Planning, theme, keys to graduation parties

It would seem this year we have had more than our normal amount of calls regarding graduation party information.

Many people are planning on producing their own parties but are seeking a little help from catering companies and restaurants to supplement what they are doing.

This year, I am also in the ranks of hundreds of parents planning a graduation party. Even with all my experience in party planning, there is certainly an element of stress when you are planning one in your own backyard.

I mean how many really special days do you get to plan for in a lifetime? Graduation is certainly up there with the top five. Planning is the key to success with your very special graduation day!!

Clearing times and dates with friends and family well ahead of time is a wise idea.

Some fun ideas might include picnic foods to be served cold so that you can prep ahead and not be fussing over food instead of enjoying with your guests.

You may find many of your guests may arrive at the same time if the time frame is too narrow. If space is an issue, you may want to break up the arrival of your guests by having a larger window of opportunity for your listed party hours.

You may even consider sending out two sets of invitations, perhaps family and close friends at the beginning and then school friends a couple hours later. Don't forget to get those invites out at minimum three weeks before your party date!

A graduation is a wonderful occasion to do something fun and creative. To achieve a good theme you do not have to be too clever. Take some time and talk to your graduate, if they like summer cookouts and being at the lake perhaps a beach party with some fun props like beach balls, inexpensive colored plastic sunglasses, fun tropical drinks in bright plastic cups with festive straws can accent the occasion.

Recipes, food ideas page B3

Of course it is important to have virgin varieties of beverages for your entire underage guest list. What are your child's interests? Theater, music, sports or accomplishments that your child has achieved can be a good starting point.

The theme could be as simple as playing off their high school or upcoming college colors. The first step is to pick an idea and build on it.

Food is certainly an important key factor in any event. Most menus will be influenced by other factors such as location, time of day, length of party and theme.

Often I will have a client tell me "Well it is just a drop by sort of thing and we don't need real food, just snack items." I don't know if I agree with all that.

Unless your are specifying on your invitation, snacks, or dessert, I believe most people make the natural assumption that you will be serving food of substance that they might call lunch or dinner.

The last thing you would want is someone leaving your party hungry, especially if you are serving alcohol.

Some fun ideas might include picnic foods to be served cold so that you can prep ahead and not be fussing over food instead of enjoying with your guests.

You can always supplement whatever you make with a few purchased items to help alleviate work as well as

Alcohol not needed at these grads' parties

BY LANA MINI

Fresh squeezed lemonade with real sugar is a perfect drink for Libby Parks — the president of Garden City High School's Students Against Drunk Driving.

Even easier, a fresh bottle of water with a twist of lime is fine too. The 17-year-old student said one thing is certain regarding the beverages that will be served at her graduation party next month — only adults will be permitted to sip on the wine coolers. Parks has been involved with SADD since her sophomore year and plans to major in special education and psychiatry. Her feelings against drinking and driving are strong.

Her boyfriend, Tim Varner, is vice president SADD at Garden City High and there will be no alcohol at all at his graduation party.

At their school last year, about 50 students participated in SADD. This year there's at least 150 teens who pledge not to drink alcohol at prom or graduation parties. Still, that doesn't mean they won't have interesting beverages.

Smoothies, Slurpees, juice and sherbet punches — all without alcohol — were suggested by local students and chefs.

A graduation party is a celebration of K-12 success, but it's also a kickoff into adulthood. Emily Darnbrook, of Livonia, has grand plans for her future and she won't let alcohol ruin them, she said. She plans to attend Albion College where she'll major in political science. Darnbrook is SADD president at Farmington High School and said she and her family already discussed what they'll serve at her graduation party.

"We're sticking with the basics too," Darnbrook said. "Pop and water, but I love Shirley Temples with cherry grenadine and Sprite, so maybe we'll do something like that too."

Darnbrook said she believes many students will stay sober at prom and graduation because this year fourth- and fifth-graders wrote the Farmington High School seniors pleading with them to not drink and drive.

"The letters really work," Darnbrook said. "And, we can have a good time without alcohol."

Keeping it fun

A refreshing strawberry daiquiri with real fruit — minus the booze — would please most students, said Redford Union High School senior Ashley Kinzel. She's not having a big graduation party, but an elegant dinner with family instead. A virgin daiquiri or soda suits her fine. Kinzel plans to major in secondary education and helping students say sober is an important issue for her, she said.

Linzi Roberts hopes her family will rent a Slurpee machine for her big party.

It's better than alcohol of course, the Farmington High School student said, and it would add a fun twist to the family bash. If she can't convince her parents on that, she'll still create a unique event by making cherry cola for her guests.

"Not the canned stuff," Roberts said. "I mean real cherry cola with cherry syrup."

The ambitious student is already a law clerk and has brainstormed fun ideas for her party. There won't be a

The world is his dandelion

Vegetarian author/forager has no problem finding food

BY J.M. HIRSCH
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

The only time most people forage for food is when the cupboards are bare and they find themselves scrounging through the refrigerator, struggling to turn a can of peas, moldy bread and ketchup into dinner.

"Wildman" Steve Brill prefers to do it the real way.

This self-taught foraging expert heads back to nature daily to find his food. And when he goes out to eat, he isn't bringing back burgers and fries.

He's feasting on plants most people consider weeds.

Now he's ready to teach you to do it, too. His new book, The Wild Vegetarian Cookbook (Harvard Common Press, 2002, $29.95), contains more than 500 recipes using plants you're not likely to find in a grocer's produce section. He lists more than 150 of such wild plants in detail.

Brill is talking about milkweed (tossing it with pasta), acorns (serving them refried, similar to beans), and purple-spore puffball (a type of mushroom he serves fried and baked with dairy-free Parmesan).

For Brill, the world is full of food. Most people don't realize that many of the plants they try so hard to rid their yards of not only are edible, but can be turned into delicacies with little effort.

Foraging for food may not be common in the United States, but Brill says people around the world rely on it for stocking their pantry with seasonal greens and other goodies.

"Anywhere but America," he said recently, talking by phone from his home in Mamaroneck, N.Y. "The Germans, the Italians, the Chinese, the Indians. Any culture ... where TV and entertainment aren't the only ways to live, foraging is still common."

Brill, who has been vegan since 1990, got turned on to foraging back in 1979.

"I was bicycling, riding past a park in Queens, New York, near where I lived, and there were these ethnic Greek women picking something in the park," he said. "I asked them what they were doing and it was all Greek to me. But I came home with grape leaves and I was excited to have something I could Place sugar, lemon juice and grenadine in large punch bowl and stir to mix well. Add pineapple juice, stir and refrigerate until ready to serve. Just before serving, add ginger ale and gently stir in sherbet. Float cleaned strawberries and orange slices in punch bowl and serve. Serves 48 punch cups.

CAPS & GOWNS PUNCH

- 1 cup sugar
- 6 lemons, squeezed and strained
- 1 cup of grenadine syrup
- 3 46-ounce containers of unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled
- 2 quarts of ginger ale, chilled
- 1 quart of orange sherbet, slightly softened
- fresh strawberries and orange slices

- 1 medium-size ripe watermelon
- 1 cup lemon juice, fresh preferred
- 2 cups orange juice, fresh preferred

2 cups sugar, dissolved in 2 cups hot water, then chilled
1 2-liter bottle of 7-Up, chilled dash of grenadine syrup (optional)
lemon, orange, banana and strawberry slices

Cut watermelon in half, forming a zigzag-edge cut. Remove pulp, discarding seeds. Puree pulp in blender to yield about six cups of juice. Set one melon half aside to be used as punch bowl.*

Combine watermelon juice, lemon and orange slices, add sugar syrup in a large pitcher. Stir well. When ready to serve, place ice cubes in melon bowl and add juice mixture.

Carefully mix in 7-Up. Grenadine adds a pinkish color. Garnish punch with sliced fruit and serve. Serves 30 punch cups.

*Watermelon Punch Bowl – Watermelon bowls make a decorative container for punch bowls and fruit salads. Using a sharp knife, cut 1 1/2 inch zigzags around the center of the melon from end to end.

Be sure to cut as deep into the melon as you can, making sure you don't cut through the bottom of the melon. Pull the melon apart and scoop out the pulp with a large spoon. You can use both parts if you cut the melon perfectly in half.

Or for one large bowl, make the cut closer to the top so you can have a deeper bowl.

VERY FRUITY PUNCH

- 3 pounds white sugar
- 4 quarts cold water
- 2 quarts finely minced pineapple, fresh or canned
- 1 quart unsweetened grapefruit juice
- 1 quart lemon juice (from concentrate)
- 3 quarts orange juice
- 1/4 cup grated lemon zest
- 1/4 cup grated orange zest
- 1 1/2 tablespoons whole cloves
- 10 3-inch cinnamon sticks
- 2 tablespoons ground all spice
- 4 cups strong brewed hot tea
- lemon and orange slices

Place the sugar and water in a large pot. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer for five minutes.

Set aside to cool. Strain pineapple (reserve the juice for another use) and place it with fruit juices in large punch bowl. Add lemon and orange zest. Stir in sugar water mixture. Put spices in hot tea and allow to steep for 15 minutes. Strain into punch bowl. Just before serving, add an ice block* and garnish with lemon and orange slices. Serves 50 cups.

*Ice Blocks – Ice blocks and rings melt slower than traditional ice cubes. You can prepare an ice block days in advance. Simply use a container large enough to suit your needs. Loaf pans, cake rings and even mixing bowls can be used. Food coloring can be added to the water before freezing. Cleaned fresh fruit, slice or whole, can be added to the ice block or ring before freezing as well. Make sure the mold is solid and frozen throughout before using. To remove from mold, simply place the container in hot water until the ice is free. Carefully place ice block or ring in punch bowl (to avoid overflows).

Combine and serve over ice in a tall glass drop of alcohol for anyone under age. For her adult relatives and parent's friends, however wine will be served.

"Maybe I'll make smoothies," Roberts said. "Mango, guava, strawberry. Something fun."

For those big parties on a hot summer day, a ceremonial bowl of punch served in a watermelon rind bowl can help create a light-hearted attitude. Marco Conte, of Marco's Fine Italian Dining in Farmington, shared several recipes for readers to try. Conte — the parent of Roberts — mixes sherbet, ginger ale and fruit juices together in one big bowl of punch. In a fruit rind he mixes ingredients like pineapple juice, Seven-Up and fresh fruit bits.

Like her chef dad, Roberts seeks interesting ideas.

Fruity drinks are popular among teenagers. Darnbrook said a non-alcoholic strawberry daiquiri is as good to her friends as one containing rum.

"I think the taste is the same," she said. "I'm not opposed to adults who have an occasional drink — but I am opposed to drinking for the goal of getting drunk."

Her best friend, Eliza Hutchinson, who is the publicist for her school's SADD chapter, also plans to avoid alcohol during graduation.

For them, soda and water are just fine.

Update classic grilled cheese with apple, tomato

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRILLED CHEESE AND TOMATO PANINI WITH CRISPY APPLES

- 2 slices thickly cut sourdough bread, or a 6-inch hoagie or submarine roll with some of the inside removed
- 1/2 cup shredded or sliced sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup whole, peeled, canned tomatoes, drained and halved lengthwise (2 large tomatoes)
- 1/2 medium tart apple such as a Granny Smith, unpeeled and sliced thinly
- vegetable or olive oil, for spraying pan

Sprinkle half of the cheese evenly over one of the bread slices. Arrange the tomato halves over the cheese, covering the bread slices evenly. Top with apple slices. Sprinkle with the remainder of the cheese. Top with the remaining bread slice.

Heat a nonstick saute pan and spray lightly with vegetable oil. Place the sandwich in the pan and weigh the top down by pressing a plate over the sandwich, topped with a can. Saute over low heat for 3 or 4 minutes. Turn the sandwich over and repeat the process until the bread is golden brown and the cheese is melted. Slice into two and serve immediately.

Makes 1 sandwich.

provide a variety of foods.

Don't forget your graduate, what does he or she like to eat? Some of our most popular food themes for graduation include:

BURGER BARS

With everything under the sun including: Turkey; Vegetarian; All Beef;

Heaps of toppings including: Swiss, Cheddar cheese; Lettuce, tomato, pickles, onion, bacon; and more...

A variety of mustards, mayonnaise and more;

Served on Kaiser rolls, onion rolls, croissants and hamburger buns.

SOUTHWEST

Is always popular; starting with a Tex-Mex dip, fresh salsa; follow with BBQ items.

PICNIC

Serving a variety of cold items that you can prepare ahead including: Caesar salad, marinated fresh mozzarella and summer tomatoes, sliced beef tenderloin platter with fresh rolls, pasta salad, marinated grilled chicken breast served with salads, interesting breads and spreads for dipping.

I have had clients design their food in two phases and invite adults earlier with a more formal menu and have the kids later in the evening for dips and pizzas.

No matter what food party plan you adopt for your graduation celebration it is important to be organized and work ahead.

The checklist might include:

- Invitations
- Rentals, i.e. tent, chairs, and tables
- Beverages as well as equipment and ice needed to serve drinks.

■ Food, be it catered or done at home, a pre-plan will keep you out of the kitchen and with your guests.

cook with." From there, Brill's fascination with found food flourished. But grazing on public property wasn't always easy.

In 1982 he began giving foraging tours in downtown New York. Four years later, he made national headlines when he was arrested for eating a dandelion in Central Park. The charge? Removing vegetation.

A month later the city dropped the charges and, instead of prosecuting, offered Brill a job as a naturalist, to lead teaching tours showing other New Yorkers the bounty that grows around them.

Brill acknowledges that not everyone will be comfortable foraging. That probably has to do with the fear of eating something that will cause a slow, painful death.

But, he said, common sense and a good field guide are all that are needed for safe and succulent foraging.

"Learn a small number of easy-to-recognize plants really well and you will build up your knowledge and do this safely," he said. "Don't pick near heavy traffic or near railway rights of way where they spray, and always wash everything first."

There is one area where Brill's book, chock-full of tempting and unusual recipes, is lacking — there are no illustrations to help the novice forager differentiate between the yummy and the deadly.

Coincidentally, he has written a field guide, Identifying and Harvesting Edible and Medicinal Plants in Wild (and Not so Wild) Places (Morrow, 1994, $21.95), which he recommends for this purpose.

Not everything in Brill's book, which is organized by season, is unusual. Some of the recipes call for ingredients such as berries that can be found just as easily in grocery stores as in the backyard.

For an easy early-spring dish that doubles as great weed control for the lawn, try Brill's curried dandelions. Be certain not to use dandelions from lawns or fields that have been sprayed with herbicides or insecticides.

Dandelion leaves are best when they are very young. Bitter even then, they become distasteful so as they age. The best leaves are harvested well before the plants flower.

CURRIED DANDELIONS

(Preparation time 25 minutes)

- 3 tablespoons oil (corn, peanut, sesame or olive)
- 9 cups common dandelion leaves
- 4 1/2 teaspoons chopped garlic
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 3/4 cups drained soft, silken tofu
- 2 tablespoons mellow (light-colored) miso
- 1 1/2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 1/2 tablespoons curry powder

Heat the oil in a large skillet over a medium flame. Add the dandelion leaves and garlic, and saute for 10 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent the garlic from burning.

Meanwhile, combine the remaining ingredients in a blender and puree until smooth. Add the puree to the skillet and bring the mixture to a boil. Reduce the heat to low, cover and simmer for 10 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.

For another wild spring edible, try cattails, which grow in marshes and wetlands and look like, well, cats' tails.

Brill said the immature flower heads on cattails can be harvested when green in the early spring and cooked like corn on the cob. Because this comes out a little dry, he suggests serving it with a sauce.

Try eating the tender white shoots in the following recipe, too.

CATTAIL FRIED RICE

(Preparation time 15 minutes)

- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame oil
- 1/2 cup peeled and chopped cattail shoots
- 1 cup shallots, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 3 cups cooked brown rice
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon chili paste or 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Heat the sesame oil in a large skillet over a medium flame. Add the cattails, shallots and garlic and saute for 5 minutes. Add the remaining ingredients and cook until the rice is hot. Stir frequently to prevent sticking.

Makes 4 servings.

- 3 limes
- 1 tablespoon red-hot Tabasco sauce.
- 1 tablespoon fresh chopped cilantro
- salt and pepper to taste

Mix all ingredients together.

Serve these fun summer dips with fresh oven baked or fried corn chips spritzed with lime and salt.

BLACK BEAN CORN SALSA

- 2 cups of cooked black beans
- 1 small diced red onion
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 3 fresh tomatoes diced
- 1 tomato quartered and oven roasted

- 1 cup fresh corn-oven roasted the juice of three limes
- 1 tablespoon white vinegar.
- 1 tablespoon cumin
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon fresh chopped cilantro
- pinch cayenne pepper

1. Prepare vegetables as directed above

2. Oven roast the corn and tomatoes. Sprinkle them with olive oil put under broiler in oven until golden brown approximately 3-5 minutes.

3. Puree roasted tomato in food processor.

4. Mix with remaining ingredients and adjust seasoning.

■ A plan for set up and presentation of the food. This is where having a theme idea will really help. For example, a barbecue could be draped in traditional gingham linen or checked clothes and wicker baskets. Even using the school colors and draping colored linen over empty boxes or stacked books to give you height and levels will make you look like a party planner extraordinaire!

■ Don't procrastinate!! Get out there and buy beverages, plastic ware and other essential items early so you are not running at the last minute.

■ Bakery orders placed for special cake and/or pastries.

■ Don't forget about some things to pay homage to your proud graduate. Items such as a photo wall, display trophies and awards fun posters and such will add a very personal touch to your party environment.

A simple centerpiece with different photos protruding from the centerpiece (with photo holder sticks) representing all ages of your graduate's life is always a winner!

■ Don't forget to take precautions and have a drinking policy in place.

If you pre-plan and use a little creative thinking you are destined to have a graduation party full of wonderful memories!

Jong tells Planned Parenthood audience women's rights are being taken away

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Feminist author Erica Jong remembers girls who disappeared from her New York City high school class into the wilds of New Jersey, $250 and a hidden pregnancy in hand.

"Sometimes they came back bleeding. Sometimes they were hospitalized."

"That's why we must tell our daughters and our granddaughters what those days were like," she implored the more than 350 people attending Thursday's eighth annual Planned Parenthood fundraising luncheon at the Ambassador Hotel in Southfield.

"One of the saddest things for our daughters is the amnesia of history they suffer from. We face the problem of undoing the ignorance of our own history."

The fund-raiser, held under tight security, comes at a critical time for Planned Parenthood of Southeast Michigan. A bill that threatens state funding for Planned Parenthood clinics has been passed by both houses of the Michigan Legislature and sits on Gov. John Engler's desk.

"Once again we're under attack," said Planned Parenthood CEO George Stokes, a Rochester Hills resident. "Let your voices be heard and urge our governor to do the right thing and veto it."

Four politicians in Planned Parenthood's very tight corner were introduced. They were: Former Gov. Jim Blanchard running for the Democratic nomination for governor; state Rep. Pan Godchaux running for the Michigan Senate; Birmingham school board trustee Shelli Weisberg, running for Godchaux's seat; and David Fink, challenging U.S. Congressman Joe Knollenberg.

Jong is no Jonigly come lately to Planned Parenthood. "Speaking for Planned Parenthood is a no-brainer," she explained. "I started donating to Planned Parenthood when I got out of college." She has also served on its advisory council.

She made literary and social history 30 years ago with her first novel, Fear of Flying. Written in 1973 at the height of the women's movement it was an explicit account of a woman exploring the full range of her sexuality. She is the author of eight other books and seven volumes of poetry.

Today, it looks as if women have sexual freedom, but they don't, she told the audience. "We have an overt display of sexuality but behind it is deep sexual hypocrisy. Programs like Sex and the City, and girls bearing their midriffs and wearing rings in their belly buttons give the cosmetic feeling of freedom. But the underpinnings are being snatched away."

"It's the unfinished revolution," she said. "All of you in this room are courageous pioneers. It's hard to fight for a cause that people think has already been won. Girls think they are already free. They don't understand that great forces are conspiring to take away the rights they already have."

She urged women who care about reproductive rights "to recapture the language" that Right to Life has stolen away. "You are the most pro-family people on the planet," she said. "You are advocating that a child come into the world as a miracle for parents who are prepared to be parents."

Jong described her own difficult decision to have a baby at 36 as a life-altering experience.

"Reproductive rights made me able to have a child when I was ready." Daughter, Molly Jong, 24, has written her own first novel, Normal Girl. It describes the battle of a young New York City woman to overcome too much money, promiscuity, and drugs.

Although she was fighting a cold, Jong graciously stayed to chat with anyone who approached her and to autograph copies of her latest work, What do women want? Bread.Roses.Sex.Power.

Planned Parenthood public affairs director Sandra Gillis found it "refreshing" that Jong gave "a hardball message at what she could have considered 'a women's luncheon.'"

"I thought she did a wonderful job," said Naomi Foa from West Bloomfield.

"She's a little tamer than I expected," added Mary McHale, a Grosse Pointe resident. "I remember reading Fear of Flying in those wild times."

Fight for rights: "It's the unfinished revolution," Erica Jong says of the issue of women's freedoms.

Adding a personal touch: Monte Nagler "lives" with numerous photographs in his home - his as well as many others. Here is one from Nova Scotia that proudly hangs in his house.

Living with photographs a gratifying choice

FOCUS ON

NAGLER

As students in my photography classes all know, I'm constantly stressing the importance of having photographs hanging in their homes or offices. I firmly believe that anyone with an interest in photography can greatly benefit from what I call, "living with photographs".

Begin with some of your own pictures. I know that all of you have some favorite slides or prints tucked that you can't wait to get out and brag about whenever a friend or relative stops over. Well, why not permanently display these favorites? Perhaps it's that dramatic sunset you just took on your last vacation or it's the shot of your child that captures that special expression of childhood delight.

Whatever the case, it's easy to get pictures up on the wall. Just take those prized slides and negatives to your photo dealer for the enlargements. Any 35mm shot will blow up fine to 11 by 14 without losing quality. Many dealers, local frame shops, even large discount stores will stock pre-cut mats and frames that

See related story page B7

You'll be proud of that special grouping of your favorite pictures and will be grateful you took the time to assemble them.

As your interest in photography increases, you'll find yourself wanting other photographs to "live with." It may be that memorable shot you fell in love with at the art fair or that striking poster you couldn't resist at the bookstore.

Well, why not purchase them? Often, a modest investment of dollars will pay off in big dividends of satisfaction.

You'll also discover that "living with photographs" will keep your level of photographic interest and excitement high. And having pictures to look at constantly will serve as a teaching device...the more you look, the more your knowledge and understanding of photography will increase.

People I know who "live with photographs" tell me how beneficial it is and how their pictures help keep the "creative juices" flowing and their appreciation of photography growing.

Try it for yourself...you'll be glad you did. "Living with photographs" is gratifying indeed.

Needle arts lovers can pocket guide

A pocket-sized reference guide for needle arts enthusiasts arrives this month at Michigan bookstores.

The Needleworker's Companion by Bloomfield Hills author, TV host and nationally known expert, Shay Pendray, covers the basics as well as advanced techniques of needlepoint and embroidery.

Interweave Press of Loveland, Colo., publishers of the well-indexed, spiral-bound book, designed it so that stitchers who want to keep its information at their fingertips can carry it in their needlework bags.

Author Shay Pendray produces and hosts Needle Arts Studio, seen on major public television stations since 1998, and on 87 stations of The Family Network. Her show covers step-by-step ways to create beautiful and useful needlework art, from knitting and crocheting to needlepoint and embroidery. The show appears at 7 a.m. Saturdays on WTVS, Channel 56, and 2 p.m. Fridays on WFUM-TV, Channel 28.

The show's popularity is a reflection of families' growing interests in crafts work under the stay-at-home, cocooning trends in post-9/11 USA.

Needlework triggers the body's relaxation response, says a recent study by the Mind/Body Medical Institute at Harvard Medical School.

They discovered that the repetitive motion of knitting, crocheting and embroidery lowers blood pressure and heart rate.

Pendray bases her new book on 30 years of expertise and insights. It contains more than 200 illustrations and step-by-step instructions.

MID The

Water wonderland

Aquatic addition: A water garden was recently installed at Wonderland Mall in Livonia by Elegant Environments Inc. of Brownstown. The garden, measuring 8 by 11 feet, is complete with a variety of eight different aquatic plants and five large, fancy-tailed goldfish – one of which has been named Pinky by some of the local children because of the pink spot on its head. The garden features a two-drop waterfall that runs at a rate of 2,700 gallons an hour and can be heard from up to 50 yards away. It took about 24,000 pounds of material and 46 man hours to complete the project.

Nagler on exhibit

Laurel Park Place in Livonia will host an exhibit of Observer & Eccentric photo columnist Monte Nagler's art from May 28 to June 11.

An artist reception will be 6-9 p.m. Friday, May 31.

Monte Nagler began photographing seriously after studying with Ansel Adams.

"It was during that period of intensive work that I realized that making photographs is a way to experience beauty instead of just looking at it," Nagler says. He believes that photographers should communicate feelings that are inside them. Through their photographs, a photographer should be saying: "This is what I saw and felt and I'd like to share that!"

Nagler's photographs, which have won numerous awards, are found in many private and public collections including the Detroit Institute of Art; the Center for Creative Photography in Tucson; The Brooklyn Museum; Nikon Int.; The Ford Motor Co.; General Electric Corp.; Daimler Chrysler Corp.; General Motors Corp.; BASF Corp.; Compuware and IBM. Galleries and agents throughout the country also represent his photography.

Nagler is a noted writer, lecturer and teacher of photography. He has conducted many classes and seminars throughout the states. The nationally syndicated photography columnist is also the author of: How To Improve Your Photographic Vision and Statements Of Light.

Laurel Park Place is at Newburgh at 6 Mile (East of I-275) in Livonia. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday - Saturday, and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Nagler will be in attendance from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

BOOKS

Familiar friends fill new children's books

BY SAMANTHA CRITCHELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Young children are drawn to the familiar. They like to eat the same foods, sing the same songs and wear the same shirt as often as their parents allow.

They also can't get enough of their favorite characters. Kids will read about a character, then watch him on television and then take the stuffed-animal version to bed.

Popular characters featured in new books include Bob the Builder, the Rugrats and Paddington Bear.

Paddington expands his appreciation of the great outdoors — and of his neighbors — in Paddington Bear in the Garden (HarperCollins, ages 3-8, $12.95). The story, in which Paddington even takes off his trademark red hat as he works up a sweat gardening, is by Michael Bond and illustrated by R.W. Alley.

Paddington then is forced to think on his paws after his marmalade gets mixed with the cement at a nearby construction project. His creativity pays off in the form of the most beautiful rock garden he and the National Garden Day judges have ever seen.

Biscuit, a golden-colored puppy, has two fun-filled days in Biscuit Meets the Neighbors and Biscuit Goes to the Park (HarperCollins, ages 2-6, $4.95 each) by Alyssa Satin Capucilli, with colorful illustrations by Pat Schories.

Biscuit and his pal, Daisy the kitty, roll out the welcome mat in the Neighbors story. They also dig up the yard as they fetch flowers for their new friends.

In the Park story, Biscuit and Puddles, his scruffy sidekick, decide they'd rather chase butterflies and kites than the baseball they brought with them.

Barney, the purple dinosaur, is featured in four new books, including Going to My Big Bed (Scholastic, ages 1-4, $5.99), which is part of the Little Lessons series. In the story, Barney tucks his friend Emily into her big bed for the first

TRAVEL

Hawaii's a heavenly destination, but Maui's the best

BY THE THREE OL BAGS
SPECIAL WRITERS

First, the bad news, "you have to leave to come back home." That's the answer Tom and Wendi Sparkman, former Livonia residents who recently moved to South Lyon, gave in unison, when asked if there was anything at all they did not like about Hawaii.

Their introduction to Hawaii was in November of 1997, when they honeymooned in Maui. Since then they've gone two additional times, and are packing their bags for trip number four, this month.

The Sparkmans like the island of Maui best, and they're not alone. According to Wagonlit Travel in Plymouth it's the number one island destination in the world.

Maui has an ideal combination of lush scenic nature, plenty of sporting opportunities, ideal weather conditions and great island entertainment.

Tom and Wendi Sparkman have lots of insider tips about Hawaii, and fortunately for us, they're happy to share them.

According to Tom, everyone should experience the road to Hana "it's one of the most beautiful roads in the world," he said.

"Driving in Hawaii is like having your own travel channel — the windshield is a big TV," he added.

"Don't stop at Hana when you take the road to Hana," cautioned Wendi. "Some people get to the city of Hana and think it's time to turn around, but the Seven Sacred Pools are just past Hana."

"The problem is, you sign rental agreements saying you can't go all the way around ... well you can go to the Seven Sacred Pools. That's actually the turning around point."

Depending on the time of year, the pools are varying degrees of fabulous.

"When we went in November, every single one of them was full of water," said Wendi. "People were swimming in them, and the plants were lush."

"Don't expect Hana to be like Las Vegas, either," warned Tom. "It's just a little town. The road is the attraction."

The Sparkmans encourage

Travel tips

- Take a video camera.
- Consider which time of year will accommodate activities you want to participate in.
- Check the Internet for package deals.
- Expect to pay about 25 percent more for everything on the island during whale watching season.
- Scuba dive at Black Rock (near the Sheraton, on Maui).
- Don't rent scuba equipment at the beach. Go into the village and save big.
- Plan on at least 10 days for your trip (two days dedicated to travel).
- Take the helicopter trip at least once.
- Don't limit whale watching to charters. Try any beach you see people gathering. (Charters do have fun amenities, however.)
- Don't visit more than two islands during a two-week trip. Too much time is wasted boarding airplanes, renting cars and checking in and out of hotels.
- Use lots of sunscreen, especially when snorkeling. Ten minutes in Hawaii's sun is equal to one hour of Michigan's.
- Take the road to Hana. Purchase the audiobook to hear directions to important stop off points.
- Don't expect a lei to be placed on your neck unless your package specifically promises that. (But, you can purchase one for about $10.)
- Leave formal wear home. Dress is casual. Shorts and a polo shirt is the perfect outfit.
- Attend a luau, in spite of how "touristy" the locals say it is.
- Watch locals windsurf. (Maui is the windsurfing capital of the world.)
- Don't surf at locals only beaches. However, you are welcome to watch the locals there.
- Get to know locals and ask them for tips about what to do.

travelers to stop at the Shell gas station just before the road to Hana to purchase a cassette tape that walks travelers through the most scenic spots.

The tape includes vital details, like "stop at mile marker 13, pull over 13 feet, walk back and you'll see a 100 foot waterfall," said Tom.

Without the tape you might drive right by some spectacular sight, and wonder what the big deal about the road to Hana was.

In addition to soaking in the natural beauty of the island, there are a number of other activities to enjoy. Take for example golf.

"It's a golfer's paradise," said Tom. "Every hole you're on is like a signature hole. There are whales jumping in the background on one hole. There's a movie star on the next hole. It's just a crazy place."

Speaking of whales jumping, whale watching is one of Maui's biggest attractions. Excursion boats take tourists out into the ocean and stop near mating prides. However, the Sparkman's witnessed a full breach, (a whale jumps entirely out of the water, does a complete flip and splashes in, backside down) while walking along a private beach.

"We just got off the road, and sat on a tree that had fallen down to watch the whales," said Tom, grateful for the experience. "Some people go there all the time to see whales, and never see a full breach."

However, if parasailing is your passion, skip the whale season (late December through early April), because parasailing isn't done during whale watching season.

"You can't be going with the boat and then have to stop for a whale," explained Wendi, who was hesitant to parasail at first, but now considers it one of her fondest memories. "I was petrified. The only reason I went up was because they let us go tandem (together). It was awesome."

The island is home to some of the most famous restaurants in the world, including Longhi's, recommended by Al Michaels, of ABC Sports, as the place to request your last meal from, if you ever wind up on death row.

In addition to fish so fresh, "they'll tell you the name of the guy that just caught it," the Sparkmans urge travelers to try Longhi's Chocolate Soufflé.

"It's to die for!" said Wendi. "You have to order soufflé a half-hour before you want it, because it takes that long to prepare," said Tom.

The Sparkman call Hawaii "heaven on earth." Now, if only there were no return flights.

■ Three members of Madonna University's baseball team were selected to the all-Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference academic baseball team.

Chris Woodruff, a junior outfielder from Livonia (Redford Catholic Central HS), posted a 3.51 grade-point average with a major in business. Mario D'Herin, a junior infielder from Livonia (CC), had a 3.26 GPA with a major in education. And Eric Williamson, a senior pitcher from White Lake, had a 3.27 GPA with a major in general science.

Although Madonna qualified for the WHAC Tournament, none of the Crusaders' players were selected to the 17-member all-conference first team. Seven Crusaders were honorable mention all-conference: Woodruff, senior first baseman Joe Pruchnik (Lutheran Westland), junior infielder Sterling Mintzer (White Lake), sophomore catcher Matt Rigley (Redford Union), sophomore pitcher Joel Halliday (Redford Union), senior pitcher Jeremy Stevens (Romulus) and junior pitcher Mark Cole (Farmington/CC).

Bryan Kay, a catcher at Siena Heights from Plymouth Canton HS, was also honorable mention all-conference.

■ The season ended early for Ben Tucker, a pitcher at Kalamazoo College from Plymouth Canton HS, thanks to an elbow injury. But Tucker still made his mark for the struggling Hornets.

Tucker, a junior right-handed pitcher, finished third in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association in earned run average at 2.49. He had a 1-2 record in the MIAA with 24 strikeouts in 25 1/3 innings before his season ended prematurely; he was 3-2 with a 1.60 ERA overall.

Hockey registration

The Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association will have registration from 9-11 a.m. Sunday, June 2 at the Plymouth Cultural Center. Residents of the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton are required to bring a current utility or tax bill as proof of residency.

Players will be taken onto teams as space is available. For more information, visit the PCHA website at www.pchockey.org, or call (734) 254-9198.

Hole in one

It took 40 years, but Emil Sporen of Allen Park got something he'll always remember from his golf game.

Playing the South Course at Fellows Creek in Canton Thursday, Sporen got a hole-in-one — his first-ever — on the fifth hole, using an eight-iron to ace the 127-yard par-three. It was the first ace for Sporen in his career.

Basketball camps

The Canton boys basketball team and its coaching staff will conduct their annual summer day camps in June. Cost for each five-day camp is $65.

Camp One runs from June 17-21; Camp Two is June 24-28. Boys who will be in grades 4-6 (this fall) will meet from 8:30-10 a.m.; boys who will be in grades 7-9 will meet from 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. All camps will be in the Canton HS gym.

Fundamental skills, drills and instruction will be emphasized. For more information, contact Canton HS boys coach Jeremy Rheault at (734) 414-8156 or the Community Education Dept. at (734) 416-2937.

Car wash

The Canton Chiefs Football Booster Club will sponsor a car wash at two locations on May 25.

The fund-raiser, aimed at supporting the Canton football program, will be from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Mobil Service Station located at Sheldon and Warren and at the Rite-Aid Drug Store at Ford and Canton Center.

North Farmington's last Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament in boys tennis had the same result as the previous five.

The Raiders went out as champions Tuesday by winning their sixth consecutive title on the Livonia Stevenson courts.

"Considering we're moving to the OAA (Oakland Activities Association) next year and this was our final conference tournament, the guys wanted to go out with a North Farmington victory," coach Mark Shenton said.

The Raiders scored 26 points, well ahead of second-place Northville (21). Stevenson was third (17), followed by Plymouth Salem (14) and Plymouth Canton (11). See final results.

Though they had a number of players to replace from last year's team, the Raiders managed to go undefeated through the WLAA dual-meet schedule.

"The new people who filled in spots in the lineup stepped up and won matches, and the returning players, most of whom are in different spots, were very successful," Shenton said.

North dominated the singles flights, winning three of the four championships, and freshman Mike Kaufman was a semi-

North knocks out Salem; Agape wins

North Farmington needs one more win Monday to clinch the Lakes Division softball title in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Raiders put themselves in position to win the championship for the second time in three years Friday with a 5-2 victory at Plymouth Salem.

North improved to 7-2 in the division with one game remaining at home against Westland John Glenn. The Raiders are 21-7 overall. Salem and Walled Lake Central have three losses apiece in the division.

Beth Danielewicz pitched a four-hit victory and was 3-for-3 at bat with a double and a run batted in. She struck out nine and walked one.

Moiria Kessler was 2-for-2 and scored two runs for the Raiders. Emily Jaffe hit a two-run single, and Alissa Melvin chipped in a hit and an RBI. Brynn Allen, the courtesy runner for Danielewicz, scored two runs.

"The girls were really focused today," North coach Dave Brubaker said. "We executed sacrifice bunts and we got some key hits with two outs that drove in runs.

"That told me the girls came ready to play and were focused on what they had to do."

Jill Posler pitched a complete game for the Rocks, allowing seven hits and six walks. Salem (14-9) had one hit each from Alycia Murawski, Kelly Jaskot, Amy Szawara and Janesse Chapman. Murawski and Jaskot knocked in the Salem runs.

Agape 6, Lutheran East 5: Abby Duncan collected her second run-scoring hit of the game in the bottom of the seventh inning, driving in the game-winning run Friday against Harper Woods Lutheran East in a game played at Griffin Park.

Canton Agape Christian improved to 9-13 with the triumph. East fell to 0-12.

Duncan ignited the Wolverines' four-run first inning with a two-run single. They made it 5-0 with a single run in the second, but the Eagles kept chipping away at the lead, eventually tying

Chiefs crush North

Plymouth Canton rode an 18-hit attack to a five-inning mercy victory, 18-6 over North Farmington in a Western Lakes Activities Association baseball game Wednesday at North.

The win boosted the Chiefs' overall record to 16-6.

Everyone got into the offensive act for Canton, with Mark Hanson and Nick Musselman each going 4-for-4 at the plate. Hanson scored four runs and drove in three more, slugging a two-run home run to highlight a six-run fifth inning. He also had a double. Musselman had four RBI and scored two runs, collecting a triple in the fifth.

Other offensive standouts for the Chiefs were Chris Pirch, who collected two hits including a two-run homer in the third; Mike Tomawin, working the first four innings and giving up six runs (four earned) on 10 hits, walking none and striking out three. Musselman pitched the fifth and fanned all three batters he faced.

Bucks' rally leads to an OT victory

Nine minutes into the second half of the Mid-Michigan Bucks game against the West Michigan Edge Wednesday in Holland, the Bucks' slow start took a turn for the worst.

SOCCER

The Edge, which beat the Bucks in three of their four United Soccer League meetings last year, got a goal from Junior DeBarros to take a 1-0 lead. After losing the final 20 minutes of their season-opener against Indiana four days earlier to the weather, the Bucks wanted something more out of this meeting.

And they weren't getting it, particularly from an offense that came into the season as the squad's strength but had shown little in the first match and a-half. Fortunately, there were still 36 regulation minutes left in the match against the Edge, and that was enough for the Bucks to forge a tie and force overtime — which worked to their advantage when Phil Presser

S'craft center signs with Canisius

Schoolcraft College center Yaku Moton-Spruill became the fourth Ocelot to sign with a Division I basketball school last week.

RECRUITING

The 6-foot-8, 260-pound Moton-Spruill is headed for Canisius College (Buffalo, N.Y.), member of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. The Golden Griffins are coming off a 10-20 season under coach Mike MacDonald (68-77 career record).

Other Division I Schoolcraft signees to date include point-guard Rulon Harris (Detroit Mercy), forward Mike Williams (Western Michigan) and back-up center Delvar Barrett (Ohio University).

Moton-Spruill, who graduated from Westland John Glenn High School, averaged 14 points and five rebounds per game as the Ocelots finished 35-1 and placed third in the National Junior College Athletic Association Division I tournament in Hutchinson, Kan.

Moton-Spruill, who helped Schoolcraft to a No. 1 ranking during the regular season, also received looks from Bradley, Houston, Western Michigan and Oregon.

"I liked what they had to offer, it's an opportunity to play and be an inside post-presence," said Moton-Spruill, who transferred

"I liked what they had to offer, it's an opportunity to play and be an inside post-presence. They (Canisius) have been in the semifinals and finals of the conference tournament the last four or five years. If the looks (passes) to the post will be there, I feel I can be an impact big man."

to Schoolcraft last year from Paris JC (Tex.). "They (Canisius) have been in the semifinals and finals of the conference tournament the last four or five years. If the looks (passes) to the post will be there, I feel I can be an impact big man."

Moton-Spruill must complete two classes this term — biology and psychology — to earn an Associate's Degree at Schoolcraft. Once the classes are completed and passed, he'll be eligible to play at the Division I school in upstate New York.

The Glenn grad, who plans to major in Sports Management, took his only official visit (May 2-4) to the Jesuit school in Buffalo.

"I'm sold on school, the campus is beautiful and I've got my snow shovel," said Moton-Spruill, joking about the area's annual heavy snowfall.

In Moton-Spruill's final game as an Ocelot, he scored a team-high 20 points as Schoolcraft defeated Wabash Valley (Ill.), 111-86, for third place in the NJCAA tourney.

"The thing I liked about our team is that we were never satisfied," Moton-Spruill said. "We always wanted to go one step higher. None of the guys had really played together, but we jelled as a team so quickly."

"We were picked second in our conference and that was a big motivation for us. We took it as a slap in the face."

Moton-Spruill showed promise as sophomore at Westland John Glenn before transferring to play his junior year, sitting the bench behind several high-profile players at national prep power Mount Zion Christian Academy (Durham, N.C.).

He returned to Glenn for a lackluster senior year and then signed with Paris JC where he appeared in just 13 games.

But this season he found a home on Haggerty Road under the tutelage of coach Carlos Briggs.

"He's the best coach I've ever known," said Moton-Spruill, who made second-team All-Eastern Conference and honorable mention All-Region 12. "He's a former junior college player himself and he knew what it was like to be in our situation. He really coached from his own experience."

Chiefs made it 12-6 through four innings before closing out the mercy win with a six-run fifth.

Harrison 15, Salem 4: Plymouth Salem played well early, but could not contain Farmington Harrison down the stretch as the Rocks suffered their sixth-straight loss in a WLAA crossover game Wednesday at Salem.

First-inning doubles by Drew Ziolkowski, Steve Cox and Neil Kowalik gave Salem a 2-0 lead after one, but the Hawks scored three times in the top of the second to go up 3-2.

The Rocks answered with a run in the bottom of the second on a groundout, knotting it at 3-all, but Harrison scored two in the top of the third to take the lead for good. The Hawks increased their advantage to 7-4 after five, then struck for eight runs in the sixth to invoke the 10-run mercy rule.

Rickey Calleja absorbed the loss for Salem. The Rocks' record falls to 9-15 overall.

CC 3, St. Mary's 1: Comerica Park hasn't seen a whole lot of winning this spring, but Redford Catholic Central will have a chance to be league champions in that stadium next weekend.

The Shamrocks earned a berth in the Catholic League title game by beating Orchard lake St. Mary's Wednesday at the CC High School field.

Catholic Central is now 18-4 overall and 14-3 in league play, and will face Birmingham Brother Rice in the championship game Friday at Comerica Park starting at 12:30 p.m. Rice upended Dearborn Divine Child in the other CHSL semifinal.

Against the Eaglets, CC picked up all the runs it needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Senior Ryan Rogowski singled home a run, and senior Dan Wilks belted a bases-loaded single that brought home two.

Wilks started the game, but lasted 2 1/2 innings before Jeff Niemiec came in to pitch the middle innings very well. He went 2 2/3 innings and got out of a bases-loaded jam in the third inning, and ended up with the win. Jeff Schulz pitched the final two innings of the game and got the save.

"Both teams left a lot of runners on base," said CC coach John Salter. "Niemiec got some key strikeouts in the third and fourth innings that helped us out."

CC won the CHSL tournament last year with a 5-4 win over Villanova, also at Comerica Park.

it with a single run in the top of the sixth.

Duncan's game-winning hit came after two batters walked and were sacrificed up a base. Andrea Hough also had two hits for Agape, scoring two runs.

Amy Henry was the winning pitcher, allowing five runs on four hits and six walks, striking out four.

Agape 12, Light and Life 2: Canton Agape Christian broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the fourth inning, eventually scoring 10 runs in a three-inning span to mercy Taylor Light and Life after six innings Thursday at Griffin Park.

Amy Henry was the winning pitcher, stopping Light and Life on two runs, on two hits and two walks, striking out seven.

Andrea Hough paced the Wolverines' nine-hit attack with a single and a double, scoring two runs and driving in two more. Abby Duncan contributed a three-run double in the fourth inning.

scored 20 minutes into OT for a 2-1 Bucks' win.

The victory boosted Mid-Michigan's record to 1-0-1, both games also counting as U.S. Open Cup qualifiers. West Michigan is 0-1-0.

The Bucks' tying goal was scored with 14 minutes left in regulation. Substitutes Adam Heinemann (Oakland University), Stephan David, Jason Perry (OU) and Tom Eller (Schoolcraft College/Livonia Stevenson) gave them renewed life, and David made the most of it when he one-timed a cross from Ryan Mack (Birmingham Seaholm), left-footing it into the goal.

That sent the match into OT, with both sides exchanging attacks until Presser stole an errant Edge pass in the midfield and slipped a pass through to Paul Snape (OU), who returned it to Presser for the game-winner.

Eric Pogue (Troy) made five stops in goal for the Bucks.

Notes: The Bucks will host the Kalamazoo Kingdom at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Saginaw's White Pine Park and the Dayton Gems at 5 p.m. Saturday at Plymouth Canton HS. Both games will be U.S. Open Cup qualifiers as well as league games. The Bucks must win both to have any chance of advancing to play in the Cup.

Tickets are available at the gate for the Plymouth Canton match for $9 for adults, $6 for students. At White Pines, tickets are $8 and $5. For more information, call (734) 483-GOAL or email the Bucks at info@mmmbucks.com.

finalist at No. 1 singles.

"Our singles have been a strong point all year," Shenton said. "At our two previous tournaments, we won at least three out of four flights."

"Going into this tournament, we knew our singles would give us a lot of points and have a strong showing."

The Raiders swept the singles titles at Novi and won three of four at Trenton.

Senior Rob Frankel and junior Dan Carlson breezed through the Nos. 2 and 3 brackets to the respective championships Tuesday.

Frankel conceded just four games and Carlson seven in three matches each. Both players were No. 1 seeds, and both beat Salem opponents in the semifinals.

Frankel defeated Mike Ware Jr. 6-2, 6-0 and Carlson beat Dave Wallen, 6-0, 6-2. No. 4 singles was more of the same, with the Raiders' Dan Levy beating the Rocks' Dave Daigneau 6-1, 6-3 in the semifinals. Levy then prevailed over top-seeded Jonathon Lee of Northville when Lee defaulted in the final due to leg cramps.

"Rob Frankel was extremely impressive," Shenton said. "That was especially nice for Rob, being a senior co-captain and moving from four singles up to two singles and still being as successful."

"Carlson and Levy played two doubles last year. In their first year as singles players, they were excited to be in those spots and made the most of it. Levy is undefeated and Carlson has only one loss."

Canton had a winner in doubles play, with its No. 2 team of Jeremy Romer and Spike Wagner defeating North's Matt Licavelli and Scott Stone, 6-3, 6-3 in the final. The Chiefs' No. 1 team of Mike Han and Brad Kreger battled through one of the toughest matches in the tournament, losing to eventual champions Jackson Knoll and Nate Mehill of Northville in the semifinals, 6-7 (5-7), 7-6 (7-3), 6-0.

Salem's No. 3 doubles team of Dave Kwak and Chris Treadwell lost to Northville's Matt Lewicki and Chris Irvine, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 in the semis, a flight Lewicki and Irvine won.

The Raiders had one champion and two runners-up in doubles competition.

North's No. 4 team of senior Scott Bernstein and junior Mike Zakalik avenged its only loss by upsetting Stevenson's Steve Cherenekoff and Marwan Chammout in the final, 6-4, 6-2, after beating Northville's Lance Dehne and Jeremy Reisman in three sets in the semis.

Matt Licavoli and Scott Stone finished second at No. 2 doubles, and sophomores Derek Linkous and J.P. Martin were the runners-up at No. 3 doubles.

After dominating the WLAA for so long, the Raiders expect to be in the OAA Division I next year, facing quality teams from top to bottom.

"The competition will be much more difficult, but it will be a fun way to play next year," Shenton said.

Salem, Canton region scorers

Both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton made their marks at the Division I Regional Tennis Tournament Friday at Livonia Stevenson, the Rocks placing fourth in the 10-team field with 10 points and Canton seventh with six points.

Perennial state-power Ann Arbor Pioneer won the regional crown with 31 points, winning every flight except No. 1 singles; Ann Arbor Huron was second with 21 and Saline was third with 14. See statistical summary.

Only one singles player from Salem or Canton reached the final four in his flight: Salem's David Daigneau, who lost in the semifinals to Pioneer's Scott Swanson (who finished first), 6-0, 6-0.

Both schools had a bit more success in doubles play. Salem's Kyle Jose and Pat Shaw reached the final at No. 1, losing to Pioneer's team 6-0, 6-2. At No. 2 doubles, Canton's Spike Wagner and Jeremy Romer lost in the semis to the winning Pioneer pair.

MEDICAL
BRIEFS"Good" cholesterol

After only four weeks into a 12-week study, people who took an investigational drug were able to increase their HDL cholesterol (the "good" cholesterol) levels by 34 percent, according to a recent report in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association. Also, 198 people lowered their LDL cholesterol (the "bad" cholesterol) by 7 percent.

The drug, called a CETP inhibitor, works by blocking the action of the cholesteryl ester transfer protein, which is known to lower HDL.

"CETP represents an important target because this protein plays a key role in HDL metabolism. In fact, a genetic deficiency of CETP is the main reason for high HDL in Asian populations," says study author Dr. John Kastelein, from the Academic Medical Center in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

Except for some mild gastrointestinal side-effects, there were no major adverse effects from the new drug.

"Although these results hold promise, further studies are needed to investigate whether the increase in HDL cholesterol translates into a reduction in coronary artery disease risk," says Kastelein.

Urinary incontinence

Doctors at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak are recruiting women to test an experimental oral medication to determine its effectiveness in reducing the number of stress incontinence episodes. The investigational drug is being tested in women with stress urinary incontinence (SUI), the involuntary loss of urine that occurs if the muscles that support the bladder are weakened, and mixed urinary incontinence (MUI), the involuntary loss of urine as well as a strong urge to urinate. Participants will be compensated. Call (248) 551-0642.

A new treatment for male urinary incontinence is the focus of a clinical research trial at Beaumont Hospital. To be eligible for the study, men must have had prostate surgery. Participation in the study will last at least two years. Potential participants will be given an implant screening, evaluation of past medical history, a physical examination, and urine and bladder function tests. Call Beaumont's Urology Research department at (248) 551-3355.

Early onset drinking predisposes teens to injury, addiction

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

Holly Bair, a trauma nurse coordinator at Beaumont Hospital, has seen her share of seriously injured teens and young adults in the emergency room, patients with "multi-system" injuries that involve long-bone fractures, spleen and liver damage, and devastating head trauma.

"It tends to be alcohol-related," she said.

But it's not always car accidents that cause the devastation, she added. "There's skateboarding off the backs of cars and falling off balconies. Things you wouldn't do if you're judgment wasn't impaired."

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism cites research done by the Boston University School of Public Health that reveals an alarming correlation between early onset drinking and likelihood of injury later in life when under the influence of alcohol. In general, teens who start drinking before age 14 are 12 times more likely to be injured than those who begin drinking at or after age 21.

"This analysis shows that for each year under age 21 that drinking onset is delayed, risk for later life injury diminishes," said Dr. Enoch Gordis, director, National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Research by the National Institutes of Health further indicates the use and abuse of alcohol by adolescents is associated with high-risk behaviors such as drinking and driving, drug abuse, unprotected sexual intercourse, interpersonal violence, destruction of private property, and association with deviant peer groups.

Teen substance abuse facts

■ Use of alcohol and other drugs is associated with the leading causes of death and injury (motor vehicle crashes, homicides and suicides) among teenagers and young adults.

■ First use of alcohol typically begins around the age 13. Use of marijuana begins around age 14.

■ Children who begin drinking before age 15 are four times more likely to develop alcoholism than those who begin at 21.

■ Approximately 8 percent of the nation's 8th graders, 24 percent of 10th graders, and 32 percent of 12th graders have been drunk during the last month.

■ A survey of high school students found that 18 percent of females and 39 percent of males say it is acceptable for a boy to force sex if the girl is stoned or drunk.

■ Researchers estimate that alcohol use is implicated in one- to two-thirds of sexual assaults and acquaintance or "date" rape cases among teens and college students.

■ Teenagers whose parents talk to them regularly about the dangers of drugs are 42 percent less likely to use drugs than those who don't, yet only one in four teens report having these conversations.

Source: Pathway Family Center, Southfield, Mich., (248) 443-0105.

Counseling: Dr. David Logan, a psychiatrist and the medical consultant to Growth Works in Plymouth, discusses alcohol use with a young client.

According to NIA statistics, in 1999, 31 percent of 12th grade students, 26 percent of 10th graders, and 15 percent of 8th graders reported high-risk alcohol use (five or more drinks on a single occasion) within the previous two weeks.

As a member of the national organization ENCARE (Emergency Nurses Cancel Alcohol-Related Emergencies), Bair often visits high schools to speak about the dangers of alcohol. She tells students they're not invincible: Drinking can put you into the emergency room and change your life forever. Think before you drink, she warns.

"This is just one moment in your life. Make a smart decision and do it with a clear head."

Community awareness

Dr. David Logan, psychiatrist and long-time consultant to Growth Works in Plymouth, had a one-word answer when asked if alcohol use by teens is more of a problem than school districts and the community perceive: "Absolutely!"

"It isn't a coincidence that there are more fatal accidents involving teens around graduation time," he said. "But six months later we forget it was alcohol-related. We just miss the kids."

Society's willingness to confront the issue is not what it should be, said Logan. "We look askance, but we don't see the carnage, the destroyed lives, the suicides, the pregnancies."

The problem is complicated. First of all, there's easy access to alcohol in our affluent society, said Logan. "Teens can go down to the village corner and give $10 to a college kid and say, 'Buy me a six-pack.'"

Second, parents are almost "a stage behind" in guessing their adolescent's alcohol use.

"If you think your kid is a weekend user, he's probably using all week... If you think they're just on cigarettes, they're usually on alcohol and marijuana also," said Logan. His advice: "Search the kid's room."

Binge-drinking especially has dangerous behavioral associations. The 2000 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse, an annual survey sponsored by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, concluded:

■ Underage persons who reported binge drinking (43 percent) were more likely to report past-month use of any illicit drug than were their peers who did not binge drink (6 percent).

Critical role

Parents have more influence than they may think

Parents play a critical role in guiding their children's decisions regarding drinking, drinking and driving, drug use and sex according to new research conducted by SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions/Students Against Driving Drunk) and Liberty Mutual Group. The Teens Today study results released today reveal that, contrary to the popular "myth of inevitability," such behaviors are not unavoidable rites of passage in teen life. The Teens Today report also suggests strategies that parents can employ to help keep their children safe.

The original research reveals profiles reflecting behavioral trends among teens. Three specific decision types emerged among the 500 teens surveyed, reflecting the degree to which they choose to engage in destructive and potentially destructive activities. These decision types, "avoiders," "experimenters," and "repeaters," were heavily influenced by parental attitudes and behavior.

Avoiders tend to avoid destructive decision-making. Experimenters tend to occasionally engage in destructive decision-making and repeaters regularly engage in destructive decision-making.

"These findings offer encouragement to parents to continue to talk to their teens about good decision-making," said Stephen Wallace, chairman and chief executive officer of the national SADD organization. "We've shattered the 'myth of inevitability' that so often mirrors parents' attitudes about teen behavior and their uncertainty about being able to influence decision-making."

According to the study, many parents either do not believe that their teen participates in destructive behaviors or think that such behaviors are a normal part of rowing up. Many also believe that there is little, if anything, they can do to influence teen choices.

Yet, the data suggests that parents can take an active role in determining which decision-type their teen is likely to resemble. Specifically, the Teens Today findings include:

■ Avoiders are more likely than repeaters to say they have open and honest communication with their parents.

■ Teens who have open and honest communication with their parents are more likely than those who do

Please see INFLUENCE, C7

Underage persons who reported binge drinking were almost nine times more likely to have used marijuana/hashish and six times more likely to have used any illicit drug other than marijuana during the past month compared with underage persons who did not binge drink.

Underage binge drinkers were 11 times more likely to have used hallucinogens and six times more likely to have used psychotherapeutic drugs during the past month nonmedically than underage persons who did not binge drink.

Parents' naiveté about their children's drinking habits isn't the only factor that makes them enablers. Many parents believe that drinking in a controlled situation, or drinking "just beer," is okay, said Logan.

Parents who have graduation parties with only beer often find vodka bottles or noxious oxide bottles the next morning."

Parental influence

Dr. Michael Brooks, medical director, Brighton Hospital, spares no sentiment when drawing a connection between parental attitudes and children's behavior: "If you want to see what's wrong with a kid, look at

Advocate for teens: Holly Bair, trauma nurse coordinator at Beaumont Hospital, often speaks about the dangers of alcohol to students at area hospitals.

Addiction specialist: Dr. Michael Brooks, medical director at Brighton Hospital, said there are few obstacles in society to prevent teens from experimenting with alcohol.

his parents."

Simply put, parents are children's primary influence. If parents view alcohol abuse as socially unacceptable, "it significantly decreases the likelihood that alcohol will be a problem" for their children, said Brooks. "Good parents can be involved with their kids, and still have struggling kids. But for the most part, parents are the biggest influencers of a child's attitudes."

Genetics also plays a role. Alcoholism is a "polygenetic" disease, meaning there is not one gene that can be isolated and indicted as the cause, said Brooks. "There are no tests, nothing as simple as a blood test, that says this person will be an alcoholic. The only thing that prevents a genetically disposed person to use alcohol is not to use alcohol."

Brooks warns that smoking is a gateway drug. "Especially at an early age. Probably the next thing they will do is smoke marijuana and drink alcohol."

Both Logan and Brooks indict insurance companies for the loss of in-house treatment beds in hospitals and treatment centers.

"Insurance companies believe alcohol-related problems in teens can easily be treated on an outpatient basis," said Logan. "Inpatient is just no longer available unless you are extraordinarily sick."

Brighton Hospital is an addiction hospital with 63 in-patient beds located in Brighton. It recently closed its in-patient adolescent treatment ward. "We were the last bastion in the area. Now it's more of a challenge to garner resources and get treatment," said Brooks.

Lack of treatment centers for those teens with serious alcohol problems, peer pressures to "fit in," and a society that accepts teen drinking as a rite of passage is all the more reason for parents to monitor their own behavior as well as their children's.

"That's where it all starts," said Brooks.

not, to say their parents' methods of preventing them from using drugs are effective.

Teens who have open and honest communication with their parents are more likely than those who do not, to say their parents influence their decisions about sexual activity.

Teens who have open communication with their parents are significantly more likely than those who do not, to say that punishment has kept them from doing the same thing again.

"The important message for parents is that 'you do make a difference,'" said John Conners, executive vice president and manager of Liberty Mutual's personal insurance operations. "In the face of media and peer pressure, many parents feel their role in influencing their children's choices is marginalized. Clearly, this is not the case."

The Teen Today report amplifies other SADD and Liberty Mutual research indicating the importance of parent-child communication in teen decision-making and reinforces the influence parents can have by conveying their expectations for teen behavior. This new data reveals that:

Repeaters are significantly less likely than experimenters or avoiders to say that it is important to them to live up to their parents' expectations regarding drinking, sex and drugs.

Teens who have open communication with their parents are significantly more likely to try to live up to their parents' expectations.

Teens who do not have open communication with their parents are significantly more likely than those who, do to say that they wish their communication with parents were different.

The Teens Today research also suggests that parents who adopt "zero-tolerance" attitudes about destructive decision-making by their teens may be more effective in helping their children avoid trouble.

Teens themselves offered specific advice for parents as to how they might best help their children make healthy choices, including:

- Initiating dialogue about decision making

- Staying up until teens return home

- Enforcing curfews

- Requiring that teens sleep at home

- Calling friends' parents to ensure supervision

- Asking teens to "check in" by phone during the evening

- Enforcing consequences for misbehavior

According to Penelope Wells, SADD president and executive director, "All of this data strongly reinforces how important a role parents can play in shaping teen attitudes and behavior. Parents who vigorously embrace that role are less likely to have teens who make destructive decisions."

Alcohol use among girls

Girls are beginning to drink at younger ages than ever before. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's 1996 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse (NHSDA) found that in the early 1990s 31 percent of new female users of alcohol were ages 10 to 14. In the 1960s that figure was 7 percent.

More sobering facts:

- According to SAMHSA's 1998 NHSDA, 38 percent of girls ages 12 to 17 reported ever using alcohol.

- The same survey indicated that nearly 7 percent of girls ages 12 to 17 reported binge drinking (having five or more drinks in a row on one occasion) in the past month.

- Overall, white non-Hispanic girls ages 12 to 17 reported the greatest levels of lifetime, past-year, and current use of alcohol when compared with black non-Hispanic and Hispanic girls. Past-month usage for white non-Hispanic girls was 22 percent; for Hispanic, 18 percent; and for black non-Hispanic, 16 percent.

Risk factors for girls who use alcohol:

- Puberty tends to bring a higher incidence of depression among teenage girls, which can trigger alcohol use.

- Adolescent girls who are heavy drinkers (five or more drinks in a row on at least five different days in the past month) are more likely than boys to say they drink to escape problems or because of frustration or anger.

- Girls are particularly susceptible to peer pressure when it comes to drinking. They are more likely than boys to drink to fit in with their friends. Boys drink largely for other reasons and then join a group that also drinks.

Female gender response:

Smaller amounts of alcohol are more intoxicating for females regardless of their size. Three physiological reasons may be responsible:

- When people drink, alcohol spreads into the water in their bodies. Because females have smaller amounts of body water to dilute the alcohol, they have higher concentrations of alcohol in their blood than males who drank identical amounts of alcohol.

- An enzyme called "alcohol dehydrogenase" helps metabolize or process alcohol. In males, this enzyme breaks down much of the alcohol in the stomach so less of it enters the circulatory system. In females, the enzyme is less active.

- Changing hormone levels during the menstrual cycle may affect the rate of alcohol metabolism in females.

For comparative information, see SAMHSA's Alcohol Use Among Boys fact sheet.

Sun damage

Protect your eyes this summer with a good pair of shades

Soaking up the sun? Look out for your eyes as well as your skin.

While most of us know that it's important to protect our skin from the sun, we might not as readily think about our eyes. Yet the same ultraviolet rays that damage the skin can harm your eyes as well, says Dr. Michael Smith-Wheelock, ophthalmologist at the University of Michigan Kellogg Eye Center. He advises adults and children to wear sunglasses with UV protection to block harmful rays.

Prolonged exposure to the sun has a direct link to some eye conditions, including the formation of cataracts, and is suspected of contributing to others, says Smith-Wheelock. "We have good evidence that the incidence of cataracts relates to the 'dosage' or exposure to ultraviolet rays," he says. "The more exposure to sun you have, the more likely you are to have cataracts. And the effect intensifies the closer you move to the equator."

Smith-Wheelock notes that intense UV rays can actually burn the surface of the cornea. The condition, called photokeratitis, is similar to sunburn and is more likely to occur in areas where the sun is highly reflected, for example, off of water, snow, the desert, and in tanning booths.

Most eye disorders from the sun tend to affect the front — the cornea and lens — rather than the back of the eye, says Smith-Wheelock. Nonetheless you can do severe damage to the retina, which lines the back of the eye, by staring directly at the sun. The resulting condition is called solar retinopathy, and welders wear goggles to protect their eyes

Kellogg optician David Karl explains what you should look for in a pair of sunglasses. First check for a rating that promises to block 99 percent to 100 percent of the UV-A and UV-B rays. "More expensive sunglasses do not necessarily offer more protection—it's the UV rating that counts," he says.

"When you spend more money for glasses, you are paying for fashion and, perhaps, some improvement in the optical quality." Another popular feature, he says, is polarization, which increases comfort by cutting the glare from horizontal surfaces, like water.

"Don't forget to ask about UV protection when you buy prescription glasses," says Karl. Kellogg's Optical Shop automatically includes UV protection in all children's glasses and in most adult lenses, but not all shops offer the same coverage.

Because UV rays can penetrate the clouds, Mr. Karl says it's a good idea to wear sunglasses on overcast days. You also need protection when you're in a tanning booth, and when you're near water or snow, because reflected sun means intensified UV rays.

The University of Michigan W.K. Kellogg Eye Center is a nationally recognized vision care and research center. As part of the University of Michigan Health System, Kellogg provides medical and surgical eye care, including laser eye surgery; professional and public education; and performs advanced ophthalmic research. Kellogg also serves as a regional referral resource, providing specialty vision care that may not be available in other communities.

Attached condominiums: Townhouses, first floor ranches and upper ranches - 158 residences in all - will be built at Magnolia Park.

Magnolia Park promotes value for price

The affordability factor gets big play at Magnolia Park in Waterford.

Buyers in the attached condominium community off Hospital Road just north of Cooley Lake Road can acquire any of the three different styles of home there for less than $150,000.

And some nice features, too.

"I think the huge selling point is square footage for price," said Kevin J. O'Grady, president of In Sight Building. "It's a turnkey community. People have to simply bring their clothes and furniture."

"The washer and dryer are installed, refrigerator, oven," O'Grady said. "All have a high efficiency furnace. Air conditioning is included. They can move right into the condo complex and everything is done."

"People buying this are looking for a bang for the buck," added James L. Daily, sales representative.

"The biggest thing is not only price, but the turnkey aspect Everything is included. That's really huge," Daily said.

O'Grady and Daily also tout the quality of work at Magnolia Park.

"We build primarily $250,000 homes (at nearby Pinecliff) and some up to $3 million," O'Grady said. "We have exactly the same trades people. They are extremely high quality."

"We get comments from people about the quality of drywall and painting right away," Daily said of visitors to Pinecliff.

Magnolia Park has a rolling topography and is a short distance from the heart of recreation country. Union Lake with public access is nearby.

"It's close to lakes, that's for sure," O'Grady said. "It's five minutes to M-59."

"I've lived in Waterford the last 10 years, so I'm very familiar with all of its 36 square miles," O'Grady added. "This is an extremely nice location, a very quiet location.

"I have a 6-year-old and an 8-year-old. If the (Waterford) schools didn't have a good reputation, I wouldn't send my boys to them," O'Grady said.

Three floor plans are available. The townhouse, 1,300 square feet, with two bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths over two levels, carries a base price of $145,900.

The first floor ranch, 1,100-square feet with two bedrooms and two baths, goes for $149,900. So does the raised ranch, a walk-up of 1,240 square feet on one level with two bedrooms and two baths built over the first floor ranch.

In addition to the features already mentioned by O'Grady, all homes come with landscaping, deck or balcony, basement, single-car garage, main-floor laundry, dishwasher and vinyl flooring and carpeting at base price.

Vinyl siding and brick are primary exterior materials and a dimensional shingle is standard.

Magnolia Park was designed to attract a mix of owners, Daily said.

"We're getting younger couples, singles and people on the verge of retirement," he said. "That's why we did ranches - for people who didn't want to do steps."

All residences have private entrances from the front door and garage.

Each bedroom upstairs in the townhouse has its own bath with combination tub/shower. The raised ranch has volume ceilings over the main living areas and a shower in the master.

Magnolia Park is serviced by Waterford's well water system, sewers and sidewalks.

The property tax rate is $28.50 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $150,000 home there would pay about $2,150 the first year.

The monthly maintenance/association fee is $125. One pet per residence is allowed.

Lindsay Battin ordered a townhouse after walking through models at Pinecliff.

"I thought the building outside was beautiful and when we walked through, the design was well worked out," Battin said.

"It was open, a lot of storage space. The bedrooms upstairs were huge. The location was perfect, near to where I work."

"They (sales team, builder) have been fantastic," Battin added. "They're always very excited, always real helpful and real patient."

Sales at Magnolia Park, (248) 366-5054, will be made at Pinecliff, off Pontiac Lake Road east of Hospital Road, until models are completed. Office hours are 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Bedroom/den option gives ranch plan flexibility

Do you dream about a starter home or a retirement home with open space and many extras? The Oxmead (G34-150) has 1,492 square feet of main floor space and an optional unfinished basement of 1,486 square feet.

It has a country-style exterior with a covered porch accented by large windows for a more open look. The lines are clean and compact, ideal for a smaller lot in a development.

The entire center of the Oxmead is dedicated to the living area. It has a vaulted ceiling with large windows facing the back yard.

A gas fireplace is on the left side of the great room and a broom closet has been incorporated at the end of the fireplace to add as much storage space as possible.

The stairs to the unfinished basement are on the left wall right off the entry. Beyond are the kitchen and dining room.

A walk-in pantry is handy to both the kitchen and two-car garage for unloading groceries. An eating bar backs up from the kitchen to the dining room.

All of the right side of the home is bedrooms.

Bedrooms 2 and 3 have wall closets and large windows. As a bonus, there are French doors on bedroom 3, dressing up the room where it could be used as an office or den.

A full bath and linen closet are across from the two bedrooms.

The master, which can be vaulted, contains a raised garden tub, separate shower and large, walk-in closet.

Technology helps keep everything on the level

BY JAMES AND MORRIS CAREY
FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

We learned as apprentice carpenters that a strong back, ambition and energy were necessary to survive in this grueling trade.

We also learned our tools were of equal or greater importance. Time is money, and having the right tools well maintained makes a job easier and safer.

Except for tools for specialized tasks, our basic battery of tools has remained the same for the nearly 30 years that we have been in construction.

Those include properly weighted framing and finish hammers, a circular saw, hand saws, framing square, combination square, nail sets, plumb bob, chalk line, tape measure and carpenter's level.

Although the contents of our toolbox haven't changed much over the years, the tools don't look much like the ones we began with. Today's tools have evolved into highly engineered objects that act as extensions of one's anatomy.

They are lighter, more powerful and more ergonomically sensitive. This provides better productivity, less wear and tear on muscles and joints and superior results.

Improvements in leveling tools are many. A level is one of our favorite tools. We like our work to be straight, plumb (true vertical) and level.

There are many uses for a level, including building a fence, installing a chair rail, wainscot or other trim and hanging pictures. Levels are available in various shapes and sizes, depending upon the job.

The most common style is the carpenter's level. It comes in various lengths and has two or more fluid-filled vials that are used to establish plumb and level. It's often called a bubble level. When the bubble in the fluid-filled vial is situated between lines on the vial, the object is plumb (or level).

There are several variations of the carpenter's level.

A torpedo level is a short one (about a foot long) that is easy to handle. It is used for jobs where space is tight and where a longer level isn't required.

A line level is another. It attaches to a string line that is held taut. It is small, convenient and easy to use. The line level is suited for fence-building and other outdoor projects.

Be forewarned that it becomes less accurate as the length of the string increases, and begins to sag.

The oldest of them all is the water level. It consists of a clear plastic hose filled with water. This style of level is useful for establishing level between two distant points such as when setting forms for a foundation.

It has all but been replaced by more a sophisticated means of establishing level — a transit or builder's level.

A level isn't just for leveling a surface. It also is used for establishing plumb, a straight vertical line. This comes into play when installing a door, paneling, wallpaper or other finishes that require a plumb line.

Another means of establishing plumb is by using a nifty tool called a plumb bob. It consists simply of a weight with a point at one end that is attached to a string. The origin of the string can be high on a wall or from a point on the ceiling, while the point at the end of the weight dangles slightly above the surface of the floor.

A plumb bob is an excellent means of transferring a point from a ceiling to the floor, and vice versa.

Another tool we keep in our pouches that can also be used as a plumb bob is a chalk line or snap line. As its name implies, it is used primarily for transferring a straight line onto a surface with chalk as the medium.

The chalk box consists of a plastic or metal container filled with pigmented chalk. String is wound on a reel completely enveloped by the chalk.

When the string is extended and held taut from one point to another, the line is lifted and snaps back against the surface leaving a straight line. This is useful in installing floor tile, wallpaper and chair rail.

Thanks to technology, a job that previously took two or more tools now can be performed with one tool that is a fraction of their size and significantly more accurate.

For example, in the past when installing wainscot, chair rail or wallpaper, it took a level, a plumb bob and a chalk line.

Now you can have all three in one with a laser level, also known as a laser-line generator. This tool can cast a continuous straight line on any surface without leaving a mark.

Laser technology has been around for a while, but in recent years has become more compact, affordable and functional. Some models have a laser that will skip over moldings and uneven surfaces.

So, if you're installing wallpaper above an existing chair rail, place a laser-line generator on the floor, use the bubble to establish plumb and watch the laser line jump right over the molding to cast a plumb line where you need it with no permanent marks.

One manufacturer has come up with a laser-line generator that has spring-loaded pushpins that will allow you to temporarily anchor the device to wallboard or plaster to align objects with one hand.

This tool is as close as it gets to using a television remote control when making home improvements.

Let's Talk About
Real Estate

"RELOCATING THE WORKING SPOUSE"

The buying and selling of real estate always involves a human dimension. This week, we focus on one of the consequences of relocation. When a family relocates to a new city because of a job transfer, the spouse who is also employed faces a difficult challenge to find acceptable job opportunities. This dilemma is actually very common in today's family with two wage earners. If you or someone you know is in this situation, I hope the ideas listed below may be helpful in finding new employment:

1. Prepare your resume as soon as you and your spouse have made the decision to relocate.
2. Begin your job search while still employed, if possible.
3. Check to see if your present employer has a facility, or a customer, or supplier in your new city who would value a referral from your company.
4. Subscribe to newspapers in the new city before you move. Most papers will mail to out-of-town subscribers. This will enable you to become acquainted with the kinds of job opportunities that exist.
5. Ask the personnel department of your spouse's firm for the names of search firms and employment agencies who may be able to help you.
6. Ask for a testimonial letter from your employer on company stationery.
7. If you are in a licensed profession, check with the appropriate state office in your new state to see what requirements are necessary in order to become licensed. If you investigate early, you may be able to cut down the lead time needed to become re-established.
8. Notify potential employers that your relocation expenses are covered. This will help you compete with local applicants.

ADVICE: When relocating, ask your REALTOR® for help. Today's REALTOR® provides many relocation services.
