Task force needs participants

Recreational needs of those of all ages in Canton Township are being studied by the new Canton Parks and Recreation task force. Participation and comments are welcome.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAPP WRITER

If you want a say in future parks and recreation programs, activities and facilities in Canton, your comments and participation in a community task force are welcome.

We don't want to leave anyone out," said Dianne Neihengen, Canton senior program coordinator, who, along with Bob Dates, township rec-reation supervisor, will chair the new Canton Parks and Recreation task

Called "Strategy 2000," the task force will begin its work at a 7 p.m. meeting Wednesday, Sept. 13, in the board meeting room in Canton Township Hall, 1150 S. Canton Center

A steering committee of township staff and community residents is coordinating the effort that will involve four subgroups of study. Residents are invited to participate in the subgroups.

"We already have a list of people who want to participate," Dates said.

But that doesn't mean others can't participate. The subgroups will gather with the steering committee at the Sept. 13 meeting and then break

Missing resident drowned in Illinois

A 67 year-old Canton man was found drowned where the Mississippi and Ohio rivers meet in southern Illinois, 10 days after he was reported missing while on a solo sailing trip on the rivers.

Edgar Pickering Willis was found on a dike in the river. "A fisherman found him. The fisherman liked to walk out on the dike and fish for catfish. Mr. Willis was in full view," said Chief Deputy Bill Bowers of the Alexander County Sheriff Department.

Willis was piloting a 40-foot sailboat when he disappeared and his boat was found aground on Mississippi River, about 10 miles north of Cape Girardeau, Mo on Sunday, July 16. Willis set sail from Paducah and had last called his family in Canton on July 13, according to the Union County Sheriff Department. Willis' family called police when he didn't call as usual.

Deputies discovered the boat on a sandbar. A sign was on it. which said: "Gone for fuel." Willis was found about 35 miles downstream from his boat. Bowers said that Willis drowned and had been in the water most likely since he disappeared. "The Mississippi runs quite fast in this area," Bowers said. "The current is quite swift. This is where the Ohio River ends and the Mississippi begins. Willis' wife was in Illinois monitoring the search for her husband. She was unavailable for

Church program helps put children on path to healing

The Observer/ THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1995

Kids don't always know what they're feeling when they lose a parent, either by divorce or death. But a new program in Canton is expected to help them put their selings into words.

"Sometimes they aren't what feelings are. But they know they are hurting," said Bevis Richardson, a 20-year member of Geneva Presbyterian Church and retired registered nurse.

Richardson is coordinating a God's Children" that will be offered to children who have suffered a loss. The new program targets the younger set - kids in ond session is scheduled for Jan. kindergarten through fifth grade. The 14-week program is not parents' permission to attend. "It is pure support," Richardson said. "Therapy is one-on-one. Support is in a group. The program is strictly non-denominational. But we will talk about God and trust in God. We will talk about a relationship with God and that someone cares." The program is designed to help kids learn to talk about how they feel about their situations and experiences. "A lot of time, they think it is their fault," Richprogram called "Rainbows for All ardson said. "Loss is loss - no matter why. Rainbows will begin Sept. 26

When Geneva Presbyterian Pastor Bryan Smith first learned of the program, he brought the idea back to the church deacons. "They decided there is a need in this community," Richardson

Meanwhile, Richardson learned that Jim and Linda Bynum of First United Methodist Church in Plymouth began a Rainbows program more than a year ago. "It is amazingly successful. We have had kids come kicking and screaming, and then they can't wait to come back," said Linda Bynum, who is director of Christian education.

Participating children will have workbooks to use in the sessions. The activities in the workbooks and those activities provided by the facilitators will encourage children to express themselves. "Citizens for Michigan" was the name of Romney's bipartisan, public interest organization. It also was his creed. Romney didn't accomplish all the reforms alone but was leader, spokesman and lightning rod for a new breed of creative problem-solvers.

He had an early start in supporting public institutions in the early 1950s, when he chaired a citizens' committee which later convinced Detroit Public School voters to approve a massive bond program to renovate old schools and build new ones.

Later and with little cheering from the political parties, the Romney movement persuaded voters to call a state Constitutional Convention. Romney was elected as a Republican delegate. The GOP on paper had a 2-1 majority, but in actuality it was split between the Farmers' Caucus and the Romney moderates.

The Romneyites prevailed. In the new constitution were:

A state Civil Rights Commission. A new Court of Appeals.

A new district court system, and good riddance to the amateur justices of the peace.

A line-item veto for the governor and a reduction in the number of departments from Romney led a host of GOP Con-Con delegates into leadership in state government: Dick VanDusen into a series of roles; Glenn Allen into the budget department and Court of Appeals; Weldon Yeager into the administration and GOP leadership; Richard Kuhn, now a circuit judge. Democrats also launched careers from Con-Con: Richard Austin, secretary of state; Jack Faxon, 30 years in the Legislature; Coleman Young, mayor of Detroit; Bill Ford, 30 years in Congress. And so on.

Many say that if Romney could have become president, America would have seen the Vietnam war shortened and no Watergate scandal that destroyed many people's faith in government and lawyers. They may well be correct.

Romney was an intense, extremely serious, candid person. He was ridiculed late in 1961 when he said he would pray for divine guidance on whether to run for governor. There were many pious frauds in politics, then and now, but Romney was serious

Romney hurt his presidential bid by admitting he had been "brainwashed" by the military on the Vietnam war. Time has shown he was quicker than most to wise up.

Base line explained

n response to your "Why are the street signs green?" column in last Thursday's

Q: Why do the street signs say Eight Mile on the Oakland County side, but Base Line in Wayne County? What's a base line, anyway? Is it true that if you extended Eight Mile (or is it Base Line?) due west, it would eventually be the Wisconsin-Illinois border?"

A: Since the time of the earliest surveys (this whole thing was Thomas Jefferson's idea), townships and sections were located with respect to two principal axes passing through an origin called an initial point; the north-south axis called the principal meridian, and the east-west axis, being a true parallel of latitude, called the base line.

Yes, Base Line Road follows approximately the established "base line" which passes through the initial point established for Michigan. I would imagine that since Wayne County was populated earlier than Oakland, the historical name stuck. Note that when the road goes through Northville, and swings towards the north, it's not appropriate to call it Base Line any longer. There is a local residential street in Northville that is called Base

Line, probably from its historical evolution. Secondary axes, established at 36-mile intervals east or west of the principal meridian and north and south of the base line, divide land into many of our modern municipalities. Thus the reason why Livonia, Novi, Canton, Troy, etc. are all approximately six miles by six miles in size. Looking at a map you can see that Redford Township was originally the area between Eight Mile and Joy, from

Inkster Road east to Greenfield. Each of these townships was divided into 36 1-square mile areas called sections. Each section, split into four quarters (160 acres each) and split again into four quarters (40 acres each). Thus the saying "plow the back 40." The township and range system described above has long been disputed as helping urban sprawl throughout the level Midwest. As roads, named with such imagination as Five Mile, Six Mile, Seven Mile, etc., developed along these section lines, the ever-so-famous strip development followed, sending people sprawling out along a 1-mile grid pattern. If the Wisconsin-Illinois dividing line is along the same latitude then yes, it would be the same as Eight Mile Road. Can you guess where the principal meridian divides Michigan into western and eastern sections? (Ever heard of Meridian Township?) Dave Schneider, Livonia

POINTS OF VIEW

Good neighbors reach out to welcome family

t might have been dumb luck. More likely it had to do with the heart of the Plymouth community. Certainy, the neighborliness my family is experiencing is what we hoped to find reurning home here.

The first inclination of heart still alive here appeared in the form of Coldwell Banker's Mike Schneider Mike showed our family houses in our price range in a 20-mile radius of plymouth, then focused in on available houses here. He was at-the-ready with ladders, flashlights, available experts and whatever the purchase process threw our way. Once located, Mike worked on our purchase every day until we moved in. We had no idea a real estate agent could be such an integral part of buying a house. There wasn't a moment, day or night, Mike wasn't easily available for us. When moving to a new neighborhood one wonders what the welcome may be,

In our first week Cathy Wilton-Bransch and her husband Harald invited us to their house for barbecued ribs. We had seen them jogging their two beautiful children in a push-along cart every evening. She is studying for an MBA in operations management at the University of Michigan, while he works in Ann Arbor as an applications engineer figuring out new uses for lasers. The purpose of the cookout was to welcome us to the neighborhood.

All this is a radical departure from our last home in London, England, where we never learned the names of the people who lived right next door to us. Where space is at a premium, so is one's privacy. In Plymouth however, even though there are houses every-where, people on our street go out of their way to be friendly. Perhaps none more so than our next door neighbors, the Jerry Smiths. Jerry and I were classmates at old Plymouth High, all the way up from grade school. He recently underwent heart surgery and is making a terrific recovery. Just yesterday he even fired up his "muscle car." We hadn't seen each other in more than 35 years when we moved in. I wonder if it is the same for you? The Plymouth I grew up in was very welcoming. The one I am living in now is, too. In the old days the "Welcome Wagon" consisted of my mom and her friends making a social call on almost any newcomer to Plymouth. It was a local habit. We live in such a mobile society maybe we can't all be as friend ly as my neighbors are, but certainly we can try. The heart beat of any community is pumped by every extra effort you put forth to "be neighborly" and ust plain friendly.

Summer should linger, not be rushed out the doorway

t was depressing last week to visit my local superduper market. Flannel shirts. Heavy jackets. Signs advertising "Back to School"

Back to school?!? The notion strikes terror into the hearts of young boys devoted to vacation, and old boys, too. Drudgery is just around the corner - yippee, say the stores.

Don't our geniuses of private enterprise know summer is hardly half over? The hockey playoffs ended barely yesterday. Baseball's World Series is more than two months away. It's still summer.

I inspected blueberry patches the third week of July and found many were barely producing fruit. Our tomato patch, enriched on Mother's Day by eight bags of cow and horse ma from a Lyon Township farm, has just begun to produce tomatoes for salads, with the promise of beefsteak tomatoes within days. Only in the last week has the golden flavor of wax beans from the yard graced our palates.

The "sweet corn" sign is barely up on the farm stand on the corner. Sure, you can get something that looks like corn most of the year, but the only good stuff comes from local farms now. You can't get the almost sugary flavor unless you boil or roast corn the same day it's picked. Where does mercantile America get the notion it's back to school time?

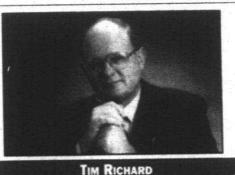

On Lake Michigan, the warm roller waves don't come in until August. Lake Superior is swimmable only one month of the year, and that's now. Superior's waters are bracing and refreshing and tolerable in August; earlier or later, they're like frigid hammers on your feet.

True, the trout fishing isn't much now with the streams low, but now is when the best deepwater bluegill and perch fishing is done. The ol' cane pole that will put the bait on bottom in at least 12 feet of water is the magic wand of the August angler.

Panfish, sweet corn and tomatoes - forget your turkey and yams and mince pie. August is the time to be thankful for the best eatin' of the year. Let's not have "back to school" sales

I pray that the merchants, those fountains of wisdom in conservative political philosophy, don't mess up August the way they messed up Christmas season, theologically, starts on Christmas day and runs for 12 days until Epi-

And remember how he wasn't a lecture kind of teacher, but rather a question-asker, asking question after question until his pupils finished answering all the questions? And once they'd done that, the pupils knew what they were supposed to know And that was known as the Socratic method of teaching. Sure, you remember that.

Well, today, I'm employing what I call the medified Socratic method. I emphasize "modified" because I can't possibly stick to that no lecture crede of Socrates. I am, you know, a Mom, which stands for Many Opinions Mentioned.

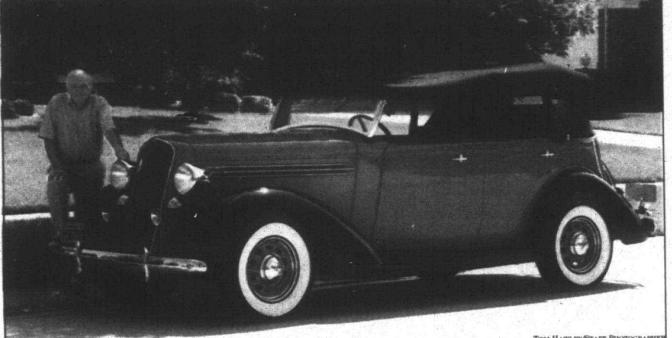

So anyway, here goes. The Socratic/Mom style of discussion.

What do you like dishing out more? Criticism or compliments? Do you feel more effective with a bunch of barbs, brickbats and burning arrows? Or would you feel more comfortable supplied with a pile of praise, applause and kudos?

And let me ask you this. What's more likely to make your day? Getting criticized? Or getting complimented? Does getting a compliment make you feel like you want to skip around the kitchen and turn your favorite song up on the radio and sing right out loud and fix chocolate pudding for your children for no good reason? Or is it criticism that makes you feel that way? Buoyant and benevolent and capable of reaching higher heights? Compliment vs. criticism. Which is

Here's what I think: compliments. Those are

One of a kind: It's no wonder his 1936 Plymouth Phaeton is Ray Schaefer's favorite. Built in Adelaide, South Australia, it was one of six built "Down Under" by Chrysler and the only one that "survived the junk yard."

Concours: Golden time for car buffs

It's not the winning that's important to Ray Schaefer of Plymouth; it's getting the gold license plate that shows he's arrived. For Mike Wagner of Westland, just being at the 17th annual Concours d'Elegance is the reward.

By Christina Fuoco

Ray Schaefer of Plymouth doesn't think that his 1936 Plymouth Phaeton stands a chance of capturing an award this weekend at the 17th annual Concours d'Elegance in Rochester. It doesn't bother him, though. Winning wasn't his primary motivation for accepting the invitation.

"I just want to get the gold license plate; that means you've kind of arrived," Schaefer said with a laugh.

The 75-year-old Chrysler retiree is among the 250 Concours d'Elegance participants who will receive a personalized gold license plate commemorating the event, which takes place Sunday, Aug. 6, on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester.

Schaefer has worked at his hobby for 45 years to be invited to an event like this. He whet his appetite for antique cars as a youth living on a farm in Ohio.

"When I was a kid, on the farm, we used to get old cars for doing odd jobs on the farms from the people during the Depression," he said. "Going back even to high school, my brother and I, we were both pretty much the same, always looking at cars, trying to build automobiles.

The real thing

Years later, while working for

Chrysler, he obtained his first collectible car, a 1924 Dodge Roadster.

"I worked at Chrysler at that time and I worked with the vice president of American Motors (Dick Teague)," Schaefer said. "He was a great antique car guy, and I was the friend of his. He got me the first antique car, the Dodge Roadster. That's really how I got started in it."

Throughout his career as paint manager at Chrysler, Schaefer restored cars in his department for expositions and fairs like the 1964 World's Fair. Now a member of the Walter P. Chrysler Restorers' and the Plymouth Owners clubs, he and a host of other volunteers restore cars at the Highland Park Chrysler Plant every Wednesday and Thurs-

Schaefer's Concours d'Elegance entry, a 1936 Plymouth Phaeton, is a one of a kind, making it the favorite of the cars he's owned.

Built in Adelaide, South Australia, it was shipped to the United States by a friend of Schaefer's after Chrysler stopped building cars "Down Under." Only six were built and Schaefer's is the sole Phaeton that "survived the junk yards."

In addition to that, the cherry red and black Phaeton is rare because Chrysler discontinued the body style in 1932. The car has a standard U.S. sheet metal hood, front and rear fenders, and curtains instead of windows. "This being one of a kind makes it a little more valuable to someone who collects old Plymouths," he said.

Car of his dreams

The experience has been a bit different for fellow Concours d'Elegance participant Mike Wagner of Westland. He knew he found the car of his dreams as soon as he saw the Hudson Essex Terraplane International club notice that it had found a two-door 1952 Hudson Hornet con-up Eriticism with ease have the notion that they're doing you a favor. That they're doing it out of the goodness of their heart. That by criticizing you, they are somehow motivating you to do better Do better? I don't think so. The only thing a chronic criticizes motivates you to do is put a tack on his chair.

A compliment, though, is truly one of the world's best motivators. A word of praise motivates a person like sunshine and water motivate a flower. With sunshine and water, the flower reaches ever upward, reaching higher heights. Criticism, on the other hand, withers the flower and dries it up. I've seen it happen.

During one of the baseball games my son played in this summer, a dad/coach-type person used the criticism style of coaching. You know what? It didn't work. You could actually see the criticisms levied against the boys weigh them down. They hung their heads; their shoulders slumped; they looked several inches shorter. They kicked at the dirt and lost the game, big time, to my son's team.

Edidn't know the poor kids on that other team, but I felt a really strong urge to go out on the pitcher's mound and call them all together and give each one a big hug and tell them they could have an ice cream cone after the game because they were trying so hard and that's all that really mattered. I didn't, of course. And I should be criticized for that.

And how does it work the other way, the compliment side? Does it really motivate? Absolutely.

"I don't collect antique cars,

"Just being there is the reward," he said. "It's like going through four years of college. When you finish, you receive your diploma. This is like getting a di-about family things and parenting things and one who uses personal experience to illustrate, I receive comments and suggestions which are, themselves, pretty personal. Some are . . . hmmmmm I've found that folks who serve hostile. But most are unbelievably complimentary and friendly. And every time, without exception, the friendly, complimentary > type feels good. And I've found that compliments are tremendous motivators. For instance, here's a recent comment from a reader: "Your articles are outstanding. I love reading them. And they're very inspirational to me. I have to say you've got to be an outstanding mother. Thank you. You give me a lot of insight into my own life. I appreciate it. Thank you."

Holy smokes! Now that's a compliment! And motivating? Who wouldn't be motivated by that? What Mom wouldn't try even harder and sing out loud and treat everyone to chocolate pudding for no good reason?

Everyone, especially Moms, should have a compliment like that said to them. A compliment to Mom will make her feel jaunty and taller and willing to reach even higher heights. Like the flower with its sunshine and rain.

And something else about compliments. When you get them they make you feel so damn good that you can't help but give them out yourself. It's a kind of infectious thing.

And that kind of infection should go unchecked everywhere Ball diamonds, family rooms, classrooms, you name it. That kind of infection needs no cure. Compliment or criticism? So?

But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect

Today we are analyzing the handwriting of quite a mature 24year-old woman. Her interests cover a broad spectrum.

It comes as no surprise when she says she loves to learn. She is an intelligent young woman who yearns for knowledge. She enjoys delving into new information and analyzing it to her satisfaction. She has also been blessed with intuition as well as a retentive

At times, she may entertain thoughts that she would like to break away from her traditional background and venture into new vistas. Is it her desire to keep the peace that keeps her grounded?

She has a strong need to be in control of her life. She is also disinclined to make hasty decisions. Before jumping into something new, she will stop to consider how it will affect her ersonally. Her head often rules her heart.

Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital...

Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials. It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, a division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers.

The Family Birthing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which meets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience. Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breastfeeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine Mile Road in Southfield. Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to help make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

Hale's poster, available to the public Aug. 4, conveys a sense of fantasy. The featured car, a 1930 Mercedes-Benz "Count Trossi" SSK, is shown from the rear, its wings and tail almost cloaklike, wisps of smoke trailing up from the exhaust. Part of its shape is repeated under the vehicle like a light shadow.

The ground and trees and giant iris surrounding the car are swirls of green, yellow and violet. Meadow Brook Hall is a soft, misty structure in the background. The scene strikes the viewer the way the elegant mansion and rolling grounds impress the visitor to Meadow Brook: The feeling is one of entering a fairy-tale world.

"(I wanted to) capture this surreal quality of the event. I didn't want to paint every brick on Meadow Brook."

Hale was commissioned for the Concours d'Elegance poster in December 1993. "She was always taking care of others," said Hurd of her aunt. "I work out a lot of stuff on paper. If I can put it down on paper, it seems more valid to me. Trees and roots are reoccuring due to family matters. I use flowers as symbols of a soft in design. For 18 years after graduation family life took top priorty as she raised four children. During this time Hurd painted only for her own pleasure. She began seriously painting after pleasure. She began seriously painting after returning from a trip to Europe where she spent a year working in ceramic sculpture at Lancaster Polytechnic in Coventry.

One of the major influences on her life and painting was a trip to the International Women's Conference in Nairobi, Kenya 10 years ago.

"Going to Africa influenced me a lot. It was like another world there, another dimension. It was enlightening to see how women are workhorses. When you think of technology in this country you think of computers.

In Kenya, technology is cooking on a piece of tin over rocks instead of just cooking on the rocks," said Hurd who taught drawing classes in Livonia's community education program for 10 years.

Hurd starts her colored pencil work by doing thumbnail sketches of subjects from photographs "to see where the eye is going to be led, to indicate a play of lights and darks."

She then transfers these images onto a medium value paper instead of plain white. As colored pencil is a time consuming medium, the pastel colored paper lays the groundwork or background for her subjects.

"The paper becomes very important. It's always influencing the color shining through the paper.

Hurd, a former member of the Farmington Artists Club, has exhibited her work at the Birm ingham Bloomfield Art Association, Scarab Club in Detroit, the Detroit Institute of Arts Rental Gallery, Detroit Artists Market, and juried exhibits produced by the Farmington Artists Club.

Irish music with modern rock

With his whiskey soaked demeanor and a mouthful of blackened, twisted teeth, Shane MacGowan's reputation precedes him. Back in the '80s, the exsinger of the Pogues' cartoony became more famous than his now evered band, one of the first to marry traditional

The idea of the Pogues was always better than the real thing (the uninspired trashing of "Honkytonk Women" found on "Pogues Essential borders on sacrilege) and the same goes for "The Snake. Blending penny whistles and fuzzed up guitars is an intriguing idea, but thanks to MacGowan and Dave Jordan's flat production, intended ravers like "That's Woman's Got Me Drinking" and "A Mexican Funeral in Paris" merely sound cluttered. Only the opening "The Church of the Holy Spook," a rollicking tale of religious family tradition, succeeds with this formula. Traditional figs like "Nancy Whiskey" and "The Rising of the Moon" may be instantly memorable, but only because MacGowan's vocal melody and the whistle melody are exactly the same on every such song. During the course of 15 tracks, this effect gets annoying quickly.

The real tragedy here is "Haunted," a duet with Sinead O'Connor. Placed near the album's end and coming after nearly an hour of MacGowan's passionless gruntings, O'Connor's vocals are starthing and breathtaking. Then the grim reality seeps in: a duet means two singers. Soon O'Connor's spell is rudely broken by her host's attempt at crooning along Sung alone by O'Connor, "Haunted" could have been a classic, which attests to MacGowan's songwriting skills but also makes his vocal shortcomings embarrassingly ob-

As bad as his reputation may be, MacGowan is capable of producing some of his own magic, as idenced on his remake of "What A Wonderful widenced on his remake of "What A Wonderful World" with Nick Cave a few years ago. While his Sense of humor and lyrical gifts sometimes shine here, particularly on "Victoria," the album just doesn't add up musically. In the end, the album's lyric sheet is better reading than "The Snake" is

Singer returns from self exile

When Peter Murphy completed his 1992 "Holy Smoke" world tour, he needed to make a clean break. He dissolved his longtime backing band, The Hundred Men, and moved his family from London to Turkey hoping to recharge his musical career.

"I set out to burn bridges, to give myself a feeling of freshness and vitality," Murphy said. "That burning of bridges went as far as potentially accepting that I'd finished in the music business. It was a purging period making a clean break. The splitting up of the band, although as much for economic reasons as any, seemed to be an appropriate part of imposed hiatus, he realized that his music career wasn't over with. The result is 'Cascade' (Beggars Banquet) Atlantic), a release that leaves the dance club vibe behind and goes full force into the adult alternative market. The first single "The Scarlet Thing In You" is his lyrical sequel to his 1990 hit single "Cuts You Up" from the album "Deep." Lush, intros pective songs like the hook-laden 'Gliding Like The Whale" and 'Subway" carry most of the album.

Lyrically, the album has a stamp of Turk culture on it. "Wild Birds Flock To Me" takes its cue from the aspirant poetry of the 13th century mystic, Jelaladdin Rumi, Musically, there would seem to be a distinctly Turkish influence on "Cascade," but Murphy said it was quite the opposite.

This is the first album which doesn't have a Turkish instrument on t "he said via telephone from his Orlando, Fla., hotel room. Murphy could have been on Mars and not be affect-"I've always written in private space. I've never been one to branch out and socialize music. My music's always been quite introspective. Yes, there's obviously some influences there. (Moving to Turkey) has probably clarified a few things for me.

"Cascade" is Murphy's first album since 1991's "Holy Smoke." Although he took a break from the industry, most of the last four years have been spent perfecting the lyrics and music of "Cascade." His financial situation doesn't allow him to hone his skills in the studio during the recording of the

"I'm not like a U2 who has the money to hire the studio for two years solid and play around with the ideals until we get it right. I have to get it right from the word go. . . . I don't have the luxury to really think about different ideas. It's pretty much a one-shot thing." Murphy is now in the midst of a S tour in support of the new album with his new band. For his live shows, which comes to Industry in Pontiac on Monday, Aug. 14, Murphy said he's concentrating less on the visual aspect and more on the musical pres-

Do we really need to see a film about it? That depends.

"Kids" opens with 16-year-old Telly (Leo Fitzpatrick) attempting to deflower one in a long line of virgins. He turns on the charm, tells the nervous girl to trust him, then bursts out the door minutes later to brag to his friends.

The rest of the movie charts a day in the life of Telly and company on a hot summer day. It shows them beating up a stranger in the park, breaking into a pool, partying at trashed Manhattan apartments or at the ubiquitous

For spicy it's Bombay Curry House

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND STAFF WRITER

At Bombay Curry House in Garden City, some like it hot, some like it medium, and some like it mild. We're talking curry. Wonderful, authentic curry. Keep in mind, however, that even if a timid palate makes you order mild, it's going to be a bit spicy. But that's the delight of Indian food

Open only seven months, small, unpretentious Bombay Curry, which shares a strip mall with a few other Indian businesses, is developing a loyal following. When asked who his customers are, owner Nar Jaywor said, mostly Indian and American. Most are quite familiar with Indian food. Some are new, then they keep coming back.

Jaywor credits much of his restaurant's budding reputation to his chef, Haji Banaras, who has cooked for state dignitaries in India and Pakistan. "He's quite well-known in the Pakistani as well as the Indian communities," said Jaywor. "his specialties are chicken and lamb dishes, tandoori dishes and biriyani dishes."

Chef Banaras's "Chicken Tikka Masala" may well be the house specialty. It consists of boneless chicken marinated overnight in homemade yogurt and spices then cooked in a tandoor (the traditional Indian clay oven) with tomatoes, ginger root, onion and green pepper.

Biriyani entrees also are becoming a favorite with many customers according to Jaywor. Biriyanis are basmati rice dishes layered with fresh herbs, meat, chicken, seafood or vegetables. Some have nuts and raisins. All are slow-cooked for several hours to harmonize the flavors.

Ram Prasad, a Dearborn resident and a physician at the Medical Center in Detroit, is a weekly Bombay Curry customer. "I enjoy the food here," he said. "Today I had chicken biriyani, but I've tried all of them at different times. It's excellent."

The heart of Bombay Curry is truly its kitchen, and the menu reflects this. It's varied and nicely balanced between vegetarian to come back a second time. Items like "Masala Dosa," a vegetarian potato and onion dish layered with crispy, thin pastry and served with chutney, at $4.99, is especially appealing. So is "Lamb Korma," cooked with yogurt, almonds and some spices, at $7.99. Also, there are numerous special breads, some stuffed with vegetables or meats. Top 2 teams advance to semis

There were no real opening-round shockers, with the two top teams during the regular season advancing to the semifinals — but not without some trepidation.

That message was delivered, in no uncertain terms, to the Lakers by the Wildcats in Monday's opening game of the Metro Summer Hockey League playoffs. The Wildcats had finished first in the Bakes Conference; the Lakers were last.

But last year, that had made no difference. The Lakers took an unlikely trip from last-to-first when the threegame playoffs began, ultimately upsetting the previously unbeaten Broncos in the MSHL playoff final.

The Wildcats, who posted a 10-1 record in claiming the Bakes regularseason crown, made sure there would be no repeat performance. They pumped in 11 goals in the first two periods, leading from start to finish en route to a 17-5 triumph at Plymouth Ice Arena.

The victory put the 'Cats into Thursday night's Bakes Conference final at Plymouth. The MSHL title game is set for 8 p.m. Sunday, also at Plymouth.

Balance had a lot to do with the Wildcat win. Their first five goals were scored by five different players. But it also helped to get four goals and three assists from Jake Wiegand (from Plymouth); three goals and five assists from Mark Pietila; two goals and four assists from Josh Wiegand (Plymouth); two goals and three assists from Ron Pietila; two goals and Connie Mack baseball team won a district last weekend in Macomb County despite finishing in sixth place during the regular season in the Little Caesars League.

Here's what makes that even more impressive: BCI dressed only 11 players for the district, which means some of the teams it played had nearly as many play ers on the bench as DCI had on DCI finished the district with a 5-1 record, including a 5-3 victory in the final over Great American to send coach Norm Brusseau's team into the regional at Battle reek's Bailey Park.

Observerland stars, past and present, Pete Quinn (Redford Thurston), Greg Rogers (Redford Catholic Central), Mike Brusseau Redford CC), Justin Stankewicz (Redford CC) and Brad Lear (Plymouth Salem) have been consistent performers for Brusseau,

One of the parents on one of the teams said Norm, you got to be doing it with rubber bands, duct tapes and gum," " said Brusseau, marveling at his team's togetherness and defense. "We've got it all oiled and in good shape. BASEBALL but we have the best defense in Connie Mack baseball. If you hit and we catch it and we do that seven innings without throwing the ball away, we win."

DCI made only five errors in six district games despite playing without starting third baseman Mike Burgess (Dearborn Edsel Ford), who was out of town. DCI also played without twins Brett and Jim Imsland (Detroit Country Day), who were at a football camp, and Chris Gilhuly (University of Detroit-Jesuit), who was out of town.

Burgess' bat was especially missed, considering he led the team with a 450 average, 10 doubles, seven home runs, 36 RBI and an .838 slugging percentage. DCI persevered, however, beating Ann Arbor, 19-2, Birmingham, 7-0, and No. 1 seed Steele's 9-3 in the first three games. Great American handed DCI its first defeat, 6-5, before DCI came back and defeated Steele's a second time, 4-2, to advance into the fi-

Rogers follows Steve Sopo (Riverview) and Mark Taylor (Gibraiter Carlson) in the lineup. Coach Brusseau said the speed

Woo. "I learned to shoot here and it's always been a nice facility, but it was becoming a little stagnant. Since Michigan has the highest number of registered shotgun shooters in the Midwest, and since I wanted to open a retail outlet for Wings & Clays, I thought Bald Mountain would be a good place." Woo took over the running of the concession and the range at Bald Mountain last September. He rents it from the Department of Natural Rersources.

Since taking over Woo upgraded the skeet and trap range and brought in new equipment, added a five-stand compact sporting clays range, and is opening a state-of-the-art, handicap-accessible sporting clays course on Saturday.

Bald Mountain also features large, outdoor rifle and pistol range and a walk-through archery range. Five-stand compact sporting clays will be an exhibi-

> To aid in that effort Bald Mountain has a staff of certified shooting instructors including Birmingham's Terri Bankey, an '88 Olympian and 10-time member of the U.S. Shooting Team and Davison's Pat Lieske, whom Woo feels is probably the best instructor in the Midwest."

Although all the ranges bring a steady flow of visitors, the 25station sporting clays course is the focus of attention right now. Golf with a shotgun

Often referred to as golf with a shotgun, sporting clays tests the shooters skills in assessing the distance, speed and trajectory of a target. Shooters travel along a walk-through, wooded course and stop at stations along the way. Each station simulates an actual hunting situation. For instance, the shooter may encounter a clay, which is flying straight up much like the flight pattern of a rising teal. At another station a clay may skip across the ground simulating a running rabbit, while still another may be sail ing toward the shooter much like a settling duck. "Unlike skeet and trap shooting, the shooter in sporting clays has to analyze and read the targets as they come out," said Woo. "You have a lot of varying target presentations because every stand simulates a different hunting situation. The art of setting up a sporting clayscourse is to make the shots

The National Shooting Sports Foundation estimates that over 600,000 people have shot sporting clays recreationally since it landed in the United States in the mid-1980s. The sport originated in

In Michigan, there are 20 NSCA sanctioned sporting clays ranges including the one at Bald Mountain, one at the Detroit Gun Club in Walled Lake and one at Hunter's Ridge Hunt Club in Oxford, which was host to the Jeep Claybird Classic National Champion ship in June.

Championship-style

The Bald Mountain course features two fully automatic, remote-controlled traps at each station. Normally, for practice rounds, stations feature a single machine at each station. The Bald Mountain course has two automatic traps at each station.

"Everyone in sporting clay in the area is excited about this course," said Woo. "With two automatic traps at each station you can practice on a championship-style course every day This will be the most state-ofthe-art course in Michigan."

Although Woo is new to the business of running a shooting range, he's a skilled veteran when it comes to skeet and trap shooting. Last year he won the 28 gauge division at the Skeet & Trap World Championships in San Antonio. He's tied the world record of shooting a perfect 500-of-500 on six different occasions. He set the long-run world record with a 28 gauge in 1990 by breaking 1,349 clays in a row, a run which spanned 14

Crew chief lives for the races

BY THERESA CAVANAUGH

Like the Ford Thunderbird that races 31 weekends out of 52, Howard Comstock, crew chief, is primed and ready and literally vibrates enthusiasm when he talks about the sport of stock car racing. "I live to race, it's what I do, it's what I've become," Comstock said. There is an aura of confidence exuding from this 45-year-old, 6-foot, blue-eyed, blond. The confidence comes from many long hours at the business of racing. You are constantly training, building yourself and becoming so primed that you become a person who races," he said. Sundays are race days, and Comstock, is outwardly calm.

He stands on the pit wall and has a commanding view of the track. Concentrating on car No. 16, he is one with the race, and he is in constant communi cation with driver Ted Musgrave, who is fourth verall in points on the NASCAR circuit, via a radio frequency.

Racing blueprints

"We always have a plan in place at the beginning of the race and it always changes, strategies develop as the race develops," Comstock said.

Racing is sensual, and Comstock says, "the whole team must be in tune, to feel how the car is handling, and listen for unusual sounds that warn of trouble. A trained nose can smell a malfunction, it's different than the raw gas and burned rubber smells prevalent at the track, and the crew watch or emissions of smoke, oil, or fluids leaking from

The great appeal of stock car racing includes the noise of 42 race-ready engines beating the air with thunderous voices, and the danger of high speeds. Comstock's voice is low in direct contrast to the

'The appeal is the close competition, the door to door, bumper to bumper, charging around a track at speeds that average 194 miles per hour," he said. The noise, smell, speed and danger all serve to

Hectic schedule

Comstock is not surprised when people want to knew what he does during the rest of the week. In fact, he is amused. Mischief twinkles in his eyes and a smile twitches at the corners of his mouth. Stock car racing is so much more involved than tinkering in the garage on weekends," Comstock

But that is where it all started.

A true sport, Comstock is never to tired to tell, one more time, how stock car racing got its name. "In the early days of the sport, people raced the ars they bought from the stock on the lot," he said. They taped over the headlights, and put the pedal o the floor. Friendly competition with the neighbors - 'my car runs faster than your car'- eventually led to organized stock car racing."

Races took place on fair weather weekends at oval tracks where the cars always turn left.

The stock in stock car racing today refers to the NASCAR requirement of using sheet steel and templates cut out to resemble the dimensions of the production vehicle.

Customized T-Bird

The dimensions of the Ford Thunderbird that Roush races, closely approximate the production Thunderbird you will find for sale locally. "The car is the same length as the car on the lot," Comstock said, "but it has a wider wheel base of about 110 inches." For Comstock, being crew chief is an aspiration

"Racing is all I've ever wanted to do," he added. "Cars have always been a way of life for me." He grew up in Livonia, greatly influenced by the auto industry in nearby Detroit. What he learned under the hood at home, he perfected at the gas station on the corner of I-96 and Middlebelt Road in Livonia (now the location of a Bob Evans Restaurant), where he worked part-time. Comstock shrugs his shoulders and insists he 'was just a regular guy at Bentley High School.' "I took auto shop," he said.

Dragster at heart

But at age 16, and a licensed driver for all of one week. Comstock was a veteran at changing road tires to race tires and dropping the muffler of his '52 Ford to make it ready for the strip at Detroit Dragway.

"I raced as a hobby on weekends all through school until graduation in '67," Comstock recalls. 'I had to compromise on many races though, because my car had to last. I needed it to get to school

Comstook studied engineering at the University of Michigan, then had to hustle and "figure out a way to make a living by racing."

Recomes crew chief

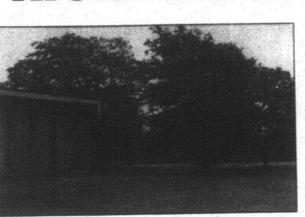

The desire to manage a race team led to long hours at the track, and eventually to NASCAR Stock Car Racing in the Winston Cup Division. It took many years to achieve the esteemed position of crew chief for car No. 16, a Ford Thunderbird owned by Roush Racing, a division of Roush Industries in Livonia. Comstock admits the track has put up some yellow flags during the years and says, "the pitfalls are easy to talk about, the hours are long. All week you're working on cars and then you race them on the weekends. It takes all your time, so that if you don't win, the team gets down and racing can really get discouraging."

The road to crew chief is a lot like racing. Passing, nudging, making sure your equipment lasts and using good judgment gets you to the finish line in first place. Comstock became a crew chief in 1985, and he joined Roush Racing in 1988 as crew chief with their road race team. He now works with the second NASCAR team developed by Roush in 1991. (The other is Mark Martin's No.

feet eight inches high. Increase their height to eight feet or more. The dramatic effect is inexplicable. Another inordinate ceiling detail would be a series of very shallow recesses (each approximately 4-inch in depth) around the perimeter of the room.

Mantels are unnecessary in a contemporary venue. The fireplace and hearth, by building code, must be noncombustible. There are a prodigious number of remarkable marbles and granites. A visit to a marble yard will open your eyes. The best ones are labeled exotic. Keep the opening simple.

Again you add to the pricing if you add to the detail with a reveal, but oh my goodness, what a "look." That "look" is why my ideas are more expensive:

As a last thought: stairways. The ubiquitous spindles, so necessary to hold up the handrail, could be made of wrought iron or steel bars. There are also lucite bars, but these wouldn't be a favorite of mine. Spindles might be replaced with large separated panels of lucite. They could be tremendously effective. I'd like to interject the subject of covering of the treads. If the wood is beautifully finished and polished, why carpet them? However, if you choose a runner, leave a generous margin of hardwood on each side.

The enormous quantities of glass, now thermopaned to insulate the interior, are so significant to the contemporary look that architects and interior many of the window seals are bro-ken. We have 18 windows in just one room and many more throughout the home. We discovered the brand of windows used were of poor quality and would like to know if we can purchase windows of the same size to save the costs of cutting new open-

A: Assuming your existing windows are wooden, there are three viable options I can suggest.

1. Sash Replacement Kits. There are manufacturers that have insulated sash replacement kits. These enable you to leave the window frame trim in tact. This is the most economical way of replacing windows. However, if your frames' woodwork is not in good shape, you will still be left with the existing wood. Another consideration is air infiltration around the frame which is not addressed by the sash replacement

2. Vinyl Replacement Windows. Vinyl replacement window packages include a frame, two insulated sashes and a screen. This unit is placed into the existing window frame in place of the old sash. The main advantage of this type of installation is that there is no have been greatly reduced due to technological advances in the assembly pro-

Wood replacement windows also allow the opportunity to fit the existing window opening, instead of the existing window frame. By removing the old rame, there is the opportunity to cheek or proper insulation around the winws, to check for insect infestation, and for water damage. This also allows ealignment of out-of-square openings. An added benefit is trim for the interior and exterior.

Whether it is sash replacement, vinyl inserts (with frame and sash) or a complete wood replacement window, you will be able to retain the same existing opening sizes with the extensive list of options for today's replacement window consumer. The replacement windows can be sustomized for each individuals

Q: My kitchen floor slopes from all sides into one corner of the kitchen. We have actually rolled marbles around on the floor! Can you tell me what could be causing the slope and what can we do to repair it? We would like to tear up the old floor and have ceramic tile put down.

A: Without seeing the problem, it is difficult to determine what has caused the floor to sag.

There are many reasons why this might happen, including overspan, overloading, improper support, the age of the home or moisture problems. Assuming there is a basement or crawl space, a contractor can go beneath the existing floor and install adjustable stanchions (support posts) to possibly raise existing floor joists. This is done very slowly and carefully making sure the floor can be raised without causing additional problems. If stanchions are to be used, they must have a proper foundation below them.

Another solution may be to remove all existing floor covering to the sub floor and level or "feather out" the area by using shims, shingles, floor stone or varying the thickness of underlayment before installing the new floor.

Upon inspection, if it is determined that there is not a structural problem, There are many reasons why floors may sag, including overspan, overloading, improper support, the age of the home or moisture problems.

and the existing floor joists do not have to be supported, then often a professional tile contractor may be able to eliminate a great deal of the problem by varying the thickness of his cement base used before ceramic tile is installed. We definitely recommend a cement base versus mastic to insure lasting tile installation.

In some cases you have an air gap on the kitchen sink. This is a thing with a plastic or chrome cap on and its on top of the sink and is obvious. This device which is a requirement in many city codes, when installing a dishwasher is a gadget to prevent garbage from your disposer backing up into your dishwasher and contaminating your clean dishes. It can plug up and cause drain problems. Take off the cap and use a small brush to clean the inside of it. The drain line from your dishwasher hooks up to this and from the air gap another hose leads to the garbage disposer. The hose which hooks up to the side of the disposer should also be removed, and the spout that the hose is hooked up to should be cleaned inside with a butter knife. This is an

These healthy gardens are good for the environment

A garden tour shows how to plant without hurting the environment

STORY AND PHOTOS BY SPECIAL WRITER MARTY FIGLEY

A GARDEN TOUR with a healthy focus will take place 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 5, in several Detroit area communities. The clusters of gardens have been divided geographically, and each includes five or more gardens.

Sponsored by Southeastern Oakland County Resource and Recovery Association, tickets can be bought on the day of the tour starting 9:45 a.m. at the SOCRRA office, 3910 W. Webster, between Coolidge and Greenfield in Royal Oak, where visitors can tour the native woodland and compost SOCRRA gardens. Tickets are $3 for each cluster. You may choose the ones you wish to visit. Call (810) 288-5150 for infor-

Several gardens in the North area are included. The gardens of Betty Sturley of Beverly Hills is an artist's garden set out in painterly fashion and filled with hundreds of growing plants She has designed the garden using this ability with color, texture and height, which give structure. Flowers have also been chosen for fragrance all season.

One of her paintings was chosen to hang in the Arts and Flowers Show at the Detroit Institute of Arts this spring, which puts her in a niche that many aspiring artists never achieve.

Artistic garden

As you approach the home, you'll know a gardener lives there because of the myriad array of plants. A white wooden arched gate opens to the side garden. Fairy pink cluster roses stand guard at each side, while single red Dortman roses with a hollyhock-type leaf climb overhead.

Ten square foot gardens bordered by treated lumber are stuffed with flowers, vegetables and herbs. You'll find many tall delphiniums, such as Pacific Giants and others in shades of blue, lilies, columbine, foxglove, poppies, nulas and "always annual sweet eas." Many salvias of glorious colors om their heads off all summer, Sturley said. A rosemary standard winters in the attached greenhouse and summers with basils, thymes, lavender and other herbs in the garden. At one side red raspberries provide a luscious treat: "You can't do without them."

The back yard contains beds that are packed with flowers. Sturley saves seeds of many plants and they are repeated in various gardens. Larkspur, which she loves, many lilies that she has collected for years, tree peonies, daisies, iris and roses such as "Jeanne La Joie," a robust grower with pink clusters, fill the spaces. Most of the roses grown are repeat bloomers that continue the color throughout the season. You'll see many David Austin roses and other kinds of roses in a bed especially devoted to this flower.

To keep the roses in peak condition. Sturley sprays them every 10 to 14 days with Orthinex to control insects and fungal diseases; Kelthene for spi-

"You cannot grow roses without spraying," she said, so she does follow a Tall phlox came from her grandmother's garden, which she separates to open them up to control mildew. Another phlox (Stolenifera) is a ground cover. The bergamot is "cut down when it gets ratty."

Unusual plants grace the gardens and all of them are sited to perform well in a particular situation. A moist area with high shade contains turtle head (Chelone), monkshood, toad lily (Tricyrtis), corydalis, monkey plant, Lewisia, nemophila and mallow, "Buffalo Rose," which covers the forgetme-not as it dies. This is one of several micro-climates used to perfection. Another contains ferns and hostas.

Four small ponds terrace from the back porch to a woods and are visually connected with colorful paintings. Primulas, St. John's wort, sedums and other suitable plants abound while water lilies bloom on the ponds. A deck abuts the lower pond and provides a restful spot. Dragonflies and humming birds are frequent visitors. Orchids live in the attached greenhouse along with some of the plants that she brings in from the garden for

Sturley waters the gardens only when it is absolutely necessary. A well-composted rich manure mulch was dug at least one foot deep into the clay soil for the rose bed and the other beds were enriched with lots of compost from the enormous compost pile. Everything from the garden, vegetable and fruit peelings keep it "cooking." Fetrell products (a natural product that has many formulas and is suitable for any soil situation) is applied in late spring and fall. Leaves from the many trees control weeds, hold in moisture and add

Creative gardens

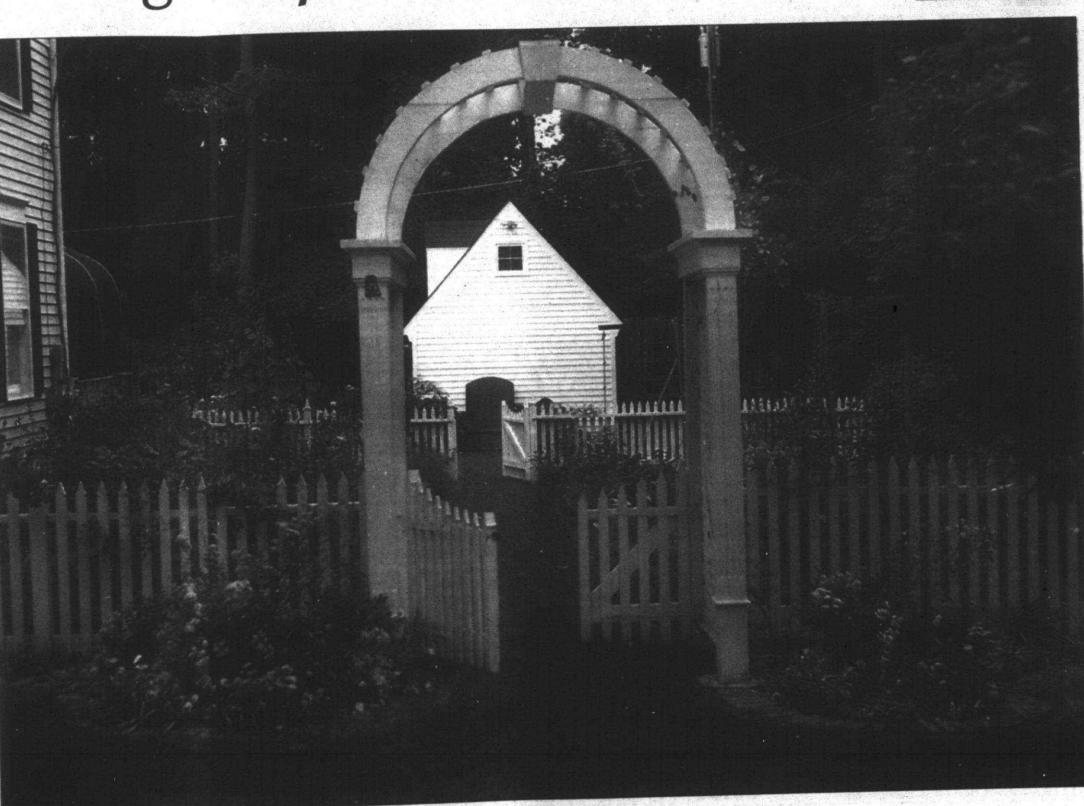

A healthy garden demonstrates environmentally sound practices and this tour showcases the fact that beautiful. creative gardens can be the result.

Three Birmingham gardens are included in the North cluster of the tour. One, 100 percent organic, is on the National Wildlife Federation's registry and contains a large pond; another contains lawn paths that wind through the plantings (many ideas here), while another features many planters and sculptures with the plants leaving little room for grass.

Three Troy gardens round out the tour. In the first you'll find companion planting that demonstrates integrated past management; while yellow and orange, blue and purple, and red and blue annuals and perennials grow in sandy soil that has been amended with compost and mulch. The owners raise butterflies and provide special food for them. A backyard wildlife features plants that will entice wildlife to suburban properties. Native and non-native species grow here.

Other geographical clusters are: South area (Royal Oak, Ferndale, Pleasant Ridge), St. Clair Shores (hosted by the Yardeners), Northwest Detroit (North Rosedale Park, Rosedale Park, Grandmont) and Southwest Detroit (Corktown area).

The tour is funded through a grant from the Michigan Department of Agriculture under the Groundwater and Freshwater Protection Act and the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Proceeds benefit the SOCRRA Native Woodland

The rule of thumb, MARTY according to Ann FIGLEY Cline, president of the Iris Club of Southeast

Michigan, is to divide the plants a month after bloom is finished, which can be from July through September, depending on the variety.

"If it's very hot (90 degrees) for a while, wait until the temperature comes down," she said.

Discard the old central parts of the rhizomes and replant the younger outer parts. Dig a deep hole and make a mound of soil (level with the surrounding soil) in the center, set the rhizome horizontally on top of the mound and spread the roots down over it. Since irises increase off the back of the rhizome, position the front (the toe) away from the area you wish to have plants, for example toward the border edge to allow room for the increase toward the and water thoroughly. No additional water will be needed, unless we have another unusually dry period. Space tall bearded irises two to 2-1/2 feet apart, standard dwarfs 18 inches apart and miniature dwarfs eight inches apart.

These lovely plants, which have played an important part in the world of gardeners and artists for centuries, have two requirements: sun, at least six hours per day, and good drainage. Although they do like a rich organic soil, they will perform with moderate fertili-

Tall bearded irises are the best known and most widely grown, but there are others you may wish to grow. Irises are divided into classes: bearded, peardless, intermediate, Dutch, dwarf, Spuria, Siberian or Japanese types, with Spuria and Siberian being the har-

If you are familiar with the nomenc lature of irises, the task of choosing them for your garden will be easier. The ost petal-like structures are called "style branches." The upright petals are "standards." The three outer parts of the flower, the sepais, are 'falls," which usually curve or droop downward. The bearded or pogon sec tion (a strip of hairy growth on the "fall") gives this particular iris its ancient mythology, iris, symbolizing the rainbow, is sometimes referred to as the "goddess of the rainbow," but she just wasn't that important. She was the messenger and personal attendant of

In earlier times, these plants were also known as "flags" or flower-de-luces. One such iris bloomed in a shade of gray-white, from which the fragrant powder orris root is derived. Orris root is used as a fixative in potpourri mixtures. It was known as I. florentina (Florentine iris). There were other varieties of this plant.

European forms, which had huge flo-wers and tall stems, were crossed with these old kinds and now there are innumerable varieties available.

Although I regret not having seen it, Marie Quester of Livonia called earlier in the season and said she had an iris that had grown four feet tall. It must have been a sight to see!

"My sister-in-law gave me the plant three years ago and told me it was very special," she told me. "It did nothing the first year, then the second year it

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Continue removing spent blooms of annuals to prolong their blooming peri-
- If you are rooting cuttings of plants with long or large leaves, cut off as much as half of the leaf so there is room for more cuttings. Remove lower leaves
- Aphids may "skiddadle" if they are sprayed twice a day until they are gone. Use a solution of soapy water (a non detergent soap). Wet the aphids thoroughly. Or try one tablespoon dishwashing detergent and 14 cup Murphy's Oil Soap liquid in one gallon warm water

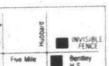

Illis blooms have a particularly unusual color quality that changes under different light intensity and positions. This quality has given us the adjective 'Iridescent.'

- Be ready to pinch tips of leafy shoots to control growth, but not until after
- If you have sunk pots into the ground, check to be sure roots aren't escaping from the bottom hole. Cut them away, turn for even development.
- Study and observe trees where they are growing to help make a proper selection when planting time arrives this

Writer tries cooking, then eating insects

Have you ever tried eating insects? Other than the occasiona one that you inhale accidentally, or the one that gets between the teeth of the happy Honda rider. We just might be missing something. One of the most abundant sources of food during summer is insects. Summer is their season. They like the warmth of the long summer daylight periods and the lush green plants.

Numerous animals rely on this constant, adundant and reliable source of food. Many birds eat insects, like flycatchers, warbiers and thrushes. In fact, typically seed eating birds like cardinals, feed their young nestlings insects because they are more nutritious. Insects as food is one reason migratory birds return from the tropics each spring. Less competition is another very good reason.

Mammals, like bats and shrews, will eat their share of insects. And lots of other insects eat insects - wasps and ornets are good examples.

Actually 80 percent of the world's uman population eats insects. Europe and America are the two major areas that do not eat insects. If so many people and animals eat insects, can they be

Well, recently I decided to try some insects as food to see what 80 percent of the world's population finds so appealing. I got some directions for preparing insects, and some recipes for cooking them from Dick Taylor, a retired entomologist. After looking through my choices. I decided to prepare some crickets and some mealworms.

Both these insects are available in pet stores so they were easy to obtain. Preparing them for cooking involved removing the legs, wings, antennae and ovipositor on the crickets. This preparation was done after the crickets had been frozen. Nothing had to be done with the mealworms.

All the insects were washed and then roasted. Roasting until they were firm and almost crispy did not take long, probably less than ten minutes. Then I chose two methods of preparation, saute in garlic butter and dipped in chocolate. Both methods for both insects were very palatable, but my preference was the garlic butter technique.

Americans brought with them their aversion to eating insects, but if prepared properly they are not as distasteful as your imagination would think.

The nationwide study sampled 1,000 consumers to gather information about who owns computers and who plans to buy one. The margin of error in the survey was plus or minus three percent.

This latest survey indicates that the computer — through the Internet — is becoming the medium of media. It is the only one of its type, capable of delivering information in print, graphics and video format," says Gerald Lundy, executive vice president of Casey Com-munications/Shandwick.

Here are the survey findings:

Who owns computers? - Many more younger men and women own comput-ers. — College educated people are more likely to own computers. publican and partisan "Independents" own more computers than Democrats. Computer ownership is higher among those who are pro-choice on abortion. — Catholics and those with-out stated religious preference own more computers than Protestants.

Households with children own many more computers. - More people with higher incomes (over $60,000) own computers. - Residents of Western, Pacific and Northeastern states show greater computer ownership. Who plans to buy a computer?

Among the 54 percent of all survey respondents who said they did not own a computer, 17 percent said they intended to buy one within the next year.

If these respondents are true to their word, computer ownership will increase from 46 to 56 percent of all households in the next year. Another 2 percent said someone else in the household would purchase a computer. Who uses on-line services and why?

The zither is a modern day version of the 15th century psaltery, which sorang from the santir, a 14th/15th century version of what later became the plane. It falls into the chordophone family of instruments in which sound is made by the vibration of strings. The zither is one of five instruments failing into that group, the other four being the harp, lyre, bow and lute.

NVITING IDEAS

Don't cut the mustard; experiment with it

l bet you didn't know: the month of August has its very own National Mustard Day. that there is an actual museum in Wisconsin devoted to mustard -1.652 kinds, that you can buy a periodical twice a year called "The Proper Mustard" motto is "yellow journalism at its best" (1-800-GET-MUST) - or that our very own Michigan Mucky Duck Mustard folks took this year's Silver Medal in The World Championship of Mustard - hot and sweet category in Napa Val-

Mucky Duck Mustard founded in 1983, originated as a family recipe and was dubbed Mucky Duck while the Marshall's British friends were visiting and discussing pub names having local cheeky add-ons — namely, The Black Swan fondly called, the Mucky Duck.

Mustard has been around for thousands of years and grows wild and isn't, it can easily be propagated by tossing out a handful of tiny seeds. Make sure you want it before you start tossing - these weedy leaved greens are hard to get rid of once there. The very young leaves of white or black mustard plants are pungently edible, but the brown mustard plant leaves are often cultivated for "a mess of Southern - a potherb that finds its famiroots with those of the cabbage clan.

Processed mustard comes from the seeds - white or brown. Black mustard seeds are often used in Indian cooking. Plain ground mustard seed (mustard powder) has little aroma. Character develops when water, wine, vinegar or other liquids are added. Supermarkets and specialty food shops are loaded with varieties of prepared mustards from all over the world - sweet to fiery hot, fighting for shelf space.

Experiment with mustard, try mak ing your own.

To learn a new word or a new idea. Kassner advises, draw on your "associ-ation bubble," the sum total of your knowledge and experience. Then use your imagination. The more zany or outrageous the association, the easier it will be to remember. For instance, to recall that FE is the chemical symbol for iron, make up a silly sentence such as We'll iron your clothes for a fee."

Association and imagination logically lead to the third activity, and that is involvement. The more involved we are in the learning process, Kassner reminds us, the better the result. Mimic the teacher when he or she lectures (silently, of course); to reinforce the words, imagine pictures over the teacher's

He either confirms Kassner's insights and instructions, or chides her, as when she lapses into unnecessary jargon: "Keep it simple, Kimberly, so the readers (that's you adults, too) can understand it."

As students and teachers prepare for the coming academic year, many perform an annual ritual called "shopping for school." It would be nice if their purchases could include a fresh mindset, a brand-new attitude toward teaching and learning. Kimberly Kassner's book may not convert students into budding geniuses - at least not overnight - but it will help them begin tapping the mind power they do have, so that one day they can reach for "the impossible . . . something (they) have never done before."

The Classic Car Club of America defines a classic car as one built between 1925 and 1948. "They are the more expensive, unusual, luxury cars of the period - Cadillac, Packard, Rolls. There's quite a list. Also some less expensive cars such as Auburn, Pierce Arrow, Cord," said Brian Joseph, owner of Classic and Exotic Service in Troy which repairs and restores these cars.

This Sunday more than 300 of these cars will be on display at the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance, one of the three most prestigious concours events in the world. The other two are the Concours at Bagatelle in Paris, France, and at Pebble Beach in California.

These long, richly appointed vehicles with their behemoth engines immediately draw oohs and ahhs from anyone who sees them. They speak of the style of another time and the wealth that could afford that style.

"Cars were being built with little regard to cost. They were interested in building quality vehicles. A lot of them have interesting, unique engineering, Joseph said. "There were cars for the many and cars for the few with money to squander.

Don Sommer, founder of the Concours in 1979 and a supplier and builder of parts for classic cars, said the Golden Age defined by the Classic Car Club was an age of innovation in styling and engineering. "There was a drab period between 1912 and 1920. Then auto companies found that styling created obsolescence, which created excitement for new products," said Sommer of Troy.

During the classic period, a car buyer would often buy the chassis from the automobile company and then a body rom a coach maker.

"There were a lot of custom coach ouilders. You could buy a chassis and contract with a body builder and have it built anyway you wanted," said Joseph. They ended up being unique.'

"Also if you were to buy a run of the mill Fleetwood Cadillac, they (Cadillac) what you wanted." When selecting cars for the Concours these features are important.

"We're looking for something unique with a lot of pizzazz to it," said Sommer, chairman of this year's selection committee. "But this is really about cars and people. We want to get exciting people to come to the show.'

Featured vehicles this year are Ger man cars, notably a 1930 Mercedes-Benz "Count Trossi" SSK owned by Ralph Lauren and a 1938 Adler Lemans Speedster. Adler, which is German for eagle, was a 1930s' marque noted for engineering advances. Also the English sports cars built by Morgan will be fea-

American cars will also be well represented including a 1936 Duesenberg SSJ Bobtailed Speedster built specially for Clark Gable. Only one other was made, for Gary Cooper.

Sommer, 62, said he began collecting cars when he was 9 years old and has been in the hobby "forever."

"I'm partial to Packards Chryslers, post war convertibles. You relate to cars that were popular when you were a kid. I grew up on a farm and didn't see Packards or Duesenbergs, mostly Model A's," Sommer said.

"Packards had a long, lean, racy look and a smooth engine.'

Joseph's favorite is a 1928 Duesen berg with a double cam supercharged engine with 320 horsepower.

"It was the most impressive car built America," Joseph said.

Joseph, who has been restoring cars for 20 years, said his interest is primarily in mechanics.

The first place I worked, the first thing I did was work on a Duesenberg. It was the most expensive car in America. They sold the chassis, the body was more. . . . A finished car would cost $12,000 in 1979. Today they bring $400,000 to $1.5 million," Joseph said.

Elegant, personally styled bodies; interiors of burled wood, soft, tufted leather and tapestry designs; powerful, complex, aluminum engines that glisten in the sun are all the elements of classic car design. They define an era, they echo the design ideas of the late '20s and '30s and also inspired them. At Meadow Brook all this beauty comes

Contact the club before you're hit by flying golf balls

On the golf course abutting our condominium project, frequently there are errant balls that are hit accidentally into our condominium and, in some instances, have caused damage to the units. The golf club is privately owned. Do we, as an association, or do any individual co-owners, have any cause of action against the golf club?

This is, of course, a very difficult ROSERT M.

question because presumably the purchasers of condominiums in the project knew that they were buying on a golf course and that there was a likelihood that errant golf balls would traverse their property. However, I still believe that there is a property. However, I still believe that there is a responsibility on the part of the golfers and/or of the club to ensure, within reason, the security and safety of the neighbors and their real property.

To the extent that you can establish that the golf club has not taken reasonable steps to avoid damage to person or property, it may be liable. Obviously, someone who hits a golf ball that injures someone else outside of the golf course may also be personally liable.

As a practical matter, I would have the association contact the golf club and consequently, the golf clubs members, in an effort to alert them to the problem, to the extent that that has not already been done, and ask for whatever cooperation is necessary in order to attempt to eliminate the problem.

I have read recently about various embezzle-ments of condominium association money by management companies in various locales. Do you have any information on that?

Yes. Unfortunately, there is a major indictment of a number of management companies in the Manhattan, N.Y. area which is being processed. Also, in the Com-mon Ground magazine of November/December 1994, there is reference to a Laguna Niguel, California, property manager who was arrested in August and charged with embezzling $340,000 from two home-

Apparently, it is alleged that the managing agent began stealing money by forging names on bank sig-nature cards and creating secret bank accounts in the names of the condominium associations.

He then allegedly transferred money to a bank where his own name was on the signature cards. He would request a cashier's check from an association account; when he obtained it, he would present a withdrawal slip with two forged signatures that matched the forged signature cards. Afterwards, he would deposit the cashier's check into an account that he created.

The investigators claim that the managing agent avoided detection by creating phony vendor invoices that made it appear that the money was used for valid expenditures. This is similar to the allegations made against various managers in New York.

Obviously, condominium associations should take precautions to protect their money through a proper checks and balances system.

This is the fifth in a series of seven presentations hosted in Detroit by Paint The Town in partnership with the Fellowship Nonprofit Housing Corporation and the Beniteau-Lillibridge-LeMay Association.

Paint the Town recipients are strongly encouraged to attend, and workshops are open to the public as well.

"The goal of this particular workshop is to give the attendee a greater awareness of the financial tools available to them. It's ideal for individuals who are interested in becoming first time homeowners, as well as for those who may want to refinance, or invest in rental property," said Glorianne Hymon, Fellowship Community neighborhood representative and Paint The Town board member. Representa tives from Comerica Bank, First of America, First Federal of Michigan, First Independence, First Nationwide Bank, Michigan National Bank, NBD Bank and Standard Federal Bank will share information about their mortgage products, in addition to covering basic information relating to credit, budgeting, pre-qualifying, the benefits of house ownership, and the application and closing process-

Rob Dewaelsche, Education Committee cochairman and Comerica Bank community affairs officer, said: "The success of our new education programs has exceeded our expectations. We've had excellent response from the community and are looking forward to the Community Homebuyers Forum as our most successful workshop to date."

Paint The Town is a volunteer effort to paint and repair owner-occupied houses of senior citizens, low-income and disabled residents in the metropolitan Detroit area. It was founded in 1988 by NBD Bank Vice President Mary E. Kennedy, who promised her grandmother that she would do everything possible to help senior citizens continue to live in their houses independently. In 1994, nearly 10,000 volunteers and a host of corporate sponsors

NBD announces new fee system

NBD Bancorp has introduced "relationship pricing," an enhanced fee waiver system through which customers' monthly checking fees will be waived based on the balances in their loan accounts as well as their deposit accounts.

If a customer's deposit and loan account balances meet a total relationship balance requirement, NBD will waive his or her monthly checking account fees.

The change to relationship pricing takes effect automatically with the first statement period beginning on or after Aug. 1 for all NBD customers with regular and interest checking accounts.

This includes customers of NBD banks in Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

"While some banks offer this type of relationship pricing to targeted customers only, NBD is offering it broadly to all of our regular and interest checking account customers," said NBD Vice President Robert Hobbs in a press re-

Hobbs said approximately 35,000 NBD checking account customers across the five states will see their fees waived automatically with their first statements in September.

NBD will now consider the balances in the following eligible NBD accounts:

Deposit accounts: certificates of deposit, IRAs (except self directed), money market accounts and savings.

Loan/Credit Accounts: consumer loans (excluding mortgages), credit lines, (checking, personal, home equity), credit cards.

Judge rejects DSS guardian fee policy

Judge Richard C. Kaufman of Wayne County Circuit Court last week struck down the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) policy change that limits to $60 per month the amount Medicaid recipients could spend on guardian services.

Judge Kaufman also reinstated

Judge Kaufman also reinstated a rule allowing Probate Courtjudges to award reasonable guardian fees based on clients' specific needs and the services provided.

Medicaid pays most of the cost of number and the services provided.

Medicaid pays most of the cost of nursing home care for indigent people. Professional guardians are appointed by Probate Court for Medicaid recipients when they are incapable of making their own decisions and have no competent adult willing to take responsibility for them.

ty for them.

Guardians are responsible for making medical decisions for their clients. They also monitor their clients' care programs, pay their bills, provide hasic necessities like clothing, visit clients regularly, and generally serve as surrogate family members.

The DSS nolicy change, made

The DSS policy change, made in October 1994, prompted a law-go Richard C. Kaufman of suit on behalf of all adult, legally incapacitated Medicaid recipients who reside in institutions.

The suit was filed by Allied Health Management Associates Inc. (AHMA) of West Bloomfield, a company that provides care management, guardian, and facility placement services.

"The $60 per month cap would have deprived many legally incapacitated Medicaid recipients in nursing homes of their right to have their medical and basic personal needs met in a caring and dignified fashion," according to Steven Siporin, director of AHMA, who researched and initiated this action.

In Goulson vs. Michigan Department of Social Services, Judge Kaufman held that the DSS failed to follow procedures as required by the Michigan Administration of the Procedure Act.

required by the michigan istrative Procedures Act.

The judge also ruled that the DSS violated federal law when it failed to consult the Michigan Medical Care Advisory Committee, a panel of consumer and provider representatives, prior to adopting the policy change.

Observer redesigns newsboxes

Madonna University offers master's program in China

Madonna University and the Zhuhai Association for International Exchange of Personnel have signed an agreement for the establishment of a master's degree program to be offered in Guangdong Province, People's Republic of China.

Also signing the agreement was American Three West International, Los Angeles, Calif., which will serve as a liaison between Madonna and the Zhuhai International Human Resources Exchange Center.

The 20-month program will be available for a class of 15 to 45 students and will lead to a master of science in administration degree with a specialty in business administration.

The students will attend classes for four terms in China and two terms on the Madonna campus in Livonia. To qualify for admittance, the students must have completed a baccalaureate degree and appropriate work experience.

Scheduled to begin in November, the program's emphasis is on leadership and management and will include such courses as Future Society and Leadership, Information Systems for Managers, Change Management, Strategic Planning, Management Skill Devel-opment, and Ethical Considerations in Leadership.

Students will visit the Madonna campus to complete their course work in the winter and spring terms of 1997.

"Our faculty have international experience partially due to the master's program we have offered in Taiwan over the past six years," said Charlotte Neuhauser, dean, school of business, in a press release. "It was because of the Taiwan program that American Three West Internations approached us.

They had heard it was a quality program and visited us to learn more about our university.

Neuhauser added that teaching the students in Guangdong Province will provide increase opportunities for faculty professional development and will enhance cultural links for the students and Madonna. She said that 88 percent of the full-time faculty in the school of business have taught and studied in Europe and Asia within the past five years.

Madonna University is the largest Catholic Franciscan university in the United States. Academics combine a liberal arta foundation with career preparation in more than 50 undergraduate majors. The graduate studies program features concentrations in business, education and nursing. The university is located at I-96 and Levan Road

Only 16 detached units — each two-story with basement or walkout - will arise on the 41/2-acre site at the Ann Arbor Road-Canton Center Road intersection.

Each will contain about 1,820 square feet of living space not in-cluding an unfinished basement.

The master suite and laundry on all four basic floor plans are on the main floor. Other standard elements include attached two-car garage, fireplace, air conditioning, dishwasher and a deck.

Base price is $198,900 for three bedrooms, 21/2 baths and regular basement, $215,900 for three bedrooms, 21/2 baths with walk-out.

"I love the city of Plymouth, first of all, and my son wants to go to Plymouth High School. He has friends here," she said.

"I like the peace and quiet most of all," Sayegh said. "I love the lush trees.

Eric and Mary Childs, longtime Plymouth residents, relocated to Arbor Park so Mary wouldn't have to walk up and down so many steps.

Home sales stay strong in every region of U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fresh reports show the economy growing moderately without stirring inflation. Existing-home sales rose in June for a second straight month and employment costs increased at the slowest pace on record.

The reports came last week as a new survey showed a rebound in consumer confidence in the economy in July that included expanded plans to purchase homes and cars.

In June, sales of previously owned homes jumped 6.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.78 million, highest since a 3.82 million rate last October, the National Association of Realtors reported. At the same time, the Labor Department said its Employment Cost Index advanced just 2.9 percent in the year ended in June, matching the smallest gain since the series began in 1981.

The reports fueled the stock market, with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining 45.78 points to close at 4714.45. The bond market, after initially falling on the news, recovered and posted a slight gain. The Employment Cost Index, which measures growth in Americans' wages, salaries and benefits, also had risen 2.9 percent in the year ended in

"The performance of the ECI points to something different about this (business) cycle," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co. "Inflation remains dormant in the fifth year of an expansion," he added. "Indeed, the second quarter performance represented both the low for the current cycle and the low for the history of the ECI."

The index is considered one of the best gauges of inflation pressures, since employee compensation represents about two-thirds of the cost of a product. But Labor Secretary Robert Reich called the anemic compensation growth a "large cloud in an otherwise blue sky" and something that will eventually come to haunt employers.

corporate profits, not workers' pockets," he reached 102.0 in May. said in an interview. "Workers are consumers.

paychecks are dropping.

The Labor report showed that wages and salaries, nearly three-fourths of total compensation, rose 3.0 percent in the year ended June 30, the same rate of growth in the 12 months that ended March 31. Wages and salaries thus failed to keep up with the annualized 3.2 per-cent increase in the Consumer Price Index through the first six months of this year.

The cost of benefits, such as health care and pensions, increased 2.7 percent, slower than the 2.8 percent during the year ended in March and the smallest advance since this series began in 1982.

The June increase in sales of existing homes was the second monthly advance after rising 4.7 percent in May, to a 3.55 million rate, the real estate group reported. Still, sales in June were 5.7 percent below the same month a year ago, the result of slower job and income growth and higher mortgage rates ear-

Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. surveys show that 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.53 percent in June, down from 7.91 percent in May and 9.15 percent in January. That helped make homes more affordable. The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $805 - a difference of $106.

The median price of an existing home in June was little changed $115,900, up 2.3 percent from $113,300 a year earlier. The median is the midpoint, meaning half the homes cost more and half cost less.

Regionally, sales shot up 9.6 percent in the Northeast, to a 570,000 annual rate. They rose 7 percent in the West, to 760,000. They were up 5.8 percent in the South, to 1.45 million, and 5.3 percent in the Midwest, to 1.0 million. Meanwhile, the Conference Board's consumer confidence index, based on a monthly survey of 5,000 U.S. households, rose to 99.9 "Productivity improvements are going into in July from 94.6 in June. The index had

"While consumer confidence declined in At some point, American workers won't have June, the current reading is at a reassuringly enough money in their pockets to buy all of strong level," said Fabian Linden, director of the goods and services they are producing.
"The lack of inflation obviously is a plus for all Americans," Reich added. "But it's diffihealth of the U.S. economy."

Area banks will explain mortgage services at forum

Representatives from eight Detroit-area financial institutions will present a Community Homebuyers Forum on Tuesday, Aug. 8, from 6-8 p.m. at the Greater Christ Baptist Church, 3544 Iroquois at Mack Avenue, as part of a series of workshops sponsored by Paint The Town.

This is the fifth in a series of seven presentations hosted in Detroit by Paint The Town in partnership with the Fellowship Nonprofit Housing Corporation and the Beniteau-Lillioridge-LeMay Association.

Paint the Town recipients are strongly encouraged to attend, and workshops are open to

"The goal of this particular workshop is to give the attendee a greater awareness of the financial tools available to them. It's ideal for individuals who are interested in becoming first time homeowners, as well as for those who may want to refinance, or invest in rental property, said Glorianne Hymon, Fellowship ional Bank, NBD Bank and Standard Feder-

Paint The Town board member. Representa-tives from Comerica Bank, First of America, First Federal of Michigan, First Independ-ence, First Nationwide Bank, Michigan Naal Bank will share information about their mortgage products, in addition to covering ba-sic information relating to credit, budgeting, pre-qualifying, the benefits of home owner-ship, and the application and closing process-

Rob Dewaelsche, Education Committee cochairman and Comerica Bank community af-fairs officer, said: "The success of our new ed-ucation programs has exceeded our expectations. We've had excellent response from the community and are looking forward to the Community Homebuyers Forum as our most successful workshop to date."

Paint The Town is a volunteer effort to paint and repair owner- occupied homes of senior citizens, low-income and disabled residents in the metropolitan Detroit area. It was founded in 1988 by NBD Bank Vice President Mary E. Kennedy, who promised her grandmother that she would do everything possible to help senior citizens continue to live in their homes independently.
