School activist gets board spot

Sue Feiten of Plymouth Township was chosen Monday as the newest member of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. She fills a vacancy created by Dean Swartzwelter, who resigned.

By M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Susan Feiten, a registered nurse from Plymouth Township, will replace Dean Swartzwelter on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education. Swartzwelter stepped down because of health reasons.

Feiten, who founded the Class-size Action Partnership in July, was selected over 14 other applicants, including former state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, now director of research and policy for the Michigan House Democrats.

Candidates submitted letters of interest and were given the opportunity to address the board at its meeting Monday evening.

In open voting, trustees narrowed the field to five — Pat Liljestrand, Betty Bloch, John LaFond, Feiten and Kosteva.

Final balloting trimmed the candidates to three — Bloch, Feiten and Liljestrand. A motion to nominate Pat Liljestrand failed, 3-3. A second motion to nominate Betty Bloch also failed 3-3. A third motion to nominate Feiten passed, 4-2.

A surprised, elated Feiten said after being congratulated, "You have to be careful what you ask for; you might just get it. Now we have a lot of work to do."

Feiten, whose CAP organization has grown to more than 100 members, concerned about large class sizes, said finances will be her primary concern.

"No. 1 on the list is to work as closely with Lansing as we can to get the best possible funding for our schools. There is so much up in the air right now. We have to fight for every dollar we can."

"Plymouth-Canton has been frugal," she added. "We have shown that, and we will continue to work in that manner."

'Wayne's World' sparks protest

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Wayne and Garth are two characters Renee Reyer of Canton doesn't want her children to watch while they're eating Happy Meals.

And she's working to ensure that other McDonald's restaurants follow the lead of the Ford Road restaurant in Canton and refuse to sell the video, "Wayne's World."

"It just tears me up to see what is happening to kids in our society," Reyer said. "I feel we have a whole generation of wasted kids. No one wants to take responsibility. I look at kids as though they are computers. Whatever you program into them, that's how they will act."

To help turn that tide, Reyer and other concerned citizens plan to picket McDonald's restaurants at Seven Mile and Farmington in Livonia, and Haggerty and Eight Mile in Novi, beginning Friday, Nov. 26, for selling the video, which is rated PG-13. It is one of several videos the restaurant is selling this holiday season.

"To me, they are just selling out. No one cares about the kids — if they can make a buck," Reyer said.

Some restaurant owners, however, have already decided not to sell the video. McDonald's at 44900 Ford Road, owned by Al Fellhauer, is not alone.

Fellhauer, Reyer and Livonia resident Phyllis Counts watched the movie together last week. Fellhauer was unavailable for comment.

Other McDonald's such as in West Bloomfield, Birmingham and Farmington also have agreed not to sell the video, according to Counts.

"I didn't realize McDonald's was getting into the parental guidance area. It doesn't fit with the Happy Meal image," Counts said. "I want them to review these movies. They need to look at the videos they are promoting."

The restaurant chain — which has sold videos for the past four years — is also selling "The Addams Family," "Ghost," and "Charlotte's Web."

"This will make McDonald's think about what they will sell in the future," Reyer said. "People assume what is at McDonald's is good. It's a family restaurant."

Jody St. Andre, McDonald's regional marketing supervisor, said they have received "numerous calls from residents in isolated areas," particularly the Plymouth-Canton area.

"We have asked the managers to use their best judgment and discretion about (to whom they are) selling the movie," St. Andre said. "We don't have a formal policy."

Because approximately 70 percent of all McDonald's are franchises, operators may make their own decisions whether to sell "Wayne's World." The decision to sell the video was made by McDonald's national marketing department in conjunction with the movie studios which own the movie.

When Reyer first began calling McDonald's restaurants in the area, a local manager dismissed her concerns

Cheer Club makes an encore for Christmas

The Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club is back.

For the third straight year, we're collecting your donations of new, unwrapped toys and non-perishable food for the Salvation Army to distribute to the needy.

Just bring your gifts to the Observer office in Plymouth at 744 Wing, south of Ann Arbor Trail and east of Main.

We also ask that you leave your names, so that we can print the names of individuals and families who donate to the Christmas Cheer Club.

So far, the club has been a whopping success.

Last year during the holiday season, we received donations from about 220 generous folks in Plymouth and Canton.

In 1991, the first year for the club, we collected donations from more than 200 contributors.

The idea behind the club is that no child should be without a gift on Christmas, and no family should go hungry.

Joining is easy. Membership is open to anyone who can take the time to stop by our office and drop off a canned good or new, unwrapped toy for a needy child.

We'll start taking donations the day after Thanksgiving.

Then, we'll continue to collect them through mid-December. That's when they'll be turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy kids and families in our area.

So once Thanksgiving is out of the way, grab a canned good or gift and come on by our office. Bring the kids. And Merry Christmas!

For more information, call us at 459-2700 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Man's message to anti-smokers: Butt out

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Smokers have rights too, says a Plymouth man who is trying to organize a group to stand up for smokers.

"We want to try to start a counter movement against what's going on around Plymouth and elsewhere," said Marc Sullivan, vice co-chairman of the Michigan Smoker's Rights Association, east region.

"We want to get them to become aware of what they can do or any resources we can dig up to help them," he said.

Sullivan is concerned about laws that increase restrictions on smokers in restaurants and other places.

"My impression is smokers are just a nice lot of people," Sullivan said. "Let's make a fight of it, something is being taken away from them and they don't know what to do about it."

Sullivan said restaurant owners are also hurt by laws that restrict smoking at their businesses.

"It's telling business how to run itself, and when government regulates a business it's just bad policy," he said.

Sullivan, a pipe smoker for more than 30 years, said second-hand smoke has not been proven to be a serious cancer risk, and that studies that suggest this are skewed.

"I think that the anti-smokers work their way into some of these agencies that are highly subsidized by the government, they've just banded this thing along and they're in the driver's seat," he said.

"They're not looking at scientific evidence, they're looking at witchcraft, I guess."

"People who are emotionally or morally opposed to smoking are opposed to looking at the facts, they've upset a lot of people, smokers and non-smokers alike," Sullivan said.

Bridge crash victim mourned by family, friends

By CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

On the day 20-year-old Devanie Pacholek was buried, the moral and legal issues surrounding her death last Friday were insignificant, almost irrelevant.

As friends and family gathered Monday at the Schrader-Howell Funeral Home in Plymouth, the focus was not drinking and driving, or Windsor's lower drinking age, or even the ongoing criminal investigation of the head-on collision on the Ambassador Bridge that killed Pacholek and a 26-year-old Windsor resident.

The focus was on a loving and beloved young woman whose passions were music, animals and children. A woman whose life ended before she could figure out the exact shape and direction she wanted it to go.

Always smiling

"We were going through photographs of Devanie, trying to decide which ones to display with the closed casket," said Dennis Savage, Devanie's father.

"She is smiling in every one. And it's not like I had to wait to capture the moment. She was always smiling."

Pacholek grew up in Canton Township. Dennis and her mother, Dianne, were divorced. She lived in Canton with Dianne until she was 18, then moved in with Dennis. She graduated from Livonia Churchill High School.

She was a student at Schoolcraft Community College and worked for Plymouth veterinarian Kevin Roose.

"She really loved little kids," said Marilyn Pacholek of Farmington Hills, Devanie's grandmother. "She has a new baby brother (Trey, six months) and a younger brother (Dane, 10) and a sister (Mallory, 8), that she spent a lot of time with. She talked about wanting to work with kids."

Pacholek and three others were driving home from a bar in Windsor at about 1 a.m. Friday. The 1990 Ford Escort, driven by 20-year-old Kristen Hughes of Westland, apparently crossed the center line on the Ambassador Bridge and crashed head-on into a 1979 Ford Mustang.

Pacholek and Lisa Richardson, a passenger in the Mustang, were killed. Hughes, 20-year-old Theodore Nankin and the driver of the Mustang, Dennis Haralson, 25, of Taylor, were critically injured. Larry Langtios of Plymouth, the fourth passenger in Hughes' car, was treated and released.

Investigation continues

Police were still investigating the accident Monday. They suspect that alcohol was involved.

Although, according to Dennis Savage, neither Pacholek nor Langtios were drunk.

"The boy (Langtios) came to my house and tried to explain everything to me," Savage said. "He said he had his alcohol level tested and it came up to the equivalent of one beer. He said nobody knew that Kristen was drunk. She did not appear drunk. We're wondering if maybe she just wasn't used to driving such a small car on that bridge."

As for Devanie, both Savage and Marilyn Pacholek say she was an extremely light drinker.

"It's always been OK for her to drink if she wanted to," Savage said. "It was always OK with us because she always used good judgment. On her graduation day she had a half of a wine cooler. A half, not a whole. She didn't like to drink. She went to Windsor to dance and to socialize."

Went to socialize

Marilyn Pacholek said that she took only $5 with her to Windsor. "She was too tight with the money," she said. "There's just no way she would spend a lot of money to get drunk."

Savage said he wasn't all that interested in the investigation. "Our understanding is that (Hughes) is in grave condition," Savage said. "There are two sides to this: There is what has happened to us and what's happening legally. The legalities are just not relevant to us. Our prayers go out to Kristen Hughes and her family. There is no criticism or animosity at all."

Marilyn Pacholek expressed displeasure in the media using the death of her granddaughter to highlight the potential hazards of Windsor's younger drinking age. The drinking age in Windsor is

19. "It doesn't matter what age limit they put on it," she said. "If people want to drink, they will drink. It won't do any good to raise the drinking age."

Because music brought so much joy to Devanie, Dennis Savage took great care in selecting the music for the funeral.

"The perfect song would have been 'Tears in Heaven,'" he said, referring to a song Eric Clapton wrote about the death of his 6-year-old son. "But it would have been too gut-wrenching."

The song contains the line, "Will you be the same, if I saw you in heaven?"

"We are all going to miss Devanie very much," Savage said. "But we all will be seeing her in heaven."

Cheer Club time arrives again

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It's Christmas Cheer Club time again.

In the past two years at Christmas time, we've collected donations from more than 400 generous donors to the Plymouth and Canton Observer Christmas Cheer Club.

We've seen kids from Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops with their arms full of toys for needy kids, representatives of school groups and service groups with boxes of canned goods and more toys, and scores of individuals bringing in their donations.

While we like to print donor's names in the paper, Observer office manager Nancy Pennington said, "It amazes me the number of adults that come in and don't want their name mentioned. They just give from their hearts."

Observer photographer Bill Bresler has taken several photos of donors the past two years. "You see a lot of parents who are using it to teach their kids a lesson about giving to people who don't have as much as they do," he said.

"Some of the kids help mom and dad pick out the toys to buy and the kids are always real excited," he added.

We'll set a date during the week before Christmas for the Salvation Army to collect your donations.

Helping hands: Katie, Stephen and Jonathan Panoff of Canton were among last year's Christmas Cheer Club contributors.

"It's also important for people to know nothing leaves the community, you're helping your neighbor when you donate to the Salvation Army at Christmas," said Lt. Jeffrey Beachum of the Salvation Army.

Items collected through the Cheer Club are added to food and toys collected by other community organizations during the holidays.

Food items are kept in the Salvation Army pantry. These pantry items supplement food distributed to needy families through other food collection programs.

Beachum said that when a needy family or individuals come to the Salvation Army seeking food, "There are very few questions asked, it's such a basic need."

"Other things like toys or mittens and other things raised by programs such as the Cheer program go into our gym," Beachum said. Then during the week before Christmas, qualifying families go through the gym, picking out items to supplement items distributed to them through other Salvation Army programs.

In the last few days before Christmas, needy families who contact the Salvation Army too late to qualify for the Baskets of Love or Adopt A Family program choose from these items. Beachum said that when donating toys, don't forget kids aged 10-14.

"The things we come up the shortest on are toys or activities for older kids. Everybody likes to buy for little children because you think of the starry-eyed little child at Christmas, the older kids need a Christmas too," Beachum said.

Canton Seniors Singles gather for fun-filled times

By JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Home alone is where no one ought to be.

"Companionship is what's important. Especially so you're not all by yourself sitting at home," said Mary Roy, founder of the Canton Seniors Singles, an organization designed for men and women age 55 and older.

The group provides fun, social outings and companionship for any male or female senior citizens who are alone. "Once they get to know you, it's not frightening," Roy said.

The idea is not to provide members with dates or mates. Fun and camaraderie is the rule. "We are a take-off from the (Canton) Seniors," said Irene Slusarski, activities director for the Canton Seniors Singles, and a former activities director for Parents Without Partners.

Roy thought a seniors singles group would be a good idea. At many functions at the Canton Senior Center, she would notice married couples on one side of the room and single seniors by themselves on the other side.

"You know, I think we need a club by ourselves where everyone has something in common," said Roy, also the founder of the 50 Up Club at St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church in Canton.

The group, which boasts approximately 40 members, meets the first Saturday of the month. Dues are $3 a year. Activities for senior singles at the Canton Recreation Center on Michigan Avenue at Sheldon usually cost $1-$2, depending on the activity, Slusarski said.

"We are looking for more men and women," Slusarski said. "If we could get more members, we could maybe sponsor and do more things."

Dances, dinners, pool parties, trips to the theater and places like Frankenmuth, as well as other activities, such as a crazy T-shirt contest, are what the group does. The club has also fostered friendships where those who are able on any given day meet for dinner.

"You make a lot of friends. Friendship, activity and companionship is what this is all about," Slusarski said. "If someone doesn't want to drive, that's not an obstacle to joining."

Here's a partial lineup of planned activities for members:

Domino's Farms hosts event

Christmas lights shine again at Domino's Farms this holiday season starting Friday, said R. Scott Lorenz of Plymouth, director of Christmas Celebration, the non-profit group established to put on the event.

The 270,000 lights displayed last year on the grounds of Domino's Pizza World Headquarters in Ann Arbor Township will be joined by more lights and a 30-foot "Peace on Earth" globe.

Domino's has donated the use of the light sets, displays and property to Christmas Celebration. Other companies are also contributing goods and services to help put on the event. "The format in 1992 with the volunteers from charitable groups along with the honorary committee selecting the charities proved extremely successful," Lorenz said.

The 1992 event drew more than 40,000 cars and an estimated 160,000 people to view the lights. "The light show raised over $110,000 dollars for 134 charities in 1992 and we plan to surpass that number in 1993," said Haithem Sarafa, executive director of the non-profit organization.

The minimum donation this year for traveling through the 2.2-miles display is $5 per vehicle. The display is scheduled for 6-8 p.m. opening night and 6-10 p.m. through Dec. 31, weather permitting.

Gift certificates for admission are available to corporations at $5 each in lots of 20 or more. "They are perfect gifts for employees, customers or suppliers," Lorenz said.

Checks made payable to Christmas Celebration can be sent to box 130713, Ann Arbor, 48113-0713.

Domino's Farms is just east of U.S. 23 off Plymouth Road, exit 41.

"You remember the propaganda minister in Germany during World War II? He said if you tell a big lie often enough people will believe it. This is sort of a neo-Nazi thing."

MEA opposes competitive bids on health insurance

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

The state's largest teachers union refused to give lawmakers — or school districts — its health care payouts and opposes competitive bidding for health insurance.

"I don't provide that data to anyone," said Warren Culver, executive director of the controversial MESSA — Michigan Education Services Association.

MESSA strongly opposed bills requiring school districts to seek competitive bids for health care insurance — something school boards and Republican legislators say could save taxpayers millions.

Contract agreement

Unlike private industry or other governments, school boards agree in their collective bargaining contracts to use MESSA as health benefits administrator rather than seeking competitive bids.

"If you buck local (MEA) units on MESSA, it's a strike issue," said Tom White, director of governmental affairs for the Michigan Association of School Boards.

"Often it (MESSA) is their highest priority."

MASB backs the bills to require competitive bidding, White said, because "health care costs are rising faster than revenues. It's going to eat into our ability to teach children."

"In the private sector, unions cooperate with management to keep costs down. We don't feel that cooperation in the schools," Justin King, MASB lobbyist, told a state Senate Commerce subcommittee MESSA pays an estimated $1.6 million to the parent union for "universe" field representatives who promote MESSA contracts.

Senators and MASB noted

'I don't provide that data to anyone . . . Competition may increase costs.'

Warren Culver
executive director MESSA

$6 million or more to another arm of MEA for data processing.

MEA's critics contend the union is a "monopsony" — a monopoly seller of teacher services and buyer of health services.

White said school districts are unable to seek competitive bids on health insurance without claims data — which MESSA's Culver refused to provide.

'Community ratings'

Sen. Gil DiNello, R-Eastpointe, asked Culver, "How would your situation worsen if school districts were required to bid out health insurance?"

Culver said MESSA uses "community ratings" rather than experience ratings for small groups. He said community ratings are larger and fairer, especially for small school districts with a handful of teachers. There are five such community rating pools in the state.

If districts with good experience ratings pulled out of MESSA, he said, costs would shoot up for smaller districts where a single serious illness could have a drastic impact on loss experience.

"Health insurance is part of the total compensation package. School boards can't do it alone," Culver said.

Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, asked whether tiny Parchment School District could be given its loss experience.

"No," Culver replied. "We rate by large rating areas, not by Parchment School District."

Culver said MESSA checks rates of other insurers "from time to time," but finds Blue Cross and Blue Shield have the best rates and benefits. He said Saginaw saved $600,000 and Flint $3 million by switching from the Blues to a third party deal with MESSA.

Senators and MASB noted that they will strike if a school board looks at another claims administrator.

"MESSA was begun in 1962," Culver said, "because school employers did not provide coverage. It's an outstanding program that inspires loyalty."

MESSA became a licensed third party administrator under a state law passed in 1985.

Culver said MESSA costs are "below the industry average," have risen an average of less than 6 percent a year, and this year rose just 3.9 percent.

Bills sponsored by Welborn would require school boards to seek competitive bids and require the Blues and MESSA to release data on numbers of paid claims, numbers and amounts of claims above $5,000, claims by coverage component and rate data.

A deputy state insurance commissioner was unable to testify on the Department of Commerce's views because of a court restraining order obtained by MESSA.

Hal Ziegler gave only factual background on regulations and audits of insurance companies.

MESSA is suing to block a state audit because, Culver said, "that audit is a witch-hunt well beyond their scope."

Welborn's subcommittee did not vote on the bills and will continue its hearings next week.

Gov. John Engler supports requiring competitive bidding as a method of controlling school costs.

The relationship between MEA, MESSA and the data processing subsidiary was a large part of a much-reprinted Forbes magazine article attacking the parent NEA as the "National Extortion Association."

Newspaper box vandals' target

A Plymouth Observer newspaper box was damaged Friday by two men who used bolt cutters on the machine to open it and take money from the coin box, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

The incident happened at about 8 a.m. outside Kroger at 44505 Ann Arbor Road. A witness told police he spotted two men with a crowbar going from newspaper box to newspaper box.

A total of $30 was reported missing from the machine.

Battery taken

A battery was reported stolen between 5 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday from a truck parked in a lot on Joy Road, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

Police have no witnesses in the theft.

Feiten emphasized the importance of community involvement. "Citizen input can only bring us more ideas and better ideas to help the situation," she said.

Other candidates for the seat included Ted Bohlen, Albert Calile, Terry Chuhuan, Sue Dodson, William Joyner, Michael Kelch, Stephen Kilianczyk, Paul Monodis, Edward Pritchard and William Trapp. Feiten will be able to run for the remaining year of Swartzwelder's term in June, when two other four-year bond terms expire.

Before the vote, trustee Barbara Graham said Kilianczyk and Chuhuan deserved consideration, as they were candidates in last June's school board election, won by incumbent Dave Arley. "Following the democratic process would lead us to go back to the last election, since we do have two Desirable as well would be a candidate with children enrolled in the district, and one who lives in Canton. "We have only one representative from Canton and we have an opportunity to try to correct that," he said.

Call of the wild: Tim Sarkesian of Original Artistic Images Co. in Canton has some good Christmas gift ideas. How about a sweat shirt depicting the Great Lake coyote?

Artist hears the call of the wild

BY JILL HALPIN

STAFF WRITER

The Great Lakes coyote has long had an undesired reputation as a ferocious marauding beast. A local artist has decided to do something to change that.

Tim Sarkesian, owner of Original Artistic Images in Canton, has designed a sweat shirt featuring the much-maligned animal. In an effort to increase awareness of the coyote's plight, a percentage of proceeds from the sale of the sweat shirts will be donated to the Michigan Wildlife Fund.

"The coyote has had a bad reputation, but they really are an important part of the food chain," said Sarkesian, who has spent long hours studying the animal. According to one conservationist that Sarkesian contacted, ancient cultures recognized the coyote's important role, calling the animal "God's dog."

"Of course, there have been incidents where they kill livestock, but for the most part coyotes eat rodents and insects such as grasshoppers, which can destroy crops," said Sarkesian, of the animal which he refers to as an "outcast in grey."

An employee of Auto Alliance International in Flat Rock, Sarkesian started Original Artistic Images over a year ago out of his home with an eye toward the future. His ultimate goal is to work as an artist on a full-time basis. In addition to creating logos for local companies, he has also done murals and acrylic paintings. He was looking for a Christmas project when he came across the Great Lakes coyote.

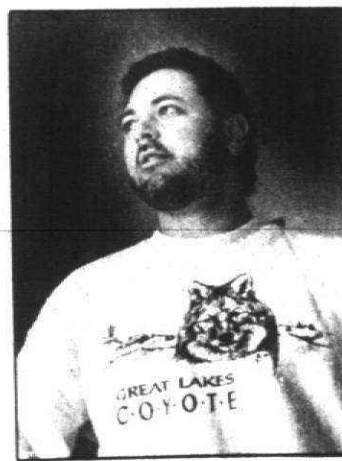

"It really is an attractive animal, and it survives in the desert as well as in the snow," he said.

Through research, he discovered that every county in the state of Michigan has a coyote population and decided to incorporate the animal into his project.

Working with pen and ink, his favored medium, he created an image of the coyote surrounded by a snowy background, which is then silk-screened onto a sweat shirt. The sweat shirts are available in three colors: natural, ash and white. The sizes available range from small to triple-extra large. The cost of the sweat shirts including tax is $31.15. Shipping is available for an extra $4 or free delivery is available.

Although Sarkesian is not involved in animal rights, he is hopeful that local wildlife will benefit from this project.

"I like the idea of other coyote helping out his animal friends," he said.

Looking good: The artist is proud of his shirt design.

To order a sweat shirt, send a check or money order to Original Artistic Images, P.O. Box 87851, Canton, Michigan, 48187-0851 or call 981-8991 for more information.

Teacher attends insurance seminar

Plymouth Christian High School teacher Mike Winkle was on the other side of the desk at the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC) Insurance Education Seminar held Oct. 16 at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. Winkle and 36 other participants were students for the one-day program.

MAIC's insurance-education program, now in its 15th year, allows teachers to earn graduate credit for attending the session, which emphasizes the principles of insurance and specifics regarding Michigan's no-fault and "essential" insurance laws. The goal of the program is to help participants understand insurance concepts so that they can teach the subject to their students.

"The program helps clear up some of the mysteries surrounding insurance," MAIC consumers affairs director Leanne Snay said. "The teachers can then take what they have learned and share it with their students in the classroom."

Happy hunter: John McNamara of Plymouth on Monday joined local hunters reporting their success to the Plymouth and Canton Observer Buck Pole when he brought his three-point buck, shot at 4:20 p.m. Nov. 15, opening day of deer rifle season in Charlevoix County, by our office at 744 Wing, Plymouth. To report a kill to the Buck Pole, call us at 459-2700 and ask for Jeff Counts or Kevin Brown.

Local hunters report success

Terry Bowers of Plymouth Township killed a 7-point buck with a Remington 30-06 at 4:30 p.m. on opening day of firearms deer season in Clare County. The buck was 2½ years old. Anticipating a buck to be following the female who was feeding for a length of time, Bowers was let down when the female left the area. No sooner had she left, the buck appeared 25 yards ahead! The buck was taken to Boyer's Meat Processing in Canton. Last year Bowers killed a 6-point buck. To report Buck Pole information, call the Observer at 459-2700 or stop by the newspaper office at 744 Wing, south of Ann Arbor Trail and east of Main in downtown Plymouth. We'll also take pictures.

Angela Hospice facility dedicated

Serving the ill: Bishop Walter Schoenherr and Deacon Jim Hensel walk the corridors of the new hospice, asking God's blessings for the incurably ill patients who will live their final days in these rooms.

The Angela Hospice Care Center was officially dedicated by the Felician Sisters of Livonia on Sunday afternoon.

The new, specially designed and built 34,000-square-foot hospice inpatient facility — the first of its kind in Michigan — will offer a home-like environment for people who suffer from an incurable illness when they have no one to care for them or nowhere to go.

The center is the realization of the vision of the Angela Hospice program founded in 1985 by hospice president Sister Mary Giovanni Monge.

President Bill Clinton, in a letter read at Sunday's ceremony, wrote, "At a time when we are seeking to reform our health-care system in order to make it more accessible to all people, it is appropriate for us to recognize those who contribute to this goal every day. The Angela Hospice Care Center will bring compassion, understanding and judicious relief of pain to the dying, thus endowing them with dignity, while lending emotional support."

Although the care center is now completed, Sister Giovanni said "the main focus of Angela Hospice will still remain keeping the patient in the warmth and comfort of their home surrounded by loved ones."

"However, there are many people who suffer from an incurable illness that will never know this family joy because they have no one to care for them or nowhere to go, and that is what our caring staff and the care center will offer."

In addition, the Angela Hospice Care Center will also offer a patient day-care program where primary caregivers are able to bring their loved ones for the day so that they may continue on to work, run errands or just receive needed respite.

The goal of the care center is to provide a simple but innovative home away from home for the many people in southeastern Michigan who need it during the most delicate time in life.

This goal became a reality and a first for the state with Sunday's dedication. The most Rev. Walter J. Schoenherr, auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of Detroit, officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony.

A public open house will be 1-3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5, when the facility will be open for viewing by all area residents.

Angela Hospice Home Care serves residents of any age of western Wayne, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties who: has an incurable illness with a limited life expectancy, is no longer undergoing curative treatment; has an identified caregiver available; accepts the principles of hospice care; and has a primary physician who agrees with the hospice philosophy or who will defer care to a hospice physician.

Some of the primary differences between hospice and other types of health care are that hospice: offers palliative, rather than curative, treatment; treats the person, not the disease; emphasizes quality, rather than length, of life; considers the entire family, not just the patient; and offers help and support to the patient and family on a 24-hour, seven-days-a-week basis.

Requests for services can be made by calling the hospice office at 464-7810.

Honored

Volunteers: Last month, 80 Oakwood Hospital Guild volunteers were honored for their hours of service at a semiannual tea, hosted by the Oakwood Hospital Volunteer Services Department. Honorees included (from left): Jean Schmidt of Canton, honored for serving 8,000 hours; Irene Dimond of Birmingham; Rosemary Dantzer of Allen Park; and Beth Cameron of Westland. Joining them are Claudine Tessmer, president of the Oakwood Hospital Guild, and Betsy Cushman, director of volunteer services.

Zonta fund-raiser planned

Zonta Club of Northwest Wayne County is sponsoring a major fund-raising project. Delicious nuts and candies from Koeze Nuts of Grand Rapids come in a variety of bags, jars and boxes. These packages make wonderful holiday gifts for friends and business contacts.

Pollution control measures depend on fed ruling

By TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Maybe drivers will pay more for emissions tests. Maybe they won't.

Maybe Livingston County will be in the test area. Maybe it won't.

Maybe incinerator permits will cost more. Maybe not.

The Michigan Legislature passed its air pollution control bills in time to meet the federal Nov. 15 deadline. But whether changes are made will depend on whether the feds change the southeastern region's designation from "non-attainment" to "attainment" of air quality standards.

"This is good news for Michigan's environment and economy," said Gov. John Engler as he signed the legislation into law three days ahead of the deadline. But at the same time, Engler said he would "aggressively pursue all possible options" to ease "the unfair regulatory burdens imposed by the new federal law."

Acting under the federal Clean Air Act of 1990, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency two regions of Michigan had more ozone and dirtier air than allowable.

First, the seven-county southeastern Michigan region was told to improve its air 15 percent below 1990 levels by 1996. Previously, Wayne, Oakland and Macomb were subject to federal edicts. The new rule brought in Washtenaw, Livingston, St. Clair and Monroe counties.

Second, the western counties of Kent, Ottawa and Muskegon were told they needed emissions programs. They howled in protest, declaring their dirty air, if any, was blown across Lake Michigan from Milwaukee, Chicago and Gary.

What's in laws

Chuck Hersey, air quality planner for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, gave this analysis of what is law — or may be:

■ The oil industry will move to a different blend of gasoline to reduce vapor pressures. Motorists might pay 2 cents per gallon more. The region will not move to totally "reformulated" fuels.

■ Drivers will not have to take their vehicles to centralized test sites for their annual $10 emissions tests. The neighborhood service station can continue to perform the tests — a victory for the dealers' lobby. But the tests will be more elaborate and cost $13. And the cap on required repairs will rise from the current $84 to $200.

■ Washtenaw County definitely will join Wayne, Oakland and Macomb as being subject to the emissions tests. Livingston, St. Clair and Monroe won't be added unless definitely needed to meet EPA standards.

■ Smokestack permits will cost $25 per ton of emissions. Previously, the federal government paid the costs of running the program. Now, business will pay, to cover the cost of administration. Subject to the act are not only factories but large apartment buildings, dry cleaners, incinerators, auto body bump and paint shops.

"The forms aren't complicated, but the must be filled out. Congress knew it would be onerous," Hersey said of the smokestack bill.

■ If the region fails to get EPA redesignation, the Legislature will have 45 days to improve Michigan's laws.

If Michigan had failed to pass laws to meet EPA's standards, the U.S. government could have withheld an annual $600 million in federal highway funds and all smokestack permits, crippling business growth. Then EPA would have enforced its own rules on the region.

Long debate

Lawmakers also are seeking redesignation for the three western counties. If not redesignated, they too would be subject to the emissions tests laws.

Engler praised lawmakers, particularly Sen. Pat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, for their work on the bills. Dunaskiss chairs the Senate Technology and Energy Committee.

Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, voted against the smokestack bills because of their impact on smaller firms.

"Michigan must raise about $14.5 million to administer these programs," she said. "The most reasonable way to assess these fees is obvious: Each industry would pay an equal share of the cost through an assessment on every ton of pollutants emitted."

"The legislation we passed, however, levies the highest per-ton fees on smaller emitters with a break going to industries emitting over 4,000 tons of pollutants per year."

Commission, exec agree on new budget

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Peace seems to be breaking out between the staff of Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and the county commission.

With a minimum of rancor, the McNamara administration and the county commission have amicably agreed on a budget for fiscal 1994, which begins Dec. 1.

Last week, the commission voted 13-2 to approve a $336 million general fund budget, up from $315 million, and no one expects McNamara to veto any of it.

"Give peace a chance," quipped commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton Township.

"We're sick of bickering," said William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, who was on the commission's budget negotiating team. "We wanted to see if we could do this like adults."

As for the budget itself, O'Neil said, "It doesn't stink as much as it used to."

Observer-area commissioners all voted in favor of the budget. The two no votes came from commissioners Susan Hubbard, D-Deerborn, and Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe.

There are a lot of expenditures I disagree with, but the art of budgeting is the ability to compromise," said commissioner Michelle Plawewski, D-Deerborn Heights, whose district includes part of Redford and Livonia.

Wayne County Deputy Executive Michael Duggan said the budget is "balanced, responsible and it was a product of compromise."

Most of the additional money in the budget will be used to cover the rising cost of health insurance for county employees (up almost 20 percent) and child care services.

Surprisingly, the commission agreed to cut its own budget from about $5.95 million to $5.8 million.

lion. McNamara's office budget was also cut, although not as much as originally planned.

The losers, if any, appear to be unionized county employees, who are being asked to take a pay freeze, Sheriff Robert Ficano and the Probate Court.

Ficano's $56 million budget was cut by about $288,000 and the drunken driving patrol, a $312,000 per year operation, was funded through the end of May only. At that point, Ficano hopes to find savings elsewhere to keep the OUII patrol on the street.

Probate Court almost took an $8-million hit as McNamara attempted to seize control of probation services. The commission balked at transferring the function to McNamara's control, so it allocated enough money to run the operation for three months.

Amann said the commission has essentially set itself up as an arbiter and will listen to plans from McNamara and probate officials, then decide who gets the money.

Probate Judge Milton Mack Jr. guessed that McNamara doesn't really want to control probation services, but is using it as a bargaining chip to reduce the number of young people in the Wayne County Youth Home.

However, Mack also believes that McNamara wants the result to be better government for county residents. "I think that's something the county executive really wants to happen and certainly the court does," he said.

Meijer to close SourceClub

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

SourceClub stores open in Livonia and Westland for less than a year will close by Jan. 31.

Meijer, the Grand Rapids-based giant, concluded that because so many players have left the warehouse club arena through mergers and acquisitions, it no longer needs to maintain a foothold to compete.

"We believe it is best to focus our energy and resources on our traditional Meijer store format," said Brian Breslin, vice president for public and consumer affairs.

Members who paid $20 a year for shopping privileges may turn in their cards at SourceClub courtesy desks for cash refunds or gift certificates for Meijer stores, Breslin said.

The Westland SourceClub at Newburgh and Warren opened last May.

Scott Veldhuis, Westland's economic development director, said he was surprised at the news of the closing. He planned to contact Meijer officials this week to learn how they plan to market the 123,000-square-foot building.

"Being a new building makes it very marketable," Veldhuis said. "Ideally, you would want a single user for the building. It strikes me as an excellent location with a high traffic count."

The Livonia SourceClub, 128,000 square feet on Haggerty just south of Eight Mile, opened in August.

"I'm very surprised at how soon the Meijer Corp. made the decision to close," said John Nagy, Livonia's planning director. "They just had the grand opening. We're just shocked at the timing of it."

"But we know there's interest in that area from other box retail users," Nagy added.

Fred Marx, a Farmington Hills retail consultant and analyst, said he believes Meijer's decision to close its SourceClubs now is a good one.

"Actually, Meijer is being very responsible, pulling the plug early," Marx said. "There's too many people chasing too little business."

Chris McCosky and Leonard Poger contributed to this report.

Would you like to know how to please the palates of the younger set this Thanksgiving? We did, and kind enough to oblige us with some favorite recipes were Beverly Valentine's class at Eriksson Elementary in Canton and Carol Greene's class at Smith Elementary in Plymouth.

Ashley Johnson

Local elementary school students are looking forward to a tasty Thanksgiving dinner during their time away from school. Students at Eriksson and Smith schools have some rather novel ideas about how to prepare the feast.

Overwhelmingly, turkey is still the Thanksgiving piece de resistance. Passe are stuffing and cranberries.

There's little doubt these recipes would be enjoyed by the Eastern Woodland Indians, the Indians of the Plains, the Southwest Indians and the Indians of the Pacific Northwest Coast the children are studying.

Without further adieu, here they are.

Ellen Cassel's Cole Slaw

Get 10 carrots and 12 pieces of lettuce. Mix them up.

Angela Spino's Turkey

Buy a 6-pound turkey. Put it on top of the stove and turn the temperature to six degrees. Cook it for nine minutes.

Erin Kozak's Turkey

Buy a one-pound turkey for about five minutes at 2 degrees. After you pull it out, put it on the table so everyone can come to the table and eat, says Erin, whose father, Bob Kozak, is a pastry chef.

Ashley Johnson's Stuffed Turkey

Take a five-pound turkey, stuff it with butter, and put it in the oven for six hours at medium. There will be enough for 12 people.

Erik Dines' Mashed Potatoes

Take 60 potatoes and peel the skin. Get a mashed potato thing that mashes them and then cook them in the oven for one minute or two, at something like two degrees. You can feed four people.

Eddie Sanchez's Ice Cream

Eddie Sanchez's Mashed Potatoes

Get 10 potatoes and smash them up. I think in a pan. Boil them for 10 minutes. I would give them to my mom and dad, and brother and sister. I would put in some ketchup.

Tom Cooper's Thanksgiving Chicken

Get five bucks worth of chicken from the meat store and put mashed potatoes in it. Put it in a big pot and put it in the oven for five minutes and cook it at 90 degrees. It's a recipe for five people.

Erin Kozak

Jim Brunscole's Bird Recipe
Get a 20-pound turkey at Meijer and put it in the oven for 10 minutes. Set the temperature for eight degrees. Don't put any stuffing or dressing in it.

Jim Brunscole's Pumpkin Pie Recipe
Take two pumpkins. Put it in the oven for one minute and cook it at two degrees.

Michael McLean's Turkey
Get a turkey, I'd say about 14 pounds at Maria's (Italian bakery). Put it in the oven at medium for 10 or 17 minutes. Don't stuff it. I don't like stuffing. I never eat it.

Michael McLean's Ribs
Take ribs, about 100 pounds. Put a little salad dressing on it. I would put them in a big pot. Put it on top of the stove for 17 minutes on hot.

Jennifer Furniss's Pumpkin Pie
Get one can of pumpkin. Put it on a pie crust and put it in the oven for two hours at 40 degrees.

Maggie Fisher's Jello
Take a big pan with red water in it and put it in the freezer. I would wait til it was hardened. Then I would take these cookie cutter things and put them on a big plate and that would be it. It'd be done.

Brandon Bunt's "Basggetti"
I think I would first put hot water in the pan, and then put the basggetti in. Wait for it to cook on the top of the stove, at probably about 80 degrees. I think that when you are done, you should put sauce on it. Probably I'd put the kind you use with sloppy joes; that kind. With three tomatoes. Crush them up.

Elizabeth Georgoff's Salad
Get 10 tomatoes. Cut them up into slices. I would put in 20 carrots. Cut them up in little pieces. I would put in dressing. Thousand Island. I would put in some lettuce here, that's all.

Mike Olandese's Mashed Potatoes
Get three potatoes and mash them up with a spoon. Cook them in the oven for 10 minutes at medium. Put butter on it.

Brittney Schopen's Pumpkin Pie
Take one can of pumpkin sauce, and some sugar. Put flour on the dough and add some more sugar. Then you would roll the dough and then put some sugar in. Then you put all the pumpkin and the dough all in a pan. Then you would flatten the sides up, and then you can make a design on the edge of the crust. Then you would put it in the oven for 12 minutes at six degrees.

Mitchell Madole's Wild Turkey
I would kill a turkey in the country. I'd try to get a 50-pound one. I would put it in the freezer with plastic over it and string over it. Put it in the oven for 10 minutes at 55 degrees. When that white thing with the red circle pops out, you can eat it.

Theresa Fishaw's Farm Fresh Turkey
Go to a farm and get a turkey. If one could grow as big as this school, I'd get it, because my house is big. I would take the feathers off and peel the skin off. I would cook it in the oven for four days, because I want it to be a real hot. Set the temperature at 10 degrees.

Allison McDuff's Lasagna
Take four scoops of spaghetti sauce with meat, steak or some little pieces of chicken in it. You need 20 noodles; those big fat ones, and just a few onions. Cut them up and put them in a pot. Put the sauce in. It all goes in a big pot together. I would put it in the oven for six hours, probably at 30 degrees. I would cook for five people, because there's my dog.

Bon appetit!

Marine Division conducts search
A concerted search is on for former marines who have served with or been attached to the Second Marine Division, the division famous for its participation in historically significant engagements such as Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Saipan, Tinian, Okinawa, Cuban crisis, Dominican Republic, Lebanon, Grenada, Panama, Desert Shield and more recently, Somalia.

The Second Marine Division Association is conducting a search for participants in the above, plus those who served with the division or were attached to the division, at any time, or are currently in the Corps.

The association is not only a social organization, where old friendships are renewed, but has a successful scholarship program, assisting the dependents of both active and former Marines of the Second Marine Division. The association has a current membership of more than 8,000. Annual reunions are held, the 1994 reunion being in Valley Forge, Pa. in September.

Thanksgiving Things to be thankful for

For several generations, Thanksgiving has been a time to sit back, enjoy a turkey dinner, watch a football game, visit with friends and relatives and count our blessings.

And in the Canton community we're doing that this year, listing some serious and some not-so-serious things for which to be thankful. Here's our list:

■ Making it on the map. No longer will Canton residents be required to tell their visiting friends and relatives that they live near Plymouth. Canton is on the road maps these days, so long as visitors can find the right freeway exit and get off, there will be fewer troubles.

■ The school financing crisis. It hasn't been a good year for the Plymouth-Canton schools or education as a whole, but the scrapping of the property tax system and the discussions about the future of education have benefited all of us. People are talking about what education should be, lots of people. The awareness can do nothing but help schools in the long run.

■ We can also be thankful for our two state representatives, Deborah Whyman of Canton and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth, for soliciting the opinions of residents about the school finance crisis.

■ The state purchase of Mettetal Airport. For nearly three years, the on-again and off-again proposed public purchase of the airport in Canton has been a thorn in the side of township officials. State ownership ensures the airport will be protected and kept out of the political arena. And we should be thankful that a citizen advisory committee will be working with the state to make sure the interests of the Plymouth and Canton communities will be looked after.

■ Fewer vacancies in strip malls. More restaurants, doctors, dentists, lawyers and financial services have found their way to Canton, filling up many of the vacancies in strip malls and providing services to the nearly 60,000 residents.

■ The pleasant and somewhat unusual fact that our township officials work so well with a very active chamber of commerce to meet the needs of businesses. In the end, this serves all of us, consumers and business owners alike.

■ The Liberty Festival. After several years of change, Canton Township's festival has finally found what it should be, music and entertainment in a park setting.

■ Canton isn't Birmingham. However, efforts to improve the community's image have paid off. People are waiting in lines overnight to buy larger homes in Canton.

■ And on a related note, we're thankful that Canton no longer is a community of transients. More than 50 percent of the people buying new homes in the township already live here; that is, Canton residents like it here and when they decide to move up they decide not to move out.

■ Police and fire departments that diligently respond to the needs of this rapidly growing community, yet don't often get the praise they deserve.

■ The many, many volunteers who contribute to community projects, making this a community of people, rather than a bunch of stores and houses.

There are numerous blessings to count in the Canton community, and now if the Lions win on Thursday, we'll really have something for which to be thankful.

Unplug prison wiretap bill

Innocent people will be spied on if a bill to electronically eavesdrop on telephone calls made by prisoners passes Michigan's House. It already has passed the Senate, and is back in the House for concurrence in amendments.

Proponents of House Bill 4222 say wiretapping is necessary to stop prisoners from running drug and prostitution rings, and/or committing credit card fraud, from prison. They add that wiretaps will afford them the necessary information to stop these activities and protect innocent members of the public.

Opponents note that, with a warrant, prison officials already have the right to wiretap (House Bill 4222 would allow wiretaps without a warrant, at the discretion of Department of Corrections directors). The opponents' main point, though, is far more compelling: Calls made by prisoners, in most cases at least, will be listened in on, and probably recorded.

■ Opponents note that, with a warrant, prison officials already have the right to wiretap (House Bill 4222 would allow wiretaps without a warrant, at the discretion of Department of Corrections directors). The opponents' main point, though, is far more compelling: Calls made by prisoners, in most cases at least, will be listened in on, and probably recorded.

If this sweeping authority to invade privacy is passed in this instance, then law enforcement could use this case as a lever to request similar authority in other areas.

That's why it's so hard to get a wiretap warrant in the first place.

But both proponents and opponents of House Bill 4222 are missing a key point: Telephone privileges for prisoners are just that — privileges. Using the telephone is neither a Constitutional nor God-given guarantee for any prisoner.

So if prison officials suspect a prisoner is using a telephone to commit a crime, then perhaps they should reach out, touch someone and revoke that inmate's calling privileges just as they do any other privilege granted to an inmate.

After all, even with the large body of debate about prisons and their purpose, society should not bend over backward and knowingly give prisoners, already convicted of crimes, the tool they need to commit more crimes.

WRC serves men

I would like to respond to the biased information provided by your readership in the Nov. 4 issue by Ralph R. Echtenaw "Trustees Say WRC Serves Men Too."

The Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College does serve men and has specifically targeted men who are seeking non-traditional careers for special support services and tuition assistance. Men also use the WRC by telephoning for information and coming into the center for any of the resources that are available.

We do not keep gender specific statistics, except for our grant recipients, but this past week we served several men who had questions about career changes and/or educational programs.

The WRC administers two grants which are specifically targeted toward displaced homemakers. The language of our brochures — and in our contracts with the granting agencies — specifically states that there will not be any discrimination based on age, sex, race or national origin.

The definition of a displaced homemaker does, however, state that one must have worked to care for the home and family and lack marketable job skills, and now, because of death, divorce, desertion, separation or disability of the one who was the wage earner, must seek paid employment. Women are our participants because they meet this definition.

The Business Development Center at Schoolcraft College offers a wide spectrum of services and programs for displaced workers: men and women who have had paid employment but whose job has been eliminated. These programs retrain workers so they can remain in the work force.

Statistics about the budget and staff of the WRC described in the article are incomplete at a minimum. As described to the board, the WRC has three full-time employees, two are paid by the college and one is fully grant funded. The others are part-time employees one paid by the college, one a student aide and the other two are fully grant funded.

Schoolcraft College budget is $120,886, grant funding for specific program requirements including tuition assistance, books, child care and other support services is $135,195 totaling $256,082.

To complete the story about the 158 women who have participated in the displaced homemaker program, (a 96 plus contact hour program) and who have found employment, they have earned more than $6,000,000 of taxable income and 77 others have entered into educational programs to develop skills to find meaningful employment.

I would like to note that during 1992-1993, more than 14,000 contacts were made at the WRC. Calls and visits to the WRC are from individuals from our community, campus, state and nation. The staff of the WRC is proud of its service to all who request resources from us.

Attend forum

As parents, we understand that children must learn to crawl first, then walk before they can take off running. If they can't read, write or understand basic arithmetic, I don't believe they'll have the proverbial snowball's chance of achieving anything in either yesterday's or tomorrow's society.

I have tried to communicate concerns to certain school board members behind the scenes, and in an official way at school board meetings. I've regularly attended those meetings since October of last year.

I have learned a lot. I've even heard teachers address the board concerning class size and question how our overcrowded classrooms can continue, given our current developmental curriculum.

The Plymouth-Canton school board has put together an "Early Childhood Development" committee of which I'm a member, but the time line involved to report back to the board is one year. By then, fifth-graders will be sixth-graders. The minimum time involved to write a new curriculum (or tighten ours up) is six to nine months.

We need to make sense of what we are doing with this curriculum now, for students' sakes, teachers' sakes and parents' sakes. We need a definitive curriculum now.

Long-range planning does not deal with future decisions, but with the future of present decisions.

If you would like to ask your school board some questions, here's your opportunity. On Nov. 29, the school board is holding a public forum concerning all curriculum questions. It will be held at Pioneer Middle School beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Who knows? Maybe they'll be answered.

Torch burns for needy

On behalf of United Way for Southeastern Michigan, I would like to thank your community for its support during the 1993 Torch Drive. This year, more than $57 million was raised to help those in need in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties through United Way-supported health and human care service agencies.

Dedicated volunteers from across the metropolitan Detroit area were the main force behind the success of this year's Torch Drive. Thanks to your community's generosity, United Way will continue to address some of the community's most pressing problems, such as substance abuse, illiteracy, child abuse and neglect, juvenile delinquency, care for the elderly, families under stress and many others.

Once again, thank you for your support of the 1993 Torch Drive and for showing that United Way is still the best way to show you care.

Rep. Vorva responds to anti-teacher charges

GUEST COLUMNIST

JERRY VORVA

The program in no way diminishes the training that established certified teachers have, but allows individuals with compatible academic training to teach history, government or math.

What's wrong with offering a school administrator a choice between a 22-year-old new college graduate and a 40-year-old with a similar degree and years of experience in government or social science?

No one is suggesting unqualified instructors be allowed in the classroom.

In response to recent editorial commentaries in the Plymouth, Canton and Livonia Observers, I would like to clarify a few points.

I don't hate teachers, but I am serious about the need for systemic reform at all levels in government, whether in the Legislature or in education.

Identical letters published recently in these papers and signed by two different people accused me of being anti-teacher because I said I could run the Plymouth-Canton school district with less millage. Form letters such as these are typical of the kind of orchestrated campaign lobbyists direct at lawmakers today.

I'm not anti-teacher, anti-child or anti-school, but I am against inefficiency, waste and poor products, and I've never met a government agency without waste. The education industry has gone without analytical scrutiny for too long.

Almost 75 percent of Michigan residents don't have children in school, but we count on their financial support for education. As long as they are suspicious of the special benefits and level of performance of public employees, they are not going to be enthusiastic about passing millages or spending money on education. I believe my attempt to alleviate their objections is in the best interest of education.

Government should not support monopolies. Charter schools — now called academy schools — will provide choices for parents and students that encourage all schools to be more responsible and accountable to taxpayers. I have asked every teacher I've encountered how charter schools or schools of choice are going to hurt children and no one has given me an answer that would change my mind. I only hear that teachers and administrators will receive less pay.

Alternate certification would allow qualified people with accredited degrees to take up careers in the classroom after many years of experience in their professional fields.

from Detroit who actually had a home in the Lansing suburb of Okemos.

One tool Mittfied used to track down Leland was Secretary of State records. Under current law, you can take a license plate number to the secretary of state and, for a few bucks, receive the name and address of the person who registered the vehicle.

Big-city papers also use these public records to identify people in auto accidents.

These people would serve a probationary period just as the graduate from an education program does. Wider choices are better for everybody. How will the children be hurt if these people are qualified?

The important question is why one industry is fighting changes that would make it more efficient and potentially better able to turn out a superior product.

Community leaders have a lot to offer in the classroom. Over the past 20 years, I've been in the classroom frequently. As a police officer, I've taught crossing guards, the safety patrol and talked about school safety and law enforcement in elementary, middle and high school. I taught Little League baseball. As a commissioner and legislator, I have talked to students on government and practical law.

I have two children, one who has completed high school with honors and a younger child soon to start public education. I helped raise my five younger brothers and sisters who range from eight to 20 years younger than myself. With all these years of actual work with young people, I feel I am qualified to make suggestions for change. By virtue of my position, I am constitutionally qualified to make evaluations and changes.

Finally, the writer who suggested I am a poor money manager because I was raising money to pay a campaign debt does not understand campaign finance.

Political candidates must set up a finance committee to handle money from all sources, and pay all bills. Since I contributed most of the money spent in my campaign, the committee had to repay me.

The campaign had no outside unpaid bills and I was selective about accepting Political Action Committee contributions. I received none from the Michigan Education Association.

State Rep. Jerry Vorva is a Republican from Plymouth who represents that community and portions of Livonia in the Michigan Legislature.

State rep stalks secrecy in guise of privacy

Our state representatives told a reeking lie when they passed what they called an "anti-stalking" bill last week.

House Bill 4806 wouldn't punish a single stalker.

But it would allow some state legislators to hide the fact they don't live in the districts they represent, as required by the Michigan Constitution (Art. IV, Sec. 7).

Here's how it came about: A couple of years ago, Detroit News reporter Jim Mittfied exposed the fact that four lawmakers didn't reside in the districts which elected them. One was Rep. Burton Leland, a Democrat ostensibly from Detroit who actually had a home in the Lansing suburb of Okemos.

One tool Mittfied used to track down Leland was Secretary of State records. Under current law, you can take a license plate number to the secretary of state and, for a few bucks, receive the name and address of the person who registered the vehicle.

Big-city papers also use these public records to identify people in auto accidents.

So along came Leland, of all people, with a bill to shut down these public records to the public. Under Leland's bill, we will have a caste system: . . . the Secretary of State may release reg-or to a person who also presents an order issued by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Who's going to bother with the expense of obtaining a court order to prove that a legislator doesn't live in his district or that a clerk really lives in a lakefront cottage in the next county?

It sailed through the House, 101-0. "We're trying to prevent people from getting this information for improper purposes," said Leland with a straight face. "Most requests of the secretary of state gets are not legitimate. It's a real issue of privacy."

Yeah, sure, "privacy" — a code word for secrecy.

This is the second term Leland has been working on his version of the Official Secrets Act. His original rationale was to cite a California case where a nut tracked down a starlet and shot her. In the magazine Governing, I came across the facts: For $250, the nut had hired a private detective, who got the starlet's license plate, then paid the secretary of state $10 for her name and address and turned them over to the nut.

Their report cards come from those who count most

Some of our school districts refused to participate in Gov. John Engler's first report card on schools — Southfield and Bloomfield Hills, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton, for example.

Those districts fault the Michigan School Report because of some inconsistencies in the data provided and the use of test scores to compare schools without any way to explain the populations they serve.

Some administrators see it as purely political — saying that the information requested is already available within each district.

Probably some refinements need to be made. But taxpayers are entitled to some way to measure the schools they pay for. And this report is a start.

Friday, as the governor was releasing these cold, hard facts in Lansing, a far warmer method of educational accountability was going on closer to home.

More than 100 people gathered over lunch at the Chrysler Technology Center in Auburn Hills to honor 13 area teachers. Each was a winner in Southfield-based MetroParent Magazine's 4th Outstanding Teacher Awards.

It's a competition that has grown from 25 or so nominations and three winners the first year to the 200 nominations from parents, students and/or principals that came in this time around. It is co-sponsored by Chrysler Corporation and Health Alliance Plan.

And so nicely done. Each teacher and his or her (mostly her) principal was invited to the podium and an excerpt or more from their nominations was read by Alyssa Martina, publisher of MetroParent.

Some examples: Holly Tescher, a student in Carol Barratt's fourth grade class at Commerce Elementary School, said: "Mrs. Barratt is a unique teacher. She taught me a lot and made learning fun for me. She is one wonderful teacher I won't forget."

A Warren schools parent and student, Tara and Nichole Young, wrote of Washington Elementary teacher Bette Dezenski: "Over the 15 weeks of Nicole's illness Mrs. Dezenski was there, with calls, cards and loving arms and taking on the responsibility of home tutor. . . . Not only did she make a difference in Nichole's education, but she made a difference in my family's life."

Susan Williams, a parent at The Roeper School in Bloomfield Hills, said of music teacher Jennifer Evenson: "I wish I knew how she gets so much out of her students. . . . Perhaps inspire would be a more accurate description of what she does."

Catherine McKeon, a student at Birmingham's Covington Middle School, had this to say about her sixth grade teacher Maria Ponczocha: "Every day I look forward to math class because of Mrs. Ponczocha. She really makes learning fun. She is an outstanding teacher and an outstanding person."

"Reaching for stars is what Diane Dillard is all about and getting others, teachers as well as students, to do likewise," was Troy principal Kenneth Lahti's description of this Bemis Elementary teacher.

Joan Green's third grade class at Birmingham's Beverly Elementary wrote: "This year, all of us have experienced what it feels like to be a person who is respected and cared for by their teacher and fellow students."

And a first grader at Kensington Academy in Bloomfield Hills wrote of Dianne Healy-Clauss: "She is my favorite teacher because she is kind and she is the best teacher and she takes us to field trips, and she loves us, and she takes us to outdoor recess and she helps the earth."

Now these are only the tip of the iceberg of a lengthy application and judging process. Besides the required nominations and back-up data, each nominee had to complete an in-depth questionnaire probing educational philosophy. Six judges concerned with children's issues made the decisions.

Other winners were: Barbara Jean Manning, special education at Ford Elementary, Detroit; Joseph Mucaria (Chef Joel), food management, Golightly Career and Technical Center, Detroit; Kim O'Keefe, DeKeyser Elementary, Sterling Heights.

None of these teachers' names will appear on the Michigan School Report. But Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld, who attended and spoke of her own teaching experiences, knows of them. And now, so do you.

When you are reading the tangible report on your school district — keep in mind the intangibles it doesn't reflect. Like the outstanding teacher in the classroom.

Surging Marlins stun Chiefs in OT

Mellis places at state

Plymouth Canton senior Jill Mellis concluded her high school swim career Saturday with a pair of top-six finishes in the Class A championships at Eastern Michigan University.

Mellis placed fourth in the 100-yard breast stroke (1:06.87) and fifth in the individual medley (2:08.96). She broke her own varsity records in both events, swimming 1:06.26 in the breast stroke prelims. Her previous bests were 1:06.90 in that event and 2:11.39 in the IM.

Mellis also eclipsed her 50 freestyle record when she went 24.35 leading off the 200 freestyle relay. She had set the standard at 25.38 in the past.

"Jill did just about what we wanted her to do," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. "She swam faster at the state meet (than she did in the conference) and that was her objective."

"She's the best female swimmer we've ever had at Canton and one of the top 10 in the state. She's an all-around swimmer; she can swim anything."

"She did a great job for the four years she was here, but we lose 10 seniors and most are point scorers in any kind of contest we have going."

Mellis is up for All-American consideration in the breast stroke, 50 freestyle and IM, and she is an All-American academic athlete as well.

Canton's 200 medley relay team tied with Battle Creek Lakeview for 12th place, but the Chiefs lost a swim-off and finished 13th for the third year in a row. Canton went 1:41.88 in the regular competition, but its 1:41.26 time in the extra race would have placed the Chiefs ninth.

Mellis, Katie McWhirter and Susan Pritchard combined with Beth Berger in that event and Sara Larson for 22nd place in the 400 freestyle.

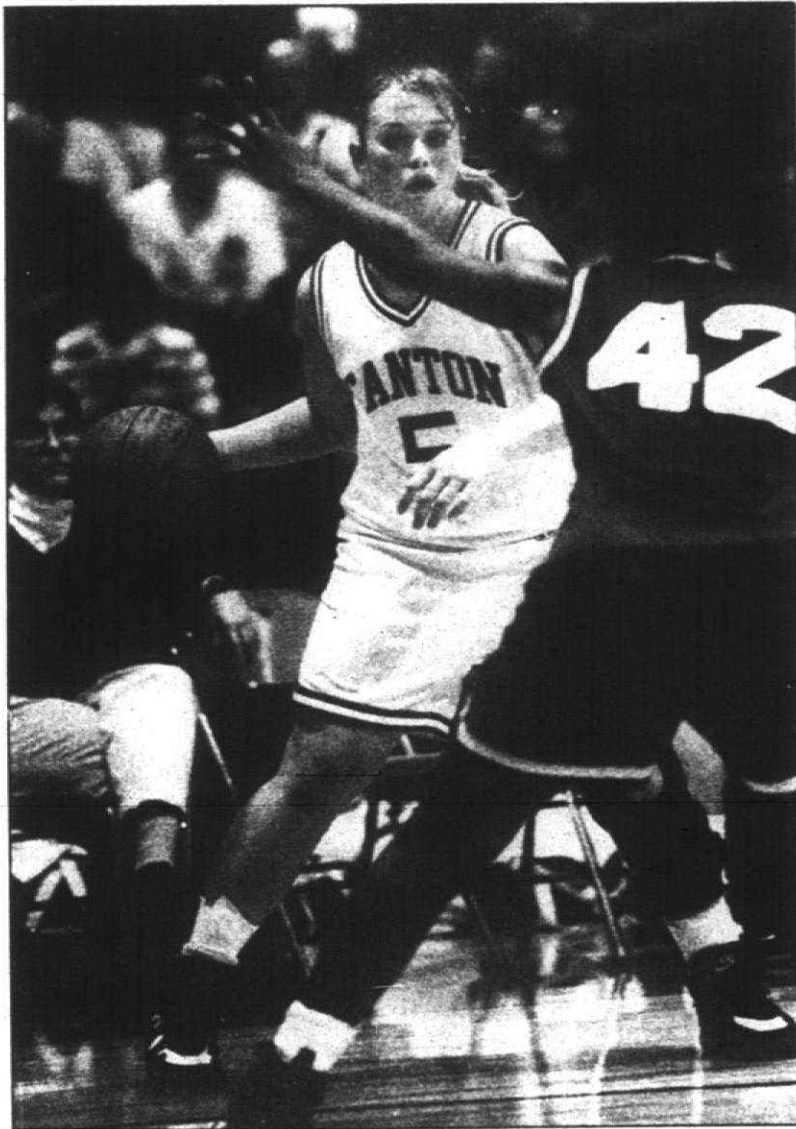

Plymouth Salem's medley relay of Yvonne Lynn, Amy Parry, Sara Casillas and Kellyann Williams was 17th.

Livonia Stevenson senior Mandi Falk won the breast stroke and helped the Spartans earn a tie for second place in the team standings.

Her time of 1:04.93 put her close to the top 10 nationally and All-American status.

Roadblock: Britta Anderson and her Canton teammates found it hard to get through a tough Mercy defense in the second half Monday.

Farmington Hills Mercy achieved one of its greatest victories in girls basketball Monday when it upset state-ranked Plymouth Canton 55-50 in a Class A regional tournament game.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Farmington Hills Mercy learned Monday just how much it has improved as a basketball team since losing by 30 points to Plymouth Canton in early September.

And unfortunately for them, so did the No. 3-ranked Chiefs, who had beaten Mercy 56-26 in the final of the Mercy Hoops Classic.

The unranked Marlins have come a long way in two months, and they demonstrated it with a stunning, 55-50 overtime win over Canton in a Class A regional game at Southfield-Lathrup.

"We knew in our hearts — and the coaches in their minds — we had upgraded our game and tonight was the acid test," Mercy coach Larry Baker said. "I told (the players) this is one of the biggest upsets in Mercy history, and it's a real credit to their character."

"We point to the state tournament every year, but tonight was extra special. It's extremely gratifying and only so because Canton is a tremendous team. It was a remarkable turnaround to get to the point we could defeat this team."

The Marlins (12-12) take a seven-game winning streak into the regional final against Catholic League champion Birmingham Marian (19-4) at Lathrup.

The Chiefs, champions of the Western Lakes Activities Association who started Mercy on a nine-game losing streak in September, finish the season at 21-2.

"I think our kids realized (Mercy was improved)," Canton coach Bob Blohm said. "You can't go through the Central Division of the Catholic League and not get better."

"(The Marlins) hung in there after some tough losses and kept coming back. I don't think (Canton) took Mercy lightly. I think Mercy stepped up its game and did a good job."

Mercy's improvement was most evident in its defense and rebounding. The Marlins dominated the glass in the third quarter and finished the game with a 38-28 advantage.

The momentum gradually swung in favor of Mercy, and the Marlins turned the corner in that period when they outscored Canton 14-6 and erased a 28-24 halftime deficit.

The Marlins outshot Canton 22-9 in the third quarter, and the Chiefs, known for their strong inside game, were usually limited to one shot per possession. Both teams shot 30 percent, but Mercy made four more field goals (7-3) and often got three and four tries each time.

"I would have been happy, going into this game, to neutralize them on their offensive boards," Baker said, "but there was a time tonight when we banged away."

"Holly Taylor played a big part in that. She seemed to get everyone up another notch."

"We didn't get a lot of offensive rebounds, and we've been pretty good at that this year," Blohm said. "Our kids were working hard to get it, but (the Marlins) were relentless on the boards; they went after it."

Neither team attempted to press except for an occasional time, though both are good at it, but the Marlins excelled in their half-court defense.

Rockets prepare for final touch down in Silverdome

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The Tractor pull is back Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome, sponsored by the Dearborn Fordson football team.

It's the fourth state championship appearance for the Tractors (11-1), who will meet Westland John Glenn (11-1) for the coveted Class AA title, 1 p.m. Saturday at the Silverdome.

Fordson's five-man offensive front, which averages 264 pounds per man, has been gaining momentum during its playoff run.

However, it's beginning to look more like monster trucks than Tractors.

Last week, the Tractors steam-rolled Utica Stevenson, 28-0, as cousins Ali and Michael Saad, the backfield combination, combined for 190 yards on the ground.

"They're big, and they have an excellent offensive line," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "They have great size and they're really been coming off the ball throughout the playoffs."

Glenn's defense, which has yielded only 102 points in 12 games, must contend with the likes of Ali Chammout (6 feet, 235 pounds), John Perez (6-2, 315), Charles Wilson (6-3, 284), Rabbeh Hammoud (6-0, 243) and Abas El-Zayat (6-0, 244).

"They line up and try to pound you," Gordon said. "They do it to everybody at the line of scrimmage. They've just dominated people and gotten better each week."

Fordson, a perennial playoff qualifier, has yet to win a state title despite three final appearances (1980, '82 and '84). Glenn, meanwhile, is making its first appearance. (The Rockets came up one game short in 1986.)

The two teams have only met once with Glenn, using a no-huddle offense, winning in the first round of the 1990 playoffs, 20-7.

"Coach (Chuck) Gordon has been doing the same stuff and the same things for many years, and they do it well," said Fordson fourth-year coach Jeff Stergalas. "We do the same things we've been successful, and they've been so successful."

"Glenn is extremely talented and big. They're so well-coached. Fundamentally, what they do is very sound."

Fordson's defense, which has allowed only 120 points all season, must find a way to contain a potent Glenn offense. The Rockets have scored a total of 348 points.

"They're conservative, but they're not afraid to try different things," Stergalas said. "They'll use trick plays, but control-type of trick plays... nothing to get them in trouble if things go wrong."

Stergalas, a native of Riverview who played under Dr. Don Lessner before moving on to Charles Justice's staff at Fordson 13 years ago, has watched his team grow since losing its season opener to Detroit DePorres, 14-12, in overtime.

"It's just not the offensive line," Stergalas said. "We stressed that you've got to get better every day and this group has bought into that. We're better in every aspect."

"After losing to DePorres, I had no idea we'd be where we're at today. But I felt, even after that game, that we could do some things. I felt we could play good defense and run the football, and also have a shot at our league (Mega-Red Division) title."

Stergalas, taking a page from Lou Holtz's book on being the underdog, said this Fordson team "has no stars to compete with Glenn."

"We don't have anybody like the Besco twins (Bryan and Derek), or the quarterback (Brian Morrison) or a guy like (Tariq) Horne (Glenn's tailback)," he said. "Hopefully we'll give them a game."

Hawks try to dissolve Chemics

When the football season began, Farmington Hills Harrison made "get it back in '93" its rallying cry.

The Hawks, having surpassed their modest initial goal, can get it all back at 1 p.m. Friday when they play Midland for the Class A title. Both teams are 10-2.

After a rare losing season a year ago, Harrison has rebounded to reach the finals for the eighth time in 12 playoff appearances. The Hawks hope to win their sixth state title, repeating their 1991 success when they claimed the Class BB championship.

"Truthfully, that meant the division title, which we thought was a viable goal for us," Harrison coach John Herrington said of the "get-it-back" slogan.

"Once we won that, we extended it to the league and then we kinda dropped it for a couple weeks. Then (assistant coach Bob) Sutter said 'Hey, get it back — the state championship,' and the kids picked up on it again."

Midland made the playoffs this year for the eighth time and advanced to its second championship game. The Chemics were runners-up to Birmingham Brother Rice in the 1990 Class A final, 24-10.

The Hawks will face a team that is very similar to themselves in Midland, which finished third in the tough Saginaw Valley Conference.

Both are relatively small teams that have used quickness, athletic ability and team speed to be successful.

"We use different formations and have different offensive philosophies but the same type of kids," Herrington said.

"Both are aggressive on defense, well-disciplined, make a low number of mistakes and play solid football in all categories," said Midland coach Gary Jozwiak, who is 141-44 in 19 seasons.

Crusaders in search of 1st victory

When a coach is starting a program from scratch, and the team consists almost entirely of freshmen, it's difficult to believe he could be as successful as Bill Sharpe, men's basketball coach at Madonna University. Sharpe insists on finding the bright side, the silver lining. But it hasn't been that easy to do.

"I'm seeing a lot of positive things," Sharpe said, reflecting on two losses his team took at the University of Windsor Tournament over the weekend. The Fighting Crusaders were beaten by the host team 145-118 Saturday, then lost to Central State (Ohio) 135-116 in the consolation game Sunday.

"But," he added, "unless I'm 4-0 I'm going to be ticked off."

Part of the problem, Sharpe said, is game time. The freshmen play well for 32 minutes — the length of a high school game — then check out. "We're in the ball game until the last five minutes," said Sharpe. "Then they switched off their brains and played like freshmen."

BASKETBALL

"I'm not suicidal yet. But there comes a time, a turning point in the ball game, when that experience, which — according to Sharpe — is why they don't have a win."

There have been bright spots, however. Turnovers, more than 20 in the first two games, dropped below 12 for the last two. Three-point shooting accuracy is up, too, hovering around 40 percent. And one of Sharpe's key factors to Madonna's success — taking at least 100 floor shots — has been reached.

Madonna took 100 against Windsor, 102 against Central State. Problem is, the Crusaders are making less than 50 percent of those shots. "Our shooting has to be up around 50 percent for us to win," he said.

Rebounding and free throw shooting (about 65 percent) aren't up to standards, either. "They're beginning to understand that everybody's good at this level," said Sharpe. "They were all stars on their high school teams."

One of the early-season highlights for Madonna was Plymouth Salem graduate Mike Sloane. The 6-foot-5 freshman popped in 20 points against Central State. His performance earned him a spot on the all-tournament team. Sloane is averaging 24.3 points per game.

"He has come into his own," said Sharpe. "He's everything we've asked him to be."

Sharpe did get a number of players to contribute to the scoring in the two games. In Sunday's loss to Central State, Kurt Carlos chipped in with 20 points and eight rebounds; Shawn Brannum had 13 points. Eric Furlotte scored 12 and grabbed six boards;

J. Dimes netted 10 and six rebounds. Donnell Foster collected nine points; and Christian Emert dished out nine assists.

Madonna trailed 63-48 at the half before playing Central almost evenly in the second half. The Windsor loss was quite different. The Crusaders were within 60-57 at the half, then got blitzed over the last 20 minutes.

Sloane's 24 points paced Madonna. Dimes added 22, Brannum had 19, Brannon Sloane and Emert each collected 11, and Furlotte and Foster had 10 apiece. Emert also had seven assists; Furlotte grabbed eight rebounds.

Still, all the glittering stats won't erase the pain of defeat. The Crusaders are young, and — with 6-7 Ken Taylor out of the lineup until at least January due to an academic problem — rebounding could continue to be a problem.

Sharpe's biggest challenge could be keeping the chins off the floor while the team searches for victories.

CC graduate leads SC to 85-72 victory

SC SPORTS

Steve Whitlow got the ball rolling in the proper direction, so to speak, and the rest of the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team followed — all the way to an 85-72 win over Albion College's junior varsity Monday at SC.

Whitlow, the team's only returning starter, poured in 18 first-half points to help the Ocelots break on top. Their lead was precarious at the half, to be sure: a mere 38-36. But it didn't stay that way for long.

Behind Todd McNeill's 22 points — 12 in the second half — and 16 more from Abu Hamilton, SC pulled away for a comfortable win. The Crusader lead reached 25 points with nine minutes to play.

Bryan Sherry and Thomas Brown led Albion, each scoring 13 points.

SC coach Dave Bogataj noted that his trio of guards — Melton Stoudemire, Ricky Mitchell and Mark Cady — combined to score just five points, but they were instrumental in many other ways. "They have a good complementary have to defense both backs because they're not in an I very often."

"They run a lot of unbalanced fronts and try to get you confused with a lot of formations. So that will take a lot of work this week."

The Chemics are averaging 21.3 rushing yards in the playoffs, but they mix the pass with the run in the same way Harrison does.

Midland lost senior quarterback Jason Marciniak with a shoulder injury in the sixth game, but junior Brent Wallace has done a good job of leading the team.

Wallace has completed 22 of 37 passes for 236 yards in the playoffs, and wide receiver Joe Danna has had a great year, according to Jozwiak.

"The defense was carrying us the greater part of the season, and the offense seems to be better now," Jozwiak said. "(Wallace) has continually improved and become an integral part of our success."

"We're a ball-control team. We like to think we try to find a place to move the football. A lot of teams are good up the middle and some good outside. We try to complement each of those areas."

Back eyes big game Harrison sophomore tailback Jason Granger would like to have the kind of game his older brother did two years ago when Harrison defeated Cheboygan 34-7 in the BB final. Roy Granger set a state-finals record when he rushed for 295 yards and a pair of TDs.

Bannon's scoring nets Madonna 2nd at tourney

One step was scaled, but the second proved too much.

Madonna University's women's basketball team reached the final of the St. John Fisher College Tournament in Rochester, N.Y., but the host team came away with the win, 75-62 Saturday.

In their opening game Friday, the Lady Crusaders used a balanced attack to bounce Fredonia University (Fredonia, N.Y.), 85-57.

Fryer's 26 points paced the winners. Becky Armstrong had 20. For Madonna, Bannon netted 25 points and dished out eight assists.

Two Crusaders were named to the all-tournament team: Shaver Bannon and Rachel Emery. St. John Fisher's Erika Fryer was named the tournament's most valuable player.

In the final, Madonna (1-1 for the season) trailed 32-28 at the half but caught, and passed, St. John Fisher with 17:40 left to play. The Crusaders couldn't keep their lead, however.

One reason: free throw shooting. St. John Fisher made 26-of-31 from the line; Madonna was just 14-of-21.

Fryer's 26 points paced the winners. Becky Armstrong had 20. For Madonna, Bannon netted 25 points and dished out eight assists.

Canton's Britta Anderson, who scored a game-high 21 points, was able to go inside early, but the Marlins improved their post defense and took away the easy layups in the second half.

"It seemed we got pushed out farther and farther on the court," Blohm said. "The spacing was OK, but we had a hard time getting passes and getting out and that's a tribute to their defense."

The Marlins supported Baker's claim they were playing much better defense at the end of the regular season.

"When I praise defense, it's a genuine thing," he said. "We're playing it with the best of them now. If we can make Canton work as hard as we did tonight to get scores, we're doing a good job."

Anderson scored six straight points to trim Mayo's 46-39 lead to one point with 2:03 remaining.

The Marlins appeared to have the win locked up (48-45) when Glenda Lee sank two free throws with five seconds left, but Anderson nailed a desperation three-point shot as time expired to force overtime.

The Canton players ran onto the floor and mobbed Anderson, apparently thinking they had won the game with her basket, however. The scoreboard even flashed 49 points momentarily.

"I think they thought they were down two, not three," Blohm said. "If they had known they needed it to tie the game, it might have gone a little differently."

"I think they were celebrating a victory instead of a tie, and that's a big difference because now you have to regroup and get going again."

Amiee Crayton gave Canton a 50-48 lead in overtime, but Mayo scored the next five, Taylor tied it, Liz Weber broke it with a triple and Lee tied it with two more free throws.

"That would have put the stake through anybody's heart," said Baker of Anderson's shot. "I told them 'Look, did anybody in this game think you'd be going to OT? I always say it takes 32 minutes of good basketball to win, but tonight it's going to take 35.'"

Angell scored 15 points to lead Mayo. Amanda Northcross came off the bench to score 12, and Felicia Brooks was next with 10. Alyson Nounie added 12 points and Sarah Warnke eight for Canton.

Angell had 11 points and Northcross eight in the first half to keep the Marlins close. Brooks scored eight in the third quarter to fuel the Mayo surge.

"Amanda's scoring was a nice bonus," Baker said. "We've used her a lot in the last week, and she has become a real defensive specialist. But it's a team game and everyone contributed."

Once again the Observer & Eccentric will feature a Community Book Pole for the 1993 deer hunting season. Names and a brief explanation of the respective hunts will be published in upcoming editions of the paper.

If you manage to take an elusive whitetail at anytime during the 1993 archery, firearm or muzzleloading hunting seasons give us a call.

Contact outdoor writer Bill Parker Monday evenings between 6-10 p.m. at 901-2573. You can also fax the information to 644-1314 or send a brief note to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mich., 48009.

Violators need steeper fine

BILL PARKER

With great anticipation, I sat silently in a light pre-dawn shower awaiting the first rays of daylight signaling the start of the 1993 Michigan firearms deer season.

After several close encounters with mature whitetail bucks (none of which unfortunately produced a high-percentage shot) during the final days of the first archery season, the imminent arrival of the firearms opener left me eager with anticipation.

Over the last several years, the first few days of the firearms deer season have been spent combing farmland and wooded lots in Michigan's Thumb area with my brother and a couple select friends. But that all changed this year.

Daily buck sightings, numerous fresh scrapes, and the opportunity to hunt 80 acres all by myself (everyone else had gone north) forced me to change my strategy. I opted to stay home on opening day for the first time in my life and hunt some private land in northern Oakland County.

I couldn't contain my excitement the night before opening day as I explained to my wife Donna, over and over like a scratched record, about how this year would provide me with the best opportunity I'd ever had at bagging a trophy on opening day. I awoke (several times) before the alarm went off and seated quietly in my blind overlooking the south end of a thick swamp well before the first rays of daylight burrowed through the darkness.

I didn't have to wait long for the excitement to begin.

About a half-hour after sunrise I heard something crashing through the swamp like a wayward ball headed in my direction. I readied myself and scanned the edge of the swamp intently before my eyes fell upon the object of my attention.

An orange hat suddenly appeared 30 yards deep in the swamp. "What the #&%!," I thought. "This is prime time and there isn't supposed to be anyone out here."

The hat and its owner crept slowly to the edge of the swamp then popped out into one of my shooting lanes with the eagerness of a groundhog searching for food.

By now I was out of my blind and headed in his direction. "I... ah... ah... got turned around in the swamp," he stammered.

"Right," I thought. "It takes a real gamer to get turned around in a 30-acre swamp, especially since you can hear traffic on the nearby road to the east."

"This is private property," I announced, sternly. "The entire swamp is on private property to begin with, and you just messed up my hunt."

Knowing he was caught red-handed the intruder scurried back into the swamp like a muskrat out of water. How surprising it was that the jerk suddenly regained his sense of direction and knew exactly how to get back to where he came from.

Two hours later, my second trespasser crashed toward the edge of the swamp.

This time, I couldn't contain my ill feelings and immediately denounced the perpetrator with a roar.

He disappeared back into the heavy cover as quickly as he could, but the damage had already been done. I didn't see a brown hair all day.

By late afternoon I was back on my bucket overlooking the swamp. I finally blew a fuse at 4:50 p.m. when a third bone-headed trespasser interrupted my hunt. This time I said nothing and charged straight down the hill ready to give him an ear full, but he saw me coming and dashed away like the coward he was.

I returned to my stand, but it was no use. I never saw a deer.

Upon returning home, disgusted, I found that brother John's party of three had taken two bucks and they all had plenty of action throughout day.

So much for strategic planning.

It took a summer of knocking on doors to find one farm which I was allowed to hunt. Most times I was turned down because the property owner had experienced problems in the past with ignorant, unethical hunters who think nothing of using someone's land without permission.

As ethical, conscientious hunters we should call for stricter punishment. How about increasing the penalty to a $500 fine and loss of hunting privileges for two years for anyone convicted of trespassing while in possession of a firearm.

As our country prepares to get tough on crime with the passage of Clinton's new anti-crime bill, hunters should also get tough on those slobs who choose to disrespect the laws and tarnish the image of all hunters.

Hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to 644-1314 or call Bill Parker Monday evenings at 901-2573.

Shamrocks' Walos paces star parade

By C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

The 1992 all-Observer boys soccer team included three juniors among its 13 members. Not surprisingly, all three have made a return trip to join the 1993 team.

But this year's team is not nearly as senior-dominated. Of the 13 first-team members, four are juniors and one is a sophomore.

And yet, while it may be somewhat more youthful, the team is hardly lacking in quality — partial proof provided by the fact that the team's starters reached the Class A state final, a position they're accustomed to (it was their sixth trip to the championship match).

There's more, of course. Such as the runner-up in the balloting for the state's best player, Rich Walos, from Redford Catholic Central, finished second in the voting. The senior midfielder might have won it had his CC team not had the misfortune of running into Stevenson in its opening match of the state tournament.

"There were other standouts, of course — four other all-Observer team members received all-state recognition. And no doubt, like last year's team, many of them made their mark in college ball. Of the ten who graduated last year, eight are playing at a higher scholastic level.

(This year's team will start with those who earned the greatest recognition.)

Rich Walos, senior forward, Catholic Central: Ranked as the No. 1 player in Class A, Walos capped his final season at Redford Catholic Central by scoring 16 goals and assisting on 12 others, numbers that earned him a spot on the all-state first team for a second consecutive year.

Victor Rodopoulos, senior forward, Livonia Franklin: If he proved anything during his four-year Franklin career, it was his ability to score goals. Rodopoulos has displayed that talent since his freshman year, when he scored 13 goals for the Patriots.

He got 14 more his sophomore season, then 11 as a junior. He had eight assists in each year. This season, he finished with 13 goals (bringing his career total to 51) and four assists (24 in his career), and he was named both all-Western Lakes Area Association and first team all-state.

More than one coach had loads of respect for Rodopoulos. "Victor was the most dangerous scorer in the league," was Walos' all-state and all-Observer all-star teammate.

As a junior, Buelow scored 11 goals and assisted on 10 others, numbers that earned him a spot on the all-Observer second team. In four years on the varsity, he scored 25 goals and assisted on 27 more.

Nick Deren, junior forward, Livonia Stevenson: This name will return to the all-Observer team, perhaps with luster equaling that garnered by Walos. Deren was the area's top scorer, finishing with 25 goals and eight assists. He was a second team all-state selection.

What made Deren impressive wasn't merely the numbers. He scored his goals when it mattered, when it counted. When Stevenson lost Detroit Country Day, it was Deren who got the goal.

Chris Grodzicki, junior midfielder, Livonia Stevenson: According to Stevenson coach Walt Barrett, Grodzicki was the Walos has been exceptional for a long time, though. He has 45 goals and 36 assists in his career.

"Rich is a four-year letter-winner and starter at Catholic Central," said Shamrock coach Phil Laloy. "He's one of the best players to ever come out of Catholic Central and the Catholic League."

"It was very difficult for one player to make their mark in college ball. Of the ten who graduated last year, eight are playing at a higher scholastic level.

What made Deren impressive wasn't merely the numbers. He scored his goals when it mattered, when it counted. When Stevenson lost Detroit Country Day, it was Deren who got the goal.

Chris Grodzicki, junior midfielder, Livonia Stevenson: According to Stevenson coach Walt Barrett, Grodzicki was the grinder in the midfield for the Spartans. The worker. A team captain, he collected four goals and two assists.

Although Grodzicki didn't crack the starting lineup until his junior year, his playing career at Stevenson covered a bright period. He was on the team as a sophomore when the Spartans won the state title, in '91. His plans now are to perhaps walk-on at Miami University (Ohio), where, no doubt, he will work his way into the starting lineup.

Craig Provenzano, senior defender, Plymouth Canton: Canton's premier marking back. A three-year letterwinner, he was a team captain and also scored a 4.0 GPA. He scored one goal and had one assist.

He was our best marking back," vented Don Smith, Canton's coach. "And he was tough and consistent."

Brian Collier, junior defender, Catholic Central: It would be no exaggeration to say Collier came of age this season. In his first year of eligibility at Redford Catholic Central, his assignment was the position's most dangerous offensive threat.

He performed his task well.

(Brian) is one of the best marking backs that I have ever been associated with," said CC's Laloy. "He always did an outstanding job on the other team's best player. He plays the game in a very physical way, but is always under control."

Scott Sersen, sophomore sweeper, Livonia Stevenson: How good was Sersen? In a league as good as the W.L.A.A., it can take years to be noticed. Sersen was named to the all-W.L.A.A. first team — as a sophomore. He was the only 10th grader

A "classic high school goalkeeper" (tall and trim), according to Barrett, Lanspeary did his job very well. He finished with a 0.70 goals-against average and recorded six shutouts.

Mo Lanspeary, junior keeper, Livonia Stevenson: Winning the starting job in goal at Stevenson was no easy feat. Jim Greave, who split time with Lanspeary much of the season, was also very adept. But it was Lanspeary who was in goal during the Spartans' tournament run.

Sersen's defensive abilities are well documented, in Stevenson's numerous shutouts. But there's more. "He's a class player," said Barrett, his coach at Stevenson. "And an outstanding distributor."

Festival Celebrates Hope for Children

During the holidays, so many thoughts and wishes revolve around our children — we celebrate their innocence, cherish their goodness, strive to enhance their delight in the world. Festival of Trees, which continues through November 28th at Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center, is a perfect start for our family holiday activities.

Just as visiting Santa at Hudson's and the Christmas show at the Ford Rotunda became signals for thousands of metropolitan Detroit families to begin the holiday season, Festival is an enjoyable tradition that becomes more meaningful every year.

While the holiday season is highlighted with fun and festivities for families and friends, it is also a time of reflection and renewal — a time to examine events of the year and resolve to improve our lives and communities as the new year unfolds. In that dual spirit of festivity and service, thousands of volunteers work all year to produce the most exciting, enjoyable Festival ever.

We happily contribute our best because Festival supports a marvelous cause — the Evergreen Endowment, which funds research into children's diseases and their cures, at our own Children's Hospital of Michigan. It's especially meaningful that part of our holiday activities support children, improvements in their health and Children's Hospital.

Too soon, the season will pass. When the decorations come down, many children and families will again be coping with difficult, seemingly intractable issues from which the holidays have provided brief respite. Growing up safe, protected in their home and their community, well sheltered and fed, and nurtured by loving families are requests that could be on many children's wish lists.

By dedicating ourselves to advocate on behalf of youngsters and to make difficult decisions about our resources that will protect families and improve their stability, we strive to make the world a better place, in the true spirit and tradition of the holiday season.

Join us at the ninth Festival of Trees, through Sunday, November 28th, at Cobo Conference/Exhibition Center. Call 993-8819 for information.

Audiences treasure 'Nutcracker Ballet'

■ The ever popular "Nutcracker Ballet" is at the movies, and coming to a theater near you this holiday season.

Panned by critics when it was performed in 1892 at the Maryinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg, Russia, Peter Ilyitch Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Ballet" has become a holiday treasure. THEATER REVIEW

VICTORIA DIAZ

(and still running in London) whodunit, "The Mousetrap." You won't be sorry.

For those (few) of you who have never seen "The Mousetrap" (or read Christie's short story, "Three Blind Mice," from which it was taken), it goes something like this: On a dark and stormy evening, an eclectic assortment of individuals gather together inside a rambling, old English guest house, seeking shelter from the storm. A main topic of their conversation is a murder which has just occurred near the mansion.

As they all warm themselves by the fire, become acquainted, and get settled in, they begin to suspect that the murderer may lurk not just nearby, but actually within their midst. They also begin to fear, of course, that the perpetrator of the crime has chosen one of them for his/her next victim.

As bad luck would have it, they are absolutely right. (The murder scene is deliciously spine-tingling.)

In this drama of secrets, Deborah Kandler is nicely naive and pleasantly dithery as Mollie, the breathless, rather inexperienced proprietress of the just-opened-for-business Monkswell Manor. Randy Polega, playing her devoted, but oddly distracted husband, Giles, turns in a good performance, also.

boarder who calls himself Christopher Wren, and likes to think of himself as an architect. Diane Kremser seems to be perfectly at home in the role of the deer and grumbling know-it-all, Mrs. Boyle. Ford Sutherland as the surprisingly-shrewd Major Metcalf, Heidi Schuster as the mysterious, mannishly-attired Miss Casewell, and Bob Ketterer as the cosmetically-enhanced Mr.

Paravicini all seem to be enjoying themselves.

Mark Minkin, arriving on the scene via snow skis, and portraying Detective Sergeant Trotter, ably rounds out the cast (although one sometimes wishes Christie had not put so many words into his character's mouth). Overall, the well-drilled cast does a good job not just separately, but also as a team.

Veteran director Robert Weibel is to be commended for emphasizing that the success of a performance lies not just with the performers onstage, but with the backstage crew as well.

His own set design (faintly-oppressive, and accented with just the right touches of blood-red), plus set construction (John Jordan and crew), costumes (Mary Lynn Kuna, Gail Mesner), make-up (Heidi Schuster), lighting (Bill Potter, Jeannette Sowman, Laura Anderson), and sound (Richard Brown) all deserve some special applause.

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

1-2-3: Kids count

Every individual, organization, advocacy group, profitable corporation, those who speak from political policy-making platforms, legislators and the like, about the social and economic needs of children - those folks who can really make a difference in the lives and lifestyles of America's children - ask yourself a significant question. Then ask that same question among people like yourself, who say they, too, care about the present and future of our children.

How much will you give or are you willing to risk to ensure that all children count? It's vital that those who can, will, and those who will, do it so that a difference is made that can't be disputed.

Behind the conference doors, good ideas and strategies that are indeed good, sometimes great, arise, but follow-up planning, planning, planning often tends to get in the way of actual problem-solving as it relates to children and meeting their needs. It's past time for more collaborative action from parents first, the community as a whole, state officials, and America.

You've probably heard it said 1,001 times that there's much needed improvement in child care standards in Michigan. The fact is that America still equates child care and issues pertaining to the care of children as secondary, but having importance. It's evident because there's no national policy in place on the standards of child care. Quality continues to be defined.

For a society that says kids are king and queen, our hope and future, the issue of quality child care options, affordability, accessibility for all children is still an issue. The state of child care on a local, as well as national level, must be elevated on America's agenda of vital issues affecting families . . . fast.

The fact that America lacks a national child care policy is reprehensible. Moreover, child care issues often are misrepresented, misinterpreted and given little follow-up, so that people, policymakers understand . . . commit to workable solutions. Meanwhile, children suffer, especially those from low-income families who lack or have minimal child care dollars.

Often, with the lack of dollars to purchase good care for children, for parents the alternative is to place their children under the supervision of individuals with inadequate child care skills. Too often are young children left alone to fend for themselves for hours at a time.

Families that are moderate to low-income, with one child, spend 25-50 percent of their total income to pay for child care. Families with two children will pay more than 50 percent of total income. In 1989, the Annie E. Casey Foundation and Center for Study of Social Policy launched KIDS COUNT, a project that profiles the condition of America's children on the national, state and community levels. KIDS COUNT is premised on the belief that the more the public and policymakers know about the needs of children, the more likely we as a nation are to find the will and means to address these needs and take action.

KIDS COUNT, a new report and focus on Child Care and Early Childhood Education, is the first release from an expanded KIDS COUNT in Michigan collaboration. The Michigan League for Hospice tree's ornaments have meaning

Christmas is a time of remembrance. It's a time to cherish thoughts of special times spent with family and close friends. What better time to honor or memorialize someone you love, while reaching out to help someone who truly needs assistance?

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc., with offices in Garden City and Plymouth, will celebrate the season by displaying its fourth annual "Tree of Memories" Dec. 10-19 in the J.C. Penney Court of Westland Center, Wayne and Warren roads, Westland.

People can stop by the hospice booth to make a donation and place a personalized ornament on the holiday tree in honor or memory of someone they love. There will be representatives on hand to answer questions about hospice care and offer support and assistance in any way possible.

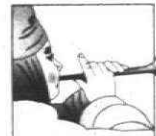

All proceeds will be used to help terminally ill patients and families in the community as well as to help offset costs associated with non-insured hospice items like support groups and additional caregiver hours.

For more information about the "Tree of Memories," call Hospice Services at 522-4244.

Santa: Claus worth collecting

It's obvious Weldon Petz is one of those people who truly believes in Santa Claus. That might explain why he and his wife, Shirley, have collected more than 1,600 items related to the jolly old elf from near and far.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Those who say that the belief in Santa Claus fades with age should look at Weldon Petz.

In the last 10 years, retiree Petz and his wife, Shirley, have traveled the world, collecting 1,629 Santa Claus items.

His collection traces the history of Santa Claus, beginning with St. Nicholas and continuing with Kriss Kringle, Father Christmas, Belsnickle, Father Ice, Perznickel, Weihnachtman, Sinter Klaus, Pere Noel, the modern Santa Claus and others.

"They all have a different face; that's what makes it interesting for us," Petz said.

Most of the enormous collection - 1,326 items, to be precise - will be housed at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main St., through Jan. 30.

The Petz collection began with his family's Santa decorations, mostly 1880-1900 German-created items that survived the years. Since then, pieces of his collection have been viewed by families at the Plymouth Historical Museum and the Comerica Gallery in Detroit. Next holiday season, they will grace Meadow Brook Hall at Oakland University in Rochester during its annual Christmas walk.

Petz keeps his pieces in 159 boxes in his home. Some of the items he purchased abroad he's carried with him on plane trips home from Europe, worried that they would crack or break in shipping. Each year, he and Shirley add about 90 new pieces to the collection.

"It could be up to 100; it depends on how much we can afford," he said with a smile.

His collection is full of unique items. A woman from Marquette painted a Ukrainian Santa Claus on eggs from non-flying birds like ostriches. Red, white and blue patriotic Santas are from the Civil War era. He has 73 editions of "Twas the Night Before Christmas" which are displayed in the museum's "Print Shop." The "School House" is home to his many music boxes. The "Chapel" only has a few pieces in it, including a Polish silver icon from the 1840s.

as a tree made from turkey feathers.

"It cost me 89 cents at Kresge; now it costs about $400-$500," he said.

Many of his pieces are made by Michigan artists - Jean Nagel, Marlene Denn, Terry Doubleday, Ruth Sawyer and David Zeese. Zeese's somewhat eerie 12-foot Belsnickle Santa Claus Christmas tree is the showpiece of the exhibit.

One of the most interesting things he's learned is that it's a misconception that Santa was always a good guy.

"He wasn't always happy," Petz said. "He was mean, scolding children." He said, "The parents thought it was a good deal because he was disciplining children."

Other Santas, such as the medieval Santa, brought mean counterparts with him.

"He always had 'Black Peter' with him. He would scare kids to death, and then he (Santa) would come in and say, 'I'll bring presents if you promise to be good,'" Petz explained.

The typical German Santa always brought the Christ child along on a donkey. Kriss Kringle always had a tree. Coca Cola designed the modern-day, "big, round" Santa.

In fact, Petz will share stories like these during his talk, "Santa Claus - A Tradition," at the museum on Dec. 5.

Petz said there are many people in the world who collect Santa Claus figurines. There are even publications devoted to the hobby.

"This might be the largest in Michigan and the Midwest," he said of his collection.

All of his pieces are logged in a computer under categories such as general, ornament, book, ancient ornament and music box. He also cites where and when he got the collectibles.

Petz said there's a simple explanation for showing his pieces around town.

"We like to share."

Weldon Petz will speak about "Santa Claus - A Tradition" during the Plymouth Historical Museum's annual Christmas open house at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5. His collection will be at the museum until Jan. 30. The museum is at 155 S. Main St., Plymouth. Hours are 1-4 p.m. Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and 2-5 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for students age 5-18. Children under age 5 are admitted free. There is a family rate of $4.

It's a new life for her after cancer

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

All together: After some difficult times, the Iaquintos - Frank and Diane and children Amy, Alicia and newborn Andrea - have plenty of reasons to smile.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Amy Iaquinto is quick to tend to her youngest sister's need. She hurries to the kitchen to heat a bottle and dashes back to give it to the fussing infant.

Diane Iaquinto watches her 10-year-old fuss over six-week-old Andrea and smiles. Each of her daughters, including Alicia, 4, are special to her, but, in a way, Andrea more so because of what transpired five years ago.

On Oct. 20, 1988, just eight days before Alicia's first birthday, Iaquinto had a bilateral mastectomy after cancerous tumors were found in her left breast. Medically, she has beaten the odds and today is considered cured. But she has also proven that there can be life - new life - after chemotherapy.

"It was my dream," Iaquinto said. "Even while I was having chemotherapy, I was saying I was going to beat this and have another baby. It was something I couldn't deal with . . . that I might be sterile. I had two healthy children, but the thing I had in my mind through it all was that I wanted to have another. It was the only way I could overcome this."

That was the decision the Iaquintos had made in 1988, when Alicia was 10 months old. As a part of that decision, Iaquinto stopped breast-feeding the infant. That's when she discovered several lumps between the size of a nickel and a dime in her left breast.

She had them checked by her gynecologist, who suggested watching the lumps since they didn't have the characteristics of cancer. But having had a mother and grandmother both die of breast cancer while in their 50s, Iaquinto persisted in having the lumps checked.

See NEW LIFE, 2C

The doctor did a needle biopsy and made arrangements to remove the lumps three days later. That would change only if cancer was found and he called.

'Devastated'

"He called and I started bawling," Iaquinoto recalled. "I was devastated. I was 28 years old and felt that this couldn't be happening to me."

It wasn't as if Iaquinoto hadn't been cautious. When her mother died of cancer at age 51, she decided she should have mammograms done earlier than recommended. She decided that at her age, every three years was good, and had her first one at age 25. Now she marvels at how quickly the cancer developed in her breast.

Her oncologist ruled out a lumpectomy (surgical removal of the tumor) and recommended that the left breast be removed as well as the right breast as a preventive measure. He gave her three weeks to decide. Iaquinoto chose the bilateral mastectomy for "prophylactic reasons."

Both breasts were removed, as well as the lymph nodes on the left side. Doctors found no cancer in the lymph nodes and that estrogen hadn't played a role in its development. As a result, it was recommended that Iaquinoto have six months of chemotherapy.

"I wasn't happy with that, but it was what I had to do to live," she said. She was even less happy when an additional six months was tacked on to the treatment program. It was the longest year of her life.

She didn't lose all of her hair, but did lose a lot of weight. The treatment made her sick and several times she ended up in the hospital because she was literally vomiting out of the inside of her stomach.

"Every Monday for a year I would get my treatment and I would be sick through Friday," she said. "And just when I'd start feeling (better) it would start all over again. I was sick; I was in pain; I was miserable."

'My husband has been joking, I think, about having another one. We have to see how the bone scan and chest X-ray turn out . . . but four would be nice.'

Diane Iaquinoto

Hard time

It wasn't easy for Iaquinoto, especially with two small children at home. But she found plenty of people willing to help. Her mother-in-law would take the morning shift, caring for the kids, and her sister-in-law came in the afternoon to watch them until her husband came home from work.

It was even more difficult for her husband, who had a hard time dealing with it. She recalls Frank declining to accompany her for her liver scan and chiding her for crying when told she had cancer.

"He probably was like any other man; he didn't want to cope with it; he didn't want to think it could happen to his wife," Iaquinoto said. "I think he was plain scared and didn't want to deal with it. He couldn't sympathize with me and I wanted that. He might have felt that way but he couldn't talk about it."

"But then I was scared. I used to cry to him that he would be a widower taking care of my baby and 5-year-old daughter."

Iaquinoto admitted that for the first few years after the surgery she couldn't undress in front of her husband and one night when she balked at him touching her, they decided they had to talk about it.

"He told me, 'Regardless of what has happened, my feelings for you haven't changed at all,'" she said. "He told me he loved me and it didn't matter if I had two breasts or no breasts. I'm here for you."

"It was like he lifted the ton of bricks off my shoulders that had been there ever since I'd been diagnosed."

Frank also told her not to have reconstructive surgery if it was for his benefit. He loved her the way she was.

It was at a time when Iaquinoto wasn't feeling good about herself. She couldn't find a bathing suit that looked good and "always felt people were looking at my chest." But it was also at a time when initial reports were surfacing about faulty silicone breast implants.

She eventually opted to forgo the reconstructive surgery and now wears prostheses. The scars from the original operations are now just fine lines on her chest.

"I look at myself now and it's not so bad," she said.

Supportive friends
While Iaquinoto got a lot of support from her family, "they couldn't understand what she was going through." She followed through on the advice of a woman, a Reach for Recovery volunteer, who had visited her in the hospital and went to a Just Between Us meeting. She took her stepmother, sister and sister-in-law along for support.

She was directed to the Encore program. She went to the weekly meetings and "found 20-25 women who had had mastectomies." They knew where she was coming from because they had all been there themselves.

"I was the baby," Iaquinoto said. "I was almost like their daughter; they treated me like a queen. And a lot of the women reminded me of my mother . . . That was another thing; I thought it was only old people who got cancer."

Doctors made Iaquinoto wait three years after having chemotherapy before giving the go-ahead to get pregnant. Plans were to have a bone scan and a chest X-ray before getting pregnant and follow-up scans nine months later. That was based on her getting pregnant the next month. It took four.

And even though it "screwed up the scans," doctors told Iaquinoto not to worry and "have a good pregnancy," she said.

She took their advice and on Sept. 10 gave birth to Andrea. Not only were she and her husband happy, so were her Encore friends. The whole group was ecstatic.

"I was only the second one in the group to have had cancer and have a baby."

Now, as she rocks Andrea, she talks about the possibility of a fourth child: "My husband has been joking. I think, about having another one. We have to see how the bone scan and chest X-ray turn out . . . but four would be nice."

She also declines to consider herself cured. She prefers to deal with her life one day at a time. She takes nothing for granted and lives each day to the fullest.

"You have to squeeze in whatever you can; you just do it," Iaquinoto said. "After five years (free of cancer), they say you're cured. I don't like to say that. I just keep a positive attitude and deal with it one day at a time."

But she is concerned for her three daughters and what the future holds for them. She hopes a cure is found so they don't have to go through what she did. She also has a few words of advice for women, especially young women.

"Become educated about what you need to do to prevent it," she said. "If you can do anything to prevent breast cancer, do it. Doctors might not recommend it, but have a mammogram at 21. You don't have to be an older woman to get breast cancer; it can hit at any age."

Human Services and Michigan State University have expanded their partnership to include Michigan's Children, a citizen-based child advocacy group.

"Early childhood experts all agree that the first five years of a child's life are a crucial time to lay the educational base needed to support lifelong learning," said Margaret Crowley, chairwoman of the KIDS COUNT in Michigan Advisory Board and program specialist for the Michigan Community Coordinated Child Care Association.

In a recent news release, Crowley also noted that benefits of early experiences are not available to most poor and moderate-income families. Since child care cost for low-income families is too high, it makes it more and more less favorable, even viewed as unrealistic to work outside the home, without child care subsidies.

To add to the array of problems families face needing quality child care options, child care providers with above-average skills are among the lowest-paid workers when compared to others in the field with similar/identical skills. With this in mind, it becomes difficult to retain qualified people in the field and attract new people. The likelihood of unskilled, unlearned individuals, working with our children, becomes a real factor.

The likelihood is that children who are from moderate to low-income households are at even greater risk of receiving substandard child care due to primarily monetary reasons. According to statistics, only 29 percent of the state's 92,300 eligible 3- to 5-year-olds are enrolled in federally-funded programs like Head Start. Another 13,117 children are enrolled in the state's Preschool Initiative for At Risk 4-year-olds.

On a wider scale, nationally, 75 percent of preschoolers from families whose income is above $75,000 are enrolled in preschool programs, compared to 42 percent of preschoolers from families with incomes under $10,000.

Again, the issue of expanding child care subsidies must be addressed if all children are to benefit from higher standards of care. Not only must increased subsidized options be implemented, but as the KIDS COUNT mission is to collect, analyze and disseminate state, county and local data on the status of children, most critical is to make the public aware, intervene and take action to save our children.

Dear Lorene C. Green,
My handwriting has been a bane to me my entire life. Co-workers have a hard time reading it. My family and friends ask that I type or call - please don't write. I don't see where I'm that bad. Maybe your analysis can shed some light on why I write like I do.

I'm 32 years old and right handed. Thank you.

ANNIVERSARIES

Shoemaker

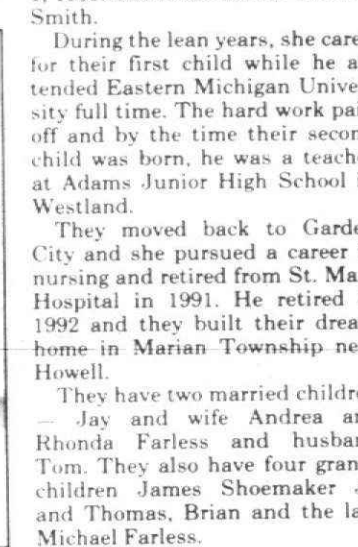

James and Deanna Shoemaker celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary Nov. 1 with their family and new beagle puppy, a gift from their children.

Dee Dee and Randy, as they are known to family and friends, became sweethearts while attending Garden City High School in the mid-1950s. They married on Nov. 1, 1958. She is the former Deanna Smith.

During the lean years, she cared for their first child while he attended Eastern Michigan University full time. The hard work paid off and by the time their second child was born, he was a teacher at Adams Junior High School in Westland.

They moved back to Garden City and she pursued a career in nursing and retired from St. Mary Hospital in 1991. He retired in 1992 and they built their dream home in Marian Township near Howell.

They have two married children: Jay and wife Andrea and Rhonda Farless and husband Tom. They also have four grandchildren: James Shoemaker Jr. and Thomas, Brian and the late Michael Farless.

Schifflet

Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Schifflet were the guests of honor at a Sunday lunch at Bobby's Country House in Livonia in celebration of their golden anniversary.

Residents of Largo, Fla., and Canton, they exchanged vows on Nov. 6, 1943, at St. Gregory Catholic Church in Detroit.

The party was given by their children, Gary Schifflet and wife Marylou and Barbara Barraco and husband Henry. They also have three grandchildren: Anthony and Shauna Schifflet and Kelsey Barraco.

The Schifflets lived in Livonia for almost 30 years. Before they retired to Florida, he worked at

Johnson

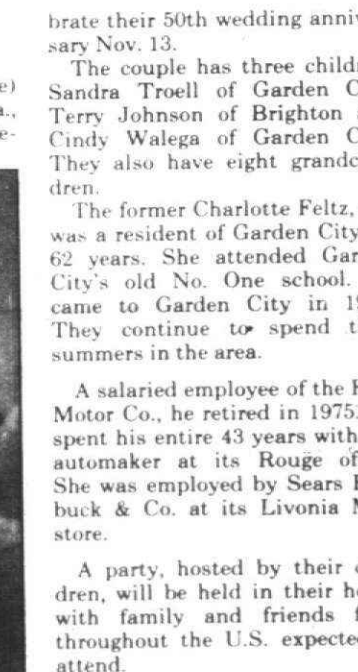

Melvin and Charlotte (June) Johnson of Palm Harbor, Fla., formerly of Garden City, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 13.

The couple has three children: Sandra Troell of Garden City, Terry Johnson of Brighton and Cindy Walega of Garden City. They also have eight grandchildren.

The former Charlotte Feltz, she was a resident of Garden City for 62 years. She attended Garden City's old No. One school. He came to Garden City in 1936. They continue to spend their summers in the area.

A salaried employee of the Ford Motor Co., he retired in 1975. He spent his entire 43 years with the automaker at its Rouge office. She was employed by Sears Roebuck & Co. at its Livonia Mall store.

A party, hosted by their children, will be held in their honor with family and friends from throughout the U.S. expected to attend.

Writer needs to have people in her life support and love to her. At times she can be a tad intrusive. She likes to mix with the "in people." Some may think of her as a bit of a social climber.

Perhaps she doesn't always feel secure in relationships. Several signs in this handwriting point up her need for love and approval. While we all have this need and deserve to be loved, some have a greater need. At the time she wrote she may have been feeling unappreciated.

Our writer tends to live her life to win the respect of those she holds dear - probably family and close relatives. At the same time she often feels a need to control them.

Although she is friendly with many, she does not often choose to become emotionally involved. She can be quite evasive and tends to calculate her responses to avoid situations which might threaten her personal privacy. Only rarely does she disclose her inner life. This behavior does not make it easy for others to know and appreciate her.

At times she can become emotional, and her impulsive side takes over. She then feels a need to make her position known or get in the last word.

Seemingly our writer has been controlled by someone with a strong personality, and she perceives some emotional deprivation from it. As a result, she may be feeling somewhat insecure and possessive.

She is rather unresponsive to new ideas. Much of the time she adheres to her accepted conventional ideas and values. Attitudes change slowly. Once her mind is made up she usually stands firm. If she could try to keep an open mind, she might discover some people's ideas or suggestions might prove to be better than her own.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all necessary. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Giving thanks Churches plan holiday services

Thanksgiving is a time set aside to give thanks and several churches in western Wayne County are having services with giving thanks as their theme.

Christian Scientists are using words of the Psalms in inviting the community to a Thanksgiving service: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High."

The Thanksgiving service will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 25, at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

The passage and others from the Bible, as well as those from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will be read by two lay readers. Time will also be given for Christian Scientists to share testimonies of gratitude to God for presence in their lives, and for the healings they've experienced in the past year.

Baker Eddy highlighted the importance of gratitude in "Science and Health," when she wrote: "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more. Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Plymouth, invite the community to join in giving thanks to God. Care will be provided for children too young to attend. No collection will be taken.

An ecumenical Thanksgiving service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, at Christ the King Lutheran Church, Farmington at West Chicago, Livonia.

The service is sponsored by Christ the King, Episcopal Church of the Holy Spirit and Timothy Lutheran.

The preacher will be the Rev. Emory Gravette, assisted by the Rev. Margaret Haas, the Rev. Richard Martzolf and the Rev. Mary Olivanti.

Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church also is planning a special Thanksgiving Eve service, "Giving Thanks - Times Ten," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, at the church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia.

The service will feature music by the Christ Our Savior choir, the Cherub and Choroists choirs, Sunday School children, instrumentalists and Handbell Choir. The Christ Our Savior Choir and Brass Choir will also perform the national hymn, "God of Our Fathers." The service will conclude with communion.

Participants are encouraged to bring a canned food item for the needy. For more information, call 522-6830.

Ward Presbyterian Church will celebrate the Thanksgiving holiday with worship services at 9 and 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 25.

Former senior pastor the Rev. Dr. Bartlett Hess will preach on "Thanksgiving When You're Down." The patriotic service will feature Ward's orchestra, brass ensemble and Chancel Choir presenting the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The public is welcome.

Peace pole spreads universal message

Members of the Church and Society of Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church realize that everyday is a reason to celebrate world peace.

That's why they recently erected a Peace Pole on Rosedale Park grounds across the street from the church.

"We chose the park grounds over church grounds as the planting site because the park offers a more prominent setting," said Deborah Belz, a member of the church and society committee.

Church members believe the park location gives the peace message a universal rather than religious message as would be construed if it were placed on church grounds.

Also, more people will have the opportunity to see the Peace Pole. "We wanted the anonymity of the park to present the statement," said John Hirtzel, who spearheaded the project.

A ceremony was held Oct. 3. The eight-foot pole with a pyramid top features the words "May Peace Prevail on Earth." Each side bears a different language —

English, French, Spanish and sign language. The pole is made from fallen red cedar trees.

The Peace Pole project, based in Farmington, is a worldwide, non-profit grassroots movement. The project is separate from The Society of Prayer for World Peace, a non-profit, non-denominational organization founded in 1955 by Masahita Go.

All Peace Poles must bear the exact inscription: "May Peace Prevail on Earth." They are available in 32 native languages, including Braille and sign language.

The Peace Pole was developed in Japan in 1976, according to Nicole Cressio, the national project coordinator. The society is based in San Francisco, Calif.

"The Peace Pole took 10 years to come to the United States," Cressio said. "The Peace Pole is direct consequence of World War II. The top is shaped in a pyramid, which has spiritual meaning."

Some 100,000 poles in more than 100 countries have been dedicated.

"There is nothing religious on the pole," Belz said. "The only wording on the pole is "peace" in four different languages.

The 270,000 lights displayed on the grounds of Domino's Pizzeria World Headquarters in 1992 will be joined by more lights and a 30-foot-tall "Peace on Earth" globe.

"We're using over 300,000 multi-colored lights in 15 different scenes," said Tom Manwell, director of operations. "The trees and fences will also be decorated, and we'll even have a new light tunnel decorated for people to drive through." Displays include a church and choir scene, the Nativity scene, and a shepherd/sheep display.

Opening night will feature the added aesthetic benefit of 10 hot-air balloons, which will "look like luminaries and will add a new dimension to an already spectacular show," according to Scott Lorenz of Plymouth, director of the event.

Dan Kachnowski: a Livonia leader

Livonia is poorer because of Dan Kachnowski's surprise decision to step down after 17 years of civic service: six on the historical commission and the last 11 on the arts commission.

But the city is richer for the devotion, hard work, insight and integrity he brought to these volunteer boards. Make no mistake about that.

Kachnowski also is a past president of the board of directors of the Oakway Symphony, now the Livonia Symphony.

When I've needed a pithy quote about the beauty and wonder of the arts, I often turned to this 25-year resident. His love for the arts is impassioned.

"I think history and studies have shown that communities with the ways and means of experiencing different art forms tend to be better places to live and grow up in," he said.

"They tend to be well-rounded, caring communities. I think it's very difficult for human beings to go through life without having had the opportunity to be exposed to one or various of the arts. Is not art man's legacy to himself? It takes us away from the humdrum of our lives."

Kachnowski stepped down Sept. 30 after his job responsibilities changed as a Livonia Public Schools educator. After 17 years as a community education specialist, the former Bentley teacher moved back into the classroom to teach two American history classes at Stevenson High.

"I've just become very busy personally and professionally and found it very difficult to devote enough time to the arts commission," he said.

The arts commission's biggest challenge? "Continuing to improve on programming following reductions in funding from the city," Kachnowski said. "The commission has to become more conservative in thought and more involved in grants and sponsorships."

For a few years after the Oakway Symphony became the Livonia Symphony in 1988, the arts commission was a major sponsor. That ended when a city budget crunch affected the arts commission, whose allocation fell from $16,930 in 1992 to $7,000 in 1993.

The commission also has a fluctuating trust fund made up of accumulated event fees. It's tapped solely to promote the visual and performing arts and other cultural events.

"A good 50 percent of the Michigan artwork that the city has purchased for display in city buildings came from money in the trust fund," Kachnowski said.

In the 1970s, the Livonia Cultural League bought the initial art pieces displayed in city buildings, using proceeds from its Michigan invitational fine art shows at Livonia City Hall. The arts commission's artwork purchases, as well as its city hall fine art shows, are patterned after what the cultural league did.

"We even went a step further — professional art shows in the Livonia Civic Center Library Art Gallery," Kachnowski said. "That came after the arts commission, again using trust fund money, matched an $8,000 contribution from the Friends of the Livonia Library to purchase display panels for the Art Gallery."

Midwest Guaranty Bank has underwritten two Livonia cultural events: a Michigan Opera Theatre performance last fall at the Livonia Civic Center Library and a Music Under the Stars concert this summer at the Livonia Civic Center Park. Also this summer, a matching $580 grant from the Detroit Council for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs helped cover the cost of two Livonia Civic Center Library Art Gallery show receptions.

"More and more arts groups are finding out about the Livonia Arts Commission and coming to it for moral or monetary support," Kachnowski said. "That's good. It means our gospel is getting out in the general community and surrounding areas."

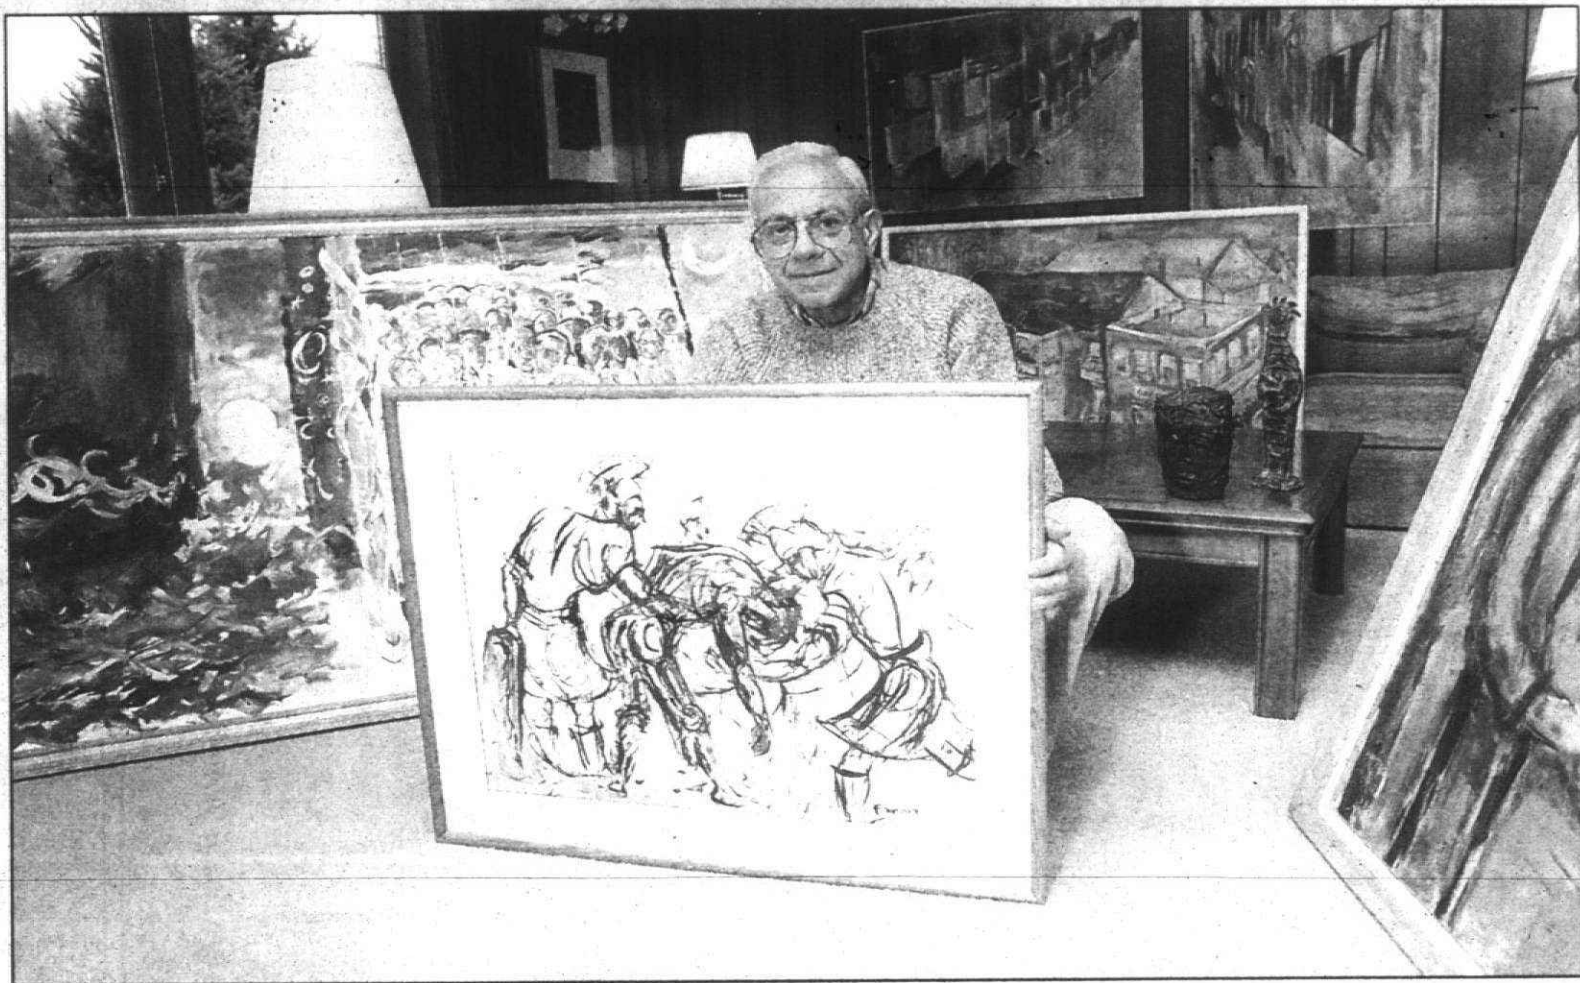

"We're booked for fine art shows at the library for about a year. With so many enthusiastic people approaching us now, the word obviously is out that we do run quality events."

Mysticism colors paintings at library

Mystical content invades the paintings in the latest exhibition presented by the Livonia Arts Commission. Large-scale works by Livonia artists Richard Culling and Edward Farhat prod the viewer to involvement then light fire to the imagination.

This visual extravaganza continues to Dec. 19 in the Art Gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Distanced by two decades, these artists are as similar as they are dissimilar. However, both believe that drawing skill is the basis for all "good art."

Emerging artists showcase work sampler

Artists in training bring their work to the Livonia Arts Commission's showcases through Nov. 29 on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Nearly a dozen student artists, who have taken classes at the Art Store and More in Livonia for four to five years, exhibit a wide range of media, including colored pencil, pastels, pen and ink, markers and mixed media.

The classes at the Art Store and More, which produced these works of art, begin with drawing basics taught in the form of cartoons.

"We start with drawing first, charcoal one-color and two-color, then advance to pastel in the form of a cartoon. It keeps the child's interest," Scott Messing.

"Everyone starts with a cartoon lesson. We try to get them to draw from something, not their imagination," added David Messing, a fine artist and sculptor, who currently works in film and print media. "If they're drawing from reference, it's always drawn from a combination of references."

The small class size, averaging two instructors for 10 to 12 students, allows aspiring artists to learn drawing as a one-on-one experience. Even practicing architects use classrooms at the store for learning to draw.

"Anatomy is at the top of the critical list. A lot of architects can draw houses but not people," said David Messing.

"Our strength is technique. It's a studio atmosphere. One person is Garden City Fine Arts Association will host its annual holiday art exhibit and sale Dec. 6-11 at Sheridan Square, 30000 Ford. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

At a reception at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 6, the winning artists will be honored. Refreshments will be served.

During the exhibit, visitors will vote for the People's Choice Award.

Meanwhile, works by GCFAA members remain on display through December in the Har-

YULE WALK

Friends for the Development of Greenmead will present its annual Christmas walk 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4, at seven houses in Livonia.

Tickets are $7 in advance, $8 at the door. They can be bought at Greenmead Historical Village, Livonia City Hall or any city library.

Eight Mile, boasts one of the houses on the walk, the Simmons/Hill House Museum, the 1841 home of Greenmead founder Joshua Simmons III, now decorated for the holidays.

CRAFT SALES

Christmas decorations and stocking stuffers will be among the wares at a holiday craft sale 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Dec. 3-4, in the Canton Historical Museum, Proctor and South Canton Center Road.

A quilt drawing will take place. The museum, operated by the Canton Historical Society, is in a former one-room schoolhouse at the edge of Heritage Park.

doing an oil, the person next to them colored pencil. It keeps the interest up. The idea is to teach students drawing by way of a cartoon, a Christmas card and then moving them into more individualized art."

The concept used to keep the students' attention is based on diversity, encouraging them to experiment in as many media as possible.

"We give them the opportunity to try all the media using materials that are used in the biggest studio," David Messing said.

"No one makes them come. In one case, a mother asked 'Can't you get him to do something besides monsters?' but we bend the lesson around their interest. As their interests change, so will their art. It's more important they have an interest in art."

The Art Store and More has been an educational mainstay in Livonia since 1979. Messing, who still teaches three classes a week, majored in sculpture, anatomy and commercial art at Wayne State University. He has 20 years of teaching experience to his credit.

From 1983 to 1990, Messing wrote a column on art for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. The last two years he has worked as a scenic artist, putting his talents to use in a variety of ways, including building sets for "Hoffa," a Danny DeVito film featuring Jack Nicholson, and for the currently running Builder's Square commercials with Tim Allen.

Messing recently completed three murals at the Detroit Historical Museum of which he is most proud because they are permanent and showcase the history of Detroit.

Messing says a lot of people think you have to be gifted to be an artist, but even gifted people need to learn technique. No matter how gifted you are, you don't know how to use pastel until someone who does shows you. Messing enjoys teaching gifted and non-gifted students alike.

"You get involved with the people and their work. It can change their life, and it's exciting to see."

However, "it all comes down to interest. Once a student, child or adult, loses interest, that's it."

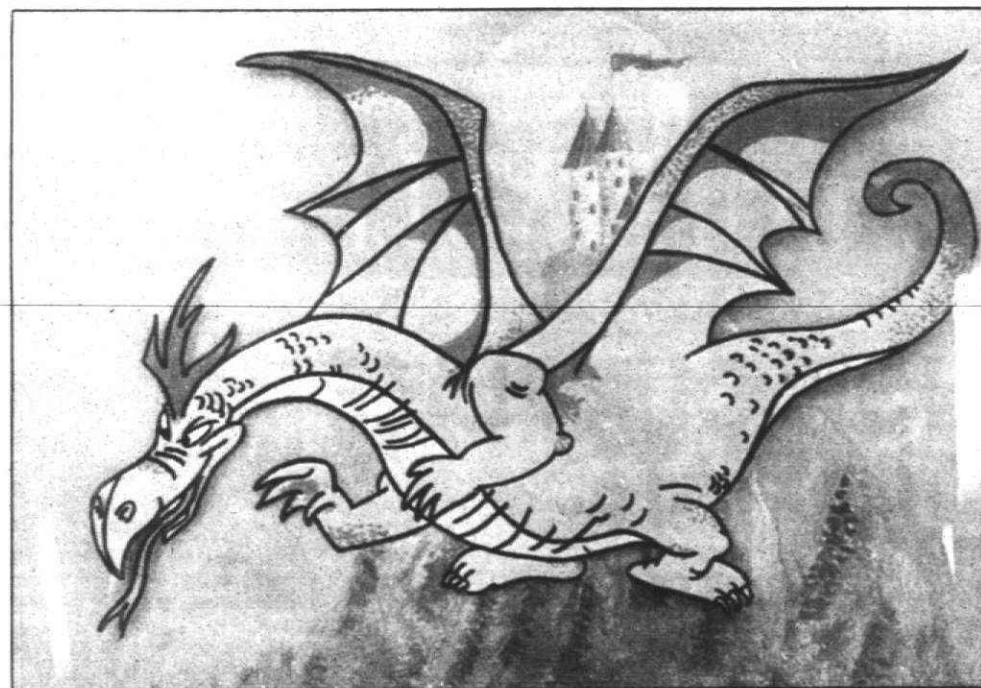

Beside developing drawing skills and techniques in a variety of media, the key to becoming an artist is "learning to look, learning to study. So artists look at everything with the idea, 'how would I paint that?'"

Classes at the Art Store and More are divided into three age groups: 6-9 years old, 10-14, and people 15 and older. Classes are offered pay-as-you-go. The instructors are professional artists. Messing handpicks them. Classes are offered days and evenings. Students receive a discount for supplies bought in the store, and custom framing.

Hours for the exhibit at the library are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

One key example of the arts commission's successes over the past decade is the Livonia Arts and Crafts Festival. "We've seen it grow from a little show that started 17 years ago in front of the old city hall to a show of statewide caliber that we moved to Greenmead in the mid-80s, in conjunction with the Livonia Historical Commission, because more space was needed. This year, we had 200 exhibitors."

The Music Under the Stars summer concert series and periodic Livonia Civic Center Library art workshops for artists, art store operators and fund-raising chairmen are other success stories.

The arts are in the bloodline at the Kachnowski house. He's an extrovert. His wife, Rose, is an pianist and now the Livonia Symphony's marketing VP. Their six kids are all involved in the arts.

Former Mayor Ed McNamara named Kachnowski to the Livonia Historical Commission in 1976, the year he chaired Livonia's bicentennial celebration. That exciting year also saw him move from classroom teaching into community education.

Kachnowski helped the historical commission create the American Craft Show at Greenmead seven years ago while an arts commissioner. "When we were asked for help for historical things, he's always been there," said Sue Daniel, who has chaired the historical commission since 1983.

Mayor McNamara named Kachnowski to the arts commission in 1982. Mayor Bob Bennett reappointed him twice.

"Dan has always been a concerned and involved performer, not

■ 'Being an old history teacher, I got to appreciate the community I moved to better. I also got a chance to work with history outside the classroom and to be a part of history in the making. As for the arts, it was a great feeling to be part of a very active organization that brought culture to the community — and to see the smiles on people's faces at everything from summer concerts and to library events. That was the neat part — the people.'

one of those who just sit back and votes yes or no but who has put a hands-on approach to his involvement," Bennett said. "He's been a valuable person on both commissions he has served on. I, for one, am going to miss having him on the arts commission."

A 1976 winner of the Allied American Veterans Livonia Chapter Americanism Award, Kachnowski said stepping aside as a civic activist after these years would be easy. "It's a sad thing to have to do. But sometimes you have to make changes in your life. If something's going to suffer, it's just not fair not to change. If you want to do a halfway decent job and still survive, you have to make some adjustments."

The last 17 years have been a wild ride, but Kachnowski has loved every dip and climb. "Being an old history teacher, I got to appreciate the community I moved to better. I also got a chance to work with history outside the classroom and to be a part of history in the making."

"As for the arts, it was a great feeling to be part of a very active organization that brought culture to the community — and to see the smiles on people's faces at everything from summer concerts and to library events. That was the neat part — the people."

His dream is one the arts commission has often talked about: to have a bandshell and an arts/historical museum on the civic center grounds. "I have a feeling it's going to happen but probably not in the near future," he said.

Michigan and Livonia art, and especially student art, might fill the museum. "There's quite a quality art program in the Livonia schools. I'm sure teachers and students would appreciate more space to show more work over a longer period of time."

The museum also could feature historical artifacts that don't fit in at Greenmead.

Sweet expectations: Student artist Andrea Wilcox, 9, of Livonia, rendered this pen and ink hummingbird.

Talking House delivers sales pitch

■ Ever been out driving around, looking at houses for sale, only to find an interesting one and wishing you could hear the specifics then and there, before pursuing it any further? Now you can through a different kind of marketing approach.

By Sue Buck
STAFF WRITER

Some houses are pitching their own features via a wall-outlet transmitter called a Talking House.

Tom Lipinski of Chamberlain Realtors in West Bloomfield has installed the 100-milliwatt transmitters at area houses that are for sale.

"Imagine being able to learn everything you want to know about a house that is for sale just by driving up in front of that house," Lipinski said.

"A Lipinski Talking House lets you do just that. It's an innovative marketing strategy that is getting rave reviews."

Shopping is easy. Simply drive up and tune your car radio to the station indicated on the sign and listen to a 90-second recorded message about the two styles of pitches, one where the house does the talking. "Hi, I'm a somewhat larger house than I appear from the street because I have 2,300 square feet of living area. Every room has been completely updated. Some of my special features include..." or a style where the agent does a straightforward sell.

Lipinski prefers the straightforward approach but admits that he sometimes feels like a radio announcer because he first writes a script and then records and times the message, adding or subtracting words as needed.

Station 1610 on the AM dial seems to work best for his messages. "I'm still messaging this avenue," Lipinski said. "I can do more selling. I can talk about the beauty of a room, that the house is great for kids and discuss the price, school system, home warranty, as many things as I can."

Listen up: Drive up to a Talking House-equipped home that's for sale — and hear all about it.

He also plans a written information sheet nearby.

Lipinski began researching the marketing strategy several months ago through trade journals.

Sign calls have doubled, Lipinski says, since using this innovative selling strategy. "Two recent sales can be attributed to buyers who have 'tuned in.' I probably would never have met these people if it wasn't for my Talking House."

Sometimes, three cars line up at a time, waiting to hear the sales pitch, he said.

The transmitter requires no FCC operator license, and the message is broadcast clearly.

This strategy isn't for every house, Lipinski said, but it can give an added boost to houses that might be a "difficult sell" because they might be on a busy street, for example, and some buyers automatically scratch this kind of house off their list.

The Talking House method recently helped sell a Franklin house fitting this description, Lipinski said.

Fatih Tanrisever and wife Madeilyn Hebel are hoping their Talking House will help them sell their $120,000 West Bloomfield house, which has been on the market for more than three months.

"I notice a number of cars slowing down to listen to the message," Tanrisever said. "If it sells our house, we will probably swear by it."

Some may call it a gimmick. But this method allows sellers to use more than curb appeal, Tanrisever said.

"It's like being on the job 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Lipinski said.

Local builders salute their own

Most builders will tell you that they don't work in a vacuum. They share ideas and do what they can to promote the industry as a whole. Those who are successful receive special recognition from their peers.

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, the third largest, nationally, in terms of numbers with about 2,000 members, annually honors its own who give exceptional service to the industry and the professional organization.

Builders, developers, contractors, suppliers, property managers and real estate agents belong to the Farmington Hills-based association, which was founded in 1928.

"The (association's) purpose is to promote home ownership, to enhance and advance home ownership," said Irvin H. Yackness, BASM executive vice president.

Committees of past presidents and previous award recipients reviewed nominations from the general membership, then made selections. Several factors guided their deliberations.

"Community service is one, relationship to other members of the association, suppliers, contractors and customers, reputation for integrity, degree of confidence which they approach their work," Yackness said.

"They were looking for a person who wasn't just concerned about advancement of their own personal business, but the industry as a whole, the association," Yackness said.

This year's honorees:

Maybe it shouldn't be too surprising that Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, a Bloomfield Hills resident, was selected Builder of the Year by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

After all, he's a third generation builder and co-chairman of the Holtzman & Silverman Companies, headquartered in Farmington Hills, one of the most prolific residential building operations in the nation.

But Silverman, 38, has been so busy with projects under construction in Rochester (Stony Pointe Village), Bloomfield Hills (Cranbrook Chase) and Clarkston (Lake Waldron Village) and planning others in Walled Lake, Novi and South Lyon, that he was surprised to learn of his selection. And honored.

"Every day, three things keep me motivated," he said.

"One is the constant opportunity to meet new, interesting people in this business — specialists, clients, customers, staff members.

"Number two is competitive challenges. You're always training to have an ability to succeed in the customer's best interest and in our company's best interest.

"Third is constant creative opportunities in architecture, land planning, technical solutions and ... I even get to spend a little time on what I learned in school on financing. That's always been one of the areas I really enjoy."

Silverman has been around the building scene most of his life.

"My grandfather, Nathan, began taking me to project sites when I was very young," Silverman said. "He let me walk around and pick up nails."

"My dad, Gilbert, would take me to sites. I began working in my early teens. I was a project laborer and did everything from reclaiming brick to off-loading trucks. I did that for five summers."

Silverman studied business at the University of California at Berkeley and while there, fell in love with the restaurant business. However, instead of serving up superb cuisine out West, he decided to help his mother, Geraldine Goodman, launch Wells Cargo, a table service retail operation, here.

Buzz's father recruited him to join his building company a couple of years later and, after four years, Silverman teamed with Jonathan Holtzman to form their own company. The rest, as the saying goes, is history.

Hall of famer: Gerald Kosmenschky

The law's loss was building's gain in Gerald Kosmenschky's case.

Kosmenschky, 64, an Orchard Lake resident, a former builder and now a property manager, is this year's inductee into the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan Hall of Fame.

"I had visions of becoming a lawyer, but I didn't like to argue much, so I became a builder," he said. "I love it. I wouldn't do anything differently."

Kosmenschky made his building mark in downriver communities. He's the rare bird who's constructed houses, apartments, small office buildings and retail strip centers since starting his own business in 1957.

Kosmenschky considered himself a small-potatoes kind of guy who built about 40 houses in a peak year, usually on scattered lots and selling for moderate to low prices.

He also concedes to being a bit im-

Staying involved: Orchard Lake resident Gerald Kosmenschky, a former builder and now a property manager, has been active in virtually all phases of building during a career that has spanned more than 40 years.

Top developer: Herbert Lawson

It's a lot easier and less risky to follow the pack than to take a leadership role.

Herbert Lawson, president of Windham Realty Group in West Bloomfield and BASM's Developer of the Year, has been among the front-runners when it comes to redeveloping older, residential subdivisions.

Lawson served as subdivision manager for Victoria Park in Detroit, a neighborhood renaissance of 157 new houses. He's also planning Brittany Place, a subdivision of up to 100 new houses in Inkster.

Where others perceive problems and drawbacks working in inner cities and suburbs with image problems, Lawson sees potential.

"People said it wasn't going to happen, no way," he said of Victoria Park. "You had to see what could be done, not what was there. Now, everyone wants to get on the train.

"I envision now that people can see there's a market. Builders and developers will see it's a viable market, strong market, with pent-up demand."

Tax incentives and cheap land, used to prime the pump in Victoria Park, gradually will give way to the economics of supply and demand as more developers and builders turn to recycling land, Lawson predicted.

His plan for Victoria Park contained the same elements as other projects in upscale western Wayne and Oakland County communities.

"With cul-de-sacs, boulevard entrances, berms and a fence around the entire development, we made something so attractive it was an overwhelming success," Lawson said.

Guiding philosophy: "You're only as good as your last successful development ... That's why it's so critical you pick the correct spot," says Herbert Lawson, president of Windham Realty Group in West Bloomfield.

pulsive, too, recalling the time he jumped into apartment construction with a 80-unit project rather than proceeding more prudently by going smaller and slower with an initial effort.

"For years, years and years, everyone said diversify economically so you could build a base for retirement," he said. "I can see why guys don't diversify today — everything is overbuilt."

A recession in the early 1980s finally convinced Kosmetsky to stop residential building. "It took until '85 to clear up all my lots. I had over 30 years of it and felt that was enough," he said. But he continues to build small commercial projects when the right opportunities arise.

Now, Kosmetsky spends most of his work time managing several hundred apartments and a handful of commercial properties he owns in Wyandotte and Southgate.

Kosmetsky also continues to serve professional building associations at the local, state and national levels. He was BASM president in 1975 and this year earned Spike of the Year designation for recruiting new members.

Although he's enjoyed his building career immensely, Kosmetsky isn't one to wax nostalgically about the good old days. "You get better construction today, much better house for the money," he said. "Communities were more cooperative back then and you didn't need as many permits and environmental studies as today."

So it was more fun, right? "Hell no," he said. "I worked too damn hard. I worked six and a half, seven days a week from six in the morning to seven or eight at night. Then I was on the phone until 10 to get guys (workers) out for the next morning."

Now, he enjoys spending time with his granddaughter, Melissa, because he was rarely available for daughter Lisa.

Kosmetsky said it was easy for him to go into business for himself after working for other builders for about seven years.

"I really had nothing to lose," he said. "I had a lot of ambition and neither my wife, Gail, nor I came from families of means. I said I wanted to go into business, she said, fine. We scraped all our money together and started building scattered houses."

Kosmetsky views his biggest accomplishment as never growing so big, so fast that he was hurt financially.

His hobbies are golf, fishing and politics.

Politics for someone who doesn't like to argue? "I don't have to do that for a living," Kosmetsky said.

"It's important to support the industry that supports you," he said of his BASM involvement. "All of our efforts are to the betterment of the home building industry, be it more modern techniques, lobbying for a more favorable market, fairer taxes."

"The more members we have, the more clout we have with legislators," he said.

Robert Brody, a Bloomfield Hills developer/building, and a contemporary of Kosmetsky, hailed his selection.

"He's a good thinker, a good speaker, a very pleasant personality, plus the fact he's worked hard for the industry," Brody said. "He does an outstanding job recruiting (BASM) members. He's a good businessman, very successful."

Donald VanEvery, a Rochester Hills developer, a former BASM president and a Hall of Famer, himself, also praised Kosmetsky.

"I've known him for 30 years or more and found him to be a gentleman, first of all, honorable," VanEvery said. "He's certainly been dedicated. He's held national, state and local (building) offices."

"He's been a great contributor continually," VanEvery said. "That's what it takes to get into the Hall of Fame. He really gets involved and puts his best into it."

Developers essentially take the risk of finding land, testing land for building appropriateness, devising a site plan, obtaining necessary governmental approvals, installing sewers, roads and water lines, then either finding builders or building themselves on individual lots.

City officials, Standard Federal Bank and other builder participants made Victoria Park go, Lawson said. He was the subdivision development manager.

"Actually, the success of a development is determined before a shovel goes into the ground — how you plan, lay out a subdivision," he said.

He still enjoys the business 28 years after getting started with his wife, Carol. They bought eight houses in various stages of completion while looking for a place to live themselves.

Lawson has carved a niche bringing projects to conclusions that have stalled due to financing or builder problems.

But he doesn't focus exclusively on lost causes and redevelopments. He put together Autumn Ridge, West Bloomfield and Riverbridge in Novi — both Homearama sites — and currently has projects on the drawing board in Novi, Wixom and Jackson County.

"In the building business and development business, there's a great amount of risk," Lawson said. "It's not like a person opens a business like retail and establishes clients. In effect, you put yourself out of business when you finish a development."

"You're only as good as your last successful development," he said. "You have to be successful every time you do something. That's why it's so critical you pick the correct spot."

Lawson, 50, a Bloomfield Hills resident, enjoys skiing, tennis and travel. He and Carol are parents to Steven and Richard.

some colleagues the wrong way. But he draws his share of compliments.

"I would say he's honest, hard working, forward thinking, somewhat of an innovator," said Joseph Dresner, a former developer and now a property manager in Southfield. "He does good work. He's a good businessman."

"I know he's done a great job in the Novi area," said Bernard Gleiberman, a West Bloomfield developer/building. "Whenever I've dealt with him, I've had good feelings. He's a remarkable marketing person."

"He has a great deal of competence in what he does," said Irvin H. Yackness, executive director for BASM. "He knows how to address problems."

"He's unassuming, which to me, is always a very redeeming quality in successful people," Yackness said. "He's been very active with the association. He's served as president, active on committees, Homearamas."

E. James Erwin III of Birmingham has joined Southfield-based Labadie Capital Management as a shareholder and executive vice president and CFO. He previously held executive posts at Republic Bank, Bloomfield Hills, and Northern Trust Co., Chicago.

Michael Valent of Bloomfield Village has joined Warren-based Lintas Campbell-Ewald as senior vice president, group management supervisor. He oversees the GMAC, Delta, Kelly services and Delco Electronics accounts as well as GM Corporate projects. He previously worked with D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, Bloomfield Hills.

Robert Brody, president of the Brody Group in Bloomfield Hills, was honored for service to the apartment industry; Susan Tobin of West Bloomfield for service to the Women's Forum; and Garry A. Carley, executive vice president of Standard Federal Bank in Troy, for service to the housing industry.

Lester Burton, president of Burton-Share in Birmingham, it through in one of his favorite hobbies, tennis, and he carries it through in business.

"Buzz works best when he can focus in on one area at a time," Holtzman said. "Focusing on single family allows him to be good in his area just like I've been good with multi-family. That's the nature of business today — focusing on an area of expertise," Holtzman said.

Those who know Silverman well mention his drive to succeed. "I think he's a competitor," Holtzman said. "He likes competition. He likes to win. He carries troit and helping raise funds for a cancer research center at the University of Michigan.

Silverman also enjoys coaching baseball and soccer, and playing tennis. He and wife, Jan, are parents to Jessica, Lesley and Michael.

"I have to give special thanks to my wife and kids for keeping me balanced," he said.

"I had no idea I'd be doing this today. I wanted to be successful and neither my wife, Gail, nor I came from families of means. I said I wanted to go into business, she said, fine. We scraped all our money together and started building scattered houses."

Kosmetsky views his biggest accomplishment as never growing so big, so fast that he was hurt financially.

His hobbies are golf, fishing and politics.

Politics for someone who doesn't like to argue? "I don't have to do that for a living," Kosmetsky said.

"He's a good thinker, a good speaker, a very pleasant personality, plus the fact he's worked hard for the industry," Brody said. "He does an outstanding job recruiting (BASM) members. He's a good businessman, very successful."

Donald VanEvery, a Rochester Hills developer, a former BASM president and a Hall of Famer, himself, also praised Kosmetsky.

"I've known him for 30 years or more and found him to be a gentleman, first of all, honorable," VanEvery said. "He's certainly been dedicated. He's held national, state and local (building) offices."

"He's been a great contributor continually," VanEvery said. "That's what it takes to get into the Hall of Fame. He really gets involved and puts his best into it."

Learn short-cuts to landing college financial aid

With the advent of the college financial aid season just weeks away, parents and students alike understand the importance of finding and applying for financial aid and scholarships.

Terry Wilfong, creator and executive producer of "The Complete Guide To Financing College," a 98-minute comprehensive videotape on the whole financial aid process, holds financial aid seminars in Livonia Dec. 2 and in Troy Dec. 7.

The seminars will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2, at the Holiday Inn in Livonia, and 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 7, at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

After years of research and development, Wilfong, who is assistant professor at the Fresno branch of California State University and primary facilitator for college and financial aid scholarship planning, has created the most complete and extensive financial aid seminar and instructional video on how to finance college education.

In both his seminar and video, he offers advice on gaining admission to college and financing college education through a number of options.

With college costs continuing to rise, some as much as 25 percent annually, thousands of students each year are sent to college without obtaining the amount of financial aid available to them. Of $28 billion available in public and private money, millions of dollars in financial aid, grants and scholarships continue to go unclaimed every year.

The main reason for this oversight, Wilfong says, is simply that the public is ill-informed on the most effective ways to obtain financial aid and misinformed about the criteria needed to gain a fair share of available money.

Since college financing is based on a number of factors, even parents with household incomes in excess of $100,000 have the ability to obtain financial aid and scholarships.

For seminar registration, call 1-800-269-1153. The cost of the seminar is $99 and includes The Complete Guide To Financing College video with companion workbook and a free Peterson's Scholarship Search. There is a 100-percent money-back guarantee on the seminar if you are not satisfied.

To order the videotape, call 1-800-279-3000 Ext. P11 or send a check or money order for $65 (includes shipping and handling) to: Financing College, P.O. Box 2665, Mission KS 66201.

There is a 30-day money-back guarantee on all services. Seating for the seminar is limited to the first 100 families per location.

KNOW YOUR MARKET
In a lagging economy, putting your advertising dollars in the right place is more important than ever.

The Hopkins Group, a Farmington Hills-based advertising and marketing company, says analyze your needs before jumping into an advertising program that may not be right for your business.

"If you do the proper marketing up front, you'll fire rifle shots, not shotgun blasts," says John Hopkins, president, who started the company in 1990.

Before deciding how to advertise, consider the following:

— Where is your market?
— How is your budget?

— What is your product or service?
— What is your competitive advantage?

— What is your budget?

— What is your budget?

MARKETPLACE

When should you advertise? Hopkins, a Bloomfield Hills resident, says his company's niche is bringing directed, integrated advertising to clients who aren't corporate giants. Integrated advertising, which combines the use of print and broadcast ads, database marketing and direct mail, kicks in after conducting market research. This broad-based advertising method works for all businesses — from health care to packaged goods and distribution, Hopkins said.

"Advertising should be a calculated business investment, not an expense. Research gives the client clear vision of the marketplace," he said.

The company's clients include Botsford General Hospital, Farmington Hills, University of Michigan Medical Center Emergency Center, Ann Arbor, Topline Foods, Detroit, and Broner, Troy. For information, call The Hopkins Group at 553-0160.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE
Physical Therapist, Inc. and Injury Reduction Technology, Inc. (INRTEK) have joined forces to offer an objective way to measure an employee's physical strength. Computerized strength assessment provides employers with an inexpensive way to match a worker's physical strength to the demands of the job.

Tests are conducted by Physical Therapist, a provider of outpatient therapy, and interpreted by INRTEK, the employer gets test results the following day. An accurately tested worker, properly matched to his job, is 14 times less likely to be injured at work than an untested employee, according to Physical Therapist, whose offices are in Redford Township and Farmington Hills. Since 1982, Ohio-based INRTEK has interpreted more than 15,000 tests on injured and non-injured workers. Assessment is done for new workers and employees returning to work after injury or illness. Major muscle groups in the back, legs and shoulders are tested for strength using computerized isokinetic test equipment. The technique is within the guidelines of Americans with Disabilities Act.

Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall offers holiday fun and shopping

By Susan B. Tauber
Special Writer

Northville boasts of a place where people can browse for crafts made by 45 artisans, enjoy a seven-course Italian dinner and watch a murder mystery, all without having to go outside from one establishment to the next.

This entertaining place is Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall on East Main Street.

Established in 1979 as a restaurant, owners Toni and John Genitti have changed the format and added adjoining buildings to create an entertainment and gift center that attracts hordes of people from Michigan and other states as well as local diners and theatergoers.

Cathy McLeod is Genitti's manager and group and tour director. She said the restaurant and theater has special plans for this year's holiday season, which began this month.

"We're offering two different plays. 'Mistletoe Madness' is presented in the restaurant while our customers dine. It's a murder mystery comedy that entertains.

Toys aren't just for children anymore

By Susan B. Tauber
Special Writer

Adults are like children. They want to have their toys, too. Toys, however, have different meanings for adults. They can be things to play with, just as they are for children, or they can be things that make them happy — like personal care items, things for their office or tickets to far-off places. Whatever their shape or size, toys make terrific adult gifts. Summit Travel has several suggestions for gifts of travel. "These can range from one-day excursions to several day jaunts," said Gail Shapiro, president of Summit Travel in Farmington Hills.

Among the list she compiled, Shapiro suggested airplane tickets for a one-day shopping trip to New York City. "What a wonderful gift this would be for someone who loves to shop. Fly in to New York for one day's shopping; fly home that night. This gift would cost from $125 for airplane tickets," she said.

For the theater buff, Shapiro suggested train tickets and hotel accommodations to Toronto. These make a great gift, starting at less than $300 per person.

If warmer weather suits the person who is receiving the gift, Shapiro said she can book tickets to Florida from $149 a person, to Mexico from $299 a person or to Cancun for three days from under $300 a person.

"Cruises are the hot sellers now," she said. "There is a cruise to fit everyone's interests, whether that is to travel alone, as a couple or with a family." The most popular cruise spots are to the Caribbean Islands and to Mexico.

For shoppers whose ideas of toys are more concrete, The Sharper Image stores in Novi and in Troy have a varied and unusual selection. Keith Thompson, manager of the Troy store in The Somerset Collection, said ideas are numerous and the price spread is immense. "We have adults 'toys' ranging from $12 to thousands of dollars. People really should come in just to see the unusual things we have in stock. Even if they don't see something they want to give as a gift, they probably will find something for themselves."

When asked for suggestions for adult toys, Thompson immediately thought of massagers. "These are something people would like to have but usually won't buy for themselves," he explained. "We have

Hudson's 1993 holiday exhibit will feature an adaptation of Carlo Collodi's version of "The Adventures of Pinocchio," the exhibit will consist of over 100 figures, most of them animated, which will magically come to life in the 11,000-square-foot exhibit hall. The display will be open to the public at no charge from Friday, November 26 through Friday, December 24, 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and Sunday from 11 a.m.-6 p.m.

Visitors to Hudson's Northland lower level exhibit hall will discover an Italian land of enchantment complete with Pinocchio and his father, Geppetto. Theatrical designer Jack Barkla and a team of talented artisans have created the tale in a series of 20 vignettes to depict the well-loved tale.

Guests will be able to watch as the animated Pinocchio comes to life and see his nose grow in length when he tells tall tales. Jack Edwards, who is known for his work with the Gunthrie Theater, has designed all of the characters' costumes.

Hudson's holiday exhibit is a traditional gift to the community. For additional information concerning the Pinocchio exhibit, customers may call 313-442-6048.

Hi-tech music adds harmony to the season

By Susan B. Tauber
Special Writer

"Everyone loves music. It doesn't matter what kind."

That's what Sandy Bean says about gifts of music. She thinks it is the best gift one person can give another. Bean is vice president of advertising at Harmony House. It has 37 stores in Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

Someone else who believes in the gift of music is Tim Hoy. He is president and owner of Hammell Music stores in Livonia, Clawson and Utica.

While Bean and Hoy sell different kinds of music, they say giving a gift of music is what counts.

"It really is the universal language," Bean added. She suggested several new tapes and disks (CDs) for shoppers to consider for gifts this holiday season. "Box sets make wonderful gifts," Bean said. "There are several new ones available this holiday season."

These include the first box set of Janice Joplin's music and sets of Johnny Mathis, Metallica, Frank Sinatra, Diana Ross, Police, Hissville USA II from 1972-92, Led Zeppelin and Andrew Lloyd Webber.

There also are new Christmas recordings that Bean highly recommends. There are holiday songs performed by Winona Judd, Michael Crawford, Johnny Mathis, Vince Gill, Aaron Neville of The Neville Brothers and Boys 2 Men.

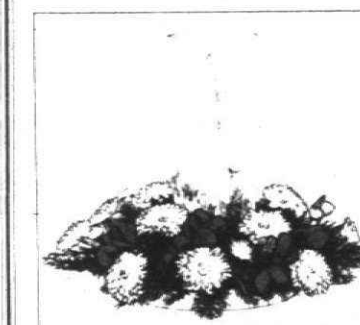

There's also a new sound track of "The Nutcracker" Ballet that Bean expects to sell well.

Since many gifts are purchased for children, Bean had several suggestions for them. New releases include CDs and tapes of Barney, a new favorite of the preschool crowd; a release by the TV series "Full House" twins, and the soundtracks to the movies, "Aladdin," Beauty and the Beast and "The Little Mermaid."

There are some children's favorites that continue to sell year after year. These include ones by Alvin and the Chipmunks, John Denver and the Muppets and Nat King Cole singing with children.

Hammell Music offers gifts of music on another scale. "We offer various types of pianos and other musical instruments, printed music, teaching supplies and

Celebrate with coffee this season

By Lori Jones
Special Writer

The coffee generation is back and more diverse than ever. Aficionados of the drink are into decaf and regular, espressos and cappuccinos, flavored and plain. Coffee houses, hailing back to the beatnik generation, have grown up, opening throughout the metro area. Coffee shops have always been with us.

Elliot Lewkow, of West Bloomfield's Piacere Michigan, an espresso and cappuccino distributor based in California, says that "As consumption of alcohol has waned, coffee consumption has gone up proportionately."

The Midwest, he says, was a prime market for Piacere, the only maker of commercial espresso machines in the United States. After four months in Michigan, Piacere is currently in 14 Michigan counties.

One of the advantages Lewkow sees to espressos and cappuccinos is that they are a cross-generational beverage. When it comes to drinks other than staples like milk or pop, "espresso and cappuccino are one of the few things that parents and teens enjoy equally," he says.

Since Lewkow has been in Michigan, one of the largest parts of his job has been education. He says that espresso is "almost an elixir, the result of a sophisticated roasting and blending of beans." It is rare to find the same tasting espresso in coffee houses because the blender will generally use beans to their taste from different coffee-growing regions of the world.

Where cappuccino is concerned, he says that people often have misconceptions about what the drink is. In its purest form, it is one-third espresso, one-third steamed milk and one-third frothed milk. That's it. "Everything starts with espresso," Lewkow says.

He offers up a recipe for one of his simple favorites, a semi-freddo: For one serving, use one scoop of your favorite ice cream. Pour two shots of hot espresso over it. Add whipped cream and if you like, sprinkle with cinnamon or vanilla cinnamon on top.

What does it take to satisfy your coffee cravings in your own home, without having to travel out every time you want something a little more special than run-of-the-mill canned coffee? Not much. One beauty of the drink is that it is simple to make wonderful coffees in your kitchen without spending a lot of money.

Kathy Roy, owner of the Gloria Jean's Gourmet Coffee franchise at the Somerset Collection in Troy, says the only thing you need for wonderful coffee is a coffee maker and great coffee. Most people already have coffee makers in their homes. If you want to purchase whole beans, home coffee grinders are on the market. Gloria Jean's shop offers one for $21.99 with a lifetime warranty—a small expense for a lifetime of terrific java. With a great blend, she says that tap water is sufficient because the flavor is in the bean.

Roy declares hazelnut her favorite coffee flavor and it comes in both regular and decaffeinated at Gloria Jean's. The shop offers 67 different varieties of coffee so there is something for every taste. At 8.99 a pound, it's more expensive than grocery store brands, but very reasonable for a special treat to yourself or a coffee-lover you know.

When it comes to espresso and cappuccino machines, Gloria Jean's sells them in prices ranging from $99.99 for a Krups model to the Rolls Royce of espresso machines, La Pavoni, the most expensive model ringing in at $750.00. Coffee doesn't have to be an expensive habit, after all.

One of the recipes that Roy recommends from the shop is called a "Gloria Jean's Chiller." It is like an iced cappuccino, but the Chiller is an instant drink so that you do not have to own an espresso machine to make it. The concentrate is available for $13.99 for 12 ounces and $21.99 for 32 ounces. Made up of espresso and sugar, the only thing you have to do at home is mix it with cold milk, add whipped cream and chocolate or other garnish of your choice and you have a festive non-alcoholic holiday drink.

Whether it is for yourself or a business colleague, a child's teacher or anyone else on your list, Roy does not think you can go wrong with a gift of coffee.

"It's not too personal but almost everyone enjoys it," she says. She suggests it as an alternative to the traditional bottles of wine and liquor given during the holidays. With gift sets beginning at less than $10, it is easy to treat yourself or anyone on your list in a price range you can afford.

Anyone who has been in a mall in Oakland or Wayne County is familiar with The Coffee Beanery, a chain of coffee stores offering everything from beans to mugs to thermoses to coffee machines of different types. There are eleven scattered throughout the two counties and 15 in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Kelli Brady, a spokesperson for The Coffee Beanery, cites hazelnut as a favored flavor this time of year. Like Roy of Gloria Jean's, it is Brady's personal favorite also.

The Coffee Beanery sells a variety of flavors like Irish Cream, Swiss Mocha Almond and Chocolate Raspberry. Regular and decaffeinated coffees are offered at an average of $8.99 per pound for regular and $10.99 for decaf. The Coffee Beanery's Swiss water processing

Holiday videos make classic gifts

With the increasing popularity of stay-at-home entertainment, nearly everyone has at least one VCR. People enjoy the convenience of having the refrigerator close by and a pause button on the remote for bathroom breaks, without missing a thread of the plot!

This year, why not buy everyone on your list their favorite movie? It's a gift that's sure to be a hit, and it can be enjoyed over and over again. You probably have a good idea of your recipient's movie tastes, but here are some suggestions from local video experts!

Blockbuster Video's Top Ten Holiday Classics:

1. It's A Wonderful Life
2. A Christmas Carol
3. Dr. Seuss: How the Grinch Stole Christmas
4. Frosty's Winter Wonderland
5. Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer
6. Year Without a Santa Claus
7. Miracle on 34th Street
8. White Christmas
9. A Christmas Story
10. Christmas Vacation

You'll also find a variety of exercise, instruction, contemporary and horror videos that will suit even the most finicky viewers on your gift list.

VideoMax, located at 14 1/2 and Woodward, in Birmingham, has over 10,000 movies under its roof. You can special order classics in time for the holidays, or choose from foreign film, new releases and "B" rated videos, not shown at the theater.

During the holidays, VideoMax usually has a "Buy 2, get 1 free" video sale. Another option is to buy gift certificates, in $10, $20 and $50 denominations, which are applicable toward video rentals.

VideoMax employee, Simon Murad, predicts that among children's favorites will be the Winnie the Pooh Collection, which includes a plush recreation of one of the beloved story characters and a video of Pooh's classic adventures ($15.99). With Aladdin and Barney videos are close behind, as forecasted kid's favorites.

If your looking for a more unconventional idea, gather up your old 8mm films and have them made into a video that will be cherished by its recipient. Videos by Rocky Mccoll in Westland offer this special service and more. "We do movies of parents, grandchildren, brothers and sisters from 8mm films that their parents have taken," says Mccoll.

everyone," she said. "It has such characters in it as masseuse Samuel Toner and entertainer Wayne Fig. It involves the audience."

The play at Genitti's Little Theatre offers an evening of music, murder and fun. "Murder at the Follies" tries to solve the mystery of who is killing Hollywood's radio stars back in 1942. Suspects include anyone in the theater.

"The restaurant is open every night during the holidays," said McLeod. "We present the play in the theater almost every night."

McLeod explained Genitti's will present a play on open dates for corporate and private parties.

"Genitti's is really a fun place," she added. "Our customers wear casual attire, visit our year-round gift shop, dine in our restaurant in which nothing matches, drink water from mason jars and have a really good time."

The restaurant's famous seven-course dinner includes homemade soup, pasta, antipasto salad, Italian sausage, baked chicken, Italian steak (pork) and cannoli's for $24.95 per person. Genitti's

Its Saturday Lunch Buffet has special prices for adults and children. Genitti's Marketplace features a variety of crafts.

Among the types of work offered are folk art, wood tole painting, wooden house villages, time and primitive art, pierced and cut lamp shades, Southwest ceramics, blue sponge pottery, porcelain dolls and fence post figures.

History is an important part of Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall. The restaurant is a former "ma and pa grocery," according to McLeod. The restaurant has grown from seating 40 to a dining area with four different rooms, two on upper and lower levels.

The Little Theatre, as it is named, is in a former men's clothing store. The recently renovated theatre is redone in the style of the Northville Opera House, which opened in 1897.

The play in the restaurant can be seen several different times. Call (313) 349-0522 for specific times and dates.

Brady says that the stores do a large corporate business during the holidays, with gift sets ranging from $4.25 to $16.99. A set that features the store's own Grindmaster Cafe' Mill and a quarter pound each of its special Beanery Blend and Vanilla Nut Cream beans sells for $24.99.

For your in-home gourmet coffee shop, the Cafe' Mill can be purchased for $19.99 and prices for espresso machines at The Coffee Beanery range from $49.99 to $399.99. It just depends on how much espresso you think you will be making and how well you want to treat yourself.

The Coffee Beanery's Iced Mocha Mint is a refreshing, festive coffee-based drink that you can enjoy yourself or make with loved ones.

Make one pot of Beanery Blend coffee - let cool to room temperature. Add 3/4 cup chocolate syrup and 1/4 tsp. peppermint extract. Pour into cups and garnish with whipped cream. Serves six.

"Some I've done date back to the 50s. We enhance them by adding music in the background. I run the film on VHS so they can sit around especially at Christmas time and relive childhood memories."

Mecoli, who runs the business with his partner, Charlie Brown, says that there's a tremendous amount of 8mm and Super 8 movies from the 1950s and '60s just lying around in shoe boxes, closets and attics. In fact, he says he's done movies over 50 years old with pleasing results.

Mecoli says that the cost depends upon the time spent editing and the amount of film footage. He estimates that 50 ft. of film runs 5 minutes, but that most people assembled film onto one reel. This being the case, 200 ft., or 15 minutes VHS time will cost you roughly $20, including the tape. For only $5 more, Mecoli will dub in background music and titles (no limit on the length!).

"Larger video production companies charge much more. I'm retired and I love to do this," says Mecoli, who is also a video photographer, specializing in weddings. "I enjoy this, it's a lot of fun!"

No matter what your preference, a video is a gift with vision!

Holidays are year-round at Christmas town

By Carole Strong
Special Writer

Stan Aldrich, developer extraordinaire, reigns over a new shopping-oriented magic kingdom in Orion Township—Olde World Canterbury Village and the Always Christmas Store.

Under Aldrich's direction, the historic Scripps farm complex with 13 original buildings (once the largest in Michigan) has been dramatically transformed into a year-round retail theme park. Replete with Old English touches, half-timbered architecture, interior oak paneling (from the original Lloyd's of London), stained glass, brick walkways and old world streetlights, even a clock tower. Open since October, the village is two-thirds complete with about a dozen shops offering unique merchandise from around the world, waiting to make its way onto or under your Christmas tree.

To stock the shops, Stan and his wife, Sue, combed Europe and Asia for two years, choosing giftware and Christmas decor that they liked personally. An enthusiastic Aldrich boasts there is something for everyone in regards to price and appeal. "We offer many unusual items that you will not see anywhere else in the area, a greater volume of items than in other stores and most at prices 25 percent lower because we're a direct importer."

It's hard to imagine that Aldrich's pride, the Always Christmas store, took shape from a 1930's cattle barn. Today, its majestic great hall with soaring wooden-trussed ceiling is hung with giant Christmas balls. Animated scenes on a mezzanine level vie for attention with a parade of theme decorated trees around the hall's perimeter, with more downstairs. Forty-five inspirational choices include blue and white, rainbow, jewel tones, Victorian, teddy bear, angel, children's, baby's first, circus and Santa—with adjoining display areas for the appropriate theme ornaments.

Typical ornament prices are about $4-8 for ornate glass, glittered, be-ribboned and hand-embroidered selections. There are literally thousands, most handmade, and overall pricing ranges from about $1-100. Especially elegant, in their own display, are the Italian hand-blown clear crystal globes with encapsulated ecree scenes, priced from $20-68, dependent on size.

Every artificial tree on display—there are well over 125—is for sale! Specialty items include a selection of stand-up Father Christmas dolls dressed in regal robes, priced $20-80. Large, character nutcrackers from Germany, at $126, include a Russian Czar and Navy the many series of Precious Moments; Snowbabies from department 56; enchanting mini-cottages and castles by Lilliput Lanes and David Winter. A fun display is the Enesco Small World Action Musicals. Press a button and animated animals or characters perform within a detailed set—a lighted Victorian Ferris wheel, trains traversing a mountain, mice making merry on a typewriter—little treasures priced from $60-500.

How about a thoughtful gift for Santa himself? In the holiday ceramic display, you'll find a hand-painted, sugarplum-decorated plate and mug for the big guy's milk and cookies, at $36 and $18, Admiral, all meticulously garbed.

For the collector on your list, look no farther. A collectibles room displays everything made by Enesco, including several different types of massagers, such as hand held, personal trainers, foot massagers and ones to use in the shower. The prices range from $12 up to $2,000."

Thompson says personal care items are popular every year for holiday gifts. Some of his favorite suggestions include the new Panasonic shaver, the sonic toothbrush and the snore controller. "Panasonic's new shaver has a fuzzy logic built into the razor so when someone shaves with it, it reads the contour of the person's face and skin," Thompson explained. "This is an extremely popular gift. It sells for $249," the manager added. The sonic toothbrush by Sonicare, which has a selling price of $149, makes a person feel like he or she just had a cleaning at the dentist's, according to Thompson. "We can't keep these items in stock, they sell so fast."

The snore controller sells for $59.95. The person using it wears it on a wrist. The item vibrates when the person snores. The vibration stirs the snorer so he or she will change positions, which often eliminates snoring.

Other personal gift suggestions are the motorized tie rack ($39.95) that takes up only six-inches of closet space; the Casio wristwatch with a built-in TV remote control ($69.95) which allows someone to change channels without having to hold a remote (handy while on the treadmill); gel-filled shoe insoles ($19.95) and FM radios that measure about a quarter inch by one inch ($39.95).

"We have several toys that people like for their office. This includes a new personal organizer by Psion. It costs $499.95 and is like a pocket size personal computer," Thompson explained. One of the most unusual gift ideas from The Sharper Image is a pair of TV glasses. These aren't glasses to wear while watching television. They are glasses with transmitters.

"I have one customer who wears them at Red Wings hockey games. He can watch the game while watching the replays on television through these special glasses," Thompson said. The price of these unusual glasses is $800.

music lessons. We also have a musical boutique that sells anything that has to do with music. If it has a musical motif, we have it," Hoy explained.

"The Yamaha Disklavier is the hottest new item we have," he said. "It is a piano with a computer but it really operates as four kinds of pianos." It can be an acoustic piano, replay recorded sessions, and also plays prerecorded discs by such notables as Peter Nero and Steve Allen "It is so sophisticated that you can hook it up to a piano, play notes, and the computer will print the music just as you played it," Hoy said.

The Yamaha Disklavier, available as an upright piano or a grand, prices range from $7,000 to $40,000. Digital pianos may not be new, but they're still popular.

Hoy highly recommends a student harp as a gift of music.

The harp's starting price is $2,500. "Hammell also proudly sells the traditional acoustic piano," Hoy added. "Whether a customer wants to purchase a more modern piano or a traditional one is a personal choice." For people who want to give a piano or other musical instrument but who shy away because of the prices, Hoy has a suggestion. "We rent just about any of our instruments," he said. "This is a great way to try an instrument to discover whether or not it's the one customers really want to own."

Take time to treat yourself this season

By Lori Jones
Special Writer

Think about your activities from January to October, throw in the months of November and December when your normal daily routines are multiplied by the demands of the holidays: shopping, gift-wrapping, food-preparing, house-decorating and party-giving or going. It's a recipe for stress and few people this time of year make it through the season without some frazzled feelings.

A gift to yourself of peace and pampering can be a great way to get through the holidays, lowering stress and helping you enjoy the season more.

One great way to pamper yourself is a short trip to your favorite salon or spa for a little extra pampering.

If you don't have a place that gives you the sense of health and well-being you need this time of year, give yourself the gift of a new experience. A professional massage, facial or manicure at a spa like Tamara Institut de Beaute in Farmington Hills is a wonderful way to treat yourself.

An expert gives the customer a relaxing and soothing facial at Tamara.

"I came to Tamara looking for a miracle cream and she told me that there was no such thing," says Elaine Stein of Farmington. "Tamara explained to me how important it is to take care of my skin and stay out of the sun. I gave her routine a try and loved the results. Years later, I'm getting facials every month and I know it works because people never believe my age when I tell them."

Tamara Friedman, the owner of the Institut, says that the word "spa" sometimes intimidates people who have never been to one before. "People call who have received gift certificates and express concern that they will not feel comfortable or won't "fit in," she says. "I was really leery before I came to Tamara. I thought only indulgent people got massages and was I wrong," says Suzanne Kelly of Roseville.

Whether you can only spare a few minutes or an entire day, there's something for everyone at Tamara. For women, men and teens, there are services and packages available in all price ranges. You can spend as little as $7.50 for a polish change or $12 for a hot oil manicure to any amount you want and can afford to spend. Take 15 minutes out of a crazy day and spend it in a massage chair or take an hour and get a soothing, stress-relieving massage by a male or female certified massage therapist. Kelly gets an hour-long massage twice a month.

"Between working, going to school, taking care of my son and being a wife, my massages help me unwind and deal with stress. The effects from them last for weeks," Kelly says.

The muted, soft mauves, low lighting and gentle instrumental music in the private rooms contribute to the relaxing massage experience. Clients begin face down on the heated table, body parts covered with blankets to retain warmth and ensure modesty. Beginning at the neck, and continuing on the feet and legs, gentle, kneading motions and modified acupressure techniques are combined to smooth away tight muscles in the body. After the client turns over, the process is repeated on the front of the body with special attention paid to the temples and forehead. All the movements of the therapist's hands are eased by the skin-softening lotions used at Tamara.

The spa is truly a full-service one, offering various types of manicures and facials, makeup, different body treatments or hair by the Institut's next door neighbor, Salon Kennice Bashar.

Pure relaxation - when do you need this feeling more than during the holidays? They also sell special packages that make wonderful gifts to special friends. "My first massage was one of the greatest gifts I've ever received," Kelly says.

Contact Tamara Institut de Beaute at 855-0474 or visit the spa at 35250 Northwestern Highway in the Courtyard Plaza for information, price lists or appointments.

Each year, MADD strongly endorses the red ribbon campaign, when supporters of driving sober tie red ribbons to antennas or door handles of their cars to send the message. Carol Nalepka of MADD says that the organization is selling sweatshirts this year that carry the sobering message, "If you're going to drink and drive tonight, kiss your mother good-bye." Sweatshirts are $18, proceeds to benefit MADD.

Last, but definitely not least on any list, are the children. Attending the annual tree lighting ceremony for the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center in Farmington Hills doesn't cost anything and will bring many happy returns for you in terms of "heartwarmers." The tree lighting is scheduled for Sunday, December 5, at 4:30 p.m.

Jackie Kelsay, community relations coordinator for the center, says that the staff, children and the community are invited to sing carols around the tree. "It's a wonderful way to kick off the holiday season," she says.

You can reach the Discovery Store at 313-477-1081 in Farmington or 313-978-8222 in Sterling Heights. To order a copy of The Secrets of Christmas, call The Cancer Center at 424-3183.

Paw Pourri is located at 817 N. Main Street in Royal Oak, 313-545-3780. For tickets or additional information regarding The Promenade of Hope, contact HAVEN at 334-1284. To purchase a MADD sweatshirt, call the Livonia office at 422-6233.

At the Flower and Basket Shops, "fields" of silk, polymer and latex stemmed florals await your selection. For wreaths: choose from 60 decorated styles at $6-30, basic grapevine and pine, or have one custom designed. Plain and decorated baskets abound in the stone-walled hay barn wing (circa 1870) priced at $4-12.

One peek tells you that the upstairs Toy Shop is something special. A W.W.I bi-plane swoops from the rafters, overlooking an elegant Tiffany church window. Girls of all ages will approve the expansive doll selection featuring sleepy-eye play dolls that start at $15, and more collectibles. Over 200 choices from Madame Alexander, from $37-300; Barbies, including porcelain-headed collector models in Bob Mackie fashions for $120, and from Germany, Annette Himstead's signed and barefoot "Jule a Girl from Sweden"—eyelet attired with braided human hair, individual eye lashes and fully articulated at $538 (it's the shop's princess).

Looking for Peter Rabbit as a pleasure for your little one? Skip the cabbage patch. He's here, along with everything offered in Eden's Beatrix Potter series—including animals, books and dish sets—plus many items based on Madeline, the French schoolgirl. Soft-sculpture playhouses for both beloved characters, each with three friends, are priced at $39.

Train buffs should make tracks to the HO scale Barnum and Bailey circus train with animals and decorated wagons. It's from U.S.-made Bachmann trains, and comes with five cars and engine for $180. Five additional specialty trains are available.

My words for the Canterbury House's giftware are variety and uniqueness. Lladro lovers have a choice of over 200 styles at $50-3500. Ceramic ware and vases, and soft goods in Victorian and country-style come in all price ranges. From Italy, there's some interesting glassware. M.A.R.W. makes hand-cut, mouth-blown bubbled stemware in a vari-colored design combining celadon, ruby and teal, priced at $24.50 and $27.25 per stem. A large selection of hand-blown pieces from Parise are surprisingly lightweight, well priced and come in a myriad of striking colors: glass bonbons, $10; perfume bottles and decanters, $20-75; pigtail-stemmed candleholders and larger items priced up to $179. The clothing boutique, Off-spring, carries special-buy merchandise along with upscale labels in infant through size 14 for girls, through size 7 for boys, 4-14 for women.

Its proprietor, Kim Aldrich (Stan's daughter), is the sole southern Michigan distributor, in children's sizes, for Giesswein boiled wool jackets from Austria. Offered in a palette of soft colors, they're applied with animals and scenes in children's sizes 12 months through 10 years and in all ladies sizes. Prices range from $100-660 (some of the adult jackets include hoods and real fur trim). Jim suggests the children's versions can be treated as heirlooms, sturdy enough to be handed down through several children and then perhaps to a favorite teddy bear.

To ensure that you'll have fun while shopping, there's weekend entertaining by Dickensian singers and musicians, local caroler groups, strolling town criers and costumed children's characters.
