ocation, location, location."

That's the way Canton Supervisor Tom Yack frequently sums up his opinion on why many home buyers choose Canton.

Now, it's the same reason he's using to explain the decision made by Swedish-based furniture retailer IKEA to locate in Canton Township.

'We have found absolutely the best location. You cannot have better than the site we've picked in Canton Township.'

IKEA, which bills itself as the world's largest home furnishing retailer, formally announced Monday it will build a 306,000-square-foot store at the site of the old Super Kmart at Ford Road and Haggerty. The announcement ended some two years of speculation and rumors the furniture retailer was looking to locate in the area.

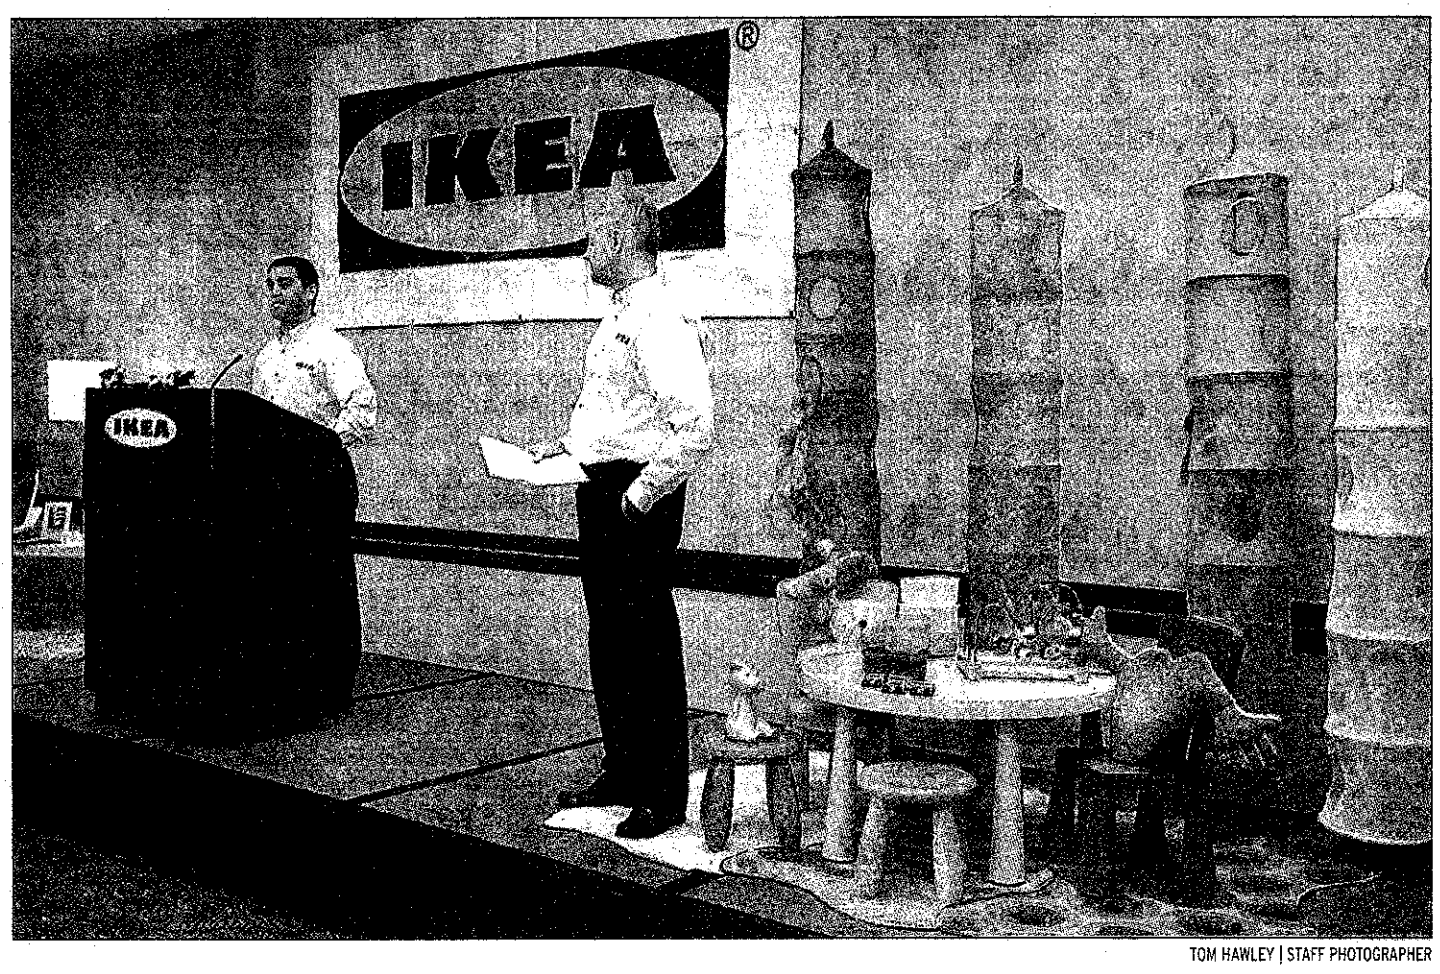

"This is a very important announcement in Canton's history," Yack told the crowd of officials and journalists at Monday's press conference.

"Homebuyers continue to select Canton as their place to live and they do so for a variety of reasons," he said. "It's a safe and secure community, it has a well-respected school district, outstanding leisure facilities and programs, low millage rates, a great community for young families and location, location, location."

It's that last attribute, he said, that was most attractive to IKEA in their site selection process, an assessment which IKEA real estate director Pat Smith confirmed.

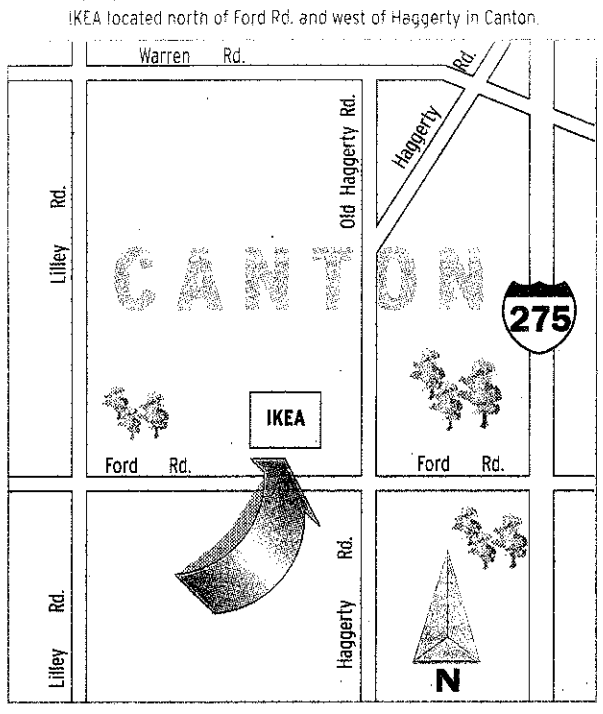

"We have been looking in southeastern Michigan for a long time now for a store," he said. "We have found absolutely the best location. You cannot have better than the

Local stores welcome competition from IKEA

BY JACK GLADDEN

Local furniture stores don't seem to be very nervous, or intimidated, by the impending arrival of IKEA, the Swedish-based furniture giant.

Lynn Bowen, store manager for the La-Z-Boy store on Ford Road in Canton, about a mile east of the proposed IKEA store, said she welcomed the newcomer.

"We think it's great," she said. "Other furniture businesses in the area increase our business, for the most part."

Bowen, who said she has been to the IKEA store in Illinois, said they deal in a whole different line of merchandise. She also liked the idea that IKEA would be taking over the old Super Kmart site.

"I think it's great for that area of Ford Road," she said. "I don't think any new development should go up until those empty buildings are taken care of."

She said the proximity of IKEA to La-Z-Boy wasn't a problem.

"I've been with La-Z-Boy for 13 years," she said. "I've worked at stores that had other competitors across the street. I think it will enhance our business. I'm a pro-business person. This couldn't help Canton any better."

Despite growth, school budget picture still grim

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

It was a good-news, bad-news kind of week for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The good news: The immediate financial outlook for the district is positive, with more than 400 new students enrolled providing an additional $2.1 million in state foundation grant money.

And, because of cost-saving measures, $2.9 million is being put back into the fund balance, which will result in a bank account of nearly $10 million at the end of this school year.

The bad news: The forecast for the not-too-distant future indicates the district will run out of operating funds in less than two years. School officials project the district will be nearly $3 million in the red at the end of the 2005-06 school year, and more than $20 million in debt by June 2007.

The figures don't reflect nearly $3.3 million in Durant Funds being saved by the district.

"This is every district in the state, and it doesn't matter if you're Birmingham, Bloomfield, Westland or Inkster," Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent of business services, told the Board of Education Tuesday night while presenting the financial outlook. "We know something is going to have to change."

Board vice president Judy Mardigian acknowledged the efforts of the administration and staff to save money, but recognized it still isn't enough.

"We're hanging on, and it's very admirable, but I'm extremely frustrated," she said. "We've had five years of no increases from the State of Michigan in our foundation grant, five years of retirement rate increases, we've experienced executive order cuts from Lansing and health care cost

IKEA is a popular regional attraction

TOM HAWLEY | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Canton trustee Karl Zarbo, who is manager of Livonia Mall and one of the driving forces behind bringing IKEA to Canton, speaks at the press conference as IKEA real estate director Pat Smith looks on.

Dr. Jerry Charbonneau fondly remembers walking into the IKEA furniture store in suburban Chicago and being amazed by the completeness of it all.

IKEA stores are like a city within a city, with restaurants and its model-home format that help make the stores destination stops for furniture shoppers.

IKEA officially announced Monday it had chosen Canton Township as the location for its newest store. Charbonneau, chair of the sociology department at Madonna University in Livonia, said shoppers have a lot to look forward to.

"It's amazing," he said. "They have everything there. It's really the epitome of globalization."

As part of its aggressive North American expansion, IKEA plans to open five new stores annually.

IKEA's 310,000-square-foot Canton store is expected to open in the summer of 2006. Its 21-acre location is the northwest corner of Haggerty and Ford, built on the closed Super Kmart site. The Super Kmart building will be demolished so that the two-story IKEA store can be built.

IKEA plans to spend more than $1 million to make infrastructure improvements, including street and off-ramp widenings as well as enhanced signalization.

The first two letters of IKEA stand for Ingvar Kamprad, the Swedish man who founded the company in 1943. The last two letters represent Elmtaryd, the farm where Kamprad grew up, and A represents Agunnaryd, a parish in southern Sweden.

The blue-on-yellow IKEA logo is reflective of the company's Swedish heritage, incorporating colors from the country's flag. The company also celebrates Swedish culture by serving Swedish meatballs and other related foods in the stores' built-in restaurants and by selling Swedish grocery items in the stores.

Local residents are thrilled at the prospect of having the store in town. Paul Kogut of Canton said IKEA's arrival will be exciting.

"It's probably a good thing to have around here," he said. "But it's a shame they have to tear down a building that's only 5-6 years old."

When IKEA builds its two-story building on a 21-acre site on Ford west of I-275 complete with 1,100 parking spaces, the old Super Kmart will be demolished.

Kogut and his wife plan to add IKEA's modern-styled ready-to-assemble furniture to their home.

"We've already talked about buying a new bedroom set," said Kogut's wife, Barbara.

Globally, there are 84,000 IKEA employees (IKEA refers to them as "co-workers") with 8,000 of them working in the United States. Employees only need to work 20 hours weekly to qualify for benefits, which include full medical/dental, 401K, tuition assistance and more.

The nearest IKEA stores are located in Schaumberg, Ill.; Bloomington, Minn., and Toronto, Ontario (four locations). A second Illinois store is in the planning stages and is expected to open near Chicago. IKEA has several California stores and has a stronghold on the East Coast.

Stores are set up with a model home format showing customers how furniture can be incorporated into a variety of "life situations."

IKEA sells most of its furniture in flat-packed packaging and is designed to be assembled at home. Stores are set up with a self-service format that allows customers to pick out what they want, take it home and put it together.

Furniture in Plymouth, expressed similar views.

"It's a whole different market," he said. "We cater to different people than they do. We have our own decorator and we can give you a sofa with 900 different fabrics."

Laurel Furniture, which has been in Plymouth for 37 years, deals in more traditional family oriented furniture, such as living room and bedroom sets. IKEA deals in flat-packed ready to assemble furniture.

"IKEA is all assemble yourself furniture," Wurm said. "They're going for a younger generation. They're big, and they generate traffic. It might even bring more interest in furniture to the area. I think some of our best years were when there was a lot of competition."

And Eric Buzenberg, co-owner of Walker-Buzenberg in Plymouth, a high-end furniture store that has been around for more than 70 years, agreed.

"I think it's going to be great," he said.

"It's a good retailer in general to bring to this area. I think IKEA will bring customers to this area who normally might not come to Plymouth-Canton. That will spill over to the other stores."

Officials of Gardner White Furniture, which also has a Ford Road store east of I-275, did not return phone calls seeking comment.

IKEA

site we've picked in Canton Township."

IKEA, which has more than 200 stores in 32 countries, including 21 in the United States, typically locates along major freeways and Interstates, since its customer base ranges far beyond the communities in which the stores are located.

"IKEA recognizes the potential customer base that exists for us here in the Metro Detroit area," said Joseph Roth, director of public affairs for the company.

LOCAL IMPACT

But what will be the effect on the township when the store opens, if all goes according to schedule, in the summer of 2006? Township and IKEA officials agree the impact should be positive and beneficial.

For one thing the store will employ about 350 full- and part-time employees. That's 350 new jobs in Canton.

"There will also be hundreds of construction jobs that will be sustained as a result of this project," Yack said. "IKEA's presence will also contribute to sustaining our current retailing base by adding additional shoppers from northern Ohio, western Ontario and most of Michigan — IKEA's trade area."

Canton Trustee Karl Zarbo, who has worked in commercial and retail real estate for 20 years and is credited with being the moving force in bringing IKEA to Canton, agreed.

"I think we're going to be marvelous partners," Zarbo said. "Our goals are very similar. This is a major component as we look to redevelop Ford Road. We've talked about quality national retailers. It doesn't get any better than this."

But some Canton shoppers expressed both excitement and concern about IKEA coming into Canton.

Paul Kogut of Canton said he hopes something will be done to alleviate traffic congestion along Ford Road. Sometimes traffic is so heavy that he backtracks to avoid it.

"Sometimes I purposely go [illegible] Ann Arbor Road," he said.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

IKEA plans to shell out more than $1 million for infrastructure improvements, including street and off-ramp widenings as well as enhanced signalization.

Kogut said IKEA's arrival will be exciting.

"It's probably a good thing to have around here," he said. "But it's a shame they have to tear down a building that's only 5-6 years old."

When IKEA builds its two-story building on a 21-acre site on Ford west of I-275 complete with 1,100 parking spaces, the old Super Kmart will be demolished.

Kogut and his wife plan to add IKEA's modern-styled ready-to-assemble furniture to their home.

"We've already talked about buying a new bedroom set," said Kogut's wife, Barbara.

A Michaels shopper, who asked not to be named, said she shopped in an IKEA while visiting a daughter in the Pittsburgh, Pa., area. IKEA, when it opens, will be just a few doors down from Michaels.

"It's just so big and has lots of stuff," the woman said. "I thought it was nice and had lots of diversified merchandise."

AIMING AT YOUTH

Sonya Clausen of Westland said jokingly that forces outside of her control may coerce her into checking out IKEA when it opens.

"I'm Scandinavian and shop at House of Denmark," Clausen said.

The store will most likely be popular with younger customers who like modern-styled furniture, Clausen said. But IKEA's ready-to-assemble format may not be for everyone, particularly single older women who may have trouble maneuvering the heavy packages in and out of their vehicles.

"Some of us can't lift 100 pounds," she said.

IKEA customers may pay an additional charge for home delivery or for assembly assistance, according to its catalog.

Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano welcomed the announcement.

"This is a class act that improves the quality of life in our community," he said. "We're going to be one of their biggest boosters and supporters and anything we can do to make sure they're successful, we're going to do."

And Kathleen Blake, senior vice president of business development for the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, called it "good news."

"Three or four years ago we were hearing rumblings that IKEA was looking to come to Michigan," she said. "We could hardly wait. We're just delighted to have another international player in Michigan with the stature of this company."

The $30 million-plus project should also generate some more tax dollars.

"There'll be an increase in the SEV of the building compared to the old Kmart building," Yack said. "That will mean higher taxes on the building that the Downtown Development District can recover. There will also be taxes on the building and the personal property."

REGIONAL NOTORIETY

Yack noted that with IKEA's presence in Canton, the township itself would get more notice around the area and around the country.

"The fact of having a destination store like IKEA puts Canton on the retail map," he said. "People will see Canton's name all over the upper Midwest. Wherever IKEA's catalog goes, the name of Canton goes along with it. It should help the sustainability of the present retail base and bring some new users as well."

Yack said the challenge would be to extend the stay of visitors to the store. He said hotels and motels might want to put together packages to accommodate customers who come from outside the area, such as Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other parts of Michigan.

"We want them to take in the other retail we have to offer," he said, "and restaurants, Emagine and The Village Theater."

He acknowledged that there will be an impact on traffic, particularly on Ford Road.

"But those impacts will be basically on the weekend," he said. "Morning drive time shouldn't be affected because they don't open until 10 a.m. And people driving home from work probably aren't going to stop to go shopping. They may come back in the evening."

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

IKEA has said it will spend more than $1 million in infrastructure improvements, such as street and off-ramp widenings and improved traffic signals.

"They said that is the price tag identified by their traffic study," Yack said. "That now goes to our consultants and they validate it. Then the process of identifying what projects need to be completed begins."

He said the Ford and Haggerty roads intersection would be impacted the most and the traffic studies would indicate what improvements are called for.

He noted that the Michigan Department of Transportation has already committed to adding a right-turn-only lane on the north side of Ford Road from I-275 to Lilley and that should help to ease the traffic situation.

"For the first few months after their opening, there will probably be a peak or spike in traffic," he said. "We may even have to use police officers to deal with the impact of traffic during that time. But you can't use that as a long-term measure of the traffic situation."

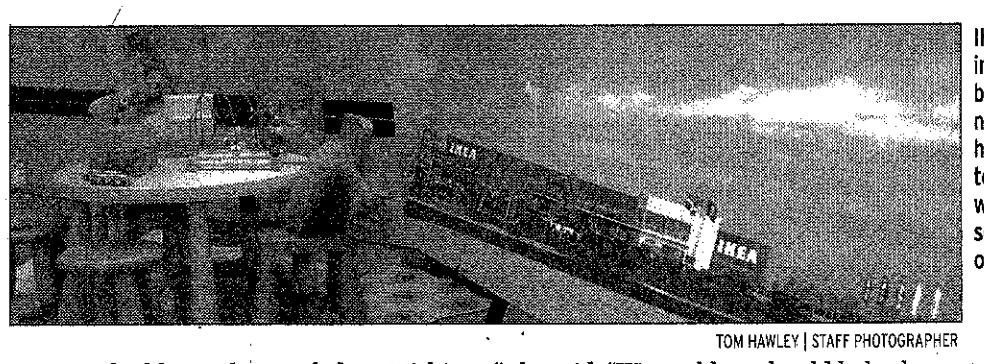

The township had to resort to policing traffic in the 1970s after the Meijer store opened at Ford and Canton Center. Ford was only a two-lane road at that time.

Whether the IKEA project might provide an impetus for MDOT to take a harder look at Ford Road traffic is pure speculation.

But Yack said he understood that when Cabela's, the huge destination store for outdoors outfitters opened in Dundee a couple of years ago, some road money was made available.

Staff writer Heather Needham contributed to this report.

IKEA bragging rights go to Ficano

There were a couple of light moments at Monday's press conference at which IKEA announced plans for a Canton location.

When Township Supervisor Tom Yack asked Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano to make a couple of remarks, he couldn't resist throwing out a little barb himself.

"There's a little bit of back and forth between Brooks Patterson (Oakland County executive) and County Executive Ficano over which county is slightly ahead of the other one.

"The good news is that IKEA is locating in Wayne County so the next time Bob rubs elbows with Brooks he can certainly say 'We got one on you this time.'"

Plymouth reporter named top journalist

BY BRAD KADRICH

BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

HomeTown Communications Network Chairman Phil Power (left) congratulates Plymouth Observer reporter Tony Bruscato, the 2004 Observer & Eccentric Journalist of the Year.

For a radio guy, Plymouth Observer reporter Tony Bruscato is finding quite a bit of success as a print journalist.

Bruscato, twice honored for his work by the Michigan Press Association, last week added the highest honor his peers can accord him when he was named the Observer & Eccentric's 2004 Journalist of the Year.

"Tony epitomizes what it means to be a community journalist," said Phil Power, owner and chairman of the board of HomeTown Communications Network, the O&E's parent company. "Our mission is to nurture the lives of our readers, and no one does that better than Tony."

Bruscato, who earned a bachelor's degree in communications from Indiana University in 1975, started as a temporary reporter at the Observer's Livonia headquarters in 1997, after a long broadcast journalism career that included nearly 10 years at WWJ and four years at WKBD TV.

He moved out to the Plymouth Observer in 1998 and has covered the City of Plymouth and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools ever since. He broke the story of the murder of Tracy Islam, for which her estranged husband, Azizul, was convicted in October 2000, and also covered the story of the child-care shooting death in Plymouth Township earlier this year.

"Tony has done an excellent job of balancing a whole variety of stories," said Plymouth City Manager Paul Sincock. "I've always said that, from time to time as government officials, we're going to do something that doesn't make any sense. Tony is going to report that, and rightfully so. Other times we do good things, and he reports that, as well.

"He works hard at getting the news," Sincock added. "I really think he has the interests of the readers at heart when he's out digging for the story."

Bruscato was recognized not only for his writing, but for his involvement in the community. For instance, rather than report on a school trip to Space Camp in Florida, Bruscato accompanied the class. He's also on the board of directors for the Plymouth Community United Way, and he's a member of the Plymouth Rotary Club.

"This is a great job," Bruscato said. "You get to be part of a community, you get to meet new people and even better, you get to tell their stories."

In celebration of this commitment to the community, Wal-Mart has named the Canton Fire Department as the recipient of the Safe Neighborhood Heroes Grant. The check was presented to the department on Saturday, Oct. 16.

According to Fire Chief Michael Rorabacher, the grant will be used to fund many areas of fire prevention education such as the Clown Unit, Fire Extinguisher classes, and the Fire Safety House. "The commitment Wal-Mart has made to public safety in Canton will benefit everyone. The fire department is very appreciative of the grant," Rorabacher said.

MAKE A DIFFERENCE

The Michigan Military Moms and Canton Township will collect A T & T International phone cards for our servicemen/women currently in the Armed Forces. Groups and individuals are encouraged to drop off the (activated, international) phone cards on Saturday, Oct. 30 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Summit in the Lobby. The Canton Goodfellows will kick-off their season with a drop off at the Summit in the Lobby on Saturday, Oct. 30 from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

The Goodfellows accepts new toys, new socks and non-perishable foods. Both events are part of the annual Make a Difference Day celebration around the nation.

DANCE PERFORMANCE

The Milwaukee Dance Theatre performs "My Elephant Dream" at the Plymouth Community Arts Council at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20. The performance is part of the "Live at 774" performance series.

Tickets are $25. Proceeds benefit the Plymouth Community Arts Council, a nonprofit organization. The Plymouth Community Arts Council is located at 774 North Sheldon in Plymouth.

For more information, call (734) 416-4278.

The Milwaukee Dance Theatre was founded in 1987 by Artistic Director Isabelle Kralj and is known for integrating theatre, dance, text and music into original works. Entering its 18th season, MDT has a history of critical acclaim and is known for its consistency in high quality productions. "My Elephant Dream" is a minimalist, situational, sketch comedy about love and relationships.

Cold Stone debut will aid police fund, CCF

Cold Stone Creamery, an ice cream franchise chain with national headquarters in Arizona, is opening a new store in Canton in Cherry Hill Village.

The store will be at 50409 Independence Street, at the corner of Ridge Road and Cherry Hill Road in the front corner of the big yellow Village store building.

The grand opening will be held on Saturday, Oct. 30 from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Cold Stone Creamery will donate a percentage of sales opening day to the Canton Community Foundation and the Canton Police Benevolence Fund.

Joan Noricks, president of CCF, said the event is another great first for Cherry Hill Village.

"This is the first business in Cherry Hill Village. I walked over and I saw residents peeking in the building. To see the commercial entities in Cherry Hill Village in their infancy is great. It's long overdue. I hope everyone stops in the store and helps raise money for the police fund and for CCF."

Cold Stone Creamery will offer its customers a free spoon servings throughout the day.

Cold Stone Creamery's ice cream, frozen yogurt and sorbet are made fresh daily at each store. Customer customize their order of ice cream and yogurt with one or more of a variety of mix-ins, including fresh fruit and nuts, pie fillings, brand name chocolate and gummy candies, cookie dough, soft freshly baked brownies and more. Crew members fold the mix-ins and the ice cream together on a frozen granite stone set at 16 degrees, ensuring that the concoction is blended evenly and that the ice cream maintains a creamy consistency.

"A trip to Cold Stone Creamery is a treat for all the senses," said Canton store owner Barbara Mulder. "You'll experience that aroma of fresh-baked brownies and waffle cones, the sight of candies and toppings arranged above the granite stone, and the energy and enthusiasm of our crew members who blend hundreds of creations every day."

Mulder said the store will have about 25 employees, most of whom are part-timers.

Pumpkin Passion, Pumpkin Pie, Snowflake Passion, and Candy Cane Wonderland are seasonal offerings at the store.

The Canton Community Foundation is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to enhance the quality of life in Canton and surrounding areas by identifying and directing resources that address current and evolving community needs through grants from permanent endowments entrusted to the Foundation for the common good.

With more than 800 stores from coast to coast, Cold Stone Creamery plans to establish 1,000 stores by Dec. 31. according to the company. Their Web site is www.coldstonecreamery.com

Canton woman, 35, accosted at gunpoint

A 35-year-old Canton woman told police she was approached by a man wearing a black mask about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the parking lot of Fordham Green apartments near Ford and Morton Taylor.

She said the man pointed a handgun at her and asked her questions about the location of male friend of hers and where the money was. She told him she didn't know her friend's whereabouts and knew nothing about any money.

At that point, she told police, the man forced her into her apartment and into the basement. He then ransacked the apartment looking for her male friend and money.

Canton detectives are investigating and are attempting to locate the male friend of the victim for questioning.

Rider's, 42011 Ford at Lilley.

"The 'Texas Hold 'Em' starter set has been a hot seller," Bush said. "'Texas Hold 'Em' is a poker variety focusing on gaming skills such as bluffing - or psychologically fooling other players into thinking your hand is better - or worse - than theirs."

The more serious players can also buy green felt poker table tops that can be set atop any card or dining room table. Also sold at Rider's are 11.5 ounce professional weight poker chips, packaged in aluminum cases.

"These are casino quality and make the game more authentic," Bush said of the chips, which even make the characteristic "splashing" sound real poker players like to hear.

Manager Phil Du Bois said poker is enjoying a booming popularity because of TV shows like World Series of Poker, World Poker Tour and Celebrity Poker.

Bush said that for most people, poker is just an excuse to get together with friends.

"It's a social game," he said.

"It takes five, six or seven people to play and ends up being a very social game."

Texas Hold 'Em in particular is a great social game because it involves "playing" the other players more than playing strictly to the cards.

Though Rider's also sells kits and models, role-playing games, kites, model trains and more, poker supplies by far have been the hottest sellers for the past eight months.

"It's hot and it's probably our single hottest category right now," Bush said.

Debates, issues help voters decide as election nears

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Mary Martin of Plymouth Township found the recent presidential debates "somewhat helpful" in making up her mind on how to vote.

She's casting her vote for George Bush Nov. 2 "because I think he's a man of integrity, high moral values."

The homemaker has seen a great deal of interest in this year's election "because our country is unfortunately divided on a number of issues." She likes Bush's experience and stance on getting rid of terrorists. Martin watched an interview with the president Monday morning on Good Morning America.

Anne Tartaglia of Plymouth Township and her mother are volunteers on the Kerry and Phil Truran for Congress campaigns. Tartaglia is a philosophy student at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor campus.

"I'm so against Bush's policies," said Tartaglia, who supported Howard Dean in the primary. She rates the war in Iraq as one of her biggest issues, along with the environment. She found the debates scripted, although "my opinion of Kerry improved somewhat."

Her Lake Pointe yard contains signs for both Kerry and Truran, although most signs in the neighborhood are for Bush.

"I really would like to know how people came to their decision to vote for Bush," said Tartaglia, who would like to see a neighborhood forum on election issues. "This election is so emotional."

Tartaglia is voting no on amending the constitution on same-sex marriage and is still undecided on the gambling proposal.

"I've read so much conflicting information, it's really hard to decide," she said.

Karen Hartnett of Canton is a Bush supporter. "I think he's doing the best he can do," said Hartnett, who has a home-based distributor business, Reliv, which provides nutritional products. "It just seems like he's got good moral character."

Terrorism and abortion are among issues she weighed in deciding. She watched most of the debates and felt Bush held his own. "I just think he's the right person for this time," she said.

Hartnett doesn't favor recognizing homosexuality as an alternative to marriage, nor does she favor an expansion of gambling. Gambling and same-sex marriage are the two ballot proposals for Michigan voters in 2004, with the latter supporting an amendment to the constitution to bar same-sex marriage.

"They have so much voice that it's out of proportion," she said of the homosexual population.

Hartnett finds herself more of a Republican, even though she's volunteered for the Democrats. "As I'm getting older, I'm getting more conservative," she said.

Mike Kertesz of Plymouth Township is the much-sought-after undecided voter.

"I'm not either supporter right at this time. My wife's the big Kerry supporter," said Kertesz, whose Lake Pointe yard has a sign for Kerry.

Terrorism and the economy are the major issues for Kertesz, who works for Wayne County at Metro Airport in equipment repair. He has found a lot of half-truths in the campaign. His work shift made watching the debates difficult, although he did see parts. Kertesz said he does plan to vote.

"You don't know really who to believe," he said. "They throw this out and that out. You have to do a lot of research on your own."

Sue Crosby of Canton voted absentee this year and cast her ballot for Bush. "I really don't want to change tracks," the homemaker said. "I'm just afraid that it's going to get more unsettled."

She voted "no" on the gambling proposal, considering the Indian exemption unfair, and is against same-sex marriage.

Crosby didn't watch the debates, as she is tired of candidates picking on each other. She knows their issues and stands. "I listen to the commentary afterward," she said.

She appreciates being able to vote absentee. "I don't have to deal with the lines," she said.

Hartnett's husband, attorney Tom Hartnett, also voted for Bush this year. The war in Iraq was among his issues, along with abortion, partial-birth abortion in particular. He was raised as a Catholic, and had difficulty accepting John Kerry's views on abortion. Hartnett has been active in the Democratic Party and ran for township trustee in Canton as a Democrat.

"There comes a time," he said.

Mary Martin's son Scott taught in Venezuela for a time, and she recalls the undemocratic government there.

"People need to get out and vote and be grateful for the opportunity we have," she said. "It made me thankful for this country and that things are done in an orderly manner. I appreciate the system so much."

Nikolay Deviatkin isn't eligible to vote in the Nov. 2 election, but the visiting Russian pastor, who is spending six weeks at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton, has observed the election season.

Deviatkin said he and many Russians favor Bush, as he and Russian President Vladimir Putin have a good relationship.

"And Russia will be better," Deviatkin said.

With Kerry, they're unsure what that relationship will be.

Russians participate in elections, and Deviatkin voted for Putin rather than the Communist or others. City and district elections are held, as well.

At home, Deviatkin tires to stay informed on news. "This (the news) is my favorite program on TV," he said.

He recently visited Plymouth Township to learn about elections and noted that, in Russia, elections are all done on paper.

"Very interesting, when I was in township," said Deviatkin, who said he enjoyed seeing the voting equipment.

School district settles on land sale

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again.

And, by doing that, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is $76,000 richer.

The Board of Education Tuesday night sold a 15.2-acre parcel of vacant land on Warren Road in Canton Township to RDK Homes for $426,000.

In September, the school board was approached by developer Richard Lewiston, who increased his offer from $300,000 to $350,000. However, on a 3-3 vote, the board rejected the offer and referred the issue back to the facilities committee.

Also on the table was the offer by RDK Homes. However, it was conditional on the home building company being able to construct eight houses on the property. The main concern was how much wetlands would cut down on usable land.

School attorney Gary Collins said a more favorable deal was recently consummated with Richard Kime of RDK Homes.

"We were successfully able to negotiate an unconditional offer at the full value of the $426,000," said Collins. "We do have an appraisal at $300,000, so we received a 40 percent premium over the appraisal price. It's a good sale."

Lewiston's attorney, Bryan Amann, said his client wanted the property to go along with an adjacent seven acres to construct a subdivision. Amann said without the school property, Lewiston may sell his property to a Montessori school which plans to build in Canton.

"I'm very pleased with the way the processed worked out," said Trustee Richard Ham-Kucharski. "I'm glad to see this is an unconditional offer at the premium price."

Physical Therapy UPDATE
Hands On Center
Presented by Hands On Center For Physical Therapy

SAC ATTACK

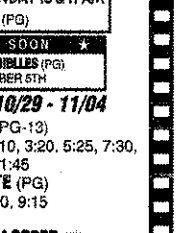

The body contains 150 fluid-filled sacs, called bursae, which range from pea- to lemon-sized. They function like ball bearings to insulate the muscles from bones, as well as allow the muscles and tendons to move painlessly and smoothly. However, when the bursae become inflamed, the result is the dull, persistent, and often intractable pain of bursitis. This inflammation, which often goes by such names as "housemaid's knee", "policeman's heel", and "miner's elbow", can be brought on by an kind of overuse of, or trauma to, the muscles. Bursitis can just as readily be caused by being sedentary and out of shape. Tight muscles, particularly, raise the risk. While rest and cold/hot therapy may help, persistent cases may require physical therapy.

The best way to prevent bursitis is avoiding activities that involve repetitive movements of your shoulders, elbows, hips, lower back, knees, or feet especially if you are overweight. Regular exercise can strengthen your muscles and protect your joints. Speak with your doctor before starting any exercise regimen. To obtain additional information about today's topic, call HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY at 455-8370. We are conveniently located at 650 South Main Street in downtown Plymouth.

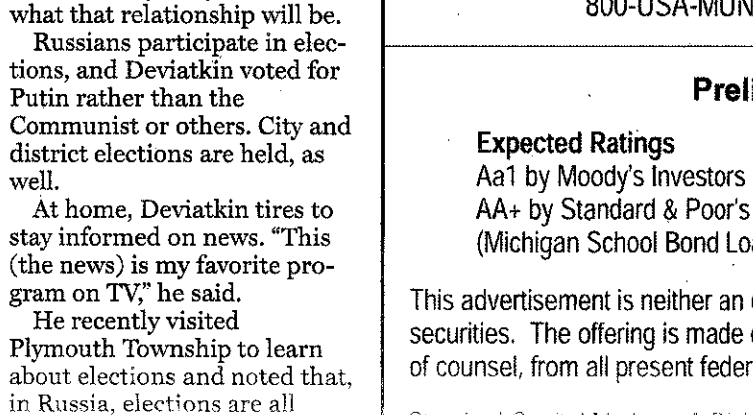

P.S. Bursitis is neither arthritis nor tendonitis (an inflamed tendon that causes pain only when you move).

Ethical issues fuel Law's run for county seat

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

Gerald Law of Canton is running for Wayne County Commissioner from the 11th District and he expects this will be the last office he runs for.

Law, a longtime resident of Plymouth, moved to Canton a few years ago and into an Ivanhoe-Huntley home in Cherry Hill Village a few months ago. The state's voter registration site shows his polling place as the Methodist Church in Cherry Hill Village.

Law, an attorney and a Republican, has been a Plymouth Township trustee, a township supervisor, and a state representative on two different occasions – from 1983 to 1991 and 1995 to 2000.

His main reason for challenging incumbent Democrat John Sullivan of Wayne is what he sees as ethical lapses by the current commission.

"Canton is the biggest community in the 11th District. Canton officials say they don't see Commissioner Sullivan. I think Canton is looking for someone to represent them, someone to represent western Wayne County. Quite frankly, Sullivan has aligned himself with the Detroit power brokers (on the commission)," Law said. "Who does he represent – Detroit or western Wayne County?"

Law

The 11th District includes Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren townships and the cities of Belleville and Wayne. The 15-member commission is made up of seven members from Detroit or partial Detroit districts and eight out-county members. The only Republican on the commission has been Lyn Bankes and she is likely to be replaced by another Republican, Laura Cox, who is running against David Garrett (both of Livonia).

Law knows the commission will be run by Democrats but thinks he has a chance to be the second Republican depending on how Canton votes on Nov. 2.

Law also thinks the commissioner job, which averages about $75,000 a year in pay, depending on committee assignments, plus an office staff allowance, requires a full-time effort.

"My feeling is that this is a full-time job. They get paid full-time wages." Law's platform is almost all based on ethical issues:

■ "We need to take the politics out of the county auditor general process," Law said. Brendan Dunleavy, the county's auditor for more than seven years, was fired in late September.

"He has saved the county millions; he had done great audits on the airport," Law said.

Law said he favored flat ten year terms for an auditor who is totally protected from political pressure. "The county budget is $2.1 billion. We have to have accurate audits."

■ Law would end the solicitation of political money from county vendors and commission employees. "I don't like commission employees getting hit up for contributions by the commissioners. Also, we need to put it in the charter: You cannot solicit directly any vendors or contractors. Right now, these commissioners don't even get an arm's length away from the contractors. This was the whole problem at the airport."

■ Candidate Law thinks the commission has not used the Wayne County Parks millage (0.25) wisely and that a lot of the money has not gone to county parks but to individual cities including $18 million to Detroit (1997-2006). "This was not sold this way. It is a big pork barrel for cities. Canton is paying a lot and getting next to nothing back. Livonia is paying a fortune and getting almost nothing."

■ Law said commissioners should not be allowed to hire their own relatives, nor should relatives work for vendors, and he would seek rules or a charter change making that impossible. "How can these commissioners keep all these conflicts of interest straight?"

■ The Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Agency is a "big operation that is not being run properly," Law said. He said the state could step in the way it did with the airport and turn the agency into an authority.

BUDGET

increases like every other industry and employer.

"I don't know how much longer our district can go on with this funding scenario," added Mardigian. "We're making it work because of our growth and frugality, but I think we're getting pretty close to the end of the line."

At the end of this school year, the district will have a fund balance of $9.9 million. However, expenses are projected to outpace revenues by more than $12.8 million in the 2005-06 school year.

"The retirement rate and heath care benefit increases are killing us," said Superintendent Jim Ryan. "The board, unfortunately, will have to look at some one-time solutions, like the sale of some property."

Ryan said he's interested in how the state reacts to school districts that will show budget deficits next spring, a year before Plymouth-Canton's fund balance is depleted.

"We're losing the wiggle room," he said. "How much more can you raise pay-to-participate sports or charge booster clubs?"

Ryan declined to speculate on what types of cuts could be recommended by the administration as the school board begins work on next year's budget later this school year.

The district will negotiate seven employee contracts for 2005-06, including a wage reopener for the 1,100-member Plymouth-Canton Education Association, the largest of the unions.

"Am I looking at taking zero percent? No," said Chuck Portelli, PCEA president. "In my 28 years in Plymouth-Canton, I've already taken two zeroes.

'I don't know how much longer our district can go on with this funding scenario.'
Judy Mardigian
board vice president

"I think the employees deserve a pay raise," he said. "They still have a fund balance, so we can still afford to give our employees a pay increase."

The PCEA is in the third year of a four-year agreement, which gave teachers 3 percent, 2.5 percent and 2.25 percent wage hikes.

Brand said term limits have made it much more difficult for school districts to receive increases from the state.

"A lot of folks in Lansing have minimal understanding of how schools operate, and how we got into the position we're at," she said. "And, by the time they learn, they're typically not in office any longer. That makes our job very challenging."

The school board has been active in holding monthly meetings with local state lawmakers to plead their case.

"Rep. (Phil) LaJoy and Rep. (John) Stewart have been coming to the meetings," said Mark Slavens, board president. "I've not seen Sen. (Bruce) Patterson at these meetings for a long time, and I would ask the public to please contact him and find out if he could please attend these meetings.

"The financial condition of this district depends on what our legislators do," added Slavens.

CORRESPONDENT

Being a Catholic woman in today's world can be a struggle, but it can also provide opportunities to make great changes in families and society, says Mary DelPup, Archdiocese of Detroit evangelization coordinator.

"They're confronted by a culture that is oftentimes contrary to what they believe as Christian women," DelPup explains. "That's difficult in today's world considering so many issues confront us from abortion, to euthanasia to same sex relationships. A Catholic woman needs to know who God created her to be."

Giving women a forum to discuss and learn about their role as Christians is the theme of the second annual Women's Conference, "Putting on the Armor of God, Catholic Women Defending Faith and Family," sponsored by the archdiocese and Catholic radio stations, WCAR and WDEO.

The event is Saturday, Oct. 30, at St. Joan of Arc Parish in St. Clair Shores beginning at 8 a.m. with Mass celebrated by Cardinal Adam Maida. The program is expected to conclude at 3:30 pm. Tickets are $40, which includes breakfast and lunch.

"It's aimed to help women understand that if they're imbued with the spirit of the gospel that they can impact society and in fact, with the power of numbers, they can change the world," DelPup says.

The conference will be emceed by Teresa Tomeo and Mary Dudley. Tomeo is a local television and radio reporter who also has a media consulting firm and a show, "Catholic Connection" on WDEO 990 AM. Dudley is a talk show host at Michigan Catholic radio, WCAR 1090 AM.

Being a Catholic woman is "very difficult if you're truly living out the faith," Tomeo says.

"It's following all the church's teachings on life issues, family issues, contraceptives – the whole bit. It's really understanding the faith and who you are and how you should form your conscience. How do I go into the voting booth? And not just going in, cafeteria style, picking and choosing what to follow."

DEFENDING FAMILY

Tomeo will talk about defending faith and family in the media. She will address how to challenge news, television and radio media, including producers of television shows, to air programs that are "moral and uplift families, moms, dads, children and babies, especially the unborn," Tomeo says.

Jesus never said it would be easy to follow his word, DelPup says.

"He promised there would be a reward and to follow the gospel," she adds.

DelPup explains that she was born in 1950 and grew up during the height of the emphasis on everything being unisex in society and in the workplace.

"Christian teaching teaches us authentically who we are," she says. "We're equal to men in the eyes of God and in dignity, but different. The differences between men and women are extremely important in today's world."

Women, she says, see with the "eyes of love."

"When women understand who God created them to be and that they have the capacity to make room for another, biologically, and that men cannot," DelPup says. "There is a great importance to that, even for women who cannot have children, because then they are called to be spiritual mothers."

She points to a woman's ability to have true love, intuition and sense other's needs as important qualities that they can bring to the business world, families and neighborhoods.

Convention speakers include Kimberly Hahn, a Catholic convert, author, public speaker and mother of six children who she home schools. Mother Agnes Mary Donovan, superior general for Sisters of Life in New York will talk about her order founded in 1991. Their ministry is to young pregnant women and unwed mothers, as well as to provide counseling for post-abortive men and women.

PUBLIC POLICY

Barbara Listings, president of Right to Life of Michigan, will speak about the importance of what one woman can do in the public policy arena. Sr. Ann Shields, Superior General for the Servants of God's Love based in Ann Arbor, will address the importance of prayer in a woman's life.

"This is strictly a woman's conference – there's a corresponding men's conference every year," DelPup says.

Last year was the first woman's convention in the archdiocese and it was such an overwhelming success, DelPup says, that organizers knew there had to be a follow-up.

"This offers an occasion for women to be renewed in their vocations, refreshed, recharged and revitalized, while rejoicing in the uniqueness of womanhood," DelPup says. "Our Blessed Mother was able to crush the head of the serpent. With Mary as our model, the mission God has given to women today is the same. When we understand our God-given dignity, then and only then, can we crush the culture of death that prevails in society today."

Earlier this week the conference was nearly sold-out. Registration is required, and information on tickets is available at dignityofwoman@aol.com or by calling (734) 459-9558. Eucharistic Adoration and the Sacrament of Confession will be offered throughout the day.

Murder mystery sure to lure 'who-done-it' fans

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

"They say it's very remote and quiet," said Ed Meade, his voice turning eerie as he begins talking about the lodge on an island in the middle of a lake in Northern America.

Step by step Meade sets the scene for a murder mystery he's directing for Parlour Theatre Productions the night before Halloween at the Forum in the Novi Sheraton. "Moosetrap" performances at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 30, should send chills up the spines of everyone in the audience.

Written by Angela Krist, otherwise known as the director, the play goes behind the scenes of rehearsals for Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap."

"It's a lot of fun, a mystery that's supposed to be a little bit spooky, almost a comedy," said Meade. "It takes place in early 1950s and features eight cast members with a stage manager who gets the audience involved. They're all characters and it turns out no one is really who they seem."

Paul (P.W.) Henry, a Westland resident, is playing a character who's supposed to be likable but his name is a play on T. Rex.

"Rex T. Archer is a single guy who's known other cast members a long time," said Paul Henry, a sheet metal worker by day. At night Henry turns into an actor rehearsing and performing dramas and musicals such as the "Trial of God" at Trinity House Theatre and "Gilbert and Sullivan" at the University of Michigan. "He used to do a bit of singing professionally but turned to acting. The writer had a lot of cast members in mind when he wrote the place. He thinks he knows us."

Meade won't admit to writing the play let alone tailoring parts to cast members. All he will say is the plot involves poison.

"Genie Nehs, a nurse at St. Mary Mercy Hospital, is kind of flighty with a cat named Dee Dee who meets with foul play," said Meade who founded Parlour Theatre Productions with his wife Jeannine 12 years ago. "Her husband (in real life) Jerry gets poisoned with a poison that smells like wintergreen. "The audience will enjoy it because the second half we review the clues for the audience so they get one more chance to solve it. In the meantime the cast is trying to solve it."

Tickets for "Moosetrap" are $10 and available by calling (248) 449-6540. The Novi Sheraton is on Haggerty Road at Eight Mile.

Dirty tricks?

In reading the article about the alleged "dirty tricks" supposedly going on in the Canton Township Board race, I was shocked to see the inclusion of the efforts of the Canton Independent Committee to inform voters of a candidate's background as a dirty trick equal to disappearing lawn signs.

Of course, I am referring to the postcard about Mr. Caccamo which describes how he says one thing but does another. For example it describes how he talks about family values but he just came off a probation in Westland's 18th District Court in July on a charge of "domestic violence" against a woman who was an Inkster Police Officer.

Among other things, it also describes how he talks about changing school boundaries but how he has not voted in school elections and how the board of trustees (the position he's running for) has no jurisdiction or involvement in school boundaries.

In fairness, when the postcard was prepared and mailed it was honestly believed (based on conversations with the victim) that Mr. Caccamo plead guilty to the charge of domestic violence. He did enter a plea that was taken under advisement which provides for a probationary period which, if completed successfully, allows for the removal of any reference to the plea and charge from a person's criminal record.

Mr. Caccamo took that deal but plead "nolo contendre" instead of "guilty."

As Black's Law Dictionary explains, there is no legal difference between the two where it says: "Nolo Contendre: Latin phrase meaning "I will not contest it," a plea in a criminal case which has a similar legal effect as pleading guilty." Black's further explains that: "The principal difference between a plea of guilty and nolo contendre is that the latter (nolo contendre) may not be used against the defendant in a civil action based upon the same acts."

For Mr. Caccamo, the technicality meant that the alleged victim could not use the plea to sue him for civil damages.

With that clear, how is it a dirty trick to make sure voters know the truth about a candidate who says one thing but behaves very differently?

Mr. Caccamo is running for a position which could give him legislative oversight over the Canton Police Department and the administration. Shouldn't voters know about his actions and conduct?

Although he is willing to say anything to get elected, his conduct speaks much louder than his words. If the newspapers choose not to write about it, isn't it a citizen's responsibility to make sure the truth is known?

Since when did using a candidate's own past behavior (instead of his words) as a basis for trying to determine how he or she would perform in public office become a dirty trick?

The only dirty trick would be if Mr. Caccamo were elected by following the voters of Canton about the kinds of person his past suggests he really is.

Backs president

For those who are filled with angst over the federal deficit and guilt at receiving tax breaks from President Bush, may I suggest some measure of relief?

Put your money where your mouth is and return your portion of the tax breaks to the U.S. Treasury as a donation to reduce the federal debt.

Something tells me, however, that you just can't bring yourself to return that money.

You probably already spent it on something you enjoy, saved it for your children's education, or maybe invested it for retirement. Shame on you! It certainly doesn't do any good to have private citizens keep their hard-earned money and put it to productive use to stimulate the economy. Oh horrors! How can you look your children in the eye?

Despite all your hand-wringing and complaining, those darn pesky facts just get in the way of your political agenda.

Edward Prescott, co-winner of the 2004 Nobel Prize in economics, recently stated that President Bush's tax cuts were too small and should have been bigger. He correctly noted that President Reagan's enormous tax cuts lowered tax rates for everyone while the government collected the same amount of revenue. Deficits during the Reagan years were a result of overspending, not tax cuts. Prescott also noted that the economy was depressed by 4 percent during the early-1990s due to President Clinton's 1993 tax increase. Greater prosperity comes when government gets out of the way.

That's the problem with the liberal mindset; you want to fund your conscience through other people's wallets. You're more than happy to stick everyone else with a big tax bill for your social dreams, but when it comes to taking action on your own, forget it. Perhaps that explains why a recent analysis of John & Teresa Kerry's tax records found that the Kerry's paid an effective federal tax rate of 12.8 percent on their $6.8 million income in 2003, much less than the average middle-class family (20 percent), and significantly lower than the 30.4 percent effective rate paid by President & Mrs. Bush on one-tenth of the Kerry's income.

It's also why John Edwards created a tax shelter to avoid paying an extra $591,000 in Medicare taxes on his trial lawyer fees in the mid-1990's.

This is all legal but only shows these liberal politicians don't give a rip about the deficit or paying their "fair" share. They do what everyone wants to do – pay less in taxes and keep more of their hard-earned money. They are just hypocritical about it.

As for deficits, let's get the picture right. Democrats continually remind us of the mirage "surplus" of the 1990's. That surplus was built on the tax revenue of a bubble economy and bubble stock market, largely fueled by worthless dotcoms and corporate shenanigans.

The projected surplus assumed the economy and stock market would go up forever. It was also fueled by squandering the "peace dividend" of President Reagan's cold war victory. President Clinton spent his eight years in office scaling back our military, cutting weapons systems, and gutting our intelligence capabilities because we lived in a "safe" world as the lone superpower.

Of course, any first semester economics student will tell you that the economy moves in cycles – good times are followed by bad and vice-versa. And we all now know that the world was not the safe place we imagined, despite repeated warnings such as the first WTC bombing (1993), Khobar Towers (1996), and the USS Cole (2000). President Bush inherited an imploding stock market that had reached its peak nine months before he took office, an economy that was already sliding into a downturn, and then the WTC/Pentagon terrorist strikes six months after he took office.

And somehow we're supposed to believe that he created all of the deficit mess? Give me a break.

Historically, our national debt has been high in times of war and has presaged periods of economic prosperity. For example, the national debt as a percentage of gross domestic product (GDP) peaked at 120 percent in 1946 due to World War II as we destroyed fascism under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, and was followed by 25 years of relative prosperity.

That percentage reached its modern day low of 33 percent in the 1970s under Presidents Nixon and Carter but the economy was awful. It climbed again in the 1980s under Presidents Reagan and Bush to about 65 percent as we finished off communism.

Today it stands at 67 percent as it did when Bill Clinton was reelected in 1996. The difference now is that there is no bubble economy or stock market to bring in tax revenues and we are again at war, this time to destroy global terrorism.

That's why on Nov 2 I will cast my vote for President Bush, who not only brought down the Taliban and Saddam Hussein, but will also bring to justice the global terrorists, bring down our taxes, and reduce the deficit. That is something for which I can look my kids in the eye now and proudly tell the grandkids about in the future.

OUR VIEWS

Sullivan gets commission nod

Though Democrat John Sullivan is proud of the things he's been able to accomplish on the Wayne County Commission, he still thinks there is work left to be done.

And we suggest voters in the 11th District — which includes Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren townships, along with the cities of Wayne and Belleville — give him another two years to do it.

Sullivan, the Wayne resident first elected to the commission in 1998, is facing a challenge from former state Rep. Gerald Law, who recently moved into Canton in order to seek a seat on the commission.

Sullivan

Sullivan has earned the right to keep the job. Fighting off the impression he's a no-show in Canton, Sullivan says he meets frequently with constituents and he conducts "coffee hours" regularly in the township.

Though the coffee hours are adequately publicized, residents rarely show up. Sullivan can't be faulted for that; other politicians, notably state Rep. Phil LaJoy, have the same problem.

When residents in the River Woods subdivision were battling potholes and crumbling streets, they complained to Sullivan, and a compromise was eventually worked out between the county and the developer.

Extensive road work has been done in Canton Township, and Sullivan has been effective in getting county dollars spent on road-widening and infrastructure projects. He's hoping county plans to expand Warren and, eventually, Cherry Hill, will spark the development of another interchange off I-275, though he admits he can't control that.

Sullivan displays a knowledge of the challenges that face his district, and his colleagues on the commission have put him in leadership positions as vice chair of the commission and vice chair of committees for public services and on charter revisions.

We believe voters should have the same faith and cast their ballots for John Sullivan.

History is waiting for our decision

It's almost over.

The candidates have made their cases. They've distributed their literature, knocked on your doors, given speeches at local halls.

This year, we've been courted hard by the candidates for president, who see Michigan as a crucial swing state.

This year, two controversial proposals to amend the state constitution have drawn supporters and opponents to wage fierce battles on television and in the newspapers.

Now it's up to us, the voters. Rain or shine, we must go to the polls and cast our votes.

We have important state and local elections, where the public and government come into direct contact. This is where we have the possibility of dramatically influencing those decisions that will have an important impact on our lives. These are the elected officials who must respond to our questions, our complaints, our ideas. These are the officials who we can hold most accountable for their actions.

But the real focus of this election, as it is every four years, is on the contest for president.

No position in the world is as powerful as the presidency. No position in government is responsible for so many life-and-death issues. No position is so well-publicized and yet so remote from the average citizen.

Every four years, we are told this is the most important election in a generation. This year, it's true. This election is as crucial to our future as the elections of 1932, 1912 and 1860.

It is hard to believe there are still voters who haven't made up their minds.

We have a clear choice between two distinctly different visions for our future domestically and as a leader in the world community. We can continue down the path of the last four years or we can vote for change. We can ask ourselves, as Ronald Reagan once did of the Jimmy Carter years, are we better off now than we were four years ago?

However you answer that question, you have an obligation, a duty, to exercise your right to vote. But before you vote, you also have an obligation to read, study and understand. Don't just be a voter, be an informed voter.

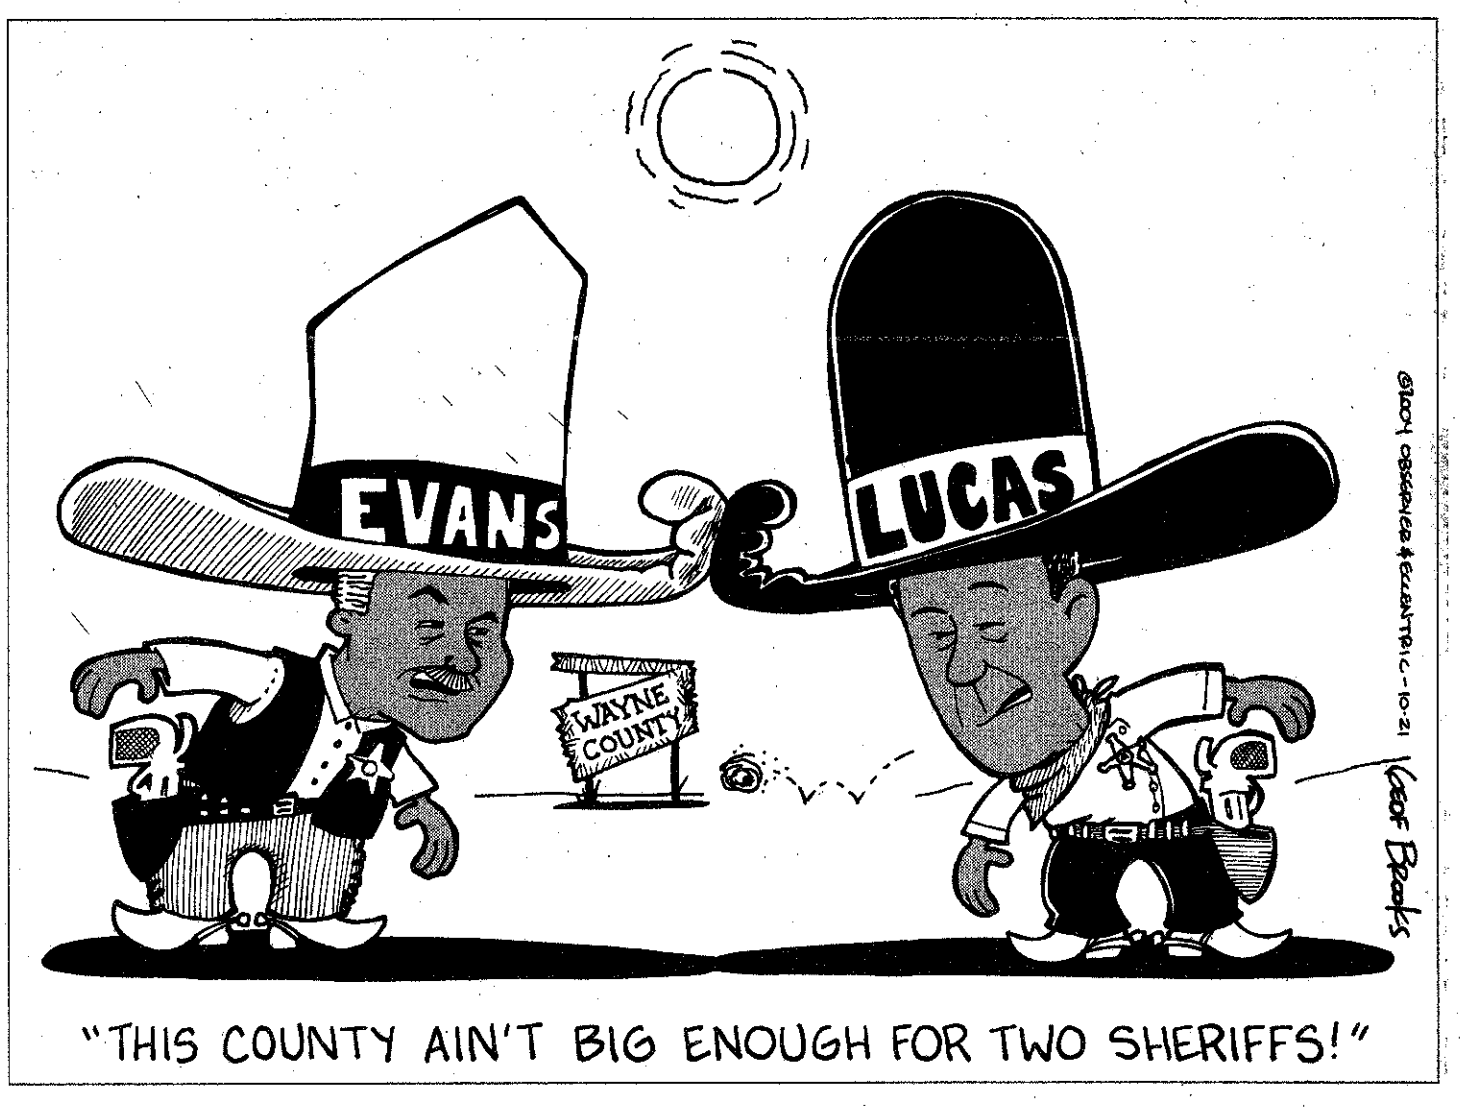

This is your chance to play your part in history!

Signs damaged

I have been proud to live and teach school in the Canton community for over 30 years.

Canton represents people of different cultures and different viewpoints. I had a large Bush-Cheney sign put on my property last Friday afternoon because of my central location. There were also two smaller ones as we have an extra lot. Friday afternoon the Canton ordinance officer left me a note saying one sign per candidate and no larger than six feet. I immediately removed the two smaller signs. My large sign was vandalized by an unknown person or persons Saturday night. For what purpose, no one knows. This was a cowardly act. If the person thinks they are going to sway someone's vote, this is the wrong way to do it. They need to discuss politics instead of using Hitler methods of intimidating the voter. This is a very poor example for future votes and our foreign-born citizens of how politics is conducted in our beloved country. I did call the police and was told this was the first reported act of vandalism about a sign in Canton. Monday I found out that many other signs were vandalized with red and black spray paint in a nearby subdivision. I intend to replace the sign with a new one as I will not be intimidated.

Signs coming down

As a private citizen, I recently wrote a letter to the editor to alert the public to what appeared to be an emerging trend — placing campaign signs on private property without the owner or possessor's knowledge or consent. I criticized this tactic as I believe it is a dishonest way for one to promote their candidate as it makes it difficult for the public to distinguish authorized signs, which are a fundamental expression of free speech, from unauthorized signs.

To provide background for why this trend has evolved, I explained that many communities have sign ordinances that regulate signs and mentioned that some community ordinances in the metro Detroit area have recently been constitutionally challenged.

I have taken no position on the constitutionality of anyone's ordinances, as a judge would have to review any challenge that might arise based on that specific ordinance and the controlling law. The point being that some communities enforce their ordinances and the latest tactic appeared to be a way to circumvent enforcement by placing unauthorized signs on another's private property. Since my letter was published many of the signs that appeared to be unauthorized have come down.

One reader took umbrage with my letter and expressed an opinion that I had somehow stifled someone's free speech. I don't know if that person misunderstood the point of my letter or if they believe that placing unauthorized signs on another's private property is a constitutionally protected act. I would be interested to see any law that supports that position.

In any event I have invited the author who took exception to my letter to visit your 35th District Court, as my guest, to see how we work on your behalf and how the law is applied.

Supports Rice

I am pleased to be able to recommend my friend, Bill Rice, for election to the Canton Board of Trustees. With the presidential race heating up and ballot issues generating controversy, it is easy to overlook the trustee race.

I hope Canton voters take this contest seriously. The Board of Trustees has a great deal of influence on our daily lives. Bill Rice has been a Canton resident and homeowner for over 20 years. He has been a volunteer on the Board for the Plymouth Symphony. He has been an active band booster for the Plymouth-Canton school band. I have known him personally for three years. He is thoughtful and mature. He can disagree on an issue without being disagreeable.

He has been endorsed by the Canton Observer, the Canton Eagle and local realtor groups ,among others. He is active in his church and was involved in raising funds for the Cherry Hill Village Theatre. He will be a person who will contribute to the board in many positive ways. Democrats, Republicans and Independents should support Bill Rice for township trustee Nov. 2.

Lawsuit contemptible

It is contemptible that the right to vote is being invoked as legal cover for such a cynical campaign tactic. It's apparent the true motivation of this lawsuit is to enable campaign members to assemble voters en masse and marshal them to a convenient polling place without the logistical burden of aligning them to the proper precinct.

The potential confusion and opportunity for fraud is just one more burden the state must manage now that the individual is absolved from knowing the location of his polling place. That this lawsuit was filed less than two weeks from the general election is no coincidence.

Presumably the wrong this suit seeks to resolve was not important prior to recent polls showing the tight presidential contest in Michigan. Hopefully the 6th Circuit Court will see through this move and overturn Judge Lawson's decision.

Supervisor support

Canton has enjoyed more than 15 years of outstanding progress. This progress can be traced to the efforts of Canton Trustee's Melissa McLaughlin, Karl Zarbo and Canton Chamber of Commerce President, Todd LaJoy.

Canton is known throughout the State of Michigan for its incredible quality of life; 10th safest community in the United States, only accredited Leisure Services Department, one of the first communities in Michigan to meet Clean Water Standards, innovative planning (Cherry Hill Village, parks, open spaces and wooded lots), a variety of outstanding community services and programs, and exceptional neighborhoods and homes.

Canton is recognized as one of the most progressive communities in Michigan. This has been accomplished through a team approach to decision-making. Melissa McLaughlin, Karl Zarbo and Todd LaJoy's wealth of knowledge, experience, and vision will continue to make Canton a desirable community. Much has been accomplished in our community. It's essential that Trustees are elected who understand our community and who have invested themselves in our future. Melissa, Karl and Todd have served our community in a variety of leadership roles ... Trustee, Planning Commissioner, Homeowner Association President, Chamber President, Historical District Commission and more.

Melissa McLaughlin, Karl Zarbo and Todd LaJoy are committed to working together to sustain Canton's outstanding quality of life. A vote for Melissa, Karl and Todd is a vote for:

- A safe and secure community.
- Continued low taxes.
- Improved roads and intersections.
- Quality development.
- Increased property values.
- Outstanding and responsive services and programs.

Canton Supervisor

Thanks for support

The members of the Citizens' Election Committee would like to thank the residents of the Plymouth-Canton community for supporting our school buildings and helping us to enhance the educational environment within our communities.

We would also like to thank the building representatives, countless parents, staff and district supporters who donated their time and energy in advertising the merits of both parts of the ballot.

Thank you again for the support you demonstrated.

In order to be fair to everyone, this newspaper will not run letters to the editor in the edition prior to an election that open new issues.

QUOTABLE

"Candidates have gotten the message that if they put signs in the right of way they'll be removed by ordinance people. They've elected to move the signs beyond the sidewalk onto private property. As long as candidates believe the signs impact the outcome of the election, they're going to put them up. Some candidates don't spend much except buying signs."

Canton supervisor Tom Yack on the inevitable election-sign controversy

Both candidates ignoring real problems we're facing

As the presidential campaign lurches into its last few, frantic days, I find myself struck by some plain truths that virtually every well-informed person knows, but which have been largely ignored by the mainstream news media, who are primarily obsessed with covering "the horse race."

Moreover, when it comes to these enormously important subjects, both President Bush and Sen. Kerry, each for their own reasons, have preferred to mostly clam up. I think we need to think about them.

Truth No. 1: Iraq is a mess and we have virtually no choice other than to muddle through, probably for a few years, hoping for the best.

Phil Power

The key word here is muddle. We do not have enough troops on the ground to secure the country. We're not going to get much help from our "allies" or the United Nations. Those Iraqis who hate us are emboldened; those who like us are mostly silent; those who are neutral despise having their country occupied by foreigners. Declaring victory and withdrawing will either produce civil war or a (this time, real) link-up with the terrorists.

President Bush doesn't want to say this because it would be a confession that his war was ill-founded on bad intelligence, impulsively decided, poorly planned and incompetently carried out. Sen. Kerry doesn't want to say it because he doesn't have any realistic good options, either.

Truth No. 2: The economy. Virtually every reputable economist and most business types are terrified of what's in store.

The national deficit is now a record $415 billion, compared with the $236 billion surplus when President Bush took office. We are now depending on the Chinese and the Japanese to keep us afloat by buying our debt (currently at a daily rate of $1.7 billion), and nobody knows what will happen if they were to stop, perhaps out of fear that a new round of inflation in this country will devalue our repayments to them. The dollar is near a record low, while the unfavorable international balance of trade stubbornly persists. Oil prices are now at record highs, as anybody who has bought gas recently knows well, and high oil prices typically signal trouble for our economy.

President Bush doesn't want to talk about this because it would be a confession that the combination of his tax cuts and the costs of his war in Iraq represent a big part of the problem. Sen. Kerry talks hopefully about rolling back tax cuts on the rich (through it seems unlikely that a Republican-dominated Congress would do so), but then proposes vastly increased government spending. Neither wants to get into the details of their dubious plans for fear of annoying voters.

Truth No. 3: The looming crisis — Social Security and Medicare.

The Economist magazine, no left-wing journal by any means, estimates the total present unfunded liabilities for Social Security and Medicare on our national balance sheet amount to $74 trillion! That's equivalent to the entire gross national product for seven years.

Someday, sooner or later, the political system is going to have to face all this. President Bush is talking about letting some Social Security recipients invest part of their deductions in the stock market, which makes the stockbrokers drool; it also looked a lot better when the market was skyrocketing than it does today. Sen. Kerry is accusing the president of wanting to "privatize" Social Security. Neither has displayed any serious interest in resolving, before it's too late, the real Social Security crisis.

Truth No. 4: The coming Republican domination of our politics.

If President Bush wins, the Republicans will control the presidency and both houses of the Congress and will be in a position to nominate and confirm new members of the Supreme Court and other federal judges. Grover Norquist, the head of Americans for Tax Reform and a senior GOP strategist, says "the Democratic Party is toast" if the president is re-elected, because the Republicans have put emasculating the Democrats at the heart of their agenda: Contract out hundreds of thousands of government jobs (to eliminate Democratic campaign workers); pass tort reform (to hit the pocketbooks of the trial lawyers, who have now surpassed the unions as big Democratic contributors); and enact right-to-work laws (which allow workers to quit paying union dues.)

President Bush doesn't say much about all this (it would sound too partisan.) Neither does Sen. Kerry (it would sound too alarmist.)

So we end with a campaign in which the major issues are submerged, almost as if there was a willing conspiracy between both candidates and the media. Instead, all are preoccupied only with trying to figure out who's ahead, although the only poll that matters is the one on Nov. 2. As Election Day looms just around the corner, looking at all this makes me feel more desperately worried for our country's future than at any time in my life.

Of course, lots of thoughtful people also felt that way in 1932, at the depths of the Great Depression. More than once in our history, it has seemed to be awfully dark before the dawn, and I hope that once more, we see the light.

Manilow fans come out of woodwork, and the closet, to see farewell tour

Just like that, the relationship is over.

No warning. No "can't we try again?" Just ... over, and all that's left is to deal with the emotional wreckage of a relationship that's lasted more than 30 years.

Sure, there's the promise that we'll remain friends. There's the possibility we'll run into each other on rare occasions. And when we do, it'll be nice, but not enough. For the most part, it's over.

Barry Manilow is done touring.

The pop legend made the Detroit stop on what he called his final tour Saturday at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

I know ... you're shocked. You're stunned. You're saddened. Me, too.

Brad Kadrich

The difference between us, more than likely, is that I'm not ashamed to admit it. Friends and family are well aware of my love of all things Manilow, from his days as the musical director for Bette Midler to the Broadway show he's about to open.

Of course, all that's done for me is expose me to derision and ridicule from just about every quarter. There are exceptions. My friend and mentor Annette Kingsbury, now a reporter for our Rochester paper, surprised me years ago with a tape she'd made of an appearance on A&E, a two-hour concert where he took live requests.

And Brenda Urich, the former receptionist in our Plymouth office, is nearly as big a fan as I am.

But, for the most part, friends and family tease me relentlessly. My niece — whose credibility is low to begin with because she thinks Britney Spears is awesome — has taken to following my wife's lead and referring to Manilow as "Barely Man-enough."

That amazes me, because the guy has done just about everything you can do as an artist. He's a 2002 Songwriters Hall of Fame inductee. He's won Grammy, Emmy and Tony awards. His Ready to Take a Chance Again, from the Chevy Chase-Goldie Hawn film Foul Play, was nominated for an Oscar.

Despite all the success, you can't get anyone to admit openly they're a fan. Stand around the water cooler at work and bring him up, and you get the standard jokes about his nose, about rumors surrounding his lifestyle, about the sappy style of music he plays.

Manilow, the Rodney Dangerfield of music, has never gotten respect, although he's always parlayed the disrespect into success. Remember how the lead character on TV's Murphy Brown hated him, until she realized his music was the only thing that soothed her son? Manilow made a cameo appearance on that show, and also on Will & Grace, on an episode where Will waited in line for hours to get tickets.

Just Monday morning, as I was regaling someone with tales of the concert, my colleague (I'm withholding his name to protect his identity, for he lacks my Manilow-ian fortitude) said, "I love Copacabana, but I just can't bring myself to say so out loud."

He's had 38 Top 40 hits. He's not only won awards for his own performances, but music he's written for the likes of Midler and Dionne Warwick has also been Grammy-nominated.

My brother was one of the many men at The Palace who would probably have rather gotten root canal, until the piano-driven music gave him pause to think of his daughter, the Britney fan, who plays the piano.

He's not alone, especially in my family. When I called my sister to tell her I had an extra ticket with her name on it, my sister — studying for a Ph.D. — said she had "too much homework." On a Saturday. I was just glad she didn't say, "I have to wash my hair."

A woman standing at the concession stand said she didn't bring her husband "because I'm a good wife."

I noted, in talking to her before the concert started, that many of the men appeared to be bearing pained expressions on their faces.

"That's why I brought my mother-in-law," the woman said, smiling. "I wouldn't do that to my husband."

It goes like that when you try to find Manilow fans. Yet, when we got to The Palace Saturday, we had to park about 103 miles away, in the "back 40" of the parking lot. The show, like the five times I'd seen him prior, was sold out. Some 20,000 people packed The Palace, applauding from first note to last.

I'm the first to admit there are some things that are hokey. The standard bringing of a woman onstage to sing I Can't Smile Without You seems forced sometimes, and surrounding himself with about half-a-dozen bodyguards to and from stage seemed overly dramatic.

I've broadened my horizons over the years. A friend got me to listen to R.E.M. back in the late 1980s. More recently, a friend introduced me to the Barenaked Ladies, who are, by the way, neither bare-naked nor ladies.

Though times, and tastes, change, it's always been nice to be able to go back to the basics. Like Linus' security blanket, Manilow has been around when I needed him, which makes viewing his farewell tour bittersweet.

Thank goodness his next farewell tour can't be more than a couple of years away.

Brad Kadrich is community editor of the Plymouth Observer, and an unabashed Manilow fan. He can be reached via e-mail at bkadrich@oe.homecomm.net or by phone at (734) 459-2700.

This carved poster bed, part of the Newport collection, is inspired by 18th and 19th century English and American designs that can be accented with antique accessories, such as an old tea pot on a nearby table or a family heirloom.

ETHAN ALLEN

Some kind of Wonderful

Bedroom reflects simple pleasures

STORY BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Tucked away in the back of the house or up a flight of stairs out of public view, the bedroom is sometimes the forgotten space when it comes to decorating.

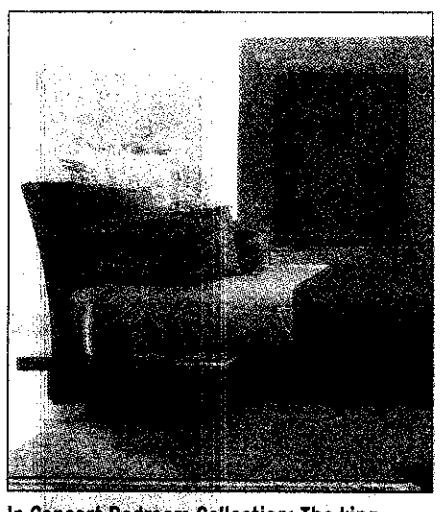

But rest assured, it doesn't have to be forgotten altogether just because it's often last on the decorating list of things to do and usually obtains the least amount of sprucing up dollars.

One way to cut down on expenses is to browse resale shops. Deal hounds can find anything from entire bedroom sets to lamps and knick-knacks for the dresser tops.

Four poster beds can undergo a total makeover with a little fabric hung over the top or around the posts, he suggests.

"Some people buy single pieces to extenuate things they already have,"

Kids' rooms can have grownup attitude

BY MARY KLEMIC
STAFF WRITER

You can think big as well as small when you're decorating a young person's room.

While some considerations for children should be met in furnishing and decorating the room, the furniture pieces you select can grow along with the youngster.

"People have said 'I have the chest and dresser I had from Ethan Allen 25 to 30 years ago,'" said Karen Seta, interior designer, Ethan Allen in Birmingham.

The following should be addressed when furnishing a child's room, Seta said:

- age
- how the room is going to be used
- color scheme or theme – Bright and cheery colors, and primary colors, are popular, Seta says.
- safety issues – Furnishings should have protective edges and finishes; edges shouldn't be sharp.
- gender
- activities – Will there be a lot of sleepovers? Will two siblings be sharing the room?

Colorful rugs are popular for young people's rooms, says Azar Alizadeh, owner of Azar's Oriental Rugs in Birmingham.

"They love colors . . . They like modern rugs, fun rugs," she said.

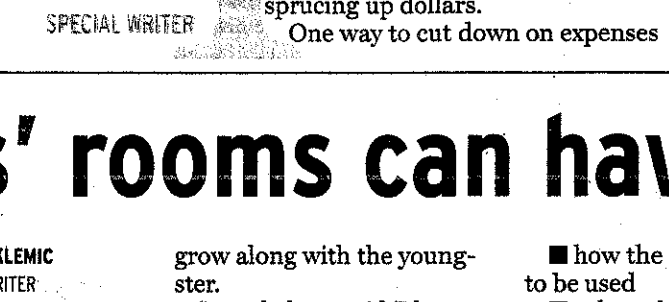

For a youngster's room, Alizadeh recommends a pile rug rather than one with a flat weave, so it will be soft and comfortable.

Rugs with colorful patterns help camouflage dirt and spills.

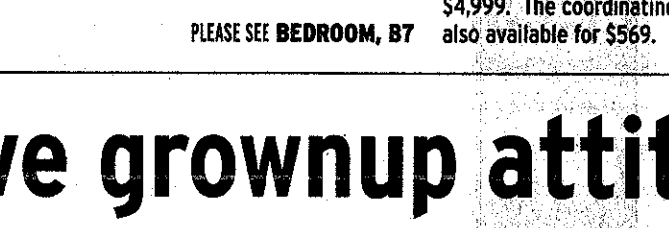

Because the smallest person in the family often gets one of the smaller rooms in the house, furnishings that can do double duty are good selections.

"Trundle beds are extremely popular," Seta said.

Basic work stations in a young person's room should include a computer desk, and a piece with upper shelves or a hutch, Seta said.

Many desks are designed for "the beginning computer user," she said.

Concerning storage, many people want an armoire or a similar piece that looks more like furniture, Seta said.

Pieces in Ethan Allen's Contempo collection include sleek night tables with casters so they can be easily moved, and hutches with a variety of shelf arrangements or adjustable shelves.

The Classic collection for girls by Ethan Allen features a hutch and desk in creamy vanilla, chocolate or toffee color, and night tables with drawers or shelves.

Among headboard designs are shutters, bookcases and a handpainted floral pattern. Armoires offer a corkboard and a mirror on the inside of the doors.

Bedding and decor elements can have a variety of themes. Target sets include Dora the Explorer, Sponge Bob Squarepants and Spider-Man, as well as sports and animal themes.

Kathryn Weber, a certified master practitioner in feng shui, offers fundamentals for children's bedrooms on the www.theallineed.com Web site. They include:

■ Create a space for study and accomplishments – "Having a dedicated space, including a desk and lamp where your child can study, demonstrates to your child the importance you place on education and your child's educational achievement . . . Also make a place . . . of your child's accomplishments. Doing so reinforces that you are proud of your child's efforts."

■ Clear the space so your child can rest and be creative – "Jammed closets and drawers, beds with boxes, shoes and other items underneath must be cleaned out. Creating space and visual openness helps your child to feel less pressured, and more likely to be imaginative and creative."

■ Use light, color and art work in the room to make a happy environment – "A child's room should stimulate, not dampen the child's spirit. Make sure there is adequate lighting for the desk, for a bedside table, and that windows can be closed off for privacy."

Fabulous FURNITURE 2004

Bring richness, warmth into bedroom

After 25 years of marriage, my husband and I have decided it's time to replace our bedroom furniture. Of course, it doesn't stop there. We will also be replacing all the bedding and the window treatments, and putting a fresh coat of paint on the walls. Where do we start?
– Susan P., Plymouth Township

Terri Guastella

Douceur du Fer is available in wrought iron and available in many colors. All furniture shown is available at Roche Bobois in Novi.

That's a great question, Susan, and you are in a similar situation that many people are. This is an important room and you are correct to assess your needs and have a plan in place before you begin.

Go ahead and start with the furniture. It is the "big ticket" item in the room and will be around at least another 25 years. Buy something you really love and purchase the best quality furniture you can afford.

With that said, I went to Roche Bobois in Novi and spoke with Greg Eitelman, who owns Roche Bobois with Edgar Hagopian, about what is new in the bedroom furniture market.

Eitelman mentioned that the trend in the master bedroom suite is to have rich, warm tones to create a luxury feel. Dark woods like cherry or walnut are very popular. Four-poster beds and sleigh beds have remained strong in the market, whether they are in the dark woods or in textural, aged metals. The variety in the materials allows the furniture to be at home in a traditional setting, contemporary, or a more transitional one.

Another area that brings a luxury feel into the master bedroom is the bedding. High thread count linens and beautiful textures are a treat and promote the pampered feeling that many people desire after a hard day's work. Look for quality down comforters and decorative beaded, silk pillows. Bedroom seating purchases also have increased, Eitelman said.

Cozy, overstuffed chairs for reading and contemplation are showing up on the master bedroom scene. If the bedroom is on the small side, use a smaller chair or an upholstered bench at the foot of the bed. This bedroom seating idea goes hand in hand with homeowners wanting their master bedroom to be a retreat.

Consider avoiding the matched set of bedroom furniture to bring in a more casual European and comfortable look. Find some nightstands or side chests that work with the general theme of the room and coordinate with the bed 's headboard; however, the nightstands and bed do not have to be of the same material.

Mix tones of woods, woods with metals, or any combination of materials to add visual interest. Note in the photo the overall look of comfort combined with simplicity – a very serene and luxurious bedroom, and yet it is not a matched bedroom set.

After purchasing your bedroom furniture and luxury linens, look to your paint as the next step. Paint is the most flexible item you can purchase for the least amount of expense. Keep in mind that color evokes feeling.

What is the feeling you want for your bedroom? Don't be afraid of bold colors, but remember this room is a place of rest. Bold colors can be mentally stimulating and even irritating when viewed in large doses. If you love red, it may be best used as an accent color in the bedroom with pillows, valances, tiebacks and art work, and leave the red walls for the dining room.

Regarding your window treatments: The possibilities are endless. Some people prefer a tailored and layered look, while others like sheer and simple.

It is advisable to have the option of room darkening treatments, should you want to sleep in late on the weekends. This look can be accomplished with lined draperies, or with pleated shades or shutters layered under a sheer window treatment.

If a more tailored look is your style, you may need to hire the services of a qualified interior designer to complete it.

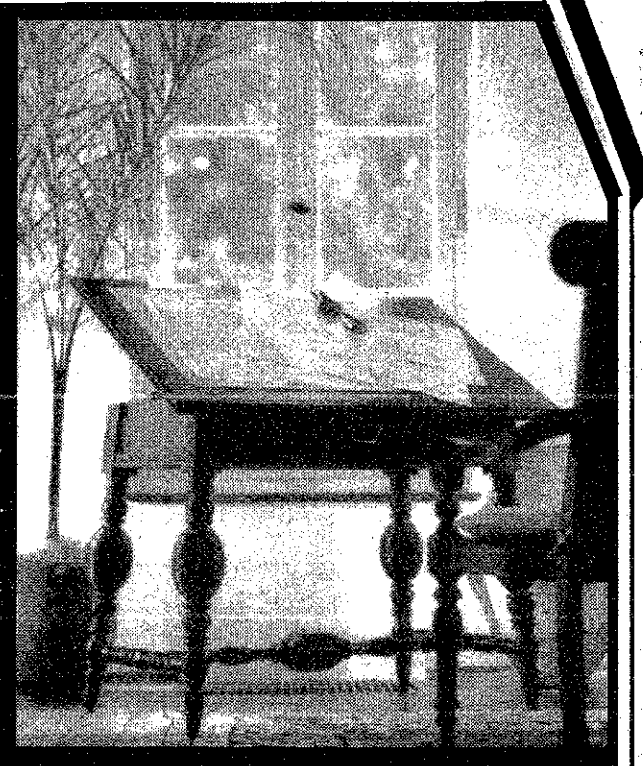

You've waited a long time for this bedroom makeover.

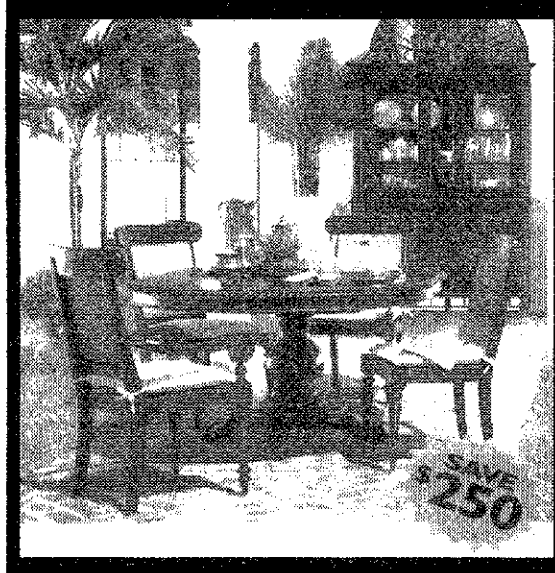

Give each purchase thoughtful consideration and the results will be worth the wait.

DIXBORO GENERAL STORE

5206 Plymouth Road • 1½ miles east of US-23 (exit 41) • Ann Arbor
(734) 663-5558 - www.dixboro.com

Not your average general store

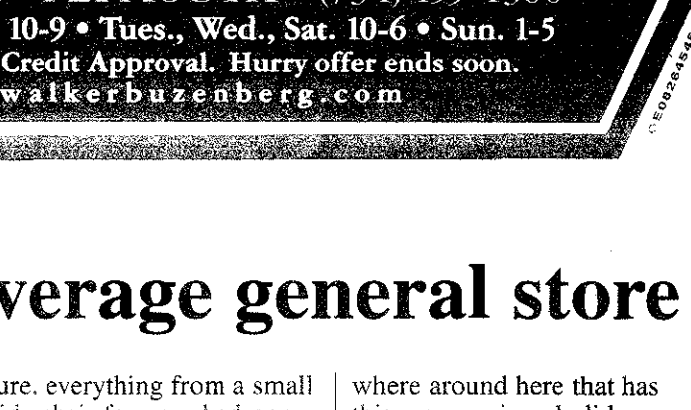

If you're driving down Plymouth Road just east of Ann Arbor and happen to pass a large white building with a sign saying "Dixboro General Store", you just might be surprised if you stop and go in. The first thing you will notice about this general store is there is no bread or milk. "We get people every day stopping here and walking in the door with a puzzled look on their face, and we know right away that they thought they were walking into a grocery store" commented Cheryl Goode, who along with her husband, Allan, own this unique store.

While you can still buy "penny" candies, homemade jellies and jams and old fashioned bottles of Coca Cola out of an antique Coke machine, what you'll surprisingly find is a store packed with furniture, home accessories, candles and lots more. According to Allan, "We carry one of the largest selections of handmade wooden furniture anywhere, and most of our pieces come not only in a wide range of stain colors, but they can also be painted in an array of antique paint colors". He went on to explain that while their store is relatively small compared to most "full line" furniture stores, they actually stock and sell more of this "primitive look" furniture than most big name furniture stores. "We have four main wood furniture companies and we are the number one dealer of all four lines! If we don't have it in our store or one of our two warehouses, we can custom order anything in any color or combination of colors."

But it doesn't stop there. "We also carry several brands of upholstered furniture, everything from a small side chair for your bedroom, to a huge down filled sectional" added Allan. All of their upholstered lines have eight way hand tied construction and hardwood frames and one can choose from hundreds of fabric choices. "We get so many people who tell us they have looked all over town and can't find a better quality product and are amazed at our prices."

The other thing you'll notice about this store is that it looks different every time you go there. In addition to all of the furniture and home accessories, you'll find a huge selection of collectibles, giftware, and decorations for your home. On a recent trip, I entered the store to a bustle of activity. Several employees were transforming the rooms (yes, there are nine rooms!) from a fall theme to a Christmas one. Everything was being arranged with garlands, wreaths, and old fashioned decorations to remind you of Christmases gone by. These great decorations are not just for looks, they sell them too! "I don't think there is anywhere around here that has this many unique holiday items" claims Cheryl. "We start our buying in January and don't stop until our big Holiday Open House". This year, their Open House will run from November 9th through the 14th. "We have over 35,000 people on our mailing list and it seems like just about every one of them comes to this event" says Cheryl, "it's my favorite time of the year, the store looks beautiful and everyone is in such a festive mood!"

When you visit there, be sure to seek out the old photos of when it was the other kind of general store. The building, originally built in 1840, seven years before Edison was born, holds a lot of charm and history. Notice the creaking floors, the old wavy windows and the player piano, in fact there is so much to look at, plan on spending some time to see it all. It will amaze you and I'm sure you won't be disappointed.

The Dixboro General Store was expanded and connected to the "Merchants Home" in 1995.

The Dixboro General Store is located at 5206 Plymouth Road, just east of Ann Arbor. (734) 663-5558. www.dixboro.com.

Fabulous FURNITURE 2004

Making well-dressed bed is art form

STAFF WRITER

Making the bed can be an art as well as a chore.

When it comes to decorating the home, the bed has become almost as important as the living room sofa, says Birmingham interior designer Shirley Maddalena.

"Bed making can be difficult. I've seen people be really frustrated," said Maddalena, president of Maddalena Design Ltd. "You need to go in with swatches of paint and (samples of) carpets."

A basic rule is to keep in mind the bed's environment; whether the room is formal and dressy or casual and homey, she said.

"So many wonderful products are available today," Maddalena said.

You could easily spend $500 to $5,000 on items for the bed, she said.

Maddalena says there are two types of beds: formal, which is very fluffy and very elegant, and Zen-like, which is very simple.

Headboards can be decorative, whether wood or upholstered.

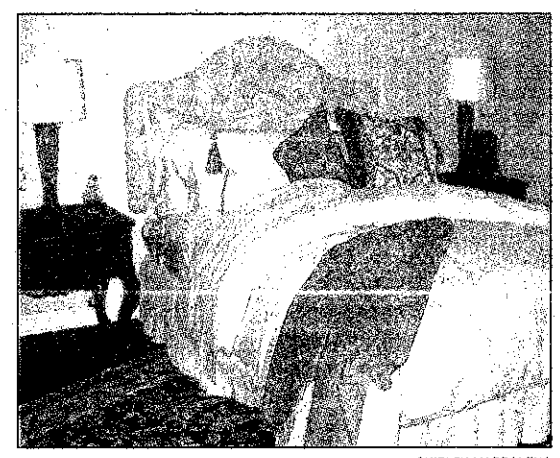

The formal bed features a feather mattress or feather down comforter pad, a silk coverlet, and a duvet down comforter that is rolled and placed at the foot of the bed.

Maddalena recommends putting the pillows for sleeping behind shams. She likes to place two or three decorative pillows on the bed. If you have a treasured pillow, put it in the center.

Pillow shams should match the dust ruffle on the bed, Maddalena said. Beds that don't need dust ruffles include sleigh and four-poster beds, she said.

A Zen-like bed looks flat. Pillow shams are squared and lay flat on the bed. At the foot of this bed, place a cashmere or mohair throw.

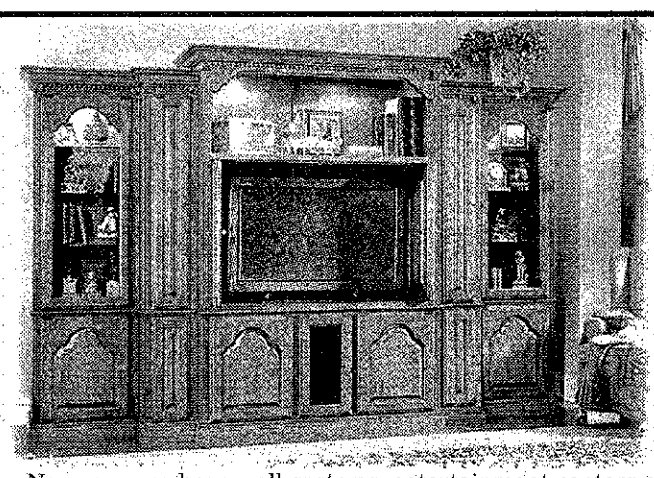

For any bed, Maddalena prefers white sheets with a thread count of 350 per inch, so you don't have to worry about fading and so the sheets will be long lasting.

SHIRLEY MADDALENA

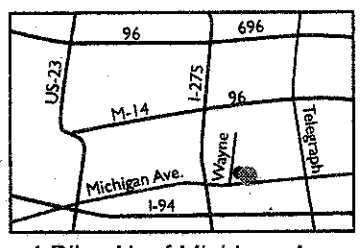

This bed by fashion designer Nicole Miller, featured in a recent Wall Street Journal article about high fashion bedding, was "dressed up" by Birmingham interior designer Shirley Maddalena. Maddalena also sells high-end linens to clients.

Fabulous FURNITURE 2004

Accessorize with various furnishings

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Everybody has a story to tell or memories they want to keep.

Quite often accessories in the home reflect a journey. And what when something reaches obsolescence, it can be another person's treasure.

Michele and Todd Schiftar own Consignment Outlet stores in Canton, Orchard Lake, Plymouth and have a new store planned in Livonia. They are often approached to sell furniture and accessories from homeowners who experience change in their lives, Michele said.

"They may be moving or they may be downsizing," she said. The store is an eclectic mix of furniture, televisions, glassware and has plenty of accessory items.

"We try to mix contemporary and antique," Schiftar said. "We never judge their tastes, we just let the customer decide."

Lamps, artwork, curtains, wood blinds and vases are among items that customers look at to add accessories to their homes, Schiftar said.

They may prefer a retro look and purchase gold leaf glassware or more nostalgic cuckoo clock remembered from childhood at a grandparent's home.

Like art, home decorating accessories are acquired and displayed according to personal taste. And they don't need to be museum quality.

Steve Dani of Dixboro General Store in Ann Arbor said Dixboro sells many prints. "People really enjoy them," Dani said. "But what we are selling a lot of is the holiday merchandise."

The Halloween decor items pretty much cleared the shelves by last week, Dani said, as customers purchased much of it. "We couldn't keep the Halloween stuff," he said.

Accessories for the mantel is a popular spot in the home for holiday items, Dani said. "The garland is a major accessory, and it's leaves and acorns versus pine needles and cones." Wreaths also are popular.

According to www.home-decorating-made-easy.com, you should group objects by theme, material or color. A group in one location is always more dramatic than placing items throughout the room.

Drape a throw or afghan over a large chair sofa to add a splash of color and texture. Use toss pillows to convey a sense of comfort. Try a mix of patterns, pillow sizes or fabric, but try to have one color that unifies.

But if you want something different, you should shop around.

"We get a lot of people who come in here who want something different," Schiftar said. "If they see something they like, they'll trade it out." (Consignment also lists items for customers on eBay for bidding.)

Shopping Consignment helps homeowners working within a budget, said Todd Schiftar.

A family recently lost a home and all their furnishings, then they received insurance money, but it wasn't enough to purchase new furniture, so family members visited the Schiftars, replacing furniture within a budget.

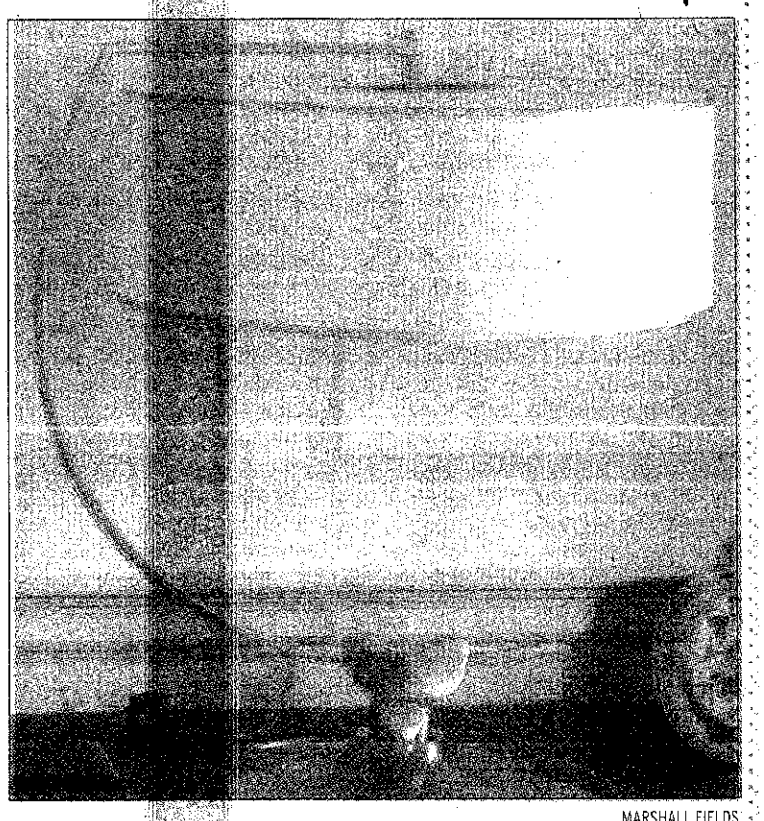

"It's like a car when you drive it off the lot," said Michele, referring to the loss in resale value of new furniture. "Why pay like that in furniture?"

New furniture has pressed wood, but there's nothing like the older furniture, Todd said.

"It's just that the craftsmanship is so much higher end," Schiftar said of antique furniture.

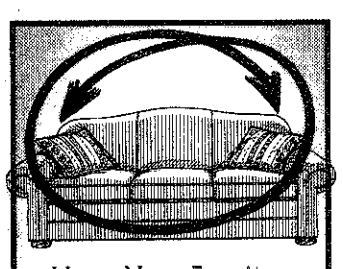

Consignment Outlet has stores at the following locations: 44125 Ford Road, Canton; 3252 Orchard Lake Road (in Orchard Plaza), Orchard Lake, and 1440 Sheldon Road (at Ann Arbor Road) in Plymouth. A grand opening of a new store, which will make Consignment Outlet the largest consignment store group in Michigan, is scheduled for Nov. 15 at 35275 Plymouth Road in Livonia. Visit resalestuff.com for more information.

Dixboro General Store is located at 5206 Plymouth Road in Ann Arbor.

Vintage-inspired accessories rekindle past

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITER

Styles come and go, which means decorating with vintage home accessories never really goes out of fashion.

"Were always borrowing from the past to create new looks and trends in the present," said Shelly Ibach, senior vice president of home merchandising at Marshall Field's. "People love to surround themselves with things from the past, as well as things that are new."

So which time periods currently have a grip on designers, retailers and homeowners? Apparently the wholesome but forward-looking '50s and the flashy, disco-driven '70s.

"We're seeing a lot more browns, oranges and blues in the home, something similar to colors of the '70s," Ibach said.

Stylings reminiscent of the era and other nearby decades work well in a clean contemporary setting, bringing detail and interest to more modern designs. The overall look is what Debbie Thomas, owner of The Final Phase in Troy, calls "the urban look." Thomas is a professional "accessorizer," and her store specializes in supplying decor accessories to interior designers.

Thomas said homeowners with a contemporary style are gravitating towards '50s-inspired decor pieces.

"Maybe a lamp from the 50s that's updated in that where there was stainless, there is nickel," she said, adding, "That's strong right now you know, the minimalist look."

But eras long gone-by still have a hold on the majority of homeowners, she said.

"There is still a huge, huge thing for the French country-meets-old world look," said Thomas.

To achieve the look, look for accessories that work lots of magic on a room like framed family pictures, leather-bound books and vintage-style lamps.

Glassware also makes quite a statement in a room, Ibach said. "Add etched glassware, candle holders and candelabras to bring back a touch of elegance in a more casual way."

Looking for an interchangeable decor accessory with high impact? Consider vintage-style glassware like these pieces from Thomas O'Brien, available at Marshall Field's.

Other high-impact vintage accessories include mirrors, embroidered pillows, wall sconces and decorative, painted trays – which can be used either as serving trays or decorative pieces.

While vintage furniture designs and decor accessories have never been bigger, the trend may have more to do with creating a feeling than evoking a particular time period and style in the home, Ibach said.

You won't lose while you snooze

Dennis Fairchild

Bedrooms are personal retreats where we spend about a third of our lives.

Whether we sleep on our side, stomach or back, bedrooms are largely places for horizontal rest, recovery or renewal.

Bedrooms are analogous to our breathing apparatus: our lungs, according to the ancient and magical metaphors of feng shui (pronounced "fung schway," meaning that everything that surrounds a homeowner affects them) So, we should keep them clean, aired-out and avoid any kind of congestion.

Clutter invites dissatisfaction and conflict between bed partners, so keep it clean (and keep a vacuum cleaner in the walk-in closet). A bedroom should be more square than rectangular to assure positive conjugal communication between couples, never triangular or featuring sunken or protruding corners.

Bedrooms are best at the back of the house away from the road, never above a garage, to increase happiness and intimate harmony. Sleeping rooms above garages are said to increase insomnia, nightmares and crankiness. Light coming from either the right or left is good, but do not expose bed sides directly to a window, especially in the rooms of infants or ailing elderly people.

A bedroom should feel (and be) secure and intimate, never confining. Live or silk plants attract luck and happiness when visible from the bed. To insure happiness, remember to keep all plants pruned and remove all dead leaves. Yellow or pinkish flowering plants are best, contributing to individuality and personal strength.

You should never be able to see under the bed. If you can, cover it up so that it appears to be solid. Fear and apprehension over future projects are said to become magnified whenever the space below a bed is visible. Try shams or dangle sheets.

To encourage a good night's sleep, never sleep atop storage boxes, books or things hidden beneath. Good feng shui beds are never more than two feet off the floor. The bed is the centerpiece of this room and, normally, the largest object of furniture. And nothing, including trailing ivy, lamps or skylights, should intrude in the space above your bed and, especially, your head.

So take down the ceiling mirrors and hock your trapeze!

To increase productivity and prosperity, buy new sheets and pillowcases every few seasons. We tune up the car regularly for good mileage, so why not regularly realign your sleeping quarters.

Feng shui masters assign specific shades for different maids. Blue rooms turn occupants into the opposite of what blue means in the west. Sky color suggests relief from stress.

Irving Berlin wrote about smiling blue skies.

Restful repose and sweet dreaming.

Yellow, the color of sunshine, evokes imagination, social and intellectual interchange. It is great for libraries, studies and family rumpus rooms and terrific for adult bedrooms.

"In the pink" evokes a color of revival, happiness, love. The Chinese masters recommend this and light dusty rose shades as ideal for reviving failed romances.

To enhance good health and communication among loved ones, do not locate ceiling fans directly over the bed, only off to the side or at the foot area.

Ditto for placing a bed under a sloping ceiling or exposed beam. If this is your fix, move either the bed or fan and paint the overhead beams the same color as the ceiling to promote fidelity and honest dialogue.

It's not good feng shui to have a mirror at the foot of the bed whether freestanding or above the bureau. And never ever hang mirrors that are broken, cracked or damaged, either. This mirror will not only interfere with your sleep, it also ensures a rude awakening and a slap in face, seeing yourself warts and all as you rise and try to shine.

Alarm clocks, especially digital electronic models, should keep their distance at least six feet away from pillows, rousting you out of bed rather than allowing you to press the snooze control and begin the day kvetching. To increase good dreams, remove or dismantle shelves on walls near the head of the bed.

To avoid insecurity and paranoia, don't sleep with your feet directly facing a doorway. Beds should be catty-corner to the door to allow you to see who's coming or going.

Like Charles Dickens, many believe that facing east while lying in bed brings happiness and health to family members and guarantees fidelity. Turn the foot of your bed southeast or north to attract wealth and business opportunities, south for recognition from coworkers.

And never rush off to the office without looking over your shoulder. Have you left behind an unmade, rumpled mess? (Bad juju.) Making your bed might magically make your day.

Fabulous FURNITURE 2004

Bedroom lighting should be relaxing

BY JENNA KLOECKNER
STAFF WRITER

In many homes, the bedroom is a place of rest and relaxation. Thanks to lighting, there are several ways to create such an atmosphere in your own bedroom.

Terry Ellis, ASID professional member and owner of Room Service Interior Design, located in the Michigan Design Center in Troy, said bedrooms require soft lighting.

To achieve such lighting, she suggests using 75 watt bulbs as opposed to 150 watt ones, and soft white light bulbs, which cast a "warmer" light, as opposed to clear light bulbs.

On the same note, a recent bedroom lighting trend is pan or tray ceilings (ceilings that give the appearance of a raised center section) with moldings around some of the ceiling lines, and rope lights (lights inside a plastic cord).

Ellis said this type of architecture, combined with such lighting, "creates a soft glow" throughout the room and enhances the room's architectural features. This combination make the room appear more spacious, too.

Aside from soft lighting, there are other things to keep in mind when lighting a bedroom.

In a lot of newer homes, Ellis said bedrooms are 18- by 20-feet and include a bed, and seating and dressing area. For such a room, there should be a minimum of four recessed lights for overall lighting and some lamps. Ellis suggests putting the lamps on night stands or ones with halogen bulbs on a desktop.

But you may need more lights if you have special things you want to highlight, Ellis said.

For example, if you have a fireplace in the bedroom, which is becoming more these days, you may want to put recessed lighting above it that shines down on it, Ellis said. The same rule applies to pictures and other decorative pieces you want to enhance.

And if your room is small, you should still have about the same amount of recessed light as in a larger bedroom. Ellis said this move balances the light.

Another tip from Ellis are bed switches, which are switches right next to the bed that turn the lights off. If you have lamps, you can wire the lamp into the wall switch to achieve the same effect.

"It's just nice to not have to get out of bed to turn the lights off," she said.

Faye Elisabeth Nicholas, a lighting consultant at Pine Tree Lighting in Lake Orion, stresses the importance of layering lights, which means having many different sources of light.

She said there's times when you need different lights for different things. You may want a lamp for reading, or a recessed light over a work station in your bedroom. Regarding lamps, she said, be creative.

"Lamps are nice accent pieces for the bedroom. You can be creative with them," she said. "They don't have to just be for function, they can be for decoration, too."

In a 12- by 14-foot room, she said there should be general lighting, such as a ceiling fixture, and some lamps. In a larger master bedroom (18 by 20 feet), she suggests using recessed cans overhead, wall sconces and lamps.

But no matter how large or small the room, "you want your lighting to detail your architecture," Nicholas said. "You want it to show off the intricate things in the room." And she said just because a room is small doesn't mean you have to skimp on the detail.

BEDROOM

explains Dana Demski, owner of Recherche Fine Consignment Furniture in Farmington Hills and Waterford.

If that one piece of furniture becomes the focal point, it changes the entire look of the décor. Recherche also has an artist available for hire who "will do pretty much anything" on room walls and furniture. That piece you bought at a consignment shop, becomes something spectacular and unique once it's painted with flowers, scrolls or borders or other ideas. If you don't have ideas, the artist will offer some, Demski says.

"You can put a chaise lounge in a corner and there's a place to lounge and read a book during the day," Demski says. "You make the room more user friendly throughout the day."

You're not alone if you ever had your heart set on a certain piece of furniture, but waited so long to buy it that when you finally got to the store it was sold out.

"People hunt and find them in consignment shops," explains Michele Schiftar, who owns Consignment Outlet in Canton with her husband, Todd. Don't feel bound to follow rules when decorating, she says. Think about adding something to your bedroom that you would normally find in another part of the house, Michele says.

The tall cabinet that was used for the television in the family room can become your new sweater storage in the bedroom. An end table can take on a whole new life as a night stand, she says.

"People can also use a china hutch in their bedroom," Schiftar adds. "It provides visible storage and has a high-end look."

Or, take nice plates and cups that are chipped and create a mosaic on a ceramic lamp. The piece becomes special, too, by serving as a home to favored china that would have been discarded. The process, she says, is simple: Use a glue gun to adhere the pieces, apply grout and wash of the excess.

Use your imagination, Schiftar says adding that lamps take-on a whimsical look by hanging earrings from shades.

"In a consignment shop you see so many unique things," Schiftar said. A customer told her she was buying a lamp so cheap that she was going to try a new craft technique on it and if it didn't work, it wouldn't be a big loss.

"All you need to do is get a staple gun and glue gun and you're set," Schiftar adds. "It's so inexpensive that you don't care. A lot of people come in and say, 'I just want a table and make it shabby chic.' They paint it white and distress it and if they don't like it, they can always strip it back down and do something else with it."

Just because you don't have a light socket over your bed doesn't mean you can't have lighting up above. Do it yourself by adding hooks, hanging a chain light and securing it with extra enforcements to make sure it won't come down.

"Sometimes instead of painting a wall you can take fabric and make it like a wallpaper with a little batting and staple it to the wall," Schiftar says. "It adds texture and depth to the room, but it's not permanent."

A little paint goes a long way, too, Demski says. For romantic styles add soft pastels in pinks, peaches, light blues, soft greens and purples. Use low wattage bulbs and add lots of pillows and soft fabrics.

For a whimsical look try adding something to the room that you wouldn't normally see in a bedroom, like a golf bag in a corner, knitting needles on the wall or gardening accessories scattered about.

A bean bag chair sets the mood for casual reclining that can change spots on a daily basis.

If you're going for masculine, use big, heavy, wood pieces and darker colors, like reds, hunter greens, deep blues and combinations of black and white.

The bedroom is one place in the house that you don't have to worry about finding décor that meets the approval of anyone, but yourself, explains Tom McDoniel, part owner of Recherche with Demski.

"In the vestibule you might want to please other people and in your bedroom you're only trying to please yourself," he says. "Maybe use tapestries and any sort of wall coverings so the walls aren't bare."

Throw pillows are an easy and inexpensive way to help tie those pieces together by using fabrics that pull out colors from the wall and carpet.

"When you get tired of the pillows, you can get different pillows," McDoniel adds.

Fabulous FURNITURE 2004

Explore the outer limits of design

BY ELAINE PERLIN CROSSLEY
CORRESPONDENT

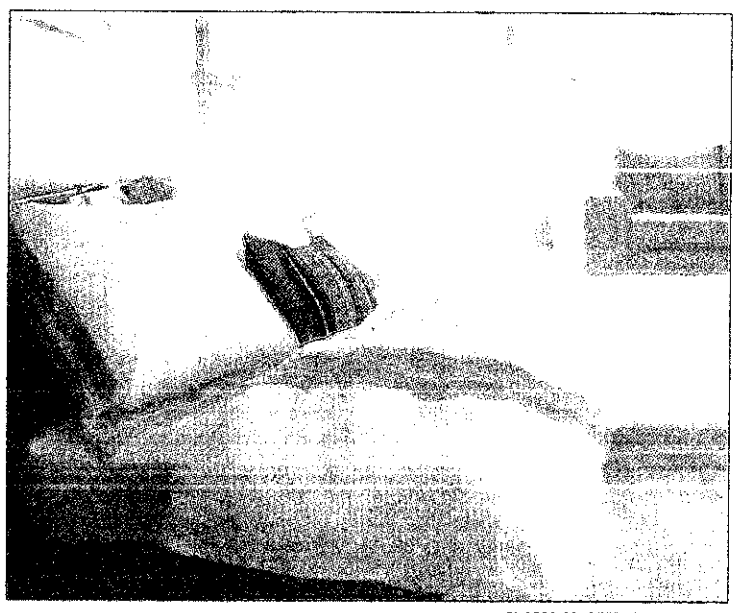

Whether thumbing through Midwest Living magazine, watching HGTV or reading the At Home section of this newspaper, new and exciting home decor ideas are everywhere we look.

With visits to refurnished homes, furniture stores and even design firms, homeowners can get plenty of ideas.

Ed Wolf, president of Newton Furniture, said his company "transitions with the times." After 43 years, he expects the company is in furnishing homes for the long haul.

"We offer mass appeal, and a mix of goods with fashion flair and our clientele is known for good taste and an appreciation for the timeless beauty of our lines," Wolf said.

But there are also consumers on the periphery. Some require cutting edge, high-end design while others prefer the HGTV concept of "decorating on a dime."

Marshalls offers accessory items for every room in the home.

ON ONE END OF THE CONTINUUM...

Many consumers are turning to interior designers, artists, artisans and exclusive showrooms for design ideas.

Roche Bobois is an international company with over 200 franchises worldwide, one of which is located in Novi. Co-owned by Greg Eitelman and Edgar Hagopian, the furniture choices in this upscale showroom include stunning European contemporary, transitional and provincial designs, as well as genres representing other foreign lands and cultures.

"We have a great design environment, and for those [illegible] plan to create a feel for the combined elements of a project," said Eitelman, a member of the American Society of Interior Design.

Roche Bobois accommodates homeowners who wish to design an entirely new or renovated home, or those interested in purchasing a 'one-off' piece, or even an accessory, Eitelman said.

"We promote the arts and work with a network of artists," Eitelman said. "Art is a personal choice, and we create an ambiance in our showroom to display how incorporating artwork can energize space - from three-dimensional wall art to free standing sculpture to mobiles to shadow boxes."

GREAT STYLE, LIGHT BUDGET

Steven Fisher, owner of Steven Richards Furniture in Ann Arbor, says customers want the 'look' at an affordable cost.

"As with clothing, [illegible] grandparents did," Fisher said.

"Buying in large volume allows us to pass great value on to our customers. Then, they may be able to afford to update more often."

Jen Goonan, spokesperson for Marshalls, said Marshalls provides one-stop shopping for the home - with furniture and a myriad of accessories imported from around the world. "We continually offer new choices within our high volume of fresh merchandise - some with top names in design," Goonan said. That includes everything from tables, chairs, couches and armoires to lamps, rugs, wall decor and more.

The Michigan Design Center in Troy offers a "Designer on Call" program to help consumers learn more about the design process with a free, no obligation one-hour consultation with a designer.

Interior designer Harvey [illegible] to each individual - and it does not necessarily dictate style," Hollander said.

"You can achieve style with varying levels of quality.

"The objective of a good designer is to help clients feel comfortable, not afraid or intimidated. And through lots of discussion, to get to know them, to understand their needs, life-styles, aesthetic preferences, budgets and t heir personal definitions of quality."

Whatever your style, wherever you find comfort, a radiant kaleidoscope of design awaits.

All guts, no glory

Canton's O-line produces results, not attention

Ed Wright

Let me introduce you to the other half of the nearly unstoppable Canton Chiefs offense, the half that rarely gets noticed by casual fans — unless, of course, one of its members jumps offsides on third-and-one.

It's the half of the offense that Chiefs head coach Tim Baechler repeatedly refers to as the team's MVP, and opposing coaches rave about during postgame interviews.

The players on this half of the offense never get their names or pictures in the paper (until now), but they don't seem to care.

Their egos are as small as their hearts are large.

They're big, bright and "bring-it-on" confident, but not trash-talking cocky.

They are "Dave," the singular generic name given to the Chiefs' offensive line by its position coach, Bob Williams, a veteran of 17 seasons at Canton.

"I always refer to my offensive line unit as 'Dave,'" Williams said. "If somebody screws up, Dave did it. If we make a nice play, Dave did it. The O-line is like one big generic football player that works in machine-like fashion. Dave is our generic collective name for the unit. The kids are really into it and it gives them one more thing to kid around about."

'Dave' divided by 5

This year's "Dave" consists of tackles Eric Kilijanczyk and Kevin Pruett; guards Matt D'Avanzo and Russ Bruner; and center Mitch Miller.

If you take the average heights and weights of Canton's five starting senior offensive linemen,

Canton, Belleville meet for 1st time since '00 playoffs

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

The last time Canton and Belleville squared off on a football field, George W. Bush was a couple of days away from taking over the reins of the country and Canton football coach Tim Baechler was a couple of weeks away from entrenching the Chiefs on the Michigan high school football playoff map.

Now, four years later, Baechler is the only one of the two who is assured of having a job next week.

On Oct. 27, 2000, Canton defeated a perenially strong Belleville team, 21-10, in the first playoff game of

PLAYOFF PREVIEW

Baechler's tenure. The Chiefs later advanced to the regional final before getting knocked off by Clarkston.

Canton hasn't missed the playoffs since.

Canton and Belleville meet again at 7 p.m. Friday, but unlike the previous meeting, the Chiefs will host the game and are prohibitive favorites to advance to the next round against the winner of the Novi-Northville showdown.

Canton has outscored its foes, 403-60, while the Tigers have outpointed their opponents, 164-153.

"We were kind of hoping we would be playing in another district," Belleville coach Bob LaPointe said, "because you never like to go against a team that's 9-0 like Canton. But our kids are excited about being in the playoffs. Hopefully, we'll go out and put on a good show."

LaPointe said he isn't surprised by the Chiefs' unblemished record after viewing a few of their game films.

"On offense, they do what they want to do very well," he said. "They have some very powerful running

Short-handed Hornets sting Rocks

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Opportunity knocked Saturday afternoon for the Salem boys soccer team in its Division 1 district final showdown with Saline, but the Rocks didn't answer.

Salem played the entire second half with a one-player advantage after a Hornet was disciplined with a red card with one second left in the opening half. However, Saline dug in defensively and hung on to win 2-1 to advance to the regional portion of the state tournament.

Salem finished 13-5-6.

"I wasn't as upset that we didn't score in the second half as I was that we didn't even get a good opportunity to score," Salem coach Ed McCarthy said. "Saline did a tremendous job defensively, but it was very disappointing to fall short considering the circumstances."

Despite the bitter ending, McCarthy said he was satisfied with his team's performance all year.

"I was pleased with the progress we made as the season went on," he said. "To finish 13-5-6 with a really young team was a pretty good accomplishment. We started the year with several tough losses, but we came on at the end and played well. I was proud of the way our seniors played this year. They did a great job."

The Rocks jumped ahead 1-0 early in the first half when Joe Halewicz scored on a diving header.

Saline's Jeff Stall knotted the score at 1-1 when he deposited a missed shot by Luli Usein into the back of the net.

Saline's Tyler Patterson scored the game-winner for the Hornets with 6:36 left in the first half when he drilled a rebound shot past Salem goalie Brian Field, who had stuffed Usein seconds earlier with a lunging effort.

Two minutes later, Salem's Jake Bennett drilled a shot that hit the crossbar and bounced harmlessly away. It turned out to be the last decent scoring opportunity for the Rocks.

The Hornets were whistled for five yellow cards in the second half, but held on for the victory.

Canale leads Salem to 'Senior Night' win

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

A few minutes before Salem's Senior Night game Tuesday night against Plymouth, Ellen Canale, Alyssa Guerin and Kathryn Wheatley were honored with speeches that were composed and read by their junior teammates.

The three seniors then went out and helped script a convincing 39-26 victory over the visiting Wildcats. Salem improved to 12-4 overall and 8-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Rocks trail Canton and Walled Lake Northern by one game in the WLAA standings heading into tonight's regular-season finale at home against the Chiefs.

Plymouth slipped to 8-7 overall and 6-4 in the WLAA.

Canale was especially effective, netting 17 points with three steals.

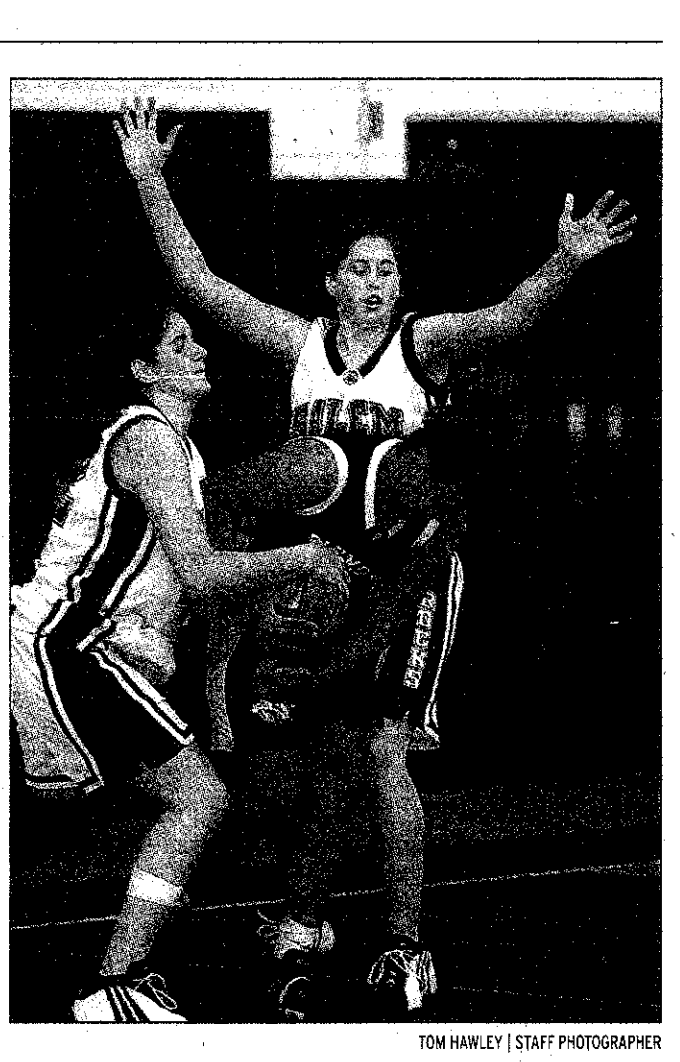

Guerin and Wheatley scored just two points each, but they contributed strong defensive efforts.

"I thought the three seniors really got into the game and played well," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "Alyssa and Kathryn got into a little foul trouble, but they worked through it.

"The biggest thing for us tonight was rebounding from our loss to Northville last Thursday.

"The girls went out and took care of business against a good basketball team. I like Plymouth's inside game and their perimeter players have gotten a lot better since the beginning of the season."

MU kickers win

The Madonna women's soccer team defeated Indiana Tech Saturday, 5-0, to clinch its fifth straight Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference championship.

Freshman Liz Slebodnik posted her first career hat trick to help propel the Crusaders, who are now 7-0-2 in the WHAC.

Slebodnik got things started a minute into the first half, scoring off a pass from Liz DiPonio to stake MU to a 1-0 lead. Katie Kirn then scored off a crossing pass from Jenny Aldea to double the Crusaders' advantage.

Slebodnik's next two goals – one unassisted and the other assisted by Lacy Catartino – made it 4-0 before Kristen Balogh finished things off with her first career goal. Laurie Strnad assisted on Balogh's counter.

Diana Kaip earned the shutout in goal for MU, stopping one shot. Melissa Koehler made nine saves for Indiana Tech.

Slebodnik was named WHAC Player of the Week thanks largely to her three-goal performance against Indiana Tech.

Larman shines

Canton native Kyle Larman is excelling for the Bentley College hockey team Larman was credited with a key assist in Bentley's 3-3 tie with Army Oct. 22. Bentley is now 0-1-2 overall and 0-0-1 in the Atlantic Hockey Association.

Lions sweep

The Canton Lions junior league football teams swept the Westland Comets Sunday afternoon. The Lions varsity upended the Comets, 26-6, behind Quest Miller's two touchdowns. Chris Koetting and Carter Staffled also scored for the winners. The defense was led by Jimmy Dexter, Nathan Morales and Justin Congdon.

The Lions junior-varsity squad improved its record to 3-4 with a 27-8 win. Caleb Rankins scored three TD's and had an outstanding defensive game. Dietrich Lever connected with Jacob Morris on a halfback-pass play for the other score. Defensive standouts included Jack Slater, Eric Haase, Chris Ostrowski and Jake Peterson.

The Lions freshmen extended their unbeaten streak to 22 games with a 26-0 triumph over the Comets. Jordan Smith, Braden Price and Malcolm Hollingsworth all scored for Canton, which received strong play from Josh Peterson, Omar Kandah, Bobby Rich and Zac Smilo. The 7-0 Lions will battle the 7-0 Plymouth Steelers Saturday at Central Middle School. The winner will be division champion.

Plymouth boosters

The next meeting for the Plymouth Wildcat football boosters will be held Monday, Nov. 1 at 7 p.m. in room 401 of Plymouth High School. All parents of Wildcat players are encouraged to attend this meeting for next year's board will be nominated.

Elaine Lafayette specializes in the freestyle events, but is versatile enough to compete in any event Plymouth coach Doug Schade feels she can best help the team.

Elaine Lafayette has helped guide the senior-less Plymouth girls swim team to an outstanding season. The junior qualified for the state meet Saturday in the 500-yard freestyle.

Endurance races suit Plymouth swimmer perfectly

STAFF WRITER

There isn't a more grueling event in high school swimming — or all of high school sports, for that matter — than the 500-yard freestyle, a five-minute-plus endurance test that can push both the body and the mind to the limit.

It is fitting, according to Plymouth girls swim coach Doug Schade, that the 500 free is the specialty of his premier swimmer, Elaine Lafayette, who epitomizes all the positive things high school athletics represent.

"Considering how hard Elaine works, it's not surprising at all that the 500 free is her best event," Schade said. "Everything that it takes to be successful in that event — mental toughness, physical endurance, outstanding ability — Elaine demonstrates on a daily basis. She's dedicated, motivated, a great leader. I could list a dozen positive effects about Elaine and they'd all be true."

Lafayette's teammates think the world of her, too, Schade said.

"One of the most significant things about Elaine is that she was chosen by her peers to serve as a captain this season," he said. "She's an extremely hard worker and very coachable. She listens to new ideas and will swim in whatever event we need her to swim in."

Only a junior, Lafayette qualified for the Division 1 state meet in the 500 free at Saturday's Michigan Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association (MISCA) meet at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. Her time of 5:37.12 was almost four seconds faster than her previous personal best.

"My strategy is to push myself early in the race and get off to a good start," Lafayette said.

"Then I bring it home as fast as I [illegible] and finish strong. I try to think of all the goals I've set for myself."

Lafayette's work ethic extends beyond the swimming pool — she was recently inducted into the National Honor Society, Schade said. She also coordinated the design of the team's swimsuits and did most of the legwork involved in the ordering of sweatshirts for the squad.

She's also proficient with the guitar and a member of her church's youth group.

"One thing I miss because of swimming is playing in our youth group's band," Lafayette said. "I've tried to write some songs, but they're not very good."

Lafayette started swimming recreationally at the age of 4 when her father gave her lessons. When she was 9, Lafayette joined the Plymouth-Canton Cruisers competitive swim team, for which she competed in the summer of 2003.

[illegible] always liked competition," said Lafayette, who played for the Wildcats' girls golf team last spring. "I like the challenges that it offers."

One of the most frustrating aspects of her high school swimming career is not having a home pool at Plymouth High School, Lafayette said.

"It's tough not having our own pool because our practice times get pushed around a little and are iffy sometimes," she said.

After graduation, Lafayette hopes to attend Seattle Pacific University, a Christian college located in Washington state.

"My dad and I visited last summer and I really liked it," she said.

SPU does not have a swim team, so Lafayette's competitive pool days would be over.

But that would give her more time for less strenuous activities like guitar playing and song writing.

Area swim stars shine at MISCA

STAFF WRITER

If you were invited to Saturday's MISCA swim meet at Eastern Michigan University, you've accomplished something.

MISCA is the acronym for Michigan Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association, the organization that coordinated Saturday's invitational. The meet was open only to Michigan high school girls swimmers who had recorded top-60 times in their respective events this season.

The three Plymouth-Canton Educational Park schools were well-represented. Salem sent nine athletes, led by junior Kelsey Lincoln, who earned state-qualifying times in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100 breaststroke. She was also a member of the Rocks' state-qualifying 200-yard medley relay team, which also consisted of Kim Heaney, Ashley Aquinto and Amanda Newman.

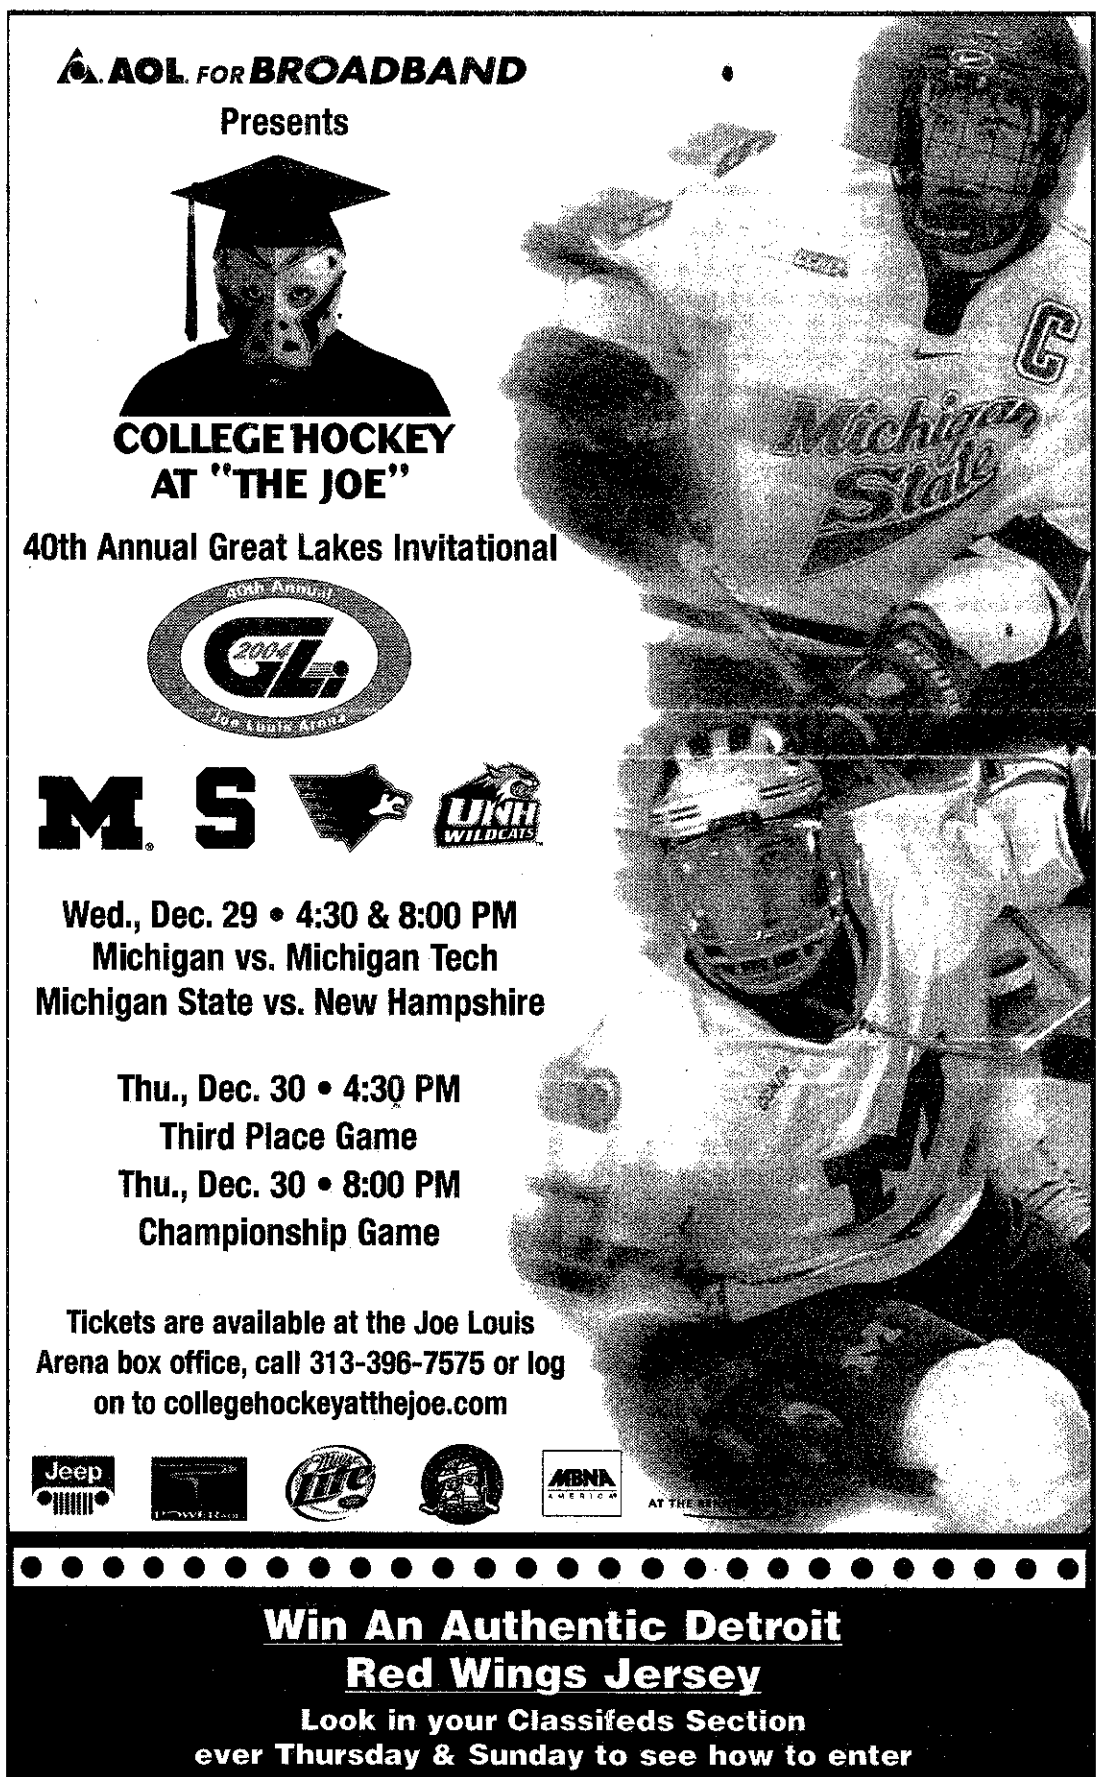

Salem swimmers Katie Gorman, Heather Michalson, Katie Myers, Kate Musson and Alexandra Stencel also turned in outstanding performances at the MISCA meet. The highlight for Canton's undefeated and Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division champions squad was freshman Allison Schmitt's third-place finish in the 500 freestyle event and fifth-place showing in the 200 IM.

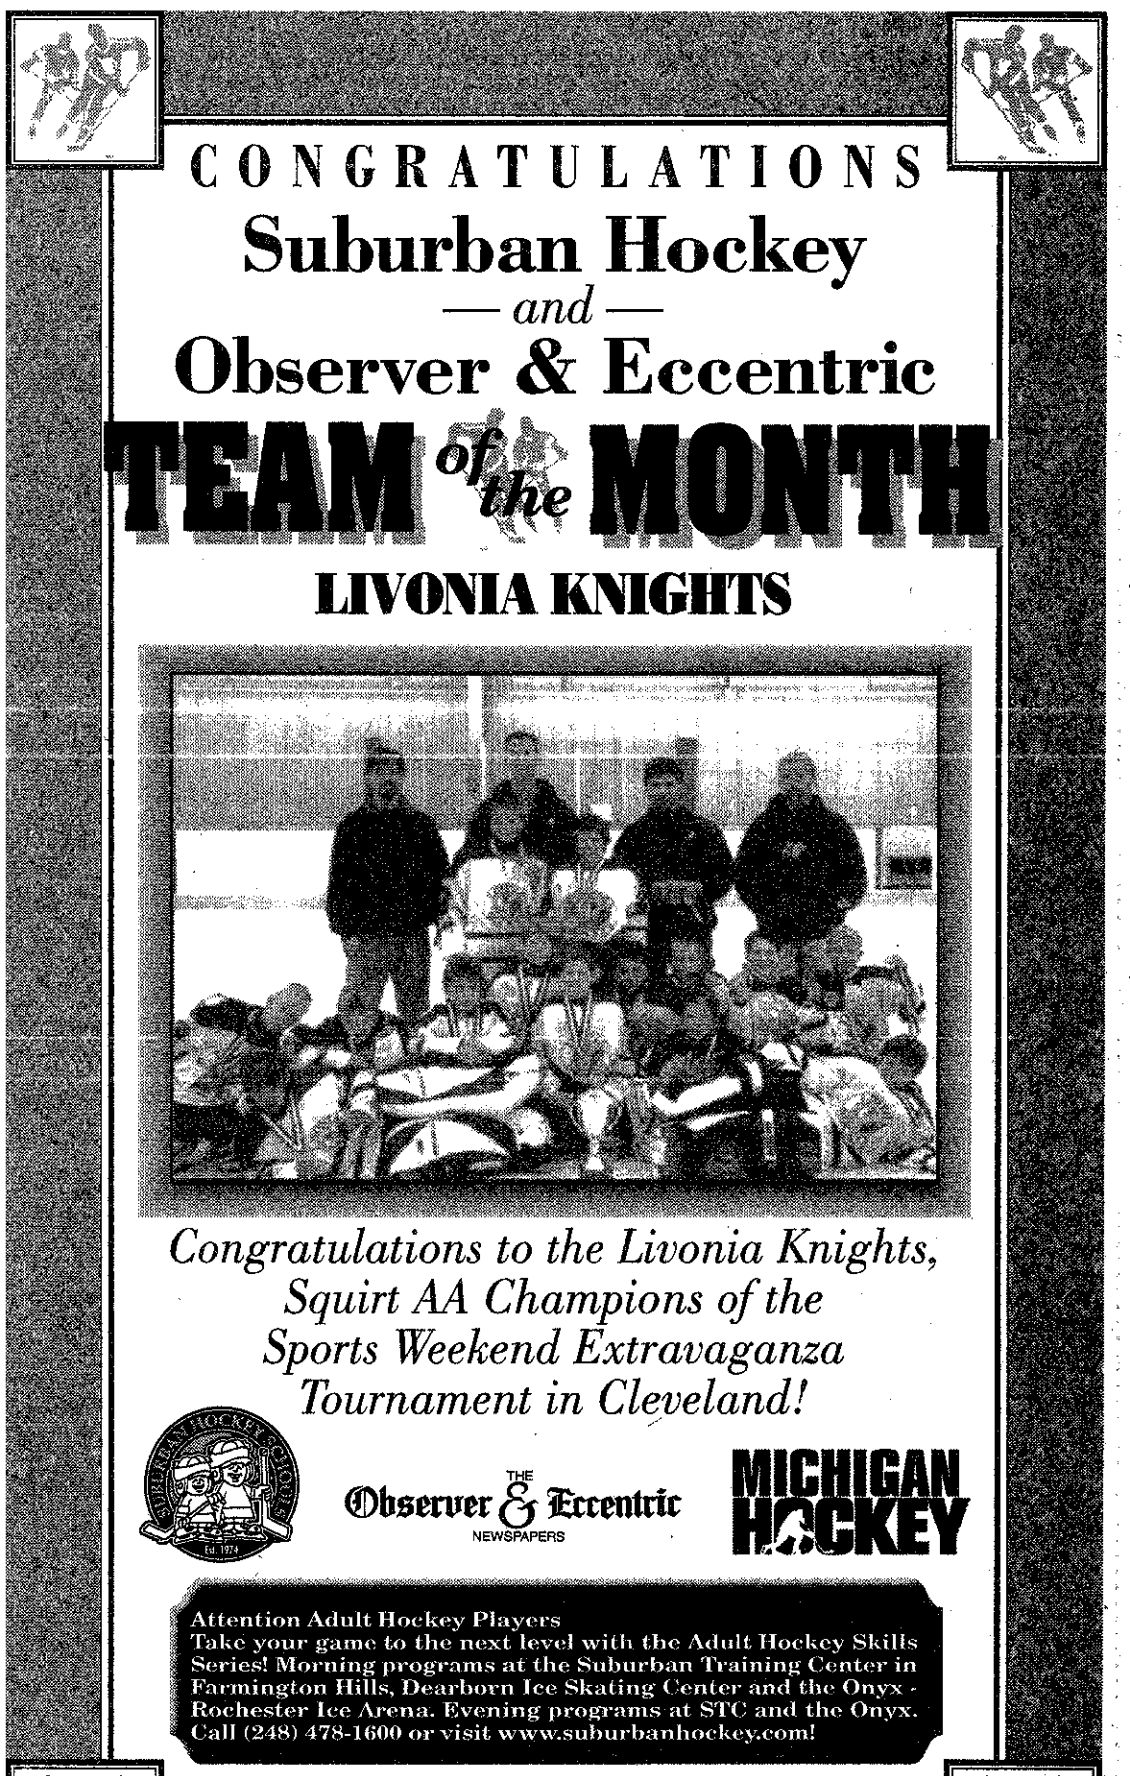

Elaine Lafayette swam well for Plymouth, qualifying for the 500 freestyle with a personal-best clocking of 5:37.12. The Wildcats' 200 freestyle relay quartet of Alyssa Liakos, Emily Clanton, Beah Knisely and Lafayette turned in a stellar time of 1:49.15.

Stephanie Goulet, Caitlyn Kolesar and Sarah Palczynski also participated in the meet for Plymouth.

"Considering it was the first taste of high-end competition for our girls, I think they did great," said Plymouth coach Doug Schade.

Canton streaks past Stevenson

A 20-1 third-quarter run was all Canton needed Tuesday to conquer host Livonia Stevenson in Western Lakes Activities Association action. The victory improved Canton's record to 11-5 overall and 9-1 in the WLAA. Stevenson fell to 8-8 and 4-6.

Katie Cezat and Molly Conlon scored 14 and 13 points, respectively, for Canton. Lisa Ealy added 11. Cezat added 10 rebounds and four blocks and Ealy contributed seven rebounds.

Canton sophomore point guard Becci Houdek dished out four assists and had six steals.

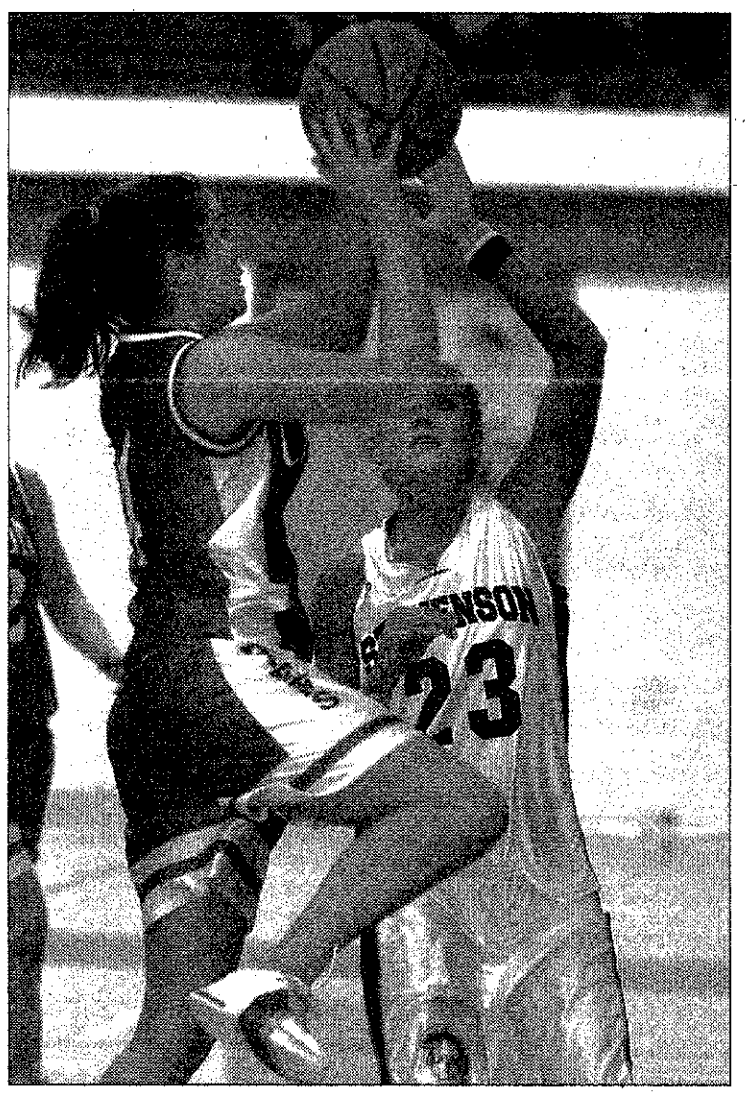

"We played a great defensive game tonight," said Canton coach Bob Blohm. "Everybody played solid and we did a great job of rebounding. We were able to take away their perimeter game, which was important. We held their top three guards to just six points."

Rachel Desentz score six for the Spartans.

Canton was 11-of-14 from the foul line, while Stevenson was 2-of-8.

Next for the Chiefs is cross-campus rival Salem. The two teams will square off tonight at 7 p.m. in the Salem gym. The Rocks are 8-2 in the WLAA following Tuesday's 39-26 win over Plymouth.

"It's always a great game when Canton and Salem play," Blohm said. "Salem is one of the teams I picked to win the league before the season started. They'll be intense, but we'll just have to match their intensity. Rebounding will be the key to the game.

Canton's Molly Conlon converts a driving lay-up over Livonia Stevenson's Rachel Desentz during Tuesday night's 47-20 Chief victory. Conlon finished with a season-high 13 points.

CANTON AGAPE 35, A.P. INTER-CITY BAPTIST 33: Brianna Chrenko scored off an in-bounds pass with 33 seconds left to account for the winning margin. The victory improved the Wolverines to 6-9 overall and 2-7 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Inter-City fell to 9-6 and 2-6, respectively.

Agape led 12-10 after one quarter, but trailed 18-16 at the half. The Wolves trailed 28-24 after three quarters, but stormed back with an 11-5 [illegible].

Chrenko paced Agape with 12 points and four rebounds. A.J. Creps had netted eight points and seven boards, and Danielle Henry score six points and handed out six assists.

Chelsea McCune and Anita Stamps both scored 12 points for the Chargers.

Agape returns to action Friday at Oakland Christian.

SOUTHFIELD CHRISTIAN 48, PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 46: Lauren Soblesky scored 20 and Joi Jennings had 17 in a losing cause for PCA, which dropped to 6-10 overall and 2-5 in the MIAC. SC improved to 11-5 and 5-2.

PCA was hampered by poor shooting at the free-throw line (14-of-27). SC, which made six-of-nine free throws, led 8-6 after one quarter and 27-26 at the half.

FRANKLIN 48, JOHN GLENN 46: In a WLAA game Tuesday, Livonia Franklin (6-9, 4-6) rallied in the final quarter to topple host Westland John Glenn (3-13, 1-9).

Senior guard Ashley Bonsall led a balanced Franklin scoring attack with 13 points. Junior center Trisha Morrill added 12, including eight in the fourth period when the Patriots outscored Glenn 16-8. Sophomore center Robyn Whalen contributed six points, 15 rebounds and 11 blocks.

Carly Muncy hit 4-of-5 free throws down the stretch to seal the victory.

Franklin connected on 14-of-24 from the line, while the Rockets made 6-of-10.

Guard Heather Lindon, who hit four 3-pointers, led Glenn and all scorers with 18 points. Jasmine Granberry added 10.

Teresa Coppiellie scored six points and grabbed eight rebounds for the Rocks.

Plymouth's top offensive effort came from junior Colleen Flaherty, who scored 10 points to go along with her eight boards. Wildcats leading scorer Jeanine Moise was held in check by the Rocks.

The 5-10 center was 0-for-10 from the field and 3-for-7 from the foul line, but she did pull down a game-high 12 rebounds.

Kim Olech recorded five points and three rebounds for Plymouth, which made just two of its first 23 shots.

The Wildcats warmed up in the fourth quarter, hitting 6-of-11 attempts.

"I thought we came out and gave a real good effort in the second half," Plymouth coach Richelle Reilly said.

"The girls came out and didn't quit."

Both teams appeared tight in the game's opening quarter, which ended with the Rocks ahead, 4-3. The Wildcats converted just 1-of-5 first-quarter shots, while Salem canned only 2-of-13.

Canale had five second-quarter points to lead Salem to a 17-6 halftime advantage.

Momentum is vital with prep football playoffs approaching

It's all about momentum going into the state football playoffs, particularly for woeful prognosticators like myself.

Somewhere during the middle of the regular season, after forging a comfortable lead, the train I was riding fell off the tracks.

Brad Emons

I let a rookie by the name of Ed Wright, the new Plymouth-Canton Sports Editor, steal my thunder.

I offer no excuses, other than the fact that one team from this area — Redford Thurston — is probably responsible for over 80 percent of my missed picks throughout the years.

When the Eagles are supposed to win, they lose. And when the Eagles are supposed to lose, they win. Perhaps coach Bob Snell can come over to the office some day and shed some light on the subject for me.

My all-time worst pick wasn't Thurston over rival Redford Union last Friday night (RU won 40-0). My worst ever was 1990 season opener — when for some inexplicable reason — I thought the Eagles could beat Dearborn Heights Robichaud.

Of course, Thurston lost that game 38-0 to Tyrone Wheatley and the Bulldogs, who went on to finish 12-1 and capture the state Class B title.

Even though I lost the regular season title to Mr. Wright, I'm looking for redemption in the playoffs.

Wright, by the way, finished the season with a cumulative 88-29 record, a 75 percent winning percentage after going 7-5 last week. Meanwhile, I settled for the silver medal at 85-32 overall, due to a Week No. 9 comeback at 9-3.

Another rookie, Redford-Garden City sports editor Tim Smith, who I'll give the title of Mr. Wrong, stumbled to 4-8 last week and finishes nine games off the pace at 79-38 overall.

No wonder Smith decided to pull a Ricky Williams and go into hiding for a week. (After the season he endured, he certainly needs a vacation.)

GRID PICKS

Here is a sneak peek at this week's playoff action:

FRIDAY GAMES (all at 7 p.m.)

Belleville (6-3) at Canton (9-0): After blowing through the Western Lakes Activities Association this fall like a series of Florida fall hurricanes, Canton gets to pick on somebody from another league in this Division I matchup. Maybe Belleville coach Bob LaPointe was wishing he was coaching back at Eastern Michigan. PICKS – Canton: Emons, Wright, Smith.

Liv. Churchill (6-3) at Liv. Stevenson (7-2): No, I haven't checked any M-Live chat rooms lately, but there's no truth to the rumor that Stevenson junior quarterback Chad Casey broke his hand playing pickup football Sunday afternoon. However, I have it on good authority (a reliable inside source) that Faith Hill will be singing the national anthem. As for Churchill, the Chargers are making their first playoff appearance since 1978 and have a chance to avenge a 14-3 loss to the Spartans in Week No. 3. PICKS – Stevenson: Emons, Wright, Stevenson.

Westland John Glenn (6-3) at Taylor Truman (6-3): Once the MHSAA powers-to-be figured out that Taylor Truman had lost three regular season games and not two, including a season-ending 14-3 loss to Temperance Bedford, the Division I-Region 3-District 1 draw was finally etched in stone. Truman is coached by former Eastern Michigan quarterback Ron Adams, who led the then-Hurons to a California Bowl win over San Jose State. Glenn, meanwhile, is reeling (two straight losses) and hurting as well. Jon McCahill gets the start at quarterback in place of Vinnie DeLuca. PICKS – John Glenn: Emons, Wright, Smith.

Southfield-Lathrup (6-3) at Redford Union (8-1): This Division II-Region 3-District 1 game pits Lathrup of the Oakland Activities Association against Redford Union of the Michigan Mega. Lathrup, which had to suspend several varsity players for an altercation at a JV game prior to last week's game against Southfield, decided to forfeit than get spanked by the unbeaten Blue Jays, who face Birmingham Groves on the other side of this draw. Lathrup, which started out 5-0, has an impressive win over Division I qualifier Lake Orion. RU is coming off a huge victory over rival Thurston. PICKS – RU: Smith; Lathrup: Wright, Emons.

Clarenceville (7-2) at Goodrich (8-1): The Trojans are making their seventh straight playoff appearance and come into the game on a five-game winning streak in this Division V-Region 4-District 1 matchup. Senior Bruno Shkreli has had a huge season for Clarenceville. But Goodrich's Kirk Ellsworth, who torched the Trojans last year for 177 yards on 19 carries in a 42-6 second-round playoff win over Clarenceville, is only four shy of Tim Shaw's single-season record for total points (306). PICKS – Goodrich: Emons, Wright, Smith.

SATURDAY'S GAME (1 p.m. start)

Bishop Borgess (6-3) at North Adams-Jerome (7-2): The Rams, who finished second in the South Central Athletic Association and have outscored their opponents 298-68. They have been to the playoffs a total of 10 times, including three straight appearances. North Adams' only losses this season are to unbeaten Climax Scotts (18-0) and Division VII qualifier Whitmore Lake (14-6). Borgess got into the playoffs last week for only the third time in school history with a 52-18 win over Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett as quarterback Rashad Campbell hit 15-of-19 passes for 207 yards and three TDs. PICKS – North Adams: Emons, Wright, Smith.

CANTON

"Dave" stands a hair under 6-foot-1 and weighs in at 233 pounds.

His grade-point average is honor roll-caliber and his weight-room exploits are off the charts.

Bruner is the only returning starter on this year's offensive line.

"The rest of us were all on the scout team last season," Kilijanczyk said. "We worked hard and waited for our opportunity."

Talk about making the best of an opportunity.

When I asked the group Monday afternoon who its leader was, Kilijanczyk, Pruett, D'Avanzo and Miller all pointed to the 6-1, 220-pound Bruner, one of the Chiefs' four captains.

"We're all leaders," Bruner said, brushing off his teammates' praise like he would a scrawny defensive tackle. "We're one unit."

No ink, no problem

Miller, who has the responsibility of calling out the unit's blocking scheme before every snap, said the lack of recognition he and his co-linemen receive is not important. Those who know what's really going on between the sidelines appreciate the work they do, he said.

"The lack of recognition goes with the territory of being an offensive lineman," Miller said, as his four peers nodded in agreement. "Our coaches and teammates know how hard we work. When one of our backs scores, he'll come over and thank us or give us a high-five.

"And coach Williams bought us all the pizza we could eat after one of our games. He must have appreciated what we did because we can eat a lot of pizza."

While the members of "Dave" are fun-loving and comical off the field, they're all business once the games start.

By the second quarter of most games this season, they've left their opposing defensive linemen muttering to themselves. Canton has mercied all but one opponent this season.

Creating exhaustion

"Our offense tends to wear teams down after a while, and they get frustrated," Pruett said.

"You can feel them giving in sometimes because our offense just slams the ball right at them," Kilijanczyk added. "The defensive linemen start talking to themselves sometimes."

"Yeah, you'll hear them say, 'Oh, man!'" Miller chimed in. "And when they get really worn down and tired, they say things you can't print in the newspaper."

One of the downsides of being an offensive lineman is that you can get so into finishing off your blocks and containing your opponent that you rarely get to see the end result — the running back or quarterback scoring a touchdown.

"A lot of times I can feel the running back going by me," D'Avanzo said. "Then the guy I'm blocking will turn and start running the other way, towards our end zone, chasing the back. That's when I know I've made a good block."

That scenario has unfolded on a consistent basis this season for Canton's football team, thanks largely to "Dave," the team's humble, hard-working star, who you, too, would enjoy meeting — assuming it's not a Friday night and you're not lined up against him on a football field.

backs and they fake very well, so you have to really pay attention to who has the ball.

"Defensively, they really attack you. They're still doing the same stuff they did the first time we played them four years ago. They get after you."

Baechler said the Tigers haven't changed much either since that first encounter he had with them one presidential election ago.

"Belleville has always been known for its toughness ... especially on defense," Baechler said. "They're very quick and scrappy. Offensively, they run the same system that Walled Lake Central runs, but they remind me more of (Livonia) Churchill."

If the Tigers plan on advancing to the district final, they will need a strong effort out of speedy running backs Isaac Kindell and Carlos Clark. Kindell has resembled a human lightning bolt on several occasions this season, racking up 814 yards on 111 carries and scoring 10 touchdowns. Three of his TDs came on special-teams returns.

Clark may be Belleville's second option ... football but he's equally dangerous having amassed 405 yards on 71 carries and five TDs.

"We came on strong at the end of the year," LaPointe said, referring to the Tigers' 40-6 win over River Rouge and 36-0 thumping of Romulus in the final two games of the regular season. "We're more efficient running the ball than we were earlier in the season. We have to work to try to control the ball, because if Canton gets it, they're capable of putting together long drives."

Canton's machine-like offense is paced by a stellar, all-senior offensive line and the strong running of backs Julian ... Schumacher has gained a team-high 977 yards, while Smith has picked up 787 yards on 15 fewer carries.

The Chiefs have mercied all but one of their opponents — Ann Arbor Pioneer — this season, which means the team's starters on both sides of the ball haven't played a complete game since the opener.

"It helps our depth when our reserves get to play," Baechler said, "but it hurts our starters because they haven't played all 48 minutes since the Pioneer game. We haven't been able to see how they're going to react playing all 48 minutes in a close game. It especially affects ... both ways."

Halloween can be a scary good time to bowl

Al Harrison

Have a happy bowling day on Halloween.

This fun-filled holiday has often carried over on the lanes as many bowlers enjoy the occasion by dressing up in costume or some sort of make-up while out for the evening at the local lanes.

Some houses even hold special Halloween parties for the leagues, mostly with the mixed leagues, there have been some pretty zany outfits seen on the bowling scene.

If you or someone in your league has a clever outfit or costume while bowling, try to get a photo of them and send it in, the best pics (bowling background) will be printed right here in Ten Pin Alley.

Anyone submitting a photo should include the information of names, league name, the bowling locale and any other pertinent information.

Submit photos directly to me, just phone (734) 788-0045.

■ Some of the league bowlers at Woodland Lanes in Livonia have been hot right out of the starting gate this season. These are the honor scores so far: Ford Parts League: Mike Tabor, Farmington Hills, 300; Troy Lindon, Westland, 300; Jerry Reynolds, 299; Minh Grougan of Westland, 300.

Friday Nite Out: Joe Castile, 300; West Chicago: Gary Owens, 300; Men's Trio - Dave Kielian, Livonia, 300; George Bell, Redford, 298; Sean Severence, 300; Pat Carlson of Canton, 300; Saturday Nite Specials: Brian Edwards, 300; Local 182 Retirees: Frank Bertani, Livonia, 300; Mike Yaremchuk, 300.

■ St. Jude Children's Research Hospital will host a Bowl-A-Thon at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 20, at Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington.

Mike Winkel, general manager of Bel-Aire, will serve as volunteer coordinator.

St. Juse Children's Research Hospital, located in Memphis, Tennessee was founded by the late entertainer, Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases in children.

St. Jude is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and covers all cost of care beyond that which is not covered by insurance.

Sponsor forms are now available at Bel-Aire Lanes. They need you and your friends to bowl so that children with cancer and other life-threatening diseases will have a better chance to live.

Many choice openings remain for the 2 p.m. start. Participants who bring in at least $75 in pledges will receive a sports bag, printed T-shirt and bowling towel.

Let's all show up and have a great turnout for this most worthy cause and show that Detroit area bowlers really do care.

Winkel said he wants everyone to be aware of the fact that there are usually some lanes available during the day and evenings for open bowling.

Between 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, the rate is only $2.50 per game (includes a pitcher of beer or pop for $5).

Corporate parties are welcome as well as holiday parties with the oncoming holiday season, your family and friends can get together for fun and bowling at reasonable prices.

Al Harrison is a resident of Livonia and a director of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association. He can be reached at (248) 477-1839.

CC soccer team's playoff run ends

BY PAT ALLEN
STAFF WRITER

It took Utica Eisenhower only 45 seconds to knock the glass slipper off of the collective foot of the Redford Catholic Central boys soccer team, and in the next 79 minutes, the clock struck midnight on the Shamrocks.

Catholic Central, a relative cinderella in the soccer regional playoffs, fell to Utica Eisenhower 6-0 in the first round of the regionals on Tuesday.

"No one expected us to even be there," Shamrocks coach Joe Nora said, "But we played with class and our seniors never gave up."

Utica Eisenhower's first goal came under a minute into the contest when a Catholic Central player attempted to clear the ball and mis-hit it. The Eagles collected the ball and blasted it by keeper Brian Walsh to give Utica Eisenhower the early lead.

One minute later, the Eagles were at it again. After clanking one off of the post, an attacker put the rebound in and the rout was on. The Eagles took a 4-0 lead into the half but the Shamrocks wouldn't give up.

"We went in at half and talked about picking up our intensity," Nora said, "we had played a flat first half. I feel as though we played a much better second half.

"It's hard when you know you're down three, four, five to nothing," Nora continued, "but the seniors played with a lot of heart."

Despite losing 10 seniors this upcoming summer, Nora thinks that the experience gained will help his team in next year's season.

"I think we were a bit tight tonight," Nora said. "But I think with 15 kids coming back with experience getting to regionals will really help us next year. We feel very confident with who we have coming back for us (next) year.

"Eisenhower had been there before and you could tell," Nora continued. "They played loose and played a good game."

The Shamrocks finished the season with an overall record of 9-8-6.

"We had a pretty good year and anything we do in the next two or three seasons is due to our seniors this year."

Another Lions trick could be a Halloween treat in Dallas

The Lions are playing football on Halloween down in Texas. When they face the Cowboys this Sunday, they won't need to buy costumes. They can just wear the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde get-up they've had on all season.

The Dr. Jekyll costume is the one where they did the Monster Mash on the Giants in the Meadowlands. The Mr. Hyde costume is the one they wore in getting the pumpkin seeds knocked out of them by Philadelphia and Green Bay at home.

A 3-0 record on the road? A 1-2 at home? What's wrong with this picture?

"It's just the way things have gone so far in this crazy National Football League," Lions coach Steve Mariucci said, not conceding that Ford Field has become his Little Shop of Horrors. "We have responded very well to adversity and last Sunday was another example of that."

Mark Wilson

Quarterback Joey Harrington played a near perfect football game against the Giants. He looked like Joey "Scare-ington" vs. the Packers and Joey "Dare-ington" at the Meadowlands. Funny how things change when Roy Williams and Kevin Jones return to the lineup. It's crazy and it's kooky. Mysterious and spooky.

"Obviously, when those two guys are back, it's a different ballgame for us. More weapons, more chances. More chances? The more things can go right," the Lions' third-year signal caller said.

Harrington has no plans to put on a mask and cape and go as Superman for this All Hallows Eve.

Halloween in Dallas will be most interesting. The Cowboys return home after getting pasted at Green Bay. Bill Parcells is getting impatient with 41-year-old QB Vinny Testaverde. Michigan's Drew Henson is waiting in the wings and the thought of him playing against his hometown Lions is intriguing.

Reggie Swinton was a big part of the win over New York five days ago. He caught a touchdown pass and did a backflip. For Halloween, Swinton can go as United States gold-medal gymnast Paul Hamm.

"We just can't think about why it's happening and believe it can keep on happening," said the former Cowboy who returned to Detroit just a few weeks ago. "It'll be cool going down there and playing them."

Looking forward to a trip to Dallas? Seems to be part of a new road warrior attitude the Lions have discovered. Not that long ago, any junket away from Detroit was frightening.

A win over the Cowboys Halloween afternoon sends the Lions back home with a winnable game against the Redskins the following week. They would be 6-2 at the halfway point, something that hasn't happened since 1999. Visions of playoffs would be dancing in their heads.

The Lions still have a long way to go. The two scary losses to the Eagles and Packers showed that there is still more humble pie than pumpkin pie.

"Joey had probably his best effort since I got here in that game against the Giants. Our running game was better and the defense really stepped it up. I am proud of those guys, but we have a lot of work to do," Mariucci said.

The Lions are headed back on the road for a Halloween date in the "Big D." No more haunted houses away from home. A fourth consecutive road win is just 60 football minutes away. The ghosts and goblins will be out in full force at Texas Stadium.

Bring 'em on! The challenge alone beats a bag full of candy corn anyday.

Mark Wilson is host of the Steve Mariucci Show Mondays on WKRK-FM (97.1). A 25-year veteran of TV and radio sportscasting, Wilson's been a radio talk show host at WKRK for the past five years on Sports Night with Parker and the Man. Hillsdale's Wilson finds solace in losing campaign

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

When Hillsdale's Dan Wilson steps onto Detroit's Ford Field for his final college football game, Nov. 6, against Wayne State, he'll bid adieu with mixed emotions.

"I guess I'm ready to be done, but I'm also going to miss it because I've been playing since the fourth grade," said the senior tailback from Livonia Stevenson High. "Sure, it's tough knowing that you're not going to play again."

Wilson has endured four straight losing seasons at Hillsdale, including this year's 2-7 record heading into Saturday's final home game against Mercyhurst (Pa.).

Wilson

"Football-wise it's been a humbling experience and it didn't quite pan out the way I pictured it," Wilson said. "But I met a lot of great people at the school and I enjoyed playing for my coaches. Sure, it's hard to go to practice each day, but the guys I'm playing with make it worthwhile."

Wilson ranks second only behind teammate Phil Martin for the Chargers in yards rushing with 390 in 80 attempts (4.9 per carry). Last week he rushed for 70 yards on 17 carries, including a 2-yard TD run, his second of the year, in a 15-13 non-conference loss against Tiffin (Ohio).

The speedy Wilson was recruited out of Stevenson as a slot or wingback-type, but now sits as a single back with a lead blocker in Hillsdale's pro-style formation.

"I'm a little undersized, but in our system it's best for me," said Wilson, who stands 5 feet, 10 inches and weighs only 180 pounds. "I take a good beating, but it's worked out."

During one three-week stretch, Hillsdale lost to three nationally ranked teams — No. 7 Saginaw Valley, No. 11 Northwood, and at the time, No. 1 and defending NCAA Division II national champion Grand Valley State.

"We didn't even draw (undefeated) Michigan Tech this year on the schedule," Wilson said. "Our conference is tough from top to bottom."

A marketing major, Wilson has already completed his required classes, but he will return an extra semester to finish the 124 hours he needs toward a degree. Then he plans to go into advertising or sales.

"We had high expectations this year, but things didn't come together," Wilson said. "I love to win, but it's helped me realize there are a few more important things out there than D-2 football."

WE DELIVER.

If you read The Observer every once in a while, or advertise just once in a while, or are holding a copy in your hands for the very first time, this page was written for you.

The Observer has been around for a long time.

We observe - and report - your community's growth and changes.

We report tax issues, development decisions, school news, government and the week-to-week life of your community.

We like to think we deliver valuable information to those who take participation in their community seriously. We also believe that our reporting is responsible and reliable and worth reading.

Much of what we print can't be found elsewhere.

So, if you are new to the community or a "once-in-awhile," reader we invite you to become a full-fledged subscriber.

Our subscription rates are significantly lower than what you pay at our newsstand and with winter right around the corner, you're going to love home delivery.

Call us at 1-866-887-2737 and we'll be happy to introduce you to the value of receiving your hometown newspaper twice each week.

And, if you, like us, are a member of the business community, you know all too well that it's not easy these days to hang on to your client base, attract new customers, meet a payroll and be ahead of the game at the end of the day.

Are you a "once-in-awhile" advertiser?

Have you ever thought of your advertisement as news? It is, you know. What you're selling is of as much interest to our readers as the stories we publish. That's what's so great about a hometown newspaper.

It's in everyone's interest to keep the local economy strong. We do it by delivering newspapers to our readers and readers to our advertisers, connecting buyers with sellers through the purchase of retail and classified advertising space.

We can't say enough about regularly reaching your community through The Observer. It's cost-effective, trusted and contains information people want and use.

And, we reach more homes in Plymouth and Canton than any other newspaper.

Doesn't it make sense to turn your ad dollars into customers who want to support their community?

Our advertising representatives can tell you a whole lot more. They are sincerely interested in supporting your business with exciting advertising plans and strategies. They know their stuff.

And, they're waiting to hear from you:

Canton youth qualifies for national tourney

Canton resident Christopher Merbler holds one of the hefty fish he reeled in at a state-wide tournament this past summer. The 11-year-old angler teamed up with his dad to qualify for a national event.

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Warning to all Michigan walleye: If you spot 11-year-old Canton fisherman Christopher Merbler dangling a pole over the side of a boat on your lake, make a 180-degree turn and swim in the opposite direction. He's considered wormed and dangerous.

Merbler may be just a sixth-grader, but the young angler has already established himself as a force to be reckoned with on Michigan's lakes and rivers.

The Plymouth Christian Academy student was the youngest qualifier out of over 200 fishermen at the Gander Mountain Grand National Walleye Tournament, which was held in August in Lake of the Woods, Minn.

Merbler and his father, Ron, qualified for the two-person team tournament after competing in five Michigan competitions that were held on the Saginaw Bay, Houghton Lake (twice), Lake Leelenau and on the Detroit River. The top 15 two-person teams from nine states were eligible to fish in the national event.

The standings were determined by the combined weight of the largest six fish each team hauled in.

"Chris has been fishing since he was able to hold a pole when he was 2-years-old," Ron Merbler said. "A lot of kids Chris' age don't like to fish because they don't have the patience and concentration it takes to be a good fisherman. They also don't like getting up at 5:30 a.m. Chris has a twin brother who will only fish on Sunday if we tell him we caught a lot on Saturday.

"There's some luck involved, but a lot of it is skill. Chris caught an eight-and-a-half-pound walleye in the national tournament. There are a lot of adults who haven't caught one that big. He also caught a 41-inch sturgeon and had a six-foot sturgeon on his line."

Chris Merbler is an all-around athlete who plays football for the Plymouth Steelers and recreation baseball. But if he could partcipate in just one activity, fishing would be his choice.

'A lot of kids Chris' age don't like to fish because they don't have the patience and concentration it takes to be a good fisherman. They also don't like getting up at 5:30 a.m.'

Ron Merbler
Chris' father

"I like fishing a lot," he said. "I like everything about it, especially catching the fish. In the winter, my dad and I fish for perch on Lake St. Clair."

The father-son duo reeled in 35.35 pounds of walleye and finished 44th at the Gander Mountain national tournament.

The Merblers' unique story at the national tournament caught the attention of the producers of a television program that will feature highlights of the event.

"We were one of the few boats that had a cameraman in it," Ron Merbler said. "That was pretty exciting."

The show is scheduled to air sometime in the spring of 2005 on Fox Sports Net.

By then, the Merblers will be preparing to make another run at a national title.

Walleyes beware.

It's Easy To Criticize... Offering constructive criticism to others can be beneficial, but only if the other person is receptive to our comments. In teaching situations or during on-the-job training, constructive criticism is usually necessary to instruct and help a person develop a trade or vocation. However, correcting someone, even in a kind or skillful manner, can be very challenging, since we are never sure how the individual may react. Many friendships and families have been destroyed because someone has been overly critical of another person's words or actions. Knowing when we should offer our comments can also be difficult, and we should be fairly certain that our comments are truthful and necessary. It often seems so easy to criticize others because we mistakenly believe that we are without fault or are such experts on most everything. The Bible tells us that we look at the speck in our brother's eye, but we pay no attention to the log in our own (Luke 6:41). Faultfinding and being overly critical of others, especially behind their backs, are wrong and can become habit-forming. However, kind words are good for the soul and help to build a person up.

The way of a fool is right in his own eyes, but a wise man listens to advice. R.S.V. Proverbs 12:15

If you want to submit an item for the religion calendar, fax it to (734) 591-7279 or write: Religion Calendar, Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI 48150. The deadline for an announcement to appear in the Thursday edition is noon Monday.

May You Find Comfort in Family & Friends

BENNIE MC QUEEN

Bennie! Remembering you is easy,
I do it every day.
Missing you is a heartache that never goes away.
I think of you in silence,
I after speak your name.
All I have are memories and your picture in a frame.
Your resting place I visit and place flowers there with care.
And no one knows the heartache,
when I turn to leave you there.
Always loved and eternally missed.
Your wife, Polly.

Fall champions

The WaCo Wolves finished 5-0 to win the 22-team Fall Mountain Classic baseball tournament in Knoxville, Tenn. Thanks to the offense of Chris Chaney (Ann Arbor Huron), Taylor Younce (Livonia Churchill) and Steve Dolan, the Wolves defeated the McDuffey (Pa.) Highlanders in the final game, 11-0, avenging a 14-1 setback in last year's tournament on a two-hitter by Anthony Bass. The Wolves also received strong defense from Tyler Locklear (Plymouth), Younce and Arbour in the championship game. In pool play, the Wolves beat the Lynora (Pa.) Lancers, 3-2, as Chaney tossed a two-hitter and clubbed a mammoth home run. Younce and Arbour had two hits apiece. In the second game, Danny Harder (Brighton) hit a 2-run homer and added an RBI triple in a 3-1 win over the Pro Concept Baseball of host Knoxville. Pitcher John Ballarin (Redford Catholic Central) got the victory with Andrew Pinkelaman earning the save. In the third round, the Wolves jumped out to a 5-0 lead en route to a victory over Sevier County (Tenn.) as both Chaney and Bass each hit homers. Locklear and Billy Hardin (Redford CC) each added two hits, while pitcher Tyler Loehr (Brighton) pitched a 1-hitter and struck out 11. Arbour, Hardin and Loehr each had two hits in a 19-3 semifinal win over the Georgia Bobcats. Pitchers Steve Hajdin (Strongsville, Ohio) and Bass teamed up for the victory.

Whalers fall out of 1st place

The Plymouth Whalers dropped to second place in the Ontario Hockey League's Western Division thanks to a 4-1 setback to the Ottawa '67's Sunday afternoon at Compuware Arena.

Plymouth is now 5-6-1-1 and one point behind first-place Windsor, which takes a 5-5-2-1 record into this weekend's contests. Julian Talbot carried the hot stick for the '67's, scoring two goals — the team's first and final tallies. Bryan Bickell and Jakub Petruzalek also put the puck in the net for Ottawa. Nick Van Herpt, Brad Bonello, Peter Tsimikalis, Kyle Wharton, Mark Mancari, Derek Joslin and Lukas Kaspar had assists for the winners.

The Whalers' lone goal was scored by John Mitchell, who was assisted by Mike Knight at 17:53 of the second period.

Ottawa goalie Danny Battochio earned the victory in net, stopping 19 Plymouth shots.

Ryan Nie suffered the defeat despite turning away 29 Ottawa shots. The 67's led 1-0 after the first period and 2-1 with 20 minutes left to play.

United we stand

Livonia United, an under-14 girls team, captured the 2005 Michigan State Youth Soccer Association Cup tournament with a 1-0 overtime win over USL, Oct. 17, at Founders Field in Farmington. Victoria Speer (Livonia) scored the game-winning goal. United also defeated two-time defending state cup champion Michigan Hawks, 2-0, in the semifinals. United's Bailey Brandon (Livonia) earned the Most Valuable Player award, while Stephanie Turner (Livonia) received the MVP goalie award. United did not allow a goal in tournament play. Currently ranked No. 13 in the nationalsoccerrankings.com, United now advances to play in the U.S. Youth Soccer Region Tourney next June in South Dakota. Focus on Wine

Ray & Eleanor Heald

Some like 'em big and bold

From the heart of Sonoma Valley in California's Sonoma County, St. Francis Winery & Vineyards produces big, bold wines delivering on flavor at modest prices.

Since he came onboard 21 years ago, Tom Mackey, director of winemaking, has believed in "maximum extraction and minimal intervention."

Some have criticized California wines as too oaky. They can be when oak presence puts the wine out of balance. Yet Mackey considers oak an important element in wine. He asks, "Why would I bother using a $600 container and all of the energy that goes into oak aging if I didn't want something out of it?

"There are other ways to get a wine to age and clarify, other than having it sit in a barrel for two years. I want the flavors of oak to give at least a noticeable background to the wine. Personally, I like the flavor of oak as long as it's not dominant or overbearing. I prefer its presence to its absence."

FLASH BACK

In 1971, Joe Martin, a San Francisco businessman, and his wife Emma purchased the 100-acre Behler Ranch Vineyard in Kenwood, Calif. After several years of growing and selling grapes to local wineries, the decision was made in 1979 to build a winery and name it after St. Francis of Assisi, in recognition of the saint's role as a protector of the natural world and as acknowledgement of the Franciscan order, believed to have been the first to bring European grape growing to the new world.

Popularity of St. Francis wines maxed out the original winery. A new state-of-the-art facility was completed in time for the 1999 harvest. Over the past 25 years, St. Francis has built an extensive portfolio of vineyards that allows Mackey to select fruit and make big and bold style wines consistently.

GENTLE LEADS TO BOLD

Big and bold wines require a gentle winemaking approach which begins in the vineyard by hand harvesting grapes. "To me," Mackey said, "big means a complex and layered wine that is an expression of ideal vineyard conditions and thoughtful winemaking. The results are wines of extraordinary flavor, richness and intensity. They stand out. In that sense, they are bold."

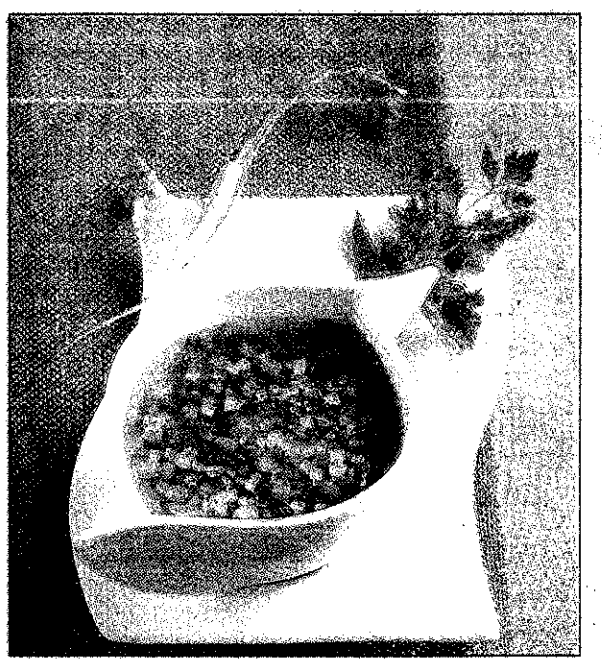

Although we like every wine St. Francis makes, the following really get us excited:

■ 2002 St. Francis Sonoma County Chardonnay $15. There are a lot of chardonnays on the market, but for hints of oak over citrus pear, apple and tropical fruits, none delivers as well at this price.

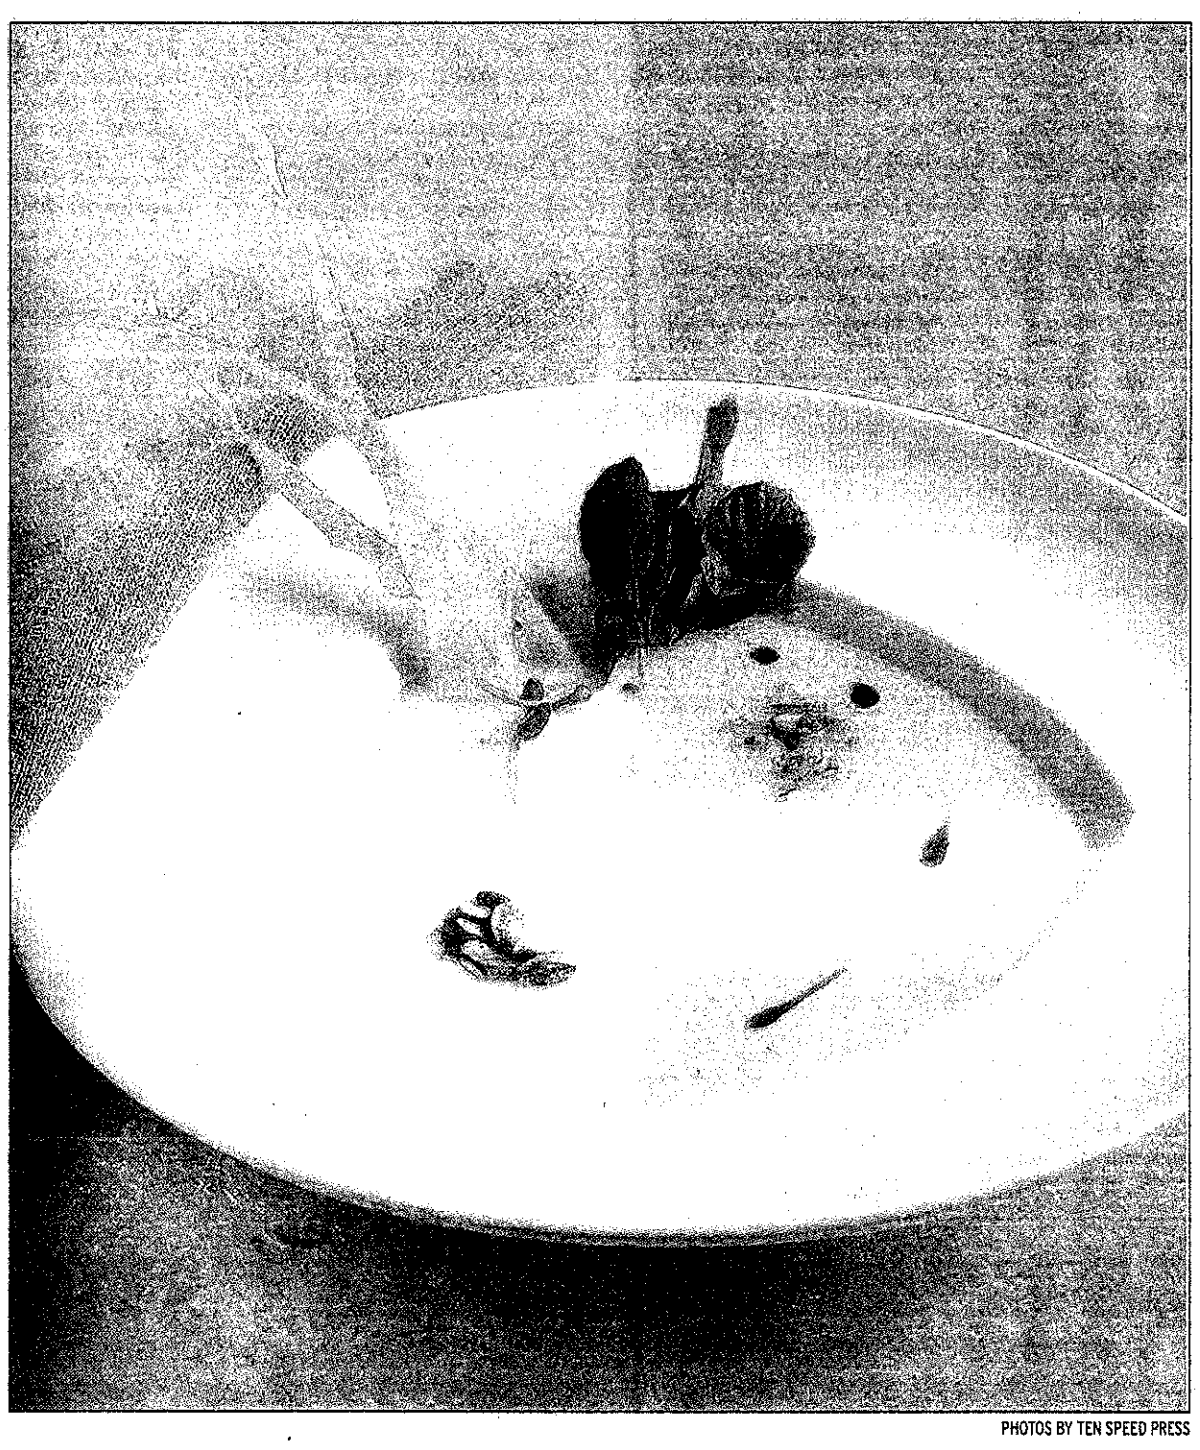

■ 2000 St. Francis Sonoma County Merlot $20. "Merlot," Mackey says, "is a victim of its own success. Today, it's planted in many places where it should not be grown. The bar for merlot has been raised and we believe we vault well with this wine." Call it delightful and delicious.

Simmer and stir up flavors

With brisk autumn winds now in full force, home cooks focus on foods that bring warmth to the table and the stomach, such as soup.

George Marrone, owner of Tartare in San Francisco, highlighted his love and appreciation of soup with John Harrisson in Simply Elegant Soup, 2004, Ten Speed Press, Berkeley, Calif.

Why soup? It's a rare diner who can't recall a favorite soup or remember favorite memories, writes Marrone.

"Many individuals are conditioned to think of soup as mundane, but soup can be much more complex than first meets the eye," Marrone writes. "I have always enjoyed taking the opportunity, as a professional chef, to elevate the status of soup on my menus, so that they are just as interesting and appealing as the other first-course offerings — and maybe even more so."

Marrone takes his mother's Argentinian background and father's Italian one and blends their passion for food into the book. Soup was a staple in their home every season of the year, as he grew up on minestrone, pasta e fagoli (a pasta and bean soup), clam chowder and lentil soup, among others.

"Soups are a wonderfully versatile and adaptable course," he writes. "They can be comforting and satisfying, but they can also be elegant and sophisticated." Part of the enjoyment, he says, is to "elevate sometimes humble and mundane ingredients to special level, allowing them center stage, right in the spotlight."

Nothing pleases him more, he adds, than taking broccoli, cauliflower or squash and turning into a dish that really catches his guests' attention and get their palates to take notice.

Of course, soupmaking requires excellent homemade stock, not the canned kind. And good food takes time.

But these recipes run the gamut from simple (Betty's Lentil Soup) to the more complex (Jean-Louis'

Holiday recipes

Do you wonder what vegetarians eat during the holidays as you sink your teeth into the roast turkey? Now you can find out and savor some culinary treats at the Vegetarian Holiday Tasting Extravaganza Sunday, Nov. 7 at the Seventh-day Adventist School Gym, 15585 Haggerty Road, just north of 5 Mile in Plymouth.

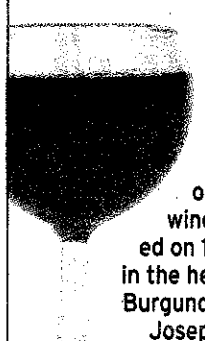

Samplings include main dish creations, but there will be many hors d'oeuvres, salads, vegetable creations and desserts. Each cook will be serving their oen dish so you will be able to get information about the recipes on the spot. A registered dietitian, several physicians and a certified fitness trainer will be among the servers to answer nutritional questions. A cookbook with recipes from the last 15 years will be available for $20 and a booklet with recipes from this year and last year's events for $6.

There will be three seatings at this event at 11 a.m., 12:45 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $12 per person. Children 6-12 years are $4. Tickets are available only in advance and are sold on a first-come, first-served basis. The event is a sellout each year. Call (734) 495-0472 for tickets.

Winemaker Dinner

A Winemaker Dinner at Tribute Restaurant in Farmington Hills will kick off the 23rd International Detroit Wine Auction.

Tribute's Winemaker Dinner, hosted by Gary and Kay Cowger, will feature Laurent Drouhin of the famed Maison Joseph Drouhin in France on Friday, Nov. 5. A family-owned winery located on 160 acres in the heart of Burgundy, Maison Joseph Drouhin has built a reputation for wines that primarily reflect their individual terroir and vintage. The Drouhin firm constantly strives for wines of breed, finesse and elegance.

Tribute's Dinner, designed for Wine Auction benefactors and event sponsors, will blend fine wines with the award-winning cuisine of executive chef Takashi Yagihashi. A silent auction and live auction between courses and following the dinner will benefit the scholarship program for the College for Creative Studies.

The weekend of events will continue the following night, Saturday, Nov. 6, with the Detroit International Wine Auction at the Detroit Renaissance Center.

For ticket information, call the College for Creative Studies at (313) 664-7464. Tribute Restaurant is located at 34125 West Twelve Mile Road in Farmington Hills.

SOUP RECIPES

Author George Morrone's mother instilled in him a love of cooking, and this soup of hers brings back memories for him of fall and winter meals, and of growing up in New Jersey. She would return from work at 6 p.m. and start preparing the family meal from scratch. The family was used to eating late.

Since this coup is not pureed, take care to finely and neatly dice the vegetables as this will add to the visual presentation. You can experiment by making this soup with red or brown lentils.

Betty's Lentil Soup

1-¼ cups green lentils
2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 yellow onion, finely diced
1 large clove garlic, minced
2 ribs celery, peeled and finely diced
3 carrots, peeled
3 sprigs thyme, plus 2 sprigs for garnish
4 sprigs flat-leaf parsley
1 dried bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste
salt
4 cups chicken stock or vegetable stock

Cover the lentils with lukewarm water in a mixing bowl and soak for 20 minutes.

Heat the olive oil in a large saucepan over medium heat and add the onion, garlic, and celery. Sweat the vegetables for about eight minutes, until translucent, making sure they do not brown. Finely dice half of the carrots and grate the remaining half; add both to the pan along with the thyme, parsley, the bay leaf, cayenne pepper, and salt.

Drain and rinse the lentils and add them to the pan. Add the stock, bring to a simmer, and skim off any foam or impurities that rise to the surface. Cover the pan, turn down the heat to low, and cook for 45 to 60 minutes, until the lentils are tender. Remove the thyme, parsley, and bay leaf and adjust the seasonings.

Finely mince the remaining two thyme sprigs. To serve, ladle the soup into warm shallow soup bowls and sprinkle with the thyme. Serves four.

Recipe courtesy of Simply Elegant Soup by George Morrone.

Samphire, also known as salicornia, glasswort, or seabean, grows on both the East and West Coasts. Hits crisp texture and salth flavor make it a great addition to this soup, as well as to salads. By all means use another fresh seaweed with good texture instead. Samphire can be found at gourmet or specialty food stores. For an optional presentation, garnish the soup with lightly sautéed bay scallops.

Sea of Cortez Scallop Bisque

3 tablespoons grapeseed oil
1 teaspoon minced garlic
½ cup minced white onion
12 ounces bay scallops (about 60 scallops)
½ cup dry vermouth
2 cups heavy cream
1 cup créme fraiche
salt and cayenne pepper

4 fresh pink scallops, in the shell, for garnish (optional)
¼ cup fresh samphire, cut into 2-inch lengths, for garnish
4 peeled lemon segments, for garnish freshly cracked pink pepper, for garnish

Heat two tablespoons of the oil in a saucepan set over medium heat. Add the garlic and onion and sweat until soft, about eight minutes. Reserving 20 of the scallops (about one-third of the total) for the garnish, add the remaining two-thirds of the scallops to the pan and sauté for three or four minutes, taking care not to let the mixture caramelize. Add the vermouth and bring to a boil. Add the cream and créme fraiche, return to a boil, and season lightly with salt and cayenne pepper. Transfer to a blender, in batches if necessary, and puree until smooth. Strain through a fine-mesh strainer into a clean saucepan and keep warm.

Heat the remaining one tablespoon oil in a large sauté pan set over medium heat. When the oil is hot and almost smoking, carefully add the 20 remaining bay scallops and sauté for five to six minutes, until well caramelized. Remove the scallops with a slotted spoon and transfer them to a small mixing bowl. Add the pink scallops to the pan, cover, and sauté for four to five minutes, shaking the pan frequently, just until they open. Set aside on a plate.

Bring a small saucepan or water to a boil and add the samphire. Blanch for 30 seconds, drain, and add to the bowl containing the 20 cooked scallops. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Divide the mixture among four warm wide soup bowls, arranging it in the center, and ladle the warm soup around. Garnish each serving by placing a cooked pink scallop and a lemon segment on top of the cooked scallops in the center of each bowl and sprinkling with freshly cracked pepper. Serves four.

This soup captures the essence of the fall season, when Halloween is upon us and pumpkins are everywhere. It is the time of year in the kitchen when root vegetables really come into their own, with their hearty flavors and textures. In this recipe, the velvety, silky quality of the pumpkin works particularly well with the subtle spiciness of the parsnips. Sugar pumpkins are usually smaller than regular pumpkins, with sweeter and more tender pulp.

You can use acorn or butternut squash instead of pumpkin, in which case the color and flavors will be a little different, but equally satisfying.

Pumpkin seed oil is available at specialty food stores (and Williams-Sonoma, for example), or you can substitute hazelnut oil.

Cream of Parsnip and Pumpkin Soups With Parsnip Chips

Pumpkin Soup:
1 sugar pumpkin (about 5 pounds)
1 tablespoon grapeseed oil
salt and cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 large white onion, diced
2 small cloves garlic, minced
5 cups chicken stock
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper, more as needed
1 cup heavy cream
salt

Parsnip Soup:
2-½ tablespoons grapeseed oil
1 leek (about 8 ounces), white part only, washed and thinly sliced
½ yellow onion (about 4 ounces), thinly sliced
½ jalapeño, seeded and thinly sliced
4 parsnips (about 1 pound), peeled and sliced
10 ounces celery root (about ½ celery root), peeled and diced
4 cups chicken stock or vegetable stock
½ cup heavy cream
zest of ½ lemon, minced
salt and cayenne pepper

Parsnip Chips:
2 cups canola or safflower oil, for frying
1 large parsnip (about 6 ounces), peeled and thinly sliced lengthwise
salt and cayenne pepper

Garnish:
2 tablespoons pumpkin seed oil pumpkin seeds reserved from pumpkin
4 sprigs watercress

Preheat the oven to 325º F. Cut the pumpkin in half vertically and scoop out the seeds and fibers; clean and reserve the seeds. Place the pumpkin in a roasting pan, drizzle the flesh with the grapeseed oil, and season with salt and cayenne pepper. Turn the pumpkin flesh-side down and roast for 45 to 60 minutes, until tender. Meanwhile, prepare the pumpkin seeds and parsnip soup.

Prepare the reserved pumpkin seeds by tossing them in a bowl with the one tablespoon extra virgin olive oil. Season with salt and cayenne pepper and evenly spread out the seeds on a cookie sheet. Roast, stirring occasionally, until crispy and golden brown, 10 to 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and let cool.

To prepare the pumpkin soup, melt the butter in a large saucepan set over medium heat. Add the onion and garlic and sweat for 8 to 10 minutes, until soft and translucent, do not let the mixture brown. Scoop out the flesh from the roasted pumpkin and add to the saucepan. Add four cups of the stock and the cayenne pepper, increase the heat to medium-high, and bring to a boil. Add the cream and return to a boil. Immediately remove the pan from the heat, transfer the mixture to a blender or food processor in batches, and puree until smooth. Pass the mixture through a medium-fine strainer into a clean saucepan. Adjust the consistency of the soup with the remaining one cup stock, as needed. Adjust the seasonings with salt and cayenne pepper and keep warm. Serves four.

Chestnut-Foie Gras Soup). The recipes probably require an intermediate cooking skill, but Morrone keeps the ingredient lists simple and discusses substitutes (acorn or butternut squash instead of a sugar pumpkin in the cream of pumpkin soup).

The soups cover all four seasons, too. Cream of parsnip and cream of pumpkin soups with parsnip chips will brighten that cloudy fall day. Winters [illegible] cauliflower and roquefort soup, and spring will be greeted with green asparagus soup. Chilled avocado soup with Hawaiian Plantation Shrimp surely will hit the spot on a summer afternoon.

The book also gives other versatile tips that you can incorporate into other dishes. [illegible] eggplant [illegible] pickled eggplant garnish along with the roasted eggplant in the soup. You can create the pickled eggplant for other dishes, such as green salads, as a spread or to top bruschetta.

Morrone encourages readers to enjoy the recipes and that they should not be intimidated by them. "Be all means, experiment with ingredients and simplify where necessary, as suggested in the recipe sidebar notes," Morrone said. "The beauty of soups is that they are versatile – they can be rustic or elegant and made for large or small gatherings.

"Most of all, soup is a comforting food, with satisfying flavors and textures."

Refried beans, sweet potatoes make quick, gourmet vegetarian dishes

BY J.M. HIRSCH
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) – When I recently dropped off Leo at The Culinary Institute of America, it was with a mixture of pride and profound concern.

Unlike so many of his teenage peers, Leo knew early what he wanted in life and worked hard to get it. He didn't fritter away his time on nonsense television; he was planted firmly in front of the Food Network learning how to make fritters.

And while most boys his age lust over tabloid-style models, his bedside reading tends to be populated more by the Emerils and Ming Tsais of the world.

Leo and I were paired up as part of a mentoring program several years ago. Since then I have watched his culinary interests grow, and helped to nudge him along this path with more than a dash of pride. And I confess I planted the idea of The Culinary Institute.

So why the concern? When that thick acceptance envelope arrived last spring I realized I knew little about what Leo actually would learn when he headed off to what is one of the world's top culinary schools.

So I hit the stacks and started my research. And I wasn't sure I liked what I found.

When Leo graduates I want him to understand food as more than an object to be crafted. I want him to know it as a source of passion and emotion, as something which goes to the heart of culture and family.

When he picks up an heirloom tomato at the farmers' market, I want him to appreciate the care the grower put into it, to sense the generations of men and women who saved their seeds so he could pick that fruit.

My concern was attitude and approach. Would the school turn him into one of those pretentious [illegible]

[illegible]

Or would he learn that the joy of food is the visceral connection it provides between people and their environment? Would he know that sometimes the most meaningful, most impressive dishes are those cooked by people who aren't cooks?

I was afraid not. I flipped through The Professional Chef (Wiley, 2002, $65), a massive and somewhat cold textbook-cum-cookbook put together by The Culinary Institute.

Sure, there's plenty of real food. The chowders and scalloped potatoes and hush puppies get their due. But those items are paired with a disconcerting number of dishes the average person can't pronounce, never mind desire.

And what about vegetarian sensibilities? When Leo and I toured the school last winter, the perky student showing us around acted as though meatless meals were part of some exotic religion to be observed but not tried.

Despite my concerns, I held my peace and dropped him off, fearing my bias for rustic goodness wasn't in Leo's best interest.

Then The Culinary Institute's latest book, Gourmet Meals in Minutes (Lebhar-Friedman, 2004, $40), landed on my desk. I fell in love. The book is beautiful, approachable and, most important, it is full of real food. So there are signs of another side to these food pros after all.

There are sautéed pork medallions with apple chutney, Reuben sandwiches, grilled chicken Caesar salads, even an impressive vegetarian chapter (not to mention oodles of other veg-friendly items throughout).

The recipes generally are easy and the methods intuitive, mostly sparing home cooks the sort of elaborate or complicated techniques and equipment I feared Leo would come to rely on.

One complaint: Most of the recipes serve eight, an unusual number for a book clearly aimed at the home cook.

For testing, I opted for some of the book's truly rustic dishes, including refried beans.

They were terrific and, as the book's title suggests, quick and simple to make. They went wonderfully with tortilla chips and fresh salsa, and would be great in burritos.

Also appealing are the vegetable burgers, an unusual combination of matzo meal and a variety of finely grated vegetables, a four-cheese pasta dish, and a capellini pasta with grilled vegetables and Gorgonzola cheese.

And no foie gras to be found.

Now I can rest easy knowing that while Leo will and should learn four-star finesse, he'll be among cooks with an understanding of real food for real people.

Vegetarian Refried Beans

(Preparation: 30 minutes)
1 tablespoon corn oil
2 cups diced onion
2 tablespoons minced garlic
1 cup diced tomatoes
½ tablespoon salt, or to taste
Four 15-½-ounce cans pinto beans, rinsed and drained
1 teaspoon cumin seeds, toasted and cracked (ground cumin can be substituted)
1 teaspoon chili powder
Hot pepper sauce, to taste

Heat the oil in a large skillet.

Add the onions and garlic and sauté over a medium flame until the onions are translucent, about 5 minutes.

Add the tomatoes, salt and beans. Mash the beans using a potato masher until only some of the beans remain whole.

Cook over a low flame, stirring constantly, until the flavors are well developed, about 10 minutes.

Season with cumin, chili powder and hot pepper sauce.

Makes 8 servings.

(Recipe from The Culinary Institute of America's Gourmet Meals in Minutes.)

Sweet Potato Cakes

(Preparation: 40 minutes)
3 russet potatoes, peeled and quartered
2 sweet potatoes, peeled and quartered
⅔ cup bread crumbs
⅓ cup milk
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon chopped sage
½ teaspoon salt, or to taste
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or to taste

Preheat the oven to 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

Combine the russet and sweet potatoes in a large saucepan and add enough water to cover.

Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to simmer, covered, until the sweet potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes.

Using tongs, transfer the sweet potatoes to a baking sheet while allowing the russet potatoes to cook an additional 5 to 10 minutes, or until tender.

Drain the russet potatoes and place on the baking sheet.

Place the potatoes in the oven to steam-dry, about 5 minutes.

Remove the potatoes from the oven and increase the temperature to 475 degrees Fahrenheit.

Pass the hot potatoes through a food mill or ricer set over a large bowl.

Let stand until slightly cooled.

Form the mixture into 16 small cakes, about ½-inch thick.

Spray a baking sheet with cooking spray and arrange the cakes on it.

Bake the cakes until golden on both sides, turning as necessary, about 12 minutes.

Tangy skirt steak ready in 30 minutes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The concept of "quick cooking" may bring a dismal premonition of some rushed procedure, a fast, flavorless concoction flung together with no thought.

But it doesn't have to be so. Take a deep breath, grab a smart recipe, and count on a happier outcome.

For example: This sautéed skirt steak with braised scallions, brightened with the tang of lime juice, can be ready for the table in about 30 minutes, without skimping one bit on taste.

The recipe by Shelley Wiseman is from Gourmet magazine's October issue, in the Gourmet Every Day feature.

Sautéed Skirt Steak With Braised Scallions

(Active time 25 minutes, start to finish 30 minutes)

- 1-½ pounds skirt steak, cut into 4 pieces
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- ¾ cup water
- 1 pound scallions (3 or 4 bunches), trimmed to 7 inches long
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime juice, or to taste
- Garnish: Lime wedges

Pat steaks dry and sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Heat oil and 1 tablespoon butter in a 12-inch heavy skillet over moderately high heat until foam subsides, then cook steaks, turning over once, 5 to 7 minutes total for medium-rare. Transfer steaks to a plate and keep warm in oven.

Discard fat from skillet, then add water and bring to a boil, scraping up brown bits from bottom of skillet.

Add scallions and remaining tablespoon butter, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper, and cook, tightly covered, over moderate heat until scallions are tender, 5 to 7 minutes.

Transfer scallions with tongs to a platter and put steaks on top.

Steamed Broccoli With Olive Oil and Parmesan

(Active time 10 minutes, start to finish 10 minutes)

- 1-½ pounds broccoli (1 large bunch), tough stems discarded
- 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1-½ ounces finely grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese (3/4 cup)

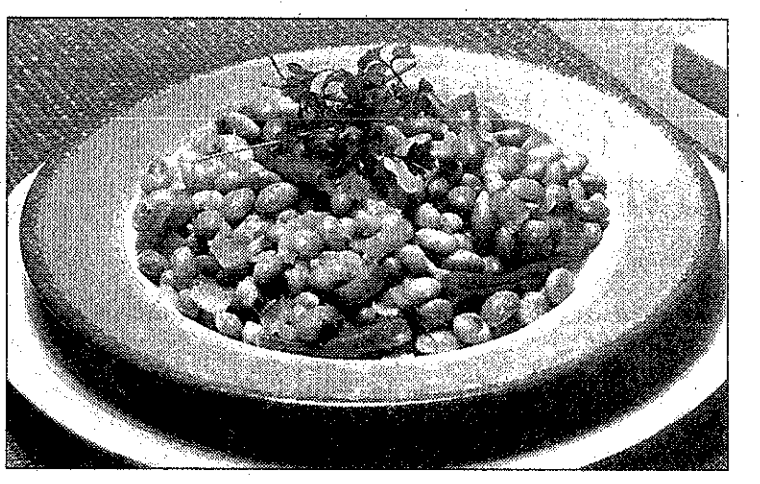

Cut broccoli into 1-½- to 2-inch-wide florets. Peel stems and cut lengthwise into ⅓-inch-wide sticks.

Steam broccoli in a steamer rack set over boiling water, covered, until tender, 5 to 6 minutes.

Transfer to a bowl and toss with oil, cheese, and salt and pepper to taste.

Makes 4 servings.

Green soybean highlights multi-bean medley

You can eat well and be trendy too.

Edamame (pronounced "eh-dah-MAH-me") has become a fashionable vegetable in recent years. Large peas nestled in a pod about the size of a sugar snap pea, the green soybean is sweet, crisp and packed with all the nutrients that put soy in the health headlines.

Although the effects of eating soy are controversial, soy has been linked in some studies to a lower incidence of breast cancer. Studies show that Asian women have very low rates of breast cancer compared to women in the west. (The Chinese have eaten soybeans since the 3rd century A.D., the Japanese by the tenth.) However, when Asian women migrate to western countries and start eating typical western diets, their breast cancer rates begin to rise.

Researchers are still investigating if soy consumption can really lower cancer risk and if so, how much is beneficial. Some scientists have reported benefits with as little as 11 grams of soy protein a day.

The Chinese call soybeans mao dao, or "hair bean," because of their fuzzy pods. The Japanese named them edamame (meaning branch beans), the name they are usually known by here in the United States.

Until recently, edamame were available only in Asian food stores. Now many supermarkets sell them frozen in bags, either shelled or in the pod.

Multi-Bean Medley

- 8 ounces green beans, trimmed and halved crosswise
- 1 (1 pound) bag frozen edamame
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 cup onion, finely chopped
- 3 garlic cloves, finely minced
- 1 bay leaf
- Fresh rosemary sprigs, to taste
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- 1 can small white beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 carrot, diced
- 1 celery rib, diced
- 1 cup fat-free, reduced-sodium chicken broth
- 3 tablespoons flat-leaf parsley, finely chopped taste

Bring a pot of salted water to a boil. Add green beans and cook at a simmer until crisp-tender, about 4 minutes. Drain and transfer beans to a bowl of ice water. When beans are cool, drain well.

Return pot of water to a boil and add edamame.

Cook 4 minutes, drain and rinse under cold water. If edamame are in pods, shell them. (To speed preparation time, use two pots to cook green beans and edamame at the same time.)

In a 4-quart saucepan, heat olive oil. Add onion, garlic, bay leaf and rosemary. Cook over low heat, stirring, until onion is soft, 3 to 4 minutes. Add white beans, carrots, celery and stock. Bring to a simmer and cook, covered, about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add green beans and edamame and simmer, uncovered, until just heated through. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in parsley. Discard bay leaf and rosemary sprigs and serve.

Makes 6 servings.

WINE

Vines Zinfandel $20. "When St. Francis uses the term old vines, we mean vines at least 50 and often up to 100 years old," Mackey said. "We've found a series of small vineyards in Sonoma County that date back to the turn of the last century.

"Because of their great age, these parcels yield less than four tons per acre of exceptionally concentrated fruit. Petite sirah and alicante bouschet vines planted among the zinfandel add texture and color to the 'field blend.' Once fermented in stainless steel tanks, aging is in new American oak barrels for 12 to 15 months."

This is a deliciously layered, plump zin with complex black cherry, raspberry and black pepper flavors bursting on the palate.

■ 1999 Nuns Canyon Reserve Merlot $32. This is a wine of simultaneous power and finesse. Need we say more?

"I haven't made my best wine yet," the 54-year-old Mackey said. "When I do, I'll retire." Folks, we've got a lot of good drinking ahead. Mackey will never be satisfied that he can't best his best!

Native American foods served at festival

A Native American selection of buffalo burgers, Indian tacos, fry bread and corn soup will be available at the 12th Annual Autumn Harvest Indian Festival Nov. 13 and 14 at the Southfield Pavilion.

Families are invited to witness the 19th century Native American customs, such as the women's fancy dance, jingle dress dance and men's traditional dance at the festival. Dancers will make deft and symbolic movements in colorful, towering headdresses, delicate beadwork and feathers and expressive face paint.

More than 50 Native Americans, representing the people of the Three Fires (Ottawa, Ojibway and Potawatomi) will perform. Displays, demonstrations and a natural beverage bar by Whole Foods Market will be added to this year's festival.

Lifestyle exhibits (including a full size teepee and wigwam), demonstrations, kids' crafts, storytelling and traders selling Native American arts and crafts from across the Midwest and the East Coast will round out the cultural celebration. Visiting Scouts can also receive credit for the Native American and Diversity badges.

Discount vouchers for a family of four are $20 and available at metro Detroit Art Van locations and Whole Foods Markets while supplies last. Tickets at the door are $7.50 per person. Parking is free. The Southfield Pavilion is located within the Southfield Civic Center at 26000 Evergreen Road, 1/2 Mile south of 11 Mile Road.

Autumn Harvest Indian Festival is sponsored by MESP, Whole Foods Market, DaimlerChrysler, Comerica, HAP, Lite Rock 93.9, Detroit Public Television and Southfield Parks & Recreation.

Pear smoothie, pumpkin muffins produce breakfast for pampering

BY J.M. HIRSCH
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) – Few things can make a man who loves to cook feel more utterly useless than a newborn.

Admittedly, I'd gotten a bit ahead of myself by the time my wife and I brought our son home from the hospital recently. My head already was full of tastes and textures I wanted him to experience as soon a possible.

Would he pucker at Parmesan dunked in balsamic? Would he savor the crisp tartness of Cortland apples picked from the orchard down the street? And what about tomatoes, lightly seasoned with olive oil, sea salt and freshly cracked black pepper?

More important, would my wife let me near the child once she learned what I was thinking?

It probably is for the best that her more informed opinion that solid foods should wait prevailed. Nonetheless, this leaves me rooting about, searching for some way to feel useful and satisfy his needs (beyond diaper drudgery).

When Parker cries for his 3 a.m. feeding, there is little I can do to comfort him, a frustrating position for the hands-on cook. I admit 36 hours of labor entitles my wife to her monopoly on the joy of feeding our little bundle, but it still leaves me feeling lame.

Truth is, I wasn't sure I would even face this problem. Plenty of people warned that once the little guy came along, I'd be so tired and so overwhelmed I would lose all interest in cooking.

Overwhelmed and tired? Certainly. But not at the expense of my need to cook. Blame the nesting instinct, and a dad's desire to help his son along on his culinary explorations. Autumn's abundance of great food doesn't hurt, either.

The obvious answer, of course, is cooking for his mom, who is entitled to some pampering – and, after nearly a week of hospital food, to something more than Jell-O.

Breakfast seemed the best bet for giving her a treat. Dinner is predictable and too often interrupted by crying. Plus, a Sunday morning spread seemed the perfect way to celebrate our little one's one-week anniversary at home.

For inspiration I turned to Mollie Katzen's Sunlight Cafe (Hyperion, 2002, $29.95), which is dedicated to all things breakfast. Many of her recipes are simple and speedy – essential ingredients for a peaceful breakfast with a baby in the background.

I decided to start off with a vanilla-pear smoothie that calls for ripe pears, apple juice and yogurt. The pear tree in our back yard is laden and the little one has kept us from preserving the fruit as we had hoped. Now at least my wife will get a taste.

To continue the seasonal fruit theme, I also opted for Katzen's caramelized fruit, a deliciously different take on fruit salad. Any combination of fruit works, but I found fresh pineapple best. If you use more delicate fruits such as apples, reduce the cooking time, else you will end up with applesauce.

Finally, a batch of pumpkin muffins warm from the oven. Not only did I like the seasonal element of this item, I also figured muffins are easy to eat with one hand, just in case Parker had grown pouty by this point.

Vanilla-Pear Smoothie

(Preparation: 5 minutes)

2 medium ripe pears, peeled and sliced (about 2 cups)
1 to 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup vanilla yogurt
Pear nectar or apple juice
Maple syrup

Combine the pears, lemon juice, vanilla and yogurt in a blender and puree until smooth. Use the apple juice or pear nectar to thin the smoothie to the desired consistency. Sweeten to taste with maple syrup.

Makes 1 to 2 servings.

(Recipe from Mollie Katzen's Sunlight Cafe.)

Caramelized Fruit

(Preparation: 20 minutes)

½ to ¾ pound fresh fruit (apples, pears, apricots and pineapple are nice)
1 to 2 teaspoons unsalted butter
1 tablespoon vinegar (raspberry, cider or balsamic)
¾ to 1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup orange juice
Lemon or lime wedges

Leaving the peels on, cut the fruit into thick slices.

Heat a medium skillet over a medium flame for 1 minute. Add the butter and swirl to coat the pan.

Reduce heat to medium-low. Place the fruit skin-side down in the melted butter and cook for about 5 minutes, or until it softens slightly. Turn the fruit with a spatula and gently press down. Drizzle with vinegar and cook another 3 minutes.

Sprinkle the fruit with sugar and cook until the sugar melts.

If desired, place the pan under a preheated broiler for 3 to 5 minutes, or until the sugar turns golden. Be sure to check the fruit every minute after the first 3 minutes to prevent burning.

Remove the pan from the heat and transfer the fruit to a plate with a rim. Pour the orange juice in the pan and stir to deglaze any sugar. Spoon this syrup over the fruit. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

(Recipe from Mollie Katzen's Sunlight Cafe.)

Pumpkin Muffins

(Preparation: 15 minutes active, 25 minutes baking)

Nonstick spray
2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1-½ teaspoons baking powder
1-½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon allspice
3 to 4 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon chopped orange zest
½ cup (packed) dark brown sugar
1 cup mashed pumpkin
1 large egg
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) unsalted butter, melted

Preheat oven to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Lightly spray 8 muffin cups with nonstick spray.

Combine the flour, salt, baking powder, spices, regular sugar and orange zest in a medium bowl. Crumble in the brown sugar and mix with a fork or your fingers until thoroughly combined. Place the pumpkin in a second medium bowl. Add the egg, milk and vanilla and beat with a whisk or fork until smooth. Slowly pour this mixture, along with the melted butter, into the dry ingredients.

Using a spoon or rubber spatula, stir from the bottom of the bowl until the dry ingredients are moistened. Don't overmix; a few lumps are fine. Spoon the batter into the prepared muffin tins.

Bake in the middle of the oven for 20 to 25 minutes, or until lightly browned on top and a toothpick inserted in the center of a muffin comes out clean. Remove the muffins from the tins and cool for 30 minutes on a wire rack.

Makes 8 to 10 muffins.

Oats, spinach, corn and tomatoes are blended with ground turkey and chili powder for this Southwestern meatloaf.

Meat loaf has a place in a healthful diet

As the air begins to chill, thoughts of warm kitchens and comfort foods replace those of outdoor dining and grilling.

America's favorite comfort food is probably meat loaf. But many diet-committed, health-conscious diners take if off the menu for fear of saturated fat.

Relax. You can have your meat loaf and eat it too.

The easy availability of lean ground poultry and good frozen vegetables enable cooks to produce a tasty, attractive version of mom's meat loaf.

Turkey breast is a low-fat, high-protein ingredient. Buy turkey breast ground, and you have a perfect start for your healthful meat loaf.

Something like meat loaf has been made in the cuisines of many countries for centuries. When ground meat became common and affordable, the meat loaf took firm hold as an every-day dish. Each family had its own recipe, and variations were common, depending on what was in the refrigerator and pantry.

In the 1980s, meat loaf became chic. There was Tex-Mex meat loaf, Italian meat loaf, meat loaf with sun-dried tomatoes. The point is, meat loaf can be just about anything you want it to be.

In the following recipe, oats, spinach, corn and tomatoes are blended into ground turkey, making it easier to reach your five-or-more a day goal. They also help you stretch the meat into more servings.

The spinach and the corn add color as well as nutrients as well as phytochemicals. The corn also provides a nice crunch.

Southwestern Meatloaf

1/2 cup rolled oats (not quick cooking or instant)
2 egg whites, beaten until frothy
1 can (14 ounces) diced tomatoes
11/4 pounds ground turkey
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon oregano
1 package frozen spinach, defrosted, squeezed dry and finely chopped
1/2 cup small corn kernels (frozen, canned, or fresh)
Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
1/4 cup chili sauce or ketchup

Preheat oven to 375º F.

In a large bowl, use a fork to mix together oats, egg whites and tomato. Blend in turkey, chili powder and oregano. Mix in spinach and corn until well blended. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Transfer meatloaf to an 8- by 5- by 3-inch loaf pan. Bake, uncovered, for 45 minutes. Spread chili sauce or ketchup over top. Continue baking until the juices run clear when the meatloaf is pierced with knife or the temperature in the center registers 165 degrees.

Halibut entree is simple, stylish

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The combination of steamed halibut with couscous, and a side dish of cherry tomatoes, makes an elegant presentation for entertaining guests.

But you could also serve the halibut alone for a simpler meal or vary the accompanying items.

Best of all, these dishes are quickly made – and low in fat.

This suggested main course is part of a "cooking class" feature in Cooking Light magazine's October issue, written by Donata Maggipinto, entertaining and home style contributor to NBC's The Today Show, and cookbook writer.

The message of the feature is that successful dinner parties don't have to be complicated or fussy. Keep it simple yet stylish to make a big impression.

The colorful entree is inspired by the Italian vegetable dish peperonata, which includes sweet bell peppers, garlic and onions.

Triple-Pepper Steamed Halibut

4 cups vertically sliced yellow onion
2-1/2 cups (1/2-inch strips) red bell pepper (about 2 large)
2-1/2 cups (1/2-inch strips) yellow bell pepper (about 2 large)
2-1/2 cups (1/2-inch strips) orange bell pepper (about 2 large)
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
4 garlic cloves, minced
1 cup dry white wine
1/4 cup chopped fresh basil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh oregano
Six 6-ounce halibut fillets

Heat oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium-high heat. Add onion, bell peppers, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon black pepper, and garlic; sauté 20 minutes or until tender. Stir in wine, basil and oregano; cook 1 minute. Sprinkle fish with the remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon black pepper; arrange fish over bell pepper mixture. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Makes 6 servings (serving size: 1 fillet and 3/4 cup bell pepper mixture).

Nutrition information per serving: 298 cal., 7.8 g fat (1.1 g saturated), 38.1 g pro., 18.8 g carbo., 4.8 g fiber, 54 mg chol., 394 mg sodium.

Earthy saffron is lifted by peppery green onions in this quick side dish. Serve with the halibut to soak up the tasty juices.

Saffron Couscous

2-1/4 cups fat-free, less-sodium chicken broth
1/4 teaspoon saffron threads, crushed
2 tablespoons olive oil
1-1/2 cups uncooked couscous
1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/3 cup chopped green onion tops

Bring broth to a simmer in a small saucepan. Add saffron, stirring to dissolve. Cover and keep warm.

Heat oil in a medium saucepan over medium-high heat. Add couscous; cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add broth mixture, hot sauce, salt and pepper; bring to a boil. Cover, remove from heat, and let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with a fork; stir in onions.

Makes 6 servings (serving size: 2/3 cup).

Nutrition information per serving: 212 cal., 4.8 g fat (0.7 g saturated), 6.7 g pro., 34.4 g carbo., 2.4 g fiber, 0 mg chol., 275 mg sodium.

Grape tomatoes also work well in this recipe:

Sautéed Cherry Tomatoes With Shallots

2 teaspoons olive oil
3 tablespoons finely chopped shallots (about 1 large)
4 cups cherry tomatoes
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Heat olive oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium heat. Add shallots; cook 2-1/2 minutes or until tender, stirring occasionally. Add tomatoes; cook 5 minutes or until slightly soft and thoroughly heated. Remove from heat. Stir in parsley, salt and pepper. Serve immediately.

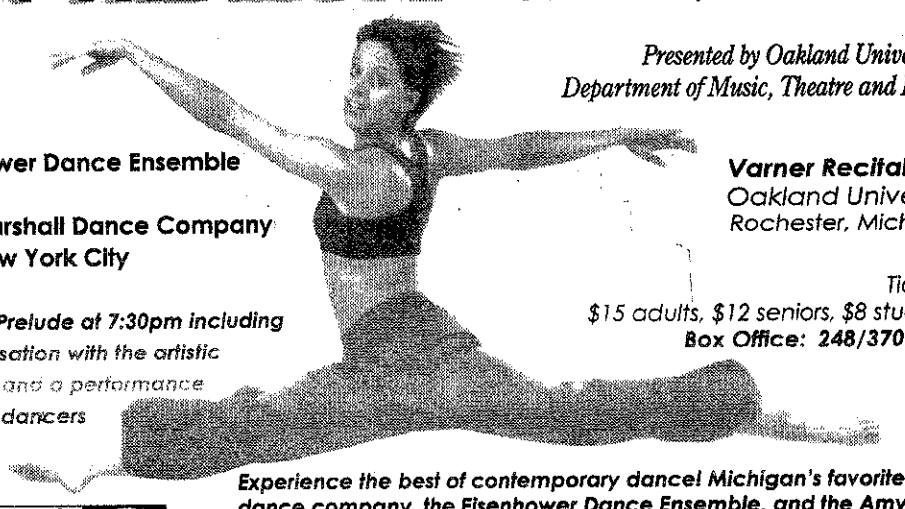

Makes 6 servings (serving size: about 1/2 cup).

Nutrition information per serving: 39 cal., 1.9 g fat (0.3 g saturated), 1.1 g pro., 5.7 g carbo., 1.2 g fiber, 0 mg chol., 206 mg sodium.

Enjoy pears, the queen of fruits

BY LEE REICH
FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

Bite into a tree-ripened pear. Yecchh! It's brown and mushy on the inside.

Pears, except for Asian pears and the Seckel variety, are among the few fruits that taste best if picked underripe, then ripened indoors.

And there is as much art to picking and ripening a pear as to growing it. Perhaps more, because pears are relatively easy to grow.

You can't pick just any unripe pear and then expect it to ripen well.

Unless the fruit is sufficiently mature, it merely shrivels without ever developing any sweetness or flavor.

One way to tell when to pick a pear is by looking at it. The skin becomes paler, but only slightly so. Even better would be to look at the raised bumps, called lenticels, on the skin; they change from white to brown as harvest approaches.

A more direct way to tell when to harvest is to lift a fruit upward, with a slight twist. If it's ready to be picked, it will readily pop off the branch.

Harvested fruit can go into storage, or else can be ripened for eating. The refrigerator is a good place to store pears, as long as you maintain high humidity by putting the pears into a plastic bag having a few holes.

Very cool, but not freezing, temperatures are ideal. Some pear varieties, such as Anjou, Bosc, Comice, Eldorado and Packhams Triumph, won't ripen unless they have been first exposed to several weeks of cool temperatures.

But don't store any pear too long or it will never ripen well. Pay as much attention to ripening a pear as to picking and storing it.

Pears need more warmth for ripening than for storage, ideally a room at temperatures between 60 and 70 degrees. Drafts should be avoided so that the ripening fruit doesn't dry out.

But don't put the fruit in a bag, or it will ripen too quickly because of a buildup of ripening gases.

The moment for eating now approaches. Check the ripening fruit almost daily by gently pressing your finger against the flesh near the stem.

When the flesh gives just a little, the time has come.

Get out the silver knife, light some candles, and experience the Queen of Fruits at her best.

The window of perfection for a ripe pear is fleeting, and if you become inundated with too many ripe fruits at once, dry them, marinate them in wine, or half and then bake them topped with a slice of Cheddar cheese.

Quick chicken dish features peppers, olives

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The simpler the better" is a phrase that's welcome to many busy cooks.

When it's followed by the words "sensational home cooking," who's not going to be avid to know more?

The whole deal is set out in the title of a new cookbook, The Simpler The Better: Sensational Home Cooking in 3 Easy Steps by Leslie Revsin (Wiley, 2004, $24.95).

Revsin is a chef, food writer and consultant, known for having been the first woman chef at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, but also as a television food-show host and author of several other cookbooks.

Revsin says she was prompted to write this book to help her daughter, the working mother of two little boys, balance her limited time with her desire to cook.

Revsin's goal for the book: "Pared-down cooking. Really good food. And no gimmicks."

So here are some 100 recipes, each of which you can make in three steps or fewer, in under 30 minutes, using readily available ingredients.

"The cooking also calls for as few pots and pans as possible," Revsin says.

"After all, why use two pots when one will get the job done?"

For the following dish, chicken, vegetables and olive oil cook under cover over very low heat.

"This simple technique creates aromatic steam, which helps keep the chicken juicy," Revsin says.

"Meanwhile, the peppers, olives, garlic and oil blend their flavors in a delicious, concentrated way."

Suggested sides: roasted or grilled summer squash, and green beans.

Chicken Breasts With Roasted Peppers, Purple Olives and Garlic

12 pitted Kalamata olives
¼ cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 cup coarsely chopped roasted red bell peppers
2 large garlic cloves, thinly sliced
3 tablespoons tomato puree
4 skinless, boneless chicken breasts, 7 ounces each

Coarsely chop olives.

Heat olive oil in a large skillet over low heat.

Stir in roasted peppers, garlic, chopped olives and tomato puree.

Season with salt and ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper. Cook, stirring occasionally, 3 to 4 minutes.

Add chicken to skillet, cover pan, and reduce heat to as low as possible.

Serve chicken hot, with sauce spooned on top.

Makes 4 servings.

Cook's tips: The quality of prepared roasted peppers varies widely.

Look for jars that contain vivid red peppers that appear firm and whole. Check the label to avoid those that have citric acid listed.

Variation: To add a little heat to the dish, sprinkle in a big pinch of hot pepper flakes as the chicken cooks.

Team up pasta with vegetables

(NAPS) There's good news for those who are passionate about pasta. Researchers and dietitians say this much-loved food is good for you – and with good reason!

■ Pasta is a low-glycemic-index (GI) food. This means it does not cause sugar in the blood to rise quickly, so consumers receive the benefits of prolonged carbohydrate absorption. Pasta has a lower GI than wheat bread and oatmeal.

■ Pasta meals are efficient delivery systems for healthy foods. Pasta should not be eaten alone but with partners such as vegetables, fish, olive oil, tomato sauce, legumes and lean cuts of poultry and meat. Pasta meals provide a wide variety of essential nutrients such as fiber, protein and vitamins.

■ Pasta does not promote weight gain when eaten in the proper portions and healthy combinations.

Pasta meals are also central to the Mediterranean diet, which is characterized by an abundant variety of fruits, vegetables, breads, pasta, whole grains, potatoes, beans, nuts and seeds, olive oil as the principal source of fat, and low to moderate consumption of fish, poultry and dairy products. The New England Journal of Medicine recently reported that the Mediterranean diet reduces the risk of death from heart disease and cancer.

To learn more about the health benefits of pasta and find more healthy recipes, visit www.ilovepasta.org.

Here's a pasta recipe that includes the appropriate proportion of carbohydrate, protein and fat to be considered a healthy pasta meal.

Penne With Chicken And Broccoli

¼ cup extra virgin olive oil
4 garlic cloves, peeled and minced
½ large onion, chopped
8 cups raw broccoli florets
1 pound skinless chicken breast, cut into 1-inch cubes
16 ounces penne
[illegible] grated
black pepper to taste
½ teaspoon salt

Bring a large pot of water to a rolling boil over high heat.

In the meantime, take medium-size saucepan and heat olive oil over medium heat. Sauté garlic and onions until translucent, careful not to brown. Add chicken pieces and thoroughly cook. When chicken is cooked, remove from heat and set aside.

In the large boiling pot, add broccoli and cook until firm yet tender. Using a slotted spoon or skimmer, remove broccoli and add to the saucepan with garlic, onion and chicken. Cook broccoli until it is completely broken down yet still green.

Return the large pot of salted water to a boil and add penne – cook according to package directions. When pasta's ready, reserve one cup of pasta water and add to broccoli mixture. Drain penne and toss into the broccoli mixture. Add grated cheese and mix. Serve immediately on individual dishes and top with fresh ground pepper to taste. Approximately two cups per serving. Makes eight servings.

Uniformly enforce sign prohibition

Some of the residents in our condominium want to put up political signs and there is a prohibition on signs except for "for sale" signs. Can we make an exception for them during this political season?

Unless the board of directors has the authority to approve certain types of signs, you should not vary from the restrictions that prohibit signs except for "for sale" signs. If you allow one political sign, you are going to have to allow all political signs and you may be setting a precedent by allowing any political signs. You are best advised to review your documents with your association attorney and if there is a strict prohibition on political signs, then you should strictly and uniformly enforce it.

We have an unusual problem in our clubhouse in that we rented it to one of our co-owners who we understand is planning on showing adult movies. We are concerned about the precedent being established. What do you suggest we do?

You have to look at your condominium documents or rules and regulations to determine whether or not there are any prohibitions on that type of activity and determine whether you think it is "immoral or offensive." That is a difficult issue to decide and you may not have the right to enforce that against the co-owners. You should, obviously, establish rules and regulations concerning who can attend the clubhouse during this event to the extent possible and consider passing rules and regulations in the future concerning what the clubhouse can be used for in connection with its rental to or usage by residents.

Getting a third opinion saved sale, ash trees

BY NORMAN PRADY
CORRESPONDENT

As the old saying might go today, "Don't count your emerald ash borers before they're hatched."

Fact is, you see, you might not have any. And not having them could be a factor in the sale of a house. Just ask John Bond.

Bond is a sales agent with Max Brook Realtors, Birmingham. He had a listing on a house for sale in Troy. A nice house, he said. A 1970s house of about 2,400 square feet perched on a nicely wooded one-acre lot. His own house, actually, where he and his wife had lived for a couple of years.

But back to all those trees.

"Are those ash trees?" a potential buyer asked Bond.

"Uh," Bond said he told the looker. "I don't really know."

If they were ash trees, Bond said he thought at the time, he might lose the sale. He knew the customer was interested in the house. What to do? Were these trees infested with agrilus planipennis, the little critter, just slightly wider than a ball-point pen, that's been destroying ash trees throughout southeastern lower Michigan?

"Yep," a tree expert told Bond. "Ash borers. Got to cut them all down."

"Yep," another tree expert told Bond. "Ash borers. Got to cut them all down."

"Nope," tree expert Terence Riess said. "The marks you see on your trees are gouges made by the climbing spikes used by the tree trimmers you had here last year."

No agrilus planipennis gouges. But Bond, who no longer wanted to be home at this home, still wasn't home free. He was an eager home seller and he had an eager home buyer at hand.

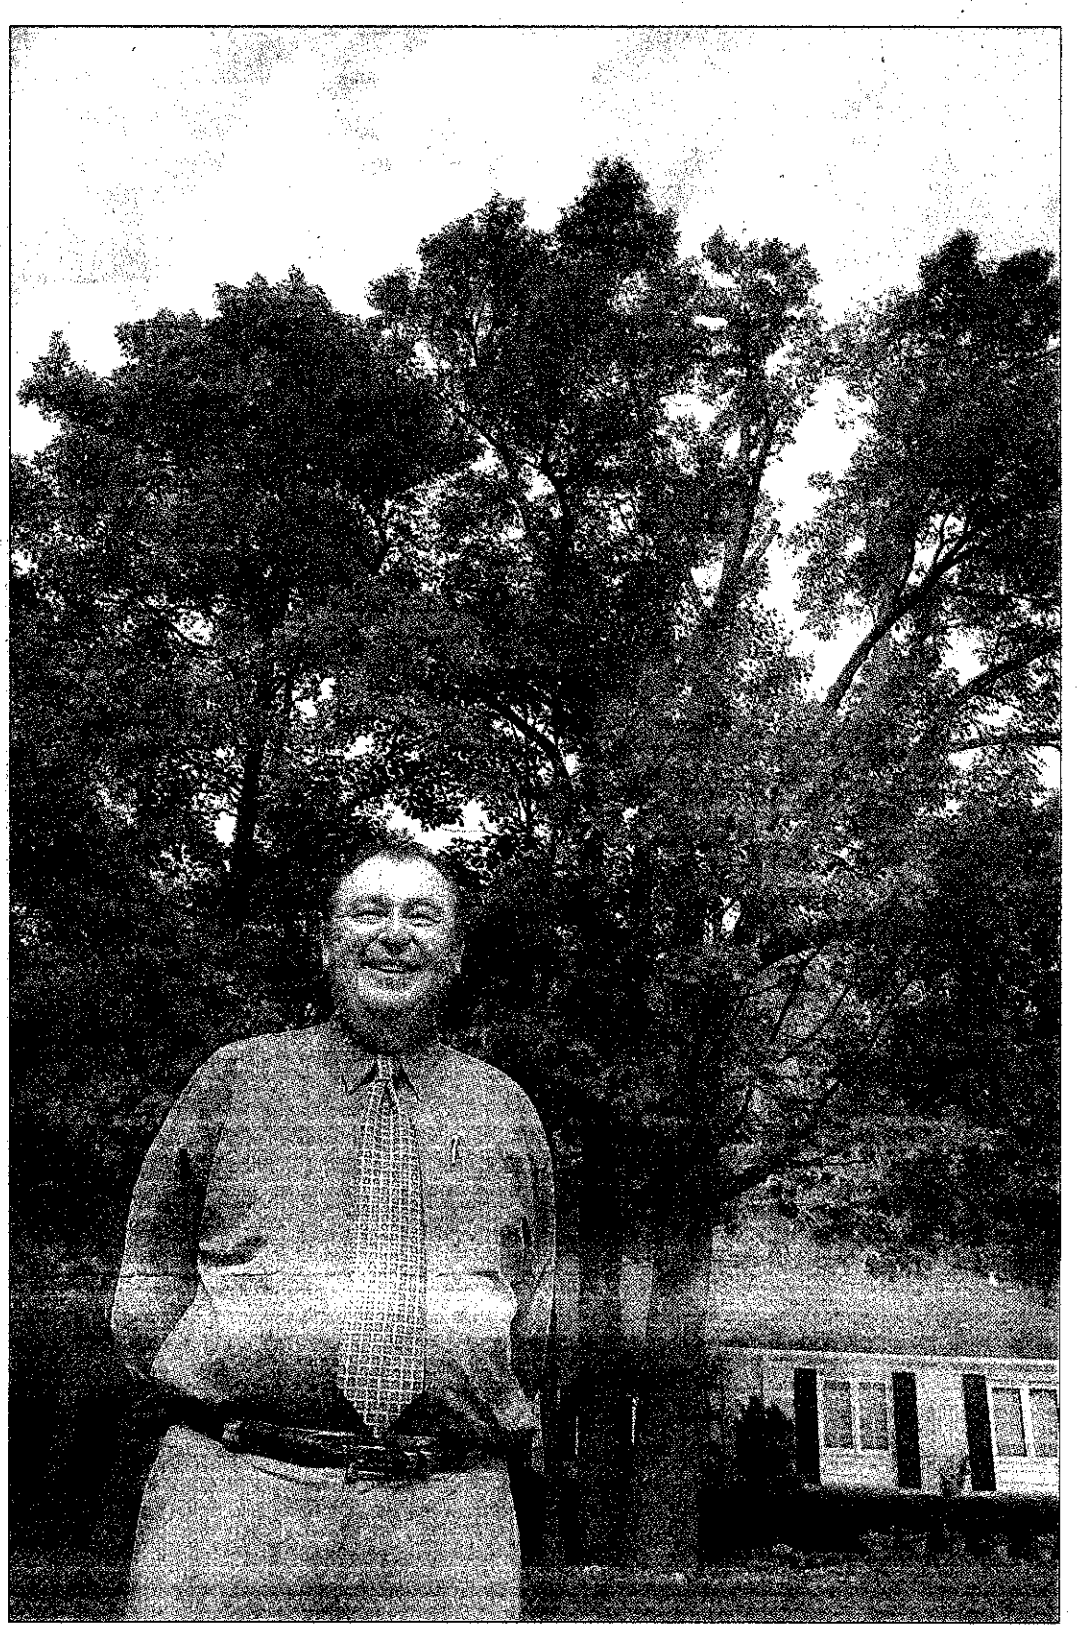

Sale and purchase of this $450,000 house literally hung on the branches of the 13 ash trees scattered about the property. Some of the trees, Bond said, were estimated at 75 years, seedlings when the stock market crashed in 1929.

Riess, who operates Innovative Tree Care with offices in Shelby Township and Troy, climbed Bond's ash trees, using ropes instead of spikes, and reported that his inspection with magnifying glass told him they were not infested.

One of the smaller trees, he said, had some other health problem that could possibly make it susceptible to an invasion of the wood snatchers. It ought to come down, he told Bond.

Riess then treated the healthy trees with approved therapeutic chemicals, a process the new homeowner will have to follow annually. Cost, he said, is about $100 per tree, which compares favorably to his cost to remove trees — from $150 to $10,000 each, depending on a tree's location on the property and any impediments, such as terrain features or power lines.

Lesson learned, Bond said, is to find out the truth about the condition of your ash trees before you reach for the saw. But doing nothing, he said, could even be worse.

John Bond's persistence saved these emerald ash trees, some 75 years old, on the property of his former home in Troy.

Learn more about the emerald ash borer

"The emerald ash borer was discovered in Michigan in May 2002," according to the Michigan State University Extension Service Web site. "It probably was introduced into the state at least five years previously from Asia, its native origin. The insect kills ash trees by destroying the tree's water- and nutrient-conducting vessels."

In their native country, Terence Riess of Innovative Tree Care said, the bugs have natural predators that keep them in check, but none here. He said woodpeckers are attracted to the insects, but by the time you see woodpeckers on your ash trees, it's too late.

If the spread of ash borers continues, Riess said, it could go as far west as the Mississippi River with the potential of destroying an estimated 50 billion ash trees in the eastern U.S.

Trees affected, Riess said, include the white, black and green ash. The mountain ash, a decorative tree with clusters of red berries in autumn, is a different species and not susceptible to this problem, he said.

More information and aid in identifying ash trees can be found at:

- www.na.fs.fed.us/spfo/eab — The United States Forest Service offers an image gallery showing the insect and its work, both in various stages, and information about treatments.
- www.michigan.gov/mda — The Michigan Department of Agriculture offers extensive information about the problem.
- www.msue.msu/reg — Michigan State University Extension Service offers background information and up-to-date reports on developments in the fight. It was at MSU that the critter, new to this country, got its American name, emerald ash borer, given by Dr. Deb McCullough and Dr. David L. Roberts.

'Hard-money' lenders invest in 'risky business'

Sources for mortgage money become scarce with damaged credit and scores at or below 500 points. Traditional lenders have no interest in such "risky business," and even a rich uncle may decide not to return phone calls. Well, believe it or not, there is a small group of lenders who will ignore severe credit problems and financial ailments-and they actually want to return calls.

These unconventional mortgage lenders are called "hard-money" lenders. (And it's not because they collect payments with baseball bats.) These lenders loan money that is invested by people – like a rich uncle – who choose to use these specialized mortgages as investment vehicles.

Hard money mortgage companies are often willing to bail people out based on the strength of their property, not based on their strength as borrowers – or lack thereof. They handle all aspects of the mortgage transaction, and they do so in strict compliance with governing statutes.

Hard money lenders become increasingly valuable to borrowers with more dire situations. They can often even save homeowners who are at the tail end of a foreclosure process.

HIGH INTEREST RATES

"Bailouts are not cheap," says Trent Dalrymple, vice president of private lending at Northwestern Financial Corporation in Livonia. "Our private investors who make this money available usually command a high rate of return resulting in mortgage interest rates ranging from 12 to 17 percent for a short-term loan. After borrowers pick themselves up off the floor, they quickly come to realize that it's a small price to pay to save their homes and their equity."

Since home equity is a hard-money lender's only security, borrowers normally need at least 35 percent equity in their homes to be candidates. For example, for a home valued at $100,000, most will loan no more than $65,000.

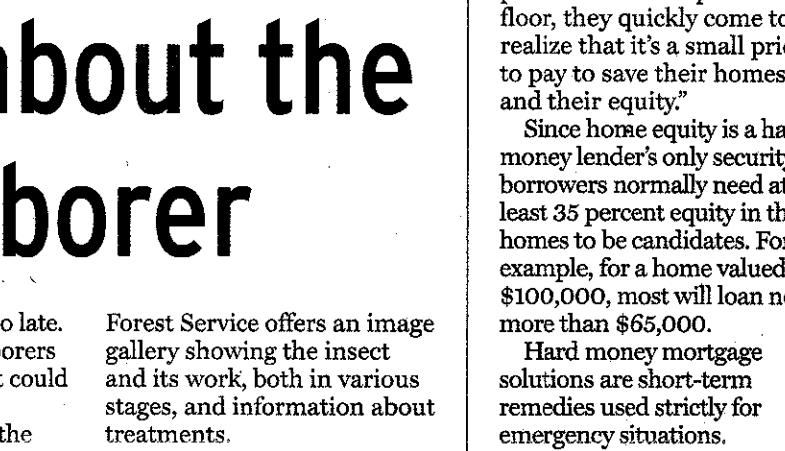

Hard money mortgage solutions are short-term remedies used strictly for emergency situations. Hopefully, you will never need hard money, but isn't it nice to know that you do, in fact, have a "rich uncle" that may help you from becoming homeless?

Mortgage rates continue to fall

BY JEANNINE AVERSA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rates on 30-year and 15-year mortgages fell to the lowest levels seen in six months, good news for people wanting to buy a home or refinance.

Freddie Mac, in its weekly, nationwide survey, reported Thursday, Oct. 21 that rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 5.69 percent for the week ending Oct. 21. That was down from 5.74 percent the previous week.

Rates on 30-year mortgages hit a high this year of 6.34 percent the week of May 13. Then during the late spring and early summer, rates slowly drifted downward as economic activity cooled, easing fears about inflation. However, since late August, rates have been exhibiting a seesaw pattern as markets responded to a variety of mixed signals on economic growth.

"Treasury bond yields eased somewhat this week, causing long-term mortgage rates to drift a little lower from last week," said Frank Nothaft, Freddie Mac's chief economist.

For 15-year, fixed-rate mortgages, a popular option for refinancing, rates dropped to 5.07 percent, compared with 5.14 percent the previous week.

Rates for 30-year and 15-year mortgages were the lowest since the beginning of April, when they averaged 5.52 percent and 4.84 percent respectively.

For one-year adjustable rate mortgages, however, rates edged up to 4.02 percent, from 4.01 percent.

The nationwide averages for mortgage rates do not include add-on fees known as points. Thirty-year and one-year ARMs each carried a 0.7 point fee. Fifteen-year mortgages had a 0.6 point fee.

A year ago, rates on 30-year mortgages averaged 6.05 percent with 15-year mortgages at 5.36 percent and one-year ARMs at 3.79 percent.

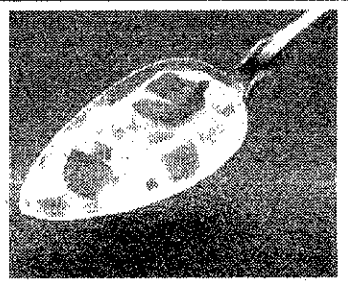

Home sales are expected to hit record highs this year, aided by low mortgage rates.

The Mortgage Bankers Association said refinancing accounted for 45.6 percent of all home mortgage applications filed, up from 44.5 percent the previous week. Overall home-mortgage applications also were up from the week before.

"Lower mortgage rates, in turn, caused mortgage application activity to increase last week in both the refinance and home-purchase sectors," Nothaft said.

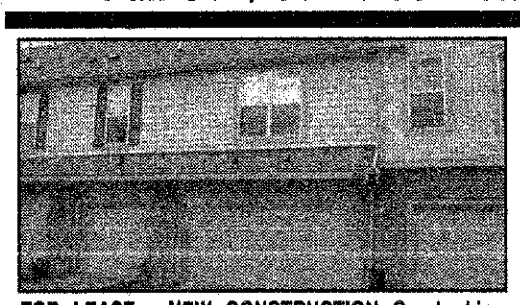

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, in a speech earlier this week, said the record level of debt being carried by American households and soaring home prices do not appear to represent serious threats to the U.S. economy.

Hurricanes throw Florida housing market into turmoil

BY VICKIE CHACHERE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Riding out the ferocious winds of Hurricane Charley in their ranch house, the Tanay family made a decision: they were moving.

The Tanays had come to Florida from New Jersey seeking a small-town atmosphere for their four children, but were becoming disillusioned with the hustle and bustle of their rapidly growing community. When Charley blew through town on Aug. 13 and left the area in shambles, that was all they needed to begin looking elsewhere.

"The hurricane definitely pushed us to make our decision sooner," said Joe Tanay, a home construction project manager.

In the aftermath of the state's four devastating hurricanes this year, Florida homeowners and real estate agents are nervously watching how the storms will affect the state's red-hot housing market.

After Hurricane Andrew slammed into south Miami-Dade County in August 1992, about 75,000 residents in Homestead moved out. While the conditions this year are somewhat different, some real estate experts expect there will be homeowners who will eventually make their evacuations permanent.

Whatever affect this year's storms might have, it will be short lived, most experts predict. Despite the exodus from Homestead, new residents have flocked back to area, attracted by affordable homes built to higher safety standards and other amenities in the rebuilt community.

This year's storms have already caused a slowdown in building, delayed closings and complicated the process of obtaining homeowners insurance. But the long-term effects of Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne are less than certain.

Most don't expect the storms to permanently affect the value of Florida real estate, which is among the most rapidly appreciating in the United States.

Because property transactions typically take weeks or months to complete, it's impossible to statistically track which way the trend is going.

Here are some tips for finding a Realtor from the National Association of Realtors.

■ Use the "Find a Realtor" search engine at www.Realtor.com on the National Association of Realtors Web site to find individuals who actively sell in your community

■ Get recommendations from past sellers

■ Look for Realtor signs in your community

Ask these questions:

■ What services do you offer?

■ What experience do you have in my immediate area?

■ How would you price my home? Ask about recent home sales and comparable properties currently on the market.

■ How will you market my home?

■ What is your fee?

The New 2005 Mazda 6

Advertising Feature

Thursday DriveTime

BY DALE BUSS

The Mazda 6 is built at The Ford Motor Co. - Mazda joint - venture plant in Flat rock, Michigan.

Over the last few years, Mazda has managed to make the "Zoom, zoom, zoom!" slogan of its advertising stick in America's popular imagination. More than that, the tag line and Mazda's energetic TV commercials depicting its cars zipping all over the place have helped to create an expectation that Mazda vehicles are going to be runabouts.

At least that's what I expected when I got into the sleek-looking 2005 Mazda 6 that I drove recently. And I wasn't disappointed: the 6 might be the most fun "ordinary" sedan that I can recall driving in a long while. It's stylish and "young" looking to this baby boomer; is sumptuous enough on the inside; and offers performance and handling that give the driver confidence – as well as the fun. Moreover, at manufacturer's suggested retail prices ranging from the high teens to the mid-twenties, Mazda 6 offers all of this at a very accessible price.

Actually, overall, the 6 reminds me of my first impressions of the Honda Accord when they emerged on the American market in a big way in the early Eighties. They were sleek; they were crisp; and their responsive power plant made them a far sight better than any American-made competitor in the segment. All of that made Accord bring a smile to my face.

Ever since its trailblazing rotary engine of a generation ago, Mazda's heritage also largely has been about powertrains. The 6 is a descendant of the vehicle that really put Mazda on the map in the American market for something else: the 626, a clean, crisply styled sedan that debuted in the United States in 1979 and was redesigned in 1983. Mazda redesigned 626 every five years until the 6 – bearing a new name, including new engines and boasting a sleek new design, as well as an attention-getting advertising campaign – debuted in 2003.

The 6 is available as a sedan, wagon or four-door hatchback. The sedan I drove presented a pleasing, wedge-shaped design that is common to all models.

I also liked the flattened triangular shape of the 6's grille, a sleek alternative to the in-your-face latticework on so many new models such as the Chrysler 300 series. The version I drove also sported 17-inch allowy wheels, sport-type front and rear bumpers, boss-looking oval exhaust outlets and a rear spoiler.

But by far, my favorite aspect of the 6 is the engine and transmission in the manual-shift sport version that I drove. It was powered by a potent 220-horsepower, 3.0-liter V6 engine, an advanced, all-aluminum, 24-valve design that utilizes variable valve timing to maximize low-end torque. Mileage is in the low 20s for highway driving. The five-speed manual gearbox has what Mazda calls a "double-cone synchronizer" for "direct, quick shifts."

Whatever. All I noticed is that the 6 was a joy to drive, the power more than ample in every driving situation and the shifting silky smooth, even to the point where passengers barely objected to my driving!

Ditto for the 6's sure-footed suspension, a double-wishbone design that is complemented by four-wheel disc brakes. On the recent rainy weekend when I drove the car (including some precious human cargo) all over, I retained utmost confidence in the 6's handling integrity in wet conditions and in stop-and-go traffic.

Inside its vehicles, Mazda has come a long way as well, and the 6 exemplified that. Audio and climate controls are easy to understand with several big knobs to make for easy tactile control without the driver's having to search the whole instrument panel visually just to turn up the temperature a notch.

The black, leather interior of the version I drove was very comfortable, even luxurious, laid out in a clean and contemporary design, although the materials maybe weren't quite up to snuff with some competitors'. Some reviewers have complained about the 6's rear-seat space, but during several trips back there I was utterly comfortable. Perhaps rear-seat space might become an issue on a long trip. Trunk capacity was ample, and a 60/40 rear-split seat folds to expand the 17.6-cubic-foot trunk if necessary in the sedan.

Mazda has come a long way, and 6 displays this advance perhaps better than any other vehicle. Plus it's built at the Ford Motor Co.-Mazda joint-venture plant in Flat Rock, Mich. All in all, there's good reason to put the 2005 Mazda 6 on your short list if you're purchasing or leasing a mid-size sedan.
