Airport expansion fight takes off

Some Canton residents want to spread the word that 350-ton cargo planes will be flying over the township. They contend property values could be at stake.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton residents hoping to stop the proposed expansion of Willow Run and potential international cargo business involving 350-ton airplanes want all township residents to realize it's everyone's problem.

"We need to make our homeowners associations aware of what is going on," said Bill Mosher of Canton Citizens Concerned about the Willow Run Airport Expansion Project. "All of these associations need to get involved. We need to show it's Canton-wide."

Interested citizens met Thursday night to develop strategies to inform residents, business owners and builders-developers about the proposed expansion of the vintage airport and international "tradeport", southwest of Canton Township.

"Developers may soon become aware when housing purchases dry up. They won't be happy," said Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson. He suggests developers be informed of the proposed expansion and its possible effect on Canton, particularly because many of these developers contribute to political campaigns on the county level.

"We're here to get more people to know about this," said Gordon Libby, of the concerned citizens organization.

The issue will be discussed further at the Canton Homeowners Advisory Council meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, April 10, in Canton Township Hall. The meeting is open to the public.

Mosher and others said the advisory council should address the proposed airport expansion. But at a previous meeting, council president Barbara Bergenty said the issue affects only southwest Canton, not all of the township, and consequently is not an

Canton man fights battle of a lifetime

Giving up is not in Erich and Kathy Meixner's vocabulary.

"Even knowing what they told us, we didn't buy it," said Kathy Meixner, 34.

On June 4, 1994, Erich was diagnosed with CML leukemia. The Canton couple was told Erich had six months to live without a bone marrow transplant.

"I didn't understand what I had right away," said Erich, 35, recalling that he assumed he had kidney stones. "The way I felt at that time was that I just couldn't believe the pain I was going through."

Experimental chemotherapy and a bone marrow transplant followed. Today, Erich is without leukemia though he has what is called acute graft versus host disease, which is a rejection of the marrow he received from his sister. He is taking steroids to fight the rejection.

"It will go away in time," Kathy said. "They like people to get the disease to fight off the bad cells."

The experience has been difficult for Erich and Kathy and their three children — Jennifer, 16, Erich, 15, and Rosie, 12. But there was never a time without hope.

"I had so much moral support at the hospital," Erich said. The chemotherapy and transplant were done at Harper Hospital. "I knew there were miracles out there and they happen all the time."

Having leukemia was something that Erich never considered. "You know, this was a guy who never had anything minor, let alone major. It makes you look at life differently," Kathy said.

Before his diagnosis, Erich hadn't been feeling well. He suffered from terrific back pain — was being treated for it by a doctor — and was incredibly tired to the point that he had to quit work because he didn't have the strength.

Resident makes plea for transit system

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Jackie Clerc of Canton needs Nankin Transit.

"Without it I am house-bound. This is really a big effect on me," said Clerc, who has multiple-sclerosis.

Clerc was among a group of senior citizens and handicapped residents who spoke to the Canton Township Board of Trustees April 4 just before trustees voted to withdraw from the Wayne Transportation Authority. A dedicated .33-mill tax hike to finance the regional SMART transportation system would have been on the May 23 ballot.

The local Nankin system, which includes Canton, Westland, Wayne, Inkster and Garden City, is financed in part by SMART. Nankin receives subsidies from the participating communities and municipal credits from the state, distributed through SMART.

It is uncertain whether Nankin will lose those municipal credits with Canton's recent vote. But Dick Fernandez, Nankin director, said Canton isn't out of the Nankin picture until they formally withdraw from the inter-governmental agreement that binds them together.

"They would have to inform us that they don't want to be a part of it," Fernandez said. Nankin's financial year ends June 31. "I have no direction from any kind from SMART or my commission to change anything."

He said Nankin isn't likely to be

Garry Faja, CEO of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, will speak about "Health Care Reform — What Happens Now?" at the Rudolph-Libbe Canton Economic Club at noon Wednesday, April 19, at St. John Neumann Church, 44800 Warren.

Faja has been with the hospital since 1982. He is also a member of a number of local and national hospital organizations.

For reservations for the $12 luncheon, call Joan Noricks, Canton Community Foundation executive director, at 981-3002.

file, which is mailed to all residents and businesses by the end of June. The directory offers information about the community, education, recreation, special events, services, and demographics, plus telephone numbers.

Advertising is available for chamber members only by calling Specialty Communications, (810) 478-5160. Deadline for ad placement is May 10.

Absentee ballots

Applications to vote absentee in the April 18 election are still available, either by calling the Canton clerk's office, 397-5367, or sending a letter to the clerk's office, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The letter must include your signature and reason why you want an absentee ballot.

The clerk's office will mail absentee ballots until 2 p.m. Saturday, April 15. The clerk's office will be open that day from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to allow residents to apply for ballots. You may take them home or vote at the clerk's office.

While you may obtain an absentee ballot the day before the election, April 17, if you do so you must vote the ballot at the clerk's office.

Canton Township Hall and the clerk's office will close in observance of Good Friday, April 14. Voters may use a drop box on the northwest side of the township building to drop off their voted absentee ballots.

Voters will choose a new clerk April 18. They will also consider a $12 million road improvement bond proposal as well as a $8.8 million library improvement and expansion bond proposal.

Deadline today for board posts

Nine people have expressed interest in running for Plymouth-Canton school board in the June 12 election.

Voters will fill two four-year terms and decide two tax issues, an 18 mill renewal and a 2.3 mill, two-year enhancement increase.

Candidates have until 4 p.m. today, Monday, April 10, to return signed petitions.

Candidates who've already done so, and who've been certified, include Michael Maloney, Gerald Trumpka and David McCarthy, all of Plymouth Township.

Also certified are Sheryl Khoury and Jeffery Phillips of Plymouth.

Individuals who've taken out petitions but aren't yet certified include former state representative Jerry Vorva of Plymouth, former board candidate Stephen Kiljanczyk of Canton, Paul Thomas Schrauber of Canton, Brenda Anderson Plecha of Canton, and Carrie Blamer of Plymouth Township.

Residents of the district who are 18 or older have until May 15 to register to vote.

Absentee ballots will be available after May 24. Voters may apply to vote absentee at any time, said Plymouth-Canton elections clerk Ellen Schroeder. For more information, call Schroeder at 416-3095.

Erich later took a new job in installing floor coverings. On his first day, he collapsed, was rushed to the Canton Oakwood Health Center and was later transferred to Oakwood Hospital, Dearborn. That's where he was diagnosed.

His two brothers and one sister were tested for a bone marrow match. His sister, Ann Bauer of Pinckney, was the one. Chemotherapy was started. "They have to clean out your system," Kathy said, adding that Erich was taking 35 pills at one time each day.

After the 5 days of chemotherapy and a day of rest, the transplant was performed Aug. 26. The doctors explained the procedure with the help of a steak. "That's what we are going to do to you," Erich said, remembering the bone in the steak.

His sister's marrow was removed from her hips. "They brought it right down the hall just like you see in the movies," Kathy said. The marrow was put into Erich's chest like an intravenous drip.

After the transplant, Erich was in isolation to prevent infection. He was released from the hospital Sept. 18. "We got the good news on Wednesday (March 29)," Kathy said, referring to the day the family was told the leukemia was gone.

Erich can't return to work until March 1996. And he will have to get his baby shots all over again. But there's no doubt things are looking good for the Meixners.

Tears come to Kathy's eyes when she recalls having to tell her children and family members of Erich's illness. "The hardest thing I ever had to do was to tell his parents and our kids. With our kids I didn't let them get it into their heads that something bad would happen."

Kathy credits Erich's brother, Ed, and her sister, Kelly Somerville, with helping out the family, taking care of the kids and getting to the hospital when necessary. "They were my biggest help."

Even though Erich was in the hospital for quite awhile, the family unit stayed together. Dad was still dad. "We weren't going in and seeing a frail man in that bed. He dealt with the kids when he had to," Kathy said.

Erich said he wasn't about to let leukemia get the best of him. "Everytime we heard of someone dying, Erich would be down for a good week," Kathy said. "But he was the perfect patient. He never had to be told to take his pills or do whatever they asked."

hurt tremendously if Canton bows out because another unnamed community is interested in participating.

But Canton Nankin riders might be at a loss if the township officially pulls out of the local transit system.

"I think they (Nankin) do a great job," Clerk said. "We were going to leave Canton then decided to stay because of this service."

In a press release, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said the township administrators will consider various options, including talking with Nankin officials. "We may want to consider talking with the Plymouths, for example, and look at a western Wayne County transportation network using a local property tax revenue."

Canton contributes $44,500 from its general fund to Nankin, as well as $43,700 in municipal credits. It also contracts with Washtenaw Family and Child Services for a limited transportation system. If Canton remained in the Wayne Transportation Authority and the dedicated tax was approved, Canton would have doubled its municipal credits for Nankin.

"I was deeply, deeply disappointed that they would not allow the citizens of the community to vote on such a vital issue," said Ralph Shufeldt, Nankin chairman.

issue for the advisory council.

"I've got a real problem with that," Mosher said. "I think the homeowners council is where this issue belongs."

Plans are to expand the airport and turn it into an international cargo facility, boosted by the automakers. To accomplish that, one of five Willow Run runways is targeted for extension from about 7,000 to 10,300 feet to allow fully loaded and fueled 747 cargo jets to take off from and land at the airport.

Citizens organizing this effort said landings and takeoffs of the cargo planes are expected to be directed on routes right over Canton. Reportedly most crashes occur during landings and takeoffs. Cargo planes are also generally older passenger jets that do not have advanced noise control equipment.

The runway cannot be extended until Ecorse Road, south of Canton's southern boundary, is moved closer to Canton. The project also cannot move forward until the nearby Willow Creek toxic sludge pond is cleaned up and moved, involving a consent judgment and a side agreement that calls for a trust fund with GM and Ford to pay for the cleanup.

The cleanup is expected to be completed by Dec. 31, 1997. "The extension of the runway may be done before the tradeport is up and running," Patterson said. "I don't think we've got a lot of time."

The concerned citizens group is focusing on safety issues that may accompany the airport expansion, including flight paths over Canton, the absence of an abort area for distressed aircraft, increased noise and pollutants.

Mosher and other residents have contacted individuals in-involved in the proposed expansion. "The information we have gotten from Willow Run so far is propaganda," Mosher said.

Canton Township officials recently hired attorney and former Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, known as the "Noise Czar" for his past work with noise abatement at Metro Airport, to represent the township's interests as plans for the airport unfold.

Patterson discussed the political realities involving Willow Run, particularly Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara's interest in the project. Proponents of the expansion say it will provide jobs and economic growth for the area left depressed in the wake of the GM Willow Run Plant's closing.

"The county executive, in my mind, wants the tradeport, wants the airport expanded and intends to get it," Patterson said. "When he wants something he will trade off one part of the county for the other."

"You need to start identifying groups who will have an interest in this," Patterson said. "You are going to have to get people energized."

New judge startled by abuse cases

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Now in his fourth month on the 36th District Court bench in Plymouth, Judge Ron Lowe said he's learning the job.

When he fails to check the right box or initial the right space on paperwork, court staff "are so considerate when they're showing me what I did wrong. I tell them this is not offending me at all," Lowe said. "The paperwork is one of the hardest things to get used to."

Lowe, former Plymouth city attorney and now a Canton resident, was elected judge in November. He said generally the job is what he expected, with some exceptions.

"Sometimes people admit to things and it's pretty appalling what they do," he said.

"I was very, very surprised at the number of cases of domestic violence. It's growing very, very quickly; everybody's trying to get a handle on it. It's becoming more frequent than drunk driving," Lowe said.

'I was very, very surprised at the number of cases of domestic violence. It's growing very, very quickly; everybody's trying to get a handle on it. It's becoming more frequent than drunk driving.'

The increasing number of domestic violence cases sparked an interest in the subject, and the new judge has been reading extensively on the issue. Lowe is working with the court administration on a new policy for dealing with couples in court over domestic violence.

He recalled the woman in his court who didn't want to press charges against her husband. Her face was cut when he struck her with a beer bottle.

"I said this kind of behavior may be acceptable to you, but it's not acceptable to society," Lowe said.

Some parts of a new court policy related to domestic violence could include required counseling for both the abuser and the victim. "My reading tells me this is a learned behavior that can be unlearned," Lowe said. "You educate the victim on what their rights are."

Jail, he said, isn't the best solution for some abusers. "If he sits in there steaming for 90 days, he may decide he will teach the victim a lesson for him being incarcerated," Lowe said. A more effective alternative could involve a 12-week weekend counseling program with follow-up sessions afterward.

Lowe said the greatest satisfaction in the job "is dealing with people in the courtroom, making sure they get their day in court."

After passing sentence in one case, Lowe said that on reflection, he realized he'd made a mistake. "I had the defendant and his attorney brought back in the courtroom. I just didn't feel comfortable, there was something I failed to factor in," Lowe said.

While bringing the defendant back in court involved admitting a mistake, Lowe said it felt better to do the right thing, rather than stand behind the earlier ruling and thereby avoid some embarrassment.

Lowe said he enjoys speaking to students about the court, and he's taken the opportunity to do so several times. "I'm very pleased how many doors it does open, being a district court judge," he said.

New judge: District Judge Ron Lowe is concerned about the considerable number of domestic violence cases before him and is working on a new court policy to deal with them.

Canton Township clerk candidates debate issues

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Terry Bennett and Kathleen Raven squared off in a debate Thursday as the two candidates for Canton Township clerk prepared for election day, April 18.

Bennett, 43, a Republican, is seeking election to the clerk's job, formerly occupied by her husband, Loren Bennett. He was elected to the state Senate in November.

Bennett survived a two-candidate primary, while Raven, 21, a Democrat, was unopposed. The winner will fill two years of a five-year term.

In her opening statement, Bennett said she is a longtime volunteer in Canton working for the Historical Commission, and has been involved in trying to get a post office for Canton. She stressed working as a team as a strength.

Raven said "the most important task of government is to listen to people and as clerk, I'll be there."

She said the clerk's office should "offer quick, efficient service."

As a newcomer to politics, Bennett said she could "add a fresh perspective."

On her qualifications, Raven cited computer experience, work with Greenpeace and experience in an office setting.

Bennett cited teaching experience and volunteer work in Canton with the Goodfellows, helping with senior citizen issues and work with the Canton Historic District Commission.

Raven said her vision of Canton is that of a small town, a community that has a rural flavor.

"Working on the board I'd voice people's concerns about not wanting malls and more apartments," she said.

Bennett said her vision is for Canton houses to retain their value after the community is built up.

"If we don't it will be easy to move west," she said.

On dealing with future growth and retaining the rural character, Bennett stressed the use of the township's master plan. She also said developers should be made to pay for roads and sewers. On slowing growth, she said building codes could be stiffened, the cost of permits increased and approval processes for building slowed.

Raven said when development takes place, the township should make sure there are still places where children can play. She also cited growth in the Cherry Hill corridor as a problem.

On cityhood for Canton, Bennett said the right time to look at it would be when the township is built up. She predicted that if Canton were to become a city, the property tax rate would increase.

Raven said it's important to take a look at cityhood, but noted that a lot of people reject it.

Both candidates said they support two Canton Township property tax increases on the April 18 ballot. They are a $12 million bond issue to raise money for township road improvements and an $8.8 million bond issue to expand the Canton Library. The road tax would cost .666 mills, while the library would hike taxes by .8 mills.

Morton Taylor plans unveiled

Wayne County officials will unveil the design for the extension of Morton Taylor Road, Warren to Ford, at a meeting at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, in Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

"We told folks that when the design was done we would have a meeting," said Tom Casari, Canton engineer. "The design isn't a boulevard. There isn't money to do a boulevard."

Following the presentation, residents will be able to ask questions about the proposed design that features a lane in each direction with widening at the Ford, Hanford and Warren intersections, Casari said.

After the Morton Taylor meeting, residents are invited to a 7:30 p.m. meeting to hear a presentation on the township's proposed $12 million road improvement bond proposal that will be on the ballot April 18.

The meeting will be the last in a series of road information meetings.

Visitor is attacked and robbed

A New York man was treated for a slashed forehead and released from Ann Arbor Hospital Wednesday, April 5, after he was robbed earlier that morning by three unidentified men in the parking lot of Club Canton on Michigan Avenue.

The 29-year-old man, a truck driver who was to make a delivery at the Ford Wayne Plant, was asleep in his rig in the parking lot, 39651 Michigan Avenue, Wednesday morning.

"He was awakened by noises outside the truck," said Lew Stevens, Canton police community relations officer.

One of three men in the parking lot punched the window of the truck door and got inside the truck. He demanded money from the truck driver and pulled a knife on him, Stevens said.

The man continued to demand money, which the truck driver said he didn't have. He slashed the truck driver's forehead and threatened to cut his throat when he said he had no more money to give. In all, the truck driver was robbed of about $200 and $20 in Canadian money, Stevens said.

The robber, who was described as 6 feet tall, 170 pounds, blond and wearing a baseball hat, was bleeding profusely from breaking the window of the truck, Stevens said.

The three men, all 25-30 years in age, fled the parking lot on foot.

Murder hearing rescheduled

A preliminary hearing was delayed Thursday for a 27-year-old man charged with killing a Canton Township woman, who was strangled and beaten on the head while working at a Westland high-rise apartment building.

The hearing for Keith Lamont Burns, 27, was delayed after his attorney asked 18th District Judge Gail McKnight more time to review the case. The hearing was rescheduled for this Thursday.

Meanwhile, police are continuing to investigate the March 29 death of Boonahoun Andrews, a 50-year-old maintenance worker who was strangled with a bandanna she often wore to work at the Hunters West apartment complex.

Police suspect that Burns didn't follow Westland police Sgt. Tom Kubitsky has said.

A second suspect was questioned but later released.

The investigation has indicated that Andrews was in the wrong place at the wrong time. Police believe she walked into a situation where some type of illegal activity, possibly a gun sale, was in progress.

The killing occurred near a first-floor swimming pool at Hunters West, a high-rise complex at Yale and Hunter, a half-mile south of Westland Center. Andrews was found about 9:15 a.m. March 29 by a co-worker.

Services for Doris A. Thompson, 69, of Plymouth were held Monday, April 3, at the Schrader-Howell Funeral Home with the Rev. Roy G. Forsyth officiating. She was born May 31, 1925, in Deckerville, Mich., and died Wednesday, March 29, in Chandler, Ariz. She was a bank teller at American Bank for about 10 years. She came to the Plymouth community in 1989 from Redford. She was a member of the Eastern Star.

She is survived by her husband, Alvin H. of Plymouth; children, Shirley Schaden of California, Alan of Commerce Township, Brian of Commerce, Mark of Westland, eight grandchildren; one great-grandchild; sisters, Jean Tanton, Ruth Tanton, and Elaine Poole; brother, Gordon Cleland of Mich.; brother, Gordon Cleland of Michigan.

Memorials may be made to the American Heart Association.

CAROLYN LEE HINES

Private family services for Carolyn Lee Hines, 68, of Whidbey Island, formerly of Plymouth, were held Monday, March 27, at Sunnyside Cemetery, in Coupeville, Wash. Memorial services were held Wednesday, March 29, at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, in Oak Harbor, Wash. Arrangements were under the direction of the Burley Funeral Chapel, in Oak Harbor.

She was born Oct. 10, 1926 in Dugger, Ind., and died Saturday, March 25, at Whidbey General Hospital, in Coupeville. At the age of 10, she moved to Michigan, living in the Detroit and Highland Park areas. On Oct. 19, 1947, she was married to Hilton H. Hines in Plymouth. They remained in Plymouth for 30 years. In 1977, they moved to Whidbey Island. Mrs. Hines was a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses of Oak Harbor.

Local officials win control of transit authority

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Control of the newly created Wayne County Transit Authority has been taken out of the hands of county Executive Edward McNamara and passed on to suburban Wayne County mayors and supervisors. The Wayne County Commission voted unanimously Thursday to make the change.

The original "articles of incorporation" of the authority established a three-member board with two of the members being McNamara and someone McNamara appoints. The new articles grant control to a nine-member board of which five members are from suburban communities.

The authority was formed by the commission March 10 so a 0.33-mill property tax proposal could be placed on the May 23 ballot to pay for the SMART bus system.

However, a provision in Public Act 196, under which the authority was formed, says cities and townships may "opt out" of the authority.

Communities that opt out will not be part of the May 23 tax vote. By pre-arranged agreement, Detroit opted out because it has its own bus system and hopes eventually to merge with SMART.

SMART interim general manager Michael Duggan had hoped that the remaining cities and townships would stay involved.

He even promised transit subsidies for each city and township would be doubled if they remained. Conversely, he said communities opting out would lose their subsidies and bus service.

The authority was formed by the commission March 10 so a 0.33-mill property tax proposal could be placed on the May 23 ballot to pay for the SMART bus system.

Still, township boards and city councils left the authority.

The list includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville, Northville Township, Van Buren Township, Huron Township, Woodhaven, Belleville, Sumpter Township and four of the five Grosse Pointes.

Livonia, Redford Township, Garden City and Westland are still in.

Mayors and supervisors were concerned about McNamara having control of the authority, in part because it would eventually be impossible for a city or township to leave the authority without a majority vote of the board, i.e. without McNamara's permission.

Other worries were: ■ SMART might have transferred its debt of more than $16 million to the authority.

■ The authority would continue to exist even if the May 23 property tax ballot proposal fails.

Mayors and supervisors convinced Duggan to rewrite the articles of incorporation. The commission approved amendments Thursday that establish the nine-member board, protect authority members from SMART's debt, dissolve the authority if the tax proposal fails, and prohibit SMART from cutting transit subsidies to communities that opt out.

Duggan said, "Any community that opts out won't get any service after April 19."

State Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton Township, has introduced legislation that would prohibit SMART from cutting transit subsidies to communities that opt out.

Ex Westland man says drug store aided drug habit

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A former Westland man and his Southfield attorney could collect $1.9 million if the Michigan Supreme Court rules a drugstore contributed to the man's drug addiction.

John J. Orzel, 37, now living in Garden City, is "psychotic and permanently schizophrenic," attorney Larry A. Smith told the high court last week. Orzel, a former General Motors factory worker who taught karate to Detroit police, will require lifelong care and intermittent hospitalization, Smith said.

They want Scott Drug Store, once located on Grand River in northwest Detroit, to pay a Wayne Circuit Court jury award. The jury put the figure at $3.8 million, but a judge cut it in half, reasoning that Orzel's own "criminal activity" in taking illegal drugs contributed to his mental destruction. Orzel himself said during his trial: "I sort of became a product of society. My environment was drug, you know, infested, so I became like the rest."

He has been in Northville State Hospital, Providence, Oakwood and other hospitals 12 to 14 times from 1982 to 1986.

"There is absolutely no evidence that Orzel ever obtained Desoxyn from the appellant (Scott) without a prescription," replied John Highland, a Southfield attorney representing the store's insurer.

"As a matter of public policy, this court cannot turn our civil and criminal docket into a chaotic, overloaded circus of litigation where drug addicts are no longer criminally responsible for their conduct," Highland said.

Supreme court hears tax fight case

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

TACT, a Wayne County homeowners group, asked the Michigan Supreme Court to throw out a 1981 real estate transfer tax because voters never had a chance to decide it.

County attorneys asked the high court to uphold the tax because "we'd have to refund the tax for 14 years. The consequences to the state would be fiscal disaster," said Kevin Moody, attorney from the firm of Miller Canfield, representing Wayne County.

The seven justices have up to a year from Thursday's oral arguments to decide the question.

The case presents several thorny questions:

- Is it a local or state tax?
- In 1980 Michigan had a 55-cent-per-$500 real estate transfer tax. The Legislature passed a law allowing counties of more than two million population to raise it to 75 cents. At the time, Chief Justice James Brickley presided over the state Senate as lieutenant governor.
- Only one county, Wayne, fit the definition. The county Board of Commissioners raised the rate on Feb. 19, 1981.

Peter Macuga II, Detroit lawyer representing the homeowners group, Taxpayers Allied for Constitutional Taxation, pointed to the 1978 Headline Amendment to the state constitution which says, "Units of local government are hereby prohibited from levying any tax . . . or from increasing the rate of an existing tax . . . without the approval of a majority of the qualified electors."

He said a vote is mandatory.

Moody said the question of state versus local tax hadn't been raised before Judge John R. Kirwan in Wayne Circuit Court and shouldn't be raised on appeal. But he contended it's a state tax.

■ Does the statute of limitations bar taxpayers from seeking relief in the 1990s?

Yes, said the county. Under the statute of limitations, taxpayers had a year from the effective date of the tax to challenge it and didn't until 1990.

If taxpayers were allowed to bring claims years after a tax has been enacted by a local unit and it was ultimately found by the court that such a tax was a state tax, the consequences upon the state could be fiscal disaster,"

Moody said. The state would have exceeded its constitutional revenue cap. A court-ordered repayment "could severely damage the credit of the state and bar it from the nation's financial credit markets."

"There's no statute of limitations," replied Macuga. "If the drafters (of the Headline Amendment) were that concise in including a statute of limitations, isn't it possible they didn't want one included?"

Harper Woods homeowner David Pochmara didn't discover the tax hike until he sold in June of 1990. Macuga said the statute of limitations didn't begin running until after the tax actually was imposed on Pochmara, who filed suit in February of 1991.

Moody said many laws put time limits on constitutional rights. He cited the 180-day rule for petition signatures to be collected to seek a referendum and the time limit for a defendant to ask a jury trial.

"You are presumed to have knowledge of and notice of the laws," Moody added. Suppose a person living in Ohio in 1980 moved to Michigan and discovered the real estate transfer tax in the year 2000. It would be ridiculous to throw out the tax at that point, he argued.

Justice Conrad Mallett found "a profound problem" in the case. "What if we found this was an unconstitutional tax by a local unit of government? Could we order an election, separate and apart from the question of repayment?"

Justice Michael Cavanagh asked: "Is there any rein (county) government if it's not challenged within one year?"

"Vote 'em out," replied Moody.

Attorney General Frank Kelley backed the county in an original circuit brief. "Claims for the refund of taxes often are subject to short statutes of limitations, even requirements that the tax be paid under protest," his brief said.

In an interview in the Supreme Court lobby, Macuga said he had no idea how much revenue was at stake. Moody's 45-page brief didn't mention a figure, nor did the judges ask.

The county tax of 20 cents per $500 of value, on a house selling for $150,000, would be $60.

Barbara's from Previous Page

Another sought-after, sophisticated birth announcements to tell of twins.

Others stop by in search of unique wedding invitations, personalized stationery, custom party announcements — and Susan Sivak of Barbara's Paper Bag makes sure they find just what they need.

This month she's celebrating her 10th anniversary as owner of the stationery store at 147 Pierce Street in downtown Birmingham, and the 20th anniversary of the business founded in 1975 by Barbara Travis and her sister Sherry Buhai. Susan, originally a court reporter, worked part time at the shop to hook up with people who might need her calligraphy talents. When she heard the owners wanted to retire, she bought the business.

"I've always loved cards, stationery and paper goods," she said. "And now after 10 years in this business, I've gotten to know a great many customers who do."

Her goal is to stay in town another 20 years, serving the people of this area by offering personalized service for all the important occasions of their life.

Three years ago, Sivak, 39, of Huntingdon Woods, enlisted the help of her architect brother Steven, to remodel the store. She moved into the building next door and immediately doubled her floor space. The new building was gutted inside to make room for custom storage cubes, cabinets and work tables.

"We attempted to create a cozy, comfortable place to think, shop, and plan special events," she said. "There's no fluorescent lighting. We used much of the brick and wood from the original building to add character. Customers can stay as long as they like and there's plenty of room to sit down and spread out idea books and catalogs on tables large enough to accommodate them."

Sivak recently added gift items to her inventory offering shoppers wooden animal puzzles and ceramic banks for children, and Annieglass sculpture pieces for collectors.

MALLS & MAINSTREETS

A new look

Merri-5 Plaza: One of Livonia's oldest shopping centers got a face-lift recently, reopening at Merriman and Five Mile under a new awning and facade. Sallie Hargreaves, manager of Heslop's, poses out front. Other major tenants at the center include LaRose Market, Radio Shack, The Aquarium, Miami Bake Shoppe, Play It Again Sports, Merriman Drugs, and Joe's Italian Bakery & Deli.

Retail Details features the latest news briefs from mall and Main Street shopping centers. Mail submissions to: Retail Details, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, 48009. Or fax them to: (810) 644-1314.

WINCHESTER UPDATE
Rumors are flying again over what's going on at the former Winchester Mall, Rochester Road and Avon in Rochester Hills. Will a Mervyns open? Is Builders Square moving in? According to Andy Shaw of Sherr Development in Farmington Hills, which owns the property, the answer is "No!"

"We've locked in with a few tenants but until the entire center is leased we can't announce anything which might jeopardize negotiations," he said. "We're still in the developmental stage, but we're on due course."

Shaw said the former mall will not reopen as a mall, and he doubts the name will stay "Winchester."

"Please let your readers know that the shopping center will reopen as a first class retail renovation project. The scope of the work will be thorough — from the structure to the facade to the parking lot to the lighting poles," Shaw said he did not have a target date for a grand opening.

SALVATION ARMY BENEFIT
The Somerset Collection in Troy hosts a New York-style runway show to benefit the Salvation Army with media models presenting the latest fashions from the mall's boutiques. The show will take place in a heated tent in the mall parking lot. The afternoon includes valet parking, a box lunch of three varieties of gourmet sandwiches by Sebastian's Grill, a concert in the mall by the Salvation Army band and coffee and dessert following the fashion show in the mall near Saks Fifth Avenue.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this event/fund-raiser. Tickets are $30 per person available through the time of the show 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 12. Or order by phone and pay by credit card or a check at the door, (810) 443-5500. Donations of $50 or more entitle guests to a seat in the reserved section near the front.

STORE IS CLEARING CENTER
The American Eagle Outlet at the Wonderland Mall in Livonia becomes the national clearing house for the company's 206 stores. Local customers can expect savings of up to 75-percent on first quality merchandise marked down because it's off-season or over-run.

SAKS DEBUTS FRAGRANCES
Eau de Murano premieres this week at Saks Fifth Avenue and next week Dolce & Gabbana fragrances will be introduced at the Somerset Collection store in Troy.

MADÉLAINE CLOSING
Madeline and Cy Seltzer, owners of the Madeline Boutique in the Bloomfield Plaza, Maple and Telegraph, are retiring. The store is holding a Going Out of Business Sale through April. Shoppers can select beautiful clothing at excellent prices while the company liquidates.

NEW JEWELRY LINE
New from Belgium's Gem Kingdom, the Tender Boutique, 271 W. Maple in Birmingham has sterling silver and enamel jewelry that "predicts the future." Sign of Good Luck features charms with ancient symbols of fortune telling and superstition.

'Comfort dressing' rules the workplace

Whether you call it business casual, work day casual, dressing down or relaxing the fit, the revolution has begun to less traditional, formal outfits in the work place. Confused? You're not alone.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

It really bothers businessman Bruce McAvoy of East Lansing that Bill Gates, president of Microsoft holds press conferences to announce multi-million dollar deals on international television wearing a golf shirt.

But like it or not, Gates' fashion statement sends a message that echoes through the halls of corporate America giving new meaning to phrase "dress for success."

The Wall Street Journal recently reported that employees who don't go along with casual dress codes are often teased by co-workers who do.

"The change has definitely triggered its own brand of stress, leaving people somewhat confused about the best way to dress down and still look like they mean business," said Ava Demonia marketing director for the Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn. The mall sits in the heart of Ford Motor Country which recently converted to full-time business casual for all of its executives and office workers.

"People know they can't go from suits to slovenly, but they're not exactly sure what to wear."

To help, Demonia interviewed fashion retailers at the center for tips on casual dressing.

"Their biggest guideline was to remember that 'home casual' and 'work casual' are two different styles," she reported. "The sweatshirts and jeans that feel so good on a Saturday afternoon do not work in the office."

She advised workers to "start at the dressier end of casual and work down if you feel you're over-dressed."

"The trick is to choose versatile clothing that is a little softer, and a little more relaxed — in styling and fabric — while maintaining an overall coordinated image."

Arlene Goldstein, director of fashion for Parisian stores, said that "casual" does not mean "sloppy."

"Casual business attire is clothing that allows you to feel comfortable at work yet always looks neat and professional," she said adding that two-thirds of American employers now allow casual clothing in the work place.

"However if your job requires you to meet with clients, be prepared for unscheduled client visits. Men, keep a dress shirt, tie and sportcoat in the office and women, store a simple coat dress and pumps."

Marcus said business casual is no longer a "fashion trend," but rather an international change in lifestyle that has been coming over the last two decades.

"The work world has changed," he pointed out. "Most people don't sit in meetings, they work through their

Ready for anything: This relaxed linen suit features a three-button jacket and double-pleated trousers. The vest adds pizzazz. From Tommy Hilfiger at Parisian.

Simply super: Casual Corner has the long, loose tunic over draughting pants for comfort and ease of movement. Accessories like the simple necklace keep the look polished.

How to look 'casual'

Still confused about putting together a less-formal work wardrobe? Take these tips from the experts:

Women: Get a basic wardrobe of separates. Include white poplin or chambray shirts, knit or woven vests, casual trousers, relaxed blazers, classic sweaters, jumpers, casual dresses, scarves and slip-on flats, patent leather loafers, or low-heeled sling-backs.

Men: Learn to mix and match casual separates. Relaxed sportcoats, casual pants, vests, sweaters, braided or stitched belts, shirts with banded collars, leather suspenders, whimsical ties, leather deck shoes, saddle shoes.

Casual suits have the soul of sportswear, dressy enough to wear with a tie, relaxed enough to wear with a sportshirt. The three-button sportcoats are long and lean, just button the top button for emphasis.

Consider vests. Hot items for both men and women. Vests polish off a look worn with pants or skirts. Consider cardigans. New sweaters are looked upon as knitted sportcoats.

If in doubt over the appropriateness of an item, take cues from your supervisor.

LINDA BACHRACK

She travels best with just one bag

Thirty years of international travel has made Lynn Portnoy a seasoned expert. Add to this her keen sense of style and fashion, and the boutique owner is eminently qualified to conduct a seminar on "Traveling in One Bag."

On March 30, the Village Woman's Club of Beverly Hills was treated to Portnoy's packing do's and don'ts at a presentation held in the courtyard behind her shop at 306 W. Fourth St. in Royal Oak.

Three club members were chosen to model clothing that would easily take them on a 10-day vacation anywhere in the world. "Just remember to dress for your locale," advises Portnoy. "Dress up in Paris and down in L.A. With a few additions to your basic wardrobe pieces, you can travel for days."

Here's a brief recap of her presentation:

Start with a versatile piece of luggage. One large and one small carry-on are all Portnoy recommends. Savvy travelers have waiting around the carousel at the airport. "If the plane arrives at noon, I'm hailing the taxi at 12:02," says Portnoy. Travel writers swear by TravelSmith's "Solution" Bag ($119). The heavy-duty cordura bag is both a suitcase and a backpack. It has a hidden compartment that allows 1,000 extra cubic inches and a front pouch that becomes a daypack. Call (800) 950-1600 for a free catalog.

Plan your wardrobe in three coordinating colors — two neutrals and one accent color. That way everything will mix and match.

Nix the robe

For a 10-day trip, Portnoy suggests taking five bottoms, two jackets, eight tops and a raincoat. "A trench coat pulls together an ensemble," she says. And there's no need to pack a robe. Just throw on your trench if the hotel room is chilly. She also recommends three pairs of shoes and socks in lieu of slippers. When packing, "put the socks over your shoes and tuck your hosiery inside the toe of the shoe."

Sneakers are a no-no, according to Portnoy. They target you as a tourist, especially in Europe. Wear cute and comfortable rubber-soled suede sandals instead.

Plan your wardrobe in three coordinating colors — two neutrals and one accent color. That way everything will mix and match.

No wrinkle woes

Packable fabrics are key. "Silk or cotton knits work best," says Portnoy. "Never pack an iron. Lightly steam your clothes in the shower or have the hotel press for you."

To eliminate wrinkles, Portnoy has a tried-and-true packing tip: Layer folded clothes on men's suit hangers from the cleaners. Cover the hanger with a plastic bag, making sure to squeeze all the air out of the bag. Then put in your suitcase.

Irene Dervis moved the audience in rust, taupe and beige coordinates. A Japanese-style long tunic by Moschino over cotton pants was interchangeable with a taupe silk cardigan, beige pants and silk walking shorts.

Suzzy Osmar's ivory cotton coat covered ivory, brown and blue travel-friendly pieces. She built on a base of brown cotton pants, an ivory tunic and a sky blue shirt jacket.

Liz Hurst's wardrobe flattered in peach, bone and black. Her bone wool cape suit was accented with a taupe cotton sweater and peach chiffon scarf. Scarves are perfect accessories to the outfits together and give them a dressed-up look, as are simple silk ties and vests. A straw hat is a must.

Patricia Underwood's delicate horsehair straw brims with rayon knit crowns are chic and easy to pack, $375-$450 at Neiman Marcus in the Somerset Collection, Troy.

Finally, take small, soft-cover travel guides and sample-size cosmetics. Travel light and travel smart. Bon Voyage!

computer terminals and through faxes and conference calls. You work better and longer when you take off your tie and unbutton your shirt."

Marshall Bell manager of the Smith Barney brokerage house in Birmingham said Fridays have been casual dress days since the office opened in 1983.

"We don't wear jeans, but the ties are gone and it's slacks and sports shirts. Most of the men get their clothes at the Claymore Shop in town which has a whole department for business casual and conducts seminars on the subject for clients."

Recognizing the need to assist their customers with selecting new work wardrobes, Levi Strauss and Co. has published a pamphlet on dressing casually at work. Eddie Bauer has a new tailored line featuring twill chino pants and casual shirts, shoes and accessories suitable for the workplace. Hudson's hosts Workday Casual Seminars for groups of 75 or more tailored to the individual working atmosphere.

"Business clothes today must be comfortable, casual and thoroughly professional," Demonia concluded. "That's what the new look is all about."

Where can I find?

We haven't found it, so here's another shot at locating an electrical timing device for Jim Willoby of Birmingham.

Constantine Kallas, a Bloomfield Hills attorney representing the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies, added in an amicus brief, that Orzel "cannot maintain a cause of action for damages arising out of plaintiff's own illegal, intention and wrongful conduct."

"Insanity is not exception to the rule that a plaintiff may not bring an action to recover damages for injuries that result from plaintiff's own intentional wrongdoings," Kallas said.

A state Court of Appeals panel last year ruled for Orzel, saying his criminal activity should not bar his suit.

Smith admitted Orzel was "no angel" but contended the drugstore was part of a system that fed his client's habits.

As an eighth-grader at Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic school, Orzel drank alcohol and used marijuana, LSD and mescaline, among other substances. By ninth grade he was on PCP and "angel dust." Orzel had a brief marriage during which he lived in Westland and consumed hashish and cocaine, according to Highland's brief.

Orzel got off drugs, earned a 2.7 grade point average by the time he graduated from Cody High in 1976, and earned a black belt in karate in less than two years, Smith's brief said.

When Orzel worked for GM Hydramatic in Ypsilanti, co-workers introduced him to Desoxyn. Orzel in August of 1981 began going to Figure 8 Weight Loss Clinic, where doctors gave him prescriptions. A co-worker's family owned the clinic.

Orzel had the prescriptions filled at pharmacies in Redford, Inkster and Detroit. Attorney Smith said Scott personnel knew the drug was for weight loss and could see that Orzel, at five-feet-10 and 160 pounds, needed no such drug.

Highland said Desoxyn's side effects were hallucinations, especially when Orzel popped 10 to 15 pills a day instead of the prescribed one — more evidence his problems were self-caused.

Smith said Figure 8 personnel wrote out blank prescriptions for Desoxyn, leaving the name and address blank. "Figure 8 was really in the prescription business," he said.

Smith said federal Drug Enforcement

Administration officials investigated Scott Drug "due to its status as the number one purchaser of Desoxyn in the nation" and made seizures there. The store was closed down.

Orzel's original suit also named Abbott Laboratories, Figure 8, two of its doctors and another drugstore. Figure 8 went out of business about the time Orzel's suit was started. Court records indicated those defendants settled their cases for undisclosed amounts. Only the Scott Drug case is before the Supreme Court.

Auction brings in $96,000 for school

An April 1 auction to benefit Plymouth Township's New Morning School raised more than $96,000, up from $81,000 raised in last year's auction.

Staged at Laurel Manor in Livonia, the auction attracted 498 customers.

Among the amounts paid were:

■ $8,100 for $8,000 in credit at selected area car dealers.

■ $2,300 for a recast Frederick Remington sculpture donated anonymously.

■ $2,250 for an aluminum boat, motor and trailer donated by Sixty Lakes Marine of Mt. Clemens.

■ $2,100 for a Bechler console piano donated by Evola Music of Plymouth.

■ $2,000 for a trip to Colorado donated by the Odom family of Plymouth.

■ $1,700 for a grandfather clock.

■ $1,700 for a Sergei Fedorov autographed jersey, puck and picture donated by Fedorov.

■ $1,300 for a cruise to the Bahamas donated by Elliot Travel of Bloomfield Hills.

■ $1,000 for a quilt made by New Morning students and parent Leslie Stolaruk.

■ $750 for a 14-karat bracelet donated by Plymouth Jewelry & Gifts.

■ $600 for a paddle boat donated by Sixty Lakes Marine of Mt. Clemens.

New Morning School is a private school which attracts students from throughout the metro area.

Winning ticket to expire

An unclaimed Michigan Lotto ticket worth $2.3 million, sold in Grand Ledge for the April 13, 1994, drawing, will expire if not claimed before Thursday.

The winning numbers are 15, 21, 25, 26, 30 and 48.

"The ticket is probably stuck away in someone's drawer, or gym bag, or an old pair of pants," said lottery commissioner Bill Martin. "I hope our lottery players do some spring cleaning this week and search for that ticket."

Also unclaimed so far are two $100,000 Cash 5 tickets: A ticket expiring May 30 was purchased in Hale. The numbers are 1, 3, 5, 19 and 31.

A ticket expiring Sept. 19 was purchased in Detroit. The numbers are 12, 17, 18, 30 and 33.

Marshmallows to fall on Hines Park

The Wayne County Park System's 10th annual "Great Marshmallow Drop" is set for 11 a.m. Friday, April 14, at Nankin Mills in Hines Park.

Children are invited to come see 20,000 marshmallows released from a helicopter.

The youngsters can scramble to collect marshmallows, which may be exchanged for prize-filled eggs.

A second drop is scheduled to occur at 9 a.m. the same day at Elizabeth Park in Trenton.

In case of rain, the marshmallow drops will take place on Saturday, April 15.

For more information, call Sam Mims at (313) 261-1990.

Introducing

MISSION+HEALTHSM

ONE GIANT LEAP FOR HEALTH CARE

As the adage goes, if you shoot for the moon and miss you'll still end up among the stars.

Introducing the launch of Mission Health. The ambitious partnership of four outstanding area hospitals, their medical staffs and affiliated outpatient care facilities committed to a single mission. The health of you, your family and the community.

Four highly respected hospitals. Each impressive in its own right but even more remarkable when partnered together.

Four health care organizations that together encompass more than 1,800 doctors.

Four organizations that span a wide geographic range - covering five counties with care at hospitals and more than 30 outpatient medical centers throughout Southeast Michigan.

Four organizations that will combine staffs, resources and specialties to form a health care team capable of treating virtually any condition.

Four organizations with a commitment to health that starts before birth and continues on through the years.

Four hospitals expert in diverse specialties including obstetrics, cardiology, oncology, otology/neurotology and craniofacial reconstructive surgery.

Four hospitals that together will contain administrative costs and cut down on paperwork. Policies that mean cost efficiency and top-quality care.

Introducing a new health care organization committed to the tradition of the Daughters of Charity and the Sisters of Mercy. The tradition of compassionate care and dignity for all individuals.

Introducing Mission Health. Four Hospitals. One giant leap for health care.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Enjoy a night out for worthwhile causes

Get out your wallets and checkbooks! There are some stellar happenings in metro Detroit that involve food, drink, and fun to benefit some of the most worthwhile charities around town.

For the past eight years, the happening place to party has been the SOS (Share Our Strength) Taste of the Nation.

Sponsored nationwide by American Express, this year's party is Thursday, April 27 at the Rattlesnake Club and Stroh River Place in Detroit. One hundred percent of all funds raised are donated to hunger relief agencies. The 1995 recipients are Gleaners Community Food Bank, Forgotten Harvest, Hunger Action Coalition, the Detroit Self-Employment Project and the Food Gatherers.

This year, more than 50 of metro Detroit's best chefs have registered to showcase their culinary talents throughout the Stroh River Place. Locally, Jimmy Schmidt, Gerardo Minin and Barry Donakowski from Chianti in Southfield and Stellini in Somerset head the list. Chef Peter Goatley from Peter's Palate Pleaser in Bloomfield Hills along with Chef Ed Janos of the City Grill in Birmingham will be interspersed with the tastes of Matt Prentice from Morels. Personal favorites include Chef Mary Brady of Diamond Jim Brady's in Novi, Marshall Chin of Mon Jin Lau in Troy and Lorraine Platman of Sweet Lorraine's in Southfield.

If that's not enough to woo you, Bill and Judy Roberts from the Beverly Hills Grill along with Greg Upshur from Too Chez will join more than 40 other chefs who will be offering their house specialties. In addition, more than 100 wineries have donated their vino and there will be countless numbers of dedicated wine wholesalers offering the chance to taste everything from a '92 Chateau Val Joanis Cotes Du Luberon to Martell Cognac, and just about everything in between.

Since its birth in 1988, SOS has raised nearly $14 million to help relieve hunger. A patron ticket is $250, which allows early access, a special wine tasting and food preview. A measly $50 (a drop in price from last year's $75) will get you through the doors at 7 p.m. to eat and drink to your heart's content.

Mark your calendars for Thursday, April 27 and follow me to the SOS/Taste of the Nation benefit. To reserve your tickets, call Gleaners Food Bank (313) 923-7855 or The Rattlesnake at (313) 567-4843.

Fishing tournament

The last weekend in April is a busy one because after leaving the SOS benefit, I'll be getting in my boat and heading out to the Chuck Muer Annual "Salmon Stakes Fishing Tournament" on Saturday, April 29.

Since its inception in 1978, the tournament has evolved into one of Michigan's longest running fishing tournaments. The original goal of the founders was to bring attention to the excellent salmon and trout fishing in the Blue Water Area — St. Clair River and lower Lake Huron. What started out as a casual, friendly contest among local fishermen in the Blue Water Sport Fishing Association has turned into an annual party with the gate receipts going to the Blue Water Mental Health Clinic to aid troubled Michigan adults, children and their families.

Even if you don't have a boat and would prefer to enjoy your salmon or trout from a restaurant window seat, a $10 entry/raffle ticket can offer you a chance to win a family trip to Walt Disney World, a weekend for two in Toronto, $750 in gift certificates from any Chuck Muer Restaurant and charter fishing trips. Tickets are available at all the Chuck Muer restaurants and can be charged by phone by calling 1-800-468-3727.

Tickets will also allow fishermen to register for the tournament itself which runs 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 29. Some 250 boats and over a thousand fishermen are expected, all vying for trophies, prizes and over $5,500 in cash rewards. The competition will be fierce. Last year's winner was a salmon that tipped the scales at 25.5 pounds.

HoneyBaked Ham Company

Family tradition: Spiral sliced and glazed HoneyBaked Ham is an Easter tradition in many families.

Company makes honey of a HAM

HoneyBaked Ham Co. is big on family traditions. Each of the company's 250 stores is family operated. "We want it to be that way," said Mary Lou Anderson.

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY

For some families, HoneyBaked hams are an Easter tradition as strong as dyeing eggs and searching for candy.

Family-owned and operated, the Troy-based HoneyBaked Ham Co. takes pride in traditions.

Mary Lou Anderson, granddaughter of HoneyBaked founder Harry Hoenselaar, started in the family business at the age of 9. Today, the 38-year-old Troy resident is sharing the same experiences with her 10-year-old daughter, Kelly.

"It wasn't like working," said Anderson, who started out filing things and cleaning up. "It was like being part of the family. It was like spending time with grandpa, my parents . . . the whole family was there."

SUPER SUPPERS

Home at the ranch, he's a dude in the kitchen

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
SPECIAL WRITER

Bob Ray wasn't around to hear the plea "Go west, young man!" when it was first issued in 1851, but he did adhere to it about 10 years ago.

That's when the Birmingham resident turned to just about everything "western," including the furnishings in his home and his cuisine. That's also when he began his transformation from an aircraft salesman to "Cowboy Trader."

Ray and his wife, Suzanne, a teacher in the Livonia Public Schools, acquired a taste for western artifacts and antiques in the mid-1980s after vacationing at a dude ranch in Arizona.

"We had such a wonderful experience at the ranch that we decided to start collecting such truly 'Americana' items as chaps and spurs. We wanted to capture some of the exhilaration we experienced by meeting, conversing and riding with the wranglers and cowboys during this trip," Ray said.

That vacation to the western United States was the first of many for the Rays. They have returned to Arizona and the west often, adding trips to Wyoming, New Mexico, Colorado and Montana.

In addition, Bob, who is also a history buff, began some serious research into his new passion.

"The more I learned about western culture, the more I became interested in all aspects of the west. And as my interest grew, so did our collection of artifacts and antiques," he said.

It didn't take long for the Rays' ranch-style home to become overtaken by their western acquisitions. That's when Ray became a dealer and started his business, the "Cowboy Trader."

At first he ran his art and antique business from various shows throughout the United States. However, with the growing popularity of all things western, Ray opened his first gallery in Birmingham three years ago. A month ago, he relocated to 251 Merrill Street in the city's downtown business district.

"While I have a busy schedule, and have had since I became a dealer, I enjoy cooking," Ray said. "This is why I make dinner almost every night. Also, my wife never cooks."

According to Ray, he acquired his interest in cooking from his mother, Frances Ray of Canton, "who has always been a fantastic cook."

"I used to cook more traditional fare, following my mother's recipes. However, I now cook many 'western' dishes, because, with all our trips out west, we have acquired a taste for foods from this region of the country."

Ray said that one of his favorite meals is "Texas Red Chili" (he claims this chili "will make your spurs jingle") accompanied by chunks of bread dipped into his "The Best All Around Salsa."

Anderson was brought into the business by her parents Lou, president of the company, and Mary Jane Schmidt, Lou's secretary, who represent one-fourth of the corporation. They live in West Bloomfield. Anderson's three sons and their husbands operate other stores outside of Michigan.

"We are a very traditional family," she said, explaining that each of the 250 stores in 35 states are family operated. "And before we advanced to a corporate level we had to work the stores. We did everything everyone else did."

The fact that the business, which employs more than 40 family members nationwide, is not available to franchisees also supports the family only argument. In fact, the company is full of cousins, aunts and uncles working in marketing to support systems (computers) to public relations in the individual stores.

"We want it to be family. We don't want to lose sight of the product," she said.

That idea is unlikely however, because the HoneyBaked meats, ham and turkey, breads and spreads have been prepared the same way for years. The meat, after it is smoked and glazed, can be purchased as a meal or on party trays.

In addition, Lou and Mary Jane Schmidt continue to guide the company in the same fashion as the founder. "He (Lou) wants to make sure the tradition is carried through," said Anderson. HoneyBaked Ham Co. started, almost by accident, in 1955 when Hoenselaar went to a meat convention in hopes of selling his invention — a spiral slicing machine. When he was laughed out of the convention, he felt the only thing to do with this machine was use it in his own business. He opened his own store in Detroit. The company's first sales receipt, dated 1957, is framed in the corporate conference room. "It's a very prideful feeling (looking at all we've accomplished)," said Anderson. "I'm just sorry Grandpa never saw it."

Hoenselaar died from ALS Lou Gehrig's disease when there were less than 100 stores. However, his 85-year-old wife, Josephine, is able to rejoice in her family's success from Florida.

She is also invited to enjoy a HoneyBaked ham every Easter, since that is the only ham served at family get-togethers. "My daughter, she knows no other (ham)," said Anderson, who indicated Kelly even had the baby-sitter eating HoneyBaked Ham. "We always have some of it around."

Because every HoneyBaked employee is family, through blood and friendships, loyalty to the company and its customers is a top priority.

"Everyone is so dedicated and loyal to the company... we are a leader in customer service," said Anderson, who recited a motto held by the company. "Treat people how you want to be treated."

According to customers in and around the Troy store, at 1081 East Long Lake Road, they do feel catered to. "They're very nice, and they make a good ham sandwich," said Arlene Martone of Troy, who indicated that she has served HoneyBaked Ham for Easter.

Tom Anderson, a Troy business owner not related to the HoneyBaked family, said he "loves their ham and always buys it for Christmas."

"And the people are friendly and quick. They make sure you get what you want," he added.

Julie Mayo of Westland said the best thing about the HoneyBaked Ham Co. is the glazing on their ham and turkey. The good taste brings her to the stores for Easter, Christmas and all the months in between.

Anderson indicated most of their customers hit the store at least one or two times a year, Christmas and Easter, but there is a strong effort enticing people to one of the 13 Michigan locations on a regular basis.

The company communicates with their customers through newsletters, mailings, calendars with coupons in them and monthly raffles. Years ago, they even held a contest asking people from all over the country to mail in their best HoneyBaked recipes.

Seven hundred entries and a kitchen full of dirty kitchenware later (since they made the food themselves at corporate headquarters), they narrowed the field down to a dozen favorites.

In oven-proof casserole, layer first the ham slices, then the asparagus and top with cheese sauce. Bake 30 minutes until heated. Serves 6-8. (Fresh broccoli may be substituted for asparagus).

POTATOES DONNA
8 peeled and thinly sliced potatoes
1 sliced onion
2-3 cups bite-size pieces HoneyBaked brand ham

Place each fish fillet or steak separately on a piece of parchment paper. Set aside. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a small bowl, combine non-fat mayonnaise with citrus rind and juice and mix well.

Spread 1 heaping tablespoon of flavored mayonnaise over the fish fillet or steak. Wrap parchment tightly around the fish and place it on a baking sheet. Bake in preheated oven for 30 minutes.

Check fish for doneness. If it does not flake easily when pierced in the center with a fork, re-wrap and continue baking for 15 more minutes. Serves 3-4.

Place ham bone, onion and stewed tomatoes in a large pot. Add enough water to barely cover the bone. Bring to a boil and simmer 2-3 hours. Discard the ham bone. Measure 4 cups stock (freeze remainder). Add all other ingredients to stock. Bring to a boil and simmer for 1 hour. Make a roux with 3 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter. Add to soup and cook for 3 minutes. Season to taste. For a heartier soup, add 1 or more cups ham bits.

HAM AND ASPARAGUS CASSEROLE
1 pound HoneyBaked brand ham slices
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed, rinsed and steamed until tender
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups whole milk
6-8 ounces sharp Cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
Salt and white pepper to taste
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Melt butter in skillet; add flour, stirring to blend. Add milk and cook until thickened. Remove from heat; add cheese, horseradish, salt and pepper, stirring until cheese is melted.

Layer in casserole. Blend together: 2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper to taste. Pour over potatoes, onion and ham. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter and bake for 2 hours at 350 degrees F.

Dish created by Donna J. Maki, Bloomfield Hills.

CABBAGE SOUP
1 HoneyBaked brand ham bone
1 onion, chopped
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 can chick peas with liquid
1 potato, diced
1 carrot, diced
1 stalk celery, diced
1/2 teaspoon Accent
Salt and pepper to taste
3 cups (1/2 head) cabbage, chopped
Place ham bone, onion and stewed tomatoes in a large pot. Add enough water to barely cover the bone. Bring to a boil and simmer 2-3 hours. Discard the ham bone. Measure 4 cups stock (freeze remainder). Add all other ingredients to stock. Bring to a boil and simmer for 1 hour. Make a roux with 3 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter. Add to soup and cook for 3 minutes. Season to taste. For a heartier soup, add 1 or more cups ham bits.

C.J. RISAK

Her obsession with perfection was near-fatal

She's thin still. But she's no longer frail. That was the immediate impression in speaking with her last week, and when talking about anorexia nervosa, the difference is essential.

Her thinness is a physical trait; her past frailty made it a dangerous, potentially fatal one. When emotional frailty focuses on weight control, the results can be devastating.

The young woman in question — she requested anonymity — is a rather recent Plymouth Canton graduate. She ran cross country and track, and was extremely good at both.

Until the disease overwhelmed her.

She had a good year athletically as a sophomore at Canton. But as she slipped further and further into anorexia, her progress stopped. She began the cross country season her junior year as one of the top runners on the team.

By the time the season ended, she was barely in the top seven.

She managed to regain enough form — and weight — to compete in track that spring, but when her junior year came to a close so did her athletic career. She had slipped too far.

She was admitted into a hospital for treatment of her anorexia that summer. She stayed there for a month.

"It was an ongoing thing I was battling throughout high school," she said.

Hers was a classic case of anorexia: The emotional strain of adolescence combining with a lack of self-esteem; it creates a strong need to be successful and perfect at everything, to be accepted by all and to be all things to all people. But most important, you must be in control.

"The summer before ninth grade," she recalled. "That was the beginning of it."

She weighed nearly 105 pounds. In a matter of three months, she lost more than 20 pounds — 20 percent of her total weight. She regained some of it, but she never weighed more than 95 pounds in high school.

From what she learned, she could say that while most males greet adolescence with optimism, females go in the opposite direction. With physical beauty at such a premium, high-profile models are imitated. Which leads to a "thinner is better" attitude, she said.

Her athleticism contributed to it, too. Distance runners don't need weight, or so it was thought. "The thinner you are, the less you have to carry around," was her logic.

She wasn't alone. Two of her better friends on Canton's team were borderline anorexics. "Talking about food was such a common thing," she said. "You had to have the lowest body fat to be the fittest."

And to be the best is an obsession for anorexic athletes. Having a low percentage of body fat wasn't good enough; hers had to be the lowest.

She would often train by running six miles a day — while consuming less than 600 calories. "Some days I'd only have 100-300 calories," she estimated.

But why? Eating is a normal function; once the problem is identified, can't it be easily reversed?

"It's really complicated," she explained. "It becomes very much a control issue. (Anorexics) feel like they're losing control in some areas, but they can control their weight. It gets to the point where you say, 'I have ultimate power and control, and I don't need to eat. I'm the best at that.'"

After a period of time, the physical strain of starvation turns a psychological problem into a medical one. "You deny your appetite, and you get a high off the hunger pains," she said. "You get used to feeling that way, you get addicted to it. When you eat and feel full, it's a nightmare."

The effect alters mental perceptions as well. If an anorexic gains a single pound, her self-esteem plunges. When she looks in the mirror, she sees beauty — not bones protruding through tightly stretched skin.

Her cure came through addressing her need for perfection. After months of therapy, instead of seeking approval from others, she became more assertive and dominant. As her self-confidence grew, her desire to be the thinnest diminished.

Her demons were defeated.

Others aren't so fortunate. Estimates are that six percent of those afflicted by anorexia die from it.

She considers herself lucky because she was diagnosed when she was a freshman. "I really think we need to focus on prevention," she said, noting massive weight loss and an obsession with food and calorie counting as primary warning signals. "Early intervention is crucial."

In her case, it may have been life-saving.

■ Young and athletic, strongly motivated both in school and in her sport, she seems a model of perfection. But it's a lie. When weight control becomes obsessive, she begins a journey that could prove fatal.

It is devious.

That is the first lesson to learn. It all too often is disregarded; treatment is ignored, the disease shrugged off as "just another passing phase" in the life of a modern-day teen-ager.

What happens next could be tragic. The disease: anorexia nervosa. In everyday terminology, it's self-starvation.

To someone who's never been exposed to it, that sounds ridiculous. After all, no one starves themselves purposely.

Which is what makes it so devious in nature. It is not a physical affliction, at least not at first. And it does not prey upon the weak or sick, or those of lesser intelligence.

No. Anorexia attacks those who could be among the elite: According to statistics, those most vulnerable to the disease are young females, from pre-adolescence to mid-20s in age, usually from middle- to upper-class families, highly intelligent and usually driven to perfection — both in the classroom and athletically.

George Przygodski, Plymouth Canton's girls track and cross country coach for the past 15 years, is well-acquainted with anorexia. He's seen it; he knows what to look for. He talks to his runners about it often.

How many cases has he seen? "Life-threatening? Maybe three or four," Przygodski estimated. "Potential anorexics — maybe 100. And that's probably a conservative guess."

Dr. Marie Beye, a clinical psychologist from Ann Arbor who has made a study of eating disorders, described anorexia as having "both strong mental and physical components."

But rather than refer to it as a mental problem, she called it an "identity disorder."

The reason: Those with low self-esteem are particularly prone to it. And teen-age girls, just beginning to mature physically with all the inherent emotional trauma, are most often in danger.

Coaches who don't recognize these dangers often contribute to them, according to Beye. A superb, promising 12-year-old gymnast begins to grow...

and mature; the result can be athletic retardation. The coach doesn't like that; lose weight, he tells his protege.

"The push is to stay as thin as you were before," said Beye.

Thin is in. Young girls scan through glamor magazines, filled with too-thin models. That's what they want to be.

DYING TO WIN

The girls most susceptible are athletically inclined. The need to be perfect, to be the best, drives them. They excel academically; now they must do the same in sports.

"It's something in the makeup of distance runners — compulsiveness," said Livonia Stevenson girls cross country and track coach Paul Holmberg. "They know the harder they work, the better they will get. A little talent and a lot of hard work can make you an excellent runner."

Anorexic athletes are relentless trainers. But there, again, the devils of the disease creep in.

Holmberg had an athlete who "associated progress with weight loss. She continued to lose weight even when she didn't need to."

As Przygodski explained it, "They think, 'If I'm better after losing five pounds, I'll be twice as good after losing 10.' These kids become obsessive about food. They cut out all fats, all meats."

Their athletic progress will begin to slide when the weight loss becomes dramatic. How dramatic? In clinical terms, a person becomes anorexic when they drop more than 20 percent below their normal body weight.

By that point, however, the disease is in control. It is an addiction to hunger pangs. Gaining a pound can be traumatic; if an anorexic believes she has eaten too much, she may induce vomiting.

That's when it becomes a physical affliction. Kidney failure, even heart attacks have resulted. According to studies, of those anorexics treated over a long period of time — and it can take years to cure — approximately 50 percent reach normal body weight, 20 percent improve but still are underweight, 20 percent remain anorexic, 5 percent become obese, and 6 percent die.

Alison Mann, whose sister Rachel ran at Canton several years ago before transferring to Ann Arbor Pioneer, was an outstanding runner. She became anorexic; last year, the disease killed her.

There is no specific cure. Therapy is often long-term. Holmberg used a widely accepted method when he faced a potential anorexic problem: "I told her, 'If you're losing weight to be a better runner, you won't run.'"

"It came to a point where I basically had to threaten her with not running."

Przygodski watches his athletes carefully. "When I hear girls who are obsessed with no-fat foods — who say, 'Let's go to the store and read fat contents on boxes' — there's an obsession there," he said.

He will sit in on meals with the team, watching what they eat. He will watch for excessive weight loss.

But in people who are often thin to start with, that is not always easy to spot. And the self-denial of an anorexic — they don't see themselves

• What — Anorexia Nervosa is an eating disorder that evolves into a paralyzing fear of becoming fat. It begins as a psychological disorder that becomes a physiological one; induced vomiting to remove unwanted food can result in an electrolyte imbalance, which in turn leads to death.

• Those afflicted — The most common anorexic is a young white female, ranging in age from pre-adolescent to mid-20s. Their background is middle to upper class, and they have a tendency to be physically active. Studies indicate anorexia occurs in one-to-five percent of the group at highest risk.

• Symptoms — In anorexia, weight loss and behavioral changes are most common. A fanatical concern for weight loss is prevalent; in early stages, it ranges from 15 to 25 percent of normal body weight. A preoccupation with food is often evident. So, too, is sleep deprivation. Anorexics suffer from a lack of self-esteem, stemming from any number of sources, including family. Some psychologists believe the common anorexic's family is over-indulging, with parents extremely involved in the children's lives, making many decisions for them. In an effort to take control of their life, the anorexic will take control of what they can — their food intake. Anorexics are also perfectionist in nature, driven to succeed at everything, including sports. Weight is often viewed as fat and, therefore, an anchor to runners, gymnasts, swimmers, etc.

• Treatment — There is no specific treatment. Early diagnosis is of primary importance. The anorexic's intense fear of becoming fat coupled with an overestimation of body size results in a strong resistance to therapy. Goal-setting in therapy often is useful: If a patient gains enough weight, she will be allowed so-much exercise. In long-term treatment, half of the patients reach normal weight, 20 percent improve but remain underweight, 20 percent remain anorexic, five percent become obese — and six percent die.
