19 candidates seek seats on Canton Township board

By Susan Buck staff writer

Nineteen candidates are seeking positions on the Canton Township board. All seven seats are up for reelection.

The deadline for filing was Tuesday. The primary election is Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Candidates have until Friday to withdraw from the race.

THREE REPUBLICANS seek the township supervisor position. Supervisor James E. Poole said he is qualified for a third term based on his record.

"I was the first supervisor reelected in 20 years," he said. "I think we've done a good job getting new roads, sidewalks and recreation fields. We received awards for indusgrade the politics." Trustee Robert H. Padget, a section supervisor at Ford Motor Co., also wants to head township govern-

"I believe I have the leadership characteristics and qualities necessary to offer the township more effective programs," he said. "I fully support the idea of a day-to-day superintendent."

Thomas Yack, a classroom teacher at Lincoln Elementary in the Wayne-Westland school district, also seeks the supervisor position. He was unavailable for comment.

THREE CANDIDATES are running for township treasurer. Treasurer Jerry Brown, the first person to file, seeks a second term. "I enjoy the job," said Brown, a trial development. I intend to up- Republican. "I think I'm doing a good job. I don't make a lot of n I know there will be a lot of questions and a long campaign."

Democrat Carol Bodenmiller, an administrator for Moore Greens, a wholesale Detroit greenery, is running for treasurer. She cites her previous experience as board trustee and a member of the planning commission. "I enjoy working for the community. I have been very much involved." Ruth M. Allegrina is a self-employed accountant and a Republican.

"I feel I am doing a good job," she said. "I'm tired of all the fighting going on. I feel I can unite the governing units."

THREE CANDIDATES have filed for township clerk. Linda Chuhran, a Republican, seeks re-election. 'I feel I've done a good job," said Chuhran. "I want to continue to progress in the direction the township has taken.' Trustee Loren Bennett, a Republican, wants to assume the position as clerk.

He was unavailable for comment. Cynthia S. Burgess, a Democrat, is consultant for the Institute for Community and Regional Development. "I have the skills to do a good job legislatively and administratively, she said.

Parental ideals, the Headlee override and impending budget cutbacks were some of the topics touched upon at the candidates' forum sponsored by the League of Women Vot-ers of Northville-Plymouth-Canton-Novi Tuesday evening at Plymouth-Canton High School.

Twelve of the 15 declared school board candidates for two four-year terms on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education answered questions during the forum.

Each candidate spoke three minutes on a topic related to his/her candidacy in the Monday, June 13, election.

The forum, which was aired live on WSDP, the student radio station, will be rebroadcast at 6:30 p.m. Friday on cable Channel 15. Barbara Graham, a former Detroit Board of Education member. questioned certain materials that are being used in the schools. She also questioned programs that she contends "erodes parental authority.'

"THE SCHOOL board spends 'x' number of dollars and then they say to the citizens, 'Now you pay for it,' she said.

Mary Roberson supported a wide range of academic offerings including a stronger emphasis on the phys-ical well-being of children via stronger physical education pro-

"It reminds me of the elementary child who doesn't get what he wants and says let's go twoout of three or three out of five," he said.

She wants to raise group's low profile

Jaysecret?

Tonya Smith believes the Plymouth Jaycees is one of the best-kept secrets in town.

But Smith - the new president and the group's first woman leader - wants to raise that low profile.

"I would like the public to be aware of what we do," said Smith, a 33-year-old registered nurse who lives in Canton. "Not only do we do community work, but we develop the personal skills and leadership dy-namics of members within the chap-ter. A lot of people don't know we do that.'

tle to bar females from membership. "I jumped in with both feet," Smith said. She joined the Jaycees committee that puts on the annual July 4th parade and fireworks display in Plymouth.

Smith's enthusiasm won her creased responsibilities, such as chairing major Jaycee projects, including the annual fireworks display That entails planning, setting up budgets and deadlines, working with pyrotechnics experts who shoot off the fireworks and arranging for musical accompaniment.

Such events make for some "intense" moments, Smith said.

"I DON'T usually get nervous until one hour before and right after it's over," she said. "We try to get a large committee, but when it gets down to it, there are about 10 people who do most of the work. "That's where the Jaycees come in," Smith said. "It puts a lot of emphasis on management (and) training, problem-solving. It teaches management skills."

Smith also has served on the chapter's board of directors and was the president's administrative assistant prior to her election as first woman president. One of her stated goals is to increase the Plymouth Jaycees membership rolls from its curren 81 to around 100 people. Women make up approximately 10 percent of the total membership. Smith said. The organization is open to people 21-40 years old.

"I'VE BEEN told that some people are upset that a woman has been elected president," Smith said. Plymouth supposedly has been one of the conservative areas in the Jaycees. They are sitting and waiting to see what happens. It doesn't bother me. I'm going to do the same job, no matter what

Working with Smith are several elected, executive officers, including three women. The officers are Cindy O'Day, Karen Murphy, Bruce Hartdegen, Jim Phillips, Cindy Mikelonis, Lloyd Ingram, and Paul Benson, all of Plymouth; Katie DeRosa of Canon; and Tim O'Meara of Livonia.

Local needs will take priority over nationwide Jaycees projects, Smith said. The chapter will conduct a local needs survey.

Some projects in the planning stages are free legal advice to senior citizens through the Plymouth Housing Commission, and a "Christmas in July" for people who normally garner attention only during the holiday season.

Barbara G. Graham - I see the school district's major strength as having one of the best tax bases in the state. Its weakness seems to me to be that this board and staff has been less than judicious in their spending.

Frank Riley - A current strength is the school district's enjoyment of an excellent reputation which is quickly losing its reality. Also the excellent and sincere dedicated teachers and staff personnel who manage to support the system in view of its embarrassingly low rating of 29th out of 35 area districts in cost spent per student.

gain by vetoing House Bill 5415, another cripoling amendment to the Open Meetings Act. This bill was part of the annual attempt to cover the "sunshine law" with clouds. Last year the Parole Board was exempted, and this year it is the Public Service Commission that is to be allowed to operate in the shade.

LAST WEEK'S state Senate vote was 29 to 6 in favor of gloom.

We are less than proud of our area's own senators in this matter. It was supported by Doug Cruce, R-Troy, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Robert Geake, R-Northville, George Hart, D-Dearborn, and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

Sens. William Faust, D-Westland, and Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, had excused absences that day.

If he vetoes this measure, Blanchard shouldn't fear political consequences because the bill was backed and opposed by both Republicans and Democrats

THE PEOPLE of Michigan deserve to be able to see and hear their policy-making officials out in the open because

• The public has a right to know what gov-ernment intends to do before government does it

• The public has a right to know who else is influencing our policy makers. • The public has a right to its own contribu-

HERE WILL be a whole lot of reading going on this summer at the Dunning-

Hough Library in Plymouth, as different programs will be available to students of all ages.

Students may participate in the "Passport to Adventure" summer reading program. Registration start-ed June 1. "Passport to Adventure" programs will be held June 21 through July 19 at the library, with the awards celebration Aug. 2.

In the program, students read a variety of books, both fiction and non-fiction. "It's really going to depend on the child," said Peggy Morgan, children's librarian

Generally, students read more fiction during the summer, Morgan has found. The fiction shelves at the library are a bit less crowded.

The summertime program is designed to foster a love of reading.

'That's one of the main purposes of having a summer reading program.

READING IS one of many ways to present a story. It's beneficial in that it requires a student to use his or her imagination, "whereas when you watch a video, it's all laid out for you," Morgan said. "They're two very different mediums."

The "Passport to Adventure" program is for students from Plymouth, lymouth Township and Canton.

'We wanted to make sure every one who is interested would be able to attend," Morgan said.

The program is designed to be fun; to broaden students' interests and to expose them to good literature.

of books to read at the Canton Public Library. "They seem to look for the mysteries," said Judy Teachworth, de-partment head for children's services. Many children enjoy the Encyclopedia Brown mysteries.

Family-type stories by such authors as Beverly Cleary and Betsy Byars are also popular.

"Mainly, they're reading about kids their age," Teachworth said. Boys enjoy the sports stories written by Matt Christopher. Clas-sics, such as E.B. White's "Charlotte's Web," are perennial favorites.

"They still read those, they still like the

THOSE POSTER contests will include a variety of activities. Posters will be put up at the beginning of the program; students will have the duration of the program to complete the contests.

Finding entertainers for summer program isn't much of a problem, Teachworth said. Some of the entertainers have participated in previous summer reading pro-grams; they have a rapport with the children.

The kids really do seem to like the live part of it. "I think it's good to expose them to that kind of situation. They seem to enjoy it."

Oakwood Vs. Cancer If you don't want to quit smoking, you won't. But if you want to quit, you can. And we can help.

You've seen and heard all the warnings. You know that smoking is harmful. People around you may even have started to reject you. Perhaps you don't even enjoy the habit anymore.

Well, it's never too soon to quit. And Oakwood Hospital can get you on your way, with the "Smokeless" stop-smoking program. A stopsmoking program recommended in the Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health. It can save lives by changing the habits of people like you. We've seen it work. So don't put it off any longer. Come to our free introductory meeting. See how you can quit the smoking habit for good. Just call 278-5151 for details.

Another good idea in the fight against cancer: regular checkups with your physician. Early detection results in more effective and less radical treatment of most forms of cancer. Oakwood's oncology capabilities include state-of-the-art diagnostic tools-CT Scan, nuclear medicine, mammography, ultrasound, laboratory test, chemical analysis and microscopic exams. If treatment is required, we offer advanced surgery, radiation therapy and chemotherapy.

But if you smoke, you can start your own campaign against lung cancer. Right now. Call the Oakwood Department of Community Health at 278-5151. And enroll in a summer session of the "Smokeless" program.

It costs $155 for seven classes, approximately 11 hours of instruction. But what it may save you is priceless. "Smokeless" is a copyrighted program of the American Institute for Preventive Medicine

Pastor retires after 40 years in ministry

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

The Rev. Ed Coley remembers when things were simple The ministry was much different when Coley joined in the late 1940s. Coley will close out his 40 years in the ministry this month when he retires as pastor of Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia. The duties of a pastor were more clearly defined and things were on a more personal level, he said.-"Oh it's changed in so many ways," said Coley, pausing for a moment A pastor then conducted two services on Sundays and a Bible study on Wednesdays. He often went into the home to meet with the congregation said Coley. He knew where the worked, where their children went to Today, a pastor doesn't have the time to go into every home. Time is spent on administration involved with running a church. Computers have replaced index card boxes. "Even the use of a telephone has changed everything tremendously. Coley said. "When I started out, we didn't pick up the phone every five or 10 minutes to talk to members of the congregation. Before we would just go to the home. Today we do most of our counseling by the phone. "There's a danger in that you lose the personal element. The eyeball to eveball contact if you will." In some ways, things are better. The problems of today are too complex for one person to solve.

AS A result, a pastor isn't expected to be the one to solve them. "When I first started, peop looked to the pastor as one who had the answers and as one who could provide them," he said. "Today they are looking for someone who will listen and who will help them find aveues for a solution."

Coley's career in ministry covers wide spectrum. Originally from Ozark, Ark. (population 2.200), Coley joined the Air Force during World War II after high school. Coley then had a calling for the ninistry, receiving his master's degree in divinity from Perkins School f Theology at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. He was the first chaplain at Kincheloe Air Force Base in the Upper

'It has been exciting, tremendously fulfilling and very satisfying working within a ministry that has grown each year.'

leaving Newburg United

Peninsula. Coley opted to stay in Michigan, serving at Trinity United Methodist Church in the U.P. from 1956 to 1961.

Cooley served at a number of United Methodist churches in the Detroit area, including St. Andrew in Detroit (1961-68), Mt. Olivet in Dearborn (1968-78) and Faith Church (1978-84).

Coley was appointed by the Michi-gan United Methodist Bishop to Newburg United in 1984. He replaced the Rev. Jack Gugiere, who became superintendent for the Ann Arbor district of the United Method ist Conference. One of the areas Coley has been directly involved in at Newburg ha been the Appalachia Service Project. People from the church go to Ap palachia to help fix homes.

SINCE HIS arrival, there has been a slow but steady growth in mem-bership to 1,198. Newburg also has a strong singles ministry. That along with the other programs at the church, though, he said are someone else's doing.

"It's not my doing," he said. "I'm sort of the coordinator for the programs . . . I can't take credit. have a tremendous staff."

What Coley has given to Newburg Church, if anything, might be mea sured in pure experience. He certainly doesn't take any credit.

The fine music program? Coley mentions a name. The mission outreach program? Another name Christian education and youth work Yet another name.

"I'm not helping you very muci am I?" Coley said. Coley will admit he helped coordinate some of the programs. And he was there to provide some advice when it was needed But overall, Coley points to the staff at Newburg United Methodist Church. "It has been exciting, tremendo ly fulfilling and very satisfying working within a ministry that has grown each year," he said.

Business travelers pack area hotels

No vacancy

By Filip Fracassa special writer

As Oakland and western Wayne counties ride the crest of financial good times, increases in job opportunities have meant a corresponding increase in the number of lodging facilities built in the area.

A pent-up demand for inns, hotels and motels from business travelers has meant growth to 17 lodging facilities with 3,316 rooms in Southfield alone.

"The demand won't continue like this - nine new hotels in the last five years - but we can expect growth to stay good, at a slightly slower pace," said Joe Sutschek, community development director of Southfield.

Southfield's newer facilities are the Radisson Plaza, Residence Inn, Red Roof Inn, the Compri, Embassy Suites, The Berkshire, Hampton Inn, Skylight Inn and Marriott Courtward. Marriott plans to build another hotel next to its existing unit near Northwestern and Lahser.

Prism Hotels of Dallas will manage the 200-room Compri Hotel on I-696 and Franklin. The luxury hotel expects 90 percent of its corporate executives in the area for business.

The surge is still on in Farmington Hills. Rick Lampi, the city's community development director, has seen the Radisson, Knights Inn, Skylight Inn, Bargaintel, Dillon Inn and Quality Inn open for business in the last two years. The inns dot Grand River, Haggerty, Eight Mile and Orchard Lake.

"We've needed the rooms because of our proximity to Detroit, Lansing, and Metropolitan Airport, I-275 Lampi said.

"We went on a binge in '85 looking for hotel development. Now we'll have enough hotels to host conventions if we want to.'

Marriott is scheduled to break ground on a 150-room hotel later this year.

TROY'S HOTEL growth has gone in spurts, and there's still more room quality hotels, says Laurence Kiesling, planning director for the city.

The city has strengthened its zoning requirements for chains seeking entry to the bustling Big Beaver corridor. Proposed hotels must have at least 200 rooms, restaurants that will seat 250, and meeting space for at least 800.

"There's really no commercial land for hotel development outside of the Big Beaver corridor, and we're setting the standards - fullservice hotels only.

We want hotels in Troy to serve the city and the business community, not just people passing through who want sleeping rooms," Kiesling said.

There were only five hotels in Troy until 1983, but now there are nine with nearly 2,000 rooms.

In the last five years, developers have built the Marriott Courtyard, Residence Inn, Drury Inn and Guest Quarters. By 1990, Kiesling expects Troy to add a 350-room, full-service Marriott hotel on Big Beaver near Livernois and a 400-room Ramada Renaissance Hotel on Big Beaver near I-75

The lodging industry is experiencing a boom. In Livonia, this Holiday Inn and Marriott Courtyard are within walking distance of each other.

Construction on the Marriott will begin this summer, but the Ramada project is at least a year away.

ALONG I-275 in western Wayne County, Livonia is winning most of the hotel business. Planning director John Nagy counts eight motels and seven hotels in the city - with room for more.

"The large number of office buildings here, as well as our link to the I-275 corridor, make Livonia a prime site for hotel-industry growth," he said.

'Having hotels in Livonia is desirable because they help attract an economic base and allow us to bring conventions to town."

Marriott plays a big hand in the expanding hotel industry in Livonia, opening three- and six-story hotels on Six Mile between Newburgh and I-275.

Compri Hotels will complete construction on its Eight Mile location in the first quarter of 1989, according to Frank Jonna, executive vice sident of the Farmington Hillsbased Jonna Construciton Co., Compri's builder.

The planned 210-room, amenities-loaded hotel, owned by Phoenixbased Doubletree Hotels, will cater to "business travelers seeking fourstar accommodations." The Compri will offer lavish food and bar service, with rates ranging from $65 to "to allow businessmen to up-$100 grade from the budget hotels in the area." Jonna said.

Nagy said Livonia's Holidome has expanded, renovating its conference area, lounge and restaurant to ac-commodate anticipated business traffic to the city.

IN CANTON, hotel growth has been spurred by corporate develop-ment, proximity to I-275 and companies in Detroit and Ann Arbor, according to Dave Nicholson, the township's community/economic development director. The Fairfield Inn, Knights Inn and Country Hearth Inn are recent additions to the corridor.

Growth prospects for the lodging industry look good, proprietors believe. They say area hotels, motels and inns are registering business travelers to near capacity Monday through Friday.

Tourists fill weekend gap

By Filip Fracassa special writer

Business travelers may be their bread and butter, but area hotels, motels and inns are learning that the leisure traveler can fill sizable gaps on their registries.

This comes as no surprise to the American Hotel and Motel Association, which forecasts the U.S. will need 13 percent more rooms in the next three years to keep up with demand caused by surging interest in on tra vaca Health Alliance Plan has specialists in all of the following locations.

Cary Turecamo, general manager of Troy's 251-suite Guest Quarters hotel in Troy, said his company has changed its marketing plan to attract leisure travelers.

Guest Quarters at one time marketed itself to corporations that would send executives to the metro area for four or five days. But Turecamo says in the last two years companies have halved the number of travel days for their executives.

'Executives are taking shorter trips, accomplishing on a Tuesday and Wednesday what used to take Monday through Friday," he said. "That helped us realize that vacation travel was a deeply untapped arena. "Our vacation travel business is steady, and we've gone out of our way to make it grow by creating en-thusiasm with clients. We put together special game and skiing packages to bring people to this part of Michigan, and we believe we're successful."

EMBASSY SUITES, with its 240 rooms in Southfield, relies on vacationers for most of its weekend busi-

But Yoder emphasizes that the Embassy would not survive without the business-suited men and women who park their briefcases there during the week. "About 70 percent of our revenues come from businessmen on trips. We gear toward them and will keep doing so. But we want the leisure guy, too." The Radisson Plaza Hotel in Southfield counts on 100-percent oc-cupancy Monday through Thursday from business travelers and is hoping to attract groups with conferences and conventions.

"We can't expect to get all of the vacation and leisure people because there is a trend to leave the metro area for quieter areas," Bill Kir-"For us, the vacation traveler is khuff, general manager, said. "But around a lot when the economy is with first-rate facilities, we can

AT CANTON'S Fairfield Inn, assistant manager Joan Susinska said leisure travelers on a budget come there for no-frills accommodations. Owned by Marriott Corp., the Can-ton Fairfield Inn, which employs 16, is the first of four inns to open in metro Detroit this year. A 133-room Rochester Hills inn will open late this year at M-59 and Crooks

"Our market research shows so far that a lot of people coming through the door are families on a budget who want an outdoor pool," Susinska said.

Roh Groh, manager of the Knights Inn in Canton, says leisure travel is "starting to come into its own."

The area is well saturated with hotels and motels, so there's a lot of competition for business. But we get a lot of family groups and leisure travelers - about 35 percent of our business - on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays."

Variable life policy can beat out IRAs By Sid Mittra

special writer

An avowed reader of this column recently complained that I have not written on one of the most attractive forms of investment under the TRA of 1986, namely, variable life investment. This column deals with that subject.

Life insurance with mutural fund in-

Wth the introduction of universal life insurance policies, insurance companies started offering a fixed rate of return on premiums collected in excess of the cost of buying life insurance. Subsequently, investors were offered the best of both worlds when the insurance industry introduced variable life.

Variable life offers a range of mutual-fund options including stock, bond and money-market portfolios. This investment was designed for those investors who wish to take the risks and earn the rewards of investing in a tax-deferred life insurance policy wrapped around a family of nutual funds. The idea behind variable life is that part of your premium goes for insurance and the balance goes into a side fund. However, in this case, it is you, the investor, who controls the investment strategy and change between mutual funds while the earnings grow tax-deferred. The traditional advantages of investing in a mutual fund apply to variable life. They include profes sional management of each fund, which relieves you of both decisions and details involved in buying and selling individual stocks and bonds; diversified investment in a wide variety of companies and industries and exchanges between a series of mutual funds within a fund family each with a different investment objective.

Advantages of dollar cost averaging

With variable life, you reap the You buy a fixed dollar amount at regular intervals through regular premium payments. With premiums in excess of mortality costs, you buy shares of mutual funds. Naturally more shares are bought when the prices are low and fewer shares when prices are high. Over the long term, the increased number of shares bought in a declining market generally more than offsets the fewnumber of shares bought in a ris-

When you call the Physician Referral Service, we'll help you find a doctor close to your home or where you work. We'll put you in touch with physicians specializing in all areas of medicine. And if you prefer a male or female doctor, we'll see to it your preference is met. Most importantly when you call the Physician Referral Service, you'll be put in touch with physicians who have a strong affiliation with one of Michigan's leading hospitals - Providence. Save yourself from the timeconsuming frustration of finding a doctor. Call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999 and get the sound, professional advice you need in finding a qualified physician.

There are some very interesting ways you can find a doctor. You can ask friends, relatives or co-workers for a recommendation. Since there are as many opinions as there are people, you may end up with a confusing collection of names and phone numbers. Without having the slightest idea of who the doctors are or where they're located. You may also choose to open up your telephone book and, well good luck.

Or you can call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999. It's quick, professional and personal.

Piaf premiers at area restaurant

The rise of the diminutive Edith Piaf, from the streets of Paris where she sang for her supper as a child, to the apex of stardom as the most beloved chanteuse ever to grace the music halls and concert stages of Europe, is the stuff of which legends are made

During her lifetime, Piaf came to embody the essence of romantic love at its most ecstatic, its most mysterious, and its most tragic.

During the '30s, '40s and '50s, Piaf's uniquely dramatic voice made famous scores of songs that are as evocative of France and as closely tied to that country in the popular imagination as are the paintings of Renoir, the wines of Bordeaux and the sharp kick of Can Can. The high Sheri Nichols stars as Edith Piaf in the On Stage production of "Le Miracle de Piaf" Wednesdays and Thursdays through June.

Set late in her life, the show features 15 of the songs that helped to create the legend that is Piaf and is a mixture of both theater and music as she reminisces about her life and loves.

"Le Miracle de Piaf" was written and directed by Howard Burman, chairman of the department of theater at Wayne State University. Bur-

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH BOARD OF TRUSTEES - REGUALR MEETING May 24, 1988

Supervisor Breen called the meeting to order at 7:32 p.m. and led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. All members were present, except Mrs. Hulsing who was excused. Mr. Munfakh moved to approve the minutes of the regular meeting of May 10, 1988 as submitted. Supported by Mr. Pruner. Ayes all. Mr. Horton moved to allow payment of the bills for May 24, 1988 in the amount of $184,292.14 for General Fund, $308,499.48 for Water and Sewer, making a Grand Total of $492,791.60. Supported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote, except Mr. Irvine who voted no.

Mr. Irvine moved to approve the agenda for the regular meeting of May 24, 1988 as submitted. Supported by Mr. Pruner. Ayes all. Supervisor Breen signed a proclamation recognizing May 31, 1988 thru June 30,

1988 as Muscular Dystrophy Month. Supervisor Breen opened the public hearing at 7:35 p.m. and closed the public hearing at 8:08 p.m. Munfakh moved Resolution No. 88-6-24-19 approving the Application for strial Facilities Exemption Certificate for AW Transmission Engineering

U.S.A., Incorporated (AWTEC), 14920 Keel Street, Metro West Industrial Park, Plymouth Township. Supported by Mr. Pruner. Ayes all on a roll call vote, except Mr. Irvine who voted no. Mr. Horton moved to authorize contracting with Rainbow Construction compa ny in the amount of $30,718.75 for the watermain construction, paying S & S Homes $3,086.26 for engineering and County fees necessary to construct the watermain, and $1,600.00 for Township inspection fees, making a total of $35,405.00 for costs for the Joy Road watermain extension between Colony Farms Subdivision and Quail Run Subdivision as outlined in Mr. Bailey's letter of May 20, 1988. Supported by Mr. Pruner. Ayes all. Mr. Pruner moved Resolution No. 88-5-24-20 adopting the amendment to the

Mr. Pruner moved Resolution No. 88-5-24-20 adopting the amendment to the Inter-Local Agreement adopted by the Conference of Western Wayne and Plym-outh Township. The Attorney General has requested the amendment to clarify allowable program activities prior to receiving the Governor's signature. Sup-ported by Mr. Munfakh. Ayes all on a roll call vote. Mr. Munfakh moved to approve the unpaid leave of absence for Anne C. Ward, Communications Operator, as requested in her communication of May 19, 1988 and pursuant to the Personnel Policies and Procedures of the Charter Township and pursuant to the rersonner Poinces and Processes of the Charten Township of Plymouth. Supported by Mrs. Brooks. Ayes all. Mrs. Brooks moved to award the bid of $5,515.00 received from Thesier Equip-ment Company, 28342 Pontiac Trail, South Lyon, Michigan for (1) John Deere Tractor, Model F-910, to be used at Township Park. Supported by Mr. Horton. Ayes all.

Ayes all. Mr. Munfakh moved to send the written request and petitions, submitted by Mr. Lynn Ehrle, to the Wayne County Office of Public Services and ask that a study be made, after September, regarding permanent closures at Mayflower Drive and Gregory Lane; a written recommendation of the study to be sent to the Plymouth Township Administration. Supported by Mr. Horton. Ayes all. Mr. Horton moved to authorize Chief Groth to advertise for bids for a new fire pumper as requested in his communication of May 24, 1988. Supported Mrs. Brooks. Ayes all.

Brooks. Ayes all. Supervisor Breen said a letter was sent to the Attorney General's office asking that they comply with State Law regarding prison over-crowding, we have received no reply. During a meeting with the Warden of Western Wayne Correc-tional Facility we have learned that the prison population is at 593 which is 93 over the cap. They planned to take up to 620 prisoners, 120 over the cap. All prisoners being placed at Western Wayne Correctional Facility are violators of

Chiefs reach goal of being track champ

By Dan O'Meara staff writer

At the close of the last girls track and field season, Plymouth Canton was already thinking ahead to 1988.

The Chiefs, after falling a point shy of first place in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet a year ago, waited with patience and resolve for the next one to roll around.

Canton realized its year-long goal Tuesday as it held off Livonia Churchill to capture a coveted league championship at Northville.

"This was four years of hard work in one meet," said all-stater Angie Miller, who won the high jump, scored in two sprints and helped the Chiefs take a key third place in the 1,600-meter relay.

"It's just the best feeling," team-mate Tonya Walaskay added, "to know we have worked this hard for this meet and come here and won it."

'When the money is on the line, we've got a lot of kids who want to come out on the track . . . We have a lot of kids who want to take that last shot.'

> George Przygodski Canton track coach

CANTON HAD A 66-65 edge over the Chargers with two events remaining, but an impressive showing in the 3,200 run all but wrapped it up for the Chiefs. Churchill's Karen Kantor won the race, but Canton's Cindy Spessard, Kris Marquard and Cathy McCabe captured second, third and fifth places, giving the Chiefs 16 points in that event alone.

The Chiefs, leading 82-75 over the Chargers, needed only a fourthplace finish in the 1,600 relay to maintain their advantage. Church-ill was first in that event, too, but Canton did what it had to and was third.

"We had our doubts, but we knew we were going to score points at the end," said Canton coach George i. wh e team tr

"Having fresh legs in the late events was key. That was the first event those kids ran all day. That's where depth really pays off - in the distance events on a hot day.

"(The Chargers) won the event and we still outscored them by six points," he added. "Looking back, that definitely had to be the key event.

THE FINAL RACE was not without suspense, however. The Chiefs were in fifth place after two legs of the relay and would have lost 85-84 had they stayed there.

But Tricia Carney, running the third leg, brought the team up to third, and Miller held that position through the anchor leg.

"I figured I was the third runner, and that's usually not where the toughest runners are," said Carney, who felt as if a heavy weight had been taken off her shoulders when Miller told her the Chiefs needed only a third instead of first while waiting for the baton.

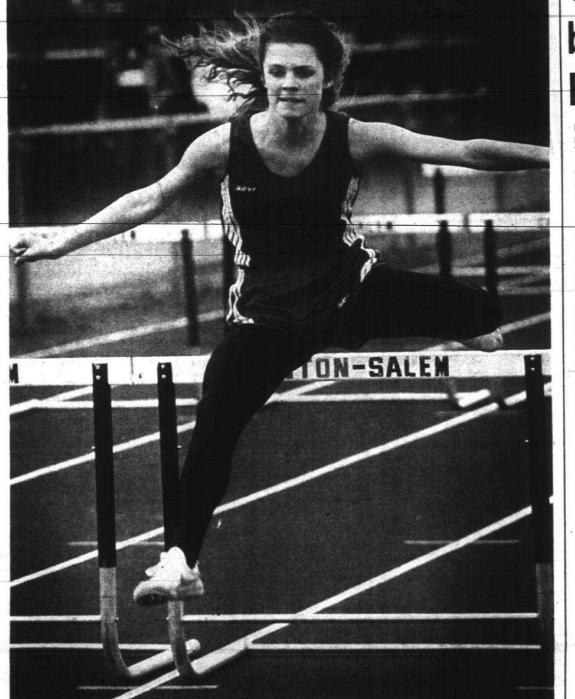

"I figured that would be to my advantage. I was feeling winded. But I knew I could run it, and it felt like the best quarter I ever ran.'

At the three-quarter mark of the final leg, it appeared Miller might have enough in reserve to come on and win the race, but she remained third as the Churchill runner refused to fold.

"I was so tired from the other events I said: 'Angie, just hold your place,' " Miller recalled. "If I didn't know the team was depending on me, I don't know if I could have made it through that event."

IN ADDITION TO running the relay and winning the high jump (5-3), Miller was second in the 400 dash and fourth in the 200 final.

"It was a great day for a great athlete," Przygodski said. "She ran great in the 200 — an event she's only run three times all year and she made a sacrifice for the good of the team by coming out of w to ru team's only first-place finish. Thus, it was depth that made the difference for the Chiefs, who scored fifth or higher in every relay.

Walaskay was another of the contributors, taking fifth in the long jump and third in the 100meter hurdles.

"I just wanted to score, because I knew we hadn't scored in those events recently," she said. "I knew if I could just hor

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS included Sherry Figurski, rated sixth among those entered in the 800 run going into the meet, finishing second and third-place Heather Spencer helping give Canton 16 points in the high jump, the event that kept the Chiefs afloat until the strong finish. Brighton

By Dan O'Mears staff writer

The next opponent in Plymouth Canton's continuing quest for soccer supremacy will not be so easily overcome

Saturday's regional final has "big game" written all over it.

Following a comparative breather Wednesday in which the Chiefs dropped Brighton 4-1, coach Don Smith's>team faces its biggest challenge based on the pre-tournament state rankings.

No. 1-rated Kalamazoo Central stands in the way of a regional championship for Canton, which improved to 14-2-1. Game time is set for 1 p.m. at Okemos High School.

The Maroon Giants, who eliminated Holland West Ottawa 4-0 Wednesday, represented themselves well last year when eventual state champ Plymouth Salem needed a shootout to get past them at the same stage of the tournament.

"FROM WHAT I understand, they're very aggressive, although our players usually rise to the occa-sion," Smith said. "If they play hard and aggressive, I'm sure our girls will do the same.'

After watching his team dispose of Brighton, 14-6-2 and champion of the Expressway League, with relative ease, Smith added a word of caution, however.

"The girls are so used to playing the Churchills and Stevensons I don't think they know how good Kalama-zoo can be," he said. "I think they'll realize it right away."

Perhaps junior Shannon Meath, who scored two goals in Canton's third straight post-season win, can help with the preparations. She has played opposite many of the Kalamazoo players during summer league competition.

"I know who they are and what skills they have," Meath said. "We've heard so much about them, so we know we'll have to get up. That game we'll play our game.'

THE CHIEFS DIDN'T play poorly by any means Wednesday, but one had to wonder if the 90-degree heat, injuries to two starters and some pregame distractions might have had a combined negative effect.

Not to mention the fact Canton was coming off its biggest win of the season - a 3-2 defeat of Salem in the district final - and was playing a team it had blanked 4-0 and outshot 31-0 in the season opener.

Canton wins city tourney; district rematch possible

By Steve Kowalski staff writer

The next meeting between Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem on the baseball diamond could be for more than bragging rights. Canton won the last rights Satur-day, defeating Salem 9-5 to capture the Plymouth City tournament, which also included Ann Arbor the Huron and Ann Arbor Pioneer.

In fact, Canton has won all three games against Salem this year, but neither coach is talking about a fourth meeting until it actually happens. Canton and Salem are among four teams in the Class A district Satur-day at Walled Lake Western, and there's a chance they could face each other again in the final. The Chiefs meet Bloomfield Hills Lahser in the semifinal round at 10 a.m., followed by Salem's semifinal game at noon against Novi. If both Canton and Salem win, they will meet for the championship at 2 p.m.

Price returns to cage game

staff writer

You may know Fred Price, the boys track coach, but Livonia Churchill fans will also reacquaint themselves with Fred Price, the boys bas ketball coach.

Price, who has turned out several outstanding track teams over the past two decades, was named last week to replace Don Albertson as the school's varsity cage coach. (Albertson resigned early last month after posting a record of 82-89 in eight seasons.)

It will be Price's second stint as Churchill varsity coach. He coached the Chargers from 1976 through '79, posting two winning seasons out of

"He's a very good basketball person and I'm pleased," said Churchill athletic director Larry Joiner, who conducted interviews for the vacant position along with principal William McFarland. "We're pleased to have somebody on the staff with his credentials who wanted to do the job. We're lucky to have him because he has high standards. I believe we'll have a complete program with him in there."

PRICE, WHO spent the past five years as the freshman boys coach, mulled over the decision right up until the May 13 application deadline for basketball

Livonia Public School employees

"In a person's life you have challenges and decided on the last day that I'd like to take it.' Price said. "One of the factors was since I teach in the building, I have a lot of pride and loyalty toward the Churchill athletic program." The decision to take another shot at the came after Price discussed the possibility of returning to varsity coaching with his family. "We talked about it a lot at home," said Price, whose son Greg will be a senior on the Northville basketball team, one of Churchill's divisional op-

(Price's daughter, Shannon, is also a three-sport athlete at Northville, while his wife, Linda, is an elementary school teacher in Livonia.)

"I did it knowing my son still had his senio year," Price said. "I know it's going to be a tough year for everybody to go through, but I think my family understands the situation."

PRICE SAID he'll remain as the school's track have his staff in line by the time the summer seacoach and will concentrate on basketball once the

"We'll sit down with the prospects as soon as w can and try to get something done this summer. the new coach said. "I know the district doesn't have middle school sports, but we'll have to work over the shortcomings. I'm going to work to the best of my ability. "We'll provide clinics again for the younger kids and hope some day the administration sees fit to reinstate a program for that age level. And I have faith they will bring it back."

Several Livonia basketball coaches, including Albertson, have resigned during the past couple of years in response to the district's unwillingness to' provide competitive feeder program for grades 7-

"It will be a tough year to get things started, but I know we'll work hard to run a class program," he said. "My five years as a freshman coach was a fun experience. It allowed me to be in basketball and support the Churchill program."

LAST SEASON, Churchill finished with a 12-10 record. Four of five starters graduated, with the exception of 6-3 junior forward Jason Belaire, who is a standout on Price's track team.

Price is unsure about who will coach the JV and reshman teams next year, but he said he plans to

Top-rated team Chiefs' next foe

"The thing is the girls get caught up in playing like the competition, Smith said. "It's always like that in any sport. If the other team plays slow so do you."

The Chiefs arrived in Brighton to find the game had been moved to another field due to flooding at the original site that damaged the foundation around a light pole

Then, the game was delayed nearly 30 minutes because two officials failed to show up and substitutes had to be recruited from the crowd.

FURTHERMORE, THE field at the new location wasn't in the best of shape since a game was not expected to be played there.

"This won't help our game, but if goalie, had to shift gears and take anybody was scouting us it won't Saul's place in the net with the game hurt us." Smith said "This was a good game for us." he added later, "but it wasn't a restful game for us, by no means, getting two people hurt.' If the other circumstances weren't enough, injuries early in the game added to Canton's frustration, which was magnified by the heat. The game was only seven minutes old when goalkeeper Jen Saul suf-fered a bruised shoulder, the result of a collision following a corner kick. Then fullback Chris Zawacki left the game with a bruised knee midway in the first half.

MICHELLE FORTIER, a mid-

By C.J. Risal

staff writer One of a soccer player's first lessons: Don't give up on the ball. It means persevere. Don't let up on a play. Farmington Hills Mercy applied that lesson in a broader sense in last night's state regional game against visiting Livonia Churchill. The Marlins, trailing by three goals with 12 minutes left, refused to give up.

And their perseverance almost cost Churchill The key word is "almost." Mercy mounted a miraculous rally in those final dozen minutes to knot the score at 3-all and force overtime, but Churchill was able to regain both its composure and the lead to post a 4-3 victory

THE WIN allows the Chargers (12-3) to advance to the regional finals against Troy at 7 p.m. Saturday at Troy Athens. Troy defeated Birmingham Marian 1-0 yesterday to

In the second 10-minute overtime, Rosemary Hally's free kick from the right side of the field got through to Shannon Stacherski, who punched it to Mandy Mase on the left side of the net. Mase booted it past Larabell for the game-winner

It never should have come to that. Churchill had not surrendered a goal in previous state tournament wins over Livonia Ladywood and Livonia Stevenson, and for nearly 70 minutes the Chargers had shutout Mercy. CHURCHILL SCORED once in the first half, when Tracy Lingeman's shot hit the crossbar and deflected into the net behind Marlin keeper Kelly Beaudry.

the pressure. It paid off twice in th first 20 minutes of the second half. as Stacherski and Lori Place teammed up twice for goals.

Farmington, despite an injury to one of its top sprinters, still won two relays and had the highest finish of the three city schools in the annual gathering of league schools, which took place at Northville.

Winning two field events (the 3,200-meter relay and the 100 hurdles), the Rocks were the early leaders. They scored 45 points in the first six events and were nine points ahead of eventual winner Plymouth Canton, then in second place.

Salem, however, failed to score in the next five events and managed just six the rest of the meet. "The events we scored in were the ones I expected us to," coach Mark

KANTOR AND SPRINTER Gretchen Loyd turned in sterling perfor mances for Churchill. Besides winning the 3,200 run, Kantor also captured the 1,600 and was second in the 800. Loyd claimed double wins, too, in the 400 and 200 dashes. "It was tough to lose by three points," said Churchill first-year coach Kelly Graham. "It would have been easier to take if we had lost by 20. I'm lisappointed, but we have a good, quality team."

Salem, which dominated the early part of the meet, had four first places Shelley Bohlen in the shot put, Kim Ploucha in the long jump, Jennifer Harris in the 100 hurdles and the 3,200 relay team.

Canton scored 74 points to earn third behind second-place Detroit Henry Ford with 82 and host Ypsilanti, which ran away from the field with 107 Conege. The Aggies scored 78 points in the team standings behind Detroit DePorres (148) and Redford St. Mary's of Detroit (97). Diana Lafrate was a double winner for the Aggies, capturing the discus (97 feet, 11 inches) and thet satt (31.51c)

The four-mile relay team notched Canton's only first, but four secondplace finishes and three thirds also were responsible for the Chiefs' lofty finish.

Members of the four-mile relay team which crossed the tape at 23:50.1 were Kris Marquard, Cindy Spessard, Lori Penland and Missy Jasnowski. The high jump relay crew of Angie Miller, Marisa Dersey and Tonya Walaskay finished second at 14-2. Penland, Sherry Figurski, Adrienne Garrow and Marnie Smith had a two-mile relay time of 10:37.2 and took a

The eight-mile relay team also finished second, and it consisted of Cindy Spessard, Marquard, Jasnowski and Cathy McCabe. In the 440 throwers relay, Katurah Reid, Carrie Pyhtila, Susan Ferko and Imeonaa Okwumadua had a 57.1 to finish second. Taking third with a combined long jump of 41-1/2 were Walaskay, Heather Miller and Figurski. The shuddle hurdle relay team of Bobbi Conville, Erin McDonald, Tina Allman and Walaskay also placed third at 1:14.1. Canton's other third-place showing came in the 880 relay in which Angie Miller, Kristy Brugar, Heather Miller and Tricia Carney clocked 1:49.6.

Student plans timber-wolf study

HE TIMBER WOLF population on Isle Royal, the last remaining population of timber wolves in Michigan, has dwindled down to a scarce few and a local student wants to know why. To find an answer Rochester Adams senior Bob Kowal will spend 10 days on the island this July conducting a study on the predator/prey relationship between the wolf and moose populations.

"I'd like to make a video, but I've been told it's pretty hard to video tape a timber wolf. I may have to rely on figures and numbers." Kowal said 'At one point, I think the population (of wolves on Isle Royal) was up around 50. That number should have dropped off some until it reached the carry ing capacity (of the island), then leveled off. It seems to be pretty low right now. They (Isle Royal rangers) are beginning to worry about extinc-

When Kowal completes the project he will submit a detailed report of his procedures, findings and conclusion to the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC). He'll receive a scholarship for his work ranging $350-$1,000.

KOWAL IS AMONG 11 Michigan high school students who qualified for the third annual Mich-Con/MUCC Scholarship Competition. The program is open to all high school juniors and seniors pursuing a career in natural resource manage ment. Contestants must plan and design a conservation-related project and manage the project to a successful completion by Sept. 30. The completed projects will be evaluated by a staff of profesthe remaining six will each receive a scholarship School for $350. The projects will be on display Feb. 24 to Travel Show at the Michigan State Fair Grounds.

A couple of other local students are also competing. Jonathon Chase, a senior at Southfield-Lathrup, will conduct a pond ecology study at the dations for restoring the ecological balance to the grade point average.

THOUSANDS OF ANGLERS will hit the waters of Lake Huron, Lake St. Clair, Lake Erie and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers this weekend for the fourth annual Walleye Weekend.

Prizes of a 16-foot Lund Rebel Aluminum boat, a Trailmaster trailer and a 30-horsepower Johnson outboard motor will be awarded to the anglers who catch the biggest walleye on each body of water. Other prizes will also be awarded, including the grand prize of a 28-foot Sea Ray Amberjack boat for catching one of three specially lagged walleye.

True, anglers participating in Walleye Weekend will be the winners. But the real winners will be a special group of children. Sponsored by the American Lung Association of theast Michigan and Charley's Restaurants Inc. the tournament will benefit the ALASM. "The bottom line is that the money from Walleve Weekend will be used to support a specific program: Camp Sun Deer," said Jim Stickney, community relations director for ALASM. "Camp Sun Deer is a summer camp for children with severe asthma. The camp is totally free to the children, and it offers them an opportunity to have a normal camping experience. Usually, because of medication and special care, these kids can't go camping, but with the staff and facilities at Camp Sun Deer (including nurses, pharmacists and doctors) they have this opportunity."

Last year the tournament raised $31,000 for ALASM. Tournament officials are shooting to raise a record $40,000 this year.

Registration is $15, and today is the last day to register. Interested anglers may register at the Lung Association, 18860 W. 10 Mile, Southfield. Call Stickney for details at 559-5100.

Ballet activity can affect menstrual cycle

Dear Myrna: I'm a ballet dancer. I've been dancing 14 years. The last few years I've had bad problems with stress fractures in my feet. My menstrual cycle is totally out of order. I hardly have one. I've been concerned lately. Can you give me some information?

Have you been seeing a doctor regularly? An an exercise expert, I derive some of my knowledge from medical journals I read. Ballet dancers are overworked. Aerobic instructors share similar problems (I know - sometimes I'm an overworked aerobic instructor

While ballet dancers always have been admired for their spirit and form, they are not without problems as you are discovering. You should know that a high incidence of irregular menstrual periods has been observed in young ballet dancers. The skeletal proportions and hormonal secretions have been observed to be altered, although no permanent medical problems have been reported.

Also, a delay in menarche (first menstrual period) and prolonged intervals of absent menstrual periods may predispose dancers to stress fractures. Low estrogen levels often occur when the menstrual cycle is disturbed.

In a recent study published by the New England Journal of Medicine, 75 professional dancers were surveyed for menstrual disorders, numbers of injuries and fractures and eating disorders. The results show 24 percent of those dancers were found to have scoliosis of the spine, and dancers with scoliosis had a delayed menarche by an average of two years. This 24 percent also showed abnormal eating behavior. More than half of these 75 dancers suffered stress fractures - mostly in the feet. The conclusion suggests that low levels of estrogen, which lowers calcium absorption, were a primary cause for the increased stress fractures and scoliosis. The dancers' diets also were found to be low in calcium and Vitamin D.

For you, the answer might be to monitor your diet to ensure adequate intake of calcium and Vitamin D. Be aware of overtraining which may carry a price tag that is too high.

You didn't indicate just how much you dance. Obviously, too much (or at least for now). Take it easy!

Stevenson girls coach calling it quits

By Steve Kowalsk staff writer

One of the "Founding Mothers" of Norene Divens, the only girls soccer coach in the history of the sport at Livonia Stevenson, has resigned to devote more time to her teaching duties. A long-time gymnastics instructor. Divens also was responsible in 1974 for forming the games. first-ever competitive girls soccer team in Livonia

Divens guided Stevenson to two state Class A titles and a 10-year record of 153-23-12 overall. No successor has been named. Stevenson athletic director Roger Fraver said.

Divens coached her last game Saturday, when Stevenson bowed out of the state Class A playoffs, losing 1-0 to Livonia Churchill in district play.

VILBERT SILVERMAN. internationally Known art collector and a leading arts benefactor, has been ordered by the city of Farmington Hills to remove the structure in front of the building at 30833 Northwestern (south of 13 Mile) in which the offices of Holtzman and Silverman are located. He's contest-ing the order. For one thing he objects to the word "structure." As far as Silverman, sculptor Michael Hall, head of the Cranbrook Academy of Art sculpture department, and many arts-oriented people are concerned, "Covington," 1977 is a work of art. But Farmington Hills has no provision in its building code for a work of art and the six-member Zoning Board of Appeals voted 5-1 against having it on the lawn in front of the building.

Silverman said, "I'm going to pursue any legal means my attorney (Kaufman and Payton) advises me.

Lee Blizman, supervisor of code enforcement, said, "A structure in the front yard is not permitted signs and flag poles are exceptions." Farmington Hills city manager William Costick said he had had complaints about it as long as a month ago, "People think it's a piece of fence. People think it's an old bar-ricade, and they wonder how long we're gonna leave it there."

LOUIS REDSTONE, Livoniabased architect, artist and author of the book, "Public Art, New Direc-tions," made a special trip out to see the work.

"It is an absolute work of art," he aid. "This (kind of furor over a work of art) happened in Grand Rapids, in Chicago — all over the country. In Grand Rapids, it was the Calder, now they have a festival around it every year . . . sculpture is just like jazz or classical music, people have to be educated to appreciate it."

Beverly Ellis, chairwoman of the Farmington Area Arts Commission and retired chair of elementary art for the Farmington schools, said she hadn't been contacted about it, but she had some definite opinions nevertheless

"Art in a public place is a tremendous move. If the piece of art is by a Noguchi Fountain ih Detroit's Hart Plaza when it was first erected and the many people who called a (Don Snider) sculpture at the corner or Maple and Telegraph a pile of junk when it first went up. Both are still there and the complaints have subsided.

"You don't have to like it to appreciate it. It's a matter of respect for the work. I still think it boils down to appreciation. I can appreciate something, but I wouldn't want it in my house. If they want this in their front yard, that's fine. Anything man makes is subject to positive and negative criticism."

ARTIST GLEN MICHAELS has done major sculptural installations and commissions throughout the country, including Detroit Receiving Hospital and the People Mover and currently has a major commission for the the Library, Museum and Archives in Lansing. He looked at a photograph of the sculpture and had an immediate response.

"He's based it on a symbol of Americana," Michaels said. "We're rushing into development (of the countryside) so fast that soon the only thing that's left of the past will be Michael Hall's sculpture. He's one of the few artists in the United States salvaging a poetic memory of the past. Nobody knows what a country stile or a farm gate is anymore." Hall's work hasn't gone unnotic by people who work and do busine along Northwestern. notice

tographer from Marysville, and Don Helson of Ferndale looked at it from parking lot of the building across the highway.

"If you had told me it was a fence, I would have said it looks like a broken down fence they were going to haul away," Meadows said with a wry smile.

Helson, a retired professional wood carver, smiled in agreement.

"I thought they were just moving junk," he said. "It does nothing for that building. All that does is become an eyesore.

Dennis Stevens of Lake Angelus who stopped in the parking lot beside the sculpture, said, "When I saw it, I said to myself wouldn't that be neat if that was the place where there really was a gate. I have a thing (sculpture) in a build I have in Pontiac.

Craftsman's Cove fills gaps for wood artists

By Mary Rodrique staff writer

AT AND MARY Jene Sharp's Canton Township home is a testimony to Pat's hobby.

A wall unit here, an impressive cabinet with fancy molding to house Pat's rifle collection there, and a seven-foot oak dining table are a few of Pat's handiwork.

The grandson of a master cabi-netmaker, Sharp learned the trade early in life.

Then he put the tools aside for more than a dozen years and began a career at Ford Motor Co., where he still works today at the Sheldon Road closet Road plant. When he and Mary Jene married seven years ago, his boyhood hobby was rekindled.

"I WANTED A mantel. He had the tools," Mary Jene said. Hesitant at first, Pat was up for the challenge after Mary Jene priced mantels that retailed for $800. "It cost us $20 for the wood for him to build it," she said. Sharp fine-tuned his craft by building bookshelves and wall units for his family and friends. Then came the more difficult pieces — his tall rifle cabinet, the table, and currently a bedroom suite. "The problem was that he al-ways seemed to need special parts that were available only by mail order through catalogues," she said

But the net result was "solid oak ieces, the kind that become family heirlooms, and not one cost more than a few hundred dollars," Mary Jene said.

But the aggravation of tracking down parts was taking its toll.

A wooden side leaf for the dining table took six months of heavy in-vestigation and downright pleading with a Grand Rapids furniture maker to track down.

"ONE DAY MY HUSBAND was talking with a member of the Livo-nia carving association, who also works at Ford, and they were com-plaining about the trouble of get-ting things. You can't find these types of specialty items at your big hardware chains," she said. So the Sharps, already filled with a desire to go into business for themselves, decided a specialty shop for woodworking hobbyists like themselves would be just the thing. "ONE DAY MY HUSBAND was FURNITURE PATTERNS. FURNITURE PATTERNS, books on wood carving, routing and assorted building topics, strips of custom-designed molding specific for cabinetry, and professional wood turning tool sets are among the early inventory in stock. "You can't find these specialty items at big hardware chains. We're not going to compete with them. We want to fill in the gaps," she said.

Cabinetry accessories include kitchen sliders for easy tracking of pois and pans in low cabinets, a television slide mount that allows the viewer to pull out and also ro-tate the TV from its cabinet shelf, ornate brass cabinet handles, mag-net hinges, wood glue, aluminum oxide sandpaper — even dust

Booking ahead for summer

WAS at the luncheon Detroit Women Writers puts on every spring, waiting to hear what Stuart Dybek (easily one of my favorite writers) had to tell us, when someone asked me if I'd read any good books lately.

I rattled off a few titles - "Reconciliations" (a gorgeous book, "A Jewish 'Ordinary People,' " one reviewer called it) by Elizabeth Klein, a new and good friend I met while at Ragdale; "The Elizabeth Stories" by Isabel Huggan (wonderfully funny, too-true adolescent experiences); "Walking Across Egypt" by Clyde Edgerton (this book defies description. The jacket says. "The story of a spunky woman, a stray dog, a teenage delinquent, and the best home-cooking in Listre, North Carolina." That's good, though not quite it. Others have called it "deli-"wise," "witty" and even "rollicking." I guess I would add "unforgettable." I can see myself visiting and revisiting Mattie and the other characters over and over again.)

I told the woman I'd been reading stories - lots and lots of short stories, including Peter Taylor's "The Old Forest and other Stories" (Wow!), Ellen Gilchrist's "In the Land of Dreamy Dreams" (Is that a great title? Could you resist?), Minnesota story-teller Carol Bly's collection. "Backbone," and, finally, after all these years, Tillie Olson's "Tell Me a Riddle.'

BUT THE ONE BOOK I forgot to mention - I can't believe it - was Marilynn Robinson's "Housekeeping." Much as I loved that book when I read it just weeks ago, I had forgotten all about it until this morning, when I read a review of the movie from the book starring Birmingham's own, extremely talented, Christine Lahti. I knew before I read the book that Lahti was making the movie, and now I can't picture anyone else as the irredeemably weird Aunt Sylvie.

The language in "Housekeeping" is breathtaking, to put it mildly, and worth the effort it takes to drag yourself away from the characters and rest awhile in its mythic descriptions The book takes place in Western Montana in a town called Fingerbone. Two young girls, orphaned when their mother's second attempt at suicide succeeds, live first with their beloved grandmother, then briefly with two maiden aunts terrified of raising children, and finally with their mother's sister, Aunt Sylvie, their only known living relative.

Sylvie is a mystery, even after she arrives. A Mary Poppins she is not, the girls discover, as tin cans fill up the living room and huge leaves collect in corners, and sofas pulled outside to air are left to fade and finally disintegrate.

SHE MIGHT HAVE been a hobo. She might have had a hus- a friend's home and asking about the books on the shelves. band - and children. needs it to get to an island - a mystical island - where, Sylvia says, children hide. One night she takes Ruthie, the youngest of the girls (and the book's narrator), to the island, and they barely get into the boat before the owner reaches the shore: "Lady!" he bawled. "I ignore him," Sylvie said. "He always acts like that. If he thinks someone's watching him, he just carries on more." "I turned around and watched Sylvie. Her handling of the boat was strong and easy. When we were about 100 yards from the shore she turned the boat toward the north. The man, now back on the beach, was still yelling and dancing his wrath and pitching stones after us. 'It's pitiful,' Sylvie said. 'He's going to have a heart attack someday.

"It must be his boat," I suggested. "Sylvie shrugged, 'Or he might just be some sort of lunatic, she said."

"Housekeeping" is disturbing, sad, funny, loving - and so exquisite I find myself time and again opening a page - any page - to read and sigh and read again.

INCIDENTALLY, I found out about both "Housekeeping" and "Walking Across Egypt" through bookstore employees who had read and loved them. Last summer I took a walking tour of Traverse City book stores and - this is the truth - after the briefest of conversations about books, each and every one of the booksellers asked me if I had read Olive Ann Burns' "Cold Sassy Tree." (I was beginning to think there was a conspiracy afoot - that they had all bought stock in Olive Ann Burns but, OK, I read the darn book and it was every bit as wonderful as they all told me it would be.)

So don't hesitate to ask those people wandering around in bookstores anything you ever wanted to know about books. It's amazing how much those people read! They know everything. In fact, some bookstores even make up special racks of books recommended by their sales help. I like that. It's like going into

> → ORDON STAPLES HAD heard Durwood (Woody) V. Varner, the first chancellor of Oakland University, talk about a music festival at Meadow Brook several years before it came into being. "The entire orchestra was very excited about the project," said

Staples, who recently retired as DSO concertmaster. Staples was reminiscing about the early days of the Meadow Brook Music Festival, currently celebrating its 25th season.

"In those days, being a member of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra wasn't a ull-time job. We used to play at Belle Isle for a couple of weeks, and at the Fairgrounds for a few weeks in the summer, but it was no means a full schedule," he said.

"I was so enthusiastic about the project when it finally got started in 1964 that I used to drive out and watch it being built."

GROUND BREAKING FOR THE festival began Feb. 29, 1964. Beginning uly 23, the first season ran until Aug. 15. Concerts were given on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Prices were: $3 for reserved seats, $2 for inreserved, and $1 for general admission. There was a discount for season tickets.

"From the beginning," said Oliver Green, DSO clarinetist, "then-conductor Sixten Ehrling had a hard and fast rule: No composition could be performed at Meadow Brook that the DSO had performed the previous season or would perform during the next one.

"He canceled his European engagements for that summer to launch the estival, and he insisted that subscription-series quality be maintained. There were three or four full rehearsals for each performance. In contrast, for the Fairgrounds concerts, there was just one rehearsal for three concerts of semiclassical music," Green said.

"Three or four rehearsals may sound like a lot," Green said, " but don't forget that in many instances, the DSO musicians were playing unfamiliar pieces. Since Ehrling thought people probably wouldn't come to hear the same pieces hey could hear in the regular concert season, he often selected pieces that the orchestra had never played before."

"It was sometimes a tough, strange repertoire that season, but the performances were good, fresh, spontaneous," Green said.

"Ehrling was a master programmer. Everything always fit in beautifully. The ograms were always well balanced. The audiences were wonderful, very excited. They knew they were involved in an adventure and the enthusiasm was ontagious.

ASK ANYONE INVOLVED in the festival and he will tell you that the stival performances are hardly ever rained out. This is not the same as saying that it doesn't rain. It's just that the audiences don't give up. They come dressed for the rain and, of course, many seats are sheltered from the elements.

"When it's cold, " Staples said, "the woodwinds go down and the strings go ap. Humidity is the worst. And, if it's raining really hard, orchestra members. can't hear the music. On the whole, though, we've been lucky. I think only one oncert has been rained out."

(In 1967, guest pianist Van Cliburn's concert was canceled because of damage aused by the high winds that accompany a tornado, but he wasn't rained out.) Staples agrees that the acoustics "are marvelous for an outdoor facility: they rate with the best indoor halls."

RAIN WAS PREDICTED FOR opening night. There is a story that Woody" Varner had his secretary check the weather forecast every half hour the day before the performance to see if the odds had improved. Staples, acting concertmaster at the time, and cellist Italo Babini played the Brahms double concerto at that first concert at Meadow Brook. As it happened, it was a beautiful, clear evening, and, just like in the movies, full moon appeared over the horizon just as the first notes of Wagner's "Der Meistersinger" overture sounded.

As the concert ended with Sibelius' Second Symphony, 2,500 people sprang to heir feet and cheered. They're still cheering.

Memories

FTER 25 years, memories and Meadow Brook have become synonymous Take Plymouth attorney John C. Stewart. for instance. During the mid-'60s, specifically the summers of 1965. '66 and '67. Stewart recalls having "the great opportunity to live on the campus of Oakland University and study with some of the most outstanding American musicians.

They included James Levine. Lynn Harrell and Istomin. Stern & Rose, and Robert Shaw.

"As a member of the high school choir, I will always remember the thrill of singing the Bach B-minor Mass and the Chichester Psalms by Bernstein Also it was a verv special privilege to be a student onductor under Robert Shaw."

In fact, Stewart has a picture of himself with Shaw autographed by the noted chorale director.

SUSAN MCCARTY of Troy has another remembrance.

"I went to an Andy Williams concert with my friend Barb. Some nostalgia group from before mv time warmed up the crowd by inviting us to sing 'Anytime.

"I catch on to melodies quickly, so I faked the words and sang along. When the lead singer waved the mike in Barb's face, she clamped shut, so he stuck it in mine. I obliged, and belted out: "Anytime, I'm too young to know the words.

I brought the house down. How many people do you know who sang with Andy at Meadow Brook?

ANE Comstock of Livonia contributes this: "We invited my sister and now deceased father (who I thank for musical appreciation) to a Mathis/ Mancini concert. It was a beautiful evening, weatherwise. Both artists were perfoming at their best. As Johnny was singing 'Heavenly,' I leaned back on elbows to glimpse skyward. And in an awesome flash, a shooting meteor arched its way from right to left over the pavillion Lawn occupants went wild, much to the bewilderment of under-the-roof patrons. That once-in-a-lifetime thrill quenched mnay years of wishfully coveting the luxury of upclose, more comfortable seating."

Things haven't changed all that much at Meadow Brook concerts in the 25 years they've been going on. This is the very first opening night, Thursday, July 23, 1964

7ITH ITS open-air pavilion. its crescent of trees standing sentinel around the hollow of a hillside, the Meadow Brook Music Festival is made for music and for memories. The smell of freshly cut grass and the mid-summer-night magic of stars in an open sky make the festival a charmed place.

For the past 24 summers, people have gathered there, and each summer the lore of Meadow Brook grows.

There's a magic about the place and a madcap serendipity that sparks memories of summer evenings spent in the Baldwin Pavilion or on the hillside under the stars.

Marian Bunt, who worked on ticket committees and women's activities in the festival's early days, remembers. "There were just brambles and woods. and out of it came a gorgeous pavilion.

"The whole thing happened because Woody Varner had a dream and Jim Hicks helped make it come true."

Open-air pavilions were rather new when the Baldwin Pavilion was built. and Bunt said the staff worried about acoustics

'We all prayed, crossed our fingers and our legs that first night because you don't know how it'll sound until the first notes come out." she said

They needn't have worried: Audiences and players alike note the excellent acoustics at Meadow Brook. They're so good that Bunt said. "You can stand in the center of the stage and be heard at the top of the hill without amplifical

HERE IS still an air of the bucolic about Meadow Brook on a May morning, if you face away from the pavilion and look over the spot where the Wilsons' horses used to graze. Aside from the cacophony of birds, and the wind mourning through the pines, there is only the sharp rap-rap-rap of a lone hammer on the structure that will soon be the Meadow Brook Music Festival's new gift shop.

"It's the original grass, but most of the trees have been planted since the festival began." George Karas knows whereof he speaks. In 1957, as he was about to enter graduate school in civil engineering, and the idea of an Oakland University was still in its earliest stages, he was hired by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson to be the head of campus planning.

Now the site of the Meadow Brook Music Festival, the meadow was the "retirement home" for the Belgians, hackneys and riding horses that the Wilsons showed in competition all over the country. When the horses got old, they were sent here to live out their days. The two barns ("We've spent a $1.98 to keep them, but they are Meadow Brook.") at the festival entrance, now used to store picnic tables, were once shelters for out-to-pasture show horses.

"I REMEMBER WHEN the Wilsons made a trip to Scotland, and brought back some Shetland ponies. They used to come right up to the door of the house where I lived with my wife and three children, and we would give them treats," Karas said.

Eighteen months after Karas joined the staff. Oakland University opened. Mrs. Wilson took a great interest in the university, and was active in its affairs until she died in September 1967.

"One day in 1963, "Woody" Varner (Durwood B. Varner, first chancellor of Oakland University) called me in and said. "George, let's build an outdoor festival for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Select a site.'

HE GIFT shop at the Meadow Brook Music Festival, which was wedged into a tiny eight foot area on Trumbull Terrace, will have expanded quarters this season when its new building is complete.

The new shop nestles into the hillside on the landscaped grounds between the terrace and Baldwin Pavilion and features cedar siding, sliding glass doors and a sloping overhang.

Jane Mosher, director of community relations and group sales for the festival, says the gift shop in its old location couldn't increase revenues without adding space to display the varied gifts popular with concert-goers. Tshirts sporting the music festival logo sell briskly year after year, so do umbrellas and sweat shirts, stationery with notes dancing the boarders, tote bags, and blankets

This year the gift shop will be able to stock and display a wider variety of merchandise to please music buffs who want to buy a gift with a musical motif or want a memento to remember the expansive pleasure of music played in the open air on the rolling green grounds of Oakland University.

Members of the Festival Women's Committee operate the shop and donate its profits to the festival. Mosher explains that ticket sales for concerts cover only 80 percent of festival expenses and remaining revenues come from corporate fund drives, advertising in the program book, the Rochester Festival Club, gifts and grants, and from the hard-working efforts of the women's committee. Since 1980, the Meadow Brook Festival Women's Committee has raised the substantial sum of $350,000 for the festival

MOSHER STRESSES that the committee really is a "working" organization. Each of its 100 members must work in the gift shop five nights each summer from six o'clock in the evening until the grounds close after the concert. They also work five nights selling raffle tickets for the car donated each season by one of the auto companies.

This year an elegant silver Lincoln Continental loaded with a CD player and a starlight roof will be raffled off to benefit the Meadow Brook Music Festival

On any given night, three-to-four women work in the gift shop. Several more may be out on the grounds selling from a white cart with jaunty green and white canopy while another contingent of workers persuades people to support the festival and take a chance at winning the display car gleaming in the sunshine

On Aug. 23 the women's committee will sponsor its sixth annual benefit fashion show on the festival grounds. Benefactor tickets at $50 each include lunch on Trumbull Terrace which will be canopied for the event.

A fashion-show-only ticket, for $25. includes a tea that follows the presentation of the latest fall fashions by lacobson's

The women's committee began 10 years ago with 12 energetic women who resolved that it should be a working rather than a figurehead organization, so they set in motion money-making projects to benefit the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

MEADOWBROOK MUSIC FESTIVAL

June 2, 1988

Handling the job of arranging 70 performances in the upcoming summer series is the job of Stuart C. Hyke (left), managing director. Shown with him is Robert A. Dearth, director of cultural affairs.

Programming: A finely tuned

balancing act

'You'd have to be totally indifferent to music not to find something of interest in the current season. There will be 70 performances, offering a broad spectrum of talent. . . It's a sort of balancing act: If you're perceived to be too innovative, the traditional audience will feel abandoned. At the same time, it's vitally important that we attract newer audiences."

"There were three natural am phitheatres on the grounds. The present site had the best features of the three: it was isolated from the rest of the campus, there was room for expansion. and accessibility from the road. However, it was near Mrs. Wilson's residence, and we naturally went to her with our plans. She simply said, 'I like music, too,' and we went out together to look at the site. The next day we started dynamiting stumps out of the ground." Karas' admiration for Mrs. Wilson is evident, and his voice softens when he speaks of her.

The site today is little altered from the site that Mrs. Wilson approved. Aside from the trees that have been planted, the hillside next to the pavilion was enlarged, and the front entrance was altered slightly so that the vista would "open up" as you drive up the dirt road that today leads to the ticket office.

"AT FIRST, THE plan was for all spectators to sit on the hillside listening to music being performed on a portable stage. The site is natural for a stage, and finally it was decided to erect the present pavilion for the first festival. The Rochester Community School District lent 1.000 folding chairs for the entire first season. This is just one example of the splendid community - cooperation from the start.

"Parking was, and still is, helterskelter, and traffic is a recurring problem. The Oakland County Road Commission has been very cooperative. Periodically, someone will suggest VIP parking, but that's contrary to the spirit of the festival. Only symphony members have special parking spaces. For the rest, it's come one, come all, Karas noted Parking and traffic aren't the only perennial problem. "At the beginning, we had planed to use porta-johns. Things got so bad, though, that I remember the ladies desperately storming the men's facilities, which weren't as busy as the ladies," he said.

"Originally, we were dependent upon a well for water. One night, the well failed. At the intermission, Varner made the announcement, 'Ladies and gentlemen: there is no water available. However, there are plenty of trees available, so please disperse to the woods.' As he made the announcement, the Rochester Fire Department pulled up with a 1,000 gallon water tank and saved the day.'

(Water lines have since been run to Meadow Brook, thanks to federal funds granted during the Carter administration: it had been established that there was insufficient water for adequate fire protection.)

HEN THE Meadow Brook Music Festival opened on July 23, 1964, it was the dream of its founders that it would evolve into a summer arts program similar to Tanglewood. That first year, from July 23 to Aug. 15, there were a total of 12 concerts by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

For the past 10 years, managing director Stuart C. Hyke has been responsible for the dream that is Meadow Brook. "We are trying to broaden the festival so that there is something to appeal to every musical taste." said the ebullient Hyke "You'd have to be totally indifferent to music not to find something of interest in the current season. There will be more than 70 performances, offering a broad spectrum of talent

"In terms of classical offerings we do as much or more as we did in the past We have constituencies. We try never to abandon the people who have supported us through the years. in terms of offering the DSO and guest orchestras. At the same time, we try to attract people who have never come to the festival. "It's a sort of balancing act: If you're perceived to be too innovative. the traditional audience will feel abandoned. At the same time, it's vitally important that we attract newer audi-PRCPS

"A Ford Foundation study found that the chances of attracting someone over 30 to a type of entertainment that they have not previously experienced is much more difficult than if you can get them under the age of 30. So it's important to develop interest in attending concerts at a young age.

IN STARTING THE Children's Concerts, we hoped to get the children coming at about the age of three and above. I'm very excited by the fact that the hottest tickets this season are for Sharon, Lois, & Bram, the stars of TV's "The Elephant Show." "This is our first foray into using national talent for the Children's Concert Series - we also have Bob McGrath, of "Sesame Street." - and I'm extremely pleased with the results. It's a good way to introduce people to the Festival at a young age

"For many years." he continued most of our core audience was 40 and above. The Summer Solid Gold Series has helped bring in a lot of people from 30 to 45, and some contemporary concerts will bring in some as young as their teens. And now, the Children's Concerts will bring them in as young as three years old! We have the gamut pretty well covered

"It's a challenge to have the right mix of talent." he said. "We try to put acts together that make sense together. We wouldn't put Perry Como and a veteran rock star on the same program. If a specific audience is interested in a particular type of music, we put that type together and build a series "

"Series ticket sales are a very important part of our offering, accounting for about 13 of ticket sales. On the whole, we've had a very high batting average, but we've had a few acts no names, please) that have gone down to very loud or very quiet deaths at the box office

We rarely compete with Pine Knob for talent, mainly because of capacity. They can book acts that need a large audience to make a profit: our facility. being smaller, can accommodate a wide range of offerings on a more intimate scale.

It's impossible to discuss outdoor entertainment in Michigan without mentioning the capricious Michigan weather. Most events take place from mid-June to the end of August. Some weeks there will be performances seven nights a week, with children's programs or matinees some afternoons, so the logistics get pretty intricate. In a more temperate climate, you could have a longer season, but in Michigan you'd really be taking a chance.

'We must all be living right though, because we have only been rained out once. It was during a matinee of "Chorus Line" in 1985. It rained so much that summer that I was about to start lining up pairs of animals. During this performance, we had already shut off the electricity because of lightning.

"If you know 'Chorus Line," you know most of the action takes place on a three-inch white line that runs across the middle of the stage. Where did our roof spring a leak? Right over the white line." he said with a wry grin

Hyke emphasized that it's impossi ble to overestimate the importance of volunteers to Meadow, Brook's suc-

"The whole reason we've been able to exist for 25 seasons is community support: Our volunteers on our executive committee, the Rochester Festival Club. the Festival Women's Commit tee While we do an efficient job as possible in supporting ourselves there's no doubt that, offering cultura entertainment, we'd never be in a position whereby we could sell enough tickets or price them in such a way that we wouldn't lose money

We would never have gotten off the ground the first season or per severed throughout the 25 seasons if it weren't for the interest and dedication of the volunteers in the community chewing snafus. Spittle recalls when Meadow Brook had booked one of the first laser shows. "Space, Music and Lasers" in 1978

The show used trucks to transport equipment from booking to booking and they ran on a tight timetable. The snafu arose because three cities in the United States happen to be named Rochester - the home of the Meadow Brook Music Festival in Michigan, another in New York and a third in Minnesota.

The driver of one of the trucks loaded with laser gear hopped in his cab and drove all the way to Rochester. Minn., before he realized he'd gone to the wrong Rochester. Spittle remembers the nervous afternoon spent waiting for the wayward truck to arrive so the crew could set up for that evening's show.

"It arrived very late in the day. he recalls. "Another time we went to pick up equipment that had gone to Rochester, N.Y. We have to be very careful and be sure they know we're in Rochester. Michigan." and he stresses the Michigan.

When Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg. a popular classical violinist, ran into bad weather in Aspen, she had to take a much later flight than scheduled. Neither Nadja nor the DSO wanted to go on without a chance to rehearse tricky passages, but the later flight cut severely into planned rehearsal time. Spittle solved the problem by renting a helicopter to speed her from the airport to rehearsal.

The chopper pilot met her at the gate at Metro airport, flew her to the parking lot opposite Meadow Brook Theatre where Spittle met her in a car and whisked her, under police escort, to rehearsal.

Spittle says, "She didn't know anything about all this and had already had a horrendous day when a chopper pilot she'd never seen before met her plane and told her to get into this helicopter." After a brief rehearsal with the orchestra, she promptly got sick and went to sleep, but her performance that night was good."

BONNELL REMEMBERS when Debbie Boone discovered one hour before show time that she'd lost a silver shoe she needed to go with the gown she wore in performance. She sent a panicked SOS to Bonnell

Because most stores had closed by that hour, Mary raided the costume collection of Meadow Brook Theatre. In the nick of time, she found a pair of silver shoes and luck was on her side — they were the right size.

Luck, however, deserted her completely when guest conductor Neville Marriner's performance suit got locked in the dry cleaners.

Marriner had conducted on a hot Thursday night and Bonnell offered to have his suit cleaned before his next performance on Sunday. She admits she completely forgot Saturday to pick up his clothes at the cleaners

although she wishes she could repress the memory

"The owner was up north and couldn't be reached so I called the police, but they couldn't get in so Mr. Marriner had to wear an ill-fitting jacket for his performance. He was so good natured about it."she recalled.

"It was his custom to wear a black silk handkerchief in his breast pocket for good luck. He thought a black sock more fitting to his borrowed jacket and stuck one in the pocket before he went to stage." she added.

Bonnell and Spittle try to accommodate requests of visiting artists because they understand the frustrations of life on the road. "Performers live out of suitcases. It's not the glamorous life everyone thinks." Bonnell says. "All they see is the inside of airplanes, the inside of hotel rooms and the inside of dressing rooms."

The Meadow Brook staffs spends an eight- to 12-hour day with guest artists while they set up sound. lights and stage equipment, rehearse, and adjust the monitor mix on the sound system the way the performer likes it. The festival often provides food for the artists and their crews. "You can't have Sammy Davis Ir. popping into Bill Knapps to have a burger "Bonnell added

Typical fare includes cereal, fruit and Danish for breakfast, a deli tray salad, sandwiches or grilled hot dogs for lunch and a good but not elaborate dinner because the festival's kitchen facilities are limited.

EVERY PERFORMER'S CON-TRACT specifies details of what the dressing room will contain and what the music festival agrees to provide the cast and crew. Most performers spell out their special requests in a contract rider that can get down to details as specific as the color of towels in the dressing room and the brands of drinks in the refrigerator.

Sammy Davis Jr. requests Strawberry Crush because it makes his tongue red when he performs. When he came to Meadow Brook, he wanted four cases of it for himself and his crew. "We had to go to Ohio to get it," Bonnell remembers.

Johnny Mathis drinks Dom Perignon champagne and Judy Collins likes chicken soup made absolutely without salt. Restaurant kitchens just don't make soup without any salt, so Bonnell cooked up a batch at home for her. The story doesn't end there. When a driver picked up the soup at Mary's house to bring it to the festival, it spilled in the car and left a perfectly saltless mess to clean

Joan Baez eats health food and asked to have granola and fresh fruit grown without pesticides in her dressing room, but she included a sweet loophole in her healthy regime - she also wanted a two-pound box of chocolates

When Stephen Stills was performing on his own a few years back before reuniting with Crosby and Nash, his contract rider listed a menu for every day of the week. Entertainers may perform in a different town every night and they risk being served almost identical menus dav after day. Good as it is, chicken gets boring six days a week, so Stephen Stills spelled out a solution in his contract.

Very few bad apples show up at Meadow Brook Music Festival. Bonnell remembers fending off the advances of one who will remained unnamed. She called him a "sleazebal comedian who backed me in a corner and covered my face with kisses.

Spittle comments that some Rock and Roll bands have made exorbitant requests for Courvoisier Cognac and imported beers and members of a band, which will also remain nameless, behaved like slobs and didn't endear themselves to the festival staff.

Except for a very few rude entertainers, both Bonnell and Spittle say most artists are "everyday" folks Spittle says. "Entertaining just hap pens to be what they do for a living. Which is not to say they're just like the folks next door. "Their working environment doesn't breed normality." Spittle says but he praises the many decent. friendly people he's gotten to know.

Entertainers may be in Rochester for only a day or so at a time, but the long, intense day working and eating together cements friendships, especially when entertainers return year after year

Bonnell counts Tony Bennett and Andy Williams among others, as genuine friends. She threw a 60th birthday party for Tony last year and often runs Andy's son to the "golden arches" when he has a Big Mac attack

The upbeat side of the business far outweighs its negatives because the people are nice. Spittle enjoys the old time friendliness of Country and Western stars such as Emmy Lou Harris and Reba McIntyre and their crews. "They're smiling, friendly and gracious. They treat everyone as their friend." Donny and Marie Osmond travel with a huge entourage of family including brothers and lots of children. "They're a lovely, wholesome family," Bonnell says, "but it's chaotic and it seems like there's never enough food for all of them.'

Star stories spill out of both Bonnell and Spittle. Once tale leads to an even better one as they recall their years catering to the entertainers at the Meadow Brook Music Festival.

Jim now works as assistant to the general director of Meadow Brook Theatre where he worries about things other than late airplanes and sound system snafus.

After 12 summers on the job, a successor will take over Mary's exhausting, but fascinating job as hostess to the stars, but she'll continue as costume director for Meadow Brook Theatre during the fall and winter season hillside is arrayed with a patchwork of blankets, bedspreads, and ponchos from all over the state.

As the sun inches across the sky and people wait for the eight p.m. concert to begin, they party, watch other people walking by, and eat picnic dinners

Meadow Brook picnics range from lemonade and bologna sandwiches on paper plates to chilled vichyssoise, tarragon chicken breasts served on china and vintage Vouvray in crystal goblets. Those with a romantic bent add a hunk of cheese to the Rubaiyat menu of "a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou" and bring the classic fare to Meadow Brook for their preconcert SUDDer

Hardly a concert goes by without a crop of birthday cakes, and at Meadow Brook strangers join in singing happy birthday. Fresh air and music seem to foster comraderie

On the lawn facing the pavilion, mere ribbons of grass divide one blanket from another, and it's not long before people start talking to the strangers on the next blanket.

Soon a bag of chips or a plate of brownies crosses the line as folks offer their bounty to neighbors. Kids from one family challenge those on the next blanket to checkers or Pente or a Frisbee contest on the other side of the Only lovers sit two by two, oblivious to the bustle around them.

ON SOME EVENINGS a hot-air balloon may drift languidly across the sky in the gentle early-evening air. All eyes watch its journey and listen when it fires its burners that sound like a dragon breathing.

Constance Schuller of Ann Arbor remembers watching a plane loop overhead pulling a trailer that wished "Happy Birthday" to someone in the audience

Frank Bollinger, retired director of Meadow Brook Theatre public affairs, recalls about five years ago when "the wave" of U of M and Tiger fame came to Meadow Brook after a concert by the Canadian Brass. The wave arose spontaneously and washed across the nillside

The midsummer night aura of Meadow Brook inspires serendipity. At a Boston Pops concert in 1985, it had just started sprinkling lightly when the orchestra under John Wiliams struck up "Singing in the Rain."

"Somebody started twirling an umbrella," Sylvia Coughlin, director of public relations for Meadow Brook Theatre, remembers, "I looked around and in a matter of seconds the whole hill was covered with umbrellas twirling to the music."

Jim Spittle, assistant general director of Meadow Brook Theatre, recalls high jinks that got a little out of hand one evening in 1985 when the lawn was covered with picnickers munching drumsticks and partying contentedly before the concert.

Pranksters broke into the pump house on the grounds and turned on part of the sprinkler system. Swirling sent people screaming and water scrambling out of its reach.

At most indoor concerts, people will tap their feet when the beat starts to bounce and maybe they'll get to clapping to the rhythm. At Meadow Brook, they're more uninhibited and jump up the aisles to dance.

When The Rovers played their rollicking melodies two years ago, a few people on the hill leapt up to dance the Irish jig. Those around them made way for flying feet and clapped in rhythm. One by one, other dancers answered the music's call until the hill was covered with pockets of people dancing the jig in the growing dusk.

JANE MOSHER, WHO directs group sales and community relations for the festival, remembers standing beside the pine tree at the top of the hill on the night of the first festival concert.

"The barns near Meadow Brook Hall had just been painted white, and the moon was shining on them. It was perfectly beautiful." Such images imprint like snapshots in memory and bring fresh pleasure years later.

In 1976, the year of the nation's bicentennial, the festival staff passed out candles to everyone who came to concerts on the Fourth of July weekend. At a signal, people in the pavilion and on the lawn lit candles and shared their flame with those around them.

Each candle shone on the face of the person holding it, and the darkness came alive with light in celebration of the country's first 200 years. People who were there locked the candlelit image in memory, and photographers captured it to use on program covers the next year.

John Riccardo served with his wife. Thelma, as chairmen of volunteers during an early festival summer. He said. "I , remember most the enthusiasm of volunteers and that they all had fun. The idea was fairly new in those days, and it was exciting to watch it grow.'
