Cindy McSurely, who tied for third in the high jump at 5-1. McSurely also took fifth in the 110 hurdles (15.6).

Scoring Salem's remaining points was Kelly Bemiss in the long jump, who placed fourth with a 16-6½ effort, just off the third-place jump of 16-7.

Among Salem's other personal bests were Shelly Simons in the 880 (2:21.3), Erica Bashor in the mile (5:35.1), Carol Lindsay in the 330 hurdles (48.3) and Janine Gray in the high jump (4-10).

CANTON'S GIRLS shattered three school records and had eight other personal bests at the Brighton regionals, but none showed in the scoring column. Carolyn Nagy busted Ruthann Trout's 440 mark, set last year, with a clocking of 1:02.0.

Michele Adams again lowered her own record in the 330 hurdles, dropping it to 52.1. Adams has reset the record five times this season.

Canton, Salem get best outings at regional

The term is nearing completion, with grades from one of the major tests already issued.

For Plymouth Canton's and Plymouth Salem's boys' track teams, the results from that important exam — Saturday's Class A state regional meet at Brighton — are a mixture of good and bad.

The Rocks did better on the track than they might have anticipated. The hurdle events, a team strength on all season, again provided Salem with some solid scoring.

And both Salem and Canton got a handful of personal best performances during the competition.

That's the good news. The bad news for Salem was a worse than expected showing in the field events that cost the boys track

state finals. Ling's leap of 21.1 earned him a second in the long jump, and he cleared 13-3 in the pole vault to place third.

Salem earned spots at state in two other events. Glenn Medaller's 15:06 clocking in the 120-yard high hurdles was good for third. And the 440 relay team of Ling, Marc Tindall, Jeff Arnold and Medaller sprinted to a 4:43 and a third-place finish.

The Rocks' Dan Ling will compete in two individual events and a relay at Tindall's 10.5 in the 100 was his best this season for Salem. Skip Whitaker finished the mile in 4:43.0, Frank Brosnan had a 9:59.0 and John Keros had a 10:18.0 in the two mile, and Mike White and Erich Hartnett both cleared 6-0 in the high jump.

Erhard rolls to 2 wins

Erhard Motors won its third game in the Garden City Invitational Baseball League with a 6-5 triumph over the Gangsters. The game was played Monday at Garden City Junior High School.

John Eller's two run-single in the top of the seventh inning won it for Erhard, now 3-1 in league play. He finished with two hits and three RBI on the day.

Scott Taylor added a two-run single and Todd Curvin also had two hits in the winners.

Steve Matthews drove in two runs for the Gangsters with a single in the fourth inning.

Rob Bennett was the winning pitcher in relief. He held the Gangsters scoreless over the final 1 1/2 innings.

Rick Schmidt, who went all the way for the Gangsters, took the loss.

On Friday at Garden City Park, Erhard edged the Runners, 5-4, as Bennett drove in the tying and game-winning runs with a single in the fifth inning.

Pat Golich and Mark Stonier combined for four of Erhard's eight hits.

Gary Baumgardner led the Runners with two hits.

Todd Faulkner, who pitched five scoreless innings, was the winning pitcher. Taylor earned a save.

Joe Connolly of Dearborn fired a one-under par 35 on the front nine and held off all challengers the rest of the way to successfully defend the title he captured a year ago at Saturday's Thank Goodness It's Spring Golf Tournament at Canton's Fellows Creek Golf Course.

Connolly finished with a four-over par 76 and a three-shot victory over Paul Deedler of Canton. Ron Stamifer of Belleville was third with an 80, while Butch Recto of Plymouth captured low net honors with a 70.

Fifty golfers competed in the second annual event, battling rain and wind during much of the day. Recto also won the long drive contest on the sixth hole.

Stevenson sews up titles; Canton's Minton triumphs

Redford Catholic Central and Livonia Stevenson will be making a trip to the Class A boys' tennis tournament June 3-4 in Midland after a one-two finish in last weekend's regional at Schoolcraft College.

CC, which scored 24 points, is making its sixth straight appearance in the state meet. CC has won four regional titles since Frank Garlicki began coaching in 1970. Stevenson and Southfield-Lathrup, meanwhile, tied for second place with 17 points, earning a berth in the coveted event.

"I believe this was the second toughest regional in the state — Class A," Garlicki said. "We won five of seven positions and went beyond my expectations. I thought we'd win three, but we played extremely well."

CC's Tom Spade avenged an earlier loss to beat Stevenson's Scott Burrell for the No. 2 singles title, 7-5, 6-2. CC also won at No. 3 singles (Mark Egnation), No. 4 singles (Bob Heimbuch), No. 1 doubles (Jeff Nelson-Bob Martin) and No. 2 doubles (Frank Firek-Tom O'Connor).

Stevenson captured all three doubles flights and No. 2 singles.

Universal life: good tax shelter

If lately you have been shopping around for life insurance, you already have heard of Universal Life (UL). UL combines term insurance with a tax-deferred savings account that earns interest at bond-market rates, lately as high as 12 percent.

UL is one of the best tax shelters available today. If you need a lot of life insurance but also wish to set aside money for children's education, a business venture, or a trip around the world, the UL might be for you. But caveat emptor or let the buyer beware applies here. Many UL policies are loaded with fees and hidden costs.

Here is an approximate comparison of a UL policy with a term plus annuity policy and a whole life policy. This illustration makes the following assumptions: Age 35, Sex, male, Term, 20 years, Face value, $100,000, Annual outlay, $1,100. It also makes certain other assumptions regarding the growth of funds left with insurance companies.

	univ. term + annuity	whole life
after-tax cash value	$38,000	$38,000
total cash value	$55,000	$60,000
after-tax death benefit	$155,000	$138,000

finances and you

Sid Mittra

Clearly, in this illustration the UL policy is superior to both term plus annuity and whole life. However, two observations are apropos here.

First, the outcomes may be different if different assumptions were made. For example, a person buying term and successfully investing the difference could come out ahead of the UL policy.

Second, many UL policies are loaded with fees and hidden costs. You should therefore consult your financial planner or insurance adviser before buying a UL policy.

SOME PEOPLE RETIRE WITH MORE THAN JUST A GOLD WATCH.

You work hard all your life and what do you get? Well, depending on where you work, you could get cancer. Asbestos has been proven to cause cancer. Certain toxic chemicals like formaldehyde and freon are being investigated. If you've worked with radioactive particles or even worked near them, your risk is greater. And even if you've worked nowhere hazardous, it wouldn't hurt to get a checkup. Because the incidence of cancer after the age of 45 to 50 increases rapidly. Over the next several years the American Cancer Society will be conducting more research into certain lifestyles and exposures which could increase cancer mortality. So know the risks. Don't smoke. Watch what you eat and drink. Look for the warning signs of cancer. And retire not only with a gold ticker. But a healthy one, also.

Pianist Votapek plays vibrantly

By Mary Jane Doerr special writer

The rhythmic and overwhelmingly energetic Second Piano Concerto of Prokofiev was given a vibrant interpretation Sunday afternoon at Orchestra Hall by Ralph Votapek...

The occasion marked the close of the 1983 season of the Oakway Symphony under the baton of Francesco Di Biasi. Prokofiev himself was a pianist of tremendous power and versatility...

Votapek is a pianist of great speed, coupled with an amazing accuracy, without which it would be impossible to perform such a concerto...

The rivalry between Mozart and Salieri is now two centuries old. Much has been said about it...

his being a prime, post-mortem suspect in Mozart's murder, a more plausible explanation is that he was a mediocre composer.

There are, of course, some lesser composers who are being played, but then, there are some better ones who aren't either...

In the current "duel," few had any doubt about the outcome. The only question was by how much Mozart would end up ahead...

review

tapping rhythm that gave impressions of a jazz concert than a classical musical concert.

VOTAPEK'S CLEAN, precise style opened the first movement, andantino, with a grace that was shaded into a build-up of intensity through his long solo until the orchestra joined him with an excitement that melted into silence.

Votapek's second movement challenged the style of his first movement with its abrupt swiftness. The hand crossing of the third movement, allegro moderato, was another example of Votapek's adeptness in dealing with the technical ostinato musical passage.

The climax was reached in the fourth movement, allegro tempestoso, with another solo and a stunning ending, which brought a surprisingly small audience to its feet.

THE ORCHESTRA Hall program opened with Mozart's serenade "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

But Salieri's two works, a contradance and Concertino da Camera for Oboe and Strings, didn't even come close.

The contradance has a very pompous ending, almost like Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, but with little content to show for it.

Consequently, he had to borrow one from John Snow, who in turn had to borrow yet another instrument. All this, however, didn't put a dent in his skill, except for a brief stumbling on one occasion in the third movement of Mozart's concerto.

with many capacity crowds.) Though the crowd was small and not typical of the Oakway Symphony...

THE ROMANTIC work was followed by a pleasing rendition of Mozart's Symphony No. 38 (Prague). Di Biasi conducted both of these two numbers without music, a custom which always makes a performance more interesting.

It is the year of Brahms' 150th anniversary, and it may as well be Wagner's. The third selection of the first half was his "Elsa's Procession from Lohengrin," with Ernest Jones conducting.

As is Di Biasi's custom, to bring new works to the audience at each concert, the Oakway conductor draws on his experience and musical acquaintances to find such pieces.

"It's a Wonderful Life" (1947), 7:15 and 9:30 p.m. Thriller at the Punch & Judy, 21 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, phone 882-7363, free. Running time 129 minutes.

Frank Capra films are easy to place. The screwball comedies "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "You Can't Take it with You" — are byproducts of the melancholy mid-'30s, the bittersweet "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "Meet John Doe" mirror the pessimistic mood of the prewar years, the documentaries "Prelude to War" and "Know Your Enemy: Japan" belong to the war years, and "It's a Wonderful Life" and "State of the Union" reflect growing pains brought on by the war but ultimately express a postwar optimism.

Capra was a master of capturing the spirit of the nation and of giving flung audiences exactly what they wanted — whether the audiences knew it or not. "It's a Wonderful Life" celebrates the simple joys of life. James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Thomas "A Man for All Seasons" (1966), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 120 minutes.

Straight and to the point: "A Man for All Seasons" is one of the best films ever made. Fred Zinnemann ("From Here to Eternity," "Julia") directs, screenplay by Robert Bolt ("Lawrence of Arabia," "Dr. Zhivago"), starring Paul Scofield, Robert Shaw, Orson Welles; Susannah York, Vanessa Redgrave and Wendy Hiller. Oscars for Zinnemann, Scofield and the film.

Bolt's script magnificently brings to life the debate that surrounded the formation of the Church of England by Henry VIII and stimulates lively thought in the process. It galvanizes one with its vivid recreations of 16th century life and speech, and provides all the aspects of a good thriller — danger, tension, intrigue and surprise. Rating: B+.

Oratorio portrays human drama

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Some say that the best things in life are free.

That might be an oversimplification, but sometimes some good rewards are available that are free, at least to the public.

One such event was the recent performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" at Temple Beth El. The impressive structure, located at 14 Mile and Telegraph in Bloomfield Township was indeed a suitable choice.

Designed by architect Minoru Yamasaki in the shape of an elongated pyramid, it has some interesting acoustical features, as well as enough room to accommodate a sizeable congregation.

The large seating capacity, as well as the ample parking space, however, didn't turn out to be sufficient for the occasion. Even with double-parking, a lot of visitors were hard pressed and had to look for parking elsewhere and

review

seating overflowed into the outside corridor.

While the Detroit Symphony Orchestra (DSO) season ended a few weeks ago, the orchestra members aren't about to call it quits and take it easy. This was one of several events enhanced by the outstanding talents of members of the DSO.

IN ADDITION, there were the Kenneth Jewell Chorale and the Chancel Choir of the Bushnell Congregational Church.

The role of Elijah was sung by bass-baritone William Warfield. Other solo singers included soprano, Faye Washington, mezzo soprano, Rosemarie Murch, and tenor, Christopher Broderston. The conductor was Ray Ferguson.

This event, a joint venture of Temple Beth El and Bushnell Congregational Church, was an impressive example of interdenominational cooperation. It would be tempting to say that the character of Elijah could serve as a symbol of such cooperation and tolerance, except that it could be argued that Elijah himself had his own share of intolerance when he ordered the prophets of Baal to be destroyed.

But nobody can deny the profound nature of Mendelssohn's oratorio. While being bound by the biblical text, it does magnificently portray an intense human drama. The emotions were very aptly presented in this performance.

There were some drawbacks in the voice of William Warfield (Elijah), which was occasionally wobbly and had too much vibrato which tended to obscure the melody. But it was beaming with strength on other occasions.

THE CHORUSES were impressive with their unified impact and the other solo singers were also equal to the task. Due to the length of the composition, some cuts were inevitable. But most regrettable was the omission of the ascent of Elijah in the fiery chariot, which contains one of the most powerful musical descriptions of such an outlandish event.

It is remarkable how a musical setting can transform and transcend the meaning and significance of a biblical story. One might doubt whether the events, as depicted, are historically accurate.

But in the musical context this is irrelevant. Mendelssohn's oratorio is real. Through it, the character of Elijah becomes as real as any current event that affects our lives. Perhaps even more so.

Hopefully, the Bushnell Performing Arts Series will provide us with many more rewarding events for years to come.

Talent appears at 'Night of Stars'

"A Night of Stars," showcasing new Detroit talent, will be presented in two shows, at 9 p.m. and midnight, Saturday in the Promenade Room of the Fill Building, 2310 Cass, one block south of the Fisher Freeway in Detroit.

Headlining the entertainment will be W.T. Williams, drummer, producer and writer. He has played with such performers as TFO, Detroit Emeralds, Sea Wind, Ray Pocket Jr., the Dynamic Superiors and Carolyn Franklin. His style is a collage of contemporary funk, jazz, fusion, gospel and blues. Williams has a new release on the Queen label titled "How You Going to Play Me."

Also featured will be Jasmin, a contemporary rock group, which has a soon-to-be-released single on the Queen label, "Do You Love Me" and "Could It Be Love."

Rounding out the list of new talent are LDOE (Last Days on Earth), a Top 40s rhythm and blues group; Jodi McFarland, a pop and jazz vocalist, and Roy Lee, vocalist and master of ceremonies.

FREE, LIGHTED parking is provided. There will be a cash bar. Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door.

For more information, call James Brown at 962-3400. The event is presented by Thrust Production Company Inc.

Musical presented at Detroit Youtheatre

The U Players Theatre '83 kicks off its campaign by announcing three shows at the Power Center for the Performing Arts at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Donna and Tom Elwart show how it's done. First they deal with live honeybees, then they display some of their few jars of honey remaining from last season. The Westland couple makes and sells one ton of honey a year.

Couple thinks bees make a honey of a sound

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

TO MOST PEOPLE, the sight of a swarm of buzzing bees is one that inspires a shudder and a fast scamper away from the trouble spot.

But Tom and Donna Elwart of Westland like nothing better than a few thousand bees nearby and, in fact, welcome all the honeybees that they can to their home.

The Elwarts are beekeepers in Elwart's Apiary, a bee removal and honey-making business at their home on John Hix Road, south of Palmer Road.

"It's interesting," said Tom Elwart, of his pleasant and profitable sideline. Elwart, who is employed by the Ford Motor Co., said, "There's something different all the time. I always liked bees. My dad had bees when I was young."

Elwart got started in the beekeeping business "by accident" seven years ago, when a swarm, or cluster of bees was drawn to the house by his sons playing loud music on the radio.

THE BEES were attracted, Elwart said, because loud noise interferes with the insects' "radar" and causes them to follow that sound. Those bees were deposited in one hive.

There are now 33 hives in the Elwart apiary, which produces one ton of honey a year. The honey is sold at prices ranging from $1.25 for a 12-ounce jar, to $5.50 for a five-pound jar, to $40 for a 60-pound can.

Police departments have contacted the Elwarts to remove bee swarms in Westland, Canton Township and Wayne. The couple dresses in coveralls and veils for the bee removing procedure, which they estimate to take an average of 30 minutes.

Swarming is the honeybee's natural method of reproducing the colony, or bee family in a hive. When bees swarm, the bee colony splits into two parts, one of which leaves the hive and establishes a new colony elsewhere.

If the swarm is located in a tree, the limb on which the bees are swarming is cut and carried over to a hive. The swarm resembles a teeming bunch of grapes. The limb is shaken over the hive, causing the bees to enter it.

HANDLING THE bees can be a sticky business, since there can be from 6,000 to 10,000 bees in a swarm, according to Tom.

"I get stung between 60 and 70 times a year," he said. "You're not a good beekeeper if you're not stung."

Bees may not be welcome in many yards, but they play an important part in the production of food, the Elwarts said. Some 90 commercial crops are pollinated by bees in the United States, including fruit trees, strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, cucumbers, muskmelon, clovers and other Michigan crops.

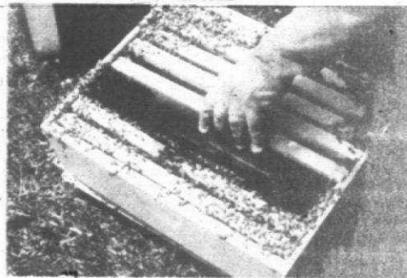

And bee stings are thought to be an aid or cure for arthritis in Europe.

"Honeybees are essential to mankind, to pollinate flowers and fruit," Donna Elwart said. "If there are bees on the property, the yield will be a lot better."

THE BEE HIVES used by the Elwarts consist of several parts, including an upper chamber called a "super." The super contains frames, supports for honeycombs that are arranged side by side.

Honey is made by the bees on the honeycombs on the frames. To remove the honey, the Elwarts put the frames in an extractor, a large stainless steel machine that spins the frames around and draws out the honey by centrifugal force. The honey then flows out of the extractor. Eighty pounds of honey has been found from 12 frames, the Elwarts said.

"Honey is the purest thing you can eat," Tom

Tom Elwart picks up a box gingerly. Despite his protective gloves, suit and headgear, he is stung 60 to 70 times a year. It's part of the business, he says.

Elwart said. "It doesn't spoil as long as it's treated right."

"There was honey found in King Tut's tomb that was still good," Donna Elwart added.

HONEY CAN be stored at room temperature. The Elwarts advise that if honey crystallizes, the container should be put in very hot (not boiling) water until the honey is completely liquefied.

The Elwarts are gearing up for another busy season. June, July and August are the peak months for the bee business, they said.

"We had a ton of honey in August, and now there's just a few jars left," Tom Elwart said.

Donna Elwart said her husband may get into the business more after he retires.

Indications are that Elwart always keeps busy. The Elwart's Apiary honey jars feature a windmill on the label, the model of which stands in the Elwarts' backyard. The 45-foot tall windmill was built by Elwart from a kit. It actually pumps water from a 17-foot deep well, depositing it in a pond on his property.

Detroit Symphony music adviser

Maestro Bertini winds up 2 years

By Avigdor Zoromp
special writer

Detroit Symphony Orchestra Maestro Gary Bertini relaxed in the Ford Auditorium office and reflected on his two years as music adviser for the symphony.

On the desk was a brand new score of Brahms' German Requiem.

"I have conducted this work more times than I can remember. The old score got worn out with my numerous notations, so I decided it was time to get a new one."

He spoke of Mahler, whose four gigantic symphonies were performed during his two-year tenure. Bertini, who will become chief conductor of the Radio Symphony of Cologne next fall, believes the choice of Mahler was right.

Maturity is a necessity for understanding Mahler. When I started out at the age of 25, I played a lot of Bach and his contemporaries. Subsequently, I went through the works of other traditional classical composers like Mozart, Schumann and Schubert.

"Only after getting involved with

'I don't feel comfortable with the Wagnerian religion or cult. But, I have nothing against his music, which is great music.'

— Gary Bertini

Stravinsky, Debussy and contemporary music did I finally revert to Mahler. It can be said that I arrived at Mahler in a rather roundabout way . . . about seven years ago. I began to realize the true Mahler.

"His music can be characterized as a human universe that shatters the boundaries of Romantic music. It is based on profound knowledge — it utilizes the orchestral capabilities and polyphonic structure to the very limit.

"HE evokes a great response in me. One may detect in his symphonies a hint of things to come — the two World Wars, the Holocaust, even World War III, if you wish. If you are familiar with his sixth and seventh symphonies, you'll see what I mean. I find a lot of personal significance in his music."

Mahler died in 1911, three years before World War I. Although he was of Jewish descent, he drew apart from his Jewish background.

Bertini has conducted virtually all of Mahler's works, including his symphonies, except for No. 8. But, as he indicated, his repertoire is much wider.

"I have covered just about every major area in music," he said. "No area has been left untouched."

This includes not only most major classical and modern composers, but avant garde music as well.

"Yes, I have played Stockhausen, Pierre Boulez and others . . . Not everybody likes them — and that's alright. It might turn out to be a passing fad and an inconsequential one at that. But, it was absolutely necessary to go through that phase. One who goes through it does not emerge quite the same."

Design students learn space-age creativity

What do human tanks inside a "Titan Ship" look like?

Well, the entrance to the human tank chamber is like a "red, glowing tube. The walls of the tube, the ceiling and the floor of the chamber glow a deep red from the cutout sections. Behind the rippling membrane front of each tank, adults and children float, gently rocking in the fluids of the tanks."

That's the written account — described by science fiction author Robert Heinlein in his book "The Puppet Masters."

But if you want to see what the chamber — complete with floating adults and children — looks like, you'll have to go to the Auburn Hills campus of Oakland Community College.

That's where drawings of the space ship are housed.

THEY'RE NOT drawings of an actual space ship, of course — just imaginative renditions of the "Titan Ship" created by students in the advanced industrial product drawing classes.

The exhibit also includes pictures of laser guns, futuristic communications devices and space-age cityscapes.

Industrial design instructor Norman Kleiner assigned the project to encourage students to use their imaginations. The task was intended to prepare them for the future job market, he said.

"I told them to design the spaceship as if they were going to design props for a movie," Kleiner said.

"Industrial designers are sometimes asked to make props for films like 'Blade Runner' and 'Star Wars.'"

"And many large firms — including Burroughs, General Motors and Ford — have design studios for future products. They hire designers to work on long-range ideas."

THE CREATIVE side of industrial design is combined with the technical side. The result is what educators call a comprehensive community college program in the field.

"We emphasize both the technical and aesthetic aspects," said Ray Katz, who heads the industrial design depart-

Skywatch

Summer solstice will bring a partial eclipse of the moon

By Raymond E. Bullock
special writer

The author is coordinator of the planetarium and observatory at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

The month of June brings us the summer solstice, the official start of summer. In addition, we will be able to see a partial eclipse of the moon — weather permitting.

The first event of the month is visible on Friday, June 3. Mars is in conjunction with the sun. A conjunction is a close grouping of two objects. In this case, Mars is on the far side of the sun as seen from earth so Mars will not be visible. Fortunately, the orbits of the planets are very well understood, so astronomers don't have to see the planets to know exactly where they are.

The moon is at last quarter phase on June 3, rising at 2:17 a.m. Mercury is at maximum western elongation on the morning of Wednesday, June 8. This means that Mercury appears at its greatest angular separation from the sun, 24 degrees west (right), rising in the east-northeast. Mercury is always a difficult object to spot, and this elongation is not a very favorable one.

THE WANING crescent moon will be the upper right of Mercury on the morning of June 8 and will actually occult (cover) Mercury on the morning of the 9th. This rare event will be difficult to see from our area. Mercury will already be hidden by the moon at moonrise (4:52 a.m.) and will reappear from behind the unlighted side of the moon sunrise at 5:55 a.m.

New moon is on the night of Friday, June 10. The moon is located between the earth and sun and is not visible. In fact, the earth-moon-sun alignment is in a straight line, causing a total eclipse of the sun. Unfortunately, this eclipse occurs well after sunset so it is not visible from our area. It is an eastern hemisphere event.

Venus is south of (below) the moon on the evening of Tuesday, June 14. On the 15th, the star Regulus, in Leo, is below the moon. Watch as Venus draws closer to Regulus during the month.

ON THURSDAY, June 16, Venus is at its greatest eastern elongation, 45 degrees from the sun. The brilliant planet dominates the western sky this month, setting around midnight.

The moon is at first quarter on the evening of Friday, June 17. Two nights later, Saturn is two degrees south of (below) the moon. To the right of Saturn is the bright blue-white star Spica, in Virgo.

Summer officially begins for the northern hemisphere Tuesday, June 21, at 7:09 p.m. At this time the sun is at its farthest point north of the celestial equator, an imaginary line which cuts the sky into a northern and southern hemisphere, corresponding to earth's equator.

Jupiter is the bright "star" to the upper right of the moon on the evening of June 22. Below the moon is Antares, the orange-red heart of Scorpius. Full moon is on the morning of Saturday, June 25. The full moon always appears in the opposite part of the sky as the sun. Since the sun is at its highest point of the year during June, this full moon is at its lowest point in the sky and is located near where the sun will be found in six months — low in the sky in December.

A partial eclipse of the moon occurs on the morning of June 25. The eclipse begins at 2:14 a.m. when the moon enters the shadow of the earth. The middle of the eclipse occurs at 4:22 a.m., when one-third of the moon is covered. At 5:30 a.m., the moon leaves earth's shadow and the eclipse is over. Sunrise is at 5:56 a.m. and moon set is four minutes later. Binoculars will provide ample magnification to observe the eclipse.

While the observatory at Cranbrook Institute of Science will not be open during the eclipse, visitors can look through the telescope every Saturday night from 8:30-10 p.m. For more information, call 645-3200.

Gardening

Advice from a pro — procrastinate

down to earth
Alice Burlingame

Here is an idea for your gardening which has been used through the ages with success. When you wish to plant some seeds, make a shallow trench, pour some water in it, and allow it to soak in it.

Scatter sand or vermiculite down the middle of the furrow. Plant your seeds, cover the project with an old board. Peek under the board frequently, and when you see sprouts, prop up the board to allow air to enter.

After a few days, you will know when the sprouts have grown enough that you can remove the board. That is a trick all rural farmers know.

HERE COMES a word of warning. Many of the plants we have been grown under perfect conditions in a greenhouse. You would be wise to procrastinate a couple of days after purchasing them. Place them in a location where they will have some shade and gradually get full sun exposure.

I have talked to local merchants about flats, and learned that the flats have been bought from large greenhouses where the plants have been grown from seed under glass. Isn't it fun to be advised to be a procrastinator gardener?

"Everybody" seems to be planting tomatos these days. Before inserting the plant in the ground wrap paper around the stem, not too tightly; it will discourage cutworms. As side shoots, soft by nature, sprout out of the stem, be sure and pinch them off.

Tomato plants make a good cover on a fence. Begin to secure the stems when the plants reach 2 feet in height.

The old-fashioned way of using a strip of cotton fabric seems to be the best of the time.

EVERY TIME I pass a seed stand I always seem to gravitate toward morning glories. They really don't seem to "shine" until along in July, but what an accent they can give.

If you have a split-rail fence, consider placing about eight seeds together at the base of an upright post. As seeds have a tough coating it is advisable to soak the seeds in water a couple of days, then plant.

If you only water them when the soil is really dry, then thoroughly, they will "go dry" lots of leaves, and you'll have more flowers.

The following plants are subject to the same diseases, so you can be a winner if you don't plant them too close together — squash, melons, tomatoes and potatoes.

There are viruses in tobacco, so the gardener who smokes should wash his hands before gardening. I sound like the Women's Christian Temperance Union, but you should be.

Research has been done in Kentucky and Indiana, and the researchers claim if you place a plastic bag over young tomato plants in the spring they will produce a crop earlier. Experimenting with such kinds of gardening ideas is what makes the hobby so much fun.

Many of you have your house sitting in an orchard. How you sign when the fruit ripens, and you are deluged with apples. You can prevent fruit rot when the trees are in flower by spraying with Amathin-M. Good luck.

Bertini is proud of his 2 years here

Wagner. Due to his outspoken anti-Semitism, his music is banned in Israel to this day.

Bertini, born in Russia in 1927, has close ties with Israel. He has been professor at the University of Tel Aviv since 1975, is artistic adviser of the Israel Festival, founded the Israel Chamber Orchestra and the Rimat Chamber Choir and appears regularly with the Israel Philharmonic and Jerusalem Symphony orchestras. He has been principal conductor of the latter since 1978.

"I don't feel comfortable with the Wagnerian religion or cult. But I have nothing against his music, which is great music. Not all of his operas have equal appeal for me, but I like doing some of his works like 'The Ring,' 'Die Meistersinger' and more," Bertini said. "I am not the right person for 'Lohengrin' or 'Tannhauser.' Understandably, some people are sensitive about the issue (Wagner's music) and we have to respect their feelings."

The conversation turned to American audiences and their response, why attendance is low and concerts aren't sold out.

"Some of it has to do with sociological structure and geographical location," Bertini said. "Many music lovers here live in the suburbs and a significant number don't feel up to traveling close to an hour each way to reach downtown after a hard day's work."

"ALSO, IN order to change the situation school systems and educational institutions should be more actively involved to attract potential talent. Not everybody can become a classical musician, but if we aim at the 3 to 5 percent potential talent that is definitely there, it would be well worth it. In Europe, whenever there is a Mahler concert, it is always sold out."

About the future of classical music, in general, and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, in particular, Bertini said, "I don't envision any danger to the future of classical music. There were several crises in the past that seemed threatening, like recordings and television."

"While there might have been an initial impact, concert performances have survived and bounced up again."

"What this orchestra (the Detroit Symphony) needs is a sense of permanence, which means appointing a music director. The ideal music director should be involved and respected by the community as well as by the orchestra.

"I feel a lot of satisfaction, pride — and I have a clear conscience. I have fulfilled my obligation in the best possible manner, not only in terms of fulfilling the contract, but my heart was truly in it."

"My concerts were received well and enthusiastically by the audience and a lot of musicians appreciated my efforts."

"If some of the musicians do not like me, it is their problem, not mine. I am leaving this orchestra in excellent shape, as least as good as the shape I found it. I feel that I have also enhanced the support of civic organizations."

Dearborn Garden Club restores Ford Fairlane estate gardens

Peonies will be blooming once again in peony garden of the former Henry and Clara Ford estate, thanks to the Dearborn Garden Club.

The peony garden is now one of three gardens being restored. In its original state, the peony garden was 300-400 feet, while the replica will be approximately one-tenth of that size. The restored garden replaces a former public parking lot.

Funding for the restoration and maintenance of the garden will come from a benefit tea given by the Dearborn Garden Club 1-3 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane.

It is open to the public for a $5 admission fee. There will be door prizes and music. Tickets are available through Dearborn Garden members, or by contacting Fair Lane, 593-5599.

Industrial design students

Modelers make three-dimensional prototypes from designer's drawings, Katz explained.

"Women will have better opportunities for finding employment in the field because it has generally been saturated by men."

The community college's program has 17 classes, including product modeling and design, drawing, industrial sculpture, technical communications, design graphics and manufacturing.

In addition, the college is installing a computer system which will be used in designing, detailing, manufacturing and assembling products, Katz said.

Currently, 60 students, ranging in age from 18 to 35, are enrolled in the program, but it can accommodate up to 200.
