Tax hike unlikely in township

Canton Township will officially set its property tax rate at a Sept. 12 public hearing. However, chances are that the rate won't be going up. The only increase in taxes would be due to increased home values.

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Taxes in Canton Township won't be going up.

That was the message on Tuesday when the Canton Township board set a tentative millage — property tax — rate to pay for government operations in 1996.

"The maximum rate will be the same as last year," Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor, told the board.

The money raised by the property taxes on homes and businesses in Canton pays for police and fire protection, along with other government services.

Canton spends about $20 million on those services annually, with an average increase of about 2.5 percent each year, according to Ken Voyles, a township spokesman.

School taxes are paid on top of the township tax bill. The Plymouth-Canton schools have an annual budget of about $90 million.

A public hearing on the township tax rate will be 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 12, at the Canton Township Hall. The hearing is required by state law.

The total rate is 9.3523 mills, the same as it was last year, said Yack.

"These are the maximum rates we would have to go to," he said, and added that township residents will be mailed a notification of the public hearing on Aug. 25.

The breakdown is: 3.0915 for fire protection, 5.1508 for police and 1.11 for the general fund. The police and fire millages were approved by voters in 1976 and 1977 and can't be

Youth gets new lungs

Greg Unger was ready for his double-lung transplant early Sunday morning.

"He was the calmest of all of us," said his dad, Bill Unger, who called from St. Louis Children's Hospital where Greg underwent the transplant. "He said he was ready for it."

The transplant came exactly one month to the day after the Ungers moved from Canton to St. Louis to wait for a phone call that it was Greg's turn for new lungs. Fund-raisers have been held in Plymouth and Canton to help.

Greg has battled cystic fibrosis since he was diagnosed at 6 months of age. Cystic fibrosis is a genetic disease that primarily attacks the respiratory and digestive systems. The disease produces an abnormal accumulation of mucus in the lungs and other organs that can suffocate and starve the victim.

"He is holding his own. We have passed the critical 48-hour period," Unger said of Greg Tuesday morning.

The transplant came just a few days before his 15th birthday Aug. 9. A family friend asked all his supporters in the Detroit area to send birthday and best wishes to Greg at 10330 Oxford Hills Drive, Apt. 8, St. Louis, Mo. 63146.

The call saying the transplant was a go came about midnight Saturday, Aug. 5. A call also went out to Greg's older brother, Chris, and his

Computer helps make home buying easier

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

When you build a house, there are tough choices to make. How do you decide which brick matches which siding, roof shingles and shutters? And then there's the front door — what color should that be?

Builders Jason Lewiston and Eddie Crescentini of Lewiston-Crescentini Homes have come up with help for the new home buyer — an interactive computer program that helps you make those decisions that can keep you up nights.

"You don't have to guess or wonder what the house will look like," said Crescentini, vice president of Lewiston-Crescentini Homes.

By simply touching the screen of a computer — there's no keyboard — in their model home and sales office in Fairways at Pheasant Run, buyers can see which of the nine floor plans and 24 elevations they like, as well as choose colors of brick, siding, front door, shutters and roof shingles.

Buyers have a choice of ranches, Cape Cods and colonials. They can experiment and instantly change their choices to create their dream houses, said Lewiston, company president.

But there's more. By again touching the screen, buyers can figure out the costs for each of the options they want, lot premiums, elevations and

Chamber seeks data on Willow Run proposal

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton Chamber of Commerce officials want to know more about the proposed Willow Run Airport expansion and plans for an international cargo facility. Until they get it, they can't support the project.

"We feel if we are going to support it or not support it, we want more facts," said Janet Volante of First of America Bank, chamber president. "We are concerned about the quality of life. The chamber board of directors feels we don't have enough information on the tradeport and expansion to take a level-headed stance one way or another."

The chamber board of directors issued a statement, based on a recommendation from the chamber's government relations committee, that says it must reserve any support for the project, "pending further information, and at this point, to take a negative stance should this matter be presented for final decision before additional information is provided."

Volante and chamber Executive Director Linda Shapona said that chamber officials may issue another recommendation if information comes their way that allows them to make an informed decision.

"We have requested information from various places," Volante said, adding that little information has been forthcoming.

Plans call for extending one of five Willow Run runways from 7,000 to 10,500 feet to allow 747 jets loaded with cargo to land and take off. The extended runway would be about one mile from Canton. But concerned citizens who have studied Willow Run flight paths say cargo planes will fly over the Plymouths, Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Novi and the Northvilles.

Willow Run expansion would allow the airport to serve as an international cargo facility, boosted by automakers, who plan to include the empty Willow Run GM plant.

Project planners are currently having an environmental assessment conducted for the project to determine if further investigation of how plans would affect the surrounding areas and populations is needed.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack has requested a more formal and extensive environmental impact statement. He said he is unaware if Willow Run project advocates and planners have responded to the request.

Canton Clerk Terry Bennett currently sits as a nonvoting member of the Willow Run Task Force, while township officials hired attorney and former Metro Airport noise czar Bryan Amann to represent the community's interests. Amann could not be reached for comment.

Yack said township officials are waiting to take an official position on the Willow Run plans. Like the chamber of commerce and residents, township officials are waiting for more information.

"I think a logical time to take a position is after the environmental impact statement is done," Yack said. "We absolutely want one."

Students to move into vacant school

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton will have another school sometime in January, when the Agape Christian Center of Plymouth will move its middle school and high school students into a vacant, former school building on Geddes Road.

"The building is in such bad repair now," said Pastor Mark Moore of the church on Ann Arbor Trail. "We will be making improvements to the property. That building has been vacant for three years. So much has developed south of Ford Road that we are looking forward to it."

Canton planning commissioners Monday recommended approval of a site plan and special land use for the center to refurbish and occupy the vacant building on the south side of Geddes, between Canton Center and Sheldon roads.

"They intend to bring up the building to current code standards," said Canton planner Angela Wolosiewicz. Upgrades will target the landscaping, parking and fire safety devices. The building also will be repainted.

Approximately 70 students will be moved from the cramped school on Ann Arbor Trail. "We are landlocked where we are now," Moore said. Many of the church members are Canton residents.

The Agape school is 14 years old and has had four graduating classes. Plans for the Canton building that is about 15,000 square-feet include expansion.

"With regard to the soccer field, we are looking at submitting a site plan in a year and for future buildings in about two years," said Richard Scramstead, who represented the church before the Planning Commission Monday.

Plans also include using the gym in the Canton building for worship services on Saturdays, Moore said.

"It would be nice to see that place blossom," said Vic Gustafson, Planning Commission chairman.

High-tech education fills students' summer

BY M.B. DILLON

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Helping hand: Charlie Jones is helping Canton students in the computer lab.

Joel Tefft, 11, of Canton is producing a video about the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building, replete with a miniature re-enactment of the explosion. He plans to use a model building, and a toy truck loaded with "tiny explosives."

"I'm going to tell how it distracted different people's lives in the area, and how it affected most of America," said the Hoben Elementary School sixth-grader. "I will pretend I'm a newscaster and do a newscast, and try to figure out what kind of explosives they did it with."

With 11 other students from Plymouth and Canton, Joel is enrolled in the weeklong "Technology Academy," a new course for middle school students being offered at Salem High School this summer.

Chris Lamar, 12, of Plymouth Township is doing his video project on space travel. "I like the idea of going to new places and finding out new things. I will probably take some still-shot pictures from books and video tapes," the West Middle School student said. "It will also be me talking."

Oliver Wolcott, 12, of Plymouth said his video "will be about smoking and the dangers of it. I decided it would be an interesting topic with all the smoking going on. I'll have pictures of people smoking and some actual live footage of people smoking, and me talking, and showing cigarettes," said the West Middle School student.

Instructor Charlie Jones is acquainting students with video and zap-shot cameras, video editing machines, computer on-line services including the Internet, lap-top computers, data bases, word processors, and electronic encyclopedias. "Kids are learning how to access the Canton Public Library card catalog from here, or from home if they have a computer and modem," he said. "They find it fascinating."

Jones and his assistant, Canton High School sophomore Jared Page, say the $50 class is more than just fun and games.

"Kids have to know not only how to push the buttons, but also how to use that technology to benefit whatever may come along in life," said Jones, Salem High School's library media specialist.

"To get into college," said Jared, "you have to be familiar with computers. This will fit into kids' portfolio. These kids are real good with computers and they enjoy it."

Nicolle Kownacki, 12, of Plymouth said the class is worthwhile. The seventh-grader from East Middle School said, "I think the class will help, because technology is becoming a big part of our world, and before I didn't know much about it."

Classmate Carol Liu, 11, of Canton attends Our Lady of Good Counsel. She said the class "is fun," plus it's a chance to meet new friends.

Joel Tefft says he plans to "show my brothers and sisters how to use these things, and see if they like it. I will recommend this class next year. It's pretty neat."

Summertime classes cover a little bit of everything

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The Technology Academy is just one of dozens of courses being offered as part of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' two-year-old Summer Academy.

Jeff Fordell heads up the program, which offers classes ranging from Phonics Phobia to Scientific Sleuths.

About 400 students are enrolled in the academy. Most offerings are MEAP-related classes. MEAP is the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test, mandatory for students throughout the state.

"The classes were identified and suggested by teachers as opportunities for parents to enroll students in enrichment or remediation classes in reading, writing, math, science, and study skills," said Fordell, who enrolled his two sons in summer classes.

Tuition ranges from $25 to $85, and fully covers the academy's costs, said Tom Tattan, executive director for instruction. "We provide help for students who may have financial difficulty," with the hope that students who scored poorly on the MEAP will enroll.

Some schools in the district offered tuition-free classes for "at-risk" students, paid for by the state.

So far, the academy has proved "very successful," with enrollment up considerably from last year, said Fordell. Among the most popular classes are Phonics Phobia, Reading Reinforcement and Math Lab.

A few difficulties arose with the summer program, Fordell said.

"Some parents didn't know about the program. We printed up a limited number of brochures and have them available in school offices. It would be helpful if parents watched for notification in the school newsletters when they come out. That way, many more families could be alerted as to when classes start up."

Other parents were under the impression that there wouldn't be room for their children in specific classes.

"Up until June 10, there were no staff dedicated to the Summer Academy. Forms were filled out by parents and just put into a box. Some parents felt like they weren't going to get their kids in.

"It's not the same process as in athletics," he said. "There was nearly always room, and if there wasn't, we offered another section of the same class, or something exactly like it," he said.

The district's Educational Excellence Foundation also funded academic camps this summer, Tattan said.

For more information on course offerings, call Fordell at 455-7583, or the E.J. McClendon Educational Center at 416-2701.

Court decision irks teachers

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Like their counterparts across the state, Plymouth-Canton teachers are less than happy with a Michigan Court of Appeals decision that they contend limits their collective bargaining rights.

The Michigan Education Association plans to appeal the case to the Michigan Supreme Court.

"The appeal will be filed by Friday," said Dawn Cooper, MEA director of communications. "We will seek a stay, pending a Supreme Court decision."

Chuck Portelli, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, takes issue with several provisions of Public Act 112, which the appellate court left largely intact. The law expands the prohibition against strikes by school employees, and limits the issues that can be bargained.

The MEA challenged its constitutionality after the act was signed into law by Gov. John Engler in May 1994.

According to the decision, teacher unions may no longer petition for a specific health care provider. Also off limits in negotiations is the starting day for the school year, and the required amount of pupil contact time.

Teachers no longer have a say in who is appointed to site-based decision-making bodies. Nor will they have a say in whether to allow intra-district open enrollment or grant contracts for public school academies.

Among other things, "This decision removes the right to bargain over insurance," said Portelli. "In the past, we bargained Delta Dental, and the types of provisions, as being among of the things we have to have.

■ Portelli also has problems with the decision to prohibit teachers from deciding who should serve on site-based decision-making committees.

"According to this, we can only specify the coverage, but not the holder. I think that should be decided at the local level. It's a local issue."

Portelli also takes exception to the union having no stake in deciding when school starts. "They can tell you now that it's June 19, Sept. 15, Aug. 8 or whatever the district establishes as a starting date. Does that make sense to you? I think we should mutually agree."

Portelli also has problems with the decision to prohibit teachers from deciding who should serve on site-based decision-making committees.

"That means they can appoint whomever they want on stakeholder committees. If we are going to mutually agree to improved schools, then we should determine who is going to be on that committee," said Portelli. "The PCEA should determine who the representatives are, not Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. We should be bargaining these things."

Julius Maddox, MEA president, said there were some bright spots in the court decision. "The lower court found two provisions of the act unconstitutional, including fines against school employee unions, as well as the automatic issuance of injunctions against striking unions without benefit of a hearing. These provisions remain stricken from the act, and this was an important win to us.

"A great concern to the MEA," Maddox added, "is that the Appeals Court left intact prohibitions to certain subjects of bargaining, such as the impact of privatization. The way Public Act 112 is presently constructed, an employer can summarily fire public school employees in a contracting-out situation, without having to bring the issue to the bargaining table.

"We recognize success in certain aspects of the ruling; however, to be perfectly honest, we had hoped for a more favorable overall decision on our issues," said Maddox.

The appeals court's unanimous decision upholds a Wayne County Circuit Court decision on amendments to the Public Employee Relations Act passed by the state Legislature in May.

In its decision, the appeals court said it is not "limiting the right of a public employee to the expression of a view, grievance, complaint or opinion.

"They may protest actions by the school district which they believe are unwise or illegal," the three-judge appellate panel said. "If they do so by legal means, their actions are protected. However, if they do so by illegal means, whether by trespass or whether by strike, they must face the consequences."

State champ: Sixteen-year-old Carrie Maki will go the the national competition for "Best Bagger" after trouncing 13 other competitors in the recent state grocery bagging competition.

Bagger's skills easy to see

She did it! Canton Kroger employee Carrie Maki will take her winning grocery bagging skills to the national competitions in Florida early next year.

Maki, 16, outbagged 13 opponents at the state championship — the Eighth Annual Michigan Grocers Association Best Bagger Contest — in Lansing on Aug. 2. Competitors ranged in age from 15 to 37, and all were local and regional champions like Maki.

"It's pretty cool. This is the first time I ever did this," said Maki, a Plymouth Canton High School student.

Maki will now represent Michigan at the National Grocers Association Best Bagger Contest in Orlando in February 1996. She walked away from the state competition with a $300 Lansing Mall shopping spree and a $500 Campbell Soup Company scholarship, as well as an all-expense-paid trip to Orlando for the national competition.

"I want to save it for when I go down to Florida," Maki said of her shopping spree. A CD player and clothes are on her shopping list.

Maki said she's grateful for the college scholarship. "I know for sure I'm going to college," she said, adding she will major in something to do with arts, drama and photography.

In the state competition, Maki earned 30 of a maximum 35 points. The judges who inspected the two paper bags of groceries she bagged reduced her score because of a lack of speed. But she still beat everyone else.

"I take my time instead of speeding. I want to get it right," Maki said.

After Maki had bagged the two bags, the judges took them and split them open to see how they were packed. Each contestant is required to bag a typical order of 40 or more grocery items, while being judged on speed; proper bag building technique; number of bags used per order; distribution of weight; and style, attitude and appearance. Each criteria has its own level of points.

"The Best Bagger Contest is great fun to watch, but it's also the culmination of a lot of hard work," said Linda Gobler, president of the Michigan Grocers Association. "Careful and efficient bagging is really a science."

In her other competitions, Maki bagged in plastic bags. The trick with plastic is to build walls and fill everything in the middle with the cans.

Before the state competition, Maki said paper bags are tougher. They already form the square — a foundation that baggers aim to achieve while packing groceries. Plus certain items, such as some cereal boxes, are bigger than the bottom of paper bags.

Maki previously took first place in the Kroger Company Michigan Marketing Area's 1995 Best Bagger Competition July 14. She also won her district and zone competitions, which helped her advance to the competition in Lansing.

Maki has worked at Kroger in the Harvard Square shopping center in Canton for almost a year. She was trained to bag groceries by other baggers in the store. One of her bosses asked her to join the competitions. "She asked a couple of us to do it," Maki said.

Hulsing parents weigh traffic concerns

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

Parents of Hulsing Elementary School students and residents in the Windsor Woods and Mayfair subdivisions are invited to a meeting to discuss traffic issues on Morton Taylor at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24.

At the meeting in the school gym/cafeteria, Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro is expected to discuss the thoroughfare's current 40 mph speed limit, as well as sidewalk construction and a traffic light, as suggested by parents earlier this summer.

The traffic order setting the 40 mph limit on Morton Taylor, Warren to Joy, has been controversial as Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson of Canton questioned Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara's signing of the order without consideration from county commissioners.

But parents are also interested in sidewalks or a traffic light to ensure their children's safety as they cross Morton Taylor to Hulsing.

According to Vicki Holland, Wayne County assistant engineer of traffic operations, the results of a traffic study on Morton Taylor show the 40 mph limit is realistic.

The traffic study was requested after the public safety department received 10-12 letters from concerned parents who requested a lower speed on the roadway.

The parents had expressed concern about the ability of the two crossing guards to stop traffic traveling 40 mph; the lack of plans for a traffic signal; the difficulty to cross the road after school hours when crossing guards are gone; the amount of traffic on the road now; the lack of sidewalks between Arlington and Candlewood; and the expected increase in traffic when Morton Taylor is extended south of Warren to Ford Road.

Wayne County staff also conducted a gap study, which involves determining how many gaps exist in traffic at a certain time of day and how much time is allowed for crossings in those gaps, according to Holland.

Holland also told parents earlier this summer that there is no need for a traffic light on Morton Taylor, based on traffic counts and other factors.

But Supervisor Tom Yack said in July that a traffic signal is a stronger possibility than sidewalks. A traffic light costs approximately $50,000, while sidewalks in the area would prove more costly at about $130,000 because of the need to cross a creek.

Arts council to sponsor show Sept. 9-10

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will sponsor its 24th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9-10, at the Central Middle School at Church and Main streets in Plymouth.

The hours are from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday and from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday. The cost is $2 for adults and $1 for senior citizens and students. Children are admitted free.

The show will be going on during Plymouth's annual Fall Festival, which is scheduled that same weekend in and around Kellogg Park.

More than 100 artisans from Michigan and surrounding states will display their oil paintings, watercolors, photography, dried flowers, jewelry, acrylics, calligraphy, sewn items and wood crafts. Also, some of the artisans at the juried show will be demonstrating their crafts.

The event is a fund-raiser for the arts council, which among its activites helps provide art education in the Plymouth-Canton schools.

changed. The only power the township has is the ability to increase the general fund millage. Under state law, Canton Township could levy up to 4.0985 for its charter millage.

The millage rate translates into an average township tax bill of $561 for the owner of a home valued at $60,000; $748 for the owner of a home valued at $80,000 and $935 for the owner of a home valued at $100,000. Homes are valued at one-half of their market value.

The nearly $20 million Canton budget breaks down to:

- Fire department, $4 million.
- Police department, $6.8 million.
- General fund, $8.9 million.

While those rates should be stable, Elaine Kirchgatter, township treasurer, interjected a note of caution, saying: "Our comments could be a bit premature. The final setting of rates will be done on Sept. 12."

Busy place: Production Manager Jim Jimmerson said today's papers contain 3.2 million inserts. The mailroom at the production plant in Livonia is a busy place.

Ad volume to delay Observer delivery

An increase in the volume of advertising inserts may result in your hometown Observer being delivered on Friday instead of Thursday.

At least three Observer newspapers were expected at press time to be delivered Friday instead of Thursday because the Detroit Newspapers strike has brought a huge increase in advertisers to the Observer.

Production Manager Jim Jimmerson said that the Redford, Garden City and Westland papers will not be delivered until Friday. The Plymouth and Canton editions may be late as well if production problems arise.

In "normal" times, the 15 Observer & Eccentric newspapers contain 1.2 million inserts per week. This week's papers contain 3.2 million inserts.

"The workload in the production department has doubled plus," Jimmerson said. Fifty new employees have been hired to put the inserts in the papers and production work hours are up 25-30 percent over average. Fifty percent more raw paper is needed to produce the newspaper.

Observer Publisher Barry Dishmon said, "We're doing everything possible to get the papers out on time. And it's all strike related. We appreciate our readers' patience with us."

Dishmon thanked Observer carriers and delivery personnel "for their outstanding work" during the strike.

Although Dishmon admits that the papers may be late again if the strike continues — "it can happen again" — he said everything is being done to prevent that. "We're working to make this problem go away."

The increase in advertising has probably peaked, Dishmon said.

Observer Circulation Manager Larry Geiger said, "It makes you proud of our carriers to see what they're going through. I admire their patience and understanding. We're really proud of the carriers, the drivers and the staffers here, for the extra effort they have put forth."

Buses bought

Imlay City-based Champion Motor Coach, a division of Champion Enterprises, has received a $5.2-million contract to manufacture 74 to 86 mid-size buses for the Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation.

These buses, which are 29 feet in length, will replace 40-foot vehicles currently in use.

By downsizing to 29-foot buses, SMART can expand coverage with additional new routes.

"Champion is pleased to participate in this contract and fully supports the building and revitalization efforts that SMART is promoting with the business community," Kathleen Gaffney, government sales manager for Champion Motor Coach, said in a press release.

Champion Motor Coach is one of the largest manufacturers of mid-size buses in North America.

Champion produces buses for tour and airport shuttle service, hotels, churches, nursing homes, universities and state and municipal governmental agencies.

The testing is free, and every effort will be made to make the testing as convenient as possible for potential donors.

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital is at 900 Woodward Avenue, one mile north of Square Lake Road in Pontiac.

Potential donors can drive right up to the hospital's circular drive on Woodward and have their cars valet parked at no charge.

girlfriend, who were in northern Michigan. "They hustled down to Canton and picked up Barbara (Greg's mom) and got a charter plane out of Willow Run," Bill Unger said. "They were able to get out here before Greg went into the operating room."

Surgery began about 2 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 6, and was completed about 8 a.m. "It's generally a six-hour procedure," said Kim Kitson, hospital spokeswoman.

Greg was listed in critical but stable condition. "That is customary," Kitson said. "The next big hurdle is getting him off the ventilator. We will wean him off. It will take a few days."

Bill Unger said that doctors occasionally have removed the ventilator to see how well Greg can breathe. Doctors told Bill and Barb Unger Tuesday morning that they would disconnect the ventilator some time during the day. But because Greg was restless and uneasy they finally decided to wait maybe another 24 hours.

"He is conscious. But he fades in and out," Unger said, adding Greg will be given a device to adjust his own pain medication. "Considering all he has been through, he is doing great."

Unger said that the family and doctors were concerned about excessive bleeding. "As it turned out, there wasn't as much as expected. It was divine intervention."

Greg received lungs from an unidentified donor. The lungs apparently are somewhat larger than his own. "When doctors came out they said that Greg's own lungs were two bags of pus. That's how bad they were. We feel we did the right thing at the right time."

The Ungers had an unexpected rehearsal for the transplant Monday, July 31, when a call came in saying that a pair of lungs were available. As it turned out the lungs were not appropriate for Greg and the transplant was canceled.

"But it prepared us for the call. We knew what to do," Bill Unger said.

In Canton, firefighters and police officers and others who have helped raise money to defray costs associated with the Ungers' move to St. Louis and the surgery were praying for a successful result.

"We were kind of nervous," said Canton firefighter Mike Caruso. "We want it all to turn out all right."

Caruso and other firefighters and police officers spearheaded two benefit hockey games with the Red Wings Alumni at the Plymouth Cultural Center to raise money for Greg, a hockey lover.

Firefighters have kept up with Greg's progress through a hotline that anyone can call, 458-0222. Bill and Barbara Unger continued to thank the community for its emotional and financial support during the past year.

Kitson said Greg will remain in the hospital for a few weeks and will stay in St. Louis a few months during which he will be monitored and educated on his medications and how to watch for signs of illness.

"When he has recovered, his activities should be normal. But he will remain on anti-rejection medication for his whole life," Kitson said, adding that Greg will continue to have digestive problems associated with his illness.

Kitson said that the hospital's survival rate for the lung transplants — a program started in 1990 — is about 75 percent.

"These kids can breathe like the rest of us. These children who received the lung transplants — it is a dramatic change for them."

The hospital performed 22 lung transplants and one heart-lung transplant in 1994. So far this year, doctors have performed 14 lung and two heart-lung transplants.

Home buying

then determine what the cost of the house will be. Again, touch the screen and you can see a map of the subdivision, which lots are available and at what price.

Take another step and buyers can figure out confidentially what their monthly mortgage payment will be, based on down payment, points, interest rates and taxes. Figure in annual income and buyers can immediately see whether they can afford the house of their dreams. And you can take that information home on a printout.

"It's instant feedback," said Mike Lozicki of Creative Perceptions computer graphic arts studio in Bloomfield Hills.

Lozicki developed the interactive program for Lewiston and Crescentini. "I have a great interest in computers," Lewiston said, who with Crescentini has sold out in Fairways at Pheasant Run. They are now taking reservations in the new and adjacent Pheasant View golf community — part of the Pheasant Run Golf Club residential community.

"I knew the technology for this existed. People mentioned that there isn't enough information for them in a model home. We want to present enough information in a fun way," he continued.

Lewiston took his information to Lozicki. "I brought him a host of ideas and he told me what was possible and what wasn't possible," he said.

Lozicki jumped into the project.

The future will provide color printouts of what buyers chose for their brick and other exterior amenities. Then buyers will also be able to choose textures — ceramic tile, wood floors and match with counter tops, walls, carpets and everything else that makes a house a home.

"They can actually see through the house and see what it will look like with what they have picked," Lewiston said.

INDUSTRIAL FACILITIES EXEMPTION CERTIFICATE
FOR MOELLER MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC.

PLEASE TAKE NOTE: That a Public Hearing will be held on Tuesday, August 22, 1995, during a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth to consider Moeller Manufacturing Company, Inc's, request for a twelve year Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate for their facility located at 43938 Plymouth Oaks Blvd., in Plymouth Oaks Business Park consisting of approximately 3.2 acres of land.

An application was submitted in November, 1992, however, they had not received a resolution from Livonia allowing the transfer of employment. As a result, Plymouth Township could not act on the request. On June 27, 1995, the Michigan Court of Appeals declared the transfer of employment provision of Act 198 unconstitutional and the Company requested that Plymouth Township proceed with their request for tax abatement.

Moeller Manufacturing is a Michigan Corporation comprised of two divisions. The Punch Division, founded in 1965, manufactures various punches, dies and hole piercing components for the metal stamping and other related industries. The Aircraft Division is located in Wixom and specializes in the manufacturing of specialty parts for the aircraft gas-turbine engine industry. Due to expanding growth, Moeller Manufacturing determined that they needed a larger and more modern facility for their Punch Division and move to their current location in machinery and equipment, furniture and fixtures was $3,416,686.00. The company currently has 126 employees at this location.

During the public hearing any resident of Plymouth Township or members of the Legislative Board of any affected taxing unit in the Township shall have the right to appear and be heard. Written comments addressed to the Clerk will be considered.

The request of Moeller Manufacturing Company, Inc., is on file in the Clerk's Office at Plymouth Township Hall where it is available for public perusal from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The Board of Trustees meet in the Meeting Room of the Township Hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170, at 7:30 p.m. Phone number 453-3840 x 234. Following the public hearing, the Board may decide on the request by resolution.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times . . . they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

WSU opens satellite campus

Wayne State University is a well-known Detroit institution but, beginning this Sunday, WSU will have a Farmington Hills presence, too.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, the public can help inaugurate WSU's new Oakland Center, located at 33737 W. 12 Mile Road in the former Texas Instruments building, by attending an open house from 1-5 p.m.

"We're dedicated to the city of Detroit," said Barb Couture, associate dean in Wayne State's College of Lifelong Learning, "but we're dedicated to metropolitan Detroit, too. We've always had an extension mission."

About 2,000 students will use the new center, a university official said. Wayne State's total enrollment is 34,000.

Students may register for fall 1995 extension courses — to be offered at the Oakland Center — at Sunday's open house with a registration deposit of $70.

Representatives from university admissions, financial aid, university advising, and various colleges and departments will be on hand at the open house.

Building tours, informational sessions, refreshments and door prizes will be available Sunday.

Couture said the new 10,000-square-foot center, which replaces WSU extension centers in Southfield and Birmingham, will provide students with greater scheduling flexibility, larger and better-equipped classrooms, and expanded student facilities.

"Students may apply all credit courses offered at the new Oakland Center and other extension sites to degree programs at Wayne State's main campus," she added.

Credit programs slated for the new facility this fall include courses that meet university general education requirements for graduation and courses leading to graduate and undergraduate degrees from: the School of Business Administration; College of Education; College of Engineering; College of Fine, Performing and Communication Arts; College of Liberal Arts; College of Lifelong Learning; College of Nursing; College of Science; School of Social Work; College of Urban, Labor and Metropolitan Affairs; and University Libraries.

College of Lifelong Learning, which will manage the Oakland Center, is responsible for coordinating credit and noncredit academic programs at the extension centers.

For more information on the open house or class registrations, call (313) 577-3592.

Goodyear seeks heroic truck drivers

For the 14th year, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company is looking to honor unsung heroes in the professional trucking community, the tiremaker said.

"Truck drivers who have performed acts of heroism or humanitarianism during the last 10 months may be eligible for monetary awards and national recognition in the annual Goodyear National Highway Hero Program, said Bryan L. Kinnamon, general manager for commercial tires at Goodyear.

Nominations are being sought for drivers who rescue or assist motorists in trouble or who have benefitted society by some humanitarian service, he said.

The program is open to any professional driver who was operating a vehicle with 14 or more wheels and performed a heroic or humanitarian act while on the job, Kinnamon said.

"There are thousands of men and women behind the wheels of big rigs who perform outstanding acts of heroism and bravery every day, and usually their efforts go unrecognized," Kinnamon said. "We are pleased to be able to give them the recognition they deserve for their efforts to help those in need."

To be eligible for the 1995 program, the incident or action must have occurred before Sept. 30, and the nomination must be received by Oct. 15.

Anyone can nominate a trucker. Goodyear Highway Hero nomination forms are available from Goodyear Commercial Truck Tire & Service Centers and most Goodyear dealers, through the company's corporate headquarters in Akron, Ohio, or by calling Visual Services, Inc., in Bloomfield Hills, at 1-800-627-2118.

Nomination forms also are available at many truck stop chains, throughout the United States.

Todd Forbush of Elyria, Ohio, the current Goodyear National Highway Hero, said receiving the honor was among the most remarkable things ever to happen to him.

"I was just overwhelmed by the tribute," said Forbush, who has driven for UPS for nearly 30 years. "I just did what so many other truckers have done when I tried to help in that accident. I didn't think it would produce the reaction and attention that it did."

Forbush was honored for crawling into the cab of an overturned and burning pickup truck and rescuing its trapped and critically injured driver.

In recognition of his heroism, the company hosted Forbush and three other Goodyear Highway Hero finalists who were recognized for separate heroic incidents at the Daytona 500 stock car race in Daytona Beach, Fla., in February where all four drivers were honored in pre-race ceremonies.

As the Goodyear National Highway Hero, selected by an independent panel of judges, Forbush received $20,000 in United States Savings Bonds and a gold and diamond Super Bowl style ring.

Music City Tonight host, Lorianne Crook presented the ring to him during a broadcast on The Nashville Network.

Each of the other finalist drivers received $5,000 in bonds, plus the trip to the Daytona 500 as Goodyear's guests.

Vintage aircraft tour state

Area residents will have six "golden" opportunities to rediscover an important part of America's history, while paying tribute to this country's World War II veterans during this commemorative year.

This month, two of the most legendary World War II bombers, the B-24 "Liberator" and the B-17 "Flying Fortress," wing their way through Michigan as part of the "Schlitz Salute to Veterans Tour."

This "flying museum" will first touch down in Lansing Aug. 6-8, followed by stops in Mt. Pleasant (Aug. 8-9), Saginaw (Aug. 9-12), Waterford (Aug. 12-13) and Flint (Aug. 13-14).

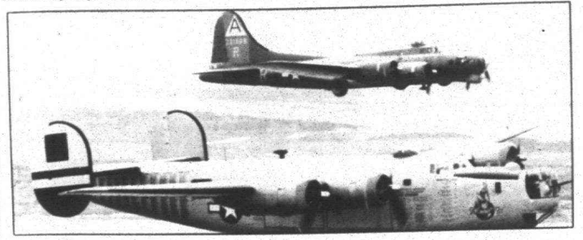

The warbirds will make their final Michigan stop in Ann Arbor just in time to celebrate V-J (Victory in Japan) Day on Aug. 14.

This tour, which will visit 100 cities during this commemorative year, is sponsored by Schlitz beer and coordinated by the nonprofit Collings Foundation, which recovered and restored the aircraft to their original wartime condition.

Public tours at each location cost $7 for adults and $3 for children.

At each stop, public tours begin upon aircraft arrival (approximately 3 p.m.) until dusk on the first day, 8:30 a.m. until dusk on the second day, and from 8:30 a.m. until departure on the final day.

Exceptions to this schedule are Mt. Pleasant and Flint, with the planes leaving on the second day at 2 p.m., and Waterford, where the bombers will join other aircraft at the Aug. 13 Oakland/Pontiac Airport Open House from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Bombers: A Consolidated B-24 Liberator (foreground) and a Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress will touch down in Waterford (Aug. 12-13), Flint (Aug. 13-14) and Ann Arbor Aug. 14. Tours at each location cost $7 for adults and $3 for children.

Charter school pioneer Watkins leaving state for wife's career

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Tom Watkins is leaving Northville and Wayne State University for at least a couple of years.

"My wife Karen has accepted a two-to-three year reassignment to head up legal services with Ford Motor Credit Co. — hence the relocation," said Watkins, who has spent the last year setting up the state's first charter school at WSU.

"After a 21-year professional career in Michigan, my family and I are going to be relocated to Palm Beach County, Florida, in 1996. I will be leaving Wayne State University at the end of July, travelling out west with my family in August and doing consulting work until the move takes place."

Watkins said he has no immediate plans for work in Florida.

Though a Democrat, Watkins has worked on a pet project of Republican Gov. John Engler's — a charter school free of many state rules and tailored to particular students' needs.

During Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's second term (1987-90), Watkins headed the state Department of Mental Health. In the first term Watkins worked in various administrative tasks. He was deputy campaign manager during Blanchard's 1982 campaign.

Watkins helped write Wayne County's charter in 1980-82 as an elected Democrat from northwest Detroit. His earlier work was as a child care worker and counselor for agencies in Garden City and Detroit.

He relocated to Northville Township several years ago and had been under consideration for several public posts.

Expo center features food show

The Novi Expo Center will be the scene Sept. 12-13 of the only industry-wide food service expo serving the entire state.

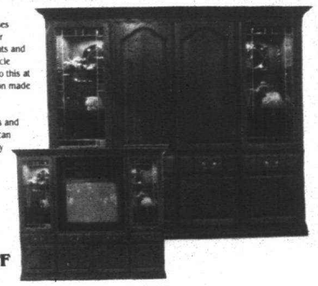

The Michigan Restaurant Show floor is open from 12 noon through 6 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 12, and noon through 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 13. Admission at the door is $10 per person.

Sponsor is the Michigan Restaurant Association, a non-profit trade association headquartered in Lansing that represents more than 3,000 food service operations and 200 food service purveyors.

Ron Magruder, president and chief operating officer of Cracker Barrel Old Country Stores, will open activities at 11 a.m. the first day with a talk on "Managing Change." Magruder's success story of growing Olive Garden from eight to 470 restaurants and into the nation's largest full service Italian restaurant chain will draw a big crowd of restaurateurs.

Other highlights that day will include: Michigan Chef Team demonstration, educational seminars, more than 200 exhibiting companies featuring their products and services and an ice carving competition.

Ice arena

Hockey group on right track

Hockey is probably the most popular sport with kids today. So much so that kids are turned away because of the lack of ice time to accommodate the interest.

The new Canton Hockey Association is on the right track by gathering information and support to build a two-rink arena in Canton.

But there are plenty of questions to be asked and answered.

The association can't stand alone in its quest for an ice arena. It needs public support. And it needs to work with township officials, who say they are unaware of the group.

The association should send a representative to the Canton Parks and Recreation task force, whose meetings to develop recommendations for new and expanded programming, activities, and facilities begin in September.

Should an ice arena be deemed a worthy project, two overriding issues remain. Where will it be built, and who will pay for it?

Canton's southern end is now filled with recreational opportunities such as the Pheasant Run Golf Course, Heritage Park, Heritage Hideout playscape and the Summit on the Park community center.

Other portions of the township would be a better choice, if only to balance parks and recreation facilities in Canton. Township officials also say there's not enough room in Heritage Park for an arena.

A two-rink arena has an estimated tab of $5-$6 million. That's a hefty price. With no money in township budgets now for an ice rink, parks and recreation officials say they would prefer a public-private partnership. A good idea, but tough to realize.

The association should not assume property taxes will finance this effort. A promise was made that the Summit would not be financed with tax money. Dollars have already been borrowed from tax-financed township funds to make ends meet with the Pheasant Run Golf Course. The verdict is still out on whether these two projects can become self-sufficient as promised.

Other communities, such as Farmington Hills, have successfully asked their citizens for a special tax to build ice arenas. When the time comes, perhaps that's an avenue for Canton. But Canton has a history. In less than 10 years, voters turned down special taxes and bond issues for the Summit, and most recently to fix township roads and expand the library.

Clearly, more information and study is required. The Canton Hockey Association needs to work with the public and township officials to reach its goal.

State's target: Public schools

Reading one day's news, you can lose track of where the attack on public schools is heading. So let's put the State Board of Education's July 20 watering down of core curriculum standards into context. It's Act II in the battle.

Act I occurred in 1994 with an attempt to discredit public schools, chiefly through a withering barrage at the "National Extortion Association," as the parent of the Michigan Education Association was branded. MEA, though not the most lovable and charitable of institutions, nevertheless was nowhere near as evil and depraved as its attackers alleged.

Keep in mind that the real target wasn't the public school union; it was public schools. By year's end it was fairly easy to find polls showing huge numbers of Michiganians were less than 100 percent satisfied with the products of public education. This year, you'll notice, the attack on MEA has quieted. It's all part of a staged drama.

Act II is to water down state standards, mandates and curriculum laws — except abstinence, of course. The State Board of Education, in the words of its leader Clark Durant, "derailed the state's putting in a core curriculum." The board is watering down the 67 standards in math, science, social studies and English language arts that the Department of Education has been drafting.

The board stopped short, however, of adopting Durant's proposal to allow the teaching of the fundamentalist religious doctrine of "creationism" as science. Yet it was scary that Durant's sidekick, Marilyn Lundy, would go so far as to declare there's no scientific evidence in favor of evolution. There is no sunlight, either, if you cover your eyes.

After a decade of progress, the State Board of Education is coming dangerously close to violating its constitutional mandate to provide "leadership and general supervision over all public education, including adult education," except colleges. It also is turning its back on a 1993 statute that says it should issue a core curriculum.

In the attack on public schools, it's necessary to obliterate all the rules — except abstinence, of course — so that anything goes. Problem solving? Naw, ciphering is OK. Science? Oh, Genesis is enough. Cooperation in a diverse society? Just obey your parents. The arts? Why, we have a portrait of Jesus. Dealing with ethical dilemmas? Ask your parents or your pastor.

If the state has only the mealiest standards for public schools, it becomes easier for non-public schools to meet the standards. The issue is not whether public schools in suburban Oakland and Wayne counties will set and meet high standards. The issue is whether any ethnocentric, parochial or just plain odd-ball school can boast it meets state standards.

Act III is parochiaid, state aid to private and denominational schools. It will take a voter-approved amendment to the Michigan Constitution to remove the prohibition against parochiaid. That bid will come in an election year, probably 1996.

This talk about "charter" schools is part of the play. Scratch a supporter of "charter" schools, and you will have a supporter of parochiaid or its brother, a "voucher" system.

You will get a lot of hocus-pocus about "parental choice" and how public schools are a "monopoly" and "let the free market work." That's not the name of the act. The act is to get state tax money for private schools and for sectarian schools, particularly those who think everybody is ungodly except themselves.

God made an imperfect world. Certainly even the best public schools are imperfect. The solution is not to water down curriculum standards and support sectarian, anti-science rivals in the name of "competition." The solution is to make all public schools as good as humans can make them, hoping the non-public schools will follow.

We are disappointed the Durant-influenced State Board of Education is backing away from common sense and its constitutional duty. It should draft high standards so that kids will be prepared for the working world, and so that a high school diploma will stand for something.

LETTERS

Position clarified

Responding to a recent article in a Belleville area newspaper, as chairman of the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority Board of Commissioners, I would like to clarify the position of YCUA in regards to the Willow Run Tradeport and the Western Townships Utilities Authority capacity in the YCUA wastewater treatment plant.

Several years ago YCUA negotiated a contract leasing 8.7 million gallons per day of treatment capacity to WTUA, which is comprised of the townships of Canton, Northville and Plymouth. The YCUA and WTUA reached an agreement beneficial to both entities. We have had no significant problems with any aspects of this agreement and do not anticipate any for the future.

The Willow Run Tradeport is an unrelated issue which we believe would be beneficial to our member communities as well as YCUA. YCUA supports the concept and the formation of the tradeport because we believe it will benefit our service area as it grows.

However, the two issues are entirely separate from one another. Our contracts and commitment to serve the WTUA communities with wastewater treatment services is in no way subject to any community's support or opposition to the tradeport. We intend to honor our commitments to WTUA and support the Willow Run Tradeport and fully expect neither issue to impact the other.

I do hope this letter clarifies the position of the YCUA on these two issues to which we are committed.

William L. Gagnon, chairman
YCUA Board

Charter schools urged

I have a few words to say about charter schools: More! More! More!

Charter schools will be the salvation of public education in this country.

The current highly protected and unionized monopoly system has degenerated into nothing more than a high-priced baby-sitting service.

In the future — charter schools will offer each child a chance to have an education customized to his or her interests, talents and needs. In the new information age, the watchwords for education will be: Customize. Customize. Customize.

No longer will we be enslaved by the archaic "one-size-fits-all" system developed by our "low-tech" agrarian forefathers.

No longer will a bright and motivated student be held hostage to a system that seeks routine and uniformity — even at the price of mediocrity and dullness.

Even more importantly — no longer will less bright students be stigmatized and made to feel inferior by an "out-of-touch" system that rewards only the college bound, and reduces everyone else to second class status.

The new charter schools will allow us to create a modern-day equivalent of the apprenticeship system — similar to the one so highly praised in Germany.

In the future, we will look back with horror at the present education system — that for generations has allowed 18-year-olds to graduate into the world totally unskilled and virtually illiterate. There is no excuse for a system of education, as expensive as ours, to be mass producing unskilled labor.

Recently, in Westland, a charter school was established for educationally challenged kids. So much for the "cherry-picking" argument. Additionally, another charter school has been set up to cater to students interested in automotive technology.

With the help of parents and enlightened educators, more customized charter schools will be coming soon.

These career-specific schools will motivate kids — who are understandably bored with current schools because the curriculum seems irrelevant to their lives and their futures.

These are exciting times in education. Why did we wait so long to make this change? Every parent and student should be mightily rejoicing. The old monopoly is dead. The "hostage-taking" is over.

Let's give the old monopoly a decent burial. Then, let's move on with the task of giving each child the best and most customized education that money can buy.

Welcome to the 21st century!

POINTS OF VIEW

Life is livelier when experienced on a bicycle

GUEST COLUMNIST
DOROTHY MATSU

To all those responsible for the fine new roads out here on the lunatic fringe of town. I sincerely thank you from the bottom of my, well, bottom. I ride my bike. Not a "cyclist," just a galoot on my trusty steed, a chubby affair with the dreadful beauty of the huge, creepy carousel horse one is strangely drawn to as a child.

I have no spandex "gear," wear no helmet with a little rearview mirror, and have a distinct aversion to the herding instinct. I do, however, have a preposterous basket that often bristles with bouquets and baguettes from jaunts to the market.

I ride dressed for battle, prepared to bail out if necessary. I've yet to knock a groan out of the road, but once a bee shot down the neck of my shirt and sent me hurtling into shrubbery.

I even carry an extra black T-shirt in the event a sudden downpour strips me of my dignity.

In the winter, I am the big nut with stripes of slush up and down my front and back. Baggy pants, hoods, what sport cyclers consider wind resistance is mere exercise to one who rides for pleasure with purpose. I take to the roads in the off hours as I love to admire the abundance of lovely gardens, friendly faces and weird wildlife.

Certain chores mean choosing routes that up until recently involved roads that would've reduced a tank to a bucket of bolts. Bradner Road on a bike was not unlike jolting up and down enormous slab stairs of ancient ruins.

Northville Road between Five Mile and Six Mile was a "messterpiece," a daunting stretch of tardust fairy patchwork with a few yawning holes one could admire the babbling brooks through once round wheels were bashed to squares.

These are now taffy-smooth joyrides thanks to the many hardworking folks who not only have a tough, often unappreciated job, but in spite of heat and hurry were always remarkably kind and courteous when I wended my way about them.

None of the surly or crude behavior many of us fear. Again, you have my gratitude.

Speaking of this, I must mention the rare, but disturbing encounters on an atypical Tour de Farce. I make it a rule to yield to traffic of all sorts, drivers, cyclists, joggers and strollers as I am a leisurely sort, loathe to race any one or thing. Once I was run off the road by a loon bellowing at me for not having a helmet, although he nor his toddling passenger wore seatbelts.

Another time while waiting my light at an intersection, a hideous harpy shrieked "Whaddya think the sidewalks are for?!"

Odd that park bikepaths still give me the shakes, but back in Salem, Mass., we considered the woods scary haunts.

Icy seaside cliffs in winter seemed more welcoming. The eerie coward zooming by who slings an unsavory remark can really shatter your sense of self. I may only have a high school education, but I don't need a degree from Heidelberg to figure that sometime, someone, somehow made you feel low-down. I was not that person.

To earn respect from others, you learn respect of others. Not to mention that you may one day see a big broad barreling after you like a bat out of hell for an apology at the next set of lights. While I might suffer a serious crimp in my day, I have great faith that time wounds all heels. Godspeed.

At Wayne County milestone, recall our 'mad' general

TIM RICHARD

It's sneaking up on us. We may overlook it. I refer to the 200th anniversary of the forming of Wayne County, Michigan's largest. It was named in honor of Gen. Anthony Wayne, who was as big a hero in 1796 as Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1945 and Colin Powell in 1991.

They're not forgetting Wayne down in Ohio. I spent a day in Greenville last week where the governor and top state scholars observed, analyzed and dissected the Treaty of Greenville on its 200th anniversary. There were an afternoon and evening of lectures and slides, on Wayne's tactics, military architecture and the results of "digs."

Today Greenville is west of I-75, insulated by 20 miles of farms, but in the Ohio Valley campaign it was the center of Wayne's activity. Greenville, I learned, occupies high ground near the Indiana border from which little creeks flow in four directions. In history classes, it's a well-kept secret that Wayne's campaign of 1792-4 and the treaty he negotiated opened up not only Ohio but Detroit and many points in the Midwest.

Turn back the clock: It's the second term of the Washington administration. The British not only haven't given up Detroit and other western frontier forts but are supplying Indian tribes to keep Americans penned up east of the Appalachians and south of the Ohio River.

"I can venture to say that more than 1,500 persons have been killed and taken prisoner by the Indians; and upwards of 20,000 horses have been taken away, with other property," said Judge Henry Inness of Kentucky in a 1790 letter to the secretary of war. Local historians said more Americans were killed in Ohio than anywhere else in the nation until the Civil War.

In 1791 an American army under Gen. Arthur St. Clair was mauled so badly north of Greenville that it disintegrated. To form a new army and take the Ohio Valley, President Washington appointed Wayne,a university-educated Pennsylvania farmer and tannery owner; revolutionary combat veteran of Ticonderoga, Philadelphia, Germantown, Stony Point and Yorktown; liberator of Georgia; two-term state legislator; and lover of the arts — he worked for licensing of the theater, prohibited by the Quaker power structure.

Wayne formed a "legion" near Pittsburgh. Politicians differed sharply on military policy. Federalists, Washington and Wayne knew militias were badly trained and crumbled in combat. They advocated a standing army of regulars. Washington wanted an academy to train officers — now known as West Point.

Naive republicans like Jefferson thought militias were just fine. God blessed America — the Federalist view prevailed.

Wayne spent 1792 training an army, 1793 bringing it down the Ohio River to Cincinnati (Fort Washington) and building a string of forts in western Ohio, and 1794 fighting two major battles. One was at the scene of St. Clair's disaster (Fort Recovery), the other at Fallen Timbers on the Maumee River a dozen miles southwest of Toledo. (Within the last month, archaeologists have relocated the actual battle site in a soybean field a short distance from the existing memorial. It's never too late to dig.)

The Indians called Wayne "Suck-ach-gook," Black Snake, because of his cunning. Whites called him "Mad" because of his bravery in combat.

On Aug. 3, 1795, Wayne with 3,000 troops and 1,130 Indians from 12 tribes signed a treaty at Greenville that current Miami Chief Floyd Leonard, 69, groused was "the beginning of the end for Indian tribes east of the Mississippi." Leonard is correct. U.S. treaty policy wasn't so much for the purpose of making peace as for buying land.

In Treaty No. 23, Wayne agreed to pay $25,000 and an annuity of $9,500. Tribal leaders gave up two-thirds of Ohio plus Detroit, Chicago and other spots.

Unlike Powell and Eisenhower, Wayne didn't live to reap political fruits from his victory. He took possession of Detroit in 1795 and, en route home, died of disease in what is now Erie, Pa., on Dec. 15, 1796, just two weeks short of his 52nd birthday.

Wayne was overshadowed in the Revolutionary War by Washington and others. Hollywood in the 1940s made a few colonial-type moves ("Drums along the Mohawk," "Rogers' Rangers") but since then has concentrated on the Wild West. That awful TNT movie, "Tecumseh," didn't give Wayne a speaking part.

But as one symposium speaker pointed out: Without Anthony Wayne, Fallen Timbers and Greenville, today we might be Canadians.

Most teachers appreciate their rewarding careers

DOC DOYLE

Question: I was playing golf with a teacher who is getting ready to retire next year and he seemed very bitter. It seems to me that at this point in his teaching career . . . getting ready to retire, he would have some good memories. Is this typical?

Answer: It's not typical behavior from retired teachers. I know!

Unfortunately, a few of our older teachers are still trying to fight the 1935 battle of the Overpass at the Rouge Plant. They still want the 7-, 8- or 9-percent raises of the 1970s and 1980s that the public financially supported and which administrations and the Michigan Education Association negotiated.

Realistically, no one is getting big raises in this area. It's like when Wall Street says, "There is a stock market correction taking place." That correction is taking place in education and in many professions.

I believe teachers need to step back and take a look at where we are today compared to when your golfing friend started teaching. And then be thankful. Indeed, teachers' salaries — thanks to public support, board support and the efforts of administration and the MEA — have taken teachers from a lower middle class range to the middle class, higher in some cases.

Taken in context, and trying to understand your retiring teacher friend's concern, one has to have been there, back when he started teaching — probably in the late 1950s and 1960s — prior to the right to negotiate. Raises were $50-$150 a year. Indeed, many teachers made more painting houses during the summer months and after school than they did teaching from September to June.

I was there, but I don't remember being bitter. I loved teaching and picked up extra work in the summer and survived. Time-wise, I figured the two and half months off in the summer, the winter and spring break was a pretty good deal, a major fringe benefit.

Frankly, I've found the few teachers who are negative at retirement time were negative throughout their career. A sad commentary, considering they were in a classroom dealing with young minds for many years.

Teaching is one of our noblest professions. I have observable proof of that since I retired. My wife, Barbara, a retired kindergarten teacher, and I can be strolling through a store or in line for movie tickets when, suddenly, someone will walk up to us. That someone will immediately smile and acknowledge my wife, who was either her kindergarten teacher or had that person's children in her class.

After one "love-in" between my wife and a parent, I said, "I was in education too . . . I was the assistant superintendent for instruction in Troy." After I got a puzzled look that said "that's nice" or "what did you do?" I got a message that there was a vast distinction between what one perceives of her teacher and one who was in a "curriculum" position.

Both positions are important, but teacher is still the noblest role in the education profession.

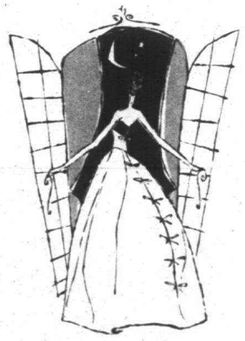

I am convinced that in every profession, in every office, there are those who accentuate the negative, as your teacher golfing buddy does. It is usually a pattern of chatter without even thinking what is being said. But I assure you that is not the typical mind-set of the teachers, administrators, MEA representatives and school board members I have known throughout my career.

"To be a school master is next to being a king. Do you count it in the lowest employment . . . those who enrich the minds of our young people and then return them to our country as honest and virtuous men and women. In the opinion of this fool, teaching is a humble task but in fact the noblest of all occupations." - From the 15th century (author unknown)

Positive images

Actors explore conflict without the violence

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

'We picture ourselves as a peace-loving country. But we have set up such a negativity that we don't look at positive action any more.'

Wallace Smith
OCC prof, actor

It's not that the Oakland Community College professor defends violence and video slaughter. Just the opposite.

"It's harmful to humanity. I don't think that's necessary," said Smith, who teaches acting, broadcasting, speech and theater at OCC's Orchard Ridge Campus.

"But American culture thrives on it. We picture ourselves as a peace-loving country. But we have set up such a negativity that we don't look at positive action any more.

"Commercial broadcast television is an advertising medium, not a news and entertainment medium. It's driven by the ratings. If the ratings go down, what goes out — the commercial or the program? The program. It's replaced by something the advertisers want."

He has a "positive alternative" — his own Wallace Smith Productions, a professional touring chamber theater company. "Chamber" means the handful of actors work in a room, rather than on an elaborate stage, in street clothes rather than costumes, without props. They tell stories, using dialog, mime and dance.

Smith just returned to his Walled Lake home from a conference in Australia. "They heard about my work. The conference dealt with positive images of society and justice, peace and an ecologically sustainable world."

The conference was sponsored by IDEA, the International Drama and Education Association. "I went as a representative of professional theater rather than education," he said. A Brisbane paper published a half-page interview after his performances before school children with local college students.

Smith's favorite phrase: "conflict resolution." He has used the theme since 1972, during the war in Vietnam. "We don't have violence (in his plays and skits). We have conflict, but there are ways to settle it." Examples:

- Two people have "a silly argument," but a third helps them settle it by aiding them in seeing each other's point of view.
- A family is confronted with a flooded household. Their problem: What can they save? "It turns out they can't save anything. Their each-otherness was of value," said the producer.

His second favorite phrase: "cultural diversity." He has been at IDEA conferences in Spain and plans to attend another in Kenya, and he tells one anecdote after another about kids in Pacific Island villages wearing Detroit Tigers caps or Chicago Bulls T-shirts.

He fears the effects of exported American TV programs. He sees Japanese and Indian TV as imitating America's violence.

"I'm grateful to be an American. I'm absolutely, positively grateful to be at OCC. It's nice to know people are interested in peaceful alternatives.

"But other cultures aren't as slam-bang as Americans. It was so nice to be around quiet people as opposed to noisy people . . . We seem to need to have things to be happy."

Increasing numbers of Americans share his concern.

- A Bloomfield Hills matron, Terry Rakolta, has organized boycotts of advertisers who support unsavory network TV programs. Smith won't comment on her efforts, preferring to push his own brand of "positive alternatives."
- Congress has deregulated cable TV but called for use of a V-chip allowing parents to block out programs for their kids. Smith: "I don't know what good it's going to do."
- Wayne County commissioners ordered Sheriff Robert Ficano to stop showing jail prisoners videotapes that have the effect of "inducing or provoking violent and assaultive behavior" or that glorify racial conflict, prison insurrections or violence against women. Commissioners exercise the power of the purse over the sheriff's budget.
- An Arizona sheriff put 1,000 prisoners in a desert tent city without movies, cigarettes and coffee.

Smith shrugs at these news items. He earned degrees in 1965 and 1969 at Wayne State University, where he acted in the Hilberry Theater, and has taught and worked at OCC since 1968. The college named the Orchard Ridge Campus theater for him in 1983 — a rare honor for a living, active employee.

"I'm not a researcher. I'm in the trenches," he said. "It's a shame we have to have an alternative to violent art."

Professor Wallace Smith's office number is (810) 471-7705. He's in and out but checks his messages regularly.

Sundae that's worth a stroll

Restaurant review articles somehow, and I don't know why this is, captivate me. You know the kinds of articles I'm talking about — where the writer goes out to eat and makes notes, probably on a napkin, about the service, the food, the ambiance, the wine list, the use of exotic spices and the price. And I'm captivated by this. I don't know why. Restaurants themselves don't captivate me; they're too fancy, too expensive.

And fancy food I am deathly afraid of. If the food is exotic, I'm scared. And here's how I determine exotic food: if it lived in the water, it's exotic. Except tuna. But that lives in a can. And if it's wild, it's exotic. Or raw. Or has its bones still in. And steak. And nursery rhyme animals. All exotic.

My mother used to call this "being a picky eater." My husband calls it "annoying, but cheap." Which brings me to the subject of "expensive" restaurants.

Restaurants are always expensive. There are no inexpensive ones. Restaurant, as you may know, is a French word meaning "bring lots of money — and put the washing machine repair off for awhile."

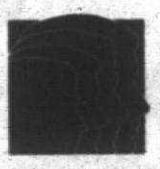

You see — when you make an entire supper for a family of six at home, from scratch, of say chicken stir fry, and that includes seconds, a salad, a side dish of vegetables, a glass or two of milk and dessert, it doesn't cost anywhere near $25 or $30 or whatever it costs in a restaurant.

Reaching out from within at United

■ The Rev. Ken Hubbard doesn't feel it's an added challenge being one of the youngest Assembly of God ministers in Michigan. At the helm of the United Assembly of God in Plymouth Township, he wants to lead the church into reaching out to the community.

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

As Ken Hubbard sees it, "the church is only as strong as families are, that the downfall of society has been because of the decline in the family." He thinks "the church can step in and help."

His words, in a way, echo his early life. He grew up near San Francisco in a background of drugs, violence and a broken home. He was "saved" at the age of 5 and decided he wanted to make his life have a positive impact on the world. God, he says, confirmed that in his heart when he was 17.

That was 11 years ago. Today, Hubbard is one of the youngest senior pastors in Michigan for the Assembly of God. He doesn't feel that his youthfulness has added to his challenge as he prepares to lead the United Assembly of God in Plymouth Township into the 21st century.

"I think because of my early background, I'm not just for kids, but put an emphasis on the entire family," he said. "I think when you genuinely try to touch and minister to people's lives, people will come to church."

Touching lives

Hubbard brings a lot of experience in touching lives with him. He did his collegiate work by correspondence through Berean Bible College in Springfield, Mo., and was working as full-time minister at age 20.

He ministered for 4½ years at a church in Grand Rapids which grew from 70 to 300 members before accepting a position at the 550-member First Assembly of God in East Lansing. There, his youth ministry grew from 30 youths to some 200. He also served as a senior associate pastor, handling administrative and preaching duties.

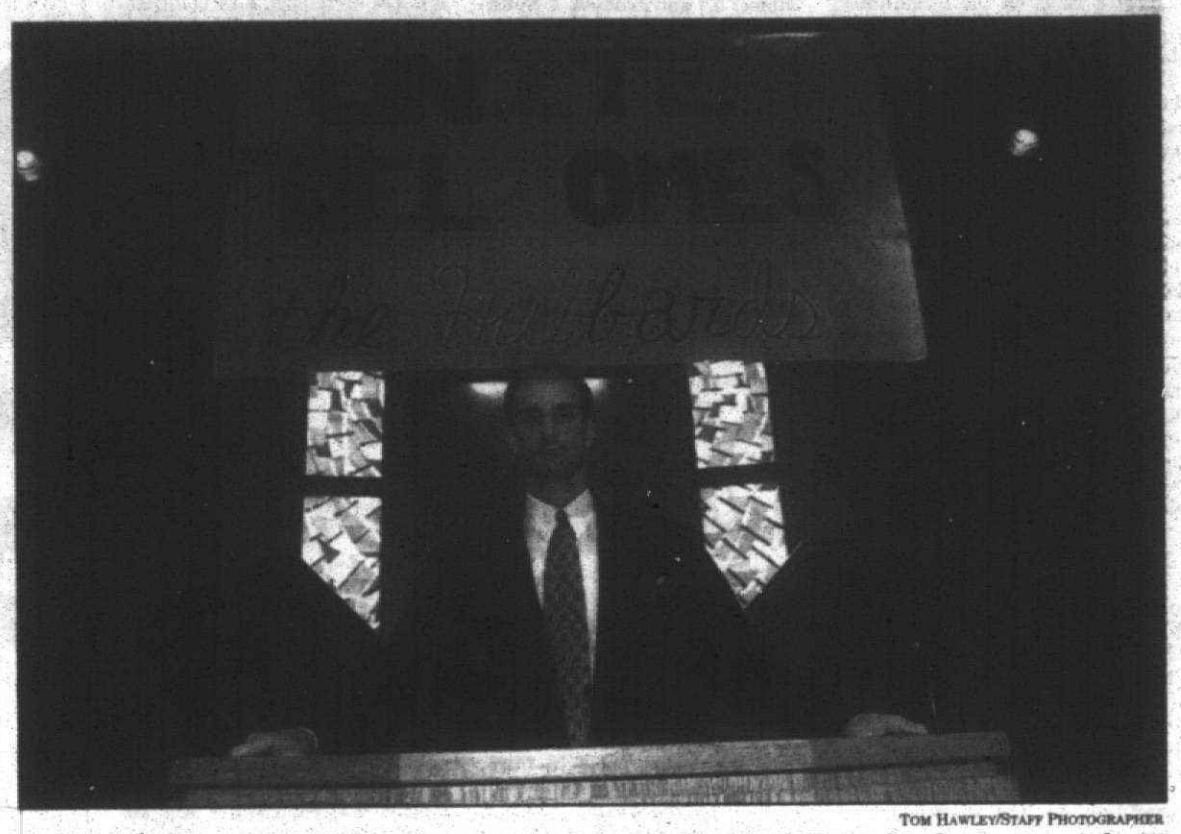

He has done overseas crusades, including several to South America and one last year in Russia with 100 youths. His decision to come to Plymouth Township, he said, was because he "felt a challenge from God who spoke to my heart about a change."

"My heart is in pastoring; I really desire to do pastoring," Hubbard said. "I love the pastor's role in reaching out to the community. The church in some instances has become ingrown and I want it to become outgrown."

A new growth

Hubbard first preached at United Assembly of God on July 9 and was installed as senior pastor on July 17. With a goal of filling the 600-seat church on Sunday, he has already seen growth. When he came, attendance was at 135. During his first three weeks, attendance has increased to more than 200 worshipers.

New pastor

He would like to add staff — full-time music, youth and children's ministers — hopefully by the first of the year, so the church can adequately minister to families.

And he would like the church have a focus on the community. He has already started a community outreach program, Servant of Evangelism, to "show God's love in a practical way." It will kick off with a free car wash on Sept. 16 at the church.

He sees the program eventually doing things like free oil changes, leaf raking and the like for residents. And if the idea catches on, maybe adopting a city park to care for it. Similar things were done at First United in East Lansing, but the program was just starting when Hubbard left for Plymouth.

"Servant of Evangelism is based on the theory that people don't care how much you know until they see how much you care," Hubbard said. "When Jesus walked the earth, he washed feet. That was their transportation then. In the '90s, we'll wash cars. Jesus served and we'll do the same."

Married, Hubbard and his wife, Patti, have two children, Jacob, "almost 5," and Jenessa, 2. Sporting a "very team approach" to the ministry, Patti also is involved at the church, handling secretarial duties until a full-time secretary can be hired.

She also joins her husband on visitations and with a musical inclination, she's helping out in that area and wherever else until lay leaders can be trained.

"I'm very much into training leaders and then letting them take over the ministry," Hubbard said. "This is not going to be a one-man show. I don't pastor from behind a desk; I'm out there with the people."

Hubbard doesn't feel that there's an added challenge being among the youngest of senior pastors in the state. Rather, he focuses on how and what he hopes to accomplish. Nothing would make him happier than filling every seat in the church twice on Sunday.

United Assembly of God, at 46500 N. Territorial Road, has services at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Wednesday. Sunday school is at 10 a.m. Sunday.

"The real reason is not for me to build a great church, but the more people who need ministering to, the more people we've have in here and that's more people to serve the Lord," Hubbard said. "I preach a very practical, exciting gospel message that is relevant for people living in the '90s without compromising God's word.

"I want a church where people can experience the presence of God. That's the thing closest and dearest to my heart."

Workshop kids home alone

Providence Hospital and Medical Centers are offering a workshop to teach fifth and sixth grade children skills that will make them comfortable when they must be home alone.

The one-hour workshop uses puzzles and games to instruct the children on who to call in an emergency, how to answer the door and addresses other concerns of the older child.

The class will be 10-11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22, at the Providence Women's and Children's Center, 33133 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills. The fee is $5 per child and registration is required. Call (800) 968-5595.

The hospital's Family Birthing Center also is offering a free, two-hour orientation class to introduce expectant parents and their families to the center 7:30-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22.

A second date, Aug. 29, is for families choosing to deliver in the Family Birthing Center.

The class will meet in Conference Room 8E of the Providence Medical Building, 22250 Providence Drive, Southfield.

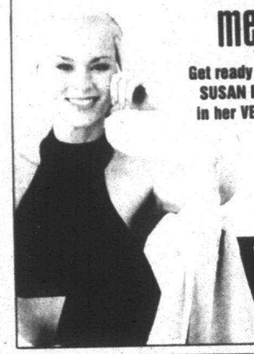

Providence's Family Birthing Center is a nationally accredited freestanding birthing center. It offers an alternative to traditional hospital and home birth settings for the low-risk mother and her family. Care is provided in home-like surroundings.

INTRODUCING

The New Life Center at Providence Park

Where families are born...close to home

A Comfortable Atmosphere

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A Unique Approach

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

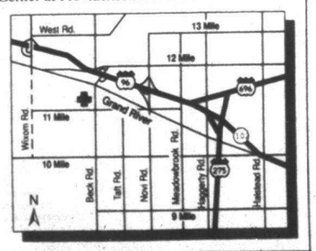

The Choices are Many

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

Come See for Yourself But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

*Only pregnant women who have been pre-screened and assessed as low risk by a Providence physician are eligible to deliver at the Providence Park New Life Center.

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

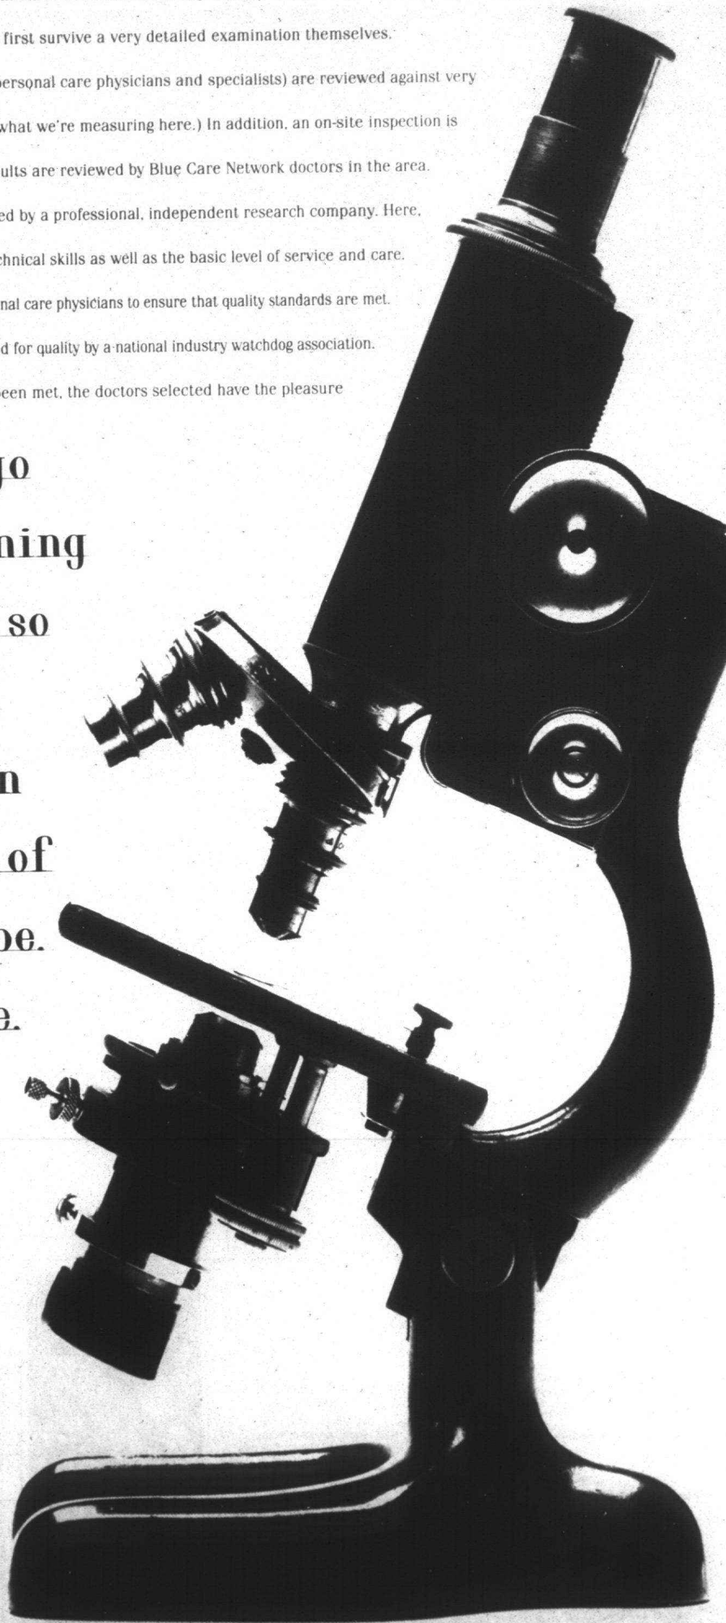

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.

Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

Blue Care Network
We screen our doctors so you get better choices.

Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital...
Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Family Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials, It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, A division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers,

The Family Birthing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which meets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience, Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

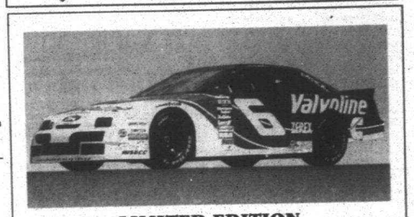

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breast feeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes.. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine Mile Road in Southfield, Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to help make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

Writer wants to be where action is

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene, I am a 62-year-old mother and grandmother. I work full time in an office as a personnel supervisor. I often hear complaints about my handwriting and use the age-old excuse, "I should have been a doctor." I also find that I write slower than I can express myself. Can you give me some insight? Thank you in advance.

D.K., Livonia

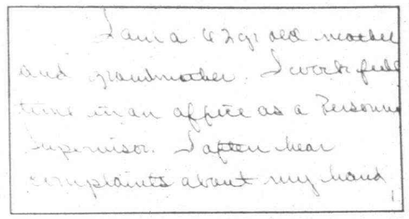

Here is the handwriting of a very socially oriented woman. Her main focus is on her social life. She embraces life with outstretched arms and wants to live it to the fullest. She may be overly concerned with socializing at the expense of the intellectual.

Our writer is friendly and wants to be where the action is. Usually, she is up on all the latest, whether it be restaurants, fashions, movies, television or gossip. Her enthusiasm often carries others along with her as it is an infectious trait.

This is a master showman who enjoys an audience and knows how to get it. She seeks the limelight as naturally as the sunflower seeks the sun. She rather enjoys making a big impression and having her own way. This is a loquacious woman who is rarely at a loss for words. She can also be quite charming, telling others what they wish to hear. Some people may see her as a social climber. Keeping a secret may be a little difficult for her. Our writer has a strong desire to possess what is important to her. Money, or what it represents, seems to hold such a place.

She can also be possessive of family and friends. She wants to be important to others and when she isn't, a little jealousy may surface.

It seems that our writer is attempting to conceal some unresolved personal problems and can become defensive, if quizzed. When things don't work out to her liking, she may try to manipulate or use excuses to save face. She is not a stranger to rationalizing. In addition, she is sometimes distrustful, and is reluctant "to put all her cards on the table," so to speak.

I am a 62yr old mother and grandmother. I work full time in an office as a Personnel Supervisor. I often hear complaints about my hand

Some irritation can be seen in this handwriting. I think it is probably temporary, but cannot be certain without seeing samples written at other times.

This woman has a very good mind. She can comprehend information rapidly. No one needs to furnish lengthy explanations or draw pictures for her.

Her goals appear to be at two different levels. Some are set low and are easily attainable. Others are more challenging.

At times, she may have a little difficulty zeroing in on tasks or projects. But once she gets started she works diligently until her goal is reached.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Objective feedback is welcome.

The Doll Hospital & Toy Soldier Shop

At Providence, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer so many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And our obstetrical program is one of the largest and best in Michigan.

Choose from a wide range of birthing options at Providence. Our medical staff is committed to listening to and understanding women's needs and wants concerning childbirth. That's why we offer more family-centered birthing options than any other hospital. Giving birth in our Family Birthing Center, the only one of its kind in Michigan, is almost like having your baby at home. In our New Life Center at Providence in Southfield, 12 comfortable labor/delivery/recovery rooms are a direct response to women's requests for a more homelike atmosphere, backed by personal nursing care and all the high technology a major metropolitan hospital can offer. For those women who may require a cesarean delivery or other medical intervention, we also offer traditional birthing suites. Last year we opened an innovative, first-of-its-kind facility for low-risk mothers: the beautiful New Life Center at Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, Novi, where women give birth and return home within 24 hours.

Our maternal-fetal specialists and facilities provide women with high-risk pregnancies the safest delivery possible. And it's comforting to know that should the need arise, Providence has a level III regional neonatal ICU for ill or premature newborns.

Prenatal and postnatal educational services. At Providence, we're committed to helping families feel capable, before and after birth. That's why we offer health education classes. Expectant mothers and their partners may take advantage of classes such as preparation for childbirth, childbirth refresher, cesarean birth, brothers and sisters, breastfeeding and infant CPR.

Schedule a Providence tour. If you're planning to have a baby, visit Providence and find out about all your options. Ask your doctor about Providence, or call us at 1-800-968-5595 to schedule a tour. To schedule a tour of our Family Birthing Center, call (810) 424-3919. Our friendly and capable staff will be happy to answer your questions.

When it comes to small packages, we deliver.

Providence is proud of its staff members who provide care in obstetrics and gynecology to women in the metro Detroit area.

I've figured it up. And here's the bottom line: the cost of one meal at a restaurant is equivalent to seven meals at home. And so for a picky, cheapskate eater like me, reading restaurant articles doesn't make any sense. But I do it anyway. It's weird.

And another thing about those restaurant articles, they always feature restaurants in far-flung places. Now you must understand, anything you can't walk to is "far-flung" in my book. I know that's being entirely unreasonable. But piling everyone into the van and then driving somewhere can be horribly unreasonable, especially when they're all hungry. Proximity is paramount at feeding time.

Now maybe the reason I get caught up in those articles is because I think that maybe, just maybe, I'll read about a restaurant that meets the outrageous and unreasonable criteria for restaurants that I have: not exotic, not expensive, not far-flung.

Well, such a place opened just a couple of weeks ago. And around here the excitement and anticipation had been building since the very first days of summer vacation and the "Coming Soon" sign went up in its window.

Now, the excitement wasn't just here in this house, it was throughout the neighborhood. We all waited and waited. And then it happened. The Soda Jerk opened wide its doors and in poured the people. Including us — the Meier six. One hot evening, after supper — chicken stir fry, I think — we walked there. Actually, four of us walked and two were in the stroller. How do you like that? Within walking and strollering distance. We walked, strolled, and talked ice cream flavors.

The Soda Jerk is about a six-minute walk from my house. And it is really cool. It's a soda fountain straight out of the '50s. The floor is black and white squares, the stools at the long counter are red and spin all the way around, the metal containers of ice cream and syrups and toppings shine like the bumper of a '57 Chevy and the fluted sundae glasses stacked in old-fashioned pyramids are perfect and real and made of glass.

And the jukebox in the back is real, honest to goodness. And it plays 45's, all '50s songs, I guess. They all sounded '50s anyway, especially the song that made the two waitresses burst into dance right in the middle of the black and white floor. Everyone in the restaurant clapped for them. It was great!

And then there was the ice cream we ordered. It was not exotic. In my sundae glass was none other than good, creamy vanilla ice cream with hot fudge poured all over it and whipped cream and a cherry on top. Nothing raw, nothing fishy, nothing bony.

And the price for this? $1.85. Still higher than a hot fudge sundae at home. But then, a real soda jerk, a jukebox and the jitterbug have their worth, too.

A note about the "D" word that appeared in my column last week. It wasn't supposed to, but it got there anyway. And I apologize. Between the 'D" word and "D-A-R-N" (the word I meant to say), there's a lot of difference. Just ask my child who's tried out the "D" word for the first time about the difference.

SPIDERS weave webs of fascination

BY ANNIE LEHMANN • SPECIAL WRITER

Dr. Jonathan Coddington

With an estimated 170,000 species, spiders are this planet's best form of pest control, protecting crops by devouring billions of insects. It is estimated that 2,000-3,000 of these nocturnal crawlers dwell, rent free, in the average American home and that one can be found within three feet of a person at any given time.

These are just some of the informational tidbits gleaned from an afternoon stroll through "Spiders!" a something-for-all-ages exhibit, currently on display at Cranbrook's Institute of Science. Spiders are found around the globe and in every habitat. Relatively small in size, these eight-legged creatures with an equal number of eyes, are sophisticated architects often busily spinning intricate and efficient webs; survivalists who live a solitary life learning early on that the best way not to be eaten is not to be seen; and tenacious predators able to ensnare, impale and devour. It would seem that Miss Muffet wasn't entirely off base in fleeing the spider who sat down beside her.

The fact is, however, that spiders would rather dodge than fight. They often match their surroundings in color and pattern for protection. They live lonely distrustful lives unsure whether mates or siblings will turn them into dinner.

"Spiders!" uses hands-on activities, live specimens, photos, and videos to introduce visitors to the complex and challenging world of the spider. For those who would rather sit than roam, there are lectures, storytellers, a spider-themed laser show, puppet play, a reading corner and an assortment of short videos.

Most memorable of the latter was a nine minute film entitled "Victims of Venom." As a bug becomes trapped in a sticky web, the narrator declaims menacingly, "Imagine having your dinner land right on the table." This graphic and up close look at spiders' modus operandi in snaring and seizing their prey was one of the show's highlights for 12 year old Seth Barnett of West Bloomfield. "It was amazing to watch small spiders catch animals so much bigger than themselves." An Orchard Lake Middle School student, Barnett was amused by the craftiness of the trap door spider and its ability to surprise its victims with amazing speed and efficiency.

"Weave a Web," one of the most popular attractions, allowed visitors to create a spider web design and test their abilities to snare insects with interactive video. "Good Vibrations" offers viewers an opportunity to experience the sensory world of the spider. Meet Tallulah the Tarantula, a claymation character who stars in a video about the spider's ability to hear, smell and taste through their sensitive feet.

Move around the exhibit and examine the jaws, fangs and venom glands of the deadly black widow and brown recluse spiders. For Brad LaBret of West Bloomfield, a 10 year old Green Elementary School student and aspiring anesthesiologist, this was particularly interesting because of how spider venom affects the nervous system of its prey.

"I collect spiders near the creek in my backyard," he said. "I bring them home, feed them, watch them and return them to the wild." The show, he says, only reinforced his belief that spiders, in a word, are "cool."

The complex anatomy and reproductive worlds of the spider were explained with plaster models, while in the Nature Place adjacent to the Institute of Science, an actual spider egg sac, bustling with spiderly activity, was on display.

This was 13 year old Susie Barnett's favorite part of the exhibit. Though this Orchard Lake Middle School student says, "the only thing I like about spiders is stepping on them," she admitted that she found the live egg sac incredible.

"The babies were so small you could hardly see them," she said mystified by the enterprise. In the end, she said, "spiders still scare me, but I like having them around because they kill mosquitoes."

Sprinkled throughout the exhibit are Spiderbytes - fun tidbits of information. For example, a spider runs 330 times its body length in 10 seconds, the equivalent of a human being running across six football fields in the same amount of time.

The exhibit also addresses interesting questions, like why spiders do not get caught in their own webs. It turns out that, besides being cautious climbers, they exude an oily fluid which causes them to have non-stick feet.

If there is anything to take away from "Spiders!" it's that the genius of nature is contained in these amazing creatures. The show, which was organized by the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History and the Marvel Entertainment Group, creator of "Spiderman" comics, will run at the museum through Sept. 24.

Artist washes richness into paintings

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Unlike the transparent watercolors many artists paint, Jean Weber layers the medium to create works rich and vibrant. The Livonia Arts Commission presents more than one dozen of Weber's paintings through Aug. 31 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, 33000 Civic Center Drive east of Farmington Road.

Paintings with depth of color capture everyday scenes of a farmer tilling his fields, a stock boy spilling a burlap sack of corn onto a counter display, and a cat watching a bird feeder from the comfort of a living room end table.

Weber uses a technique called glazing by which layer after layer of transparent paint is washed over an underpainting. Each adds depth.

"In true watercolor you see the luminousity shine through the paint. The critical part is in the planning. I'm not using a wet-on-wet technique but a wet on a fairly dry surface," said Weber during an interview in her Plymouth home.

Weber originally painted oils but took a 15-year hiatus to raise her and husband Paul's two children. Paul is the assistant superintendent of Redford Union Schools.

She resumed painting, this time with watercolor, nearly four years ago. A graduate of Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, Weber studied watercolor with Visual Arts Association of Livonia teachers Janus Benda and Donna Vogelheim.

"My love has always been art," said Weber, who considers composition the most important element of a painting.

She uses a variety of tools to create texture after the watercolor has dried. Razor blades rough up the striped coat of a cat. Sandpaper and toothbrushes are other vehicles for texturizing the paper. For deeper color, Weber employs strokes of watercolor pencils and the water-soluble crayon Caran D' Ache.

If Weber is unhappy with a painting, she sometimes cuts it into strips then weaves it back together again.

"There is great freedom in recognizing that there is not one correct way of working in watercolor," she said. "And that personal expression often comes through combining traditional methods with experimentation and inventiveness."

Potters help shape envisioned arts community

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

If Torb and Dolores Guenther and more than 20 members of the newly formed Village Potter's Guild get their way, one area of Plymouth's Old Village could become a thriving arts community called Alter Park.

Five years ago when the Guenthers bought the building housing their manufacturing business (CD Sparling, maker of handicapped grab bars), plans were to eventually turn the facility into a place where artists could meet and work. The building, home of the Alter Motor Car Co. from 1914-16, rests on four acres.

The idea was soon shelved when the Guenthers realized manufacturing and the creation of artwork were not meant to coexist.

They purchased four small bungalow homes that back up to CD Sparling, and would eventually like to buy the entire block of Karmada to serve as centers of learning for a variety of fine crafts and visual arts.

Right now, the fate of the Plan Unit Development rests in the hands of the city's zoning board.

"I was always a lover of the arts and wanted to have an involvement with the arts. I envision a community of artists working in clay, glass, metalsmithing and other mediums, a teaching situation where they could pass their knowledge on to others. It would be a great asset to the community," said Torb Guenther.

"The number one criteria is that it should be self supporting."

That's where members of the Village Potter's Guild come in. The nonprofit organization founded in May 1995 was the brainchild of Kris Darby, who retired this spring after teaching art for 27 years in the Plymouth-Canton Schools. Darby, a student at the Ann Arbor Potter's Guild, applied for membership in the cooperative but found a long waiting list.

The same was true of the highly-respected Pewabic Pottery in Detroit. Darby found it would be years before she could work in a cooperative setting. That's when she sought out other potters in the area.

A call for members placed in local newspapers turned up eight other potters seeking the same. Darby hopes that September, along with its falling leaves, will bring a rebirth of the arts with the opening of the pottery studio in Old Village.

"I like the clay but like the atmosphere of working with others," said Darby. "All the while I was teaching it to students, it kept calling to me. Clay is one of the elements of the earth. It's always been my first love. It comes from the earth. It's made workable with water, hard by air, and decorated and durable by fire."

The future home of the Village Potter's Guild sits gutted now. Two large rooms will serve as separate areas for working potters and classes. The gas kiln will be housed in the garage. Guild members hope to eventually enclose the porch to provide an area for selling their wares.

"Part of this whole thing is to offer education to the community and teach them about the aesthetics of clay," Darby said.

Members will pay an initiation fee plus yearly dues to cover the cost of rent, electricity, heat and clay. Classes, featuring both wheel-thrown and hand-built techniques, will be geared toward adults and promising high school students.

"There seems to be a need for a place for people interested in classes," said charter member Barbara Hulme during a recent tour of the facility.

For more information about the Village Potter's Guild, call Kris Darby, (313) 453-2281, or guild president Barb VanPelt, (313) 455-0392.

Chip Chinery lives on the edge.

The young comic is trying to ride the wave of successful stand-up comics who have climbed their way onto our television screens every weeks, while he continues to ride the rails, or a plane, across America performing in comedy clubs and lounges.

The clean-cut comic offers up his rapier wit in an unoffensive way. He says his shows are clean enough for children to see, but doesn't encourage parents to bring the little ones to adult clubs and lounges to see him.

Chinery will be performing at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle Aug. 10-13.

"I've been in Detroit before, maybe four years ago, but never to this club," Chinery said in a phone interview from Los Angeles.

Chinery said he has cut his travel in half, hitting the road only about 25 weeks of the year, rather than the 50 weeks a year he used to do. Over the past seven years, Chinery played on 375 stages in 252 cities over 39 states the District of Columbia and the Bahamas. He has averaged well over 300 shows annually.

A Cincinnati native, Chinery recently moved to the West Coast to look for his big break. He has performed on "An Evening at the Improv," "Caroline's Comedy Hour," and "Comedy on the Road." He has won two Emmys, one for a production called "On Air Performer" and a second for a short subject program that he produced, edited and performed.

Since his move to Los Angeles, the red-headed Chinery has auditioned for several sitcoms and was narrowly nosed out for a mid-season replacement show called "Don't Forget Your Toothbrush."

The former banker plans to keep shooting for the stars as he enjoys meeting folks around the country in his on-the-road performances.

Live in Roseville — Dogstar featuring Keanu Reeves

BY TODD WICKS
SPECIAL WRITER

Anyone driving by The Ritz last Friday could tell something was up. The packed parking lot, the never ending stream of women going inside, police everywhere . . . you just knew this wasn't another of Night Ranger's monthly visits to Roseville.

Nope, it was Dogstar, the band of unknowns whose bass player just happens to be movie star Keanu Reeves. Standing in the crowd, waiting for Johnny Mnemonic and Co. to take the stage, it was a fairly representative cross-section of American females today. Fake-baked, hairspray-queens crammed into leather outfits mingled with black-clad alternateens in baby doll T-shirts who in turn rubbed shoulders with a few bespectacled secretary-types who would otherwise never have even thought of setting foot in the Ritz.

An EMS ambulance was parked by the door, silently waiting for the inevitable fainting or case of Keanumania gone berserk.

The fact that Dogstar has thus far made no videos, released no recorded material or done anything to warrant attention other than have an internationally famous actor on bass didn't dissuade hordes from snapping up T-shirts and posters.

I asked a dozen Ritz employees for a press release, a flier, anything with the other band members' names. No one knew or seemed to care. You heard his name wherever you turned, Keanu, Keanu, Keanu, on the lips of everyone there. Even the DJ seemed to forget the rest of the band: "OK people, sit tight, Keanu Reeves will be out in a few minutes!"

When Dogstar did amble out around midnight, the overwhelming screams were unmistakably directed stage right. Unshaven, tousle-haired and sporting a loose-fitting flannel, Reeves simply strapped on his bass and went to work.

The band played about 90 minutes of the usual "modern rock," not very heavy, just 15 or so jangly originals. It was amusing to watch the other members work the audience like crazy, playing at the edge of the stage, using wine bottles as guitar slides and shouting obscenities into the microphone.

The crowd collectively stifled a yawn. All eyes firmly focused on Reeves intently working his bass and pulling the occasional rock move, staying out of the spotlight except to smile and say "Thanks" into a microphone now and then. Of course, the crowd exploded each time.

Halfway through Dogstar's set, the audience wanted to get into the act. A few girls with backstage passes began dancing on Reeves' side of the stage, at first unobtrusively, shooting a few shy glances his way.

As the night went on, they got bolder and bolder (or drunker and drunker) and finally pranced right up within inches of Reeves. At this point I almost expected him to throw his bass on the ground, tired of all this star treatment, Couldn't anyone see that he's just one of the guys, that he just wants to rock with his buddies? That he wants to be left alone? That he's only human? But Reeves just looked over, gave a most excellent Ted "Theodore" Logan goofy grin and kept playing.

Indeed, the most remarkable thing about Dogstar was Reeves' pleasant, low-key response to the hysteria he induced. He knows he could walk onstage and floss his teeth to the same wild response.

As for the music, it was disposable. I forgot all of the originals as soon as the next one began, and a cliche cover of "Rockin' In the Free World" was awkward and unforgivably lightweight, especially after Pearl Jam's definitive live versions. Why anyone besides Neil Young would play it again is perplexing.

The show concluded with an extended Reeves-and-drums jam with some crew member rapping on about Detroit far too long.

In the end, everyone got exactly what they came for. No one was expecting to be blown away by the band, no one was looking for the next big thing: they all wanted to see a movie star, and they did. Reeves didn't embarrass himself, but his low-key charm proved more than enough to send the crowd home happy.

Suicide Machine protects audience

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

As a young "punk rock kid," Jason Navarro was harassed by bouncers for getting into the music that he enjoys. Now that the 22-year-old Redford resident is fronting the punk/ska band The Suicide Machines, he and his bandmates are dedicated to protect their audiences.

"I think Jay is doing for the kids what he wanted to be doing when he was a kid. When I see him chasing bouncers around that are roughing kids up (it reminds me of what) they did that to him when he was kid — and me too — and nobody ever did anything," said guitarist Dan Lukacinsky of Redford.

"We stand up for the kids who see our shows. We always end up having problems with security because we want people to be free to do what they want."

Meanwhile the multi-pierced Navarro gets to live out his childhood fantasy.

"I think I like this band the most because the way I envisioned things when I was a little punk rock kid. I used to like to grab the mike and scream at all the kids like the old punk bands," Navarro said.

Even though The Suicide Machines subscribe to the punk rock do-it-yourself lifestyle, the band is torn about the recent airplay of the ska-flavored single "New Girl." The single is from the album "Skank for Brains!" (Dill) a 22-song CD that the band split with the Rudiments.

"I like the radio and I'm glad they played it on the radio," Lukacinsky said. "I'm not dissing alternative radio or anything like that but a lot of the stuff they play on there is boring bland indie pop like British stuff," Lukacinsky said.

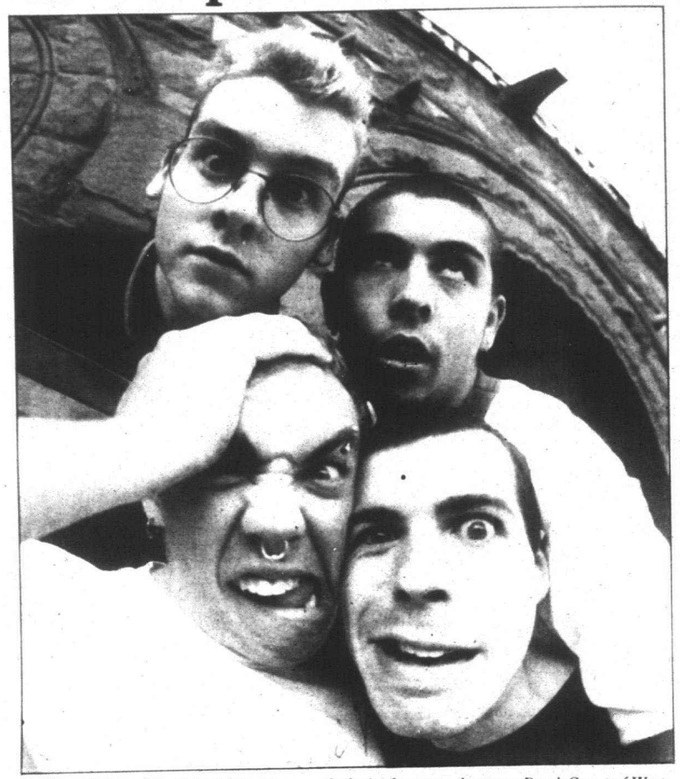

"That's all they play — just crap. It's like they should play some stuff with a little get up and go to it. That's why I'm glad they're playing our stuff on there. It's got some energy. I don't want to be depressed when I listen to the radio but that's what I get from alternative radio."

Navarro has a more punk-rock view of their new-found popularity.

"It's weird for me. I'm not into that sort of thing. . . . I hate radio. I hate it. . . . All my friends don't listen to the radio. Maybe I'm sheltered, I don't watch TV or listen to the radio."

Formed in October 1992, the band — which also features bassist Royce Nunley of Redford and drummer Derek Grant of Westland — originally called itself Jack Kevorkian and The Suicide Machines. Within the last year, they shortened their name due to convenience and obvious other problems.

"We were just avoiding any problems in the future. Besides I always thought that the name was too long anyway. I hated saying the name. I talked to (Jeffrey) Feiger's secretary and he said, 'If they know what's good for them they better change the name.'"

Deadly addictive: The Suicide Machines — clockwise from top, drummer Derek Grant of Westland, bassist Royce Nunley of Redford, guitarist Dan Lukacinsky of Redford, and singer Jason Navarro of Redford — have created a buzz around town with its hook-laden single "New Girl" off the disc "Skank for Brains!"

The name was so long that it didn't fit in advertisements or marquees so clubs would shorten the band's name which caused a few misunderstandings.

"One time we played Ypsi and they put 'Jack Kevorkian' on the flier and two kids came in asking where's Jack Kevorkian. It just got ridiculous."

Many would argue that ska music — a speeded up form of reggae — has seen its time. Judging from the response they've received at shows, from "New Girl," and the recent popularity of bands like Rancid, Sublime, and Lollapalooza participants the Mighty Mighty Bosstones, all of whom incoporate ska into their music, the Suicide Machines feel that ska could meet its second coming.

"I think it already had its chance, with Specials and Madness and that kind of stuff from the early 80s and late 70s. (But) I think with the new breed of what's coming out in ska there's a lot of punk being mixed with it and I think that definitely could get played on the radio in the future," Lukacinsky said.

The Suicide Machines perform during the "Clutch Cargo's Birthday Party" at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 13, with Speedball, Hoarse, Trash Brats, Big Block, The Goldentones, Caelum Bliss, Robert Bradley and the Blackwater Surprise, Daddystitch, Whirling Road, Forehead Stew, Walk on Water, Pogostick and Forge, at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre, 10 Water St., Pontiac. Tickets are $5 for the all-ages show. For more information, call (810) 335-4850.

Stages can't hold The Bucket anymore

STAFF WRITER

Live shows have proven to be a problem for the Ann Arbor-based funk band The Bucket. Not only has their crowd outgrown smaller clubs, the 12-piece group has outgrown most stages.

"Oh that's always a factor," said keyboardist/vocalist Lance Loiselle of Plymouth. "We just cram. When we play at Mackinac Island at the French Outpost, the stage is about 4-feet deep and 10-feet long. We fit 10 people on there last time. Now we have to fit an extra guitar on the stage. I don't know how we're going to do that."

On Saturday, The Bucket shouldn't have a problem. The group will play the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor in celebration of the release of its debut tape. Even though the band is happy with the tape, Loiselle said The Bucket's strong suit is its live shows.

"Most of our gigs are just a big party. Everybody always leaves in a good mood. . . . What this band is all about is playing live. There's not that many live bands out there. The tape sounds great and it's a good representation of how we sound, but it's not even close to what we do live."

Like most of The Bucket's live shows, the Blind Pig gig will be a musical marathon compared to most band's 1½-hour sets.

"We don't really have opening bands. We like playing three or four hours at a time; three one-hour sets. If we put all our originals and all our covers together we would probably have 40 songs."

The Bucket formed in March 1994 as a jam session that quickly evolved into a firm group. Besides Loiselle, the line-up includes guitarist/vocalist Jeff Plankenhorn formerly of Rochester Hills, trumpeter/vocalist Bobby Bell, trombonist/vocalist Ralph Mandarano, drummer Andrew Kitchen, saxophonist Colin Stetson, bassist Adam Roberts, vocalist Dina Harrison, guitarist Dan Marcus, vocalist Rachel Webster formerly of West Bloomfield, trombonist/vocalist Thom Snider formerly of Livonia, and trumpeter/singer Brad Fowler.

PREVIEW

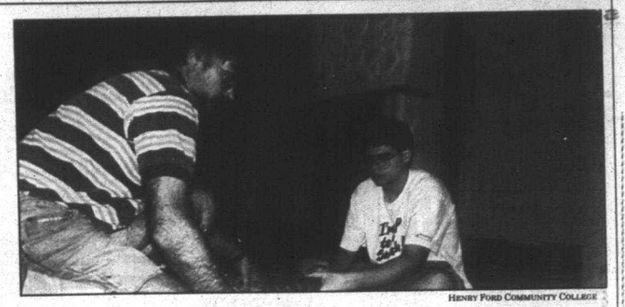

Laurence Fron of Plymouth stars as the vagabond, caught in the middle of comedy, murder and mayhem on the Wyoming frontier in "The Tavern," to be presented by the Theatre Arts Program of Henry Ford Community College, Aug. 10-13 and 17-20.

George M. Cohan's western comic adventure opens with the robbing of the governor's stagecoach on a "dark and stormy" night and a mysterious man and woman checking into the local inn.

Other local performers include Katie White of Westland (Sally), and Robert Shipman of Garden City (Willum). Danielle Hassett of Livonia plays Stevens. Portraying sheriff's deputies are: Katie White of Westland and Steven Savanish of Wayne.

The play is being directed by Tom Anderson. This is his last show for HFCC. During the last three years, Anderson has served as set, light, costume and technical director for HFCC's theater program. Anderson and his wife, Jennifer, who also has been technical and set designer for several HFCC productions, will be moving to Virginia, where he has been hired as the full-time technical director at Washington and Lee University.

Freelance writer Carl Bookstein will be reviewing the show for the Observer. Be sure to pick up next week's paper, and turn to Entertainment to read Bookstein's review of the show.

HENRY FORD COMMUNITY COLLEGE

All set: The father and son team of Fred and Jody Florkowski of Redford work on the set of "The Tavern." The Florkowskis are carving foam to look like a stone fireplace as a focal point for the play, which takes place in an Old West tavern.

REVIEW

BOB WEIBEL

Three years ago SRO hit upon a successful, if unusual, theatrical format — a simulated radio show. Executive producer Bill Mandt notes that "we wanted to include something in our season of plays that would have special appeal to our many senior theatregoers, since besides the city of Southfield we are sponsored by the Senior Arts League."

Community theatre veteran Marge King directed the first radio show and is at the helm again for SRO's "WSRO On the Air III". It's another enjoyable and nostalgic trip down memory lane for anyone who remembers the golden age of radio in the thirties and forties. This installment features excerpts of actual scripts from Lights Out, The Green Hornet, Our Miss Brooks, The Bickersons, and a rollicking rendition of Beetlebaum by the daffy Spike Jones band.

There are actual commercials from that time. And SRO members review the historical record and write news, sports, and Hollywood gossip. The WSRO Singers chime in with variety of songs that were popular fifty years ago. In short, it's just like being in a radio studio, watching the sound effects people and performers create illusions for the mind's eye.

The large cast generally does a fine job with their material. Some of the better performers include Dennis Broadhead who creates a variety of terrific characters and voices. First as the linguistically challenged Professor Beetlebaum. Then he literally and figuratively wears two hats in the Our Miss Brooks sketch as Walter Denton and Mr. LaBlanch.

Margaret Gilkes is excellent as Miss Brooks. The phrasing, wit and sarcasm in her voice are near mimics of the original star, Eve Arden.

Wyn and Harold Landis are engaging as that perpetually argumentive couple The Bickersons. Wyn seems right at home behind the mike. And no wonder. She performed on radio station CKLW in Montreal when she was only 4 years old.

Another with real radio experience is Ina Sky. She sang at the age of three in Pittsburgh in the 1930s and has performed on radio and television around the country. Her gossipy character, Holly Hollywood, is right on the money as is her Kato in the Green Hornet.

The WSRO Singers, featuring Carl Reyes on the organ, are in fine form with favorites such as It Don't Mean a Thing, You Made Me Love You, and I Only Have Eyes For You. Deborah Laura Rhodes' solo number, The Man I Love, is especially good.

The audience seemed to get a bang out of watching and hearing the interesting sound effects. They also liked the 1940s prices for refreshments — two bits for coffee and cookies.

Keanu Reeves takes 'A Walk in the Clouds'

"A Walk in the Clouds," a romantic adventure starring Keanu Reeves, opens Friday, August 11 at metro Detroit theaters.

"After returning home from the war, a young GI has a chance encounter with the beautiful daughter of a vineyard owner and agrees to pose as her husband to help her face her domineering father. They unexpectedly find themselves embarking on a romantic adventure as they overcome all odds to be together.

Alfonso Arau, the director of "Like Water for Chocolate," directs from a screenplay by Robert Mark Kamen and Mark Miller and Harvey Weitzman, the team responsible for "Ghost," the "Naked Gun" series and "Airplane!".

Not suprisingly, Arau had his pick of projects following the success of "Like Water for Chocolate."

"The most important things in this film are love and family," Arau explains. "I was so intrigued by the attachment the characters feel to the earth and the story's depiction of unbending traditional values."

PREVIEW

"A Walk in the Clouds" offered Keanu Reeves, who stars as Paul Sutton, an idealist who unexpectedly finds love and family when he returns from war, an opportunity to try something very different from his two previous roles in "Speed" and the cyberpunk thriller "Johnny Mnemonic." It is the actor's first romantic role.

"A Walk in the Clouds," is a Twentieth Century Fox presentation and is rated PG-13.

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

He patrols the city, gun in hand, as business-suited bystanders walk blankly by, sometimes through him. He looks up to the sky and the clouds make a jerky shift, like a television image slightly out of whack.

This is the world of virtual reality, where a futuristic cop tracks his video-generated nemesis, Sid 6.7. It's also one of the few interesting moments in "Virtuosity," which challenges that other computer-generated turkey "Johnny Mnemonic" as worst action movie of the summer.

Too bad, because it has a lot going for it: an intriguing high-tech concept, likable leads in Denzel Washington and Russell Crowe, and a built-in audience of computer geeks and action movie fans who deserve much better.

In his world of the wall-sized video screen, a sharply dressed Sid performs magic tricks and wise cracks while an everchanging background floats by. He wants access to the real world, where he can experience the rush of killing in three dimensions.

Supposedly Sid has 183 programmed personalities, including serial killers from Adolph Hitler to John Wayne Gacy. He smears a bloody "Death to the Pigs" on the walls after his first murder, a la Charles Manson.

Little is done with this idea afterward, since Sid concentrates on the killer who offed Washington's family and sent the former cop on a rampage that landed him in prison. The rest is a cat-and-mouse game where Washington can gain his freedom by bringing Sid down.

Washington, who proved his action mettle in "Crimson Tide," is better than this trash and he knows it. The soft-spoken actor looks ridiculous in Rasta locks and beard and he has to be downright embarrassed battling a white supremacist in prison — a tacked-on action scene if I ever saw one.

Speaking of extraneous, Washington's saddled with a sidekick, a criminal psychologist played unconvincingly by Kelly Lynch. The minute you meet the woman and her daughter, you know they're going to end up in big trouble.

The few clever bits in "Virtuosity" belong to Crowe's Sid, who has the face of both a merry prankster and a lunatic. Again the filmmakers don't know what to do with him. His rampages, orchestrating a bizarre scream festival at a nightclub and hijacking a television station, have panache but they're ugly even by serial killer standards.

Certainly blame writer Eric Bernt, but also blame director Brett Leonard, who did only slightly better with "The Lawnmower Man" a few years back. There are car chases and shooting matches aplenty, but nothing that approaches the spectacle we've come to expect after a summer of "Die Hard," "Batman" and even "Waterworld."

"Virtuosity" ultimately fails in its own prime directive — really the same one that all movies have. The fun of virtual reality is how well it whisks you outside the real world. For 100 minutes of "Virtuosity," we're never anywhere but grounded in a truly bad movie.

Aug. 15: "A Wing and A Prayer" (1944), "Sunshine Boys" (1975), "Charing Cross Road" (1987).

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5, $4 students)

"Burnt by the Sun" (Russia-1994), 7, 9:30 p.m. Aug. 11-12, 1, 4, 7 p.m. Aug. 13. Winner of the Oscar for Best Foreign Language Film, the story an extended family in 1930s Moscow who feel evil just beyond the horizon at their beautiful country home.

"Pushing Hands" (USA/Taiwan-1992), 7 p.m. Aug. 14. With the success of his "The Wedding Banquet" and "Eat Drink Man Woman," Ang Lee's debut feature has been rediscovered, a story of the social pressure cooker that results when a spry, 70-year-old tai chi master moves from Beijing to New York to live with his American daughter-in-law.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($4, $3 students/seniors)

"Pulp Fiction" (USA-1994), 9 p.m. Aug. 15. The theater has turned Quentin Tarantino's supercharged comedy thriller into a "Rocky Horror" of sorts, with intermission twist contest and T-shirt and poster giveaways. You can count on one hand the audience members who haven't seen the movie at least once already.

Cool cats night — "Fritz the Cat" (USA-1972) with Felix the Cat cartoons, 9 p.m. Aug. 16. R. Crumb's underground comic creation experiences life in the counter-culture in this notorious X-rated cartoon from Ralph Bakshi. Of course it looks dated today, but that's part of the fun.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Kids" (USA-1995). An explosive first feature from director Larry Clark about a group of New York teenagers who indulge in every parent's nightmare: drinking, drugs, profanity, and unprotected sex. The year's most provocative movie, but also one of the hardest to watch.

"The Postman" ("Il Postino"), (Italian-1995). The story of exiled Chilean poet and diplomat Pablo Neruda (Philippe Noiret) and his relationship with an uneducated postman has proven a great audience pleaser.

"Love and Human Remains" (USA-1995). This dark, dark comedy from Canadian filmmaker Denys Arcand ("Jesus of Montreal") about a group of friends in search for love in the '90s has some great ideas, but too often grows pretentious and embarassing.

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

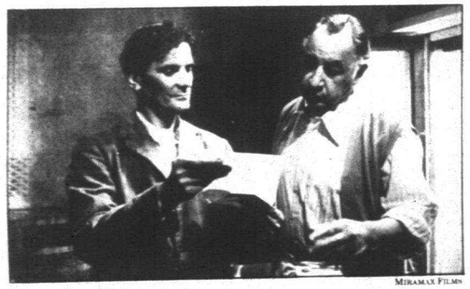

"Waterworld" (USA-1995). Not as bad as you might think, Kevin Costner's potential Waterloo actually has some clever moments and stunning special effects.

"The Net" (USA-1995). Sandra Bullock ("Speed") stars in this cyber-thriller about a woman who discovers something deadly on her computer screen.

"Smoke" (USA-1995). Wayne Wang directs this winning urban fable about the characters who frequent a Brooklyn cigar store. The intriguing cast includes Harvey Keitel, William Hurt, Forest Whitaker, Stockard Channing, and Ashley Judd.

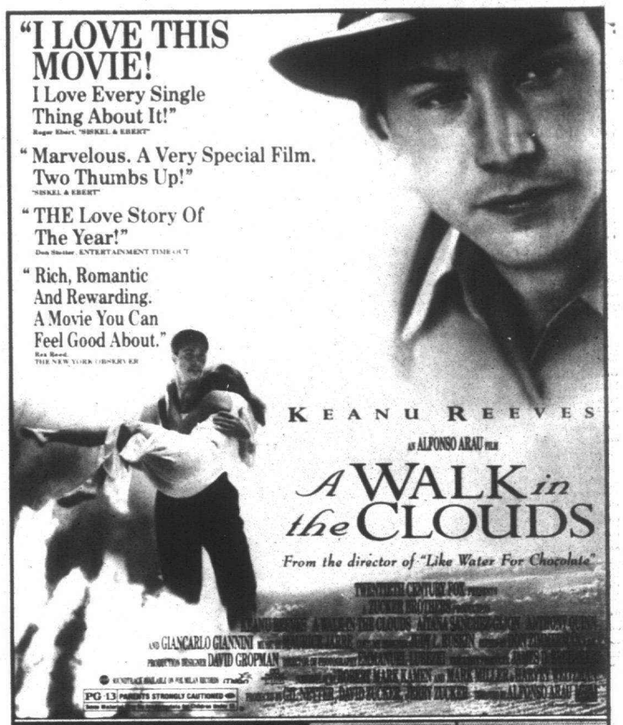

■ STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 961-5450 for information. ($1)

"Ferris Bueller's Day Off" (USA-1986). 9 p.m. Aug. 14. Still among the best-loved of John Hughes' brat pack flicks, this one starring Matthew Broderick as a teenage conman who skips school for a memorable day in downtown Chicago.

TRAVEL

Tour the Ford estates

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

After the crafts, the swimming pool, movies, hanging out at the mall, and amusement parks with endless lines, what can you do, where can you go?

The Ford estates are an option.

Henry and Clara Ford's home, Fair Lane, now designated as a National Historic Landmark in Dearborn, is nestled on the banks of the Rouge River just two miles from his birthplace. There are tours of the property five times each day that start out in the powerhouse with a 13 minute historical video.

Ford's good friend, Thomas Edison, helped design the six-level powerhouse that provided the residence with electricity, heat, refrigeration and a central vacuum system — very innovative for 1915. The giant turbines, turned by the Rouge, also provided electricity to the Village of Dearborn in the early 1900s.

A tour through the old English castle-styled 56-room home gives a sense of who Henry Ford was, his likes and his dislikes. It's fun to imagine him entertaining friends like Edison, Harvey Firestone and John Burroughs or serving dinner for such notables as the Duke of Windsor, Charles Lindbergh and President Hoover.

Marjane Baker of Livonia, is a fourth grade teacher at Tonda Elementary School in Canton and took her class on a tour of the estate this spring. She recommends children learn a little about Henry Ford before going on the tour.

"Before they go, generally I have them read a biography of Henry Ford," said Baker. "Then I think it just makes them live the story. To me, having them see where someone lived and what their home was like gives them a much more in-depth feeling about how this person lived and how this person thought."

Baker felt children from second grade on "would get a lot out of it. Actually, I think anybody would enjoy it," she said.

The Ford Discovery Trail was a particular favorite of my 7, 8 and 10-year-old. It was developed by Donn Werling, director of the Henry Ford Estate and a member of the faculty at University of Michigan, Dearborn. The 45 minute self-guided tour winds around the estate through the scenic beauty created by Henry Ford and noted landscape architect, Jens Jensen, from turn-of-the-century farm land. Explorers can walk along the Rouge River and discover the wizards of Fair Lane as they climb in the re-created tree house, stand by a 400-year-old bur oak tree and peer up into the hat house.

Bird lovers will find a real treat while on the Discovery Trail. According to Werling, "Some days you can see over a hundred species of birds. There are probably more birds here because Mr. Ford specifically enjoyed birds and he wanted the landscape architect to design for birds."

Kids will love seeing the scaled-down farm house that Ford had built for the 1924 Michigan State Fair that was later used as a play house by the Ford's grandchildren and their friends.

■ Henry and Clara Ford's only child, son Edsel, and his wife, Eleanor moved into their sixty-room Cotswold style English manor house overlooking Lake St. Clair in Grosse Pointe Shores in 1926 when their children, Henry II, Benson, Josephine and William were aged 12 to four.

A tour through the elegant estate, designed by Albert Kahn, reveals the Ford's love of art. Many of the original pieces were given to the Detroit Institute of Arts by Mrs. Ford and were replaced by photographic reproductions. However, there are still many originals that grace the walls from such artists as Cezanne, Matisse and Diego Rivera. The 2,000-year-old wine jar from China intrigues adults and children, alike.

My children particularly enjoyed seeing the Art Deco style used in the boy's room and delighted in the fact that even they shared a bedroom. Other favorites were the powerhouse and tunnel in the basement. And, of course, the three-quarter scale house on the property that was a gift to Josephine from Grandma Clara. The house comes complete with workable water faucets, tiny light switches, child-sized furniture and even a pint-sized piano.

Both houses could be toured in a day but, with children, two separate days would definitely be advised. There should be enough to see, do and think about at the Ford homes to stave off boredom for at least a day or two.

Diane Hanson of Canton is a free-lance writer, and mother of six.

DINING

Italian fare served with smiles

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
STAFF WRITER

Who would guess when you walk into the Macaroni Grill that it's a chain restaurant. Although large, it has the quaint charm of that "little place down the street where everybody knows you!"

But don't let the colorful decor, in green, red and white — the colors of the Italian flag, and the friendly service fool you. Macaroni Grill is part of Brinker International, Inc. (they're the folks that own the popular Chilis restaurants) and there are 50 Macaroni Grills nationwide. Michigan now boasts two, one in Livonia and one in Farmington Hills, and there may be more.

Both Michigan establishments — like elsewhere — are identical.

"The difference," according to Darin Bybee, general manager of the Livonia eatery, "is in the staff. The staff, and we have a great one, sets the mood and personality of the restaurant."

Many of the wait staff at Macaroni Grill have a musical background.

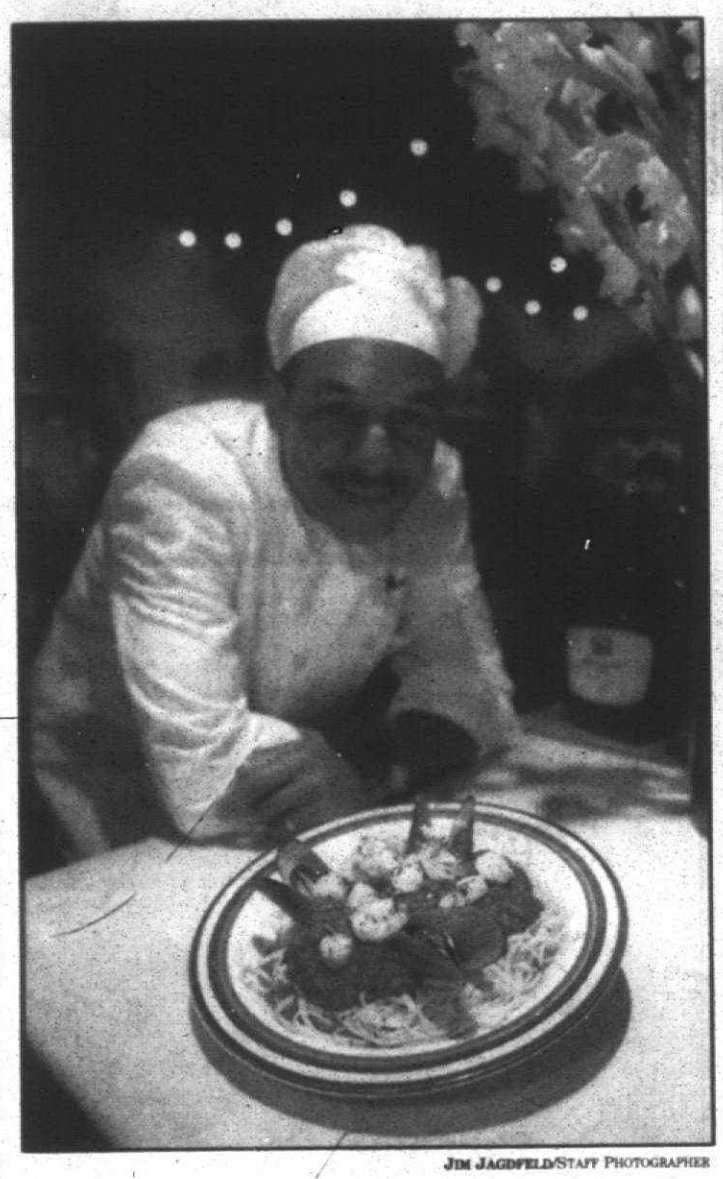

"In addition to providing the customers with fine service, our waiters and waitresses also entertain our guests at their tables. It's not unusual to hear an accordion or someone singing an opera during the dinner hour," Bybee said.

Since Livonia's Macaroni Grill opened in February, 1994 (Farmington Hills' establishment opened in 1993), it has drawn a large following due to the casual atmosphere and the good food.

The atmosphere can be described as "Italian country kitchen" with tables covered in butcher paper (there are crayons on the tables so kids and adults can decorate the coverings) and a gallon jug of wine is plopped in the center of each table. Guests are to help themselves to the wine and then report at bill time the number of glasses they drank.

There are lots and lots of fresh flowers at stations located throughout the vast dining area, and red, green and white pasta and butcher cases containing meats and seafoods decorate the entrance.

While the dining area is vast, it's also cozy — almost too cozy. Tables are shoved so close to each other that it borders on uncomfortable. This arrangement is to accommodate the crowds of diners who are forever lining up for a chance to taste the fine Italian cuisine. (Even with the multitude of tables, guests usually have to wait up to 30 minutes to be seated on weekends).

The summer menu has a lighter taste and contains more chicken and fish items. Also, there are lots of fresh vegetables in the dishes. The pasta dishes have lighter sauces with more herbs, vegetables and fresh tomatoes.

The winter menu features more hearty fare, such as roasted meats, pork, fowl, and stews. The pasta and fish dishes are spicier.

While all Macaroni Grills everywhere have basically the same menu, dishes can be altered to accommodate special dietary needs.

"We make alterations and substitutions at no charge. We want everyone to have an enjoyable dining experience with us," said Bybee.

And enjoyable it was for our group of eight. We ordered a variety of dishes including the Mozzarella alla Caprese (imported buffalo mozzarella, tomato, olive oil, oregano and basil), Pizza Margherita (fresh tomatoes, mozzarella and basil), Saltimbocca di Vitello (veal with prosciutto and spinach with pasta) and the chef's special salmon feature.

We all were pleased with our choices. Other favorites at our table was the house Caesar salad, which comes a la carte for 95 cents, and the focaccia (peasant bread with rosemary that is dipped in extra virgin olive oil and ground pepper), which is provided with the meal.

Area golf divots

Two area players were eliminated in Friday's Michigan State Publinx Match-Play Championships held at the Pines of Lake Isabella in Weidman.

Ex-O&E champ Doug Cumming of Farmington Hills was beaten in the championship flight semifinals by A.C. Burks, 2 and 1.

Primo's Pizza 1st

Former Garden City West and University of Detroit standout baseball player Tom Miner was named tournament MVP as Primo's Pizza, a member of the Livonia and Plymouth modified softball leagues, took first in a 24-team field at the 18th annual Bay Modified Softball Tournament held last weekend at Veterans Memorial Field in Bay City.

The first baseman from Westland batted .571 as Primo's defeated the Bay City Sox (13-3), Kerns of Saginaw (9-8), the Port Huron Rebels (12-6), Bay City Madison Pub (10-5) and Figaro's Lounge of Midland (10-0) en route to the title.

Miner tripled and scored the game-winning run on Dave Mondoux's single in the top of the seventh inning to give Primo's the dramatic one-run victory over Kerns.

Mondoux, a right fielder from Redford, led Primo's in batting with a .588 average.

Defensive standouts included shortstop Doug Fulton (Westland), left fielder Michael Rice (Garden City), catchers Keith Collins (Brighton) and Craig Dlugos (Westland).

Rounding out Primo's squad is outfielder/catcher Bob Debenedet (Westland), outfielder Kirk Bagg (Farmington Hills), third baseman Mike Greener (Canton), third baseman Dave Feeny (Livonia) and captain/outfielder Todd Davis (Livonia), the latter whom filled in for player/manager Rick Williamson, who missed action with a torn Achilles' tendon.

Primo's, which wound up second in both the Livonia and Plymouth rec leagues, is 27-8 overall. They return to action Labor Day weekend for tournament in Meadville, Pa.

Soccer coaches needed

Monroe Jefferson varsity boys and girls soccer coach Marty Caves, a former Livonia Bentley and Central Michigan University soccer player, needs a junior varsity coach. Jefferson Middle School in Monroe also needs a boys soccer coach. If interested, call Caves at (313) 464-0095.

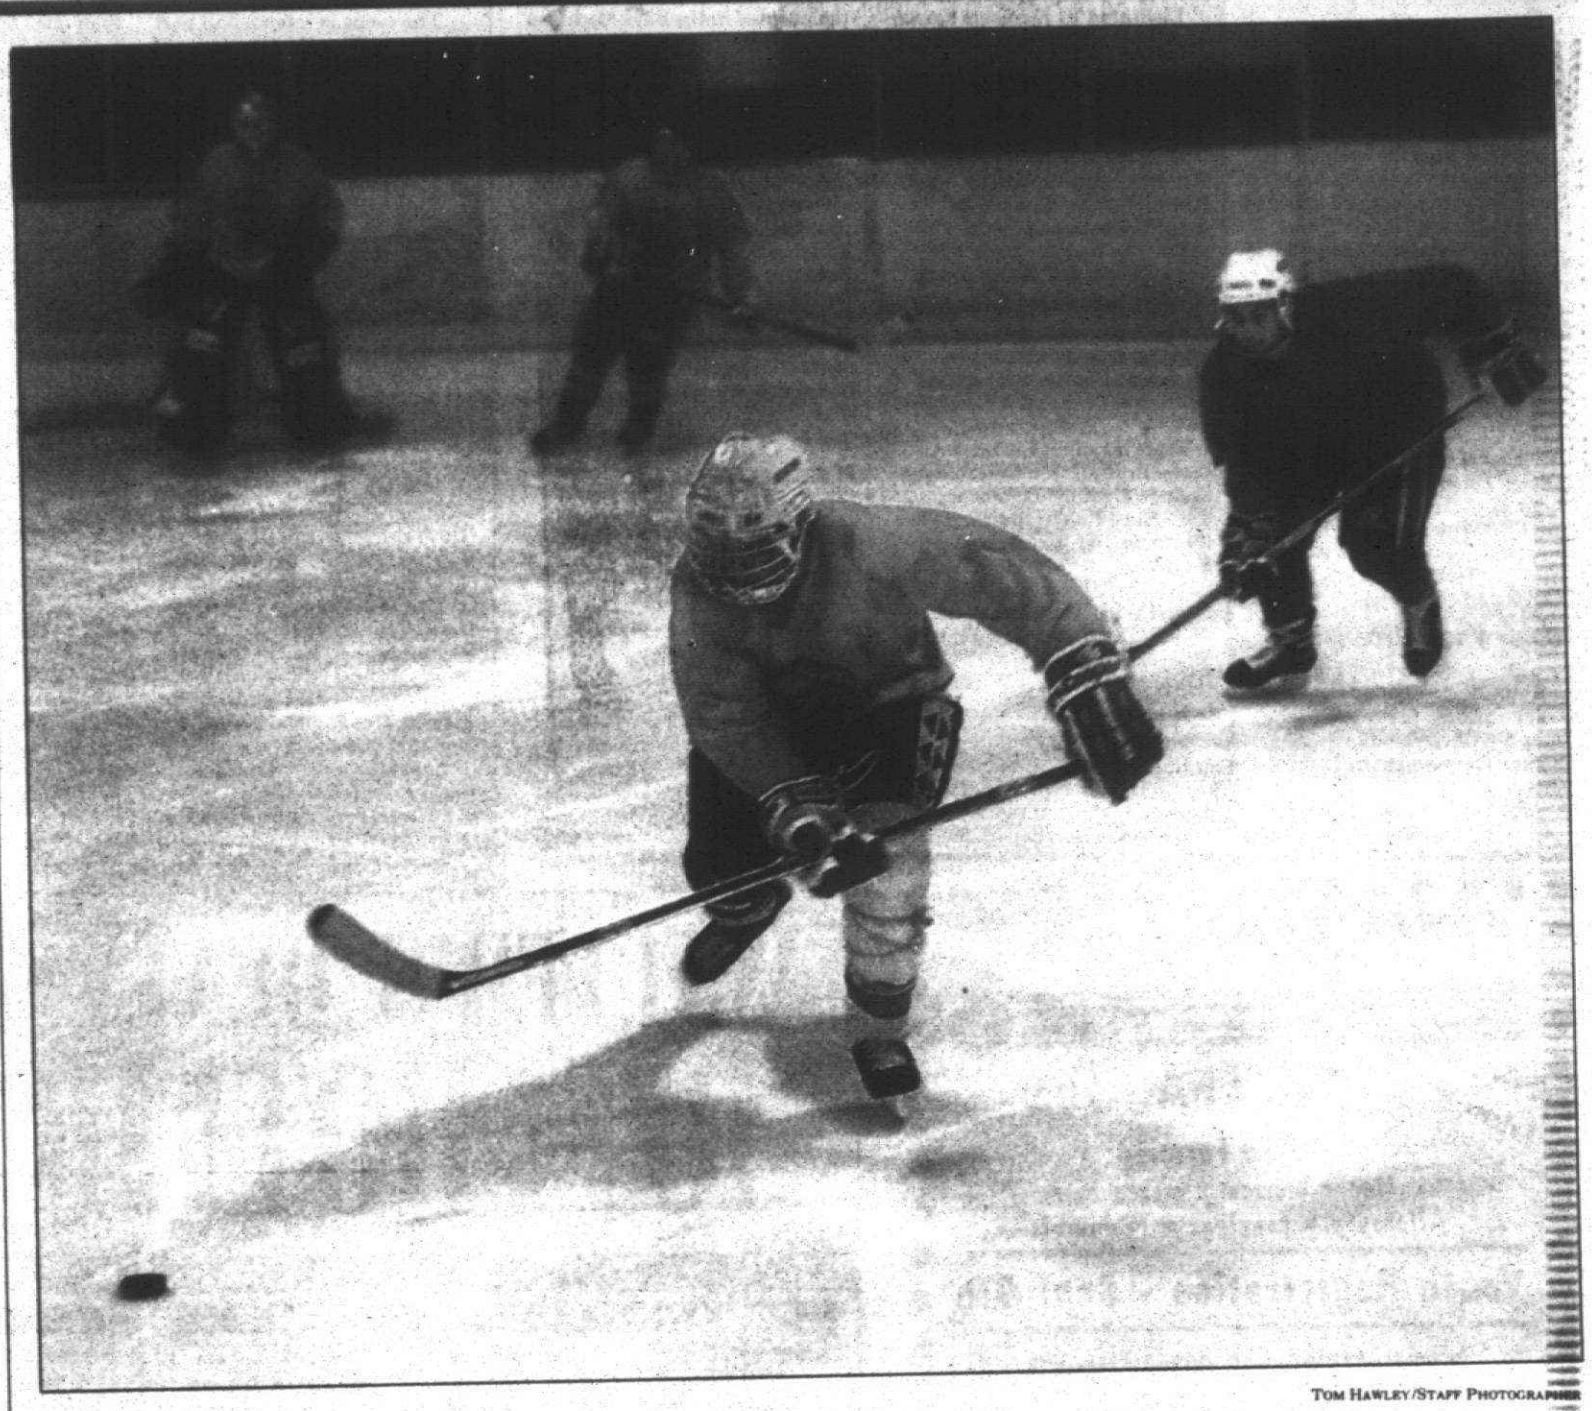

O'Connor All-tournament

Livonian James O'Connor, an outfielder-pitcher for Westland Federation, proved to be a valuable pickup for Coldwater in the American Amateur Baseball Congress Mickey Mantle (ages 15-16) regional tournament last week.

The 6-foot-2, 185-pound left-hander from Redford Catholic Central homered in his first tournament at-bat and pitched seven strong innings in the championship game to give the host team a 4-1 victory over Moline, Ill.

Coldwater opened AABC World Series action Tuesday in Kalamazoo against the Memphis (Tenn.) Tigers. The World Series field also includes teams from Puerto Rico, Cincinnati, Dallas, Baltimore, San Diego and Kalamazoo.

Pietilas lead Wildcats to hockey championship

HOCKEY

By Richard L. Shook
Staff Writer

Plenty of time and plenty of Pietilas were a winning combination for the Wildcats in their battle with the Falcons for the championship of the Metro Summer Hockey League.

The Falcons held leads of 3-1 after one period and 4-3 after two Sunday night, but couldn't hang on against a team with five Pietilas, two Wieganda and a pair of Elenichs.

There was also one period too many for the Falcons, which enabled the Wildcats to came out with a 7-4 victory in the game between conference champions with 12-1 records.

"They're good," said Keith Pietila, team captain who also serves as director of the MSHL. "They were able to capitalize on our mistakes. They had the lead, but we were able to come back."

The Wildcats will take a 13-1 record up to the Copper Country this weekend for a two-game total-goals series against another summer league team.

Keith, Ron, Kevin, Mark and cousin Jim grew up in South Lyon. All play senior hockey except Mark, who attends Michigan Tech and plays intramural hockey there.

So if it seemed there was a Pietila on the ice at all times, it's because there was. And they scored three of the four third-period goals that brought the Wildcats their win.

The Wildcats were the slicker passing of the two squads but their go-for-broke style led to frequent interceptions by the Falcons, who too many times were either a hair too quick or a fuzz too slow to convert their many 2-on-1 and 3-on-2 chances.

On a power play at the start of the final period, the Falcons made one pass too many at the 1:40 mark and saw a scoring opportunity go to the boards. Then, as the penalty expired, Paul Schloss (UM-Dearborn) fanned on a pass from the point with Wildcat goalie Jim Sexsmith (Cleveland NC Jr Barons) out of position.

Ron Pietila made those inabilities to convert costly at 3:35 with a nifty move that tied the score, 4-4. On the left side of the net, he deked Falcons' goalie Brian Guillery (UM-Dearborn) to the middle of the net and then to the ice before drawing the puck back and flipping it into the vacated left side spot.

Eric Frantti completed a hat trick and gave the Wildcats their first lead since the first goal of the game at the 5:09 mark. Coming off a shift change, he got behind everybody and drilled home a 25-footer.

Mark Pietila then scored two goals 1:20 apart in the final five minutes to ice the verdict. He one-timed a shot between Guillery's pads off a point pass from Frantti at 10:26, then picked up a flubbed clearing attempt at mid-ice and scored on a breakaway to make it 7-4.

Just before both scores, the Wildcats stymied the second Falcons' power play of the period.

The tenor of the game was set immediately when the Wildcats broke down ice whip-whip-whip — and saw the Falcons' Dan Hunt (Redford Catholic Central) intercept. Hunt led a 2-on-1 with Jim Hubenschmidt, who took a pass but missed his shot with the contest 30 seconds old.

One minute later the puck was in the net at the other end.

Josh Wiegand (Omaha Lancers) one-timed a pass from Jim Pietila on the right side to give the Wildcats a 1-0 lead.

Mario Mazzuca (Alabama-Huntsville) converted a pass from Jesse Hubenschmidt (UM-Dearborn, Redford) on his right to tie the score at 8:40 and the Falcons took a 2-1 lead at 12:31. Schloss kept the puck on the boards behind the net, then finally shoveled a pass out for Robert Poupard (Jackson Midgets) to bang past Sexsmith. Jesse Hubenschmidt made it 3-1 at 13:50 from a scramble in front of the net.

Frantti got the first goal of his hat trick 2:45 into the second period, converting after Josh Wiegand won a faceoff. He notched his second and tied the score after the halfway ice resurfacing break, scoring at 8:16 from in front of Brian Guillery (UM-Dearborn) to capitalize on the Falcons' inability to clear.

The Falcons regained the lead with 33 seconds left in the period near the end of a power play, Mike Kneiding scoring from a scramble in front of Sexsmith.

The Falcons were loaded with prep players (Livonia Stevenson, two from Cranbrook, a pair from Redford Catholic Central, two from Jackson Lumen Christi and a Jackson Midget player). The Wildcats had one high school player but several junior players.

"It's a good developmental league for younger players," Keith Pietila said. "They get some experience against older guys. And they get to stay in shape."

And pick up a souvenir championship summer league shirt in the process.

Marauders break new ground out-of-state

The champions are champions.

The Marauders captured the Tournament of Champions held at Louisville, Ky., during the weekend in a seven-state Midwest competition.

"We're the Midwest champion of champions," Coach Dan O'Shea said proudly. "It's the first time we've ever gotten out of our bracket in the event. To win it was quite a feat for us."

The Marauders were pooled with host Kentucky, Wisconsin and Indiana, advancing through the bracket with a 2-1 record and meeting Ohio North in the championship match where they recorded a 3-0 victory.

Goalie Kai Kaliszewski (Churchill/Detroit) gave up just one goal in the four-match event while John Gentile (Churchill/ex-OU All-America) directed the defense in front of him.

The Marauders then trimmed Wisconsin, 3-0, on goals by Lars Richters (Livonia Stevenson, Yale and Detroit Rockers), Jeff Thomas (Stevenson/Detroit) and Hayes before losing their only contest of the tournament, 1-0, to Indiana.

The Marauders qualified for the event by winning their own in-state tournament, as did the other participants.

The Marauders' Great Lakes Men's Soccer League playoff championship tilt against Bud Light of Flint, originally slated for Wednesday evening, was rescheduled for 4 p.m. Sunday at Jaycee Park in Livonia.

Mallon Golf Open set

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The event is intended in part to honor Meg Mallon, one of Farmington Hills Mercy High School's most famous alumnae.

But Mallon also distributes the accolades each year when she presents the Meg Mallon Achievement Award to other accomplished Mercy alums.

DAN O'MEARA

Former Southfield residents Mary Kennedy ('75) and Kandi Amelon ('82) will be so honored Monday, at the Fifth Annual Meg Mallon Golf Outing.

The fund-raising event that benefits Mercy High School includes 18 holes of golf at Edgewood Country Club, dinner and the awards ceremony that evening.

Kennedy was chosen to receive the Mallon Award for her contribution to the greater community and her commitment to helping others.

"I was very surprised when they called me," Kennedy said. "I thought, surely, there are a lot of people more deserving than me, but I graciously accepted.

"I love Mercy; it's a great school. Some of my best friends to this day are people I met at Mercy."

Kennedy, a vice president in charge of commercial lending for NBD, founded the Paint The Town project, a volunteer effort to paint and repair owner-occupied homes of senior citizens, low-income and disabled residents in the metro Detroit area.

She was inspired to begin the program by her late grandmother, Mabel Misson, and her desire to remain in her own home.

"She said, 'If you ever have the chance, help people live in their house as long as possible,' " Kennedy said.

The plan was to renovate five homes the first year, but 1,300 volunteers made it possible to do 52.

Now in its eighth year, Paint The Town will do 350 homes with the help of 10,000 people on Saturday, Aug. 19. Workers will also rehab five parks, board up 60 abandoned homes and paint three schools.

"The reason it's so popular is that it happens in one day, and you can see immediate results," Kennedy said.

"An area might look devastated in the morning and by night it looks like a brand new area. You know you're going to make a difference in somebody's life.

"Plus, it's great exercise going up and down that ladder."

Kennedy also founded the Southeast Michigan Corporate Volunteer Council, which encourages corporations to promote volunteerism among employees, and the Michigan Employee Services and Recreation Association.

She also serves on the advisory board of Commom Ground, a nonprofit organization in Oakland County.

"Mercy, as well as my parents, helped to instill in me the idea of serving in the community," said Kennedy, a graduate of Michigan State University with a master's degree from Wayne State.

Amelon, a former figure skater, was chosen to receive the Mallon Award for her spirit of fair play and sportsmanship.

In 1984, she and her pairs partner were awarded a bronze medal in international competition.

Rose repeats as singles champion at 35-over men's tournament

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Mike Rose repeated as the Men's 35 singles champion at the Livonia Family Y Prize Money Tournament, but a purple heart goes out to runner-up Ross Boling.

Rose, a 36-year-old waiter from Grosse Ile, pocketed the $500 first-place singles money with a 6-2, 6-3 triumph over Boling in the U.S. Tennis Association-sanctioned tourney on Sunday.

Boling, a 42-year-old who moonlights as a teaching pro, spending his summers in White Lake and winters in Arizona, won a grueling 4½-hour semifinal against Herb Sistrunk of Naperville, Ill., the 1993 champ (formerly of Southfield).

The match, which ended up 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 in favor of Boling, started at 9:15 a.m. and didn't end until 1:45 p.m. under the humid conditions.

"I played my semifinal at 9 a.m., took a two-hour break and then played my doubles semifinal . . . and they were still playing," said Rose, who disposed of Ohioan Eric Matthews in the other semifinal, 6-2, 6-4. "I kept watching their match on the other court because I wanted to know who was playing. I told myself 'I got to know,' and at times I wasn't concentrating on my doubles match.

"It seemed like every point was a marathon."

Boling, a native of Bowling Green, Ky. who played at Murray State University, somehow managed to pull out the third-set tiebreaker against Sistrunk, 7-4.

"I think we both agreed that this could have gone either way," Boling said. "It boiled down to breaks, but I was happy with the fact that the tennis was really good. It was high standard for five hours and we both felt good about that.

"But we both decided we were tired. I thought about having somebody hang me from one of the lower branches of a tree."

Boling, who is preparing for three national age-group tourneys next month, remembered playing in similar conditions in Texas where the temperature well above 100.

"I've really been working out and I'm in really good shape," he said. "but you can only do so much."

In the final against Rose, Boling, trying to conserve energy, appeared to be taking more than the allowed 90 seconds between changeovers.

In the second set, Rose confronted Boling about stalling and asked tournament referee Jack Kingsbury to enforce the rules.

"It was nothing personal," Rose said. "I have the utmost respect and I admire him because he always plays for more than four quarters.

"I definitely raised my game a level. I dug in and he (Boling) made some uncharacteristic errors. I came up with some of my best shots and got the games when I needed it.

Last month, Sistrunk and Boling split sets in the semifinals before rain halted the Metropolitan Detroit Clay Courts tournament.

The three, including Rose, split the first place prize money and had a coin flip for the trophies.

Rose said he will bank the $500 "because of all the hours I missed at work.

"I'm a waiter at the Olive Garden in Southgate and it's a great job because I love to meet people," said Rose, who will turn 37 next month. "I teach about two hours a week and it's hard to arrange practice, but it feels good to compete."

Boling, who took home $200 second-place prize money, gained some measure of revenge in the doubles final when he and partner Matthews downed Rose and partner Len Baziuk of Farmington Hills, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

That match lasted past dark Sunday night.

BASEBALL

Ryan makes national team

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

When Greg Ryan is mentioned in baseball circles, his versatility is usually a hot topic.

Ryan can pitch, play first base and outfield. He also played catcher for an inning this summer with the Concealed Security Systems Connie Mack team, even though it's not the conventional thing for a left-hander to do.

But something should be said about the way he adapts to conditions off the field.

Ryan grew up in a modest ranch house in Garden City and is the youngest of nine children.

"We had bunk beds in every bedroom," he said.

Ryan is currently leading a charmed life as a member of the United States Junior Olympic baseball team, but the sleeping accommodations are just like old times.

The 1995 Dearborn Divine Child graduate and 51st-round draft pick of the Detroit Tigers played a pair of exhibition games over the weekend at Sky Dome, the home of the Toronto Blue Jays.

He didn't get to stay in Sky Dome's plush hotel rooms overlooking the outfield.

Players stayed three to a room at the Neill Wycik College Hotel in Toronto. There is no air conditioning, one bathroom for every five rooms and telephone calls could only be made from the lobby, which is where he was when he did this interview.

Dorm life at Eastern Michigan University ought to be a breeze for Ryan.

"These rooms are about 7 feet by 7 feet, just a little box," said Ryan, who made the team after a strong performance on the North Team at last month's Olympic Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colo. "I was itching to get out of Colorado, I was there so long. But now I think that's a palace compared to here. We were all joking that we'd pitch in and pay for a good hotel room."

Ryan's also an accomplished hockey player, but he didn't think he'd have time to visit the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto.

Much of his free time has been spent on the phone. He talks daily with his family and twice a day with his girlfriend, Michelle Popoff. Thank God for mom's calling card.

"Mom doesn't know we talk twice a day, I kind of whisper it to her and get off the phone," said Ryan, who hasn't been home since July 16.

Quick healer

After another exhibition in Ottawa on Tuesday, the U.S. team will head to Cape Cod, Mass., for the World Tournament. Teams will play seven round-robin games and the top four will play in the medal round Aug. 19-20 at Boston's legendary Fenway Park.

The U.S. team has medaled in all of the previous 15 World Tournaments, according to public relations director Jack Duggan.

"(Being on the Junior Olympic team) didn't hit me until the morning after the team was announced," Ryan said. "I went to practice and started looking around at all the players and I realized they're probably doing the same thing. I'm always the underdog, I don't want to go in like, 'I'm the man.' We all met a week and a half ago and it seems like we're one big family. We're ready to go for it."

About a week before he was scheduled to report, Ryan separated ligaments in his left foot while walking.

"The next morning I couldn't walk and had to get some old crutches out of the garage," Ryan said.

Ryan had a cast put on his foot and worked out the next week at the University of Michigan's MedSport. After a few days of rehabilitation and removal of the cast, Ryan wasn't limping anymore, but said his foot was only at about 75 percent strength for the start of the Olympic Festival.

The first four days of practice were difficult, he said, because a series of 60-yard sprints were part of the routine. He persevered, however, and was one of the North's top hitters, batting .364 (four for 11, including two doubles) with three RBI, three runs scored and two walks.

In one of the games Ryan went three for five, and his only two outs landed in an opponent's glove nearly 400 feet from home plate. The North team finished 1-3, losing in the bronze medal game to the East.

Anyone who watched Ryan at Divine Child, where he set a school record with 123 career hits and 41 stolen bases as a senior, wasn't surprised. He also threw three straight no-hitters as a senior.

"Greg has great hand-eye coordination, hits the ball where it's pitched and uses all fields," U.S. Junior Olympic coach Steve Cohen said. "The first thing that impressed us is the way he plays the game, the respect he has for baseball. We're not only looking for talent, but how well the player will represent his country."

Ryan didn't expect to see any family members at the Olympic Sports Festival, but his mother, Shirley, and brothers Gary and Jim were able to get a low-cost flight out of Chicago and planned on surprising him with their attendance.

His sister, Debbie, ruined the surprise.

"I called my sister and she said, 'Guess who's on the plane?'" Greg said. "I was just so happy to see them. They walked into the stadium right as my name was being announced."

The athletes stayed at the Air Force Academy and had certain restrictions, such as eating on the base and a curfew. Athletes were allowed to leave for a couple hours a night, however, with family members.

During one of Ryan's off days, he and his brothers went whitewater rafting. It probably would have been wise to bring some of the team's batting helmets.

"All of us were thrown out of the boat, Greg ended up 100 yards ahead of us," Gary said.

Ryan has a special bond with Gary, 35, who has been his coach since little league and a father figure since their dad died of cancer six years ago.

Gary coached Greg at St. Raphael and also on the Garden City Youth Athletic Association travel team that made the Pony League World Series in Iowa.

"Greg's always been a leader, one to say the glass is half full, not half empty," Gary said. "When things are going good, everyone can be a superstar, a good kid, but he always has been able to pick everybody else up."

The boys and girl in the Ryan family used to play whiffle ball in the front yard and baseball games a couple blocks away at Farmington Elementary School.

"All of us took to him. We're a pretty close family," Gary said. "He got a ton of attention."

Greg can now return the favor to his nieces and nephews — all the new clothes he received from the Junior Olympic committee are way too much for one person to have. He also received new spikes, a batting glove and a first baseman's glove.

He's working on getting an outfielder's glove.

"I sent home my clothes, a huge bag full, when I made the Junior Olympic team," Ryan said. "I have T-shirts galore, new spikes, tennis shoes, golf shirts, hats. It was like Christmas in July."

Lear contributes to DCI at regional

DCI lost for the first time in four regional games, 19-5, to the Clevelanders before the final out was made about 2 a.m. Sunday. Brad Lear (Plymouth Salem) went 3-for-4 and Mike Burgess (Dearborn Edsel Ford) had two hits in a game that didn't start until 10 p.m. Saturday because of earlier rain delays.

The loss left DCI as one of five teams remaining in the tournament with one defeat each. But before anyone could go to bed, teams had to draw names out of a hat to see who received a bye and who played in the first game the next morning.

As bad luck would have it, DCI drew the first game against Mount Clemens, which started at 10 a.m., leaving Brusseau's players with about six hours rest at best.

Stankewicz complained of a sore arm and was removed after the first inning. Chris DeMar and Jesse Wozniak (Garden City) pitched in relief and the second base combination of Mike Brusseau (Redford CC) and shortstop Greg Rogers (Redford CC) supplied strong defense, but the DCI bats never awoke.

The loss ended DCI's unlikely tournament run and gave the team a 23-14 overall record.

DCI began the tournament with a pair of wins on Wednesday, including a 6-3 upset over eventual champion Concealed Security.

DCI had two days rest and stayed in the winner's bracket after a 10-9 win Saturday afternoon victory over Mount Pleasant.

DCI broke a 9-9 tie in the seventh inning. Burgess doubled, went to third on a groundout by Mark Lantzy (Lake Orion), and scored on a suicide squeeze bunt by Lear.

Lear had a roller-coaster relationship with Brusseau, but finished with high regard from the coach.

"He improved a lot, especially maturity wise," said Brusseau, who doesn't give anyone star treatment. "If you're the best hitter in the world and I want you to lay one down, better, because if you don't, it'll be your last at-bat."

Concealed heads west

The Concealed Security Systems Connie Mack baseball team might not be playing this late in August were it not for some careful consideration by June.

Concealed owner Lou Pirronello pays the bills and shares coaching duties with Rick Berryman, but statistician June Berryman does more than just keep score.

She convinced the coaching staff to use a draft pick after the American Amateur Baseball Congress district to select Kris Gundrum, a first baseman who was a member of the Kalamazoo Maroons.

What a pick it turned out to be.

Gundrum batted .571 (16 hits in 28 at-bats) with 10 RBI as Concealed rallied out of the losers' bracket to win the regional played at Bailey Park in Battle Creek.

The championship sends Concealed to the AABC World Series in Farmington, N.M. Concealed, 36-7 overall, will meet the Southeast regional champion East Cobb Yankees of Marietta, Ga. in a first-round game at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Shortstop Mike Cervenak batted .517 with a team-high 11 RBI and Billy Morris (Redford Union) provided a spark in key situations with a .400 average (6-15).

Gundrum, a Western Michigan University signee from Mattawan, was one of several players, including four others off his own team, Concealed was thinking of drafting.

Jake Lawson from North Farmington West Bloomfield (Farmington Hills Harrison) and Chris Wasen (Rochester Adams) from Concealed Security II are the other Concealed draft picks. The pickups come in handy with Greg Ryan (Garden City/Dearborn Divine Child), a first baseman, pitcher and outfielder, unavailable after making the United States Junior Olympic Team.

"We had a meeting last week trying to figure out who we were going to pick up and on the way home in the car, June kept insisting we take Gundrum," said (Canton resident) Rick Berryman, June's husband. "I said, 'Don't yell at me, call Lou.' What did she do? She called Lou at 2 a.m. and that clinched it."

Concealed's most consistent pitcher throughout the season, Terry Bigham, was named Most Valuable Player after winning three games and saving one. He was the pitcher of record in Monday's come-from-behind 9-5 victory over Mt. Clemens in the championship game.

Pirronello called Bigham the "gutsiest pitcher on the team. Here's some kid throwing 81 at best, but he's got a great straight change and breaking ball." June Berryman gave Bigham the nickname "Iron Man." The players listened, of course.

After allowing only one walk, 12 hits and three earned runs in 15⅔ innings, they're all calling him that now.

"One person made a comment, 'Hey, what's a woman doing in the dugout? But she's a very intelligent baseball person, " said Pirronello. "She has the respect of the players, and has got a ticket to New Mexico."

Canton angler earns spot

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

In response to the deer baiting controversy, Department of Natural Resources Director Rollie Harmes has made a couple major decisions. Following public testimony at seven public meetings as well as a slew of letters from concerned hunters and hunter groups, Harmes agreed with the majority and decided that baiting should not be restricted or prohibited in Michigan. He also stated that the major problems between hunters in territorial disputes centered around the construction of permanent blinds on public lands. Therefore, Harmes adopted a recommendation of the Law Enforcement Division to prohibit the construction of permanent blinds on all state- and federally owned public lands as of January 1, 1996. It is currently illegal to construct a permanent blind on State Game Areas and State Wildlife Areas.

The DNR received 7,134 cards and letters regarding the baiting issue. Of those responses: 4,011 wanted baiting left as it is, 1,041 favored imposing limits on the amount of bait in a pile, 2,000 wanted an outright ban on baiting, and 82 were undecided. Additionally, hunting groups and polls indicated that 5,521 hunters wanted baiting left alone, 1,896 favored restrictions and 619 called for a ban.

"We carefully reviewed the testimony and correspondence of those who attended citizen input meetings or wrote letters," said Harmes. "Most people expressing opinions indicated that they did not support restricting or banning baiting. I then consulted with the Natural Resource Commission and the experts in our wildlife and law enforcement divisions. After listening to various viewpoints and weighing the options, I have decided that there will be no changes at this time regarding the practice of hunting deer over bait."

Harmes hopes the action he took on the territorial disputes will quell the problem.

"Public testimony convinced me that the primary problems are associated with hunters occupying permanent hunting blinds on public lands. . . . This is a logical extension of the DNR's response several years ago when increasing conflicts between hunters resulted in current regulations prohibiting the use of permanent blinds in state game and wildlife areas," he said.

Hunters with physical handicaps will still be able to leave their blinds on public lands throughout the season, provided their name and address is on the blind.

Harmes added that the DNR will monitor the baiting situation over the next two years and that if the baiting conflicts continue additional action may be required.

Ashteneau eyes Gambler

Bass angler Mary Ashteneau, of Canton, has earned a spot in the Gambler Boats Classic, coming up in November in Florida. A member of the Gambler National Team, Ashteneau qualified for the Classic by placing fifth in a qualifying tournament in June on the Grand River. The top five in each of seven qualifiers will compete in the Classic. After five qualifiers, Ashteneau is the only woman to have qualified for the Classic and is the only member of the Gambler National Team to have qualified.

"It's going to be great," said Ashteneau. "I didn't think I was going to make it. I fished in a tournament in Alabama for six days and didn't get a lot of sleep. Then I drove straight through to Grand River. I was tired and didn't think I'd make it, but I was so glad I did."

Ashteneau is a member of the Michigan Bass'n Gals and also competes in the national Bass'n Gals competition. She's currently in 60th-place in the national competition with one qualifier left, Aug. 14-18 on Lake Tenkiller in Cookson, Oklahoma. The top 35 in the national standings advance to the National Bass'n Gals Classic Star World Championship XIX, Oct. 27-28 on Lake Athens in Texas.

Redford shooter scores

John J. McClay, of Redford, recently won the Intermediate Senior Championship of the National Rifle Association 1995 National Smallbore Rifle 3-Position Championships in Camp Perry, Ohio.

Participants compete over a two-day period and fire 120 rounds each day — 40 each from prone, standing and kneeling positions - for a possible of 2,400 points. On the first day shooters must use metallic sights while telescopic sights are permitted on the second day of competition. McClay finished with a 2,214 points and had 60 shots in the exact center of the target.

Natural gas comes to Shell station

Vehicles burning natural gas will be able to fill up beginning Aug. 29 at a Shell station on Wixom Road south of I-96 in Wixom.

Consumers Power Co. will provide natural gas, as it does for a growing number of stations in Michigan.

With the addition of Windmill Truck Stop (near Lansing) and the Shell station in Wixom, the NGV (natural gas vehicle) public fueling infrastructure has grown to 13 stations in the lower peninsula and two in the UP, said Vance G. Anderson, director of NGV programs for Consumers Power, the Jackson-based utility.

"This clean-burning, economical and domestically-abundant natural gas is truly becoming a viable fuel option for fleet operators in Michigan," Anderson said.

So far, state government is the chief customer. The departments of Transportation, Natural Resources, Management and Budget, Corrections, and Social Services had 19 NGVs in their fleets last spring with plans to put a total of 105 in by fall.

Reason: Under the 1992 federal Energy Policy Act, state and federal governments must acquire or convert 75 percent of their new light-duty vehicles to alternative fuels such as natural gas by the end of the decade.

"We've had tremendous success with NGVs," said Duane Berger, director of the state's motor transport division. He praised NG's clean burning quality.

Second biggest customer is Consumers Power itself. On June 1 it took delivery of five Ford-built trucks, modified by TDM World Conversions in Auburn Hills. TDM is the first company in Michigan and second in the nation to be recognized as a Ford conversion installer.

NG vehicles are driven by meter readers in the Livonia service area, Anderson said. The Pontiac area already has 25 NG vehicles. Consumers Power plans to purchase or convert 30 percent of its new light-duty vehicles to alternative fuels by 1996; 50 percent by 1997; and 90 percent by 2000.

The Wixom station's grand opening for natural gas will be at 10 a.m. on Aug. 29. Operator is Mark Ambroziak.

According to a listing by the utility, other public NG stations in the immediate area are Andrews Amoco on University Drive, Auburn Hills, and Speedway on Sheldon Road at Five Mile, Plymouth.

Many alternative fuel fleets have private fueling facilities, but Consumers Power reports it has been "working aggressively statewide" to build a strong public fueling infrastructure.

Said Ford Motor spokesman Don Kaegi, division fleet sales manager: "We've made tremendous strides in reducing tailpipe emissions of gasoline vehicles during the past 20 years, and we believe that cooperation between automakers, converters and fuel providers will allow alternative fuels to contribute to continuing this trend."

Meanwhile, the state Senate is considering five bills that would affect NGVs. SB 557 would exempt from the sales tax the difference in price between a gasoline-powered vehicle and an alternative-fueled vehicle. Other bills would provide property, income and single business tax breaks.

At Standard Federal, getting the lowest mortgage rate is a lock.

No matter what mortgage rates do next, you can get the lowest Standard Federal interest rate possible with our unique Rate Lock or Lower feature.

If you're thinking about buying a home, or refinancing your current mortgage, you've probably been keeping an eye on the recent drop in mortgage interest rates.

You can make interest rate changes work to your advantage with Rate Lock or Lower at Standard Federal. When you apply for a mortgage or for refinancing, Rate Lock or Lower not only locks in your interest rate at the time of application to protect your rates from going up – it also guarantees you that if our interest rates have gone down by the time you close, you get the lower rate while your Lock or Lower commitment is in effect. (Rate Lock or Lower not available on certain No-Point/No-Fee Mortgages.)

That's right – you get the rate at the time of application or at the time of closing – whichever is lower.

By getting the lowest rate possible, you could save cash every month over the course of your mortgage. Windsor casino less competitive than Las Vegas

BY PAT MURPHY
STAFF WRITER

Since it opened its doors in May 1994, Windsor Casino Limited takes in more than $1 million daily, with gamblers from the United States believed to be responsible for about 80 percent.

Windsor Casino draws from the entire Midwest, but many of the 16,000 daily patrons are believed to be from suburban Oakland and Wayne counties.

But Windsor Casino is a "burn joint," according to the publisher of a newsletter that classifies casinos. He testified last week at the trial of a West Bloomfield woman accused of cheating.

Arnold Snyder, a Detroit native who publishes a blackjack newsletter from Oakland, Calif., said a lack of competition enables the Windsor casino to do things that casinos in more competitive situations are reluctant to do . . . lest patrons go elsewhere.

Snyder, the publisher of "Blackjack Forum," was an expert witness called on behalf of Barbara Dancey of West Bloomfield, who was part of a trio that counted cards and gambled as a team.

Neither Dancey nor her co-defendants cheated, according to Snyder, who testified extensively in the weeklong trial that ended last week with Provincial Judge Saul Nosanchuk taking the matter under advisement. Nosanchuk is expected to render his verdict early in September.

For Snyder, however, the verdict is already in as far as Windsor Casino is considered: As a monopoly, the casino doesn't have to offer amenities considered common in Las Vagas or Atlantic City.

In blackjack, for example, Windsor Casino uses eight decks of cards — compared to four or six decks in Las Vegas or Atlantic City.

"That's why his newsletter calls it a 'burn joint'," said Jim Mundy, spokesman for Windsor Casino. "We use more decks to make it more difficult for people to count cards. But that's our choice."

That is indeed the casino's choice, Snyder testified. But casinos with competition normally choose to use fewer decks. They also, he said, choose to be competitive by:

■ Paying out — to slot machine players — higher percentages of the total amount of money the casino takes in. In Las Vegas, for example, the percentage of payout is generally between 92 and 96 percent, Snyder said, compared to "about 87 percent in Windsor."

That means Las Vegas would pay out $920,000 of $1 million in total receipts compared with $870,000 in Windsor.

Mundy, manager of corporate communications for the casinos, disagreed. Under Ontario law, the percentage of payout on slot machines must be 85 percent, he said. "But it varies. Sometimes the payout is higher . . . higher than 90 percent."

■ Offering less expensive blackjack games. Normally, the minimum blackjack bet at the Windsor Casino is $25, Snyder said, compared with $2 bets offered in more competitive areas.

Windsor's monopoly is also reflected in higher drink prices and other amenities.

The company that operates with Windsor Casino on behalf of the Ontario government is a consortium of Caesars World, Inc., Circus Circus Engerprises and the Hilton Hotel Corp., experienced gaming operators. Thus it is, presumably, those companies — not the Canadian government — making the decisions about conditions of the games and amenities to be offered.

Basically, Windsor Casino offers what the market will bare, said Mundy, manager of corporate communications for the casino. When the casino first opened, for example, it offered blackjack tables with minimum bets of $5 and $10, he said, "but we raised the bet when we had people standing in line waiting to play blackjack.

"We made the decision to lower the demand (for blackjack tables) by raising the price," Mundy said. "It did reduce the number of players. But we are still full."

Besides, he said, blackjack players can still play with a $10 minimum. But that's between the hours of 5 a.m. and noon, Mondays through Fridays. Otherwise the minimum bet is $25 per hand.

Snyder, who graduated from Notre Dame High School in Detroit in 1966, said he personally doesn't play blackjack, or gamble in general, because he finds it boring. During the trial, he testified that he's more interested in the mathematic probability associated with blackjack — a subject about which he has written books and lectured at universities, including the University of Navada at Las Vegas and Cornell University.

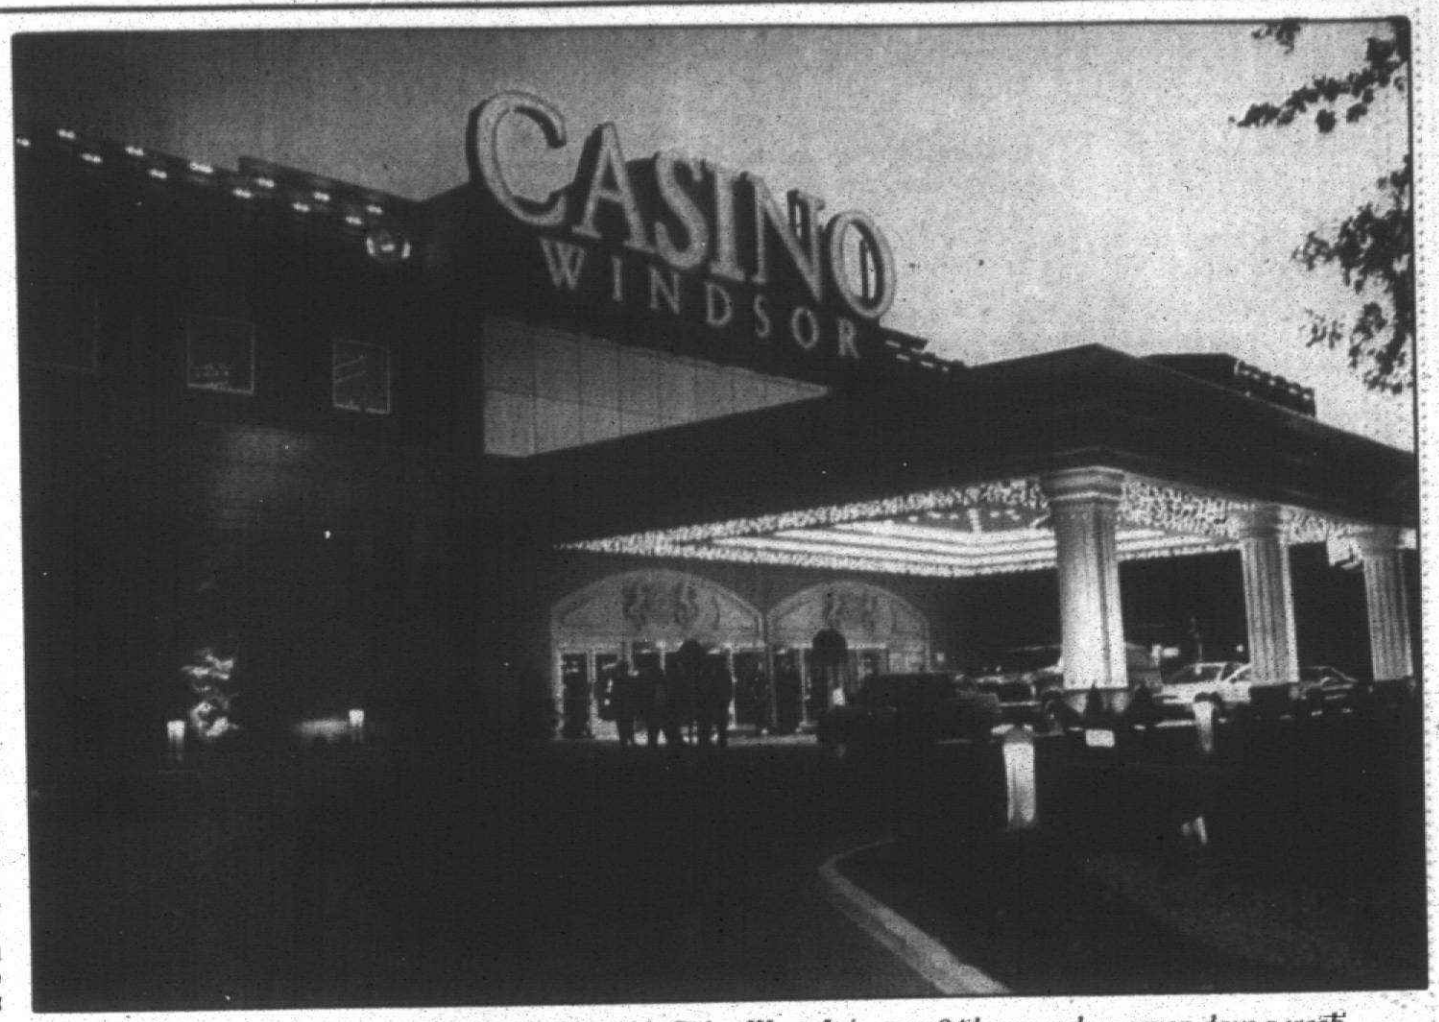

Card counting came into vogue, Snyder testified, in the late 1950s and '60s after mathematicians wrote books on the subject. Card counting was a boon to casinos, he said, because many players — after reading a book — fancied themselves to be intelligent card counters.

"Anyone can count cards," he said, "but very few can do it well." People who incorrectly fancy themselves to be good card counters generally end up losing, he said.

Good card counters can change the odds, he said, but not by much. Accomplished card counters can glance at the cards displayed on a board and almost instantly calculate the odds, according to Snyder. "They can do it almost as rapidly as you or I might be able to glance at a clock and determine the time."

Card counting is not illegal, Snyder insisted. "I personally wouldn't see anything wrong with card counting even if somebody used a calculator or computer to count cards with."

Snyder said initially it was legal for card counters to use calculators. But lobbyists for the casinos in Nevada convinced the state Legislature to outlaw them. "Now you can get arrested for using a calculator or computer," he said.

Mettetal is busiest of the state-owned airports

BY JILL HALPIN
STAFF WRITER

Watching the calm skies as a single-engine airplane glides in for a smooth landing over Joy Road in Canton Township, it is almost hard to believe that this 60-acre parcel of land has been the subject of so much heated controversy.

The Canton-Plymouth Mettetal airport has been just that for the past eight years. Following the Mettetal family's 1987 sale of the airport to an airport management group and then to state of Michigan, the airport has been the center of more than it's share of disputes.

Purchase rights, legal ownership, tax bills and even the restoration of a historic building are some of the issues adding color to the facility's past.

Despite the debate regarding the airport, no one can deny the rich community history imbedded in the airport itself.

Many agree that the airport, located in the southwest corner at the intersection of Joy and Lilley roads, is a unique part of the community.

"This is a piece of Canton's history, and it has been a significant part of the community. I have always thought the airport was an asset to the township because of the Mettetal family," said Barb Bergenty, a Canton resident and member of the Mettetal Airport Advisory Committee.

The airport can trace it's roots back 75 years when Raphael Mettetal moved his family from Redford to land at the corner of Joy and Lilley roads and began farming.

By the 1940s the property was used "less and less for a farm and more and more for an airport," said Robert Mettetal, the son of Raphael Mettetal and a former owner of the airport.

Robert and his wife, together with his brother and sister-in-law, Marvin and Helen Mae, owned and operated the private airport until 1987, when the family sold the airport to Jets Services, Inc.

Owner and operated by the Klochko family, Jets Services sold the airport in 1993 to the state of Michigan for $4 million.

Although the state owns the airport, the airport is managed by Doug Kitze and his company, Kitze A. Aviation.

The airport is the busiest of four state-owned airports in Michigan.

Currently, the state owns airports in Grayling, Houghton Lake and on Mackinac Island, said Bill Gehman of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

"Mettetal is meeting a need. It is serving both business and recreation flyers in a highly populated area. It is a busy airport," Gehman said.

Both tenant and transient flights are keeping the airport busy. Last month, 125 transient flights were recorded, according to Kitze.

The airport serves both four-to-six passenger single- and twin-engine planes, and has both business and recreational customers.

Many airport customers fly in to conduct business in Canton and neighboring communities, and then fly out the same day, Kitze said.

In addition offering fuel and on-site aircraft maintenance, there is also hangar space available for rent.

HOUSE

Labor Issue: Voting 233 for and 186 against, the House preserved collective bargaining rights for workers in federally subsidized mass transit systems. A victory for organized labor, the vote struck language in a pending appropriations bill (HR 2002) to end the bargaining protections. GOP budget-cutters had authored the language as a means of lowering labor costs and thus reducing the need for taxpayer support of bus and rail systems.

Supporter Ronald Coleman, D-Tex., said: "We let workers decide whether or not they want to have collective bargaining to maintain their jobs, a fair wage and a standard of living so that they can educate their kids and provide for their families. There is nothing wrong in America with us continuing to do that."

Opponent Tom DeLay, R-Tex., said: "This is a perfect example of a labor protection that has run amok. We have for over 30 years built a system that has cost the taxpayers, that has cost low-income riders, that has driven the cost of mass transit to outrageous sums . . . we have got to bring it back to some sort of reasonableness."

A yes vote was to preserve bargaining rights for mass transit workers. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield and Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Space Station: By a vote of 126 for and 299 against, the House rejected an amendment to kill the space station Alpha by shifting its $2 billion 1996 budget to programs such as veterans' health care and deficit reduction. The vote came as the House sent the Senate an appropriations bill (HR 2099) for a variety of agencies including NASA. About $14 billion has been spent on the space station in the past 11 years. Official projections are to spend another $26 billion for development, construction and ten years of operation, although critics foresee a much higher cost.

Sponsor David Obey, D-Wis., said: "These times require tough choices . . . we have such a huge overhang of public debt we are now being forced to make choices, which squeeze out a good many valuable programs."

Andrea Seastrand, R-Calif., said: "In a time when we are scaling back, tightening, eliminating — some ask how we can allocate full funding for the (space) station. The answer, quite simply, is that the station is an investment in America's future."

A yes vote was to kill the space station. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin, Lynn Rivers. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg.

To Preserve Agency: The House rejected, 115 for and 310 against, an amendment to kill the Economic Development Administration by removing its $349 million budget from a fiscal 1996 appropriations bill (HR 2076) that later was sent to the Senate. Supporters regard the Great Society agency as an economic lifeline to poor communities, while critics denounce it as unaffordable pork barrel. The GOP plan passed by Congress to balance the budget by 2002 calls for eliminating the EDA.

Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., said: "Every single member of this body that voted for a balanced budget amendment ought to be voting for this amendment . . . if you are going to say with all the rhetoric that you support a balanced budget, then you are going to have to cut in your district as well as the other guy's. That is what I am doing in mine. That is why you have got to support this amendment."

Opponent Peter Blute, R-Mass., said: "Over the years the EDA has played a pivotal role in helping communities across the country overcome severe economic difficulties. This is an excellent example of a program that truly works . . . two communities in my district, Worcester and Attleboro . . . have received much-needed assistance from the EDA."

A yes vote was to kill the Economic Development Administration. Area representatives voting no were: Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin and Rivers.

Oil: By a vote of 324 for and 77 against, the House passed a bill (HR 70) allowing Alaskan North Slope oil to be sold abroad for the first time. This lifted an export ban set by Congress in 1973 in approving construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline to bring oil from Prudhoe Bay to market. The bill also suspends royalties to the U.S. Treasury that oil companies now pay on production from certain deep wells in the Gulf of Mexico.

Supporter Don Young, R-Alaska, said: "This ban no longer makes economic sense . . . it has hurt the citizens of Alaska, it has severely damaged the California oil and gas industry, and it has precluded the market from functioning normally. If left in place any longer, it will further discourage energy production (and) destroy jobs in Alaska and California."

Opponent Sam Gejedensen, D-Conn., said: "At a time when we are more dependent than ever on the importation of oil from a part of the world that is still politically unstable, we are going to take our oil . . . to contract it to the Japanese. We are wasting our future. We are endangering our children with this piece of legislation."

A yes vote was to export Alaksan oil. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg and Levin. Voting no: Kildee and Rivers.

SENATE

Bosnia: The Senate voted 69 for and 29 against to end American participation in a four-year-old international embargo on the outside world sending weapons to the former Yugoslavia. This would permit the United States to arm Bosnian Muslim forces against Bosnian Serbs, following the withdrawal of United Nations troops. The bill (S 21) must now clear the House and a threatened veto by President Clinton.

Supporter Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said that in the face of "barbarism" by Serbs "we no longer can stand idly by (and) must take action as befits our status as an international leader in terms of morality and humanity. And when we stand by idly, which we are forced to do by the cowardice of our (European) allies, then I think we become co-conspirators" against the Muslims.

Opponent Patty Murray, D-Wash., said: "At the core, this is a European issue. Our European allies are on the front line, and they do not want us to act unilaterally." She added, "If we do this, we (senators) have to be prepared to accept the consequences. The moment we lift the embargo, there is a strong chance the allies will leave and an all-out war will follow," drawing America into the conflict.

A yes vote was to begin arming Bosnian Muslims. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, and Spencer Abraham, R, voted yes.

Lobbyists: Voting 98 for and none against, the Senate sent the House a bill (S 1060) to increase public scrutiny of the estimated 12,000 professional lobbyists who work to sway legislative and executive branch decisions. Lobbyists earning more than $5,000 in six months would have to disclose to a new Capitol Hill oversight office their clients, issues and payments received. The bill, which would replace an ineffective 50-year-old statute, exempts casual lobbyists and those who contact Congress as part of grass-roots campaigns. Violators can be fined as much as $50,000. The two senators not voting were Robert Bennett, R-Utah and Bob Graham, D-Fla.

Supporter William Cohen, R-Maine, said: "We want to make sure that the public is fully aware of who is being hired by whom, how much they are being paid, and to do what. As long as there is full disclosure of those activities, then at least there is hope that we can reduce that level of distrust . . . of alienation . . . of cynicism" felt by constituents.

A yes vote was to pass lobbying-reform legislation. Michigan Senators Levin and Abraham both voted yes.

Gift Ban: By a vote of 98 for and zero against, the Senate approved a measure (S Res 158) sharply limiting the virtually unlimited meals, gifts and vacations that senators and their staffs now can receive from lobbyists and other benefactors. Gifts such as meals and tickets will be limited to $100 annually per giver, with items of $10 or less not counted toward the total. While senators and aides can no longer receive vacations involving free travel and lodging, they can accept free meals while attending legislative conferences at vacation spots. The measure takes effect Jan. 1, 1997. It changes only Senate rules, leaving it up to the House to deal with its own gift policies. The two senators not voting were James Inhofe, R-Okla., and Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska.

Sponsor Carl Levin, D-Mich., said: "Last year when we debated this gift bill, we had Washington restaurants tell us that if lobbyists could not take our members out for meals, the restaurants in Washington, a lot of them, would close.

People were saying the Kennedy Center would close if lobbyists could not buy tickets for members of Congress. What a terrible indictment . . . can it really be that we accept so many free meals and tickets that entire industries are dependent upon our continuing to accept such gifts?"

A yes vote was to sharply limit gifts and other favors to senators and their staffs. Michigan Senators Levin and Abraham voted yes.

Grace & Wild studio puts spin on Neon TV ad spot

Grace & Wild Studios of Farmington Hills recently created an animated "TV commercial titled "Neon by Numbers" for the Detroit office of Bozell Worldwide.

The spot was customized for use by Chrysler-Plymouth dealer groups across the country and features a number of reasons for consumers to buy a Plymouth Neon.

Versions aired in several U.S. markets, including Atlanta, Orlando and Philadelphia.

Bozell producer Diane Horvath was looking for a way to capitalize on Plymouth Neon's fun image and create a commercial that had a "national campaign" look. "We wanted to create something new and fresh to promote Plymouth Neon. It's a fun car and that comes across in the spot," she said.

The commercial combines traditional cel animation with graphic effects originated on Grace & Wild's Flint Visual Effects System, resulting in a humorous spot featuring "spinning" Plymouth Neons and animated characters.

Starting with still photos of a Plymouth Neon, G&W senior editor Sam Marrocco used the Flint System to create the illusion of spinning the car.

To add life to the spot, "speed line" cel animation was created and used to enhance the graphic images of the spinning vehicle, as well as the interest rates and lease payments featured in the commercial.

Grace & Wild's artist and cel animator Matt Campbell designed and animated the speed lines and humorous characters who represent the "five passenger-seating" of the Plymouth Neon.

120 are currently occupied. The cost for keeping your plane at the airport could range anywhere from $105 per month to as much as $230.

Of course, that is assuming that you've already purchased your plane, which could set you back anywhere from $10,000 to $100,000.

"We've got one here now that runs about $300,000." Kitze said.

For those who haven't yet saved up for their own aircraft, flight lessons are available.

Classes toward for earning a pilot's license run from $3,000 to $3,500. In order to earn a pilot's license, students must pass a written test as well as the flight test, he said.

For the fainthearted, tables located near the main terminal building offer a great place to the public to view to the aircraft during take-off and landing, and families are welcome to bring picnics as they watch the skies.

It's all part of the state's plan to establish itself as a good neighbor, according to Gehman. "It is our intent to do two things. We want to make the airport a good facility for the aircraft that use it, and we also want to be a good neighbor," he said.

Mettetal Airport is located in the southest corner of Joy and Lilley roads in Canton Township. The airport entrance is on the east side of Lilley Road, just south of Joy Road. For more information, call (313) 459-6627.

Candidates already have '96 campaign info on Internet

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

In the fall of 1996 we will be voting for U.S. president. While that may seem like a long way off (it is, after all, more than a year away), the fact is that the campaigning is well under way by presidential hopefuls.

And that is as obvious on the Internet as elsewhere. Most of the major candidates, and the minor (i.e., not major) candidates, have placed home pages on the World Wide Web to reveal their stands on issues, announce campaign appearances, and give users a chance to listen to their announcement speech.

Like all home pages, some of the efforts of would-be presidents are better than others. But we don't want to judge their capabilities for office by what their home pages look like, because they all hired webmasters to do that work, just like they hire speech writers to polish their spoken words.

You could save universal resource locators (URLs) for each announced candidate and visit them individually.

The News & Observer has made it easy for us by collecting the URLs of presidential hopefuls and offers them at one site, which can be visited at http://www.nando.net/newsroom/candid.html. In this case, "candid" does not apply to the candidates' frankness or sincerity but is used as an abbreviation for "candidates" because of eight-letter limits.

The first selection when you arrive is Bill Clinton. Many users have already seen this site, though, as it is the White House Page.

Alexander uses his page to reveal his stand on issues, share campaign information, and offer biographical information — on guess who?

Dole's site has a resume of Dole, his voting record, ratings by special interest groups, campaign finance information, and a sound clip of his announcement speech for those with sound software.

Gramm shares his Welfare Proposal with voters on his home page along with biographical information, speeches, straw poll results, and a quote of the day for those who will be visiting each day.

Browne offers a schedule of his campaign appearances, biographical information, and a list endorsers and comments from those endorsers.

Under "Parties and Candidates" you will find Clinton, Paulsen, and Jesse Jackson. Dig further and you find a home page for Al Gore and for Hillary Rodham Clinton plus the Hillary Clinton Quarterly.

There is also a link to the Green Party, which has several candidates.

Still another site to visit for information on presidential candidates is Yahoo, fast threatening to become the ultimate search tool. The URL is http://www.yahoo.com. From the main menu go to Politics and then to Elections.

Speaking of presidents, former President Jimmy Carter has a Web page at Emory University in Georgia at http://www.emory.edu/CARTER—CENTER.

The Nixon Library has a Web site at http://www.chapman.edu/nixon. Visitors may be taken on an online tour of the Nixon Library, scan through a calendar of activities, and learn that former President Nixon was the first president to invite a rock band, The Turtles, to Washington, D.C.

Townhall is a one-stop shopping center for "information" on the "new American conservatism." This site includes pitches for each of the Republican candidates seeking his (so far, no hers) party's nomination. This is a good political site in general, with lots of links to political activist groups and citizen groups. Point to http://www.townhall.com.

Of interest to Democrats, or those with a progressive political philosophy, will be a Web site organized by Democratic Party activists at http://www.webcom.com/(tilde mark)digitals/, or the Giles Report, which regularly updates Republican infighting at http://www.webcom.com/(tilde mark)albany/infight.html.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by E-mail to emory@oeonline.com; at voice mail at 953-2047, then dial 1910; or fax number 591-7279. Ford trucks subject to recall for wiring defect

Owners of certain 1994-1995 medium and heavy duty Ford trucks are being notified of a voluntary safety recall involving wiring for the vehicles headlamps and other front lamps.

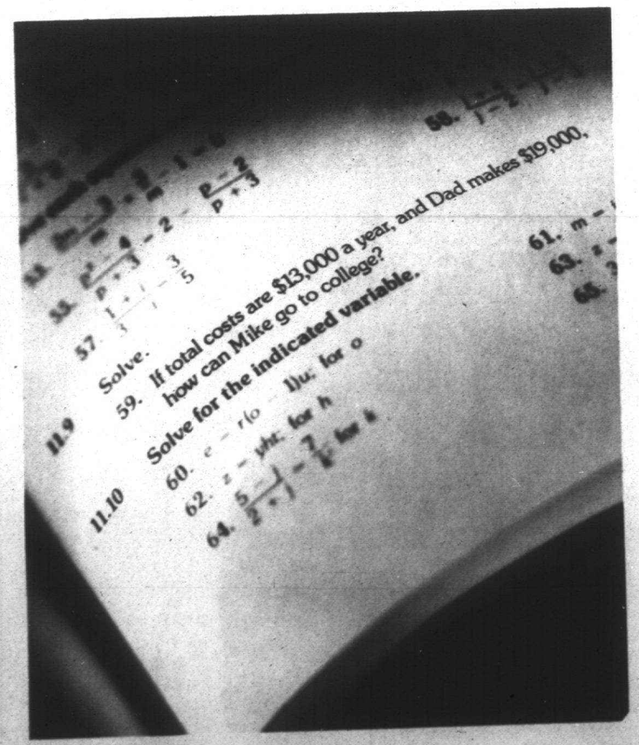

Affected vehicles are equipped with the "tilt hood" feature.

In some cases road salts can enter a wiring connector resulting in electrical shorts of the lighting circuits, or gradual corrosion of the terminals which can result in headlamp dimming and possible loss of headlamp operation.

There are approximately 18,600 vehicles involved of which 1,125 are located in Canada. Ford has not received any reports of accident or injury due to this condition.

Customers are being notified by first class mail to return their vehicles to dealerships for inspection and installation of sealing plugs.

This service should take less than one hour, but dealerships may need to keep vehicles longer.

This is a tough problem even for bright kids.

It's not math or science that's keeping bright kids out of college. It's home economics. That's why giving to the United Negro College Fund is so important.

It's Kleenex time as Holocaust survivor offers thanks

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

For Gisele Feldman, thank you comes in the form of tear drops.

She shed a few of those Friday morning for the many "heroes" who saved hers and other lives during World War II.

The Farmington Hills resident shared her gratitude and her harrowing story of how she and her family survived while other Jewish people perished in the Holocaust with an audience at Farmington Branch Library. In attendance were a few U.S. World War II veterans, who were also present at a flag-raising ceremony in front of the library to honor them.

"It's Kleenex and water time," said Feldman, 64, who began to choke up at the end of her story. "Everytime I thank the veterans, I cry like a child."

Afterward, Farmington World War II Commemorative Committee Chairman Jack Curd expressed his appreciation to Feldman for appearing.

"No, thank you," Feldman said. "I owe my life to you and all of your buddies."

And a few others, whom Feldman speaks of in glowing terms.

They include two doctors who treated her for rickets and helped hide her from the Nazis, a Catholic priest who knew she was Jewish but remained compliant while she sang in the church choir and said the rosary.

Examples of compassion

Another person Feldman reveres is one she never met: Marquis de Lafayette. She stayed in the aristocrat's home — which was used as a clinic — during the reign of terror.

All of these people were shining examples of compassion and courage in one of the bleakest times of humanity.

"I love those people who got involved, even though it meant risking their lives," Feldman said. "They were like saints.

"Did you hear what happened to people who helped the Jews? They would be sent to camps or they would shoot them on the spot. In Poland, people were hung in front of their families.

"You had to be special . . ."

Contrasts between the two forces were stark, but operated in close proximity — sometimes even under the same roof.

Feldman's aunt — like 6 million other Jewish people and 35 million Europeans overall — was never seen alive again after another village woman had turned her in. The informer's husband, though, heard his wife make the call and ran to warn Feldman's uncle so he could escape.

Feldman surmises the woman turned her in aunt perhaps out of jealousy because she had a fur coat.

Feldman's family was reunited after the war. Her brother also stayed in Lafayette's home, Chateau de Chavaniac, while her parents hid in a nearby village.

Two books coming

They came to the United States in 1948.

Feldman has written two yet-to-published books on the Holocaust, including one for children.

On her doctor's advice, Feldman retired from teaching in the Livonia schools five years ago. One former student, Lavonda Ramey of Farmington, turned out to hear Feldman speak Friday.

"I wanted to see her again," said Ramey, who had Feldman at Riley Junior High. "She was a good teacher."

Every time Feldman tells her story, another incident comes back to her, she said. Sometimes it's horrific, but the experiences of others who suffered and survived makes her grateful.

In particular, Feldman relates one story about another Jewish family who lived under a cramped stairwell while in hiding.

When they were told by Ukrainian soldiers to flee, family members had to crawl because they couldn't walk.

"I count my blessings," she said.

Audience members found Feldman inspirational. Josie Weddle drove from Lake Orion to hear her speak.

"It's the fact she has a bundle of joy inside her," Weddle said. "She's come to realize that to spread love heals the world, not hate."

Added Mary Power of Farmington: "The lack of bitterness and the lack of anger . . . it impresses me. I don't know how she's come to that."

Farmington Hills veteran Glenn Fackler was a member of General George Patton's Seventh Armored Division, which swept 620 miles in 21 days to help liberate France.

"It makes me feel very humble that I had a small part in the liberation and salvation of those few Jewish people," Fackler said.

Kids camp, fitness program promotes healthy lifestyle

Botsford General Hospital's Total Rehabilitation & Athletic Conditioning Center (TRACC) is offering two programs to get area kids moving toward healthier, more active lifestyles.

TRACC is leading the way in the formation of both an upcoming kids camp and an after-school fitness program. Both initiatives are targeted at non-active, non-athletically inclined children, ages 8-11.

The Novi-based Botsford department is an outpatient rehabilitation and conditioning facility that specializes in industrial, occupational and athletic medicine.

The Youth Fitness Camp aims to increase positive attitudes toward fitness by boosting physical confidence and self-esteem among kids ages 7-13.

The second venture promoting active, life-long lifestyles among kids, the Youth Activity Program, will get under way this fall on a pilot basis at William Grace Elementary School in Farmington Hills for the 4-6 graders.

"There have been quite a few studies showing that kids are less active fit than 15-20 years ago," said TRACC exercise physiologist Ed Pienkosz. "These programs are designed to instill a life-long propensity toward exercise and fitness and demonstrate to these kids the good feeling of well-being they'll derive from being physically active."

At the Youth Fitness Camp, for example, activities are geared toward movement, fitness and healthy lifestyle behavior rather than traditional task-oriented competition. As in the after-school program, the camp stresses fun and "let-kids-be-kids" philosophy. Games emphasize teamwork, creativity, using equipment correctly and flexibly adapting to different environments.

Activities will include biking, swimming, hiking, canoeing and rollerblading. The camp, structured in three one-week, open-admission session from late July through mid August, is already filled to capacity.

The Youth Activity Progarm is a cooperative undertaking between TRACC and Eastern Michigan University's Physical Education, Health, Recreation and Dance Department.

It's not designed to alter or replace existing physical eduction programs, said Pienkosz, but will assist schools' efforts to motivate kids who would otherwise be inactive — at-risk "couch potatoes."

The program, which will take place after regular school hours two or three times a week, will promote play-oriented games for both individuals and groups. "This program isn't about winning or losing," stressed Pienkosz.

"We're excited about both of these programs because I think a lot of kids who don't perceive themselves as athletes will discover that being active and having fun isn't the exclusive domain of so-called "jocks."

Organization names LTU professor as its top engineer

Devoting time to American Society of Civil Engineers' functions is nothing new to Alan Prasuhn, a Farmington Hills resident and chairman of Lawrence Technological University's department of civil engineering.

He's been active with ASCE since 1962. On April 29, he collected his Civil Engineer of the Year honor at ASCE's Southeastern Michigan Branch annual meeting at Meadowbrook Hall.

"I was very pleased to be recognized," Prasuhn said. "ASCE is considered by many the primary society for civil engineering."

Prasuhn served on ASCE's national board of directors from 1985-88, and has helped identify, inventory, and recognize historical structures worldwide through chairing the History of Heritage Committee for the past five years. He is also adviser to Lawrence Tech's student chapter of ASCE.

"I've always taken ASCE's activities very seriously, and, as a result, I've given a lot of time to the ASCE," Prasuhn said. "I've felt one of the responsibilities of professional engineers is giving back something to the profession."

Lawrence Tech's chapter has taken first in the ASCE's Quiz Bowl competition, a test of civil engineering knowledge and standards, four of the last five years. The chapter just took third in the steel bridge competition, which requires student teams to design a span bridge capable of being assembled by six students while being timed against other teams. It will also compete in a concrete canoe competition.

Lawrence Tech's chapter has also been active in community outreach service, including surveying and designing drainage improvements for Greenfield Village museum and also at Taft Middle School. The chapter will help out next fall at ASCE's Michigan Section meeting.

Prasuhn joined Lawrence Tech in 1990 after a nationwide search. He previously served on the faculty for 12 years at South Dakota State University, and 10 years at California State University, Sacramento. His specialty is hydraulic engineering.

Office supply mega-store will open in Westland

BY JILL HOCKMAN
STAFF WRITER

Another office superstore is scheduled to open in Westland on Aug. 19, providing competition for already-established OfficeMax.

A 25,000-square-foot Staples store will open at the corner of Warren Road and Yale Avenue in the West Ridge Shopping Center. It is one of six Staples stores that will open in the Detroit area on the same day.

Earlier this year, Staples, Inc. acquired Macauley's Business Resources, Inc., a contract office products dealer based in Canton.

The new Staples store is located in the former PartiGiant location. PartiGiant went out of business earlier this year.

Like OfficeMax, Staples is a supermarket-sized office supply store that sells its merchandise at discounted prices. Its target customers are small businesses, but Staples spokeswoman Susan Grieb said the store receives just as much business from home office users and regular consumers.

Grieb welcomed competition from OfficeMax and other office supply stores. There is plenty of room for stores to co-exist in the Westland market, she said. "Every market we go into now there is competition of one form or another," she said. "In the end, competition like this benefits the consumer."

The OfficeMax store in Westland opened almost three years ago, according to West Michigan District Manager Mike Ross. Ross expects the nearby opening of another office store giant to affect his store's business to some degree, but "we're not looking for it to take a big chunk out of it," he said.

"Basically, we don't see them as a problem in any of our markets," he said.

So how does a 3,000-square-foot store in Westland compete with these giants? Very well, said Dennis O'Neill, sales manager for Parkway Office Supply. O'Neill said his company considers Staples no more of a threat than other office supply stores. Parkway's sale prices are often as low or lower than the prices found at office mega-stores, he said, although it may not seem that way.

"They have some ability in advertising that we can't afford to do," he said. "People assume things that are not really true."

The Westland Staples store will employ about 40 workers. The company hired mostly local residents, she said.

Staples, Inc. is nine years old, and has annual sales of over $2 billion, according to company officials. According to Staples, analysts estimate the total office supply market to range between $100 billion and $120 billion. Huge office supply stores like Staples, OfficeMax and Office Depot capture just 9 percent of that market, Grieb said.

Other Detroit-area Staples stores are scheduled to open on the same day in Dearborn, Rochester Hills, Roseville, Farmington Hills and Taylor. All but the Dearborn store are former PartiGiant locations.

Four more Michigan Staples stores will open later this year. The company plans to have 30 stores in Michigan by the end of 1996. Staples, Inc., currently operates 383 stores throughout the United States and Canada.

Internet dial-ups offered free at libraries

Students and staff in Michigan public schools, as well as those affiliated with state public libraries and community colleges, can connect to the Internet from anywhere in the state toll-free through August.

New dial-in sites are planned for more than 80 local calling areas throughout Michigan.

The first sites were installed in July, and more will be completed throughout the year.

Two toll-free numbers have been established to serve users in all other areas of the state until the end of the project.

Funding for the project comes from a $4 million grant from the Ratepayer's Fund created by the Michigan Public Service Commission in the settlement of the Michigan Bell Rebate Case.

The funding covers the set-up and cost of educational dial-in access through August.

After that, public schools, libraries and community colleges will have to pay for their dial-in access.

The project is headed by Merit Network Inc., a nonprofit corporation owned by Michigan public universities.

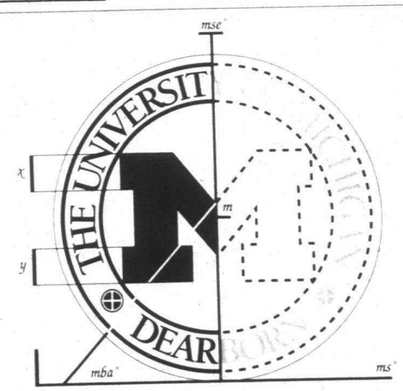

Merit Network operates the MichNet statewide network and is the oldest and largest provider of internet service in Michigan.

Big job: Madonna University's south parking lot is being resurfaced and reconfigured in an effort to reduce drainage and traffic problems. The $600,000 job includes other pavement work and will be completed Aug. 15, said Leonard Wilhelm, the university's vice president for business and finance.

Doctor claims most hospitals do overcharge

Code errors: there are more than 7,000 five-digit codes for health services and procedures. Yet, your bill must explain each procedure that was performed.

Duplicate billings: this happens with relatively minor items, such as urine and stool tests — all of which can get buried amid the big bills which reflect high tech testing.

Redundant or shoddy testing: you should refuse to pay for repeats of unclear x-rays and blood tests involving inadequate samples if they are the laboratory's fault.

Unauthorized charges: don't pay for tests if you have insisted on advance approval.

Phantom charges: demand removal of charges that may have been added because they are usually a routine part of a procedure plus charges related to tests that are cancelled by your doctor.

Unrequested items: look for and contest confusingly named items such as "thermal therapy kit: $15," which may be a plastic bag of ice cubes, or "urinal: $5," which may be a plastic cup.

Bulk charges: ask for an itemized listing and question anything that appears to be a charge over and above the total for specific items.

Unbundling: routine procedures may be broken down into separate parts, each charged separately. This kind of "creative billing" results in making the sum of the parts greater than the whole.

These health care issues and more are covered in the Castle Connolly Pocket Guide: How to Find the Best Doctors, Hospitals and HMOs for You and Your Family. The author, John Connolly, is former president of New York Medical College.

Detached condos feature mature trees, wetlands

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

The final phases of the Lagoons detached condominium community built by the Irvine Group of Farmington Hills — Lagoons Forest — are under way.

About 50 lots are all that's left on the 141-acre tract at Pontiac Trail and Halsted Road in West Bloomfield. The site features mature trees, winding streets, wetlands and ponds.

"Over 70 acres are protected woodland, wetland areas," said Norman Finkelstein of the Irvine Group. "This was a very sensitive site to develop. It was costly."

The lay of the land is a big attraction to visitors.

"I think they're most impressed with the site," said Ann Marie Gullekson, director of sales. "It's not typical with (so many) trees. Roads are winding. Cul-de-sacs. They pull in and don't realize they're in a condo site.

"It's also a willingness to change our floor plans, modify to what they're looking for," she added.

Buyers at Lagoons Forest may choose from among seven floor plans ranging from a 1,500-square-foot ranch with two bedrooms and two baths for $192,900 to a 2,500-square-foot two story with three bedrooms and 2½ baths for $249,900.

Standard features in all plans include two-car, attached garage, full basement, fireplace, first floor laundry, and range and dishwasher. Landscaping also comes with every unit.

Almost everyone adds air conditioning as an extra and many add upgrades like a finished basement, cooktops and double ovens, decks and security systems, Finkelstein said.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Buyers typically are middle-aged couples whose children have grown or young people on the way up. There are few children in the sub.

"I'd say the majority are move down empty nesters," Finkelstein said. "A third are single professionals."

The on-site model at Lagoons of West Bloomfield, the Driftwood, has three bedrooms, all upstairs, 3½ baths and a finished walk-out.

The master has a cathedral ceiling, separate tub and shower and walk-in closet.

The model, loaded with a finished walk-out, an extra bath, two decks, patio and air, costs $275,000.

Two other models, an 1,840-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and two baths and a 2,300-square-foot story-and-a-half with a first-floor master, 2½ baths, plus two bedrooms and loft upstairs, are under construction at Lagoons Forest.

Ridgewood condo: This 2,370-square-foot story-and-a-half model at Lagoons Forest places the master suite on the first floor, two bedrooms or two bedrooms and a loft upstairs.

"Reputation of us as a builder is another reason people buy," Finkelstein said. "We go out of our way to please them whenever we can."

Lagoons Forest is serviced by city water and sewers. It's in the Walled Lake School District. The property tax rate is about $28.30 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owners of a $225,000 unit in the subdivision would pay nearly $3,200 in taxes the first year.

The monthly association fee is currently $147.

Jo and Carl Pace were the first to move into Lagoons Forest. They bought a ranch with two bedrooms and a den.

"The ranch had enough room for us. We liked the plan. Traffic pattern is excellent. We can have a number of people in the home without being crowded.

"This is the fourth house we've built. We're very pleased with Irvine," she said.

Ann and Richard Brown, empty-nesters, bought a ranch that includes two bedrooms and a library in Lagoons of West Bloomfield.

"It was more or less surrounded by wetlands," Ann said of the attraction. "We're on a corner lot that backs up to wetlands. No one will be behind us.

"Another thing is they're detached," she added. "You don't share a garage or common walls.

"We like the layout, everything about it," Ann Brown said. "We made a few changes, added a few things. The builder was fantastic to work with."

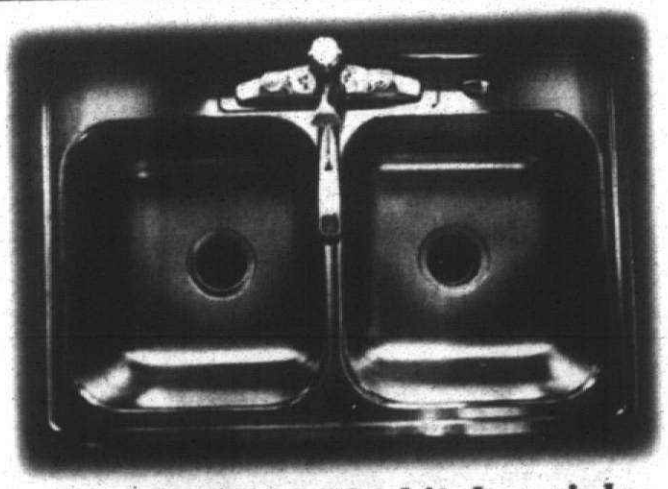

The sales office at Lagoons Forest/Lagoons of West Bloomfield, (810) 681-5000, is open noon to 6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Summer is the time for furnace tune-up

It may seem crazy to think about furnaces during the hot summer months, but most furnace experts know that homeowners who get their furnaces serviced now are crazy like a fox.

August and September is the best time to schedule furnace tune-ups to avoid the fall rush of November and December, when 75 percent of furnace repairs and tune-ups are done.

Early tuners are protected from middle-of-the-night break-downs, which can be expensive as well as uncomfortable. Overtime service in the evenings and on weekends can cost up to 35 percent more.

Also, if the furnace has to be down for repairs, it's better to be without heat in the summer than in the winter.

Maintenance for a furnace can be comparable to the maintenance for a automobile. When you have regular tune-ups for a car, it runs smoother and gets more miles per gallon. The same holds true with having regular tune-ups for your furnace: it runs more efficiently, saving on fuel bills.

Annual or bi-annual maintenance for a furnace also extends equipment life as much as 20-30 percent. This translates into 5-10 years of extended furnace or boiler life.

If regular maintenance is neglected, it could lead to additional repairs. Most service contractors will confirm that about 75 percent of all repairs they do could have been avoided with regular maintenance, according to Dan Bergstrom, president of Bergstrom's Inc., a heating, plumbing and air conditioning company in Livonia.

A competent service technician performs a variety of tests to measure the combustion efficiency of the heating system, both before and after tuning it up. The service technician should also clean and check the burners, combustion chamber, heat exchanger surfaces and flue pipe.

During this procedure, a trained technician will be able to tell if the system is leaking deadly carbon monoxide gas from small cracks in the heat exchanger or from holes or leaks in the flue system. Each year, hundreds of people lose their lives in the U.S. from exposure to this odorless, colorless gas.

Pumps and fans should be lubricated as necessary.

For boilers, the technician should take time to remove sediment from boiler and steam lines, as well as check the fan thermostat on warm air systems. Otherwise, the fan may operate longer than necessary, wasting energy.

Modern heating equipment is very sophisticated. The well-equipped service technician has an array of electronic measuring devices and tools to service the units properly.

Focus on Oakland Twp. and Rochester Schools.

Manufacturers blending traditional with others

Once represented mainly by early American or English colonial influences, traditional now looks more international. Especially prevalent are French and Scandinavian country looks, with highly colored stained or painted finishes and homey fabrics. Then, too, once-modern styles — Art Deco or Mission — have been around long enough to enjoy revivals so they now could be considered traditional.

Some manufacturers are blending these influences.

■ Southern tradition inspires the new Savannah collection from Hickory White, derived from the rich Georgian architecture and furnishings of Savannah, Ga. A Chippendale-style leather-upholstered armchair, with nailhead trim and carved mahogany brackets, is based on a similar piece in the city's landmark Davenport House, for example.

■ European country tradition is romantically interpreted by Lexington Furniture Industries in its Lynn Hollyn at Home collection: an example is a pine washstand with carved swags and bows and hand-painted floral details, done over a antique bisque finish.

■ Mission furniture, including chairs and sofas with separate cushions instead of upholstery, are showing up anew from a number of makers, including the Tell City Chair Company.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Always strive for quality in design

NAOMI STONE LEVY

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Therefore, it must also endure for a very long time.

Having said that, may I pontificate on one of my favorite subjects — quality? Keep in mind that you get what you pay for, and that applies to every factor involved in interior design.

Fabrics that are woven of the finest fibers by the best mills or weavers, dyed by knowledgeable dyers to obviate fading and to create the most vibrant colors, are worth every penny you spend. The extra length of time they last makes the extra expenditure very worth while.

Fabrics that are woven of the finest fibers by the best mills or weavers, dyed by knowledgeable dyers to obviate fading and to create the most vibrant colors, are worth every penny you spend.

The extra length of time they last makes the extra expenditure very worth while.

Whatever is the final application of that special fabric the workmanship should be impeccable. The upholsterer or the seamstress will appreciate the beauty and endurance of this material and use it to its best advantage. What is to be gained by using a cheaper and shoddier fabric that will need replacement in the near future?

The interior construction will include hand-tied springs, webbing, padding, inner cushioning and muslin, prior to applying the final fabric. Each of these components add or detract from the quality. Can you understand why I preach ... use the best?

Woodworkers

Items made of wood also require very talented work people. It takes years (even a long apprenticeship) to acquire these skills. These people are known as "ebenistes." After the wood is shaped the piece must be sanded, and sanded until it feels like satin. Then stain is applied with gauze, never sprayed on. One heavy coating of spray can give gorgeous woods a cloudy look. Ahhhh . . . here comes the rub . . . and I do mean rub, and rub, and rub, with the application of bee's wax; (never Pledge). The wood now has a sensuous feeling hat bespeaks quality.

A case piece may be a dining room side-board, or a chest of drawers, or a cabinet. All of the above procedures need be applied to this type of furniture. It also follows that the more fantastic the graining of the flitches of wood the lovelier the finished piece. The drawers must fit perfectly and glide with ease. Door hinges should hold the door level, and the catches must catch. Hardware should not be tinny, or easily destroyed. Beautiful hardware is furniture jewelry. Quality.

Buy the best

Purchasing carpeting is probably the biggest expenditure of your decorating budget. Do not economize. Buy the very best you can possibly afford, because it will pay dividends in the long run. Quality is your best friend in this instance. The labor cost of ripping up the worn carpeting and installing the new is unbelievable. You will have thrown away valuable dollars buying sleazy goods. My view is that wool fibers are generally the very best, but not if the wool is of inferior quality.

Wool cleans the best. It can be dyed the best colors. Nonetheless, currently there are excellent nylons and acrylons; be very selective.

Leather is wonderful. It is more costly than fabric, but where appropriate it will outlast cloth by years. It also is available in many grades. Cheaper leather has many more imperfections, and it stretches and bubbles; thus it is no longer cheap.

The hides need be to be beaten and then dyed a delightful natural color by a qualified tanner.

The frosting on the cake will be when you select handsome, and suitable accessories, stunning lamps, and art for your walls. I think almost everyone would love an unparalleled art collection.

Of course the quality of your art can be awesome, but it can also be respectable, and not extravagant. Nowhere else is the best more obvious because you have set these possessions out and arranged them for critical viewing.

Good judgement says purchase fewer items, but always the finest you can afford. Consult with experts in each field, and don't purchase hastily. As you become more affluent you will have the joy of adding to your collection.

GARDEN SPOT

Late August is good time to work on peonies

MARTY FIGLEY

Many of us remember peonies in our parents and grandparents gardens and, lo and behold, they are once again finding their way into gardens of the '90s.

The elegant flower forms are described as Single, Japanese, Anemone, Semi Double, Crown, Bomb, Semi-Rose and Rose and bloom in many shades of white, yellow, pink and red. They make wonderful bouquets and some are fragrant.

The shiny green foliage of the majority of peonies lasts until it dies down when cold weather arrives. This mounding form gives it status in the garden as it acts as an anchor to the landscape the same way a conifer does. These plants are virtually disease-free and are easy to grow. They prefer full sun, although some do OK with a small amount of shade.

Peonies don't need to be divided until after they have been in the ground eight years. Some have been in the same location for many years. But if your plant is not blooming as it had in the past, the end of this month into September is the time to divide them. Prepare the spot now so the soil settles before actual planting.

Lift the tubers and hose them off. When you separate them, leave them to five buds, or eyes, on each tuber and a generous portion of fleshy root.

It is best not to replant in the same hole, but if it is necessary, remove the soil down to 2½ feet and and replace it with fresh soil. Never plant in the same spot if the plant is diseased.

Be sure the soil is well drained. Set the tubers 2½ feet up to 5 feet apart so the top most eyes will be between 2 and 3 inches below the level of the finished bed (if you have clay-loam soil). For light soils set them 3 to 3½ inches deep. Use a ruler to measure.

Compost, bone-meal and wood ashes are natural products that can be used for feeding the plants, or if you prefer, follow directions carefully on packages of commercial fertilizer. Use any of these products with restraint because, although peonies use up nutrients in the soil, it does not have to be real rich.

Gently water the plant to settle any soil; be sure there are no air spaces that will allow the plant to settle too deeply.

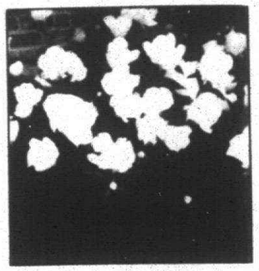

Plan to mulch the first winter. It is not necessary after that.

There are early, mid season and late varieties of P.albiflora or sinensis (Chinese peony) so you can plan a long season of bloom. This is the one most people grow, although there are others that you might want to try: P.tenuifolia has fern-like foliage; P. offficinalis (rubra and other varieties), grown by our grandmothers; P. lutea, pure yellow; and P. suffruticosa or P. moutan, the tree peony (woody stems that don't die down to the ground and need winter protection).

If you want to see peonies in all their glory, visit the Peony Garden at the University of Michigan's Nichols Arboretum, Ann Arbor, this spring. June is a good time.

Experts advise that you buy your plants from a reliable source. They will live in your garden for a long time and give much pleasure for a minimum of effort. Study your garden situation and decide where you will put them before you visit a local nursery. This winter is a good time to research the plant so you will be well-informed before time to make a decision.

Wayside Gardens Fall 1995 garden catalog features this wonderful beauty. To order a catalog call 1-800-845-1124. White Flower Farm's Fall catalog also offers many peonies. To obtain yours call 1-800-503-9624. Both catalogs are free. Place your order early to avoid disappointment if you have your heart set on a particular plant.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Lead-in lines bring drama to photographs

MONTE NAGLER

In past columns, I've touched on the importance of composition which can be defined as the placement of the elements you view through the camera in a pleasing and harmonious way.

Today, I'd like to concentrate on a very important aspect of good composition, one that will enhance and add stopping power to your photographs — lead-in lines.

A lead-in line can be a river, pathway, road, fence or any other element in your composition that will lead and direct the viewer's attention to the central subject.

Next time you're about to photograph that weathered old barn, stop and take a moment to search for a composition that will include a lead-in line. Perhaps it's the dilapidated fence or the furrows in a recently plowed field that lead the way to the barn. By using either, can you imagine how much more exciting your finished picture will be?

How about that lonely tree in the valley you're about to shoot? Can you position yourself so that the meandering river leads the way into the picture?

Using lead-in lines causes you to slow down, think more, and plan out the final image in your mind's eye. You're going through the process of making photographs, not taking snapshots and your pictures will definitely show the difference.

Subject placement often works well by using the "rule of thirds." This means positioning the subject toward one of the corners of the viewfinder rather than in the center. After you've done this, look for a lead-in coming from the opposite corner.

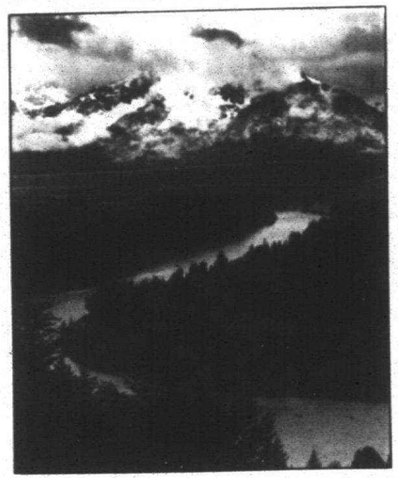

In the photograph shown here, I used the Snake River as a lead-in to the majestic, cloud shrouded Teton Mountain range.

Of course, you'll have to pay close attention to depth-of-field. Most likely you'll need a small aperture so that everything in your finished print is sharp and in focus.

Look for abstract lead-in lines, too. Man-made patterns such as the steel structure in a building under construction, or nature's patterns such as the ripples in a dramatic sand dune can both serve as effective lead-ins.

The important thing is to begin to "see" lead-in lines. They'll help you to look at the world in new, exciting ways. Your photographs will have added strength and impact that you'll be proud to share with others.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave hinm a message by calling 313-953-2047 on a touch tone phone then his mailbox number 1873.

Take attic dweller to doll appraisal clinic

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Stuart Holbrook, a noted author and doll expert, will be on hand to conduct the appraisals. Holbrook has lectured on the subject of antique dolls at more than 200 national conventions, seminars, libraries, and museums.

If you've ever wondered what that old doll in the attic is worth, attend a free appraisal clinic 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12 to find out the answer.

A representative of Theriault's, auctioneers of antique and collectible dolls, will give a written appraisal of any doll dating from 1850 to 1960 during the clinic at the Southfield Marriott Hotel, 27033 Northwestern Highway in Southfield.

Dolls of particular value include German and French bisque and porcelain; 1930's composition dolls such as Shirley Temple; pre-1965 Madame Alexander dolls and Barbies; early American folk art; and early toys and teddy bears. Dolls such as these have brought hundreds, even thousands of dollars at auction.

Stuart Holbrook, a noted author and doll expert, will be on hand to conduct the appraisals. Holbrook has lectured on the subject of antique dolls at more than 200 national conventions, seminars, libraries, and museums.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, Theriault's will present an uncataloged "Discovery Day" auction at the Detroit Marriott Romulus, 3-559 Flynn Drive in Romulus. An exhibition of dolls opens at 9 a.m. The auction begins at 11 a.m.

Dolls are currently the world's most popular collectible, ranked just behind stamps and coins. Over time, dolls have undergone many changes in the significance, style, and form. Ancient cultures most often used dolls as symbols of religious ritual. There is evidence, however, to indicate that even the earliest dolls of Egypt, Persia, India and Greece were intended for children.

Today's collectors concentrate their efforts on dolls dating from the "Golden Age of Dollmaking" (1875-1925); and on collectible dolls from 1930-1960.

No appointment is necessary for the clinics, and appraisals and admission to the auction is free. For more information call Theriault's at 1-800-638-0422.

COVER STORY

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

What do mirror and etched glass have in common? Both are being used with increasing frequency as architectural accents in today's homes. Specialized glass companies are installing mirror to dramatize an entrance way, decorate a dining room, brighten a bathroom, and reproduce the seashell design of an antique headboard in a bedroom's looking glass.

Do thoughts of yesterday's mirrors etched with zodiac signs darken the imagination before you've had the opportunity to ponder what mirror could do for a space. Well take another, look. Mirror has come a long way. Mirror and lighting work together to brighten an environment. Properly placed, a looking glass will expand a room, lighting it. Mirror, after all, is specially coated glass that forms images by reflections of rays of light. If you think of mirror as gold veined squares checker- boarding a wall, or glass as a vehicle simply meant to let in light, look again.

"Mirrors have the ability to enlarge and duplicate so visually you can extend a window treatment, a mural, or use it to bring the outdoors indoors,"said Mike Rochowiak, co-owner of Glassworks Creations in Farmington Hills.

"As far as mirror and glass, I don't think the limitations have been tapped. We can carve it, lacquer and airbrush images on it. People don't realize they can have anything they want."

One model had a 7-foot mural, etched with her larger than lifesize likeness, installed in her foyer. Another homeowner commissioned a plate glass room divider sandblasted with a carousel horse under the Big Top. A three inch glass trifold dressing screen is a canvas for your heart's desire whether it's a racing greyhound in Art Nouveau style, or a reproduction of one of Erte's fair damsels. Jeff Rochowiak majored in illustration at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. He has designed everything from geisha girls on shower doors to glass etched with a homeowner's wallpaper pattern at Glassworks Creations.

"We're taking mirrors beyond the functional to an art piece, but it's also functional and adds interest and detailing to interiors. For bars, there're curved stacked shelves that look as though there's no visible means of support," Jeff Rochowiak said. "If they have floral designs we can pick that up."

Richard Dak's Farmington Hills condominium mixes mirror and glass. The contemporary architecture throughout serves as a springboard for sidelights and windows etched then enhanced with geometric shapes of colored glass. Laminating blue and mauve diamonds of glass to a mirror, window or glass door was impossible thirty years ago. Glass is a medium born of light. By studying art history you realize the impact technology has made on the arts and crafts. Thanks to NASA's (National Aeronautics and Space Administration's) discovery of laminate glues for securing tiles strongly enough to endure the heat of rentry, anything is possible. Laminated glass shelves sporting hammer or chipped edges would work especially well with a table or chair by glass artist Maxwell Davis.

"I like the decorative glass. I like to have light but I didn't want to drape it off. The etched or sand- blasted glass diffuses the light and picks up the color," Dak said.

Mirror Treatment

When Jeanna and Darryl English were unable to find a large enough picture or artwork to decorate their oversized dining room wall in their new Westland condominium, the two newlyweds decided to mirror it all the way up to 12-foot cathedral ceilling. Artistic Mirrors of Livonia installed four mirror panels accented with 6-inch beveled strips accenting the adjoining edges. Every two weeks Jeanna, an admitted clean-aholic, wipes the mirror with a foam cleaner to ensure its continuing elegance.

"It adds extra space to the room and gives the allusion of a larger room," Jeanna English said.

■ 'There's an elegance that goes with mirrors that I don't think is possible with paper and paint.'

Elaine Cole
co-owner, Artistic Mirrors

"There's an elegance that goes with mirrors that I don't think is possible with paper and paint. And it saves papering or painting year after year," said Artistic Mirrors co-owner Elaine Cole.

According to Glassworks Creations co-owner Kevin Burroughs, who works with builders and interior designers to decorate new and existing homes, mirror is always in.

"Mirrors have always been around; where mirrors are being used has changed. They're now incorporating mirrors into the architecture," said Burroughs. "Twenty-five years ago people would have never dreamed of using full-height mirrors above fireplaces, in exercise areas or to surround Jacuzzis. Now because pedestal sinks are hot they're mirroring the entire wall from floor to ceiling."

INVITING IDEAS

Mint: Ubiquitous and it's versatile

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Mint (Mentha) is ubiquitously universal and equally versatile — this perennial herb of character has a long list of family members and a history that simulates the tabloids (interesting and racy myths, legends and old wives tales.)

The most common and widely used of these aromatic mints are peppermint (Mentha piperita) and spearmint (Mentha spicata). Dating back to Roman times, mint was introduced into the United States during the colonial period. Moving west from Massachusetts, this culinary and medicinal herb found its way to southern Michigan and northern Indiana where the soil and climate were well suited to it proliferation. At the turn of the century, St. Johns, Mich., 20 miles north of Lansing, produced 90 percent of the world's supply of mint oil. In the mid 1920s vercillium wilt overtook and destroyed the profitable crop. In recent decades, mint has made a serious comeback to mid-Michigan and is now celebrated annually in "Mint City" — St. Johns, the second weekend in August.

Festival events will be held this year Aug. 11-13. For more information, contact The St. Johns Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 61, St. Johns, Mich. 48879 or by phone, (517) 224-7248.

Minty ideas

- Chopped leaves placed in ice cube trays and filled with water — frozen into cubes — make for delicious summer drinks. Try mint cubes in pink lemonade or iced tea.
- Mix chopped mint leaves with yogurt or laban (heavy strained yogurt) and use as a refreshing accompaniment for spicy cuisine — fabulous with hot and spicy rice!
- Make a garland of mint and use as an ornamental garnishing — beautiful and tasty with a scoop of home-made mint or citrus sorbet or try with a prepared chocolate mint ice cream.
- Add fresh mint to a bean salad for a cool and refreshing change of flavors.
- Make some home-made herbal peppermint tea (a French tisane) — especially good for upset tummies!
- Wrap fish in mint leaves and stems then grill over charcoal.
- Add mint to prepared chutneys to give it a personal touch — call it homemade.
- Try some mint-flavored syrup over ice cream or added to ginger ale, seltzer or a cup of java. Mint syrup can be found in Italian markets or Gordon Food Service (opened to the public).
- Add lots of fresh mint to freshen an old potpourris (non-edible).
- Take a small section of mint leaves and press (dry) — use a small motif to adorn a pretty box or stationery.
- Make a wreath of mint — a great house warming gift or bridal shower present.
- Make a mint vinegar for use in a delightful and tasty vinaigrette — red or white wine vinegar could be used.

MINT, LEMON BALM AND CARDOM VINEGAR

14 liter (16 cup) glass jar with gasket lid
16 cup white vinegar (use a high quality vinegar)
2 teaspoons sugar
5 stems of lemon balm — filled with leaves
8 cardamon seeds (whole)

Warm the wine vinegar with two tablespoons of sugar in a large non-reactive pot.

Place the washed mint, lemon balm and cardamon in a glass jar.

Pour the warmed vinegar into the jar and seal. Place the steeping jar into a dark, cool room for 4 weeks.

Strain the steeped vinegar — using a funnel, fill glass bottles (size and type of your choice) and add fresh sprigs of herbs and several fresh cardamon seeds. Cork or seal the bottles. Give as gifts or use in homemade salad dressings (just add oil).

YORKSHIRE MINT PATTIES

An old English pasty — typical to the area of Yorkshire, passed down to me verbally with no specific measurements — whilst I was living in Essex, not in Yorkshire.

Pie dough (pastry homemade or prepared)
Currants and/or raisins
Candied citrus peel, finely chopped
Fresh mint leaves, finely chopped
Brown sugar
Butter or margarine (stick type)

Preheat over 350 degrees.

On a lightly floured board, roll out pastry to a quarter inch thickness — take a large drinking glass and cut the dough into large rounds with the rim of the glass.

On half or each circle, place a layer of currants and/or raisins and some candied citrus peels (don't go all the way to the edge). Place on top a layer of mint and brown sugar or margarine and a sprinkle of fresh grated nutmeg.

Wet all edges of the dough and fold in half — the plain half covering the fruited side. Pinch edges of dough closed — totally encasing the fruity mixture.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

A look at past and future of microwave ovens

The period of time was the second World War when the armed forces were testing this new method of tracking called radar. A man was standing in the pathway of this radar cone when it was discovered that a chocolate bar in his pocket had melted.

From this accidental discovery it was proven that food could be cooked using waves of a smaller scale than actual radar used in the military. So quick was this new method put into use that food in the transport planes was heated in a microwave oven.

The troops ate warm meals before they went into battle and it would be 30 years later before those same men had microwave ovens in their homes. The difference between the microwave as we know it today is that the ones of old weighed 2000, were water-cooled and took six men to lift.

In the late 1960s, the Amana Corporation invented the first portable home use microwave oven using the technology of its parent company, Ratheyon. This company, which is very involved in space programs and radar etc., thus named this new product the Radarange.

Even today many consumers call their microwaves a Radarange even though it is Amana's trade name.

In 1970 I was hired by the Amana Co. to train the service industry on the repairs of this brand new product. This was no easy task as the service industry had never before worked on electronic products. These technicians had spent years working on washers and dryers and refrigerators and were scared to death that they would soon be impotent.

Consumer story

Making this picture even worse was the 1973 national story put out by Consumers Union that all microwaves were causing hidden health problems for the American family. This story later proved to be totally fictitious and several senior people at the source had to resign and apologize to the American public.

Needless to say, the harm had been done and many dollars were spent educating the homeowner.

Today's microwave is probably the safest product in your home. The safety requirements set by the government years ago are so stringent that even today, I have not heard of someone being burnt by microwave emission. The microwave will not burn you, provided the door seal area is kept clean and not torn up or damaged.

If microwave emissions were to come out of the door area and hit you, it would be the same feeling as burning yourself with a match. In other words, it would be quite evident that you're getting zapped. You would have to be standing within 18 inches of the product because microwaves dissipate in a distance of 12 to 18 inches from place of departure.

I recently read an article which stated that sales of microwaves were on the decline. I guess you could say that's true, but just maybe saturation has a role to play in this.

In 1970 many home economists were hired to learn and teach the general public how to use a microwave properly. Cooking schools were available for all buyers and they were all filled to capacity. The surge of buyers was tremendous and it didn't take long to number these in the millions. People wanted something that made life easier and saved them energy cost. Prices dropped along with the size of the interior of the cavity and people began to cook smaller packages.

Food producers created microwave packages by the billions with all the instructions needed. Even combining some of these factors and more, including the failure to provide continuing cooking classes, I still believe we have reached the saturation point.

Replacenent

The replacement market is now taking over which means we will continue to purchase the product based on these facts alone: It is fast, convenient, energy saving and is the greatest cooking discovery since fire itself.

Within the next year or so you will see the microwave oven jump into your clothes dryer. Yes, a clothes dryer is now being tested which will use the same principle as a microwave oven to dry your clothes. Can you imagine, easy in the kitchen and easy in the laundry room?

In next week's column I will write about the things you need to think about when shopping for a microwave, maintenance of the product, location, and much more. Most important in this upcoming column will be a story of how this very safe product can cause instant death if you want to play the role of the technician.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is the author of 'First Aid from the Appliance Doctor" available at area bookstores.

He likes his job

You might say he's the lazy boy of La-Z-Boy Chair Co., in Monroe, Mich.

A senior studying aeronautical engineering at the University of Michigan, Pixley is paid $6 an hour to test a variety of La-Z-Boy chairs. In other words, he comes to work, sits down, leans back and then relaxes forward.

All day long.

"I think a lot of people think it's easier than it actually is," Pixley told The Blade of Toledo, Ohio.

During the summer of '93 — his first with the Monroe-based furniture maker — Pixley lost 18 pounds.

"You can work up a sweat after the first hour or two," said Pixley, 20, who reads to dull the monotony. He says his calf and abdominal muscles get a workout.

He averages about 2,800 deep rocks a day, said test lab supervisor Judy Fay.

"He'll do 2.5 million, easy, before we're finished," she said.

Finding the right slacker for the job wasn't easy, said Fay, whose ideal hire weighs 180 to 200 pounds and stands at least 6 foot tall. Fay tested about 24 people in the last several years, but few sat around as well as Pixley.

"I want someone who's self-motivated, who won't get bored, who sets their own personal goals," Fay said.

Cranbrook will hold reunion for Saarinen

HUGH GALLAGHER

This weekend Cranbrook will celebrate creativity when it hosts a reunion of former employees, design associates and students of the Saarinen architectural practice.

The influence of Eliel Saarinen is pervasive at the Bloomfield Hills educational center, where he served as director of the art and design school and as chief architect. But he also continued a highly creative architectural practice, first with his son-in-law, J. Robert Swanson, and later with his son, Eero. Eero then established a practice of his own that was one of the largest and most successful of the 1950s.

Saarinen and Swanson severed business relations in 1947. Swanson went on to design many area buildings including Seaholm High School.

Mark Coir, director of the Cranbrook archives, said the reunion will serve three purposes. It will bring people together who haven't seen each other in years, it will draw on their memories of the Saarinen Studio and it will give those associated with the Saarinen practice an opportunity to donate relevant materials and papers. Also art and architecture historians and Cranbrook curators will be able to learn about Saarinen philosophy and work conditions.

"This heritage has never been looked at seriously," Coir said. "The Saarinen practice needs to be examined from a scholarly viewpoint."

Eliel Saarinen first came to the United States from Finland when he took second place in a contest to design a skyscraper for the Chicago Tribune in the 1920s. His design was hailed by many, including seminal architect Louis Sullivan, as the superior work. Detroit News executive George Booth, founder of Cranbrook, brought Saarinen to the school in 1925. Saarinen left an established and successful practice in Finland.

"They had a superior sense of design," Coir said. "The way they approached architecture was inclusive rather than exclusive. Anything was fair game."

The Saarinens didn't just design buildings but also objects to go in the buildings, sleek wood furniture, dramatic interior spaces and, also, whole city plans that coordinated numerous projects.

Bloomfield Hills architect Robert Saarinen Swanson grew up in this environment of swirling creativity. In addition to his architect grandfather, uncle and father, Swanson's grandmother Loja was a designer and weaver and his mother, Eva-Lisa, called Pipsan, was an interior designer.

"My earliest memories of the family were up at Cranbrook at the Saarinen House. I spent a lot of time up there when I was still crawling around while my grandfather was drafting in his studio," Swanson said.

He spent boyhood summers in his grandfather's summer place in Finland.

"Of course when I pursued a vocation, I leaned toward architecture and design," Swanson said.

Swanson's daughter and partner continues the family professional chain that dates back to 1897 in Finland.

Southfield architect Louis Redstone began his association with the Saarinens in 1943. He said he and other young architects worked in a studio across from Eliel Saarinen's and Saarinen would come over and offer critiques. He said students were reluctant to approach the reserved master.

"So one day, I just went over and knocked on his door and he asked why no one came to see him and then he showed me a book with pictures of his city planning designs," Redstone said. "Another day he had a telegram from the Finnish composer Sibelius and he was as happy as a child."

"At the time it was the most exciting, creative and progressive architectural environment in the world," Birkerts said.

Birkerts said it was Eero's vision that attracted him to come from Germany to the Saarinen practice.

"The Saarinens were willing to depart from and extend the modern movement and apply a very personal touch to it, which changed, actually, from project to project," Birkerts said.

The Saarinens weren't wedded to a particular style.

"Most firms were dogmatic either by following a master's line or a design principle. It was either Bauhaus or Mies or Frank Lloyd Wright or Gropius. With Eero you never knew; that was what attracted me to Eero Saarinen," Birkerts said.

"Eliel was far more the elegant architect, both more sophisticated in taste and background — a patrician," Mark Coir said. "He didn't set the world on fire with new architectural ideas, but he was a stylist. Eero was much more form — interested in technology and materials, such as the St. Louis Arch."

Both men were influenced by their contemporaries but modified and subtly changed those influences into something original. For instance, Eero took over the design of the GM Tech Center from his father, giving it a definite Mies glass and steel box style but transforming it with an inventive use of color and light. This idea of a continuing process and learning from others was central to their views.

"Eliel always said, we are like relay runners. One holds the flag and runs and then passes it along to another," Louis Redstone said.

This weekend, associates of the Saarinens will be passing along the flag at round table discussions Saturday to share their memories of creativity at work.

BOOK BREAK

'Skinned Alive' — it's short fiction at its best

VICTORIA DIAZ

"Skinned Alive," by Edmund White (254 pp., $23.00, Alfred A. Knopf).

In part biographical, this unsentimental look at gay life during the latter part of the twentieth century is utterly luscious with piquant insight and droll wit. Actually, very often it is short fiction at its beautiful, most eloquent best.

No matter how lively or piquant the insight, though, no matter how droll the wit, the collection is ultimately about as far from funny as it is possible to get. Lethal plagues have a way of resisting laughter.

Not that White intends comedy. Think of the laughs as his way of lighting and lightening this darkening landscape, this backdrop to a tragedy of awesome proportions. Often, he evokes just how awesome not by pointing out the large, but by showing us the "smallest" of details in these personalized stories: the paleness of an aging woman's hands, the remembered shape of a lover's fingernails, the peculiar scent of a sultry Texas morning after a summer rain, blueberry stained-faces at an Ann Arbor pancake house.

The lead-off story, "Pyrography," (the process of burning a design, usually into wood or leather) is perhaps the most heart-wrenching story here because of the distinct appeal of its dreamy-eyed protagonist, a confused Chicago boy named Howard. The story takes place in the deep, dark fifties and, as with so many of White's characters, Howard (on a camping trip through northern Minnesota lake country) is seeking a place for himself in the "real" world, often fantasizing about where it might be, never quite getting to it. Also like many of White's dramatic personas, Howard nevertheless continues to erect his "castles with matchsticks," even as they proceed to collapse around him.

White's concluding story, titled "Watermarked," is set partly in Ann Arbor, and centers around a small group of gay students who meet each other in a playwriting class at the University of Michigan during the sixties. The artificial world of the theatre, in their search for identity, seems a kind of fabulous and funny milieu more real than life itself for a time. The story, like most others here, is told from the viewpoint of a gay man looking back on his life.

"What we learned from the theatre," he recalls after all the years, " . . . was how to be gay . . . As far back as the Pancake Palazzo, I was learning that if one wore enough pancake one could be a convincing enough Regina in her very own itty- bitty Pitti Palazzo."

Here are the dorm rooms and the classroom and the streets and cafes of Ann Arbor in that era, and the Arboretum after dark, the loving couples there 'writhing beneath old trees like exposed root systems come to life."

Set against far-flung locales, White's stories are are always lent a special kind of magic by his marked sense of place. In addition to Minnesota's north woods and Ann Arbor's nooks and crannies, his characters fantasize about or find themselves in New York's theatre world; along the banks of the Seine and the Nile: on a dusty street in Crete ("noisy with the rasp of insects,"; at an airport in Texas; in Nantucket; "the historic heart of Basel"; Chicago in winter . . .

In "Running On Empty," White's gift for scene-painting is perhaps most vividly marked. In the story, a young man who is dying of AIDS visits some of his family in Texas, and reminisces about his childhood in a small, rural community there. But, although he has, in a sense, come home to die, this sweet-sour smelling place and this family who hardly know him (some of whom seem to be struggling with their polite "roles") do not represent home to him. Where is that place, he wonders. It seems, now that he has come to the end of his life, maybe to be nowhere, or in a nether world he can never quite reach.

Though White's characters are not usually penniless, this collection nevertheless draws a sharp picture of spirits who are homeless in a very real way.

LAST WORDS: On Saturday, Aug. 26, at 2 p.m., Borders Novi will host Caldecott Honor winner/illustrator Eric Rohmann. He will sign books, meet readers, and talk about the life of a children's illustrator. Young readers will also get a chance to take a look at some of his childhood work. He is perhaps best-known for his illustrations in Jennifer Armstrong's book, "Time Flies."

You're saying the wrong thing

■ A consultant who helps turn real estate agents into mega-sellers recently gave an overview of the good, the bad and the ugly. Many of his observations were surprising. He didn't mince words.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Most real estate agents don't really know how to market themselves and their services.

They focus on their professionalism, experience, how much they know about the business. And because so many take that approach, they're just another face in the crowd.

"The key to successful real estate is not professional service but attracting clients," says Greg Herder, chief executive officer of a California advertising firm that specializes in real estate.

"How does the average person find an agent? Do they call the local board and ask for the most experienced, knowledgeable agent? No. Who do they call? Their friends. The last live Realtor they talked to.

"Agents are advertising here on the basis of performance," Herder said. "Great advertising, great marketing is emotional. It's not facts and figures."

Herder cited the example of Nike, which advertises the lifestyles of its athlete-endorsers rather than the shoe. The same with Rolex watch.

"Most (real estate) advertising done today is not to get consumers, but impress other agents," Herder said.

"If you leave this room and base your market plan on service, experience, professionalism, you're a moron. You look like every other flake in town."

■ Develop an image, and, subsequently, an expertise.

Herder told about one agent who promoted himself as the condo king and another who held himself out as the ranch expert in a particular county.

"Most agents aren't willing to sacrifice part of the business," Herder said. "By focusing, your business expands and becomes so much easier."

■ Develop a promotional brochure that concentrates on you as a person. What are your interests, hobbies? What is your basic philosophy of life?

"Company advertising is not a prospecting tool, it's a credibility tool," Herder said. "You must have your own identity, your own synergy."

■ Offer an unconditional money-back guarantee of your commission if clients aren't happy with your work.

"Business will skyrocket," Herder said. "Very few consumers will take advantage of this. Be a pacesetter."

■ Do some informal market research. Invite several customers you've done business with to breakfast for a small-group, face-to-face session. Mailed questionnaires also can be effective.

"Every agent who's done this has said it's been an eye-opening move of their career," Herder said of the breakfast. "This is so powerful, so revealing. All you have to do is try it."

"I think it's a wave of the future, to have a personal brochure, personal marketing as opposed to just going along with what the company does," she said.

"A personal brochure tells the story of who you are and what you're doing. Maybe a prospect will see it and say, 'She sounds like me. I know she can help me,'" Cavanaugh said.

Steve Levett, an associate broker and manager with ERA Banker's Realty in Farmington Hills, said a previous brochure he had done focused on all the wrong things _ numbers, experience, education.

"The public wants to deal with people they feel they know and like, someone with similar interests," Levett said.

Talk about experience and sales acumen later, not when trying to make a first impression, he said.

Marilyn Chicorel Megdell, an associate broker with Ralph Manuel West in Farmington Hills, also is in process of designing a personal brochure because she's fairly new to this area.

"Relationships, I think, is what makes for a great real estate person," she said.

"I have been doing some advertising. You'd be surprised at the response I'm getting. It's basically based on no aggravation. I'm targeting attorneys, people in transition. I would like to be there and make it enjoyable."

Individual agents must be comfortable with their promotional plan, Megdell added. But a slick brochure won't cover up a lack of technical ability.

"Good advertising, good marketing is opening the door," she said. "It doesn't take the place of knowledge one needs."

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I am concerned about the numbering on the outside of our condominium units since they are very hard to see at night.

I am concerned that if there is an emergency, emergency vehicles such as the police and fire department will not be able to readily find our unit.

The association has refused to take any corrective action because it does not want to spend the money. The developer was apparently remiss in this matter.

What can we do?

The association should be put on notice that the numbering system at your condominium is apparently dangerous and a potential safety hazard.

Perhaps the insurance carrier for the condominium association ought to also be notified as it may implore the association to take some corrective action.

In any event, the association may be incurring potential liability in the event of an unfortunate casualty, and the association should not embark upon a pennywise-and-pound-foolish attitude, since it may come back to haunt the board and the condominium association as a whole.

I recently moved into a condominium where, according to the bylaws, one cat or one dog under 30 pounds was allowed. We read this in the bylaws before buying the unit.

About a month after I moved in, I heard about some rules or regulations stating no new pets after moving in. I hit the roof. When my cat does pass away, I plan to replace her. Cats are the love of my life.

I feel as though I was misrepresented since I was never told of this rule at the time of purchase or at closing. What rights do I have since I feel they withheld this information from me. Are rules and regulations binding?

It is not totally clear from your question as to who failed to represent to you that "no new pets would be allowed after moving in."

What is clear is that the pet restriction may not be enforceable since a Michigan Court of Appeals decision has held as unreasonable weight limitations on animals.

Whether or not the condominium association can properly pass a rule restricting pets has also been the subject matter of a Court of Appeals decision, and it may well be that a rule is enforceable to totally ban pets.

On the other hand, the fact that you were not provided with these rules and regulations may give you a basis to pursue the person who had a responsibility to provide you with a copy of same _ no doubt, the seller _ as set forth in the purchase agreement, or perhaps the real estate agent, if in fact one was involved.

I would suggest that you consult with an attorney at your earliest convenience regarding the propriety of the actions taken by the seller and the enforceability of the condominium documents as well as the pet rules promulgated by the condominium association.

Never rent if you can afford even a modest home

ON MORTGAGES

DAVID C. MULLY

The reasons people rent today instead of buying a house are varied. Some of today's renters simply do not realize how easy it can be to own their own house.

Years ago, I was renting a house, and home ownership was the last thing on my mind. I was making decent money at my job but did not have very much money in the bank.

I was young and just did not realize how the benefits of owning my own house could help me or that it was even possible.

Enter my neighbor at the time. He was a nice older man, and he showed me how I could buy a house down the street that was for sale. He mentioned that there was a mortgage called an FHA loan where I did not have to put much money down.

He pointed out the tax benefits of buying the house and how I could get them. I was wasting my money paying rent while my landlord was gaining most of the benefits. And if my house appreciated in value, it would cost me more the longer I waited. At the same time I would lose that appreciation myself. So I talked to a lender and soon became a homeowner.

The key was what I didn't have high expectations in the type of house I could buy. That meant I was satisfied in starting out with a modest house in a decent neighborhood.

Owning my own house just seemed to help me have the desire to achieve more in my career. Homeownership was the start that I needed.

I believe you are better off living in a more modest area to have your own house instead of paying rent. Then you can climb the ladder slowly and along the way, perhaps, make a profit on each house you sell.

The main point is to talk to a mortgage lender to get a prequalification so you will know how much house you can afford and then check with a Realtor to find out what's available in that price range.

Keep your expectations realistic. If you need to, make sacrifices in what you want in that first house so you can first gain the benefits of home ownership and buy a nicer house later.

The deduction for interest paid on a home loan and the deduction for taxes paid on your property are most people's biggest deduction. You would be surprised how much money these deductions put in your pocket.

The monthly house payment won't seem so big if you take into account the smaller size of your tax payment or the larger size of your refund check at the end of the year. Keep this in mind when a lender quotes you a house payment and it seem a little high.

Buying a condominium has the same benefits. Buying a condo can get you into a nicer area because condos are generally less expensive than houses. They may not appreciate as much as a house, but you still gain a lot of benefits and will be way ahead versus continuing to rent.

If your plan is to save up for a few more years to buy your first house, why not lower your expectations a little and buy now? This way, you can start to enjoy the benefits now and still buy that nicer house in a few years.
