Morton Taylor extension delayed

Construction of the Morton Taylor extension, Ford to Warren roads, has been postponed as Wayne County staff conduct a state-ordered environmental assessment.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Construction of a new Morton Taylor, Ford to Warren, has been postponed until at least next year, pending completion of a state-ordered environmental assessment study.

"The state notified us based on our application to them that because of the situation they need an environmental assessment," said Alan Richardson, Wayne County deputy director of engineering. "Our writing of the draft assessment is under way."

Plans for the Morton Taylor extension were unveiled in April. Controversial among residents of the Carriage Hills and Willow Homes subdivisions, the plans call for the extension to border their back yards. If unable to stop the extension altogether, other residents say they would prefer a boulevard in the section of Ford to Hanford roads.

"I was relieved because the environmental assessment gives me additional time to look for revenues to fund a potential boulevard," said Michelle Hall of Carriage Hills, who has led the boulevard effort. "My goal is still to get a boulevard."

Hall has urged Wayne County administrators and township officials to seek other means of financing a boulevard that Hall believes will save a band of 100-year-old trees that decorate the center of the right-of-way behind their houses.

The assessment, conducted by Wayne County staff, will include the area's history, endangered species, air quality and noise levels among a number of additional items. "You name it, we have to consider it," Richardson said.

Policing approach praised

BY MARY RODRIQUE

Another hot steamy afternoon in Canton Commons and officer Keith Lazar cruises slowly through the winding roads of the public housing development that has become his daily beat.

A few kids in bathing suits here, a couple of boys on bicycles there, a lady watering flowers — they all have a smile and a wave for the Canton cop they call Keith.

For the second year in a row, Canton has won a $39,000 federal grant to continue this special community patrol in the Commons, 453 sprawling residential units bounded by Haggerty Road and the I-275 expressway, north of Palmer.

The Canton Commons effort, which is also supported with $24,693 from the township, will continue the partnership established between police officers, the complex residents and management, the local business community, nearby Field Elementary staff and various social agencies, said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

"This is where we originally began all of our community policing efforts," Santomauro said. "I think it is working for Canton Commons, the police department and the community."

About three years ago, there was an influx of gang activity in Canton Commons, according to Lazar. He blames outside forces from Detroit and Ypsilanti.

"They were trying to claim turf, get new members," he said. "The graffiti was there. The residents were upset. They demanded action."

The grant, from the Neighborhood Reconciliation Program, allows Lazar to continue his assignment in the Commons and surrounding neighborhoods by coordinating a host of activities designed to reduce crime and improve the quality of life for residents.

Jean Cleveland is a Neighborhood Watch block captain and mother of three sons who has lived in the Commons for 21 years.

"It began as a nice community," she said. "Then a lot of drug activity and domestic problems started.

"Kids today are a little bolder. They want to take control over parents. The Neighborhood Watch has taken a good hold.

For the second consecutive year, Piccadilly Petal'er was invited to donate flowers for the annual mass wedding at the festival Aug. 19, as well as to outfit the festival king and queen and accompanying court with flowers.

New Fisher trial set for Oct. 9

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Wayne County prosecutors will be allowed to provide evidence showing the state of mind of Ella Maria Mercado Fisher, the wife of Dr. Charles Fisher. Fisher is awaiting an Oct. 9 retrial in her 1984 murder.

"We can bring in nine classes of information," said Wayne County assistant prosecutor Bob Donaldson. The evidence can include portions of Mercado's diary, letters from Fisher to others, as well as statements from others who spoke to Mercado before her murder.

The latest decision to allow such evidence was made by the state Supreme Court Aug. 9. "When we went to the Supreme Court the first time, we got a peremptory reversal. It didn't specify what evidence we could bring to trial," Donaldson said.

Fisher's attorney, Ken Mogill, was unavailable for comment, as were Mercado's parents, Evelyn and Manuel Mercado.

Fisher's Oct. 9 trial will be before Wayne County Circuit Judge Thomas Roumell.

The latest path to the state Supreme Court began when Roumell granted prosecutors their motion to introduce certain oral and written statements of Mercado to show motive and premeditation. The state Court of Appeals denied a rehearing and the defendant appealed.

The state Supreme Court said that Roumell didn't err and that it was proper to provide evidence of Mercado's oral and written statements, according to the Aug. 9 ruling.

Mercado, a nurse, was asphyxiated with duct tape in the living room of the Fisher home on Thornwood in

Hulsing parents to discuss traffic woes

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Parents of Hulsing Elementary School students and residents in the Windsor Woods and Mayfair subdivisions are invited to discuss traffic issues on Morton Taylor Road at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24.

At the meeting in the school cafeteria, Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro is expected to discuss the thoroughfare's current 40 mph speed limit — set by a controversial traffic order — as well as sidewalk construction and a traffic light, as suggested by parents earlier this summer.

Parents are concerned about the safety of their children as they cross Morton Taylor to reach Hulsing. A traffic study was requested after the public safety department received 10-12 letters from concerned parents who requested a lower speed on the roadway.

The parents expressed concern about the ability of the two crossing guards to stop traffic traveling 40 mph; the lack of plans for a traffic signal; the difficulty to cross the road after school hours when crossing guards are gone; the amount of traffic on the road now; the lack of sidewalks between Arlington and Candlewood; and the expected increase in traffic when Morton Taylor is extended south of Warren to Ford Road.

Wayne County staff also conducted a gap study, which involves determining how many gaps exist in traffic at a certain time of day and how much time is allowed for crossings in those gaps.

Vicki Holland, Wayne County assistant engineer, said there is no need for a traffic signal on Morton Taylor, based on traffic counts and other factors.

But in July, Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said a traffic signal is a stronger possibility than sidewalks. A traffic light costs approximately $50,000, while sidewalks in the area would prove more costly at about $130,000 because of the need to cross a creek.

Fireworks sellers headed to court

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Two Canton fireworks distributors will be back in 35th District Court in September as their defense attorney and a Wayne County assistant prosecutor do battle over the state fireworks law.

"There were a lot of preliminary motions," said 35th District Judge Ron Lowe, referring to the latest court hearing Aug. 8.

Efim and Elissa Burda, owners of Burda Bros. Fireworks, 47725 Michigan Ave., and Pat and Donald Linn, owners of Tri-City Fireworks, 47405 Michigan Ave., face misdemeanor charges in connection with selling alleged illegal fireworks just before the July 4th holiday.

They will be back before Lowe Sept. 11. "The defense argued to have the charges dismissed — that the federal law has pre-empted the state Legislature in this area," Lowe said. "Both sides need the opportunity to argue this pre-emption."

The continuing hearings in court follow police raids on both businesses and the confiscation of alleged illegal fireworks. The Michigan State Police and Canton police were ordered by Wayne County Circuit Court to return the confiscated materials. The Michigan Court of Appeals later stepped in.

While a restraining order, filed by defense attorney Hugh Davis, was in effect to prevent Canton police from confiscating fireworks at Burda Bros., the Michigan State Police raided the business June 22, confiscating approximately $150,000 of fireworks. At the same time, Canton police raided Tri-City Fireworks, east of Burda Bros. confiscating approximately $75,000-$90,000 of material.

Rounds of court hearings followed addressing the confiscation and return of the fireworks. Activity over what state and Canton police believed was the sale of illegal fireworks from Burda Bros. and Tri-City has been a constantly changing scenario.

According to Ray Walsh, out-Wayne County assistant prosecutor, the civil law side of the issue is continuing. Defense attorney Hugh Davis said recently the fireworks issue has become 3-4 dimensional.

Prosecutors, police and fire officials say illegal fireworks are anything that moves, spins, leaves the ground, emits a report or shoots. Police confiscated bottle rockets, torpedoes, roman candles and firecrackers.

Davis is arguing that the less restrictive federal law pre-empts state law. Tri-City Fireworks is operating under a 1989 injunction from Ingham County Circuit Court and sells what are considered illegal fireworks through catalog sales shipped out of state. "They are allowed to possess them for out-of-state sales," Davis said.

Burda Bros. has a wholesale permit. The Canton Township Board of Trustees denied the Burdas a request for a display permit in June. The Burdas established the American Fireworks Users Association, which allowed customers buying the alleged illegal fireworks to sign up and return with the fireworks during specified hours on July 4th when they were invited to shoot off fireworks or have a pyrotechnic operator shoot them off.

Star of soap thrills crowd

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

TOM HAWLEY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Posing: Debbie Vaught of Canton waited her turn to pose with "All My Children" soap opera star John Callahan during grand opening ceremonies at Builders Square II in Canton.

Joyce Vaagenes of Canton never had any interest in Builders Square II advertisements until her friend Sandie Berczel told her to take a glance at one in last Thursday's Observer.

"She made me look at it. I usually don't look at the Builders Square II ads. I'm not into power tools or anything like that."

She opened the paper and actor John Callahan's face was looking at her. Not only did she take a prolonged look at the ad, the "All My Children" star who plays "Edmund" got her into the store.

"I'm a very big fan of 'All My Children.' I've been watching it for about 20 years," she said while waiting in line to meet the star.

Decked out in a white T-shirt and black jeans, Callahan visited Builders Square II at 42000 Ford Road in Canton on Saturday as part of the store's weekend-long grand opening celebration.

"I've done a lot of Builders Squares. I do them all over the country. We get a pretty good turn out," Callahan said.

When told that the line of people waiting to see him snakes throughout the store, Callahan said, "Good. The ego always gets humbled by a few people."

On "All My Children" Callahan plays Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter Edmund Grey. For the last four months, he and his wife Maria have battled fertility problems.

In an effort to reach other couples suffering from fertility problems, Edmund wrote an anonymous story in Tempo magazine about his plight. But two weeks ago, town busybody Erica Kane announced on her talk show that her brother-in-law penned the story.

"Even the best laid plans go awry by the empress of the realm," he said with a laugh.

Callahan has obviously done his research about fertility problems. He rattles off statistics with no problem. With building intensity, the father of two talks about the emotional toll it takes on women.

In the past, Callahan said, soaps have poked fun at these types of problems so he's proud of the way the "All My Children" writers have handled it.

"It's nice that the story can be done in a more human vein, a more appropriate fashion. The writers have done a pretty realistic job. On some soaps a couple has fertility problems and one month later, Bingo, she's pregnant. It's been great being able to write about it and explore further the emotional toll it takes on a couple," said Callahan, who studied communications and public policy at University of California-Berkeley hoping to be a First Amendment lawyer.

Edmund and Maria won't give up their fight for a child anytime soon, Callahan said. They still have surrogacy, adoption, and a handful of other options to try.

Besides Callahan's appearance, the Pink Panther made the rounds of the store stopping to have pictures taken with children. Customers got a chance to win a three-minute, $3,000 shopping spree at the store which recently underwent a four-month renovation.

The name "Builders Square II" describes the "new concept of the store," according to store manager Scott Chapman of Livonia.

"A regular Builders Square store doesn't have the Idea Center or the Learning Center. The facility is much smaller. We added another 35,000 square feet to the store," said Chapman who has been in the home improvement industry for 12 years.

"It has a lot nicer look to it. The goal before the turn of the century is to have all the stores turned over into Builders Square II."

The Learning Center situated near the customer service desk offers videotapes of projects and "how-to" books on decorating. Home improvement projects can be reviewed with store experts as well.

At The Idea Center trained consultants offer computerized design services for kitchen, bath and family rooms complete with three-dimensional floor plans and cost estimates for "do-it-yourselfers" and "buy-it-yourselfers."

"This is truly a store of the future," said Frank G. Felicella, president and CEO of the San Antonio, Texas,-based Builders Square.

As part of their grand opening celebration, the store donated $300 to the Canton Parks and Recreation Department.

Ameritech work is put on hold

■ CABLE

Canton residents aren't likely to see construction crews for Ameritech's new cable system for a week or so.

"We have had a momentary delay," said Dave Onak, Ameritech New Media Services spokesman. "We are waiting for certification from the FCC (Federal Communications Commission).

Little more than a week ago, the FCC told Ameritech that it needed to go through an approval process now required for phone companies that want to get into the cable television business. "We were asked to send a letter with the facts within 14 days to receive final federal approval," Onak said.

By Wednesday, Aug. 16, Ameritech New Media Services had filed for certification.

"The FCC believes we ought to be subject to a layer of approvals," Onak said. Ameritech already has filed a lawsuit on the issue. The FCC has proposed to fine the company. "We have 30 days to respond," Onak added. "We are vigorously pursuing that."

Meanwhile, construction in Canton has stopped. "This won't affect our schedule," Onak said.

Construction crews with NTS, Ameritech's contractor, had been working in the Mayfair subdivision, south of Joy Road. The next subdivision is expected to be Carriage Hills, which actually is made up of 6-7 neighborhoods.

"So far I have gotten only one call," said Sue Folsom, Canton engineer, who meets with construction crews every two weeks to get a project update. "Ameritech has gotten some. But it's mostly people concerned with what they are doing."

Ameritech spokeswoman Marcia Sayles said the company plans to hook up about 38,000 homes in the communities of Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township and the city of Northville. The new 750-megahertz fiber-optic system is expected to create about 300 new jobs.

"If for example, a new subdivision is in our path and it is in place, it will probably meet our density requirements," Sayles said, adding those subdivisions also will be included in construction plans.

Ameritech New Media Services plans to build a new $8 million cable system throughout the participating communities. Construction crews will be in residents' back yards. Crews plan to bore the coaxial cable underground, but there may be some areas where ditches will be dug. If yards are disturbed, crews are required to restore them, Folsom said.

Before reaching your subdivision, construction crews will forewarn with door hanging notices. Residents are cautioned that during construction they may lose certain utility services because crews are digging in easements where electrical, telephone and cable lines are buried. The crews will be responsible for making sure the problem is fixed, Folsom added.

At the start, New Media will provide traditional cable television services with approximately 80 channels. Ameritech also has a joint venture with Walt Disney Co. to create new video programming and interactive services.

When the digital technology is available, New Media will provide a complete telecommunication system, offering video, voice and data services. It offers a promise of hundreds more channels and more sophisticated digital two-way services, such as banking and grocery shopping from home.

Pizzeria staffers unharmed in Aug. 22 armed robbery

Listed below are some of the Canton police and emergency incidents reported during the past week.

■ ARMED ROBBERY

Employees of Benitos Pizza, 6108 Canton Center Road, were not harmed when a gunman held up the store and walked away with more than $200 in cash, Aug. 22.

Employees told police that a man walked in through the unlocked rear door brandishing a blue steel handgun. He ordered all employees but one to lay down on the floor. The remaining employee was ordered to open the cash register and give the man money.

The man ran out of the back door of the store in an unknown direction. No shots were fired and no one was injured.

■ HOME INVASIONS

In a number of separate incidents, residents at Canton Commons apartments awoke to find a man, believed to be the same 17-18-year-old — in their bedroom, Aug. 21.

In one incident, a 34-year-old woman awoke and saw a man in her bedroom rattling an unknown object. The man walked out of the bedroom and into a hallway. The woman woke her husband who then followed the suspect.

The husband grabbed the man, whom he recognized, and frisked him without finding anything. A money pouch that was believed taken by the man was later found in the hallway.

The husband told the man to get out. He saw him get into a car driven by another man. The couple found $50 missing from the woman's purse.

In another incident, a 38-year-old woman woke up to find a teenager in her bedroom going through her dresser drawers. He went into the bathroom. The woman asked him what he was doing. He said his name was Michael and he went downstairs and out the front door.

The woman discovered that $11 was missing.

While police were investigating the two home invasions, they noticed that a kitchen window screen at a nearby apartment was torn and that the front screen door was pushed in as was the basement window. No entry had been gained.

At the two other apartments, police found basement windows were forced out.

■ CIVIL RIGHTS

A 44-year-old woman with disabilities and a service dog told police she was denied a room at the Fellows Creek Motel, 40064 Michigan Ave. Aug. 18.

Police met the woman at a nearby gas station. She told them she tried to rent a room but the clerk denied her request because she had a dog. According to law, people with disabilities who have service dogs must be given accomodations.

When police met with the motel clerk, he admitted he refused to give the woman a room because of the dog. He told police he wasn't aware of the law. The woman said she will sign a complaint.

■ B&E

When Canton police responded to a breaking and entering report at the Villa Party Store, 7250 Sheldon, they found the front lock punched out and lottery tickets and broken liquor bottles and cigarettes strewn on the floor, Aug. 21.

Police also found the cash register drawer open. A nearby gas station attendant told police he didn't see anything. But he said that a gas station customer stayed in the nearby parking lot for quite awhile.

■ FELONIOUS ASSAULT

A 30-year-old Canton man faces felony charges in connection with the assault of a neighbor at the Sherwood Mobile Home Park, Aug. 16.

On Aug. 16, police responded to a call of a man with a gun on M Street in the mobile home park on Old Michigan. The man apparently was upset about cigarette butts in his yard. He argued with a neighbor and pulled a gun from his front pant's pockets.

The neighbor grabbed the man in a bear hug while other neighbors talked the man into dropping the gun.

He was apprehended and charged with carrying a concealed weapon, assault with a deadly weapon and felony firearms. He is expected in 35th District Court Aug. 25.

Police examine captivity claim

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton police are investigating claims by a 51-year-old Canton woman who says she was held captive for several weeks by a man doing odd jobs around her house.

The woman apparently escaped her 24-year-old captor Monday, Aug. 21, and went to Canton police. She told them the man worked around her house and in exchange she allowed him to live there in the 1600 block of Aberdeen.

"She walked into the station. She was beaten up," said Lew Stevens, Canton police community relations officer.

The woman told police that the man — who as of Tuesday morning was still at large — became abusive and wouldn't allow her to leave.

"He beat her. He did all kinds of weird things," Stevens said. "It involved criminal sexual conduct and physical and mental abuse."

When police went to the woman's house they found her dog dead. The dog was sent to the Michigan State University School of Veterinary Medicine for an autopsy.

Stevens said it was unclear as of Tuesday morning how the woman escaped. When apprehended the man will face a number of felony charges, he said.

to work with these kids. But he sticks with them."

As if on cue, 9-year-old Robert Aston rides over on his bicycle and has a conversation with Keith, who he calls his friend.

Down the road, Ronda Kelley is watering flowers in front of her tidy unit. She's lived here three years and has seen the patrol officer cruising by in his car.

"It's good for the neighbors. I feel comfortable here," said the mother of a 2-year-old daughter.

Dolores Tobin and Stephanie North are neighbors who watch out for each other.

Beautifying: Ronda Kelley works on her garden outside her Canton Commons apartment. The complex has landscaping contests to encourage residents to improve the appearance of the surroundings.

"Being familiar with the police, it kind of makes you feel good," said Tobin, mother of sons Brad, 9 and Raymond, 13.

She worries about her sons now that they're getting older and becoming more independent.

"I like the police in here. I'm very happy about it," she said.

"My sister lived in a project downriver and the police didn't want to go in there for anything. Having an officer come in makes you feel secure."

North, mother of a teen-age daughter, remembers the kids coming in from other areas trying to recruit the locals for gang activity.

"They don't come in here anymore," she said. "Things have gotten a lot better."

Lazar is quick to pass the credit to a wide range of people in the community, from his department, to township officials, to the residents themselves. He has special praise for the administration at nearby Field Elementary School, which has made room available for meetings and has been accommodating in other ways.

"The zero tolerance attitude we implemented two years ago has made an impact," Lazar said. "We arrest people, we followup. Some people like it, some don't."

A monthly newsletter, the Neighborhood Watch, a gang task force, and a Canton Commons awareness group that meets monthly during the school year are some of the spinoffs from the grant.

For the second summer in a row, a green thumb program challenged residents to beautify their apartments by planting flowers, and it drew 40 percent participation.

"There's still some gang members there, but it's underground, low key," said Lazar. "The graffiti is taken care of immediately by management."

A manager for Highland Management, who runs Canton Commons from an office at the front of the development, refused to comment about the increased police presence and the grant program.

"I'm there to do my job," said Lazar. "It's getting better. People are arrested. People get ticketed. There's zero tolerance."

The federal grant for the special community effort is a three-year endeavor and Lazar hopes Canton will be able to win it again next year.

"The people deal directly with the residents. I think that really has paid some dividends for us," Santomauro said. "Patrol officers can figure what needs to be done. They can then resolve problems. There is accountability and a better response to the community."

Trial

Canton. Fisher, a microbiologist, was found guilty of first-degree murder by two juries. The first trial was ruled in error based on a comment made by a prosecutor. In late 1991, the Michigan Supreme Court reversed a second conviction, ruling that a diary kept by Mercado should not have been admitted into evidence.

Fisher testified that his wife was ambushed by robbers, who wrapped her face with duct tape and left her for dead. Fisher said he was gagged and bound by the intruders. After he regained consciousness, he said he was able to free himself and attempted unsuccessfully to revive his wife.

Fisher is in the Saginaw Regional Correctional Facility serving time on one count of inciting perjury. He was found not guilty on one count of attempted obstruction of justice. Fisher was accused of bribing a fellow inmate to confess to his wife's murder.

In 1994, Fisher wrote a letter from his jail cell asking for anyone with information surrounding his wife's murder to come forward.

"My wife and I were victims of a crime 10 years ago, in 1984," wrote Fisher. "Unfortunately, after a number of years, I was convicted on strictly circumstantial evidence and innuendo. After 10 years, trying to find evidence is almost impossible. I know some people were questioned, and I feel sure that someone has information critical to my case."

Panel recommends raising school standards

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Raise school standards, don't lower them. Require more of teachers, not less.

That's the nub of a state House Democratic task force reply to the Republican-dominated State Board of Education and Gov. John Engler, who are advocating voluntary curriculum standards and easier teacher accreditation. The State Board also is seeking to redefine "public schools" in a way that could open the door to "parochiaid," state aid to private and church-related schools.

"We will go to war over the issue of compromise quality," said the Democratic leader, Rep. James Agee, a former Muskegon school superintendent.

Rep. Thomas Kelly, D-Wayne, signed the report. A freshman, Kelly succeeded Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, who chaired the House Education Committee for many years before retiring.

Agee has asked Attorney General Frank Kelley to determine whether the State Board broke a 1993 school reform law when it not only failed to adopt a core curriculum but moved to ease curriculum standards.

On teaching standards, the Agee task force said, "If we abolish teacher certification standards, would it be logical to abolish the certification standards for the architectural, engineering, dental or medical professions?"

The Democrats recommended that the state:

■ "Develop a master teacher incentive program." A master teacher serves as mentor to new teachers.

■ "Develop an assessment mechanism that would test a person's actual capacity to teach and find out if that person should be admitted into a teacher certification program."

■ "Lengthen the teacher preparation and certification to five years, including a classroom internship and field residency."

Democrats didn't call for an end to charter academies and "choice" options but said they should be considered experimental and evaluated before hundreds of charters are granted.

The Agee report relied heavily on public hearing testimony and experts' comments, including a Harvard University research report that says schools of choice fail to reach the poorest families. "It is unlikely that choice will do anything other than simply move achievers around from one school to another," said the Harvard study.

And if public money flowed to private schools under the charter system, the private schools would have to become publicly accountable and be saddled with new costs such as special education, building maintenance, administrative and safety costs.

A major bone of contention is the Teacher Tenure Act, adopted in 1937. Some Republicans say it protects bad teachers, is costly to administer and should be repealed.

The Agee task force, however, argued that "the answer may be to put more money into professional development for teachers and administrators."

It argued against repealing the tenure law for the same reasons the law was adopted: to prohibit firing for political reasons, for non-residence, to make places for friends and relatives of school board members, and to get rid of senior teachers and hire new ones at lower pay.

One theme running through the Agee report was open government. Agee's group held public hearings while Engler and State Board president Clark Durant worked in secret. Agee called for a public hearing in the House Oversight and Ethics Committee on a Democratic resolution to establish a public commission on school governance.

Other panel members were Reps. David Anthony of Escanaba, Deborah Cherry of Burton, Lingg Brewer of Holt, Sharon Gire of Clinton Township, Mary Schroer of Ann Arbor and Martha Scott of Highland Park.

Belle Isle walkathon set

Sept. 10 is date for walkathon

The Belle Isle Nature Center will be the site of the 11th annual 10K walkathon to benefit the Michigan Anti-Cruelty Society on Sunday, Sept. 10.

Ask your friends, neighbors, coworkers and relatives to sponsor you by pledging a set amount per kilometer.

Participants will come down to Belle Isle's nature center on the east end of the island at 9:30 a.m. with pledge sheets. The walk will begin at 10 a.m. rain or shine.

Breakfast will be provided during registration and a vegetarian lunch will be served after the walk at the nature center. Refreshments will be available at checkpoints.

The course is once around the island and is 6.5 miles, or 10 kilometers.

Dogs are welcome but must be on a leash at all times.

After the walk, you can enjoy a fun-filled afternoon at the nature center. There will be a raffle, prizes and a free T-shirt will be awarded for most pledges.

For more information, call (313) 891-7188, or call in a pledge to the shelter at (313) 891-7188.

such as the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the state Historical Commission and agencies on fisheries and wildlife, will review the draft and comment, Richardson said.

The environmental assessment also prompted the cancellation of meetings between township staff and residents organized to plan landscaping for the extension.

"We don't have any landscaping money," said Tom Casari, township engineer. The township's failed bond proposal in April would have included about $200,000 for landscaping. With voters' denial of the request, Supervisor Tom Yack told residents he would work with them to secure money for landscaping.

Hall said she now has the time to investigate the possibility of federal money to build a boulevard, as well as state urban forestry grant money, not to mention asking the township for help. She is also seeking help from the Canton Downtown Development Authority for a portion of the Morton Taylor extension close to Ford Road and in the DDA district.

Richardson said county staff plan to present the draft environmental assessment this fall. A public hearing will be scheduled so residents may offer comments or ask questions to a court reporter. "We are required to answer the questions or comments," he said.

The assessment and responses to comments and questions will be forwarded to the state for review. Hall urges residents to participate in the environmental assessment public hearing, as well as a public hearing that is to be scheduled by the DNR regarding wetlands in the area.

When Wayne County road administraters and staff unveiled Morton Taylor plans in April, they said costs met restrictions and plan to build a two-lane cross section for an estimated $1.2 million. A boulevard is expected to double the costs.

Wayne County road administrators say the Morton Taylor extension is part of the county roads master plan and a project that is needed to relieve traffic traveling onto Ford Road by way of Lilley and Sheldon roads.

"The weddings were in conjunction with WOMC-Radio 104. It is the second wedding of the century," Mierzejewski said. "Our first opportunity came last year. It rained so badly then that we thought we would try again this year."

The mass wedding involves 52 couples — just enough to equal 104 brides and grooms to equal the radio's frequency. Mierzejewski is hoping to outfit 104 couples next year. "I certainly would love to do this next year. I hope they will give us the opportunity."

Piccadilly Petal'er — including Mierzejewski, his wife, Linda, daughter-in-law Peggy, Betty Lavely and Kathy Evans, who attends Plymouth Canton High School — wanted to do something different with the bouquets.

"We wanted to go back in time to resemble that period of the Renaissance," Mierzejewski said.

His choices included Queen Anne's lace — found along I-275 — as well as wild wheat and gladioli. "They really looked sharp. They had multiple colors.

Each bouquet had 12-15 flowers each. It is costly. But the ramifications of getting our name out are worth it."

Volunteers wield brushes in Paint the Town project

Teamwork: A group of volunteers from Resurrection Catholic Church in Canton Township poses with the occupants of the house they painted. "The change is just awesome," said Tom Salapatek, Ford Motor Co. employee and vice chair of the Paint The Town organization. "It's amazing the differences in the way these homes look."

There is nothing quite like a fresh coat of paint to make things look new again. But when that fresh coat requires 9,500 gallons of paint, 12,000 rollers and brushes with more than 10,000 dedicated volunteers to push them, it sounds more like a town-sized job.

Last Saturday, not just one town but six reaped the benefits of the eighth annual one day painting blitz called, Paint The Town. By sundown nearly 350 homes in Detroit, Ecorse, Highland Park, Inkster, Pontiac and Warren were looking a whole lot brighter thanks to volunteers from throughout the metro area including hundreds from the western Wayne County suburbs.

"The change is just awesome," admitted Tom Salapatek, Ford Motor Co. employee and vice chair of the Paint The Town organization. "It's amazing the differences in the way these homes look."

Salapatek, a Canton Township resident, was also instrumental in organizing a painting team from Resurrection Catholic Church in Canton Township.

"Our focus of the organization is to improve the neighborhood. We know we can't do everything and there are other groups doing a lot of other things. We focus on what we can do," said Salapatek.

What they did was nothing short of amazing. Companies large and small, churches and organizations sent teams of 15 to 40 individuals to work on preselected homes for one day from 8 a.m. to around 5 p.m.

Among other areas, teams came from Ford Sheldon Road Plant in Plymouth Township, St Kenneth's Catholic Church in Plymouth Township and Isuzu Motors in Plymouth Township, Ford National Parts Center and United Parcel Service in Livonia, Resurrection Catholic Church in Canton Township and Compuware, Roney & Co., Formidable Group and Delta Environmental in Farmington Hills.

Companies like NBD, Ford Motor Co. and the Department of Social Services sent out from 25 to over 30 teams.

Teams also came from Standard Federal, Michcon, General

Senior concerns probed

Local senior citizens are invited to a special event this fall sponsored by four local legislators.

State Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, Jim Ryan, R-Redford, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton Township, are sponsoring the first Western Wayne County Senior Celebration Day. It will be held 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16, at Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft, Livonia. The program includes noted speakers, issues workshops, entertainment, and a consumer and health fair.

■ Michigan Secretary of State Candice Miller, and Esther Shapiro, director of Detroit's Consumer Affairs Department, are the honored guests. They will answer questions and talk one-on-one with residents.

Michigan Secretary of State Candice Miller, and Esther Shapiro, director of Detroit's Consumer Affairs Department, are the honored guests. They will answer questions and talk one-on-one with residents.

Whyman and Law have appointed three area residents to help organize a special fall event for senior citizens.

The lawmakers named Suzanne Keenan, senior coordinator at the Sumpter Senior Center, Ginnie Hauck, manager of Canton Place, and Dorothy Tilney, a Northville resident, to an eight-member advisory panel. They are working out the details for the first Western Wayne County Senior Celebration Day.

"Senior Celebration Day is an opportunity for area residents to voice their concerns among elected officials and gather information that can help improve their lives," Whyman said. "Suzanne, Ginnie and Dorothy are natural choices to serve on this advisory panel. They are in the trenches every day and know what's most important to seniors. I am pleased they accepted this role and look for them to have an immediate impact on the decision-making process."

Law said the three women have outstanding backgrounds and their expertise in the field of geriatrics makes them obvious choices for this committee.

"As a manager of a Canton senior housing complex, Ginnie will give us a unique perspective of the senior community and what changes are needed to improve their quality of life. Her skills as a manager and planner are a welcome addition to our team," Whyman said.

Hauck is a member of the Michigan Association of Homes and Services for the Aging, and the American Association for Homes for the Aged. She also is vice president of community development for the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Relative problem

Schools must change policy

There are too many relatives of Plymouth-Canton school district employees being hired and it's time for the school board to take the issue more seriously and change its hiring policy.

The policy governing the hiring of relatives states: The school administration must inform the board when an employee's relative is being hired, and no employee can't be supervised by a relative.

It's just too skimpy to handle what's been happening. A limit on the number of relatives employed by the district is needed.

As of last December, by the school administration's own figures, about 7 percent of the 126 certified staff hired since 1988-89, eight teachers and one administrator, were relatives of current employees. The schools don't even keep statistics for non-teaching staff members because of high turnover.

That percentage is probably closer to 10 percent these days with the recent hiring of more relatives. Last week, the school board hired eight teachers and two administrators, two of whom have relatives working in the school district.

One is the new athletic director, Brian Wolcott, who has a brother-in-law teaching in the district, and a Spanish teacher whose mother is a paraprofessional with the district.

There would have been a third relative hired had the school board not balked. However, it wasn't that the job candidate was related to an employee that caused the board to delay the hiring, it was a question about the job description.

The job is that of a network manager who would be classified as a school administrator and be paid $41,700 to help manage the district's computers.

Board member Mark Horvath questioned the hiring because the district didn't have a detailed job description, but said nothing about the fact that the woman is the wife of the assistant head of maintenance at an elementary school.

While none of these recent appointments presents any serious problems for the administration of the schools, it does beg the nagging question: Do you have to be related to someone in the district to get a job?

That perception has a chilling effect on other job applicants, and opens the school board and administration to charges of nepotism.

Other governmental units are starting to wake up to the dangers of hiring too many relatives. Canton Township has a policy of hiring a limited number, contending that "it is conducive to the good morale of our employees and is therefore better for the township when it cannot be charged that a person was hired, promoted or in any way favored because of a relative employed by the township."

It's time for the Plymouth-Canton schools to heed the same wake-up call and adopt a similar policy.

Walk to aid Alzheimer's patients

It slowly develops. And it saps the mind before turning deadly. Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, degenerative disorder that attacks brain cells and triggers impaired memory, thinking and behavior. There's no known cause, diagnostic test or cure.

About 4 million Americans, 70,000 in the Detroit area, suffer from the organic disease. It kills 100,000 people each year. That makes it the fourth leading cause of death among adults — after heart disease, cancer and stroke. One in four families is affected — a jolting ratio.

We proudly join the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association-Detroit Area Chapter and its 400 volunteers in urging you to join the war against this relentless killer.

You can begin to do battle this Saturday, Aug. 26, by taking part in the fourth annual Memory Walk at the Detroit Zoo, 10 Mile and Woodward, Royal Oak. Signup starts at 8:30 a.m., warmup at 9:15 and the walk at 9:45, rain or shine. Routes cover two or four miles. Walking clubs and corporate teams are welcome. The entry fee: $25 in pledges or as a contribution. There's also a walk-registration and zoo admittance fee of $5. For details, call the Memory Walk Hotline: (810) 557-8277.

Walk proceeds will benefit research and support programs for Alzheimer's victims as well as their families and caregivers.

Most victims are over 65 but Alzheimer's, once called senility, can strike in the 40s and 50s. It knows no social or economic bounds. It affects men and women almost equally. The longer we live, the greater the chance we'll become a victim.

Its impact on a family's emotional and financial state can be enormous.

Typically, the disease does its dirty work over a two- to 10-year period. But the time span can stretch to 20 years. Eventually, round-the-clock care is needed for even basic personal needs.

Alzheimer's, first described by Dr. Alois Alzheimer in 1907, leaves staggering yearly costs in its wake. The annual cost of diagnosis, treatment, nursing home care, at-home care and lost wages tops $80 billion, according to estimates.

Since the 1970s, scientists groping for clues about Alzheimer's have focused on microscopic changes in the brains of victims. More doctors now know the disease when they see it and how to treat some less-serious symptoms. It's hoped that recent discoveries will delay onset of the disease, or at least stop it from progressing.

From humble beginnings 13 years ago, the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association today reaches out via programming to 30,000 people each year in Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and St. Clair counties. The agency strives to elevate public awareness so that diagnosis, treatment and outreach can start sooner — and fear can be dispatched more quickly.

Eighty-five percent of agency revenue goes to programs and services; just 15 percent goes to administration and fund-raising. Most services are free of charge or by ability to pay.

We found the ADRDA's mission statement especially moving: "As with any disease, lack of understanding of Alzheimer's breeds fear and denial in its victims, their families and the general public. Through the programs and services provided through the Alzheimer's Association, we can develop recognition and hope, and provide Alzheimer's victims and their families with the education they need and the resources they deserve."

So "Walk with the Animals" this Saturday — or make a contribution anyway. Memory is too precious a thing to lose.

People ignored

Our lawmakers have once again ignored the wishes of the people and have refused to introduce a bill that would have put the death penalty on the November ballot.

Are the Michigan lawmakers working in a sandbox with their heads buried in the sand?

I'm sorry, but contrary to popular belief, serious crime is rampant, and on the rise. What makes an issue a priority? It seems that Lansing is totally oblivious to what is going on around us.

Just look at the tragedy in Milford for example. Two children were raped and then stabbed to death. Should I say more?

Lansing better pull their heads out of the sand and listen to the wishes of the people. These two killers who confessed to the double murder will probably get life, 20 years, thanks to our ineffective judicial system. The only person who seems to really know what is going on is State Rep. Chuck Perricone. One man who had the courage to introduce a bill that would have put the death penalty up for a vote on the November ballot.

We have no choice in the matter. Put the question on the November ballot and let the people decide.

John J. Wohletz, Canton

No delay

I am writing to call to your attention an apparent misunderstanding in Tim Richard's article, "Court case is 'ticking bomb" for schools," which appeared in The Observer on June 12.

The last paragraph of that article might be read to imply that the Court delayed release of its decision in Musselman vs. Governor for almost six months after the majority opinion was drafted:

Footnote: Boyle drafted her opinion Nov. 7, six days after the high court heard oral arguments. But the majority decision wasn't announced until April 25.

It seems very likely that Mr. Richard's reference to the Nov. 7, date derives from the notation "7/Nov. 1994-PJB," found in the upper right hand corner of each page of the Court's opinion. This notation, however, does not reflect the date the opinion was drafted but, rather, the calendar number of the case. Justice Riley's opinion also contains a similar notation, "7/Nov. 1994-DCR," in the upper right hand corner of each page of her opinion. As noted on the cover of the slip opinion, Musselman was the seventh case on the Court's Nov. 1994 case call.

I request that you call this information to the attention of your readers.

Endangered

The House reversed a major victory for environmentalists and passed a package of measures limiting the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to enforce air and water quality standards.

It would curb authority to implement guides relating to emissions from oil refineries and incinerators, protection of wetlands and licensing of pesticides, as well as other things.

We will be losers because we rely on government to protect us from unseen water and air hazards. This is alarming legislation.

In addition, the House has passed legislation, HR961, which endangers the tremendous progress of the Clean Water Act of 1972. Streams, oceans and air should be saved from pollution.

That took courage

I'm writing to respond to Phil Power's column in the Thursday, July 20, edition of the Observer. I just wanted to thank him for an extremely fine editorial regarding Vietnam, and just to say I agree with him 100 percent.

It was very well written. Thank you for having the courage to say it.

POINTS OF VIEW

State school board selling out education

Shop 'til you drop!" are the "buy" words for local businesses which vie for your children's back to school needs. But if another entrepreneur, the State Board of Education, gets its way, you will need to add another costly item to your shopping list — the choice of your child's school.

The Aug. 10 editorial, "State's target: Public schools," was definitely on the mark in explaining the carefully orchestrated steps being taken by the state board to discredit, disrupt, and eventually discard our current public schools, and replace them with their market place versions, known as charter schools or public academies.

In another column, Phil Power rightly asserted (when speaking of the school board) — "I calls 'em like I sees 'em! This is nothing less than a bunch of hard right ideologues intent on revolutionizing the school system in Michigan and, in the process, willing to risk its destruction."

At the standing room only state board meeting on Aug. 16, I listened to the simplistic yet cumbersome proposals being voiced by the majority of this board.

The ideologues, who seem to view themselves as the Power Rangers of Education, feel their revolutionary tenets will "morph" traditional public schools into the Golden Apples of Learning.

Every parent and child could merely pick from the menu — which is high in caloric rhetoric, but low in core sustenance. In the meantime, we are still hungry for meaningful school reform, but the board has delivered junk food for thought.

GUEST COLUMNIST

MARTHA TRAFFORD

It was disheartening for many of us in the audience to realize that these individuals have reneged on their constitutional duty to provide "leadership and general supervision over all public education." With advocates like them, public education needs no enemies.

Although board members listened politely to citizen input for one hour, it was evident there would be no consideration of revising the 56-page prepared document entitled, "Michigan Public School Governance." The drafted proposals have been forwarded to our state senators and representatives for consideration and a vote.

During the meeting, networking between charter school advocates, Christian Right groups, home-schooler proponents, Family Forum and teach Michigan members, and certain board members was much in evidence.

The people of this state are not dealing with an open minded, nor well-informed school board. They sent former superintendent Robert Schiller pacing with a big bucks buyout ($200,000) because his views did not line up with the majority of the board. If they're not buying us out, they're selling us out.

Now, they are considering hiring former Milwaukee Superintendent, Howard Fuller. Fuller, who tendered his resignation in April after being at odds with other Milwaukee Board members, due to his conservative policies, seems to be made to order for the Michigan School Board.

Addressing the board, he was quick to endorse charter schools and public academies, and to bash existing public schools. If he is hired, Fuller will become yet another ideologue on the board, posing as an advocate of public education.

Teacher as board member issue has pros, cons

Question: As a citizen who has not attended school board meetings, I recently got a real shock at the meeting I did attend. One of our board of education members is a school teacher. How can a school teacher be on a board of education which makes decisions about teacher salaries and fringe benefits? Isn't this like letting the fox into the chicken house? Is this legal?

Answer: In the state of Michigan a teacher can serve on a school board but not in the district in which he or she teaches.

And, yes, there are conflicting opinions regarding teachers on a school board even if they are not on the board in the district in which they teach.

Let's look at it historically.

In 1965, when the law was passed allowing teacher negotiations, electing teacher activists to board positions was high on the agenda of some local teacher unions. I was there as a local Michigan Education Association president and viewed those educators promoting teachers for board positions as a mixed bag. Some of these activists were legalists, defined, of course, as those who demanded strict adherence to a code or law. Some were angry about the low wages and working conditions in the '60s (which was real), while most teachers were too busy teaching kids to concern themselves.

Indeed, the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers once had a "citizenship committee" to encourage teachers to run for school board positions. Early on, however, they concluded that they gained little by actively sponsoring teachers for local school board positions.

The NEA and AFT's initial position backfired. Many school board members and citizens weren't warmly receptive to NEA-sponsored board members who were viewed as NEA puppets. In extreme cases, some boards made them a non-entity by voting down any issue that smelled as NEA endorsed. But that's history.

It's a totally different attitude today. Today the two major teacher organizations stay away from this issue. Dick Vander Woude, a political education specialist with the NEA says, "We do encourage teachers to run, but no more than we encourage any other citizen who understands the issues and is committed to the changes we believe are valid."

One AFT official said, "You are better off with a local lawyer, minister or active parent who is supportive of your concerns."

DOC DOYLE

Twenty years ago, there was a tendency among many union leaders to assume that getting teachers on boards of education was the better choice. But as teachers became more politically sophisticated, it was found that a teacher on the board wasn't going to behave any differently than any other person. It was not unusual to find teachers who believed that tenure should be tightened up to phase out a few of their peers.

Some districts found a teacher on the board can be an asset. One example was a teacher in Ferry, N.Y., named Arthur Brady, who had a long and active record in the state teacher's union. The Ferry teacher's union did not endorse Brady as a board member. They endorsed two non-teachers. They had heard some horror stories about teachers on boards being harder on teachers than the non-teachers.

Brady ran and was elected to the Ferry board. Ferry schools superintendent Raymond Gerson admitted to having a bias against teachers, including Brady, serving as board members and didn't like the idea at all. However, the superintendent stated after a period of time, "Arthur turned out to be the exception who disproved my generalization. I never felt he was acting as a special interest and I don't think the teachers (union) felt any closer to Arthur than to any other board member."

In his two terms on the board, Brady became very respected. He said, "My opinion was sought and respected by other board members because I had the perspective of a teacher."

Not all agree. U.S. Rep. Marge Roukema, R-New Jersey, a former teacher and school board member says, "I think there is an inherent conflict, particularly when much of what the school board deals with is the terms and conditions of employment."

Today, most quality school districts actively involve teachers in the decision-making process. Many principals use staff councils, central office instructional leaders and know how important it is to involve teachers in planning. There are parent advisory committees, many with teachers on the panel. It is a different ball game today than in the good old days of top-down management. Slower and more painful at times, but as it should be.

In my philosophy, I believe the more teachers and principals are involved in the decision-making process, the more they have at-stake to see that the results are successful. Conversely, the less involved they are, the less they could care.

A teacher on the board can be an asset or an inhibiting factor. But that depends on the attitude the teacher takes into the position. They will be listened to and can make a significant contribution.

If a radical out to destroy the system is elected, he or she will be silently crushed like an ant by the votes of a board that has insight into the big picture. That's the beauty and value of an elected and responsible board of education.

Ameritech takes profits without giving service

Q. Say, your suburban newspapers must be in fat city, with all the ads you're picking up from the Detroit newspaper strike.

print the ad to make money.

Q. Doesn't Ameritech have to perform a service to make money?

A. Nope. If you don't want your name printed in the telephone directory, Ameritech calls it "Non-Listed Service" and charges you $1 a month. If you don't want to be listed and don't want your number given out by Directory Assistance, Ameritech charges you $1.50 a month. That's $36 a year.

Q. That's a great deal for Ameritech. One-third of us in the suburbs have our names unlisted.

A. At least. As our populations grow, the telephone directory gets thinner.

When I went the unlisted route, my incoming calls dropped 60 percent, cutting down on uninvited dinner-hour hustlers calling to sell something or solicit money. But, I can't fathom how Ameritech dares to soak me $36 a year for that "service."

Q. Of course, you could get Caller ID and be able to learn the number of whoever's calling you, couldn't you?

A. Sure, at Ameritech's price. And you can also get Caller ID with Name, which displays the name of the caller, at Ameritech's price. No matter how hard you try to stop incoming junk calls, Ameritech makes money.

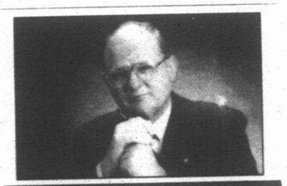
Q. Say, doesn't Ameritech want to get into cable TV, too? That sounds kind of ominous, given their high-pressure tactics and ability to charge you for a non-service service.

A. You notice it doesn't call itself a "telephone company" any more. Ameritech was a heavy lobbyist in Congress for HR 1555, the bill that deregulates cable TV.

Their latest press release says, "Ameritech, one of the world's largest full-service communications companies, provides a wide array of local phone, data and video services in the U.S. Midwest."

Q. Makes me suspicious. If they charge you for not printing your name in the phone book, and if they get into cable TV, will they charge you for not sending a premium channel into your home?

A. I share your suspicions.



TIM RICHARD

Q. But Ameritech propagandists say they favor competition. One of their ads says, "we'd like to point out who asked for competition in the local phone market."

A. Well, let's see what MCI, a potential local phone market competitor, has to say. MCI accuses Ameritech "of trying to maintain its monopoly and stifle competition that will benefit consumers.

"Ameritech last week asked the Michigan Public Service Commission for an extra year's delay before it provides customers equal access to the increasingly important 'short haul long distance' calls, those that originate and terminate within an area code . . .

"The PSC has ruled four times that there will be 'equal access' competition starting Jan. 1, 1996. Despite those rulings, Ameritech continues to block competition and is asking for a delay of equal access until Jan. 1, 1997."

Q. Ameritech has to be making a ton of money. What's it doing with all that cash — cutting our rates?

A. Revenues in 1994 were a record $12.6 billion. It's investing heavily overseas. I quote from Ameritech's own PR release, so their high-pressure execs can't ask for equal space:

"AMERITECH'S INTERNATIONAL INVESTMENTS:

■ "China: In August 1995 Ameritech formed a 25-year joint venture with Chinacom . . . Ameritech has an 80 percent stake . . .

■ "New Zealand . . . 24.8 percent of Telecom Corp." for which it paid nearly $600 million and is "now worth more than twice that."

■ "Hungary: Ameritech invested $437.5 million for a 15 percent interest in MATAV, the Hungarian phone company . . ."

Motors, EDS, Henry Ford Health Systems, Hudsons/Mervyns/Target, IBM, Comerica, Home Depot, State Farm, Best Buy, Kmart, First Federal and the United Auto Workers.

The primary focus was to put a fresh coat of paint on the exterior of the home but, according to Salapatek, "So many people go the extra mile. We had a number of teams that rebuilt porches this year. I couldn't begin to tell you how many, but a lot."

Some teams also replaced windows and built wheel chair ramps.

One recipient of services had such poor plumbing they were getting water to the upstairs by running a hose in through a window. A team from Home Depot went in and repaired all the plumbing. Three schools in need were also painted this year.

Salapatek added, "We cleaned up three parks this year and we boarded up about 30 abandoned homes. Every now and then we go overboard and some people say, 'My God, it's going into Save The World. But, no, we draw the line. We really do. We try and make sure we keep within our focus. Our focus is to improve the neighborhood, make it better."

Paint The Town was started in 1988 by Mary Kennedy as a promise to her grandmother to help take care of people in need. She has honored that promise every year since and watched the organization grow each year in the number of residences refurbished and the number of volunteers donating their time and talents.

Neighborhoods are first qualified according to need. Then the physical condition of the individual homes, the homeowner's age, income and/or any disability are taken into consideration.

According to Salapatek, over half the people assisted in this year's blitz were very elderly, many in their eighties and nineties.

"Everything that goes on here is free," explained Salapatek.

"The homeowner pays nothing. Everything we get is donated; paint, brushes, rollers, everything to do with painting is donated. Dutch Boy donates about $40,000 in paint each year."

While most of the work is completed in the one day marathon, if anything remains unfinished, individual teams make a commitment to return and complete the project.

For the first time, Paint The Town has implemented a community education program this year as an ongoing commitment to the neighborhoods. Classes were offered June through August and were well attended.

"It has gone over very well," said Salapatek. "Teaching people things like home safety, home maintenance, . . . building leaders in the community so that they can continue to move on and improve their neighborhood. It's not just a one shot deal."

While the entire project is strictly volunteer, not even the board of directors or the committee chairpersons receive any monetary compensation. According to Salapatek, the reward of seeing the homeowners response to their sparkling home is the best payment of all.

"One woman last year said she wished she had octopus arms so she could hug each and every person," said Salapatek.

There is another very valuable outcome to the whole project. Salapatek explained, "This is also a teaching tool. There are classes to teach people to read, write, talk, improve their skills. How do you teach people to care? This teaches people to care."

Summer's end comes too soon

By the time these words are inked on the newspaper page hundreds of children, including my own, will have less than a week left of summer vacation. And this makes me very sad. Indeed, if I were a singer, I'd be singing the blues. If I were a ballerina, I'd be dancing "The Swan." And if I were a balloon, I'd be deflating.

Where did the summer go? One minute the children are cleaning out their lockers and having the first of the summer's backyard sleepovers in the tent and the next thing you know they're having the last of the backyard sleepovers.

That's what they're doing right now. They're out in the tent in our backyard as I write these words. They're savoring summer's last breaths. Night has fallen on this late August Monday, and the tenters are happily settled in with flashlights, pillows, sleeping bags, Pogs and full stomachs.

I know they have full stomachs because they just now finished up the big batch of popcorn I made for them. I made it the old-fashioned way

Group helps young and widowed cope with their losses

When she was widowed at 33, Cathy Clough realized there was no one her age who could relate to her experience. It was a realization that prompted her to form "Starting Over," a grief support group for men and women.

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

The death of a spouse is a devastating experience at any age. But for those who haven't reached retirement it can be especially rough.

Cathy Clough of Plymouth can relate to that. When her 52-year-old husband, dentist Don Nafe, died of cancer when she was 33 she felt she didn't have anyone to turn to. She felt out of place when she went out with her "couple" friends. There really wasn't anyone her age who could relate to her experience.

That's why Clough, now director of bereavement services at Arbor Hospice in Ann Arbor, formed (in August 1987) "Starting Over," a support group for men and women younger than 45 who have lost their spouse, fiance or fiancee to death.

"Issues are very different between older widowed people and younger widowed people," Clough said. "I don't mean to say it's easier for older ones. It's just very different. Chances are they might have a little more income. Maybe there was a retirement fund or something like that. They might have more freedom to travel and to do things.

"They already have people, in many cases, in their own age groups who have been widowed so they have kind of a ready-made support system. A younger widowed person usually doesn't know anybody who's been widowed."

It only took until the end of the first meeting for Clough to realize the necessity of her group.

"After almost three hours of nonstop talk, because none of them had met another younger widowed person before that night, I finally sent them on their way," she said. "I said we'd meet again in two weeks and I remember hearing them an hour later still out in my driveway talking."

The group, which started out with 10 women, soon expanded to

— on the stove, in a pan, with oil. And I melted butter and poured it all over the top. And I put salt on, too. Then I tossed it all in the air to mix it up. It's certainly messier and more time consuming than microwave popcorn, but summer's like that. Messier and slower. And better.

Now, I know the backyard campers wanted to eat this messy, slow batch of popcorn outside in the tent. But I wouldn't let them. That's because critters lurk and skulk about in the creek woods.

I poked my head inside the tent awhile ago and explained this. I explained the dangers of eating popcorn in the tent near a creek by the woods. "They're out there," I told them. "I hear them and smell them in the dark all the time — the skunks, the raccoons and other furry, sniffy, hungry things. Their sharp little noses smell food, and they trundle out of the woods and waddle right up. And just how would that be," I asked the would-be-tent-snackers, "if the sniffy things came right up to this tent and sniffed and scratched around?" The bigger campers said, "Cool." The younger ones ran in the house.

And somehow they all, big and little, wound up eating popcorn in the family room tonight.

And now they're all back outside again, in the tent, safely settled in with no scraps of food about to tempt skunks. And I suppose they're all in their sleeping bags with their heads on their pillows and someone is telling a story. And as most tent stories go, it's probably a scary one. And this summer night is just right for a scary tent story. The stars and moon can't be seen tonight because of the thick clouds. And it's sticky, warm and humid. The heat lightning flashing above the clouds without making a sound is no doubt making weird shadows inside the tent. And the crickets and frogs are making scary wild noises out there.

■ 'They're out there," I told them. "I hear them and smell them in the dark all the time — the skunks, the raccoons and other furry, sniffy, hungry things.'

Will they make it the whole night out there? Oh, sure; of course. They don't want to cut this last summer sleep-over short. Not for skunks or lightning or frogs. They don't want to cut it short any more than I want to cut short summer itself.

The way I see it, summer doesn't end; it crashes to a stop. It travels down the road, free and easy, the wind blowing in its hair. And then out of nowhere a brick wall appears, looking very much like the side of a school building and CRASH, summer's over. It's done. It's over with.

And the days from that moment on, are forced. They're forced to begin and end early. And there'll be shouting in houses across the land while school children poke along not tying shoes and brushing hair fast enough. And the bell will ring and attendance will be taken. And so on. And the days will not only be forced to begin early, but end early. The homework assignments and practices and projects and Catechism classes will gobble up the night. And, of course, bedtime will be forced.

Summer is so different. So breezy, easy and unruffled. There are no bells in the summer. Feet are bare in the summer, and hair is messy in the summer. And it's not assignments or projects that gobble up the night but rather sleep-overs in the tent in the backyard where still you learn things. You learn about popcorn eating, sharp-nosed critters and soundless heat lightning.

And now with less than a week before summer officially crashes to a stop, I'm singing the blues and feeling like a leaky balloon. I'm going to miss summer — the tent, the Popsicles, the cicadas, the humidity, the slow popcorn. All those things are forced out of our days for quite a spell now. And it's hard giving them up.

And what's hardest of all, the most painful part about summer's end, is giving up the children to the classroom.

Involve kids in packing nutrition into brown bag lunches

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

■ 'You have to get them to participate, find out what they like to eat, not something a mother or a dietician would like.'
Linda DeVore

When the first school bell rings next week, Linda DeVore, a registered dietitian, will rest assured, knowing her daughter's brown bag lunch of a peanut butter sandwich, low-fat brownies, pretzels, juice and fresh strawberries will be eaten.

It also will be nutritious.

How many parents can say the same?

DeVore, who is not only a nutritionist at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia but also a mother of two, says the key is to get the kids involved.

When she thinks about stocking the cupboard with foods sure to put a nutritious punch in a lunch, she takes into account her daughters' likes and dislikes. She advises other parents to do the same.

Find out what your kids like, then investigate the fat and protein content. Federal dietary guidelines advise a daily fat intake averaging 30 percent or less of total calories and less than 10 percent of saturated fat. That's a maximum of 73 grams of fat with only 24 of those coming from saturated fat, for the 2,200 total calories recommended daily for children.

"It's tough with kids because if they don't like it, they trade it or throw it out," she said. "You have to get them to participate, find out what they like to eat, not something a mother or a dietitian would like. It has to be satisfying so that at 2 or 3 o'clock they're not at the candy machine."

Of course, DeVore would like for them to make their sandwiches on whole wheat bread. Instead, they use enriched white bread. Teresa, 12, a student at Frost Middle School in Livonia, loves peanut butter, so DeVore provides plenty of the low-fat kind. Peanut butter can be a sensible part of a meal, according to DeVore, and supplying Teresa with her favorite food ensures it won't end up in the trash.

"I like anything that tastes good," Teresa said, "but mostly I take peanut butter sandwiches every day for lunch."

Christel, 15, a student at Livonia Churchill High School, opts for ham with a little mustard and lettuce on her sandwiches. Since salami, Christel's favorite filling, is loaded with fat, DeVore makes sure it's a once-in-a-while food.

For variety, instead of bread, DeVore suggests stuffing a pita with sandwich fixings.

"A good lunch has to have enough protein and calories with some type of Vitamin C and calcium, because it's supposed to be one-third of their whole day's intake," she said.

To accompany a sandwich, DeVore recommends slipping in fresh fruit because it's a good source of vitamins A and C, as well as fiber. And most fruit is low fat. Sliced apple or a banana goes a long way toward satisfying most kids.

DeVore offered red grapes and strawberries at a recent lunch because kids, like everybody else, enjoy eating something neat. With only 15 minutes for lunch, the less mess, the better. In fact, the reason Christel and Teresa pack a lunch most days is because it's quicker to eat than a hot lunch. There's no standing in line or wasting time looking for a place to sit.

DeVore is far from happy with the amount of time alotted for school lunches. The practice of gobbling food in a matter of minutes establishes a bad habit evident later in life, she said.

"A lot of people I see as adults are fast eaters," she said. "They eat so quickly the brain doesn't even process the fact they've eaten. This usually leads to overeating. I think nutrition is important and the amount of time for it should be a few minutes longer."

In addition to fresh fruit, DeVore includes pretzels, chips, low-fat brownies, or graham crackers. As a working mom with little free time, packaged brownies mixed in a single bowl and popped in the oven hit the sweet spot. DeVore substitutes a half cup of applesauce for the half-cup of oil to keep them low in fat.

"For a beverage, Hershey's Chocolate Low-Fat Milk is 4½ grams of fat, but you're getting 8 grams of protein, so it balances out," she said. "If it's juice, make sure it's made with 100 percent juice."

On those days Teresa and Christel don't pack lunches, is Devore concerned about the nutritional value in the hot lunches schools serve? She would like to see these lunches include increased amounts of protein, less fat and more vegetables.

She also suggests schools take a look at adding skim milk to the menu. Teresa occasionally enjoys the pizza her school offers but blots it first with a napkin to remove as much greasy fat as possible.

"The schools are doing better but are getting into more highly processed foods," DeVore said. "Give the students more time for lunch and give them more vegetables."

include men. It grew so large that Clough's home could no longer accommodate "Starting Over," so they moved into First United Methodist Church in Plymouth where the group meets at 7 p.m. the first and third Tuesday of every month. About 30-60 people attend the twice monthly meetings.

Suddenly widowed

Jo-Ann Schmidt of Livonia is one of them. Her 37-year-old husband Corrie was shot to death at 6:30 a.m. March 6, 1994, during a robbery at the Bagel Factory store they owned near 12 Mile and Telegraph roads in Southfield. No arrests have been made in the case.

Upon hearing of Corrie's death, a friend of Schmidt's family gave her a pamphlet about "Starting Over," but she put it away — a common reaction according to Clough.

Her head was spinning. Besides dealing with her own grief, she had to help her three children — Kelsey, 9, Tyler, 5, and Jacqueline, 2— deal with the death of their father. She also had to reopen the Bagel Factory and deal with the police and media circus. Four months later, after the dust settled, she realized she needed someone to talk to.

"In July I just really needed to talk about it and there wasn't anybody to talk to; it makes people uncomfortable. They want to think that you're just doing great and moved on," said Schmidt who eventually sold the Bagel Factory.

The first couple of nights she attended "Starting Over," she admits, were overwhelming.

"Everyone goes around and tells why they're there. You cry for everybody else's stories. There's a lot of sad stories," the soft-spoken Schmidt said.

Bryan Jinnett, whose wife Pamela died a year ago of an asthma attack, agreed with Schmidt.

"The drive home was one of the most horrible experiences I've ever been through, (but) by the third meeting, I was very much looking forward to talking (about it)," said Jinnett, who works at Johnson Controls in Plymouth. "It makes a huge difference to have a group of people that you can talk to that's very accepting of whatever's said."

"Starting Over" offers a variety of services for young widows and widowers, including large and small group discussions, extensive children's grief program, individual counseling referrals, social workers and psychologists, ministers, a resource library, speakers and a listening line.

Need to talk

An important part of grief, Clough said, is to talk about your feelings with someone who understands. Feelings of intense grief and loneliness, the reactions of friends and family, depression on anniversaries and holidays and financial issues can be nerve-racking at times.

When Clough was grieving, she found hanging out with her "couple" friends so stressful that she sought out new acquaintances.

"You can still remain friends, but you do grow apart because you're not like them anymore; you're not a part of a couple," said Clough who has since remarried. "For me, I remember early on clinging to my 'couple' friends because they were my support. After a period of time, I needed to get away from them because I felt like a fifth wheel. I knew I had to search out single friends that were available on weekends."

Like many widows and widowers, Schmidt has a hard time accepting that she's single.

"You still think of yourself as married," she said. "I never thought I'd be single at 35. It takes a long time after a death (to come to grips with that). It's a really strange position to be in."

But being with her peers at "Starting Over" is easing her anxiety: "It's helped being with people who understand what you're talking about and what you're going through, and you're not crazy. It helps seeing people who are much farther along than you. It gives you hope that you'll be there one day."

"Starting Over" meets the first and third Tuesdays of each month at First United Methodist Church, 45201 North Territorial Road, just west of Sheldon Road, Plymouth. For more information, call Arbor Hospice at (313) 677-0500.

Speaker Series changes

New Beginnings, a grief support group that meets year-round at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia, will have a new format for its Speaker Series when it begins Thursday, Sept. 7.

In place of offering classes on six consecutive Thursdays, the Speaker Series now will feature a speaker the first Thursday of the month followed by a support group on the other days.

The program is for people suffering as the result of the death of a loved one. It recognizes that people grieve differently, but have a similar need for the support of each other.

New Beginnings has been offered at St. Matthew's for more than 11 years, and according to organizers, when participants share their stories, "they find they are not alone in their feelings and that others share the same experiences."

"That is why sharing and recalling memories is an important part of getting well," they said. "It's the beginning of the road back . . . a new beginning."

The Speaker Series will be 7-9 p.m. Thursdays, with a discussion of "The Grief Process" by Rev. Chuck Sonquist starting off the series on Sept. 7. Other topics will be "Personalizing the Process" with Rev. Kearney Kirkby on Oct. 5, "Managing Memories" with Warren Gilbert on Nov. 2, "Dreams and Deeper Aspects of Grief" with Sonquist on Dec. 7, "The Physical Effects of Grief" with Dr. Joy MacDonald on Jan. 4 and "Help for the Family in Grief" with Sue Ann Daniel on Feb. 1.

There are no fees. Free resources are available and related books can be purchased at cost. Participants can attend any or all sessions as they feel a need.

For more information about New Beginnings, call the church office at (313) 422-6038, Marilyn Wilkinson at (810) 380-7903 or Rosemary Kline at (313) 462-6038.

St. Matthew's United Methodist Church is at 30900 W. Six Mile Road, Livonia.

Introspective writer has serious, thoughtful nature

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,
I can't believe that I'm finally doing this. I have wanted to write to you for so long and ask you what your thoughts are concerning my penmanship.
I am a 60-plus-year-old, left-handed lady who is very curious on what you'll tell me.
C.K., Livonia

This large, left-slanted handwriting tells me we are analyzing an introspective woman with a serious, thoughtful nature. Her head usually comes into play before her feelings. An element of caution impedes impulsive behavior.

She would probably make a good poker player, providing her interests lean in that direction. She seldom shows at first glance what she is thinking or feeling. Her true feelings or desires rarely show.

Before committing herself, she tends to size things up. She is a tad careful with respect to both personal possessions and commitments.

It seems quite possible our writer has been hurt in the past and is on guard against being hurt again. A little regret may surface when she views her life in retrospect.

In trying to conceal personal problems, she is often on guard. And may be a tad suspicious concerning the intentions of others. She also seems to be trying to exercise control over some area of her life.

In interpersonal relationships, she may be a tad reserved. She needs her space and doesn't wish to be crowded. She also can be quite social and stimulating in the company of friends.

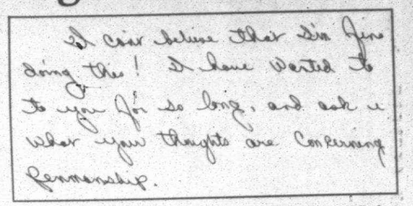
Our writer has a keen interest in the impression she makes on others. She is style conscious and enjoys attention from them.

Strong female influence from the past is found in this handwriting. The values of her mother left an impression that has lasted.

She rather enjoys having her own way. She can be a little dominant as she tries to take command in a relationship.

Aspirations are high. Although she is sometimes a tad unsure about starting out on a new project, she will work long and assiduously to make it happen. A spirit of adventure surfaces occasionally. She also seeks diversion in her daily routine.

Our writer enjoys taking care of family and loved ones. However, she may have a little difficulty accepting the same treatment from others.



If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

Crafters gather at historical village

SPECIAL WRITER

Imagine walking through the streets of a village in the 1850s. Now imagine yourself at the American Craft Show 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26-27 in Greenmead Historical Village, 20501 Newburgh at Eight Mile Road in Livonia.

White clapboard houses, barns and an old-time general store set the scene for the Americana, a truly fun-filled family affair. Bring the kids and let them take part in the sand art activities with Susan Fryz of Dearborn.

Eight of the buildings in the village, including the Hill House, will be open to the public for tours 1-4 p.m. Admission is a bargain at $2 per car. Proceeds go toward Judge Alexander Blue's House, still in need of $600,000 in restoration work.

Marianne Akers' Old World Santas fit right into this historical setting. She is one of more than 80 crafters offering country, wood, floral, textiles, folk art, lawn ornaments, Christmas items, and geese dressed in handmade outfits. As you step into Akers' Livonia home, an army of goblins greets you. Akers creates soft sculpture little people dressed as ghosts and witches as well as Santas, and angels. Santas wearing sweats sporting the logos of Michigan State, University of Michigan , and Notre Dame sit cross-legged on the couch.

Marianne's world is a land of whimsy where all of your dreams come true. But it wasn't always so. Five years ago she went through a devastating divorce. Then she discovered from doctors she had breast cancer. Forced to leave her job, Akers began crafting in order to be able to work from home while caring for her son. Now her life is noticeably brighter. Three-dimensional soft sculpture characters bring happiness and smiles from all who visit here.

Army of Goblins: I hope this bunch of witches and ghosts, crafted by Marianne Akers, doesn't show up on your porch this Halloween.

"Everything is recycled including the shoes on the witches," volunteers Akers who treks through resale shops and garage sales to find children's clothes and shoes for her little people.

One Santa is dressed in a jacket made from an antique quilt. Others peek from beneath parkas, their hoods lined with recycled furs. Rag angels made from torn muslin garnished with gold lame look like, well, angels with their halos of gold garland strung in the shapes of stars.

"You just have to have a knack for it," said Akers who has a teaching degree from the University of Michigan.

"A crafts person works with their mind, heart and the hand. You're just always creating."

Akers creates at home but sells only at craft shows. She does more than 50 a year. Many of the little people are made with the help of her father, and 11-year old son Ryan. The army of goblins standing in the dining room are waiting to be shipped to the mail order catalog called Pot Pourri, which features them on their fall cover. The ghost is priced at $17, the witch at $22. Santas start at $25 for a small version to $135 for the 3-foot tall jovial fellow. The Santa on a wood sleigh is $125. Angels run from $28 to $75.

The 23 buildings at Greenmead, 11 of them original to the site, are divided into two time periods: the 1850s and the 1920s. Restoring the structures costs hundreds of thousands of dollars so the Livonia Historical Commission is always looking for volunteers and new ways of raising money, said Sue Daniel, commission chairwoman.

A Blue House Cookbook featuring recipes for all the major holidays will be available at the show for $6.50. Members of historical society are working on a coverlet featuring the Blue House that will be available this fall.

"We'd like to be able to hold an indoor craft show to raise funds but as of right now haven't been able to find a place large enough for 100 crafters. If anyone has any ideas we'd like to hear from them. I think it's important for our kids and the adults to know how people lived before us, what people sacrificed so they can live as well as they do today," said Daniel.

If you would like to volunteer to help make the dream of Greenmead come alive call Marian Renaud at the village (810) 477-7375.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Fun and merriment await in the shire of Hollygrove at the 16th annual Michigan Renaissance Festival in Holly through Sept. 24.

Travel back in time to the 16th century European Renaissance. Costumed artisans sell their handmade wares and demonstrate timeless crafts including glass blowing, pottery, and weaving.

Eight stages on the 15 acre wooded festival site provide continuous entertainment including lighthearted drama, comedy, classical music, folk and courtly dance. Along the shaded paths, puppeteers, magicians, jugglers and others invite guests to participate in their follies.

Rick Carver has participated in the festival for nine years. This year he plays Ricardo, a French pirate who got involved with "two bumpkins who have no idea of how to run a ship. The ship was run aground, and with audience participation they try to find who is best suited to be captain.

"We do the show twice a day, every day of festival on the Griffon Stage," said Carver who shares a home in Troy with the other two pirates — Adam Barnowski and Allen Verschuere. "We just can't seem to get away from each other. We met at Oakland University, and have worked in various shows together including 'Three Musketeers.' We wrote a show that was a combination of illusion and combat. The festival had an idea for a pirate show, and wanted to work with us because we had worked together before. We had input into writing lines and choreography."

Carver said he enjoys the festival because it's

Rain forest creatures spring to life at children's art show

Artbeat features various happenings in the suburban arts world. Send news leads to: Arts editor, Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150, or fax them to (313) 591-7279.

■ RAIN FOREST ART

Students have been creating art with a rain forest theme all summer long at D & M Art Studio Camps at the Plymouth Cultural Center. From 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27 you see the works of these young artists at the fifth annual Children's Art Show at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street in Plymouth.

This is the largest showing of children's art in Michigan with more than 500 pieces on display. Pastel parrots and papier mache animals seem to spring to life in a rain forest setting created by students ranging in age from three to 16. Not to be missed is a "Save the Rain Forest Quilt" with a square made by each student.

Next year D & M Art Studio is planning to add more multi-age camps so grandparents can attend with their grandchildren. The theme promises to be a challenging one as it's called the Painted Desert.

such a fantasy, and gives him the freedom to interact with the audience, and improvise. "The mind is allowed to go absolutely wild. You get such a chance for improvisation out there, and I love that," he said.

Festival dining options also have a Renaissance theme. After you've worked up an appetite watching shows, and browsing among the crafters, feast on turkey drumsticks, potato skins, fish and chips, Scotch eggs and pasties, soup in a breadbowl, corn on the cob and apple dumplings.

Then you can test your skill in games popular during the Renaissance including archery, Jacob's Ladder, Dueling Buckets, the Maze and more. Full contact armored jousting tournaments occur three times daily at 12:45 p.m., 3:30 p.m. and 5:45 p.m.

Aug. 26-27 is Highland Fling weekend at the festival. Listen for the stirring sounds of the Red Thistle Pipe Band on the Field of Honor each day at noon, 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. It's a Scottish celebration.

The North American Masters Caber Toss Championships, traditionally known as "ye casting of ye bar," take to the gaming fields each day at 2 and 4:15 p.m.

Join the Highland Dance Competitions at Royal Court on the Green Grove Inn Stage each day at 2 p.m. King George (Mike Libby) and Queen Gwendolyn (Kelly Boczek) shall preside over the contests, but their subjects decide the winners.

Local celebrities will compete at noon, Saturday, Aug. 26, on the fields of Upson Downs in an All Sport Charity Challenge.

Advance tickets are available at all Kroger Supermarkets and participating Total gasoline stations.

Festive fall events spotlight local artists, galleries

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

Now that fall is almost here, arts organizations are gearing up for shows and events spotlighting local talent. Circle these dates.

■ Everything from folk art to cross stitch is on the menu at the Plymouth Community Arts Council's 24th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9-10 at Central Middle School, 660 W. Church Street at Main.

While in town stop at one of the many food booths at the Plymouth Fall Festival where a smorgasbord of flavors wait to be savored, and it's all to benefit a host of non-profit organizations. Juried art show hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9 and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10. A donation of $2 for adults, and $1 for students and senior citizens, is requested at the door with all proceeds to benefit the arts council's projects. Children under 12 are free with adult.

"We have more booths than ever before, a lot of new and different artists and craftsmen," said show chairwoman Carolyn Simons.

More than 100 artisans will be on hand with a variety of wares including paintings, ceramics, lace in leaded glass, miniatures, dolls, silk screened clothing, hardwood furniture, bird houses, and beaded and porcelain jewelry.

■ Make a day of it, or even two at the biggest art event of the season in Observerland. The Plymouth art community presents its second annual weekend gallery walk, Plymouth is Artrageous Friday through Sunday, Sept. 29 to Oct. 1.

Each of the 12 galleries will feature a guest artist and creative displays exposing visitors to many different forms of art from painting and pottery to sculpture. Visit a potter from the Acoma Pueblo at Native West or raku artists at Chameleon Galleries, and the soon-to-open Frances Jewelry Gallery. At the Victorian Gallery, Peggy Kaufman will be creating a mosaic table from recycled objects and broken china.

"I'm excited that we're going to have more music on the streets, and it will be more focused with jazz and classical," said walk chairwoman Annette Horn, co-owner of Native West.

The Animation Station will have two artists on hand. Steve Stanchfield is a local cartoon animator currently working on CD-ROM games at the Ann Arbor based Media Station. His past projects include animation on "Winnie the Pooh" and "The Lion King" animated storybook CD-ROM. Fine art photographer Bruce Beck will take you to Disneyworld via the lens of his camera.

■ Meet internationally recognized automotive artist Tom Hale 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 29 at Frameworks. The Farmington Hills artist's original paintings, limited edition prints, and posters of classic collector's cars will be exhibited.

Other local galleries on the walk are Wild Wings, Sipapu Company (Southwest furniture), Creative Framing and Gallery, Penniman Showcase, Gabriala's, Georgia's Gift Gallery, and the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

To refresh walkers, each gallery will offer a taste of a local restaurant.

■ The Friends of the Westland Historical Museum is having their first ever indoor craft show 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 14 at the Bailey Recreation Center, 36651 Ford Road behind Westland City Hall. Proceeds will go to the Perrinsville School Project. There is no admission charge to the show featuring 39 crafters.

"I'm excited because the show will help restore the school house built in 1856. It means one day children will be able to have a one room school experience," said Denise Johnston, a member of the Friends of the museum.

The targeted date for completion is fall 1996. When Johnston thinks back to when the project started more than four years ago she smiles about the 87 bats in the rafters and other obstacles the group has overcome. But there's still a lot of work to be done. The Oct. 14 craft show will help restore the school house and provide reproductions of textbooks of that era.

For 81 years, the brick school, which stood in the Village of Perrinsville, educated children in Nankin Township. Restoration costs of $75,000 are still needed. Do your part by attending the show. Crafters are still needed. For more information about the project or an application for the show call Johnston, (313) 261-3633.

Artists sought for Canton Fine Arts Exhibition

Project Arts of Canton is calling all artists.

The third annual Canton Fine Arts Exhibition is tentatively scheduled for the first week in December and will premiere in the new Summit on the Park community center. A specific date will be set later, said Project Arts publicity chair Cheryl Staats.

Project Arts is currently accepting applications from artists interested in participating in the exhibition.

Artists may submit slides of their work in a variety of media, including clay, drawing, jewelry, mixed media, painting, photography, sculpture and textiles.

Slides should include the artist's name, title and media of the work and dimensions. Application fees are a non-refundable $15 for non-residents and $10 for Canton residents.

For more information or applications contact Kathleen Salla, Canton volunteer coordinator, 397-6450.

The show's juror will be Mary Stephenson, curator and director of the Sisson Gallery at Henry Ford Community College, and also a drawing and art appreciation instructor. She is on the University of Michigan School of Arts Board of Governors and is the former assistant curator for the Department of 20th Century Art at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Stephenson has planned exhibits at the DIA, the University of Michigan, and the Cranbrook Academy of Art.

New gallery to show works by Gorbachev's nephew

Europa Art Gallery will host the first exclusive Detroit area appearance and exhibit by celebrated Russian artist Yuri Gorbachev, the grand-nephew of former Soviet president Mikhail Gorbachev, when the gallery has its grand opening next month.

The gallery is scheduled to open Sept. 14 at 6335 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield.

Yuri Gorbachev, who defines his art as "naive primitivism," will be guest of honor at a private VIP reception and attend one of the four days of the showing.

A portion of the sales proceeds will be earmarked for the establishment of a fine arts scholarship in the artist's name at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. The gallery is owned by Arthur Bricker and John Tunis.

Honor Among Thieves
—Edwin McCain

Like Hootie and the Blowfish, Better Than Ezra, The Verve Pipe and Jackopierce, Edwin McCain is a graduate of the AWARE compilation discs released by Madaket Records. The acoustic first single "Solitude" from "Honor Among Thieves" (Atlantic) is a re-recorded version of what appeared on 'Aware II." This time it builds up to a guest appearance by Hootie singer Darius Rucker. It seems like a desperate attempt to attract listeners unless you know that they were schoolmates at the University of South Carolina, and that the two had performed the song during most of their tour together.

"Solitude," which tells the true story of a teenager whose mother insisted that he be kept in a rehabilitation center from age 15-18 even though "the doctors said he was well," is the stand-out song on the album.

The funky uptempo songs like "Jesters, Dreamers and Thieves" and "Don't Bring Me Down" are more of a testament to McCain's talent than the quiet acoustic tunes. (Although the violin in "Don't Bring Me Down" is an awkward touch.) They allow him to showcase his his fast-paced vocal style. "Honor Among Thieves" is a good starting point for McCain, who will embark on a fall college tour the beginning of September.

Strange Pleasure
—Jimmie Vaughan

For his Epic Records debut, former Fabulous Thunderbirds lead guitarist and big brother to the legendary Stevie Ray, Jimmie Vaughan works in a style that surfaced on "Family Style," the disc he cut with his little brother a few years back. Throughout this collection, as was the case with the aforementioned, the style is heavily influenced by 1950s Texas blues and R&B. You can hear that white sox and saddle shoes thing going on, especially in the opening "Boom-Bapa-Boom," the piano-driven "Just Like Putty," and the finger-snappin' instrumental, "Tilt-A-Whirl," though it's a feel that never strays far. Which is hardly meant to infer that Vaughan has his head stuck in a time warp; rather that he has a reverential appreciation for his roots.

"Flamenco Dancer," the best song here, and "Six Strings Down," a chilling acoustic tribute to the fallen giants of the blues, point to his willingness to stretch out of that roots mold, lest he be pegged some sort of dreaded revisionist. The former, particularly, is about as far from formula as any player has strayed this year. Following its flamenco sketch opening bar, the song breaks into a catchy shuffle that's as infectious as anything out of the classic school. "Two Wings" is a barebones, organ and drum-driven gospel piece and "Love The World" works some Creedence-style voodoo drone into the mix.

It's a joyous album, obviously as much for the player as for the listener. Stevie Ray Vaughan's first guitar hero was his big brother. Jimmie Vaughan is the kind of player that every guitar player wishes was his big brother. This is one of the best debuts, in any genre, of this year.

Specialty Legends of Jump Blues, Vol. 1
—Various Artists

Call it roots rhythm and blues or just the blues, if you will, but the music that was captured by small labels like Specialty and a dozen others was ultimately to serve as the foundation for rock 'n' roll. Since Fantasy Records acquired Specialty Records, they've been re-issuing spectacular music religiously. This is a taster that jump, jive and boogie fans will want to test the speakers and the neighbor's patience with.

The cream of the crop is here, naturally. The great Joe Liggins ("The Honeydripper," "Rag Mop," "One Sweet Letter," and "Pink Champagne"), younger brother Jimmy Liggins ("I Can't Stop It," "Saturday Night Boogie Woogie Man," and "That Song Is Gone"), Roy Milton ("I Dare You Baby" and "The Hunt Is On") are all well represented on collections for their own label, as well as on the vital "Specialty Story" boxed set, but this will serve as the budget sampler for the unitiated.

Treats abound here from relative unknowns, as well. Like King Perry and his Pied Pipers doing "Duck's Yas Yas Yas," Buddy Banks' 1949 "Happy Home Blues," with hot vocalizing from Marion Abernathy and Herman Manzy's hard rockin' "I'm Your Rockin' Man." Great stuff to boogie away a Friday night.

'Warped Tour' appeals to punkers

STAFF WRITER

"The Warped Tour" has everything that a skateboard punker could want — two stages of music, skate ramps, street courses, and a giant climbing wall. But Seaweed singer Aaron M. Stauffer says there's one thing missing.

"We think it needs 'The Zipper.' If there were rides this would be a carnival. It does have a climbing wall, but it's not exactly 'The Zipper.' "

"The Warped Tour" is a first collaborative tour to blend music and the "extreme" sports lifestyle of skateboarding, bungee jumping, in-line skating, and snowboarding.

"I think this tour's important because it's the first tour like this to go around the country. . . . This is like a really valid thing with a lot of great bands that are, for the main part, not mainstream so far," said Charlie, guitarist for Civ.

All bands playing "The Warped Tour" have been chosen for the tour as a result of their longstanding affiliation with the "extreme" sports lifestyle, dating back to the emergence of skate/music fanzines in the early '80s, organizers said. Besides Civ and Seaweed, the lineup for the 1 p.m. Friday, Aug. 25, festival at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre in Pontiac includes L7, Quicksand, Orange 9mm, No Use For A Name, Sublime, Fluf, Tilt, Swinging Udders, Red 5 and Wizo on two stages.

While bands are playing, professional skaters and other athletes will be showing their respective trades in various areas of the venue situated on top of a parking structure. International skate celebrities Remy Stratton, Steve Alba, Neil Hendrix and Jaya Bondereu, champion in-line skaters Angie Walton, Tom Fry, Rene Hulgreen and Arlo Eisenberg and pro BMX rider Keith Traenor are among those scheduled to appear on Friday.

The $1 charge to climb the wall will be donated to water conservation charity Ocean Aid and the music industry-founded non-profit AIDS organization LIFEBeat.

Most of the bands scheduled to play have achieved street-level credibility with their do-it- yourself punk rock ethic. Orange 9mm, featuring former Detroiter Matthew Cross on druma, has toured relentlessly in support of their debut album "Driver Not Included" (East West).

Civ's resume looks like a Who's Who of punk rock with members who are veterans of Gorilla Biscuits, Youth of Today, Judge, Bold, Shelter, Side by Side, and Project. Civ, whose major-label debut "Set Your Goals" was just released on Lava/Atlantic, got a boost into the mainstream recently with the addition of the video for Adam and the Ants-influenced single "Can't Wait One Minute More" into MTV's "Buzz Bin." Seaweed joined "the show" Tuesday with the release of "Spanaway" on Hollywood Records.

"I'm so excited," Stauffer said last week. "It's my favorite album we've ever made. It has an abundance of good songs on it."

Sublime will soon release an album on Skunk/Gasoline Alley/MCA Records. This tour gives them a peek into potential rock-stardom.

"We've only toured in our own vehicle. This time we have a real-life rock-star bus," singer Brad Nowell said.

In spring the band made a ripple in the music industry with its controversial single "Date Rape." Nowell said that he didn't mean to offend anyone. When he wrote the song in 1988, he was just messing around with words that rhymed. The complaints about the song, however, have motivated him to write more burning lyrics.

"I've done a lot of phoners with people who are mad about it. It makes me say, 'Damn. I'd write more songs like that if they would give me a call and yell,' " Nowell said.

Critics have said that this tour will gauge punk rock's popularity. That's the last thing on the minds of the bands.

"I never really think about things that way. To me, it's a tour that we're doing with a lot of our friends. There's a skate ramp so when I'm bored I can watch these amazing skaters. They just do insane tricks," said Seaweed's Stauffer.

"I think if people come to the show and have fun that's important."

The $15 tickets for "The Warped Tour" are available at Ticketmaster. The ticket price is slightly higher the day of show. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Creating a buzz: The first video from Civ's debut album "Set Your Goals" is featured in the MTV Buzz Bin along with Better Than Ezra's "In The Blood."

Nice guys 'Better than Ezra' find success

STAFF WRITER

Better Than Ezra is heading the list of candidates for the "Nicest Band in the World" contest. Singer/guitarist Kevin Griffin edits swear words out of a conversation himself. He explains every music industry term that he uses, if it's needed or not. Instead of ripping on radio, Better Than Ezra goes out of their way to thank the stations that have supported them.

"In every town we go to a radio station and make an effort to get to know people and make an impression. If the people like you personally, they're more apt to listen to your album," said Griffin obviously of good marketing skills as well.

The Louisana band is on their way to becoming a household name with the release of "Good." Besides the two singles "Good" and the MTV "Buzz Bin" clip "In the Blood," the album is chock fullof hook-laden songs. Strings ripple underneath the ballad "Killer Inside Me" as Griffin sings "I hope that she believes/Yes I wonder if she sees/The killer inside me." The middle-of-the-road third single "Rosealia" should boost the band's credibility with the adult alternative crowd. "Teenager," during which Griffin sings "Wrap yourself in black/listen to the Cure," takes a tongue-in-cheek look at kids. The acoustic "This Time of Year" is the perfect fall soundtrack: "Well there's a football in the air/Across the leaf-blown field/Yeah there's your first car on the road/And the girl you steal."

"Everybody loves that song," Griffin said with a laugh. "We wrote it while driving up to a football game. It was the first fall day. We were driving north on I-55. It was one of those kinds of days when you get full of revelry."

The road to success was a bumpy one for Better Than Ezra. Before cofounding the band with Griffin in 1988, drummer Cary Bonnecaze was shot by a former lesbian lover of his then- girlfriend. He has since recovered fully. In 1990 founding guitarist Joel Rundell committed suicide.

"After Joel's death, we didn't know if we would enjoy playing as Better Than Ezra," Griffin said. "But after our first show as a three piece, we received so much support from our fans that it bolstered our decision to keep playing." (Better Than Ezra is rounded out by bassist Tom Drummond.)

Things have been looking "Good" for the band since it released that album around December of 1993. Initially the band sold copies of the album out of the back of their van. But after reading the SoundScan reports which track album sales, record companies turned their attention toward Better Than Ezra. Elektra won the battle and released the album internationally in January. The six-year pace that it took for the band to be recognized around the world is just find for Griffin.

"I'll tell you, I wouldn't have it any other way. I'm so prepared for it now and we're a lot more grateful for success and I think we're a better band than if we had gotten signed in '90s. "After playing since 1988 and struggling a lot and playing a lot of nasty bars for no money, it's great to finally be successful," Griffin said.

Better Than Ezra, Dish and the Dambuilders perform an all-ages show beginning at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 26, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

TRAVEL

Kits explore 'City Skylines'

■ BARBARA WILSON

Once an avid traveler for business and pleasure, Jeff Bauman now makes travel his business.

Bauman recently opened City Skylines Travel Kits, the J.L. Bauman Co. in Farmington Hills providing travel kits to business people and families for less than $10. With a background in business and marketing, Bauman said he found he spent more than $100,000 over the course of five years for trips, and was not always satisfied.

The West Bloomfield resident prepares travel kits that include maps, brochures on attractions and hotels, restaurants, museums and theaters, as well as the most recent issue of the city's travel magazine. These kits, each weighing it at about 2 pounds, can be in prospective travelers' hands in about three days time for $9.95 per kit.

"The problem with brochures from city hotels, restaurants and tourist attractions is that by the time an out-of-town visitor sees them, it's usually too late," Bauman said.

The typical customer is the leisure traveler, Bauman said. But business travelers also use his service.

"Sometimes the business traveler is trying to decide if he or she will bring the family along or if they'll stay an extra day or two to see the city," Bauman said. "These kits can help them make those decisions before investing a lot of money."

Companies planning meetings or conventions also use the kits to set agendas, schedule relaxation activities for clients and even to determine if the city can meet the needs of the firm.

Bauman currently has up-to-date kits assembled and ready to ship for Atlanta, Boston, Branson, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Ft. Lauderdale, Hawaii, Indianapolis, Memphis, Miami, Minneapolis/St. Paul, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Pittsburgh and Tampa. By fall kits will be available for 34 additional cities and in early 1996, kits will be assembled for international destinations.

Each City Skylines Travel Kit includes: a detailed street-indexed map showing buildings, landmarks and other points of interest; the current issue of the destination's city or regional magazine — a good source for restaurant reviews, festival information, gallery exhibits and concerts; an assortment of brochures, minimenus and other promotional information from area hotels, restaurants, tourist attractions, cultural centers, upscale retailers, and other businesses catering to travelers.

Travelers and meeting planners need only call (800) 248-9759 and tell the representative who they are and where they want to go. A City Skylines Travel Kit will be Priority Mailed immediately. The $9.95 cost includes shipping and handling.

City Skylines: Farmington Hills businessman Jeff Bauman provides travel kits for cities throughout the U.S. that can be delivered to prospective travelers in a few days for less than $10.

'Oblivion' a treat for movie fans

"Living in Oblivion" 7, 9:30 p.m. Aug. 25-26, 4, 7 p.m. Aug. 27. Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323.

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

The microphone keeps creeping into the shot. Actors want to change the blocking. Street noise spoils the soundtrack. Meanwhile, the frazzled director tries to hold cast and crew — and his sanity — together.

"Living in Oblivion," set on a low-budget movie set in New York City, is an exercise in frustration. It's an often hilarious look at the personalities and myriad details that put even the smallest movie together.

Steve Buscemi plays Nike Reve, who often feels that making movies is just a series of compromises and disappointments. You can see how upset he is when his actors give their greatest performances during rehearsal but flounder on camera.

For Tom DiCillo, the real-life writer and director of "Living in Oblivion," the movie set could serve as a stand-in for life, where we're all trying to capture that perfect shot while the world collapses around us.

DiCillo gave Brad Pitt his first starring role in the little-seen "Johnny Suede." Now he places the center of attention on Buscemi, the bug-eyed character actor and cult figure who cut his teeth in movies by Joel and Ethan Coen before nailing Mr. Pink in "Reservoir Dogs."

His Nick has his hands full with popular soap opera actor Chad Palomino (James Le Gros), who admits that he's only acting in the movie because Nick has some pull with Quentin Tarantino. When Chad wants to wear an eye patch, Nick diffuses him by confiding that it makes him look "a little gay."

Despite all the effort, Nick's movie appears a bit weak, a cross between bad performance art (is there any other kind?) and hokey melodrama. The three key scenes we see over and over tell the story of a woman, apparently abused as a child, whose anxiety about marriage culminates in a dream sequence involving an apple-holding dwarf.

In another dream, Nick blows up at the actors and technicians and his rantings, though cruel, are essentially true: Wolf, the cinematographer played by Dermot Mulroney, really is a beret-wearing prima donna. Lead actress Nicole (Catherine Keener) can be stiff in front of the camera. The boom operators and lighting guys really are dolts.

DFT founder meets with film lovers

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

■ 'In a major city, that's where culture happens. We recognized that it was a distinct possibility that it would fail. Would the suburbs come?'
Elliot Wilhelm

It's a sunny, summer, Sunday morning in Bloomfield Township. And 150 people are sitting in a dimly lit movie theater although no film is scheduled until afternoon.

They have come to the third session of the Film Lovers Club, co-sponsored by the AMC Maple 3 and Barnes & Noble Cafe.

Attendance has grown so that the monthly Sunday morning meeting has to be moved from the bookstore coffee shop to the theater on Maple just west of Telegraph.

This day Harvey and Nading Miller, Diane Pomish, Irene Anbender — all coincidentally of West Bloomfield — are part of an audience that has come to hear Elliot Wilhelm, founder of the Detroit Film Theatre at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"It's a real privilege to have the job that I have," Wilhelm tells them in his engaging, conversational manner. "For me to stand at the back of a theater and see an audience responding to a film on the screen is truly exciting."

Wilhelm, Detroit-born and bred, told of nurturing his love for film at the art film theaters of his boyhood — The Studio, Studio North, Studio 8 and Studio 4.

But from 1970 until Wilhelm formed the DFT in 1973, "there was no real theater that showed alternative kinds of film.

"The NEA got me the job I have," Wilhelm tells this audience, seated in heavily Republican Oakland County.

With a backdrop of a Republican-controlled Congress seeking to eradicate the National Endowment for the Arts, Wilhelm recites this experience:

In the early 70s, the NEA recognized the void in alternative film theaters that had developed in Detroit and other major cites.

Through a Regional Film Theatre Project, they gave money to museums, cultural centers and libraries to revive the showing of alternative films. And one of these was a $10,000 grant to the DIA.

Wilhelm recalls the racial tensions that ruled Detroit in the early '70's and the question of whether the DIA was the right venue.

"In a major city, that's where culture happens." At the same time, "We recognized that it was a distinct possibility thet it would fail. Would the suburbs come?"

The theater seats 1,200. And 857 came that first night. The theater has averaged between 850 and 1,000 each evening since.

And once theaters like the Maple opened, in 1976, the NEA withdrew the grant. The alternative film market was once more in place.

"The DFT's health is important to the Maple's health," Wilhelm says. "Together these theaters (together with the Main Art, the Abbey, etc.) are offering the public a much wider selection of films than they would otherwise be seeing.

"We wish them all great health. When audiences' tastes are raised, they'll support them in the marketplace. It's a great cycle, the more and more you go to good films, the more will be made."

The next meeting of the Film Lovers Club is 10 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 17 at the Maple 3. And the first meeting of the Reel Talk film discussion group takes place at the Barnes & Noble Cafe at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 6 after the 7:15 p.m. showing of the "Brothers McMullen" at the Maple 3. Comediennes present show to benefit Gilda's Club

"Gilda's Club presents: The Motor City Women of Comedy," Sunday, Aug. 27 at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth St., Royal Oak. Show times 3 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Tickets for the 3 p.m. show are $20 regular and $30 V.I.P. Tickets for the evening show are sold out. Call (810) 542-9900. Show proceeds benefit Gilda's Club of Metro Detroit.

BY ROBERT SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

The laughs that the late Detroit Gilda Radner brought to us were a special gift from a special lady, preserved forever thanks to videotape and celluloid. However, another gift from Gilda is still being given to those with cancer and the family and friends they touch — with the help of a driven, talented group of local comediennes.

Known as "The Motor City Women of Comedy," this group of nine performers is planning to bring the house down twice at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak this Sunday to benefit Gilda's Club of Detroit. The event, now in its second year, is the brainchild of Alyce Faye of Farmington and Mary Miller of Berkley, who brought the performers together and will serve as co-hosts.

"We're excited to be involved in this because Gilda was our mentor," Faye said. "We came together as both a tribute to her and to help her fulfill her dream. She wanted to have a place where people who have cancer, as well as their family and friends, could go to talk about how they feel."

That dream led to the establishment of Gilda's Club in New York and Detroit by Radner's husband Gene Wilder and psychotherapist Joanna Bull, now the group's executive director. The group's mission is to provide a meeting place where people with cancer, their family and friends, can join with others to build social and emotional support as a supplement to medical care. The metro Detroit chapter, currently in an office suite in Farmington Hills, hopes to raise enough money to build a permanent site for non-residential programs to include support groups, lectures, workshops and social events.

Performers for Sunday's benefit, in addition to Faye and Miller, include Stacey Duford, Kathy Geha, Lisa Goich, Gilda Hauser, Sheila Loveley, Jennie McNulty and Jill Washburn. Local comedy connoisseurs can expect about a 10-minute set from each performer at the show, just enough to get a strong sample of the best female stand-up talent the Motor City has to offer.

Last year's event received a tremendous response, raising over $13,000. But this year's response is overwhelming, leading to the addition of a second show. The evening show, which includes a light buffet, is already sold out. Tickets are still available for the 3 p.m. show.

"Last year we went beyond our wildest dreams," Miller said. "And we would really love to sell out two shows this year. It's neat to bring people together to benefit such a great cause. We have so much comedic talent here in Detroit, to give something back is really important."

■ Gilda's Club is also hosting a fund-raising 5K (3.4 mile) Family Walk and Block Party on Sunday, Sept. 17, at Cobo Center in Detroit. Registration begins 11 a.m. and the walk begins at 1 p.m. The Block Party begins 1:30 p.m. in the Macomb Room at Cobo Center. Walkers will begin at Cobo Center and continue through Hart Plaza along the Detroit River to Chene park, and end inside Cobo Center with a Block Party featuring family entertainment. Entry is $15 per person by September 8 or $20 after September 8, and the day of the walk. Free entry for children 12 and under. Everyone who pays an entry fee will receive a T-short. Entry forms available at AMC Theaters, Big Boy Restaurants, Weight Watchers or call Motor City Striders, (810) 544-9099.

Volunteers are needed, contact: Gilda's Club, Metro Detroit, 31000 Northwestern Highway, Suite 200, Farmington Hills, MI 48334, (810) 851-6557.

Mainstreet Comedy Showcase strikes 'Gold'

Judy Gold

Comedienne Judy Gold will be headlining at the Ann Arbor Mainstreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty, Aug. 24-26. Show times are 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 25-26. Tickets are $12, call (313) 996-9080.

Audiences will recognize Gold from her co-starring role on the ABC series "All American Girl," guest spots on "Roseanne," and other shows.

Gold's half hour HBO Comedy Special, which she taped in June in San Francisco, premieres 10:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24.

A native of Clark, N.J., Gold got her start in show business after receiving a bachelor's degree in music from Rutgers University. She has been headlining in comedy clubs around the country for the past six years.

PREVIEW

Known for her family-oriented New York-edged humor, Gold is the girl who made you laugh so hard in gym class that you couldn't run — and you got the detention. She's the girl who broke up everyone in the movie theater — and the usher asked you to leave. She makes a half dozen observations simultaneously and tosses them out at once in a variety of voices.

"Much of my stand-up act deals with my relationships with my mother," said Gold. "I also interact with people in the audience."

Plymouth hosts Festival of Flavors

By Keely Wygonik
Arts & Entertainment Editor

Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority is hosting a "Festival of Flavors" on Aug. 26 in honor of Streetscape, an extensive public improvement project to enhance the visual appeal of the downtown shopping area.

Festival of Flavors, a free family event at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth offers visitors an opportunity to sample delicacies offered by local restaurants and specialty food producers. There will also be jazzy contemporary instrumental music provided by the Tom Starr Band.

"We're trying to create a green bridge between Kellogg Park and our commercial district," said Steve Guile, director of the Plymouth Downtown Development Authority. "There will be a pedestrian island in the middle of Main Street with greenery and trees. This event is a way to let people know the stores and restaurants are open during construction. Our farm market in the Gathering downtown will be open 7 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and this adds to the event."

Other Streescape improvements include replacing street lights, curbs, sidewalks, and trees. Planters and benches are being installed, and an informational kiosk, that will contain a downtown map and list of stores.

Downtown has been a jumble of construction and detours since work on the Streetscape project began in the middle of April. Festival of Flavors organizers are hoping this event will draw people downtown. It's a way to let people know that downtown Plymouth is viable, even during construction, and to highlight some of the restaurants in the area. The project is scheduled to be completed in the beginning of November, just in time for the holidays.

"We are rather enthusiastic about this city," said Chef Greg Goodman, owner of Cafe Bon Homme. "I've always believed that Plymouth was a diamond in the rough. Now we're getting some polish."

Goodman said he enjoys participating in community events like Festival of Flavors because they build a sense of community. "The enthusiasm becomes contagious," he said. "Now the town is getting some lipstick and it's time to throw a party to let people know where we're at, and where we're going."

Goodman and his staff will have a grill set up in the park. They'll be serving brochette of marinated chicken. "It's an opportunity for us to say thank-you to the many people who have patronized our restaurant, and to say 'welcome to our community.' We're just delighted to be part of it."

John Cleveland, owner of Water Club Grill, agrees. "It's great exposure for us," said Cleveland. "These events are a lot of fun. We get to talk to a lot of people, many have been to the restaurant, many have not."

Cleveland and his staff will be serving blackened catfish, Cajun style and Cajun Louisiana shrimp with Creole rice.

John P. O'Connor, executive chef at Station 885 is also looking forward to Festival of Flavors.

"We'll be serving penne pasta with roasted tomatoes and garlic, and seared sea scallops in a tomato cream sauce. We've been trying to become part of our community. It's nice to get out and meet people from other restaurants, and to see people enjoy our food. It's a neighborhood kind of thing, and we're happy to be part of it."

Cafe serves patrons one plate at a time

By Keely Wygonik
Arts & Entertainment Editor

Because they're a small restaurant, Cafe Bon Homme, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary in January, can focus on every plate.

"We're not a production line," said owner Chef Greg Goodman. "We'd like this small 80 seat restaurant in a small Midwestern town to make people sit up and take notice. We've made a splash, and we'd like to see some white caps going."

Cafe Bon Homme, which Goodman describes as an upscale bistro, has already received national recognition. They've been featured in "Bon Appetit," "Victoria," and "Conde Nast Traveler."

A new menu was introduced eight weeks ago, and floor and wall coverings were changed. The atmosphere is cozy, and new original French Impressionistic art on the walls only enhance it. In many ways, Cafe Bon Homme is a work in progress. Goodman and his staff — six in the kitchen, and 15 on the floor, practice the art of fine dining.

New dinner menu specialty items include Canadian Whitefish "Bistro Style," "Comparison of Duck," and "Atlantic Sword Fish with Cracked Pepper Infusion."

The whitefish is layered with lobster mousse and julienne potatoes, and garnished with lobster. "To make the swordfish we take cracked pepper and infuse it with the swordfish, and sear it," said Goodman. "It's served with wilted spinach, red and yellow peppers. It's an explosion of colors and flavors. The duck features two different cuts of duck, two different flavors, and we serve it with a warm apple bread pudding."

"Let's wow em'," that's our job said Goodman. "This is about fabulous food. We want people to enjoy their evening, to relax. It's our responsibility to make it special."

The modern European menu is built on classic fundamentals with a youthful exuberance. "We're only as good as our people are," said Goodman. "I tell my staff, 'let's play and see what we can do.' When they succeed it builds their confidence and this pours out in their food and work."

Goodman's righthand man in the kitchen is Marc Bennett. "He's a young man who is serious about his profession. I write and develop the menu, and he executes it. Marc tends to be a little more experimental, than me. The combination works well, sometimes he'll open me up to new ideas. He infuses the whole kitchen with a bold, let's break new ground mindset."

Goodman lives a half mile away from the restaurant with his wife Susan, and daughter Jill, a junior at Plymouth-Canton High School. Son Todd is starting his second year at Western Michigan University.

Injury loss

Wouldn't you know it?

Get all the way through the season, your first season (and freshman year) of collegiate basketball, and make a major contribution to a team with a promising future.

And what happens? Crash-landing.

Britta Anderson

Britta Anderson, a Plymouth Canton graduate (1994), had the kind of first year at Wayne State most athletes hope for: She contributed, becoming one of the Tartars' top eight players, averaging better than four points and three rebounds a game.

Then, just after the season came to a close . . .

"It was on April 3," Anderson recalled. "It was a freakish thing. A bunch of us got together and were playing a pick-up game. I came down with a rebound, just like I did a thousand times before."

Problem was, her knee gave way. Anderson tore the anterior cruciate ligament in her right knee and had to undergo reconstructive surgery on May 9. The healing process has begun — Anderson is walking without a brace — but she will not begin the five-month rehabilitation program for another few weeks.

Which means she will be red-shirted this season.

It's the second time Anderson has suffered a serious knee injury. She injured her left knee during soccer season of her junior year at Canton.

"The people here (at WSU) have been really good to me," she said. Anderson won't be out of touch with the program; plans have been made for her to work on the statistics crew for both football and basketball.

And, looking at the bright side of the situation, at least she's getting some practical experience — Anderson plans to major in physical therapy.

Kicks sign-up

The Plymouth Kicks soccer club will have tryouts for its select team both this weekend and next at Pioneer Middle School.

Tryouts are for boys with birthdates between August 1979 and August 1981. All positions are open.

Tryouts will be at 1 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday at Pioneer Middle School, with final cuts at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 2, again at Pioneer Middle School.

For more information, call Bill Burton at 455-1963.

Fall softball

A five-week, 10-game fall softball league is now being formed by the Canton Parks and Recreation Services.

Each team will play a doubleheader once a week, starting Sept. 5. Cost is $210 per team (which includes a $30 forfeit fee that will be refunded if your team does not forfeit) plus a $15-per-game umpires' fee ($30 for a doubleheader). There are no residency requirements; game ball will be provided.

For more information, call the Parks and Recreation Services at (313) 397-5110.

Soccer, Rocket-style

There's a new game in town — or at it's least kinda close.

The University of Toledo officially begins its first year in NCAA Division I women's soccer at home at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 2, against Eastern Illinois.

The team, coached by R.J. Anderson, will no doubt struggle to begin with. After all, the roster consists of 16 freshmen and one junior.

That junior is a Schoolcraft College graduate, Kelly Noles. There is one other local tie to the Rockets — defender Margaret Wirth, from Livonia Churchill.

Both will see plenty of playing time. The Rockets have a number of games against state college teams. They host Siena Heights at 4 p.m. Sept. 5, play University of Detroit-Mercy at Maumee Valley High School at 4 p.m. Sept. 18, play Eastern Michigan at 7:30 p.m. in the Toledo Glass Bowl Sept. 22, and conclude the season at EMU at noon Oct. 28.

Labor Day tournament

Men's softball teams are being sought for the 20th annual Allen Park Labor Day Softball Tournament, which will be Sept. 2-4 at Champaign Park in Allen Park.

Entry fee is $65 per team, with a $12 charge per game for umpires. Team and individual awards will be presented.

For more information, call Rick Sparks at (313) 675-3219.

Madonna volleyball

The past faces the present — and future — at 7 p.m. tonight when the Madonna University volleyball alumni return to action to do battle against the current Lady Crusader team at Madonna's gym.

Admission is free.

Madonna's regular season begins Friday, Sept. 1, with the Coca Cola Classic, hosted by Mesa State University in Grand Junction, Colo.

Can Canton rise up again?

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Funny how some things never seem to change.

The problem Plymouth Canton's girls basketball team faced at the end of last season will be the same problem it faces at the start of the '95 campaign: size, or rather a lack of it.

The Chiefs, in simplest terms, are not big. However, it's worth remembering that most of this undersized team was part of the '94 squad that made a run through the state tournament, a trip that wasn't derailed until the Class A semifinals.

Canton completed last season with a 19-7 record.

Considering that only two contributors from that team were lost to graduation should put the Chiefs into the title-contender class. But the players lost won't be easy to replace.

Gone are Amicie Crayton and Jackie Nicastri, taking with them some of the team speed, a lot of experience and a good deal of defense.

"We'll miss Jackie and Amicie a lot because both were great defenders," said Canton coach Bob Blohm.

Although the Chiefs may not have anyone in particular capable of filling those spots just yet, they do have a solid foundation.

It starts with 5-foot-10 senior center Sarah Warnke. A team co-captain, she averaged 11.5 points and 8.5 rebounds a game last season, battling in the low post against mostly bigger foes.

Becky Vachow, a 5-6 senior who started part of the time last season, also returns. She, too, will be a team co-captain.

Those are the only seniors on the squad, but experience is no problem. Junior Kristi Fiorenzi, a 5-9 forward, is in her third year on the varsity. And 5-6 sophomore guard Melissa Marzolf was a freshman starter last year.

Salem's size will be a formidable factor

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It's got to be said: Plymouth Salem's hopes for basketball success are sizable.

That's because the Rocks are just that — sizable. To prove that point, one only need note that sophomore Amanda Abraham, a 6-footer who earned all-Lakes Division honors as a freshman forward last year after averaging 10 points and nine rebounds a game was switched to point guard.

"We have two good pieces of the puzzle to build around," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, referring to Abraham and all-Western Lakes Activities Association center Shellye Sills, a senior co-captain. Sills, another 6-footer, averaged 15 points and 10 boards a game in '94.

Those two, combined with seniors Nicole Van Hees and Kelly Simpson, will provide the Rocks with a good deal of leadership. The 5-10 Van Hees, a part-time starter last year, and the 6-1 Simpson will also serve as captains.

What the Rocks may be lacking is open court ability, although Thomann might not agree. "This is a pretty competitive group of 10 players," he said. "Every one of them has legitimate credentials in playing the game, at some level."

The juniors with varsity experience are 5-9 Laurel Weinman and 5-1½ Janelle Sterling. Leslie Erickson, a 5-9 forward, and Meritt Walker, a 6-0 center/forward, both played for Salem's junior varsity last season.

Two freshmen will play varsity this season, and they, too, are big: 5-9 Angela Sillmon and 6-1 Andrea Pruett.

"We've got nice size and outstanding athleticism, for the size we have," said Thomann. "And we've got decent skill."

What Salem lost was leadership and the ability to move the ball, talents Kelly Lukasik, Karen Gundry and Liz Erickson provided to last year's 15-7 team. All have graduated.

Will this group be able to replace those qualities? "That's the part of the game we're working at real hard," Thomann said when questioned about his team's passing ability. "And we're getting better at it."

Some of the perceived strengths may turn out otherwise if not worked at and developed. "One of the strengths of this team is the ability to rebound the basketball, at times," the Salem coach said. "They've also shown a decent ability to play defense — at times."

Abraham's switch to point guard is "an interesting change. It's something we just came upon this summer. One day, we just told her 'You're the point guard. Go play.' And we kind of developed it from there."

The change should suit Abraham, who seems a better distributor than scorer. And scorers are not lacking on this team; indeed, until roles are clearly defined, it may be difficult to figure the Rocks.

"One of the questions we have with this team is, 'Can we create offense in the half-court game?'" Thomann

Coaches tackle tough tasks in different ways

C. J. RISAK

A tale of two programs . . .

Certainly, many people doubted Glen Donahue's sanity when he chose to coach Schoolcraft College over Madonna University. I mean, the logical choice would be the four-year basketball program instead of the two-year.

There were no winning traditions involved, that's for sure. Both schools have been mired in mediocrity — no, that's not right. Neither has been that good.

But Madonna at least had a reason for its struggles. It was a new program, just two years old; it was expected to have some problems the first few years. SC hasn't been any good at the junior college level for more than a decade.

So why would Donahue choose SC over Madonna?

His reasoning may never, truly, be known. That's because Donahue isn't the kind of guy to bad-mouth others. Indeed, he bit his tongue and swallowed hard when questioned about the St. Mary's College fiasco (after leading the Eagles to the NAIA Tournament twice, the administration dumped basketball and Donahue because of financial difficulties), refusing to publicly take the open shot.

This much is known: Donahue had a choice between the two. He opted for SC, leaving Madonna to scramble. Fortunately, the Crusaders' administration was able to get another coaching legend to step in: former Redford Catholic Central coach Bernie Holowicki.

Who will fare better? A difficult, and somewhat unfair, comparison to make.

But there were similarities in the two hirings.

Last year's overall record: 12-7.
Season opener: 4 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 29, at Sterling Heights Stevenson.
Notable losses to graduation: Charlie Roberts (first-team All-Area forward), Kevin Callaway and Mike Minghine.
Campau's '95 outlook: "After just two days of practice, I can tell we have a good group of seniors. I'm hoping we can make some noise in the league this year, but at the same time, I'm hoping that our sophomores and juniors will begin building our team for the future."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Head coach: Dave Hebestreit, first season.
League affiliation: WLAA (Western Division).
Last year's overall record: 6-7-2.
Season opener: 5:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 25, vs. Birmingham Seaholm at Beverly Hills-Detroit Country Day.
Notable losses to graduation: Dan Kulick, Marty Smith and Kris Mead.

Hebestreit's '95 outlook: "We will definitely be better than we were last season and I'd find it safe to say we will finish over .500. I look for us to improve tremendously. For the past few years, Franklin has been mediocre, but this group is very optimistic. They have been telling me that they've been waiting for this season, when many of them become seniors.
"Having the veteran squad is going to help me as a first-year coach. They are very technically astute, which has allowed me to begin going over tactical strategy in the first week of practice."

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Titles won last year: WLAA Lakes Division.
Season opener: 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 28, at Troy.
Notable losses to graduation: Nick Deren (first-team All-Area forward, 25 goals and 10 assists), Anthony Vettraino (second-team All-Area midfielder), Mo Lanspeary, Craig Wimmer, David Green, Joe Brach, Artie Knack and Justin Walker.
Barrett's '95 outlook: "We're still looking for a style of play.
"It's too early to tell what newcomers will play. We have no amazing freshman coming in this year. A couple sophomores could contribute.
"Shannon Lamb (junior midfielder) blew out his knee (skiing) and he hasn't been out yet. We don't know if he'll play this year.
"Lars Richters, who was an All-Stater here, played at Yale and is with the (Detroit) Rockers and will be my varsity assistant. And we know the history of his character. He will dedicate his time to us when he can. That should certainly help."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Head coach: Jerry Poniatowski, first season.
League affiliation: WLAA Lakes Division.
Last year's overall record: First-year varsity program.
Season opener: 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 6, at Plymouth Salem.
Poniatowski's '95 outlook: "We're untried, but we're enthusiastic. We'll have a lot of sophomores and freshmen.
"The response has been unbelievable. We're carrying about 25 players. We have no JV, but we hope to see if we can get that done next year.
"Bershaj, Costantino and Pelkey are all (Little Caesars) Premier League players. Bershaj and Costantino are very fast and can dribble. They can track.
"Froehley is as talented as anybody and Keats is a joy to watch. I call him Sterling, as in silver. He's very good.
"Donahee does not have a lot of experience, but he's a natural. All he needs is a little coaching and he'll be fine."

LUTHERAN HIGH WESTLAND

Head coach: Rich Block, fifth season.
League affiliation: Metro Conference.
Last year's overall record: 9-11.
Season opener: 5 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 31, at Royal Oak Shrine.
Notable losses to graduation: Brian Horvath (25 goals), Rich Block and Dan Danielczyk. (Note: Senior stopper Ryan Gliesman has been lost for the season due to an ankle injury.)
Promising newcomers: Ryan Olinger, freshman midfielder; Ben Heiden, sophomore midfielder.
Block's '95 outlook: "Being in the competitive Metro Conference, I expect we'll do about the same as last season. We improved quite a bit last season on the goals against, shaving about 40 goals off from previous seasons. I'm looking to shave even more off, and hoping we play smarter in the penalty area. We gave up too many penalty kicks last season.
"Any time you lose a goal scorer like Brian (Horvath) it hurts, but I believe Sieloff and Broge will do very well for us. They are both very quick which gives us some speed at forward."

WESTLAND HURON VALLEY LUTHERAN

Head coach: Steve Grosinske, 13th season.
League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.
Last year's overall record: 4-13-2.
Season opener: 4:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 1, at home vs. Clinton Township Mount Zion Christian.
Notable losses to graduation: Dave Hartley (18 goals, 48 in career); Joel Schmidt and Jason Batkoski.
Grosinske's '95 outlook: "Hopefully my 13th season will be a lucky one. We're obviously looking for a better season. We have some very talented returning players and we will rely on them. However, we will need some of the new players to step up. The goalkeeper position is also a question mark.
"We'll miss Dave Hartley's 18 goals, but his brother Joel should fill in his shoes nicely. He's the third Hartley we've had and we expect him to do well."

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL

Head coach: Phil LaJoy, fifth season.
League affiliation: Catholic League (Central Division).
Last year's overall record: 9-4-3.
Season opener: 4 p.m, Monday, Aug. 28, at Dearborn.
Notable losses to graduation: Brian Collier (two-time first-team All-Area defender), Andy Gignac (second-team All-Area defender), Dan Kogut (second-team All-Area midfielder), Jeff Buckley, Scott Kahanec and Jon Zuggt.
Promising newcomers: Keith Knoefler, senior defender; Lance Bethel, senior forward; Shawn Kahanec, sophomore midfielder; Travis Miller, senior goalkeeper; Nat Kessler, sophomore goalkeeper.
LaJoy's '95 outlook: "We lost quite a bit from last season (10 players), but I like what we have coming back. We learned a lot last season and have worked hard, so I'm excited about this team. I think we'll have a good, competitive team and hope we have a better record. I believe this team will get better and better as the season progresses."

WAYNE MEMORIAL

Head coach: Larry Brenner, first season.
League affiliation: Mega Conference (Blue Division).
Last year's overall record: First-year varsity program.
Season opener: 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8, at Westland John Glenn.
Promising newcomers: Clint Nemeth, junior defender; Chris Daves, sophomore forward; Jason Pinard, junior forward; Jason Wallace, junior goalkeeper; Jason Bostwick, junior defender.
Brenner's '95 outlook: "A lot of the work we've been doing so far is moving people around to see what positions they can play. We have a lot of new faces and I just have to see where the pieces fit into place.
"As far as the starting lineup, I'm comfortable with what we have.
"(Chris) Daves is real fast and seems to have skill. I've coached (Jason) Pinard before and he's a jack of all trades. (Jason) Wallace is catching on quickly. He's never played before, but wants to be there.
"Nemeth and Bostwick are two of our most experienced."

For one, both came late — too late to launch an effective recruiting campaign. However, the two coaches each have something to build around. Neither was facing an empty roster.

Still, as previously alluded to, both programs needed an overhaul.

And that's where the two coaches' approaches parted. Donahue had five players from last year, and two more who played for SC prior to that, to start with — not a bad foundation for a two-year school. He wasn't idle, though; he rounded up seven others who should help transform the Ocelots into a decent team.

Holowicki wasn't idle, either, but his efforts were less successful. His open tryouts, held throughout the summer at various sites, reaped almost nothing that will provide any help.

"We were looking for anyone who could play," the Madonna coach said. "We'll have to ride the rapids with what we have."

It's not all gloom, but it's hard to project much optimism after a 6-25 season. In Bill Sharpe's two seasons as coach, Madonna managed a meager 8-55 mark.

So saying just about everyone returns doesn't instill much confidence. And noting that two of the better Crusaders — leading scorer Jay Dimes and center Eric Furlotte — are the two losses from last season dims the picture further.

"Things are wide open," said Holowicki. "We've got about 16 guys, though, and that's good. There's a couple of good kids . . . And the work ethic's gotten better.

"At least I was able to get a bead on the kids that are there. That part (of the summer workouts) was good. I got to know them and they got to know me."

Holowicki was dissatisfied with the team's overall physical condition when he took over. That was one thing he feels he changed.

And, for now anyway, it will have to do. He doesn't plan further workouts until October, preferring to let his players acclimate themselves to their classes and schoolwork.

Donahue is through for now, too. But there's no doubt his late-season efforts will make a considerable, and immediate, difference. A program languishing in defeat, season after season, needed an instant boost.

The Hall-of Fame coach supplied just that by bringing in seven players who measure 6-foot-4 or better.

As SC athletic director Ed Kavanaugh noted when asked about former SC coach Dave Bogataj, "Dave was a nice guy, but he just couldn't win."

Donahue will give SC victories — count on that. Holowicki will do the same at Madonna, it just may take a bit longer.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BEST SCORE

Sharon Laskowski, of Plymouth, posted the best score of the day during the Women's Suburban Golf Association tournament at Hudson Mills Golf Course Friday, Aug. 18.

Laskowski shot an 83 to claim low gross honors in first flight. Livonia golfers had the best scores in second and third flights: Sue Beaton, with a 94, in second flight, and June Wright, with a 103, in third flight.

HAWKS CAPTURE CUP

The Livonia YMCA Hawks, an under-14 girls soccer team coached by Farmington's John Buchanan, captured the Waterford Cup last weekend with a 2-0 win over Chippewa Valley in the finals.

The Hawks also beat teams from Flint and Ann Arbor, outscoring their opponents by a combined 11-0.

Members of the Hawks include Susan Bear, Kristin Leszczynski, Deanna McGrath, Brianna Roy, Andi Sied, Stacey Supanich and Michele Vettraino, all of Livonia; Christen Shull and Suzi Towne, Canton; Jessica and Rebecca Brady, Grosse Pointe; Nicole Breger and Laura Grode, Sterling Heights; Alyson Kehler and Gayle Lukes, Grand Blanc; Michaelle Lowe and Kristen Weidle, Royal Oak; Cassie Teeple, South Lyon.

Shannon Loper is the assistant coach with Bill Bear serving as the team manager.

WOLVES 2ND AT MAUMEE

The '85 Michigan Wolves, an under-11 boys soccer team, settled for a runner-up finish in last weekend's Maumee (Ohio) International Tournament.

The Wolves, coached by Joe Knorel, fell to the U.S.L. Pirates of Troy, 2-1, in the championship game.

3-ON-3 CHAMPS

A pair of Canton teams collected titles at the 3-on-3 tournament hosted by Concordia College in Ann Arbor July 30.

In the under-16 boys Division I, members of the Canton Express team finished first: Brent Mullin, Rob Krass, Mike Riemma and Andy Power.

In the under-13 girls Division I, members of the Canton Quest team were winners: Kellee Mullin, Amanda Lentz, Ashley Williams and Lacey Catarino.

SCHOOLCRAFT SPORTS

RECRUITING

Imagine what he could do with a full season to recruit.

Glen Donahue made his presence felt quickly as Schoolcraft College's men's basketball coach. Although he wasn't hired until May, he still managed to pick up nine players which should make the Ocelots considerably better next season.

"We've got a good nucleus to build on," he said.

With Donahue — a Hall of Fame coach who began his collegiate coaching career first at Highland Park CC before taking over at St. Mary's College (most recently, he coached at Redford Bishop Borgess High School) — his reputation precedes him. As a local prep coach noted, "That guy knows everybody. He's got contacts everywhere."

Which had to help. As Donahue noted, "I've been getting calls (from prospects) every day. I think the competition on the team will be very keen."

Donahue did not take over an empty barrel of a program. Five players will return from last season's team, which posted a dismal 3-23 record: Mark Baluk and Jason Maschke, both 6-foot-4 forwards from Livonia Franklin; 6-2 Stan Cavin; 6-1 Dave Pavlak; and 6-foot Doug Walters.

A couple of others who played previously at SC will also return: 6-6 Chris Hebner, from Wayne Memorial, and 6-6 Tim Burns.

Donahue has brought in a pair of transfers, too: 6-5 shooting guard Tyris Williams, a Dearborn Heights Robichaud graduate who attended Pope CC in Winter Haven, Fla., and 6-2½ forward/guard Aaron Brown, a Birmingham Groves graduate who went to Northwood University last year.

What the Ocelots always seemed to lack in the past was size. Donahue has addressed that by signing several sizable prospects.

It starts with Livonia Churchill graduate Rudy Hatfield, a 6-4 forward who is just beginning to develop, according to Donahue. Hatfield played just one year of high school ball.

Then there's 6-6 Jeremy Rule, from Redford Union, a player Donahue described as "an intense, tough, strong, hard-nosed competitor."

Two other sizable signees are 6-6 Naron Burks, from River Rouge, and 6-7 Wesley Scharmen, a Fowlerville product whose parents are on the staff at SC.

To help distribute the ball, Donahue has 5-8 point guard Dwaun Warmack, from Detroit Finney.

All things considered, it should get the Ocelots off to a good start in their first season with Donahue as coach.

But obstacles remain — the first Donahue must clear will appear after the start of the season. The fall semester grades will be posted early in January. Any player who fails to meet academic standards will be ruled ineligible after that.

It was a problem that always plagued former coach Dave Bogataj. If Donahue can keep his players eligible, his troubles will be lessened considerably.

asked. "Who should shoot, who should score, and do we have the patience to get them the ball?"

Salem will have to find answers to those questions quickly if they plan to survive their early-season schedule. The Rocks face Ann Arbor Pioneer and Rochester Adams next week, but the big challenge comes Sept. 16 when defending Class A champion Flint Northern, featuring 6-4 center Tawana McDonald, invades Salem's gym.

It's the kind of competition Salem will have to handle if it is to improve. "I think if we can grow and develop as a team, we can compete," Thomann said.

With defending WLAA champion Walled Lake Central returning its top six players, and with 1994 Final Four qualifier Plymouth Canton and league contender Northville both fielding strong, experienced squads, Salem will need to develop fast to compete.

"My big concern," said Blohm, "is depth."

What about offense? Before Canton's run through the state tournament, the team struggled to score at times.

That won't be the problem this season, Blohm feels. "We won't have as hard a time scoring as rebounding and defending. In our league, and against the non-league opponents on our schedule, we're going to play some pretty large teams."

In the Western Lakes Activities Association, that begins with defending champion Walled Lake Central, which returns all but one of its players. Plymouth Salem also has a sizable team, and Northville is expected to be both experienced and talented.

If Canton is to challenge for the title, the experience it gained through last season's tournament run — which included a 49-35 upset of Walled Lake Central in the quarterfinals — will have to be harvested by veteran players like juniors Mary Anderson and Tiffany Williams, and sophomore Kristin Lukasik. All must step up their game.

Which means translating Blohm's offense into points. This will not be a fast-breaking team, if it follows form: "We have pretty solid perimeter players. We've got a real solid nucleus of kids. I think this group feels good about what they're doing.

"We're not a very good team when we just run down the court and fire up the first shot. We're better when we're a little bit more patient, when we pass it a bit and get good spacing."

If the Chiefs are to match last year's success, Warnke will have to be a more consistent inside scoring threat (she shot only 43 percent from the floor and 50 percent from the free-throw line last season), and newcomers like junior transfer Jennifer MacLellan, a 5-6 guard from Southgate Aquinas, and 5-8 sophomore Nkechi Okwumabua will have to contribute.

"The thing we need to do is balance our inside and perimeter games," said Blohm. "We need to be more consistent in the half-court game. It all comes down to that. You've got to score. The ball has to go in the net."

The elements are in place to make the Chiefs a formidable team again. How formidable depends on how much, and how quickly, they can elevate their game.

ODP makes selections

The process never seems to end.

Just a month ago, the Olympic Development Program regional soccer pools were selected at a 10-day camp in DeKalb, Ill. The players considered for the regional pools were chosen at the ODP state camps held in August, 1994.

Tryouts for the ODP girls state pools, from which regional and eventually national ODP teams for 1996 will be selected, were held Aug. 12-13 at Founders Park in Farmington Hills. Not surprisingly, the Observer & Eccentric coverage area was well represented — 42 players from the Observerland were chosen for the five age-division pools.

■ SOCCER

The following are the Observer-area players selected, by age division (birth dates):

1977-78 — Julie Buczek, Canton; Angie Pandoff, Livonia; Jenny Parviainen, Plymouth; Mamie Vanderburgh, Livonia; Kerri Verardi, Livonia.

1979 — Shawn Chipetewski, Garden City; Anne Fedrigo, Livonia; Sara Kloosterman, Farmington Hills; Kristah Manteuffel, Redford; Emilie Meier, Plymouth; Elizabeth Szkrybalo, Livonia; Andrea Will, Livonia.

1982 — Jessica Bucks, Canton; Lacey Catarino, Westland; Lindsay Gusick, Livonia; Leslie Knapp, Livonia; Stephanie Krieg, Redford; Amanda Lentz, Plymouth; Kristin Leszczynski, Livonia; Deanna McGrath, Livonia; Robynn (Anne) Morrell, Plymouth; Kellee Mullin, Canton; Andrea Schimmel, Canton; Christen Shull, Canton; Andrea Sied, Livonia; Suzanne Towne, Canton.

Team USA snares tournament title

Team U.S.A., a 16-under all-star baseball team consisting of the top Metro area players, won the Windsor Titan Fall Classic tournament over the weekend.

Team U.S.A. captured the championship of the eight-team tournament — played in Windsor and surrounding communities — with four straight victories.

In its opener, Team U.S.A. received a combined shutout effort from pitcher Andrew Goode (Rochester Adams) and Kevin Bildia (Orchard Lake St. Mary's). The Americans defeated the tournament's only other American entry — the Ann Arbor Braves — by a 10-0 score.

■ BASEBALL

Team U.S.A. then defeated the Windsor Titans, 13-3, as southpaw Jeff Trozs (North Farmington) picked up the win. Billy Morris (Redford Union) then stepped up in the third game to hurl Team U.S.A. to a 10-6 victory over another Canadian squad.

Team U.S.A. then met up with the Ann Arbor Braves again for the tournament title. It was a much closer game this time around, but Team U.S.A. prevailed by a 3-2 score.

Mike Hardy (Detroit Country Day) scored the winning run on a wild pitch in the sixth inning and Kevin Thomas (Redford Catholic Central) gained the win.

Two of Team U.S.A.'s top hitters included infielder Ryan Kyes (Country Day) and pitcher/catcher Morris.

Bill LaRosa (Rochester Adams), Andy Alvey (St. Mary's), Michael Noonan (Redford Union), Jared Gell (Country Day), Jeff Purdie (Brother Rice) and Kirk Taylor (North Farmington) were other team members.

Archery season for deer fast approaching

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Thirty-seven days and counting.

If you haven't been keeping track, that's all the time remaining before opening day of the 1995 archery deer season.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources reports that the deer herd is healthy and again approaching the two-million mark.

"This should be an outstanding season for all deer hunters," said DNR big game specialist Ed Langeneau. "We have between 1.8 million and two million deer right now."

If you haven't already honed your shooting skills you're way over due. Maybe you should consider joining a fall golf league this year. You owe it to the deer to be proficient with your equipment and not just rely on blind luck.

But if you're still serious about heading into the woods on Oct. 1 there are a couple events this weekend and in the coming weeks that offer some outstanding practice opportunities.

Royal Oak Archers is holding a two-day 3D Jamboree on Saturday and Sunday at its clubhouse and grounds in Lake Orion while Detroit Archers is holding a 3D shoot Sunday on its walk-through range in West Bloomfield.

Located on Orion Road, just west of Adams, Royal Oak Archers has a beautifully wooded course which wraps around a portion of Paint Creek. The club has three courses with a total of 42 targets and features ground shots from various angles as well as shots from elevated platforms for all you tree-sitters.

Saturday's shoot runs 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday's shoot will run 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will also be novelty shoots, door prizes and a pig roast ($5 adult and $3 children) each day and Oxford Outfitters will have a booth with the latest archery equipment and supplies. ROA is also holding a critter shoot beginning at 8:30 p.m. Saturday night. A flashlight is needed. Registration fee is $10 for each of the day shoots and $5 for the critter shoot. For additional information, call (810) 693-9799 or (810) 628-1212.

Detroit Archers was founded in 1924 by Saxon Pope and Art Young and is Michigan's oldest archery club. Fred Bear was a longtime member and was the club's president in 1933.

Thirty McKenzie targets will be awaiting shooters Sunday at Detroit Archers' 3D shoot. Located at 5795 Drake Rd. (between Maple and Walnut Lake) Detroit Archers owns 31 wooded acres and also offers ground shots and shots from elevated platforms.

Registration is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the cost is $7.50 adult and $3.75 for youths age 17 and under.

On Sept. 9-10 Detroit Archers will hold its annual Bowhunter Jamboree. The Jamboree will feature 42 stations with over 60 targets. Thousands of dollars in archery-related equipment will be given away as door prizes and through raffles and novelty shoots. For additional information. Call Detroit Archers at (810) 661-9610 after 6 p.m.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Aug. 4

HOUSE

Communications: Voting 305 for and 117 against, the House sent to conference with the Senate bill (HR 1555) to deregulate the telecommunications industry, freeing local and long-distance phone companies, cable firms, satellite operators, television companies and others to compete directly against one another. In part, the "Baby Bells" could enter the long-distance market; companies could begin owning both newspaper and broadcast properties in the same community; controls would be lifted from cable TV rates, and limits would be eased on the number of television stations a single company could own.

The bill strips the Justice Department and FCC of much of the authority the have accumulated over the past 50 years, enabling Congress and market forces to shape the future of the telecommunications industry.

A yes vote was to deregulate telecommunications. Area representatives voting yes were: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham. Voting no: Dale Kildee, D-Flint, Sander Levin, D-Southfield and Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor.

Spending Bill: By a vote of 219 for and 208 against, the House sent the Senate a bill (HR 2127) appropriating $255.9 billion in fiscal 1996 for the Departments of Education, Labor and Health and Human Services. About $61 billion is discretionary spending, and the remainder uncuttable entitlement spending for programs such as Medicare and Medicaid. The bill abolishes the office of Surgeon General and eliminates more than 150 programs including President Clinton's Goals 2000 education initiative, summer jobs for youth and home heating aid to the elderly poor. While it gives states the option not to use Medicaid funds to finance abortions except in cases of rape or incest, it keeps alive the federal family planning program (next issues).

Supporter Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., asked: "Wr.at is compassionate about running up a huge federal deficit that is literally going to rob my children, my grandchildren, my great-grandchildren and yours and everybody's in this room. We have a federal deficit today approaching $5 trillion."

Opponent David Obey, D-Wis., called the bill "the meanest, most vicious and the most extreme attack on the children of this country . . . the rights of workers and on many of the most vulnerable citizens that I have ever seen" come out of the Appropriations Committee.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Joseph Knollenberg. Voting no: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin and Lynn Rivers.

Family Planning: Voting 224 for and 204 against, the House restored $193 million to fund the federal government's primary family planning program. The money was added to a bill (HR 2127, above) that had sought to terminate on Oct. 1 the 25-year-old program that provides birth control and medical treatment to more than four million women at 4,200 clinics. The program is opposed by

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.

Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

Blue Care Network
We screen our doctors so you get better choices.

Supporter Rep. James Greenwood, R-Pa., said: "Preventing unplanned pregnancies prevents welfare dependency. It allows poor working women who have no health insurance to have access to contraception, to birth control, to the kind of counseling and health services they need, so they can plan their families and stay off the welfare rolls."

Opponent Christopher Smith, R-N.J., said the vote was "not about ending federal family planning assistance. It is about defunding the abortion industry, restoring state and local control, and redirecting funds to organizations which recognize that the worst problems of teenage children cannot be solved by shutting their parents out of the process."

A yes vote was to maintain the federal family planning program. Area representatives voting yes were: Levin and Rivers. Voting no: Knollenberg and Kildee.

Public Broadcasting: The House rejected, 136 for and 286 against, an amendment to remove $240 million in advance funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting from a pending appropriations bill (HR 2127). The money is for the CPB's fiscal 1998 budget. Its budgets for 1996 and 1997 were previously appropriated. Public broadcasting is slated to eventually lose all of its taxpayer support under the congressional blueprint to balance the federal budget by 2002.

A yes vote was for still deeper cuts in funding for public broadcasting. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Kildee, Levin and Rivers.

SENATE

Missile Defense: The Senate voted 51 for and 48 against to spend $300 million toward construction within the next few years of a nationwide land- and space-based anti-missile defense system to protect the United States against incoming weapons. The vote kept the money in the fiscal 1996 defense budget (S 1026), a bill headed for conference with a House bill that also funds a new anti-missile umbrella. Debate centered on whether the United States would violate treaties with Russia by proceeding on its own with a massive new missile defense system. Also at issue was the projected cost of $25 billion or higher and whether there is an enemy threat to justify such a system in the wake of the Cold War.

Supporter Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said: "The administration's program for national missile defense is simply inadequate. And in my view, the ballistic missile threat facing the United States is significant and growing."

Opponent Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., said: "To call this $300 million — or what eventually will be a $40 billion program — pork is I think unfair to pigs. Hogs carry around a little meat. This in my judgment is pure, unadulterated lard."

A yes vote supported the new anti-missile system. Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D, voted no. Spencer Abraham, R, voted yes.

Appalachia: Voting 60 for and 38 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to reduce the fiscal 1996 budget from $182 million to $142 million for the Appalachian Regional Commission, a Great Society agency that sends development funds to 13 states from Alabama to New York. When the Senate and House recently voted to balance the budget by 2002, they marked the ARC for extinction. This vote came during debate on an appropriations bill (HR 1905) that was sent to conference with the House.

Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said: "The ARC is very important not only to Kentucky but also to a great number of other states."

A yes vote opposed cutting Appalachian commission spending by $40 million. Michigan Senators Levin voted yes. Abraham voted no.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Be judicious when choosing wallpaper patterns

NAOMI STONE LEVY

When you visit a studio that lines up dozens of huge and weighty wallpaper books you may have fallen into a trap from which it is difficult to escape.

It is hoped you know what you are looking for. It is doubtful that you know what you are looking AT. There is nothing more confusing than placing bookmarks between pages to review what you liked as you leafed past them initially. The difficulty lies in the fact that you cannot envisage how any paper will look when it covers four walls. Even the most competent professional with years of experience may forget to translate that small scrap into an entire room.

There are so many categories of wallpapers: huge, bold florals, large scale patterns of more pale coloring, medium size designs, paisleys, minute repeat patterns, wide and narrow stripes, a one-color French "Toile de Jouy," varied scenic papers or a vast array of border papers. I could rant on indefinitely, but I will spare you that agony. I will just try to guide you into a judicious choice.

For very specific reasons dining rooms have their own look, and are a classic room to wallpaper. You should keep in mind you are only in a separated dining room about one hour a day. Additionally, there is a minimum of fabric in evidence, and a maximum of wood furniture shown.

If you own extraordinary dining room pieces they must be the dominating factor, and the paper performs as a background. In that case a wide stripe could be very effective. Hanging good art work now becomes an unparalleled ally. Your furniture is of questionable character? A strong paper pattern could be dynamite. If the design you love is much too strong there is a fantastic ploy. Install a heavy chair rail about 30 inches from the floor, and only use the paper above that. When establishing the exact height of the rail always consider the repeat of the pattern so you don't chop into the middle of it (very disconcerting). Paint a suitable plain color, including white, below the rail.

I haven't discussed hallways and stairwells. We are now talking about a prodigious number of rolls. Expensive, but so complementary to the rest of a home. A meandering design large in scale is within reason. The hallway and/or stairwell are also large in scale. I recommend the coloring be soft and subtle because other adjoining rooms will have their own schemes, and none of these should be in conflict.

Bedrooms have some of the same qualifications for papers as dining rooms. Great furniture, less distinctive paper. Questionable furniture? Allow the paper to dominate. However, there is one major difference. You will spend many more hours in a bedroom than in a dining room, and you should be apprised that the wallpaper must be more subtle and easier to live with. Yes, the pattern may be large in scale. In that case each of the upholstered pieces need be innocuous, but no less handsome. Plain fabrics in special textures, but with little if any pattern. Should your paper be very minute in scale the rest of the room is uncompromised. You are able to use other patterns in conjunction with your tiny design. Perhaps you will accentuate it with a subtle plaid or a medium-sized whimsical secondary configuration.

Wallpaper can enhance almost any bathroom. If the bath is endowed with marble or handsome tiles, forget paper. That would be gilding a lily. Totally unessential. I have been known to use the most costly papers in baths that NEED development. I also love to paper closets. These can be flamboyant papers because much of the pattern will be obliterated by what is hanging. Try covering the ceilings as well as the inside of the doors. When the door stands ajar there is a startling effect.

I would love to discuss wallpaper borders. They are an exceptional tool in almost every interior. Borders can be incredible and complimentary to any of the areas we have discussed, without totally papering. The competence of the installer is important. Every corner must be accurately mitered, the pattern carefully matched, even if some inches of the border are wasted between the cuts. You can frame four sides of a window, paper around the frame of a doorway, or use a border around the perimeter of a room ceiling.

LET'S REMODEL

Design is just a part of building project

Q. I would like to use my home planning computer software to produce a kitchen design for a contractor to use. Do contractors accept these for estimating materials and labor? Will this save me money with an architect?

A. General contractors and architects appreciate clients who have a good idea of the design of the project and the scope of work to be performed. A hand-drawn sketch or a computer-generated drawing may save days or weeks normally spent on design meetings with your architect or design/build contractor. But design is just one component of the project. A budget needs to be established, and all materials need to be specified for an accurate proposal to be generated. Your contractor will guide your decisions on everything from flooring to plumbing fixtures, cabinets to counter tops, based on your budget.

Your kitchen design will not save you a significant amount of money as most architects base their fees on a percentage of the total project budget. As mentioned previously, your preliminary design will get your project off to a quick start as opposed to one starting from scratch. However, your design will probably not satisfy plan review requirements for a building permit at your local building department. Your architect or design/build contractor will need to generate a set of working drawings. These drawings, based on the complexity of your project, may contain information regarding site plan, foundation plan, floor plan with existing walls, walls to be removed and new walls. They also may include exterior elevations, section(s), interior elevations, an electrical plan, as well as material specifications and general notes. If possible, have a preliminary design of your project, either hand sketched or computer generated. Magazine pictures and other ideas that you would like to incorporate are also very helpful. Take advantage of your design/build contractor or architect's years of experience. They will save you time and money, but more important, they will help make your project a success.

Q: What are some of the factors to consider when adding a deck to my house?

A: The key to success in obtaining a great deck is in the design process. Too often this process is minimized or even skipped altogether. Designs can be performed by a variety of professionals (for example, Architect, Landscape Designer, Contractor, etc.) or by yourself. Very often, the adage "you get what you pay for" applies; although your own design will be the least expensive, it potentially could be the most deficient in critical areas.

Good deck design should be as thorough as new house design. Site planning, activity planning, traffic pattern, landscaping, construction materials, lighting, noise, privacy, artistic interest and architectural harmony with your house are a few of the key design issues. All of these areas require familiarity with options and tradeoffs in order to properly arrive at an optimal design for your particular situation.

By spending the proper time making professional, knowledgeable design decisions at the beginning, a carefully planned deck will more than repay the effort for many years to come.

Daylily sale set Saturday

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

The Southern Michigan Hemerocallis Society is having its second annual Daylily Plant Sale 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 26, at the Congregational Church of Birmingham, 1000 Cranbrook Road, at Woodward in Bloomfield Hills.

At the sale, 2,500 plants will be available at reasonable prices.

Many of the 138 members of this society will contribute seedlings.

Some of the members who are hybridizers will also contribute named varieties.

Members of the Southern Michigan Hemerocallis Society will be on hand to answer any questions visitors might have and help choose the perfect plants for their garden location. Applications for membership will be available on the day of the sale. T-shirts and tote bags featuring the daylily motif will be available for purchase, as will cold beverages.

If you are interested in this versatile flower, this is a good opportunity to learn about it and get started on a rewarding garden hobby.

Daylilies are basically disease-free and require very little care. The spear-like foliage is nearly always green and the color and varieties available make them suitable for many landscaping situations. They are a neat plant that can enhance a pool, grow on banks to help stem an erosion problem, and blend well with many other flowers. A bed devoted to one variety and color of daylilies is a spectacular sight.

When you buy your daylily plants at this show, plant them as soon as possible, but if you have other chores to do, the seedlings can be heeled into some moist sand in a shady area. A few days later you may see tiny root fibers that have formed.

If you are planting your treasures in a brand-new bed, dig the soil to a depth of about 12 inches and improve it with well-rotted manure and peat. If your bed has been worked before, it will be fine to simply plant in it. Build a small mound up in the hole and set the tuber on this, letting the roots hang down — spread them out evenly. You can fill the hole with the existing soil or add compost, peat, sand and well-rotted manure to enrich the area. Place the plant the same depth it was originally growing. Water well to settle the plant and to eliminate air pockets.

Daylilies flourish in any type of soil, but if drainage is a problem, they might do better in a raised bed. The object is to have a good friable soil with good drainage. One other consideration is sun. Daylilies perform well in many sites, but in sunnier spots there will be more flowers. Be ready to water the plants in the spring and during the summer when they are flowering.

New plants shouldn't be fertilized in the spring, so mulch with compost until they become established. Older and established clumps of daylilies will benefit from an application of a 5-10-5 or 5-10-10 fertilizer in the early spring. If you choose to mulch your plants in the fall, an application of a 4-8-12 fertilizer applied before the mulch will assure that nitrogen will be available when the plants needs it.

Disintegrator puts waste to good use

PRNewswire — For the nation's more than 54 million dog owners, relief from their worst chore is now just a flick of the finger away. Man's best friend may now be an ingenious new invention that eliminates dog waste in seconds and uses it to instantly fertilize your lawn.

The invention — the OOADA Doggy Doo Disintegrator — works by an unusual system of mashing, cutting and dicing of dog waste in tiny cubicles, specially engineered to produce intense hydraulic pressure by an ordinary garden hose. In seconds, the dog waste is broken down into minute particles that are easily assimilated into the earth.

It is for use in yards, lawns and sand areas. The OOADA Doggy Doo Disintegrator is available in two models — the Conquest, for small dogs up to 15 pounds, and the Annihilator, for dogs more than 15 pounds.

Both tools are lightweight and easily used by small children and elderly people. There is no bending, stooping or scooping of dog waste, and there is nothing mechanical to operate except the power control valve. All that is required is that a person place the disintegrator over the dog waste and pull the trigger. The waste is gone in seconds. There is no need for shovels, scoopers and gloves.

The tool is self-cleaning and comes fully assembled. The parts are made of the highest quality brass fittings, high-impact resins and the finest hydraulic pressure valve. The OOADA eliminates the most distasteful task of owning a pet. It cleans up what a pet leaves behind.

The Conquest sells for $34.95 and the Annihilator for $39.95, plus shipping and handling of $6.95. They are sold with a money-back guarantee and a one-year warranty, although they should last a lifetime with reasonable care. The OOADA can be bought by calling (800) 956-6232 or by writing to American Hygienic Systems Inc., P.O. Box 2431, Jupiter, Fla. 33468-2431.

Kids' activity 'book' offered on Internet

Lenore Paxton, partner of Troy-based children's book publisher Worldkids Press, has announced that "Sing, Color'n Say" is now available for browsing on the World Wide Web.

Computer users hooked into the Internet can find "Sing, Color'n Say" at http://www.webpub.com/worldkids/.

"Sing, Color'n Say" is a series of children's activity packs containing a coloring book with a story, and a sing along cassette. Each activity pack — "Going to Grandma's," "Happy B-I-R-T-H Day," "Christmas Time of Year," "His Name Was David" and "Noah and the Ark" — teaches children about cultures and customs from around the world while they color and sing to the music. At the end of each tape, youngsters learn an entertaining phrase, such as "I love you, Grandma," in 10 different languages.

■ 'We have opportunity to introduce our stories to children all over the world, allowing them to embrace and understand a variety of cultures.'

Lenore Paxton
Worldkids Press

"This is a big step for us," Paxton said. "We have opportunity to introduce our stories to children all over the world, allowing them to embrace and understand a variety of cultures. Our books and tapes are about being part of the 'global experience,' and the World Wide Web is the epitome of that."

By accessing the Worldkids Press page, viewers can hear a sample of songs from each title, view a page of the coloring book and read a brief description of the activity pack. Interested browsers can use their Visa or MasterCard to have a "Sing, Color'n Say" shipped to them.

For the non-experienced net surfer, "Sing, Color'n Say" is available locally at all major bookstore chains (B. Dalton, Barnes and Noble, Borders, Waldenbooks and Meijer) and nationally at Waldenbooks For Kids and Waldenbook Combo stores.

Porches with personality say welcome home

STORY BY SPECIAL WRITER RENEE SKOGLUND

Summer is the season for porches. Newly painted, adorned with colorful flowers and comfortable furniture, porches extend a welcome to all who pass by. But not all porches are created equal. They're like people. They come in different sizes, and some have more personality than others.

Doris Paulin's small, Garden City bungalow was transformed recently by the addition of a big, Southern style covered porch that wraps around two sides of the house like a comfortable apron. Finished in June, the porch measures 30 feet by 40 feet and required 30 gallons of paint.

"At first I said I just want a front and a back porch, but my friend Morgan said, "We're building a porch,'" said Paulin, an energetic senior who has lived in the house for 48 years.

Mr. Morgan, her neighbor, contacted Eco Construction of Garden City. Inspired by a picture of the Wright brothers home in Greenfield Village, owner Jim Rowell created a porch that deserves to be in the "Porch Hall of Fame."

"Ours is more detailed than theirs," Rowell said.

He also built a bricked and picket fenced courtyard leading up to the porch.

According to Paulin's daughter, Shirley Okon, the porch became somewhat of a tourist attraction while it was being built.

"People called it veranda. They said we should serve mint juleps," she said.

Paulin's own brother failed to recognize the house when he recently visited from the Upper Peninsula.

"He said, "Did new people buy this?' I said, "No, it's the same old lady who's lived here all these years.'"

Porch parlor

Betty and Bob Ryan's Plymouth home is closer to its original Victorian appearance thanks to the remake of their front porch. This spring, they raised both the floor and roofline several inches and expanded the porch's depth from three to eight feet. Plymouth builder James Fisher did the major construction, including the columns and railings.

"When he was done, I reshaked the second floor, put the shingles on and did the finish trim. Then I painted," Bob said.

The Ryans moved several pieces of wicker furniture down from their second floor sun porch and arranged it in casual groupings. Betty added a few planters and hanging baskets. The effect is an outdoor summer parlor.

"The only thing we're planning to add is a porch swing at the west end of the porch," Bob said.

"It's amazing how many people we've met from town just because we sit out on the porch," Betty said.

"In the month we've had it, we spend more time here than anywhere else," Bob added.

Garden look

Barbara and Scott Macdonald's 1920s home was the first built in Livonia's Rosedale Gardens. It formerly belonged to a master gardener and was recently featured in the neighborhood's annual garden walk.

"I'm just a wannabe master gardener," Barbara said.

The Macdonalds' porch is an example that small says "welcome" as easily as big. It packs a lot of personality into its five foot by seven foot size.

"It's just evolved over the two years that we've been here," Barbara said.

A garland of flower-covered vines crowns the front door, and above that sits a tree-embossed iron fire plate from the 1800s. The porch's simple black wrought-iron railing and an assortment of pots, planters, wreaths and antiques contribute to the home's English country garden look.

"This is truly a budget," Barbara said. "The only thing that's over $10 is the birdhouse. I usually make my own. I spent a whopping $20."

Prized porch

There's no rule that says all porches must be in front of the house. Rob and Marcy Fisher's big 14 foot by 30 foot screened back porch runs half the length of their home in Bloomfield Hills, a ranch built in 1957.

"You don't buy a house because of the porch, but I did," Rob said,

Rob comes from a long line of porch lovers, beginning with his grandfather.

"He'd buy a house and he would start building porches, and when he had porches built all around the house, he moved," Rob said.

The Fishers' porch combines durability and good looks, a real plus for a family with four active children. The porch has a terrazzo floor and vintage metal furniture.

"I have 1950s Woodward furniture. I know it's collector stuff. I think it's steel," said Marcy, who limits additional decorating to plants and flowers.

Durability of any style porch is related to maintenance. Both Paulin and the Ryans used a Sherwin Williams oil-based enamel.

"Dirt definitely has a lot to do with the deterioration of paint," said professional porch painter Tom Morse of Dearborn Heights, who painted the Paulin porch. He recommends any good liquid detergent.

But, really, everybody knows the only thing any porch needs is a good summer breeze.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

1995: A good year for some, but not all

JOE GAGNON

I think I'll write a song about 1995, which goes like this, WHEN IT WAS 95, IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR, IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR FOR SERVICE CALLS AND APPLIANCE SALES. By golly folks, I could write a song, but I have trouble just trying to be a journalist and doing a good job for the readers of this column.

This year is proving to be a banner year for the heating and air conditioning industry, the appliance sales and service industry and the utility company which provides electricity to your home. The many lightning storms we've been through have also provided busy times for other industries. It's been a terrific year for many, except, those of us who have been hit in the pocket book by nature's wrath.

Let me give you some examples of what consumers have gone through this past July and August. The lady pulls up to the shop door with her 12000 BTU air conditioner in the back of the van. She needs this fixed now, it's 92 degrees and 400 percent humidity and she can't stay in the house another day. She's mad and hot as hell because it is only 6 months past the warranty period. The dealer won't help her and can't even sell her a new one because he ran out of air conditioners two weeks ago. She's screaming at me, blue murder, and wants this air conditioner fixed while she waits. She is not leaving and neither are the five customers who are waiting in line to purchase a part. They all came in after her, and think that I must really have ripped off this lady.

The phone is ringing at the rate of five times a minute and she won't shut up so I can hear the people talking on the phone. Now folks, I am getting just a little bothered by this situation, especially knowing that I haven't done a blessed thing wrong. I can't hit her, she's a woman. I can't shoot her, it's against the law. All I can do is help her, so here is what I did.

First of all, I tried to be humble and inform her that I was the president of S.O.C.A.P., an international organization of fortune 500 companies which fostered good customer relations and satisfaction. I didn't even get a smile. I then asked her if she listened to my radio show on Saturdays on WJR radio and she said she listens to FM only. At this point I said to myself, "Ask her if she reads the newspaper," which I did. Let me assure you that it was the last question I was going to ask. She doesn't read anything because you can't believe anything you read. Remember the five customers who are waiting in line, now it's seven and nobody's leaving the show. I'm in a pickle and my big egotistical mind has me on the wrong side of good customer relations.

Quickly, I put the air conditioner on the work bench and I have the two shop technicans handle the phones. It takes me less than five minutes to take the casing off the air conditioner. Now the audience has grown to nine people and I have them all inside the workshop. I close the door so no one else can join us and, besides, there isn't enough room for another person to fit in.

What I'm doing now is holding a seminar similar to the ones I do at the Silverdome or Cobo Hall. The only difference is that I get paid big bucks at those places and I'm getting a lot of static at this one.

As I'm talking with this audience now, I'm also removing the casing, and when done I can see that the problem is with this nice lady's air conditioner. The inside of the condenser is so plugged up that it looks like someone put a blanket across the inside of it. I plug it in and the compressor is on locked rotor. This means a $400 bill to repair this unit and I am not in a big hurry to tell this nice lady. Now I'm not angry anymore, I just feel so sad for this lady who just a few minutes ago I could have cross checked with my hockey stick. I didn't ask this time, I told her that if she had listened to the radio show, or read the Observer-Eccentric paper, she could have prevented this. I informed everybody that you should take your air conditioner to the car wash and put the hose to it and clean it. Millions of consumers buy an air conditioner every year when they really don't need to if only they would clean the one they have. It really is sad for not only this lady but many others.

If only they would know what you the reader of this column has already learned in only the past few months of reading. By the way, this nice lady left in tears and apologized for being so mean and emotional. She also told me that it was not air conditioning she needed for herself but that she needed it for her 87-year-old motherr who she cared for.

1995 was a very good year for some, but not for evegone

This air conditioner is in my work shop and will be used to show people how and why it's important to keep the condenser clean. Stop by, take a look and then you'll understand. Keep reading, I'll be in touch with you right here in this newpaper.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, wil answer you questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is the author of 'First Aid from the Appliance Doctor.'

TREASURE SEARCH

These items may have stumped the experts

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank:
I've been trying to identify these two items for several years. They're about 13 inches long, have wood shafts and ends of blue and white porcelain. I hope you will be able to tell me something about them.
Kenneth, Farmington Hills

Dear Kenneth:

You may have stumped the experts! We've mulled this one over very carefully and can only say that it's our gut reaction that these two items are bar or kitchen implements of some kind. We feel that the upper item with the extended points is a stirring rod or pastry crimper. We feel the lower item, which is concave on one side and convex on the other, could be used to scoop up a punch, mulled wine or some other form of grog, even though the depression is relatively small compared to huge 20th century punch ladles.

It's our recollection that punch ladles, more familiar to all of us, were much smaller in previous centuries than what we're used to today. The wood handles may or may not be original. The form and porcelain appears to be more European than Oriental, possibly Holland Delft. The photo isn't clear enough for us to make this determination, but we'd be delighted to take a closer look if you can rephotograph or bring in the items.

Perhaps some of our readers could shed some light on this mystery. We feel that these items fall into the collectible or curiosity department and would retail today at around $20 to $30 each.

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Include your name, community and phone number.

Mysterious items: These pieces may have stumped the experts. The objects could be bar or kitchen implements.

Column moved him to poetry

Jerry Kelly of Oakland, "The Irish Poet," wrote the following poem after reading the recent Treasure Search column about a zither.

"When I see an article in The Eccentric which touches my heartstrings I'm forced to write a poem about it," Kelly said in an accompanying letter. "Nancy and Frank Boos' article on zithers got my 72-year-old, never-transplanted heart jumping good."

IF YOUNG AGAIN

If young again, and had my choice
I'd speak right up, and raise my voice,
On this one thing I'd not be errant
I'd notify 'em. Either parent,
I'd tell 'em I would not play drums
No matter how they beat their gums,
A trumpet's out! I'd not play sax,
I'd tell 'em both to just relax.

The thing I'd really like to play
From winter time, on up to May,
Is over there. I'll bring it hither.
A chordophone. Some call a zither.

This zither sets my heart on fire
Like harp, and bow, and lute, and lyre.
So, Mom and Dad, I'm now advisin'
I need my music tranquilizin'

Don't get mad, or in a dither
I need my psaltery, santir, zither!

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

It's mind and heart that make great photos

MONTE NAGLER

One of the best ways to shift from "taking snapshots" to "making photographs" is to realize that the true lens of the camera is in the mind and heart of the photographer. This is the lens that lets us all appreciate the beauty in the world around us.

The lens that looks at a sunset, a flower, a dramatic landscape or the smile of a child and really gets "turned on" isn't the lens in front of the camera. Rather, it's the lens inside of us.

We all know about grammar in the English language. We know where to place the commas and the periods just as with our cameras we know basically how to set shutter speeds and lens openings.

What is important is to do as the writer does. He or she isn't as concerned about where the comma goes as to the words flowing from the heart. The writer makes grammar a secondary thing, just as we have to make the mechanics of photography a secondary thing and concentrate on the importance of what we're feeling and trying to "say" with our photographs.

We can all learn to get proper exposure with our cameras. Now let's work on getting proper exposure with our photographic feelings.

Photographs speak in a strong language. They can bring out a person's raw emotions and can make someone happy, sad, even angry.

A photograph can stir people to action or just make us feel good. In short, a photograph — and we as photographers — have the ability to reach out and touch the nerves of human emotions that often the spoken or written word cannot.

We have the ability to make visible what others can only sense. What an exciting concept!

But we can only do this when we learn not to underexpose our feelings. Remember, it's not the brush of the artist that produces the painting, not the bow of the violin that produces the music, nor the pen of the poet that writes the sonnets. Similarly, it's not the camera that produces the photograph — it's really you!

Put your "inside" lens to work for you and become a poet with your camera.

'inner' vision: Monte Nagler put his "inner lens" to work when he made this unusual and dramatic photo of a dilapidated fence at Teton National Park.

GARDEN SPOT

As fall approaches, care for indoor plants

MARTY FIGLEY

Did you ever think that the hot, hot weather would ever leave us? What a summer we have had, but now fall is approaching and it's time to prepare to bring our house plants back indoors and settle them in for the winter months.

The first thing to do right now is to reduce the fertilizer applications as well as water. Nature has already begun (or soon will) to weaken the sun's rays, thus reducing the light available to the plants. This is good, because we all are aware that light is a very important factor to plant growth and unless artificial lighting is used, they will be ready for the reduced light that is in our homes. Now is also the time to re-pot plants that have outgrown their pots. Use a potting soil that is light and drains well. A few weeks outdoors will give the newly potted plants time to grow new roots.

Examine your plants carefully and pitch those that aren't up to your standards. Sometimes it is hard to do, but in the long run you will enjoy a lush plant much more than a scraggly one. On the other hand, you might have a friend who loves to nurse a needy plant back to a robust condition. If they are very large, perhaps a school, library or nursing home could use them.

Some of your plants may need to be pruned so cut off unwanted branches and trailing stems. A full vining plant could be cut back by a third. Don't prune Norfolk Island Pine.

Your plants will appreciate a bath to wash off the dust from their outdoor vacation. Large plants can be hosed off with a gentle spray from the hose and wiped down with a soft sponge. Small plants can be swished in a bucket of soapy water. To keep the soil from falling out, secure a plastic bag around the pot and the stem of the plant. Rinse with clear water.

Check for unwanted insects and critters. Be sure to look at the bottom of the pots and the soil. If you see any problems, spray the plants while they are outside — it's easier to do then than when they are indoors.

Watch the temperatures next month and get the plants indoors before it drops below 50 degrees. Most of our house plants are tropical and can't survive cold temperatures. Also, if they are brought in before the furnace comes on, they will have a chance to become acclimated to less fresh air before the heat of the furnace causes the humidity in the house to drop.

When you return the plants indoors, put them in the lightest possible area that you have. Try to put them where they will get some sunshine, even the ones that do well with low light. The sun won't burn the leaves at this time.

MARTY FIGLEY

Summer vacation: All house plants benefit from a summer spent outdoors.

You'll need to change the watering schedule. The plants won't dry out as readily as they did outdoors. Don't water until the plant really needs a drink. Most authorities recommend no fertilization from November to February in our climate.

Humidity is another important consideration, so group plants that like the same conditions together and, if possible, fill a tray with marbles or pebbles and keep water in it. Don't let the bottoms of the pots touch the water.

New rose

Experts are calling the new Flower Carpet Rose "probably the most disease-resistant rose ever bred" and it is now available for purchase. Look for a rose in an eight-inch pink pot. This rose sounds too good to be true! The bush is low and compact, 24 to 36 inches tall and about three or more feet wide. Each pink flower cluster (usually six to eight inches in diameter) contains around 18 blooms. It likes full sun, but will tolerate some shade and it thrives in sandy or clay soils. The foliage has glossy bright green leaves that can remain evergreen. Pruning is minimal.

The iridescent rose-pink tinged bloom has a white center, is subtly fragrant and is self-cleaning — no deadheading is required. The Flower Carpet Rose, var. Noatraum, is suitable for any garden spot, including slopes, containers and hanging baskets. It can be trained as a tree rose.

INVITING IDEAS

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Don't run from zucchini

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Every August I have a reoccurring Techicolor dream, or shall I say, nightmare titled — "Attack of the Killer Zucchini." For those of you with vegetable gardens adorned with prolific elongated green summer squash, this dream needs little explanation or interpretation.

My dream always ends the same way — with neighbors and friends locking their doors and bolting their windows — this part of the dream does seem to resemble real life!

Zucchini just seems to grow and grow, no matter what type of soil, (regardless of what gardening books say), weather conditions, or how quickly you can pick it. In just a few days, pickled-sized zucchini can become a huge mutation right out of a Sci-Fi horror flick — or a blue ribbon prize winner at your local Labor Day festivity.

Zucchini ideas

Tempura batter-fried zucchini blossoms, zucchini breads (sweet or savory), zucchini lasagna, raw zucchini rounds in salads or a prime feature in a fresh crudite, chunky vegetable soup (heavy on the zucchini), zucchini moussaka, grilled spears of herbed zucchini, zucchini tarts (quiche), zucchini stuffed with rice and meat, carved zucchini for table decorations, zucchini boats to hold sauces or dips, melange of julienne vegetables (do lots of green and yellow zucchini, and pasta — served hot or cold. You can even make zucchini pancakes by substituting grated zucchini for potatoes.

RUTH'S CHOCOLATE CARAMEL CHERRY ZUCCHINI BREAD

- ¾ cup butter or margarine
- 2 cups sugar
- 5 egg whites
- 2½ cups sifted flour
- ½ cup unsweetened caramel flavored cocoa (Frango cocoa, available at Hudson's)
- 1½ teaspoons baking soda
- 2½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup ½ percent milk
- 2 cups shredded zucchini
- ½ cup dried Michigan cherries

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Grease and flour two bread/loaf bans (8½ by 4½-inches).

In a mixing bowl cream together butter or margarine and sugar — mix until light and fluffy — add egg whites and mix well.

See INVITING, 17D

Combine the flour, caramel cocoa, baking soda and baking powder — add to the creamed butter and sugar mixture, alternately with the milk.

Gently add in the zucchini and the dried cherries.

Pour batter evenly into the two loaf pans. Bake until nicely browned and cake tester comes out clean, 50 minutes to one hour.

ZUCCHINI TART

- Pastry for 9-inch tart shell (homemade or prepared)
- Parchment paper — cut to fit the bottom of pan
- Egg wash — 1 egg plus 1 tablespoon cold water
- 2-3 small zucchini (approximately 1¼ pounds)
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons shallots, peeled and minced
- ¾ teaspoon sea salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- 1 teaspoon fresh oregano leaves, finely chopped
- 2 cups light sour cream
- 2 extra large eggs, slightly beaten
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ¾ cup light Cheddar cheese, freshly grated
- ¼ cup Parmesan cheese, freshly grated
- Paprika — mild or hot — to taste

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Place the rolled out pastry dough evenly over a tart pan with a removeable bottom. Trim off any excess pastry dough from top of tart pan.

Place a circle of parchment paper over dough and weigh down with pie pellets, raw rice, or dry beans — whatever you have handy.

Bake the tart shell about 10-12 minutes, or until crust begins to turn lightly golden. Remove the parchment paper and weights. Brush the inside of the tart with the egg wash. Return to oven for 2 minutes to seal the lining. Remove from oven and let cool. Lower oven temperature to 325 degrees F.

Wash and dry zucchini — slice very thin into rounds.

In a skillet, saute the shallots in butter or margarine for two minutes, then add the zucchini — continue to saute for several minutes while adding in the salt and white pepper. Remove from heat source.

In small bowl mix together the sour cream, eggs and baking powder. Set aside momentarily.

Place a layer of zucchini mixture evenly over the bottom of the tart — add a layer of the sour cream/egg mixture followed by a layer of both types of grated cheese. Continue layering beginning with zucchini and ending with cheese.

Sprinkle the top of the tart with paprika and bake for 40-45 minutes or until puffy and golden brown.

BACKYARD NATURE

Beautiful water lillies are a boon to nature

TIM NOWICKI

It is fortunate that such beautiful flowers are also beneficial for wildlife. Their seeds provide food for birds and other animals, their leaves provide shade and cover for fish, and their roots are eaten by muskrats.

Lillies of the lakes are reflective of the colors of the meadows in midsummer. Fragrant water-lily with its white petals, yellow bullhead-lily and yellow spadderdock are common water plants that are blooming. These species of lily can often be found growing together, though spadderdock doesn't grow in the northern half of the lower peninsula.

From the level of a canoe, when seen from a distance, the white blossoms of fragrant water-lily appear to grow in dense clusters. They remind me of the dense growth of Queen Anne's lace growing in fields throughout the state. Now those fields are showing some signs of yellow goldenrod — reminiscent of the patch of water-lily I saw recently accented with some bullhead-lily.

The intensely white petals of the fragrant water-lily look like a field of ripe cotton that has fallen to the ground. But upon closer examination, the beautiful white petals are accented by a butter yellow interior. Be sure to notice the wonderful fragrance of these flowers.

Surrounding the large flower are the plate-like leaves that float on the surface. They are more like a pie with a piece missing. A noticeable notch extending about a quarter of the way to the center of the leaf creates two lobes. At the end of each lobe is a recurved flaring. If you had a bass-eye view of the leaf it would be purple.

In southeastern Michigan the yellow associate with the fragrant water-lily can be either the bullhead-lily or the spadderdock. Both have a yellow flower that suggests a tulip. Fortunately, the leaves are different. Bullhead-lily has a rounded leaf with a notch removed like the other lillies. Each lobe of the leaf created by the narrow notch is rounded. Spadderdock, on the other hand, has a wide notch (greater than 45 degrees).

It is fortunate that such beautiful flowers are also beneficial for wildlife. Their seeds provide food for birds and other animals, their leaves provide shade and cover for fish, and their roots are eaten by muskrats. It would be nice if the endangered American lotus was as common as the fragrant water-lily. They too are beautiful and beneficial.

Next time you visit a lake look for these beautiful flowers and take time to examine them closely.

Gasoline generators rated by hours of power

BARRY JENSEN

Keep the size of the gasoline tank in mind when you go out looking for a gasoline-powered generator. Gasoline tanks come in sizes rated by how long they keep the generator going: the longer the better.

We have received a couple inquiries about standby gasoline-powered generators, the ones that you could buy and put in your garage (or cottage) until the power fails.

Most gasoline-powered generators are designed to supply power "on the job," allowing a worker to use his electric tools when there is no nearby source of electric power. A generator used for this kind of portable power doesn't need a large gasoline tank. It has to run just an hour or two, and refilling a gasoline tank is not a big chore.

Keep the size of the gasoline tank in mind when you go out looking for a gasoline-powered generator. Gasoline tanks come in sizes rated by how long they keep the generator going: the longer the better. But often you will see a two-hour tank. This is not enough if you want to replace enough electricity to keep your household running electrically for a couple days.

You can stretch the length of time a generator will run between refills by running it at half its rated power (using a 2,000-watt generator to produce 1,000 watts). This means buying a heavier (and more expensive) generator. But big engines run more smoothly than small engines.

If you plan to run electronic equipment with your generator, be sure to find out whether the manufacturer says its generator will produce the kind of power needed to run electronic equipment. There is a big difference in generating power for a drill and generating power for a home computer.

The power can be pretty "rough" and still do a fine job with a concrete drill. But that power won't do such a good job with the computer.

If you want to run a home computer and the generator you select does not put out smooth-enough power, you'll have to invest in something that will "smooth out" the power.

Generators usually have several electrical outlets. You probably will want to buy several heavy-duty extension cords to carry the power from these outlets. If possibley keep the length of the cords down to 50 or even 25 feet. The longer the extension cord, the greater the voltage drop.

Another concern is the noise your machine will make. If you live in a city with a noise ordinance, you could very well violate it with a gasoline-powered electricity generator. Check this out.

But if you live in a rural area, or are buying a generator because your cottage power is unreliable, noise may not be much of a problem.

Depending on your planned use, you may want to store gasoline for your generator. When the electricity goes off, service station gasoline pumps won't pump; they are powered by electricity. If you are concerned about wide-spread power failures (such as those in New York), store some gas — but never in an occupied dwelling. Put some shelf-life extender in the gasoline to keep it from going bad so quickly.

Barry Jensen welcomes your comments and suggestions for topics for future columns. His telephone number is 313-953-2125. This number has voice mail attached, so you can call at any time.

Checking: Home inspector John McCormick explains furnace efficiency to Angie and Ken Schonk.

Inspector will tell you the truth

BY JILL HOCKMAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Because there are no perfect houses, there are house inspectors like John McCormick of Birmingham.

McCormick goes to work armed with a ladder, a large yellow flashlight, a beeping gas detector and a tiny tape recorder. It's all the equipment he needs to tell prospective buyers about the condition of the house they want to buy.

Sometimes his findings are disappointing. Other times they're a relief. And the experience is always educational, especially for first-time buyers like Ken and Angie Schonk.

The Schonks recently hired McCormick to inspect a house in Royal Oak that they planned to buy. During a two-hour tour of the house's interior and exterior, McCormick reviewed the condition of its heating, electrical and plumbing systems.

He evaluated the house's structure, checked the roof, told the Schonks how to prevent a wet basement and showed them the location of the main water valve.

McCormick, like other house inspectors, also offered countless tips on a variety of subjects _ from furnace maintenance to roofing improvements.

A house inspection is an objective visual examination of the physical structure and systems of a house, from the roof to the foundation. It's usually performed for prospective house buyers after a purchase agreement has been signed.

In many cases, the purchase agreement is contingent upon the findings of a house inspector. Some real estate agents require house inspections with every sale.

The main purpose of a house inspection is to make sure a prospective buyer understands the condition of a house before buying it.

"I tell them exactly what to expect in a house," said Cris Kuharich, a house inspector who owns "The Inspectors!" in Canton.

A typical house inspection takes about two hours and costs about $250. But the time and price can vary depending on the size and age of the house.

"There is no such thing as a perfect house," explained Chris Lee, an agent with Real Estate One in Royal Oak who listed the 1,100-square-foot Royal Oak house. But learning about a house's condition and the need for any major repairs before buying cuts down on unpleasant surprises later.

Most frequently found problems include leaking or old roofs, wet basements, bad furnaces and electrical botches, local house inspectors said.

"Problems only become a hassle when they surface later and nobody knows about them," said Jim Stevens, a real estate broker with Coldwell Banker Preferred in Plymouth.

Some municipalities, such as Westland, require a house to be checked by a city inspector when it is sold. This type of inspection checks for safety, sanitary and health hazards. It is valuable _ but not as thorough _ as an inspection by a private house inspector.

Local real estate agents and inspectors say the number of house inspections performed has exploded during the last six years. Even some mortgage lenders now require house inspections.

"I think it has grown primarily because of the acceptance of the real estate industry," said Dan Wood, a building inspector and part owner of American Inspection in Clarkston. "Most of the real professionals feel that it helps them to help their clients make a more sound decision."

For prospective buyers who want to choose a house inspector, "experience is the key," said Harold Weine of Alert Home Inspection Inc. in Southfield.

Don't shop prices. Instead, shop qualifications, he said. Those qualifications should include membership in the American Society of Home Inspectors, a professional organizations that requires rigorous professional and educational requirements, Weine said. Other local inspectors agreed.

But Kuharich played down the importance of ASHI membership. She described the organization as a "good old boys network." If an inspector is not a member, he or she is not necessarily a bad inspector, she said.

Rick Bowling, inspector and owner of AmeriSpec in Plymouth, said customers shopping for an inspector should ask if the inspector will get up on the roof. "There's just an awful lot of things you just can't see unless you're on the roof," he said.

McCormick said prospective buyers should be careful not to hire an inspector who has a home-improvement business and could be trying to sell his services instead of offer an objective house evaluation.

Also important: prospective buyers should show up for the inspection and ask lots of questions, said Beverly Clemo, associate real estate broker at RE/MAX in the Hills, Bloomfield Hills.

"Unfortunately, many buyers and real estate agents don't take (house inspections) seriously," she said. "Many buyers don't show up for inspections . . . they're really missing out on the gist of the inspection."

Chemical sensitivities are a legitimate concern

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I am concerned about my homeowner association that uses pesticides on lawns over the objection of several residents who claim that they are "chemically sensitive" to the use of these pest control practices. I have been a consultant to the board and believe that they should be more conscious of the members' concerns in light of these circumstances. Do you have any opinion on this?

A. The Federal Fair Housing Act has been used as a basis by certain complainants to pursue community associations such as neighborhood organizations, condominium associations, land owners and municipalities to make reasonable accommodations for residents with disabilities. Being "chemically sensitive" to pesticides may well fall within the category of a disability. Recourse by a plaintiff can be to the Department of Housing and Urban Development which may, on its own, bring a suit in behalf of the plaintiff, and/or the complainant can pursue a private suit. In any event, associations should be more mindful of the fact that many of their residents may be chemically sensitive and that they should adopt an integrated pest management program which includes non-chemical alternatives to pesticides; establish a pesticide free zone around chemically sensitive homeowners' homes, use pesticides only as a last resort, and only in limited amounts in areas actually infested with pests and, where possible, provide seven (7) days notice whenever a pesticide is used.

Q. I am writing you out of desperation because of my next door neighbor who is truly a neighbor from hell. We live in a coop and were promised peaceful enjoyment but our next door neighbor does everything she can to make our life miserable. She has "hood winked" the police and the Association and its management company who will not do anything about it. She calls the police on us, even though she has outdoor parties until 2:30 a.m., calls us names, does not abide by the rules, has an excessive number of vehicles, bangs on our walls, runs a loud fan, and does everything to push us to the brink. Other members have been forced to move. We have tried the police, management, our Board, HUD officials, lawyers, and now wonder whether you have some miracle up your sleeve.

A. There are obviously no easy answers to this very difficult, but pervasive problem which you and many other members of community associations share in common. Ultimately, the Cooperative has recourse against the neighbor assuming that it can prove the allegations of your complaints which, in many instances, are subjective, such as noise, name calling and the like. However you, as a member of the Cooperative, also have a cause of action against the neighbor for violations of the Cooperative Documents and rules, conducting a nuisance, etc. As in any civil proceeding, it is necessary for you to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that, in fact, there has been a violation of your rights and/or that the neighbor has violated the rules and regulations. Unfortunately, it simply boils down to you being in a position to decide whether you wish to seek legal recourse or move to the extent that you can sell your Cooperative unit. If there are other neighbors who are similarly situated as you, I would band together and form a committee, retain an attorney, and have the attorney write the cooperative, its managing agent, and your neighbor advising them of the various legal remedies which you have.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation.

Now may be time to switch ARM

ON MORTGAGES
DAVID C. MULLY

If you are one of the many people today on an ARM (adjustable rate mortgage) program, now may be the time to convert to a fixed-rate mortgage.

Some of you may have a built in option to do a conversion for a minimal fee (read your arm disclosure form in the mortgage documents you received at closing). If you do, contact your lender to find out what the process is to complete the conversion to a fixed rate.

First thing to do is to ask your lender what the new interest rate would be if you converted today? Depending on how long ago you obtained your mortgage, your interest rate may have adjusted upward by now, possibly even a couple of times. The result could be a significantly higher rate. That being the case you'd probably end up with a better rate now if you converted to a fixed rate.

This would be easier than going through the normal paperwork or extra cost associated with refinancing, although you may got a better rate by refinancing.

The choice is yours to compare which way is more beneficial to your particular situation. If you do not have an option to convert on your ARM mortgage you may still want to explore refinancing. You may find that you want to consider another ARM mortgage when refinancing because of the low rate and the fact that you're not planning on staying in your home long term. Try to obtain an ARM mortgage with a conversion option. Simply ask your lender to give you your options in writing so you can compare and select what mortgage program is best for you.

Some other reasons to check into refinancing if you have an ARM mortgage is that you probably have a balance on your mortgage that is less than when you started, the value of your home has most likely appreciated. It you had put less than 20 percent as a downpayment when you purchased your home, you most likely have an additional monthly charge called PMI or premium mortgage insurance. This charge can be dropped if your new appraisal on your home shows the value has gone up enough to give you the 20 percent equity position required to not charge the PMI fee. This alone would be a big benifit in refinancing. It is not automatic for your current lender to drop off this PMI charge when you feel you have the necessary 20 percent equity. Most lenders do not have a written policy on how to got the PMI dropped off, just call and ask what the policy is. If they refuse to even consider dropping it off, look into switching to another lender.

In conclusion take some time periodically to evaluate your current mortgage and how it compares to what is being offered in today's market, it could save you a bundle in the long run.

This will be Dave's last weekly column on mortgage shopping tips. He is moving into the automotive field.

If you would like to contact Dave Mully, you can reach him at his new work number at 313-453-2424, ext.241.

LTU offers program on condo managing

Lawrence Technological University in Southfield and the Apartment Association of Michigan are working together to offer a nationally recognized certification program for apartment and condominium managers.

The Registered in Apartment Management program, the oldest residential property management certification in the U.S., is offered exclusively in southeastern Michigan through LTU.

The course is approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for providing quality training programs to managers of multi-family rental, condominium, cooperative, subsidized and market rate housing.

"In an age of tighter operating budgets and increased regulatory requirements, the industry depends on site managers with the skills and knowledge for outstanding job performance," said David Sparrow, president of the apartment association and Management Corporation of Michigan in Bloomfield Hills.

"Getting top quality training through Registered in Apartment Management is the best way for multi-family managers to increase their effectiveness," Sparrow continued. "And the nationally-recognized RAM designation helps the manager to enhance his or her professional image."

To register for the program, or for more information, contact LTU's Division of Continuing Education and Professional Development at (810) 204-4050 or by fax at (810) 204-4017.

The 40-hour program will be held once a week in three-hour sessions for 14 weeks beginning Sept. 12 at LTU's campus, 21000 West 10 Mile.

The RAM program will be taught 2:45-5:45 Tuesdays. Cost is $595.

Core subjects include resident relations, accounting and finance, marketing and leasing, personnel management, maintenance and legal aspects of managing apartment communities.

Through lecture and group interaction, the RAM curriculum conveys successful management principles and practices.

Gary A. Kecskes, director of the division, expressed delight at securing former state senator John C. Hertel as the instructor for the program.

"Professor Hertel, appointed by Gov. Engler as general manager of the Michigan State Fair, brings with him a wealth of experience which will complement and enrich the RAM program."

Seniors' health gets boost from hospital programs

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Seniors looking for something to do don't usually think of their local hospital. That might be just the place, however.

A number of hospitals offer specialized programs for seniors, with a good response. ElderMed at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills has a membership of about 22,000 age 50 and older. CareLink at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia has 8,670 members age 55 and older.

"It's a great place to make new friends," said Sandy Baumann, ElderMed manager at Botsford. "That becomes a problem as people age. A lot of widows have met new friends here."

The ElderMed seniors recently held an educational program on the Oregon Trail at Clarenceville High School in Livonia. The programs offer a variety of wellness programs and classes, along with opportunities for social interaction. ElderMed's aim is "to keep the older adults in our community healthy physically, emotionally and socially," said Baumann, a Livonia resident.

The aim is similar at St. Mary Hospital.

"We have a wonderful program for seniors," said Julie Sproul, director of community relations at St. Mary Hospital. "It's a real popular program here. I get calls almost every day."

The programs draw from a wide geographical area. CareLink, in existence for about seven years, draws from Livonia and such nearby communities as Westland, Plymouth, Farmington, Northville and Novi. "You name it, people come here," Sproul said.

ElderMed, offered since 1988, has members from Milford to Canton, Dearborn Heights to Royal Oak and all areas in between.

ElderMed, which offers free membership, has almost 3,500 members in Farmington/Farmington Hills, Baumann said, with 3,400 in Livonia and 2,700 in Redford.

CareLink has a variety of wellness programs, said Sproul, a Livonia resident. The program, in which membership is free, was developed for Catholic hospitals in Michigan.

A CareLink membership card entitles the holder to complimentary insurance counseling and 10 percent off on programs and classes. There are free offerings, such as blood pressure screening for all ages 1-3 p.m. the first Monday of the month in the main lobby.

Members who become St. Mary patients get a 25-percent discount on their TV rental, along with a reduced rate on a private room if available and a 10-percent discount in the outpatient pharmacy. There's a Medicare Assistance Program, to help with the paperwork.

"It can be confusing," Sproul said of Medicare.

Lectures on topics of interest are offered as well. "Generally, we pack the room," which seats about 200, she said. Seniors have listened to lectures on such subjects as prostate cancer, incontinence and others.

At Botsford, coffees with physicians are offered on particular areas of health. A tea Friday, Sept. 29, will focus on constructive use of anger. There are regular screenings of vision, cholesterol and blood pressure, along with foot care help. ElderMed will offer a fall color tour, with members receiving a discount.

"So we have fun," said Baumann, a former biochemistry instructor.

Other Botsford programs have covered cataract surgery, good nutrition and other topics. At both hospitals, members get discounts in the hospital cafeteria.

The program is, in part, a marketing effort to attract patients, Baumann said, with Sproul describing CareLink as more of a community service/outreach effort.

Both women hope such programs will be in place when they reach their golden years.

"We try to put ourselves in the patient's place," Sproul said. "We formulate our programs on that basis."

For information on CareLink at St. Mary Hospital, call (313) 591-2940. For information on ElderMed at Botsford General Hospital, call (810) 471-8020.

Medicare cuts prompt concern

Worried: Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is concerned about proposed cuts in Medicare spending.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is blasting a Republican Congressional Budget Resolution agreement poised to cut more than $270 billion from Medicare over the next seven years.

"This strategy will gore the Medicare industry. It will ensure that middle class and poor Americans will have limited access to adequate health care," McNamara said of the agreement. "I can't in good conscience support such an act."

The agreement proposes to cut more than $270 billion from Medicare between 1996 and 2002. Over the seven-year period, this reduction will increase out of pocket costs, on average, to $2,375 per beneficiary and to $4,750 per couple, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"McNamara has stumbled upon facts we've been dealing with," said U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, an Ann Arbor Democrat whose district encompasses western Wayne County.

"I, too, am very concerned. It's hard to project the damage yet. We'll have to look at ways to save, through cost efficiency and fraud enforcement. The sooner we have the plan in front of us, the better," said Rivers from her Ann Arbor district office.

Congress is in recess until after Labor Day.

She said Congress is scheduled to examine the Republican plan for two weeks in September.

"It's irresponsible. That's not enough time," she added. "The Republicans act like it's no big deal. Some Democrats make it sound like the world is coming to an end. The truth is probably somewhere in the middle.

"I am afraid we will see cuts. And it will hurt."

U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, a Bloomfield Hills Republican whose district includes communities in southern Oakland County, and northern Livonia, was out of town and not available for comment.

"Congress should begin to rethink its priorities," said McNamara, "and remember the needs of their constituents back at home, and not support this budget agreement."

McNamara said most of the cuts from Medicare would not be necessary without the Republicans' $245 billion tax cut for the wealthiest Americans.

Wait and see: It's difficult to predict the damage from proposed cuts, said U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers.

Motorcycle riders from all over Michigan will get together Sunday to enjoy their favorite pastime while raising money to help children with brain tumors.

The Ride for Kids raises money for the Pediatric Brain Tumor Foundation of the United States. The program, which sponsors several benefits around the country, is in its fourth year in Michigan.

Motorcyclists will meet at Wayne County fairgrounds on Quirk Road and take off for a 65-mile ride through the rural roads of Huron and Sumpter and Van Buren townships.

Each motorcyclist is required to raise $35 to ride in the event, but many raise much more than that, said Bob Lorenz, a member of the Howell chapter of the Gold Wing Riders Association.

A business and engineering consultant, Lorenz said he is involved in the Ride for Kids because it is a chance to help families who are going through some of the worst times of their lives.

"We've got four very healthy children and this is a chance to help someone else," Lorenz said.

The event is also a chance to "enjoy the sport, enjoy the camaraderie and at least the feeling of helping somebody out," Lorenz said.

Two years ago, he and his wife, Sue, raised $4,700 for the event and were the top individual contributors, Lorenz said. Each year, chapters and individuals compete to raise more donations. Often the groups start in the winter, organizing various fund-raisers.

Top contributors are rewarded with prizes and a chance at winning the grand prize of a new motorcycle. Last year, the event raised about $37,000.

Lorenz would like to see the event grow every year, just as the event has grown in other parts of the country. Lorenz said he is trying to build participation by publicizing it as much as possible.

Registration for the ride is 8-10:15 a.m. Sunday at the fairgrounds. The ride starts at 10:30 a.m. Free coffee and doughnuts are available before the ride and a light lunch will be served afterward. After the ride, there is also a presentation where brain tumor patients and their families share their stories.

The fairgrounds are just west of Belleville Road, off of the north I-94 service drive.

For more information, contact Lorenz at (517) 548-9028. Also, many Honda motorcycle dealers have information on the ride.

Knollenberg, Rivers showed up for every vote

■ U.S. Rep. Joseph Knollenberg is a Republican whose district includes Redford Township, part of Livonia and south Oakland County.

■ Rivers is first-term Democrat whose district includes Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Garden City, Westland, Plymouth and a portion of Livonia.

Despite heavy voting schedules driven by the new Republican agenda in Congress, lawmakers in both chambers recorded impressive attendance during the first six months of the 104th Congress.

And U.S. Reps. Joseph Knollenberg and Lynn Rivers were among the most impressive.

Knollenberg is a Republican whose district includes Redford Township, part of Livonia and south Oakland County. Rivers is first-term Democrat whose district includes Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Garden City, Westland, Plymouth and a portion of Livonia.

House members averaged 97.1 percent attendance on 455 recorded votes through June 30, according to a survey by Roll Call Report Syndicate.

Senators did marginally better, hitting 97.6 percent attendance on the 296 roll calls conducted in their chamber during the period.

GOP has edge

Republicans registered slightly better percentages than Democrats, 98.2 to 95.9 in the House and 97.9 to 97.3 in the Senate.

Thirty House members, almost equally divided between Democrats and Republicans, showed up for every roll call for 100 percent attendance, while 29 House members, all but two of them Democrats, scored below 90 percent.

This Congress, the first in 40 years with both chambers controlled by Republicans, has been notable not only for the GOP leadership's revolutionary agenda, but also for its virtual nonstop voting.

In the House, the 455 votes compared with 310 roll calls in the first six months of 1994 and 309 in the first half of 1993. The House conducted 210 votes on "Contract With America" issues in the first three months of this year.

House freshmen averaged 98.3 percent. The newcomers with the worst attendance were Barbara Cubin, R-Wyo., who missed 54 votes to score 88.1 percent, and Chaka Fattah, D-Pa., whose 44 misses put his attendance at 90.3 percent.

Reasons for absence

Among House members absent for reasons other than extended illness, the lowest mark was registered by Xavier Becerra, D-Calif., who missed 96 votes for 78.9 percent attendance. He was followed by Mel Reynolds, D-Ill. (80.1 percent), Barbara Rose-Collins, D-Mich. (81.8 percent), Bobby Rush, D-Ill. (84 percent), Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., (84.8 percent), William Jefferson, D-La. (85.5 percent), Jim Chapman, D-Tex. (85.7 percent), Charles Wilson, D-Tex. (86.2 percent) and Charles Rangel, D-N.Y. (86.4 percent).

Gibbons and Wilson were absent largely because of bouts of flu, and Collins was hospitalized for exhaustion due to anemia, their aides explained.

Three House members recorded high absenteeism as a result of serious illness. Joe Moakley, D-Mass., who scored 69.5 percent, "had a liver transplant and his wife also has been sick," said aide Karin Walser. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., at 85 the oldest House member, scored 78.7 percent attendance. "He had some illness in the family and also personally suffered a clot in his lungs and was hospitalized for two days," said aide Mary Bain. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis., with 85.5 percent, was on "official medical leave" for an undisclosed illness, aide Orlando Knauss said.

In the Senate

In the Senate, 10 Republicans and five Democrats made every vote and only two senators, one from each party, dropped below 90 percent.

Phil Gramm, R-Tex., whose 86.8 percent was the worst Senate score, missed 39 votes while pressing his bid for the Republican presidential nomination. He is "running a strong campaign for the presidency," said aide Larry Neal.

Asked why GOP front-runner and Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., could also campaign yet miss only two votes, Neal said, "The difference is in the phrase, 'strong campaign.' If you're going to run in New Hampshire or Iowa, you have to go there. We do. He hasn't."

Gramm also missed many more votes than the two other presidential hopefuls in the Senate, Richard Lugar, R-Ind. (99 percent) and Arlen Specter, R-Pa., (96.3 percent). Neal said, "Not by any stretch of the imagination does the term 'strong campaign' apply to them."

The other senator with less than 90 percent attendance was Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., at 89.9 percent. All but five of her 30 misses occurred on the same day, her staff said, because of commitments at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Two of her relatives received degrees and Mikulski gave the commencement address and received an honorary doctorate.

Becerra's office attributed his high absenteeism to his wife having endured a difficult pregnancy in which she was hospitalized several times, requiring his presence in Los Angeles.

Chapman was among those whose absenteeism was not linked to illness. The Texas Democrat's staff said most of his misses occurred while he was urging the federal base closure commission not to shut down the Red River Army Depot, the largest employer in his district.

"He testified at regional hearings and hosted visits by all eight commission members," said aide Billy Moore. "It was worth it — he saved the base."

Wyoming's Cubin had several reasons for her 54 missed votes, the highest among freshmen. Among them, said aide Marian Marshall, were 20 missed votes while recovering from surgery and seven while attending her son's high school graduation. "He was valedictorian," said Marshall, "and there was no way she was going to miss that family honor."

Beaumont researchers studying valve failure

Researchers at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak have used a high-resolution, X-ray imaging technique that may predict failure of a type of heart valve used by 44,000 living patients.

An article in the Aug. 17, 1995, New England Journal of Medicine presents the results of a landmark research study.

"This new detection method may be of considerable help to physicians and patients in making decisions on removal of the valve," said Dr. William O'Neill, the study's chief investigator and director of Beaumont's Division of Cardiovascular Disease.

"This technique could bring peace of mind to patients with intact, well-functioning valves and give others concrete information to help them weigh the risks of valve failure versus removal.

"Since patients with structurally intact valves do well, and elective removal is associated with a 3-5 percent risk of death, surgical removal of the valves has not been recommended for all patients," O'Neill said.

The study used cineradiographic imaging to detect a separation in one of two legs of the outlet strut of a Bjork-Shiley Convexo-Concave (CC) heart valve.

Shiley Inc. stopped production of the valves in 1986. The research at Beaumont was funded by a grant from the Shiley Heart Valve Research Center in Irvine, Calif.

A "single-leg separation" is thought to precede complete strut fracture leading to valve failure. As of Dec. 31, 1994, complete strut fractures had been reported in 564 patients with CC valves, resulting in patients' deaths about two-thirds of the time.

In the research trial at Beaumont, physicians screened 315 patients with CC valves of a size and type identified through earlier research as having the highest risk of strut failure (29 mm or larger valves implanted in the mitral position with an estimated fracture rate of 0.46 percent or higher per year).

Patients, identified through a national valve registry, were screened at least twice at a six-month interval, or more often if prior screening results looked suspicious.

Of the 315 patients screened at Beaumont from August 1992 to February 1994, 11 patients had valves identified as "definite" or "probable" single-leg separations.

Ten of 11 valves were confirmed to have single-leg separations through removal of the valve prior to failure. One valve with a "probable" rating was intact. Two complete outlet strut fractures occurred three and seven months after normal cineradiographic examinations.

"Although the risk of strut fracture is not entirely eliminated by cineradiographic screening, it can reduce the occurrence and save some lives," said Dr. O'Neill.

"For valve separations to be accurately identified, extensive training in the interpretation of images is required. The necessary expertise will be most readily available at regional referral centers," he said.

Between 1979 and 1986, approximately 86,000 Bjork-Shiley CC valves were implanted worldwide. In clinical trials of the device, there was one reported failure of a valve. Additional sudden failures occurred after the valve was introduced for general use.

In April 1984, there was a change in manufacturing and quality control procedures. No outlet strut fractures have been reported in valves welded after March 31, 1984.

William Beaumont Hospital is a 929-bed tertiary care, teaching, research and referral center that is one of the nation's busiest cardiology centers.

Further research of the new screening method is currently under way at Stanford University in California and the Western Infirmary in Glasgow, Scotland. The technique is not approved for general use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Plane altered for freight

The first Lockheed L-1011-200 TriStar aircraft ever converted from passenger to freighter use arrived Monday at Ypsilanti at American International Airways (AIA).

The conversion was performed at Marshall Aerospace in Cambridge, England.

"These are planes that can accommodate bulk, as well as weight, and can carry heavy loads for long distances, without incurring the expense of larger aircraft," said Conrad Kalitta, AIA president.

Kalitta also commissioned a new, ultra-light loading system for the aircraft from AAR Advanced Structures in Livonia.

"With international freight markets expanding faster than domestic markets, and the demand for widebody freighters outstripping production, AIA is ahead of the curve in converting these highly specialized planes to meet and anticipate customer needs."

The first-generation widebody aircraft is expected to revolutionize the air cargo industry with its ability to carry up to 125,000 pounds of cargo on routes up to 5,300 miles. With anticipated enhancements, that payload/range will increase, according to AIA.

Teamwork is basic for business, good for society

STEWART L. TUBBS

The hero is dead. Long live the team.

As more and more major companies and business schools embrace the concept of teams, it's tempting to regard this as just another fad, which will go the way of management by walking around, management by objectives or one-minute managing.

I am convinced this is anything but a fad. In fact, I would call the '90s the decade of teams, and I believe the 21st century will become the "Century of Teams," reflected not only in business, but in all major aspects of society. We have what is referred to as the Differentiation/Integration paradox.

In other words, as organizations are required to become more differentiated or specialized, there is also the increased need for the disparate functions of the organization to be more closely integrated. Therefore, cross-functional teams are becoming a basic organizational necessity.

The transition to a more team-oriented society will be a particularly difficult one for the United States. According to a 1993 study of cultures, measuring the amount of individualism present, the United States ranked as the least team-oriented of the 21 nations surveyed. On a scale of 1 to 100, where the higher score represented the higher amount of individualism, America scored a 91, while Japan scored 46 and Brazil, Mexico, Hong Kong, Singapore, Taiwan and Venezuela all scored lower than Japan.

Collectivist spirit

We will need to de-emphasize cherished cultural icons and long-held beliefs in rugged individualism and the self-made man in favor of a more collectivist spirit.

Throughout our history, we have valued the John Wayne hero who knew all the answers, gave everyone directions, and was trusted, obeyed and worshipped.

The era of the John Wayne hero as a model of leadership is outdated.

Now popular culture exhibits the new hero in the person of Harrison Ford in movies such as "Patriot Games" or "Clear and Present Danger." The Ford hero, while still saving the day and using his cunning and extraordinary gifts, is part of a team and works well with his team members and superiors.

Today we also have the phenomenon of the new generation X-ers and late baby boomers who are highly educated, relatively wealthy, with high expectations and a desire to be in on the action. They expect to have their opinions solicited and to be listened to seriously. They want to be part of the team.

With the changing nature of leadership and the expectation to participate in decision-making, the growing role of teams is inevitable. Indeed, it appears that in order to be employable in the near future, you may well have to have some experience with teams on your resume.

Successful teams

The literature is full of multimillion dollar success stories from companies which have successfully adopted the team concept and are seeing real rewards. Hewlett-Packard, Dayton-Hudson, Eastman Kodak, Federal Express, Westinghouse and Colgate-Palmolive come to mind.

The trend toward teamwork has shown a radical upsurge, and is continuing to climb. Surveys of employee involvement practices in Fortune 1000 companies indicate that about 20 percent of the companies were using some degree of teamwork in 1987. That number grew to almost 40 percent by 1990, and I anticipate it will be near 75 percent in 1995.

The results of using teams are clear in savings of both money and effort. Work with Ford Motor Co. developing Value Engineering Teams resulted in over a quarter of a billion dollars in savings in just a few years. Cross-functional teams of suppliers, design engineers, and representatives from manufacturing, purchasing, transportation, packaging and market research meet to analyze individual parts and brainstorm possible improvements. Some teams have come up with as many as 600 new ideas, apd 200 is about the average.

At Chrysler, cross-functional teams with product and manufacturing systems engineers prevent mistakes such as designing a car that was about one inch too wide to pass through the paint booths on the assembly line. This happened before the era of teams, and the assembly line had to be torn apart and widened to accommodate the new model cars.

Self-directed teams

At the same time teamwork has firmly established its role, we are moving to self-directed teams, where the day-in, day-out tasks are the subject of team discussions.

As American industry cuts out layers of management, the team is the work group and its team leader functions as its supervisor. The person who formerly functioned as a supervisor or general manager now acts as an adviser to the team.

The transition will not be an easy one, of course, and one of biggest challenges will be developing a team-based compensation system. Yet this is also a means to facilitate change. If you make team proficiencies a major component in the compensation system and one of the key responsibilities of employees, things will start happening quickly.

However it is done, it is clear that in order to remain competitive, modern organizations must develop a new way to structure work that involves more team leadership. This means a massive transformation in the way an organization operates, including a change in all internal systems, operating procedures and corporate structures. Furthermore, any organization attempting to increase team leadership will find that this is a never ending process. An organization is never "there."

There also will be situations when very fast decision-making is essential — in emergencies, in police work, the military — and the John Wayne model of a leader reappears. But the days of being rewarded, as one retired plant manager described it, for "30 years of being an attack dog" are over.

Emerging teams

In the larger society, teams are cropping up in education, from faculty-parent groups in public schools, to college English classes where students critique each other's writing, to future accountants who work in teams to tackle financial problems.

U-M economists predict moderate financial growth

The U.S. economy through 1997 will be rather tranquil overall, say economists at the University of Michigan.

The fundamental outlook for most of next year and right through 1997 is for moderate growth, with real GDP (gross domestic product) heading up at a rate averaging 2 percent to 2.5 percent, they say.

The unemployment rate also will remain fairly stable, moving in a narrow range around 5.75 percent.

And inflation? Just not a problem. Consumer prices, which rose 2.3 percent during 1994, are forecast to rise by 2.3 percent during 1995, 3 percent during 1996 and 3.2 percent during 1997, they say.

What about the Federal Reserve Board? Don't look for much in the way of further Fed actions either way in the next little while, the economists say.

The U-M annual forecast and update were prepared by Prof. Saul H. Hymans and Joan P. Crary and Janet C. Wolfe, researchers in the U-M Department of Economics. The forecasts are based on the Michigan Quarterly Econometric Model of the U.S. economy, compiled by the U-M Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics.

If the activity surrounding monetary policy has cooled down, fiscal policy is hot, active and center stage. Or more accurately, right of center stage, the economists note in the update.

The 1993 budget agreement, orchestrated by President Clinton and the Democrats, was a major step in the direction of fiscal discipline and deserves a chunk of the credit for significant decline in the federal deficit in 1994 and 1995.

Now the Republicans are in control of the Congress and are vigorously leading the way to a fiscally much smaller Washington. However it comes out, the federal budget will be contractionary over the next few years, and that increases the likelihood that the Fed will not be raising interest rates any time soon.

The forecast also projects that:

- Real GDP growth returns to a 2.5 percent pace in the current

ABC RadioNet offers around-the-clock news

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

■ RadioNet uses RealAudio technology, a software system developed by Seattle-based Progressive Networks. Since April, ABC Radio Networks have provided selected news content for the RealAudio Web site, which can be accessed at http://www.realaudio.com.

Live radio news 24 hours a day has arrived on the Internet.

The ABC Radio Networks are launching their ABC RadioNet World Wide Web site, providing instant 24-hour-a-day audio news and information to Internet users.

The site will supplement news broadcasts provided daily by the 3,400 affiliated radio stations of the ABC Radio Networks. The Web site is designed to provide quick and easy access to audio news for PC users without them having to leave their PCs.

The Web site is a joint effort of Capital Cities/ABC Multimedia Group and the ABC Radio Networks, the first and only radio network to provide real-time audio-on-demand via the Internet. The nicest feature is that the broadcasts can be listened to at the click of a mouse without having to download a sound file and then playing it. Required is a 486 or Pentium computer with a sound card, or a Macintosh; a graphical Web browser; and at least a 14.4 modem.

The Web site was introduced in a beta test format to a limited number of users on Aug. 15 with a public launch for all Internet users expected later this fall. You and I, though, can get a sneak preview using this universal resource locator (URL) — http://realaudio.com/contentp/abc.html.

ABC RadioNet will offer national news, updated hourly or more frequently if there are breaking stories. The site also offers local news, sports and weather for New York City, Los Angeles, Atlanta and Chicago. Other cities will be added at a later date.

Special RadioNet features include commentary from ABC News anchors and listener feedback, and content from programs such as "World News Tonight with Peter Jennings" and "This Week with David Brinkley." Also at the site is The Buzz, newsmaker quotes and controversial, unusual or other notable audio clips, updated daily.

"Our site has been designed to make it easy for Internet users to access up-to-the-minute news with the click of a mouse," said Robert Callahan, president of ABC Radio Networks. "Users won't have to wait for audio files to download, and they can listen to what's going on in the world no matter where they are while they are using their computers."

"We are providing a wide range of news content — audio, photos and text," said Bernard Gershon, general manager of ABC Radio News. "With our on-demand audio and our easy-to-use format, we believe our service will be of great appeal to Internet users."

RadioNet uses RealAudio technology, a software system developed by Seattle-based Progressive Networks. Since April, ABC Radio Networks have provided selected news content for the RealAudio Web site, which can be accessed at http://www.realaudio.com.

"We have learned a lot from our collaboration with Progressive Networks and used RealAudio technology in the development of our site," said Stephen Weiswasser, president of Capital Cities/ABC Multimedia Group. "Until now, we have had a limited presence on the Internet, and we are pleased to launch this real-time audio news service."

Speaking of ABC, radio commentator Paul Harvey also has a presence on the Internet. Users who like Paul Harvey might want to join a listserv discussion group which discusses Harvey news commentaries, his "Rest of the Story" stories, or anything else related to Harvey.

Maybe Mr. Harvey said something you are not clear on (it happens!) and you may find someone on the list to clarify what he said. The list is maintained by Bruce Toews, who is not affiliated with either ABC or with Paul Harvey. To subscribe, send a message to paul-harvey-list-request@mbnet.mb.ca and in the message area write "subscribe" (without the quotes).

And that's the only side, and the end, to this story.

quarter and then accelerates to 3.6 percent in early 1996 as light vehicle sales recover and inventory building responds to the growth in final sales. As both light vehicle sales and inventory accumulation level off, output growth slows to a 2 percent to 2.5 percent pace during the rest of 1996 and 1997.

■ Residential construction made a significant negative contribution to growth in the second quarter of 1995, despite the drop in mortgage rates in the first half of 1995, the economists say.

However, with the mortgage rate hovering around 8 percent over much of the forecast period, residential building stops being a noticeable drag on the economy after mid-1996. After declining from 1.45 million in 1994 to a projected 1.3 million in 1995, housing starts remain projected at just under 1.3 million for both 1996 and 1997.

■ Vehicle production dropped sharply in the second quarter of 1995, and in the third quarter, this sector continues to be a drag on the economy as sales hold steady and auto companies work to reduce stocks, they say.

Auto sales, which totaled 9.2 million units in 1994, are forecast to be 8.8 million in 1995, 8.9 million in 1996 and 8.8 million in 1997. Light truck sales, 5.8 million in 1994, will hold at 5.8 million in 1995 and then rise to 6 million in 1996 and 6.2 million in 1997.

The business equipment sector is expected to make a strong contribution to real GDP growth through 1997. Due to a sharp surge in information processing equipment, over 40 percent at annual rate, purchase of business equipment (non vehicle) rose at a 21 percent annual rate and contributed 1.7 percent to output growth in the second quarter of 1995.

As the growth in information processing equipment slows to a more sustainable pace, business equipment purchases (non vehicle) increase at a 10 percent annual rate and contribute nearly one percent to output growth during most of 1996 and 1997.

Real net exports are forecast to improve temporarily during the second half of 1995 in response to the previous weakening of the dollar. By spring 1996, however, exports are again acting as a drag on the economy, making negative contributions of 0.25 percent to 0.5 percent to growth as imports outpace exports.

After declining sharply during fiscal 1994 the federal deficit has shown little further improvement during fiscal 1995, holding at about 2.3 percent of GDP, the economists report.

However, the spending restraint embodied in the proposed deficit reduction package and the projected growth in output allow the federal budget deficit to decline steadily over the next two fiscal years to 1.6 percent of GDP ($119 billion) by the end of fiscal 1996 and 1.3 percent of GDP ($103 billion) a year later.

Three month treasury bill rates, which were 4.2 percent in 1994, are forecast to average 5.6 percent in 1995, 5.4 percent in 1996 and 5.3 percent in 1997.

Thirty year treasury bond rates, which were 7.4 in 1994, are forecast to average 7.1 percent in 1995, 6.8 percent in 1996 and 6.6 percent in 1997.

Card sends thoughtful message

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Want to give that birthday person something special?

Second Chance Novelty has a deal for you.

The company's Birthday Card, which sells for $4.95, offers a variety of goodies with just one catch — they're only good on (or, in some cases, within the week of) a birthday.

"I've had the idea for many years," said Susan Brookes of Franklin village, president of Second Chance Novelty. "It's just something I wanted to do for a long time."

It took her about a year to plan the project and solicit items from the businesses. The feedback she received was "very positive. Even the businesses that couldn't be in it, they thought it was a great idea."

A variety of items are offered, including: a free burger at Brady's Food & Spirits inside the Holiday Inn, Farmington Hills; a free auto emissions test from Darrell's Shell in Farmington Hills; a free watch battery from DuQuet Jewelers in Farmington; two free egg rolls from Mitzi's Carryout in Farmington Hills; 20 free copies from National Print Services in Livonia; a free soft-cloth car wash from Pam's Shell in Farmington Hills; a free game session from Phazer-Land in Farmington; a free rose from Schroeter's Flowers in Farmington Hills; and one free movie rental from Video Giant.

"So the businesses make out as well and it's free advertising for the businesses," Brookes said. "It's kind of a situation where everyone wins."

Brookes, surprisingly enough, doesn't have a business background. She's the mother of three and had been a homemaker. The business is currently based out of her home, although she envisions it growing.

Brookes, 32, is planning a move to Minnesota, and has an office lined up in her new home. She already has several people to handle the business in this area, and is looking forward to expanding it to the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

That expansion includes a card for children up to age 12 or so, due to be on the market in three months or less. "I'm having an artist as we speak work on the children's card," Brookes said. It will sell for a similar price and be full of items to appeal to children. A different artist did the card for adults.

School fund-raising groups have also sold the card. Such groups get to keep $2 per card, she said.

"Most everyone thinks it's a good idea." The card's designed to be used on one birthday, rather than kept for next year.

"The card is going to evolve and change so there's a constant variety," Brookes said.

It's available at eight locations in metro Detroit, including Tweeny's in Livonia, Craftique Antique/Crafts mall in Farmington, Mitzi's Carryout in Farmington Hills, and Pam's Shell in Farmington Hills.

Ford invests in area plant's future

Ford Motor Co. will invest more than $135 million to retool the Rawsonville Plant at Ypsilanti.

It will produce a new generation of fuel pumps, fuel injectors, and alternators, as well as other fuel and air handling components. The plant's engineering services building also will receive the latest in testing equipment.

"These new products feature major improvements over previous models, and will be produced using the most efficient state-of-the-art manufacturing processes to ensure quality and satisfaction to our customers," said Bob Womac, general manager of the Electrical and Fuel Handling Division (EFHD).

There was no announcement of new jobs, but there was praise from the local union.

"New investment guarantees continued employment in our very competitive world-wide markets,' said Joel Goddard, chairman of UAW Local 898. "We believe that our employees are the best in the world, and Ford Motor Co.'s continued capital expenditures here at Rawsonville echo those beliefs."

The Rawsonville Plant employs 2,300. It manufactures fuel and air charging systems, fuel injectors, windshield wiper motors, fuel pumps and alternators.

More than $68 million, about half the investment, will pay for retooling to produce an improved fuel injector to supply Ford cars and trucks beginning in 1998. Construction of a new assembly line to produce the new fuel injector will begin late this year.

Production startup is mid-1998, for 1999 model year cars and trucks. Production is anticipated to increase from 2.5 million injectors the first year, to 10 million per year, early in the next century.

More than $26 million is being invested to produce a new type of

Opening of Staples brings out bargain-hunters

STAFF WRITER

Everybody loves a bargain. Some folks love it enough to stand in line at 4:30 a.m. on a Saturday morning to be the first ones inside the new Staples Office Superstore in Westland.

"They beat me. I was there at 6:30," said Bob Hamann, general manager of the new office superstore.

"I would say at the peak we had 650 customers in our building. Sales were fabulous."

And that's not counting the throng who lined up to get autographs of Red Wing star defenseman Paul Coffey, who was on hand during the opening day hoopla.

The store is in the Westland Shopping Center at 35615 Warren, across from the Westland Mall.

Hamann's 3-year-old daughter, Katelyn, with an assist from Westland DPS supervisor Bruce Guertin, cut the ribbon just prior to the official 9 a.m. opening.

Shoppers got to celebrate the grand opening with a one-day doorcrasher event, offering many items at prices well below Staples typical discounts of 30 to 70 percent. The 25,200-square-foot Westland store (in the location of the former PartiGiant) has more than 6,400 discounted, brand name office supplies, business machines and furniture.

The superstore also offers a variety of business services, including business machines leasing, color copying, and faxing.

Limited quantities on some items accounted for the early birds.

"Customers get number one service from us," said Hamann, who has been with Staples since March. He is a Garden City native currently living in Westland.

The store employs between 40 and 45 workers, Hamann said.

Staples, based in Framingham, Mass., operates 384 office superstores throughout North America. Grand openings were also scheduled Saturday in Farmington Hills, Rochester Hills, Dearborn, Taylor and Roseville.

Staples Chairman and CEO Tom Stemberg said that the six metro Detroit openings were dedicated to the Romney family, and in particular Mitt Romney, son of former Michigan Governor George Romney.

"Mitt and his family have been an invaluable resource for me and for this company for many years, particularly as early investors in Staples," Stemberg said. "I am indebted to Mitt for his encouragement and eagerness for Staples to enter the Michigan market. These six stores are opened in his honor."

Hamann says two more stores are scheduled to open in Ann Arbor and in Chesterfield in the next two months.

The chain moved into Michigan in October 1994 and has stores operating in Holland, Muskegon, East Lansing, the west side of Lansing, Bay City, Port Huron and Mt. Pleasant.

Hours in Westland are 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Area businesses support home-building project

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Hard-working volunteers are the backbone of Habitat for Humanity efforts. Businesses, however, also do their share when it comes to supporting home-building and renovation efforts.

The Aug. 7-11 Dennis Archer-Edward McNamara Blitz Build '95 involved a number of local businesses, such as Valassis Communications of Livonia, which sponsored the home for the Jordan family. Valassis and its employees raised funds for the Blitz Build through such activities as a brunch with the Easter Bunny.

"That was great because it got everyone and their families involved," said Julie McKay, public relations specialist for Valassis.

About 10 Valassis staffers, including McKay, were on the subcommittee of the Motivate Our Valassis Employees committee. In 1994, they raised money for Special Olympics. This year, they decided to support Habitat for Humanity through fund-raising and construction work.

"It might be Habitat next year, based on the great feedback," she said. "We've just had so much fun. It's just such a great feeling."

One Habitat fund-raiser at Valassis involved use of an executive's Jaguar convertible for the day, with no accidents reported. There were also two 50/50 raffles along with a barbecue in the Livonia parking lot, complete with dunk tank for managers and other staffers.

On July 5, Valassis staffers had the chance to take the day off, paying a certain rate per hour for the privilege and supporting Habitat. A bake sale and office furniture auction were also held at the Livonia headquarters, along with a "Christmas in July" basket raffle.

The company has three printing facilities, eight outside sales locations and facilities in France, Mexico and Canada. Other U.S. employees also got involved in Habitat fund-raising.

About 30 Valassis staffers worked at least one day at the Habitat site in Detroit. McKay was involved in putting together a media reception.

Valassis contributed $40,000 to Habitat for Humanity, with fund-raising efforts continuing.

Other major participating businesses/organizations were:

■ Jackson family, sponsored by Southeastern Michigan Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and Branches of the Lutheran Brotherhood. The Lutheran Brotherhood sponsored the first completed rehab in the Metro Detroit Habitat affiliate through the Adopt-A-House program.

■ Powell family, sponsored by Presbytery of Detroit, Presbyterian Church U.S.A. Represented by many congregation members, volunteers working on this house also represented the diversity and compassion of the Presbytery of Detroit.

■ Lewis family, sponsored by Michcon and Home Depot. Michcon has supported the Blitz throughout the campaign development process, starting with hosting the second corporate presentation, eventually reaching co-sponsorship status. Home Depot expedited the actual building process by just-in-time delivery and establishment of a site store.

■ One Habitat fund-raiser at one area business, Valassis, involved use of an executive's Jaguar convertible for the day, with no accidents reported. There were also two 50/50 raffles along with a barbecue in the Livonia parking lot.

■ Davis family, sponsored by Southeastern American Baptist Churches of Michigan. The Southeastern American Baptist Churches hold a special place with Habitat, being initial supporters of the Habitat concept. Involved in the Metro Detroit affiliate nearly since its inception, the group has surpassed the requested sponsorship level.

■ Harlin family, sponsored by Masco Corp. The Taylor-based multi-division corporation, involved in all components utilized in home construction, was a natural for the Blitz Build.

■ Wright family, sponsored by Gordon Food Service. Employees asked GFS management to look into the Blitz Build as a corporate activity. Corporate leaders were so moved by the enthusiasm of Gordon Food Service employees that the business holds the Detroit Blitz Build expediency record for solid commitment and is the first '95 sponsor.

■ Thompson family, sponsored by General Motors Foundation, Cadillac and GMAC Financial Services. Cadillac Division instituted the partnership with GMAC and the GM Foundation to become the second totally-committed sponsor, which included "hands on" participation in the total planning and implementation process.

■ Hankins family, sponsored by Papa Romano's, Royal Roofing and Acorn Distributors. Royal Roofing provided the venue for pre-build structural component as well as product contribution. Papa Romano's provided dinner for 1,200 volunteers. Acorn Distributors supplied the window systems, interior and entry door systems.

■ Vernon family, sponsored by NBD Corp. NBD has been working with Habitat for many years. In addition to sponsoring home maintenance workshops, NBD has also made vehicle donations.

■ Wales family, sponsored by Amy Grant, Target and Dayton Hudson Corp. As part of a national program to support Habitat for Humanity, Target and Grant were pleased to include Metro Detroit in the efforts.

■ Page family, sponsored by Ford Motor Co. Through Ford's College Graduate Program, the company entered the Blitz Build project as the third sponsor. Ford Motor Co. has been a longstanding in-kind contributor to Habitat for Humanity.

■ Kidd family, sponsored by Ameritech. Ameritech and its employees have been instrumental in the rapid growth of the Metro Detroit affiliate because of corporate commitment.

■ Hall family, sponsored by Erb Lumber and Century Truss. The affiliate corporations offered financial, physical and moral support toward the construction rebirth of Detroit.

■ Milhouse family, sponsored by Habitat for Humanity Metro Detroit, City of Detroit and the County of Wayne.

Local volunteers also went to work on the five-day project, among them Jackie Troutman of Plymouth Township. In 1993, Troutman went on a Habitat for Humanity trip to Hawaii. This year, she decided to get involved locally. When organizers learned she was a freelance writer, they asked her to help with campaign development and publicity. She worked in the field office and media center.

"It was so exciting and I was so tired," said Troutman, explaining that she left home for the University of Detroit Mercy meeting site each day at 5:30 a.m. She and the others worked as late as 10 p.m. Yard work is still being completed on the homes, said Troutman, who'd like to increase public awareness of Habitat for Humanity efforts.

"It is still amazing to me that most people don't know it happened."

BPW clubs to celebrate women's suffrage

■ On Saturday, Aug. 26, BPW local organizations across the state will be gathering in public areas to register new voters in honor of the 75th anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution.

The Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, giving women the right to vote.

In honor of this event, on Saturday, Aug. 26, BPW local organizations across the state will be gathering in public areas to register new voters. Even through it's not an election year, BPW believes that the celebration of this event is significant.

BPW members are asking for community support either by individuals stopping to register to vote or just to inquire about other BPW programs and accomplishments.

Communities in District 9 of BPW include Detroit, Farmington, Garden City, Plymouth, Southfield, Livonia, Redford, Troy, Wayne and Westland. Founded in 1918, it is the oldest working women's organization in the country.

There are 83 local organizations across the state.

BPW's goal is to eliminate the barriers to women's full participation in the workforce by providing and promoting strategies for women to reach their full potential. Its mission is to achieve equity for all women in the workplace through advocacy, education and information.

For more information about this event or BPW, contact the BPW state administrative assistant at (517) 673-0777.

electric fuel pump beginning next spring. An expected 1.5 million units will be produced the first year of production — rising to 3.5 million annually in 1999.

Here is how the rest of the $135 million will be used:

- About $23 million will be invested in the plant to produce an improved alternator which will begin production in less than two years. Retooling begins at Rawsonville early next year. Up to four million of the new alternators could be produced annually beginning with the 1998 model year.
- More than $11 million will be spent on retooling and testing equipment to manufacture new model throttle bodies and air-fuel charging systems for future Ford cars and trucks. "The production of these new products will help secure a promising future for our people and plant well into the next century," said Larry Hinkle, plant manager.
- An additional $6 million will go to outfit a state-of-the-art engineering services building with equipment to test for vibration and corrosion of components, and to speed development of new products.

Teams

A study from Harvard University indicated that students working in teams retained the information better and were more satisfied with classes where teamwork was involved.

The very survival of American businesses depends on the ability of today's leaders to effectively create planned organizational change through team leadership.

In any organization, change must start at the top and filter down to every employee. Without top management support, no program of team leadership will succeed; and the changes must be institutionalized. This is also difficult, since organizations have a tendency to revert to their original state, and the new approach to management, which promised so much, becomes just another failed fad.

With institutionalized teamwork, we have a tool that fits the time, fulfills a number of needs, and keeps us competitive in the worldwide market. In fact, my research in dozens of companies over the past 25 years has shown that teaching effective teamwork has created a return on investment of over 1,000 percent in one year.

Teamwork is just good business.

Stewart L. Tubbs is dean of the College of Business at Eastern Michigan University College of Business.

NEW HOMES

For Westhaven builder, it's location that counts

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Back in 1986, Amarjit S. Chawney, an architect/builder with offices in Bingham Farms, designed Westhaven Manor, an upscale apartment complex for senior citizens in Westland.

Nine years later, he's developing and building Westhaven Estates, 25 detached condominiums on land formerly owned by the Wayne-Westland schools just north of Westhaven Manor.

Chawney was excited then. He's excited now.

"The greatest thing about the site is location," he said of the five-acre parcel on Hunter east of Wayne Road. "All shopping is available. It's only one-half mile from Westland Mall, but it's a very calm, quiet residential neighborhood.

"It's approximately two miles from the freeway system, I-275 or I-96," Chawney added. "Westland has wonderful facilities — an ice arena, senior center, a beautiful park behind city hall.

"I've always liked this area. The attraction of an in-fill site is that all infrastructure is already there. It's a great area to put in starter homes and houses for empty nesters," he said.

Chawney offers two basic floor plans. Both offer everything people would need to live on one level without going up and down stairs.

Elmwood II is a story-and-a-half of 1,300 square feet with two bedrooms or one bedroom and a den and two full baths on the main level.

The unit also features a first floor laundry, two-car attached garage, family room with cathedral ceiling, kitchen/eating nook with bay window and dining area. An oven and dishwasher are included.

The master has a shower, the second bath a combination tub/shower.

The unit also has a full basement.

A fireplace ($2,900) and air conditioning ($2,000) are extra.

The Elmwood II also has a roughed-in loft of 300 square feet. Standard fare is unfinished drywall, flooring and plumbing leads.

The base price of Elmwood II is $139,400.

The on-site model shows a finished look with bathroom and closet upstairs at an added cost of $11,000.

Elmwood I is a 1,262-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and two baths, living room, dining room, breakfast/eating nook, laundry, garage, basement and kitchen appliances.

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Elmwood II: This model under construction at Westhaven Estates has two bedrooms or a bedroom and den with two baths downstairs and a loft, finished or unfinished at the buyer's option, on the second floor.

Base price is $134,400.

Exterior on both models is brick and vinyl siding.

"The greatest difficulty I have is separating myself as an architect from a builder," Chawney said.

"You plan things a little differently — the pitch of the roof, fish scales and detail of exterior trim. There's a lot more windows than people normally provide. It does get a little bit more expensive."

Westhaven Estates is serviced by city water and sewers. It's in the Wayne-Westland schools.

The property tax rate is now $42.36 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a condo worth $134,400 would pay nearly $2,850 the first year.

A monthly association fee of $95 is projected.

Paul and Usha Gill are buying an Elmwood II and probably will finish the upstairs.

"It's very convenient as far as services are concerned — shopping centers, schools . . and other facilities for recreation," Paul said of the sub.

"We were looking for something small. We were looking for something we could basically enjoy and not worry too much. It fit the bill.

"He (Chawney) is innovative and creative. Utilization of land and space and value for the money got me very excited.

"I like the master bedroom on the ground floor," Paul said. "You don't have to go up and down. You have another bedroom, but I plan to use it as a library.

"When someone comes to visit, you can put them upstairs. There's a bath up there. There's independence," he said.

The sales office at Westhaven Estates, (313) 722-8333, is open 1-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Aluminum siding marks 50th anniversary

BY MARTHA SLUD
AP NEWSFEATURES

RICHMOND (AP) — It was 1945, and Reynolds Metals Co. was looking for a way to continue producing the aluminum it supplied for wartime defense needs.

The solution? Aluminum siding, that ubiquitous, middle-class American household exterior that's been denigrated as a suburban eyesore and hailed as a marvel of mass production during its 50-year history.

Aluminum siding — heralded as a rust-proof, rot-proof, termite-proof ultra-convenience — helped Reynolds and other companies capitalize on what today has become an estimated $6 billion household exterior products industry, according to the NAHB Research Center in Upper Marlboro, Md., a subsidiary of the National Association of Home Builders. Reynolds, however, estimates siding could be as much as a $20 billion annual industry.

Many homeowners used to paint their wooden houses every few years, but aluminum panels — first applied to a cement home and garage in Louisville, Ky., — provided a low-maintenance, relatively inexpensive alternative.

"It was a product that came at a time when Americans were changing," said Terry Olbrysh, a spokesman for Richmond-based Reynolds. "People wanted more leisure time."

The development of aluminum siding paralleled the post-World War II rise in discretionary income, two-career couples and the spread of suburbia. People no longer had the time or desire to paint their homes every few years, Olbrysh said.

"This is mass production at its best. It serves a genuine need," said Marshall Fishwick, a Virginia Tech humanities professor who specializes in popular culture.

But mass-produced siding also has a flip side, Fishwick said.

"It doesn't have the warmth and grain of wood, nor does it have the continuity of brick," he said. "It depersonalizes the house."

Aluminum siding is "just one aspect of Americans' fascination with technology," said James Kornwolf, a professor of modern art and architecture at the College of William and Mary. "Anything new that made things easier just caught on."

aluminum because it costs less and is dent-proof.

In its early days, aluminum siding often has changed considerably over the last 50 years. Today, aluminum accounts for just 3 percent of the market, said Gerry Maibach, residential marketing manager for Reynolds' Construction Products Division.

Vinyl siding, which became available in the early 1970s, accounts for 44 percent of the market, while wood has a 39 percent market share and masonry 14 percent, Maibach said. He said vinyl siding surpassed wood in the early 1980s.

Aluminum siding evoked thoughts of unscrupulous door-to-door salesmen. The 1987 film "Tin Men" depicted a real-life scam in which salesmen posing as Life magazine photographers duped homeowners into believing that if they replaced their fading wood exteriors with aluminum siding, their homes would appear in an attractive magazine picture spread.

Many builders used to think aluminum was cheap and inferior, but that attitude is changing, said Ron Tignor Sr., owner of Richmond Aluminum and Remodeling Corp.

"Now you'll find homes worth half a million dollars that have vinyl on them," he said. "Everyone wants a maintenance-free home . . . it's going to take over the whole country eventually."

Detroit moves up on best places list

BY FARRELL KRAMER
AP NEWSFEATURES

NEW YORK (AP) — Gainesville, Fla., which gained national attention from the murders of five college students in 1990, is now the best place to live in the United States, Money magazine said in an annual ranking released last week.

The Detroit metropolitan area took a big jump in the ranking, rising from 295 last year to 56 this year.

Other Michigan metropolitan areas on Money Magazine's ranking of the 300 best places to live in the country (numbers in parentheses show 1994 ranking) are:

33. Ann Arbor (180)
47. Benton Harbor (289)
49. Flint (297)
56. Detroit (295)
81. Kalamazoo/Battle Creek (237)
96. Lansing (282)
122. Grand Rapids/Muskegon (234)
161. Saginaw/Bay City/Midland (298)
222. Jackson (300)

Yuba City, Calif., once notorious for another series of murders, finished last in the ranking of the nation's 300 biggest metropolitan areas by the glossy personal finance monthly.

Gainesville, a college town cited for its gracious charm and a relaxed way of life, climbed from No. 7 in 1994 to the top spot this year due in part to its strong economy. Yuba City, an agricultural area north of Sacramento, fell from No. 291 as poor weather damaged farmland.

"The starkest comparison between the two is if you just look at the economies," said Richard Eisenberg, an assistant managing editor at Money.

Gainesville boasted 6.2 percent job growth last year and its unemployment rate stands at 2.8 percent. In contrast, almost one-fifth of Yuba City residents are out of work.

It was in Yuba City in 1971 that authorities exhumed the bodies of 25 migrant farm workers hacked to death by Juan Corona.

The two cities also are about as far apart geographically as can be in the continental United States. The shortest possible drive is 2,920 miles, according to the American Automobile Association.

Money's annual ranking of places to live has become something of a media event. Each year the magazine examines a range of categories to compile its list and keeps the results a secret until the release date.

This year the criteria included the economy, health, crime, housing, education, weather, transit, leisure and the arts, based on data gathered from a poll of its readers.

By those categories, Florida is hot in more than just the weather.

Gainesville aside, four other Florida municipalities ranked in Money's Top 10. They were: Jacksonville (No. 3), Ocala (5), Fort Lauderdale (6) and Naples (10).

"The prime reason: According to our data, no other part of the country has had such strong recent employment growth, sizzling — yet still affordable — housing values and dazzling prospects for job creation," Money says in the cover story of its September issue.

That didn't stop cities in other regions from working their way into the Top 10. Rochester, Minn., last year's No. 2, retained that ranking. Seattle climbed from No. 8 to rank fourth.

The rest of the top 10: No. 7, Salem, N.H./Haverhill, Mass.; No. 8, Raleigh/Durham/Chapel Hill, N.C. — last year's No. 1 area; and Las Vegas at No. 9.

Last year's No. 300, Jackson, Mich., advanced to No. 222. Joining Yuba City at the bottom this year were: Glens Falls, N.Y. (No. 296); Peoria, Ill. (297); Birmingham, Ala. (298); and Modesto, Calif.(299).

The main focus of Money's list, however, was on the top cities. Gainesville, pop. 186,300 and home to the University of Florida, boasts an average of 242 sunny days a year and no state and local income tax.

Its sales tax is 6 percent and an average three-bedroom home costs $82,000.

Driving Gainesville's economy is the university, which employs 15,500, including 4,100 at the Shands Teaching Hospital. Other employers include Bear Archery and Hunter Marine, a maker of sailboats.

Gainesville is still widely remembered for the stabbing-mutilation murders of the five college students, which garnered national attention and terrified residents before they were solved. A Times Mirror survey taken in 1990 showed it was the most widely followed domestic crime story that year.

Money points out, however, that the killings are viewed as an isolated incident and that the killer is now on death row.

"People we've talked to feel safe there," Eisenberg said. "They don't worry about it at all now."

BY JOHN D. MCCLAIN
AP NEWSFEATURES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts shot up 6.7 percent in July, the fourth straight monthly advance and the biggest in 16 months, as builders sought to meet buyer demand strengthened by lower mortgage rates.

Construction advanced in both the South and West, which offset declines in the Midwest and Northeast.

The Commerce Department said today that starts totaled 1.38 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, up from a revised 1.29 million in June. The June rate initially was estimated to be 1.26 million.

The jump in July was the largest advance since builders began new construction at a 14 percent annual rate in March 1994.

The department also revised the May rate to a 1 percent gain, rather than a 0.4 percent loss. Starts had risen 2.5 percent in April following a 6.5 percent drop in March.

The July increase was more than twice the 3 percent increase that analysts had expected as builders boosted construction to keep up with sales activity. Sales of both new and existing homes increased in both May and June.

Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.61 percent in July, well below the 9.15 percent rate in January 1995.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $806 — a difference of $106.

After rates jumped above 9 percent late last year, sales and starts began to soften. Despite the recent rebound, starts during the first seven months of 1995 remained 9.3 percent below those of the same period of 1994.

But applications for building permits, often a barometer of future activity, suggested starts will continue to increase. They jumped 5.3 percent in July, to a 1.34 million rate, the fourth month without a loss. The advance was the largest since a similar 5 percent gain in December 1994.

Single-family starts, which are particularly sensitive to interest-rate changes, surged 6.8 percent in July, to a 1.10 million rate, after a 4.3 percent increase a month earlier. Single-family homes represent about 80 percent of total starts.

Construction of new apartments and condominiums rose 6.5 percent to a 280,000 rate following a 10.5 percent drop in June.

Regionally, the South posted a 15.5 percent increase in starts, to a 656,000 rate, the largest advance since a 15 percent gain in December 1993. Starts were up 2.2 percent in the West, to a 327,000 rate.

But they slipped 4.8 percent in the Northeast, to 118,000; and 0.7 percent in the Midwest, to 279,000.
