School questions head for vote

A Plymouth Canton school millage election on Monday will determine if there will be sports and other after school activities in the fall. Failure to approve a 4 mill tax increase will lead to the layoff of 42 teachers and other school workers.

BY M.B. DILLON

Voters will elect one of five candidates to a four-year term on the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday, June 14. Local polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Also on the ballot will be a 4-mill tax increase and a 17.74-mill renewal. The district is asking for two-year approval of both the added millage and the renewal.

Candidates are incumbent Trustee David Artley, Robert Burger of Plymouth Township; Terry Chuhran of Canton Township; Steve Kilijanczyk of Canton, and the Rev. William Myers of Canton.

All candidates support both millage requests with the exception of Kilijanczyk, who supports the renewal but not the 4 mills. The campaign trail has been anything but smooth. Burger is recovering from open heart surgery. Myers, if elected, will be unable to serve his term because he is accepting a job outstate July 1.

The teachers' union withdrew its endorsement of Myers after he announced his upcoming move. The union is not endorsing anyone. Myers has asked that Pat Liljestrand of Plymouth Township be appointed by the board to take his place if he is successful.

Candidate night

Myers, Kilijanczyk, Chuhran and Artley appeared at a recent candidates' night hosted by the League of Women Voters. Burger couldn't attend due to his illness.

State to buy Mettetal

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

The state will buy Mettetal Airport with restrictions - suggested by area residents - designed to maintain the facility's existing character.

"Under the proposed sale, the state would have control and responsibility of the airport. The state has no plans to expand the airport now or in the future," said Michigan Department of Transportation Director Pat Nowak.

That promise would be included in an agreement to be hammered out between the state and Canton Town ship. The agreement would include issues raised by a citizens committee. regarding the estimated $4 million purchase.

A final contract is expected to be brought before the Canton Township Board of Trustees in the next couple of weeks.

Nowak announced the state's intentions Tuesday night before a full house of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township residents who have been following the issue.

At least one resident remained skeptical, despite Nowak's as-surances. "I just hope we don't have to come back and say, 'I told you so,' said Plymouth resident Jim Miller. "I still disagree with it. It's going to cost us money down the road, no matter how you look at it.'

Township Supervisor Tom Yack told residents not much should change. "The whole purpose of our agreement has been to preserve the uses of the past into the future.'

The state will use 90 percent federal funds from the Aviation Trust Fund and 10 percent state funds from the state Aeronautics Fund to buy the airport. Nowak said.

The state's purchase of Mettetal also will include two pieces of property north of Joy Road and a small parcel immediately west and adjacent to

Township seeks to market community center

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

What's in a name?

Plenty, according to some Canton Township officials who are soliciting possible names from employees not residents — for the proposed $13 million community center.

"It's pretty hard to market something that doesn't have a name or logo," said Mike Goin, township parks and recreation superintendent. Officials plan to hire a marketing firm to develop an image and market the proposed 80,000-square-foot center. But developing a name and logo for the center will be done in house. "We are not going to make a contest out of this," Goin added.

Money to pay a marketing firm is expected to come mostly out of the community center budget. "I don't think it will cover all of it," Goin said.

Township Supervisor Tom Yack told trustees and planning commissioners Monday night that there's no time to waste in choosing a name for the center. One of the reasons, for example, is the plan to have some residential builders include one-year memberships with the sale of houses. The builders would pay the township for the memberships, Goin said.

"Usually a logo tries to capture the feeling of the facility," said Yack, who opposed a suggestion to name the center after him. "In general, it (logo) really tries to pick up the spirit of the facility.'

Members of the Colorado-based Barker, Rinker, Seacat Architects, who are designing the facility, were expected to provide cost estimates for the project Monday. Those numbers, however, are not yet complete and will be provided later. The Colorado firm is working with architect Ken Neumann of Neumann Smith Associates. Southfield.

Architects have another three months of designing ahead of them. In 10-12 weeks, the architects are expected to meet with the township's

Canton reviewing its involvement in pursuit

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

Canton police are reviewing their involvement in the multi-community pursuit of a driver who struck a van in which a Canton man died.

"Every time there is a pursuit, either originating in Canton, or if it comes through Canton, we review our involvement to assure compliance with our written policy," said Capt. Alex Wilson of the Canton Police Department.

This was the third time Canton police have been involved in a pur-

"I personally have a concern every time there is a pursuit," Wilson said. "But I don't personally think you can under certain circumstances say you will never pursue.

Pursuits and fleeing/eluding charges - with which most who lead people on a pursuit are charged - have been the topic of discussion in the legislative committee of the Michigan Association of Chiefs of

"We want to deal with this. We can't say you can't ever pursue. Yet innocent people are being hurt and killed," said Belleville Police Chief Will Dockter, a committee member.

A subcommittee of chiefs has sent the Michigan Legislature a proposal to increase fleeing and eluding from a misdemeanor to a felony that would carry a heavier penalty. As a misdemeanor, people convicted of fleeing and eluding receive a maximum penalty of a $100 fine and 90

"It's kind of a Catch-22," Dockter said. "There's so many intervening variables. Are they going to keep going because it's a felony? Is it going to be a deterrent or a reason for people to run?"

The incident that resulted in the death of Brian Hale, 33, of Canton, began in Allen Park, where police were chasing Kirk Miller, 22, of Ecorse at about 7:10 p.m. Wedn day, June 2. Eventually driving north on I-275, Miller apparently exited at Michigan Avenue, according to Tammie Colling, Canton or munity relations officer.

project committee to determine if the desired center fits within the project's budget.

'Right now, we think we can afford everything here," said architect Ron Rinker, pointing to a model of the proposed center with its copper roof.

If there are cost overruns, architects suggest eliminating elements of the center that serve more as a nuance or decoration, than parts of the buildings, such as a racquet ball court or other

"I would rather see us put the oject off for a year or two rather than eliminating the specific features of it. I would rather do it right and well," said planning commissioner Cathy Johnson. Yack responded: "If they (architects) are off by that much, there is a problem.' According to preliminary projections, property tax dollars would not be used to build the center. Instead, township officials will use block grant money, a state recreation grant, banking of landfill dumping fees, landfill royalties and interfund loans.

Once built, the center is expected to financially sustain itself. In addition to banquet and training facilities, which would generate revenue, family and individual memberships would be sold, and drop-in fees charged for those who don't wish to be members.

> According to preliminary designs, the center will boast a 65foot tower - with a clock - that will be rise above the rosy-bricked facility nestled between ponds in Heritage Park southwest of the Canton Public Library and the still unbuilt Pheasant Run Golf

Commissioners Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, and William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, also oppose the purchase of the tickets and will try to eliminate the whole $119,000 Arts Commission appropriation in the 1994 county budget.

Said O'Neil, "I think it's a shame that, when we're facing an $11 million deficit, we're going to pay a number of individuals to come over here and entertain a very small number of people. This kind of money should be paid by private donations.

The fall-like weather didn't dampen the spirits of volunteers anxious to build upon past successes and clean up the Rouge

A 22-year-old Westland man was charged with a misdemeanor after he refused to stop for Canton police June 6.

A Canton officer tried to stop the man, who was driving a 1986 red Ford Mustang on westbound Michigan Avenue, when he noticed that the car had no headlights on, according to a police report.

Research park has high-tech aims

Canton will try to attract high-tech businesses with its new research park district. The districts will boast a neat, subdivision-like appearance, where smokestacks and loading docks are a thing of the past.

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

Canton has a new zoning alternative that's expected to draw high-tech and light manufacturing businesses.

Forget images of smokestacks and loading docks. The new research park district will look like a subdivision of sorts - but with well-designed buildings on landscaped sites and no outside storage.

"The park settings kind of encourage a larger site plan with a loop road," said Canton planner Jeff Goulet. "The focus would be internally toward the subdivision.

Canton officials approved the new district Tuesday night as part of a group of zoning code amendments.

The research park districts are proposed on the master land use plan for north of the Ford Road and I-275 interchange, south of Koppernick and Warren; and near I-275 and Michigan Avenue along Haggerty, as well as a strip along Michigan east of Sheldon.

"This creates an opportunity to get a different type of development in the township," said Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack.

The research park district, will boast consistency in design and will allow the township more control in how the acreage is developed. Minimum sites in the districts would be 10 acres.

Some parcels in the designated areas, however, are smaller than 10 acres. Developers or even township officials can petition to have property in these areas rezoned to research park. Because of their size and characteristics some of the parcels may remain zoned as light industrial, Goulet said.

"The district (research park) provides that opportunity to have special areas for industry that might not otherwise locate here," Goulet said. "The developers know what they are getting with this. All of their neighbors would be under the same requirements and restrictions."

The DeMattia industrial park on Sheldon Road in Plymouth is an example of a research park district. Clean is the rule. Heavy industry is not what research park districts are about.

Compared to the light industrial districts, uses in the research park districts will be more limited.

Uses that will be allowed in research park districts include research and design centers with related offices; light manufacturing, research, assembly, testing and repair of equipment and systems for professional scientific instruments. That could include data processing equipment, optical devices, photographic equipment, scientific and mechanical instruments and graphics and art equipment.

The district also will allow the light manufacturing, processing and as-sembling of biological products, drugs, medicinal chemicals and pharmaceutical preparation, as well as electrical machinery, office and computing machines, training and educational centers, printing and photocopying services, for example.

We will have performance controls and additional setbacks and buffers,' Goulet said.

The township planner said he does not expect concern from the few residential areas near the planned districts, particularly because of pharmaceutical or biological activities.

"It doesn't allow them (manufacturers) to use raw materials," Goulet said. "They won't be doing any major processing.

The proposal also requires a 50foot buffer between the park and residential area. Utility lines must be underground and outside storage would be prohibited. Manufacturing, assembly, processing and packaging would be required to be done completely in-

Unlike light industrial districts, warehousing and distribution will be allowed only as a special land use. That means the developer will have to get special permission from the planning commission.

Bottle message got a response

By Kevin Brown Staff Writer

r ar When Marily a Goldine of Plymouth tossed a message in a bottle off a cruise ship in the Caribbean, she didn't think anyone would find it.

But somebody did. A few weeks later, William Medina was walking along a beach on the island of Culebras 10 miles east of Puerto Rico.

"I went there with a group of 24 students from the University of Puerto Rico. I saw a green wine bottle, about 25 percent of it was in the soft sand." said Medina.

That was in 1985. He's now a real estate appraiser and married. Born in New York City, he moved to Puerto Rico when he was 7.

'It had a message inside: 'Are you bored . . . in need of a good chucthe wrote hack within about two address.

Medina said he couldn't post a letter from the small island, population 2,000. "I came back to San Juan and wrote her a letter," he said.

"We were on a 10-day cruise," said Collins, who was traveling with her husband.

"Every night after dinner I'd put a note in a bottle and toss it overboard, I threw a couple of them overboard,' she said.

"I'm told they usually get caught in the draft of the ship and get broken, she said.

The bottle Medina found was thrown off the Royal Caribbean

The two wrote back and forth a few times, then Medina lost her address. It was after getting her phone number from directory information that

Charles Fisher - awaiting retrial in the 1984 murder of his wife was found guilty Wednesday on one of two charges in connection with claims he tried to pay a prison inmate to confess to the murder.

A jury of five men and seven women found Fisher guilty on one count of inciting pejury, a fiveyear felony, before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Vera Massey Jones. The jury also found Fisher not guilty on one count of attempted obstruction of justice, a 21/2-year felony.

Fisher's attorney, Ken Mogill, was unavailable for comment fol lowing the verdict. But Donaldson said Mogill plans to file motions concerning the venue or jurisdiction of the case, as well as double jeopardy. "He's claiming Wayne County didn't have the

Millage election

Say 'yes' to renewal, increase

t's understandable why voters may wish to reject the 4-mill property tax increase Monday on the Plymouth Canton school

Gov. John Engler and outstate lawmakers have expressed an intent to cut school aid to out-of-formula districts; the district's 755 teachers won't budge on taking pay freezes or concessions in tough times; and the school administration hasn't been tough during labor negotiations, opting to seek millage increases in-

Stuck in the middle are taxpayers who want and need property tax relief and parents who want their children educated. A "no" vote may be the way to hit back but it would be a misguided strike.

On Monday, voters will decide a 17.74 millage renewal and a 4 mill increase, both for two

We recommend a yes vote on both millage proposals.

Plymouth Canton school officials have budg eted conservatively over the years and still have managed to provide a strong academic curriculum and extra-curricular program for students. Personalities aside, district personnel have been good stewards of the public's money.

There's no doubt the district must have its renewal millage. The renewal is necessary to keep the schools in business.

Here's the hit list: Two new elementary schools won't open, sports and extra curricular activities will be cut, 42 teachers, administrators and other workers will be laid off, and purchase of books and supplies will be cut.

The cost of stability and averting the cuts isn't high. The millage hike will cost the owner of a $100,000 house about $200.

However, the schools and teachers aren't blameless. A 1.5 mill increase was rejected one year ago and about $4 million in cuts were made when teachers rejected a delayed pay raise. The teachers were in the third year of a contract that called for raises of 7 percent, 6 percent and 7 percent. They were asked to take a 5 percent hike for the current year, delaying the 2 percent until the following year.

Those raises came during a time period when wages in auto and related manufacturing rose about $1 an hour and during which Willow Run workers learned the plant would shut.

Such behavior angers voters. And it's continuing this spring. The school administration earlier this spring settled with the teachers, giving them a 3 percent raise.

Now, just before the millage vote, the teachers have been asked to forgo the pay increase. It makes us wonder if it's not a tactic -- just as the list of "punishment cuts" are meant to use with voters.

Such actions muddy the educational scene

I know people in this community appreciate their schools. That's why they bought homes er or larger homes move within the school district. Parents talk about well-run schools, orderly hallways and classrooms and schools where their children are treated well and are challenged to learn.

hile living in Plymouth over the last 13 years. I have observed how our millage ncreases have been wasted. The last three year contract period, unfortunately, is the worst example

Over this three year period our teachers received an exhorbitant increase of 22 percent (the inflation rate averaged 3.5/year), while MEAP scores dropped considerably. In fact two years ago eight out of nine test indicators for our entire school system declined. In addition we have far too many class offerings at our

My 10th grader recently had to select classes for this fall from a menu of over 180 class listings. He only needs four or five to prepare for college; math, science, English and history. Any extra curricular activities my son wants to get involved in, I'll pay for.

I don't expect anyone else to "foot the bill." I personally cannot possibly justify rewarding 'poor performance" with another millage in crease. I am also sick of paying for Dr. Hoben's Cadillac each year, when the administration pleads poverty and threatens our children's education with severe cuts.

Dan Holton, Plymouth

Cuts needed

The recent pro millage advertisement sponsored by our high school principals paints a most vivid picture (in dramatic red ink fashion) of the business as usual position taken by our school board and administration toward our children at the high school.

By advocating cuts in student extracurricular programs that develop the physical and emotional well being of our children as opposed to cutting high in the sky salaries, we are lectured as parents to expect severe consequences if the millage increase is defeated.

Fortunately most parents/taxpayers have attended schools which showed compassion and concern to them as students and understand the reality of this predicament. I'm a little tired am writing to support the concept of quality schooling within the Plymouth Canton Community Schools. I am an administrative employee, parent, and customer of the school district. My belief is that quality schooling is essential if we are going to prepare our children for the 21st century.

The concept of quality is in the process of transforming the American business communi ty and impacting on institutions such as schools. The quality revolution led by people such as W. Edwards Deming and others has made significant changes in the auto industry, telecommunications, and service organizations throughout our society.

However, if our nation is really going to get serious about quality, we cannot forget the most important component for lasting economic and social improvement, the schools.

The next generation must be taught to seek quality in what they do. It begins in kindergarten and is fostered throughout the K-12 schooling experience. If we believe that we need workers to be responsible, know some essential information, be able to communicate with others, function as contributing citizens of a democracy, and solve complex social, economic and global issues, then we must invest in their growth and development.

Further, if we want people to work cooperatively in teams, understand and appreciate the fine and performing arts, apply the technology essential in an information age, and develop into healthy caring adults, we must invest in their growth and development. The failure to educate children now will continue the alarming trend that is a reality today. We spend more to build prisons and lock people up than we do to support their development of quality atti-> to focus on clear outcomes and competencies The change to high skills and mastery of knowledge requires high standards, careful alignment of curriculum, major changes in teaching practices and parental relearning and support. MEAP testing and coming proficiency tests for high school diplomas are the beginning of the quality revolution in schools. Without community support, our students will not be able to receive the education they need to be competitive in our global society.

Achieving quality conditions in our schools is intentional, not accidental. It requires all of us to review, we should understand partnerships must be formed between parents, teachers, and school administrators to work toward quality

Our current financial troubles will serve to negatively impact any quest for improved quality. Classrooms of 38 students in the elementary and middle schools, no opportunities for participation in performing arts, athletics, or extracurricular activities for adolescents, and the inability to provide for the retraining of teachers and administrators prevents the movement toward quality schooling.

We need community support on June 14 for the millage election. Beyond the election we must intentionally seek quality improvements for our schools and the community

Shock waves

As the date approaches for the citizens of the community to go to the polls to decide the financial future of our school district. various opinions have appeared in your paper regarding the various issues that relate to

As one who has been involved with our schools for several years and having examined the financial and administrative aspects of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in depth in recent months, I would like to offer my opinion on these matters.

As one who will be leaving this community within a month, I also feel that I can address these issues with a high degree of objectivity. 1. My own research has led me to believe that our school district is very well managed financially. In fact, I feel that we have actually been too frugal in some areas. I truly believe that only those who do not know the financial facts of our school district can imply there is fiscal anismanagement Additionally, the research tervealed that we DON'T pay for the super ent's Cadillac. He is given a reasonable car alowance and pays the extra costs himself.

THE SOUR WINDS WHEN THE RESERVE TO THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PR 2. In an attempt to hold down administrative costs, the board and administration have either eliminated or will eliminate some important curriculum personnel. It so happens that these are administrative positions, and I feel that the accusations some are making that imply our district has lots of administrative waste is ridiculous, especially in light of these major cuts that have already been made. The annual audit. as required by law, has proven for years that there is no fraud. 3. I agree with the proposed program cuts that our school board has planned if the 4 mill increase fails. As unpleasant as they are, these unfortunately appear to be the most logical places to cut if we must. 4. To those who are planning to vote, "Yes," I encourage you to please share your reasons with your neighbors. They truly need to know all that is at stake when they go to the polls. It seems to me that only the uninformed could not support this request.

5. To those who are planning to cast a "No" vote "in order to send a message," may I ask that you please reconsider. Any such "message" will be received first and foremost by the very ones you don't want to hurt, the 15,000 students enrolled in the Plymouth-Canton schools. Your attempt to undercut the educational foundation of those who are our future will ultimately hurt all of us. The next shock wave generated by a 'No" vote will be felt by those who try to sell their homes. What is at stake in the long run is the standard of living for all of us in the years ahead. Please find some other ballot with which to send your negative message:

These are difficult times. Nobody likes to pay more taxes. However, the cost of a 4 mill increase for most residents is about the same as one fast food meal per week for one person.

When you go to the polls on Monday, June 14, please vote "Yes" twice: first on the renewal and then "Yes" again on the 4 mill increase. Your positive vote is an investment in the future, and the quality of your community depends on it.

continue to rely as much as it does on the property tax? 2. How should public kindergarten through 12th grade education be financed so as to provide the best schooling for all Michigan's chil-The real reason Proposal A failed was that it smeared these two questions - both important, both related, but certainly not both the same into one complex ballot proposal.

Proposal A was confused and therefore fundamentally flawed from the start. All the huffing and puffing about the indifference of the rich suburbs or voter cynicism are merely convenient rhetoric to disguise its basic design

As for "indifference," consider voters in the richer school districts, concentrated mainly in suburban Oakland and Wayne counties. Proposal A provided them no particular relief from high property tax rates, offering in exchange a diversion of money to poorer school districts without linking the extra funds to improved student performance.

Is it any wonder suburban voters turned down such a bad deal?

There was a lot of cynicism expressed in the votte, aimed mainly at the folks who run education in Michigan, particularly the Michigan Eduçation Association. The general view was that if Proposal A passed, the only possible beneficiaries would be MEA members and some school administrators.

The intensity of this kind of talk is new to me some folks even mentioned the "Michigan Extortion Association" — and should be a matter of deep concern for the MEA.

Given this widespread attitude, I doubt very much whether any kind of education finance reform proposal can pass in the future without being tied very tightly to improvements in school performance.

Which, frankly, is exactly what is needed. For far too long, our governmental and political system has concentrated on inputs — how much to tax, how much to spend - without much concern for outcomes - what we actually get for our money.

■ Kilijancyzk's accounting background will be an asset to the Plymouth Canton school board. Also, he's one to question school spending and financing. Such a voice is needed on the school board.

Education offers the clearest case.

• First the inputs. From 1970 to 1990, spending on Michigan kindergarten through 12th grade education grew from $1.6 billion to $6.7 billion, or a 25 percent increase after inflation. During this period, student enrollment went down nearly 25 percent. Spending per pupil increased nearly 70 percent in constant dollars!

Now the outcomes. College admission test scores (the only hard outcome measure we have for the 1970-90 period) changed not at all!

The lesson is clear: Heaven only knows we spend enough on education, so it's about time we started getting some results.

As our leaders start mulling over what to do in the aftermath of Proposal A's defeat, they might well begin by reviewing this simple les-

Wayne-Westland to decide on tax hike

BY DARRELL CLEM SPAFF WRITER

The Wayne-Westland school board is expected to decide Tuesday whether to ask voters to approve a local school tax this summer.

Superintendent Larry Thomas plans to make a recommendation at a special school board meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday at school district offices on Marquette, between Newburgh and Wayne.

The latest developments emerged Monday as 250 students, parents and educators protested deep budget cuts that will take effect this fall unless local voters approve a tax proposal.

Already, 147 citizens on Monday signed an impromptu petition calling on the board to schedule a local tax election.

But the seven-member board appeared divided on whether to schedule a tax election amid hopes of averting $74 million in budget cuts, such as eliminating all extracurricular activities and halting busing for junior high and high school students.

Board trustees Richard Le-Blanc and Sharon Felan were among those who appeared to support a special election this summer, although no specific proposal has yet been recommended by Thomas.

But board president Leonard Posey, drawing criticism from some students and educators, said he doubts that voters will approve a local tax.

"I'm not a defeatist. I'm not a leser. I'm not a quitter. But let's get real," he told the crowd Mon-

Wayne-Westland voters in April killed a local proposal to renew 6 mills of a 7.75-mill tax that expires June 30. The measure failed 63 percent to 37 percent. (One mill represents $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.)

Also in April, voters defeated a state Headlee Amendment override that would have allowed local taxes to increase faster than inflation. That plan failed 71 percent to 29 percent.

In another election, Wayne-Westland voters last week helped to defeat a statewide ballot issue that would have raised the state sales tax 50 percent while cutting property taxes. Wayne-Westland property taxes would have plummeted to 27 mills from 47 mills.

During Monday's meeting, Posey said he doesn't want to waste $20,000 on another local election that he said appears destined to fail.

One student, Jacob Henry, took offense at Posey's statement.

"I am worth $20,000," said Henry, a John Glenn High football player who will be a senior this fall.
"I will be damned if this community does not point a finger at you if you do not put the millage back on the ballot," he said.

Board trustee Francis "Bud"

Winter said he could support a tax proposal if city government officials and the community's "power brokers" join in the effort. "I'll lead the band," Winter volunteered.

Mathew McCusker, a former school board member who is seeking a seat in Monday's election, urged the board to decide Monday to seek a local tax proposal.

"Give us leadership!" he yelled from the audience.

There are count-

Often, those stories neglect to mention the million-dollar contracts that serve to motivate the athlete. Toughness is an attribute an athlete must possess to exceed ordinary status and become elite. Mentally and physically, for an athlete to succeed, toughness is a necessity.

Which is one reason, in my mind, it's been difficult for many people to accept women as athletes. Until the last decade, the only sports really open to women were mostly non-contact: tennis, swimming, track. Men controlled sports, and in the past women were supposed to be soft, demure, charming.

Not rough and tough. Times have changed, Linda Hamilthe '90s. She is determined, aggressive, confident - and very, very

People shake their heads in sympa thy when they read stories of Joe Namath, former quarterback, having both knees replaced. Or Bo Jackson, fighting back after having an artificial hip implanted to play baseball once again. They pray for Joe Montana (elbow) and Lawrence Taylor (Achilles tendon) to overcome their injuries and play one more football season.

Brave men, to be sure. But they have nothing on Hamilton - except, perhaps, one thing. They each had strong financial inducements to continue in their sports.

Injury-filled soccer life

Hamilton does not. She continues only for the love of soccer, a sport she is as adept at as any of the above named are at theirs.

What has she endured? Five knee operations, two of them total reconstructions both times on her left knee. There has also been a broken nose that required surgery and a dislocated elbow, as well as other assorted "minor" injuries.

In the spotlight of a state championship meet, Plymouth Salem proved to all that it is a bonafide power in girls track Saturday in Grand Rapids.

The Rocks, led by senior Tonya Wheeler's repeat victory in the 400-meter dash, finished second in the Class A finals at Houseman Field.

It was the best finish in a state track meet by a Salem or Canton team. Defending champion Detroit Cass Tech was first with 65 points followed by Salem (36) and Ann Arbor Pioneer (35).

We're very proud of the effort that each of our state qualifiers made," Salem coach Mark Gregor said. "They took track and field to heights never reached in Plymouth-Canton."

The Salem captains talked of winning a regional title as early as last fall and were disappointed when they learned traditional nemesis Pioneer would not be there, Gregor said.

The state meet proved a more appropriate venue for the Rocks to make their case, however.

"They proved to everbody their expectations were legitimate and they backed it up," Gregor said.

Wheeler wins again

Four girls placed in individual events for Salem, and the Rocks scored in three relays and set school records in two.

The highlight was Wheeler winning her second straight 400 title with a career-best 57.7 time, which is just .10 off the school record. Salem sophomore Sarah Hamilton was sixth in the same event at 59.2.

Wheeler was seeded second to Cass Tech freshman Chantelle Nagbe, but her experience was of great benefit. 'It was Chantelle's first time in the big meet, and when she saw Tonya and Sarah come out with blocks it might have intimidated her," Gregor said. "Tonya took her right out of the blocks and made up the stagger going into the second turn. She took the lead and never gave it up.

"Her first lap was not real imran as well as she's capable over the last 200 meters to pass six or seven runners and finish seventh in her heat," Gregor said.

'She blew by them and if she had any more track left she would have passed more. It's a race she'll remember for a long time. She just got after it. She started pumping her legs and arms and brought it home in an impressive

Officials first said a Pioneer runner placed ahead of Witthoff, but Gregor appealed and it was determined a Monroe girl was sixth in the heat. That cost Pioneer two points and helped Salem in the final tally. A runner from the slow heat was seventh overall and pushed Witthoff back one

Wheeler anchors 2 relays

Wheeler came back to run a great anchor leg in the 1,600 relay, Gregor said, and help the Rocks finish second behind Cass Tech. Hamilton, Courtney Sheldon, Witthoff and Wheeler ran a school-record time of 4:01.4, breaking their own mark of 4:04.5 set earlier this year.

After reviewing recent history, should be no surprise that Plymouth Salem will be playing in a regional baseball tournament

The Rocks, despite struggling at the start of the season, have now won district championships in five of the last seven years. Salem went all the way in 1991, winning its second state title.

'Someone at school said 'What is it about you guys? You always seem to play better in the state tournament," coach John Gravlin said.

"It's such a struggle at this time of year with the senior prom and graduation, so we make an extra effort to focus on what is important to us as a baseball team. The Rocks (20-13) have done well working on the things they needed to do to get better after a 6-9 start and to be ready for postseason play. Salem eventually settled on a regular infield, found another starting pitcher to complement Mike Marsella and improved its team defense. The Rocks have won 14 of their last 18 games as a

Having to fight back from earlyseason adversity, the Rocks adapted to the underdog role and will face the same situation again Saturday in the regional at Plymouth-Canton.

Salem will be the only unranked team of the four. The Rocks play No. 8 Ann Arbor Pioneer at Salem, and No. 4 Westland John Glenn faces No. 10 Brighton at Canton. Both games start at 11 a.m.

The Rocks lost to Glenn last month 6-0 and finished third in the Lakes Division, but Salem defeated Livonia Churchill (Rutherford) in a predistrict game and Western Lakes Activities Association champ Canton (Benedict) in the district.

The pitching is done largely by uniors Marsella (7-3) and Niray Kher (7-1), but the Rocks also have a quality third starter in iunior Eric Kida (5-1).

Marsella, who threw a no-hit shutout against Livonia Franklin in the district final, lowered his earned run average to 2.00, and Kher, who doesn't have a loss since coming out of the bullpen to be a starter, boasts a 0.94 ERA.

'Square Root of Three' genuinely funny

Rita returns from a week's vacation in Florida with a new nusband, she comounds family chaos Michael Golder's lelightful comedy 'The Square Root of Three," playing at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, Aaron DeRoy Theatre, Jewish Community Center. Her new husband. Lucky Mankiewitz, is a many-times-married gentleman whose 94 years of loving haven't diminished his enthusiasm.

Ninety-four years, however, have taken their physical toll - relegating him to a wheelchair and making him prone to abrupt lapses in consciousness which call into humorous question whether the old gent is still alive. Lucky's mind also slips now and then and he mistakenly calls his wife Rita, "Frieda." She corrects him in a microsecond, and the "Freida/Rita" refrain exemplifies the superb timing of veteran actors Sylvia Kauders as Rita and Elliot Levine as Lucky. Kauders recreates on the Jewish Ensemble Theatre stage the role she first played off-Broadway of the outrageous grandma who speaks her mind, and paints nude self-portraits that embarrass her 50-year-old son. Levine, also a Broadway and off-Broadway veteran shines as the in imitable, lovable Lucky.

Steven Aukstakalnis, author of "Silicon Mirage: The Art and Science of Virtual Reality" and president of Matrix Technical Services and Matrix Information Services in Lathrup Village said virtual reality will help make all the predictions about how computers will improve people's lives come true. Aukstakalnis said the fundamental principle behind virtual reality is this: "Instead of making people more computer like, lets make computers more human like." "Let's say you have a computer generated cup on a computer screen and you want to look at the other side," he said. "On a computer, you have to turn a dial, move a mouse or type a series of commands into a keyboard. Despite all of the advances that have made in computers, it is still with the placement of a window, very unnatural process, he said. for example, the architect could "With virtual reality, you just reach out, grab the window frame reach out and turn the cup," Aukand pull it across the wall.

stakalnis said. Even at its current stage of development, virtual reality has already proven to be a tremendous tool to manufacturers, he said.

From the mundane to the spectacular, virtual reality is eliminating time and increasing efficiency to enable companies to develop new techniques and bring products to the market much more quickly than previously possible.

Virtual reality is more than just a simulation, Aukstakalnis said. "It's an interactive simulation." For example, Caterpillar Inc., the manufacturer of heavy construction and farm equipment,

26-year-old extends father's footsteps in jewelry business

He's the youngest of three and the only sibling attracted to the diamond business. He leved being with his dad in the store and his dad loved having him around.

"When I was five years old, I started going to New York with my father on buying trips," Bednarsh said. "I was always fascinated by diamonds. It was different from what other kids'

'I worked with him after school in high school through college. After I graduated, I came on full time. There was no pressure. I wasn't pushed at all. It was my decision to follow in his footsteps.

Through the years, Bednarsh said he gradually became known and trusted in the Hasidic Jewish community that dominates the wholesale

"I'm like my father in their eyes," he said. "I have the respect of my peers. That's the most important

The respect has served him well since his father's death about a year and a half ago. The pair planned to work together branching out to retail sales. Now. Bednarsh has to carry out the plan alone.

He concedes that he's walking a fine line getting into retail. Wholesale buyers who purchase loose diamonds from him and sell to other retailers could get antsy. But Bednarsh isn't worried. "People who have been buying from us have been buying for years," he said. "My price is right and they're buying for quality.

"The reason we wanted to move to one-man operation to really meet price points with people and make a difference in quality," Bednarsh said.

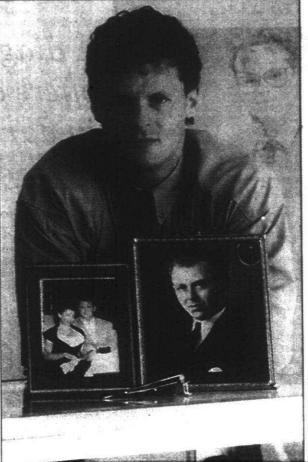

Max's capital built the business to the point where his son didn't have to come up with a large amount of money himself to buy inventory.

"To buy right, you have to buy not one stone here and one stone there but several stones. Every time you buy in large quantities you can do

He makes several buying trips to New York City annually.

"There are 101 gemologists out there," Bednarsh said. "They can all tell color and clarity. Pricing is another entity. It takes years to learn and experience."

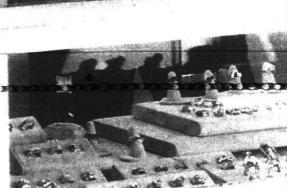

Wholesale business accounts for about 75 percent of his volume now, Bednarsh said. His wholesale profit margins can range from 3 to 5 percent, retail profit margins 15 to 25

Honesty is also critical.

Virtual reality is a reality

BY GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

Beyond all the glitz, and Hollywood propaganda remember what virtual reality is really about working with computers better.

Sure, there is fascination of virtual reality as it is demonstrated in movies like the Lawnmower Man and television in Wild Palms and Star Trek but the real impact of virtual reality will not be felt in entertainment, but in real life,

That is the point behind a seminar sponsored by Oakland University, Dykema Gossett, Matrix Technologies and Magellan Marketing at Oakland University on Friday, June 11 at the Rochester Hills campus.

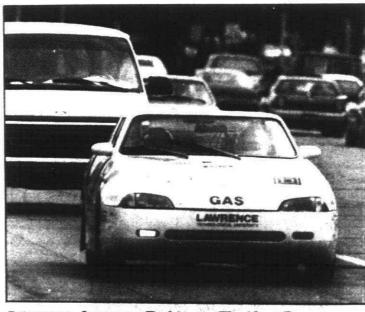

The seminar will explore what virtual reality really is, what it is not - but perhaps more importantly - what it will be, according to Oakland University engineering professor Richard Haskell.

Haskell said the purpose of the seminar is to create some excitement among those people who will benefit most from virtual reality in the near future - engineers, designers and medical researchers.

Despite its aim, which is to promote the technology and Oakland University's burgeoning virtual reality laboratories to the engineering and research community, Haskell said the seminar should be of interest to everyone because of virtual reality's far reaching ef-

Future car: Lawrence Tech's car, The No. 1 Response, was named most manufacturable and best engineering design at the Ford HEV Challenge last week.

Lawrence Tech meets Ford's HEV challenge

Lawrence Technological University made a strong showing at the national Ford Hybrid Electric Vehicle Challenge in Dearborn last week.

The No. 1 Response, built from scratch by a team of Lawrence Tech engineering students headed by Doug Callahan, placed fifth overall in the ground-up division. It was named the most manufacturable vehicle in the group and won for best engineering design. Lawrence Tech also won the Society of Automotive Engineers Design Excellence in Engineering Safety Award.

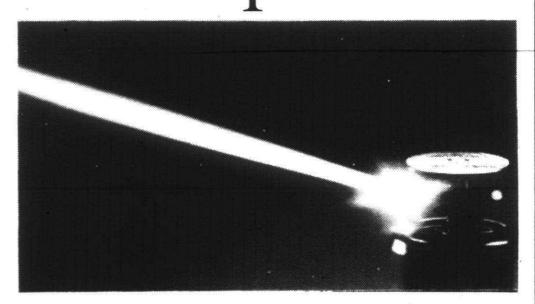

Cornell University placed first overall in the ground-up division and Michigan State placed third. In the conversion division, the University of Alberta was the top

The HEV Challenge encouraged top engineering students from 30 universities to develop a hybrid electric vehicle, one that runs primarily on electricity with an auxiliary combustion engine.

The Lawrence Tech engineers built a sporty, 3,000-pound, twopassenger vehicle roughly the size of a Ford Tempo.

Table time for toddlers

Being a first-time parent can be an experience that sometimes makes you feel like you're walking on egg shells or feeling your way through a dark, unfamiliar room in search of the light switch. You know it's bound to be there, but where? How long does it take to get there without a major stumble or getting hurt?

So many questions, which are commonly solved by trial and error, are of real concern for first-time as well as experienced parents. For example, with foods can be a mind-boggling decision.

Parents, stop guessing. Here are some basic principles for feeding your infant solid food found in the "Feeding Infant.— A Guide for Use in the Child Care Food Program." While it is geared for child care providers, the information also is handy

■ Introduce semi-solid foods only when babies are developmentally ready and after consultation with

Coordinate with each baby's parents so that you are introducing the same new foods and textures at the same time.

■ Feed babies some breast milk or formula before semi-solid foods so they are not too hungry. Hungry babies become very impatient with spoon feeding.
■ Sit directly in front of the baby to encourage him or her. Offer the spoon. Wait for the baby's mouth to open before attempting to feed

To begin feeding semi-solid foods, use a small spoon and place a tiny amount of food between the babies' lips. At first they will force much of it out of their mouths, but gradually they will learn to move the food to the back of their mouths for swallowing.

■ When solid foods are first introduced, serve them at only one meal to help the baby gradually adjust to this new method of eating.

■ Introduce new foods gradually. Wait a week between introducing new foods so that you can watch for allergic or intolerance reactions (diarrhea, rashes, nausea, vomiting, coughing, general irritability or hives). Realize food acceptance increases with exposure. After repeated tastes and no pressure, babies will often accept foods they initially rejected.

Never put cereal or any other solid in a bottle or infant feeder. Solid foods should be fed to babies with a spoon. If babies are not ready to eat from a spoon they are not ready to eat solid foods and putting solids in a bottle is a form of force-feeding.

After a gradual introduction, serve a variety of each type of food. Never force a baby to finish a serving. Feed until the baby indicates fullness by not opening the mouth, pulling away from the spoon, turning away or pushing food back out of the mouth. Babies are the best judge of how much food they need and they should be allowed to determine how much they eat.

Be calm and friendly but not overwhelming. Follow the baby's lead on speed, food preferences and amount,

Avoid adding salt, sugar, spices, seasonings or fat in all foods. Babies do not need these ingredients and spices and seasonings may irritate their digestive systems.

■ Test the temperature of foods before feeding them to the baby to make sure they are not too

Begin to offer infant formula or breast milk from a cup. Babies will consume less formula or milk from the bottle as their intake of solids and drinking from a cup increases. Eventually, they will lose interest in their aftermeal bottle and it can be quietly discontinued.

Offer sterile water in a bottle or a cup during the day since additional water is often required when solids are introduced.

■ Modify the texture of the food so that it is appropriate for the baby's stage of development. Providing new texture encourages the baby's further

Don't give raw fruits (except ripe bananas) and vegetables to babies because they may cause choking and be difficult for them to digest.

■ Don't give citrus fruits, egg whites, shellfish and chocolate to a baby before one year of age because these foods may cause allergic reactions.

Never give honey, including sources used in cooking or baking (such as honey graham crackers) to babies. Honey is sometimes contaminated with Clostridium botulinum spores. If these spores are ingested by a baby, they can produce a toxin which may cause a type of food-borne illness called infant botulism.

A diagnosis offers a light in darkness

Depression is a physical disease. Its proper treatment can offer sufferers a light in the darkness.

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

You might have encountered a victim of this illness on the way to work today. Maybe you rode with her on the bus or the elevator. Perhaps you sat next to him in the classroom or the boardroom. Maybe she is a close friend. Or maybe, just maybe, this person lives in your own home, a member of your family . . . and you don't even know it.

The symptoms of this illness can go undetected for many years. Like and high blood pressure, depressive illness is a physical disease that can be senetically linked exacerbated by stress and respond favorably to medi-

"This is an optimistic disorder," said Dr. John F. Greden, professor and chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of Michigan Medical Center. "This is a disorder that has come out of the closet in the last 10-15 years.

According to Greden, 8-15 percent of adults will suffer from depressive disorders during their lifetime. While 11.6 million adults suffer from depression every year and it is most common among 25- to 44-year-olds, clinical depression can strike at any

"In this year of the woman, it's time to pay attention," Greden said. "One out of every four women will suffer from depression but are also more likely to seek professional help than are men with the disease.'

Diagnosis a must

The patient will often come to their primary care physician with a variety of physical complaints from stomach pains to sleeplessness to sluggishness. Before depression is diagnosed, it is not uncommon for a patient to wind up taking 10-12 medications.

Primary care physicians fail to recognize depression in their patients 40-50 percent of the time. According to Greden, it's essential for health care professionals to be on the alert for the symptoms of depression.

Treatableillness still has stigma

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

"A disease? Thank God!" That was the response of Patty Duke, famous child and adult actress, when she was first diagnosed as manic-depressive in 1992. Since her youth, she had realized that there was something wrong with her, but never knew what it was or how to control it. Suddenly, it not only had a name but, better still, it was a medically treatable disease.

The condition still carries some stigma, but that stigma has decreased as more and more becomes known about the physical aspects of the disease and the effective treatments that are available.

While genetics, family history, personality factors and environmental stress may all play a role in the onset of depression, medical research indicates that it may also be linked to a chemical imbalance in the brain.

Neurotransmitters are chemical messengers in the brain that convey I electrical impulses between the nerve endings. The gap between the nerve endings is called a synapse.

During a depressive episode, "it's hypothesized that there is a depletion of neurotransmitters in that portion of the brain dealing with mood and effects," according to Dr. Kenneth Edelman, medical director of the Michigan Health Center in Detroit, the largest private psychiatric hospital in the state. He is also an assistant professor of psychiatry at Michigan State University.

Mild to multiple

The severity and duration of depression is as varied as the people who suffer from it. Some people suffer mild depression and may not require nedication. Some will suffer only one pisode of clinical depression in their ifetime but the majority will suffer multiple episodes.

"This is an episodic, recurrent, lifetime disorder," said Dr. John Greden, chairman of the department of psychiatry at the University of Michigan, who likened it to a football knee injury. "It seems to get worse with each episode.

Fifty-85 percent of those with depression will have at least one subsequent episode. Of that group, 70-80 percent will have recurrence following the second episode.

There are two basic types of clinical depression - major depression, also known as unipolar, and manicdepression which is also referred to as bipolar depression.

The Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Board contracts with a number of mental health agencies to serve specific geographical areas One such agency is Suburban West Community Center, a private, non-profit agency that provides outpatient and partial day care to the residents of Redford, Livonia, Northville and Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township and Canton, based on the ability to pay.

According to Dr. William Hart, clinical program director for Suburban West's Livonia and Redford centers, there are five different types of programs available. The largest is its outpatient program, which at any given time has some 280 active cli-

"The main focus of Suburban West is to help clients resolve crises, achieve goals, and help them get back on track as functioning members of their community," he said.

Another clinical program is the Assertive Community Treatment Program for people who have been hospitalized a number of times.

"It's an outreach type of program," Hart said. 'Members meet with clients and their families in their homes and in other community settings rather than in more traditional office settings.

Those clients typically tend to be diagnosed as schizophrenic or manic-depressive.

According to Hart, the main emphasis is to help the client achieve greater independence in the community. Some need help taking medication or with daily living skills. Others need help in finding jobs. "We have decreased rehospitalization for clients in that program at right around 70 percent overall," said Hart.

A Partial Day program is offered at the Livonia center where the primary emphasis is on employment. The program focuses on the mental health needs of the client by first and foremost helping them to focus on returning to work or going to work for the first time.

Clients learn specific work skills as well as practical skills such as reliability, getting to work on time, working in groups and getting comfortable working with other people, Hart said.

The program, set up by Frank Verdejo, its director, in 1987, has clerical, food service, environmental maintenance and occupational skills units as well as a vocational coordinator and job coach to help the client find a job and gradually work into it.

According to Verdejo, approximately 30-40 percent of the clients in the program suffer from clinical depression. He's pleased with the clients' employment success upon completing the program.

People with a chronic mental impairment can function in normal society given the right support system, training support and linkage to resources,"

The Livonia center also has a drop-in program that operates five evenings a week and is open to any mental health client. It is designed by mental health consumers rather than by professional staff and is primarily a social-recreational program that focuses on positive activities.

For those who suffer from depression or suspect that they may be afflicted with the condition and for their families, there are many excellent self-help advocacy and informational groups available to provide support and information:

He spent his first three years at Faith Baptist Church in Dearborn Heights before being called to pastor at a little church in the Thumb area.

The congregation there was tiny and the debt sizable. "We grew from 23 to more than 250 in two years," McDonald said of his flock, "and in one year we paid that $50,000 off." After a stint in Florida where McDonald and his family started a church and worked with Haitians, he contracted a third-world parasite and nearly died before doctors discovered what it was

Along with the increased offer ings came a remarkable growth spurt for the church. The 70 members at worship service two years ago have blossomed into 200-300 each Sunday now, with 150 at Sunday School. McDonald doesn't take credit for the phenomenal growth or the financial security of his flock. "The Lord has really blessed our church," he said. "We have a choir now. We have a 'Word of Life' ministry for teenagers which has just been a blessing. We have the Olympian Program which is part of the 'Word of Life' for our children's ministry.

Normally, Virginia's warblers are found in the southwestern states of Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, New Merico and southern California. It was probably blown off course during its northern migration from Mexico.

Accidental arrivals such as the Virginia's warbler happen with many species.

One species on that list is the Brambling, a finch that typically found in Europe. Other accidentals, like the ancient Murrelet, coast, was identified only once by a specimen found dead.

BOB SKLAR

Photographer primed to hand-paint prints

It's not her livelihood. But Deborah Gowan focuses much of her time on photography.

"It's a form of creative expression," says the Plymouth resident. "I think everybody needs that to keep them from getting too stressed in life.

The 1986 Novi High graduate got hooked on picture taking while editing her high school yearbook. She later earned a bachelor's degree in financial administration from Michigan State. By day, she's an Ann Arbor computer consultant. But evenings and weekends, her business card reads: "Photography by Deborah Gowan. A professional photographer for two years, she specializes in handpainted black and white photography but also does children's portraits. Her work has been shown in businesses as part of the Ann Arbor Artists Co-op roving gallery, a popular college-town service she hopes to bring to Novi.

Her first one-person show continues to June 15 in Gate VI Gallery in the Novi Civic Center Atrium, 45175 10 Mile, west of Novi Road. Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"I think all any artist wants is exposure for their work," said Gowan, who oversees Gate VI Gallery shows for the Novi Arts Council.

Her 18-piece show includes many photos hand-painted with oil paint or pencil. The matted and framed pieces sell for $60 to $100. Four pieces — a series of baby portraits of Kayleigh - were included to spur commissions. Most other pieces are outdoor scenes shot the last two summers at a photo workshop in Camden, Maine. "I'm pretty much an outdoors person. I like to work with natural light and shadows. I'm not into the artificial light aspect of photography," Gowan said.

Color comes later

To prepare a black and white photo for painting, Gowan prints it on matte paper, then treats the paper with a solution to better absorb oil. She follows by coloring all or part of the photo: "I have a pencil set of 30 different colors and 10 differentcolored paints.

There's no formula to choosing colors: "It depends on how I feel. I can take the same print and color it differently depending on my mood."

Clearly, her spirit moves her.

In "Daisies," she colored the disks of daisies in a field blue, yellow, purple, orange, green and red. "They aren't all colors normally found in nature but I think it looks pretty cool," Gowan said.

. Rust tones give the hinge of a wood shutter a weathered look in "Shutter." Pastel shades and infrared film accentuate the somberness of grave monuments in "Cemetery" and the sense of country in "Tree With Broken Fence." A yellow inner tube pops right out in "Hiram," which shows two boys swimming in a rock quarry.

'I really like her still-life photography," said Kathy Florence, a Novi Arts Council executive board member and Livonia Public Schools teacher. "I was really intrigued by 'Maine Door' — the fine detailing, the grain of the doorway, the tiny lines you don't always see in a painting.'

Surrealism creeps in

Gowan strives to produce realistic images. But when she applies Liquid Light (liquid photographic emulsion) to a print, with or without color an abstract image sometimes results.

"You can apply Liquid Light to any surface: paper, fabric, wood, glass," Gowan said. "I usually paint it on warm-press watercolor paper. It gives the photo a rougher, nubby texture. It also adds depth and dimension."

Liquid Light prints on display in Novi include "Liza," a girl on a playground merry-go-around, and "Jillian," a girl picking up stones on a beach.

When you put Liquid Light on paper and use rough paintbrush strokes, the end result tends to look very child-like. That's why I like to use Liquid Light on photos of children," Gowan said. 'Children aren't always neat, symmetrical people. They tend to be rough around the edges.

Gowan experimented with laser transfer in "Water Lilies." The process transfers a print onto watercolor paper. In this case, she used a roughtexture, cold-press paper, causing a surrealistic look. "I touched up with pencil whatever didn't transfer from the print."

Handpainting is what she likes most about pho tography. "There aren't a lot of people who do it," she said. "I can print the same photo four different ways, color it four different ways, and each time come up with a completely different look. It gives me more control over the finished product.'

Gowan accepts special orders for a print colored differently than the original. She shoots in black and white because "it forces you to pay more attention to detail.

"Detail tends to jump out," she said. "Something that looks mundane in color is much more interesting in black and white. If I want to add color, I do - with pencil or paint.

Woodcarver caught up in fishy decoy business

■ Woodwright Gus Shay made his fish decoy for an ice fish-ing trip. Today, the Livonia carver sells his decoys and award-winning models of fresh-water fish to decoy collectors and nature lovers. His first gallery show opens Tuesday, June 15.

By JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

Woodwright Gus Shay was an avid fisherman before taking up fish decoy carving. Now, instead of cooking his catch, he exam-

His first sale was to a West Bloomfield fisherman and collector who had placed a newspaper ad for decoys. He also put the artist in touch with other collectors and decoy makers whose camaraderie has spurred Shay's interest in this old art.

"It's something I've always wanted to do but didn't have time for,' Shay said.

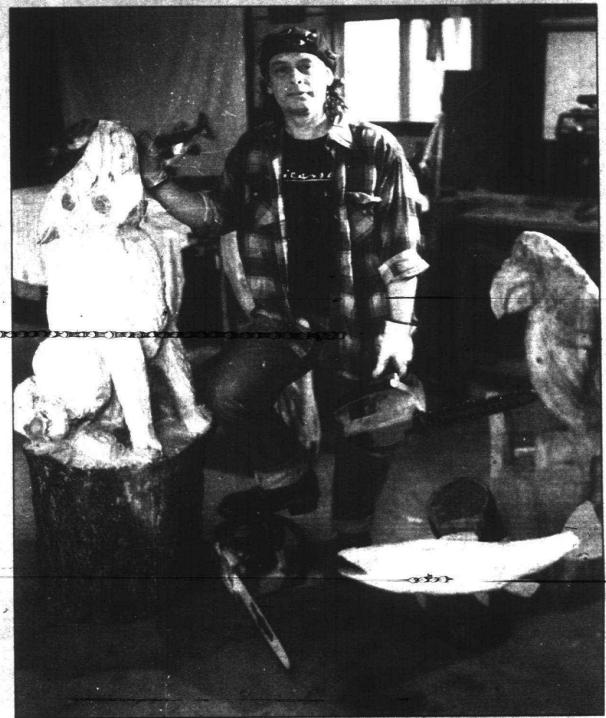

Now, with his oldest daughter graduating from Wayne State, the self-taught Woodwright is enjoying a hobby that interested him as a boy.

"I used to watch my grandmother's neighbor whittle tops and kid's toys. Sometimes he'd let us try things. I was fascinated," he said.
"I've carved in soap and wax but I was always too busy with my family to seriously take up carving."

Working from his garage after finishing his shift as a press operator, Shay makes realistic decays of fresh water fish and carves lifelike fish models on wood stands. For the past two years, the models, whose rough

When Bill Buesching took early retirement three years ago, the Livonia resident wanted a consuming hobby that would tap his creative side and use his business know-how.

Today, the former executive is one of the area's few tinsmiths who turns plain tinplate into authentic Early American reproduction lighting and accessories dating to the 1700s. He sells his wares by the company name 'Jeremiah.'

Buesching will show his wares at the Livonia Arts Commission Fine Arts and Crafts Festival 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 12-13, at Greenmead Historical Village, Eight Mile and Newburgh, Livonia (see related story, Page 4D). Shay's first-ever gallery show will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays to Saturdays and noon to 4 p.m. Sundays, June 15 to Aug. 15, in Atrium Gallery, 113 N. Center, Northville. He'll display mobiles of fresh water fish, fish pins, decoys and decorative carvings of crayfish, crappie, bass, northern pike and other Great Lakes Life size models are priced from $150 and decoys start at $75.

"His work is more rough cut than most wood fish sculptures," said Pat Jania of Atri um Gallery. "I like his folk art style and the pieces are well carved. There's a nice variety of whimsical and traditional nieces.'

Shay calls his ornamental fish "caricature carvings" because most have exaggerated features that show expression and movement. A large mouth bass, for example, has an enormous mouth and a northern pike has menacing teeth and sinister eyes. For authenticity, the artist has carved a life size catfish wrestling a hook and a hungry bass chasing a frog who's frantic to escape.

Shay uses acrylics to paint decorative models, which often are colored brighter than real photography If you've set the ASA correctly friends and stull have prints that are too

"I like the freedom of working in a 3-D world where there's no gravity. My fish swim and turn at all angles," Shay said. Shay sometimes carves from a drawing or picture but he prefers working freehand. "Generally, I like to feel my way. I take my time, step back for a look and work again until things look just right," he said.

He uses mostly white pine, white cedar and basswood for decoys and kiln dried wood for decorative fish. The bases, made to look like a lake bottom, are fashioned from apple trees, black walnut or drift-

Last summer, Shay started chainsaw sculptures made from tree stumps because he wanted to "do bigger things and use different tools."

He displayed the art at the International Builder's Home Flower Furniture Show at Cobo Hall in March, carving before hundreds of spectators each day. Since the show brought orders and customer contacts, he hopes to do more of the mammoth-sized art for back yards and commercial loca-

Carved in his garage or onsite, chainsaw sculptures are done with just two saws and some finishing tools. For a fivefoot wolf, ordered by a dog trainer, the artist used a stump of red pine salvaged from a tree service.

For now. Shay works on commission and displays his work several times a year at area sports shows. Though many of his customers are fishermen. Shay says fish art is in demand fish at a time, Shay says it's today by nature lovers "who hard to tell how long it takes to appreciate pretty things."

Arts and crafts will fill the grounds of Greenmead Historical Village during the Livonia Arts Commission Fine Arts and Crafts Festival. The 17th annual festival will run 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, June 12-13. The village, at Eight Mile and Newburgh, has generous parking on the west side of Newburgh, south of Eight Mile; free shuttle service will take visitors from the parking lot to the fair. Admission and parking are free.

This year's juried show includes the works of 200 artists and crafters from the Wayne-Oakland area and throughout Michi gan, Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, Indi ana, Florida and Texas.

For former Livonia resident Vawn Gray, now of Cape Coral. Fla., the show is a homecoming o sorts. Vawn and husband Mike who moved south five years ago. will show their handcrafted sand sculptures made of hydrastone and beach sand. It's the couple's second appearance at the show.

The historic village, opened in 1976, includes the Simmons/Hill farmstead and 14 relocated buildings. The main Greek Revival style farmhouse, a museum since 1977, was built by Joshua Simmons in 1841. Two of the farm outbuildings are older.

Builders aren't necessarily good photographers. So when it comes to preparing promotional materials in which pictures play a big part, they call on the experts.

Magazine editors who need panoramic shots of new skyscrapers or elegant residential interiors turn to experts, too.

Balthazar Korab, 67, of Troy and Beth Singer, 42, of Franklin are among a handful of pros here who specialize in capturing the pictorial essence of buildings and architecture.
