MEAP results please educators

MEAP scores have improved in the Plymouth-Canton schools. Officials say the better numbers are a result of students', parents' and teachers' hard work. Parents can expect to receive a copy of their child's results by Jan. 20.

BY M.B. DILLON

Parents can expect results of a state-mandated test taken by Plymouth-Canton students in their mailboxes between Jan. 9 and 20.

Building-by-building results will be available Jan. 19, said Sheila Alles, curriculum coordinator.

Fourth-, seventh-, and 10th-graders took the Michigan Educational Assessment Program math and reading tests. Fifth-, eighth- and 11th-graders took the MEAP science test.

This year's numbers look good, said Alles. "I think our district did very well. We had steady improvement across the board in math, sci-

Thomas Tattan, executive director for instruction, said "This year's results are a tribute to the students, their parents and the dedicated group of teachers and administrators in Plymouth-Canton who work daily to help each student reach full potential in these foundation areas which are so vital to a successful life. We'll continue to use these results to confirm individual student performance and to help us to work further with each student and the student's parents. Sensitive to dwindling resources, Harvey makes use of existing materials from the house, as well as materials he has collected from other structures, to complete the renovation.

Rex Harvey takes a little bit of the old and mixes it with a little bit of the new to renovate a building to its historical period.

Senior citizens coordinator earns kudos

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

Canton's senior citizens coordinator has been recognized for achieving a hardy set of professional standards.

"For our profession, it's an honor to have the standards set," said Dianne Neihengen, coordinator of the town-ship's senior programs. "This is a fairly new concept

This is the first year that the Michigan Association of Senior Centers has awarded certification. Officially, Neihengen was awarded the title of Certified Senior Director during the annual conference in November.

"It accords the actual profession of senior center directors the respect the position deserves," said Neihengen, who works out of the senior center in the Canton Recreation Center on Michigan Avenue.

Organization officials worked on establishing a set of standards for the rofession over the last eight years. We found over the years that no one would do this for our profession unless it was our organization," Neihengen said. "This applies to those who have degrees or those who don't but have a number of years of experience. When they see results, we hope other coordinators will join."

What the certification does locally is recognize Neihengen's professionalism and success - not to mention making senior citizens pretty happy. "The seniors are so proud. They think this is special. They take this personally," she said.

Neihengen began her career in Canton in 1982 as the part-time senior coordinator. She has a bachelor's degree in social work. In 1988, she was made full time. Canton began senior programs in the 1970s.

Hospice ties strengthened

Community Hospice Services of Westland and Plymouth have expanded upon their longstanding history of mutual respect.

The president of Angela Hos pice, Sister Mary Giovanni, and the executive director of Community Hospice Services, Maureen Butrico, have joined together to start a teen volunteer program.

"Working together with Angels Hospice is an exciting prospect, said Butrico. "We share the same mission and philosophy in the care of the incurably ill. Now we can begin to share precious resources as well.

"I see this as a program which will enhance the services of both hospices. The focus of the '90s eems to be a move away from the what's in it for me?' attitude towards an attitude of 'what can I do to better the community where "We felt that this program was

Have a little, not a lot

Don't try to deny yourself holiday goodies. If you try to avoid them completely, you'll just crave them all the more. Instead, allow yourself a small sample of the foods that tempt you. Portion control is important at holiday dinners as well as at parties Take a little of everything, but go easy on the gravy, dessert and other high-calorie, high-fat parts

Enjoy the people at the party You can have a great time at parties and not overeat if you emember that the best part of the gathering is the people, not the if you're feeling "starved," you'll robably lose your self-control.

Make exercise part of the holiday routine Regular aerobic exercise will help burn up some of the extra calories you are bound to consume during the holidays. It will also help you handle the stress that's inevitable during this very busy season.

Some Republicans fear new voter law

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Democrats may benefit - but how much? - from federally ordered changes in Michigan's voter registration laws.

The Michigan Legislature in the last week put the finishing touches on laws to bring the state into compliance with the National Voter Registration Act.

"It's a very partisan bill," said state Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, who was on the short end of an 85-14 vote on final pas-

I don't think it should be easier for welfare recipients to register to vote than anyone else. Those are traditional Democratic constituencies. It's another mandate from Washington without the money to pay for it."

Kaza voiced the same objection

CC students collect food

Detroit Catholic Central students raised more than one ton of food for needy families in northwest Detroit during the school's fifth annual Thanksgiving canned food drive.

Organizing the drive were two Livonia students Mike Topolenski, a senior, and Phil Osaer, a freshman. The drive included a dance where students brought cans, and homeroom and class competitions. Sophmores won the class contest.

The food was delivered to the Rev. Don Archambault at the St. Vincent De Paul food department of St. Gerard's parish in Detroit.

as many congressional Republicans when Democrats passed the federal act in 1993. NVRA, also known as the "motor voter" act, requires the states to offer welfare recipients, unemployment-compensation applicants, and other social-services clients a chance to register when they file for bene-

NVRA also requires states to offer voter registration when people get driver's licenses and buy new plates, but Michigan already has had such a system since the 1970s. Michigan also provides voter registration service for high school students turning age 18.

President George Bush vetoed the first NVRA attempt in 1992, but congressional Democrats quickly re-passed it once Bill Clinton was in the White House. Advocates say its purpose is to increase the proportion of American adults registered to vote from 75 to 90 percent.

In the Michigan House, all 14 no votes came from Republicans including Kaza, John Jamian of Bloomfield Township, Jerry Vorva of Plymouth and Deborah Whyman of Canton Township. All other Observer & Eccentric area representatives voted yes.

Others voting yes included Willis Bullard Jr., R-Milford; Dan Gustafson, R-Williamston; Susan Munsell, R-Howell; Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville; Kirk Profit, D-

Ypsilanti; and Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, voted no.

But one key Republican stalwart is convinced lawmakers blunted many of the possible bad effects. He is Robert LaBrant, general counsel for the Michigan Chamber of Commerce and a member of the transition team of Candice Miller, the incoming GOP secretary of state.

"The U.S. Department of Justice can sue Michigan," said La-Brant. "If we were sued for non-compliance, we face the potential, under Sec. 5, that all state voting law changes would have to be cleared with the Department of Justice.

"Michigan is the largest industrial state that hasn't enacted compliance legislation. Michigan might move to the top of the (bad) list very quickly. And the NVRA opens us to citizen lawsuits," he added

(Commented Kaza: "That's a heckuva way to make law - pass something because of our fear of Washington.")

The Michigan law gives great discretion to the governor," La-Brant said, noting John Engler can set up voter registration in other offices but can't eliminate it from welfare and human-services

LaBrant cited two good fea-tures, from a Republican point of view, in the new law:

There will be a statewide, com puter-accessible list of registered voters as of Jan. 1, 1997. Currently, 1,700 city and township clerks maintain separate lists. Under the new law, when a person re-registers (say) at a new address, his or her old registration is canceled. "That will end fraud and tie drivers' license and state identification cards into the system," he said.

The federal law requires a system of registration by postcard, which LaBrant sees as inviting fraud. So the Michigan law will require that a person voting for the first time after registering by postcard must appear in person at the polls.

The state Senate repaired what LaBrant and Republicans saw as pro-Democratic defects in the original House Bill 5531. The differences were settled in a conference committee.

Although voter registration files are public records, some data will be exempt from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act. Closed will be any record that a person declined to register to vote; the office that received his or her application; the voter's driver's license number (or state ID number); and the month and day of birth.

COMMUNITY LIFE

KAREN MEIER

Remembering another Dec. 15 of the day probably won't much be remembered in years to come. Today's minutiae? Pfffft, gone. Just like that.

But there was a Dec. 15, a Sunday about which I remember a whole bunch of minutiae. And all Moms, I know, will understand this. They understand this business of remembering itty bitty details. That's because everything, itty bitty included, seems magnified, seems so BIG, on the day you give birth.

First of all, you're big. The distance between your house and the hospital is big, time is big, and the gown you're issued is big and too flappy And that's not for your comfort, of course; it's for the strangers. Boy, do you ever meet a lot of them that day. And they don't have much use for who you are, just what you happen to be doing at the time and at what speed you're doing it. It's a day when dignity and daintiness get shoved in a closet along with your clothing. And all in that one day you experience the most outrageous pain and the most exalted joy. And that day you never ever forget. Not even the minutiae.

Today happens to be my Joey's third birthday. He was born a little early; he was supposed to be a New Year's Eve baby. My husband was very nervous about that. You know, potential tax deduction problems - the day late and dollar short sort of problems. But good ole' Joe, in time for Christmas and 1991's 1040.

That Sunday I awoke with no stabbing pain under my shoulder blade. The pain had been there for months and caused me to fold in half

Acts of caring brighten holidays

It goes without saying that the holidays are very different following the loss of a loved one, but a 10vear tradition of Arbor Hospice of of serving a Swedish Christmas dinner is helping families survive.

By LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

Mary Lindquist held a Swedish Christmas dinner for families and friends Tuesday night at First Unit-Methodist ed

Church in Plymouth. A winter storm warning predicted treacherous road conditions, but it didn't seem to matter to the staff, volunteers and families of Arbor Hospice

Most of the 250 guests had lost a spouse to death within the past 10 years. Joan Healy's husband died last month. For the Plymouth widow, the occasion held special significance. It was the first time Healy would see the nurses and support staff that assisted her family through the final months of her husband's life.

They became like family; hospice made everything peaceful, beautiful. It's just the most wonderful experience," she said.

Healy's daughter, Vicki Thomas, traveled from Clinton Township to attend the dinner. "I came to meet with other people in the same situation," said Thomas while holding her young daughter in her arms, "and to support my mother."

Lindquist, a registered nurse, began the tradition 10 years ago of inviting the families of patients who have died in the past year to a Christmas dinner, since surviving the first holidays after the death of a loved one are especially difficult.

The first few were held in Lindquist's Ann Arbor home, but the gathering soon outgrew the space and moved to a church in Ann Arbor - then to First United Methodist in Plymouth when that one became too small.

The main course of Swedish meatballs and porridge was prepared by Lindquist, whose husband is Swedish. Apples on each of the tables held candles that were later lighted for a special moment in remembrance of loved ones.

We all bundled off to church a little early, became completely boxed in in the parking lot and sat near the front of the chusch. I sat fourth from the end of dilr pew. My father-in-law sat next to me on one side and Mr. X on the other.

Mass began and not too far into t the children made their procession up the middle aisle. They all were sweeter than angels. And the song they sang for everyone was straight from heaven. I cried. Then went into labor.

I dismissed it and figured the tace-supper from the night before was to blame. But then I started to sweat. And I couldn't get up to sing the next hymn. I felt very rude. It's important to stand when you sing hymns. Slouching 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Sledding hills needed by kids

he quintessential image of winter is a red-faced child bundled up in warm clothing and pulling a sled. However, the reality in the 1990s is that kid has few places to go with that Christmas sled in the Plymouth-Canton area.

The culprits are the trial lawyers, dressed in blue suits, with torts in tow instead of a sled. Public officials and bureaucrats who seem unable to just say no to any question of legal liability also contribute to the problem.

It's a sad state of affairs when sledding is either banned or discouraged because of fear of litigation resulting from sledding accidents. But that's exactly what's happening, most recently in Plymouth Township.

There have been some minor injuries in re cent years and potential lawsuits. That has prompted officials to ban sledding at the Plymouth Township Park this winter.

Officials say they will review the terrain and look at making some changes in an effort to bring back sledding next year. It sounds like the kiss of death to us.

Once a group of bureaucrats gets its hands on something like sledding, members will produce a hill of paper work and little else. Sledding in the area will become another victim of bureaucratic overkill.

Parents and children in Plymouth and Canton should take their public officials to task on

There are hills in Hines Park where kids have gone to sled, but Wayne County Sheriff's Department deputies have been known to chase kids off certain hills

A county parks department official said. "We do not have any organized sledding activities in the parks." She did not rule out sledding in Hines Park, but added, "We don't promote sledding.

Canton Township with its large amount of open land near the township hall has a wonderful opportunity to develop sledding hills that are safe for children. Some thought should be given to building them. When compared to other types of recreation, sledding is

It must be acknowledged that there is some danger involved in sledding, just as there is with any winter sport, however, when compared to the dangers of drug use, alcohol and iriving cars too fast, sledding is much safer.

Young people in Plymouth and Canton need activities in which to engage. Sledding is one that should be encouraged instead of dis-

It's the least we can do for our children

County must face key issues

"burbs" - places where people own nice omes and drive to jobs in Detroit, Dearborn or Ann Arbor. The dairy farms of 50 years ago have given way to malls, auto plants, high-tech industries and hotels as well as big-lot residences.

So our thinking, as we plan ahead to 1995 and the turn of the century, must be about saving the quality of life in a balanced series of communities with their own identities.

Here are some of the more immediate challenges on the horizon:

TRADEPORT - The Legislature has enacted the bill allowing Willow Run Airport, on the Wayne-Washtenaw boundary, to be redeveloped as an international tradeport. PA 325 sets up an authority that can "capture" local tax revenue, accumulate land and fund infrastructure. It's the first of its kind in Michigan.

The goal is a set of manufacturing firms, many with scientific products, whose shipping needs would be expedited by next-door access to a 10,300-foot runway. So far, Wayne and Washtenaw counties have been successful in obtaining the legal tools to make this tradeport possible. Now they must use the tools to make business and jobs a reality. HORSE RACING - We can shed a tear for the good of days, but horse racing is in what pilots call "a graveyard spin" and is unlikely to pull out, even if we were unwise enough to allow Ladbroke DRC to move full-scale into gambling. If Ladbroke closes up shop at Schoolcraft and Middlebelt, as threatened, let us consider it an opportunity to redevelop the COURTS - Many communities are crying for more judges. But officials in the 35th District Court (Canton-Plymouth-Northville) failed last year, despite their excellent presentation, to persuade the state to add another judge for their burgeoning caseload. Gov. John Engler insisted we can't keep adding,

There's a larger problem. Michigan's trial courts are rigidly structured - stratified horizontally into circuit, recorder's, probate and district courts; split vertically along community boundaries. There is much thinking in State Bar circles that we need to restructure the trial courts: one or two types of courts and somewhat larger election districts. If reform occurs, judges would hear more kinds of cases and assigning them where needed would be simpler. The change will come, and western Wayne leaders should lead the reform, not re-

ROADS - We know: The County Roads Association is dreaming when it advocates a 12cents-a-gallon hike in the current 15-cents fuel tax. Yet every driver knows we're in danger of getting so accustomed to bad roads that we shrug and accept them. Canton Center Road, Joy and Seven Mile are particularly in need of repair and capacity improvement. Another exit from I-275 is needed in Canton tration has done a laudable job putting asphalt on many miles of western Wayne roads and installing left-turn signals to facilitate drivers coming off the freeways. Yet much increase should be supported by county officials and advocated by our legislators.

PUBLIC TRANSIT - In Dennis Archer Detroit at last has a mayor the suburbs can deal with. The suburbs have an aggressive, deal-making transit leader in Michael Duggan. It's time to deal on the bus system - combine Detroit's DOT and SMART, then extend bus service to jobs west of Middlebelt Road. Many service jobs are going begging.

For thousands of years, communities have been born, grown, waned and died. But the waning and dying phases can be delayed for many wish to thank you for Dec. 5 coverage of "Sponsor a Critter for Mott," one of our latest fund-raising drives for Mott Children's Hospital. This effort seeks to provide two more "collections" of huge puppets for two additional floors at Mott. One collection was provided to a third floor earlier this year and was a great hit. There are so many "secrets" a child will tell a puppet that he or she will not tell anyone else, especially when they are hurting and lonely.

The purpose of this letter is to clarify for your readers that the huge puppets being requested will be permanent gifts to be used over and over again by child life therapists and volunteers to touch the hearts of the thou sands of children admitted to Mott each year. Your readers may have gotten the impression that the puppets were to be given to individual children personally.

Legislators off-base in state support of stadium

D.C., have a "Contract With America" that is supposed to spell out their legislative agenda for the first 100 days of the 104th Congress when it convenes in January.

The agenda includes such conservative issues as shrinking the size of government, cutting welfare and social spending, crime prevention, tax credits

The Republicans in Lansing, who recently took control of both houses of the state Legislature (as well as the re-election of Gov. John Engler), have a similar legislative agenda. The agenda includes such conservative issues as shrinking the size of government, cutting welfare and social spending, crime prevention, tax credits and tax cuts and a new Tiger Stadium. Huh?

When did providing infrastructure for baseball stadiums become a part of the Republican agenda? I thought that the Republicans were the party that was supposed to put a stop to errant government spending on special interests; something they have been accusing the Democrats of for years.

I am a business owner in the Tiger Stadium area. Obviously my immediate concern with the state's intervention is that I will be put out of business if the stadium moves. My feeling is that if Mike Ilitch wants a new stadi um, then he, and only he, should pay for it. I feel that it is grossly inappropriate that my family and I be asked to pay a tax that will, in fact, be subsidizing our own demise. However, my concerns go even deeper than that. I am also a member of the Republican Party and consider myself to be a part of the rising tide of concerned voters who were responsible for the sweeping changes that occurred in the November election. I feel very strongly about free enterprise and competition in the marketplace. My opinion on stadium subsidies is based on my philosophical beliefs about the proper role of government, the best interest of consumers and the general public.

Here are the five most prevalent points concerning the issue: 1. Baseball is a moropoly. When have government subsidies for monop olies ever benefited consumers or the general public? They haven't. What will happen, however, is that the prices the monopoly charges will go up.

Does anyone honestly believe that if the Detroit Tigers get a new stadium, ticket prices (and other prices of products that the team sells) will go down? Why, then, should the general public be asked to pay a portion of the cost to build a new stadium? They shouldn't.

Subsidizing monopolies is clearly not the proper role of government. There are even government agencies (not to say that they work) that were GUEST COLUMN promote competition and protect the consumer. Antitrust legislation was passed to protect the consumer, not

2. The state and its taxpayers are not responsible for the internal problems of Major League Baseball. Although many of us have sentimental feelings about baseball and, in particular, about the Detroit Tigers, the taxpayers did not cause baseball to be in the mess that it is in. It is not the taxpayer's duty to provide owners and players with subsidies so that they can continue to reap unparalleled benefits. It is also not the responsibility of taxpayers to put a winning team on the field. 3. It is bad public policy to revitalize one section of a city at the expense of another part of the same city. What will the net gain be from a new stadium being built? What about the negative aspects of such a move? What happens to the area where the stadium is now? Is it the proper role of the state to pick and choose which businesses will prosper, and which businesses will fail? I feel that such decisions should be left to consumers.

4. Stadium subsidies are yet another example of the redistribution of wealth. How would economist Milton Friedman feel about government giving money to subsidize a private business? Do such actions promote individual freedoms? Hardly. It is simply a classic example of government taking from some and giving to others. This example being of the worst kind: the popula tion of an entire state being coerced into giving money to one private individual who has a net worth exceeding $900 million. 5. In a free society, the proper means of state action are free discussion and voluntary cooperation. Any form of coercion should be considered inap-

There is no voter mandate to subsidize a new baseball stadium. The issue was never really mentioned during the entire campaign. However, it is no secret that Mike Ilitch has had two of the state's most powerful and influential lobbying firms working in Lansing for over a year, trying to push through leg-islation that would include the state and its resources in a stadium project. Why all the secrecy?

If the taxpayers are being asked to put up any portion of the cost for a new stadium, there should be free and open debate on the subject. Any other method gives the appearance of impropriety on the part of our representatives. The issue should be put on a statewide balas the governorship. The Republicans are in a position similar to the one that the Democrats in Washington, D.C., found themselves in just two short years ago. The burden of governing now falls heavily on their shoulders. The people of the state of Michigan who voted them into power will be watching closely to see if the Republicans really represent change, or if "politics as usu al" will be the order of the day. Rejecting stadium subsidies would be a great way for the Republicans in Lansing to send a message back to the voters who elected them that real change is taking place in our state's government. By defining the proper role of state government, and denying a special interest a government subsidy, the Republicans would clearly illustrate to the voters that they are keeping their word. This opportunity should serve as a defining moment for the par-ty as a whole, and should act as a catalytic event that leads the national

There are better ways than the MEAP to test school quality

The Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test results have recently been released. That means that the debates about what the scores mean, how they are used, and whether they should be compared are about to begin - again.

For this year, I'd like to propose a cease-fire. Whether the students in your school scored well or poorly, whether the numbers are greater or smaller than last year - or greater or smaller than your neighbors' - I'd like to spend less energy this year on the rhetoric about what the scores really sults of one test is like basing the diagtemperature. Suffice it to say, low scores indicate that there are educational needs.

If that seems too obvious to be worthy of note, let me propose still another obvious fact: Before the advent of MEAP, it was possible to determine how well or poorly a school was serving Parents will tell you that they place more weight on the daily, weekly and monthly assessments of progress done in the classroom by the teacher than they do on any one standardized test. And any teacher will tell you that MEAP is only one of many standardized tests used regularly in classrooms to measure students' academic growth

MICHAEL P. FLANAGAN

Michael P. Flanagan is superintendent for the Wayne County Regional Ed-

If you really want to know what's going on in the schools in your commu nity, ask about those things that we know result in student growth.

For example, if you want a genuine indicator of student success, look for the amount of parent involvement. Find out if the principal and teachers in your school have high expectations of students. It's as true in the classroom as it is in the workplace:

people produce what we expect them If you need numbers to tell you about student progress, ask how many are taking the tough academic subjects, how many are in advanced placement classes and how many participate in

Do students in your school district gain practical work experience in cooperative education programs? Are there opportunities for job shadowing, mentoring and career exploration?

The MEAP test battery is an important assessment tool for parents. teachers and the general public; howev er, in 1994, it is essential that we all acknowledge that it is only one measure of progress. Those who are truly nterested in whether our schools are changing to meet the changing needs of our students will take the time to look at more than one indicator before making judgments about the value of what is happening in our classrooms.

Leaders of corporate America work toward employee uprising

I smell a revolt. It will be a revolt like the labor movement of the 1930s, though this revolt may not manifest itself in unionization. Nor am I sure exactly when it will come - maybe next year, maybe 2005.

Item: Many fellow members of professional groups agree that it's tougher and tougher to get volunteers. We can't even get people to meet-Their work hours seem longer. They go home more tired. In particular, their psychic energy seems used up. When I talk to those who are afflicted, they are still warmly interested in the ethics of the profession. They're just too pooped to participate. And the phenomenon seems to have spread to many groups.

Item: Ann Landers writes that "I don't know when I've read such depressing mail . . . the responses blew me out of the water." The topic was work in Corporate America. A Miami correspondent summed it up:

"You're out of the loop if you don't know it's a buyer's job market. Any employed person who is unwilling to do the work of two people and sacrifice all hope of a home life should be aware that there are five others who will jump at the chance. My husband and I . . . come home every night totally wiped out. There is no time or energy to work on our home. The place is falling spart. It's not just us. Everyone we know is overworked, overstressed, overextended and un-

Item: Doug Ross, the former state senator from Southfield and former state commerce director, is quoted: "As we're seeing, a growing economy doesn't automatically translate into a rising sense of individual security or a rising standard of living for a lot of Americans." He calls this group of Americans "the anxious class" because economic restructuring has made them feel perpetually vulnerable to economic trends. Item: In President Bush's last year, nearly all sconomic statistics were looking good: the stock market was confident, price levels were steady, interest rates were low, business investment was rising. The exception was consumer confidence, which plummeted. That is what sank Bush and elected Clinton.

Item: Kmart Corp. is downsizing. The gang on Big Beaver Road in Troy is trying to carve $500 million or so out of an $8.5 billion budget.

It's planning to close 110 stores (out of more than 2,000), eliminate at least 6,000 jobs (out of 250,000) and throw 1,650 store-level managers onto the scrap heap - this in a firm that is already infamous for a 20-40-60 policy: Any male with 20 years seniority, age 40 or older, making $60,000 or more is a target for demotion. The irony is that in a newspaper survey taken at about the time of its annual meeting, Kmart shoppers were saying 100 percent the opposite: There were too few workers to help them locate things, too few checkout lanes, too many delays at checkout because the too few employees hadn't price-stamped too many goods.

They were results absolutely in line with my friends' and my own experiences. If there is one executive in America who should be grabbed by the lapels and shaken until his teeth rattle in his obtuse head, it's Kmart's Joe Antonini. Item: A Louisville printer shoots a bunch of less. Compete, compete, compete. One of these days, American workers will use their fabled Yankee ingenuity to revolt.

Killing a supervisor is no answer, at least for 99 percent of the work force, although rage in the workplace clearly is a trend that must be reckoned with. But forcing workers to do 70 hours of work in a 55-hour week isn't the answer, either.

We asked readers to write and tell us about gifts that left them speechless to celebrate the opening of the movie "Speechless," which opens Friday at area theaters.

It's a romantic comedy starring Geena Davis and Michael Keaton as a pair of political speech writers who meet in a convenience store and begin a relationship of romance and Still half asleep, I opened my gift, a book entitled 'The Complete Book of Pregnancy and Childbirth.' My wife and I had been trying for three years to conceive. She said we were going to have a baby, but it didn't register. I said, Yes, we will someday.' Then my wife reached into her pocket and showed me the pregnancy test indicator with the positive sign. It finally sunk in, I was not dreaming. We really were going to have a baby. Needless to say, I was speechless.'

Festive events perfect way to wrap up holidays

Skater: Olympic champion Oksana Baiul performs in "Nutcracker on Ice."

Attending a holiday concert, dance performance or event is a wonderful family tradition, and a great way to introduce youngsters to classical music and ballet. Here are some holiday happenings your family is sure to enjoy.

"Nutcracker on Ice," — a holiday classic, adapted for ice features three gold-medal winning skaters. It's coming to Joe Louis Arena, Detroit, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 22.
"Nutcracker on Ice" features former Olympians Brian Boitano, Oksana Baiul and Viktor Petrenko. Also featured will be U.S. Open Pro

Champion Rory Flack Burghart.
The show is based on "Nutcracker Suite," by Russian composer Peter Tchaikovsky. It's about a young girl who receives a Nutcracker Doll for Christmas from her godfather. With a little mag-ic, the doll comes to life in Clara's dreams.

The show will feature elaborate sets and costumes and the Tchaikovsky score.

Ukraine natives Baiul and Petrenko won gold medals in 1994 and 1992, respectively; she will play Clars and he will play the Nutcracker.

Boitano is a 1988 Olympic gold medalist who will make a special appearance as the Sugar Plum Fairy.

The tour is playing major arenas in the United States and Canada during the month of December. It is scheduled to air on NBC television 4-6 p.m. Dec. 31.

Tickets are $25 and $40. For more information, call Ticket master, (810) 645-6666 or (313) 396-Cool Yule will be presented by Farmington

Karmic Debt Glazed Baby

Precise, blasting, ultra heavy, "Karmic Debt" (Red Decibel) is everything one would expect from a band called Glazed Baby. The Rhode Island trio pits squealing, Primus-like noise guitar vs. a bloated, you can actually hear the constipated bass that must be tuned so low you'll swear low E string flapping. But a goofy press photo and the right punk rock credentials (previously produced by Steve Albini belie the dread rock thud of Glazed Baby's first full-length album, "Anais Anais," which features the disturbingly distorted voice of singer/bassist Andy Newman shrieking ominous lyrics over a drunken Soundgarden magma flow. Newman's allencompassing bass also manages to turn a cover of John Lee Hooker's "Mad Man Blues" into a jerking, uncomfortable low-end blast. Interesting tape loops and weird instrumenta passages make it hard to tell where one song (for example, "That Much Closer to Hell") ends and another (oh, say, "Michael Meyers") begins. At its best, "Karmic Debt" resembles early, ear v Nirvana, like "Aero Zeppelin" played on a Walkman with nearly dead batteries: kind of cool if you're in the mood, grating otherwise. At worst, which is about two-thirds of the album, it lapses into stereotypical death rock, mostly a tortoise

It's notable for one of the more interesting bass sounds of the decade, but otherwise not recom

Back in the Day: The Best of Bootsy — Bootsy Collins

opes to change that with Back in the Day: The Best of Bootsy." It carries on the P-Funk tradition with the funky grooves and crazy lyrics that have influenced thousands of bands and albums the world over, and it shows why Bootsy is considered "the clown prince of funk." "Back in the Day" is an essential collection for someone fresh to the funk. It gives an overview of Bootsy's early solo material, containing some gems, such as "The Pinocchio Theory," "Bootzil-la," and a live version of the previously unreleased

The music is so much fun that you do not even realize how great the musicians are who are laving down the grooves, from the horns of Fred Wesley and Maceo Parker to the keyboards of Bernie Worrell, not to mention the amazing bass work by Bootsy himself. "Back in the Day" is also an incredible party soundtrack guaranteed to make booties of all ages shake vigorously. Put it on at Christmas time and watch Grandma get down like never before.

Gringo Honeymoon - Robert Earl Keen

Robert Earl Keen is a member of that rarified company of Texas singer/songwriters that in-cludes Jerry Jeff Walker, Townes Van Zandt, Guy Clark and Joe Ely. On most days, he stands at the head of the class.

The opening cut on "Gringo Honeymoon" (Sugar Hill), "Think It Over One More Time" became one of my favorite songs of the year the first time I heard it. "Dreadful Selfish Crime," the closer, is almost as stunning. The good news is that every-thing in the middle is of equal caliber.

Living life on life's terms is the constant theme at work throughout Keen's songbook. Life might be nuts at times, he tells us, but we're nuts not to enjoy it as often as possible. His insights into love sought, love gained and love lost are of the smiling variety more often than not. With a poet's soul and a grizzled seeker's running commentary, Keen gives the impression that he's been around the proverbial block more times than most, but has come to grips with the long road.

"It's a long stretch of highway at midnight in New Mexico/It's a small colored light that shines from your car radio/It's the old motel owner who sleeps on a cot/And gives you the very last cup from his pot/It's a lonely-feeling it's what you've got," he sings. It's an amazing album is what it is, I say.

teamed up to form their own music distribution business that is helping a Grammynominated musician from Rochester reissue his 1991 recording, "An Intimate Christmas."

The mailbox has become a vital vehicle for the retail industry over the last few years, counting for bil lions of dollars worth of sales. The simple housing object allows people to shop in the comfort of their own surroundings by a catalog and telephone, while postal employees do all the leg work.

With that thought, a brother/sister team hope to make the gift giving season more musically appealing, even if postal carriers have to work a ittle harder.

Derek and Debbie Hood, formerly Farmington Hills residents, are marketing a local jazz musician's noliday music release which the two hope will launch their independent ousiness, To Daze Music, into other nusical angles. Now two weeks before the gift giving day, the two have sold more than .500 cassettes and compact discs of "An Intimate Christmas" by Jim Bajor, a Rochester resident and a former Grammy Award nominee. The releases will appear in stockings in the Detroit area, throughout the state, across North America and even in independent music retail outlets in Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York City.

"We are coast-to-coast now. (Deb bie and I) are worried, to be honest, that we will run out of material, but we are not to that point vet," said Derek, a 1983 North Farmington High School graduate who started the distributing company from his Royal Oak apartment about six nonths ago.

The distribution radius is not a surprise to Derek, who used a 600name mailing list to issue order forms through the postal system for the release, originally issued in 1991 with solid music reviews and equally matching buyer appeal.

The release now sells for $7.99 for cassette and $11.99 for compact disc through a mail order. Shipping and handling costs are included and the release can be order gift wrapped at

"We are not a big corporation; we are local and we are reaching out to (Bajor's music) before," said Deb bie, a 1976 North Farmington High School graduate.

Wrapping away: Debbie Hood and her brother Derek, formerly of Farmington Hills, wrap tapes in his Royal Oak apartment for their company, To Daze Music, which sells Grammy nominee and Rochester resident Jim Bajor's jazz cassettes and CDs of Christmas music, entitled"An Intimate Christmas.'

which contains 12 holiday songs with Bajor playing solo piano as well as accompanied by a jazz ensemble, was originally issued under Bajor's own Rochester-based recording label, JBX Records. The company folded a few years ago, leaving Bajor at odds with his then two usiness partners.

In order to avoid a court-staged legal battle, the trio settled out of court, leaving him with a back log of releases, including the third pressing to the 1991 holiday music re-

Derek, an inspiring musician himself, recently joined forces with Bajor, who has received notoriety from being featured on local radio personality Alan Almond's "Pillow Talk" program and received a Grammy nomination for his 1986 re lease "Awakening." Derek decided the mailing list would provide the opportune avenue for reissuing the and addresses, drafting fliers and order forms and acquiring a post office box and voice mail space. Debbie, who confesses to having no marketing or selling experience, is finding the venture educational "I've learned a lot," Debbie said. "It is really interesting to see how much creativity can go into the project. I guess I have learned that dream begins with small thought. Before (Derek) wanted me to get out into he spotlight. He thinks I can sing and dance or act or manage . but I just haven't been trained for it and my heart skips when I think of

"So we are really doing some thing of a favor."

Bajor knows he is not taking a hand-out, instead he is just happy to be sharing more holiday cheer, a second time around.

"I have been collecting Christmas music for years now and everyone has an album out now . . . everyone except Madonna has one," said Baior, who also has his own Sugo holiday music release, "Christmas Memories," as well as appearing on other holiday music compilations. Youtheatre presents musical, 'Pinocchio'

His nose is as famous as Cyrano's and he lived in a whale's tummy like Jonah. He was born in the 1880's as a serial story character in an Italian periodical, published as a book in numerous languages and animated in a classic Disney film.

The latest incarnation: "Pinocchio" becomes a joyous Holiday musical live on the Youtheatre stage at Music Hall Center Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 17 and 18. Performances are 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18.

Tickets are $7 each (group rates on request) and available by mail or credit card phone order. Call the Music Hall Ticket Office at (313) 963-2366 or write to Youtheatre at Music Hall Center, 350 Madison at Brush, Detroit,

New York's Prince Street Players have taken Carlo Collodi's lit-tle wooden puppet, who desper-ately wishes to become "a real boy," and heightened his magical adventures with original music, lyrics, costumes and sets - including the interior of the whale. Despite the best efforts of Gepetto and the Blue Fairy, Pinocchio lurches from one piece of mischief to another but he learns from his mistakes and becomes 'real," by the final curtain.

"Pinocchio" is a Youtheatre "Wiggle Club" presentation, recommended for youngsters three years and older (no children under three are admitted).

There will be a "Toys-for-Tots" benefit 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 15. Admission is one new, unwrapped

"Inspecting Carol," created by Daniel Sullivan and the Seattle Repertory, Co., is a satire about a small Midwest theater company trying to get through its annual production of "A Christmas Carol."

Already struggling to make ends meat, they find out that their grant from the National Endowment for the Arts has been "tabled" until an inspector can determine the artistic integrity of the company.

Joe Bailey directs a talented cast in this holdisy comedy. Harry Wetzel plays Larry who plays Scrooge. Susan Arnold portrays MJ, the stage manager. Oakland University's Karen Sheridan plays the business manager and Sandra Birch, recently introduced to Attic audiences in "the Kathy and Mo Show" stars as Artistic Director, Zorah Block. Martin Buffalini plays Jacob Marley and the NEA inspector is portrayed by Cassandra McCarthy.

Pengelly soars

cott Pengelly, a junior at Plymouth Salem, turned in an outstanding performance Saturday at the U.S. Track and Field Association's Cross Country Championships, finishing 10th overall in the 17-18 year-old division to earn All-American status

Scott Pengelly

"He ran real tough," said Salem cross country coach Geoff Baker, who accompanied Pengelly to the race at Wild Creek Golf Course in Reno, Nev. "And he ran a smart race. The first mile was all uphill, so he didn't try to lead from the start, like he usually does.

"The course was a killer. You had to survive - that's what it's all about, survive and get what you can get.

Baker wanted Pengelly to stay with the front runners for the first mile, but have something left for the last half-mile, which was downhill. "You have to maintain control for that," said Baker.

Pengelly finished in 17:39 - not a particularly fast time for a 5-kilometer race, but good for this course. The top 25 in the 250-person race earned All-American status.

Baker was one of six others, including Scott's parents, to accompany him to Reno. Much of the trip was financed through donations, which both Baker and Pengelly were thankful for — particularly those who contributed depositable bottles and cans during early morning weekend sweeps.

lymouth Christian Agape's volleyball team bounced back from a season-opening defeat to post a pair of victories in the last week.

Agape topped Warren Zoe Christian 15-8, 15-11 Monday at Zoe, thanks to Gretchen Baisch's nine kills. The win allowed Agape to open its Michigan Christian Conference season with a victory.

Last Friday in Howell, Agape edged Livingston Christian 15-6, 12-15, 15-5. Caley Mullen had five kills for the winners, now 2-1 overall.

Braves' press isn't enough to stop Salem

■ Size versus speed. Pressure versus poise.
That's what Tuesday's game featuring Plymouth Salem against Ypsilanti shaped up as. But in the final analysis, makes versus misses — at the free throw line — proved pivotal, too.

By C.J. RISAK

What Ypsilanti threatened with was a pressure defense that would rattle any backcourt. It was just the kind of test Plymouth Salem basketball coach Bob Brodie figured his team would need to face if it were to succeed in the weeks shead.

Give the Rocks a passing grade on this exam.

Using its superior size to great advantage, Salem handled the Braves' pressure well enough to score more easy baskets against it than it gave up. The end result was a 65-48 triumph, raising the Rocks' record to 2-1. Ypsi is 0-3.

"We took advantage of finding the open player," said Brodie. "We knew Ypsi would come with a lot of pressure, but we did a nice job against it."

Salem took control from the start, thanks to its quick ball movement. The Rocks were 9-of-14 from the floor in the opening quarter (64 percent), with Dan McKian fin-ishing several quick strikes to the basket with a layup. McKian scored eight of his 17 points in the opening quarter, leading Salem to an 18-9 advantage.

The Braves, meanwhile, were getting very few easy shots. Salem baffled them with a variety of zone defenses aimed at keeping them outside. Which it did: Ypsi was just 3-of-12 from the field in the first quarter (25) percent) and 7-of-24 for the half (29 percent).

That wasn't the only area the Braves were lacking in.

"Our rebounding stats at halftime showed (Salem) up 19-7," said Ypsi coach Rex Stanczak. "I was really disappointed. I thought we took a step backwards both of-fensively and defensively."

See ROCKS, 2C

Denied: Salem's Jason Marcis takes a detour on this trip to the basket, thanks to a hard foul by Ypsilanti's Shawn Baylis.

The victory was also the first at Canton for new coach Dan Young after two disappointing setbacks.

"We limited our turnovers down the stretch, unlike our first two games where we led and didn't take care of the ball," said Young. "It feels good. The guys feel good about themselves. Now we're looking for our first win at

couple of swimmers capable of See SALEM SWIM, 2C ty of experience will help, too: competing in a variety of Chief coach sets goals

By C.J. RISAK

The task facing first-year Plymouth Canton boys swim ch Clint Smiley is imposing. and he is well-aware of it:

"I want to get Canton from underneath Salem's shadow," Smiley said, acknowledging that the Chiefs have besten the Rocks just once in a dual meet.

That alone is a difficult challengs, considering Salem has wen the last two Western Lakes Activities Association championships and will be considered one of the favorites again this Smiley, however, is hardly a stranger to the situation. He served as an assistant to Hooker Wellman a year ago. When Wellman resigned, however, Smiley wasn't sure he could move into the head spot.

His credentials were solid enough: A Dearborn Edsel Ford (1985) and University of Michigan-Dearborn ('89) graduate, the 27-year-old Smiley served as an assistant coach at Edsel

Ford for five years before joining the Chiefs. But he teaches the Close-Up government class at Canton, which requires him to take three spring trips with students to Washington, D.C.

When the job was first posted, I didn't even apply be I thought the class would interfere with the coaching," Smi-ley said. He's also working on his Master's Degree at Wayne

Smiley would have preferred to be an assistant coach again,

And it showed. The Braves trailed 31-18 at the break and never got closer than 10 in the second half.

Although winless in two games prior to Salem, Ypsi had played a pair of strong opponents very tough, losing by three to Westland John Glenn and by four to Redford Catholic Central.

But against Salem, the Braves never displayed any offensive rhythym, and their free throw shooting continued to haunt them. Ypsi was a meager 5-of-18 from the line (28.2 percent): Salem converted 18-of-24 (75 percent).

"We're a horrendous free throw shooting team," admitted Stanczak, noting his team's 42 percent average prior to the Salem game

Combined with its poor rebounding and ineffective trap defense. Ypsi was doomed to failure. "We were getting a good trap on the ball, but we weren't covering up on the backside (at the baseline). said Stanczak. "Our defense broke down when they passed the ball five-six-seven times and kept reversing it.

Joining McKian, who also had a team-high 13 rebounds, in double figures in scoring for Salem were David Bol with 12 and James McDonald with 10. Justin Marcis and Kirk Craggs added eight apiece.

Ypsi got 21 points from Eu-Brooks, including four three-pointers.

"We played real smart tonight, getting through that (pressure)," said Brodie. The Braves did force 23 turnovers. but that didn't bother Brodie too much: "Ypsi comes at you with that kind of pressure, you're going to have some turnvers," he said.

Besides, in just about every other aspect of the game - including floor shooting (23-of 50, 46 percent) - the Rocks were solid. And that's a step in the proper direction

CMU cuts soccer; players scramble

Crusaders seek a reversal of fortunes

Chips' decision could make Madonna a contender

Madonna University's men's hal basketball team showed up at just the right moment at last weekend's appropriately named Cougar Classic. At least as far as its opponents were concerned.

Feeding time. Certainly the Fighting Crusaders filled that role, getting torn apart first by St. Francis College 106-74 Friday and then by Bluffton College 97-78 Saturday. St. Francis hosted the tournament in Fort Wayne, Ind.

"We just played awful," coach Bill Sharpe said, obviously fed up after Friday's loss to the Cougars. "It's gotten to the point where I don't even know which team will show up. He was talking about his own ing 34 points and grabbing 17 re-

They trailed 50-29 at the shooting

Part of the problem is numbers. Madonna had just eight players available; top sub Mike Slone (from Plymouth Salem) is struggling academically and has been temporarily removed from the travel team.

Sharpe knows what to expect from opponents, once they see his depleted bench - a fast-paced game, aimed at wearing his team down. Which is what St. Francis did; 13 Cougars scored, nine getting seven points or more. They hit 43-of-84 floor shots (51.2 percent) to Madonna's 27-of-80 (33.8 percent) and outrebounded the Crusaders 58-46.

ketball season seemed anything but special in Observerland.

The exception was Redford Bishop Borgess, a powerhouse primed to defend its Class C title. The other teams that had been so outstanding the previous year notably Plymouth Canton and Livonia Ladywood - appeared to be in a rebuilding stage.

So much for first appearances. Canton quickly rebuilt, peaking in time to make a strong run in the state tournament, a run that wasn't derailed until the Chiefs reached the state semifinals against eventual Class A champ Flint Northern.

Farmington Harrison enjoyed its best season ever, going 17-5. Garden City made it to the state regional final before falling. Lutheran Westland won its conference championship with a dramatic road victory in its final game. Livonia Stevenson and Farmington Hills Mercy each won full academic credit for the successful completion of work overseas.

III MANSUETO S. BAUTISTA of Canton attended Minorities in Engingeering (MIE) at Michigan Technological University on a scholarship from Ford Motor Co. The scholarship included all expenses except transportation and registration. The MIE program is designed to remove barriers to female students entering careers in science, math and engineering by providing information, stimulating interest, encouraging positive attitudes toward these subjects, and exposing them to extra curricular activities in these areas. The program's intensive week-long residential workshops utilize activity-based instruction, learning by discovering, and cooperative learning through team approaches to problem-solving. The program also provides students with exposure to successful role models, corporate speakers, field trips, and personal success experiences with science, math, and engineering. Bautista is the son of Susan and Mansueto Bautista of Canton. He attends Plymouth Salem High School and is involved with bas-

It's time to put the CHRIST back in Christmas

during his years as a minister, has given many a sermon on Christ-Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia, he has a story to tell, a story he calls "A Birthday Surprise"

Johnny finally rolled off to sleep the night before his birthday with excited thoughts of anicipation. He could hardly wait o be greeted by his mother, father and sister as he hurriedly dressed the next morning. But to his great surprise there were no "happy pirthdays" floating around.

just keeping a surprise for later — He rushed off to school. He thought the morning would never go by. At long last noon came - and went - and still no word. 'Well," he thought, "they are planning a surprise for dinner. Maybe some of my friends will be invited in and we'll have a big Slipping home quickly after school, he found nobody there. His heart dropped, but then he thought, "I'll bet they are out planning something real exciting for" hour of dinner came. Still nothing out of the ordinary; everyone acted as normal as ever.

Then as a last resort, he thought, "They are really doing a good job of covering up and suspense. They must have planned an evening party with ome of my friends invited in."

The after-dinner hour was the most trying he had ever experienced. First, he curled up in a chair and tried to read. Not being able to concentrate at that, he crying his eyes out. Upon being questioned, Johnny sobbed, he went off and played with some to another, anxiously awaiting friends until the great "looked- that great surprise. But to his "Don't you know today's my dismay, no one showed the least birthday and you didn't celebrate interest in him. His father just sat one bit? there in his easy chair reading his Father replied, "Why, of course we celebrated your birthday; we couldn't forget that! This afterevening paper.

After about an hour, anxiety turned to despair. Johnny become so frantic he burst out in tears and stomped up the stairs to his room. Father dropped his paper the most beautiful necktie; and and started after him as he said to we both bought your sister some mother, "I wonder what's bothering Johnny?

Some lucky little girls out there will soon receive 75 dolls through the Canton Goodfellows' annual 'No Child Without a Christmas

Toys and food baskets will be delivered to 61 needy Canton families this weekend. Toys, including the dolls, are for the kids, while families will receive a complete Christmas dinner of turkey and all the trimmings, as well as canned and boxed foods. Families also will receive gift certificates to Kmart, Kroger and Meijer, said Nancy Spencer, Goodfellows pres-

Books worth remembering read just under 100 books in 1994. It makes me feel warm all over to realize that nearly every single one left a good impression. Lest this prompt you to conclude that I have lost all sense of discernment, let me hasten to add that (1) most of the books I read were books I chose to read, rather than books I had to read, which probably skewed the odds, (2) I liked some of the books much better than others, (3) one novel disappointed me so much that reading it felt like swallowing a year's supply of bitter medi-

I don't expect to see the likes of 1994 again soon, of course. And so, as it draws to a close, here's a hearty toast to it, along with some thoughts on what, in my opinion, emerged as the cream of a bountiful crop. (I'd be greatly interested in knowing what books most impressed you in 1994, by the way. Let me know and we'll include some recommended titles in future columns.)

'Last Train to Memphis," by Peter Guralnick. Though Guralnick's murky sentences sometimes mar this effort, Elvis lives and breathes (as does a motley supporting crew) in this comprehensive account of the pop star's

This book is more than a close look at Elvis, however. In a sense, it's a lusciously-detailed volume of a piece of American history - especially the musical streets of Memphis in the fifties, the segregated neighborhoods of the South, the mom-and-pop recording studios, ra dio stations, and other tiny milieus that provided some of the first outlets for this revolutionary performer and a new sound in

"The Shipping News" by E. Annie Proulx. Yes, I know this book was originally published last year, but it received the 1994 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction, debuted in paperback this year, and I didn't get around to reading it and falling in love with it until 1994. So on the list

Picture "The World According to Garp" meets "The Prince of Tides" and you'll have something of the flavor of this story about an American journalist (sort of) who moves to Newfoundland and finds not just himself, but love as well. You'll encounter practically a blizzard of something much like poetry on almost every page, at the same time that you're getting acquainted with Proulx's singular characters who, in turn, wrap you up in a touching story where tickled ribs and broken hearts often co-

ten by the brother of executed murderer, Gary Gilmore, this book is not so much a story about the killer as it is an up-close-and-personal look at the gritty background from which he Plymouth photographer Kristin Cooper aims to save deserted buildings through the lens of her allmanual, Pentax K1000 camera.

The delicate looking photos appear as if they were shot with black and white infrared film then hand colored by the 24 year old. They were not. They were shot with 200 speed color film. Instead, they use line, form, balance and contrasting light, shadow and geometric shape to draw an individual into the strik ing compositions.

Littered doorways and pane-less windows tell a story of structures long since abandoned. The peeling paint reveals layer after layer of colors counting the years of their existence. Stairways lead the eye upwards where shadows play upon shadows.

A Juror's Choice Award of $200 will be presented to the winner, as well as three $50 Merit Awards. Jurors will select finalists from a review of the 35mm slides. Finalists must then submit the original works for jury selection to New Morning School.

All entries must be available for sale. The winning artwork will be sold at the April 1, 1995 no recourse auction. A 4001/80 commission on the auction price will be charged.

"We are looking for original artwork by a local artist that exemplifies our school and our theme, Building Dreams Together. Subject matter is not restrictive with us," said Diane Harrison, who donated her painting, "A Fire Within,, to last year's auction.

New Morning School is a nonprofit preschool to eighth grade parent cooperative in Plymouth. Founded in 1973, the school is state certified and serves students of all abilities from he learning disabled to the gifted.

"I took a book on cows from the library to use as reference. We were supposed to do surrealism. That's what the hallways feel like," said Majtyka, a senior planning to attend the school of the Art Institute of Chicago after graduation.

Along the same lines of thinking as Majtyka's "Hall of Bulls" is Nic Wight's "Jungle Fever" in which he reveals his secret thoughts on the hallowed halls of Churchill. The color pencil work is inundated with what else, jungle animals

"School is really crowded. It's really a jungle. You have to know how to move in it. You have to know how to live in it," said Wight, a sophmore.

Wight and Majtyka are among a handful of students whose art interests were first sparked by taking classes at David Messing's Art Store and More in Livonia Both joined CAPA for the same reasons other students enrolled in the program did — to intensify studies in the visual arts.

'CAPA is more focused on your talent than in a regular art class. In CAPA, you get the projects that push us a little bit farther," said Majtyka Jessica Ristic agrees that CAPA keeps her on her toes. "CAPA is more challenging. You have all different skill levels," said Ristic, a junior who entered the program in her sophmore year

"It helps a lot if you know your work's going to be shown. We had to learn what colors go together, how to make the work flow together." To enter the CAPA program students must pass an audition which includes completing a self portrait, and still life featuring a pair of shoes. CAPA visual art teacher. Attention Getters!

Have you ever parked your car in a sea of other cars and found it easily because you'd tied an "attention getter" to the antenna?

That's the way our new Classified Ad Attention Getters work for you. Folks will notice your ad when you include one of these little faces or symbols. For only a one-time $5 add-on charge, your Attention Getter will appear as many times as your ad runs.

Ask for one the next time you're talking with one of our ad takers.

Good times

Builders bedeviled

Builders here generally have enjoyed good economic times the past couple of years. Good times, however, have contributed to a labor shortage with potentially bad consequences for some builders and their customers.

By Doug Funke

A sustained residential construction boom in southeastern Michigan has come around to bite some builders on the bottom in the form of labor shortages.

Roughing carpenters, who frame structural skeletons over foundations and basements, are especially in short supply, several builders report.

The consequences aren't pleas-ant for builders or their customers. "In terms of construction financing, if it takes longer to build, overhead and cost for supervision increases," said Gerry Brody, president of Brody & Halan, residential builders in Bloomfield Hills. "Very succinctly, (for consumers) it means higher prices to pay for a home, longer delivery time to get a home and being very selective in choosing a builder to get quality product and value for money, Brody added.

Fred I. Capaldi, a custom builder/remodeler in Rochester Hills, said he's turned down jobs rather than risk stringing prospective clients along with delays. "If you can find me carpenters, I have 20 basements sitting now, said Scott Jacobson, president of S.R. Jacobson Development in Bingham Farms. We use four or five crews at a time. We could use a couple more, said Mark Frick, vice president of operations for the Herman Frankel Organization in West Bloomfield.

The builders concede that they've been hurt to some degree by their own success.

"There's been a tremendous upsurge in residential construction," Brody said. "There's not enough manpower."

Housing starts increased by 31 ercent in Oakland County through October of this year -5,866 units compared to 4,473 during the first 10 months of 1993.

The Michigan Association of Home Builders also reports that some 2,460 housing units were started in Wayne County and 3,800 in Macomb through Sep-

"Everybody is in demand. It's not any one particular trade but all trades," said Deen Hyde, marketing director for Pulte Homes of Michigan.

"I wouldn't say we're experiencing shortages so much as keeping people all lined up to meet goals," she said. "We build throughout the year so we like to retain a lot of our subcontractors."

Pulte, the volume leader in Michigan, expects to erect some 400 houses this year, Hyde said.

Other builders have their eyes on Pulte's crews, she said. "They're getting more offers, but we're retaining them because we offer 12 months of employment."

Jacobson and Frick offered another reason for the labor shortage from the supply side of the equation.

With the strength of the auto business, a lot of trades are going back and working in the shop. It's probably a more secure situation," Jacobson said.

"With every downturn, I think people get out of the business, said Frick. "People leave the state or get out of the trade.

"I don't think people are picking up the trades for a career," he added. "Why? I don't know. It's something we as an industry need to take a look at."

"I think what has to be done is more promotion through unions or trade associations to try to sell professional carpentry," Jacobson said. "It is a good business, it is en-

By the year 2000, as many as 80 percent of school-aged children and 70 percent preschoolers will have mothers in the work force, according to one study

At Plante & Moran, the Southfield-based public accounting and management consulting firm, commitment to family issues is a long standing tradition. Four of five accountants recently elevated to the level of partner there are women, including Linda Hubbard and Susan Perlin, both mothers of young children. Hubbard, mother of Matthew, 21/2, specializes in construction and real estate management and has been with the firm 12 years. She lives and works in Bloomfield Hills and was one of the founding members of Plante & Moran's parenting tightrope action (PTA) committee, founded in 1986.

Perlin, whose Southfield office practice includes school districts, manufacturing and not-for-profit clients, has two daughters, Lauren, 61/2 and Allison, 31/2. She lives in Novi and has worked for Plante & Moran 13 years. Currently she is co-chair of the PTA

Both women are graduates of Michigan State University. Recently the two talked of how their firm - which has 650 employees in 12 offices - has maintained its commitment to family issues.

What does your PTA committee mean to working parents?

"Over the past four or five years, we've been successful overall in retaining a higher percentage of staff," Hubbard said. "Our family leave act preceded the leave act in Congress by two years. We survey our staff to see what issues are important to them. We thought (the PTA) would be an ad hoc committee disbanded in a year or two but it's still going strong. There are always lots of topics to discuss."

"It's not a women-only group," Perlin added. "We're made up of men and women, married and single, parents and non parents. Elder care for sick parents is becoming a big issue. The family leave act applies to a child or a parent How big an issue is this in the workplace?

"It's a huge issue," Perlin said. "Accounting and business in general have been addressing it the last six or seven years. Half or more of the accounting graduates are women. To grow as a firm and retain the best

"It's not just a women's issue," Perlin said. " Many

THERE'S NO BETTER TIME TO BUY

If you've been thinking about moving from your current residence to the house of your dreams or from an apartment to a starter home, this is the time to do it.

· The selection is excellent. · Low interest rates are available. · There are many financing options

Go ahead, make the move. Now is the right time to buy

NOW is the right time to Buy a Home!

Purchasing a home has always been a wise decision, but current market conditions are making it even more attractive to buy now.

EXCELLENT FINANCING IS AVAILABLE NOW

Interest rates are lower, and mortgage lenders are offering a wide variety of financing options. Low interest rates mean you can get more for your money.

· 30-year fixed mortgages are still available as well as many other financing alternatives.

First time buyers are encouraged to purchase now through financing packages offering small down payments.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

Purchasing a home is the best way to build a solid financial foundation. A home not only provides you with warmth and comfort, it also serves as a secure investment.
