Economic club to boost civic pride, business

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The newly formed Canton Economic Club has a certain upscale, big league pro-business sound to it.

And the roster of possible speakers to kick-off the newly formed club fits right in with that image.

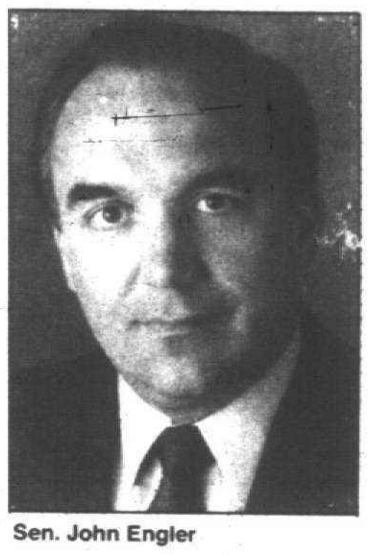
SENATE MAJORITY Leader John Engler, the Republican candidate running for governor, has promised to be the first speaker at the inaugural meeting at noon, March 6 at the Cherry Hill School House in Canton, according to Bill Joyner, who along with Cindy Burgess, of Public Administration Research Group, coordinated the club.

The idea of the organization is patterned after the Detroit Economic Club and grew out of the Canton Community Foundation, which was formed last year to improve the township's image and boost civic pride.

Foundation volunteers are launching scholarship proposals and pushing art and culture in the township limits along with many other programs that are in the works.

"I found the economic club to be an exciting idea," said Bob Wade, chairman of the board of Wade Trim & Associates, an engineering, architectural and planning consulting firm for area communities including Canton.

"The business community in Canton will be the principal people interested in the economic club," said Wade, a 25-year Canton resident.



Sen. John Engler

"It becomes a forum to listen to speakers and to get a dialogue to discuss the issues," he said.

SPEAKERS WILL talk about issues affecting Canton, the county and the state during meetings on the first Tuesday of the month, except for July and August.

Club meetings are open to the public for a $10 fee, which includes a meal.

"We expect to invite the candidates for governor, U.S. Senate, as well as those making decisions that

Students remember King legacy

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

In the opinion of Keith Gilbride, a third-grader at Isbister Elementary School in Plymouth Township, Martin Luther King Jr. was "pretty neat. He had to do all that to change things so black kids and white kids could play together.

"Blacks had to sit in the back of the bus and had to use different drinking fountains.

"I don't really care about black and white. They're equal. I think they'd be a good friend. They're just black. That doesn't mean anything."

With fellow third-graders, Keith saw a filmstrip about the slain civil rights leader on the anniversary of his birthday. Students then broke into small groups to discuss Martin Luther King and his message.

Courtney Van Dyke described King as someone who "believed people should all be equal."

Brett McGrew said King "made speeches that made life easier for people."

Aaron Benso said he would put King's assassin, James Earl Ray, "in an electric chair."

Megan Fike said she didn't like it when she learned that "blacks and whites had to use different bathrooms and drinking fountains because it wasn't fair to black people. He talked to people and changed things."

Students signed pledge cards promising to "do everything that I can to make America and the world a place where equality and justice, freedom and peace will grow and flourish."

Their teacher, Sandy Wiacek, told the class it was no coincidence she was handing the pledge cards out right before recess.

"What would it be like if we were all nice to each other for one day?" she asked.

"It'd be like paradise," answered Aaron Benso.

Wiacek said her students "can't believe this even happened.

"They think it's dumb; it's unthinkable that you wouldn't sit next to

Student's essay a tribute to King's dream of equality

Last summer, Plymouth-Canton High School students Nicole Rutz, who is white, and Tiffani Bryant, who is black, were nominated by their teachers to attend a two-week program with the Michigan Summer Institute for Arts and Sciences at Olivet College.

In a class dealing with race and ethnicity, Rutz and Bryant learned about the racial unrest that recently rocked the University of Michigan campus.

Afterward, Rutz wrote an essay entitled "A Prayer for the Living — I Have a Dream," and dedicated it to Bryant. Both students are seniors.

Rutz wrote it because, "I'd never really understood all the problems blacks had to go through, even now.

"It really scared me to think she was going to face something like that if she was going to college," Rutz said.

ON Martin Luther King Day, Bryant read the essay to the student body over the public address system.

"A Prayer for the Living — I Have a Dream."

"My dream is that my children will not have to face the problems of my generation; that I will not, as my parents did, leave behind a legacy of environmental destruction, nuclear uncertainty and a failing system for the poor; that someday everyone will truly begin equal and laws will not be just words on paper.

"This is my dream. I pray that I will not have to teach my children it is better to distrust than trust. I pray that, 'Little black boys and little black girls and little white boys and little white girls will not only sit down at that table together' as Dr. King said, but that they will try to understand each other and shed their stereotypes.

"I pray for us all to dig inside ourselves and find the humanity and unselfishness that drove those before us

Politicians' salaries would get review

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton trustee Bob Shefferly wants to take the politicians' hands out of deciding how much money they earn.

"The compensation committee would be the judge," Shefferly said.

That special committee would decide the amount, Shefferly said during a special meeting last week with the Canton Board of Trustees and four administrators at the Signature Inn in Plymouth.

Trustees are expected to vote on establishing a compensation commission at a regular board meeting within the next six months, Supervisor Tom Yack said.

'Commissions tend to be a way public officials get a lot of money.'

— Gerald Brown
Canton treasurer

CURRENTLY THE supervisor, clerk and treasurer, all elected officials, receive salaries based on the mid-range of what township managers earn.

The supervisor earns $51,000 and the treasurer and clerk each earn $42,200.

These rates are effective from Nov. 20, 1989, to Nov. 20, 1990. If by that time the salary increases for management grades eight and 12 at township hall, the salaries for elected officials will subsequently rise.

THE SUPERVISOR, clerk and treasurer are part of the seven-member board that determines the managers' rates. Board members are given salary recommendations from the Merit Commission before taking that vote.

The four remaining board members receive $6,000 annually. The 1990 budget includes a $500 raise. However, the board has not formally made that change.

The board is scheduled to meet every Tuesday and special meetings are called periodically. Shefferly would like to see a new plan written outlining how elected officials will be paid, he said. He didn't like the idea that they decide their own pay increases after elections, he said.

APPOINTED COMMISSIONS can be packed with political cronies and like Dr. Martin Luther King to strive for a better world; to strive for peace and understanding between nations and between every human being. This is my prayer for the living, my dream.

"Freedom is a very precious thing. It is the dream Dr. King had. Freedom is a word we use very easily now, but a word we do not understand.

"We love our freedom, but we too easily strip it away from others to serve ourselves.

"Before Dr. King's dream, before the dreams of so many others can be realized, we must first come together as one. We must cease to judge first on outward qualities and begin to see the inner warmth of all people.

"A man once said, 'The day there is no prejudice is the day when one will not remember if the person they just talked to was black or white.'

"It is this freedom from prejudgment that will lead us to the true meaning of freedom. This is my prayer for the living."

Tom Workman, principal of East Middle School, told students about the life and work of Martin Luther King.

used for politicians to hide behind, Canton treasurer Gerald Brown said.

"Commissions tend to be a way public officials get a lot of money," Brown said.

The board could develop a commission that is set apart from the board, trustee Phil LaJoy said.

"I've never had a problem going with the compensation commission route," Yack said.

WHY DID the Canton board meet in Plymouth?

Yack was redeeming a grand opening offer for free use of a board meeting room, he said.

Cardiac procedure approved

An application by St. Mary Hospital for an adult diagnostic cardiac catheterization service in Livonia has been approved by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Cardiac catheterization is a medical procedure which allows physicians to diagnose the degree of blockage to the blood supply of the heart to determine if further treatment is needed.

"St. Mary Hospital is pleased to make this procedure available to our patients and to our medical staff," said Sister Mary Modesta, president and chief executive officer of the hospital.

Diagnostic cardiac catheterization complements the hospital's high technology in the cardiovascular arena, Modesta said. Systems and procedures in place, such as EKG (electrocardiogram), treadmill stress testing, ultrasound, Doppler flow studies and nuclear medicine techniques, allow physicians to diagnose heart disease in a non-invasive manner through various studies.

"This new service will allow us to perform a number of cardiovascular techniques without delay by physicians trained and skilled in cardiology," said Dr. Michael Salhaney, vice president for medical affairs.

The service should be in place and available for patients by this summer, Salhaney said.

someone because they're black. A lot of kids get upset that ever happened.

"It's good kids don't see color barriers and all that stuff," she said. "That's what's so encouraging. The dividing lines aren't there in Plymouth."

Agreed Margo Stocker, another Isbister third-grade teacher: "These kids come from a pretty open-minded and well-educated neighborhood.

"I think these kids are in classes with children of other nationalities — Indian, Moslem and Japanese. So they're used to children of different cultures. Maybe that's made a difference."

AT EAST MIDDLE SCHOOL, seventh graders in Gary Rehberg's class watched a video and discussed Martin Luther King. Sitting in on the class was principal Tom Workman.

Student Mark MacInnis said the accomplishments of others pale in comparison to King's.

"Washington, Lincoln and Kennedy — they were presidents, but they didn't do anything compared to what King did," he said.

Seventh-grader Ronnie Roebuck asked Workman, "How come we're in school if it's such an important day?"

Answered the principal: "Can we best recognize Dr. King in school or out of school? My feeling is maybe we can better recognize him in school.

"If giving employees the day off can help us better recognize him, maybe we should consider that. I have a suspicion I'm spending more time recognizing Dr. King than people who aren't working or in school today."

Roebuck didn't begrudge having to attend school Monday.

"It's a happy day because he was such a ... like maybe Jesus," he said. "He took all the pressure off people. He was helping them get their rights back."

Recognizing King's birthday is something Workman encourages all his teachers to do.

"As a community, we need to be cognizant of the fact that black history is important not only for blacks, but for all of us. It dignifies our black families to know the history of their culture is being recognized."

Next month, schools throughout the district will recognize black studies month.

Students get a kick from martial art class

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Tae Kwon Do is a lot more than breaking a piece of cement with one fell swoop.

It's about courtesy, integrity, perseverance and spirit along with ethical and moral principals that are followed 24 hours a day. Followers say the discipline builds confidence.

'The goal is to develop character. The big victory is the victory of self.'
—Eugene Humesky

EUGENE HUMESKY spoke about the martial art in the Hoben Elementary School cafeteria Tuesday where students were punching, kicking and sparring in dance like movements. They ranged in age from teenagers to middle age and they all revered Humesky like a father.

His silver hair is combed back drawing attention to his black handle bar mustache. At 69 the Polish-born Ann Arbor resident speaks with sincerity and a commitment to the Korean karate form.

He is the director and founder of the Universal Tae Kwon Do Brotherhood, which incorporates two rival Tae Kwon Do forms. Humesky has his eighth degree black belt certification in both forms, along with other Tae Kwon Do certifications and honors.

He was 38 when he started practicing Tae Kwon Do. When he was much younger, during World War II Humesky was among those conscripted to help build the "new Europe." He spent time in a concentration camp where he learned his parents were killed by Soviets.

Today he's a retired Ann Arbor engineer. And on Tuesdays and Thursdays Humesky often visits a class instructed by his longtime student Joseph Hernandez, a mechanical engineer. The Canton makeshift gym draws Tae Kwon Do students from all over Michigan.

The cost is a $25 application fee and $10 monthly. The proceeds from the non-profit group go to St. Anne's Church in Detroit. The non-profit status allows free use of the room.

HERNANDEZ SAID his goal with the Canton class is to train students for the Olympics.

Hernandez says there's no need to spend thousands of dollars to learn expert Tae Kwon Do techniques. It takes about three years to earn a black belt.

With a slight Polish accent, his mentor explains the Tae Kwon Do creed: "Run rather than hurt; hurt rather than maim; maim rather than kill and kill rather than be killed."

The Korean karate incorporates the physical, mental, psycological, religious and spiritual, said Humesky, who instructs the art at Eastern Mmchigan University.

"The icing is the self-defense," Humesky said. "The goal is to develop character. The big victory is the victory of self."

Ann Kotcher warms up before the class.

MARTIAL ARTS is a lifetime sport, said Canton resident Joan Kotcher who takes the class with her husband, David, son David and daughter Ann.

"You don't have to give it up when you're 25," she said.

Jeff Stone, a 32-year-old Canton resident, been with Humesky for 13 years.

Stone said Tae Kwon Do has kept him young, flexible, active and more calm.

"I'm not as flexible or fast as I used to be, but I fight smarter," Stone said. "I'm always aware of what's going on around me."

Tae Kwon Do helps him with his sales job, he said, explaining that sales is like sparring — one is physical and the other is verbal.

"Master Humesky is not in it for the money or glory," Stone said. "He's strictly in it to get students to obtain their best."

Matt and Kathy Kull have been practicing Tae Kwon Do together for five years. Matt has been involved for 15 years.

"There was a whole transformation for me," Matt Kull said. "I was weak in high school and pushed around. Now that I have techniques I don't seek out fights. It just gives me confidence in every day life and the power to master any situation."

Kathy Kull said Tae Kwon Do gave her confidence, kept her in physical shape and clears her head of everyday problems.

"If I'm stressed I can come in and meditate," she said. "And hopefully I can defend myself."

Young Dave Kotcher has been studying Tae Kwon Do for five years and holds a black belt in his age division.

"Without martial arts I'd be more rowdy and uncontrolled," said Kotcher who is in the Plymouth-Canton talented and gifted program.

"More confidence is the most important thing," he said.

Teachers want to expand drug resistance program

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Plymouth-Canton school teachers are daring students to stay away from drugs.

And they're asking Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township to provide the manpower to expand a drug resistance program that is lauded by teachers, police and even the students.

BOB JOHNS and Dave Farquharson, both Plymouth-Canton fifth grade teachers, took their plea for manpower to the Canton Board of Trustees Tuesday during a study session.

State police brought the nationally lauded DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program to Plymouth-Canton fifth graders last year.

The program is taught by police officers and teaches the kids how to make decisions, build self-esteem and handle peer pressure, said Farquharson, from East Elementary School.

However, State Police cutbacks this year would only allow enough manpower to offer the program in three elementary schools.

Johns, from Fiegal Elementary School, and Farquharson said all the students in the district should be exposed to DARE, a program that began in 1983 in Los Angeles.

"My opinion is that probably the most significant problem out there now is for juveniles to deal with drugs," said John Santomauro, Canton public safety director.

"I think the community has to get behind this program," Santomauro said.

He told board members he would like to see the township provide one Canton officer to teach DARE in Plymouth-Canton schools.

THE 1990 Canton budget includes adding six police officers to the force.

"I think this program is that important that I would take one of our bodies for this program," Santomauro said.

All three communities should support the program, Santomauro said.

Supervisor Tom Yack said 65 percent of Plymouth-Canton students are Canton residents.

What about Canton residents who attend Wayne-Westland or Van Buren Township schools? Clerk Loren Bennett asked.

If Canton funds are going to support the program in Plymouth-Canton schools, Bennett said, it is only fair that the other school districts would receive the program as well.

The board did not take any formal action on providing one Canton officer to the program. However, the board is expected to act soon on the issue at a regular board meeting.

Police look for motive in security guard slaying

By Joe Bauman
staff writer

Livonia police are seeking a motive in the slaying of a security guard at the General Motors Delco Products plant on Eckles Road.

The victim, 22-year-old Jason Bickel of Westland, was found at about 9 p.m. Sunday by a fellow employee, suffering from a gunshot wound to the head. He was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia and pronounced dead at 10:45 p.m.

According to police investigators, Bickel had been dispatched to check an alarm on an open door in the plant at about 7 p.m. When he failed to report back with his superiors within an hour, plant security unsuccessfully attempted to contact the victim and and it was decided to conduct a search of the plant.

BICKEL'S BODY was found shortly before 9 p.m. by a maintenance employee who was responding to a call for all employees to report to the main security office.

Bickel reportedly had taken a new job and was working his last night for General Motors at the Delco plant.

Livonia police Lt. Michael Murray said investigators have not determined whether Bickel's investigation of the alarm and his slaying are related.

"The victim never checked in with the security office regarding the alarm, and there was no evidence that the door had been forcibly opened," Murray said.

"We are exploring the possibility that the victim either was shot by an intruder or by a plant employee, and have no suspects at this time."

Murray said Bickel's body was discovered in a hallway in the plant's office area, a considerable distance from the door he was to check. The door is an emergency fire exit located in the south end of the plant, and has no exterior door handles.

"We have not determined whether an intruder entered the plant through the door," Murray said Monday. "It is not uncommon for those door alarms to go off because they are quite sensitive, especially to strong winds and the like."

ACCORDING TO Murrary, none of the security personnel at the plant are armed, and no weapon was found near the murder site. It also has not been determined what caliber and type of gun was used in the shooting.

Because the parts plant was shut down for the long weekend in observance of Martin Luther King Day when the shooting occurred, there were only 12 employees working in comparison to the usual 2,300-person workforce.

According to Gary Kistemaker, personnel director at the plant, Bickel was temporarily assigned to the facility as a security guard. The victim had been employed with the company for about six months.

Bickel and his wife, Angela, moved to Westland after both left the Marine Corps in August, a family member said. The couple has one child, 16-month-old Joshua. The victim's family is from southern Indiana.

"From what we can tell he was a pleasant guy who was well-liked and wasn't known as a troublemaker," Kistemaker said. "He filled in at the plant for vacations and such, and had worked here quite a bit in the past few months."

Kistemaker said he is satisfied that there is adequate security at the plant, although he added that a security review will be necessary as a result of the shooting.

All of the emergency exits within the plant are guarded with alarms.

Weather hurts ice fest

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The wet look went out of style in the mid-'60s.

But on the fifth day of the 1990 Plymouth Community Ice Sculpture Spectacular, the wet look was back.

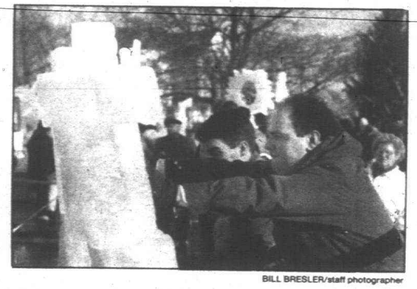
That's because temperatures rose to nearly 50 degrees Monday and Tuesday. Most of the more than 100 ice sculptures placed around town changed from clear and magnificent to cloudy and mushy, as evening crowds continued to flock downtown for the festival.

But the National Weather Service predicted temperatures would fall to the mid-30s Friday and Saturday.

That suggests that sculptures to be created tonight, Friday and Saturday could survive the rest of the festival, scheduled to wrap-up Sunday.

"The puddle festival is moving along well," Assistant City Manager Paul Sincock told city commissioners on Monday.

Earlier Monday, Sincock and Department of Public Works crews removed what was left of sculptures from bunting-draped pedestals around town.



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Temperatures in the 40s forced ice festival organizers to remove sculptures. Above, Paul Sincock, assistant city manager, and Ryan Fitzpatrick topple carvings weakened by the warm weather. However, organizers say things will be back in form this weekend as temperatures drop and the professional carvers start chipping away. The weather caused no problems for members of the 82nd Airborne Division All-American Chorus which performed as part of the festival. For more on the festival, please turn to Page 3A.

On Tuesday, festival Executive Director Pam Kosteva said, "We've postponed everything," as weather forced a delay in ice shipments scheduled for earlier this week. More ice was scheduled to arrive tonight.

"We're going to have lovely weather as of Friday," Kosteva said. "We're bringing all the professionals (carvers) back in late Thursday night, that's when they'll work."

The professional team carving competition judging is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. Friday. Judging for the individual professional ice carving competition is scheduled for noon Saturday.

Kosteva said if she had to pick a time period during the festival when sculptures would melt, Monday through Wednesday was best — as competitions take place on festival weekends when most visitors come to view the sculptures.

Overall, she said, "I'm delighted."

"Obviously we wouldn't pick it at all (a warm spell), but if we had to have any melting this is a good time."

Paratroopers perform at ice fest

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Hailing from Fort Bragg, N.C., the 82nd Airborne Division All-American Chorus brightened up what otherwise was a fogged-out, washed-out day in the life of the Plymouth Community Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

For more than 100 fans, the paratroopers put on a free show Tuesday afternoon at the Penn Theater.

In the bandshell in Kellogg Park, the paratroopers staged a second performance at 7:30 p.m.

Looking sharp in maroon berets, ascots, fatigues and spit-shined jump boots, the 27-man chorus accompanied only by a pitch pipe and their own four-part harmony served up songs like, "This is the Army Mr. Jones," "Don't Sit under the Apple Tree," and "God Bless the U.S.A."

Other less well-known numbers were every bit as appreciated, with lyrics like, "I wouldn't give a bean to be a fancy pants Marine."

Or, "I'd rather be a dog-faced soldier like I am than wear Navy dungarees."

And then there was, "I want my knees in the breeze . . . I want to jump from a plane while it's in the air . . ."

Chorus members Eric Schmidt and Dale Hart co-wrote a verse to "We Were There," based on their division's recent experience in Panama.

"On a cold December night it came, that fearless battle cry.

"When the green light lit over Panama, our brave men stood to fight. Noriega went too far this time, so we came down from the sky, to restore the land for freedom and protect American lives."

None of the paratroopers, who tour with the chorus for six months to a year before returning to other duties, were in Panama during the last few months. But Michael Herrman, of Stanford, Conn., could very well have been.

He said before the show, "I'm lucky to be in this (the chorus). I would have been there in my old stomping grounds.

Herrman was in Panama from 1986-1988.

The problems were beginning last year," he said. "A lot of Panamanians were sabotaging our tank farm where we had live patrols with the Marines. There was full escalation after that.

"One of my buddies was down there. He got hurt. He got grenade fragments in his leg. He said it was pretty wild, pretty messy," said Herrman, who sings bass.

Herrman's friend, a Californian named Chip Vincent, was with "one of the groups who took over the Marriott. He was jumping out of a plane at 5 a.m. and they were firing at them.

"He said he was never more scared in his life. He threw a grenade, but he couldn't get it off because guys were sniping at him. He got a Purple Heart."

TUESDAY MORNING, chorus members sang for the high school choir at Centennial Educational Park.

Mike Herrman told the crowd he was "lucky to be in this (the chorus). I would have been there in my old stomping grounds." He was in Panama from 1986-1988.

"We took questions and showed them there's something for them in the Army," said Hart of Memphis, Tenn.

"We can relate to them a lot better than their recruiter can."

Just one of the chorus members, Kenneth Pittsley, is from Michigan. His hometown is Swartz Creek near Flint.

Foreign adoption

Social, political reasons trim number of children available

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

For many, 1990 may well prove disappointing as the number of foreign children available for adoption dwindles.
— Elizabeth Gorning
Americans for International Aid and Adoption

Toiling quietly in a small basement office on Adams Road in Birmingham, a handful of dedicated professionals are busy creating families, placing children from Korea, India and Vietnam with Americans intent on adoption.

For years, older couples, single persons or those who already have natural children — people unwilling or unable to wait for a U.S.-born Caucasian baby — have relied on foreign youngsters to fulfill parental aspirations.

But for many, 1990 may well prove disappointing as the number of foreign children available for adoption dwindles, according to Elizabeth Gorning of Americans for International Aid and Adoption (AIAA) in Birmingham.

"Right now, our numbers are decreasing for many reasons, both social and political," said Gorning who, like many AIAA employees, has adopted a child from abroad. Daughter Amanda, 14, is from Korea.

Previously, the majority of children processed by AIAA have come from Korea and India. But changing attitudes about adoption and more abortions mean substantially few r children are now available from either country.

American parents who once waited three to four months for a child after processing by AIAA, now face waits of eight to 10 months, according to Gorning, who said some U.S. agencies have even temporarily stopped accepting applications.

AIAA continues to accept applications and is hopeful new contacts with government social service agencies in Honduras and Chile will result in a steady source of children in need of new parents.

ONE OF GORNING'S more memorable moments in "escorting" or accompanying children from old homes to new families in the United States occurred during landing in Minneapolis on a flight from Korea to Detroit with a set of 3-year-old twin girls and a boy, 4, who insisted on unfastening his seatbelt.

During descent, Gorning struggled to keep the boy's seatbelt buckled when, suddenly, the twin seated farthest from her vomited.

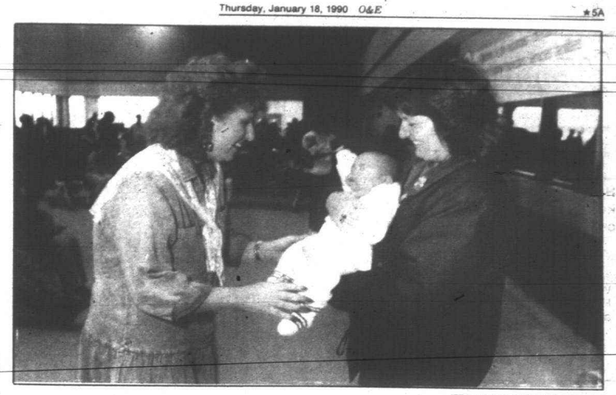
"At that moment, there was nothing I could do. I didn't have enough hands," she said.

Such journeys are grueling affairs. Including plane changes and layovers, the trip from the Social Welfare Society in Seoul to the United States is some 20 hours and from the Mission of Hope in Calcutta, about 40 hours.

In addition to exhaustion, children are exhilarated yet terrified, unaccustomed to airline food and nervous about joining new parents in a strange new land. They are unable to express themselves in English.

Infants have even more difficulty coping, fretful and fussy in response to the strange assault on their senses. "They deal with sense, the sense of smell, the sense of feel. Everything is different," Gorning said.

JUDITH TROMBLEY first met Ben, now 15, a year ago on a business trip to Korea with AIAA.



JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Susan Rabbers sees her new daughter for the first time, as adoption worker Donna Turi of Garden City (right) carries her out of customs.

"It sounds corny, but I thought he was a really neat kid. I couldn't get him out of my mind," Trombley, a Troy resident, said. She and husband Roger, parents of two birth daughters, had previously discussed adoption. The couple decided to adopt the boy.

"In our minds we went through every possible scenario, all of them bad. None of it has happened. He's an easy kid, very bright. It's been much easier than we ever thought," Trombley said.

Not all matches, however, are as successful, especially when an older child is involved. Though rare, some placements are "disrupted" or ended within the first year, before they are legally completed. Others are "dissolved" or terminated, sometimes years after becoming legal.

All placements are supervised by AIAA counselors for a full year but for whatever reasons, some families decide they are no longer able or willing to cope with the situation, Gorning said.

In the event of a disruption, AIAA maintains a list of replacement families, "wonderful families" who otherwise cannot afford the $600 cost of adoption, according to Gorning. Fees cover travel expenses, agency fees, foster care and medical and legal fees.

In the event of a terminated adoption, the child is placed with state social services if a new family cannot be found.

NANCY AND JON FOX of Bloomfield Hills, parents of six children including three birth children and one each adopted from Vietnam, Guatamala and India, founded AIAA in 1975, a time when trans-cultural adoption was unfamiliar to most Americans.

DNR move could delay local trash reduction plans

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County officials say they've been dealt a blow by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in their effort to boost recycling and other trash reduction options among county communities.

A recent DNR decision to delay approval of the county master plan, pending receipt of master plans from other counties, could delay local trash reduction plans, or postpone them altogether, county officials fear.

"I guess you could say they've taken the wind right out of our sails," said Milton Mack, head of the county's solid waste implementation committee.

Mack will be among those visiting local communities in coming weeks, trying to sell local leaders on the county plan's necessity.

But already, Mack said, some communities appear to be moving away from swift implementation of recycling and other trash reduction options.

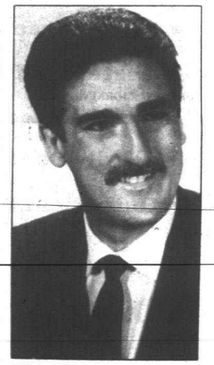
"We'd been working toward a 1992 deadline to get local programs up and running," Mack said.

Now, he added, the DNR could delay approval of Wayne County's overall plan at least until then, pushing local plans back until the mid-1990s at the earliest.

The DNR said the decision was made to coordinate trash reduction efforts between counties that ship trash to outside landfills and counties where those landfills are located.

"WE TOLD counties we were looking at it on a regional basis," DNR county coordinator Barbara Scheibly said. "It doesn't affect all counties, just those that import and export waste."

Wayne County, the state's most populous county, is its biggest waste producer, with more than 13 million cubic yards generated annually. Of that, more than 4 million cubic yards is shipped to landfills in Oakland, Washtenaw, Livingston, Macomb and Monroe counties.



Milton Mack

In sheer volume, the amount Wayne County ships out is greater than that produced in all but Oakland, among the counties that accept its waste.

That volume, Mack said, should force the DNR to reverse its position — at least as far as Wayne County is concerned.

"It makes sense for other, smaller counties, but Wayne County is the biggest county in the state," he said. "Delaying our plan means something entirely different from delaying the plan of another county."

The Wayne County plan would guide trash reduction for nearly 25 percent of the state's population.

County officials said they expect to press the DNR to revise its stand.

"They've reversed themselves before," Mack said.

Nominations are sought for women's hall of fame

Nominations for the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame are being accepted now through Wednesday, March 21.

Those nominated must be closely affiliated with Michigan, either by birth or contribution. Nominations can be made by groups or individuals.

Nominating forms are available by writing the Michigan Women's Historical Center and Hall of Fame, 213 W. Main, Lansing, 48933, or by calling 350-9103 during normal business hours.

Nominations are ranked by a broadly-based screening committee, then sent to a second committee for final review. The Michigan Women's Studies Association, which initiated the hall, formally announced the new inductees.

Inductees will be honored at an October ceremony in Detroit. All inductees will receive the hall's bronze "Life Achievement Award."

Michigan Women's Hall of Fame members include Rosa Parks, Fran Harris, Sarah Goddard Power, Genevieve Gilliette, Dr. Elizabeth Crosby, M. Jane Kay, Helen Thomas, Sojourner Truth, Anna Bisell, Mary Ann Mayo, Mary Chase Perry Stratton, Helen Milliken and Betty Ford.

Group grows along with interest in environment

By Helen Niemiec
staff writer

Twenty years ago disposable diapers were the rage, more and more grocery stores were abandoning brown paper bags for lightweight plastic and an increasing number of people were having central air conditioning installed in their homes.

The year 1970 also marked the formation of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council.

Marking its 20th anniversary this year, the group reminds people interested in saving the environment that plastic diapers are cluttering landfills, plastic bags don't biodegrade and that the chlorofluorocarbons in air conditioning are destroying the earth's atmosphere.

Unlike two decades ago, a greater majority of people are aware of the environment and realize that it is a valuable — and limited — resource, according to Elizabeth Harris, executive director of the group.

INTEREST IN environmental issues has been growing every year, Harris explained, but interest has skyrocketed because of two events — the drought of 1988 when people began taking the warming of the earth seriously and the Exxon Valdez oil spill, because people saw the ruined shorelines and animals dying.

"People here realize that we have a problem," Harris said. "People are beginning to see that they have a role in this."

Membership has been growing over the past few years.

Calls have been coming in steadily since mid-December. The non-profit agency this year sold holiday cards made with recyclable paper, which has prompted calls from the card recipients.

"As soon as people find out that there is a local group, they call. People want to be involved and they want to help," Harris said.

The staff of three part-time and one full-time employee concentrates on answering calls from interested people, lobbying local, state and regional lawmaking bodies and encouraging small businesses to be more environmentally aware by recycling.

THE STAFF currently is busy planning two events for the year, which will highlight the group's 20th anniversary celebration. The first is a piano concert fund-raiser on Feb. 9 at Oakland Community College's Royal Oak campus. The other is a daylong conference on Earth Day, April 27.

The workshop topic hasn't been decided yet. Last year's featured a representative from the Department of Natural Resources, a business attorney and a local government representative discussing how environment-saving rules affect business and municipalities.

"I'd like the membership to grow exponentially. In addition to the financial strength, it gives us the opportunity to offer more programs. And we would have a stronger voice in Lansing to better represent environmental issues," Harris said.

Dues are $20 per year. The group meets the second Tuesday of each month (except in July, August and December) at its office located at Nativity Episcopal Church, 21200 W. 14 Mile, in Bloomfield Township.

MORE VOLUNTEERS is a part of Harris' "wish list" for the group's 20th anniversary. People are needed for everything from an ongoing groundwater leadership project to wetlands research to performing clerical duties at the office.

Conservation tips given

By Helen Niemiec
staff writer

Consumers can do a myriad of things in their daily lives to reduce the amount of garbage and conserve energy in an effort to protect the environment.

The East Michigan Environmental Action Council soon will publish a list of suggestions, answering questions that group often is asked by the public.

"Consumers have to be careful because some products are labeled biodegradable when they're really not," said Elizabeth Harris, executive director.

One grocery chain is using plastic bags that state that they degrade in sunlight.

"But people who are conservation-conscious aren't going to throw it on a highway or someplace else where it will get the constant sunlight to degrade," she said.

Recycling centers accepts newspapers, glass, metals and aluminum. The materials can be reused rather than being dumped at a landfill, Harris said.

Other suggestions given are:

- Don't use disposable diapers, opting for cloth or contracting a diaper service.

"Diapers are a substantial amount of the materials at landfills," Harris said. "They're not a necessity. They are a convenience, but there is a serious environmental trade off."

- Reuse shopping bags. Either reuse plastic bags or invest in a large cloth bag or satchel for carrying groceries. The plastic bags do not biodegrade.
- Turn down the thermostat in the winter to conserve natural gas.
- Turn up the thermostat in the summer to reduce use of air conditioners in the home. The coolant in air conditioners releases chlorofluorocarbons into the atmosphere, damaging the ozone. The same is true for car air conditioners.
- Purchase white appliances rather than colored models. When the colored appliances sit in a landfill, the paint breaks down releasing heavy metal contaminants. Groundwater can be affected from appliances in landfills.

If the appliances are burned at a dump site, the heavy metals become a part of the air.

- Safely dispose of air conditioners and refrigerators to ensure that the chlorofluorocarbons used in the cooling systems are not released into the atmosphere to ruin the ozone layer.
- Recycle batteries rather than throw them out in the trash because the lead and cadmium in the batteries can contaminate soil and groundwater. Batteries can be turned in at any recycling center.

"Try not to use items that require batteries. And if they do, use the rechargables instead," Harris recommended.

Agency gives children new lives

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Even before she arrived home, Ashley Amber Kim Rabbers, a 14-pound bundle of sloe-eyed wonder, caused quite a stir in Bridgman, a small rural community in southeastern Michigan.

Her actual arrival Friday at Detroi Metro Airport, aboard Northwest Flight 12 from Seoul, Korea, was greeted with whoops and tears of joy by adoptive parents Susan and Daniel Rabbers, who have been waiting 14 months for their new daughter.

Susan paced up and down as she waited for the flight to arrive, then the seemingly interminable time it took to go through customs. "Look, she's in labor," her father-in-law joked.

A macho-looking ex-Marine, he too was tearful when Ashley finally was placed in her new parents' arms.

"This is extra special for all of us," said Daniel Rabbers, a manager for a Meijer supermarket.

Ashley, whose new parents opted to retain her Korean name Kim, was born nearly six months ago, delivered of a mother from Pusan who had become pregnant after a brief romantic liaison with a member of the Korean military.

Ashley is full-blooded Korean. Her adoption by the Rabbers is called a cross-cultural, cross-racial adoption.

At home, Ashley joins new brother, Justin, 7, Susan's son from a former marriage. Susan and Daniel have been married four years.

THE COUPLE FIRST decided to consider adoption when, after several years of trying, Susan failed to become pregnant.

"We wanted our own child and a brother or sister for Justin," Rabbers said.

Close friends, who three years ago adopted a Korean daughter, suggested the couple contact Americans for International Aid and Adoption in Birmingham.

All applicants must submit to physical exams and supply personal biographies and reference letters. Once the home study of at least three visits is completed and applicants are otherwise approved, the waiting begins.

Korean authorities match children to adoptive parents, based on parental preferences. Parents, who either approve or reject the match, are supplied with photos of the child and background history. Once a match is made, parents apply for a U.S. visa.

"They lead you through the process," Rabbers said of the proceedings.

When Susan was notified last week that Ashley was on her way, "I called everyone I knew. Everybody's real excited."

Ashley is now at home in a newly decorated room that features miniature rocking horses and tiny hearts in country blue, red and white.

Fewer foreign children available for adoption

Even today, few adoptive parents at first think about it.

"Many are coming new into adoption. Having a child is new. Their first thought is a healthy infant, but when we explore other options, they begin thinking about it," Gorning said.

Trans-cultural adoption poses special problems, especially when parents and children are of different races.

"The child has to deal with his or her identity. His most important question is, 'Who am I?' He doesn't look like his family and he never will. It's important to keep alive his biological and cultural heritage, even if it is an ocean away," Gorning said.

Ben, for example, the birth son of an American serviceman and a Korean woman, lived with his natural mother until shortly before his adoption by the Trombley family.

"He came complete with a history. Now he says he has two mothers, an American mother and a Korean mother. She loved him enough to want him to have the best and be able to continue his education," Trombley said.

AIAA ALSO PLACES "special" children like Dana, 7, described as "always smiling" in the caption accompanying his picture in the 1990 calendar published annually by the Mission of Hope.

Born three months prematurely in Calcutta, Dana, who now lives with his adoptive family in Oregon, is confined to a wheelchair with cerebral palsy. He is also hearing impaired.

In first grade, he "enjoys reading, math and using the computer."

Agencies team up to provide aid to needy state residents

Consumers Power and the Salvation Army have teamed up again this winter to provide aid to needy Michigan residents.

The utility company is raising money for Salvation Army Public Assistance programs by asking its customers to make a one-time contribution to its annual PeopleCare campaign.

Customers can make a $3 contribution by checking a specially-marked box on their Janurary bills. Contributions of more than $3 can be made by writing a check to: The Salvation Army/PeopleCare and including the check with monthly bill payment.

Consumers Power is also providing $200,000 in matching bill credits to be used by the Salvation Army to help needy people pay their utility bills.

Last year, PeopleCare, raised $340,639 — most in the program's seven-year history.

Combined with bill credits, more than $540,000 was made available to Michigan's needy.

The Salvation Army provided goods and services to more than 27,000 Michigan residents.

PeopleCare was recognized by the President's Citation Program for Private Sector Initiatives.

The program began in 1983, at the suggestion of Consumers Power employees. The Salvation Army was selected as its care-giving agency because of its statewide organization and experience in screening applicants for aid.

Postpone incinerators says state DNR chief

AP — Michigan communities should concentrate on recycling and delay building trash incinerators until technology improves, the director of the state Department of Natural Resources says.

The earliest incinerators in the state were developed before environmental problems were addressed, including production of potentially hazardous ash and smoke-stack emissions, DNR Director David Hales said.

"The technology does not produce the kind of results we thought we would get," Hales said Friday. "It's not just the ash problem. I have great concerns about the Detroit incinerator, concerns about toxic material coming out of the stack."

He said the state won't make any major investment in incinerators until technology for clean and efficient operation improves.

"Our investment now should go to recycling rather than incineration," Hales said.

DNR officials had encouraged development of Jackson's incinerator, which opened in 1987 at a cost of $28 million. Municipal incinerators have since opened in Grand Rapids and Detroit.

A year after it opened, however, Jackson County's incinerator was closed for 10 months because of DNR regulatory problems. Although trash-dumping fees charged by the county more than tripled, the incinerator has a $3 million operational debt.

"The Jackson experience is part and parcel with the experience we've had nationwide with incineration," Hales said, adding that the DNR wrongly expected ashes and emissions to be cleaner.

Incinerators that are in debt reflect a public not ready for the systems, he said.

"If incinerators make sense, they have to make economic sense," Hales said. "If the private sector is not willing to invest in incinerators, should the public sector do it?"

Once the environmental problems are solved, trash incinerators will be an important disposal method for the future, he said.

"Incineration will be necessary," he said. "I don't now see a way to handle our solid-waste problem, to reduce our reliance on landfills, without relying heavily on incineration."

Commuter airline expands at Metro

Mesaba Aviation, an affiliate of Northwest Airlines, recently announced plans for a $4.5 million maintenance and training facility at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport.

The facility could be open as soon as spring, county officials said.

The county will sell special facilities revenue bonds to finance the project. All bond costs will be paid by Mesaba.

Mesaba, based in Minneapolis, operates as Northwest Airlink under an agreement with Northwest Airlines. It provides connecting service from regional airports to larger airports.

The commuter service currently operates in 34 cites and includes Metro and other hub airports in St. Louis and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The new facility will cover nine acres and include an aircraft parking ramp, connecting taxiway and 45,600-square-foot maintenance and training building.

Mesaba is Metro's leading commuter airline, boarding more than 150,000 passengers last year.

Health officer appointed

Deputy county health officer Cynthia Taueg has been appointed health officer for the Wayne County Division of Public Health. Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara announced the appointment last week. Taueg has 16 years' experience in public health, six with the county. She holds a bachelor's degree in nursing from Wayne State University and a master's in public health planning and administration from the University of Michigan. Health department programs and services include immunization, communicable disease control, AIDS counseling and testing, hypertension screening, public health nursing, nursing home evaluation, prenatal care, pediatrics, air pollution control and environmental protection. The department has more than 400 employees and a budget of $20 million.

GOOD NEWS, FORD SALARIED EMPLOYEES!
You can sign up for M-CARE January 8 through January 19. See your personnel benefits representative

With M-CARE, the sky is not the limit.

There's a serious accident. Time is crucial. A helicopter is dispatched to speed the victim to the University of Michigan Burn Center... a service you, hopefully, will never have to call on. But it's there if you need it, and much, much more through M-CARE.

M-CARE is the only HMO that links all the resources of the U of M Medical Center to the personal care of your family doctor and your nearby hospital. M-CARE covers you for office visits, checkups, hospitalization — even emergency helicopter transport.

Of course, with the M-CARE network of hospitals in cities like Royal Oak, Dearborn and Rochester, you don't always have to go to the U of M Medical Center. But isn't it good to know it's there whenever you need it? To find out more, ask your employer. Or call M-CARE at 747-8700.

Anti-child abuse programs face budget cuts

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Child abuse prevention programs, both locally and across the state, face a perilous future unless administrators can overcome a whopping 62 percent cut in federal funding.

"It's a hell of a mess," said David Mills, director of the Children's Trust Fund. "The last two years we got $496,000. This year we were notified two days after the fiscal year began (Oct. 1) that we were getting only $196,000. This was a huge, unexpected cut."

The cut apparently eliminates one third of the $1 million in grants the fund planned to make this year. Established in 1983, the fund is a non-profit agency established as a permanent funding source for local child abuse and neglect programs.

The majority of its financing comes from Michigan taxpayers who check off a donation box on state income tax returns. This year $750,000 was received by income tax check off and another $200,000 by direct donations.

The $306,000 cut by Human Development, a subcommittee of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services which oversees the national program, translates to a 30 percent cut in Michigan programs.

"WE MAY lose on appeal but we won't lose without a fight," Mills said in an interview from his Lansing office.

While other states were affected, Michigan's budget slash was the most severe.

"The process the national office uses is that an individual staff member reviews the application against the legislation. The past two years (Michigan), was reviewed by the same staffer. This year a different staffer reviewed the application and disallowed items that were previously accepted."

Mills was outraged that public health nurses working with high-risk pregnant teenagers was considered inappropriate for federal funding.

"It's so ludicrous, the issue is hard to debate," he said.

Nevertheless Mills is planning a trip to Washington with representatives from trust funds in four other states which suffered cutbacks. The contingent will meet with Wade Horn, commissioner for the Office of Human Development. The fund has a $5 million national budget.

"It's a judgment call and they changed the umpire," Mills said.

Michigan's fund operates six different programs which fall into two categories: local councils (there are 70 grass roots organizations in the state) and parent education programs.

"We believe a concerned knowledgeable citizenry is the best prevention against child abuse," Mills said. "It's built on a simple concept. That parenting is a skill that has to be learned like learning to drive a car."

ONE PROGRAM works with women from a seven-months stage of pregnancy until their child is a year old, helping develop parenting skills and understanding child development.

The fund also supports latchkey programs for before and after school care for early elementary school-age children. Another program sends theatrical production companies to schools and community groups to teach children about sexual abuse.

Neighborhood-based family resource centers help stressed single parents cope with the demands of parenting and also acts as a crisis center.

The trust fund board has decided to take no action until its meeting on Jan. 17, 1990. It will operate its first quarter budget as planned.

"In addition to appealing the decision, we have gone to corporations asking for donations and we have gone to the state Legislature. We have three months to generate $306,000."

If the money is not raised in one capacity or another, then cuts will be made.

"We could give everyone a 30 percent across the board cut, eliminate 30 percent of the programs or some combination thereof," Mills said.

But if all of the state's 4.3 million taxpayers gave $5 a year for two years, the trust fund could get along with the interest, and wouldn't have to raise another dollar, Mills said.

Local programs get by on $34,000

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

With a modest $34,000 annual budget, Sandra Murphy presides over the Out-Wayne County Council on Child Abuse and Neglect.

A local arm of the state run Children's Trust Fund, the council is responsible for a variety of programs aimed at preventing child abuse.

Housed in the Western Wayne County YWCA in Inkster, the council services downriver and western Wayne County communities — "virtually everything outside the city of Detroit and the eastside suburbs," according to Murphy.

Murphy is the only paid staff member of the 21 member board of trustees. Half the members are appointed and half are elected by various human service departments.

Murphy said "education and public awareness" is the primary focus of the council.

"THIS FALL we did a mailing to elementary school principals with a poster that says, 'Stop the report card reflex' which deals with what happens when a child brings home a bad report card," Murphy said.

"It's basically aimed at preventing emotional abuse. We're hoping the posters went to the PTA councils."

Another specialty of the council is in-service programming for professionals. One recent educational forum is planned on teenage pregnancy.

"It's in-service training aimed at making staff more aware when dealing with families," Murphy said.

Other recent programs sponsored by the council focused on healthy parenting styles and in-service training to make professionals aware of their mandate to report suspected child abuse.

The organization also planned a visit to a PTA council in Lincoln Park and a visit to staff at a Livonia day care center.

Murphy has a bachelor's degree in education and two master's degrees — one in early childhood education and the other in management. She has worked in the field of child abuse prevention for 13 years, the past 18 months in her present position.

"BUT I have a 20 month old child at home which has helped me gain a new perspective on the job and is really the best training available," she said.

If the Children's Trust Fund suffers a 30 percent across the board funding cut in January as predicted, the western Wayne County council faces a cut of $9,500. Murphy along with representatives of other local councils are fighting back in various ways to save the programs.

"We are launching a statewide campaign with tax preparers to make them aware of the check off on income tax returns. Over the past three years, there has been a steady decrease in the amount of money generated by the checkoff," said Murphy. "I'm meeting with local tax preparers right through the fall."

Following an emergency meeting at the state level on Oct. 18 to discuss the impending cuts, representatives of local councils in the southeastern Michigan region talked about launching an elaborate letter writing campaign to make the state Legislature and Michigan's Congressional delegation in Washington aware of the situation.

If the budget is cut 30 percent in January, Murphy said many programs would be in jeopardy, including a teen parent alternative school in Lincoln Park and funding for a parent/child center in Inkster which helps high risk families overcome crisis in parenting.

New forum

Economic Club a good idea

THERE'S SOMETHING NEW in Canton and we like the sound of it.

It's the Canton Economic Club, and if its organizers come through, it will help give the community the recognition that it deserves.

State Senate majority leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, will be the first speaker to address the club. That'll happen March 6 at the Cherry Hill School House in Canton.

Having such a well-known political figure as the first speaker will draw attention to Canton's large population and help enhance its statewide reputation.

Also, holding the event at the Cherry Hill school, a restored one-room school house, is a good move on the group's part. It will show that Canton has a history and isn't just subdivisions and strip malls.

The organization is patterned after the Detroit Economic Club and grew out of the Canton Community Foundation, which was formed last year to improve the township's image.

BUT THERE WILL be a local angle to all this. The speakers will talk about issues that face Canton, along with those that face the county and the state.

After having Engler, the club will invite other candidates for governor and the U.S. Senate.

Also, it's hoped that the club will help link Detroit to Ann Arbor.

But that's just the frosting on the cake.

The Economic Club will help the township improve its image, give it exposure and create a new forum at which economic, political and social issues can be discussed.

A big chill

Plymouth ice fest needs one

IT LOOKS LIKE the weather has done it again to the Plymouth ice show, but the show must go on.

It was a sad sight on Main Street this week, with the ice carvings gone from the streets and the larger ones in Kellogg Park looming out of the fog. It doesn't make for the best setting for an ice carving contest.

But that's not stopping folks. The carvers will be back in Kellogg Park this weekend chipping away.

We really don't know what to blame the warm weather on. Maybe it's the global warming that some environmentalists keep talking about. But then again maybe it's just the luck of the draw.

Events that depend on the weather are hard to pull off every year. There's usually rain in the summer and these days the same rain seems to be coming in the winter.

We just hope that the weather doesn't get planners of the event down. The Plymouth community did a great job of pulling the festival together when it looked like it was going to go down the drain.

The event brings plenty of folks to Plymouth and makes them aware of the community.

The event is worth the effort. We just hope that there's a big chill next year.

Gun safety

Bills seek to educate public

THE PROLIFERATION of incidents involving the use of guns in the suburbs should be cause for concern among those who live and work here.

Consider the following:

- In November a Rochester Hills couple, Glenn and Wanda Tarr, are abducted and later killed with a handgun in a Pontiac park.
- On Dec. 13 Westland recorded a double homicide as the result of a domestic dispute between an estranged couple that ended with a shotgun blast.
- In the last four months, Southfield has had six shootings with two people killed, seven injured.
- Last week at Plymouth and Telegraph in Redford, a Livonia man was shot in his pickup truck while stopped at a light.
- And Sunday night, a security guard was shot at an auto plant in Livonia and died several hours later.

THAT'S NOT A record to be proud of.

The reasons for the shootings range from domestic disputes to drug deals gone sour. Since the causes are so varied, the solutions must have an equally wide range of appeal.

There are two bills lodged in the state House judiciary committee that, unlike some calls to limit gun availability, provide for education in the proper use of guns.

House Bill No. 4163 would require a person to successfully complete a pistol education course before receiving a license to carry one.

WHILE THE general public has the right to bear arms, it also has the responsibility to use them with care.

HB 4163 provides for instruction in the safe handling, storing, cleaning and discharging of a pistol and information relating to laws about pistol ownership. It also provides for training materials for a single session to last from two to six hours in duration. The training is to be done by law enforcement agencies, such as sheriff's deputies.

Also in the House judiciary committee is bill No. 5212 which instructs gun owners on the proper storage of loaded firearms when there is a possibility of minors (less than 16 years old) gaining access to them without permission.

The bill calls for reasonableness in its directives and provides penalties if a minor does gain accesss to the firearm.

Both bills are responsible moves to educate a public determined to arm itself. If you are concerned about gun safety and what's been happening in our neighborhoods, write your state lawmaker.

Cable TV

How to fight rate increases

CABLE TV received a warm welcome from Americans when it emerged two decades ago. Today that welcome is becoming chillier as cable companies, with a similarity of action that resembles unanimity, raise rates annually.

Not since the OPEC oil cartel gouging of the 1970s have we seen an industry raise its prices by double-digit percentages so inexorably every year.

There's a pattern to the price raising. The cable company jacks up the price of the "basic" service and holds the line on the subscription movie and sports channels.

Meanwhile, the number of commercials seems to grow. Somebody is making an enormous amount of money.

The industry ethically is in a gray area. On one hand, it requires a local governmental franchise to string its wires and to operate. On the other, it's not a public utility, so it's hard to justify governmental price regulation.

Cable TV is not a necessity like water. But for most of us, it has become a habit, like cigarettes, that is extremely difficult to kick.

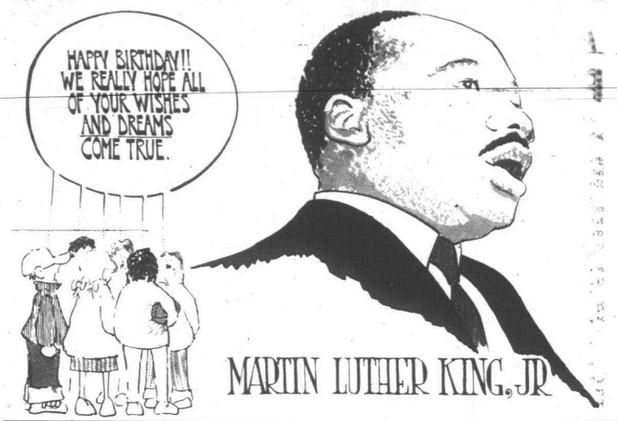
WHAT CAN people do?

Governmental price fixing isn't feasible. There has been talk in Washington of allowing competing services within an area, although it's still unclear how that would work.

Some franchises call for a public hearing every three years to evaluate the franchisee's performance. People should use the hearing to squawk.

When your local cable firm raises the basic price, which seems to happen Feb. 1 in most places, you can cancel an add-on movie or sports channel to keep your total bill level. Once you're down to basic, you can cancel the service entirely, use the VCR or read. This can really hurt the franchisee because it needs a lot of subscribers to pay for the wire it has strung up.

Like cigarettes, cable TV is fun and addicting. But Americans don't need it to live.



Let's link East, West with splash of color

Steve Barnaby

WHEN IT COMES to decorating, some things just make sense, no matter how weird they sound.

I got to thinking about that the other day as I drove along the new stretch of I-696 which links the sensible west side with the mysterious east.

No matter if you're a new metro Detroit resident or a veteran who has migrated along with the urban sprawl, you realize that this is a populace obsessed with transporting itself from point A to point B with the most amount of comfort and least inconvenience possible.

OF COURSE, we don't always get it right. That is to be expected from a community which took 30 years to build half an expressway. But we do stumble along, nevertheless, and somehow manage to make it all work, sort of.

But really, something ought to be done about the aesthetics down in the pit.

You know the pit, otherwise known as the Great Concrete Grand Canyon. It's that portion of the I-696 expressway which is completely sided with cement, oh about 30 or 40 feet high.

Sure is bleak.

Seems the road planners and residents so concerned about how the expressway would impact on the animals at the zoo and the lifestyle of those abutting the freeway, forgot about the real victims, the drivers.

BUT SOLUTIONS do abound. I'm sure you've had a few ideas about what they could do with those foreboding and dreary masses of gray concrete. After all, there is more to life in a car than talking on the cellular phone.

Now my mother for one, a great lover of decorative innovation (she once suspended table lamps by fishwire), might suggest ivy. She, at one time, was a great ivy lover. We had so much ivy growing on the side of our house that nary a brick was to be seen.

Of course, the day did come when ivy went out of style and she singlehandedly ripped it down, leaving me to wonder if I, indeed, was coming home to the correct address.

She only smiled while showing off the next innovation, driftwood strewn about the living room.

Obviously, ivy wouldn't work along the new stretch of I-696. Even the hardy ivy needs a bit of natural soil. But, alas, none exists on several stretches of our newest freeway.

So this humble editor suggests that those barren walls be painted. That's right, painted.

I'm not talking about slapping on just any old coat of paint. No. I'm talking about painting murals. After all, if Diego Rivera could do it, so could a whole slew of other up and comers from the artistic world.

Imagine. The state could run a competition. Naturally, a bi-partisan blue ribbon committee would be handpicked by the governor to make the final choice. That way some influential folks, who feel badly about not being on a comittee at present, would feel wanted again.

The governor could find another excuse to promote a little goodwill during this election season and, most importantly, drivers would have something to look at on their way to and from the yet-to-be-explored east side.

Gratiot? What is a Gratiot, anyway?

Dr. King had moral courage

guest column

By Tom Workman
special writer

Today the people of our nation recognize the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr.

Some feel that Dr. King was the most significant American of this century. He spoke to the people of our nation about war, peace, social injustice, racial discrimination, our obligation to the poor and of non-violence.

He led the people of our nation, blacks and whites alike, to recognize the injustices of our society and to take action to correct the injustices.

Moral courage was one of Dr. King's noblest virtues. When he disobeyed an unjust law, he suffered the consequences of his behavior. He never ran away and he never begged for mercy.

HIS HOUSE was bombed; he was falsely accused; he lived with daily threats of death; he was jailed; slugged; stabbed; and finally at the age of 39, murdered by a hiding sniper.

And yet, this leader never showed bitterness, hatred or vindictiveness towards his fellow man. Like Abraham Lincoln, John and Robert Kennedy, whose lives were taken at an early age, Martin Luther King championed the cause of mankind.

Much has happened to achieve Dr. King's dream since his death 20 years ago. Although we are closer in realizing racial justice, world peace and righteousness, the rate is painfully slow and the gains are sometimes not easy to identify.

We must always remember Martin Luther King and his work.

He will be remembered as one who gave his life serving others; loving his fellow man; opposing violence and war; feeding the hungry; clothing the poor; and visiting the imprisoned.

As he gave strength to the people of his time. We must keep his spirit alive and continue to work for those ideas he held sacred.

Martin Luther King was an outstanding person and a great American. We are all much better off because he was here.

IN HIS 1963 Washington D.C. speech, Dr. King spoke of his dream for America.

- That one day, this nation would live out the true meaning of the creed all men are created equal.
- That sons of former slaves and sons of former slaveholders will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood.
- That children will be judged by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin.
- That little black boys and girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and girls and work together as brothers and sisters.

Dr. King's message went on — "When we let freedom ring from every village, city and state, we will speed up that day when all God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing . . . 'Free at last, free at last. Thank God Almighty, we are free at last.' "

Parents are troops in cookie war

Jack Gladden

TO AN OUTSIDER, it seems like a perfect example of Americana.

The girls, looking adorable in their green and brown uniforms, could have stepped right out of a Norman Rockwell painting.

And anyone who has ever experienced the sensation of a Peanut Butter Patty melting slowly and sinfully on the tongue knows how good the cookies are.

Yes, nothing seems to symbolize everyday life in America better than the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale.

But those on the inside — especially a father getting involved with the sugar-coated ritual for the first time — know it as The Cookie War.

And it's not pretty.

THE FIRST hint that something is wrong is when your wife volunteers to be the Cookie Mother for the Brownie group.

"What's wrong with her?" you ask yourself. "Doesn't she remember the Cub Scouts' cheese and sausage sale? Has she no recollection whatsoever of the Pinewood Derby?"

But memories of watching your son's hand-carved racer wobble down the Pinewood track, eating the dust of those red and metallic blue speedsters that you know were turned on a lathe and sand-blasted before getting that professional paint job, are interrupted by dire warnings that you are NOT to TOUCH those two boxes of cookies on the kitchen counter. They are samples to be passed around at the first Cookie Meeting.

Conversations center on the relative merits of Lemon Pastry Cremes vs. Caramel deLites, but soon turn to more serious topics like not accepting personal checks, making sure that you get all the boxes you ordered when you pick them up at the distribution point and wondering where in the world you are going to put them when you do bring them home.

All this stuff is just strategic planning, though. The real battles are joined, not in the streets or the shopping malls, but in factories and offices all over the country.

THE GIRLS — the Scouts and the Brownies — do sell some cookies, but the storm troopers in this annual invasion are the parents who take the order blanks to work with them.

They know that most people simply cannot say no to the question "Wanna buy some Girl Scout Cookies?"

If you're the only one selling, that's fine. But if you move too close to someone else's turf, watch out. Co-workers who are otherwise pleasant and professional can turn into Freddy Kruegers if they see a new person entering their area with an order blank.

Normal people go to abnormal lengths to push the cookies. Sales aren't going too well? Get a picture of the kid, the cutest one you can find, and put it on the table next to the form. Write something clever like, "Go Ahead. Make Her Day. Buy Some Cookies!"

"Hey, that's not fair!" says a voice from across the room. Another cookiemonger has spotted your ploy.

"I've been selling here for years," someone else's co-worker says. "My granddaughter was so disappointed when I told her you were selling cookies this year. Maybe we should split the orders."

"Listen, try the Lemon Cremes. They're even better than the Caramel deLites!" (Did I just say that? This is getting out of hand.)

"So how did the cookie sales go today, dear?"

"I sold 34 boxes. How about you?"

"I only sold 20, but I'm going to take the form back tomorrow. With a new picture on it."

"Well, she has to sell 150 boxes if she's going to get a T-shirt."

WHOA. WAIT A MINUTE!

She hasn't sold any. Well, five boxes maybe, but her grandmother bought them.

So why do they call it the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale?

I don't know, but put me down for five boxes of Thin Mints. That, plus the ones I've already sold, should at least get me a merit badge. Shouldn't it?

Underachiever questions returning to school

Doc Doyle

You recently wrote an article regarding characteristics and patterns of underachieving. I wasn't an underachiever in high school. I just didn't study enough. I never applied myself. Now I'm 39 years old and thinking about going back to college but my grades were poor in high school. I'm not sure I can do the work required or even fit into a college setting at my age. People say I'm bright enough, but I'm afraid to start back.

Fear of failure is one of the most singular inhibiting factors I've seen in adults who avoid a return to an unfulfilled educational goal or dream. Psychologically it is called an unseen fear. If a one ton safe is falling from the 10th floor of a building and you look up and see it, you move. That is a situation and a fear you can see.

Fear of the unknown (going back to college) causes you to think negatively reducing your confidence and frankly is not rational thinking. In fact, it's dumb.

According to the Institute of Gerontology at the University of Michigan there is some recent research that creativity and wisdom increase with age (all factors such as emotional and physical health being equal).

If this is true, and I believe it is, you have had life experiences by age 39 that should enhance your success in higher education as opposed to being a stumbling block. Indeed, you should go visit some adult education or community college programs. You will see many 50, 60 and even 70 year-olds.

My son teaches basic computer applications in an adult education program in the Comstock Park School District and has two students in their 50s, one who is 64 and on who is 72. They are doing just fine. I didn't complete my doctorate until I was 40.

THE QUESTION of going back to school has been asked of me many times. My answer is: A couple of years from now you are going to wake up one morning and be proud to say, "I can't believe how many credits I've earned towards my degree" or say, "It could have been" — the saddest words of all.

Although professional athletes' careers are limited in terms of longevity because their legs and their bodies give out, the brain, the world's greatest computer is always ready and willing to be turned on to meet new challenges . . . at any age.

You are a well-read person and have all the signs of being successful in college. You have the desire, the experience and a perceived need. Since you live in Livonia, I want you to make an appointment with a counselor at Schoolcraft College or Madonna College, both institutions are in your back yard.

Get started now and obtain the degree your desire . . . and this message goes for all those procrastinators over 30, 40 or 50 who for years, have delayed making their educational decision. Start at college in your area.

You will find the administrators, counselors and faculty are well aware of your fear of failure. One of their major goals is to guide adults back into what I consider life's greatest satisfaction, the life long learning experience or learning from the womb to the tomb.

Dr. James Doyle is the former assistant superintendent in the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

All students must know King's dream

Judith Doner Berne

IT STILL MAKES me cringe.

The mid-January 1986 letter to the editor from a Birmingham resident was very much to the point: "Why didn't you run any stories on Martin Luther King Jr. Day?" she chastised.

It was the first year that the national holiday was observed — and I had no good reason, save ignorance. True, there was next to nothing going on in Birmingham and West Bloomfield — the communities for which I was editor. Of course, that was the story.

Of our Observer & Eccentric communities, only Southfield held a celebration that first year — a peace walk for which the city government provided security but refused to co-sponsor.

No school districts other than Southfield paid much tribute to King. Bloomfield Hills schools displayed newspaper clippings near the school media centers and West Bloomfield schools gave packets of information to high school students.

Tiny Orchard Lake was the only community to reschedule its city council meeting, which it has done ever since. "We do it for George, we can do it for Martin," says Orchard Lake city clerk Janet Overholt Green. "If we have a meeting on a legal holiday, we hold it the next night." And Orchard Lake's city offices are closed.

FAST FORWARD to mid-January 1990.

Monday, the Southfield schools and city offices were closed as many in the community participated in the annual peace walk — and the Southfield City Council postponed its meeting to the next night. The Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills school districts scheduled a variety of events at high schools, middle and elementary schools.

These included talks by '60s civil rights leaders at both Birmingham high schools and a dramatization of King's life by students at one Bloomfield Hills middle school.

The new Farmington schools superintendent sent letters to each school, encouraging staffs to celebrate the holiday in a special way. West Bloomfield schools said they treated the holiday as part of a curriculum that is stressing the role of blacks this year. And in the Wayne Westland district, schools were actively encouraged to plan activities. These included an address to high school students by Leonard Posey, a new member of the school board who is black.

But for most of our suburban districts — especially Walled Lake, Livonia, Garden City, Redford and Waterford — whether students learn about Dr. King or not is at the whim of the classroom teacher.

That simply isn't good enough.

SOME OF OUR suburban students took matters into their own hands.

- At Cranbrook/Kingswood private school in Bloomfield Hills, high school students held a sit-in all day Monday protesting that the school hadn't adequately commemorated the holiday.
- In Waterford, although school officials suggested they just wanted the day off, about 250 students at Crary Junior High hung "I have a dream" signs and refused to return to class because the school wasn't properly commemorating the holiday.

"Even if they didn't give us the day off, they should acknowledge him," said Raimi Blackerby. "Many students didn't know about him. It makes us look like we don't care because he was a black man."

- In Rochester Hills, some Adams High School students were dissatisfied with their school's efforts to honor King. They initiated a rally and will now form a committee with the faculty to plan Martin Luther King Day events for next year.

Like the woman who wrote me that well-deserved letter, these students are not letting school officials — whether through ignorance, laziness or bigotry — fail them. And they are doing it using King's credo of finding peaceful solutions to problems.

Every child, black and white, knows that George Washington couldn't tell a lie and that Abe Lincoln read by firelight. Every child, black and white, must also know that Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream.

Final choice nearing on Northville land sale

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino will be teeing off against each other once more, with the winner to gain more than 1,000 acres of prime property in Northville Township.

But all the action will take place around a conference table, not at the golf course.

Negotiaions between Wayne County ad firms affiliated with each of the golfing legends were expected to resume this week, with the winner to build homes and a championship golf course after buying the county-owned site at Five Mile and Beck road.

NEGOTIATIONS were delayed while soil samples were taken to determine if the county undergound storage tanks had leaked onto the property.

But the property was given a clean bill of health, allowing negotiations to resume. "We're going back to the table," said deputy county executive Michael Duggan.

A final bidder will soon be recommended to the county commission, Duggan said, with whoever bids most for the property expected to be the choice. "We'd be very happy with either bidder," Duggan said.

The field had initially been pared from four bidders.

Those remaining include:

- The Holtzman/Silverman group, affiliated with Nicklaus. In addition to Nicklaus' Tampa-based development company, partners include: Holtzman and Silverman Cos. of Farmington Hills; LoPatin & Co. of Southfield; the Fisher Group, headed by financier Max Fisher's son Phillip and Indianapolis-based Duke Associates. Duke is developing office property on nearby land owned by Schoolcraft College.
- The DeMattia group, affiliated with Trevino. Partners include Robert DeMattia, president of R.A. DeMattia Co., Plymouth Township; Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co., Farmington Hills; the Selective Group, also Farmington Hills and downriver entrepreneur Heinz Prechter, owner of the London Chop House and a chain of suburban newspapers.

Nicklaus has helped develop six pricey golfing communities throughout the nation. The developments feature single family homes, one lots of up to one acre and with prices of up to $800,000. Homes are built around the golf course.

The DeMattia proposal also includes a golf course and single family homes, as well as condominiums, recreational facilities and a high tech center.

Each proposal would utilize the same amount of property, according to Duggan. "We are comparing apples to apples," he said.

The site once housed state-run Plymouth Child Development Center. At one time, it also housed the Wayne County Training School. Both facilities are long closed.

The land sale had been discussed for at least three years. At one time, contruction had been pegged for spring 1989.

Reception to honor Rep. Ford

A reception honoring U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, on his 25 years in Congress will be 6 p.m. Friday at the Hellenic Cultural Center, 36375 Joy Road, Westland.

Gov. James Blanchard, U.S. Postmaster General Anthony Frank and Eastern Michigan University President William Shelton will be featured guests.

The program benefits the Eastern Michigan University William D. Ford Congressional Scholarship Fund.

Former UAW President Douglas Fraser will be master of ceremonies. U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Trenton, Michigan AFL-CIO president Frank Garrison and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths and actor Dann Florek, cast member of "L.A. Law".

EMU Congressional Scholarships are awarded in the name of legislators who actively support higher education. Ford is ranking majority member on the Committee on Education and Labor and chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

Additional information on the reception is available by calling 225-6261.

Japan study is offered

Applications for admission and scholarships to the Japan Center for Michigan Universities are being accepted by the state's 15 public universities.

The Japan Center was established last year in Hikone, Shiga Prefecture, Japan, by the state. Shiga Prefecture is Michigan's sister state in Japan.

The center offers an academic program on Japanese culture and language designed for students interested in the country and culture but not necessarily majoring in Asian studies. Students need not be able to speak Japanese.

TO QUALIFY, students must be U.S. citizens and full-time undergraduates at one of Michigan's 15 state universities in good academic standing.

Students from private and community colleges are also encouraged to apply and will be accepted as space permits.

Thirty scholarships, valued at $7,500, are awarded each year — one to the top student at each university, 15 others in open competition.

The application deadline is Saturday, Feb. 10. Application information is available at each university, including the Eastern Michigan University World College, 487-2414, or EMU Office of International Studies, 487-2424.

Eager athletes go for the gold

By Julie Brown
staff writer

A decent supply of snow makes participating in winter sports a lot more enjoyable.

Special Olympics athletes can attest to that. Snow fell just in time for their area winter games, Friday, Jan. 12, at the Wayne Community Center in Wayne.

Susie Pidsosny, area director for Wayne County Special Olympics, was glad to see snow falling the night before the games.

"Oh, I was so happy," said Pidsosny, a Canton resident. "It made my whole evening, believe me."

A few changes had to be made, due to the day's weather. Not enough snow fell to allow for tobogganing, so that event was canceled. Several cross country skiing events were combined into one.

A lack of snow makes training for winter sports difficult for the athletes, Pidsosny said. Athletes try to train on the grass as best they can.

"It doesn't really do the job."

ABOUT 345 athletes from throughout suburban Wayne County participated in last week's winter games, which featured individual and team competition.

Athletes competed in a number of events, including cross country and downhill skiing, figure skating, speed skating, snowshoeing and snow sculpturing.

Broomball was also part of the day's fun. That team sport is similar to hockey, and is played with a soccer-type ball and brooms.

'It's a good feeling to help out.'

Special Olympics volunteer

ATHLETES DRESSED—for the weather, as did most of the volunteers. Some of the younger teenage volunteers don't wear their warmest clothes, Pidsosny said.

"It's not cool to put anything over your ears or not wear tennies," Pidsosny said with a smile.

Extra boots and warm clothes were available to lend to those involved in outdoor events.

Athletes were awarded medals and ribbons, with each athlete taking home something. Some of the Special Olympics athletes will go to the state winter games, to be Feb. 5-8 at Sugar Loaf Resort in Cedar, Mich.

A CONTINGENT of about 100 athletes, coaches and chaperones from suburban Wayne County will go to the state games, Pidsosny said.

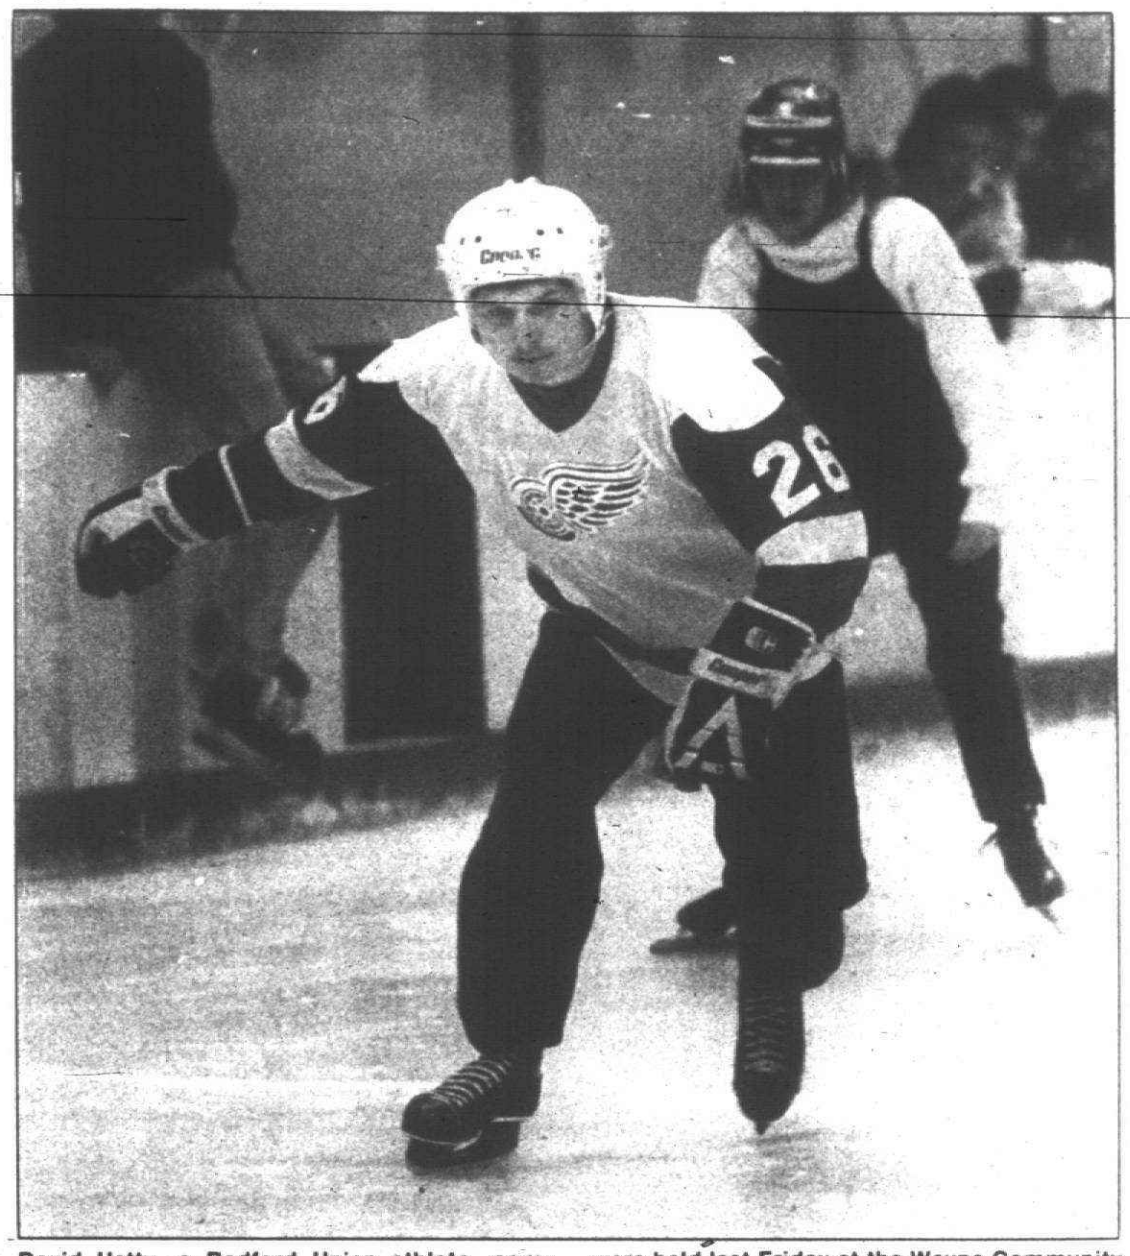
That gathering is more than just a sporting event. Athletes get to meet new friends and visit with friends they've made in the past.

"It's a good social opportunity for a lot of the athletes. Everybody's together for the week," she said.

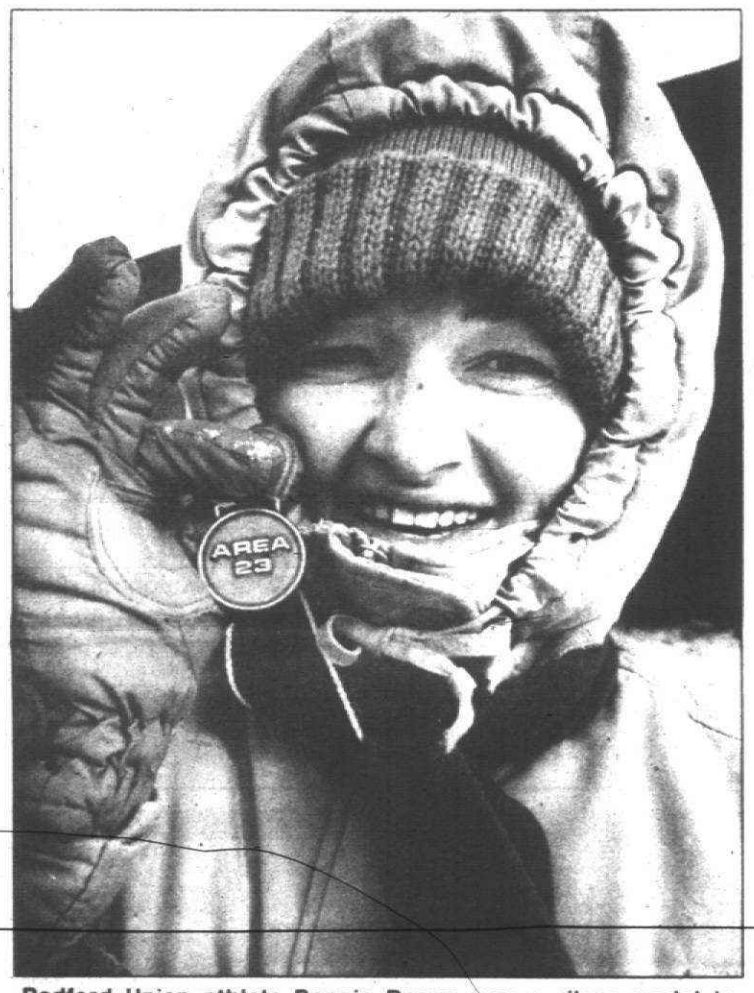
The Special Olympics program provides people who are mentally retarded with opportunities for athletic competition and achievement. Athletes age 8 and older compete in Special Olympics events.

MANY VOLUNTEERS help out with Special Olympics programs. A number of organizations assist at games. Those groups helping with the area winter games included the Order of Alhambra, Wayne County Civitans, Wayne Kiwanis Club and Wayne Community Center staffers.

"They have just been terrific," Pidsosny said. "They've bent over backwards for us."



David Hatty, a Redford Union athlete, competes in the speed skating event. The area winter games for Wayne County Special Olympics were held last Friday at the Wayne Community Center.



Redford Union athlete Bonnie Bacon won a silver medal in cross country skiing.

Redford resident Lola Henry, a Special Olympics parent representative, was busy at the winter games helping with the parent/family reception. Henry also served coffee and doughnuts for the hard-working volunteers.

Her 20-year-old daughter participates in many Special Olympics events, although she wasn't in last week's winter games. Henry enjoys being involved in Special Olympics.

"They're fun to be around," she said of the athletes.

Financial planning makes the future brighter

Elizabeth Allen, a financial planner with Wordhouse & Associates Inc. of Plymouth, is looking forward to presenting a financial information series for women.

By Julie Brown
staff writer

It's difficult for some women to make decisions about managing money.

"Freedom is the key to money, freedom to make decisions that would allow you to do what you'd like to do," said Elizabeth Allen, a financial planner with Wordhouse & Associates Inc. of Plymouth.

Allen has found women aren't always aware of their options; some aren't comfortable discussing or thinking about money.

"You're working hard for your money," said Allen, a Farmington Hills resident. "Your money should be working equally hard for you."

Allen will conduct a four-part series on financial information for women. Sessions, to be held upstairs at the Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main in Plymouth, will include:

- "Women, Power and Money" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 1;
- "Savvy Women Manage Money" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15;
- "Financial Independence for Women" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 1;
- "Living Long and Living Well" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 15.

SESSIONS ARE being offered free of charge, and advance registration isn't required. The sessions are open to men. A reading list will be provided for participants.

Allen will begin the first session by covering an area most women are familiar with, banking. Following discussion of savings and checking accounts, Allen will discuss more sophisticated investments.

She's found many women of all ages are uncomfortable dealing with money.

"I'm working with young women now who are right out of college," said Allen, who joined Wordhouse & Associates Inc. in November 1988. Those women earn good salaries and know managing their money is important. Even so, they're uncomfortable making decisions.

Women with significant managerial responsibilities at work may be reluctant to apply their skills in managing their finances.

"It's tough to build the confidence in women to get them to make those decisions." Allen has found men are generally better at keeping their emotions separate from their finances.

In the first session, Allen will talk about women's attitudes toward money. During the second session, participants will learn techniques for controlling their money.

"You're not afraid of it anymore, you know what money can do for you." Participants will learn what tools are needed to manage money.

DURING THAT session, using and not abusing credit will be covered.

"It's very easy to get credit," Allen said. Younger people just out of school with many first-time expenses may find themselves getting deeply into debt.

It's important for people to learn to differentiate among their needs, wants and desires, she said.

"It makes you aware of your spending habits." Doing that helps people avoid impulse buying.

During the third session, participants will explore directions they wish to take. It's essential to set financial goals for one year, five years and beyond, and to set new goals as those are reached, she said.

"You have to be very specific to be able to reach those goals." Setting smaller goals — such as being able to take a Caribbean vacation a year from now — is helpful, as is long-term goal-setting.

Retirement planning and long-term health care insurance will be covered during the fourth session.

One out of every three women will retire at the poverty level, being forced to live on about $6,000 per year or less.

"That to me is extremely frightening," Allen said. Among those women, about half could have avoided ending up in poverty by planning for retirement.

Many women have worked for smaller, independent companies without pension plans. A woman may not stay in a job long enough to qualify for a pension.

WOMEN IN their 20s and 30s need to start planning for retirement, she said. Pensions, 401(k) plans, IRAs and Social Security can help provide retirement income for women.

It's best not to depend on just one source of income, she said. Women tend to live longer, and must keep that in mind when planning for retirement.

Allen has given other financial seminars for women. She teaches adult education courses in finance for several area school districts.

'It's tough to build the confidence in women to get them to make those decisions.'

— Elizabeth Allen
financial planner

Allen earned a bachelor of science degree in mathematics from Eastern Michigan University and has taken 30 hours of postgraduate classes in education. She worked for the Ford Motor Co. for 11 years, and spent five years there as a product and systems analyst in engineering.

She's a candidate in the College for Financial Planning in Denver, Colo. Allen's interest in financial planning started when she worked on her own portfolio and on her son's. She then traded stocks and bonds, and her hobby became a profession.

"I've been divorced. I know what it's like." Women often don't know where to turn for financial advice and are reluctant to ask family members for help.

"There's an element of privacy that I think is important."

She encourages people to use financial information available free of charge in libraries. Visiting the library once a month to do that is a good idea.

"There is a lot of good information at public libraries when it comes to investment knowledge. I think that's an excellent habit to get into."

They go for the gold

Olympics since she was 9, has benefited from that involvement.

"A lot of self-esteem," Henry said. "It doesn't matter what they win. No matter what they get, they're proud of it."

Henry's daughter has met new people and become a better athlete over the years.

"A lot of friends," Henry said. "She's met a lot of different students from other areas. She's grown with the sports."

VOLUNTEER Carol Socha, a Canton resident, doesn't have a child involved in the Special Olympics program.

"My husband and I have been volunteering for six, seven years now. It seemed like a good thing to get into," Socha said.

She helped with registration and special activities at the winter games.

Socha's husband, Stan, started by volunteering as a bowling scorekeeper. She too began to volunteer her time.

Carol Socha, a sales representative for AT&T, is a member of the Telephone Pioneers. Many of her fellow club members serve as Special Olympics volunteers.

"It's a good feeling, to help out," she said.

Seeing the athletes compete is rewarding as well.

"They get hyped up and they just can't wait to get out there and show their best," Socha said.

An open letter to newspaper advertisers.

How to evaluate your options in light of the Detroit JOA.

The JOA has pretty much turned media advertising on its ear. Shockingly higher rates. New contracts. Uncertain circulation. In the midst of this turmoil, it's more important than ever before to take a careful look at the Detroit market.

Here are some facts to consider.

SPRING, the network of 45 suburban daily and weekly papers is now delivering more key customers for less money than either the News or the Free Press.

Of all the newspaper alternatives, SPRING reaches the greatest number of people you want to reach. More than 1,000,000 readers in more than 500,000 suburban households surrounding Detroit. Men and women with the spending power, smarts, and savvy to buy what you have to sell.

What's more, SPRING is efficient.

One sales rep, one insertion order, one ad copy, and one invoice does it all.

The bottom line? If you are a newspaper advertiser, you have a legitimate choice. You can look at the JOA as a new problem—or you can look at SPRING as a new solution.

Naturally, we hope you'll choose SPRING.

Why not give us a call?

Variety is the spice of life for talented performers

By Julie Brown
staff writer

SOME STUDENTS at Centennial Educational Park had reason to be a bit nervous last week.

Auditions for the annual "Variety Is" show were Thursday-Friday, Jan. 11-12. Students from Canton and Salem high schools who hope to perform in the show faced a panel of student judges during auditions.

"They've talked about it and they're kind of nervous," said 16-year-old Heidi Naasko, a Canton junior who is the show coordinator.

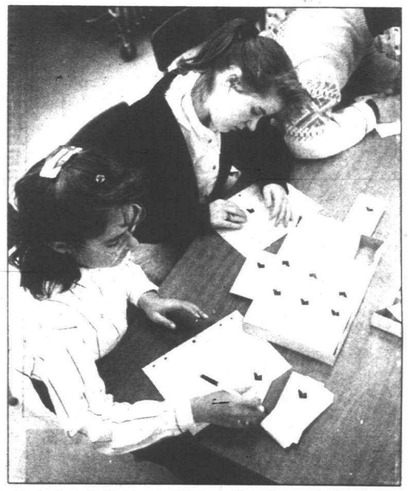
Even so, the students did just fine during auditions.

"They're confident," said Naasko, a Canton resident. "They hope they get to play, perform."

"Variety Is" performances will be at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Jan. 26-27, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, 46181 Joy, Canton.

General admission tickets, priced at $2, are available from CEP Marching Band members. Reserved seat tickets are $4. For reservations, call Carol Shasko, 459-2133. Some general admission tickets will be available at the door.

'It's a fun experience. I like doing it every year.'
—Heidi Naasko, show coordinator



Students Julie Perkins and Melanie Notestine mark tickets for the "Variety Is" show. Performances will be at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 26-27, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

THE VARIETY show will include performances by the Marching Band, Symphony Band, Concert Band and Jazz Band from CEP. The Marching Band's Color Guard will also perform. That group of students took first place honors at the U.S. Marching Bands of America National Competition in Indianapolis, Ind., in November.

The variety show has been presented annually for more than 20 years. Proceeds from the show are used for band equipment, scholarships and other needs, said Jim Griffith, director of bands at CEP.

Dancers, singers, comedians, instrumentalists, jugglers and gymnasts have performed in previous "Variety Is" shows. Students in ninth through 12th grades were eligible to audition last week.

"Just good, exciting, outstanding student talent," Griffith said. "No adults are allowed to perform. The kids are very selective as to who they ask to perform."

The show, which will last two hours, is designed for families to enjoy, he said.

NAASKO AND other students are looking forward to performing in the "Variety Is" show later this month. She'll perform with the Marching Band and with the Symphony Band.

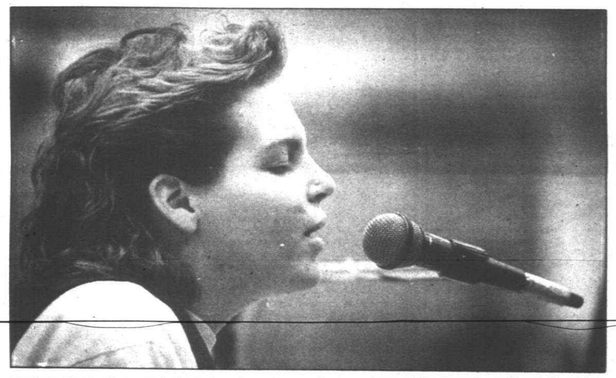
"It's a fun experience," she said. "I like doing it every year."

This is the third show in which she has been involved.

She and the other student judges had a tough task last week. They can't let friendship be a factor when they're choosing performers. Instead, they have to think about what's best for the audience.

"We've had a lot of good people trying out," Naasko said.

'The kids are very selective as to who they ask to perform.'
—Jim Griffith, director of bands



Heather Berlin sings and plays the piano during auditions for the variety show. The show will feature many student performers, including members of the Symphony Band, Marching Band, Concert Band and Jazz Band from Centennial Educational Park.

Student Jennie Betley performs a solo number during the auditions.

Romantic songs to be performed

A "Gala Valentine Dinner" will be Saturday, Feb. 3, at the Mayflower Meeting House in downtown Plymouth.

The event is sponsored by the Plymouth Historical Society and the Plymouth Rotary Club. It will begin with a 6:30 p.m. cash bar, followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

The evening will feature performances of love songs, including selections from "Phantom of the Opera," "West Side Story" and "South Pacific." Kelvin Chen will be the master of ceremonies.

Chen, a graduate of Michigan State University, is a certified financial planner in Farmington Hills. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth.

OTHER FEATURED performers include:

● Donna Kallie, who received a bachelor's degree in music education and a master's degree in music performance from Eastern Michigan University. She is an alumna of Interlochen and taught music in the Dearborn Public Schools. She is an associate professor of music at Madonna College.

● Alex Cave, a local attorney and graduate of the Indiana University School of Music. He has sung with the Cleveland Orchestra Chorus under the direction of Robert Shaw. Cave currently sings with Geneva Presbyterian Church and with an Ann Arbor choir.

● John Stewart, a local attorney and member of the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth. Stewart attended Interlochen and was the student conductor for Robert Shaw at the Meadowbrook School of Music. He sang with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Chorale for eight years and is a member of the Plymouth Oratorio Society.

● Jane Wall, who received a bachelor's degree in music education from Western Michigan University and a master's degree in voice performance from Oakland University. She has taught music in the Dearborn Public Schools for nine years. She has also played the lead in many musicals in the Detroit area and wrote her own musical for her master's thesis.

● Carol Foust Chen, a Plymouth native who received a degree in music from Michigan State University. She teaches private piano lessons and plays at the Cafe Bon Homme in Plymouth.

● Karen Upton Chapin, a Plymouth native and graduate of the University of Michigan. She teaches music at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth and is a choir director at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

● Judy Ancona, who sang with the Providence, R.I., Chorale. She currently sings with the Schoolcraft Community Chorale and the David Jorlett Singers.

This is the second year for such a Valentine's Day program. Ticket price for the fund-raising event is $30 per person. Tables for eight may be reserved. For reservations, call the Plymouth Historical Museum, 455-8940.

Madonna College to offer seminars

A series of personal wellness seminars will be offered at Madonna College, 36600 Schoolcraft in Livonia.

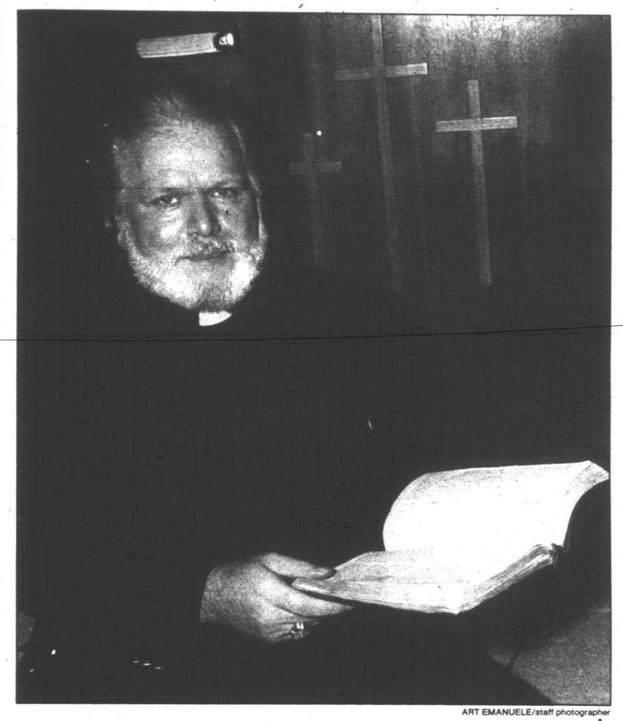
Minister's pleased with the growth of congregation



ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

By Sue Mason
staff writer

He has been told he looks like Kenny Rogers, but while Rogers croons about love and the "Coward of the County," the Rev. Estel Dash spends his time singing praise to and talking about God.

Dash is pastor of God's House Cathedral, a interdenominational church that recently moved to Livonia from Walled Lake to be nearer to a majority of its congregation.

Small in size — it has just 42 members at present — the congregation is meeting Sunday afternoons at the Bethel Missionary Assembly of God on Middlebelt north of Joy Road.

"We had people with relatives and friends who wanted to attend, but were discouraged because they had to travel more than 30 miles one way," Dash said of the decision to relocate the church. "We had about 20-22 members, but now we have about 42."

The new building can seat more than 300 and there are 10 classrooms for Sunday School, two nursery rooms and a gymnasium where films like "The Cross and the Switchblade" and "A Distant Thunder" are shown Sunday evenings.

With such a small congregation, the church does fave a few needs. More members, of course, but also people who can play any musical instrument and who can sing, Dash said.

THE CONGREGATION tends to be for people who have had experiences with other organized religions. According to Dash, the congregation is probably one-third Catholic, one-third Baptist and one-third from different denominations.

The Rev. Estel Dash spends his time singing praise to and talking about God as pastor of God's House Cathedral. The interdenominational church recently moved to Livonia from Walled Lake.

"We believe you should come to church because you enjoy it," Dash said. "We don't stress money. We speak positive that God is a God of love and that he is a forgiving God."

At 50, Dash is a relative newcomer to the ministry even though he has been a Christian since the age of 10.

He started out as a background singer on TV with Temple Baptist Church, and eventually became a choir director, and then Sunday School superintendent. He was teaching a young married couples' class when God called him to the ministry, he said.

DASH BECAME a minister 15 years ago after spending approximately six years studying under people like Morris Cerullo, Dr. Alex Ness and Dr. C.M. Ward. He ministered in Brighton and then Westland, where he helped build up the congregation of the Community Church from a low of 85 people to approximately 360.

But God had him in a "training program" for 10 years prior to that, he said. That's when he visited churches of all faiths to see "how they lined up with the Bible and God's word."

"I wanted to see what was really of God and what was of themselves," Dash said. "It was a real learning experience. I found all the churches were three-quarters correct in their teaching. They all had something good, but approximately a quarter wasn't of God; it was of man.

"IT'S HARD not to do that to some extent but the Bible tells us in the last chapter of Revelations that we're not supposed to add to or take away from God's word. We try to give God's word 100 percent."

For church-goers who lack Bibles, the congregation provides them for the services.

"All our members not only bring Bibles but bring (yellow) highlighters so they can totally receive God's word," Dash said.

Dash is pleased with the growth of the church. All the new members aren't transfers from other churches, he said.

"We have one girl, 13, who comes to church regularly who had never been in church in her life," he said. "She's coming one her own and coming with a friend. She's a born-again Christian now and she has a Bible with her own name on it."

DASH HAS set two goals for God's House Cathedral — a congregation of 100 by Easter and 200 by Christmas 1990. They will be reached in part because of his TV ministry, he said.

The Sunday afternoon service is filmed and then aired at 9 p.m. Tuesdays on MetroVision cable Channel 8 in Livonia, and on Sunday mornings on Greater Media cable in Walled Lake. Dash is also working with cable systems in surrounding communities to carry the telecast.

Dash began his television ministry eight years ago, when he recorded a commercial promoting his church's Good Friday service for cable TV in South Lyon.

"The TV manager was so overwhelmed with our love and positive approach, he gave us a set of old color TV cameras and asked us to be on his station," Dash said. "Within two weeks, we were on TV."

The goals are realistic because of the church's positive focus, Dash said.

"You should come to church because you enjoy it," he said. "If you can't enjoy church, have joy, love and peace, how can you enjoy heaven? We are only in a dress rehearsal for heaven. God wants us to be full of joy."

Services at God's House Cathedral, 8900 Middlebelt, north of Joy Road, Livonia, are at 2:30 p.m. Sundays. Christian films are shown at 6 p.m. Sundays in the Acts Building behind the church. "A Thief in the Night" will be shown Feb. 4. For more information, call the Rev. Estel Dash at 437-1890.

Age brings on hearing loss gerontology

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

I would like to use your column to vent some of my anger and frustration!

I spent last week traveling with my sister and her husband. They are retirees in their late 60s.

What was planned as a nice vacation to look at the beautiful fall colors ended up being a week of frustration. My sister's husband Reg is hard of hearing. He doesn't think he has a hearing problem at all. We have suggested that he ask his doctor about this and perhaps wear a hearing aid — but no, he prefers that we repeat everything we say, sometimes three and four times, until we become impatient, angry, and downright tired.

He was upset when we wouldn't let him drive. We couldn't because by the time he understood where we wanted him to turn, we were well past where we wanted to go.

Here I am, after a supposedly relaxing trip, more tired than before I left.

Jo, what can we do? He used to be a great guy.

Sign me,
Mrs. T.
P.S. He reads your column.

Dear Mrs. T.:

I'm sure Reg is still a great guy.

Thirty percent of the elderly population have age-related hearing loss. It is more prevalent in elderly men than in elderly women. It often goes unnoticed because it comes on very slowly. They not only have a problem with communication, the loss also has an impact on their physical safety, their mental health (it is thought to be related to depression), and all their social interactions.

For Reg's own well-being, he must have an evaluation (with an otologist and an audiolologist) and then follow through with the professional recommendations.

I suggest that you and your sister confront Reg. Tell him, again, of your frustrations. Explain how exhausting it is for you to have to repeat everything you say time and time again. He has to take the responsibility for his hearing loss and do something about it.

We had this problem in our family and, after years of frustration with the older person not getting help, we all refused to repeat ourselves. He now wears a hearing aid and hears better. This was a tough approach to take, but it worked. Good luck!

Readers can write to Jolayne Farrell at 11 Cynthia Crescent, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4E 2P8.

Series focuses on 'you'

New year . . . new opportunities . . . new you. That's what's on the minds of many women as they get their personal house in order for the next decade.

To help them along, Schoolcraft College is offering a special program series geared to women who want to look and feel their best in the business world and in their life in general.

"A Personal Growth Series — All of You" will be 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning Feb. 6, at the college, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

THE SERIES will open Feb. 6 with "Self Image," a session that will show participants how to set and reach goals through use of non-verbal communication skills.

On Feb. 13, the program topic will be "Color." This will include tips on how to use color in clothing, makeup and hair and how to use a special personal color package to acquire a coordinated, flattering wardrobe and appearance.

"Figure Challenges" on Feb. 20 will look at understanding body structure and individual figure challenges, while the Feb. 27 program, "Playing by the Rules," will cover basic wardrobe tips and the use of accessories where there are rules for dressing well.

The final session on March 13 will be a workshop on scarf tying, in which participants will learn how to use scarves to their utmost.

THE SERIES will be taught by Peg Churchill Treacy, president of Churchill Associates-Impression Management of Birmingham.

Treacy has spoken before numerous groups and on radio and television. She counts General Motors, McDonalds Corp., Michigan Bell Telephone and First Federal of Michigan among her clients.

The Schoolcraft series costs $54 ($10 for individual sessions). Registration is limited. For more information, call the college's Continuing Education Services at 462-4448.

FAMILY FINANCES

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. The information is for educational purposes only; references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by Observer & Eccentric Newspaper or the advisers.

To receive a free financial planning brochure or to obtain a questionnaire to have your finances reviewed in this column, write the Center for Financial Planning, Department 100, 877 S. Adams, Suite 202, Birmingham, Mich. 48009, or call 642-4000.

The only place where success comes before work is in the dictionary. This month's profiled family, Tim and Penny Morris, have worked hard to be successful financially. By sticking to those areas of investment that they know well, they have built a solid foundation for the attainment of their future financial goals.

Tim and Penny live in their Southfield house with their 4-month-old son. Tim, 39, is the manager of a real estate office, and Penny, 32, is a part-time teacher. They would like to have at least one more child within a couple of years.

Their short-term goals include an overseas trip and replacement of their household appliances. In about five years, they would like to buy a larger house. Longer term, they want to begin planning for the higher education costs for their son.

Tim has used his extensive knowledge in the real estate area to make a number of excellent investments in real estate. Rather than simply buying the real estate outright, he has joined a small group of investors who form limited partnerships to purchase the real estate. This has proven to be very lucrative, as shown by the face that more than half of the Morris gross income of $100,000 is provided by those limited partnerships.

We would note that it is very unusual for individuals in their 30s to have such significant income from investments. This is a real strength, but it has been accomplished only through hard work, thorough analysis before investing and the willingness to take significant risk.

IRONICALLY, IT IS this high-risk orientation that we would suggest they re-evaluate. They are now relatively secure financially. We would like to see them begin to concentrate their efforts toward building assets in other investment areas rather than continuing to direct the bulk of their investments into real estate. We are not suggesting that they ignore real estate as an investment area. We simply think that they should balance their portfolio with other, more liquid assets, such as stocks, bonds, certificates of deposits, etc.

If there was a significant downturn in the real estate markets, it is possible that they might be forced to significantly reduce their standard of living. Not only would their investment income decrease dramatically in such an environment, but Tim's employment income could also be reduced.

By making the effort to diversify into other investment areas, they are broadening the base of their financial security. Should real estate take a downturn, then they would be able to weather the storm until the real estate climate changed for the better.

Tim and Penny have maintained a relatively modest lifestyle. As a result, they have been able to build their assets rapidly. They continue to save almost $3,000 per month. Given that rate of accumulation, their financial goals appear both modest and readily attainable.

Their insurance coverages are in good shape, except in the disability area. Tim has no coverage protecting his family in case of a long-term disability. Were he to become incapacitated, his employment income could stop. One of Tim's major financial assets is his ability to earn an income over the next 25 years. If this ability were lost, it would be a significant blow.

Tim should purchase an individual disability income protection policy. This policy should cover both accidents and sickness and should provide him with income until age 65, should he be disabled for that length of time. Because he would purchase the policy as an individual, any benefits he received would be tax-free.

LAST YEAR Tim purchased a $1 million universal life insurance policy. The annual premium is close to $12,000, and he is concerned that he made a poor decision. "It seemed like a reasonable investment at the time, but I'm not sure I understand it or if I should continue to put my money into it," he said.

Universal life insurance can be an excellent addition to a person's financial situation under the right circumstances. Without seeing and evaluating the actual policy, it is difficult to make a specific recommendation to Tim. But some general guidelines might be helpful.

First, he should check that the amount of insurance coverage is appropriate. Too much coverage unnecessarily depletes the policy's cash values, and it increases the premiums he is required to pay. Too little coverage might leave his family without the resources to maintain their standard of living should something happen to Tim. He should review this with his insurance agent or his financial planner.

We would suggest that he not view this coverage primarily as an investment. Though universal life does have certain investment characteristics and tax advantages, it is first and foremost a life insurance policy.

He should be sure that the policy is with an established, high-quality insurance company. This is important in maintaining the long-term integrity of the policy assumptions.

Lastly, he should work either with his agent or by himself to be fully informed about universal life policies generally, and this policy in particularly. He should not be putting substantial assets into something he does not understand.

IN GENERAL, WE believe that universal life policy is probably appropriate for Tim. Given his need for additional diversification and need for coverage to protect his family, it is an appropriate type of policy. But he should review the amount of coverage and other items recommended.

Tim and Penny have indicated a desire to establish educational funding accounts for their son. Since they have 17 years to accumulate money for college, we would suggest a regular, monthly investment in a growth mutual fund account for this purpose. A relatively modest amount such as $100 per month would be appropriate. It is the regularity of the U.S. census is fodder for market researchers

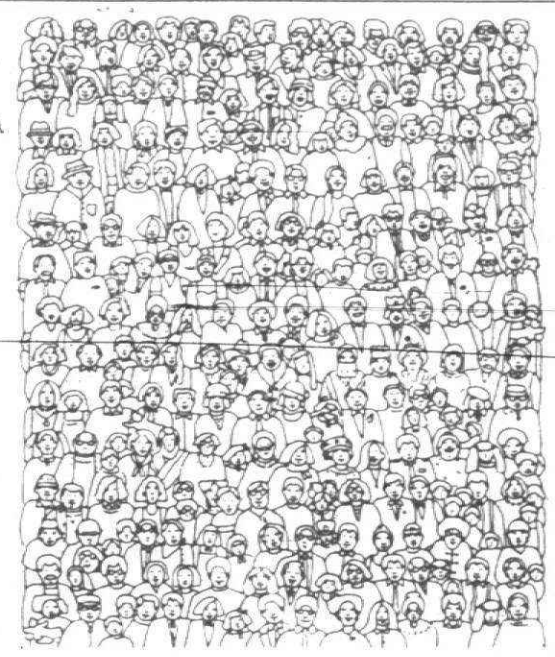
By Gerald Frawley
staff writer



"In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled." Luke 2:1

There are almost 250 million people out there, but who are they? That's what the 1990 census wants to find out.

And that's also what local marketing agencies want to find out.

Director of the Bureau of the Census Barbara Bryant — former vice president at Market Opinion Research in Detroit — told American Marketing Association members at the Embassy Suites hotel in Southfield recently that information gleaned from the census will have a tremendous impact on marketing professionals in the Detroit area.

"Much of the raw data (used by market researchers) really comes from the census, and (market researchers) work with that information," she said. "They all start with our figures."

As required by the U.S. Constitution, the census is used to reapportion the seats in the U.S. House of Representatives, Bryant said, but it is much more than that.

"The census has spawned the entire marketing industry," Bryant said.

The census will be taken this spring, using mailed forms and personal visits in an attempt to get the most accurate resident count in census history, Bryant said.

Bryant said the results of the 1990 census will be more accessible than in the past. In addition to printed documentation and computer tape, the census bureau will expand its use of computer on-line information and introduce census documentation on compact disc, the latest in computer information storage.

JAMES LEIMAN, vice president for Market Opinion Research in Detroit, said while he wouldn't go as far as to say the census spawned the marketing industry, there is no question it provides vital groundwork for what they do.

"It's a tool that lets you know where your basic target is, but we need more," Leiman said. Today, market researchers do additional surveys to enhance the census data, tailoring it to an individual client's needs.

Determining how to direct the message at the desired target and what might appeal to the target is a complicated step, he said.

Subha Ramesh, senior research project director for ESP Inc. in Livonia, said although the census is helpful, marketers do more than just interpret the census. If that were the case, marketing research wouldn't be necessary.

"A lot of what we do is helping companies better sell their products," she said. "The census alone can't do that."

"The problem with the census is that (marketers) are trying to appeal to individuals, and the census data is provided in aggregate," Ramesh said.

The census enables marketing researches to evaluate trends, population, people per household, racial makeup and expenditure patterns, but it is not specific enough to help marketing research firms in everything they do.

investment, more than the amount, that is important at this point.

The funds would be placed into a custodial account under the Michigan Uniform Gifts to Minors Act. Their son's Social Security number would then be on the account, and any taxation would flow through to him.

Tim and Penny have no estate plan. This is a critical weakness and should be an immediate priority. They should have a will to allow them to appoint the personal representatives, or executors, of their estate and name a guardian for their son.

Should a joint death occur, they need to have a provision for management of their estate assets for their son. Especially since their combined estate (which includes the life insurance proceeds) is substantial, they should consider incorporating revocable living trusts into their estate planning. This would allow for probate savings, ease of administration, continuity of asset management and greater control of the ultimate asset disposition than might be possible under a typical will.

Before they see an attorney, they should decide who they would like to have handle their affairs should a joint death occur. Who should manage the details of their estate administration? Who would they like to have serve as their son's guardian? Who should manage the money for their son's benefit until he is old enough to handle it himself? If any of these people are unwilling or unable to serve, who else should be named as their replacement? Having the answers to these questions will be helpful to their attorney in drawing up the best estate plan for them. Obviously, Tim and Penny are in excellent shape financially. Unless something unexpected occurs, they should be able to reach all of their current financial goals. Thus they are in the position where they can concentrate their energies toward improving the non-financial aspects of their lives. When it comes right down to it, that is the point of all successful financial planning.

Marketers must still analyze, interpret and augment the census data with information from other sources, Ramesh said.

The census is an important tool for marketers, but it is not indispensable, Ramesh said. "If we didn't have the census, it would be more difficult, but we wouldn't go out of business."

JOHN BRAND OF the Brand Consulting Group in Southfield said the census plays different roles depending on the project or the company.

More marketing firms, he said, are getting away from directly researching the census and instead hire other firms to do the research. Those firms that are involved in census research will be affected far more than the average marketing firm.

Since marketing firms would still need much of the information provided by the census, Brand said, marketing would be a much more costly service without it.

Even though it is impossible to have perfect demographics research — even the census is only a snapshot of the day the census is sent and is outdated before it is released — the census provides the best overall view of the country, Brand said.

Confrontation helps small business

Mary DiPaolo

Confrontation is one way of bringing problems out into the open. Webster defines confrontation as the process of "bringing face to face" and "to cause to meet." Within the small business environment, proper confrontation can resolve differences, correct poor working habits, and eliminate negative feelings that may have built up over days, months or even years.

Little has been written to help small business owners, managers and employees develop good confrontation skills. Many resist confronting altogether for fear of being disliked, creating anger or becoming too emotional. But the most common block to initiating successful confrontation is a lack of proper skills. The good news is that these skills can be developed to produce creative thought and action to resolve problems — while reminding others of their potential and ability to excel.

The most basic confrontation skill is your attitude. What visual images come to mind then you think of confrontation? Do you think of calmly bringing an issue "face to face" to achieve a satisfactory solution? Or are you automatically upset and tense, imagining yourself in conflict with the other person?

Remember that all confrontation must occur with total respect to the long-term growth of the individual. It is important to build up and not put down. This means approaching positively (from a helpful point of view), not negatively (as a destructive influence).

Because problems with other people often evoke an emotional response, successful confrontation involves gaining and maintaining control of your own thoughts and feelings. It also means identifying what you want the confrontation to accomplish. Your goal (the desirable outcome) must be clear before any confrontation is initiated. Do you want the other person to change? Are you willing to change? Is compromise the best solution? If you don't set specific confrontation goals, you will be doing nothing more than unproductive complaining.

To assure that you maintain control of the direction of any confrontation, it is important to plan your message in writing. Writing it out will help you organize your thoughts, focus more clearly, and understand the entire scope of the problem.

During this process, you will either change your perspective on the situation or be more sure of your original confrontation goal(s). If you don't write out what you plan on saying beforehand, you run the risk of "neutralizing" your actual delivery. Examples include stating what is wrong in such general terms that the other person doesn't know what you mean. It may also result in talking "around the issue" so the other person misses your point completely.

Next week, we will present the remaining guidelines regarding confrontation as a positive management method.

Nobody wants to see the message in 'Roger & Me'

auto talk

Dan McCosh

I've seen Roger Smith twice recently, but I still haven't been able to pin down Michael Moore, the filmmaker whose "Roger & Me" purports to document Moore's quest for answers from Smith about Flint's auto unemployment.

I did, however, finally get to see the movie, which is playing in local theaters for a $7.45 discount compared to what it would have cost me to attend the Denver Film Festival.

THE FILM uses the auto industry as a comic metaphor for the growing disparity in today's post-industrial society between the haves and have-nots. Moore's satirical essay on his Flint-area upbringing and the economic troubles that hit that town with the force of the Great Depression in the last two decades is superimposed on a series of images of urban poverty and a complacent middle class.

Moore remembers a bucolic Flint of his childhood in the 1950s and contrasts it with Flint of today, ravaged by crime and poverty and still suffering from one of the highest unemployment rates in the nation.

MAKING A comedy out of social tragedy is not for the thin-skinned. Moore's comic genius works like a feature-length version of Candid Camera run amok, as he impersonates a television reporter to get interviews from his unsuspecting subjects.

Some of this is hilarious, including a scene in a San Francisco coffee shop where the waitress takes two minutes to list the varieties of caffeine without once mentioning a cup of coffee.

Or a former radio host turned cosmetic saleswoman, infinitely concerned about whether her customers' color scheme is "winter" or "summer."

SHOW BIZ nitwits, baton twirlers and Flint's convention recruiting all get jabs, as does a hapless woman who raises stew rabbits for some income.

Then the belly laughs are caught short as Moore goes for a gag while a mentally ill man in the street dressed in a Superman cape is gunned down, live, with real bullets.

The scene is enough to cut away the comic veneer and bring home the reality that these are real people, somehow stripped of their real voices, and used as images on a screen, reacting to a stranger pointing a camera, as politely as they know how.

ABOVE IT all floats the image of GM chairman Roger Smith, whose name and face provide a hook for the movie as a symbol for uncaring corporate America. Sometimes obviously confused by Moore's antics, Smith's voiceless image is set up to take the bitter odds with his record as reinvesting more in blighted urban centers than any other GM chairman in history.

But the movie is not about fairness, or even journalism, despite Moore's pious protests when the manipulative editing is criticized. Perhaps it takes a comedy to bring a taste of America's human tragedy to the screen.

I WOULD also like to think that if nothing else, a movie like "Roger and Me" might bring some awareness of the human cost of industrial dislocation. But so far, there has been far more concern about the death of a stew rabbit in the movie than the aforementioned human being shot down on camera.

Likewise, the movie depends on the notion of a leering, uncaring Roger Smith to personify an otherwise faceless economic system. Smith himself never has a chance, as his face and name are used mercilessly to further the image needed to make the film work.

In the end it is a powerful film, and if you look closely you can see yourself somewhere in it. But be careful; you might not be one of the good guys.

THEN AGAIN, what's this got to do with the auto business, anyway? Well, "Roger and Me" is only the third movie in general release about autoworkers that comes to mind — others being Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" — a far more sympathetic comic portrayal of life on the assembly line — and the recent "Gung Ho" by Ron Howard, another comedy that portrayed a paternal Japanese management painfully educating the likes of Michael Moore's Flint autoworker.

Like its predecessors, the film ultimately will do something to shape what Americans think about GM, the industry and even American cars. Unfortunately, after the laughs die off what is left is a lingering image of an industry run by ogres and employing hapless buffoons who automatically turn to crime when the paycheck is gone.

Which may not be so funny, after all.

Stocks are worth more over the long haul

today's investor

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

I have accumulated a substantial amount of money and plan on leaving trust funds of equal amounts to my two children, to my church and to the Salvation Army. I would like to provide that neither my children nor the charities be able to use anything but the income earned by the trusts for the first 20 years. I have talked to my bank trust department about how the money in the trusts should be invested, and they tell me they would probably invest 60 percent of the money in stocks and 40 percent in bonds or other items that would pay a fixed rate of interest. I have argued that as I read the statistics, what I leave is likely to earn more money and be worth more at the end of 20 years if it is fully invested in stocks. The bank people argue that to be fully invested in stocks would be risky, and they argue for the split between stocks and bonds. What would you advise me to do?

If your purpose is to have the greatest amount of income and the greatest principal value at the end of 20 years, then I would favor the all-stock fund. In a 60-year study by Ibbotson Associates, the average compound annual return of stocks in the Standard and Poor's 500 Index was 10 percent, and for top-grade bonds was 4 percent.

That difference in rate of return will produce a tremendous difference in value at the end of 20 years. I was in a meeting with a group of trust officers this past week in which they advised their clients that they expected stocks to provide a 13-percent total return over the next two years and bonds to provide a 10-percent return.

THE CASH return from an all-stock portfolio will be substantially smaller to begin with than from one with a mixture of stocks and bonds. The return from bonds is fixed and occurs with the periodic dates on which interest is paid.

The immediate pay-off from stocks is the range of 2½ percent to 7 percent a year. With that kind of increase, you will eventually reach the point where the dividend income will be greater and still increasing from the all-stock portfolio, compared to the income from a portfolio of both stocks and bonds.

IT IS important to keep in mind that stock prices fluctuate and in a 20-year period there are likely to be times when the price at which the portfolio could be sold would be less than some peak it may have reached in the meantime.

Also, if the 20-year period ends and a recession is in progress, the value of the portfolio may be depressed. But historically an all-stock fund should provide higher returns than a combined stock and bond fund, for investors willing to assume the higher risk.

Employment sets record

An all-time record 4.3 million people were working in Michigan during 1989, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

Michigan's economy continued to grow for the seventh consecutive year as statewide employment increased by 101,000, according to preliminary annual estimates prepared for Michigan by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The state labor force also grew in 1989, climbing by 84,000 to a record 4,664,000. Since 1982, Michigan's labor force has risen by 388,000.

Michigan's average annual unemployment rate in 1989 dropped for the seventh straight year to an 11-year low of 7.1 percent. In 1978, the jobless rate was 6.9 percent.

The number of jobless workers in the state averaged 330,000 in 1989, a drop of 18,000 over the year. Seven years ago, unemployment averaged 15.5 percent with 661,000 out of work, twice the 1989 level.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN
ORDINANCE NO. 90-1

An Ordinance to amend Chapter 127 of the Plymouth City Code entitled Automobile Parking System by adding a new subsection (6) to Section 10.27.
NOW, THEREFORE, the City Commission of the City of Plymouth does ordain:
Section 1. Chapter 127, Automobile Parking System, is hereby amended by adding a new subsection which shall be designated as Section 10.27 (6), which shall read as follows:
(6) No license shall be issued to permit and it shall be unlawful for any person to park a semi-truck tractor and/or trailer, except for deliveries, in a residential area as defined by the Uniform Traffic Code.
Section 2. This ordinance shall become operative and effective on the 19th day of January, 1990, A.D.

Monthly Allergy Tip

If you never stop fighting the cold war, it's time to question if it's really a cold you are fighting!

Coughs and chest congestion are usually caused by respiratory infections. But if symptoms appear too frequently or are difficult to control, they may not be caused by a cold or bronchitis. It may be that allergies or asthma are involved.

Why suffer time after time? Find out if indeed it is an allergy or asthma that causes you so much discomfort so often. See us. We may be able to help!

To fight crime in Philly, people plant posies.

Abandoned cars. Sidewalks scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings.

A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the bits of glass that dot the street. There are only two things to do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story

One day, in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action.

They went to the police for help.

Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up. Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced off. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began.

The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, seven gardens now bloom.

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20850-0001. And help...

Pets of the week

Pretty Mama, a 2-year-old domestic, long hair cat, and Buddy, a 3-year-old male German shepherd mix, need homes. Pretty Mama (Control No. 282414) is described as sweet, cuddly and good with other pets. Buddy (Control No. 282228) is described as an exceptionally friendly dog who loves to go for walks. To adopt these pets or others, or to check for lost pets, call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

Heat bill help available

Aid is available to help low income families, welfare recipients and senior citizens pay winter heating bills.

All utility companies in Michigan offer assistance. Low income renters and homeowners who don't receive Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) or General Assistance (GA) might also be able to qualify for the Michigan Home Heating Credit.

Eligibility details are available through Michigan Department of Treasury offices.

Last winter, more than 800,000 Michigan residents participated in various energy assistance programs.

Those seeking help must notify their local utility company or request bill payment through a state-sponsored program.

Additional information is available by calling the local utility or by calling the Michigan Public Service Commission's toll-free number, 1-800-292-5555. Utility customers who are hearing impaired can call 1-800-443-8926.

Math contest scheduled

MATHCOUNTS, a national competition for mathematics students, will be demonstrated 2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 26, at the Society of Automotive Engineers International Congress & Exhibition, Cobo Hall.

Students from the Bloomfield Hills School district will demonstrate their skill in solving complex math problems.

The competition is sponsored by the SAE, as well as CNA Insurance Companies, the Cray Research Foundation, the General Motors Foundation, the National Couoncil of Teachers of Mathematics, NASA and the U.S. Department of Education.

Help for rivers is proposed

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Rouge and Clinton each would get a state-paid "river partner" under a proposal by Gov. James Blanchard.

Their work will be to help local units "preserve and protect the integrity" of crucial rivers, according to last weeks' state of the state message.

"The state will provide grants for full-time positions at the local level — in local units — to clean up and protect the rivers," said David Dempsey, the governor's environmental adviser.

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT Corps and Conservation Corps workers will be made available for such projects as removal of debris, Dempsey said. Some $2 million will be in Blanchard's budget, due next month.

The Rouge and Clinton are among eight "crucial rivers" getting this treatment. Others are the Kalamazoo, Grand, Cheboygan, Menominee, Manistique and Saginaw.

Dempsey provided no other detail during a news briefing last week in the State Capitol.

Nor was there any indication of how state grants would be parceled out or what communities might get them.

THE STATE will target newsprint and plastics for recycling in its continuing effort to reduce landfilling, said Carol Lintel, another Blanchard aide.

The governor's message said he will designate recycling as a "target industry" for the state, seeking to develop the market for recycled products. Several community programs to recycle newsprint have been discontinued as the demand for recycled newsprint has plummeted.

Blanchard said he will seek laws "to force a reduction in solid waste landfilling and establish mandatory and voluntary targets for recycling and purchase of recycled products."

The goal, he said, is to reduce the amount of trash buried in dumps 70 percent by the year 2005.

SC sign up continues

Mail-in registration for winter term Schoolcraft College classes continues through Saturday, Jan. 20.

Lifelong learning programs are offered through the college's Continuing Education Services division.

More than 250 CES classes and workshops are scheduled. Topics include personal finance, photography and stress management, as well as numerous business, fine art and health programs.

A free program list is available by calling 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Please Help A Neighbor's Child In Need!
In Third World countries, hundreds of thousands of children are in desperate need of food, clothing, medical care – the basics of life. These girls and boys are even denied the opportunity to attend school.
They are our neighbors in a world that grows smaller every day.
Through CCF, you can sponsor a neighbor's child. The cost is $18 a month – just 60¢ a day – to help a poor child in Asia, Africa or Latin America – a child who has virtually nothing.
Please pick up your phone now and dial the toll-free number below. Be a good neighbor by helping an innocent child.

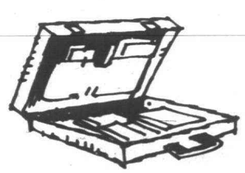
WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

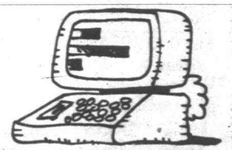
1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!



2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side walls) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Use this form to write your classified advertisement before you call...or fill it in and mail to:

Rocks finish well in loss

Lisa Grosso bumps the ball back to the net and keeps the play alive for Salem.

After a first-game blowout, Plymouth Salem settled down to play perennial volleyball power Livonia Stevenson tight in the next two games Monday night.

That didn't change the eventual outcome — the Rocks lost 3-15, 14-16, 13-15 — but Salem could feel a little better about its performance at least.

"We're playing pretty well," Salem coach Brian Gilles said. "We just have to learn how to win.

"We had them in the second match, but we'd miss a serve, lose a free ball out of bounds or wouldn't cover a tip.

"Our intensity is good," he added. "(He and co-coach Allie Suffety) told the kids 'We're going to keep getting better.' Stevenson is a good team. Most teams right now have a little more court time than we do."

THE ROCKS are 1-1 in Lakes Division matches and 1-2 against all Western Lakes Activities Association foes. The team is 6-12 in games played.

Salem's Kolleen Lawrence had three kills, and the Rocks scored points on eight of her serves out of a possible 10. She was 9-of-11 digging and also made 11 good passes from the back row.

Jenny Justice had 16 attack opportunities and recorded five kills, and Andrea Welling contributed three kills, seven passes and 14 digs.

Sport takes Orris on European tour

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Ron Orris is a swimmer, first.

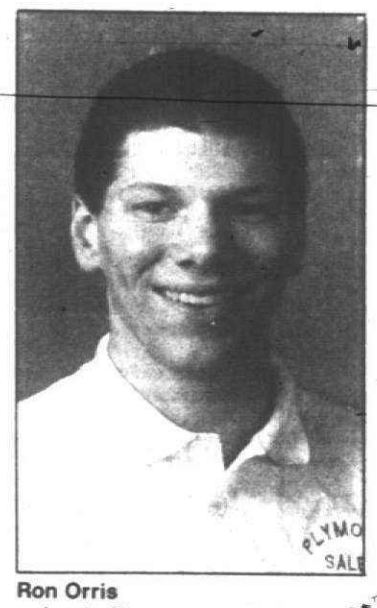
But it was his high profile in that sport which has earned him the dual role of goodwill ambassador for the United States.

Orris, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, will travel to Europe with the Junior National Team for two World Cup meets later this month.

The Americans, who leave Jan. 27 and return Feb. 8, will compete in Paris and later in East Berlin, the previously closed city and site of astonishing political change in the last several months.

"We're going to be the first U.S. team in any sport to be in East Berlin since the (Berlin) wall came down," Orris said.

"I don't know about politics, but I hope to talk to them. We were told to bring a lot of T-shirts, anything we might want to trade, like baseball hats."



Ron Orris
going to Europe with U.S. team

ORRIS WAS chosen on the U.S. team based on his performances last summer at the Junior National meet. The team is composed of 15- and 16-year-olds but Orris, 17, still qualified since his birthday fell after the August deadline.

"Naturally, we're all pretty excited for Ron," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "He's had some national recognition, and that certainly sits well for our area and state, for that matter."

Orris, who will swim the 200- and 400-meter individual medleys and 200 freestyle, went to Colorado last November for advanced training and testing in preparation for the trip. The concentrated, five-day program took place at the Air Force Academy, where the elevation is 7,000 feet above sea level.

The tests covered everything from stress tests to psychoanalysis to determine moods and confidence levels, Orris said.

"It was 10 times harder, because getting oxygen into your lungs was so much harder," he said. "It took four or five days to get used to it. We were pretty dead at the end of that."

The U.S. swimmers were briefed on other things to expect outside of swimming during their Colorado visit.

"THEY GAVE us all kinds of information on jet lag and what to do to stay healthy over there," Orris said. "Paris is more Americanized, but there might be more of a problem with the food in Berlin. They told us how to change our diet and sleeping habits about four days before we go.

"They said U.S. sports teams are looked up to," he added. "People are usually curious about us and will have a lot of questions. But I think we'll have more questions than they do with everything that's happened."

But Orris is going there to swim, first and foremost, and that should be quite a challenge in itself.

"We're going to eat at the Eiffel Tower, and (U.S. officials) said there'll be some sightseeing," he said, "but I haven't concentrated too much on that. I'm thinking about swimming."

Orris is accustomed to swimming high school events measured in yards, but the international competition will be done in meters.

His metric times at the Junior National meet last summer were 2:10 in the 200 IM, 4:34 in the 400 IM and 1:52.9 in the 200 freestyle. In yards, that translates into 1:52, 4:04 and 1:40.4, respectively.

"THOSE ARE my strongest events," Orris said, "so I'm hoping to make the finals for the night session.

"But this competition is supposed to be really tough. I'm looking forward to it, because I only get the opportunity to swim against kids this fast a couple times a year when I go to the nationals."

Orris added he was told a time needed to be among the top eight is the rough equivalent of a senior national cut, "and I've been around there lately," he said.

Orris, the lone Michigan swimmer on the team, made the senior national cuts in the 200 freestyle and 200 IM last year. University of Michigan freshman Noel Strauss also is on the 35-member team, but he is from Arkansas originally.

When Orris comes back, he'll have the high school season's biggest meets remaining. There's the Western Lakes Activities Association meet on Friday, March 2, and the state meet on Saturday, March 10.

"I don't think it will affect him," Olson said. "The way he trains and prepares himself I don't think it will be a problem for him to handle being gone several days.

"AND HE'S going to get some pretty good coaching while he's gone. The only thing that concerns me is the travel, but I think it will be a great experience for him.

"It will give some other guys (on the Salem team) a chance to swim," he added. "We're not looking for them to be quite as fast as Ron, though. I hope he does great, and we'll try to do our best without him."

Orris and his U.S. teammates will meet in New York and fly to Amsterdam, Holland, and then to Paris where the team will spend seven days — four in training and three in competition. The last four days will be spent in Berlin.

"When we meet in New York, they said they'd give us some information on who will be there," Orris said. "They're supposed to be some of the best athletes in Europe. I guess they don't want us to be too intimidated."

Orris doesn't plan to let that happen, however.

"I want to swim as fast as Ron Orris ever has," he said.

Canton overcomes WLW

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Plymouth Canton had its hands full Tuesday night, but the Chiefs held off a scrappy Walled Lake Western squad and pulled away in the third quarter for a 67-59 victory over the visiting Vikings.

Despite the final eight-point margin, the Vikings led throughout much of the first half and had the Chiefs watching over their shoulders in the second. Canton finally put the game on ice by converting 8-of-8 free thrown in the final two minutes of play.

"I think Walled Lake Western is capable of beating anyone on any given night," said Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner, whose team improved to 2-0 in the Western Lakes Western Division and 5-2 overall. "I was disappointed in the play of my team. I was disappointed in our lack of defense and our lack of blocking out on the defensive boards. Those are two things we work on, but we did a terrible job of both, today."

Western coach Dick Hobson found a silver lining in the loss.

"I was very pleased with our overall effort," said Hobson. "The kids are finally starting to realize that hard work does pay off. These kids are starting to believe they can play with other people. We got off to a bad start, getting bombed five times, but they're starting to believe in themselves."

basketball

AFTER STRUGGLING from the floor with just 3-of-5 shooting in the first quarter, Canton took the lead for good, 23-22, on a basket by Kevin Holmes with 3:54 remaining in the second quarter.

The Chiefs took a 25-22 lead on a Jason Riggs basket off a fast break, before Chad Nelson pulled the Warriors back to within a point, 29-28, when he returned an offensive rebound to the net with :48 remaining in the half.

Canton's Karl Wukie fired in a triple seconds later for a 32-28 Canton lead, but Nelson hit a pair of free throws with :08 remaining in the half to pull Western back to within a basket, 32-20 by the end of the first half.

The Chiefs took control of the game with a 15-9 advantage in the third quarter.

Leading 36-34 early in the third, Holmes dumped in six of his game-high 20 points while leading Canton on a 9-2 run. Holmes' inside bucket with 1:41 remaining in the third gave the Chiefs a commanding, 45-36, lead.

Chiefs make good showing in Troy meet

By Jim Toth
staff writer

gymnastics

It's been a while since the Troy Athens gymnastics team has taken on the role of gracious host. The Red Hawks did just that Saturday afternoon, but not by choice.

Playing host to 15 other teams at the annual Athens Invitational, the defending champion Red Hawks settled for a third-place showing, yielding the top spot to Midland Dow and runner-up position to Holland.

Dow finished with 139 points, Holland 138.4 and Athens 135.3. Plymouth Canton placed fourth with 134.15, and Freeland rounded out the top five with 134.0.

Following Fraser's sixth-place showing (133.9), North Farmington was seventh (132.85), Plymouth Salem eighth (130.90), Troy ninth (129.2) and Birmingham Seaholm 10th (117.25). Rochester Adams (113.85) and Birmingham Groves (100.20) placed 13th and 14th, respectively.

DESPITE THE finish, Athens' first-year coach Kathy Pfau wasn't overly concerned.

"It was a real eye opener at the top to see the score they (Dow) put up," Pfau said. "But the competition was strong and that's good for our girls, because now they see what's out there and that will make them work harder."

Athens senior Melissa Miller turned in her customary strong showing, finishing second to Freeland's Kristie Kelly in the all-around competition.

Kelly, whose top performance was a 9.35 to top all competitors on vault, compiled a 35.60 score to Miller's 35.50 total. Heather Kahn of North Farmington was third with 35.40.

"It's the second year in a row (Kahn) has been third in the all-around," North Farmington coach Jeff Dwyer said. "She was only .20 away from first, and that's a couple bent legs somewhere in the routine that can be cleaned up."

MILLER KEPT her teammates in contention for the top spot by placing second on the uneven parallel bars (8.80), third on the floor exercise (9.00), fourth on vault (9.15) and 11th on beam (8.55).

Athens' next best all-around performance came from Heather Landino who finished ninth at 33.75. Landino scored an 8.85 on vault, 8.50 on beam, 8.35 on floor and 8.05 on bars.

Individually for the Red Hawks, Michelle Agnetti chipped in a third on vault (9.30) and 10th on beam (8.60), and Vicki Epple placed seventh on vault (9.00).

"The 135.3 we had was right around what I expected," Pfau said. "I didn't know if it would be good enough to win, but it's a mark I thought we could reach."

In addition to Kelly's blue-ribbon effort on vault, other individual event winners were Courtney Gonyea of Salem on beam (9.20), Tracy Weber of Holland on bars (8.85) and Melanie Bugg of Dow on floor (9.20).

Troy's Jenny Wilen settled for second place on vault (9.30), while North Farmington's Kym Heller was second on beam (9.05) and eighth in all-around. Kahn placed third on beam with a 9.0, sixth on floor, seventh on bars and 11th on vault.

"She was real solid in all of her events," Dwyer said. "I've noticed she's become quite a leader on the team, by example.

"I think (Heller, who was ill) is going to have a good year, hanging in there like she did. She's getting a lot tougher. I've never seen her get down to the nitty-gritty like she did at this meet."

Canton records dual win

Kim Rennolds and Danielle Mirto set school records Monday as Plymouth Canton defeated Northville in gymnastics. The Chiefs scored 137.30, the host Mustangs 129.25.

Rennolds, a freshman, captured first place on the vault with a 9.2, which surpassed the mark of 9.0 recorded by former Canton gymnast Linda Beale in 1984.

In floor exercise, Mirto scored 9.05, eclipsing Brenda Perry's 3-year-old record of 9.0.

Rennolds also was third on floor (8.75) and fifth on the uneven parallel bars (8.3). Mirto placed third on vault (8.5) and fourth on balance beam (8.2).

Northville's Mia DeHart won the all-around competition with a 35-point total, and Canton's top scorer was Heather Murphy, who accumulated a 34.10 score.

MURPHY WAS first among beam competitors (8.85), fourth on vault (8.45), sixth on bars (8.2) and fifth on floor (8.6).

Rennolds was third in the all-around (34.0), Mirto fourth (33.85) and teammate Johanna Anderson fifth (33.8). Anderson placed third on bars (8.7), fifth on beam (7.95) and second on floor (8.6).

Dawn Clifford also had a good meet for the Chiefs, placing second on bars (8.75), third on beam (8.6) and fifth on vault (8.4).

In the Troy Athens Invitational, Canton was fourth out of 16 teams Saturday with a 134.15 score. North Farmington was seventh (132.85) and Plymouth Salem eighth (130.9).

Among the highlights for the Chiefs were Rennolds scoring 33.25 and taking 14th in the all-around. She also was 15th on vault (8.85).

The Chiefs loaded up on beam, with Murphy finishing fourth (8.95), Anderson seventh (8.75), Clifford ninth (8.65) and Mirto 12th (8.5). In addition, Mirto placed seventh on floor (8.85) and Clifford 16th on bars (8.3).

Sub lifts S'craft cagers

With a minute left and his team down 63-61, it seemed a strange strategic move for Schoolcraft College women's basketball coach Jack Grenan to remove his top scorer, sophomore center Barb Krug, from the lineup and insert a freshman in her place.

But Krug was in foul trouble and struggling (she totalled just eight points and four rebounds in the game), and her replacement, Mo Merritt, was hot. Besides, if the move works, who's going to complain?

And it did work. Merritt scored four points in that final minute, draining a 12-foot jumper from the corner for the game-winning points in a 67-64 SC triumph over visiting Oakland CC.

The win kept the Lady Ocelots in first place in the Eastern Conference at 5-1. They are 10-3 overall. OCC dropped to 4-3 in the conference, 13-5 overall.

Merritt's contributions started with an offensive rebound with a minute left and SC down 63-61. She was fouled on her putback attempt, but converted both free throws to knot the score.

OCC regained the lead when Stephanie Niebauer made one-of-two foul shots with :10 left, but Merritt came through again with her 12-foot game-winner with :02 remaining. An OCC turnover and Lisa DePlanche's basket at the buzzer gave SC its three-point margin of victory.

Merritt finished with 10 points and four offensive rebounds, all coming in the second half. DePlanche's 28 points and 10 boards paced SC; she hit 10-straight free throws. Ann Hardy added 10 points and eight rebounds. OCC got 25 points from Niebauer and 18 from Jenny Fritts.

SC trailed 33-28 at the half and Grenan said "we were fortunate it wasn't worse than that. Their press didn't hurt us, but we were standing around on offense."

The Lady Ocelots regrouped during the intermission and quickly tied it at 33 early in the second half. They eventually pulled in front by 10 with 8:00 left, but Fritts' blitz — she got 15 of her points in the second half — got OCC back in the hunt.

SC-OCC MEN: There was one thing SC's men's team could ill-afford at OCC Saturday. With only seven eligible players, foul trouble had to be avoided.

It wasn't. Center Al Hudson went to the bench with his fourth personal with 17 minutes left, and in the final four minutes the backcourt starters, Tony Rumple and Ken Fuster, both fouled out. Which is why the Raiders were able to pull away to an easy 94-68 win.

The Ocelots, now 8-13 overall and 2-5 in the Eastern Conference, were able to make a game of it for a little while in the first half. Then OCC coach Lynn Reed went to his very deep bench.

"We were in the ballgame until Ed Pasque came in," said SC coach Dave Bogataj. "He came in in the first half and scored 10 quick points, and all of a sudden we're 12, 13 points down and trying to catch up."

SC did pull to within 38-31 at the half, but Hudson's departure early in the second half wrecked any upset hopes. The Ocelots never got closer than eight, as OCC avenged a homecourt loss to Macomb CC suffered three days earlier.

The win kept the Raiders, now 4-2 (12-3 overall), a game behind Macomb in the conference race. Jerry Prieskorn's 22 points topped OCC; Michael Bailey added 13, and Tim Roberson, Pasque and Bobby Dinges each had 12. Prieskorn and Bailey each had 10 rebounds, and Pasque had five assists.

Ed Hudson topped SC with 14 points. Al Hudson had 12 and 12 boards; Fuster and Rumple had 12 points each.

Chiefs defeat Western for 5th hardcourt win

"Holmes had a good night," Van Wagoner said. "He's been stepping off the bench and giving us a real good game."

WESTERN REMAINED close throughout much of the fourth, cutting the lead to six points on four occasions. Jeff Kubik hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw with 2:46 remaining in the fourth to pull the Warriors to within five, 59-54.

That's as close as Western could get to an upset, however, as Canton's Daryl Magreta nailed 6-of-6 free throws down the stretch and Geoff Allen added a pair as Canton pulled out the victory.

"Free throws will make the difference in a close game and Magreta has done a nice job in the last two games of hitting the pressure free throws at the end," Van Wagoner said. "He's a clutch free throw shooter."

As a team, Canton hit 21-of-30 from the line while Western converted just 8-of-20.

WESTERN HELD the early lead as six players scored in the first quarter. Todd Biron led the Warriors, who hit 7-of-12 shots from the floor, with four points as the first quarter ended with Western holding a 15-11 lead.

Wukie hit a triple to open the second quarter and pull the Chiefs to within a point, 15-14. Both teams traded baskets before Western missed the top half of a pair of one-and-ones enabling the Chiefs to take the lead for good, 23-22 on Holmes' basket midway through the quarter.

Brett Howell finished with 10 points for the Chiefs while Allen and Wukie chipped in with nine each.

Todd Biron led Western with 13 points, Jeremy Farkas added 11 and Chris Sobieck scored 10.

"I was disappointed with our game tonight, but I was also disappointed with our turnout of fans in the stands," Van Wagoner said. "When you have an enthusiastic crowd behind you it really helps the home team."

Salem rolls over Vikes

Plymouth Salem added a new dimension to the word teamwork Tuesday night, as 10 players scored — seven in the first quarter alone — in a 73-40 win over host Walled Lake Central.

Plymouth Salem, 6-1 overall and 2-0 in the Lakes Division, opened up leads of 20-7 after one quarter, 34-18 at the half and 51-31 after three in the Western Lakes Activities Association matchup.

The Rocks, who have won four straight since the holiday break, were paced by junior forward Jake Baker's 17 point/nine rebound performance.

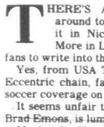
Senior guard Tom Noonan added 12 points, and senior forward Ryan Johnson canned 11 in the winning effort.

Junior guard Jason Olson led the Vikings with 11 points. Junior forward Daryl Piotrowski netted eight and junior forward Joe Gough seven.

The Rocks hit 27 field goals on the night, while Central, which fell to 1-6 and 6-3, managed only 12 out of 53.

"We played hard; we just need to play with a little more confidence in ourselves," Viking coach Steve Emert said.

Message to soccer fans: Be there!



Brad Emons

The people who are writing about the lack of soccer coverage from the media better be down there on Saturday. Don't blame the media if there is a meager turnout.

THERE'S A FLYER being circulated around town these days — you can find it in Nick O'Shea's Soccer Store and More in Livonia — calling for all soccer fans to write into their favorite newspaper.

Yes, from USA Today to even the Observer & Eccentric chain, fans are told to lobby for more soccer coverage on all levels.

It seems unfair that the O&E and even myself, Brad Emons, is lumped into this group.

Maybe the News, Free Press and USA Today don't give a hoot about soccer, but if anybody says the O&E doesn't care about soccer, you can come down and see a stack of papers I've accumulated (just on soccer) during the past six years.

It contains items ranging from the "under-10 Wolves," to "soccer tryout" announcements, to "Vardar I, II and II." We've run the gamut covering youth soccer. If somebody sends something in that is newsworthy, 99 percent of the time it will appear in this newspaper.

The folder is so heavy you need a crain to lift it off my desk.

I hope such people as Kathy Coyne, Bruce Thomas, Ruth Dober, Chris Morano and Don Montgomery can tell you that the O&E covers soccer.

Their press releases sent to me over the years certainly outweigh those earmarked from the University of Michigan Sports Information Department.

It's the Soviet Red Army against the American Indoor Soccer Association All-Stars.

The event is being promoted and staged by Detroit's newest franchise, the Rockers, named recently in a contest by 9-year-old Mike Skolnik, a student at Livonia's Kennedy Elementary School.

Personally, I hope this new franchise succeeds. The game hopes to attract more than the casual soccer fan and will serve as an appetizer for the 1990-91 season when Detroit becomes a full-fledged member of the AISA.

It's a dream realized by three local investors — Livonian Paul Sciciuna, a longtime area high school and youth soccer coach; along with Angus Moffat of Farmington Hills and Brian Tinnion of Rochester, both former professional players with the Detroit Express.

Sciciuna is the president of the new franchise. Moffat is the GM and Tinnion will be the coach.

During the past two months they've barnstormed the metro area, promoting the league and selling this game.

THEY'RE PROMOTING the game to the thousands of youngsters who are heavily involved in the sport.

Hopefully, if their moms and dads tag along, Saturday's All-Star Game could approach 10,000 mark.

Although it's an international game, they're selling it as American, no foreigners allowed.

The indoor game has caught fire as a participation sport. Sciciuna, Moffat and Tinnion are partners in four successful indoor franchises, located in Farmington Hills, Southfield, Royal Oak and St. Clair Shores.

"The soccer purists will be there on Saturday," said Sciciuna. "They're the same ones who followed the old Express (which played in the North American Soccer League back in the 1970's). They were the heart and soul and are still now.

"But now we're hoping the young people playing today can carry us into the 1990s, and I think they're ready. Whether the turnout for this game is big or small, I think we're ready for (pro) soccer."

The Rockers promise to make their venture exciting and entertaining for the fans.

"We don't want the stigma that softball has where people play and don't watch," Sciciuna said. "We're going to try and put the best product we can on the field."

SATURDAY'S ALL-STAR game will give the fans merely a preview.

But there is something more at stake than just an indoor soccer match between a bunch Russians and a group of guys from Canton, Atlanta, Hershey and Milwaukee.

The people who are writing about the lack of soccer coverage from the media better be down there on Saturday. Don't blame the media if there is a meager turnout.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if 16,000 or 17,000 showed up?

That would certainly open Mitch Albom's eyes, get a mention from J.P. McCarthy or even a blooper from Bernie.

If soccer is looking for identity in this town, then Saturday is the day. A show of force might turn a few heads.

If you really care about soccer, you'll call Ticketmaster (645-6666) and order a $14, $10 or $6 ticket. The cost is half-price for children 14 and under (on the $14 and $10 tickets).

Writing letters to your favorite newspaper, especially this one, isn't going to work in this case.

But 16,000 or 17,000 fans Saturday afternoon in Joe Louis Arena might.

Buying a ticket is just not enough, but being there is.

Rocks win tourney

If the Plymouth Salem wrestling team had something to prove, it certainly did so Saturday, taking first place in the 19-team Lincoln Park Invitational.

The Rocks posted 161 points, edging Romulus (151), Grosse Ile (147) and Belleville (144).

For the Rocks, Julian Sell (130 pounds), Steve Burlison (160) and Brian Burlison (189) were meet champions at their respective weights. Pete Israel (171) grappled to a second-place finish and Dan Bonnett (112) a third-place showing.

"I was happy with the way the team wrestled," Salem coach Ron Krueger said.

Cruisers capture another swim title

The Plymouth-Canton Cruisers Swim Club won its seventh straight Southwest Michigan Swim League championship, scoring 1,877 points to best the runner-up Ypsilanti Otters by nearly 200.

Ypsilanti had 1,693½ points, Ann Arbor 1,322½, Milan 835½, Pinckney 815, Chelsea 437 and Brighton 424½.

The Cruiser program is organized under the Community Education Department and consists of nearly 150 boys and girls from age 5 to 14. Following are the top finishers for the Cruisers.

Blind bowling leagues have long history in metro area

Al Harrison

MY ATTENTION WAS focused on Harry as he stood at the approach and went into his delivery. The ball traveled smoothly, hooked well and drove into the pocket for a strike. Not bad, I thought, especially since Harry is 76 years of age and totally blind.

The site was Garden Lanes on Warren Road in Garden City. At 4 p.m. Saturday, the Blind Bowlers League holds its competition.

There are several organized blind leagues in the Metropolitan Detroit Area, as well as statewide and nationally.

The blind bowlers are ABC and WIBC sanctioned, competing under the same rules and regulations as non-blind bowlers.

Plenty of family involvement takes place, as Harry's son and grandson make up the rest of the team.

Blind bowling started in the Detroit area in the 1930's and of course Harry was around to participate. He designed the guide rail which is set up at each lane to let bowlers get their directional bearing.

The league I watched, has been going since the 1940s. It has nearly 50 members, mostly from western Wayne County.

Each team has at least one bowler with sight. It's their job to let blind team members know what pins are still standing.

Some of the bowlers are partially blind and can see the outline of the lanes and in some cases the pin deck.

Averages tend to vary, with totally blind bowlers shooting in the 80s or 90s and partially blind bowlers in the 160s or women in the 120s.

This is a very social group. Each week, following competition, members participate in a pizza party and they all have lots of fun and exhuberance.

Some of the league members I watched included Florence Cunningham of Redford, Dick Krause of Westland, Carol Gillenkirk of Garden City, Pauline Brandenberger of Livonia and Elmer and Mae Kapp of Plymouth.

The instructor of the league is Ed Ritz, who has helped many blind participants over the years in learning to bowl and use the guide rail.

The American Blind Bowlers Association is the nationwide organization and Hunter is also a past president of the ABBA.

Anyone who wants more information on the Metro Blind Bowling League can call Denise Hunter at 278-8782.

● Canton Soccerdome is accepting registrations for its upcoming pre-outdoor training session. The session begins Thursday, March 1, and consists of six games during a four-week period. The cost per team is $475. Call 483-5624 for information.

● SOFTBALL TOURNEY

The 10th Annual Groundhogs Day Classic, a slo-pitch softball tournament sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, will be played Saturday, Jan. 27, at Griffin Park.

The fee is $35 per team. Sixteen-inch orange softballs will be used. The tournament will only be canceled by good weather.

Interested teams should call the Recreation Department at 397-5110 for more information.

● HOCKEY CLINIC

A youth floor hockey program, which includes clinics and league play, is being sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department in cooperation with the Wayne-Westland YMCA.

The program is open to boys and girls in grades 1-6. The fee is $18 per person. The five-week clinic begins Monday, Jan. 22, and the four-week league season opens Saturday, Feb. 3.

Registrations will be processed in person or by mail at the Parks and Recreation Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, 48188.

● WILDCAT TRYOUTS

The Western Wayne Wildcats, a girls AAU basketball team, will have tryouts for five age-group teams at Northville High School.

On Sunday, Feb. 4, tryouts will be held for the 13-and-under and 11-and-under teams at 2 p.m.

For more information, call Fred Thomann at 459-7315 or 451-6600, Ext. 247.

● LEARN TO SKI

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department is offering two sessions of its learn-to-ski program at Riverview Highlands.

The fee is $35 per person, which includes four lessons (two per week), four lift tickets and four equipment rentals. The fee is $25 for people with their own equipment.

The second session will be the weeks of Jan. 22 and 29, the third Feb. 5 and 12. The times will be 5 p.m. for juniors (8-15) and 7 p.m. for adults (over 16).

Each session consists of two, 45-minute lessons per week for beginners and/or intermediate skiers.

Skiers must provide their own transportation to the ski area. Call 397-5110 for details.

● SOCCER SIGN-UP

The Canton Soccer Club is planning to take registrations for the

In addition, Karen Tatterton dropped seven aces on the Stevenson side of the court, and Jenny Emmett played an effective game in the back row, according to Gilles.

"We had some outstanding play from some people," he said, "but we need to work together a little better as a team and cut down on the unforced errors.

"But this was our best game so far, though we were on the short end of it."

● BEAT THE STREETS

A benefit four-mile, one-mile and auction for cancer patient Andy Chochol will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 21 at Selfridge Air National Guard Base, located at the foot of M-59 just east of I-94 in Mount Clemens. The Redford Road Runners are co-sponsors of the event.

Race day registration is from 8:30 until 9:45 p.m. at the George Street Gymnasium. Donations are $10. (Checks should be made payable to Andy Chochol.)

Trophies will be awarded to the first 10 men and women finishers, along with medals to the top 100 finishers. T-shirt swap and auction will also be held.

Pre-registration and auction items should be sent to: Riders Sport Foot, 1977 E. Wattles, Troy, 48098 (call 528-3040); or Runners World, 20641 Mack Avenue, Detroit, 48236 (call 882-1325).

● TANANA TO SPEAK

Madonna College and sponsor Big Bill's Sporting Goods will conduct its annual baseball clinic, Jan 26-27.

Guest speakers include Frank Tanana of the Detroit Tigers, Gordie Gillespie, coach of three-time NAIA champion St. Francis (Ill.) College, former Tiger and PASS broadcaster Jim Northrup, Plymouth Canton High coach Fred Crissey, and former Redford Thurston High standout and Dearborn Divine Child High head coach Mark Falvo.

The cost is $15 per player (Saturday only), $20 (Saturday coaches only) and $30 (Friday and Saturday coaches only). Included in the fee is a coaches reception (Friday night), free t-shirt and lunch (Saturday).

For more information, call Madonna College coach Mike George at 591-5029 (office) or 537-1130 (home).

● McLAIN TO SIGN

Madonna College will stage a baseball card and memorabilia show, 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Saturday (Feb. 3), and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday (Feb. 4). The school is located at 36600 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia (at Levan).

On hand to sign free autographs on Saturday will be California Angels pitcher Dan Petry (noon to 2 p.m.) and Tiger pitcher Mike Henneman (2 to 4 p.m.).

On Sunday, former Tiger pitcher Denny McLain (1-3 p.m.) and Atlanta Braves pitching prospect Steve Avery (3 to 5 p.m.) will sign free autographs.

Brother Rice makes statement against CC

Out-skated, out-hustled and out-checked from the start, Redford Catholic Central was no match Saturday for rival Birmingham Brother Rice, losing a Michigan Metro High School Hockey League clash before 1,200 fans at Redford Arena, 7-1.

With the victory, Rice should move up in the state rankings. The Warriors are 9-1-1 overall and 6-0-1 in league play.

CC, which played without top scorer Keith Bozyk (broken finger) and starting goalie Matt Fennelly (knee problem), fell to 8-2-2 overall and 3-1 in the Metro.

Rice jumped out to a 3-0 first-period lead on goals by Tim Capaldi, Steve Morrow and Brian Hartwell. The Warriors added two more in the second, one each by Sherby and Matt Green. In the third period, Sherby and Anthony Jalaba scored.

CC averted the shutout at 8:42 of the final period when Jesse Hubenschmidt beat Rice goalie Paul Saunders (14 saves). Matt Keenan and Paul Pirronello assisted on the play.

CHURCHILL 2, LAKELAND 2: In a penalty-filled non-league game Saturday at the Lakeland Arena, Livonia Churchill (5-4-2) and host Milford Lakeland battled to a draw.

The Chargers jumped out to a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Mark Michels (unassisted at 13:59) and Tony Schuer (from Paul Pagnani and Marty Croll at 8:57).

Lakeland rallied for a pair of second-period goals, one each by Jeff McCauley (unassisted at 3:42) and Eric Tunison (from Jason Leist at 1:23).

In the third period, Churchill goalie Dave Watson came up with a couple of key saves to preserve the tie.

We had too many penalties (15) that we had to kill," said Churchill coach Rudy Varvari. "There was no tempo to the game and our power-play didn't click.

Lakeland was whistled for 12 penalties.

Glenn's Kuban top grappler in Lathrup dual meet tourney

Westland John Glenn and Redford Union finished one-two respectively in a round-robin dual meet wrestling invitational Saturday at Southfield-Lathrup.

Glenn went unbeaten in five dual meets, defeating RU (49-15), Highland Park (63-9), Lathrup (45-19), Livonia Stevenson (51-11) and West Bloomfield (40-16).

The win increases the Rockets' overall dual meet record to 15-2.

Going unbeaten on the day for was Glenn 171-pounder Kraig Kuban, who scored a 21-4 technical fall against 1989 state qualifier Aristotle Wilson of Highland Park. Kuban leads the Rockets with a 26-1 overall record.

wrestling

Other unbeaten Glenn grapplers included 140-pounder Cory Buckalew, now 21-7 overall; 152-pounder Zac Bozanic; 189-pounder Garnett Woody, now 25-4; and heavyweight Jason Dunn.

Those earning second place spots for Glenn included 103-pounder Jeremy Samples, 112-pounder Damian Tucker, 125-pounder Karl Pace (now 21-5), 130-pounder Eric Ewing (now 20-5) and 145-pounder Wesley Lopez.

REDFORD UNION also made a strong showing, winning four of five matches to up its overall dual-meet mark to 11-3.

The Panthers scored wins over Stevenson (30-24), West Bloomfield (45-27), Lathrup (42-31) and Highland Park (51-17).

Senior Eric Buckberry, a 145-pounder, increased his record to 17-7 overall with two pins among his five victories. He was voted Team MVP for the day.

Freshman heavyweight Pat Srock went 1-1 with three voids.

Posting 3-2 records on the day were junior Craig LeTourneau (130), senior Jim Blalock (152), sophomore Kevin Hanus (160) and junior George DeBates (171).

Both LeTourneau and DeBates are 18-4 overall.

One of DeBates' losses came against Kuban of Glenn.

Top schools invade CC Invitational

Redford Catholic Central wrestlers will try to keep their winning streak intact Saturday at the 26th Annual Catholic Central Invitational.

The Shamrocks have won their tournament the last three years but will have to best a tough field to repeat.

CC's chief threat is No. 1-ranked and defending state champion Temperance Bedford. The two, in fact, have historically dominated the tournament. The Shamrocks have won it 11 times, the Mules 10.

The 12-team lineup also includes Berkley, Birmingham Brother Rice, Davison, Grand Ledge, Holt, Lansing Eastern, Milford Lakeland, Mount Clemens, Warren Lincoln and Wayne Memorial. Bedford was second last year and Rice third.

The wrestling begins at 11 a.m., and the finals are tentatively scheduled for 7 p.m. Admission is $3 for the entire day.

NINE STATE champions participated in the invitational last year, and six also were winners at the CCI.

The six doubles winners were CC's Jay Helm (140), Flint Kearsley's Tony Hill (112), Rice's Kevin Kinane (119), Grandville's Greg Paiz (125), Lansing Sexton's Chris Henderson (135) and Rice's Dean Moscovic (160).

Wrestlers who didn't win CCI championships but were state champions included CC's Matt Helm (130), Sexton's Gino Chouinard (152) and CC heavyweight Lee Krueger, who lost an overtime decision to Bedford's Roman Rimmer in the CC finals.

NOTICE
WE'RE MOVING
Due to the phenomenal growth we have experienced this past year, Fireplace & Spa Center in Westland has to move to larger accommodations. After 12 years at the same location we have accumulated thousands of items that would be too costly to move. All floor models will be sold at unbelievable prices that will never be repeated. Don't wait until you hear about it from someone else! Come in today to save on spas, chemicals, spa accessories, wood stoves, inserts, tool sets, fireplace doors, gas logs, fireplace accessories, and a whole lot more.
Everything must go, but when it is gone it's gone forever. Many items priced well below actual cost. Our loss is your gain.

He finds his star on 'Guiding Light'

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

'Each day when I go in, I can approach the character in a different way. I can be mean in a nice way, nice in a mean way. I'm gradually learning what it's like to be Gary Swanson, charming, charismatic and fun.'
— William Bell Sullivan

ACTOR WILLIAM BELL SULLIVAN came home from New York over the holidays to visit his parents, Sully and Jonnie Sullivan in West Bloomfield.

He sat in their homey kitchen while chicken browned in the oven and homemade rolls kept warm atop the stove, and he spoke of the career in film and television he has built since graduating in the '70s from West Bloomfield High School.

Now an established actor, he began like many unknown hopefuls begin — by uprooting and heading west for California, land of dreams and disappointments. Last September, Sullivan signed a three-year contract to star as Gary Swanson in "Guiding Light," the CBS afternoon soap opera. His sixth film, "The Hunt for Red October" starring Sean Connery, is due out this spring.

In the thriller based on Tom Clancy's best seller, Sullivan says, "I play a feature role as submarine captain, Lt. Commander Mike Hewitt." He says its not a gigantic part, but he couldn't turn down a chance to work with stars like Sean Connery, Alec Baldwin and James Earl Jones.

SULLIVAN MAY credit Lady Luck for part of his success, but in the acting business, luck smiles on those with proven talent, accumulated acting experience, and sheer persistence.

Sullivan has paid his dues. His resume is crowded with an impressive list of credits he has earned through the years — credits in films, live theater and TV guest appearances on prime-time network shows such as "Designing Women," "Dynasty" and "Three's Company."

Now with a starring role on TV and a part in, as they say in the business, "a major motion picture," Sullivan has emerged from the mass of hopefuls who swarm to Hollywood and New York looking for a break and willing to take any job that comes along just to be able to act.

He's a star — perhaps a lower-magnitude star, but a hopeful no longer. From Montana to Maryland, devoted soap opera fans across the country recognize his face; he gets daily fan mail, and a wardrobe mistress took him to Saks and spent $20,000 on clothes just for his character.

Sullivan remembers his early days as a hopeful taking bit parts on television and playing in B movies, and he is happy about the three-year "Guiding Light" contract.

THE ARRANGEMENT offers him security, yet allows flexibility. "I wouldn't put myself in a position to be owned by one person," he says. Sullivan likes playing the role, even though he doesn't always like Gary Swanson, the dark, handsome engineer and troublemaker he plays. In fact, he originated the role and shaped the character.

"Swanson's a character I completely created from a plotline," he explains. Sullivan maintains he isn't anything like the charmingly unscrupulous manipulator he plays, but he finds the role intriguing because of "how creative he (the character) can be in manipulation and how other people, even the most intuitive person, can instantly become blinded" to Swanson's true motives.

Beyond Sullivan's attachment to the role he originated, he welcomes the three-year contract as an acting challenge. Every afternoon the passions and troubles boiling on the soap-opera set present characters with new situations.

In an ongoing story, love, jealousy and tragedy may be predictable staples, but characters constantly face new challenges, leaving the actor the opportunity to reveal fresh aspects of a character and to make his character develop. Sullivan says, "Each day when I go in, I can approach the character in a different way. I can be mean in a nice way, nice in a mean way. I'm gradually learning what it's like to be Gary Swanson, charming, charismatic and fun. He's industrious and motivated, with a mission to get to the top, but he's also an S.O.B. who's not too scrupulous about how he gets there."

How did the graduate of West Bloomfield High School find himself wearing $220 shirts on camera as a soap opera star? In the '70s the Sullivans moved from Baltimore to West Bloomfield where he finished high school.

Sullivan says, "I felt frustrated in high school. I kept to myself and my dreams. I had a need to be what I really am" — and that was an actor. He explains, "I was an actor before I knew what an actor was."

AFTER GRADUATION, he attended Northern Michigan University for two years on a partial theater scholarship, but he resented structures in the education system that frustrate curiosity and thwart learning rather than foster it. "I don't want to hear about prerequisites and requirements," says the man who continues to follow his interests in law and psychology.

The road from West Bloomfield to New York via California began with a stroke of pure luck in five figures. When Sullivan bought his "first ever" lottery ticket back in the '70s, he instantly won $10,000. Ironically he doesn't buy lottery tickets now. "I won. I beat it," he says.

The windfall enabled him to cut loose from his holding pattern at Northern Michigan University and pursue his dream of becoming an actor by moving to California. There he hired an agent and began to accumulate credits. On stage he has sampled the dramatic gamut, playing such disparate roles as Tom in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," Lucentio in Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" and the Danny in the musical "Grease."

Sullivan briefly did his own show for a cable network, a dramatic series called "Our Group" based on group therapy. Having his own show remains a dream, but he says, " 'Our Group' was the wrong time and the wrong market."

He won guest spots on a lineup of network TV shows and soap operas including "General Hospital," "Days of Our Lives," "As the World Turns," "All My Children" and "Guiding Light." He describes daytime TV as surreal. "It combines reality with fantasy with exaggeration and energy."

THE DAYTIME audience is predominantly female, but Sullivan says there is a much larger population of male viewers than most people assume. His character Gary Swanson is gaining a following, and Sullivan gets fan mail from "little old ladies, schoolgirls and middle-aged women."

He says, "I read every single piece of mail and respond personally." He marvels that despite Swanson's ruthless qualities, "My mail is solely complimentary." He gets "the whole nine yards," from delicate proposals "filled with female flowery words" to direct propositions.

During filming of "The Hunt for Red October," he was fascinated by discussions between the director and actors on how to approach scenes. "The director might want a scene to be emotional or melancholy," he says, and sometimes an actor would have a different interpretation. He found it most interesting to watch how an actor with strong convictions could say "no" to the director and how all of them as professionals "would step on their own egos to get the best" for the picture.

Looking at replays of roles he has done through the years sometimes frustrates him. "It's lousy looking at what I did and realizing what I could have done," he says. But the realization that, "In each job I get better. It's like stepping stones," minimizes the frustration. A new contract, a new film — they are stepping stones in a career that is moving along smartly.

Ice theme

Cafe Bon Homme is incorporating the theme of the Plymouth Ice Spectacular into a special dinner at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 18, at the restaurant in Plymouth. The dinner package includes five courses, with appropriate wines. Main course will be Roast Loin of Provimi Veal with Forest Mushrooms. Entertainment will be provided by an alternating harpist and pianist. Cost is $60 per person. Patrons may view Plymouth's Ice Spectacular afterwards.

Pizza Cafe

Detroit Free Press columnist Bob Talbert and Bernie Smilovitz of WDIV-TV, Channel 4, emerged as the winners in a gourmet pizza-making contest Monday at Mike Ilitch's American's Pizza Cafe in Southfield.

Talbert and Smilovitz tied for first prize in a contest where a group of media personalities each created an original pizza tasted by contest judges. Smilovitz's seafood pizza with crabmeat will be on the menu the week of Monday, Jan. 22, at the pizza cafe. Talbert's Coney Island pizza will be featured the week of Monday, Jan. 29.

Proceeds go to the winners' favorite charities. Smilovitz selected the Michigan Special Olympics, and Talbert chose the Oakland County Association of Retarded Citizens as the recipients

Lion dance

The colorful Lion Dance will be performed at 6 and at 6:30 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, Jan. 25-27, at the Oceania Inn at MeadowBrook Village Mall in Rochester Hills. Paul Leung, manager, said the celebration of the Chinese New Year also will feature a nine-course dinner, at $11.50 per person, to be served Thursday, Jan. 25, to Sunday, Feb. 4. A minimum of four people is required.

At new hotel

The new Sheraton Southfield Hotel (the remodeled, former Michigan Inn) has added two restaurants, Seasons Cafe and Ginger's Eatery.

Seasons is the hotel's upscale dining establishment, which offers traditional American cuisine. Tables overlook a garden walkway and pond. Prices range from moderate to high. Ginger's, the hotel's all-day dining outlet, has a casual atmosphere and contemporary food selections. The dining room is airy with open skylights and a fountain. Prices are moderate to low.

Nichols Lounge also has opened inside the hotel. Just off the hotel's main lobby, it features six wide-screen video monitors. Disc-jockey-controlled music video plays each day after 5 p.m. Sports videos are aired during the day, and major sporting events may be viewed during their normal broadcasts.

Chef de cuisine

Chef Steven Allen has taken over day-to-day operations of the kitchen at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield, freeing Master Chef Milos Cihelka to spend more time working on food concepts and presentations. Chhelka is now chef patron, or chairman of the kitchen board. Allen recently returned from a six-month externship in Paris, where he worked with Master Chef Michel Guerard at Eugenie les Bains. Guerard is famous for Cuisine Minceur (slim cuisine).

Fishbone's cafe

Food of the Louisiana Bayou is featured at Fishbone's Rhythm Kitchen Cafe, which opened recently in downtown Detroit's Greektown. Featured are fresh Gulf Coast seafood dishes, whiskey Bayou ribs and chicken, and "Spanish Tuesday" specials. Other regional dishes include catfish beignets, alligatoar voodoo, po-boy sandwiches, and crawfish. Fishbone, a tuba-playing chef, is the hypothetical proprietor of the restaurant. His image adorns the menu, coasters and napkins.

Special cuisine

A Hawaiian and French Polynesia Dinner is planned for 7 p.m. Monday-Tuesday, Jan. 29-30, at the Lark in West Bloomfield. Featured will be foods of those cultures, blending Polyneisian, French and Oriental influences. The price is $62.50 per person. For more information, call the Lark at 661-4466.

River Place

The restaurants of River Place Inn, Detroit's nex small luxury hotel, feature fresh cheese, meat and produce flown in from all parts of Michigan. Executive Chef Victor Gentile says he may buy products at the Eastern Market or have products flown in from the Upper Peninsula if they aren't available locally. Among his specialities are whitefish soup, and veal sweetbreads sauteed with oyster mushrooms, pine nuts and artichoke hearts. Menus in the River Room and the Tavern are revised daily.

Jim Taylor and his wife, Dede, are shown in the breakfast room of the home which they recently enlarged and remodeled to showcase their collection of antiques.

Collector/dealer shares expertise

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Launching an antique show for the first time calls for determination and expertise.

The committee for first ever antique show hosted by St. James Episcopal Church of Birmingham, Friday and Saturday, has the determination. And they (wisely) looked to Jim Taylor of Birmingham for the expertise. He calls himself a dealer/adviser.

Taylor is not only a school teacher in Birmingham, he is a well known antique dealer who does a number of shows each year and is an avid collector. He and his wife, Dede, and their two daughters live in a home of remarkable beauty that is furnished with antiques, many of the more formal areas in the Williamsburg style. They moved into the home about a year ago after doing extensive remodeling and putting on a substantial addition. All of the woodwork and trim is painted a soft celedon/pewter (trade color, red lion gray) with the plaster walls an off-white. The hardwood floors were given a gleaming finish and oriental rugs are used through the house. Much of the furniture, corner cupboards, tables, cabinets and desks are maple and/or curly maple.

"IT REALLY turned out better than we dreamed," she said as she walked from the new family room at the back up two stairs to the new breakfast room.

Both the Taylors are very much involved in the antiques. He said that for the St. James show, they will have a a lot of American blue spatterware, copper molds, brass, small items and a collection of 100-year old sleds and push sleighs. Many of the sleds and small sleighs have the original paint. Taylor said they were made in South Paris, Maine and he and his wife found all of them in Maine. He said the designs on the painted seats part "were stenciled on." The wooden runners were left natural.

There will be 30 exhibitors in the show, many of whom, Taylor said, have some outstanding pieces, but seldom, if ever, do shows. Among the specilities of the dealers are English pine, toys, linens and laces, rare books and antique jewelry. Charles Klingensmith will do antique appraisals and there will be chair caning.

There will be two seminars in conjunction with the show. At 2 p.m. Friday in the chapel, Jane Barton, Birmingham painter, will give a program on antique china, "The Nanking Cargo" and at 1 p.m. Saturday, Wally Wilmot will discuss, "Antique Clocks."

Dorothy Conley and Barbara Stokel are chairwomen of the event. Show hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The church is at 355 W. Maple in downtown Birmingham. Admission charge.

'Fire buff' turns author

By Bridget Daniel
staff writer

WHEN BUYING old cars started getting too expensive, Matthew Lee switched his hobby to collecting old fire trucks and recently compiled a photo-history of the Detroit fire department's vehicles.

The owner of nine old fire trucks, Lee is a textbook writer and training developer for General Motors and part-time instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Lee published a book on the history of fire apparatus in the Detroit Fire Department.

At 270 pages, the book sticks to technical descriptions of the trucks displayed in the book's more than 500 photos.

While a few pages are devoted to explanations of the difference between a fire buff and a fire bug and to the changing of the fire truck's colors, most of the text is listing of the trucks' model numbers, weights, prices, purchase years and sizes.

"ONE REVIEWER SAID it was 'all white meat,' " Lee said. "There's no fluff in it, just the facts. That's what people want to know. The book is written in factual format, not wordy. That's my nature. It's the unique thing about it."

Lee said the Fire Apparatus Journal said it is the best documentation of any fire department.

The pictures in the book range from the early horse-drawn fire trucks to modern trucks, bought in 1986.

The book also shows pictures of fire boats, fires and fire truck accidents.

Lee has a collection of more than 40 binders that contain about 6,000 old photos of fire trucks, fires and fire buildings. Many of the photos he received through donations and many are Detroit Fire Department prints.

THE BIGGEST motivation for writing the history now is the scheduled destruction of the Detroit Fire Department headquarters, Lee said.

"I was afraid much of the history will get misplaced, stolen."

Lee, who calls his book a labor of love, said 2,500 copies originally were printed and now half of them are sold. He said most of those who buy his book return for extra copies, and 70 percent of his sales have been to out-of-state fire buffs.

"The book is better than half paid for, so my wife doesn't think I'm a fool anymore," Lee said.

Lee claims his wife is the greater fire buff and he is more of a mechanic.

Early in his book, Lee said a fire buff "is a person who studies the fire scene and the actions of the firefighter . . . The true fire buff is an aid to the fire department and the firefighters. His aim is to assist firefighters where possible and document the efforts of the department. He is never to be confused with the 'fire bug' whose only motivation is thrills."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

SEVENTEEN YEARS ago, Lee bought his first pumper, a Reo-Howe model, which he still owns. Since then he has expanded his collection to include a ladder truck, several pumpers, a chief's car and a rescue vehicle.

While old cars are getting expensive, Lee said he bought most of his fire vehicles for less than $3,000. The ladder truck cost him $1800, and the rescue truck was only $800.

Lee displays his trucks about five times a year in parades and other events. Every summer he takes his trucks to Greenfield Village. This past summer, he drove people around the village on the ladder truck.

"I get called all the time, (to show the trucks). Now I only do things that interest me — the poster kids, Easter Seals, weddings for friends," Lee said.

Lee's fire truck business is called "Same Day Fire Service" and he has painted the name on all his fire trucks and his family has custom-made T-shirts.

He said he just came out with the name one day and his two boys loved it, so he kept it.

Lee is working on a few other books including a picture dictionary of fire apparatus. Seagrave, a company that makes fire apparatus and trucks, has invited Lee to come speak to them in January about writing their company history.

Which one's on vacation

Sculptor Duane Hanson, middle, creates sculptures so real that people are forever trying to ask them questions and exchange pleasantries. His tourists, 1988, are part of an exhibiton of Hanson's people (and one sleeping dog) at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum through April 1. Hanson received his masters from Cranbrook Academy of Art in 1951. His masterful trompe-l'oeil figures attracted more than a million people on an earlier tour. He casts directly from live models and using rubber and plaster, makes the mold in sections. Hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills.

briefly speaking

● Chorale auditions
Madonna College in Livonia will have open auditions for the college's Community Chorale. Auditions and rehearsals will be 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Jan. 16 in Room 186. No one has to sing alone; small groups try out together. For more information, call John Redmon, 591-5097. The first major concert will be April.

● VAAL classes
Winter term classes by VAAL (Visual Arts Association of Livonia) will begin Monday, Jan. 22. Registrations are now being accepted in classes in acrylics, oil, watercolor and printing. Workshops in mixing color; linoleum printing; Chinese brush printing; exploring watercolor and watercolor washes are also being offered. For more information, call 464-6772.

● Fair Lane Music Guild
The Fair Lane Music Guild will sponsor a concert by the Franciscan String Quartet at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 28, in the Pool at the Henry Ford Estate on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.
Founded in 1982 at the San Francisco Conservatory, the Franciscan is quartet-in-residence at the Hopkins Center, Dartmouth College.
The quartet gained widespread recognition when it won first prize at the 1986 Banff International String Quarter Competition. It has gone on to win several distinguished awards every year thereafter.
Tickets may be bought at the door: $10 general admission, $9 senior citizen and $6 student. For more information, call 593-5000.

● Photographic exhibit
Madonna College will present a creative photography exhibit in the gallery of the library wing through Tuesday, Jan. 30, courtesy of Bruce Harkness. There is no admission charge. Madonna is at I-96 and Levan Road, Livonia.

● Vintage clothing
The clothes that set the style in years past will be showcased in the new acquisition area in Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village, Dearborn. There is no additional charge beyond regular admission. Admission for the museum and village are separate: adults, $10.50; senior citizens, 62 and over, $9.50; children, 5-12, $5.25. Combination tickets, featuring two days unlimited admission to the museum and village, are also available. For more information, call 271-1620, Ext. 216.

● dance faculty concert
Eastern Michigan University Dance Division faculty, in conjunction with student choreographers, will present the annual dance faculty concert at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, Jan. 25-27, in Quirk Theater on the EMU campus in Ypsilanti.
General admission is $6; student tickets, $5 with current ID; and tickets for senior citizens and children under 12, $2. Tickets are available in the Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance Department office at 235 Warner Building or Quirk Theater box office on the campus. For more information, call 487-0090 or 487-1221.

● Dance sampler
Detroit Dance Collective will have a Dance Sampler Day 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 20, in Oakland Community College, Royal Oak Campus. Classes in modern dance, ballet, and jazz will be taught for adults, pre-teens and teens. Creative dance classes for children age 5 and up will also be taught.
Fee for the dance sampler day is $5, which includes all the classes. The creative dance classes for children are free.
To register and/or information, call 548-9664. The campus is on the corner of Washington and Lincoln in downtown Royal Oak.

● All that jazz
Olivia Street Stompers will be making an appearance at the Kelsey Museum Jazz Benefit Friday, Jan. 26, sponsored by the Associates of the Kelsey Museum and all proceeds will go to the Kelsey Museum of Archaeology.
Old-time jazz, ragtime and Dixieland music will be featured with dancing and desserts of ancient Rome.
Tickets are $20 per person, unreserved seat; $25, reserved; $8 for students. Music will begin at 9 p.m. in the ballroom of the Michigan League, 911 North University. For more information, call 763-3559.

● KODO performances
By popular demand, KODO returns to Ann Arbor for its fourth visit, this time giving two performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Jan. 26-27 in the Power Center for the Performing Arts. This one-of-a-kind Japanese drum ensemble is presented by the University Musical Society.
Tickets range from $12-18. For availability, contact the musical society Burton Memorial Tower, 764-2538.
The Japanese company KODO draws from the rich tradition of Japanese music and centers its performances on the "taiko" — the traditional Japanese drum. A KODO performance uses drums of several sizes, the most majestic being the "o-daiko," a huge, decorated drum weighing 800 to 900 pounds, mounted on a platform and played by two men.

Photographers 'click' at workshop

Photographers of all description — shutterbugs, snapshooters, camera collectors, professionals and beginners — will meet for the day-long Detroit Super Camera Show and Model Shoot Sunday, Jan. 28, in the Holiday Inn-Fairlane, 5801 Southfield Service Road at Ford Road in Dearborn.

The camera show will be open to the public 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $4.

Photorama USA will operate a hot line to provide further information from Tuesday, Jan. 23 up to the day of the show. The number is 884-2242.

MORE THAN 60 dealers will display new and used photo equipment, including cameras and lenses, as well as antique and collectable photographia.

A workshop on model photography will be Sunday, conducted by Allan Lowy, well-known area fashion photographer.

Admission to the workshop is free with an admission ticket to the show. Times of the workshops will be announced during the show.

Sierra Pointe

▲ Affordable
Hard to believe, yes. Two and three bedroom Ranch and Town Home condominiums in Farmington Hills from just $129,900.

▲ Exciting
The latest in interior and exterior design: vaulted ceilings, with skylights, soaring two-story great rooms.

▲ Fully Loaded
Maybe others call woodburning fireplaces, built-in microwaves and ceramic foyers extra - but these and many other custom features are standard at Sierra Pointe.

▲ Going Fast
Phase I & II sold out quickly to families who immediately saw Sierra Pointe's value. Phase III is going fast - but you still have a chance to get in on Farmington Hills' best known "secret". A number of choice units are still available at a fantastic deal. We're even selling our fully-furnished decorator models!

artifacts

David Messing

By now, most of us have returned the toys that didn't work, clothes that didn't fit and stuff we basically didn't want. Also, by now every father knows to never buy any toy which has on its box the notice: "Some assembly required."

Of course, for me, all of the holiday foods are reoccuring memories — I think of them every time I try to button my pants. My goal is to make the button reach the hole. But I still have at least two pounds left of my all-time most favorite treat: Brach's chocolate covered peanuts. That gift from one of my neighbors is probably the gift I most often open and open and reopen.

Perhaps one of the greatest gifts that many are given is a gift that is often overlooked: the gift of art, which is first a gift of sensitivity. Then the sensitivity is brought forth in artistic expression. What a versatile gift. One finds expression in clay and another by painting, still another finds ventilation in prose or rhyme, one in dancing, another in acting, one must sing while another finds an empty page a challenge for his or her writing abilities.

BUT WHATEVER THE avenue, it is a shame to overlook the gift.

Many of you reading this article have barely tugged at the ribbon of your gift while others have opened up and enjoyed the expression that any art form offers. Of all the arts, the one of two dimensional and three dimensional representation gives you a second chance. By that, I mean, even if you haven't opened your gift of art ability or further developed your art for many years, it is still not too late to start.

Fortunately, our gifts from God require no batteries and come without assembly instructions. Often new students of mine will whisper to me, "I haven't drawn for 30 years, but I used to be pretty good in high school." What they are pleased to find is that when their gift of art ability was reopened, it was untarnished by its dormancy.

I mentioned earlier that the gift of art ability is first a gift of sensitivity. Perhaps it is a gift within a gift. I once opened a small package and found it was a new wallet. But when I opened the wallet, I found a $10 bill inside.

Very often a gift we receive requires that we learn how to use it. Of course, art ability requires instruction for improvement. Even the few "gifted" artists out there require technical training to better use their gift.

With the New Year barely under way, it's a particularly fitting time to take a first or perhaps a second look at your gift of art ability.

Dave Messing is an art teacher who also owns the Art Store & More in Livonia.

Quiet approach

Like many artists, Farmington artist Edee Joppich paints in two distinct styles. Two upcoming exhibits will focus on those techniques. Her realistic watercolors are currently on display in the Quiet Room in the Farmington Library through January. These 16 works include still life, figurative studies and landscapes painted on location during seminars she conducts for Michigan artists on the Leelanau peninsula. A one-woman show of her new abstract collage paintings will open in the Troy Gallery on Feb. 10. A teacher with VAAL (Visual Arts Association of Livonia), Joppich teaches classes and workshops, juries art exhibitions for art clubs and colleges and lectures extensively. She is also the owner and director of Joppich's Bay Street Gallery in Northport.

Area Interlochen auditions scheduled

Interlochen Center for the Arts, often referred to as Michigan's "Fame in the Woods," will hold auditions in Detroit for the National Music Camp and Interlochen Arts Academy.

Music auditions will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Feb. 17 in Room 1 at Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward. For more information, call Helen Manuel at 547-3111.

Dance auditions will be Feb. 11 at Julie Marie's Art of Dance, 6331 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield. They will be combined with Ballet Aspen auditions. Hours are 1-3 p.m. for 11-13-year-olds and 3-6 p.m. for 14-18-year-olds.

Students unable to audition in Detroit can audition at Interlochen at 2 p.m. Feb. 12 in the H. Lewis Dance Building.

Music applicants must be between the ages of 8 and 18. They will be required to perform a movement, or movements, from a standard concerto, sonata, or solo piece, limited to eight minutes. Memorization isn't necessary. Piano accompaniment, provided by the applicant, is allowed.

DANCE APPLICANTS must be qualified intermediate and advanced students. They must perform ballet and jazz combinations and submit an 8-by-10 photo, resume, and references to the registrar. A $7 fee for a master class and the audition will be due at registration.

Interlochen Center for the Arts is the umbrella organization for the National Music Camp, Interlochen Arts Academy and WIAA-FM. The 1,200-acre campus is 16 miles southwest of Traverse City in northwest Michigan.

For more information on Interlochen, write Carlene Peregrine, director of admissions, National Music Camp, or Katherine Murdock, director of admissions, Interlochen Arts Academy, Interlochen Center for the Arts, P.O. Box 199, Interlochen 49642 or call (616) 276-9221.

You aren't helpless when crime invades your neighborhood. You're fully capable of helping police and they're ready to show you how.

The case of The Stanton Park Stand-Off.

When crack moved into a row house on a quiet block of Stanton Park, folks decided to serve an eviction notice.

They met with police to find out what they could do to keep drugs out of their neighborhood.

The cops told them to keep an eye out--to let police know whenever something suspicious happened. They began to notice faces. They wrote down license numbers of strange cars. They noted the times of odd behavior. They worked with each other. They worked with the police. Armed with field glasses, note pads and telephones, folks kept track of the neighborhood. Within one month, enough evidence had been gathered. Police moved in. Crack moved out. Citizen participation beat crime in D.C. It can do the same for you. For more success stories, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20539-0001.

Police become even more responsive when their people are their partners. Together we can help...

Twin Arbors
Choose a luxurious one-bedroom apartment in the charming residential community of Plymouth, with free heat and many comforts of home. The location is near I-275 and I-96, shopping, banks and restaurants, too. There's a Clubhouse for year 'round fun. And a beautifully-landscaped backyard you'll love. Call 453-2800 and you're on your way to being $600 richer.
Woodridge
Or choose an extra-large two-bedroom apartment right near the Livonia Mall and I-696. They offer two large baths. The master bedroom has a large walk-in closet. There's covered parking for your convenience. And a fully-equipped all-electric kitchen including a dishwasher. Call 477-6448 and start thinking of all the ways you'd like to spend $600.

For a measly $299 you can move into Birmingham.
Your home is your palace in the quaint residential area of Birmingham in the private splendor of Buckingham. Here, you have a park complete with rolling countryside, tall trees, walking trails, just across the moat. Here, the interiors are fresh and new from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures...from designer carpeting to contemporary verticals. Here, too, a two-bedroom apartment offers much more than is commonly expected. With just $299 in move-in costs. Hurry. Don't miss out on this royal offer.

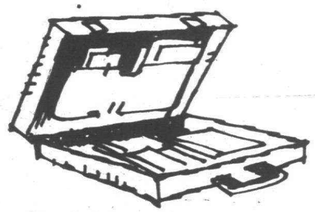
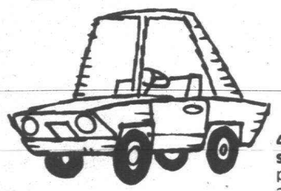
WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

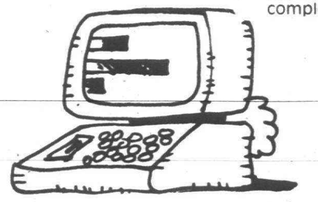


2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Houses larger with more features

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Home construction trends support the assertion of "Bigger and Better Homes," a study by Congressional Research Service, Congress' own in-house think tank, that today's homes are larger and filled with more amenities

Whether more amenities and inflation are the real cause of home price increases and the current housing affordability crisis, however, was debated by U.S. congressmen when they decided the merits of setting higher loan limits for federal housing administration mortgage insurance late last year.

Higher limits will allow first-time home buyers to take out larger federal government-backed loans. Although FHA loan limits vary from area to area, the cap was increased from $100,000 to $125,000.

The average price of a home in 1988, according to the U.S. bureau of the census, was more than $140,000.

According to "Characteristics of New Housing: 1988," a report compiled by the U.S. departments of commerce and housing and urban development, and the bureau of the census, the percentage of larger homes in the Midwest with more amenities included during construction has steadily increased since 1985.

NEW HOUSES in the Midwest that are 1,599 square feet and less have become increasingly rare since 1984, according to the report. In 1984, 50 percent of new homes were larger than 1,600 square feet; by 1988, 59 percent were larger than 1,600 square feet.

Along with a growth in square feet has been a growth in height, the report said. In 1985, only 40 percent of new homes had two stories or more; in 1988, 46 percent had multiple stories.

In 1985, when 156,000 single-family homes were built in the Midwest, only 55 percent had central air conditioning installed during construction. In 1988, 71 percent of the 191,000 new homes included central air conditioning, according to the report.

The percentage of homes with multiple bathrooms also has increased. In 1985, only 31 percent of new homes had 2.5 bathrooms or more and 32 percent had two bathrooms, the report states. By 1988, 45 percent of new homes had 2.5 bathrooms or more and 35 percent had two bathrooms.

THE NUMBER of bedrooms per home also continues to climb, according to the report. In 1985, only 21 percent of new homes had four bedrooms or more and 54 percent had three bedrooms. By 1988, 28 percent of new homes had four bedrooms or more and 56 percent had two bedrooms — more than any year since 1985 except 1987 when 57 percent all new homes had 3 bedrooms.

The percentage of homes with fireplaces also has increased over the years. In 1985, 54 percent of new homes had fireplaces, but by 1988, 63 percent new homes had fireplaces, the report said.

The percentage of new homes with full or partial basements, although steady at 77 percent from 1984 through 1987, increased to 81 in 1988, according to the report.

The percentage of homes with two-car garages in the Midwest has also increased in the past 5 years. In 1984, the report states, 70 percent of all homes had two-car garages, but by 1988, 84 percent of all new homes had two-car garages.

Land costs escalate price of new homes

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Bigger homes with more amenities are driving up the cost of new homes. If buyers would demand less and builders would include less, the housing affordability crisis could be eliminated.

That's the gist of a new congressional study federal legislators used to help determine whether to expand federal housing aid by setting higher loan limits for federal housing administration (FHA) mortgage insurance.

But local developers say the study is too simplistic.

According to "Bigger and Better Homes," the report compiled by Congressional Research Service, Congress' in-house think tank, housing prices are actually not much higher than 25 years ago after subtracting inflation and amenity costs.

Using a U.S. Census Bureau statistical tool called "a 1982 house" that examines 10 housing characteristics at constant 1982 prices, one can "time warp" housing prices back to 1963 when a 1982 house would have sold for $22,700, compared to the actual 1963 average house cost of $19,300.

After factoring in inflation, that same 1982 house would cost $101,200 in 1988; far less than the real average home price of $145,500. After subtracting the amenities included in 1988 homes, prices could be reduced to approximately $100,000, the study argues.

BUT DEVELOPERS counter that it is land costs and local demands that add to home prices.

"Whoever's doing that study is doing a lot of cherry picking with the statistics to come up with the numbers they want," according to Classic Construction president Sam Blumenstein. Classic Construction is the developer of Maple Place Villas in West Bloomfield and the Maples of Novi.

Blaming housing affordability woes on inflation and amenities is far too simplistic, he said. Hard costs — those associated with the actual home materials, may not have increased much in the past 20 years, but building and land costs have increased 25 percent in that same time. "It's not bigger and better housing at all."

If a home costs $85 to $100 a square foot to build, the extra amenities probably cost $5, Blumenstein said.

The real culprits in the housing affordability crisis, he said, are increased land and development prices. Restrictions on developers — woodlands and wetlands ordinances, for example — are also costly to builders.

BUILDERS WHO want to build affordable homes are forced to go to extreme measures to build them, Blumenstein continued. Classic Construction buys and rezones land, builds the subdivision infrastructure, and then builds the homes.

Traditionally, one person buys the land and rezones it, a developer purchases it and develops the subdivision infrastructure, and then builders purchase individual lots, Blumenstein said. "Very few do all three."

Walter Cohen of Charter Development Co., one of metropolitan Detroit's largest residential builders, said few developers are building low-end housing.

Cohen said he doubts there is as much of a demand for low priced housing as many politicians and other groups claim. "There are beautiful homes in Detroit for very little money that go unsold.

"Everyone says there's a crisis. But come on, if that's true, people would buy them," he said.

If there is truly a need for more affordable homes, builders will address that need eventually, Cohen said, adding that building is a "lag industry," meaning it slowly responds to consumer demands.

"There's no question the amenities are costing more, Cohen added, "but local construction codes are higher in every community too."

Charter Development doesn't build low-end housing anymore because there isn't enough demand. "People don't want to buy rock bottom housing."

LAWRENCE GOSS, vice president at the Burton-Katzman-Share/Abbey Group, said simple supply and demand economics also comes into play. Because many builders are concentrating on multi-family or high-end residential developments there's a lack of affordable homes.

That lack, he said, has resulted in increased competition and higher prices for the lower-end homes.

"The problem is the profit margins on affordable housing are far less, so builders aren't as willing to build them," Goss said. "The risk is still the same, but the potential for profit is lower."

Goss said many builders aspire to build larger homes because of profit potential and status.

Despite the risks and lower profits, Goss said his firm is moving ahead under the assumption there is a sufficient — and growing — demand for affordable homes.

DEVELOPERS MAY not be able to build affordable homes in Farmington Hills or West Bloomfield, Goss said, but areas like Walled Lake, Van Buren and Canton townships remain good possibilities.

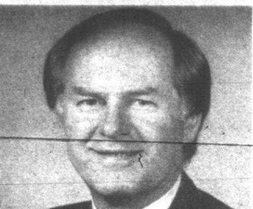
Out-of-towners discover local market

By R.J. King
special writer

It happened in the automotive industry. It happened in the advertising industry. And now, after years of ignoring the metropolitan Detroit market, large multi-national companies are waking up to a hot market.

The product this time is commercial real estate. Its most likely forms are office buildings, hotels and retail centers and research and development complexes. And while local companies have been left to themselves here for years, today the market is becoming increasingly competitive at a time when land is becoming scarce.



Robert E. Moon

Local players face competition

"WHEN I first got into the commercial real estate business 15 years ago, metropolitan Detroit was not considered a national market," said Robert Moon, 47. Moon recently resigned as president of the Morris & Moon Real Estate Group in Bingham Farms to join Cushman & Wakefield in Southfield, one of the nation's largest commercial real estate brokers.

"We had the market all to ourselves, but more and more, the large national companies began to see Detroit and its suburbs as a major hub for commercial real estate, and slowly they began to take on more and more opportunities.

THE RECENT growth in commercial real estate, like so many other industries in the United States, came about due to the economic expansion eight years ago in which strong growth in consumer spending led the nation out of recession.

"The growth in commercial real estate since 1982 has been tremendous," said Steven Morris, president of of Morris Real Estate Group. "We've seen a boom in every sector — office, industrial, retail and residential — and with that growth came more activity from the big brokerage firms."

During the last several years, the commercial real estate landscape here has seen the addition of such large national companies as Grubb & Ellis, and Coldwell Banker, both with regional headquarters in Southfield, and stepped-up efforts by Cushman & Wakefield, which arrived in 1963.

FOR MORRIS, the last few years have brought increased competition unprecedented for an industry that traditionally was well served by hometown connections.

"The national brokers have brought more professionalism, higher standards and increased educational group that no only can assess the Japanese market but offer management and financial assistance as well."

Kasselman wouldn't reveal the company's income, but he did say the company has seen double-digit revenue growth over the past several years.

tion to the market, which local independent companies must compete with if they are to survive, Morris said.

Gross commissions last year were slightly less than $2 million. Morris projected 1990 commissions would not rise to much more than that, leading him to assess today's marketplace as "more active but with less business."

ANOTHER PRESSING concern for the small independent broker is a growing trend by area developers and tenants toward using national brokerage companies to expand into new markets, including not only U.S. cities but locations in Europe and the Pacific Rim countries.

Because the organization's real estate often comprises more than 25 percent of its total assets, more and more companies are recognizing national brokerage companies have the expertise and economies of scale to tackle complicated expansion plans.

"For a company located in Birmingham that wants to open an office in Tokyo, a small local broker might not be able to help them," Boyd Kasselman said. He is vice president and branch manager of Cushman & Wakefield.

"BUT FOR us, we have an established interna-
