Foundation seeks new director

The Canton Community Foundation will seek a new director. Advertisements will be placed in various publications in April, with interviews to take place after June 1. Current director Bill Joyner's contract will soon expire.

The Canton Community Foundation will advertise for a new director in April with the hope of hiring by mid-June.

"What we accomplished was setting a timetable and the mechanics of a search," said foundation president Mitch Howard following a Monday evening board of directors meeting.

In anticipation of the May 31 expiration of foundation executive director Bill Joyner's contract, the board plans to advertise the position in Detroit and local newspapers, as well as at several universities and with the National Society of Fundraising Executives.

Applications are due at the foundation by May 15. Interviews will be conducted after June 1 by a search committee of board members.

"We will be working with Bill (Joyner) in the transition," Howard said. "The position is open to all comers, regardless if they have a relationship with the foundation."

That means Joyner, of Plymouth Township, who has been executive director since the foundation's birth more than five years ago, may apply for the position, which is expected to pay $15,000 to $18,000 annually. Joyner told the Observer earlier that he plans to do just that.

Switching to a full-time employee will cut the foundation's overhead costs. Joyner's contract pays approximately $30,000. It's believed that with a full-time employee — as opposed to a contracted employee — the board will have greater control, according to board members.

The decision not to renew Joyner's contract, Howard said, stems from

It's just a feeling. But you'll likely hear of these kids again.

"These are the people who will be running things in 20 years," said Rita Ringer, center manager for the Plymouth Center Junior Achievement program.

Six of the high schools' Junior Achievement members walked away from a regional competition recently with their arms filled with certificates of recognition.

"Plymouth-Canton pretty much took everything," said Ringer, Canton-Salem high schools attendance superintendent.

About 80 students participate in Junior Achievement at the high schools. And without the program, many of the students say they just wouldn't have any clue about business or the business world.

"Without Junior Achievement, I wouldn't have known to dress up for a job interview," said sophomore Kevin McMahan. Classmate David Van Derworp says the program helped him get a job.

Junior Achievement is designed to give students an opportunity to manage their own business. That includes everything from giving the business a name, electing officers, selling shares for capital, producing, manufacturing or assem-

Officer aims for House

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Livonia police officer Michael Novak says now is the time to make some changes in state government. That's why he's seeking election to a seat held by longtime Democratic state legislator Justine Barns.

"We have the motivation to pull off this race," said the Republican, who has announced his candidacy for the state House seat in the 18th District.

The district includes all of Westland except one precinct and a portion of Canton, from Joy Road to Cherry Hill Road, east of I-275.

"I feel this is the opportunity to have some type of change in Lansing," said Novak, 27, who joined the Livonia police in December 1988. He is also a part-time instructor at the Wayne County Regional Police Academy in Garden City.

"I will bring a new perspective to Lansing — a new commitment to reforming government. I believe we need to empower the people, not the government, and my campaign will be centered around making government more accountable to the people it is supposed to serve," Novak said.

Despite changes in Lansing, such as term limitations, auto insurance relief and medical malpractice reforms, the Westland resident believes more work is needed, particularly with schools, crime, the state's job climate and streamlining government.

"We need someone in office who can improve on laws instead of creating new laws," Novak said. "We have to allow law enforcement to do its job."

Novak says he is running a grassroots campaign with the goal of giving people a say in government. "I may not be a tax expert or govern-

Boarded-up elementary schools to open in fall

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The two new elementary schools built in Canton but boarded up after last year's millage failed will open in September.

Plymouth-Canton school board members were split on the motion, introduced by David Artley. Several trustees were doubtful about the district's ability to finance the operations of two new schools.

"I share many of the concerns about the unknowns," said Artley, "but in the same breath, I feel strongly that the residents of this district when they voted for the bond issue were of the opinion we were opening two new elementaries.

"I believe that before we can even think about going back for millage we need to move forward and get these schools open. We need to continue to address the issues of class size and imbalances."

After debating the matter, the board separated Artley's motion into two. The motion to open Tonda Elementary and keep as is Gallimore Elementary, Tanger and Starkweather passed 7-0. Tanger and Starkweather are former elementaries that house special programs.

Superintendent John Hoben had recommended transferring Gallimore students elsewhere and moving the Tanger and Starkweather programs to the centrally located Gallimore. Tanger and Starkweather could then be sold.

Trustees divided 4-3 on whether to open Bentley. Opposing the action were Susan Feiten, Barbara Graham and Les Walker.

Walker said that "even though we've brought down health care costs, I can't support the resolution on the table. It's putting our reserves in jeopardy. I don't believe it's appropriate to consider opening both elementaries. We need to make that commitment the year after next."

Feiten was concerned about the district's fund balance, as well as the financial implications of the still-unsettled contracts with employee groups.

Trustee Jack Farrow said the board is "in an interesting quandary," wanting to be cost-conscious and at the same time, open the new schools. "If we are to try to make a significant reduction in class

Woman reports indecent exposure

A 31-year-old woman reported an indecent exposure by an unidentified man who followed her to a Canton store, March 24, according to Canton police.

While the woman and her mother were traveling southbound on I-275, a car with the unidentified man tailgated them. The man followed the women to the rear of a Canton store. When the women parked their car, the man blocked them in with his pickup truck.

The man then got out of his truck and poured what is believed to be semen from a potato chip bag on the trunk of the women's car. The man also gave one of the women an obscene gesture.

The woman's mother then got out of the car and went into the store. When she brought another man with her from the store, the unidentified man fled. Police are investigating the incident.

Student ticketed

A 15-year-old student at Salem High School was ticketed for possession of marijuana, March 24, according to a police report.

High school security personnel called police to the school when one of the security officers saw the student with a lit marijuana cigarette on the east side of Salem. The student was taken to the school security office and ticketed for possession of marijuana.

Dangerous weapon

A Plymouth Salem High School student was ticketed for possessing a dangerous weapon March 22, according to a Canton police report.

The student told police he buys and sells drugs. The student was ticketed in February for marijuana possession. The butterfly knife was confiscated. Police also plan to petition the student to juvenile court.

Students take top honors in competition

Six Junior Achievement students from the Plymouth-Canton high schools nabbed awards March 24 at a regional competition at Federal Mogul in Southfield.

The students and the awards they received are as follows:

■ Senior Stephanie Hong: Vice president of finance; finalist for business woman of the year and vice president of finance.
■ Senior Heather Hansel: Businesswoman of the year and officer of the year in administration.
■ Freshman Lawrence Nunn: Finalist for businessman of the year and finalist for best sales.
■ Sophomore Kevin McMahan: Finalist for outstanding businessman; finalist for vice president of marketing; finalist for best sales, for which he was the first runner up.
■ Senior Sangita Baxi: Finalist for business woman of the year and finalist for officer of the year in marketing.

bling a product, and sales.

The winning six students operated two separate businesses. One, called Round Box, sold message centers. The other, called Visions, sold hackey sacks, mugs, candy and letters to Santa. The students also have sponsors who are business leaders from the community and corporations — Ford, Ameritech and Chrysler — who lend a hand and advice.

"It's a wondertul learning experience. You see all the parts of running a business," said senior Stephanie Hong.

The students learned how to do the books and how to repay stockholders when the company reaps a profit. They also learned how to work with each other. "You have to have teamwork within your company. You have to work as one," said freshman Lawrence Nunn.

Ringer says all the students reap a big profit. "They got a million dollars worth of experience," she said.

Even the competitions where students are interviewed by a panel give them a taste of the real world. "It gets you used to what to expect when you have to be out there on your own," said Heather Hansel, a senior who is attending Schoolcraft College.

Whatever product the students decide to sell in their businesses must be produced or enhanced by the students before they can sell it. "Each student has to buy a share in their business of $1. That's their investment," Ringer said. "The program teaches them living skills. They are actually learning to sell themselves."

Now that the students have completed the latest competition sponsored by the Southeastern Detroit Region Junior Achievement, they've got their sights on an international competition scheduled for August in Midland.

"They will have the opportunity to meet with students of the same caliber from around the world," Ringer said.

For some of the Junior Achievement students, owning their own business is a goal. Now they know what it takes.

"My dad owns his own company. I want to inherit his business. He says he'd like to give me the company. But he says I have to be the best person for the job," Nunn said.

McMahan, who likes working with electronics, wouldn't mind his own business either. And neither would Hong. "That's my aspiration," said the senior who wants to major in college in engineering and economics.

Ringer encourages other students to get involved in Junior Achievement. "Competition is stiff out there for these kids. With Junior Achievement they are getting the experience right now that they will need in college."

size, we need to open at least one building," he said.

Said Hoben: "The board is going to have to face the possibility of going to the electorate for millage. We can't continue to operate as we are after we go to 6 mills (as provided under the recently passed state referendum)."

Hoben said given documentation, the voters would probably approve 1, 2 or 3 mills.

Hoben added that both Bentley and Tonda have been vandalized. Damage also has resulted from problems with heating and cooling equipment at the schools. "We need to get a better grip on those two buildings," Hoben said.

Residents campaigned for both motions.

Barbara Keithler of Canton said, "I urge you to open Bentley. If there is vandalism at the new schools, it's because they aren't in use. It's a shame that a new school promised to the area hasn't been opened."

Mark Stevens of Canton urged the the board to keep Gallimore open and not sacrifice a neighborhood school.

"Kids in our sub (Forest Trails) have always walked to school. The people at Gallimore in the past have strongly supported millages. We want you to do what's right for our kids and keep Gallimore open."

Canton's Frank Wenker told the board that as a citizen who worked on the millage phone bank, he's concerned that pledges made to the community be honored.

"A duty dodged is like a debt unpaid. We have to settle this account. This is the time to bite the bullet."

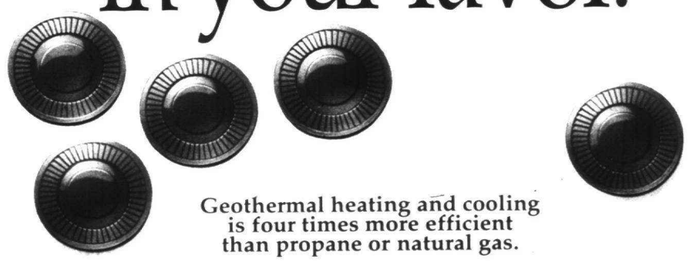
In the heating and cooling game, the odds are 4 to 1 in your favor.



Geothermal heating and cooling is four times more efficient than propane or natural gas.

There are several energy choices when it comes to heating and cooling, but only one is four times more efficient than the rest: Geothermal.

Geothermal is the most advanced, cost-effective heating and cooling system available. It uses the earth's constant temperature to create an even, comfortable temperature in your home. Geothermal can save you up to 60% on your annual heating, cooling and hot water costs. It's easy to operate and requires virtually no maintenance. Plus, it's good to the earth, using a natural and renewable energy source that's clean and safe with no open flames or fumes.

Geothermal: It's your best bet.

To learn more about Geothermal, call Detroit Edison's Heating and Cooling Information Center at 1-800-833-2786.

Presence of fascists threat, students claim

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Many people — including two attorneys and residents of Fenton, Belleville, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Canton, Plymouth and even Albany, N.Y. — converged on Monday night's school board meeting to support a student who claims she's been attacked by fascists at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Several dozen people addressed the board, protesting a proposed policy they contend was drafted to deny students the right to free speech.

The guidelines to be voted on April 11 would require prior review of information students wish to disseminate.

Police officers from Canton, Plymouth Township and Plymouth, and school security officers, gathered at Plymouth Salem High School to ward off any confrontation between alleged neo-Nazi skinheads and anti-fascist students at the meeting.

Melissa Greene, a senior at Salem High School, said students including herself "are attacked by fascists at PCEP for being anti-fascist. Administation in the past has clearly supported the rights of Nazi organizers. When they come on campus, nothing is done. When anti-fascists come onto campus, they are arrested," she said. School officials dispute her claims.

Greene distributed a flier last week urging students to "organize and build for student power."

"Our literature was confiscated and I'm suspended with no proof and no investigation," said Greene. She served a one-day suspension.

Canton sophomore Sara Anderson also said she's been threatened and stalked by fascists on campus. "Security does nothing. I demand protection," she said.

Canton principal Tom MacKenzie said Tuesday, "I certainly don't believe there is any truth to the accusations at all. Do we have fights on occasion? Yes; we have almost 5,000 people. Do we have kids who get angry with other kids? On occasion, yes. It is probably the safest high school I've ever been a part of, and this is my 34th year in the business.

"Are there some students who feel intimidated sometimes? Yes. Does that upset me? Yes; certainly. Are we trying to deal with it? Absolutely."

MacKenzie said administration is trying to work with Greene in every way possible, but that she hasn't cooperated.

MacKenzie added that the district's proposed policy on literature distribution was written by constitutional law attorneys and is legal.

David Wineman, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union, said the ACLU has reviewed the policy and "finds it unconstitutional, and a violation of the First Amendment which guarantees the right to free speech."

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that student expression is fully protected, Wineman said. "This policy ignores that and creates a scheme for thwarting student speech."

Detroit attorney George Washington, who represents Greene, said she was unfairly disciplined for publishing a flier. The flier said individuals identifying themselves as fascists are ready to hurt people.

"Administration hauled her down, took her private notes, and suspended her for saying there are fascists in this school," he said.

Washington said the proposed policy isn't a policy on distribution of literature, "but a policy to censor." Attempting to slip the policy through "without allowing the board to debate this is outrageous."

Squelching the policy now would save the district embarrassment that will result if Greene sues and the case is tried in court, he said.

Police doubt problem exists

Police in Canton and Plymouth say alleged harassment and fascist incidents at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools can't be documented.

Plymouth police Chief Robert Scoggins refers to the alleged "skinhead fascists" as the "Penniman group" — young people who wear leather jackets, shave their heads and hang around the Dairy Mart in Plymouth. "We haven't seen them do anything wrong," said Scoggins. "I have some problems wondering if they even understand the terminology."

Tammie Colling, community relations officer with the Canton police, says there has been lots of talk, "yet we've never seen anything. We've had a few fights as there are every year with that population of kids in that high school. We haven't recognized nor have we been alerted to the fact that it's one group against another."

Colling said members of the National Women's Rights Organization Coalition and skinheads were expected at the meeting. "We just felt the potential was there for something to happen. We were there to maintain order." No incidents were reported, she said.

School district spokesman Richard Egli said anti-fascist students are espousing freedom of speech for themselves "but not for the fascists. I think it's appropriate we have freedom of speech, but not when it incites riot or other disturbances. Our first responsibility is to have an orderly facility for education."

Egli said he's unaware of fascist incidents at PCEP. "My suspicion is that this is a group out of Ann Arbor stirring things up."

There's a tendency, Egli said, "to get a little paranoid. It seems to me anytime we see three students together, we are concerned as to whether there is a gang going on and that is unfortunate."

Are there fascists on campus? "It's something that you find people talk a lot about, because it's unusual and makes for good conversation.

"What you have to acknowledge is that with 4,500 kids deciding what values they have in the world, you may have a few with strange ideas, so it would not surprise me if there is someone who thinks of genocide.

"I think we are ahead of it. We recognize what could happen and are doing what's necessary to head it off."

how board members want to change the foundation to ensure its future.

The board of directors wants to make the foundation more of an endowment organization. Fifty percent of all contributions will be put into an endowment fund that will be allowed to earn interest and grow.

Howard is in discussions with the Community Foundation of Southeastern Michigan, which has a $67 million endowment. "Its program would allow it to have a relationship to manage our endowment," he said. "We are still in preliminary discussions."

The foundation would then become registered under the Michigan Community Foundation Act, which would allow contributors to receive an income tax credit on state tax returns.

Of the remaining 50 percent of revenues and contributions, some will be dedicated to grants for community members and organizations to advance goals in the community that dovetail with what the foundation would like to accomplish. Volunteerism will be a large facet of the foundation.

The foundation also wants to serve as an organization that can work with businesses, families or individuals who have charitable interests, such as establishing scholarships. Under the plan, the foundation would act as an agent to accomplish goals, Howard said.

Though there has been concern on the part of some board members about Joyner's political involvement in the community and with certain candidates, Howard said every effort is being made to keep personalities out of foundation decisions.

Canton woman dies in crash

A 53-year-old Canton woman died Monday afternoon following a three-car crash in the intersection of Palmer and Sheldon roads.

"The Accident Investigation Team was called out on the accident. The accident is under investigation. We need to confirm who ran the stop sign," said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Melba Jean Copeland was pronounced dead at Annapolis Hospital where she was transported following the accident at the intersection with a four-way stop just before 4:30 p.m. Three others involved in the accident also were injured and taken to area hospitals.

According to police, Copeland was driving south on Sheldon when a van driven by a 53-year-old man, who was traveling west on Palmer, collided with her car in the intersection. A 44-year-old woman was a passenger in the van.

After striking Copeland's Taurus, the van then hit a Chevrolet Cavalier driven by a 64-year-old resident who was stopped at the stop sign on eastbound Palmer, Colling said.

No charges have been filed.

ment insider, but I know what the residents of our community want," Novak said. "We need to reclaim our government from special interests and politicians who are beholding to those interests."

Barnes is expected to announce soon whether she will seek re-election to the seat she has held since 1983. "I don't think she will be a big competitor," Novak said. "We have been running this campaign as though she is running."

The candidate said he believes the Republican vote is out there in the 18th District. "I would rather put in a candidate that will do the job rather than party preference," he said.

Novak said he would function in Lansing as he does on the Livonia police force. "I have never called in sick. I have been on the job since the day I started. I can guarantee people I will be there."

Novak, who is unmarried, has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Madonna University. He is currently working on a master's degree in public administration at Eastern Michigan University. He also has com_leted the 440-hour Michigan Law Enforcement Officer Training Counsel Basic Police Academy at the Wayne County Sheriff Police Academy in Inkster.

Unemployment rate goes up a bit

Unemployment rates in Canton and Plymouth rose slightly in February, according to figures compiled by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The February unemployment rate was 3.2 percent in Canton, compared to 3.1 percent in January and 3 percent in February 1993.

In the city of Plymouth, the February rate was 2.1 percent, up from 2 percent in January and 2 percent in January 1993.

In Plymouth Township, the February unemployment rate was 2.6 percent, up from 2.5 percent in January and 2.5 percent in February 1993.

F. Robert Edwards, MESC director, said much of the labor force decline statewide resulted as the last of temporary workers were released from holiday and post-holiday jobs in the retail industry.

"Typically, the state and its major labor markets experience job losses in retail trade and construction during February," Edwards said.

"But there were also positive economic signs last month," he added. "Our monthly survey of employer payrolls showed gains, while unemployment claims declined and manufacturing employment rose."

Errol Goldman, Plymouth-Canton assistant superintendent for employee relations, and Pioneer Middle School teacher Candi Reece have been disciplined for sharing a hotel room on a school-sponsored field trip to Toronto.

Goldman and Reece were among 25 chaperones who accompanied 116 Pioneer sixth-graders on a bus trip to Toronto to see "Phantom of the Opera" Jan. 21-23.

Hoben sent a letter of reprimand to Goldman, to remain in his file for two years. Reece was reprimanded by her principal, Cheryl Johnson.

Hoben discussed the matter with Goldman and reviewed the discussion in his letter.

Hoben told Goldman the reprimand was written after hearing "complaints from several sources, including parents of students. Students you were chaperoning became aware that you shared a hotel room with one of the female teachers, Ms. Reece, during the overnight stay," he wrote.

The action set a "poor example for the children you and the teacher were supervising."

Hoben also reprimanded Goldman for the amount of time he was spending "during work hours with Ms. Reece at the Pioneer School. This circumstance was becoming a subject of considerable discussions and notoriety among other employees, and was, of course, taking time away from your job responsibilities, to say nothing of the diminished perception of you as the chief personnel administrator for this school district."

Goldman has been legally separated since September. Reece has been divorced for nearly a year.

Goldman declined comment.

Reece, however, defended them both. "I don't think I did anything wrong, but I did get reprimanded."

Reece said she can't understand why a fuss is being made now, when it was known before the trip she would share a room with Goldman, whom she has been dating.

"What I don't like is that we didn't hide this. On a roster that was sent home to parents, it was published that we were on the same bus and in the same room. My principal knew it and never said anything. We weren't secretive. So why didn't they stop it? This was out in the open. We are consenting adults."

Parents even came to a pre-trip meeting, "saw me and talked to me," she added.

Reece said neither she nor Goldman plan to fight the reprimand.

Trustees Barbara Graham and Susan Feiten said school employees are obligated to set the best example possible for students.

"I feel very strongly about all of us setting a good example on field trips, and day to day. We owe that to students," said Feiten.

Local students excel at quiz bowl tourney

It was academic prowess and not sports ability that attracted more than 150 participants to Detroit Catholic Central last Saturday.

Middle school students from throughout western Wayne County, Ann Arbor, Farmington and West Bloomfield participated in the second annual Quiz Bowl Tournament sponsored by CC.

Two Farmington-area schools — Warner Middle School and Power Middle School — walked away with the first- and second-place trophies, respectively. Third- and fourth-place honors went to Emerson Middle School in Ann Arbor and St. Edith Catholic School in Livonia.

The top four teams received trophies. The four male starting players on the winning team also receive a $1,000 scholarship to attend CC. The four starting players on the second-place team are awarded $500 scholarships, while the starters on the third- and fourth-place teams each are eligible to receive $250.

All participants were awarded certificates.

Other local teams in this year's tournament included Our Lady of Good Counsel, Plymouth; Our Lady of Refuge, Orchard Lake; St. Mary, Wayne; St. Michael, Livonia; St. Raphael, Garden City; St. Robert Bellarmine, Redford Township; Emerson Middle School, Livonia; Northville Christian School, Northville; Orchard Lake Middle School, West Bloomfield; and Riley Middle School, Livonia.

Quiz Bowl/Academic Bowl is one of the fastest growing varsity sports in the country, according to the CC organizers.

"It teaches students the spirit of competition in something other than athletics," said Linda Welborn, director of the eighth-grade tournament and a guidance counselor at the high school in Redford Township.

"It also teaches students the importance of listening skills," said Welborn, who coaches the junior varsity and novice Quiz Bowl teams at CC.

Welborn said that most schools didn't have academic teams, but CC students who are members of the Varsity Quiz Bowl Team acted as consultants and helped schools set up teams.

Madonna honors mayor of Detroit

Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer will be inducted next week into the Madonna University Wall of Fame, a tribute to local leaders.

Robert Bennett, mayor of Livonia, will open the ceremony at 11 a.m. April 5 in Kresge Hall. A reception will follow. Both events are open to the public.

Minister Gimbu Mullugotta, founder and president of the Christian Poets Society, will recite a special poem and vocal entertainment will be provided by Madonna students Frank Harley, Romon Oglesby, Demetrus Power and Franzine Jones.

"We chose to induct Mayor Archer into the Wall of Fame because he is making a difference in Detroit. We would like him to know that we stand behind him in any way we can. We would like to help him," said Sister M. Matinez, director of Madonna University's office of multicultural affairs.

Each year, two inductees are selected for the Wall of Fame, one during Hispanic Heritage Month and the other during Black History Month.

Yankee Air Force schedules open house

The Yankee Air Force, a private group that keeps several World War II aircraft at Willow Run Airport, will have an open house 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, May 30.

Admission is free. A $4 pancake breakfast will be served until noon.

Guests will see flybys of the YAF's Douglas C-47 Dakota and North American B-25 Mitchell. The group's Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress will be on static display.

Refreshments, cockpit photos and dog tags will be for sale throughout the afternoon.

Children and young adults, ages 5 to 21, with all types of physical disabilities, are invited to participate in the 1994 Children's Sports Festival from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 16 at the Wayne State University Matthaei Sports Center.

Events in the festival will include wheelchair and ambulatory basketball, team handball, boccie, track and field events, power lifting and goalball.

The event is sponsored by the Children's Hospital of Michigan and Wayne State University.

Those interested in registering should call the education services department at Children's Hospital, 745-5456, between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Warner, the winner of this year's tournament, is one of the schools that CC team members helped this year.

Tournament games consisted of four quarters of play — two consisting of all toss-up questions, which anyone may answer; one toss-up/bonus round; and a speed round. Each team played at least three games, answering questions about literature, science, religion, math, history and even some trivia. The questions are based on an eighth-grade curriculum.

Welborn said some 55 schools were invited to participate. Schools targeted were those in the CC service area and those that had previously sent students to CC.

Moderators for Saturday's competition were Howard Weinberg, varsity academic team coach and a teacher at CC; Jeff Macy, a CC graduate now attending law school at the University of Michigan; and Chris Sroka, a CC grad now attending Wayne State University. Last year Sroka placed second in the nation in Citizen Bee competition.

Other moderators included Jason Kirk, a CC grad and former Quiz Bowl Team member now attending U-M; Nick Farrell, a CC grad and former varsity player now at U-M; and Jeff Proctor, Jason Harris and Doug Connolly, all senior members of the CC Quiz Bowl Team.

Schools that would like assistance in establishing teams to compete in the "Varsity Sport of the Mind" can contact Catholic Central High School. A player from the three-time state championship varsity team will be assigned to consult. For more information, call the school at 534-0550.

Catholic Central is a private, all-male college preparatory high school. It was founded in 1928 by the Basilican Order.

Over the last 10 years, Catholic Central has had 98 National Merit semifinalists — more than any other parochial high school in Michigan.

Former Lansing lawmaker enters U.S. Senate contest

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

Former state Rep. Judy Miller has tossed her hat into the crowded arena of candidates for the U.S. Senate.

Miller announced her candidacy formally last week at Birmingham City Hall, where she began her political career in 1981.

"I felt I had something to offer the state," Miller said. "I think people feel they have lost touch with their elected officials."

A former small-business owner, Miller was first elected to the Birmingham City Commission in 1980 and elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1984. In 1991 Gov. John Engler appointed her Michigan business ombudsman, a position she held for nearly three years.

"I have been laying the foundation for this (campaign) for some time, but I don't think I have a lot of catching up to do," Miller said. "I think now that Proposal A has passed people are just starting to think about this race."

Miller admits she will have some road to make up in the area of fund-raising, but said she plans to visit all 83 counties by the time voters head to the polls.

"Michigan voters must understand that individually and collectively we have a shared responsibility to meet the challenges facing our nation and the world. We must all make the commitment to elect candidates who demonstrate the courage of their convictions. I urge voters who want a change to take action — volunteer, contribute, participate in the democratic process," Miller said.

Miller is a graduate of Western Michigan University. She is married and has two adult children.

State abortion battle heads for court

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Michigan's "informed consent" abortion law was due to take effect Friday. Instead, the parties are loading new ammunition for a June 20 federal court battle — and maybe for the appeals courts.

"It will go at least to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals," predicted Sen. Fred Dillingham, one of the Legislature's two or three most vocal backers of restrictions on abortions.

"Our law is similar to Pennsylvania's. There, the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) dropped out after it got to the Court of Appeals. The Michigan ACLU is much more militant," said Dillingham, R-Fowlerville. Pennsylvania's law took effect March 20.

"The plaintiffs are looking for an avenue to take it to the (U.S.) Supreme Court. I would argue that the Supreme Court has ruled — clearly — that we are within their guidelines. But there's always a push; there has been a change in the makeup of the court," he said, referring to a Clinton-appointed justice.

Meanwhile, Dillingham is waiting. This is a battle he has fought since his days in the House, and he's now nearing the end of his second four-year Senate term. He says he has learned patience.

U.S. District Judge Nancy Edmunds on March 18 issued a temporary order blocking enforcement of the law until she can conduct a full hearing in three months on its constitutionality.

"I think the plaintiffs have a very tough row to hoe in this case," Edmunds said as she ruled. Her remark cheered such anti-abortion groups as Right to Life of Michigan.

Defendant is Gov. John Engler, who appoints the Public Health director. Handling the defense is Attorney General Frank Kelley's office. Judge Edmunds refused to allow Right to Life to intervene as a co-defendant.

Chief plaintiff is Northland Family Planning Clinic, Inc., of Southfield. Other plaintiffs are women's groups such as the National Organization for Women, clinics, four physicians and the ACLU.

Exchange students need homes

Two 16-year-old German exchange students need local homes for the next school year.

The students won't arrive until the end of August but a family must be found for each before April 15 or they will not be allowed to come to Michigan, said Lynne Levanbach of Plymouth, the local representative for World Learning Inc.

Both students will have full medical insurance and enough money to cover their expenses.

Those interested in hosting the students may contact Levenbach at (313) 453-8562 or (313) 453-6851.

At Providence Hospital, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And our obstetrical program is one of the largest and best in Michigan.

Choose from a wide range of birthing options at Providence. Our medical staff is committed to listening to and understanding women's needs and wants concerning childbirth. That's why we offer an extensive range of birthing options. Our comfortable LDR (labor/delivery/recovery) rooms are a direct response to women's requests for a more home-like atmosphere and the comfort of staying in one room for the entire birthing process.

Giving birth in our Family Birthing Center, the only one of its kind in Michigan, is a safer alternative to home birth. For those women who may require a cesarean delivery or other medical intervention, we also offer traditional birthing suites.

Our maternal-fetal specialists and facilities provide women with high-risk pregnancies with safer delivery alternatives. And it's comforting to know that should the need arise, Providence has a level III regional neonatal ICU for ill or premature newborns.

Prenatal and postnatal educational services. At Providence, we're committed to helping families feel capable, before and after birth. That's why we offer health education classes. Expectant mothers and their partners may take advantage of classes such as preparation for childbirth, childbirth refresher, cesarean birth, brothers and sisters, breastfeeding and infant CPR.

Schedule a Providence tour. If you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence and find out about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or call us at 1-800-968-5595 to schedule a tour. To schedule a tour of our Family Birthing Center, call 424-3919. Our friendly and capable staff will be happy to answer your questions.

If births were this standard, we wouldn't offer as many options.

Area Red Cross chapter seeking blood donations

STAFF WRITER

A tornado may never blast down your doors and a tidal wave crash through your living room, but few people make it through a lifetime without requiring some help from the American Red Cross.

The Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross provides services to the residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties during good times, as well as bad times. This year marks the chapter's 85th birthday.

The Red Cross touches most people directly through its blood bank and its training classes in first aid, CPR and water safety.

In the blood donations area, the Red Cross has far from exceeded its goals in maintaining an adequate blood supply locally. The blood bank, once again, is quite low and donations are needed to meet demands.

"Looking back 10 years ago, the amount of blood we have imported from other areas has gone from 3 percent to about 25 percent this year," said Mark Cornillie, director of public relations for the local chapter.

He attributes the added need for blood to several issues, including the economy. Traditionally, the Red Cross has collected most of its blood through large drives at big companies. With corporations downsizing and the demise of many other businesses, however, these drives have been less frequent.

The summer months are especially difficult as high schools and colleges are not in session or have fewer students in attendance. Cornillie said school blood drives account for 10 to 15 percent of their supply.

In addition, about 45,000 donors are excluded each year, Cornillie said, to ensure the safety of the blood supply. Many others are still fearful about donating blood due to the misconception that the HIV virus can be contracted when donating blood.

The safety of the blood supply has been at issue for several years. Just as the Red Cross seemed to ease tensions about HIV transmission, Southfield resident Rollin Tobin died as a result of bacteria transmitted in a blood transfusion during hip-replacement surgery. Tobin had donated his own blood for the procedure, but additional blood was needed and was taken from the general blood supply.

Area centers open for donations are: 29691 W Six Mile Road Suite 100C in Livonia and 6700 Canton Center Road in the Westgate Plaza in Canton.

Lansing to expand adoption options

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Couples who want to adopt children will have more options and faster results under bills winding through the Michigan Legislature.

But there's still controversy over lawmakers' decision to allow attorney-arranged adoptions.

"Generally there's an effort to provide more options — more choices to birth parents, more choices for adoptive parents," said Joan E. Young, Oakland probate judge who served on a state commission that recommended many of the changes.

Young saw "a lot of frustration" among adoptive parents at (1) tight rules imposed by adoption agencies and (2) long waiting periods to receive a child. "They ask, 'Why is so much easier in other states than in Michigan?' Kansas is a popular place to adopt.

"I certainly support the efforts to make adoption more available," said Young, who worked for a year on Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld's Commission on Adoption.

"I was not at all happy with the attorney part of it," countered Don Marengere, Bloomfield Township manufacturer's representative and past president of the now-folded Adoption Option organization.

"They (attorneys) may have expedited adoptions, but they've not helped women. They're doing what's right for rich clients. The (Binsfeld) commission was diametrically opposed to attorney-arranged adoptions."

Marengere agreed with the Michigan Federation of Private Child and Family Agencies, whose associate director, Verlie Ruffin, said, "We want attorney-assisted adoption to be taken out."

"You can't keep attorneys out," said Sen. Christopher Dingell, D-Trenton, an attorney. "I would want an attorney going over the paperwork. We'll let them (attorneys) in and regulate the daylights out of them."

Attorney-assisted adoptions are a key feature of the package of six Senate and 12 House bills. Qualified attorneys experienced in Michigan adoption would be allowed to do adoptions under the Senate bill. The House version of the bill contains fewer restrictions.

The bills were guided through the Senate with little debate, on votes of 34-0 and 33-0, last week by Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, chairman of the Family Law Committee.

"I want to use adoption as an alternative to abortion," said Welborn, an abortion foe. "This makes it easier, faster. The driving force is to get the child into a home."

The bills go to the House, some for the first time and some for House concurrence in Senate changes.

Other key parts of the legislation include:

- Direct-consent adoptions — allowing the birth parent to directly release the child to adoptive parents who have a favorable home study done.
- Temporary placement — allowing a child to be placed with an adoptive family that isn't licensed as a foster care facility.
- Issuance of final adoption orders in six months instead of a year after placement of the child. Companion bills will require health insurers to cover adopted children the day they enter their new homes instead of the day the adoption takes legal effect.
- Continued adoption subsidies — and a pamphlet describing the subsidies.

AROUND CANTON

Joins firm

Canton native Kimberly Finlaw has joined the law firm of Barnes & Thornburg in South Bend, Ind. She is a 1986 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School.

Finlaw

Finlaw graduated from Michigan State University with a bachelor's degree in social science and political science in 1990. She earned a law degree from the University of Notre Dame Law School in 1993. Finlaw works primarily in environmental and general corporate law. She is the daughter of Thomas and Carol Lebnick of Canton.

Cleary auction

Canton and Plymouth residents are invited to attend the annual Cleary College auction at 6 p.m. Friday, April 8, at Laurel Manor banquet and conference center in Livonia.

The auction's proceeds will benefit endowment, student scholarships and facility renovations for the college, with campuses in Ypsilanti and Howell. Canton resident and planning commissioner Tom Sullivan is the college president.

In honor of Cleary's 110th anniversary, the college has set a goal of raising $110,000 in its second annual auction. Plymouth and Canton residents attend the business college.

Items to be auctioned include two weeks in a beach-front condo in Florida; a Cleary College sweat shirt autographed by actor Tim Allen; an elegant dinner aboard Henry Ford's customized railroad car; and one week in a penthouse at the Royal Mayan Beach Club in Cancun.

Silent and live auctions will follow the 6 p.m. dinner. Tickets are $50 per person. Black tie attire is preferred. For tickets or information, contact Cleary College's Advancement Office, (313) 483-4400.

Cleanup continues at dump site

Cleanup work at a hazardous waste site in Canton is resuming, following an interruption for winter weather. Officials hope to have the hazardous waste removed in three weeks, with the second phase of the project to follow.

Excavation: Weston Inc., hired to clean up an old 3M dump site on Michigan Avenue, has excavated approximately 500 truckloads of waste, including paint and adhesives, from the site.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Excavation of hazardous waste from a former 3M dump site on Michigan Avenue has resumed after work was stopped during severe winter weather in January and February.

"We are in the waste removal business again," said Bob Paschke, 3M environmental engineering manager. "If everything goes well and we don't find any surprises, we're targeting to be done in three weeks."

The focus will then shift to the second phase of the cleanup, which is designed to determine what effect the waste burial has had on the soils, floodplain, ground and surface waters and sediments, said Ralph Dollholph, federal Environmental Protection Agency on-scene coordinator.

Appoximately 9,000 cubic yards or 500 truckloads of waste have been excavated from the 3.5-acre site, which was a former paint and adhesives dump behind Keller-Stein Florist along the south bank of the Lower Rouge, north of Michigan Avenue, east of Lilley. The waste has been transported to a hazardous waste landfill in Model City, New York.

Work at the site was stopped in January because crews of Roy Weston Inc., which was hired to clean up the site, encountered not only cold weather, but a deep frost line, slippery conditions and an awful lot of snow.

"We were concerned about two things: safety and productivity," Paschke said.

But EPA officials expected the cleanup project to be further along. "We believe more progress could have been made by now. It is our feeling that not all the time they took off was needed," Dollholph said, adding there could be a consequence to the delay.

Work resumes: After a couple months off from excavating waste from a former 3M dump site on Michigan Avenue, work is again under way.

■ Approximately 9,000 cubic yards or 500 truckloads of waste have been excavated from the 3.5-acre site, which was a former paint and adhesives dump behind Keller-Stein Florist along the south bank of the Lower Rouge, north of Michigan Avenue, east of Lilley.

During the shutdown, soil borings were conducted to determine more precisely the location of the remaining waste areas. With the work startup, Weston restarted air monitoring devices at the site. "There was no concern with the air quality during the shutdown," Paschke said.

Despite the delay, Paschke said it's hoped the cleanup will be complete by June.

In the second phase it will be determined if any additional cleanup is necessary. "There will be some restoration activity (of the site) after Phase I or during the Phase II study," Dollholph said. "I doubt there will be any final restoration until it is clear what long-term remediation will be necessary, if any."

As far as any step beyond Phase II, Dollholph said it is likely any work would be completed under another administrative order.

The EPA and 3M negotiated a consent agreement for the cleanup of the site. Some 25-30 years ago, 3M employees dumped the company's paint and adhesive wastes in an old channel of the Rouge River. The EPA also found concrete and asphalt chunks, piping, rods and other construction debris at the site.

Anyone who is interested in reviewing information about the cleanup, including site history, day-to-day site activities, air monitoring and phase II, may do so at the Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

Spring fashion

On hand: Sue Ozaistowicz of Canton (left) and Dawn Schoeninger of Wayne look at their gifts at Hudson's "Challenging the Future: Breakfast with Mary Matalin" held at Hudson's Oakland on March 5. The show highlighted fashion and beauty trends and included a speech by Matalin, co-host of the CNBC week-night talk show, Equal Time. She was deputy campaign manager for President George Bush's 1992 campaign.

Scouts do good deed

Play time turned to work time recently for some local Girl Scouts, but they didn't really mind.

Girls from the Fiegel Elementary School cluster took some time the afternoon of Friday, March 25, to clean up the parks in Canton's Brookside subdivision. Girls from seven troops collected about 30 bags of trash.

"The kids did a really good job," said Diane Gaubatz of Canton, troop services director for the Fiegel cluster. About 80 people were involved, ranging in age from kindergarten Daisy Scouts on up through sixth-grade Juniors who attend Lowell Middle School, and the adult helpers.

Secret search

Schools hide behind consultant

The Plymouth-Canton school board is dodging its responsibility and abusing its attorney-client privilege to hide the selection of a new school superintendent to take over for retiring John Hoben.

"Dirty work" is a good way to describe the manner in which the superintendent search is being conducted.

Applications for the $100,000-plus superintendent's job are the property of the board, yet the board is turning around and giving those away to an out-of-state private consultant, which will decide for us who should be considered for the post.

The most important job elected board members do is to hire the district's top administrator. Yet they claim even they won't know the identity of the candidates until the consultant has chosen eight finalists, who will be interviewed next week.

The board says that Bickert, Prophet & Associates advises that keeping the process secret ensures that publicity-shy quality applicants will apply.

The board's action flies in the face of a Supreme Court decision handed down after the University of Michigan conducted its presidential search behind closed doors. The regents avoided public scrutiny by meeting in small groups and talking on the phone throughout the search.

The high court ruled last fall that the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act bar secret searches. "All deliberations, decisions and interviews regarding presidential searches at public universities must be conducted openly."

The same principle applies in dealing with public school districts responsible for educating thousands of students with millions of taxpayer dollars.

Many open searches by public institutions in Michigan show that quality applicants will apply, even if they're not promised anonymity. Moreover, a provision in the Open Meetings Act allows applicants to request confidentiality if they wish.

More than one person in the community has suggested that Hoben's successor — an assistant superintendent in South Lyon Community Schools — has already been tapped. It will be interesting to see whether William Pearson, a former Plymouth-Canton principal, is in fact our next superintendent.

The public deserved more in the superintendent search than a list of eight finalists sanitized by a consulting firm.

Again, the board has decided not to be open with the public.

Mall smoking ban on target

■ Despite the direction of the bill, smokers' rights have not gone the way of a puff of smoke. Jamian accepted an amendment allowing malls to establish separate smoking rooms with separate ventilation systems so that smoke will not be recycled into the mall.

Ano smoking restriction in shopping malls would be a step forward in the steady climb toward fresher air.

House Bill 5212, which would restrict smoking in commons areas of malls, has passed the House and is ready to be discussed by a Senate committee.

If adopted as it currently reads, the law would apply to corridors, lounge sections and restrooms. Restaurants are covered by a separate law. Individual stores are not affected.

Although malls are private property, we agree with the reasons state Rep. John Jamian, the Republican from Bloomfield Township, gives for sponsoring the bill.

"Malls are like town squares. They're public places," says Jamian, co-chairman of the House Public Health Committee.

Calls supporting the ban were overwhelming, he reports. "Most support came from people who walk the malls and mothers with children," Jamian says.

That washes with our research, too. "I really wish the malls were smoke free," Linda Weinstein of West Bloomfield told us last August, as she took her morning walk at Laurel Park Place in Livonia.

"I'm here walking for fitness, but I wonder if the air I'm huffing and puffing is clean and healthy enough?"

In fact, passing such a law would just step up a process that is already headed in that direction.

By law, smoking is banned in government buildings, hospitals, nursing homes and schools. Restaurants must allocate smoke-free sections. (And, in fact, some restaurants, such as the Old Woodward Grill in downtown Birmingham, have elected to become completely non-smoking.)

By choice, several area malls have smoke-free zones. At Oakland Mall in Troy, Summit Place Mall in Waterford and Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn, benched areas have been designated as "Smoke free."

At Twelve Oaks in Novi, The Gathering Space and center court are no smoking zones, with smoking allowed in other commons areas.

And Westland Mall will go to three designated smoking areas April 1.

Although Jamian's bill does not encompass individual stores, Hudson's has for some time banned smoking in all its stores, except for smoking sections in its restaurants.

Despite the direction of the bill, smokers' rights have not gone the way of a puff of smoke. Jamian accepted an amendment allowing malls to establish separate smoking rooms with separate ventilation systems so that smoke will not be recycled into the mall.

That should at least mitigate the anger of Molly Giles of Birmingham, who once told us that if she couldn't have a cigarette between stores at the malls, she'd take her business to the mainstreets.

The Michigan Senate should follow the House lead and ban smoking in our shopping malls. House Bill 5212 protects the air for the majority of us who are non-smokers, while still allowing a place for those who choose to smoke.

Language problem

Utilizing profanity to express an opinion in front of a child does not teach respect for others. Anyone who is a parent knows that children mimic adult behavior. Can an adult demand respect from a child when the child is not provided with examples of respect?

I cringe to think how preschoolers today will react to situations when they are adults. Considering some of the shining examples I've seen recently, it's no wonder there are so many problems with kids today.

I encountered a situation that demonstrates society's lack of respect for others and particularly children.

On the first day of spring, I took my 4-year-old to an ice cream shop in the area, which was full of customers. A woman came in with a girl and a preschooler. She bought ice cream and appeared unhappy with the owner for some reason. I assume it was because the customer requested use of the shop's restroom facilities for the little boy.

When the owner didn't comply, words were exchanged that I was not privy to. The customer decided to leave and announced to everyone that she was not happy with the service. I can understand her frustration with the situation, having a preschooler of my own.

However, to then use foul language in front of everyone including young children is not acceptable. I did not appreciate the woman's choice of words in front of my child and can only assume she uses foul language in front of her children on a regular basis.

I have seen this occur at a dance class my daughter attends and I've heard many parents yell and scream at their children to "shut up."

We all reach frustration levels that are difficult to deal with, particularly with our kids. A child's self-esteem is diminished every time they are sworn at or screamed at to "shut up."

Can anyone be surprised when these kids are teenagers and they have a total lack of respect for themselves and for others? It's what they've learned from their parents.

A friend and I were discussing this and she suggested that all prospective parents should be required to take parenting classes.

It doesn't sound like a bad idea. I hope that a few readers will recognize themselves in this article and think before they use foul language in front of, or at their kids.

Most parents won't tolerate that behavior from their children. It's sad that children must be subjected to uncivilized behavior by the very people they look to for guidance. Children need discipline but not with a heavy hand or foul mouth.

A threat?

Our community has been blessed through the efforts of Bill Joyner and the work he has done with the Canton Community Foundation.

Mr. Joyner's work and the efforts of the foundation have provided needed support for family counseling, school activities, the Canton Economic Club, among other programs.

The power elite in the community must sense a threat to their standing from someone who can make something happen instead of supplying more rhetoric.

I suppose "a doer" is perceived as a threat to someone who receives power from political cronies and/or the existing government bureaucracy.

It seems to me the real threat to the community is from those who would rather maintain the status quo instead of achieving positive change.

Glen A. Mackie, Plymouth

Grow up

The saga of "The Fence at Miller Woods" has become a matter that the entire community must address.

A few people who own property adjacent to the woods have taken it upon themselves to ferret out frontier justice according to their wishes, not the wishes of the community. This is supposed to be a civilized community. It's one thing to have diverse opinions, but this situation is now out of control. The time has come for everyone to conduct themselves as adults, not brats having tantrums because things didn't go their way.

Board members of the "Friends of Miller Woods" organization have been victims of harassing phone calls, having garbage and barbed wire spread on their driveways, threats, insulting remarks, etc. It is a frightening realization that in lil ole' Plymouth are people who, because they don't agree with a decision, harass and threaten community-minded citizens who, for no personal gain, volunteer their time to make our community a desirable place.

It is appalling to find we have amoral citizens who would destroy a fence constructed with other people's money, on someone else's property, to protect an irreplaceable public treasure, simply because of their own myopic, hedonistic desires.

It's time for these selfish people to look to the future in a reasonable, collective civility and allow the people in charge to do the fair thing for the whole community. Leave the fence alone.

Getaway trip to New Orleans provides mixed bag of experiences

GUEST COLUMNIST

CHRISTINA SRINIVASAN

■ We held out as long as we could but the locals were a bit much and knew how to sway you and we soon found ourselves whisked inside a seafood establishment.

I joined my husband on a vacation for me and business for him getaway to New Orleans, looking forward to a rejuvenating time.

Landing on Louisiana soil felt most agreeable. The night air felt nippy, but the next day held promise of being bright and sunny.

We were staying at the Fairmont, a luxury hotel with a sweeping history. The hotel lobby was a showcase of windows containing an assortment of pricy gift items.

After breakfast at Bailey's, an elegant restaurant adjacent to the lobby, my husband was off to his meeting. I was left to be a free spirit until his return. I entered the gift shop to browse, buy a magazine.

Then I went upstairs to read, write postcards and indulge in being carefree. Soon I became bored. I thought a walk might be a good way to pass the time.

When I went to freshen up and reached for a towel the entire rack fell off the wall. I noticed the one on the other side of the wall was on halfway down as well.

Here we were in a high class hotel, where one expects smooth sailing. I proceeded to turn around out of the bathroom, when I noticed the underside of my left shoe adhering to the rug.

After inspecting, I found some sort of lotion spill to be there. Hmm . . . I wondered, how did that get there? I gave a slight tug and was free. After calling maintenance and waiting for one of the crew to arrive, I felt momentarily transported back home where just this winter we did a dance with the water heater lighting the pilot day and night, which was necessary to maintain enough water for the daily round of showers.

"This is just like being at home," I mused to the maintenance repairman as he worked on repairing the towel holders.

Once outside, the breeze was comforting. The street was lined with interesting shops and tall, old buildings.

"Lady, can you spare a dime?" said a street person who chanced along the way. I wasn't amused, but dug to the bottom of my purse for spare change.

In the evening, I joined my husband for a stroll in the French Quarter. As soon as we started down the famous road, we had a hard time saying no to all the hosts who literally tried to sweep us off our feet and usher us into their establishments.

We held out as long as we could but the locals were a bit much and knew how to sway you and we soon found ourselves whisked inside a seafood establishment. We decided on Port Orleans. I chose trout and hubby opted for the jambalaya. My selection was palatable but my husband needed seltzer water to down the effects of the spicy concoction.

As we dined, the glitter of beaded customers decked up for upcoming Mardi Gras celebrations caught our eyes, rendering us quite the beadless party poopers next to our glittery companions.

"How is everything?" our polite waiter asked us for the seventh time.

"Fine," we nodded with our mouths full every time he posed the question.

It must be a ruse with waiters to ask this question when you're eating a mouthful, and are unable to answer.

On our last day at checkout time my husband asked for a copy of the fax he had sent to his office earlier. They didn't have it. The desk attendant asked for our parking ticket. We didn't have it. Naturally, we left it in the glove compartment of our rented car. Having just come back from there for the purpose of placing our luggage in the trunk of the rental car, we found we had to make a repeat performance to retrieve our parking ticket. Out of all this we did enjoy the pulley cart ride provided as a free service up and down the parking ramps.

"Makes you feel like a kid again," I yelled to my husband, as we breezed down the rampway.

Once we were all set to drive out of the parking lot, we pulled up to the attendant to turn in our validated parking ticket.

"I'm not the one you give it to," he said very straight-faced. We waited for further instructions, but found he had forgotten us, so we jetted out. Their fault for hiring an incompetent.

"How was your vacation?" my parents asked, when we returned home.

"Hmm, a mixed bag, I think," I replied.

I am reminded of a refrain my daughter often sings. It goes something like this: "The seaweed is always greener in somebody else's lake," . . . "What more is ya lookin for," . . .

Principal's actions make ex-administrator cringe

JOHN TELFORD

■ But this I do know: thought has no color. Nor does justice. Nor reason. Nor love. Nor knowledge — particularly knowledge, and its liberal acquisition — education.

In 1989, I would have fancied that Hulond Humphries was a grotesquely aberrant specimen of semi-humanity, let alone a certified high school principal entrusted with the leadership of an American high school.

In 1994, I'm no longer so sure. Between those years, I was forcibly strapped in a front-row seat and subjected to a mass display of bigotry in a community I had assumed to be too sophisticated — not to speak of too howdy-neighbor American-pie — for such counter-democratic viciousness.

Hulond Humphries is the Alabama high school principal who in his ignorance threatened to cancel his school's prom to prevent interracial couples from attending. He is also the individual who pronounced one of his students, the daughter of interracial parents, a "mistake."

Yes, he said this about one of his students! A child of God. A young, sensitive, teen-age human being. How in the name of all that's holy did this man ever get to be a high school principal? I presume that, chillingly, before he became a high school principal he must have been an assistant principal, and before that perhaps a department head, and before that, a teacher. A teacher, Lord have mercy!

During my often tumultuous four-decade career in education, I was directly instrumental in hiring or promoting over 30 suburban principals in overwhelmingly white Christian schools. While the vast majority were excellent choices, I must confess that I wasn't entirely infallible in my judgment of leadership talent. But none of them, praise be, would have ever thought of pronouncing one of their students a "mistake." Nor would any of them have ever contemplated canceling a prom because black and white students planned to attend together as each others' dates.

Or would they have? I recognize that I'm actually at a point in my life where I can't truly say that I know even this for a positive fact anymore.

But this I do know: thought has no color. Nor does justice. Nor reason. Nor love. Nor knowledge — particularly knowledge, and its liberal acquisition — education.

Hulond Humphries is worthy of neither the proud name "American" nor the sacred title "educator." He has disgraced both his citizenship and his profession. Were I so empowered, I would permanently strip him of both — not to mention his principalship. He is a bona-fide throwback to Nazi Germany in the same spirit that his alter ego Louis Farrakhan is. Bigotry — whatever its color — is undemocratic, anti-American, and murderously perilous to the survival of our multicultural republic, which is the one last shining hope of the world.

Is Hulond Humphries indeed a grotesquely aberrant specimen of semi-humanity today in anno Domini 1994? God, I would love to believe that he is — yet I'm mortally afraid that he isn't. Perhaps in 2094 his kind will have become an aberration. But by then, it will be far too late.

MEA members shouldn't serve on school boards

TIM RICHARD

Some retribution! Some vendetta!

Republican legislators are pussyfooting in their campaign to clip the wings of the Michigan Education Association.

The Grand Old Party has many reasons to fight education's largest employees' union. MEA has allocated delegates within the Democratic Party structure, MEA money favors Democratic candidates, and MEA leaders sat with Democratic legislators last Oct. 5 when Gov. John Engler delivered his special message on school reform.

MEA not only opposed Proposal A on the March 15 ballot but blundered badly when it put the union's name on the extremely dirty campaign against it.

Despite Democratic rhetoric about "union busting," however, Republicans have set cautious goals as the House Labor Committee studies school "cost containment" measures. On the limited agenda: requiring school boards to bid out health care contracts instead of letting MEA bargain to be the insurance administrator; punishing school employees who strike illegally; and giving administrators more authority.

MEA's chief sin is none of the above. Its chief sin is having members who are teachers or administrators in District A serving on the school board in District B.

They have a conflict of interest. Bargaining tactics get leaked from the board room to the union. Strong administrators get undercut. The board gives in too easily to union work rule demands and bargains too many things.

The union has a perfect alibi. MEA lobbyist Al Short shrugs and says: "Management retains all the power unless it bargains to give up that power. We do not have the right to put one word in the contract that's not bargained and agreed to."

I asked several Republican legislators point-blank about their pussyfooting. All but one said there might be constitutional problems, and maybe there were problems with limiting the right of people to run for office. Nuts. Voting-age students may not serve on the boards of colleges they attend. Educators shouldn't be serving on school boards.

The voice in the wilderness was Rep. Dave Jaye, R-Utica. OK, Jaye has had his problems with Demon Rum, but he's straightening out and should be heard. In my experience, Jaye has a shin-kicking honesty and a good-humored propensity to raise issues the Nervous Nellies of The Establishment fear to discuss.

Jaye in fact raised that point — MEA power on school boards — in his party's caucus. He told me the leaders replied, "Dave, support us on the first step, and we'll look at it later. We need the school administrators on board (supporting legislation) for management changes. Dave, give us a break."

Michigan needs a law on this point to protect the voters from themselves. Voter turnouts are a miserable 10 or 15 percent in most school board elections. A very small bloc — like a union — can decide an election. The voters, unfortunately, are lethargic until the assessment notices or tax proposals come in.

It will be a tough campaign, getting MEA types off school boards. Many educators are so morally obtuse on this point that they're blind to their own conflict of interest. "We're the professionals," they insist. "Who knows better than educators what the problems are?"

A school board oversees the managers of a public corporation. The board hires the top brass, sets the budget, approves contracts and acts as a kind of appeals court when charges are filed against employees or students.

Classroom experience is not desirable for serving on a school board — quite the opposite, because it results in a propensity to second-guess administrators and other teachers.

MEA is a union with loyal members. It should be heard by school boards, but MEA shouldn't have school board seats.

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Two months ago it started with bipartisan support from both chambers of the Legislature.

But by last week the effort to revitalize Michigan's 75-year-old state park system had become a partisan battle with overtones of Detroit versus the rest of the state.

Voters on Nov. 8 may have the final say. The Senate wants them to vote on a constitutional amendment to eliminate diversion of $20 million from the Natural Resources Trust Fund into the Michigan Strategic Fund (MFS), sending the money instead into a state parks endowment fund.

The Natural Resources Trust Fund, started in 1982, is fed by revenue from oil and gas found on state land. MFS is an economic development fund created under Democratic Gov. James Blanchard in the early 1980s. MSF gets part of the natural resources fund to pay for pollution control projects aimed at attracting business. Republican Gov. John Engler would like to dismantle this monument to his predecessor.

Meanwhile, state general fund appropriations for the parks shrank from 70 percent of their budget to less than 30 percent, as user fees were jacked up.

Ballot plan OK'd

The Senate March 22 approved 29-7 a ballot proposal (Senate Joint Resolution E) to end the diversion and sent it to the House of Representatives.

All local senators voted yes: Republican Robert Geake of Northville; Democrats William Faust of Westland and George Hart of Dearborn.

Fund sale fought

Most controversial was the bill to use proceeds from sale of the state Accident Fund to endow the parks. The Accident Fund was started in 1912 to provide workers compensation insurance in a new market. Engler has the state business on the auction block.

The bill barely passed, 20-16, as three Republicans joined Democrats in voting no. All area senators voted with their parties. The bill already has passed the House.

Less controversial was the House-passed bill to give the state immunity from liability for volunteer groups who take part in the adopt-a-park program.

Senate action was praised by Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), which spearheaded the year-long effort that preceeded legislative action.

Schoolcraft musical recitals set

The 22nd annual Piano Honors and third annual String, Flute, Guitar and Voice Honors recitals begin at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, April 17, in the Forum Building Recital Hall at Schoolcraft College.

The purpose of the event is to encourage excellence in solo performance and ensemble playing, and to recognize teaching excellence in the Detroit area. More than $2,200 in scholarships and cash prizes will be given to the top winners.

When it's a matter of the heart . . . think Providence first.

Comprehensive services. Providence Hospital in Southfield offers a full range of cardiac services. We care for patients from the time they arrive at our Chest Pain Emergency Unit until they complete diagnostic tests, interventional procedures, open heart surgery and cardiac rehabilitation. And Providence also offers something else--the special personal care that has been our hallmark for nearly 150 years.

Heart disease, an American killer. Every two and a half minutes, someone in the United States suffers a heart attack. The number one killer of American adults, heart attacks will claim 600,000 victims this year. But for many who seek treatment quickly, today's "clot-busting drugs" can stop a heart attack in its tracks.

Chest Pain Emergency Unit. That's why Providence opened one of the first Chest Pain Emergency Units in metro-Detroit--to provide care in those initial critical hours after a patient begins to experience chest pain. Physicians and nurses specially trained in emergency cardiac care procedures can determine the cause of chest pain and quickly begin treatment.

Diagnostic and interventional procedures. To detect heart disease, Providence cardiologists access such state of the art technology as stress echocardiography, thallium stress testing, Doppler and transesophageal echocardiography. And last year, they performed more than 1,500 procedures including cardiac catheterizations, angioplasties and atherectomies to pinpoint and clear blocked or narrowed coronary arteries.

Cardiac Surgery. For many patients angioplasty or atherectomy can significantly improve a heart condition. Other patients require open heart surgery to bypass blocked or diseased coronary arteries. Last year, Providence cardiac surgeons performed nearly 500 of these delicate procedures, restoring patients to more normal lives.

Cardiac Rehabilitation. Cardiac rehabilitation programs at Providence are designed to return people to activities of daily living as quickly as possible. Programs begin just days after cardiac surgery while patients are still in the hospital and continue after the patient returns home.

The board-certified cardiologists and cardiac surgeons at Providence are among the best in southeast Michigan. For more information on the hospital's cardiac services or for a referral to a Providence physician, please call 1-800-968-5595.

The second-half fee, yet to be determined, will be due after five weeks. The tee times on Wednesday will be 5-6 p.m. The league runs for 20 weeks and is limited to 36 players. Men's soccer ready to kick in at Madonna

He's from Poland and he's just beginning to speak understandable English, and now it's his job to start the Madonna University men's soccer program from scratch.

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

Starting a college soccer program from scratch is hard enough, but throw in a potential language and cultural barrier between the coach and players and you begin to understand the immensity of the challenge facing Robert Mazur and the fledgling Madonna University men's soccer program.

"It is very difficult, especially since I am not fluent in speaking English," said Mazur, 35, who came to America from his native Poland three years ago equipped with three languages: Polish, German and French. "It's not been easy to organize everything, but I think I can do it and do a good job."

Madonna decided to add men's soccer to its athletic repertoire in January and hired Mazur, a former professional soccer player in Europe who continues to coach the boys and girls programs at Milford High School.

The Madonna team will begin practicing the last week of May and will play its inaugural season next September. The team will use Ladywood's field.

Mazur has been scrambling to fill out a schedule, a task made difficult by the fact that Madonna will enter NAIA competition as an independent, unaffiliated with any league or district.

"It has been hard to find teams with open dates," Mazur said. "So far, we have only eight games."

The problem of finding players, happily, has been less difficult.

"I have sent letters to many, many high schools," Mazur said. "So far I have gotten answers from 40 players. A lot of kids want to play at Madonna."

There have also been open tryout invitations posted throughout the campus. But Mazur won't have a clue as to the level of talent, or even the names, of the players he'll be starting with until May.

"We will have to work very hard to be on the same level as most college teams," he said. "We will be mostly freshmen, and it is a very hard adjustment from high school to college. But that doesn't mean we have to lose all our games. We just have to work hard."

Mazur said that Madonna University, located in the middle of one the best high school soccer regions in the Midwest, shouldn't have trouble attracting talented players once the program is established.

"There are a lot of great players in this area," he said. "I am, what do you say, optimistic."

Enshrined: Former Plymouth Canton coach Fred Crissey will be inducted into the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame in June.

Canton's Crissey gets the call, he's going to the coaches' hall

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

Former Plymouth Canton baseball coach Fred Crissey accepted the news of his impending enshrinement into the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall of Fame with typical self-deprecating sarcasm.

"Well, you know, if you do anything long enough you are bound to get some kind of recognition," said Crissey, who will be honored at a ceremony June 23 prior to the state high school all-star game at Tiger Stadium.

But anybody who has followed Observerland baseball knows that his 19 years of service were the least of his contributions. There are, for example, his 369-123 record, his 10 league championships, five district titles, three regionals and one trip to the championship game.

But even those considerable feats pale in comparison to his most significant accomplishment. Ninety-two percent of his players graduated and went on to college, including 85 who went on to earn baseball scholarships.

"The forum was baseball and baseball was a means to an end," said Crissey, who retired from coaching in 1992. "But that end wasn't necessarily a professional baseball career. The most gratifying thing for me, is to see that so many of players have gone on to live happy, productive lives. That's really what it is all about."

Surprisingly, Crissey said he doesn't really miss coaching.

"The strange thing is, I don't know how I ever had time to do it," he said. "I teach history and English (at Central Middle School), and I'm very involved in the technology program in the district. So I don't really miss it. I think though, if I would have dropped teaching and coaching together, I would miss it terribly.

"But, I've always felt that once you've put things down that you walk away and not look back. I've been able to do that."

Crissey will be honored at a banquet in Mount Clemens on June 22, prior to the Tiger Stadium ceremony. Then, an honorary plaque will be placed in the coaches association hall of fame on the campus of Central Michigan University.

"That's nice," he said. "My daughter (Ellen) goes to school there. Plus, they give you a ring which is a nice thing to be able to pass on to the family."

But Crissey wanted it known that he was not accepting the honor alone.

"This honor is reflective of the kinds of kids we had, the assistant coaches and the booster clubs we had at Canton. You don't do something like this alone."

Tartar-ized: Canton's Matt Paupore will take his basketball skills to Wayne State University next fall.

Paupore picks Wayne St.

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Wayne State University's newest basketball recruiting class will certainly feel right at home.

The Tartars recently received verbal commitments from a pair of Observerland cage standouts: Tony Goins, a 6-foot-5 forward from Westland John Glenn, and Matt Paupore, a 6-3 guard from Plymouth Canton.

Both are expected to sign next week. The NCAA National Letter-of-Intent signing period begins again Wednesday, April 13.

Wayne State — which posted a school-record 24 wins en route to the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference regular-season and playoff championships — loses four key players to graduation, including GLIAC Player of the Year Michael Aaron.

The Tartars have made three consecutive trips to the NCAA Division II post-season tournament.

Goins, who led Glenn to a 20-5 record and its first state Class A quarterfinal berth in school history, could wind up to be the steal of the year for WSU coach Ron Hammye.

The Glenn forward, who plans to major in business, is one of the state's most underrated players.

"Wayne State gave me an offer and showed the most interest," said Goins, who averaged 21 points and nine rebounds per game for the Rockets. "It's close to home and I'll be able to get a good education. Plus, I think it's a level of basketball where I can play. I just wanted to play basketball and I'd like to be a part of that program."

Goins and Paupore are no strangers.

The two have been summer teammates in AAU basketball.

"We had a great time and we're real good friends," said Paupore, who averaged 22 points, seven rebounds and three assists per game for the 15-7 Chiefs.

Paupore set a single-season school record for total points (484) as the Chiefs captured the Western Lakes Activities Association playoff crown.

The Canton sharpshooter committed to WSU last week after mulling over an offer from Northern Michigan University.

"I just really like the Wayne State basketball program, and I think they really have something going," said Paupore, who also plays on the Canton baseball team. "The coach (Ron Hammye) thinks I'll be a point guard eventually. I'm a shooting guard, but he thinks I can play the point and that's fine with me. My brother (Brian) played at Hillsdale and I feel confident at that level."

Goins and Paupore will join another former Observerland standout, 6-7 junior center Randy Calcaterra (Livonia Churchill), a part-time starter and key reserve last season with the Tartars.

COLLEGE SPORTS

Madonna softball sizzles; diamondmen split a pair

The Madonna University softball team continued its strong start to the 1994 season with Sunday's 9-4, 20-0 sweep over Lake Superior State University.

The doubleheader was played at Ford Field because of unplayable conditions at Massey Field in Plymouth.

The Crusaders, who were 8-4 on their spring trip to Florida, improved to 10-4 overall under first-year coach Jerry Abraham.

"We had a great spring trip, played well and that set the tone for the season," Abraham said. "The kids have really responded and are playing better each game. I'm very happy at this point."

In Sunday's opener, senior Ronnie Ronco had two hits, including a home run, and an RBI. Sophomore Jennifer Pinter had two hits, scored two runs and had an RBI and senior Jill Burt contributed two hits, scored a run and drove in a run.

Senior Mandy Armstrong had one hit and scored twice. Sophomore Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) had a hit and run scored and junior Maureen Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) had one hit and an RBI.

Senior Dawn Terrasi improved to 7-4 with the pitching victory. She allowed 10 hits and four runs with one strikeout and one walk.

In the second game, Madonna collected 21 hits and scored in every inning except the second en route to the five-inning mercy victory.

Armstrong led the way with four hits, four RBI and three runs scored. Jeannie Baxter, a freshman from Redford St. Agatha, was 3-for-4 with three RBI and four runs scored and Paulin was 3-4 with two RBI and three runs. Ronco, Birchmeier, Jennifer Zack and Burt had two hits each.

Ronco scored twice with an RBI, Birchmeier and Zack drove in one run each and Burt scored once and had two RBI.

"We really hit the ball," Abraham said.

Linda Weichel raised her pitching record to 3-0, tossing a one-hitter with four strikeouts and three walks.

Diamondmen split

Mike George's Madonna baseball team split a pair at home with Northwood Saturday, dropping the first 5-4 and winning the second, 11-1.

Shawn Lynch's two-run single capped a decisive three-run fourth inning for Northwood in the opener. Right-hander Louie McKaig (0-4) allowed 10 hits and four earned runs in seven innings for Madonna.

Designated hitter Jeff Miller rapped a double and a home run in a losing cause.

The Crusaders' bats warmed up in the second game. They sent 12 men to the plate in a seven-run second inning to put Northwood to rout.

Craig Overaitis (Livonia Franklin) had three hits including a home run and six RBI. He had a rare, three-run single in the second.

George Leung and Tim Kasubowski each rapped out a pair of hits.

Right-hander Jim Solak (3-0) allowed five hits and struck out four to get the win.

Madonna is now 13-5. Northwood is 11-4.

Area icer heads east to Colgate

Colgate University assistant hockey coach Stan Moore scouted one of Bill Baaki's first games this season with the Wisconsin Capitols of the United States Hockey League.

Moore liked what he saw from his seat in the stands and was even more impressed up close.

"When I went down after the game to find out if he had the academic abilities, I held my breath," Moore recalled. "Then he recited his SAT and I about fell down."

Baaki graduated from Redford Catholic Central in 1993 with a 3.7 grade point average and he scored 1,280 on his SAT, which is about 80 points higher than the average Colgate student.

On hearing that, Moore offered Baaki a chance to play hockey for the academically challenging school — and Baaki accepted.

Colgate plays in the Eastern College Athletic Conference along with hockey powers Harvard and RPI. Five ECAC teams have reached the NCAA's Final Four since 1985 with RPI winning the championship in '85 and Harvard in '89.

Colgate is in Hamilton, N.Y., about 30 miles southeast of Syracuse.

"The thing I recall the most about Bill is his work ethic," Moore said. "I was sitting next to a New Jersey Devils' scout and we both just marveled at no matter how much the team struggled, Bill was one of the guys who tried to make them overachieve.

"On certain shifts, he made the decision to dive at the puck and keep it in the other team's end or sacrifice himself by taking a hit for an outlet pass. I sense a great deal of character in Bill."

Colgate had a 14-17-2 overall record and placed seventh out of 12 teams in the ECAC at 10-10-2.

Don Vaughan just finished his second year as head coach of Colgate, which in 1990 lost in the NCAA tournament championship game to Wisconsin, 7-3.

Baaki, a left wing, scored 12 goals with 10 assists in 27 games for the Capitols, a Madison-based team that finished last in the USHL. He also wasn't afraid of protecting his teammates, collecting more than 100 minutes in penalties.

Baaki started the 1993-94 season with Sioux City, Iowa., before being traded to Wisconsin for another forward. Baaki earned a job on the first line with Wisconsin.

Baaki said his year away from home was worthwhile, even that eight-hour bus trip that became unbearable after the heater broke and the temperature dipped to minus-15 degrees.

"I accomplished what I came to do," said Baaki, who stayed with a family in Madison and made money working for a car dealership. "I always wanted to go to an ECAC school — there's more balance between sports and academics. I am real impressed with Colgate. They're more oriented to the fast game. I've got skills they'll be able to develop."

Chiefs, Rocks ready for super spring

New boss, new hope at Canton

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

Adam Gilles was skeptical from the start. The Plymouth Canton senior, one of only three returning starters on the baseball team, was not overly thrilled when he heard in December that Ed Turek was going to be the new varsity coach.

"They said he was an assistant coach at Michigan," said Gilles, who hit .422 last season for former coach Mark LaPointe, who resigned. "I hate Michigan."

And then there was that first team meeting.

"He walked in there and he was real strict, right from the start," Gilles said. "We thought, 'Oh, Lord, he's going to be real tough.'"

But, in the short month that the team has been together, Turek has made believers out of Gilles and the rest of the Chiefs.

"It's really been good," Gilles said. "People are really going to like him. He's strict when he needs to be strict, but he also jokes around and he's a real nice guy. And he obviously knows his baseball."

His knowledge of the game has never been questioned, even if he did spend the past seven years playing and coaching at the University of Michigan.

"I've had the good fortune to play for and coach with some of the best people in the country," said Turek, a former All-Area catcher at Catholic Central (1985) who played three years at Michigan under Bud Middaugh. In 1989, he became a graduate assistant coach under Bill Freehan and stayed on as an assistant through last year. "I'm sure I've taken a little bit from each guy, plus a lot of others I've come in contact with across the country."

He said he is more than ready to run his own program.

"I've know about the tradition of Plymouth Canton baseball since I was in high school," he said. "Just to keep the program successful is going to be a challenge. But I am real excited. This has been one of the best programs in the state, and it's my job to keep it going."

The players will tell you there is an entirely different atmosphere around practice, and that it is a positive change.

"The biggest thing is the amount of people," said Gilles, who was voted one of the team's three captains. "Last year we had like 25 or 26 kids on the team. It was like a football practice. Now there are only 18 or 19 guys. There isn't as much sitting around. We seem to be able to get a lot more done."

The other change is in the way Canton will play the game.

"We will be very aggressive, both offensively and defensively," Turek said. "We will run and bunt and be very scrappy."

Said Gilles: "In the past, we kind of put most of the emphasis on pitching. Now, the emphasis will be on hitting and defense."

There is an obvious reason for that: The team's top two pitchers, Craig Benedict and Mike Stafford have graduated along with the core of last year's Western Lakes championship team.

"As far as I can tell," said Turek, "we are mostly inexperienced."

The strength of the team will be its offense, led by second baseman Gilles and fellow returning starters Eric Marcotte (.400), who will play either shortstop or third base, and Matt Paupore, who will see duty at first base, outfield and on the mound.

The power will likely be supplied by senior outfielder Ryan Ostach, who at 6-4, 215 pounds pounded out six home runs last year.

Other key players include: catcher and co-captain Brian Lemkie, junior catcher Kevin Kovachevich, junior outfielder Brian Kovach, senior outfielder Sean Romanowski, shortstop-third baseman Mark Biro, infielders Joe Niemenski and Brian Kwiatkowski, senior first basemen Eric Arnold and Jeremy Hill and speedy junior outfielder Adam Cunningham.

As for the pitching, Turek will be relying on five or six untested right arms. There isn't a lefty on the staff. Senior co-captain Scott Valimont will start out as the No. 1 pitcher. Sophomore Anthony Pastor has also been impressive. Juniors Darren Schindel, Eric Stidham and Chris Cortellini, plus Paupore, round out the staff.

"I don't think we will be as good as we were last year, only because we lost so much pitching," said Gilles. "But everybody else in our conference lost pitching, too. So we will be right in there."

Canton will open the season at home Saturday, April 9, against Walled Lake Central.

Boys of spring: Plymouth Canton's Kevin Kovachevich (top), a junior catcher, and Salem's Eric Kida, a pitcher and infielder, will be counted on to swing productive bats for their respective teams this season. Both CEP teams will provide some intrigue and excitement this spring: Canton because it's under a new coaching regime (other than Fred Crissey and Mark LaPointe) for the first time in 20 years and Salem because it has the potential to make another run at the state title.

With 3 aces stacked, Salem is poised to strong-arm its foes

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

True, Plymouth Salem graduated the heart of its baseball team, all-stater Charlie Winstel. True, the Rocks also lost their catcher and their entire outfield from a team that went 21-14 and won a district championship before losing to Westland John Glenn in the regional final.

But before you weep for Coach John Gravlin, consider this: His top three pitchers, none of whom had an earned-run average above 2.30 and who combined on a 20-6 record, are back. And filling in the holes will be the core of a junior varsity team that enjoyed a 17-1 season.

"We have some holes, but with the pitching we have, it should buy us some time and help us get over a lot of mistakes," said Gravlin, who is in his 12th year at Salem and has taken the Rocks to the Class A regional in five of the past seven seasons. "I am pleased at the chances for this team. They say you win with pitching and defense; well, we have the pitching."

Senior Mike Marsella returns as the ace of the staff. The right-hander was 7-4 last season with a 2.00 ERA. He also threw a no-hitter in the Class A district championships against Livonia Franklin.

No. 2, or co-ace as Gravlin prefers it, will again be senior right-hander Nirav Kher, who was 8-1 with a 1.05 ERA. His only loss came in relief, and he was beaten by an unearned run.

No. 3 is senior Eric Kida, who was 5-1 last season.

Others who will see mound duty include junior Brad Lear, a relative of former Salem star Scott Rodgers, junior Justin Marcis, senior J.P. Patete, junior Ryan King, junior Dan Quaine and junior Damian Payton.

With the absence of Winstel, Brian Zarosely, Brandon Los, Jamie Owens and John Klask (who transferred to Trenton, all .300-plus hitters, the Rocks' offensive firepower may be lessened. But there are some big bats back.

Dave Knight, senior third baseman, will be the team's top gun. He hit .387 with 24 RBI last year and had an outstanding summer, rapping 22 doubles in Connie Mack ball.

"He's going to be the key guy in there for us," Gravlin said. "He's going to have to be our Charlie Winstel this year."

Kida, who will play at second base when not pitching, senior designated hitter and outfielder Alan Moran (.300 last year), senior catcher Bryan Proctor and Marsella, who will play some in the outfield, will also have to pick up the slack on offense.

Gravlin is hopeful of big contributions from a couple of newcomers. Junior Ahmande Grimes, a catcher, has shown the ability to hit for power, a weapon the Rocks have in short supply.

Speedy outfielder Matt Abbott will take over the center field and leadoff spot. Junior Kaz Kurisu, a very aggressive batsman, may see action in the infield. And, junior Billy Styles has the early lead on the shortstop position.

"He's the first true shortstop we've had in a long time," Gravlin said. "We're usually trying to get by with third basemen there. Billy has great range."

Lear and Quaine, plus junior Dave Bol are battling for playing time at first base.

Juniors Mike Brannan, Geff Mackiewicz, Sam LaGrow and senior Scott Singleton will see time in the outfield.

"Let's just say I am cautiously optimistic," said Gravlin. "We have talent, but let's see how they handle the pressure of facing varsity pitching."

The Rocks open the season Thursday, April 7, at Southgate Anderson (a Class A quarter finalist) and then travel to Centreville, Ohio, on Saturday, April 9, for a doubleheader against a strong Class AAA team.

"I didn't want the kids to feel like they missed out on a spring trip," Gravlin joked.

ALL-AREA VOLLEYBALL

Observer squad well-represented

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Talk about parity.

It was alive and well when it came time to select the members of the 1994 All-Observer girls volleyball team.

Of the 12 players on this year's first team, 11 schools are represented. Only Redford Union had more than one player selected.

Tom Teeters Ladywood

Most would agree this is the most representative All-Observer team in some time.

Team-wise, Livonia Ladywood was the most dominant, reaching the Class A quarterfinal before losing to Bay City Western. After Ladywood, any one of several teams could have made the claim of being second best in Observerland.

FIRST TEAM

Jaclyn Deane, junior, Livonia Franklin: Deane averaged 3.35 kills per game, recording 325 in 831 attempts (23 percent). She also converted 84 percent of her serves with 64 aces.

Defensively, Deane had 63 solo blocks and 77 block assists for an average of 1.44 per game. She averaged 3.62 digs per game with a total of 351.

The junior was an all-tournament selection at the University of Michigan-Dearborn and Madonna University invitationals. She was first-team all-region and All-Western Lakes and also earned the team's Best Offensive Player Award.

"Jaclyn is the most physically dominating athlete Franklin has had in years," coach Anne Hutchinson said. "She's very aggressive with terrific power, has a varied attack and hits both corners well with a strong, penetrating block. Her love for the game is infectious to her teammates. She's very hard waorking and a very coachable athlete."

Amanda Ault, senior, Farmington Hills Harrison: Ault, who has signed with Central Michigan University, was a four-year varsity player. She had 1,480 sets and 429 assists this season, both of which were single-season records at Harrison.

Ault completed 89 percent of her serves with 67 aces and had 307 kills in 831 attempts (37 percent). The two-year captain led the Hawks to a division championship the last two years.

"Amanda is the most dedicated and skilled volleyball player to play for Harrison," coach Ron Shortt said. "She is a great leader on and off the floor. Her abilities will be greatly missed at Harrison; however, I am looking forward to watching her college career develop at Central Michigan."

Yvette Sixbey, senior, Garden City: Sixbey led the Cougars to a Class A district championship with her devastating play at the net. The 6-foot-2 senior had 56 kills, with only seven errors, 10 solo blocks and six service aces in the district.

Sixbey, who is bound for Oklahoma University, averaged 3.94 kills per game, with 368 in 801 attempts for the season. She also had 64 solo blocks.

"Yvette is an outstanding middle blocker who has matured into a beautiful young lady," coach Nikki Stubbs said. "She'll be missed dearly on and off the court by both friends and staff. She's not only an exceptional athlete, but has developed into a great friend."

Jean Herron, junior, Redford Thurston: Herron, a 6-2 junior hitter, averaged 4.5 kills per game with 405 for the season. She served at 92 percent with 90 aces and averaged 2.7 blocks per game.

The captain and team most valuable player has led the Eagles to two straight district titles. She was an all-region first team selection this year.

"Intensity and a great all-around player describes Jean Herron," coach Bob Burns said. "She's an outstanding student, academically (3.6 GPA) and in the game of volleyball. She shares her knowledge with her team and posseses a special winning spirit. She was this year's team leader and could be the area's best middle hitter next year."

Lynn Little, senior, Westland John Glenn: Little, who will play next year at Henry Ford Community College, led the Rockets with 301 kills in 761 attempts, 97 aces and 101 blocks. A team captain the last two years, the 6-foot Little made the all-tournament team while leading the Rockets to the Walled Lake Central Invitational title and carries a 3.6 GPA.

Lynn plays a great defensive game with excellent back-row passing," Glenn coach Greg Bollard said. "She is a key player to the team with her leadership and cool, even temper on the floor. Lynn can change her game in a single instant to help her team."

Christiane Grant, senior, Farmington Hills Mercy: The All-Catholic first-team player had 311 kills in 783 attacks (40 percent). She served 88 percent with 42 aces and finished with 89 stuffed blocks and made All-Oakland County. The Marlins won a Class A district behind the play of Grant.

"Christiane is an outstanding front-row player and has worked very hard this season to become an all-around player," coach Peggy Spengler said. "Her hitting power is phenomenal and often unstoppable. She is a dedicated athlete who really enjoys her game."

Rachel Clor, senior, Redford Union: The four-year varsity player led the Panthers to a co-championship in the Mega Conference Division with 181 kills in 382 attempts and 137 blocks, 73 solo. She had 173 digs and 57 ace serves in 316 attempts.

She was a first-team all league choice for the second straight year and was named team most valuable player.

She has signed with Oakland University.

"Rachel is a player with a lot of class and character," coach Marie Becker said. "I appreciate her hard work throughout her entire four years on the varsity, and we will definitely miss her leadership on and off the floor."

Vicki Toth, senior, Redford Union: Toth, who missed her junior year because of knee surgery, had 102 kills in 310 attempts and 101 blocks. She had 40 aces in 257 serves and came up with 182 digs.

Toth was MVP of the Madonna Invitational, won by RU, and she helped the Panthers win one other tournament.

She has signed with Madonna.

"Vicki is a very dedicated athlete who overcame a knee injury by pushing herself mentally and physically," Becker said. "I will miss coaching Vicki because she has a love for the game that's fun to watch and you can see the excitement in her eyes when she plays."

Anne Poglits, junior, Livonia Ladywood: Poglits frustrated opposing teams, collecting an average of nine kills and 1.4 aces per game. The All-Catholic choice who carries a 3.97 GPA was an all-tournament choice at the U-M Dearborn and Schoolcraft invitationals.

She led the Blazers to a 42-8-2 overall record and a berth in the Class A quarterfinal where they lost to Bay City Western.

"Anne takes pride in doing whatever it takes to make Ladywood volleyball better," coach Tom Teeters said. "Anne was a dominant force and in turn Ladywood was the dominant team in the area as well as the Catholic League."

Angie Pippo, senior, Livonia Stevenson: Pippo, who has signed with Northwood University, was an all-conference and all-region choice. She made the all-tournament team at the Temperance Bedford Invitational and finished the year with 173 serving aces and 387 assists.

"Angie has so much ability and natural talent which makes watching her play so much more enjoyable," coach Kelly Graham said. "She has a terrific personality that goes along with her ability to be a good leader, and she's easy to coach. She listens attentively at criticism or adjustments and does all she can to change or make her own adjustments. It was a pleasure to have her this year, and she'll be missed next season."

Jamey Viau, senior, Plymouth Salem: Viau had 257 kills, 61 aces and 470 digs to lead Salem to an undefeated record in the Western Lakes regular season. The senior who made the WLAA first team served at a 95 percent clip.

"Jamey is truly the leader of our team," coach Allie Suffety said. "She is hard working and a great captain. Her presence will be greatly missed."

Tracy Sledz, junior, Livonia Clarenceville: The 5-10 junior middle hitter was a first-team Class C all-state choice after collecting 201 kills, 402 digs, 81 solo blocks and 64 ace serves. She scored 152 points in leading Clarenceville to the Class C quarterfinal before being eliminated by state power Burton Atherton.

"Tracy is the most talented player I've coached in four years at Clarenceville," coach Alicia Love said. "She's a dominating player on and off the court. She has college potential and does everything — serving, defense and offense."

Camilleri shows touch

AL HARRISON

Strange things can happen in bowling. Perhaps what happened to Angelo Camilleri last week is one to remember.

It occurred during the Merri Bowl Wednesday Night Senior House League. The pins were really flying that night, but not for Angelo, with a mere 169 in the first game.

He decided to use his other ball, and came up over 200 in the second contest. Game three was even more satisfying as he threw strike after strike, 10, 11, then the last ball, the try for his first 300 game.

As Angelo delivered his next ball, something went wrong.

The ball smashed into his ankle on the downswing. When this happens, usually it is doubly painful as the ball just dumps into the channel.

This time, the ball stayed on the lane, just barely, then rolled along the edge, perhaps hit a dry spot and turned toward the pocket. It had just enough roll left to topple all 10 and give Angelo Camilleri his first perfect game.

Eggs have special meaning for Easter holiday, spring

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Eggs are an important part of the Easter holiday. They are an important part of spring too. Animals of many different kinds emerge from eggs in spring. Some of those eggs were laid last year, like the eggs of most grasshoppers and mantises. Owlets hatched in late winter from eggs laid in mid-winter.

Frogs and salamanders will be migrating to ponds to court, mate and lay eggs which will be left to develop without any parental care. Amphibians need water, or at least very moist places, to lay their eggs. Water is needed to keep the eggs wet.

Fish, for obvious reasons, must also lay their eggs in water.

Reptiles, on the other hand, have a pliable covering over their embryo so they are not restricted to water for egg laying. Turtles will search for sandy or soft soil areas in which to dig a hole. Embryos inside the eggs laid in the hole will develop due to the heat of the soil.

Birds' eggs are the most widely recognized of all the eggs. Their hard shell, made mostly of calcium, allows birds to lay them in many different environmental conditions. They cannot lay them in water, however. Though the shell is hard, it has to breathe. If it were submerged in water, the embryo would drown.

Speaking of eggs in water, here's a trick you can try on some people. In preparation, fill two glasses about three-quarters full of water. Dissolve salt in one of the glasses so it is not noticeable. Then take an ordinary egg and place it gently in the plain water glass. The egg sinks. Remove the egg and say some magic words, like "Eggra cadabra," then place it in the glass with salt water. See if they can guess why the same egg now floats.

Boiling eggs in water changes the protein inside so it is no longer liquid. Birds nesting in hot desert areas sit on their eggs to keep them cool, not warm. However, if you boil eggs in water, remember the superstition that says if you wash your hands in the same water after boiling, you might get warts.

Today we know that eggs are "eggstremely" important and come in "eggstordinary" sizes and shapes from various animals.

Musicians gather for classical reunion

Musical colleagues Debra Fayroian, Patricia McCarty and Maria Meirelles are getting together for a "Classical Reunion," 8 p.m. Friday, April 1, at the Detroit Chamber Winds Nightnotes Series concert at Hagopian World of Rugs in Birmingham. Refreshments served 8 p.m., followed by concert at 8:30 p.m. Admission is $12. Call (810) 362-2622 for reservations.

The trio will be joined by violinist Jennifer Ross in a concert featuring the Brahms "Piano Quartet," op. 21. Fayroian is a cellist in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and and artistic director of the Nightnotes Series. McCarthy is a concert violinist, Meirelles, a pianist, has performed throughout the western hemisphere. Ross has been a violinist with the Cincinnati and Honolulu Symphony orchestras, and is currently concertmaster of the Vermont Symphony.

■ Speaking of reunions, Daniel Cooney of Westland is returning to the Fisher Theatre in Detroit with the cast of "Evita," April 12-17. Cooney is outstanding in his role as Che. Donna Marie Asbury reprises her depiction of Eva Peron, which wowed Fisher Theatre audiences in September. David Brummel plays Peron. Tickets are now on sale, call (810) 645-6666 or (313) 872-1000. Don't miss a second chance to see Cooney in this Andrew Lloyd Webber hit musical.

■ Cranbrook Music Guild continues its 42nd season 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 5 with a homecoming concert by the Lafayette String Quartet in the library of Cranbrook House. Call (810) 751-2435 for ticket information.

Quartet in Residence at the University of Victoria in British Columbia, the Lafayette String Quartet was previously in residence at the Center for Creative Studies — Institute of Music and Dance in Detroit, and Oakland University in Rochester.

Violinists Ann Elliott-Goldschmid and Sharon Stanis, violinist Joanna Hood, and cellist Pamela Highbaugh, formed the quartet in 1984 when they came to Detroit as members of the Renaissance City Chamber Ensemble. They have won numerous prizes and international recognition. Tuesday's program will open with the Mozart Quartet in D Major, K. 499, and close with the C Major "Rasumovsky" Quartet, op. 59, no. 3 of Beethoven.

Musical gleefully skewers pop culture

BARBARA MICHALS

Talented cast: Wendy Perelman (Peep-Bo), Billy Miller (Pish Tush), Courtenay Collins (Yum-Yum), David Gunderman (Ninki-Poo), and Rebecca Hirsch (Pitti-Sing) star in "The NOT Mikado."

Bursting with boundless energy and endless inventiveness, "The NOT Mikado" at the Birmingham Theatre is a wonderful rock musical that gleefully skewers today's pop culture.

This free-wheeling update of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" is colorful, fast-paced, and enormously witty. One has to see it at least a second time to catch the plethora of puns, malapropisms, and one-liners that fly fast and furious. Lest anyone mistake this for serious stuff, the show is subtitled "A Hip-Hopperetta."

How hip is it? There are references to the Whitewater controversy, and a capsule summary of the latest episode of "Beverly Hills, 90210." There are also swipes at Nancy Kerrigan and Tonya Harding, the Bobbitts, the Menendez Brothers, Dr. Kevorkian, Waco, Madonna, "Wayne's World," and Barney. The intention is to continually update some lines as needed.

Conceived and directed by Worth Gardner and adapted by Gardner and musical director Scot Woolley, "The NOT Mikado" satirizes contemporary music and culture just as the original operetta poked fun at the pretension and rigidity of Victorian England and the absurd conventions of grand opera.

While the new orchestrations of the familiar Gilbert and Sullivan songs are essentially rock, they included rap, punk, country-western, heavy metal, and reggae. Some of the numbers stick fairly close to the original lyrics, while others are barely recognizable.

The nine-member cast displays enormous talent, both individually and as an ensemble. Nearly all have worked with Gardner before, at the Birmingham Theatre and elsewhere.

In black leather and roller blades, David Gunderman is a likable Nanki-Poo, a "rolling minstrel." Courtenay Collins as Yum-Yum, Rebecca Hirsch as Pitti-Sing, and Wendy Perelman Peep-Bo are the delightfully three little maids from school sporting punk hairdos and Spandex garb. With his flaming orange punk hair, Billy Miller offers energetic support as Pish-Tush.

As Ko-Ko, the unwilling Lord High Executioner, Kurt Johns is outstanding as he endearingly cavorts in high-top platform sneakers. He delivers an endless stream of hilarious mispronunciations and malapropisms, the equivalent of Rocky Balboa attempting Shakespeare.

Howard Kaye as the arrogant Pooh-Bah, the Lord High Everything Else including Decorator of the Interior, and Bob Arnold as the formidably ugly Katisha are both splendidly campy. As the Mikardo, the Big Mik, David Earl Hart is imposing in platform clogs that look about a foot high and a dazzling robe covered in irridescent compact discs.

Broadway musicals this year have been just an endless dreary string of revivals. Hopefully, someone will snatch up this fresh and innovative show, and earmark it for New York. Meanwhile, Gardner has already been enlisted by the Birmingham Theatre to apply his creative genius to next year's season.

"The NOT Mikado" is the sixth Worth Gardner show at the Birmingham in their past three seasons. It's been said before, and it's still true: Gardner's shows just keep getting better and better.

Barbara Michals is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York productions.

THEATER REVIEW

VICTORIA DIAZ

It's been a long winter. Get on over to the Village Players Theatre in Birmingham, sit back, relax, and welcome spring with a few laughs. You'll feel much better after taking in a performance of the contemporary comedy, "Alone Together," especially if you have kids, and sometimes believe that their main calling in life is to make you crazy.

The play, directed by Maureen Cook, goes something like this: Middle-aged, middle-class Californians George and Helene Butler have been married over 30 years. They've spent much of that time raising three sons, the first of which made his appearance about nine months after their wedding day.

As "Alone Together" opens, their youngest son, Keith, is finally out the door and off to college. Now, Mom and Dad (though they admittedly have mixed feelings about his departure) can look forward to taking that trip they've always dreamed of, have that wine-and-candlelight dinner they've been waiting for all these years, or make out in front of the fireplace if they feel like it.

Yeah, sure they can.

Just as they're about to get down to some serious romance, their oldest son, Michael, shows up with some big problems. Among these problems is the unbearable (to him) winter weather in Massachusetts, where he's just quit his teaching job at MIT. ("We didn't raise a son. We raised a citrus fruit," laments his mother.)

Hot on his heels, younger brother, Elliott, returns, too. Seems he's been rejected by his wife in Texas for a persistently wandering eye, and has come home to hang his ten-gallon hat. Recidivism reigns and, before it's over, the Butlers not only have grown sons returning home like boomerangs (the youngest comes back, too — he has a toothache), they also acquire a "daughter" who's seeking shelter.

As Helene, Susie Gardiner gets off to a rather lackluster start, delivering her lines as if she were slightly tired or maybe even a little bored. As things move on, however, she manages to get into the zany spirit of the play, and to imbue her role with a nice mix of gladness, sadness, razor's-edge madness. She has wonderfully expressive eyes, and some of her best moments come when she says nothing, but simply reacts wordlessly to the confusion around her.

As the long-suffering father, George, Terry Freier pretty much follows her lead. He, too, seems to have trouble getting started right. But once she's on her way, he manages to keep up well, although one keeps wishing he'd appear just a bit more energetic in his fatherly exasperation.

Ron Hall (Michael), Y. Jamie Mistry (Elliott), and Ryan Martin (Keith) turn in nice performances as the three grown sons who believe there's no place like the house they grew up in.

If mosquitoes could talk, they would sound like Susan Potok's Janie Johnson. In a comparatively brief role, Potok definitely makes her mark as the Butler's scantily-clad "star boarder."

With the exception of a few regrettable sound effects, the Village Players of Birmingham appear to have given close attention to peripherals. The attractive "California Contemporary" set adds liveliness to the production.

HFCC presents 'A Symphony Celebration'

The Henry Ford Community College Performing Arts Department will present "A Symphony Celebration," featuring the college's 80-member Metropolitan Symphony Band, 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 5, in the Adray Auditorium of the MacKenzie Fine Arts Center on campus, 5101 Evergreen, Dearborn. There is no admission charge.

The symphony band, under the direction of Rick Goward, HFCC's director of bands, will perform with special guest James Otto, director of instrumental music at Edsel Ford High School.

A professional French horn player, Otto conducts the Edsel Ford High School Orchestra and the Symphonic, Concert, Jazz and Marching bands. He currently performs with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Cromwell Opera House in Adrian.

The Metropolitan Symphony Band will perform "Monmart March" and Mozart's "French Horn Concerto," as well as a premier work by HFCC music program alumnus Scott Guthre and many other favorite wind band selections.

The Metropolitan Symphony Band, now in its 11th year, is the largest community college symphony band in Michigan. Members of the symphony band include outstanding high school students, HFCC music majors, HFCC students who are music hobbyists and students from other colleges that do not have music performance groups.

Animated 'Thumbelina' retells classic fairy-tale

Warner bros.' newest animated feature, "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina," is now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters.

A full-length animated retelling of the classic fairy-tale about a little girl "no bigger than a thumb," "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina" follows the many adventures experienced by the tiny heroine as she struggles in the big, wide world to find companions her own size.

The voice talents in the film represent some of the best-known personalities in entertainment, and the songs are the creation of pop superstar Barry Manilow, with lyricists Bruce Sussman and Jack Feldman. A romantic adventure mixed with comedy, song and beautifully created scenes out of every child's fondest imagination, "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina" is sure to bring magical excitement to children of all ages.

Thumbelina (Jodi Benson) is a tiny girl, born from the center of a flower to a lonely, full-sized woman (Barbara Cooke) who had always wanted a daughter. She goes to see a good witch, who gives her a magical barleycorn. She waters it, it grows and flowers, and when it opens it reveals a tiny girl. Thumbelina, though she loves her mother dearly, longs to meet someone her own size to share her life with.

One night, as Thumbelina is singing to herself of her dreams, Prince Cornelius (Gary Imhoff), and enchanted fairy as tiny as herself, hears her sweet voice and is drawn to it. They meet and are immediately drawn to one another. He promises to return to spend more time with her in the morning, and Thumbelina falls asleep happily imagining her future.

To her astonishment, however, Thumbelina awakens the next day in the middle of a pond. It seems that the glamorous and flamboyant Mrs. Delores Toad (Charo) has also heard Thumbelina's voice and has abducted her. Mrs. Toad demands that Thumbelina join her and her three sons in the family's world famous music group.

At first she is tempted, but when she is approached with an offer of marriage from one of Mrs. Toad's sons, she is horrified and refuses. Luckily, Jacquimo (Gino Conforti), a passing swallow, hears Thumbelina's cries for help and comes to her aid. He helps Thumbelina escape, urging her to follow her heart and search for her prince.

The film is produced and directed by Don Bluth, producer and director of "An American Tail," and "All Dogs Go To Heaven," and Gary Goldman.

"Thumbelina worries about being able to take care of herself, and she learns that she can be strong if she learns to follow her heart," said Bluth. "In some way, this is the lesson all children learn about growing up, accepting challenges and listening to their consciences.

Animated fantasy: Thumbelina and Prince Cornelius find true happiness together at last, bidding farewell after their wedding in Warner Bros.' animated "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina."

'Major League II' reunites team

"Major League II," sequel to Morgan Creek Productions' 1989 comedy hit, is now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters.

The film reunites nearly all of the characters who made "Major League" a runaway success, while adding several new characters to the Cleveland Indians' lineup.

Filmed on location in Baltimore, Md., "Major League II" takes another look at the Indians after they miraculously wrest a national championship from the jaws of their miserable early season.

Catcher Jake Taylor's knees are worse than ever. Willie Mays Hayes went to Hollywood in the off-season and became a movie star. Pedro Cerrano is no longer the angry young man he used to be. He went from voodooism to Buddhism.

Just one season after shocking the entire baseball world with a miracle finish and their successful drive to the American League Eastern Division championship, the Cleveland Indians slide back into their old ways, stumbling and bumbling toward yet another last place finish in "Major League II."

VAN REDIN

Baseball talk: Catcher Jake Taylor (Tom Berenger) discusses with Pitcher Rick "Wild Thing" Vaughn (Charlie Sheen) his unusual style of pitching in "Major League II."

Now, once again, the question re-emerges: Can the Indians do it again?

Charlie Sheen, Tom Berenger, Corbin Bernsen, Omar Epps and Dennis Haysbert head a cast that also includes Eric Bruskotter, David Keith, James Gammon, Alison Doody, and Japanese comedy sensation Takaashi Ishibashi.

The rags-to-riches story and wacky characters created by writer and director David S. Ward struck a chord with audiences that continues as the film has gone into the ancillary cycle of video, pay-TV and free TV release.

■ PREVIEW

This kind of success would ordinarily guarantee an immediate rush to produce a sequel. But fans of the original had to endure a five year "off season." Why the long wait?

"Basically, I wasn't sure I wanted to do it again, for a lot of reasons," Ward said. "It took a while to come up with a story that I thought would be a worthy successor to the first one. It had to be fresh enough to be different, while still giving audiences the characters they'd gotten to know and love. That desire not to give our audience the same thing over and over again, to find the right mix of the old and new, was one of the major factors in the long wait."

While entertainers were hired to keep the thousands of extras hired as fans in the stands during long filming stretches, it seemed the only incentive most of the extras needed was the chance to see stars, especially Charlie Sheen.

"The night we shot the scene with Charlie coming out of the bullpen to the sounds of 'Wild Thing' was incredible," Ward said. "We had 200,000 people singing, chanting and stomping. It was electrifying."

UPCOMING MOVIES

There's something for everyone at the movies. Here's a list of what's in the wings:

Opening Friday, April 1:

■ "House of the Spirits" — Saga of the powerful Trueba family, followed over the course of three generations. Stars Jeremy Irons, Meryl Streep, Glenn Close and Winona Ryder. Based on best-selling novel of the same name.

■ "Clifford" — Martin Short stars as a mischievous 10-year-old boy who has many misadventures while in the care of his bachelor uncle.

Opening Friday, April 8:

■ "Threesome" — Two guys and a girl, college roommates through an administrative error, find their relationship evolving into a complex triangle in this contemporary comedy.

Opening Friday, April 15

■ "Cops and Robbersons" — The lives of the average suburban Robberson family are changed when a no-nonsense veteran cop moves in to stake out the house next door. Comedy starring Chevy Chase.

Opening Friday, April 22

■ "Brainscan" — Teenage boy faces a living nightmare when his playing of an interactive fantasy game might in fact be responsible for real murders.

■ "Chasers" — A couple of "Chasers" (the Navy equivalent of MPs) retrieve an errant enlisted woman and find themselves well over their heads on an eventful trip back to their base.

Opening Friday, April 29

■ "PCU" — Tom Lawrence is about to get his first lesson in politically correct behavior as a freshman at Port Chester University when he moves into a renegade dorm that sets out to defy the rigid and "correct" behavior of its fellow students.

■ "With Honors" — True story of Harvard University students who befriend a homeless man. Stars Joe Pesci.

Talented cast in 'Night Music'

SALLY DUBATS

Oakland University's Department of Music, Theatre and Dance currently offers an interesting high-brow musical comedy with somber undertones in Stephen Sondheim's "A Little Night Music," (book by Hugh Wheeler.)

Despite being slighted by critics during its original Broadway opening, "Night Music" endures because of its haunting style, grace and humor. Director Karen Sheridan uses an intelligent eye which suits the show's poise and wit, and musical director Suzanne Acton pulls the best out of a talented cast and orchestra.

At the hub of "A Little Night Music," and perhaps the most successful aspect of the show, is a talented quintet including Aaron Talley, Kimberly Windeler, Debbie Goody, Nicholas Bean and Lisa Agazzi. The quintet lends an incessantly eerie quality to the show and represents the minds and memories of the main characters.

The minds of the main characters are on illicit affairs. Our man of mischief, Fredrik Egerman, is played with consideration by Corey Scaggs. Fighting age, Fredrik has married spoiled Anne, 18, (Carrie Slade) who has remained virginal despite 11 months of marriage.

Slade gives a creditable performance as Anne, especially while singing, but the petulant edge in Slade's interpretation sometimes becomes too frequent to appreciate the other funny aspects of the character.

Henrik, heir to the Egerman libido, is portrayed with distinction by Paul Moran whose wide range is evidenced in his acting and singing.

The "one and only" Desiree Armfeldt is a roaming and popular actress with whom Fredrik is in love. Desiree, portrayed by Stephanie L. Woodman, is also the character which softly rues the show's most well-known song, "Send in the Clowns." Her rendition is simply beautiful.

Fredrik is not the only man in love with Desiree. Count Carl-Magnus Malcolm is an overbearing dragoon, played with marvelously manipulative facial expressions by Philip Cowlishaw.

Countess Charlotte Malcolm is not amused by the liaison, and Angel Maclean's interpretation of a powerful woman scorned is none other than sublime.

Certainly no bedroom comedy musical would be complete without the promiscuous maid to complicate matters and provide sport for the audience. Denise Greenman is terrific as Petra. "The Miller's Son" accentuates the skill of Greenman's full voice.

Janice Hauxwell (Madame Armfeldt) and Melanie Grund (Fredrika Armfeldt) also turn in respectable performances as Desiree's mother and daughter.

Costumes by Ann Kessler are terrific, as are set and lights by Susan Barrett. Smooth choreography by Gregory A. Patterson accentuates the hypnotic mood of the show.

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Surviving 'un' of employment

How proud those individuals must have felt to be recognized and commended by President Clinton, during G7 summit, for having successfully "U-turned" unemployment into viable careers. There are many more folks in Michigan and right here in Wayne County like the people the President acknowledged on March 14 at the Fox Theatre. It might be a friend, a parent, a spouse, a relative, or even you . . . People who triumphantly turned a devastating situation into a winning one.

The unemployment rate in February was 7.9 percent. In comparing that with higher rates in 1991, job growth in Michigan has increased. Ron McGraw, economic analysis at the Michigan Employment Security Commission, said there has been a significant growth in jobs since the automobile industry has regained recognizable economic stability and a marked increase in consumer purchases.

Also indicated in MESC data is an increased number of jobs in retail, trade and service. The future for more job availability and a wider spectrum of jobs offered to young people entering the work force - and senior citizens, veterans in the job arena - looks hopeful. And there's a spotlight, too, on retraining misplaced workers, opening up opportunities for them to move into new jobs and start new careers.

However, those individuals who have not yet made the often stressful transition from unemployment to becoming gainfully employed, ask, "What about me? Why me? I'm a productive person, capable of doing good work. I've got good employability skills, but can't find a good job." Whether unemployment is due to being laid off, termination, or voluntary resignation, the emotional and economic effects can be the same.

Work is undoubtedly an important part of our identity. Many people can identify self-esteem and self-worth with their job and being part of the work force. When unemployment "plucks" a person away from what they have identified as having more than monetary value, it has a way of disconnecting people from people and places they're used to, and deactivating skills that were once used regularly. It's especially true if unemployment is long-term.

Social interaction skills, or people skills, too, can become affected and cause feelings of rejection, isolation and depression. Anxiety and stress associated with the worry over bills, reduction in income, or the lack thereof can be a tremendous burden.

Added stress

Keeping a spouse, children or other family members from feeling the pressure often becomes another stress factor and usually is one that's unavoidable. Unemployment affects the whole family, a shared problem that warrants shared support of, and for, each member. When families experience unemployment hardships, it is conceivable that each member be "in synch" with each other's feelings, needs and concerns. While planning for the family and adapting to what can be a rough ride, before that "U-turn" can be made, family members can find strength in each other.

What can you do while waiting to go back to work? As you know, the job market is highly competitive. Face it: There's no such thing as unskilled labor in a fast-paced computer world. The job market today . . . tomorrow . . . requires specific technical skills and specialized training. More and more jobs dictate undergraduate/graduate degrees or courses.

From minimum-wage jobs to top-paying positions, an exemption from learning high-tech computer skills is almost obsolete. People in the work force must be flexible and open to change. It's a fact that change is inevitable; growth is optional!

So the very best medicine that can be recommended while waiting to be called back to work, or finding a job, is to continue to grow, polish up on existing skills and/or learn new ones. Keep your options open! A U-turn can be directed toward employment areas and opportunities you may not have ordinarily imagined.
Entrepreneurship might be the answer.

There are so many resources available to people surviving unemployment, one being a host of career and training centers in your community with a wide range of vocational, adult-education programs. You can get the help you need to be more marketable. Community colleges offer courses where credits can be applied toward a degree or certification of your choice.

Unemployment can be a blessing in disguise, depending on how you look at it and make it work for you; whereas keeping a steady, comfortable and what can be perceived to be a secure job, just might not be so secure. It's important Changes: Even the family dog is adjusting to Guy and Renee Giocondini's new lifestyle, that of being the parents of adopted daughter Anne Renee.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

From Russia . . . with love

It was a long wait - a year filled with paperwork and frustration. But it paid off wonderfully for Guy and Renee Giocondini, who are adjusting to life as parents after adopting their Russian-born daughter, Anne Renee.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Renee Giocondini listens carefully to what her daughter Anne Renee says. She thinks for a moment, then gives a response. Anne Renee giggles and dashes off down the hallway of her parents' Plymouth Township home.

Children talking to parents . . . It's a fact of life repeated day in and day out in homes across the country. It's just a bit different for the Giocondinis, who must try to figure out what their Russian-speaking daughter is saying.

"She understands a lot more than she speaks," said Renee as she watched Anne Renee head for her bedroom and another toy. "And she learns very quickly. It's so remarkable to me, the things she has learned . . . She can already put together a 12-piece puzzle."

At 3½, Anne Renee - she prefers to be called Anne Soosha because her nickname was Soosha - is adjusting quite nicely to a new way of life. Granted, she has made a few mistakes with her potty training and four or five temper tantrums, but moving to America after spending most of her life in an orphanage in St. Petersburg, Russia, calls for some big-time adjusting.

"I'm surprised by the wonderful bonding process between Renee and Anne Soosha," said Guy. "She follows Renee everywhere. I think she likes her Daddy, but not like she likes her Mommy."

For the Giocondinis, the adoption was official on Jan. 19, culminating a year filled with plenty of paperwork and frustration. It also calmed their fears about the stability of the Russian government and a change of position on adoption before they could claim Anne Renee as theirs.

In their late 30s, the Giocondinis had tried to have children of their own, but eventually admitted adoption was their only option. Citing the difficulty of adopting in the U.S. and and even moreso in Michigan, the Giocondinis signed on with Cradle of Hope, a Washington, D.C., agency specializing in European adoptions.

Costly endeavor

The adoption was a very costly endeavor: "It's a huge amount of money," Guy said. Then, the couple had to provide two originals and two copies of almost every document. Most, like the marriage license and birth certificates, had to be notarized and authenticated.

They also needed a child-protection clearance, saying they had never been charged with a felony or child abuse. They had to provide letters pertaining to their good health, their intention to adopt, their employment and salaries.

There also was a home study and in the case of the U.S. Immigration Service, copies of all their bank accounts to prove they could afford the child.

"It was kind of discouraging along the way," Guy said. "There were a lot of questions, a lot of phone calls, and a lot of frustration, especially when you get something back from the state, and it's wrong. We got someone else's marriage license through the mail. We found it's best to do everything in person, if you want something done right."

The Giocondinis didn't get to see photographs of children available for adoption until after the paperwork was done. Based on what they wanted and what they would accept, they were sent photographs and some medical information, "just enough to pique your interest." Anne Renee was the the second one they received.

According to the Giocondinis, Russians "really love their children" and "don't like to give them up" for adoption, but do so for the youngsters' benefit. But the Russian government prohibits the adoption of a healthy child, so those who are adopted have medical problems; some serious, some not so serious. Anne Renee is cross-eyed, a minor problem in the U.S., but a different story in Russia where financially it isn't so easy to correct.

"The hardest thing (about the adoption process) is being honest about who you're willing to adopt," Guy said. "When you're in the process of an adoption you know there has to be something wrong with the child, so you don't want to set your heart on one specific one. You have to be real honest about what you will accept."

When in Russia . . .

The Giocondinis were in St. Petersburg almost three weeks, arriving there in time for the Russian Orthodox Christmas. The holiday slowed their paperwork, but allowed the couple time to see the city.

For Renee, it was like a honeymoon or vacation. In the morning they would visit with Anne Renee, then tour the city the rest of the day.

And although she found the former Leningrad a "most beautiful city," Renee admitted the stay wasn't an easy one.

"The first week was the hardest because we were away from home and we knew how long it would take," she said. "And we were concerned about the government: Would it topple, change its position on adoption?"

After 2½ weeks, the Giacondinis went to the orphange one last time to get their daughter. They took along a change of clothes, since the orphanage kept everything it had

Stylish: Spring fashions will be the focus of the Catholic Central Mother's Club annual fashion show, "Lavendar and Lace," according to co-chairwomen Vicki Hesano (left) and Vicki Turowski.

Moms strut stuff for CC

■ 'This is the Mother's Club's largest fund-raiser of the year, and we hope to make it the biggest ever.'
Vicki Turowski

Spring will be in the air when the Catholic Central Mother's Club holds its annual fashion show, "Lavender and Lace," Sunday, April 17.

The spring fashions paraded down the runway at Laurel Manor in Livonia will be provided by the merchants of Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi, and among the models will be Catholic Central mothers and their sons.

"This is the Mother's Club's largest fund-raiser of the year, and we hope to make it the biggest ever," said Vicki Turowski, who is co-chairing the event with her sister-in-law, Vicki Hesano. "We're hoping for a sellout attendance."

The benefit will be 12:30-2 p.m. at Laurel Manor, Schoolcraft west of I-275. Seating for 900 is available and tickets are $35 each. The cost covers lunch, door prizes and the fashion show as well as music during the social hour by the Catholic Central Stage Band.

On the menu will be vegetable, cheese and fruit appetizers; two hot pastas, pasta primavera and tronchetto; - chicken Caesar salad, homemade breadsticks, an ice cream peach, and beverage.

There also will be a raffle with prizes including a trip to Las Vegas, use of a condominium on Florida's Marco Island, a television, bicycles, jewelry and furniture. Tickets cost $1 each or six for $5.

The show will preview a wide range of new spring and summer fashions from casual to very dressy - easy-care, easy-wear styles like long skirts, slip dresses and flared pants, in the "new" neutral colors ranging from stark white, off-white and beige to green, rust and yellow; and natural fabrics, especially cotton, linen and silk.

On the runway, The Catholic Central mothers and their sons will be joined by the Twelve Oaks Fashion Guild, modeling fashions and accessories from Lillie Rubin, Cache, President Tuxedo, Hudson's, Ann Taylor, Liz Claiborne, Gantos, First Issue, The Icing, August Max Woman and Audrey Jones.

"We'll have a wide range of looks for all sizes and shapes," said Barbara Carey, Twelve Oaks fashion coordinator. "You don't have to be 98 pounds and six feet tall to wear them."

"It isn't the kind of show where everyone walks away thinking they can't compare with the models," added Fran Parrot, a member of the CC Mother's Club.

In the past, the benefit has raised $7-8,000 for the school's general fund and has helped buy computers, library books and carpeting, Truowski added.

Raffle tickets and reservations for the fashion show are available by calling Becky Viola at 464-2216.

Who we are means tapping into our memory hard drive

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

Have you ever asked your adult children about some of the things they remember from their growing up years? And what of your own growing up? What do you remember? It is sometimes amazing to recall what remains on our hard drive over the years. Some of those files are so deeply tucked away that we are totally oblivious to their existence. Then at the most unexpected times they surface.

Earlier this month while driving along a north woods road, which had been snowed over in one of the last gasps of winter, I spotted what appeared to be a family disembarking from their four-wheel drive. They had with them a couple of day packs and a few pounds of enthusiasm, which seemed to welcome another chance at winter fun.

The long and the short of it — both figuratively and literally — is that this was a group of people making memories in the snow. Years from now they will probably not recall the color of the packs they carried. They more than likely will have forgotten the contents of their thermos bottles. Perhaps they will not even remember which of the family vehicles had carried them across the history of their togetherness and brought them to this place.

Whether their outerwear was made by Patagonia or woven from less prestigious threads will have ceased to matter. Even the name of the road may be forgotten. But they will remember that they were there. Each of them will, at one level or another, hang onto some piece of it all. Even as I write of them, these memories are already filed on their mental hard drives.

They may or may not be able to put it back on the screen in future years, but this Saturday afternoon experience, along with so many other events and experiences, has already become a piece of the stuff of their lives.

It has been said that we spend our whole lives becoming the people we are. We might add that we spend a good deal of time providing the input for what and who those around us are going to become as well.

This process is not limited to winter roads. It may involve laughs and snowballs or nothing as picturesque. It may be a dinner table conversation, a hug for no reason at all, or a crying spell. The memories are not all laughing happy sort of data. Some are sad. Some are frightening. Many more do not seem to carry any emotion at all for the moment. But all of them together become the stuff out of which we are made.

So what of now? What memories are we creating day by day for ourselves and for those whose future reality will be an expression of what we give to them now? How much better or worse will be my tomorrows because of the data that I input today? How much better or worse will be the lives of those people who are close enough to be taken for granted today?

In future years our children, our spouses, our friends will be making statements such as, "I remember when . . . " How will those statements be finished? What is it that will become a part of them will be able to be attributed to us? Are we helping to create people or are we helping to dismantle them? We really cannot erase what we record. We can only add to it.

What we add may not seem to matter much for this afternoon, but at sometime, we do not know when, it will matter at whole lot, because it will have been molded into what a human person has become.

Writer is in tune with here and now

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

I would very much enjoy having my handwriting analyzed by you. I am a 42-year-old, right-handed woman.

My friend's writing was recently analyzed by you and you were quite accurate!

Thank you.

D.G.,
Belleville

Today we have a writer who enjoys the day-to-day contact that communication brings and will cast her net far and wide to include a variety of people and personal experiences.

Our writer is much in tune with the here and now. She may, in fact, be overly concerned with herself and the social side of her life. She tends to emphasize things that are not of great importance in the grand scheme of things.

There is almost a naive quality to this woman. She is open-minded and receptive to other people, their views and ideas. A well-developed imagination cannot be missed in her full loops. All of this can make it difficult for her to be objective about people and their motives.

Peace and harmony are high priorities! She is friendly and wants to get along without friction. Being surrounded by tranquility and attractiveness provides the peace and pleasure which is so essential for her inner happiness.

Seemingly, she is not experiencing the love and assurance she needs. And when they are not forthcoming, especially from the opposite sex, a sulky dissatisfaction can surface.

Our writer has strong feelings of loyalty to her friends. However, she does not often become emotionally involved with too many people.

Outer appearances are important. Hers is usually poised and controlled. She is slow to anger and seldom does she become passionate about things.

Decision making is not done hastily. She needs time to test the waters before jumping in. She wants to avoid situations that are out of her control. At times, she may be a little unsure of herself.

This is a methodical, careful thinker. Her memory is retentive. Once she learns something new she can probably retain it forever. Seemingly, she has been blessed with intuition, and I hope she trusts it.

Work is performed with care and precision. She is concientious and takes pride in doing a task well. She is also a good planner.

There is a sensuous quality to this writing. All forms of beauty hold appeal for her. A delicious dinner with the sweet smell of flowers, burning candles and soft background music would be a heavenly evening for this young woman.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Signature, age and handedness are all helpful, and objective feedback is always welcome.

not to be "rocked to sleep" by a false sense of security, making you an easy target for disappointment. Your ability and adaptability to change is not as strong, if you allow yourself to feel too secure in a job. Sometimes a shake-up can really open eyes and get one moving in directions more beneficial to their growth.

What about financial assistance? There's no easy answer. But before problems multiply, under state law, the MESC is responsible for helping you get a job and for paying benefits to eligible workers. But you don't have to be collecting benefits to get help from MESC. As far as bills are concerned, it might be feasible to get help from a credit counselor. Non-profit credit counselors can help in resolving financial problems, and making arrangements to meet bill obligations. No one should be refused services due to inability to pay.

Also, if you contact your creditors and inform them in writing that you are temporarily out of work and seeking employment, you will more than likely be given some kind of consideration in the form of agreed payment arrangements.

Under the Utility Bill of Rights, utility companies will hear your concerns or complaints, if you have a shut-off, due to inability to pay, or if there's a medical emergency in your home. Medical assistance programs can help eligible people should medical services become necessary. Other resources in Wayne County for aiding in the unemployment transition period are TEL-HELP/ United Community Service at 226-9858 and TIP Services at 224-7000.

You can take control of the employment wheel by steering it in a direction where you have several options. Taking a road that limits accessible work or career paths and realistic achievable U-turns, could prolong unemployment. By "tuning in and up" on work skills, talent and continuing education can and most likely will make a difference.

After all, you can turn it around!

If you have a question or comment for Eartha DeYampert, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a touch-tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Auction to benefit Cleary

Interested in two weeks at a beachfront condo in Fort Myers, Fla.? Maybe tickets for University of Michigan football games against Michigan State, Ohio State, Penn State and Notre Dame?

All you have to do is raise your hand . . . to bid, that is, at the Cleary College Auction '94 6 p.m. Friday, April 8, at Laurel Manor in Livonia. The auction will benefit endowment, student scholarships and facility renovations for the private business college, which has campuses in Ypsilanti and Howell.

The goal is to raise $110,000 at the second annual auction. Among the items to be auctioned off are an elegant dinner aboard Henry Ford's customized railroad car, a week in a penthouse at the Royal Mayan Beach Club in Cancun, Mexico, a Cleary College sweatshirt authographed by Tim Allen of "Home Improvement" and a week in a fully equipped two-bedroom condo in Freeport, the Bahamas. There also will be a raffle drawing for a 1994 Neon.

Market Place Stations for dinner will open at 6 p.m. and will be followed by silent and live auctions. The live auction will be conducted by veteran auctioneer Dan Stall.

Tickets for the auction are $50 each; black tie is preferred. For more information, call the Cleary College Advancement Office at (313) 483-4400 or toll-free (800) 686-1883.

provided Anne Renee to give to another child.

The adventure was just beginning for Anne Renee. Barely used to riding in a car, she and her new parents took a nine-hour trip to Moscow. There, they went to the U.S. Embassy for an adoption briefing and an exit interview (to make sure that she was they child they said they would adopt) and apply for her visa.

"We were told not to speak English or leave our compartment because of the high crime on that train," Renee recalled.

The adventure continued for the youngster who had lived at the orphanage since infancy. There was a 17-hour plane ride during which she didn't sleep a wink.

Watching Anne Renee entertain herself with a musical snowman night light the Giocondinis gave her soon after they met her, Renee can see the changes that have taken place in a few short weeks since they arrived home. But she knows more needs to be done.

"She's 3½ and has missed out on so much attention and affection," Renee said.

For now Renee, who has taken a leave of absence, is spending a lot of time bonding with her new daughter. She also plans to do some mom and tot type programs so Anne Renee can meet other children.

If Anne Renee has become the apple of her father's eye, she's the belle of the ball for the grandparents. They're "crazy" about the youngster, the first grandchild for Renee's parents, Gerry DuBach of Plymouth and Robert DuBach of Lake City, and the first granddaughter for Guy's parents, Sante and Ida Giocondini of Dearborn Heights.

As for adding to the family . . . it appears Anne Renee is it.

"I wouldn't do it again, but would I do it again for Anne Sooha? . . . In a heartbeat," Guy said.

For by one man's disobedience (Adam's), many were made sinners, so by the OBEDIENCE OF ONE (Jesus) shall many be made righteous. Romans 5:19. Most Bible teachers say a SINNER MUST OBEY the Gospel and accept Jesus in order to obtain eternal life. But the OBEDIENCE OF A SINNER PLUS JESUS makes TWO, not one. God says Jesus saves sinners all by Himself!

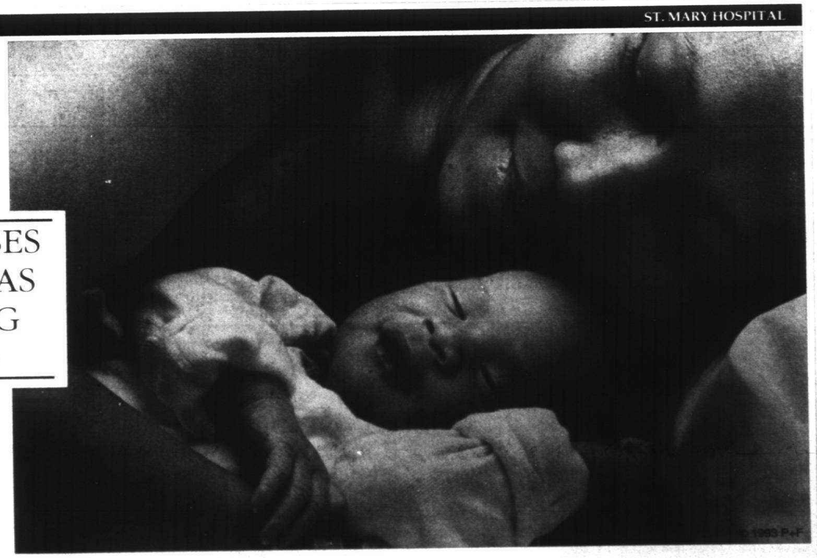
ST. MARY HOSPITAL

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED



You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and your baby together to encourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how your baby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing.

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-baby nursing all the time. More support, more education. It's a better way of caring.

To learn more about the benefits of mother-baby nursing call 313-591-2882. Ask for a free brochure, tour, or physician referral.

■ TIBETAN BUDDHISM
The Detroit Area Kagyu Study Group offers meditation and discussion of Buddha's teaching. Free meditation instruction can be arranged by appointment. Weekly meditation and discussion takes place Thursdays in Redford. For more information, call 538-1559.

■ ALCOHOLICS
The Alcoholics for Christ, Meet Your Needs Group, meets 7 p.m. each Tuesday at Tri-City Christian Center, Michigan Avenue at Hannan in Canton. Alcoholics for Christ is a nondenominational, nonprofit Christian fellowship for alcoholics and their families. The group's chief goal is to direct alcoholics, family members and other concerned people to a dedicated, sincere relationship with Jesus Christ. For more information, call the church at 326-0330.

Hospice groups to offer grief classes

Two hospice programs serving western Wayne County communities will be offering grief recovery programs, beginning in April.

Hospice of Washtenaw will offer a five-week grief recovery series beginning Monday, April 18. The series is dedicated to helping survivors adapt to their grief and to gain and develop new skills in coping as well as present healthy ways for individuals who have lost loved ones to move through the grieving process.

The series will be 7-8:30 p.m. at the Reichert Consumer Library in the Reichert Building of the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor. Participants are encouraged to attend all sessions. Pre-registration is required by calling bereavement coordinator Dwight Forshee at 741-5777.

Hospice of Washtenaw also is in need of volunteers for office assistance Monday through Friday. The requirements are compassion and willingness to learn.

And six-week training for direct-care volunteers will be offered at 9:30 a.m., beginning Saturday, April 9, at 9:30 a.m. For more information, call Barb Wineka at 741-5777.

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc. also is offering a free adult grief recovery series, beginning Wednesday, April 20. The sessions are open to adults who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one.

The classes will meet 6:30-8 p.m. for six consecutive weeks at Hospice Services' Garden City office, 6701 Harrison St., south of Warren and east of Middlebelt, and conclude with a group memorial service on Wednesday, May 25.

Hospice Services also is offering a free children's grief support series for children ages 6-15 years who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one. The classes also will meet for six consecutive weeks at Douglas Elementary School, Hartel and Maplewood, Garden City, beginning Thursday, April 14.

The class will meet 6:30-8 p.m. and conclude with a group memorial service on Thursday, May 19. Classes will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis. A special parent orientation session is scheduled for 6:30-7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 7, at Douglas School.

To register for the series, call DesJardins or bereavement coordinator Joan Johnson at 522-4244.

Rotary delivers dinners

On Easter Sunday, Rotary Club members will help provide homebound seniors, in southern and western Wayne County, hot home-delivered meals.

The Rotary Clubs, from District 6400, will be providing donations to help cover the cost of the meals. Rotary volunteers help deliver meals and coordinate meal sites.

The Rotary Club contacted The Senior Alliance early last fall, offering volunteers and donations, for the Senior Alliance Holiday Meals program. Forty-one Rotary Club members delivered meals on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, with two more members helping to coordinate meal sites. The Rotary hopes to make this an ongoing project.

The meals are funded through donations. Seniors who receive meals must be homebound and alone on the holiday. Hot, festive meals are prepared by Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, Riverside Osteopathic Hospital in Trenton and Abington Manor in Westland.

The Senior Alliance started the meal program six years ago to help meet the needs of area seniors.

For more information, contact The Senior Alliance at (313) 722-2830.

Nelson's Gallery plans to spotlight glass as art

A common art form it's not. Most people have no idea how glass almost magically is shaped into art.

But glass art continues to attract admirers. And no wonder, given its shimmer and beauty.

Last September, Nelson's Gallery in Livonia spotlighted the work of Livonia glass blower Joe Wisniewski, then Artist of the Month. At the time, he told the Observer: "I hope people get the same kind of peace and joy from my glass that it brings me."

It proved so popular, gallery director Laura Hardy now carries his work on consignment.

"He's not afraid to experiment, to go beyond," Hardy said. "It looks as though he really enjoys trying to create new shapes and designs. And he seems to have lots of fun with color. He works hard but truly enjoys it."

Hardy also carries the paperweights of Wisniewski's fiancee, Christine Fleischer of Livonia, and the etched and sandblasted glassworks of Nelson's artist-in-residence, Detroiter Janelle Agar, who's also a painter, designer, sculptor and airbrusher.

Fine art, lithographs, serigraphs, posters, framed prints and custom framing are her mainstay, but Hardy says she's "very pleased with how the glass is selling. It's a wonderful addition to our lineup."

Michigan Glass Month

Wisniewski is the inspiration behind Hardy choosing to celebrate Michigan Glass Month during April. The statewide celebration is now in its 14th year.

"Once you talk to Joe," Hardy said, "you get a whole different appreciation for glass art."

From mid-April through May, Nelson's will feature the handiwork of five glass artists: Bruce Boatman, Bob Cooper, Wisniewski, Fleischer and Agar. Prices will range from $10 to $150. "I'm excited for the fact we're able to feature new people," Hardy said.

A free public reception to meet the artists will take place 6-9 p.m. Friday, April 15 at the gallery, 16376 Middlebelt, tucked in Terrence Corners, between north of Five and Six Mile.

Wisniewski will demonstrate tabletop kiln-fused glass techniques from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 16.

A 1980 Livonia Bentley High School graduate, Wisniewski will exhibit paperweights, vases and bowls with themes that touch on Native American petroglyphs, Venetian flowers and meditational patterns.

A full-time nurse, Fleischer finds glasswork therapeutic. She'll display a variety of paperweights with pastel themes drawn from sea life. Her creations were part of the "Art As Gift" exhibition at Nelson's last December.

A Detroiter who studied at the Cleveland Institute of Art, Boatman will show handblown perfume bottles and vases in traditional style.

Native West traces importance of rain in celebration show

A Southwest American Indian art gallery in Plymouth honors the life-giving force, "Rain," through April 10. Learn about rain's role in Native American life in a closeup presentation Saturday.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Celebrate nature's gift to Earth, "Rain," during a monthlong series of events continuing through April 10 at Native West, 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

A special presentation by Apache/Seneca Indian Edwin Poulin on the role that rain plays in Native American life takes place 1-4 p.m. Saturday, April 2.

Eagle Feather Boy, or Wambli Weoka Oksheela, as he is called by his people, is nationally known as a speaker on the subject of Native American culture.

"The rain exhibit is celebrating how important rain was to the Native Americans in the aspect of their pottery, their jewelry. Even rugs had patterns that depicted rain. Rain symbols are everywhere in American Indian culture," said Native West co-owner Annette Horn.

Symbols of rain are indeed everywhere in the gallery during this exhibit.

Lightning bolts, clouds, fish, eagle and water animal images associated with rain decorate, or are inherent to, the content of hand-made pottery, jewelry, sculpture, sand paintings, storyteller dolls, kachinas, fetishes and rugs at this springtime festival. The symbols represent the life-giving properties of seasonal rains and, in turn, the Earth's fertility.

■ 'When we do a rain dance, we're not doing it to bring rain. We're honoring the integrity and spirituality of the rain.'

Edwin Poulin
Native American

"The water itself is a life-giving force. Nothing lives without water, not even a rock," said Poulin, a Royal Oak resident. "Rain's been part of the native people's history and tradition. Many stories come from the spirits in the water. There's a lot of respect for where that water came from.

Artifacts Art Club to display member work

Artifacts Art Club will host its third annual exhibition and sale of membership work April 4-29 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

At the invitation of the Livonia Arts Commission, Artifacts members will spotlight sculpture, colored pencil, watercolor, oil, acrylic, photography, calligraphy and mixed media. Selected members juried the 60-piece exhibit.

Expect a range not only in experience but style, from realism to abstraction. More unusual media include Diane DeLuca's clay tiles, John Knoll's photomicrography and Cheryl Zielonka's whimsical sculpture.

The exhibition provides an outlet for members who don't have enough quality work to showcase on their own. The versatile membership includes commercial and wildlife artists.

"It's a chance to show off a little bit," said Sherry Eid, club president and a colored pencil artist. "It's always fun to hear comments from others on what we've done."

The show again will feature the People's Choice Award, voted on by viewers. Participating artists will award top show honors.

Artifacts Art Club was formed in 1986 around a nucleus of art students from Dave Messing's Art Store & More in Livonia.

The 25-member club offers camaraderie with artists of varying backgrounds, disciplines and skills. Beginners often work alongside professionals.

Most members live in or near Livonia. Ages are varied; Loran and Florence Peters of Farmington Hills

Glass classes are set

The University of Michigan-Dearborn will offer a workshop for beginning and advanced glassblowing students from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on April 9-10 at Lab 251, Science Building. The deadline for registration is April 1.

The non-credit workshop provides new and advanced students with hands-on experience in the techniques of lampworking glass, using soda lime, lead, borosilicate and a variety of colored glasses, according to artists Frederick Birkhill and Shane Fero, who will conduct the workshop.

Birkhill, who earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts from U-M, works in mixed media in his own studio. He has taught glassworking at schools in the United States and has objects displayed in the Corning Museum and the Smithsonian Institution.

An experienced glassworker, Fero has received more than 80 awards at exhibitions throughout the country.

"When we do a rain dance," he added, "we're not doing it to bring rain. We're honoring the integrity and spirituality of the rain."

Poulin, a deacon with the Roman Catholic Church, studied five years at St. Francis Seminary in Milwaukee. He holds a bachelor's degree in human services from Milwaukee Technical College. Before coming to Detroit one year ago, Poulin served as director of Native American ministry for the archdiocese of Milkwaukee.

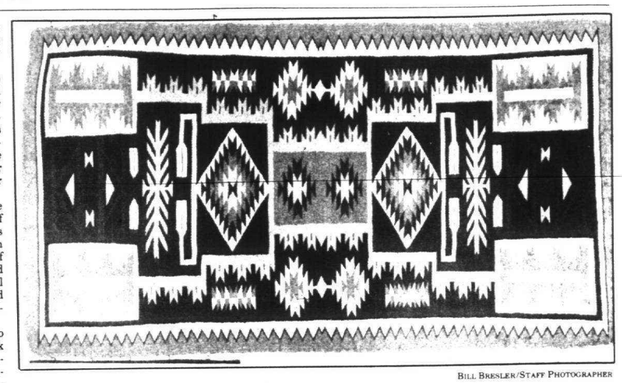
Today, he counsels Native Americans with varying types of health and social problems through the American Indian Health and Family Services of Southeastern Michigan, located in southwest Detroit. The original center on Livernois was destroyed by fire last April in what investigators have ruled arson.

In addition to ministering to his people, Poulin travels back and forth across the country, lecturing not only on Native American culture, but also the environment.

"When we have access to things, we take them for granted. We waste water a lot," Poulin said. "You talk about water going down a mountain side, it's path is never true. It's really a trail of life — and life is not straight. When you go through life, you have to stumble over rocks. The environment is controlled. It has more concrete than natural beauty. It's all a ripple effect."

Skilled crafts express Native American values. From the 1200s to 1400s, ancestors of the Hopi and Zuni painted murals incorporating symbols of agricultural fertility like seeds, lightning bolts, rain and rainbows on the walls of their kivas.

For this special rain exhibit, Native West is offering for sale handwoven Navajo rugs in the style, Storm Pattern. The design sports four zigzagging lines that represent lightning bolts. Also carrying a rain motif are pottery decorated with water serpents and creatures.



BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Life giving: Rain symbols decorate Native American weavings, pottery, paintings and jewelry as well as religious and ceremonial objects at Native West.

Storyteller dolls speak of living in harmony with nature, while Thunder People sand paintings depict the power of Gods like Big Thunder.

Kokopelli, in the form of iron sculptures, also are found in the rain exhibit. The flute player, appearing as early as 1000 A.D. in Anasazi rock drawings or petroglyphs, is a rain priest who summons the clouds and rain.

"I want to be able to educate others. People need to be educated. If people understand what they're purchasing, then they're more capable of affirming the sacredness of the objects, the sacredness made with thoughtful filling properties.

"The art is a reflection of the spirit. This isn't just a simple picture you hang on the wall," said Poulin, motioning to a painting.

"You look at the pottery, the earth that it came from, it's bringing the spirit to the pieces. Something pulls you into the object. You share the spirit."

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Thursday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The club meets at 7 p.m. the fourth Tuesday of each month except December, June, July and August in the Livonia Civic Center Library. Annual dues are $25.

At meetings, members have the chance to see videos such as Tony Couch's "Elements and Principles of Design," hear speakers such as Holly Feen on art therapy, view slide presentations on calligraphy or photomicrography, or watch demonstrations such as what Christine Wong did on Chinese watercolor techniques.

Exhibition hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Gallery show spotlights global glass

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

The art of contemporary studio glass goes global April 7 to May 7 at the 22nd annual International Glass Invitational presented by Habatat Galleries in the Triatria Building, 32255 Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills.

Whether you're an old hand at collecting glass art works or would simply like to know more about the phenomena, Habatat's glass extravaganza educates as well as stimulates.

Last year's exhibition touted more than 750 glass works by 95 artists from around the world. This year's spotlights more than 100 artists from Ireland to Italy with separate exhibits focusing on Czechoslovakia, France, Japan, Scandinavia and the United States as well as a group exhibit of artists from 20 other countries.

"We're trying to top last year's show, the most attended international in the show's 22-year history," said Ferdinand Hampson, president of Habatat Galleries in Farmington Hills, Boca Raton and Aspen.

"We'll have Therman Statom's glass house, an entrance way by Jon Kuhn, expanded presentations focusing on 25 different artists, new work by Mary Shaffer, Kreg Kallengerger and William Morris; a major installation of Chihuly, a wall similar to one constructed for his DIA show last year, with several pieces from his Persian series cascading down it."

Gallery director John Lawson is excited about the new artists in the international this year.

"We'll have an artist from Taiwan that Dale Chihuly connected us with, Loretta Yang who works in Pate de Verre. Some of the glass is based on antiquity, some of it's contemporary," Lawson said.

"In addition, the glass of Sweden will be included for the first time this year. Bertil Vallien is known for his sand cast and blown glass boat forms, some of which are up to 77 inches long."

On Thursday, April 7, for the first time in the history of the international, the event will kick off with a live auction featuring some of the most sought after works of the 1970s and 1980s. "Masterworks of Contemporary Glass" at 7:30 p.m. places 125 historically significant works by glass masters Harvey Littleton, Dominick Labino, Stanislav Libensky and Chihuly on the block.

History

Up until the turn of the century glassmaking was craft by committee. Famous houses like Tiffany and Steuben (later bought by Corning) employed teams of glass blowers to create pieces of glass art, primarily vessels. It wasn't until 1962 when Littleton, father of the contemporary glass movement, joined with Labino and retired glass blower Harvey Leafgreen to have a series of workshops behind the Toledo Museum of Art that glass began its journey from craft to fine art.

Until this time, due to the expensive equipment and high level of skill required for glassmaking, artists hadn't seriously considered using glass as an art material to work on an individual basis.

The glass blowing sessions forever changed the way the world and artists viewed glass. Before long artists were working with a myriad of techniques including slumping, fusing, casting, sand blasting, laminating and lamp working. They also began incorporating other materials like steel, wood, wire and found objects.

Distinguished works

"This is the largest auction of contemporary studio glass that's been held in the '90s. There are some very important works: Richard Marquis' teapots, 1976 to '78; Pavel Hlava from the early '70s, Labino's from the '60s and '70s, Joel Philip Myers and Michael Glancy, all assembled from about 20 different sources including collectors and museums," Hampson said.

"To see the early works of all of these distinguished artists, it gives you a greater insight into what they're doing presently," said Habatat's director of sales, Lillian Zonars of Birmingham.

At the beginning of the contemporary studio glass movement artists strove to create glass works with the hope it would someday be considered fine art. Today, that has changed.

"Glass offers tremendous diversity and versatility and the ability to create images on a three-dimensional level," Hampson said.

"At one time artists felt they had to link it with sculpture or three-dimensional work. There's a new confidence or uniqueness with what they're doing and they're not so concerned with linking it to the fine arts.

"There's been an art recession going on throughout the world. As this has been taking place the glamour and star of the fine arts has become a little tarnished. Economically, at the same time pieces were falling in the fine arts market, prices were on the increase with artists using alternative materials."

Developments

Glass, with all its sparkle, beauty and flashing prisms of colored light, can be as fragile as a puppy or rendered bulletproof as well as heat resistant. Artists are creating new worlds with glass, worlds never imagined.

Dazzling: The spectacular items in the exhibit at Habatat Galleries include "Autumn," a laminated glass sculpture by Pavel Hlava.

Habatat's International Class Invitational tracks the progress of the contemporary studio glass movement, documenting the evolution of the artists and medium along with the impact of technology on this art. Since the discovery of laminates by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, glass art has never been the same, and that's just one example.

"The versatility of glass, it's just amazing what can be done with the material," Hampson said.

A reception to meet the artists will take place 8 p.m. Saturday, April 9. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday (April only, excluding Easter Sunday — April 3). Call (810) 851-9090.

Cooper is an Orchard Lake professional engineer who honed his glasswork skills at Greenfield Village, the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and Touch of Light Studio and Gallerie of Handblown Glass in Ferndale. He'll exhibit large handblown vases, plates and bowls with highly organic forms.

A full-time automotive engineer, Wisniewski plans to build Livonia's first hot-glass studio behind his home. The flash point will be a small oven five feet tall and wide capable of heating up a 100-pound pot of newly made glass.

Wisniewski hopes to one day blow glass full time. He and Christine have studied for the past three years under the tutelage of Swedish-trained glassblower John Fitzpatrick at Touch of Light.

An ancient Egyptian art form that dates back in the New World to 1608 when the Jamestown Glass Factory opened, glass art eventually lost some of its luster. But California glass blowers Harvey Littleton and Dominic Labino revived it in the 1960s.

What's the lure?

"Talk to glass artists," Wisniewski says, "and you'll find that all have been fascinated with glass since childhood. I started collecting glass, mostly bottles but even broken glass, when I was very young. I first experimented with kiln-fused glass — heating stained or plate glass in a kiln until the pieces fused together in one shape — in junior high."

Fleischer's greatest interest, she says in her artist's statement, "is capturing the spirit of life in the sea in glass paperweights.

■ 'Talk to glass artists and you'll find that all have been fascinated with glass since childhood. I started collecting glass, mostly bottles but even broken glass, when I was very young.'
Joe Wisniewski

Swirling strands of colors and patterns of bubbles invoke images of fish and marine life swimming in their eternal dance. The pastel violets, pinks and blues draw on the gentle, feminine side of life."

Glass results from mixing high-quality sand and soda in a very-hot glass oven. Paperweight makers gather a ball of molten glass on the end of a steel blow pipe, shape it with hand tools and blow it up like a balloon. Colors and designs result from solid-colored glass chunks and powdered colors applied to clear glass while yellow hot. Glass layers are built up by dipping the enlarging piece again and again in the pot of hot glass.

"Many people have no idea how glass art is done or where it comes from," said Wisniewski, embarking on his first Michigan Glass Month show. "We hope to promote interest in glass art through education."

Michigan Glass Month at Nelson's Gallery will be a sparkling opportunity to do just that.

■ PLYMOUTH FRAMEWORKS
Continuing — An exhibit features contemporary artist Barbara Wood. "An artist who communicates with the viewer" and "emotional energy" are descriptions of Wood and her work. Focusing on women as her primary subject, Wood brings fresh delight in her reflection of mood and intimate scenes capturing the essence of a moment others have experienced. Fascinated with color, her pictures can be bold and vigorous or have a poetic delicacy. Through April. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, 833 Penniman, Plymouth, (313) 459-3355.

■ NATIVE WEST
Continuing — "Rain." Celebrate nature's gift to the Earth. Rain symbols are everywhere in Indian culture — songs, baskets, bowls, water jars, sculptures, textiles, jewelry, clothing, rattles, bandoliers, paintings. Rain is linked to the powers of healing, to returning ancestors who bring life to the living, to the origin of weaving. Internationally known Native American speakeer "Eagle Feather Boy" Edwin Poulin will talk on Indian cultures, symbols and the importance of rain to Native Americans 1-4 p.m. Saturday, April 2. 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Thursday and Saturday; 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday.

■ LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY FINE ARTS GALLERY
Opening — Livonia Arts commission features photography by two internationally award-winning photographers, Monte Nagler of Farmington Hills and Tony Spina of Bloomfield Hills. ■ TOP AGENT
Jeanne L. Tilford of Troy, top residential sales agent for Prudential Great Lakes Realty-Troy, was honored at the Prudential national convention in San Antonio.

Tilford

With 10 years' experience in the real estate field, she was recognized as being in the top 1 percent nationwide and the Elite Chairman Circle Award winner.

She's been in the real estate field for 10 years.

■ BRANCH OFFICE
Dallas-based Sunbelt National Mortgage has opened its first branch office in Plymouth at 190 Plymouth Road, Suite 2, as a satellite of its Bingham Farms office.

Pamela J. Hall was named branch manager. A lending officer with Sunbelt since July, she has 10 years' experience in lending and finance.

Plymouth's "Old-World charm" and location between Ann Arbor and Detroit has made it attractive to businesses and residents alike, Hall said.

"There is a lot of new housing and a lot of new construction," she said. "There also is a lot of commercial and industrial growth. So it's very competitive here among lenders. We expect this branch to do very well."

Joining Hall in Plymouth is Dick Bone, loan officer, and Lynda Scheel, loan processor. Call (313) 453-5626.

Sunbelt currently serves $6 billion in mortgage loans.

■ AWARD WINNERS
Red Carpet Keim Walker & Associates in Southfield honored three sales associates for 1993.

Owner-broker Judy Walker and brokers Marcella Gresham and Gwendolyn Williams were honored for residential sales.

Red Carpet Keim president John Kavanagh, meanwhile, honoed the Southfield office for top residential sales for 1993.

"This office has continued to rank as one of our top offices and will continue to do so under the leadership of Judy Walker," he said.

The network is the nation's largest broker owned and operated real estate network with 70 offices and 1,000 sales associates in Michigan.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer lauds achievers

Nearly two-dozen sales associates from local Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate offices were honored as top achievers in 1993 for the Sterling Heights-based company.

"The strength of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate comes from top-producing sales associates like ours who give outstanding customer service and results," said Paul Schweitzer, president.

"For a sales associate to be a success or a top producer, they understand the real estate industry as their own business," he added. "They do extensive personal promotion, which any business would do.

"They have to have organization and provide exceptional service to customers and clients. That means always being in contact with them about what's happening with a sale or listing. The last thing is followup after the sale, being in touch," Schweitzer said.

It's an honor to have these sales associates as part of our organization."

Here are the honorees:

■ Plymouth — Chris Knight, who generated total sales volume in excess of $11 million from 127 transactions, showed the way as that office's top sales associate for gross commission income.

Knight

Knight's sales volume was third best in the entire company.

Lucia Capicchioni generated a sales volume over $10 million, Judy Rumpel and Frank Julian, each over $6 million, and Mike Schneider, $3 million.

■ Birmingham -- Rosalee Hill was honored as the top sales associate for gross commission income in that office with a volume of $6 million from 31 transactions.

Hill

Other large producers in the Birmingham office were Pam Dover-Cadotte, $4 million, and Jean Colby, $3 million.

> ■ 'For a sales associate to be a success or a top producer, they understand the real estate industry as their own business.'
> Paul Schweitzer, president

■ Bloomfield Hills — Helga Nisonger, the gross commission income leader in that office, generated total sales volume of $4 million from 21 transactions.

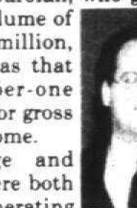
Nisonger

Sharon Nijhof also generated sales of more than $4 million.

■ Livonia — Neil McCloskey and Rick Borowiec were recognized as the office's top sales associates for gross commission income. The McCloskey/Borowiec team generated sales volume in excess of $4 million.

Steve Patterson and Genevieve Patterson were both honored for generating a sales volume in excess of $2 million.

■ Troy — Pat Carolan, who generated total sales volume of more than $5 million, was recognized as that office's number-one sales associate for gross commission income.



Carolan

Charles Page and Dan Murphy were both honored for generating sales volume in excess of $4 million and Jean Belcher was cited as a member of the $3 million club.

■ West Bloomfield — John Delaney was recognized as a member of the $2 million club.

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Our attorney, who has represented us for three years, recommended a management company to us, which we hired.

The management company, because of its size and the personality of the on-site manager, was unable to satisfy our needs and we attempted to terminate the management company before the expiration of the management agreement. The management company has turned around and sued us.

Now our attorney will not represent our association, claiming that he has too many other condominium associations that are represented by the management company and he would feel uncomfortable in representing the association against it. We feel betrayed, both by the attorney and the management company. What can we do?

A. Obviously, to the extent that you are in need of legal services, you will have to hire another attorney, presumably experienced in condominium representation, to represent the interests of your association.

Perhaps the lesson to be learned from this unfortunate experience is that when you consider retaining counsel, that you specifically ask the attorney whether or not he or she would have any conflict or other problem in representing the association against either the management company or any other contractors who you know are being employed by the association at the time of his or her retention.

Obviously, it is important to have legal counsel who recognizes their fiduciary duty is owed solely to the association client, and no other entity, and that they are prepared to vigorously and independently represent the interests of the association.

It is also important to ensure that the attorney whom you hire, who is presumably independent of any influence from the management company, can objectively evaluate the terms and conditions of any management contract that is submitted to the association for review.

Cutting edge: Jay Anthony, general manager of QID Homecare Suites, believes the modular unit his firm sells provides a homecare environment for people not requiring nursing-home assistance.

Homecare Suite option to nursing home

A Birmingham firm says it has an alternative to nursing home care. The Homecare Suite fits in most two-car garages and gives caregivers another choice for relatives who don't require round-the-clock assistance.

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
Special Writer

A small medical supply firm in Birmingham has big plans for an alternative to nursing home care - a barrier-free, modular suite that fits inside a garage.

QID Medical Supply Service, which up to now sold wound care kits to nursing facilities, learned about the self-contained suite, designed for frail elderly or chronically ill people, from the inventor, Stephen Menke. The former hospital administrator developed the unit several years ago with Kansas State University.

The U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development recently bought 20 units to try out in Kansas.

Menke, who says hospitals can't provide long-term care and nursing homes aren't always the answer, came up with the idea for Healthcare Suite at a medical convention. Watching workers carry in and set up a portable stage, he began sketching a portable hospital room.

QID was so taken with the concept it set up a subsidiary, QID Homecare Suites, and is Menke's principal marketing partner in the Midwest.

"For us, it's a giant step into the health care market. I think we've hit on something that may

Occupancy up or level; quoted rent rates rise

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

Both office occupancy rates and quoted rental rates were up slightly in Livonia, Birmingham and Farmington Hills as of the first of the year compared to January 1993.

Occupancy rates remained about the same, but quoted rental rates increased slightly in Troy and Southfield.

That's what Joel I. Feldman, senior vice president and an associate broker with First Commercial Realty & Development Co. in Southfield, found in his annual survey of the metro office market.

Here's a summary of his analysis by community:

Quoted rental rate, usually higher than actual contract rate, depends on such factors as supply and demand, what the competition is doing and how much a landlord will spend on tenant improvements, Feldman said

■ Livonia - occupancy, 94 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $17.83 per square foot.

"Majority of leasing activity was corporate in nature and in the form of the renewal of existing leases, the expansion of current tenants as well as the attracting of new tenants," Feldman wrote.

"Western Livonia's major concern should now be focused on monitoring the supply of office space in relation to demand so that the success it recently enjoys . . . isn't diluted by the premature introduction of new office product," he added.

■ Farmington Hills - occupancy, 89 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $16.49 per square foot.

"A healthy relationship between the supply took place," Feldman reported. "Renewals often took the form of lease expansions, resulting in real growth and net absorption.

"This recovery should even be given an additional boost provided significant new speculative office product doesn't come on line in the near future."

be a temporary or permanent alternative to nursing home care," said Jay Anthony, QID general manager.

"We aren't anti-nursing home, but many people don't need 24-hour care and don't belong there. Frail doesn't mean sick," he added.

How do care givers feel about putting a loved one in the garage?

"One in 200 is surprised by the idea, but it makes all the difference when they see the unit," Anthony said.

From the outside, the garage looks like a model home office. Inside, a furnished suite resembles a comfortable hotel room. The unit is about 380 square feet and fits in most two-car garages. It's carpeted and walls are vinyl covered with built-in bookshelves.

There's a front door, window, bedroom, sitting/activity center and barrier-free bath with a tilting tub for access from a wheelchair. A power-assisted toilet is optional.

QID's health care coordinator can get other optional equipment, like a power-chair or hospital bed, or arrange for a visiting nurse.

The suite connects to the house by an interior door; a short ramp outside leads to the exterior door. The partitions that replace garage doors are made to match the house.

The unit can be installed in most garages in two days and dismantled in one. It uses the house's electrical and sewer lines and has a separate hot water heater, self-contained heating unit and air conditioner. The floor is seven inches above the garage floor and well-insulated.

Before marketing the unit to Midwesterners, QID worked with Berkeley architect Robert A. Williams, a specialist in barrier- free design, to increase the insulation value to R-19 — for weather in Sault Ste. Marie, Anthony said.

It rents for $1,500 a month, or you can buy one for $38,600. The bathroom alone rents for $900 a month; the purchase price is $24,800. There's a smaller unit for one-car garages.

Freight and installation is $2,500, which includes plumbing and electrical permits. The company has a guaranteed repurchase program.

Some costs may be tax deductible or covered by Medicare or private insurance, Anthony said.

If the price sounds steep, consider the cost of skilled nursing home care around Michigan — the average is $3,472 a month, or $42,291 a year, according to a QID study.

"There's a definite benefit to staying at home, but caring for a frail elderly person is a full-time commitment," said Alexander Spiro, president and CEO of Charter Care Corp., with nursing homes in Farmington Hills and Novi.

"Usually, an acute incident like a stroke or fall puts the elderly in the hospital," he said. "Before considering home care, you need to evaluate the patient with the hospital social worker. A lot of people don't focus on the time, energy and lifestyle change that's required for home care. A nursing home isn't a place people don't come out of. We have people go back into their homes or apartments everyday."

Nursing homes charge for skilled care from registered nurses and therapists, who are on staff, but routine visits from these professionals at home could cost around $5,700 a month, Spiro said.

At least two local planners like the idea of Homecare Suite, but say installation would probably have to be considered on a case-by-case basis.

"I'm acutely aware of the health care problem, and I personally understand the need for home care," said John J. Nagy, Livonia planning director. "There would likely be a problem adapting (the unit) to a typical home under our existing code because it alters a single-family residence."

Nagy's other concern is increased demand for off-street parking once the garage is converted, but with appropriate variances, he said, the unit could be adapted to some homes.

Nik Banda, Southfield director of planning, agrees: "(The suite) represents an important social statement that cities will have to evaluate in the near future. I'm not sure how it fits into our present code. We'd have to look at modifying it on a case-by-case basis."

"I'm getting more calls everyday for information on in-home care for the elderly," said Loretta Conway, Farmington Hills' senior adult supervisor. "The concept of Homecare Suite is an extraordinary one if you can afford it."

Franco Channel 2's new editorial chief

Anthony M. Franco of Bloomfield Hills was named editorial director of WJBK-TV2, announced station president and general manager Steven Antoniotti, a Farmington Hills resident. His appointment at TV2 is effective April 1.

Franco will chair the Southfield station's editorial board and will help develop TV2's community affairs policy. He will occasionally deliver station editorials on-air.

"Tony Franco brings to us a 35-year history of business, civic and communications leadership," Antoniotti said, noting that as past chairman of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Franco is a familiar and knowledgeable community leader.

"His presence and involvement will enhance the station's already-strong commitment to community service. He'll be an invaluable asset," Antoniotti said.

In addition to the Chamber of Commerce, Franco serves on a number of community boards in the state, including WTVS/Channel 56 and the Detroit Area Council of the Boy Scouts, both of which he has also chaired; the Library of Michigan Foundation; the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce and the Oakland County Business Roundtable.

Franco is a life member of the Detroit Economic Club and serves on several Detroit-area advisory boards, including Hospice of Southeastern Michigan and the United Way for Southeastern Michigban.

Since 1964, Franco has served as chairman, president and chief executive officer of Anthony M. Franco, Inc., which was sold to Ross Roy Communications of Bloomfield Hills in 1990. The firm was subsequently sold to four of its officers this past December, at which time Franco resigned from the day-to-day duties of operating the firm.

With the addition of Franco to the staff, the station will resume its editorials and viewers' comments, as well as continue expansion of its community relations efforts.

■ Birmingham — occupancy, 83 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $21.53 per square foot.

"Yet another example of progress being made, of the tightening of the marketplace," Feldman reported. "Still is characterized by limited demand, the availability of concessions. Emphasis continues to be placed, and rightfully so, on renovation and tenant retention."

■ Troy — occupancy, 81 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $17.86.

"Stagnant perhaps better than any other word best summarizes the current status of Troy's office market," Feldman reported.

"Troy's overall occupancy rate relative to multi-tenanted, speculative, general office facilities remained essentially unchanged. Little, if any, net absorption took place . . . despite the fact that no new speculative office product was added.

"The majority of leasing activity that did transpire was in the form of lease renewals," Feldman reported. "No new major or large-size leases were consummated. Troy's office market today remains soft and tenant skewed with concessions."

Further trouble could lie ahead as more companies follow through on planned relocations, the commentary continued. However, quality buildings, good freeway access and judicial management should win out in the long run.

■ Southfield — occupancy, 75 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $15.94.

"Parts of Southfield's office market such as its southern and central sections are generally in poor to bad shape and parts of Southfield's central and northern areas . . . are generally in good shape," Feldman reported.

"The marketplace, especially here, is simply too complex, too large and too diverse to generalize about.

"How can Southfield lead the entire state of Michigan in leasing activity and at the same time have the lowest occupancy level as well as the largest amount of vacant office space?

"The answer: little or no net absorption of office product, an insignificant amount of lease expansions and a disproportionately large amount of leasing activity in the form of renewals . . . versus the leasing of office space to new companies and professionals."

The positives?

"If anything, Southfield's office market today and is more stable and less transitory than it has been in years," Feldman wrote. "Despite its many problems, Southfield, as a whole, still is perceived as a viable and attractive place to do business."

Progress should continue, Feldman reported, due to Southfield's central location, freeway access, a large concentration of major corporations and influential business people, and sensitive governmental leadership willing to consider alternative uses for troubled properties.

Credit union use on upward swing

Consumer satisfaction with credit unions, combined with rising service charges at banks, have led to a growing movement of consumers into credit unions.

In 1993, Michigan credit unions attracted 53,000 new members, said Michael Kelly, senior director of the Southfield-based Michigan Credit Union League.

Anyone in Michigan interested in joining a credit union, but uncertain of where they may fit in as a member, can request information with one toll free phone call.

By calling 1 (800) 474-JOIN, callers hear a recorded message offering tips on how to join a credit union through their job, residence, church or family. After the recorded message, callers are able to leave a voicemail message requesting a complimentary, customized membership information packet in the mail based on information they leave on the recording.

"The new 800 number is a part of the Michigan League's commitment to Operation Moonshot," Kelly said, "but even more, it's a concrete, practical service to Michigan credit unions."

Within the first month of the program, 280 state credit unions had joined the program by providing the MCUL with summaries of their membership eligibility requirements.

The Michigan Credit Union League is working in cooperation with the Joint Advertising Board, the state's cooperative credit union ads program, to operate 1 (800) 474-JOIN. Their efforts will help potential new members connect with credit unions that will meet their needs.

■ COMPLETE CONSTRUCTION

Chirco Title Co., whose branch offices are in West Bloomfield and Shelby Township, has finished construction of a St. Clair Shores office building where it will be the primary tenant. Chirco will double its office space, to 5,000 square feet, in the new facility.

Chirco

Founded in 1987, Chirco is owned and run by Shelby resident Paul T. Chirco. He's a former associate attorney for a Troy law firm.

■ NEW COUNSELING CENTER

New Dimensions Center for Christian Counseling has opened an office in Livonia, at 37677 Professional Center Drive, at Six Mile and I-275.

Licensed counselors offer individual, group and family counseling, pre-marital counseling and programs for addiction, co-dependency, depression, panic and anxiety orders.

Office hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The phone number is (313) 462-2219.

■ SELL STOCK

New York-based ITT Corp. said its wholly owned subsidiary, ITT Educational Services, will sell up to 19.9 percent of its common stock later this year.

The subsidiary, headquartered in Indianapolis, Ind., said it has more than 20,000 full-time students in 48 technical schools, including one in Troy, at 1225 E. Big Beaver. The Troy school has programs in electronics engineering technology and computer-aided drafting.

■ FAMILY SERVICE OPENS

Sinai Hospital has teamed up with Family Service, a United Way agency, to provide psychiatric evaluation and family-focused counseling to Family Service clients.

"We're looking forward to expanding our collaborative efforts with other professional colleagues in the community. This kind of cooperation ensures greater access to the appropriate level of care for individuals and their families," said Dr. Linda Hotchkiss, Sinai psychiatric department chairperson.

Family Service has offices in Canton, Livonia, Westland, Dearborn, Detroit and Trenton.

■ NEW ACCOUNT

Hermanoff & Associates, Farmington Hills, will handle public relations for Eastland Center in Harper Woods. The account supervisor is Sue Tumanis, vice president. Lisa Morris is the account executive.

■ OFFICE EXPANSION

New York-based Video Monitoring Services of America said it will expand its Southfield office at 26400 Lahser to include advertising analysis services for Detroit area and Michigan-based clients.

The sales and production facility will handle broadcast retrieval and monitoring of commercial advertising on network, cable, local spot and international television and radio. The advertising services staff will join the news clipping service. Wendy Baca has relocated to metro Detroit from New York to head the new facility.

■ DRUG CHAIN PROFILED

Troy-based Arbor Drugs is featured as a prime stock selection in "America's New Blue Chips: An Inventment Guide to the Hottest Growth Stocks."

Arbor was the only drugstore chain selected by author Gene Walden, a World Trade magazine columnist, who also writes for The Wall Street Journal and Investor's Daily.

The book profiles more than 100 top growth companies whose stocks, according to Walden, have the best potential for becoming the next generation of blue chips. Selections were based on earnings, revenue and stock growth over the past five years. Most firms are less than 10 years old, with annual revenue of $50 to $500 million.

■ NAME QUALITY ACHIEVER

John Jackson, a welder at Jervis B. Webb's New Hudson facility, is Quality Achiever of the Month. He joined the Farmington Hills-based designer and manufacturer of material handling systems in 1985.

The Trenton resident was selected for a range of job-related efforts, including his willingness to help co-workers clarify job requirements and his openess to new ideas and methods.

■ PROFESSIONAL NEWSLETTER

Maximum Resources, a Trenton referral service for self-employed professionals, is offering a free newsletter called "Consulting Concepts." For a complimentary subscription, call (313) 692-8159.

■ GUEST SPEAKERS

Ronald A. Silberstein and Daniel Hirsch, certified public accountants for Hirsch & Silberstein, Farmington Hills, were guest speakers at the American Measuring Tool Manufacturers Association's semi-annual meeting in Phoenix, Ariz. this month.

Their topics included how to get the most of your payroll dollars; zero-based budgeting and management; distinguishing between what's important and what's urgent, and how to increase sales by learning more about your customers and competition.

■ ADVISOR WINS GRANT

Prudential Mutual Fund Management gave a $500 grant to Central Michigan University on behalf of Kirk H. Love, vice president-investments for Prudential Securities' West Bloomfield branch.

The grant is part of Prudential's Back-to-School campaign to encourage their financial advisors to help clients set up a college savings plan using Prudential investments. Advisors who excell in this area qualify for a donation to the college of their choice.

Central Michigan, Love's alma mater, earmarked the money for the college of business.

■ NEW ADDRESS

Casey Communications Management moved from 17117 W. Nine Mile, Southfield, to the Maccabees Center, at 25800 Northwestern, Suite 800, Southfield. The new phone number is (810) 746-6070.

■ PAVING HONORS

Giffels Associates, a Southfield-based architectural and engineering firm, received the Sheldon G. Hayes Quality Paving Award for a high-speed test track constructed in Yucca, Ariz., for Ford Motor Co.

Sign language: "Window glass acts as an indicator, a warning of possible unseen damage inside the wall caused by excessive moisture," says Paul Martin, Livonia-based territory sales manager, Pella Window and Door Co.

Wet windows may mean wall damage

Those little beads of condensation gathering on the windows this winter may be trying to tell you something.

"Because window glass is denser and colder than surrounding walls, water vapor seeking cooler, drier outside air stops and condenses on the glass surface," said Paul Martin, Livonia-based territory sales manager, Pella Window and Door Co. "Window glass acts as an indicator, a warning of possible unseen damage inside the wall caused by excessive moisture."

Unless steps are taken to reduce moisture levels in the home, Martin said, successive freezing and thawing of this moisture could cause deteriorating sidewall insulation, rotting wood structural members and blistering exterior paint.

"A solution may be replacing older windows if they have damaged seals or deteriorated surfaces," Martin said. "Today's quality wood windows have overcome many of the trouble spots that resulted in condensation on older windows. Because quality wood is a natural insulator, it can also increase the home's overall energy-efficiency."

Martin offered these simple checks to identify minor problems with existing windows: Wood surfaces should be finished with gloss paint or polyurethane varnish; breather holes in the edge of the sash should be clear of debris; and interior glass panels should be tightly clipped into place with gaskets flush against the sash.

Fortunately, Martin said, most types of condensation are temporary and will disappear with time or simple interior humidity adjustments. But if problems persist, homeowners should contact a contractor to help identify the problem and assist in selection of replacement windows.

For a free informational package about selecting windows and doors for the home, call 1-800-847-3552.
