HATS OFF to students at Plymouth Christian Academy in Canton who staged a bikeathon to raise $10,000 for a new air filter for their school in Canton. Pupils in preschool through 12th grade signed up sponsors, then rode their bikes around a quarter-mile track on the school grounds from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Each child rode for 30-minute periods interspersed with half-hour breaks. The new air filter, necessary for Plymouth Christian to meet health and safety codes, will circulate air when neither the heat nor air conditioning are running

PAM BURTON and Pam Pavliscak, members of the 1983 Centennial Educational Park forensics team, came away from the state finals in Ann Arbor with top honors recently. Burton's dramatic interpretation of Mary Queen of Scots captured sixth place in a field of 24. Salem junior Pam Pavliscak placed eighth in radio broadcasting. Steve Ragan, a Canton senior, went to the finals as an alternate but did not compete. It was his third trip to the finals.

Receives 5 years' probation

Man goes free in traffic fatality case

A Westland man is free on five years probation after pleading guilty to negligent homicide in connection with the Dec. 17 traffic death of Madonna Tharp days in the Detroit House of Correction. Because Matney had already served that number of days in jail awaiting trial, the time was applied against his sentence and he was freed.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Charles Kaufman last week sentenced William Matney of Alamo Court to 117

ORIGINALLY, CANTON police charged Matney with manslaughter with a motor vehicle, a felony which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison. Negligent homicide is a high misdemeanor with a two-year maximum penalty.

Matney was convicted of killing Tharp, 34, a nurse at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, in an accident at Sheldon and Cherry Hill roads.

According to Canton police, Matney's car hit the vehicle in which Tharn was riding; he then fled the scene. He was arrested later by Westland police. A Breathalyzer test showed Matney was intoxicated, police said.

Matney later failed to appear for a preliminary examination in district for his arrest. Canton police, acting on a tip, arrested Matney in Ann Arbor last February as he stepped off a Greyhound bus arriving from Washing-

Since then, Matney had been in Wayne County Jail.

Anyone wishing to challenge the Brew Crew may call 397-1000 Ext. 278 or register up to 45 minutes prior to the tug at the Canton Recreation Complex behind township hall.

According to tests, Koziarski's blood registered an alcohol content of 0.19, police said. A reading of 0.10 is legally intoxicated.

Ann Cavender ponders for a moment while on call to the Chapman Dairy Farm.

She's no ordinary horse doctor

On career day during ninth grade, she was told that she couldn't be a veternarian because she was a girl. Today, 31-year-old Ann Cavender has a thriving animal clinic in Salem Township.

Colonial-style rag rugs and dried flower wreaths decorate the 100-year-old office she and her husband, Bruce, renovated.

The Plymouth Township resident makes "house calls" 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Her busy schedule often allows for only four hours of sleep a night.

"She's gonna have twin elephants," Cavender jests as she examines a pregnant Jersey cow.

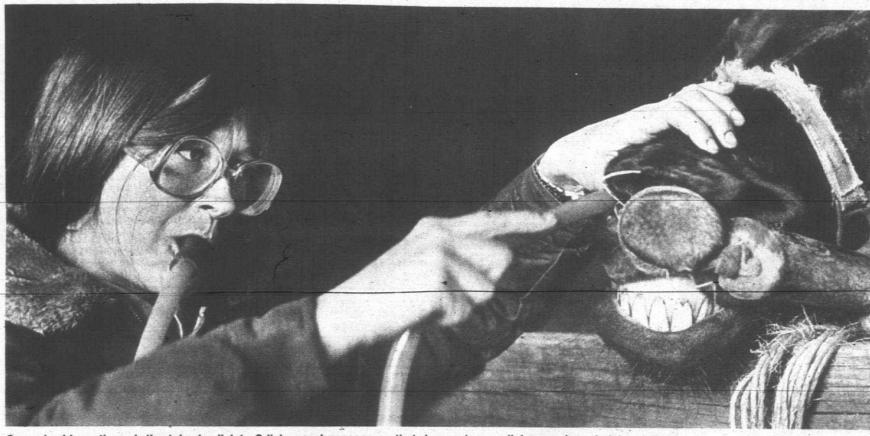

During the course of the day, she may visit one farm to vaccinate dogs, cats or horses; go to a second farm to castrate cattle, then perform horse surgery until late in the night.

In payment for veternarian services rendered, exchange of goods or services may be accepted. A jar of dog bone treats sits on her office desk as a reward for obedient patients.

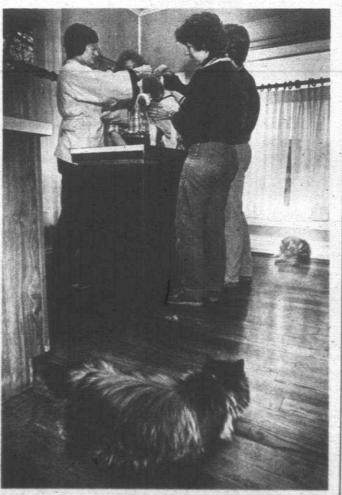

"You're going to weigh 4,000 pounds," she says to her Persian cats, Pooh Bear and Pus Pus, who beg incessantly for vitamin treats.

So what does she do in her spare time? She goes home to read a book and, sometimes, to get some

Glenn Anderson, who is making his third try for a seat on the Wayne-Wesltand board of education, said his main reason for running is his belief that "there is money being spent in areas that could be better used with the nstruction of kids."

One area he cited was expense ac "It looks small, but it is a consistent flat-rate expense account that didn't require itemizing because of the district's "very limited resources." He was critical of the two incum-

Anderson also was critical of an administrative retirement incentive program and of approval allowing adnistrators who return to teaching jobs to receive full salary at the higher level for the balance of the contract.

An emphasis on the basics is what Patricia Hough, 39, thinks forms the basis of quality education. Hough, a Wayne-Westland area resident for 21 years, is challenging incumbents for one of two board positions to be filled in Monday's annual school "It's important that we don't cut the quality of education," said Hough. Before the next school budget is passed. "an overall review of programs, where costs are and how bond money is used" ust be completed, she said. "The last thing I would want to see cut is anything that directly affects education, such as text books and equipnent. So I would look at what's called 'good time' programs."

isn't going to bail us out." To deal with the financial problems, Hough said she would favor long-range planning that would take a look at administrative consolidation. She said that would encourage concessions from employee groups at lower levels.

McCusker In the six months that Mathew icCusker has served on the Wayne-Westland board of education, he said he has learned that "there is a great deal more to the district than the ABCs." McCusker was elected last December to fill a vacancy created after a suc- cember to fill spots vacated after a ssful recall election.

Those areas of new knowledge include the adult and continuing education department, the Roosevelt/ McGrath School for the handicapped and the role of paraprofessionals in the why we're here. That's what its all "I have an easily pricked guilt con-

PLAN A FEAST FIT FOR THE KING OF YOUR HOUSEHOLD-DAD!

Roll out the red carpet and pull up the comfy chair. It's Dad's special day and he deserves a round of applause and plenty of t.l.c.

Way back when, someone with superior sensitivity and some practiced insight into the art of being a father decreed an entire day to honor America's patriarchs. Today, our Father's Day tradition calls for family gatherings, gifts and a memorable meal with Dad at the head of the table.

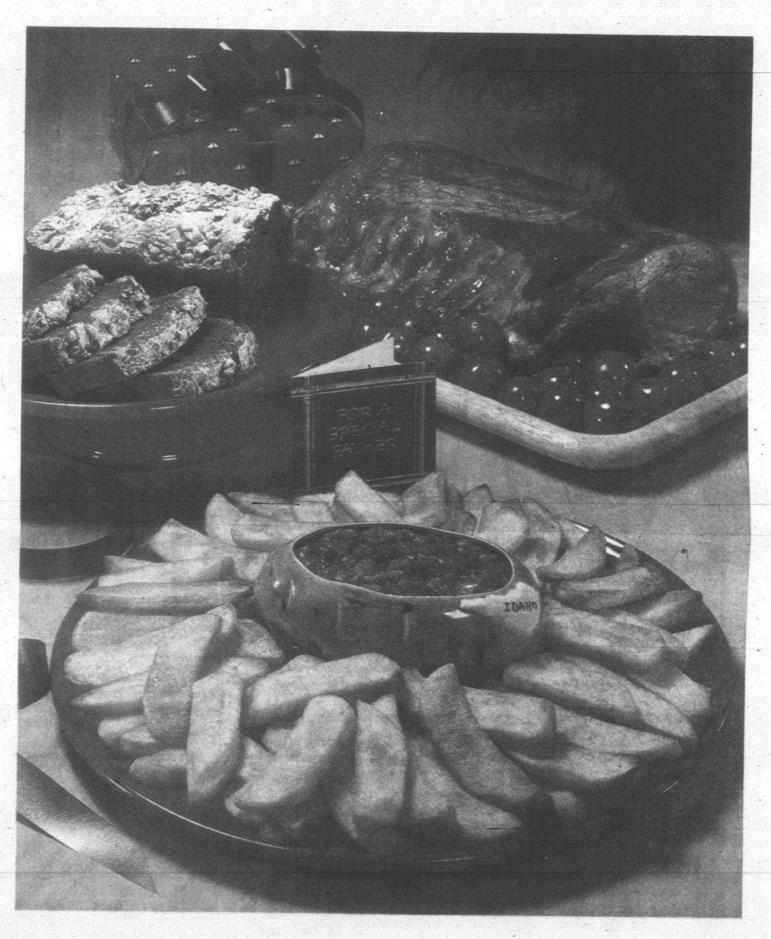

Naturally, the menu is planned with his favorite foods in mind. The repast here is as traditional as can be-meat, potatoes and chocolate cake-yet it's been dressed up with such culinary distinctiveness that it's fit for a king.

For instance, the spuds, hearty, thick-cut French fries, are easy-tomake frozen potatoes. Serve a large platterful with a selection of dipping sauces to make them extra appealing. A Spicy Con Queso Sauce is rich and tangy with its sharp cheese and chopped green chili peppers. Or whip up a Horseradish Sauce that's sweet and zesty with applesauce.

The French fries will be perfectly crisp and flavorful if you follow the package directions and serve them sizzling hot from the oven.

If Dad's a fan of pork, the entree will be really special with a generous roast loin glazed with a lightly sweetened apple jelly. To enjoy a well-seasoned crusty surface, trim all but a quarter inch of the top fat and rub with the seasonings. Remember that any roast should be taken from the oven and allowed to stand at room temperature for approximately fifteen minutes before carving.

The finale to the Father's Day feast is a surprise cake-rich, dense, chocolatey ... and made with potatoes! Experienced home bakers have always known mashed potatoes as the secret ingredient in making pleasantly moist and dense cakes. Pocatello Potato Cake, made the easy way with instant mashed potatoes, is studded with chopped chocolate chips that melt to a perfect consistency while baking. A dusting of confectioners' sugar makes this cake ever so pretty when presented to the King of the Household.

Dad's Day special

Barbecue a beef brisket

Looking for a sure way to make Dad feel extra special this Father's Day? He'll know just how great you think he is when you make him the guest of honor at a family cookout featuring Texas-Style Beef Brisket

Dads will enjoy this man-pleasing beef entree served up with Western flair. While the beef brisket is naturally less tender, the National Live Stock and Meat Board has developed a cooking technique that will enable you to cook this full-flavored cut on the grill with tender and tasty results. The brisket is first sealed in a cooking bag, then wrapped in foil, allowing it to cook leisurely in moist heat on the

To accent the beef with robust Western barbecue flavor, the brisket cooks in the bag with a spicy omato coating. Then as serying time approaches more flavor punch is added as the already-tender brisket is brushed with the easy-to-make barbecue auce and briefly broiled over the coals.

You can bank on this flavorsome beef brisket to satisfy not only Dad but the whole clan as well. The prisket is an excellent choice for a crowd as it is boneless with little waste. When carved into thin diagonal slices, it's easy to stretch its oustanding eef flavor a long way.

TEXAS-STYLE BEEF BRISKET 4 to 5-lb, boneless beef brisket

1 cup catsup 4 cup brown sugar 2 tbsp. prepared mustard

2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce 1 tsp. hot pepper sauce

2 tbsp. flour

Combine catsup, brown sugar, prepared mustard, Worcestershire sauce, hot pepper sauce and cinnamon. Combine ¼ cup catsup mixture with flour Cover and refrigerate remaining sauce. Place brisket in large cooking bag and brush catsup-flour mixture over both sides. Press air from bag and tie securely. Place bag containing meat in center of a double-thick rectangle of heavy-duty aluminum foil (twice the circumference and 8 inches longer then orisket). Bring 2 opposite sides of foil together over top of meat. Fold edges over 3 to 4 times, pressing crease in tightly each time. Flatten foil at one end crease to form triangle and fold edge over several

A boneless chuck pot-roast, cut approximately ches thick, can be substituted for the brisket. Beef is a natural choice for Dad's special meal not only because it's his favorite meat, but also because it offers him and all the family outstanding nutrition. The protein in beef is especially important for it is complete; that is, it contains all the essential amino acids in the amounts needed by the body everyday. Also, essential are the B-vitamins in beef which include thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, B 6 and B-12. Two of beef's most important minerals

COMMISSIONER Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, offered four suggestions on how the WCRC could get operating funds to use in the parks, but Mac Donald said each was impossible. Dumas's suggestions:

· Use interest earned on restricted funds (gasoline and weight taxes ear-marked for roads). Said MacDonald: "Interest is one of our routine revenues. It's essential to use the interest for roads."

 Don't use parks money for Warren Valley Golf Course but make the golf course self-supporting. Mac-Donald's reply: "No county funds are used for Warren Valley."

· Charge the cost of signs on Hines Drive to the road account rather than the parks budget. MacDonald said that is already being done, adding, "We even maintain bike trails with road funds under state law.

· Use earnings at Metropolitan Airport to support the parks. Said Mac-Donald: "There are no excess funds at the airport that aren't being plowed back into the airport."

That's the stark reality of sports. In track, coaches can teach technique, and experience can provide a great lesson.

But talent can't be taught. It can be honed, refined to a razor-sharp edge. But it has to be there to begin with. This year's All-Observer track team has both experienced athletes and novices. What the two share is talent. Of the 13 individuals selected by area track coaches to the first team, all but three are seniors. Some will continue their track-careers in college. Those who do will demonstrate their ability by improving and reaching even greater heights. Here is this year's Observer All-Area track team, starting with the selections in the field events.

FIELD EVENTS

Dan Lingg, Plymouth Salem, long jump — The senior captain is enjoying his second year as the All-Area selection in the long jump. The Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) champion finished third in the regional and jumped over 21 feet eight times.

His best was 21-74 in the Livonia Bentley dual meet. He doubled for Salem in the pole vault, an event he mastered. He finished third in the state, third in the regional, and won the WLAA crown. His best was 14-0, and he reigned as individual champ in the pole vault in every relay meet but one.

Perhaps most amazing is Lingg's size - he stands just 5 foot 3 and weighs 125. He has great quickness and strength, and he "studies his event", according to coach Gary Balconi.

Bob Johnson, Redford Union, pole vault — Johnson, a sonior, cleared 14-0 twice outdoors this season and recorded the second-best jump in the state this year when he vaulted 14-6 in a dual meet against Livonia Franklin. He won the Highland Park state regional and was best at a pair of indoor meets, the Huron Relays at Eastern Michigan and the Spartan Relays at Michigan State. Johnson has been working on his technique since eighth grade. RU coach Bob Ouellette, who coaches a pole vaulter's camp at MSU in the summer, calls Johnson a "better jumper than Tom Babbits," an RU state champion

all-area boys' track

Jeff Felts, Garden City, high jump - In only his first season of jumping, Felts, a junior, cleared 6-4% in a dual meet and won the Northwest Suburban League (NSL) championship with a jump of 6-4. Felts was third in the regional and jumped 6-3 at the state meet but did not score.

Garden City coach Clayton Kelley labeled Felts "a pleasant surprise" when he came out for the team. Still, his development wasn't too big a shock — his father was a collegiate high jumper. Felts was troubled by shin splints much of the year, but Kelley said by season's end "his technique was better. He'll improve even more next year."

Tim Lach, Livonia Charchill, shot put - Luch was one of the best weightman in the area this year, tops in the Observer track listings in the shot (52-5) and second in the discus (154-5). The "consistent performer and hard worker," according to coach Fred Price, was second in the WLAA and at Luch won the shot and discus in both the Livonia city meet and the Observerland Relays. A three-year athlete, Luch is headed for Adrian this Mark Juodawlkis, Livonia Churchill, discus - Juodawlkis combined with Luch to give Churchill an impressive one-two punch in the weight events. His best toss in the discus was 155-9. He also posted a 46-1 in the shot.

The senior just missed going to state eet by finishing fourth in the regional He was first at the Heidenfelter Relays. Juodawlkis "worked hard to be s "impre upper body strength", according to Rick Paler, Redford Catholic Central, 110-meter high hurdles - A pulled hamstring muscle kept Paler from competing beyond the prelimi-nary heats in the Catholic League finals. Which is too bad, because he was second in the regional with his best time of the season, 14.8.

Anybody who attended Saturday's Class A softball regional tournament at Plymouth Salem will not deny that pitching was the name of the game. Belleville junior Judy Wisniewski allowed only one hit in 13 innings of work as the Tigers defeated Garden City, 10-0, and Livonia Stevenson, 1-0, to win the championship.

Wisniewski outdueled Stevenson sophomore sensation Lisa Bokovoy in the title clash.

The Tigers scored the game's only run in the first inning. Jill Pence led off with a walk, advanced to second on Tina Cicotte's sacrifice, took third on Kim Thick's infield single and scored on Debbie Stull's sacrifice.

BOKOVOY yielded just one other hit in going the distance.

The Spartans, meanwhile, managed just one hit off Wisniewski, but had their chances to tie and even win the STEVENSON, coached by Lee Cagle, bowed out with a 19-5 record.

Belleville made some excellent defensive plays," Cagle said. "If she (Stull) doesn't pick the ball up, we're tied. I knew it would be a low-scoring - pitcher against pitcher." Belleville whipped Garden City in a six-inning mercy rule regional semifinal behind the no-hit pitching of Wisniewski, who now has 13 shutouts and a 24-1 personal record. The Tigers took advantage of GC
